A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

VOL. III.—No. 53. SATURDAY, 1st JANUARY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered as the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE 1st JANUARY 1876.

As we gaze thro' months to come
Before our eyes the pathless Future reaches;
Expected weal will fructify for some,
And some will learn the moral Sorrow teaches;
To Brethren dear, whose hopes are soaring high,
The year beams, as with Gladness' oil anointed;
Others may think the months too loth to fly
And linger, disappointed.

But let us commence, at least,
With kindly sympathy for every Fellow;
From high to low, alike in work or feast
'Tis Love, Relief and Truth, our lives that mellow.
Around us, tho' the raging tide may roar
And groan with wrongs our fondest hopes forsaking,
Yet still—above the tesselated floor
We see a Glory breaking!

Mark the Symbols of the time—
The sacred Lights an op'ning heav'n revealing!
Whilst upright flag-staffs plumb each unknown clime,
Unwilling Nature's secrets all unsealing.
A giant change this year may yet record
Of unveil'd Truth supplanting crook'd tradition,
Evangelists of Science are abroad—
God speed them on their mission!

See the Argo of the age,
"Enquiry," into further realms advancing!
Where Art and Science peaceful conquest wage,
There Craftsmen's keen and practised eyes are glancing!
See Sion's rocks, thro' ages hid from sight,
Since Judah's daughters left the threshhold weeping,
There and where'er a Truth is bared to light,
The Craftsmen watch are keeping!

Each year records a change
Of landscape, past which all mankind are marching:
The "Promised Land" before us spreads its range,
And desert tracks lie bare behind us parching.
One day, our hosts into that land must pour,
The Level true on all our ranks descending;
Envy and War will then be known no more Brotherly Love offending.

Then turn with the New Year!
And mark the right of every step before us:
With perfect points our entrance should appear
Beneath th' All-Seeing Eye that watches o'er us!
A sacred symbol we can all discern:
Keep to the road (or quicksands nigh may swamp us),
In Fellowship and Love, to live and learn
BETWEEN THE SQUARE AND COMPASS.

Walter Spencer.

SOME OBJECTIONS TO MASONRY CONSIDERED.

IT has more than once occurred to us there has been, on the part of those who have shown themselves the persistent enemies of our Order, not only a great deal of disingenuousness, but also a remarkable absence of ingenuity and originality in the charges they have made. We are continually being told that we are the enemies of all religion, yet the published Constitutions of the Order require of every member, on joining, a distinct and emphatic declaration of his belief in one Omnipotent, and Omniscient Being. Similarly, it has been argued against us that we are the enemies of order, yet the Constitutions contain an equally emphatic injunction on all Masons to respect and obey the laws, not only of their own country, but of that also in which they may be momentarily resident. Thus there are Masons in Russia, but they yield an unhesitating obedience to the Ukase, published by the Emperor Alexander I., in 1822, forbidding strictly the holding of Masonic Lodges. These are the principal charges adduced against us, and they are repeated again and again, with a malevolence only equalled by their utter untruth. Again, we have been told, and the charge was more than once repeated in the course of the year, which ended yesterday, that in seeking the countenance of the high and mighty in the land, we are guilty of an act of flunkeyism. We enlist the sympathies of kings, princes, and nobles, and invite them to preside over our destinies, not because we feel any great respect for them, but on the principle which animates many a sovereign ricke to grovel at the feet of a lordling, simply because he has a handle to his name. Thus the enthusiasm of English Masons, when the Prince of Wales accepted the Grand Mastership of England, was more than once, and in more than one quarter, described as a gross display of flunkeyism. We cared little, it was said, about his fitness for the post. We had caught a live prince, heir apparent to the British Crown, and were guilty, accordingly, of any amount of obsequiousness. It was overlooked that three generations of the Prince's ancestors had been Masons before him. His great-great-grandfather, Frederick Prince of Wales, his great-granduncles of Cumberland and Gloucester, his grandfather and granduncles were Masons, while three members of his family had held the position of Grand Master, the last of them having died as recently as 1843. Thus the Prince had, if we may be permitted to say so, an hereditary claim, not only to become a member of our Order were he so minded, and subject to the conditions imposed equally on all candidates, but being so minded, and having fulfilled those conditions, to hold a prominent, and, as it happens, the most prominent position in our English section of the Craft. There was no flunkeyism, when once he had entered our ranks, in assigning him, in the first instance, the position he was entitled to, and then in inviting him to be our chief, when he was already patron or chief of nearly every other Masonic body in the United Kingdom. The charge was a silly one to make, and there are silly people who will believe it because it has been made, but as to this view of the charge, or to this class of persons, we have nothing further to say. There might have been some sense in urging that those who first assigned the Mason Princes of the English Royal family a position in the Order, not unworthy of their august rank in the outer world, achieved a grand stroke of policy, and that modern Masons have exhibited much wisdom in imitating the example set them by their predecessors. The charge is not made against other societies which may number His Royal Highness among their members or patrons, and there are grounds for presuming that it is urged against Masonry by those who detest us without reason, and find it incumbent on them to offer some sort of apology for their hatred. Nor must we overlook the inconsistency of this charge with the more serious one referred to at the outset, that we are the enemies of religion and of order. It is very unlikely that a body, professedly irreligious, and opposed to any and every form of government, would exhibit any respect or deference for one of princely rank, simply because he was a prince. There is no religion with the teaching of which we have any acquaintance which does not inculcate loyalty to those in high places, and how we can be the enemies of order, and at the same time exhibit an undue regard for men of rank is an anomaly we shall not try to explain. But, say a good many people, you Masons believe in liberty, equality and fraternity. We not only believe in, but strive earnestly to practise, this triad of virtues, but not in the cant sense which too many ascribe to them. We believe in the right of every man to follow the dictates of his own conscience, in matters religious and political. He may be, as regards the former, a Christian, Jew, Mohammedan, or what not; as regards the latter, a Monarchist or a Republican. It is immaterial to Masonry what his views are, the one restriction we impose being that he shall believe in some one religion, and act obediently to the laws of the country, whatever form they may assume. As to our fraternity, we need say little. We regard each other as brethren, and seek to behave one towards another in a spirit of brotherly love. As to our equality, the second in order of the triad, but which we have purposely reserved till last, how, it is sometimes asked, can there be any real equality when there are in Masonry as many well defined gradations of rank as in the different empires and kingdoms of the earth? We think we shall fairly illustrate the Masonic idea of equality by giving a brief sketch of a capital story, culled from one of the best known and most popular novels of the late Captain Marryat. In his Midshipman Easy, the hero is son of a crack-brained enthusiast, who doubtless regarded himself as a philosopher. This enthusiast "goes in" for equality, and the rights of man, and young Jack Easy is nothing loath to follow his father's teachings. Of the many scrapes he gets into in his boyhood in attempting to carry this ridiculous theory into practice we say nothing. He is continually in hot water with his neighbours, and at length comes to the conclusion, that he will go to sea, as the only place where he is ever likely to find perfect equality. He is accordingly entered as a midshipman on board one of His Majesty's ships, commanded by a Captain Wilson, a friend or distant relation of his father's. He has hardly got on board ere he begins to "ventilate" his novel theory. He does this even in the sacred precincts of the Captain's state cabin, and at dinner, before all the officers, who are, of course, struck dumb with astonishment at his effrontery. Captain Wilson, however, takes Jack's remarks very good naturedly, at the same time he is careful to point out at an early opportunity the only kind of equality which is to be found on board of ship. Thus argues Captain Wilson:—the captain, the officers and the crew, are all equally bound by the articles of war. The Captain, though supreme in his own ship, must obey the admiral or chief officer of the squadron. The latter carries out the instructions of the Admiralty, the Admiralty is responsible to the King. Then the first lieutenant, who is responsible for the ship, and the master, who is responsible for its navigation, take their orders from the Captain, the other officers from these, while the men must obey implicitly their officers. In this respect all on board ship, from the captain to the powder monkey, enjoy a perfect equality. The exposition pleases Jack, who grows into a fine fellow, becomes a great favorite with officers and men, and has the sense to see the difference between the equality which is possible and the absurd kind of equality preached by his father. To apply the parable to Masonry. Every member of the Fraternity, from the Grand Master himself down to the very last initiate, is bound to observe the landmarks. Strict obedience to the law, both written and unwritten, is required equally of all Masons. Grand Lodge lays down the law in accordance with the Constitutions. Private Lodges are subordinate to Grand Lodge. The W.M. is absolute in his own Lodge, but he must obey the Constitutions. The Wardens take their instructions from him. The members obey the Master. Thus, as Captain Wilson, his officers and crew, were all equally bound by the articles of war, so Grand Lodge, Private Lodges, and the W.M.'s, wardens, and members composing them, are equally bound by the Constitutions. In other respects, too, Masons enjoy perfect equality. They must all be members of some religious persuasion; they must all obey the civil authorities; they must all lead moral lives and practise those virtues which Masonry enjoins. All, too, are on the same footing as brothers. But the false equality which silly theorists propound, the equality which recognises no gradation of rank, no difference of station, which would have all men do exactly as they like, without reference to the common good, such equality exists no more in Masonry than elsewhere. As Masons, the prince and the peasant are on one and the same footing, but Masonry does not ignore the difference in station between the two. The prince as G.M. and the peasant as M.M. are equally Masons, but the latter obeys the former, and were their relative positions in Masonry reversed, the former would obey the latter, because the law prescribes obedience to the Master as ruler of the Craft. Thus the government of our Order by a prince of the blood is no more destructive of our equality than is the government of the United Kingdom, by Queen Victoria destructive of the equality of British citizens, or than that of the United States by President Grant is destructive of the equal rights of American citizens. In the sense we have indicated, our motto is assuredly "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity." We have shown, too, there is nothing inconsistent with this in having men of rank to rule over us, while the charge of flunkeyism in electing a Prince to guide the destinies of the Craft has no basis whatever, and could only have been brought against us by persons determined to attack, regardless of decency and consistency. We think we have said enough to prove the unreality of certain objections to Freemasonry. We may express our views on these and other points in later issues, but for the present we have gone as far as is necessary in defence of our Order.

THE KNIGHT ERRANT.

He who imagines that the spirit of chivalry has disappeared from society must be but a poor observer of men and manners. Men do not, indeed, in these days, don armour and roam over the world in search of adventures; no enthusiast in pursuance of a rash vow insists upon breaking a lance with every equal that chance throws in his way, nor do staid beings of the masculine gender make it their especial business to fight for the weak and the helpless. Yet the spirit of chivalry remains in the midst of us. Many a man who does not wear golden spurs or knightly armour is fully entitled to take rank with the glorious heroes of the past. The knight errant of these days perhaps might compare unfavourably with his ancient prototype in mere appearance. A suit of plate or mail, covered with a white surcoat, forms a costume beside which the black frock of these modern days looks positively prosaic, if not barbarous. But, if we forget the mere paraphernalia of the knights of the past, and regard only the essentials of knighthood, we shall be inclined to think that many of the men around us would, in earlier and more warlike times, have shone in the lists and in the tented field. Courage, gentleness, simplicity, devotion to duty, unselfishness and perseverance are attributes which are not so uncommon that we have to search far to find them united in the person of some plain, unpretending son of Adam.

Modern society, with its complex relations, affords a man who is inclined to be chivalrous ample scope to indulge his tastes and fancies. Although there are no giants to encounter, or dragons to be slain, nor indeed any necessity for the modern knight errant to carry a butchering tool on his thigh, there are yet evils to be remedied and wrongs to be righted—in short, work enough to engage the attention of a legion possessed of the calm courage of Amadis de Gaul, or the enthusiasm of Bayard. Let us grant, indeed, at once, that society in its blind selfishness, usually regards the modern knight errant as a dreamer and an enthusiast. The purer a man's motives may be, the less easy it is for grovelling natures to understand him. The vulgar theory that every man has his price, or, in other words, that men do not work for society without a selfish motive, is too commonly entertained by persons who would at once disclaim for themselves all thought of ministering to the wants of their fellows. Purity of heart, benevolence, and charity, these people do not understand; and if we were to introduce to their notice the Masonic knight errant whose virtues have inspired the foregoing reflections, they would understand him as little. Yet, our knight has done valiant deeds, which fully entitle him to wear the golden spurs. His armour and shield, if we may be permitted the use of a figure of speech, bear marks of many a passage of arms in which he has gallantly upheld the cause of truth and Masonry. At this moment, he is preparing to break a lance with doughty warriors on the other side of the Atlantic; the coming melée is, however, but a mere interlude in his busy life; and, between the episodes of lance breaking, he finds time to continue those great labours which have made him famous throughout the Order. Our knight errant's most trusty weapon, we need scarcely say, is the pen. He has written and has edited many works, and is a diligent contributor to the Masonic press at home and abroad. His "Charges" and "Memorials" are widely known and appreciated. With the prosaic and the practical portion of the fraternity, he might pass for a dreamer. He possesses, indeed, a poetic nature, though we are not aware that he has given any outward manifestation of it in verse. All the so-called dreamers and enthusiasts are essentially poetical. The half truth to a dull mind becomes to their mental vision a fully-developed and glorious reality, opening up vistas of distant fields of conquest or new ideas for study and reflection.

Our knight errant has turned over the musty pages of the past in search of antiquarian lore, and has written learnedly upon those abstruse historical questions in connection with Masonry which have exercised the minds of many of the brightest members of the fraternity. He is a philanthropist in the widest acceptation of the term, and never speaks or writes without an eye to an ulterior object, which is the good of his fellow men. Although a controversialist by nature, no man with whom we are acquainted is more tolerant of the opinions of his fellows. The noble English spirit of fair play predominates in his mind, and although he can strike an opponent hard, he never takes an unfair advantage, or spurs in hot pursuit of the vanquished. He holds strong opinions on social questions not connected with Masonry, but he never attempts to thrust these upon his friends. The expression of strong opinions in rude language forms one of the nuisances of the day. The man who lacks culture always imagines that he is in duty bound to proselytise upon all occasions, and it is only refined minds who know how to keep silence upon questions which deeply affect the welfare of humanity. He who can say a true thing at the proper moment may be accounted sufficiently discreet, but he who knows how and when to be silent may be regarded as truly wise. Our knight errant, as becomes his rank in chivalry, has taken a high place in the ranks of Masonry; a mere list of his honours and titles, and of the Lodges with which he is connected, would fill a column. The Masons of the United States have honoured themselves by including him in the rank of their distinguished members. His pen has influenced many of the Masonic thinkers on the other side of the Atlantic, and whatever he writes always receives respectful attention. Amongst the brethren in this country, no man is better known or more widely respected. He is a member of Grand Lodge, and holds the rank of P.G.S.D. of England. The Lodges of the Western counties owe much to his active exertions and wise administration. He accounts nothing a toil which may conduce to the good of the Order, and is as ready to compile a mass of statistics as he is to prepare an essay or a volume. We have before us, at this moment, some statistical work of his in relation to the Province of Cornwall, which exhibits great labour. It is merely one of many of the papers our industrious brother is in the habit of throwing off as occasion demands, and in his estimation it contains nothing remarkable. Our knight errant is no gloomy ascetic, but a social being, who can be gay in the company of his fellow creatures. For the mere festive aspect of Masonry he has no regard; he does not, indeed, object to an occasional dinner, but he dislikes and sets his face against large expenditure upon the mere pleasures of the table when so much practical good might be done with the cash which goes to pay for banquets. As a Vice-President of the Masonic Institution for Boys, and Life Governor of the other great Charities, he is deeply anxious that every available source of revenue should be laid under contribution for the benefit of the orphan and the distressed. In this respect, indeed, our knight errant shows himself to be a thoroughly practical Mason; his speculative studies having in no wise blunted his feelings or closed his heart against the claims of the poor.

In the world our knight is known as a first-rate man of business, and holds a place of high trust and confidence in a noted firm in the west of England. In his domestic relations he is an affectionate husband, and is untiring in his devotion to the amiable lady who is his wife. How much or how highly they are both respected in the social circle in which they move it is not for us to say. It is not our business to lift the veil which conceals the private virtues of those who frequent our studio. It is with his public career that we have to do, and that career affords matter for many and sage reflections, if it were our aim to conclude these sketches with a moral. The obvious lesson of a life like his may, however, be learned and applied by the dullest reader. Our knight has spent his strength and his skill fighting for a good cause. His reward here is the respect of all good men, and the approval of his own conscience. He has yet battles to fight and victories to win; the day indeed, may come, when he must put off his armour and hang his sword on the wall like a veteran whose duty is done. That day is, however, still distant; as far as human foresight can judge, he is yet destined to do knightly service for the cause he has at heart.

"Arm thee, Sir Knight, and lay thy lance in rest,
There is war i' the air; armies fight i' the sky:
A flaming sword sweeps yon arch of azure;
The shouts of phantom foemen ring in our ears.
Arouse, and arm: cover thy breast with steel,
And thy head with plumed adamant.
Thy trade is Danger, and there are toils in store."

EAST, WEST AND SOUTH.

BY A WANDERING FREEMASON.

V.

NOW, when all the Dailys are teeming with reports by their specials, of the reception of the Prince of Wales by the towns of India, of salutes, processions, inaugurations, State dinners, balls, and spectacles of all sorts, my mind naturally reverts to somewhat similar doings on a smaller scale, which were once on a time set going in a distant land, to do all honour to his brother, Prince Alfred.

It has, moreover, been my lot to participate in not a few gorgeous spectacles, in countries where State ceremonials, of European routine, have been enacted with barbaric pomp: officially representing our flag in some of them—a victim in buttoned uniform under a tropical sky.

In November 1869, I was stationed, as H.M.'s Vice-Consul, at Manila, a place known to fame chiefly by its cigars, and had just got steadied after a lively earthquake, during which I had to stride wide like a pair of compasses, swaying to and fro with the ground, and an interesting hurricane, such as this week has been again announced from that quarter.

Consular duties—Notarial and Marine—include also the taking of evidence and committal for offences, varying from pitch and toss (in a leaky ship) to manslaughter or murder. The Foreign Office, the Board of Trade, the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, the Admiralty, and the Governors of the nearest Colonies, amongst others, are being constantly communicated with. But perhaps the following dialogue will best illustrate the more usual sample of the business in my office.

J. Johnson, A. B.: "I was just coilin' away a rope's end by the scuppers, yer Worshup, when he cum and put his foot right in the middle of it, and when I says, 'Bill, will you just 'ave the kindness to move, because I can't go on coilin' away the rope while your foot's in it,' he says, 'You —— lubber, take that,' and guv me over the head with a belayin'-pin."

W. Williams, A. B.: "I was goin' aloft, Sir, by the mate's orders, which he'll bear me out in wot I say, when Jack says to me, 'You ——, you call yourself smart; you ought to 'ave stayed at 'ome rockin' cradles, instead o' goin' to sea,' and laid a rope's-end across me as I was goin' up. And so says I, Jack, you know that's very wrong, a aggervatin' of me so, and then a hittin' of me, I shall 'ave to go aft and report you! With that, Sir, he 'it me again, and 'is foot slipped, and he fell against the bulwarks, and hurt hisself."

The Duke of Edinburgh's visit to Manila had been long announced, and orders had come from Spain to receive him with the most gorgeous disregard of expense. Not long before, proposals had appeared in some of the Madrid journals, advocating his nomination for the vacant throne, which was condescendingly kept warm just then by Serrano. The Governor-General announced a State ball and a review. He had re-decorated his country house, but the earthquake shook it to pieces, and the mansion of the Count Aviles—a private gentleman, was fitted up instead, for the Royal visitor. The Town Council built no end of colonnades and triumphal arches, the British residents undertook to give a "dignity ball," where all the ladies should appear in native costume, a gorgeous kiosk was erected over the landing-stairs, and the old bamboo barges lying clustered in the river were, with the aid of paint, canvas and tin tabing, converted into the likeness of brand new gunboats, with wooden guns, funnels and all complete.

The largest British firm there was Card and Co., managed by my friend Roper, with whom I (and my dog) frequently breakfasted. I cannot omit my dog, for he was a known character. He was a Skye terrier, and it was so difficult to tell his head from his tail, that he was called "Mops." The Consular Office faced that of Card and Co., but a river lay between—only to be crossed by a near ferry, or by a bridge half a mile off. Mops, being addicted to begging at meal times, especially for devilled turkey — a regular breakfast dish — became a nuisance, and I tried to leave him behind. He was, however, so accustomed to follow me everywhere, even on board of ships, that he could not be made to comprehend a necessity for his absence. Accordingly, though left carefully at home, he would watch till I was out of sight, go to the ferry, bark, and be taken across by the obedient ferryman, who made a joke of it, and called him "Senor Moppus." When this was discovered and prevented, he made his way round by the bridge, and still came in time for devilled Turkey bones. At last he had to be chained up.

Roper had just come from Hong Kong, and had witnessed the departure for home of Admiral Sir Henry Keppell, probably the most popular man in our navy; on which occasion the Duke of Edinburgh collected the commanders of all H.M.'s ships then in the harbour, and with them, as their stroke-oar, rowed the veteran off to his steamer, homeward-bound. The frontage of Card and Co. was very large along the river, and I was curious to learn what kind of decoration would be attempted, as all the river frontage was expected to be streaming with bunting. All applauded Roper's design, when, on the morning of the Duke's arrival—the whole lower story of Card and Co. was masked with crimson tammy—relieved only by a sentence in gigantic white letters —"BRAVO, STROKE-OAR!"

Two days before the arrival, deputations came flocking in from the towns of the island, composed of their principal men or "little governors," open-mouthed at the wonders of the great city—Manila—and yet struggling with the sense of their own importance.

Not very imposing was the appearance of these provincial magnates; Their dress would make my readers laugh—a tall black silk hat (such as is worn in Europe), over their copper countenances and shaggy black locks, patent leather spring-side boots, a silver headed cane and—what think you?—a spotlessly starched white shirt, worn outside their black trousers, with a black cloth jacket over that. This is the official costume by law established, for the native swells of the Philippines under Spanish rule.

What were our countrymen about, whilst all others, from Governor to Coolie, were moving heaven and earth to get everything mapped out and ship-shape for the great arrival? They were engaged in a task which was doubtless dear to the hearts of Englishmen before Magna Charta; without which any public event, from a coronation to the superannuation of a beadle, would seem tame and spiritless; which makes every bosom swell with pride in our glorious constitution and the sacred rights of freedom—need I say?—they were preparing an address.

At dusk on the 19th the Galatea swung to anchor in the bay in front of the city. Here I cannot do better than translate from the flowing periods of the diary of Don Manuel Carbonado y Zarracondegui, the captain of the Port, as follows:—

"Upon the placid surface of the dark water, catching one glistening stream of moonlight through the shrouds, with symmetrical limbs in ghostly relief against the neutral tinted sky, stood the Galatea. I say stood advisedly, that alone expresses the effect of tall masts towering over massive hull. A focus of subordinated forces, an embodiment of method and discipline, a sublimation of ORDER, she incorporates the soul of British principle, the key to British success. Within that hive, right aft, in a moderate sized cabin, were four persons, one dressed in naval uniform, examining a chart, two sipping coffee, and the other writing at an escritoire. Around the walls hung a series of exquisitely tinted portraits of the royal family of England.

"A knock sounded, a valet announced, at the instance of an officer, the Captain of the Port, and I was ushered into the presence of the Prince. He turned from his chart, and inquired various details concerning the port and bay, referring to his sailing directions, asking questions as to the entrance, the lights, the shoals, the tides, the monsoons, and similar topics interesting to seamen. He signified that he would not land that night, and that he wished not to be received with the honours of his rank, but simply as the Captain of a ship."

Thus far the Port Captain. Of my own part, I can conscientiously assure the public, from opportunities of seeing the Duke in command of his own vessel, that he is a thorough going practical seaman, whatever other officers in similar commands may happen to be, and I anticipate great good to our service from his forthcoming command of an ironclad (as the papers inform us) in the Mediterranean squadron. Of course, he made jokes about the Liberals then in office at the Admiralty, like all other naval men, and declared they would grumble sorely over the expenditure of powder which he incurred during his stay, in answering salutes, &c.

Whilst Don Manuel was on board the Galatea, at the palace on shore there was a grand palaver. There were assembled the Governor-General, the Admiral, the Commander-in-Chief, the Chief Justice, the Mayor or Civil Governor, the British Consul for the Philippines, and myself. There the details of the landing were arranged, and the requisite orders issued. Being intimate with all, and the official interpreter being absent, my services as a translator were in requisition till a late hour.

At seven next morning the Consul and I, in full fig, repaired on board. We were ushered into the Duke's saloon, and being thereto invited, joined his breakfast, which was just begun. We found, besides the Duke, his two Equerries, Lieutenant Haig, and the Hon. Eliot Yorke (now M.P. for Cambridgeshire), with H.R.H.'s artist-companion—the talented M. Chevalier. I had determined beforehand to stock my cigar case with choice weeds—in case an opportunity should occur of supplying a want acceptably; but, of course, I had forgotten it when the time came, and ignominiously accepted one instead—smoking being considered, to my delight, as healthy a pastime in the Duke's saloon as it was on shore.

Now the minutest details of doings at a distant port, introduced into any other narrative would pass unchallenged; but I am prepared in this instance to be called "priggish" or "impertinent" in chronicling the small beer of a Royal Highness. I can only answer that I follow a fashion set by no end of distinguished specials, which is found to pay, i.e. to tickle the British reader; and that, as I chronicle the literal truth, and now run no risk of being dismissed by the F.O., I don't see why the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE should not reap the benefit, especially as a curious Masonic incident crops up in this connection. Besides, it has not fallen to many others' lot, as to mine, to see a good deal of one Prince, and to be the friend and comrade of another, why then should I not gratify the curiosity of those less favoured, if those in question be not maligned? I have been frank enough, as readers of my sketches will remember, as to my experiences upon the "diggings," whilst associating with the roughest specimens of humanity, and feel that I have the right to be equally so with respect to my observation of others, even though at the top of the tree. Having, during a varied career, been twice editor of newspapers, I claim also to have learned discretion as admissible and inadmissible revelations.

VANITAS VANITATUM.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I was in hopes your article of the 11th inst., headed as above, would have called forth some comments on this fast increasing practice of wearing Masonic jewellery, but as such is not the case, I will, with your permission, proceed to point out what I believe to be the cause of some of these innovations. You commence with the following sentence:—"It is astonishing the perverse obstinacy which many brethren show in the matter of jewellery." It is certainly astonishing that so many of our brethren are so weak on this point, and will so persistently continue to violate the Book of Constitutions. I will first take the W.M.'s and P.M.'s, who are the chief law-breakers, and who, instead of setting so bad an example, should have more respect for the position they hold in our society. It is a common thing to see their badges with silver tans or levels placed on them instead of ribbon. I should not be surprised at some day hearing of a M.M. with silver rosettes on his apron, the regalia makers have not yet introduced them, but if they were to, I have no doubt they would soon become fashionable. Next take the P.M. jewel; in the Book of Constitutions it plainly states that this, as well as the other jewels mentioned, are to be of silver, excepting Lodges No. 2 and 8. Now by what authority are so many brethren allowed to infringe on the privilege of these two Lodges by wearing gold jewels? This practice of wearing gold jewels is the cause of several thousands of pounds being annually spent without any benefit to Masonry, for it is a practice of some Lodges always to present their retiring W.M. with a jewel, and in some instances as much as ten or twenty pounds is voted for that purpose: now surely this is appropriating the funds of a Lodge to a purpose for which it was never intended, and I consider a jewel so obtained is not worth the ribbon it hangs by; a presentation or testimonial should be paid for by those who are desirous of making it, and in this case if it was a silver jewel, costing a few shillings, it would be worth wearing. Grand Lodge reserves to herself the right of issuing the Centenary, the Charity, and the Installation Jewels, and if she had reserved to herself the right of issuing all clothing and jewels there would not be any cause of complaint, and we should then have our badges and jewels at one price, of one pattern, and one quality. Some few months ago Grand Lodge issued a circular, warning the brethren from wearing unauthorised jewels, and it was well she did, for there were two or three designs in the market, and we might have soon some brother who was fond of display adorned with an assortment of commemorative jewels, but Grand Lodge did not go far enough, she should have compelled every Lodge to send a copy to every one of their subscribers. One of the chief causes of this practice of wearing jewellery in Lodge is the increase of the schismatic degrees, for in nearly every case there is a jewel to wear, and I fear these fancy degrees are the cause of many brethren getting tired of Masonry, and I have heard brethren say, after spending any amount of money, and no end of time on them, "they are all humbug." Anyhow, they are the cause of many thousands of pounds being spent every year without any benefit to Masonry. Now if G. L. had, at the time of the Union, made the purport of one of the articles in some respect similar to the treaty of three of these fancy orders, your idea of the subscriptions to one or each of our Charities reaching £15,000 would never have occurred to you, for it would have been reached years ago.

The wearing of a Royal Arch Jewel appears to be rather a questionable practice, for the apron or sash is not allowed in a Craft assembly. It is not long ago I heard of a piece of unsophisticated vanity on the part of a brother, who was desirous of attending Grand Lodge in the clothing of a Provincial R.A. officer, of course he was not admitted, and the Order is only mentioned once in the Articles of Union, and nowhere in the Book of Constitutions.

As Royal Arch Masonry is more sectarian in its character, I should like to know whether Theists, Parsees and Mahomedans take kindly to this order.

Yours fraternally,

PROVISION FOR MASONIC ORPHANS OF THE JEWISH FAITH.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR AND BROTHER,—On perusing the communication from Bro. Gotthell, in your last number, I was impressed with the practical good sense and philanthropy which dictated it. I think the Jewish Masonic Orphans should be especially commended to our care; and notwithstanding the known benevolence of their co-religionists, which never suffers their wants to remain unsatisfied, it seems to me that they are entitled to our help upon a more extended scale than that which I find stated at page 374 of "Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence," i.e., "For daughters of Jewish parents, and for sons of those who prefer education in other than the Masonic establishments, an annual allowance of £12 each is granted, up to their attaining the age of sixteen."

Preference to education elsewhere can only arise from the want of provision to meet their peculiar case in our institutions; and thus the keen intelligence and sober morality which distinguish these orphans go to reflect credit upon the training of others.

I am agreeably surprised at learning the enormous sums classed as "Benevolent Fund" in the Jewish Lodges; which contrast, in so far as I know, more than favourably with those of the Christian faith. My own Lodge, which contributes annually to our Charities and succours private cases by collections in Lodge on the spur of the moment, has no regular Benevolent Fund! And a Jewish Lodge has one of nearly £3,000!

A mine of charitable feeling exists, I am assured, among us, which is yet unexplored. Ways should be found to turn it into channels of fertility. Bro. Gotthell has indicated one of them.

Yours fraternally, G. A. C.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The question raised by Bro. Gotthell is one deserving the greatest consideration of the Fraternity, and certainly requires a large amount of deliberation ere any practical result can be arrived at. It is true there are many difficulties in the way, and more particularly just now when there are so many approved candidates, both boys and girls, for the April election, and so few vacancies; this obstacle, at least, we hope soon to see partially, if not quite, removed by the increased accommodation already proposed.

The other difficulties which present themselves, the House Committee of both institutions are fully capable of overcoming, with the assistance and advice of at least one Jewish brother, who would be able to represent the Jewish brotherhood.

I do not think it advisable to incorporate with our two institutions, Cuisine Master and Matron for Jewish children, the object would be more easily and better accomplished by placing them out and defraying the cost, as was done in years gone by, before we could boast our present noble buildings.

As to the "method" of raising the "nucleus" for such purpose, proposed by Bro. Gotthell, the present existing bye-laws of the Jewish Lodges Benevolent Fund would not permit; this, however, could be remedied, and I, agreeing in the main with his proposition, will readily support his views when the time comes for action, and I hope this correspondence may be the means of inducing the governing bodies to consider the advisability of extending the benefits of our institutions to the orphans of those Jewish brethren who belonged to a class more diffusive in their benevolence than any other.

Yours fraternally,

A CHRISTIAN BROTHER OF A JEWISH LODGE.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The question propounded by W.M. in your issue of the 25th ult., is one on which there is, I know, a great diversity of opinion. What, however, does your correspondent mean by a "catch question passed in his Lodge by a majority whipped up for the purpose?" Does he mean a motion suddenly made without any notice having been given of it to every member of the Lodge? If so, then I imagine he had a right, as W.M., to have prevented its being discussed, as any other President would have done who saw an undue advantage was being taken. But as far as the confirmation of the minutes is concerned, I am one of those who consider that it extends only to the expression of opinion as to whether the minutes read are a correct record of what has taken place, except, of course, where the Constitutions or the Bye-laws of any Lodge provide otherwise. The "catch motion" passed in W.M.'s Lodge must therefore stand as part of the business transacted, but it is open, supposing it was passed without notice, to W.M. to whip up a majority and cancel it whenever he pleases.

30th December 1875. A RETIRING W.M.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All Letters and communications must be addressed to the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, 67, Barbican, London, E.C.

L.—The appointment of officers in a Lodge rests entirely with the Master of the Lodge. The Book of Constitutions shows the fact clearly. The Master having been elected by the members of the Lodge, and such election having been confirmed at the subsequent meeting, the W.M. is then empowered to appoint his officers; the Treasurer and Tyler are elected in open Lodge, by show of hands, and are invested, in open Lodge, by the W.M. on the night of installation.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—These are the most convenient household remedies, for they are applicable for all purposes in the treatment of disease. In rheumatic and neuralgic complaints, the application of the Ointment to the affected part is attended with the best results, and the same may be said if it is used to the surface of the chest regions, as the liver, stomach, kidneys, or bowels, in congestion and inflammations of the lungs, heart, liver, &c. In all ulcerations, scrofulous swellings and sores, this Ointment is the best remedy that can be used, and for all constitutional blood diseases, nervous weaknesses, loss of vigour, and impoverishment, the internal use of the Pills will soon bring about complete restoration.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Waifs and Strays, Chiefly from the Chess-Board. By CAPTAIN HUGH A. KENNEDY, Vice-President of the British Chess Association; late President of the Brighton, Bath, and Bristol Athenæum Chess Clubs. Second Edition, Enlarged. London: W. W. Morgan, 67 Barbican. 1876.

CHESS BOOKS, as a rule, are restricted to a somewhat narrow circle of readers, but this work of Captain Kennedy's is one which, we imagine, will be most universally popular. It is charmingly written; the style easy, graceful, chatty; the matter excellent. There is a large fund of anecdote scattered throughout its pages, while the hints, if sometimes cynical, show at all events good sound practical common sense. The work has appeared previously, this being, as the title shows, a second edition. But there is a considerable amount of new matter, including the papers on "Buckle as a Chess Player," "Buckle's Chess References," and "Albany de Fonblanque as a Chess Player," which originally appeared in the Westminster Papers, and are now published by permission of Mr. Mossop, together with "My Match at Chess with Herr Springbok," reprinted from the American Chess Monthly. The four concluding articles appeared some years since, and have been added, as the author tells us, in order to relieve "The monotony of a naturally dry subject," a reason which, with all due respect to Captain Kennedy, hardly holds good, seeing how lively a tone he has adopted throughout the preceding portion of his work, so that even the veriest ignoramus in Chess may read, mark, learn, and enjoy the Waifs and Strays described herein. However, it matters little what reason is assigned. Here have we the articles, and right glad are we they are inserted.

But to pass to the contents. The first portion of the book is devoted to "Some Reminiscences in the life of Augustus Fitzmob, Esq." These are various, extend over no inconsiderable period of time, and are highly amusing. Several people figure in these chapters whose names are familiar enough to our readers. Thus we have a sketch of the first Napoleon in exile, playing Chess with General Bertrand. Then there is a neat story how Theodore Hook shut up a Mr. Mulligrub who was eternally spinning yarns. The habitués at the Divan must be well enough known to those who have ever interested themselves in the doings of the Chess World. One anecdote of a certain M. Pion Caffé deserves quotation. In expressing his opinion of a certain member of the Ruy Lopez Chess Club, for whom he had conceived a liking, the jovial Frenchman remarked "He is a very nice gentleman, Mistare Smeeth, I am so fond of heem; but (with a melancholy shake of the head) I fear he is bloody fool!"—meaning that Mr. Smith was constitutionally sanguineous, or full of blood. Nor is the anecdote which was told by a Dr. Macwhirter one we feel justified in passing unnoticed. It reads as follows:—

"In the town of Aberdeen there practised a certain writer or attorney, whose roguish practices had acquired for him the unenviable sobriquet of 'scoundrel Grant.' In the same place there also resided an outspoken old gentleman, Mochrie by name, who was possessed with a mortal antipathy to the aforesaid Grant. This senior, being a guest at a large dinner party, after the now happily exploded fashion of the time, was, in his turn, called on to propose a toast when the cloth had been removed. 'Well, gentlemen,' said the old boy, 'I'll give ye a toast; here's 'high hanging to scoondrel Grant,' which was solemnly drunk by the assembled convives. A day or so afterwards Messrs. Mochrie and Grant met in the street, the latter having been previously made aware, by some kind friend, of the compliment that had been paid to him at the dinner. Angrily accosting Mr. Mochrie, he said, 'Is it true, sir, that you gave as a toast the other evening, 'high hanging to scoundrel Grant?' 'Yes,' replied the other, 'ye have been rightly informed; I did give that toast.' 'Then, sir,' said Grant in a fury, 'I suppose you are prepared to take the consequences of such a proceeding?' 'God bless my heart! sir,' answered Mochrie, cocking his eye at the interlocutor with an air of surprise, 'are ye scoondrel Grant?' 'No!' roared Grant, 'I am not.' 'Then,' quoth the veteran, deliberately helping himself to a pinch of snuff, 'if ye're not scoondrel Grant, I should like to know what ye have got to do with my toast?'"

Then follows an account of the match with Herr Springbok, capitally told, then "A Cursory Chat on Chess," and then "Chess Chips," in three parts. These are also freely interspersed with anecdotes, all of which are more or less amusing. Thus of the absorbing power of Chess over the minds of some players, we have the following ludicrous story:—

"It happened that two individuals were intently engaged over a game, one of whom had been prodigally gifted by nature with a nose of uncommon length and proportions. In the anxious examination of a difficult position in the partie, of which he had decidedly the worst, this gentleman, in no very placid mood, had thrust the upper part of his person forward, until his head, and especially his nasal organ, appeared to predominate over the major part of the board. While in this posture, his opponent remarked with dismay that, evidently unnoticed by its preoccupied owner, there was agglomerated at the end of the prominent feature aforesaid, a huge pendicle or drop, which, without speedy abstention, threatened to deposit itself amongst the pieces. He accordingly politely hinted this untoward state of matters to his absorbed and testy antagonist. The intimation, however, meeting with no attention, and the case being urgent, he somewhat peremptorily recommended him to blow his nose. 'Blow it yourself,' at length growled the exasperated proprietor of the Slawkenbergian appendage; 'I'm sure it's nearer you than it is to me!'"

Of the irascibility of some players, several instances are recorded. Lord Stair is cited as not scrupling, occasionally, "to have recourse to the voie du fait, and project a snuffer-tray, or the first thing that comes to his hand." Carte, the historian, is also quoted as mentioning that our Henry I., before he was King, once played a game with Louis Le Gros, son of Philip of France. The latter was so exasperated at losing several games, and a good deal of money, that he flung the Chessmen at Henry's head, the latter retaliating with so vigorous an attack on Philip with the board, that, but for timely interference, he would have killed him outright. One instance of this extreme irascibility we quote at length:—

"Many years ago my informant was playing chess with an intimate friend, an old clergyman, who was a deep enthusiast of the game. The chessmen they used were a beautiful new Chinese set, of delicately-carved ivory, which the clergyman had just received as a present from abroad. The contest, which was a long one, had gone against my friend from the beginning, and he was just on the point of striking his flag, when an unlooked-for oversight, on the part of his adversary, enabled him to give a peremptory mate. The loser, without uttering a word, precipitately rose from the table, swept all the pieces violently on the floor, and frantically trod them under foot. The poor old gentleman then, after gazing vacantly for a little while on the ruin he had made, sat down in a chair, and wept like a child."

Similarly, the chapter headed, "A Desultory Ramble with the Chess Men," contains a number of amusing anecdotes—the one quoted from Sam Slick, of the Midshipman, at page 148, though short, being especially so. Then follow the chapters on Buckle and de Fonblanque, which we referred to at the beginning, as having originally appeared in the Westminster Papers, and then "A Fasciculus of Chess Wrinkles," the nature of which may be judged from the three following, selected haphazard:—

"Although you may esteem it perfectly legitimate and proper for yourself, when a loser, to lament that you are 'playing badly,' should your opponent attempt the same plea in similar circumstances, reply promptly that you cannot allow him so to disparage his own skill; that he has played exceedingly well, but that you have played better."

"In the moment of victory, fail not, I beseech you, to make your foiled 'opposite' quaff largely of the bitter cup of defeat. This you will do, not for your own gratification, but rather because you ought to consider it a paramount and conscientious duty, to endeavour at all times to impress upon your fellow-man the truthful moral that 'sweet are the uses of adversity.' Fall back in your chair, then, and regard your vanquished adversary with an easy air of laughing triumph, talking while you do so as if it were a matter of course that you should have beaten him. After this, 'quenching your familiar smile with an austere regard of control,' proceed to point out, as lengthily as you can, that his opening was bad, his method of attack altogether unsound, and that, after a certain move, the ruinous consequences of which you are astonished he did not foresee, his game was irretrievable. Conclude by hinting that perhaps you could afford to render him some odds. Should he wince at all under this wholesome discipline, and attempt a blustering reply, hear him in silence, letting your countenance simply assume a Pecksniffian smile of commiserating pity—it becomes you to make every compatible allowance for the mortified feelings of a beaten enemy, reflecting, as you must do, that you yourself cannot always expect to win."

"Should it strike you that the constitution of your game is in a shaky state, and likely soon to break up, abruptly draw out your watch, and declare, with an appearance of much vexation, that you have a pressing engagement at a certain hour, and that you must incontinently go, as your time is up. Your antagonist may probably hint that your game is up, as well as your time, in which case indignantly assert (without particularising on which side), that you distinctly see checkmate in a few moves, and then, staying no longer question, make yourself scarce.

Our regret is, that Captain Kennedy has not found room for more of these amusing "wrinkles." Then comes a brief "Scene in Rice's Divan," and then the papers reprinted from Punch.

Having thus indicated at some length the character of this work, and having expressed our opinion on the very great merits it undoubtedly exhibits, we take leave of these Waifs and Strays, with the single remark that if any of our readers, Chess-players or not, are in want of some pleasant book to pass an odd hour or two, they will do well to read this one of Captain Kennedy's. If they cannot extract amusement from it they must be dull indeed.

TENNYSON'S "IN MEMORIAM."—Twice in the course of the present century a great man has made the memory of a comparatively unknown friend gracious, loveable, and lasting. These tributes to dead friendship are very beautiful. Milton elogises his Lycidas—otherwise long since forgotten. Shelley beautifies even the beautiful memory of Adonais. Carlyle translates John Sterling from oblivion, and sets him down in rest with the world's immortals. In like manner, but in a completer fashion than them all, Tennyson has perpetuated the memory of his friend, Arthur Henry Hallam. It is, for once, a fine and equitable adjustment of fate, that the mourner has raised his own best monument whilst he did but endeavour to build that of a dead friend. The self-erected memorial of Ozymandias crumbles and leaves nothing but a fragment and a name; but the lament of David over Jonathan lives through all these centuries. Sorrow was never so lovely as in the pages of "In Memoriam." Any analysis, criticism, or description of the work would be here impossible. It stands alone in literature. There are greater poems in the world, no doubt, but there is none like it. It is, by itself, a species.—From Cassell's National Portrait Gallery for January.

bership will not confer any of the rights of regular membership," and by what right, under this rule, any brother can claim the privilege of voting upon any question before the Lodge, or upon application for the degrees, as has been claimed, and allowed in some Lodges in this jurisdiction, we are wholly unable to discover. Such privileges are not contemplated by the law, and should not be granted in any instance. A brother asks, "what is the mode of procedure in a Lodge to elect honorary membership? Must there be a petition signed by the party, duly recommended? Must it be referred to a committee, and a ballot had to elect, as in cases of regular membership?"

In the absence of any law covering these points we can only give an opinion. The essential qualification or prerequisite for honorary membership is that it shall have been merited "by long or eminent services to the Craft." A petition from a brother for such membership would imply an opinion of one's own self that a limited amount of modesty would prevent him from expressing. Such a petition is evidently not contemplated by the regulation. A brother who merits this distinction by long and eminent services to the Craft must have gained a reputation which precludes the necessity of a committee of investigation. Hence no such committee is necessary or proper. As this membership confers no especial benefits upon the party elected to it, and as it in no way affects the rights and privileges of those who are regular members, we do not deem it of enough importance to require an election by secret ballot as in cases of regular membership. We would say, then, that all that is necessary to elect to honorary membership is that the proposition come in the form of a resolution, which, being duly seconded, may be voted on in the same manner that ordinary business is disposed of. If the Grand Master or any other brother thinks differently we shall be pleased to hear what they may have to say on the subject.—Masonic Advocate.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

WE trust our readers may prosper in the year that begins to-day, as we hope and believe they have prospered in the year that is gone. Certainly, we have cause for great congratulation, seeing how strong is the position of the Craft in public estimation, how much stronger indeed, we may venture to say, than it was this time last year. It is natural, of course, that we should now consign to oblivion the recollection of any momentary disappointments we may have experienced during the past twelve months, and gird ourselves up with fresh vigour and buoyant hope for the labours of 1876. In doing this, we take the first opportunity that occurs of wishing our readers a Happy New Year.

Since the appearance of our last number, the country has been more or less absorbed in the very agreeable business of pleasure, and in a hearty and genial fashion. Not that Old Father Christmas has been, as far as outward appearances go, anything like as jolly as in some years we have known. We have had both frost and snow, but that was some weeks since. Lately we have been enjoying, as best we could, the mists and fogs and vapours which favour our island home occasionally, we wish we could say rarely. But though locomotion under these circumstances is far from agreeable, we have had less cause for regret on this score, as at Christmas festivities are essentially domestic. We can afford to be comparatively indifferent to the whims and caprices of the Clerk of the Weather when we find ourselves gathered round some hospitable board, laden with the very substantial beef and pudding of the season. We can all of us pretty well realise the hearty feeling of Old Scrooge's nephew; matter of fact, immersed in business as we may be, we cannot cast a glance round a Christmas dinner-table without experiencing some very jolly emotions, tempered, too, with a loving remembrance of those present in former years, whose place is no longer among us. Let us fancy, if that indeed be possible, a man being miserable at a Christmas dinner with a whole regiment of children of various growths about him, all engaged in enjoying themselves, never wearying of the almost endless succession of good things placed before them, and ready, when the feast is over, to join in any amount of fun and frolic, from a rattling galop to a more homely game of romps or blind-man's buff. Such a man was depicted for us many years ago in the person of Scrooge, but even his hardheartedness yielded at length to the blessed spirit of Old Father Christmas. There is no resisting the old fellow's influence, no desire to resist it. It matters little whether he come in white robes or in a mud-coloured garment, we can always find it in our hearts to enjoy ourselves in his society.

While, however, most of the festivities take place at home, every provision is made at our places of amusement to meet the demands of the public. In this respect the theatres set a very laudable example, as most of them present some special entertainment, be it pantomime, burlesque, or extravaganza. In some instances, as at the Lyceum, the regular performance is deemed sufficiently attractive, but at "Old Drury," Covent Garden, the Surrey, the Standard, and other theatres, boxing-day without a pantomime would be other than it has been in the memory of that most enlightened personage, "the oldest inhabitant." Thus, our readers are not likely to be disappointed as regards this class of entertainment. In fact, as similar performances are held daily at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces, it matters little whether people live North, South, East, or West of London, they need not go far for a pantomime. But a special programme for the season is not provided only at our theatres. The Polytechnic, Christy Minstrels, the circuses, our concert rooms, music halls, &c., all offer as tempting a programme as the resources of the establishment will permit, and thus the rising generation, now home for their holidays, will be at no loss to while away their time. The only person who stands in need of sympathy, perhaps, is Paterfamilias, who has to pay for it all; but then "it is only once a year."

We have already referred to the Christmas pantomime at the Crystal Palace. A similar entertainment would have commenced early last week, but for an accident to Mr. G. Conquest, at the Alexandra Palace. However, he had recovered sufficiently to play his part on Friday, and accordingly the Yellow Dwarf was produced, to the great satisfaction of the visitors. To describe the wonderful performance of Mr. Conquest, the splendour of the transformation scene, the magnificence of the costumes, the beauty of the ballet, the amusing harlequinade—to do this with any approach to justice—would occupy far more space than is available. But if we cannot describe, we can give advice. Let our readers go and judge for themselves, and we do not think they will be disappointed in their expectations. Besides, by going to the Alexandra Palace, the visitor not only sees his pantomime, but every week is offered a series of attractions, so that a visitor need not trouble himself as to what he shall do to amuse himself, so much as how he can find time to enjoy the amusement offered. Among those specially appointed for this week, must be mentioned a great circus entertainment, the exhibition of dolls and dolls' houses, the performances of Romah on the high trapese, of the Manhattan Minstrels, the Jackley Troup, besides the usual Organ Recitals, &c., &c. Not the least among the special attractions has been a Monster Christmas Tree, with appropriate decorations. There were, we have heard, over fifty thousand visitors to the Muswell-hill Palace on Boxing Day. Similarly, at Sydenham, the Crystal Palace had a special programme for Christmas week, the pantomime being, of course, the principal, while among the others, the marvellous flights and aerial exchanges of the Midget Hanlons, a Comic Russian ballet, and Doughty's famous Performing Dogs deserve to be mentioned.

Nor have the poor been overlooked at this festive season. The contributions towards enabling our less fortunate brethren to enjoy themselves have been, at least, as considerable as in past years. Every day we note sums acknowledged by the police magistrates for the poor box, while in different localities, funds are organised in order to provide treats for the National, Ragged, or other Schools or Institutions situated there. There is no part of the country where an appeal to provide funds for a Christmas dinner is not promptly and liberally responded to.

But to pass to the news of the week. Nothing particularly eventful has happened either at home or abroad. The Royal Family have passed their time in retirement, those, at least, who are in England, but the Prince of Wales is in the full swing of paying and receiving visits from the Rajahs and Maharajahs of the Bengal Presidency. Calcutta has been laying herself out to do him honour, and the Viceroy has been entertaining his Royal guest in right regal fashion. There have also been a magnificent display of illuminations; in short, the reception at the Metropolis of India has been on as grand a scale, and quite as successful, as that at Bombay, though the latter city enjoys whatever prestige may attach to having been the first to welcome His Royal Highness in India.

Yesterday, according to published statements, was the seventieth anniversary of the Premier's birthday, and a few days previously his great political rival, Mr. Gladstone, completed his sixty-sixth year. As regards the former, there is a note in this month's "Table Talk," in the Gentleman's Magazine, to the effect that Mr. Disraeli was born on the 21st December 1804, not on 31st December 1805, and has entered, therefore, his seventy-second instead of his seventy-first year. The matter, of course, is of no great moment, except, perhaps, that whatever relates to our eminent public men is of interest to the general body.

Among the distinguished persons who have passed away during the last twelve months there have been several distinguished men, such, for instance, as Bishop Connop Thirlwall, the Historian of Greece, Field Marshal Sir William Gomm, and General Sir J. Hope Grant. The list has within the last few days been unhappily increased by two men of great eminence, the one from his noble rank and his fame as an historian—Earl Stanhope—and the other—Mr. Augustus Mayhew—who enjoyed a considerable literary reputation. The latter, who died on Christmas day, after a brief but painful illness, was the author of Paved with Gold, or the Romance and Reality of the London Streets, Faces for Fortune, &c., besides several popular works written in conjunction with his brother, the late Horace Mayhew. Lord Stanhope was well known in literary circles, and was connected with various learned societies, and had himself published a valuable history of England.

The enquiry into the wreck of the Deutschland is still in progress. It has been intimated by "my Lords" to the officers of H.M.S. Monarch, which some time ago, got into collision with a barque, that no blame attaches to them that would warrant the holding a Court-martial. As regards the Goliath, by command of the Queen, the President of the Local Board, has written to Captain Bourchier, to express Her Majesty's admiration of the courage and devotion to duty exhibited by him, his officers, and the boys under his command. More bodies have since been recovered, but not to the number reported last week as missing.

It is announced that Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to revive the Dukedom of Gordon in the person of the Duke of Richmond, who inherited the estates of the last Duke of that name. Certain promotions will also be made. Thus, the Earl of Abergavenny will become a Marquis, Lord Wharncliffe an Earl, and an English Peerage will be conferred on the Earl of Essex. The peerage will be further recruited by the addition to its ranks of sundry members chosen from the great county families.

Further successes have been gained over the Malays by the force sent to punish the murderers of Mr. Birch. The affair seems to have been very cleverly carried out, the stockade being taken both in front and flank, with comparatively trifling loss.

Several items of news reach us from Paris. A solemn funeral service was held in memory of Generals le Comte and Thomas, who were among the earliest victims of the Commune. The service was performed by the Archbishop of Paris in the Chapel of les Invalides, in the presence of a large assembly, including M. Buffet, Premier, M. Wallon, Generals Cissey, Ladmirault, and others. The bodies were then placed on gun carriages, and conveyed, with the usual military pomp, to Père la Chaise, where they were consigned to the tomb, over which has been erected a monument recording their names and the circumstances of their death. On the same day, the figure of the First Napoleon was restored to the place on the column in the Place Vendôme, whence it was pulled down by the Communists. The figure had sustained considerable injuries, but had been repaired. We further record that the Orleans Princes have publicly announced their withdrawal from political life. This is said to be the result of a family council, at which were present several members of the late King Louis Philippe's family. Thus, when the election for the New Legislative Assembly comes on, the Duke d'Aumale and Prince de Joinville will not offer themselves as candidates.

Other foreign news are not very striking. The present phase of the Eastern Question, is, to say the least, obscure. The Sultan, as far as appearances go, is determined to carry the reforms he has granted, while the step to be taken to secure a guarantee by the six great powers of Europe of a better government of the Turkish Empire are not yet declared. A body of insurgents in the Herzegovina has been dispersed by the Turkish troops. As regards Spain, the Carlists are still about to be crushed, but the end of this wretched war is not yet; and like the good time that is always coming, yet never comes to some people, seems as remote as ever it did. Meantime, Spaniards are being slaughtered, and the resources of the country exhausted in settlement of a mere dynastic squabble. Were there a grain of true patriotism in the public men of Spain, this miserable condition of affairs would never have lasted so long.

A few days ago, the Right Hon. Lord Leigh, P.G.M., Warwickshire, met with a somewhat severe accident in the hunting field. His Lordship's horse getting one of its feet into a fence, fell, throwing him to the ground with considerable violence. For a time Lord Leigh remained unconscious, but having recovered somewhat, he was conveyed home, and, according to the last accounts, was progressing favourably.

The General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Thursday, the 30th ult., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, Bro. J. Rucker P.G.D. in the chair. The Secretary, Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, S.G.W. Middlesex, read the minutes, which were confirmed. The General Committee recommended that a sum of 20 guineas should be given to Miss Moss on her leaving the School, she having obtained the position of Head Governess of the British Orphan Asylum. Eleven candidates were placed on the list, and one was deferred. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Chairman, and the meeting was adjourned. There were present Bros. Benj. Head P.G.D., John Symonds P.G.D., H. Browse P.G.D., F. Binckes P.G.S., T. W. White P.G.S., W. H. Main, G. King jun., P. Sanford, T. Bartlett, E. H. Thiellay, H. A. Dubois, W. Paas, H. Massa, R. W. Stuart P.G.D., G. Sinclair, R. W. Webster, A. H. Diaper, T. Massa, H. W. Hemsworth, John Boyd P.G.P., W. Wellsman, E. Clark, H. Massey, I. J. Wilson, G. Baker, T. F. Peacock, H. M. Levy, Griffiths Smith, &c.

Bro. Alderman Stone, G.S.W., has been appointed by the Lord Chancellor a magistrate for the Borough of Hastings.

Bro. Tweed, the enterprising publisher of Glasgow, has just issued a fine engraving of the celebrated parting of Kilwinning, by J. McDougal, in the possession of John McGairn, Esq., which he has dedicated to the Freemasons of Scotland, but we doubt not many of our English readers, as well as our Scotch ones, will be very glad to have a copy thereof, for, in addition to its merits as a work of art, which are conspicuous, it possesses increased interest to all Masonic students, as a faithful representation of the locale of, if not the oldest Lodge in existence, at any rate the one possessing the oldest authentic records. Each year numbers of Freemasons from America, as well as those from England and other Masonic jurisdictions, pay a visit to its shrine, to see the old Lodge, whose proud boast it is that it was the cradle of Masonry in the dark ages. To all such this engraving will recall pleasing associations, while those who have not been so fortunate as to view the spot will be able to form a good estimate of its surroundings, as the artist has taken in, not only the "Auld Turrets," Steeple and Brig, but the whole of the picturesque village, while the sea in the distance forms a good back ground, and completes the picture.

We need scarcely tender an excuse to our readers for reproducing, from the Hull Packet, the following eulogy:—

"The FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE of last Saturday gives a very full and exhaustive digest of the whole of the Masonic events that took place in the last year; and all who are interested in the objects of the Craft should endeavour to possess so valuable and comprehensive a record of the year's doings. In closing the second volume of this very excellent publication the editor speaks gratefully of the success which has attended his efforts. Having perused it regularly, with much interest and pleasure, we can confidently recommend this as one of the very best journals of its class we have seen; and as a proof of its rapid advance in public favour we know that its circulation in this province has very largely extended of late. We wish for this admirable and well conducted 'weekly record of Masonic intelligence' every prosperity, believing it thoroughly and consistently reflects all that it is necessary and desirable to know of events in connection with the Craft."

We are given to understand that interesting discoveries may be looked for this year, in sequence of the labours of our distinguished Bro. Mandsley C.E., who laid bare the rock-scarp of Sion, and discovered the subterranean tanks in the walls of the City of David.

Bro. Sir John Bennett has been appointed Deputy of the Ward of Cheap. And Bro. James Ebenezer Saunders, Past Grand Deacon, has been appointed Deputy of the Ward of Coleman-street.

ARE YOU A MASON?

WE are sometimes asked this question on the streets, and by persons comparatively strangers to us; and our habit is not to answer it in Masonic form. The other day a young man whom we did not personally know asked us this question, and, as usual, we gave an answer in a form quite unmasonic. He, knowing our relations to the fraternity, said:—"You ought not to answer in that way you ought to say," &c. This young man had just been passed to the degree of Fellow Craft.

This simple matter is mentioned here for the purpose of cautioning the young craftsman against any and all display of his Masonic knowledge, unless in Masonic company, and then only absolutely for Masonic purposes.

No Mason is at liberty, much less may he be required, to use Masonic language, and turn Masonic phrases, and give Masonic signs because some one even though he be a Mason, should question, or seek to test him, with no other object in view than to display his own proficiency. If a stranger comes to you, and proposes to make a communication to you Masonically, or wishes to impart some Masonic matter of which he is informed, and which he desires for special purposes to communicate to you and to no other; or if he be in distress, and comes to you with a Masonic sign, and appeals to you as a Mason for relief, you may then ask him—"Are you a Mason?" and you have a right to expect a Masonic answer. He has given you the right to ask him the question, and he is bound in duty and honour and obligation to answer it. But all display of Masonic knowledge, and all desultory use of symbolic signs or language are out of order, and injurious to the Craft.

Be careful—In admitting visitors to the Lodges who are unknown not only as Masons, but as men, it is not possible for us to be too careful. I may know a man well and favourably, but I cannot know him to be a Mason without "strict trial, due examination, or lawful information." And if this be necessary in the case of a man of whom I may, in other relations, have a favourable knowledge, how much more necessary that I should be cautious concerning one of whom I have no knowledge, personal or otherwise, but who comes to me, and claims that he is a Mason, and asks of me Masonic recognition and favour.

And if this caution is necessary on the part of an individual Mason, it is all the more necessary on the part of a Lodge. If an individual Mason should be imposed upon by the unworthy, the imposition may end there; the next Mason may sift and detect the unworthy. But if a Lodge is imposed upon, though that cannot last long, yet it extends to a large number of brethren, and the impostor or unworthy person receives a sort of official Masonic endorsement.

Be careful, then: let your committees of examination be kind, but firm; brethren who understand the trick of the tongue, and the cunningness of the hand, and who will not be afraid to say, if they have the least doubt—"we are not satisfied."—Masonic Review.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne Lodge, No. 24.—This Lodge held a meeting on Monday, the 27th December, at Freemasons' Hall, Grainger-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Present—Bros. Thos. Cochrane W.M., Geo. Cockburn, W.M. elect, S.W., Pringle J.W., Loades Sec., W. Cockburn Treas., Taylor J.D., J. Bolam St., Taylor I.G., Carrie Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. Brewis, Davis, Gillespie, Clapham P.P.G.S.W., T. Hall, Laws 541, Cooke 481, Anderson 541, Robinson 48. Visitors—Bros. R. H. Holmes P.M. P.G.R., Knox W.M. 406, Dean Secretary 541, Main S.W. 541, Munday S.W. 406, Armstrong 406, Waters S.D. 536, Rev. E. Cohen 481. Business—Bro. Mendelsohn, of 48, was balloted for, and elected a joining member of this Lodge, and Mr. Scotter was balloted for and elected as a candidate for initiation. The W.M., Bro. Cochrane, then, in a most able way, and with the assistance of the I.P.M., Bro. Brewis, proceeded to install Bro. Geo. Cockburn as W.M. for the ensuing twelve months. The newly installed W.M. was then duly saluted by the brethren present, and proclaimed, according to ancient form, Master of the Newcastle-upon-Tyne Lodge, No. 24. The charges belonging to this part of the ceremony were ably and impressively given by Bro. Brewis P.M. The following brethren received their respective collars of office:—A. Loades S.W., Jno. Taylor J.W., A. R. Taylor Secretary, Jno. Bolam S.D., Carr J.D., J. Brewis I.G., W. Cockburn P.M. Treasurer, W. Foulsham P.M. D.C., Liddle Organist, J. W. Boston S.S., T. Boston J.S., and J. Carrie Tyler. Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the Alexandria Hotel, where they sat down to a banquet, served in the sumptuous style that has made that Hotel so famous. After grace the following toasts were proposed by the W.M.:—"Her Majesty the Queen," "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M., and a happy return to him," "The Dukes of Edinburgh and Connaught, and rest of the Royal Family," "The Pro G.M. and the D.G.M., and Officers of Grand Lodge," "The P.G.M. Earl Percy, and D.P.G.M. Bro. Cockcroft, and officers of P.G.L. of Northumberland." Bro. Davis P.M. P.G.D.C., returned thanks for the Officers of Prov. Grand Lodge. "The P.G.M. of the Province of Durham, John Fawcett, Esq., and his officers," coupled with the name of Bro. Clapham P.M. P.G.S.W., who responded. Bro. Cochrane I.P.M. then, amidst cheers, proposed the health of Bro. Cockburn, their newly-installed W.M., remarking that he was sure, from what he had seen of Bro. Cockburn, that he would make a painstaking Master, and trusted the Lodge would increase and prosper during his term of office. The W.M., in returning thanks, said he could not but be pleased at the way his health had been proposed and responded to, and hoped that he should be able, in every way, to carry out the wishes of the brethren, and to the best interests of the Lodge. Bro. Brewis P.M., in proposing the health of the I.P.M., Bro. Cochrane, congratulated him on the great success that had attended his year of office; the Lodge has increased both in numbers and prosperity, and the report of the Treasurer was of such a nature as to delight every friend of the old No. 24. He certainly thought that the I.P.M. had bequeathed his successor a very hazardous task in keeping up the well-being of the Lodge to its present standard, but he hoped that next year he should be able to congratulate him, the present W.M., likewise, on a prosperous and harmonious term of office. The toast was drank with great enthusiasm. Bro. Holmes P.M. P.G.R., in a very humourous speech, proposed the P.M.'s, and, as usual, their healths were drank with great cordiality. Bro. Hall P.M. responded. In giving the Present and Past Officers, Bro. Brewis P.M. spoke at some length on the great responsibilities devolving on brethren who undertook the subordinate offices of the Lodge. He eloquently reminded them how much depended on their punctuality and zealously performing their various duties; and upon them depended the harmony and good work that should characterise us as a body, and trusted that, as time rolled on, and each of them, in turn, filled the honourable chair now occupied by the W.M., that he would be equally fortunate in getting as able a body of officers to assist him as the present and past ones of Lodge 24. Bros. Loades S.W., and Taylor J.W., returned thanks. Then followed "Visiting brethren," proposed by the W.M., responded to by Bro. Scott. "Our absent brethren," by Bro. Thompson, and the Tyler's Toast concluding the proceedings.

He found, from the pages of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, that the Red Cross of Constantine had held a Chapter of Sorrow for him; he regretted, as an officer the latter body, that he was not present at that meeting to mingle his regrets with those of his Brother Sir Knights. The Comps. of this Chapter knew how attentive to all his Masonic duties their friend had been, and he only hoped that his successor, whom they were about to instal in his place, would prove as efficient a Comp. With the assistance of Comps. Shield and Wheeler, he then installed Comps. J. De Neil as H., Wm. McAlister as J., and Alex. Love as Scribe N. The large hall being engaged, the banquet would take place in the "Crown Room," and in order that the brethren and visitors should be comfortably seated (there being but a limited space) it would be advisable for the brethren to acquaint Bro. Howell was unanimously re-elected for a second term of office, and briefly expressed his thanks to the brethren for the honour they had conferred on him. The S.W. then proposed a cordial vote of thanks to the W.M. for his services to the Lodge during the past year; which having been duly seconded, was carried unanimously. In reply the W.M. remarked that during the year he had worked all the ceremonies, given the three lectures, and had the sections worked in No. 1470, and he thought the thanks of the Lodge were even more heartily due to its efficient officers than to himself. Nothing had occurred to mar the harmony of the brethren, and the Lodge had prospered much. He trusted that the coming year would be as happy and as prosperous as the past, and he most cordially thanked the brethren for their vote, and the confidence they evidently had in him as their W.M. He trusted he should do nothing to forfeit that esteem and sympathy which they had manifested towards him. The Chaplain then proposed, and the J.W. seconded a motion, to present Bro. Howell with a jewel in acknowledgment of his services. Carried. The W.M. then requested that Bro. Haselgrove W.M. of 475 (and S.W. of 1470) would perform the ceremony of installation, which request was evidently most gratifying to the members, as well known is Bro. Haselgrove for the ability with which he works every ceremony he undertakes. The ballot was then taken for Bro. F. Parr as a joining member, which proved unanimous. The Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and Bro. Teale passed. It was then opened in the third degree, and Bro. Ballans raised, both ceremonies being impressively given by the W.M. It was then closed in the second and third degrees; two joining members were proposed, and three candidates for initiation, and the Lodge was then closed after the usual interrogatories, and adjourned to the 18th January 1876. A short, but pleasant evening was afterwards spent at Bro. Saunders' (Spear Leaf Hotel), a host whose catering leaves nothing to be desired.

HUMBER LODGE OF FREEMASONS, HULL.

From the "Hull Packet and East Riding Times."

THE installation of Bro. Alfred Wheatley Ansell as Worshipful Master of the Humber Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 67, took place on Monday evening last, at the Freemason's Hall, Osborne Street. This gentleman has long been held in the high respect and esteem of the brethren, in consequence of his zeal and assiduity in promoting the interests of the Craft; and that his election to the Master's chair was carried by an almost unanimous vote of the Lodge must have been to him a gratifying evidence of his popularity amongst those with whom he has been so closely associated in Freemasonry. From his social position, as a member of the Town Council, and from his uniform urbanity and geniality of character, he has won the genuine esteem of his brethren; and there can be no doubt that his year of office will be most satisfactory to the Lodge and honourable to himself. The event of Monday evening attracted considerable attention and interest, and the imposing ceremony was witnessed by a very large and brilliant assemblage of the brethren, whose numbers were augmented by many officers and past officers of rank belonging to the various Lodges in the province. The Lodge was formally opened and the preliminary business transacted under the presidency of the retiring W.M., Bro. Jonathan West, after which the chair was taken by the W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. John Pearson Bell, M.D., who ably performed the ceremony in accordance with the ancient formularies of the Craft. In the delivery of the charges the W. Deputy Provincial Grand Master was ably assisted by Bro. Walter Reynolds P.M. of the Minerva Lodge, and Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies of North and East Yorks. At the conclusion of the very interesting ceremony the newly installed Master proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year, the collars having been thus bestowed:—Bros. Jonathan West I.P.M., Henry Tooses S.W., Edward Kidd J.W., William Tennyman P.M. Chaplain, Morris Haberland Lecture Master, Alderman John Fountain P.M. Treasurer, Dr. William Banks Hay P.M. Treasurer of the Benevolent and Pension Fund, W. D. Keyworth P.M. P.Pr.G. Supt. of Works Almoner, William Henry Welsted Secretary, Thomas Cook S.D., T. David Wing J.D., Thomas Thompson D.C., J. W. Stephenson Org., Richard Beevers Chief Steward, Edward Stone I.G., Crier Tyler, and Isaac Dawson Assistant Tyler. The Worshipful Master then proposed a cordial vote of thanks to the W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master for the admirable and impressive manner in which he had conducted the ceremony of installation; and this having been carried by acclamation, Bro. Dr. Bell suitably acknowledged the compliment which had been paid to him, and expressed the pleasure it always afforded him to be present at the gatherings of this his own Lodge. On the motion of P.M. Bro. Tennyman, seconded by Bro. S. Cohen, it was unanimously resolved to present to Bro. Alderman Sexton P.M. an illuminated vellum, conveying to him the heartfelt thanks of the members for the valuable services he had tendered during the last eight years as assistant treasurer of the Benevolent and Pension Fund. Some other matters of routine business having been transacted, the Lodge was closed in due form.

The annual banquet was held in the commodious banqueting-hall of the Lodge, when there was a large and influential attendance. The Worshipful Master, Bro. Ansell, presided, and was supported in the chair by the W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master of N. and E. Yorks., Bros. Jonathan West I.P.M., M. C. Peck P.M. Prov. Grand Secretary, W. Tennyman P.M., Dr. W. B. Hay P.M., John Coatsworth P.M., Martin Kemp P.M., W. D. Keyworth P.M., Henry Preston P.M., Alderman Charles Wells P.M. 250, John Wilson P.M., Geo. Hardy P.M. 250, Walter Reynolds P.M. 250, John Thompson P.M. 250, William Needler P.M., R. T. Vivian P.M., John Hudson P.M., John Brooke W.M. of the Minerva Lodge 250, W. Hunt W.M. of the Kingston Lodge 1010, Bates P.M., and J. Robinson W.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, Grimsby, Cates W.M. of the Alexandra Lodge 1511, Adjutant C. B. Bell, and a large number of the officers and brethren of the sister Lodges and other Lodges in the province. The duties of the vice-chair were ably discharged by the Wardens of the Humber Lodge, Bros. Henry Tooses and Edward Kidd, whilst Bro. Thomas Thompson officiated most efficiently as Director of Ceremonies. A sumptuous repast was placed on the tables by Bro. Evelyn Cooke, whose catering and general arrangements for the comfort and enjoyment of the brethren afforded the utmost satisfaction. The customary loyal and Craft toasts having been duly honoured, and the ancient Wassail cup passed round, the "Healths of the Provincial Officers" was given in felicitous terms from the chair, and received with the utmost enthusiasm.

The W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master, in responding, said he could hardly find words to express the pleasure it afforded him to be present on this occasion, and to meet with the very enthusiastic reception they had just accorded to him. It was ever a source of pride and gratification to himself to come amongst an assemblage of his brethren, more especially in this his mother lodge. (Cheers.) It was something like thirty-four years since he had the honour of being Master of the Humber Lodge, and both before and since that time he had always taken peculiar interest in the welfare of that Lodge. He thanked them heartily for the way in which they had received the names of the Provincial Officers, and ventured to think that the impression made upon them by the R.W. Earl of Zetland, when recently Provincial Grand Lodge was held in this town would not readily be forgotten. (Hear, hear.) He was only a young Mason, but he was desirous of following in the footsteps of his illustrious uncle; and if his life was spared no doubt he would become quite as popular in the North and East Ridings as his late lamented predecessor had been. The manner in which his lordship attended to his Masonic duties was most exemplary: and at all times he evinced an anxiety to do all he could to promote the interests of the Craft in this province. (Hear, hear.) Speaking for himself, he (Dr. Bell) endeavoured to carry out the duties which devolved upon him to the utmost of his ability; and it was a source of unfeigned satisfaction to himself that during the past year he had not been called upon in his official capacity to arbitrate in any case of unpleasantness or difficulty amongst the brethren. (Applause.) Having alluded at considerable length to the general principles of the Craft, and the appointment of Provincial Grand Officers, the speaker congratulated the brethren of the Humber Lodge upon the high position it held, and the great amount of sympathy and confidence it enjoyed in the Province. The Province was altogether in a most flourishing condition, and he believed there was no Province in the kingdom in which greater harmony existed, or in which better officers could be found than in the Province of North and East Yorkshire. He alluded with very great pleasure to his recent visit to the Minerva Lodge in this town, and expressed the gratification it afforded him to notice that the ritual and working amongst the brethren of that Lodge so closely adhered to that of the Humber Lodge. He warmly exhorted a strict conformity to the ancient ritual, and deprecated any innovations into, or alterations of, that which had been so long practised in this Lodge. In conclusion, he proposed with sincere pleasure the "Health of the Worshipful Master of the Humber Lodge, and the newly-appointed officers." (Cheers.) Unless an institution had at its head a man of energy, capable of filling his office with something like credit to himself and to the benefit of the brethren, no good could arise either to the person who occupied that high position or to the society over which he presided. Bro. Ansell had been most attentive to his duties ever since he had been associated with this Lodge; and he believed there was no man more anxious to promote the true interests of Freemasonry than was their present Worshipful Master. (Loud applause.) They all knew that, as a citizen, he was a man of energy, and one who had placed himself in a prominent and good position in society. And he felt sure that Bro. Ansell would, so far as his energy and attention to his important duties were concerned, do his utmost to promote the welfare of his Lodge. (Cheers.) He believed their Worshipful Master had the hearty good wishes of every member of his Lodge. It was a rare thing indeed that an election occurred without two or three cliques being formed, and a neck and neck race for position being the result. But on this occasion he was happy to find that the brethren had been almost unanimous in their selection: and, therefore, Bro. Ansell must feel the greatest confidence as to his having the good wishes and support of almost every brother in the Lodge. (Applause.) He trusted this would be a very prosperous year for Freemasonry, and that the Worshipful Master would be supported in the chair by the frequent attendance and hearty co-operation of the Past Masters and others. He (the speaker) happened to be the oldest Past Master in the Lodge, and, therefore, he feared Bro. Ansell must not calculate upon his being always present; but he would make a point of attending as frequently as possible. (Applause.) Being a professional man, he felt he had other important duties to attend to; and, with all deference to his brethren, those duties must receive his first consideration, and those of Masonry afterwards. (Hear, hear.) He was pleased indeed to see the unanimity which prevailed amongst the brethren of the Lodge on this interesting occasion. They must recollect it was not every one who could, or ought to be, master of a Lodge. Many formed good foundation stones; others were more ornamental, and served for cornices (laughter); but very few were so perfectly wrought as rendered them suitable for keystones. (Hear, hear.) Still there must be strength and material, as well as grace and beauty; and he trusted there was no such feeling existing in this Lodge as jealousy. If that element were kept out the Lodge must go on prosperously for the next twelve months, and he heartily hoped such might be the case. (Applause.) The newly-appointed officers had been selected with judgment and care. Their friend and Bro. Tooses was well known to them all as having attended to his duties, for whom he had great personal respect, having known him for many years, both in and out of this Lodge. He trusted their Senior Warden might have health and attend well to his duties, and that his year might be both agreeable and satisfactory. (Applause.) Bro. Kidd was equally well known and zealous in Masonry. He trusted the Worshipful Master would have great help from his officers, and that the members generally would make a point of attending, and thus assisting to make the year a happy and prosperous one. (Loud applause.)

astically received. In responding to the toast he felt altogether inadequate to the task of conveying to them in words the pleasure and pride he now experienced. He was deeply gratified with the flattering reception they had accorded to him, and he regarded it as an augury that he should enjoy a happy and prosperous year of office. He knew of nothing more to be valued than the friendship and esteem of his fellow citizens, and more especially was this the case in Masonry, when the endeavour of the brethren was to aid each other to their mutual advantage and encouragement (hear, hear). He felt confident they would be indulgent to him in his shortcomings, and overcome his little failings; and, judging from the very cordial manner in which he had been greeted this evening, he felt satisfied he should, during his year, be heartily supported, not only by the brethren of his own lodge, but also by those of the sister lodges in the town (cheers). If there was one thing above all others that he desired to cultivate, it was the interchange of friendliness and interest between the lodges in this town. He considered that in recent years these interchanges had not been so frequent as they might have been; but he was certain that if they all made an effort in that direction very great advantage might result from it. He candidly confessed that in this lodge their duties had been of so arduous a character that they had given their Immediate Past Master but little time to visit the sister lodges. Therefore, however strong might have been Bro. West's desire in that direction, he felt it to be his paramount duty first to transact the business that pressed upon his attention before going amongst the brethren elsewhere. He (the speaker) should, however, take the earliest opportunity of visiting the sister lodges, and should induce the members of these lodges, by every means in his power, to return such visits (applause). In a town like Hull he felt great good might be done, amongst the large number of Masons, if they were all united in any cause. And when they considered that cause was Masonry, which meant charity, he felt they had a right to be united. Therefore they must make an effort to set aside an evening now and then to join the sister lodges and to invite their brethren to come amongst them. He could hardly express his pleasure and gratitude at seeing such an array of Past Masters and officers of the sister lodges as he saw around him on this occasion; and he thanked all those who had so generously supported him this evening (applause). He had carefully mapped out his work for the coming year. In a large lodge like this he knew there was much to be done, in order to maintain its dignity, and if possible to add to its lustre. He felt, moreover, that no Master was justified in vacating that chair without having done something for the brethren who had conferred so great an honour upon him. His predecessor, Bro. West, had done much; he had left a fund at his (the speaker's) command, which he hoped to augment by a similar amount, to be applied to the improvement and decoration of the lodge and the greater comfort of the brethren. He knew that the first great principle of Masonry was charity, and that the prosperity of Masonry could only be obtained by discipline and hard work, neither of which should be overlooked by him. He did not forget, moreover, that when their work had ceased they had to promote a feeling of harmony and concord amongst the brethren. In these matters the Master had a greater amount of duty devolving upon him than was observant to the general body of the members, and while in his position he could assure them he should do all that laid in his power to sustain the dignity of his lodge, to hand down the insignia of his office unsullied as he received it, and if possible to add fresh lustre to it (applause). He concluded by again thanking the brethren for the hearty reception they had given him.

Brothers Tooses and Kidd also responded for the newly-appointed officers, promising their hearty support to the Worshipful Master, and an assiduous attention to the duties which had been entrusted to them.

Bro. Teasyman P.M., in proposing "the Retiring W. Master and his officers," said they had welcomed the coming, so should they speed the parting guests. The lodge had been ruled by the Immediate Past Master in a manner such as had not been excelled by any of his predecessors. Bro. West had many qualifications which made him eminently valuable to them as Master of this lodge, and if they looked around them they would find many reasons why they had come to such a satisfactory conclusion (applause). In the first place, he had kept the lodge in such good order, and the members altogether so harmoniously, that no less than 35 new members had been admitted during the past year—all, he hoped, good and true men (hear, hear). He had so managed the finances of the lodge as to leave them in a satisfactory condition, and they were in possession of a fair round balance, in three figures, for the use of the brethren for decorating their lodge, or any other purpose which the Worshipful Master might direct. Thus they were enabled to set their feet on a solid foundation, and go forward with great confidence to meet the coming year. Again, he would call their attention to the ceremonial of the lodge, which, he believed, had been performed as nearly perfect as they might ever hope it to be (applause). He had kept thoroughly in hand, and had been well supported by his officers, who had all been well up to their work. That reflected upon the good judgment and skill of the Master in selecting such members to assist him in ruling the lodge as he had confidence in. In their own spheres of action they had each been equal to their Master in all that was necessary for the fulfilment of their duties in a proper and efficient manner. Pointing to the late S.W., the high social and public position held by Bro. Summers was in itself a recommendation, and no doubt the late Master felt assured that a man who had gained so high a position in the town would zealously and efficiently discharge the duties that might devolve upon him in the lodge. Those duties had been thoroughly well done, and in no instance had the brethren been able to complain of any laxity of duty or efficiency in its S.W. (cheers). Their J.W., though not such an immense pillar of strength (laughter), had well discharged his duties, and, if anything, the comparison would be in Bro. Thomson's favour. A more zealous, painstaking, or industrious warden he had never known (applause). One of the salient features of the year had been the Masonic ball, the result of which was that they had been able to devote a surplus of £45 to the Masonic charities. He trusted that the result of the forthcoming ball, on the 26th of January, would be even still more successful (cheers).

Bro. Jonathan West I.P.M. in responding, thanked the brethren for the compliment they had paid him. When he accepted office he determined to guard the ancient landmarks of the Order, and to promote, to his utmost, unanimity and concord amongst the brethren. In this endeavour, he felt he had been, to a certain extent, successful (applause). The Lodge funds had increased, and although they had upwards of 300 members, yet he questioned whether any other Lodge boasting of only 50 members, could have been more unanimous than had been the Humber Lodge. During the year there had not been a single discussion which had caused the least pain either to himself or to the officers, and that was a great achievement so far as unanimity was concerned. He trusted he should leave that chair with no less friends than he had when he entered it; and if the members were satisfied with the manner in which he had fulfilled his duties he was abundantly rewarded (cheers.)

Bro. Francis Summers also briefly returned thanks, paying a high tribute of esteem and congratulation to the retiring Master and the members generally upon the increasing prosperity of the Humber Lodge (cheers).

The ex-Mayor (Bro. Alderman Wells) next proposed "The Past Masters and Founders of the Humber Lodge." Amongst these were names they all revered, and every Hull Mason must feel a thrill of pleasure pass through him as he reads the names emblazoned on the record of the Past Masters of this old and important Lodge. They were men of not only high position in the Craft, but of the highest social position in the town. (Hear, hear.) He congratulated Bro. Ansell upon the manner in which the Past Masters had rallied round him in the chair, as they had done his predecessors. It showed their interest in Masonry, and in the welfare of this Lodge, when so many men of rank and eminence assembled on such an occasion. (Cheers.)

The W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master, in responding, said it rarely happened that so many Past Masters were assembled together as he now saw around him, and it was gratifying that so many of them had thought fit to rally round Bro. Ansell on the day of his installation. (Applause.) In doing so they evidenced their desire that the Humber Lodge should go on and prosper; and no doubt Bro. Ansell would experience the value of having a P.M. constantly at his elbow in the performance of his official duties. (Hear, hear.) He was sure that their Immediate Past Master, from his great zeal in Masonry, would be often in his place, as he had been in the past. As to the founders, their names were always received with the utmost reverence and respect; and the speaker alluded at some length to the worth and merits of such men as Feetam, Stark, Crowe, and others whose portraits hung upon the walls of that room, and who had earned the affection of all who came after them by their zeal and assiduity in promoting the principles of Masonry. The speaker then went on to speak of the degrees, warning young brethren especially against an over anxiety to practise those which were not in accordance with the Grand Lodge of England, but to adhere to the recognised degrees, and to make them as perfect as possible. These were the principles laid down and acted upon by the founders of this Lodge, whose memories were so cherished by all Masons in the present day. In foreign countries politics and other matters were introduced into Masonic Lodges, in direct contravention of the first great principles of the Order; but he trusted no such disturbing elements would ever find their way into our Lodges in this country, but that the universality of Masonry which was one of its chief beauties, would always be strictly maintained. (Cheers.)

Bro. Dr. Hay P.M. also suitably responded to the toast.

Bro. Martin Kemp next gave the "Sister Lodges," on whose behalf Bro. John Brooke, W.M. of the Minerva Lodge, and Bro. Oates of the Alexandra Lodge, responded. Bro. H. Voight, on behalf of the W.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, also expressed thanks for the cordial welcome extended to the brethren of other Lodges; and Bro. Brooke expressed himself in similar terms on behalf of Bro. Hunt, W.M. of the Kingston Lodge, who had been obliged to withdraw from the assembly before the toast was proposed.

Bro. Vivian P.M. then gave the "Masonic Charities," in whose behalf a most earnest appeal was made by Bro. John Thompson P.M., the Grand Steward of the Charities for this Province.

The Senior Warden then gave the "Visiting Brethren," on whose behalf Bro. Adjutant Bell, Bro. C. Newton, of the Minerva Lodge, and Bro. B. Barnett, of the Alexandra Lodge, severally responded.

The Junior Warden gave the last toast on the list, "The Ladies," for whom Bro. E. Stone and Bro. R. Toogood returned thanks.

The proceedings of the evening were enlivened by some excellent songs, Bro. J. W. Stephenson rendering most efficient service as accompanyist.

An Ounce of Help Worth a Pound of Pity.—There was a great rush to the trap, in which sat a disconsolate mouse looking in blank dismay at the company of cousins clamouring outside.

"How could you be so foolish?" squeaked one.

"It goes to my very heart to see you, dear," squeaked another; while cries of "I wonder you were not more careful!" "What a thousand pities you should have fallen a sacrifice to your taste for cheese!" "How glad I should be to see you out of your trouble!" etc., etc., rose in a chorus from the rest.

"There, if you can't do better than sit there squeaking, be so good as to go," cried the prisoner, indignantly; "if you would set to work to gnaw the wires, so as to set me free, I would call you friends, and believe in your sympathy, but your 'noise and doing nothing' is worse than useless. Your wisdom, which is aggravating, comes too late, and your pity is as contemptible to me as it is cheap to you!"—Mrs. Prosser's Fables in "Leisure Hour."

Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

VOL. III.—No. 54. SATURDAY, 8th JANUARY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

SOME PEOPLE WE DIFFER WITH.

IT is given to few men to pass through life without occasional differences with their fellows. We are not alluding to differences of opinion. It is in the order of things that different people should hold different opinions on different subjects. The differences we have in our mind are better described, perhaps, as quarrels, and at times are of a serious character. It is by no means necessary we should be either cantankerous or litigious, morose, or ill-natured. We may be among the most genial people in the world, and yet there are those who, if we will not quarrel with them, will find some way of quarrelling with us. Of course, Masons are bound, by the tenour of their obligation, to avoid giving and taking offence, and where two brethren are at issue, a ready means is provided for securing a reconciliation between them. But Masons are merely mortals, and as liable, therefore, to error as the rest of mankind. The most elaborate, the most comprehensive code of laws will not prevent Masons from occasionally yielding to human weaknesses. Thus it comes about that the relations between brethren of the mystic tie cannot always be described as fraternal. It being, then, impossible to wholly avoid disputes with certain brethren, let us devote a little space to noting some of those whom it may be our misfortune to differ with, glancing briefly at their various points and temperaments, so that we may at least be on our guard against saying or doing any thing to cause them any annoyance. So shall we be acting according to our vows, both in the letter and the spirit.

Foremost among the number of disputatious brethren, comes Bro. Cantanker. He makes a point of saying unpleasant things. It is, in fact, in his nature that he should make himself very disagreeable to all whom he comes in contact with. When he became a Mason he omitted, not unnaturally, perhaps, to leave outside the Lodge doors the very un-Masonic feature which chiefly characterised him then, as it still does now. We have before referred to Bro. Cantanker, as one of those who object, on principle, to any and every proposition. A good many people are not a little disconcerted at first on finding themselves in his company. If they are foolish, unseeming squabbles often follow. If they are wise, they take his objections in good part, making the best they can of a very angular-minded brother. They very soon learn that his disagreeable utterances are not intended to be offensive, and must always be taken with a qualification, exceptis excipiendis, that is, present company always excepted. He is at heart a very good fellow. He acts up to the spirit, if not to the letter, of his obligation. He is Bro. Cantanker by name, as well as by nature, but he is not ill-natured. He gives of his substance to worthy objects. He knows well enough the uses of a chisel, but he never applies it to smooth away the roughnesses of his own nature. Those who know him thoroughly, respect him, but they cannot be said to love him. It is inevitable that differences should arise with such a brother, for he has a mortal antipathy to anything like agreement. But this induces no feeling of enmity, or even of anger. We come to look upon his invariable objections as a part of the price we pay for the privilege of knowing him. We forget and forgive but too readily the roughness and acidity of the temper, out of respect for the sterling worth of his character. Not so with Bro. Litigant, who likewise objects on principle, but the principle which animates him in his display of cantankerousness is far less respectable. He is not over particular in the conduct of his relations with others. It does not follow, of course, that a litigious should also be a grasping man, but we always fancy somehow he is under the influence of mercenary motives. He seems as though he were always on the look out to gain some advantage over us, and we are far from sure that he is scrupulous in the means he employs in order to gain his ends. The man who wars with us on principle, though the principle involved exceeds not in value one halfpenny, may be worthy of all respect as a thoroughly honest and honourable man, yet, rightly or wrongly, we have always a presentiment, not only that he would like to triumph over us in the particular point at issue, but that he will strive to do so at all hazards, and be glad to acquire some further and unfair advantage as well. Bro. Litigant, in our estimation, is a great nuisance, with his perverse determination to have it out with everybody. We feel considerable satisfaction if we beat him; we are unusually nettled if we are beaten. We may be momentarily angered by Bro. Cantanker, but we soon recover equanimity, and are ready to meet him again and again in any company and at any time. But somehow, when we have once had a taste of Bro. Litigant's quality, we fight shy of him afterwards. We may not be in a position to explain the reason; we may even laugh at ourselves for being so silly, but the fact remains; there is a certain sense of dislike for him rankling in our breast ever afterwards. Bro. Peevish we endure with as much philosophy as we can command. He is usually fretful about trifles, but he is very often a good fellow, and if he could only be brought to see it, a greater source of annoyance to himself than to others. Of course, the battles we engage in with Bro. Pepper are very terrible, while they last; he hits out incontinently at whoever offends him. He is not particular in his argument; he is whirled along too rapidly in his outbursts of passion, and one would not unnaturally conclude that anything like reconciliation with Bro. Pepper was utterly out of the question. But this were an error. Bro. Pepper is choleric enough when his blood is up, but no one is more ready to withdraw anything he may have said in the moment of anger. No one is more ready to apologize for any unintentional wrong he may have committed. No one is more ready to meet his opponent again on friendly terms. While ever exercising a proper degree of self-respect, he is always ready to admit himself in the wrong, if wrong he has committed. He will even take blame to himself, where none is due, if he see a chance of reconciliation. He acts on the spur of the moment, but he is generous, and never allows any ill feeling to exist in his mind. Bro. Whiteblood, however, is another sort of personage. He is more placid in his bearing, and seemingly more manageable. The idea that he could ever take part in a squabble is most unlikely. But, in spite of an apparently easy-going temperament, he is a far more objectionable man to differ with than any of those we have already named. He works on very silently, very cunningly. He assumes towards those persons he will quarrel with a geniality he is very far from feeling. He never allows you to know whether anything you have said or done in all innocence has given offence, but he never forgets that you have offended. Unlike Bro. Pepper, who speaks his mind freely and at once, Bro. Whiteblood cherishes in his memory every fancied slight, but outwardly he is as much your friend as ever. At length the time comes for him to pay off old scores, and then, in a cold and passionless manner, he sets himself dead against you. You find that from the very day you unwittingly gave him slight offence till the day he opposes you actively, he has been silently working to your disadvantage, to overthrow your plans. Had you felt yourself aggrieved by any word or action of his, you would have told him so, after the manner of Bro. Pepper, and there would have been an end of the matter, as regards yourself. But he has been all the time brooding over his wrongs, and planning schemes of vengeance. Nor is he content with a fair retaliation—assuming that you have really been guilty of offence, and merit retribution—he does not rest till he has done all in his power to harm you. It may be you have done him service in former times; this, in his opinion, is a strong reason why he should carry his feeling of enmity towards you as far as may be. Very possibly, in utter ignorance of this growing hostility, you have made some false step. It is on the cards you have been guilty of some shortcoming of a trifling character. It even becomes patent to you that you have thus acted, but you take no heed, you anticipate no disturbance of friendly relations, or, better still, you at once admit the error you have unintentionally committed. It never occurs to you, who have done him a service in former days, that he will descend to such depths of meanness, and, when a favourable time comes, will turn and do you all the injury he can. This class of person, of which we have made Bro. Whiteblood the type, is a most objectionable one. It is most unfortunate to be involved in any dispute with such as he is. He never rests till he has punished you out of all proportion to the nature of the injury you may have caused. If you meet him afterwards, he meets you with studied politeness, but, at the same time, with studied coldness. He resolutely avoids all opportunities for explanation. He is a stranger to passion in the ordinary sense, and hence we have named him Whiteblood. It is only the sanguinous man who plays the part of Bro. Pepper. Hence, with these whiteblooded, or, as they are more commonly called, white livered people, it is impossible to have any feeling of sympathy whatever. Indeed, of all the people it may be our fate to differ with, we sincerely hope to be spared any contention with these. We can stand Cantanker, we feel pity for poor Peevish, we fight and the very next moment are friends again with Pepper, Litigant we hold aloof from, but Whiteblood we regard as essentially malicious, and cut him accordingly.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 10.)

THE OCTOGENARIAN.

"Fell Time, thou canst not harm this man!
Thy scythe is powerless here."

IT is not always a compliment to say of a man that he wears well. We may mean that he manages to keep a decent exterior on view, which merely conceals the moral decay within. Or we may mean that he should have been exposed long since, but has contrived to keep a fair name and character, in spite of his evil deeds. But in the sense in which we use the expression in this paper, we mean to imply a compliment, and we should deeply regret if the dear old fellow who is now sitting for his portrait should take umbrage at our application of it to him. If we say that our Octogenarian Mason "wears well," we mean it in the sense in which we speak of gold as wearing well, or any article of daily use, into which the workman has put the best materials, and the most conscientious labour. If the reader reflect a moment, he will possibly come to the conclusion that, as a rule, only those who have lived good lives can have a chance of wearing well. The rogue, the man of pleasure, or the mere roué, wear out the machinery of life, and become old long before the allotted time. A hearty old age is only enjoyed by those who have used the world wisely; who have kept a clean and unspotted conscience. Our hero, we have said, is an Octogenarian; but no one, who did not know the fact, would suspect it. We have known him many years, and we have never noticed the least change in him. Seventeen years since, to our personal knowledge, he was the same active, cheerful, genial soul that he is at the present time. We all expect an ordinary acquaintance to show the marks and scars of time, but we will venture to say that his friends would be greatly astonished if our Octogenarian should ever be less young in mind, or exhibit any indication of being tired of life. His hair, indeed, has whitened a little during the past ten years. But time appears to have added no fresh wrinkles to his cheery face, nor deprived his frame of any of its activity. At every Quarterly Communication he may be seen walking up Grand Lodge as firmly as the youngest member. His interest in Masonry is as keen as ever, and his unimpaired energy enables him to play his part in sundry Lodges of Instruction with a perfection which is the envy and admiration of younger men. Look at him, ye Masons of forty, who complain of the growing ills of the flesh! His dark face, with its garnish of grey hair, is the picture of health and contentment. He sits, or stands, or walks, with the firmness and decision of an old soldier, and chats of the events of the day with the keen interest of a man whose clear intellect is still equal to all the calls that can be made upon it. Wherever he goes he is received with tokens of affection. Some of the younger members of the Order esteem it an honour to be invited to take a pinch of snuff from the silver box, upon which our Octogenarian deferentially performs a double knock, before he ventures to unveil its aromatic contents. Old Masons are glad to learn the lore of the Craft from his lips, and those who have profited by his instructions are proud to acknowledge him as their master.

In his profession, our Octogenarian is honoured by all who know him, and he is revered by many who never saw his face. Young ladies who regard the ball room as the ante-chamber to Paradise look upon his name as a synonym of bliss. He has discoursed most eloquent music in nearly every great mansion in the land, and the skilled minstrels who serve under his baton are proud of their master. In the City he is well known, and the great banquet on Lord Mayor's day would be wanting in interest if our Octogenarian Mason were not summoned to minister to the pleasures of the assembled guests. Early in October his pleasant face is to be seen somewhere within the region over which Gog and Magog preside. He has a warm shake of the hand, a pinch of the aromatic compound from the magic box, and a kindly greeting for all with whom he is acquainted. He is accustomed to hear every one say that he is growing young, and takes the compliment as a matter of course. The Civic officials hold him in the highest estimation, and we really believe that a newly-fledged Lord Mayor would as soon dispense with his state coach as with our old and veteran friend. Amongst his brethren of the baton our Octogenarian is deservedly popular. Men who have led an orchestra half their lives are proud to know him, and it is really a pleasant sight to see him surrounded by his professional friends, to whom he imparts agreeable gossip, or news of interest, in the sententious manner which is one of his characteristics. Our Octogenarian is usually a man of few words. He knows possibly that a misplaced remark jars on the ear like a false note in a song, and he rarely speaks without weighing what he says. He has the wisdom to be genial without superfluity of talk, and can convey more kindly good will in a shake of his disengaged fingers, whilst holding a precious pinch with the others, than half the world can manage to exhibit in volumes of mere words.

The secret, indeed, of his charm of manner lies in his sincerity and singleness of heart. You feel that you are in the society of an honest man, who means what he says. His few words quickly reach the core of the dullest, and for our part, we would rather have a "God bless you" from our Octogenarian than from the lips of a mitred bishop. In his Masonic character, he throws off much of his reserve. In the Lodges of Instruction, in which he officiates with so much ability, his cheery voice, calling his "pippins" from the four cardinal points to well merited refreshment, is often heard. Men sit at his feet awaiting instruction, assured that he is a Gamaliel of the Order. His knowledge is, indeed, equal to his Masonic reputation, and that reputation is of no merely local renown. In Grand Lodge he holds high rank, and is greatly esteemed by the leading lights of the Masonic world. Few men are entitled to wear the brilliant array of decorations which have glittered on his breast. Fewer still have been the honoured recipients of so many presentation jewels, and still fewer, we apprehend, have been as unfortunate as our Octogenarian, who, on an evil day, after some grand event, was fated to lose all these glittering symbols. In a moment of forgetfulness he, unhappily, left them in a cab, and has regretted his misfortune from that day to this. But it is not in the power of fate to deprive our hero of that which is more tangible than the gems of office—the respect of his brethren. He is revered throughout the Order, as a good Mason; and in the wider circle of the world, he is honoured and loved as an upright man.

MASONRY AND MAGIC.

WE are often surprised whilst glancing over old works upon art magical, by finding therein represented many of the signs and symbols current in Masonry, to which occult virtues and mystic correspondencies are attributed. Endued with geometrical properties and the infinite power of Numbers, the pentagon, the seal of Solomon, and the cubic-stone laid open or the Latin Cross, are constantly cited as keys of wisdom, and essential auxiliaries to spells and conjurations of every kind.

Magic is a vague word. In modern times, scarcely two of its professors even, can be got to agree upon its exact scope and definition. So much of what was formerly accounted "supernatural" is now within the domain of science, that for most of the subjects which yet remain to be elucidated, we ought rather to substitute the term "unaccounted for," or, in the case of psychic, or spiritual phenomena "supra-mundane." For we may be well assured that nothing, under the Great Architect, can be "super-natural."

Public professors of Magic proper have been, in modern times, few in number. If we may judge of a professor by the estimate of himself propounded in his writings, then we may conclude at once that the greatest practitioner this century has known was the late Louis Constant, of Paris.

Under the nom-de-plume of Eliphas Levi, he published, between the years 1859 and 1862, the following, which he directs his disciples to study in due sequence:—"THE DOGMA AND RITUAL OF HIGH MAGIC," two vols; "THE HISTORY OF MAGIC," and "THE KEY OF THE GREAT MYSTERIES." These works may therefore be considered to sum up his views of the question.

With him, we have this advantage over the works of the ancient and mediæval mystics, that the body of his theory is openly dissected and displayed, the soul only left to the discernment of the explorer; whereas previous writers, adopting a jargon and labyrinthine plan only intelligible to themselves, have left both body and soul concealed from the search of the profane. From Levi we get an insight into the ancient universal belief in "the soul of the world," or, as he prefers to call it, "the Astral Light," in which all live and move and have their being, which, again, is resolvable into the all-pervading "Spirit" of the teachers of modern spiritualism, which is held to inform and determine the material properties alike of the molecules of air, water, minerals, vegetables, animals, and all. Unlike modern spiritualists, Levi attributes all unexplained phenomena to the action of will-power or of correlated occult forces, over the fluctuations of this universal plastic medium, "the Astral Light," which holds, as it were, indestructibly pictured within its depths a reflection of every thought, word, act or thing that has been since the Creation. And thus, when mysterious voices or apparitions are to be accounted for, he finds their echoes or shadows existing in "the Astral Light," materialised for the nonce by forces which act under occult laws. The knowledge of these laws, or rather of these conditions, is what he calls "Magic."

It is, however, noteworthy that this theory fails to account for such phenomena as levitation, or the passage of solids through solids, of which we have apparently well-attested accounts. The hand which Home caused to appear upon the table before Napoleon III., and which allowed itself to be saluted as that of his uncle, might have been a materialisation from "the Astral Light," but the repeated elongations of his body witnessed by Lord Lindsay and others cannot thus be accounted for, unless upon the supposition that the reporters became intoxicated or hallucinated by occult vibrations of that mystic element. We may not deny the occurrence of supra-mundane phenomena, because charlatans have been detected in imitating them. Things which public curiosity renders so profitable naturally prompt mercenary scoundrels to simulate. We must remember that the fact of supra-mundane action will be proven, as much by the movement of a pin without known cause against known natural law, as by an apparition or a prophecy. Professor Crookes, discoverer of the motive force of light, has, amongst others, convincingly proved, by rigid scientific demonstration, the existence of the occult forces which surround a genuine "medium," and which act upon ponderable bodies in opposition to the known laws of Nature. The testimony as to some "apparitions" of the Spiritualists is almost as strong, but proof of the existence of the occult force in its most trivial manifestation suffices for argument. To tell investigators of intelligent and disciplined minds that they have been deceived by conjurors or by their own senses, is no rebutter of their statements; more rational are the explanations of Eliphas Levi.

Pity it is that the rank and file of mankind are so timid when confronted with anything new, their first unreasoning impulse being to cry out against it for the purpose of reversing their position and of frightening it away. Vain impulse! the new thing, if not true, will vanish of itself; if true, not all the thunders of Jove will scare it. And more than pity it is, that the popular press, living upon public opinion, should have to shriek in unison with crude human impulse, instead of having the moral strength to investigate and to oppose impulse in the interest of truth.

It is noteworthy, however, that of late certain leaders of the press have been posing for a change of front in their treatment of spiritualism; the latest remarkable essay on that subject in the Westminster Review going even so far as to predicate of it—"the germ of the Religion of the Future."

Amidst some display of vanity and some transcendental flights of national self-glorification, native to a one of le peuple le plus spirituel du monde, Levi lets us now and then into dim chambers of exquisite imagery, when on mysterious themes or illustrating the arcana of psychology and physiology. We are therefore led to hope that, amongst some rubbish, we may light upon precious stones, and with the view of following up the symbolic relationship of Masonry and Magic, we will first dip into his pages. They are mystical enough, but radiance itself compared with those of Eugenius Philalethes or his predecessors. He recapitulates the Gnostic formulæ:—

"When men know how to live, they will die no more, but will be transformed, as the chrysalis is, into a brilliant butterfly.

"The terrors of death are the offspring of our ignorance, and death itself is only frightful from the debris which covers it, and the sombre colouring of its images. Death is, in truth, only the work of Life.

"God did not create Pain. Intellect accepted it, in order to be free. (This is an explanation of myths, both Aryan and Semitic, which account for the origin of evil.) As the eye only perceives Light by its faculty of opening and shutting, as being always open it would be the slave of Light, so created Intellect is only blessed in acknowledging God through its faculty of denying Him, in doing which it still affirms its liberty. Thus, even blasphemy will glorify God, whose perfect service is perfect Liberty. Once God was All, and All was Light. When God said, 'Let there be Light,' he allowed Darkness to reveal the Light, and out of Chaos came the Universe."

Of the Serpent Tempter of Genesis, "Wha-Nahâsh hafah hâroum mi-chol hâlath ha-shadeh asher hâshah Ihôah Ælohim," he says, dissecting the word Nahasch thus—14 Nun—The force which produces compounds.

5 He—The passive reproductive principle or the recipient.
21 Schin—The natural and central fire balanced by double polarisation.

that, by the cabalistic interpretation which he claims to give, ex cathedrâ, the universal magic agent is intended, symbolised in all theogonies by the Serpent, to which the Hebrews gave the name of OD when active, of OB when passive, and of AOUR when fully revealed in its balanced force—in other words, "the Astral Light."

At the anniversary festival of the Alfred Masonic Lodge M. Jules Bué, M.A., Magdalen College, was installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed by Bro. W. Thompson, the retiring Master. In the course of the evening it was announced, by the Master of the Apollo Lodge (Rev. H. A. Pickard, Christchurch), that a telegram had just been received from India, from the Prince of Wales, in which his Royal Highness appointed Prince Leopold as Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—At the beginning of the year, countless causes are at work to lower the tone of the nervous system, which will be followed by ill health unless proper means be employed to avert that evil. Holloway's far famed preparations supply a faultless remedy for both external and internal complaints connected with changes of seasons. All affections of the skin, roughness, blotches, pimples, superficial, and deeper seated inflammations, erysipelas, rheumatic pains, and gouty pangs, alike succumb to the exalted virtues of Holloway's Ointment and Pills. The maladies most prevalent in winter, to wit: Chest complaints and stomachic ailments, daily bear witness to the potential influence of this treatment, which saves suffering and spares disease.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

IN spite of the private festivities which monopolise so much of the attention of our brethren at this season of the year, the inmates of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution have not been forgotten. Bro. Terry, the energetic Secretary of the Charity, has, in former years, we believe, given our old friends an annual entertainment, which has always been highly appreciated. On Wednesday last, a number of the brethren, with their ladies, proceeded to Croydon, for the purpose of assisting at a musical and elocutionary entertainment, which had been planned by the Secretary. After a most excellent dinner, at which the old folks were assembled, and to which ample justice was done, the company adjourned to the large room of the Institution, where a very agreeable programme of amusements was carried out, with great spirit, under the able superintendence of the Secretary. Some charming songs were sung by the lady visitors, and several brilliant pieces of music were performed on the pianoforte. The pièce de résistance of the evening was a performance by Professor Lane, the prestigiator, who occupied the floor for upwards of an hour, and whose tricks were loudly applauded and highly appreciated. This gentleman fairly succeeded in mystifying the audience, and when he had concluded, Bro. Terry, on behalf of the guests, expressed himself highly gratified with the entertainment.

Bro. Brevo, one of the inmates, then rose and proposed that the cordial thanks of the assembly should be given to the Secretary, Bro. Terry, for his kindness, in having arranged so agreeable a treat for the inmates. The motion was carried amid much applause. Bro. Terry, in responding, took occasion to say that the committee and himself were inspired with but one idea, and that was an earnest desire to make his old friends as happy as possible. He felt assured that they appreciated the efforts of the Committee of Management. The inmates could always appeal to him when any little difficulty arose amongst them. He could assure them that they would find him always ready to adjust such difficulties to the best of his ability when they did occur, but, in conclusion, he reminded them, thrown as they were in some measure in each other's society, that it would be better to "bear and forbear." It was the duty of us all in this life, and we should all be the happier if we gave way a little to each other.

In the absence of Dr. Strong, a cordial vote of thanks to him was unanimously passed; Bro. Terry remarking that the inmates were deeply indebted to him for his great kindness, and for the assiduous attention with which he ministered to them in sickness. The National Anthem having been performed, the proceedings were brought to a close.

The lady artistes were Mesdames Strong, Dubois, Baber. The Misses Haines, Owen, Strong, Terry and Gott.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE Twelfth Night Entertainment to the pupils of this Institution was given on the 6th inst., tea was provided for the visitors and children, after which some charming and instructive dissolving views were given at the sole expense of our dear brother J. R. Cox, who is always foremost in the field to amuse. As we have often said, great credit is due to the Governors of this Institution, as well as to the Governess, for the rapid strides made in its progress. Our space precludes us giving further particulars.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE general Committee of this Institution held their monthly meeting on the 1st inst., under the presidency of Bro. Rayuham W. Stewart. Upon the confirmation of the minutes of the previous meeting it was suggested by the chairman that £2,000 should be voted to increase the Infirmary accommodation. Bro. C. Horsley, P.G.R. Middlesex, moved:—

"That the House Committee be empowered to ascertain the amount and position of the ground at disposal for the purpose of erecting a building with all necessary accommodation for thirty boys in case of illness, and that they instruct an architect to furnish plans, with proper elevations and sectional details, together with an estimate of the actual cost of erecting the same, and within what period from the commencement of the building."

This was supported by Bro. John Symonds. The Secretary stated, in reply to enquiries, that it was necessary to provide infirmary accommodation for 15 per cent. of the inmates of charitable institutions. The motion was approved and carried. The solicitor, Bro. Hopwood, in referring to Bro. Wakeling's bequests, desired the Committee to watch the proceedings now pending in the High Court of Justice, particularly as this Institution and the Girls' School, both beneficiaries, should be represented by one solicitor. £5 was voted for outfit to an ex-pupil. Some correspondence was gone through respecting the appointment of a committee by West Yorkshire to enquire into the expenditure and management. This motion was ordered to lie on the table. Notice of motion was given by Warwickshire, for a perpetual presentation on payment of £1,050. No reply having been received from Bros. Tew and Perrott, a vote of thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

THE DRAMA.

The Pantomimes at Drury Lane and Covent Garden Theatres—"Antarctic" at the Strand.

IN one respect at least Drury Lane may fairly claim to be the representative theatre of the nation. Sneers may be and are indulged in freely at the idea of Mr. Halliday and even Mr. Boucicault taking rank as dramatists worthy of the national reputation, and the artists to whom their productions have given employment have not always added lustre to our stage; but few people will deny that the best pantomime of the season is nearly always that produced at Drury Lane. One way of accounting for this is found in the fact that Mr. Chatterton secures the services of that veteran writer of pantomimes, Mr. E. L. Blanchard, and relies on the great abilities of the Vokes Family to give full play to the author's whimsical ideas. This season's piece is founded on the well known legend of Dick Whittington and His Cat; and without starting any argument as to how much of that venerable nursery story is true, we may say that it is followed with tolerable closeness. The opening scene, Revels in Cheapside, gives opportunity for one of those charming ballets for which Mr. Cormack is famous; and we may also note that the hand of Mr. Beverley has not lost its skill, the scenery being worthy of his high reputation. As we have before hinted, the chief actors in the piece are supplied from the Vokes Family. Mr. Fred Vokes is a wonderfully agile Fitzwarren, whose muscles are apparently made of leather, and whose bones are certainly constructed of indiarubber. Mr. Walter Vokes is the fortune bearing cat, whilst Miss Victoria and Miss Rosina Vokes add to the scene, not only their grace and beauty, but also a very considerable share of dramatic ability in the parts of Dick Whittington and Alice Fitzwarren. It is evident that no pains have been spared to render the fittings and accessories as gorgeous as possible, and as the result it may be said that, however wearisome this kind of entertainment may be, the Drury Lane pantomime is good in its kind.

Since the days of the famous donkey in the Forty Thieves, the COVENT GARDEN pantomime has been noted rather for splendour than for fun, and as a case in point, we need only mention Babil and Bijou. In respect both of show and amusement the Cinderella of this year seems hardly up to the standard of its predecessors; the dialogue, presumably new, is dull, and the scenery and dresses appear to have seen wear. Most people, however, will forgive the many shortcomings of the piece, because it introduces once more Miss Nelly Power as one of those fairy princes, all sparkle and laughter, in which she has so often charmed. Her return to the stage is especially welcome at a time when real burlesque actresses are so rare. A fitting pendant to Miss Power's Prince Pleasons is the Cinderella of Miss Amalia, whose acting is marked by much freshness and grace. Mr. Brittain Wright is admirably fitted to sustain the burden of the broadly comic fun, ably assisted, as he is, by Mr. W. H. Fair and Mr. Rogers. It is excessively hard to introduce new features into a pantomime, but the old points still seem to be capable of provoking laughter, and we do not doubt that Cinderella will have a fair run.

A plot, which might have been written by a playwright escaped from Bedlam: dresses notable for their eccentricity: a jumble of funny songs and grotesque dances: these are the ingredients of the Christmas pudding at the STRAND. From its title to its "Finale," the new piece is a sheer absurdity, but it is supported by Mr. Terry as an old Frenchman, always getting himself into scrapes; by the excellent acting of M. Marius, who never lets slip a chance of making a point; and by the exhilarating verve and go of Miss L. Venne and Miss Claude, and all of this kind would run one of Dr. Vellere's plays for months—at the STRAND.

VANITAS VANITATUM.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The comments of Bro. "T. F." upon this subject possess one especial merit, namely, they show that he is thoroughly in earnest. He does not mince matters, and disdains to disguise the supreme contempt in which he holds Masonic decorations. His zeal, however, has led him into rashness. In his desire to teach us our duties, he forgets that modesty and moderation are absolutely necessary to render the lessons effectual. He must surely be endowed with a vast amount of pluck, for few will be found sufficiently daring to prefer an indictment, wholesale and unmistakable, unflinchingly and without reserve. On reading his remarks in your last issue, I positively became terrified; my heart almost stood still, and I verily believe all and every one of my limbs would have obstinately refused to perform their functions had I attempted to move, because, to my utter amazement, I found—I, who had hitherto deemed myself one of the most loyal of Masons—that I was one of the "chief law-breakers, and persistently continued to violate the Book of the Constitutions." "T. F." is not a man of half-and-half or milk-and-water measures. He goes the whole hog, and includes W.M.'s, P.M.'s, M.M.'s, and, indeed, indirectly, the officers high and low of the Grand Lodge itself, in his sweeping denunciation. For many years past, my confrères and myself have attended Grand Lodge, brave with silver tans on our badges, and our manly breasts decked with glittering gold jewels, unmolested by the scrutineers, and unopposed by the vigilant functionary who guards the portal of the sanctum. Poor deluded creatures that we were, to imagine ourselves obedient to the laws, while in reality pursuing a course of misdemeanour. O, Bro. "T. F." you have rudely and cruelly disturbed our pleasant repose. There is, however, one consolation; we are, taken altogether, a goodly company. Silver tans and gold jewels are patronised by the highest dignitaries of the Order. A wonderful display of the latter may be observed on the dais at every assembly at Grand Lodge, and resplendent is the aspect of many occupying a place in the body of the hall. Indeed, the authorities, and, I think, wisely, encourage the use of these ornaments. Why should Masons affect to despise that which is valued so highly amongst every class of human kind? Royalty has its distinctive emblems, and is proud of its ribbons and stars. Soldiers and sailors risk their lives, incited, first of all, by a spirit of patriotism, then stimulated by the prospect of possible distinction in the shape of a medal conferred by the sovereign. The young lawyer dreams of the silk gown, and the aspiring curate of the lawn sleeves. The successful trader spends his thousands to attain the dignity of the crimson robe, and to be called, if even only for one short year, "my Lord Mayor." Diplomatists have been known to sell their very souls for a decoration from a foreign potentate, and great monarchs, upon occasions, bestow orders of distinction upon each other. The Prince of Wales in India distributes stars and orders not only upon the faithful native chiefs, but upon the tried English servants of the Crown. Great events are commemorated, and ingenuity, skill, and invention frequently rewarded with a medal. Our own Grand Lodge has instituted the Charity, Past Master, Centenary, and lately the one in honour of the Grand Installation. Is it to be asserted that all this money is ill spent, and ought to be bestowed upon charity? Such a policy would be suicidal, and defeat its own ends. For in the production of these gew-gaws, which some so highly prize, and others pretend to despise, many thousands of hands are employed, and thus the most valuable aid is afforded to a large and deserving section of our fellow creatures by enabling them to earn an honest independence. Our accuser asserts that Lodge funds are misappropriated when applied to the purchase of a testimonial for a retiring W.M. This, I think, is a mistake, Lodge subscriptions are intended and regulated for three distinct and specified purposes. First, for payment of Grand Lodge dues, second, to defray expenses incidental to the working of the Lodge, and the remaining portion to be expended, in most Lodges, part to be set aside for the private benevolent fund, and part for refreshment, or to be applied in any other way the vote of the majority might decide. Now, if from this last moity a sum is taken for the purchase of a presentation jewel, can it fairly be said to have been misapplied? or that it is "applied to a purpose it was never intended?" I speak of some friends, who, after going in for all the fancy degrees, and spending no end of money, pronounced them "all humbug." I do not wonder at that, excess of any kind is unwholesome, and too much eating or drinking will often produce nausea; but that is no reason why the temperate should be deprived of their quiet enjoyment, or relinquish the advantages of their sober and legitimate pursuits. Bro. "T. F." is not content to limit his strictures to the conduct of Craft Masons, but characteristically has a fling at the Royal Arch, which he all but includes in the Schismatic degrees. But, nil desperandum, let us acknowledge our innocent follies, rejoice in the possession of our gilded and bejewelled toys, and refrain from any attempt to hide what may be termed a childish delight in our bright coloured ribbons, but at the same time continue, as most of us have hitherto endeavoured, to do all in our power to ameliorate the condition of the aged, the widow and the orphan, not only in the household of the faithful but to every human creature who claims our consideration. Neglect in those respects on our part would indeed entitle us to the appellation of "law breakers." While we continue to act in conformity with the principles of the Craft, our little innocent vanities will be readily overlooked by every good man and true. It has never appeared that gloom and cynicism have wrought much good in the world, or that a long face and sombre clothing have accelerated human happiness. The Creator's own work is full of bright colours and gorgeous decorations, and I am inclined to think we cannot do better than humbly and reverently follow His example.

Yours fraternally,

27th December 1875. E. GOTTHEIL.

BRO. GOTTHEIL'S "SUGGESTION TO OUR JEWISH BRETHREN."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

RESPECTED FRIEND AND BROTHER,—Brother Gottheil is of the opinion that something still remains to be done to render our Masonic Charitable Institutions thoroughly effective. The orphan children of Jewish brethren, so he tells us, hitherto "have been unable to participate in the benefits of either of them." The charities are, of course, open to them, as to others, but the system of management is not such as our Jewish brethren desire for their children. We are bound to consider this statement from a brother who is a representative of a class of men and brethren who have nobly done their part, not only for Masonic charities, but on behalf of many other such benevolent institutions.

In considering Bro. Gottheil's letter, it will be well for us to remember a fact or two about which he says nothing, and which has an important bearing on the case.

"ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS."

1 (xlix.) It is "a fundamental principle of this institution that its benefits shall be extended to the sons of all brethren under the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of England, without any distinction arising from religious belief. The benefits offered by the system in operation prior to the establishment of the school house shall be continued to the sons of brethren whose parents or friends may object to their being placed on the establishment." (Page 11, Laws 1873.)

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

2 (xlix.) "All girls duly elected become inmates of the establishment, with the exception of the daughters of Jewish parents, who may be educated out of the establishment, if their relations and friends so desire." (Laws 1873, page 11.)

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

3 (lxiv.) "The General Committee may pay for the education of each boy (or girl) to the age of sixteen years, any sum not exceeding twelve pounds per annum." (Page 15, Laws 1873.)

(Then follow rules as to the education, examination, and such like, of children educated in schools approved by the committee).

4. It is evident, then, from the foregoing extracts, that a child of Jewish parents, if elected into either of our Masonic institutions, and whose friends object to his or her being educated with the other children, may be educated in a Jewish school, approved of by the committee, at an expense of twelve pounds annually (or less, if deemed desirable), though of this fact our Brother Gottheil makes no mention.

5. In view of the preceding, we have simply to consider the question of maintenance (not education), and for an additional £18 or £20 per annum we presume all that is necessary may be obtained, the cost per head of each child in the Institution being materially affected by the expenses of the secretarial and collecting departments, as also of the building fund, of which those out of the Institution would not require to be paid for, though, of course, on the calculation of the expenses, their number would be included.

6. Our able brother then alludes to the excellent funds of certain Hebrew lodges in London and in the country, which, for the number of the members, are equal to the best of any ordinary lodge funds in this country, and says, "the calls upon which are unfrequent, and comparatively insignificant. The rest remains unproductive, and no benefit to anybody."

7. Assuming the total funds of the Hebrew lodges to be £5,000, we have an annual (and increasing) income of £250, and taking it for granted that the number of children elected annually who desire to be boarded and educated according to the Hebrew faith would not exceed from three to five, then surely £100 to £150 of such income might fairly be devoted to the object which Bro. Gottheil has at heart, and which object we most fraternally wish him success in achieving.

8. Should the lodges object to such a use of their funds, though, as Bro. Gottheil tells us, these funds are of little benefit to any one, not being much asked for, then we think it would be desirable to increase the sum payable by our Institutions to such children who wish to come under special regulations, so as to include board, clothing, and education.

With all respect, yours fraternally,

V.P.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—In my poor judgment, it seems that the only way of dealing with the obnoxious motion referred to by "W.M." in your issue of the 25th ult. is by motion, made and seconded, that so much of the minutes of the previous meeting as relate thereto, be not confirmed. I find nothing in the Constitutions on this head, but Oliver, at pp. 187-8 of his Masonic Jurisprudence, under section, "Confirmation of the minutes," lays it down that "no resolution of a Lodge, or any other business, how unanimously soever it may have been agreed to in the first instance, becomes binding, and no action can be taken upon it till it has been confirmed by open voting at a subsequent regular meeting, with at least five Master Masons and members of the Lodge present; for as no business can be transacted at a Lodge of Emergency, except what is named in the summons, it would be improper at such a casual meeting of the brethren to read any minutes, except those which distinctly refer to the matter for which the special Lodge has been convened. So stands the law, and a very judicious law it is; for it prevents all factious intriguing, which could scarcely fail to be occasionally successful, if a resolution or law established by a majority of votes at one Lodge were irreversible at another." Bro. Chalmers I. Paton, without going as fully into the subject as Oliver, is equally explicit. He rules, at p. 234 of his Freemasonry and its Jurisprudence, as follows:—"After a Lodge has been opened according to the formalities of the Order, the first thing to be done is the reading of the minutes of the preceding communication, these are then to be corrected and confirmed by a vote of the Lodge. 2. To this rule there is this qualification, that the minutes of a regular or stated communication cannot be altered or amended at a special one." The italics are my own, for I am anxious to draw attention to the wording of this qualification. It seems to me the logical inference to be drawn therefrom is, that while the minutes of a regular communication cannot be altered or amended at a special one, they may be altered or amended at the next regular one. Further, I should interpret Bro. Paton's purpose in using "corrected and confirmed" and "altered or amended," to be this:—

The minutes, according to the rule, must be read in order that they may "be corrected" (verbally, if necessary) "and confirmed" (as to the matter, if it so seem fit to the Lodge). In the qualification, I consider altered applies to such verbal changes, if any, as may be thought necessary, while amended refers to any material changes the Lodge, on reconsideration, may think proper to adopt.

I am aware that Bro. Paton's book must be looked upon as chiefly intended for Lodges under the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge, Scotland, but his confirmation of Oliver—and, I take it, he does confirm him—is a coincidence that must not be overlooked, even though the one is writing for Scotch, and the other for English Lodges.

Fraternally yours,

Q.

MASONIC GATHERING AT BRIGG.

From the "Hull and Lincolnshire Times."

THE Installation of Bro. Samuel E. Hodgson, as Worshipful Master of the Ancholme Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1282, took place on Monday afternoon last, at the Masonic Hall, Brigg. The new W.M. is, we understand, the Vicar of Scawby, and has already filled the office of Grand Chaplain for the province of Lincolnshire; and so great was the confidence reposed in him by the brethren with whom he had been associated, that his election to the principal chair was unanimous. He follows in the footsteps of a most excellent master, Bro. Thomas Fryer, who has safely guided the Lodge through a shoal of difficulties which at one time threatened it, and under whose masterly rule the Ancholme Lodge still maintains a high rank in the province. For three years previously, Bro. Fryer had done the Lodge good service while filling the office of secretary; and in retiring from the chair on Monday last, the brethren paid him a graceful as well as a deserved tribute of their respect and esteem. His name will follow on the archives of the lodge those of many other distinguished Masons, and immediately that of P.M. Bro. W. Pigott, whose interest and exertions on behalf of the Masonic charities has earned for him the applause of the brethren generally, in the province and elsewhere. The lodge was formally opened and the preliminary business transacted under the presidency of the retiring Worshipful Master, who was supported on the dais by several Past Masters and Provincial Grand Officers. On the lodge being raised to the second degree, the chair was taken by the installing master, Bro. W. W. Copeland, P.M., of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, Grimsby, and P.P.G.S.D., who admirably performed the very solemn and interesting ceremony of installation, in accordance with the ancient formularies of the Craft. In the delivery of the charges, the Installing Master was ably assisted by Bro. Fryer, and at the conclusion of the ceremony, the newly-installed Master proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing year, the collars having been bestowed as follows:—Bro. Thomas Fryer, I.P.M.; Bro. W. A. Field, S.W.; Bro. James Wilson, J.W.; Bro. T. B. Dalton, S.D.; Bro. F. R. Sutton, J.D.; Bro. Thomas Clough, secretary; Bro. Joseph Parker, treasurer; Bro. D. Walter Paterson, director of ceremonies; Bro. Jonathan Spring, organist; Bro. Charles L. Hett, I.G.; and Bro. J. Cawkwell, tyler. The Worshipful Master then briefly thanked the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him by placing him in the dignified position he now occupied. He had not sought such an honour, and had previously no intention of aspiring to the chair; but at their kind request he had consented to accept the mastership, and felt deeply sensible of the compliment which had been paid to him. He also thanked the Installing Master for having come from Grimsby to take part in the ceremony of the day, and for the kindly aid he always extended to the Ancholme Lodge. He had now a still more pleasing duty to discharge, which was to convey to his Immediate Past Master a tangible expression of the manner in which the brethren appreciated the zeal and efficiency with which he had conducted the affairs of the lodge during the past year. So sincerely did they esteem Bro. Fryer personally, and so grateful were they for his conduct in the chair, and the way in which he had assisted the lodge, that they had spontaneously subscribed for the purchase of a Past Master's jewel, which he had now extreme pleasure in placing upon Bro. Fryer's breast. Might he have long life and health to continue his very valuable services to the Craft in general, and the Ancholme Lodge in particular (loud applause). Bro. Fryer, who was evidently taken by surprise by the presentation of this beautiful jewel, was so overcome by emotion that he was utterly unable to express his thanks to the brethren, but resumed his seat amidst the most hearty applause. Some other matters of routine business having been transacted, the lodge was closed in due form.

In the evening a complimentary banquet was given to the Immediate Past Master, at the Angel Hotel, when a sumptuous repast was provided by Mr. Kirkham. The Worshipful Master, Bro. S. E. Hodgson, presided, supported by Bro. Thomas Fryer I.P.M., the "guest of the evening," and amongst those present we also observed:—Bros. W. W. Copeland P.P.G.S.D., W. Pigott P.M., W. Marshall P.M., J. Robinson W.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, Grimsby, Thomas Marris P.M. P.P.G.P., W. Swallow P.M., W. H. Sissons P.G.S., and M. Woodall of the St. Matthew's Lodge, Barton; Bros. W. Hesseltine, H. J. Amphlett, Alexandra Lodge, Hornsea, Thomas Clough, Joseph Parker, T. B. Dalton, Charles L. Hett, Jonathan Spring, J. R. Dudding, Robert Johnson, J. Wilson, F. R. Sutton, &c. The vice-chair was occupied by the S.W., Bro. W. A. Field, and Bro. Dr. Walter Paterson officiated as the Director of Ceremonies. At the conclusion of the repast, the customary toast of "The Queen and the Craft" was given from the chair, and was most loyally received, as also was that of "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales G.M. of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family."

Bro. J. Robinson next proposed "The Right Worshipful the Pro. Grand Master of England, the Deputy Grand Master, and Grand Lodge of England," the toast being received with the usual honours.

Bro. W. H. Sissons then gave "The Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master of Lincolnshire, the Duke of St. Albans, Deputy Prov. Grand Master, Bro. W. H. Smythe, and the Prov. Grand Lodge of Lincolnshire." In doing so he expressed regret at the infrequency of the opportunities afforded them of meeting with the Provincial Grand Master; but thought the province was exceedingly fortunate in having so able and painstaking a Deputy in the person of Bro. Smythe. On no occasion, when asked to meet and assist them, did he refuse; he was always glad to aid them by his presence whenever any event of importance to the Craft took place in the province. (Applause.) Therefore, from the high esteem in which he was held by all the brethren, he felt assured that the toast would be most heartily received. (Musical honours.)

Bro. Swallow, in returning thanks for the Prov. Officers, said he was sorry they did not see so much of his Grace the Duke of St. Albans as many of them would like; and if he were to attend their meetings oftener they would have much greater pleasure in according a hearty reception to the toast just proposed. (Hear, hear.) Every one would have great pleasure in returning thanks to Bro. Smythe, who was a good and true man and Mason. (Applause.) He returned his heartfelt thanks for the compliment paid to the officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge; and felt sure that when the brethren attended that assembly they must all be satisfied with the way in which the work was performed. He thought this Lodge was second to none in the world, and when Grand Lodge was held in Brigg, this year, he felt they would all be exceedingly delighted. (Applause.)

The Worshipful Master then proposed, what he might call, emphatically, the "toast of the evening." He felt he must propose this toast himself, not only from the high position he held as the Master of this Lodge, but also from the fact of his having received so much kindness from Bro. Fryer, while filling the chair of the S.W., and in other offices in the Lodge. In proposing "Our Guest," he remembered—though it was not pleasant to recall disagreeable facts—that some people thought, because there were certain clouds on their horizon some time ago, that therefore Masonry in Brigg was likely to fail. He, for one, however, felt perfectly certain that they had amongst them good and true men, who would never allow such a catastrophe to happen; and since then they had had fresh blood infused into their Lodge. While that new blood had helped to strengthen them, he was bound to say that the older brethren all worked with a will; so that, so far from the Ancholme Lodge failing, it was now rapidly in the ascendant. Moreover, they would all agree that a great deal of its present prosperity was due to Bro. Fryer, than whom no man could have laboured more conscientiously in doing his duty. (Applause.) No man could have done his duty more zealously, or have been kinder or more ready to assist his officers and the brethren generally than had been Bro. Fryer. He only hoped every Lodge might have as good a Master as the Ancholme Lodge had possessed during the past year. He concluded by proposing, with all his heart, the "health of their worthy Immediate Past Master, Bro. Thomas Fryer." (Loud cheers.)

Brother Thomas Fryer, who was received with prolonged applause, thanked the brethren sincerely for the honour they had paid him; for, indeed, it seemed to be a tacit understanding amongst them to pour down honours upon him. For what he knew not, unless it was for simply discharging his duty (applause). They all know that, when he was elected Master of this Lodge, he thought himself—and he dared some of them also thought with him—that they should have a year of trial, but he felt also that he had those at his back who, to use a vulgar phrase, "Never say die" (hear, hear). He had his Immediate Past Master and other Past Masters and officers to help him, and who were always as ready to do so as they were thoroughly efficient. He could not express the feelings which came welling up within him in response to the kind fraternal welcome they had accorded to him. This jewel which he wore upon his breast should ever be regarded as a token of gratefulness from the brethren of the Ancholme Lodge. If they were ever to remember that they were brethren indeed, and not merely so in name, but in feelings and emotions, acting for the mutual welfare of each other, they would all do differently. This world of ours would be almost transformed; and if they all carried out the grand principles of Freemasonry they would want no other, and no better, religion (applause). If, as they invested themselves, and studied the beautiful ritual of the Craft, their better nature asserted itself, and they resolved to observe and carry out those principles, they would achieve a glorious work. If they could, all of them, through the length and breadth of the land, carry out the tenets of the profession of Masonry, then the Craft would rise higher and higher in usefulness and popular esteem. Some time ago he read of a man who had fallen to the lowest depths of poverty and degradation. That man was a Mason, but had never entered his Lodge for years. One day, turning over some old things, he came across a package which contained his Masonic apron, and the sight of it so filled his mind with past recollections, what he had heard and learnt in the ancient charges, and when he had acquiesced in the tenets and principles inculcated in his Lodge, that he was filled with remorse. The grave question came to him, "How have I fulfilled the pledges I then made? and how have I striven to emulate the ennobling principles of Freemasonry?" He put aside his apron, and resolved to lead a new life (applause). So, whenever they invested themselves with the emblems of their profession, let them observe in their hearts what they signified; and then might they truly follow out the principles so nobly dictated to them by the Craft (cheers).

Brother W. Pigott next proposed "The Installing Masters," in doing which he observed that the brethren of the Ancholme Lodge were deeply indebted to the brethren from a distance, who came annually to assist them in the ceremony of installation. Brother Copeland had installed most of the Masters of this Lodge, and with his name he would couple the toast which had been entrusted to him. Every one present must have enjoyed the efficient way in which Bro. Copeland had conducted the ceremony; and this day he had been ably assisted by their own immediate Past Master. He lived in hope that in years to come they might have other Past Masters able to assist in that interesting ceremonial; but that as long as he was able to come amongst them, he trusted, for the sake of "Auld Lang Syne," that Bro. Copeland would strain a nerve to be present amongst them on all such occasions. (Applause.) He had many matters concerning the Craft upon which he desired to speak; but, as the visitors would have to leave by an early train, he would content himself with simply proposing the toast he had named. (Cheers.)

Bro. W. W. Copeland, remarking that "time, tide, and trains wait for no man," said he would be brief in responding to the last toast, which had been so cordially received. He was extremely obliged to his esteemed friend on the left for so kindly coupling his name with the toast, and for the complimentary observations that had fallen from his lips. He had pleasure in assisting at the consecration of the Ancholme Lodge, when it was formed, some years ago; and to-day's ceremony made the fifth of its kind in which he had taken a part. To-day it afforded him much gratification to have been so ably assisted by their own Immediate Past Master, and echoed the sentiments of Bro. Pigott, who desired to see the past officers taking a more active part in such ceremonies. However, he had put off an important engagement in order to be present to-day; for he held it to be a duty to assist, if he could, any Lodge which might be desirous of such help. He hoped he should live to assist at many more such ceremonies in the Ancholme Lodge, and to do what little he was able in furtherance of Freemasonry in Brigg. (Applause.) There were many old and pleasant associations surrounding this town, and it afforded him peculiar pleasure at all times to come and try to be of service to the brethren here. He wished especially success and happiness to the newly-elected officers, and trusted that the W.M. might not be in fear of any such troubles coming upon him as Bro. Fryer had in his year of office. (Laughter, and hear, hear.) He hoped all would go amicably and smoothly with the Lodge, and that it would continue to prosper and become more extensively useful in the district. If anything pleased him to-day it was the tribute of respect and esteem which the brethren had presented to their worthy Immediate Past Master. He felt that the subject of that testimonial was the right man in the right place; and he was glad they had recognised the fact by the beautiful present, which must have been to Bro. Fryer a source of immense pride and gratification. He trusted the newly-installed Master had a very pleasant year before him, and that, under his judicious and wise ruling, it would continue to be in the ascendant. (Applause.)

Bro. Thomas Marris, in giving the "healths of the Visiting Brethren," said it was always a pleasure to see brethren from other Lodges visiting the Ancholme; and they valued greatly the interchange of good feeling which was thus engendered. Their motto was brotherly love and charity, and they should do their utmost to cultivate that intimate acquaintance and friendship which tended to promote the principles of Masonry. Thus they would form a column of mutual support and strength, and would do much to further the interest and welfare of the Craft. He trusted the new year had dawned upon this Lodge with increased happiness and prosperity, and that they might experience no serious drawbacks. He thought Bro. Fryer might look back upon his year of office with satisfaction, knowing that all the troubles which at one time seemed hanging over the Lodge had been dissipated like clouds before the wind. He had worked the Lodge with credit to himself, and satisfaction to the whole of the brethren, and he had also rendered very valuable assistance to the sister Lodges in the province. He had been the mainstay of the Ancholme Lodge, and no doubt he would well support the new W.M. who had been installed this day.

Bro. Marshall, P.M. of the Pelham Pillar Lodge, responded on behalf of the visitors.

Bro. T. Fryer then proposed "The Worshipful Master of the Ancholme Lodge," a toast which he felt sure they would all receive with acclamation. Bro. Hodgson had been his S.W., and during his year of office had always shown himself to be a most efficient officer. He was convinced that in him the Ancholme Lodge would have a W.M. who would do justice to it, for he had judgment to discern, and ability to execute his duties. (Applause.) He exhorted the brethren to be punctual and regular in their attendance at the Lodge meetings; and to make such study as would enable the Master to look with confidence to each and all of them in case their assistance might be required. Their W.M. was so efficient that there need be no fear for the popularity and progress of the Lodge during the ensuing year: and he trusted he might be supported by every officer and brother in the Lodge. (Cheers.)

The Worshipful Master, who was most cordially welcomed, said he felt exceedingly the high honour they had conferred upon him this day; and he did not believe any man could be made Master of a Lodge without feeling what an important—and he might say solemn—place he had to fill. He need hardly say that he had always looked upon Freemasonry, not merely as a a vehicle for conveying charities to other people, but also as an instrument for improving themselves. (Hear, hear.) As a minister of religion himself, he regarded Masonry as second only to religion itself in conveying truth to others. He must confess that, although in his younger days he never aspired to any office like this, yet he had great pleasure now in accepting it. Still he considered it was far better for one who aspired to the Master's chair to work up through every office; and he could have wished that he had had another year of study before he accepted that responsible position. However, he would do his best, with the aid of his Past Masters, to see that all the ceremonies were carried out as they should be; and he trusted they might have a satisfactory and successful year. Once more he returned them his grateful thanks for having raised him to the honourable position he now held. (Cheers.)

Several other toasts were honoured, including "The officers of the Ancholme Lodge," "The Masonic Charities," the "Ladies," &c., and with some excellent singing the evening was spent pleasantly, Bro. Jonathan Spring rendering valuable assistance as accompanyist, on the pianoforte.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. SEATON, M.D., P.M. 857.

A NUMBER of the brethren gathered at the hospitable residence of Bro. J. Seaton, M.D., P.M. 857, at Halifford, on Tuesday, 4th of January, the occasion being the birthday of their kind entertainer, and advantage was taken of the event to present him with a handsome portrait that had been subscribed for by them. Flys had been placed at their disposal at Sunbury Station, and they were conveyed to Halifford House, where a most excellent dinner was provided, and a kindly welcome. After the cloth had been removed, the picture was presented by Bro. Wynn Williams, M.D., 857, who, in a few well-chosen words, expressed the pleasure the brethren felt in wishing their esteemed host happy returns, and presenting him with the testimonial portrait, a mark of their appreciation of his conduct as a Mason. Bro. Seaton replied in feeling terms. The health of the artist, Bro. Frances Pile, was duly given and responded to. The portrait (in oil) was much admired, and reflects great credit on the artist. The necessity of being in time for the return train shortened an evening's enjoyment, but the brethren will long remember the pleasant hours spent on the 4th of January, at Halifford House.

TEACHING A CHILD HOW TO SWIM.—Bro. Captain Webb writes in Cassell's Family Magazine, for January:—It is the duty of every parent to insist on his sons learning to swim. Now, to teach a very young child to swim, the best place of all is a large puddle in the sands at low tide. The child, like a puppy, will begin by paddling. If you throw a cork into the water, you will see the puppy run in up to his depth, and give a short bark; and the chances are, especially if there is a grown-up dog that can swim to set him an example, that in a day or two he will take his plunge of his own accord, and very proud he will be of his first success; only here, again, don't overdo it; as soon as the puppy has been in, walk away and call him, and he will be the more anxious to go into the water another time. The principle is somewhat similar to Sam Weller's letter: "She'll wish there was more, and there's the great art o' letter-writin'." Now, pity your child like your puppy; entice him in, and if you can get some older child who can swim to go in with him, all the better, but let the child do just as he likes. Perhaps the first day he will be afraid to go into the water deeper than his knees. Here again a little artifice may be employed. Get two children to play at splashing one another—they will enjoy the fun, and, gradually getting excited, will very likely venture in deeper and deeper.

COURTESY TO STRANGERS.—The manner of receiving visitors in the Lodge, Chapter and Commandery varies, not only according to lines of latitude and longitude, but according to the individual ideas of those who for the time may have the direction of affairs in these bodies. We have visited Lodges far distant from home, where although unknown and lacking a personal introduction to the brethren, we have been given so warm and cordial a greeting that we almost forgot we were strangers in a strange land. In a few cases we have been held at arms length, as it were, and have been made to feel almost as though we were intruding upon our brethren in asking admission to their assemblies. Doubtless there are some impostors, some hoodlen and designing members of the Order, whom to bar out from Masonic intercourse and sympathy would be no great wrong. But because of these characters, with which all Lodges have to deal, and the remembrance of whose visits is never altogether pleasant, it should not be forgotten that one of our grand watch words is "Fraternity," and that courtesy and hospitality to strangers are especially called for both by the letter and the spirit of Masonry. "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." [illegible]

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE principal events that have marked the recent progress of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales during his visit to India have been the unveiling the statue of Lord Mayo and the holding of a Durbar for the purpose of conferring the order of the Star of India, in its several grades, on certain of the native princes and personages of high degree, as well as on a few of our own countrymen whose services called for some acknowledgment of their merit. A long procession was duly marshalled, and was witnessed by a very large assemblage of people, the ceremony of investiture being very imposing, and lasting some two hours. It will also be gratifying to our readers to learn that two Masonic addresses, one of them in a casket of very elegant workmanship, were presented to H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. by the brethren in the Bengal district. Having attended a public breakfast at Bankipore, on the 4th instant, when covers were laid for 420 guests, his Royal Highness started at noon for Benares.

Now that the Christmas holidays are at an end, people are beginning to look forward to the approaching assembly of Parliament, but though there are sundry questions which may provoke a considerable amount of comment, such as the action of the Admiralty in connection with the Vanguard court martial and the accident to the Iron Duke and the new Slave Circular, there appears, at present, to be nothing calculated to disturb the existing political situation. The Conservative majority is still as great, the Liberal party is still as disunited as in the last and previous years. No doubt exists, of course, that the Government purchase of the Khedive's shares will be freely criticised, but the country seems to have made up its mind that the conduct of the Government does them great credit, and, accordingly, such criticism as may be made will be productive of more than one debate, but any opposition that may be made will probably be limited to Vox et Praeterea Nihil. In fact, there is every prospect of a quiet Session. No doubt the ministry will confine its attention to useful practical measures, leaving theory and hobbies to look after themselves. If so, we shall be quite content with the legislative work of the year.

Hardly have we had time to express our regret for the destruction by fire of the Goliath, and the attendant loss of life, when news is published of a similar calamity, but, happily, without loss of life. On Monday morning early, one of the boy sentries on board the training ship "Warspite," lying off Woolwich, and belonging to the Marine Society, reported that smoke was issuing from the cockpit. The officer of the watch at once gave the necessary orders for the boys to turn out. His instructions were obeyed with alacrity; the hose was got ready, the pumps set going, and a vigorous attempt made to put out the fire. Meantime Captain Phippe, who held the command of the vessel, and was sleeping ashore, was summoned, and he at once gave orders for the huge and powerful steam floats to be sent for, and if these did not come in time, he made ready to put the boys on shore. The fire spread rapidly, however, in spite of the gallant exertions of the officers and boy crew, and at length the latter were landed, with the exception of a number sufficient to work the pumps. At length a steam float arrived on the scene, and was shortly followed by others, but though huge volumes were poured upon the ill-fated ship, the fire continued to hold its own, and it was then determined to scuttle her. This, however, took some time, and even when it had been accomplished, the fire still raged, it being ebb-tide. Thus within a few days, two training ships, to which we look for a supply of sailors, both for our Royal and Merchant Navies, were completely destroyed, and, as regards the "Warspite," there are, unfortunately, some ugly rumours afloat as regard the fire having been the work of an incendiary. However, the inquiry is still proceeding, and we shall know ere long how much, or how little truth there is in the rumour.

The new year opened very inauspiciously for the Great Eastern Railway. A third class carriage, one of two attached to an ordinary train that left Lowestoft on Saturday morning, was overturned, owing to the engines leaving the rails not far from Somerleyton. There was a gang of men working on the lines at this spot, and the foremost engine knocked two of them over. The foreman of the second engine was thrown under the break van, and died from the injuries he received, just as he was being conveyed into the hospital at Lowestoft. The screams of the women in the overturned carriage were very appalling, but some of the male passengers smashed the windows, and having scrambled out, aided in rescuing their fellow passengers. The two platelayers were killed, and sundry others, including a guard who had been in the Thorpe accident, more or less severely injured or shaken. A train was at once despatched from Lowestoft with medical men, stimulants, and all the necessary appliances to meet a calamity of this kind. The usual inquest has been since held, and the jury returned a verdict to the effect that the newly laid rails were not sufficiently secure to allow of the passage along them of trains at the rate of more than seven miles an hour, and that the supervision of the line, as described by one of the witnesses, was inefficient. Among other accidents that have lately occurred, must be mentioned another fatal colliery explosion in Staffordshire, by which five lives have been lost. It is now known that the number of persons killed by the recent terrible Swaithe Colliery explosion amounts to one hundred and forty-one.

On Wednesday, the Earl of Derby, who is honorary Colonel of the 1st Lancashire Rifle Volunteers, delivered the prizes to that regiment in St. George's Hall, Liverpool, the Countess of Derby, with other ladies and gentleman being present. Before the distribution, his Lordship addressed the men at some length, noting especially the steady progress made in recent years by the volunteers generally, and singling out for special praise the 1st Lancashire. Lord Derby further laid great stress on the importance of steady and continued drill on the part of the men, who must throw their energy, and, if necessary, their lives into the work, for it was only on such terms that an army of regulars or volunteers could be made.

Brighton is always full of attractions, and on Wednesday, the Royal Pavilion was the scene of one of the most brilliant and fashionable assemblages ever held within its walls. This was a grand ball given by the officers of the Scots Greys. All the rooms and corridors were magnificently decorated, military dances forming a conspicuous element. Over a thousand guests were invited, and the majority of them attended. Dancing was continued till a very advanced hour; the supper, which was served in the Banquetting room, by the messman of the regiment, being in perfect keeping with the splendour of the ball. Bro. Kuhe's festival will be held from the 15th to 28th February, and will include a series of ten concerts.

Our readers will doubtless remember that a team of American riflemen crossed, last year, to contend with an Irish team of equal strength in an international match. After a gallant contest, the Americans recorded the victory. They then attended the Annual Meeting of the National Rifle Association at Wimbledon, and attempts were made to get up a contest between England and the United States. The attempt failed, but the prospect of a contest with such magnificent sportsmen as Colonel Gildersleeve was not to be lost sight of, and it has been recently announced that a challenge from the National Rifle Association of America has been received and accepted by the National Rifle Association of England for a grand international match at Philadelphia in the autumn of this year. Sir Henry Halford will captain the Englishmen, and Major Drake, R.E., will act as adjutant. The team will consist of eight, with four waiting men, and these will be selected at two competitions, one in the spring, and one to be held as soon as possible after the Wimbledon Meeting. Further rules have been laid down, and the men who go out will have to bear their own expenses, and be subject to the strictest discipline till the contest is over, when they will be permitted to make any business or pleasure engagements they may choose to contract.

The sporting world has lost, in Sir Anthony Rothschild, brother of the late Baron Rothschild, one of its keenest and warmest supporters. Sir Anthony was born in 1810, and was one of the leading members of the celebrated firm. On his brother's death he took over his valuable racing stud. For years past he had hunted regularly in Buckinghamshire. He is succeeded in the baronetcy by his nephew, Mr. Nathaniel M. de Rothschild, M.P. for Aylesbury, son of his elder brother, Baron Lionel de Rothschild.

Considering the immense destruction of property by the recent inundations of the Thames, we are not surprised to learn that the proprietors of several wharves, factories, and stores along the river have already commenced operations with a view to protect their property against the coming of the next high tidal wave. These precautionary measures are being taken at Horselydown, Bankside, Limehouse, and portions of the Lambeth riverside west of Blackfriars Bridge. At Plumstead, where the land is low, and suffers greatly from an overflow, it is proposed to construct two immense reservoirs on the marshes, to receive the overflow: at least a plan to this effect has been put forward and submitted to the district Board of Works. On the other side of the river, the Poplar Board of Works are said to be contemplating serving notices on the owners and occupiers of premises by the river side, requiring them to raise their river walls at least five feet above high water. These steps indicate a considerable amount of energy on the part of owners and occupiers, as well as of the local authorities. At the same time there is a Bill about to be brought forward, under the auspices of the Metropolitan Board of Works, having in view to prevent as far as possible these terrible inundations.

There is no accounting for the silly taste which induces many people to indulge in practical jokes. It appears that in the fashionable neighbourhood of Burlington and Cornwall Gardens, a number of people, as yet undiscovered by the police, have been indulging in the discreditable practice of window-breaking. Every night since Christmas, when, for the most part, the residents have been some time in bed, the windows of the fine mansions in this quarter have been broken, and even the brick piers of the house have been pulled down. The result is, of course, a considerable amount of damage, in addition to the disgraceful disturbance of honest people during their hours of rest. A number of ghost stories are in circulation, which we trust the police will contrive to solve at no distant period.

Acts of gallantry are of common occurrence among our police-constables, but it is seldom that a reward is better deserved than by Constable Thomas Hearn, 247 G, who finding the door of Mr. Diterick's premises, 4 Coleman-street, Finsbury-square, unsecurely fastened, tried, and at once pushed it open. On entering, Hearn perceived the glimmer of a light, which, however, was at once extinguished. He then turned on his bull's-eye, and saw two men, of whom one, Dillon by name, approached, and made a stab at his face. To avoid this Hearn struck him with his truncheon. Dillon then called out, "Clarke, shut the door," and another man, Tyrell, struck at the policeman with an iron bar, but was felled by an effectual blow from the valiant constable's truncheon. Two of the men then ran out, and the policeman then seized Tyrell by the throat, and, in order to avoid being thrown, was again compelled to use his staff. Dillon, one of the two, who had momentarily escaped, was afterwards captured. Both prisoners were found guilty, and Dillon was sentenced to seven, and Tyrell to five years' penal servitude. Mr. Edlin, the assistant judge, highly complimented the constable, and ordered him to receive a reward of £2.

The news from abroad is by no means without interest. First, as regards this country. Lord Northbrook, finding his health will not bear another summer in India, has resigned his Viceroyship, and will return home in May, being succeeded by Lord Lytton, who has been a member of the Diplomatic Service for nearly a quarter of a century, and is now H.M. Minister at Lisbon. Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confer an Earldom on Lord Northbrook, in recognition of his valuable services. As regards our relations with Egypt, there were, a few days since, rumours of a serious disagreement between Mr. Cave, the agent of our government, and the Khedive, respecting the manner in which His Highness's financial statements had been prepared. It is said the Khedive has given way. The approaching elections in France do not seem at present to be causing any great excitement. Marshal Canrobert has refused to be put in nomination for the Senate, lest his candidature should be turned to account against the ministry of his old companion-in-arms, the Marshal President MacMahon. M. Buffet, however, recommends his election by the department of the Left. M. Gambetta has published a manifesto, in which he violently attacks the government. The Cortes in Spain is about to be elected by universal suffrage, and there are rumours that several Carlist Officers and men have been shot at Estella, for being engaged in a conspiracy against the life of Don Carlos. The Generals of the German Army, headed by the venerable Field Marshal Wrangel, paid their congratulations to the Emperor William on New Year's Day. The Emperor cordially acknowledged their good wishes.

The Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193, will hold its meetings at Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall Street, E.C., until further notice.

Bro. Herbert Rymill, of Barbican, has made his customary gift of coals to the poor.

The Almanack of the City Press for the year 1876 has life-like portraits of the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, and the Sheriffs, Bro. Alderman Knight, and Bro. Deputy Breffit.

We are gratified in announcing that Bro. T. W. Ockenden has handed over to Bro. Terry £11, being the amount realised by the entertainment given at the Oriental Buildings, on the evening of Thursday, 23rd ult. Bro. Ockenden hopes to supplement this amount by £2 or £3 more, so soon as the returns of his tickets has been completed.

Royal Gloucester Lodge, No. 130.—On Thursday afternoon, 5th January, Bro. W. J. Hickman was installed W.M. of the Royal Gloucester Lodge of Freemasons, by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. W. B. Beach M.P.) The ceremony took place at the Masonic Hall, Bugle-street, when the P.G.M., accompanied by his deputy (Bro. W. Hickman) and several past and present provincial officers, was received with the customary honours. The Installing Board comprised no less than twenty Past Masters, and there was a large attendance of brethren at the installation ceremony, which the P.G.M. most impressively performed. The newly installed W.M. of the Royal Gloucester has filled the office of S.W. during the past year, and succeeds in the chair Bro. Morris Miles, who has done credit to himself and honour to the Lodge, which has been attended by a gratifying measure of progress and prosperity. After the W.M. had been inducted and proclaimed, he proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follow:—Bros. R. Sharp S.W., C. W. A. Jellicoe J.W., M. Miles I.P.M., the Rev. E. Y. Nepean P.P.G.C. Chaplain, J. E. Le Feuvre Treasurer, J. N. Weston Secretary, Jas. Coles S.D., Jennings J.D., F. Myer I.G., H. M. Pike Organist, Robertson and Obree Stewards, Biggs Tyler. At the conclusion of the proceedings a cordial vote of thanks, proposed by the W.M. and seconded by the I.P.M., was tendered to the P.G.M. for his kindness in specially attending to perform the ceremony of installation. The P.G.M., in responding, expressed the pleasure it always afforded him to visit the Royal Gloucester Lodge, and then presented to D.P.G.M. Hickman the patent of his appointment as Deputy Grand Master of the Province, which had been beautifully written in illuminated text. He bore personal testimony to the value of Bro. Hickman's services in the high office which he filled, and said that his Masonic labours, both in the province and in London, were cordially recognised and approved throughout the Craft. The D.P.G.M., in accepting the same, conveyed his sense of the high honour conferred upon him by the P.G.M. in appointing him as his deputy, and said the pleasure and satisfaction had been greatly enhanced by the cordial manner in which all the Lodges he had visited in the province had, by their reception of him, endorsed that appointment. It would ever be his endeavour to promote the true interests of Freemasonry, and to render every possible assistance to the P.G.M. in discharging the important and responsible duties associated with the government of the province. The W.M. then proposed, and Bro. T. P. Payne P.M. seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Morris Miles for the efficient and assiduous manner in which he had discharged the duties of W.M. during the past year, and that he be presented with a Past Master's jewel in recognition of the same. This was cordially supported by the P.G.M., who spoke very highly of Bro. Miles's Masonic services; and the vote having been unanimously agreed to, it was suitably and gracefully acknowledged. Another gratifying incident followed, in the presentation to Bro. P.M. Booth, who has undergone a long and painful illness, of a testimonial, consisting of a purse and an illuminated address, recording the value of the services rendered by him in the various offices he has filled during a lengthened Masonic career, and specially his readiness at all times to aid and instruct individual members of the Order. The testimonial was raised chiefly in the Gloucester Lodge, but several brethren connected with other Lodges contributed to it, in order to manifest their esteem towards Bro. Booth. The P.G.M. referred in terms of warm commendation to Bro. Booth's services, and spoke approvingly of the course which the Lodge had adopted in giving this practical expression of its regard to one who so well deserved it. In some kindly and well chosen words he asked Bro. Booth's acceptance of the testimonial; and the latter, in returning thanks, said that nothing had so much cheered him during his recent illness as the knowledge that the Royal Gloucester Lodge were intending to make him this presentation. There were but three present who were members of the Lodge when he joined it, Past Masters G. Dunlop, H. Abraham, and T. P. Payne. Time made great changes among them, but he hoped that he might still be spared to render further services to Masonry, and specially to the Royal Gloucester—his mother Lodge—to which he was deeply attached. D.P.G.M. Hickman then proposed, and Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre P.M. seconded, that the thanks of the Lodge be rendered Past Master H. Abraham, and hereafter recorded in a more permanent and substantial form, for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of Treasurer during a period of twenty-two years, to the great advantage of the Lodge, whose finances, mainly owing to his exertions, were in a most flourishing condition, as shown by the fact that there was a good balance in hand, and also an accumulated fund. The proposition was passed with great cordiality, and P. M. Abraham, in responding, expressed the satisfaction it had afforded him to render the service which he had been enabled to do as Treasurer of the Lodge. He was pleased to say that he handed over to his successor a balance of more than £90, which showed that the finances were in a different position than what they were when he first took office. He had not, moreover, waited till old age and incapacity came upon him before resigning his position. In the prime of life and the pride of health he had surrendered it to their worthy Bro. Le Feuvre, and was glad to be able to advise him to do as he himself had done. The I.P.M., Bro. Miles, then asked the Lodge to accept a handsomely-framed and glazed tablet, recording the names of Masters and Wardens of the Royal Gloucester Lodge from its commencement, which he had collected from the minute-books. This the brethren very cordially did, with an expression of thanks to Bro. Miles for his handsome present. The Lodge duties were shortly afterwards brought to a close; and at seven o'clock a large party sat down, under the presidency of the W.M., to an admirable banquet, provided by Bro. Dartnall in his very best style, at the conclusion of which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the healths of the newly-installed Master, the D.P.G.M. and many others were drunk with great heartiness; Bro. F. Perkins P.M. and M.P. was present at the banquet. The proceedings throughout were of truly fraternal character, and the Royal Gloucester, under its new Master, enters upon another year amid the most favourable auspices.

Lodge of Lights, No. 148.—The annual installation meeting of the members of this old and flourishing Lodge took place last Monday, at the Masonic Rooms, Sankey-street, Warrington. Those who have witnessed many installations must have been frequently struck by the unusually lively and animated appearance of the scene. The brethren begin to assemble shortly before the time specified for the commencement of business, and at once proceed with their robing. Fresh arrivals are frequent now, and the fraternal grip is as frequently given and reciprocated. Each countenance is radiant with pleasing anticipations, and each heart seems to go out to his brother. Friendly converse and sometimes "chaff" is the order now, and rarely if ever is perfect harmony disturbed. The W.M. elect—proud man—is the centre of attraction, and receives an unusual share of friendly greetings. The retiring Master is usually a very popular man with his brethren, and a brother of very great importance in the Lodge. To him falls the duty of installing his successor in office, and a high honour he considers it. But few retiring Masters attempt this part of their prerogative, perhaps for the reason because of its difficulty; and, for another, because, like Christmas, it comes but once a year. Surely there must be something good in Freemasonry, and those who witnessed the beautiful ceremonies so admirably performed at this Lodge on Monday last must have experienced a real treat. Bro. William Robinson S.W., who had been elected to fill the chair at a previous meeting, by the unanimous voice of his brethren, was in his place, and ready to receive further "Light." Bro. Bowers P.M., &c., the popular W.M. of the Lodge, took his position in the East, precisely as the clock struck three, and at once opened the proceedings. The following brethren and visitors were present—Bros. Stringer P.M., Finney P.M., Harding P.M., Pointer P.M., Sharp P.M., Richardson P.M., Pollitt P.M., and Alderman Hepburn P.M. &c. The sound of the gong in the East, and the call to order brought the brethren to their feet, and the business of the Lodge began. Bro. Robinson was presented, by Bro. John Harding P.M., for the benefit of installation, and having made the preliminary declaration, awaited further advancement. Another phase of the Lodge was now presented, and a Board of Installed Masters formed. Bro. Bowes, the Installing Master, taking his place on the T., was assisted by Bro. Finney P.M. as S.W., and Bro. Pointer P.M. In this position of the Lodge Bro. Robinson, as J.W., was placed in the chair of K.S., with all our ancient ceremonies, and amid the salutations of the brethren of this advanced position. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed in form, the brethren of this degree were admitted, and offered their greetings to the new W.M., who was pleased to accept them. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. Bowes I.P.M., Tunstall S.W., Armstrong Treasurer, Pickthall J.W., Bowes Secretary, Young S.D., Jones J.D., Paterson I.G., Hannah O.G. or T. At the close of the proceedings, Bro. Bowes received a well-merited and unanimous vote of thanks for "the admirable, able, and impressive manner in which he had performed all the duties of Installing Master." That worthy and distinguished brother having acknowledged the compliment, the Lodge was closed in due form, and with the usual solemnities. The brethren now adjourned to the Patten Arms Hotel, for the banquet. The W.M. took the chair, and was favoured with the presence of an unusually large number of brethren of his own Lodge with visitors. Of the banquet we must say that it was sumptuous in the extreme, and reflected the very highest credit upon Bro. Hughes, the host. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to, and we regret that our space does not admit of our giving them in extenso. We must however just say, in conclusion, that the most perfect harmony and good fellowship prevailed throughout the whole proceedings, and we desire to offer the new Master of the Lodge of Lights our congratulations on the occasion of his attaining so high an honour, the highest honour it is in the power of any Lodge to confer upon any one of its members.

Domatic Lodge, No. 177.—The Audit Meeting of this Lodge was held on Friday, the 31st December, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. G. Everett; Bros. Treadwell W.M. elect, J. Willing jun. J.W., J. Smith P.G.P. Treasurer, Lieut. Kent C.C. P.M., Walford P.M., &c. The business of the Audit being concluded, the brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Clemow, and superintended by Bro. Smith. The W.M. very genially presided, and gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts; after which he proposed the toast of the Auditors, who, under the guidance of the Secretary, showed such a favourable result. Bros. Montague and Plummer responded to the toast. Bro. Joseph Smith P.G.P. and Treasurer, in eulogistic terms, proposed the toast of the W.M. He said that, during his occupation of the chair the duties had been satisfactorily carried out, and he had personally interested himself to see the amounts due by the brethren were duly paid, which was so conducive to the success of the Lodge funds. Bro. Everett thanked the brethren for their kind expressions; it was a source of pleasure to him that he had given them satisfaction, and as this was the last time he should have the pleasure of presiding in the capacity of Master, he was pleased that every brother had enjoyed himself. The toast of the Past Masters was responded to by Bros. Lieut. Kent, Walford, and Tims. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, and regretted the absence of the latter, who had held that post for over 36 years, to the satisfaction of all connected with the Lodge. With respect to Bro. Willing, his duties as Secretary were not light in a Lodge numbering 195 members. He was entitled to become an honorary member; his charitable feelings were well known and recognised, and he ought to have a testimonial worthy of him. (Cheers.) The W.M. informed them that the balance in hand was £50 16s 3d, after Grand Lodge and all other dues were paid, and £91 15s 6d had been voted to the Masonic Charities. Bro. J. Smith P.M. returned thanks, and said he had been Treasurer for 40 years, and a member of the Lodge for 45 years, he held the same position in many Lodges, and he was pleased with his association with this Lodge, as he had always been treated with great respect. Bro. J. Willing followed, and congratulated the brethren on the success of the Lodge, he hoped that they would not separate without congratulating the W.M. on his restoration to health, and he hoped it would continue, for he would, on his retirement from office, carry with him the good wishes of every brother; he was one whom they all respected (cheers), and he might be proud of wearing the Installation Jewel. He referred to their summer banquet, which had been a great success. The W.M. had constituted himself a Life Governor of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the W.M. elect, Bro. Treadwell, whom he was sure would do all in his power for the interests of the Lodge. Bro. Treadwell responded and said: There had been 20 Masters to the Lodge, and he hoped to be the 21st, he informed the brethren that he would appoint each brother another step. He congratulated himself on Bro. Willing's acceptance of the office of Secretary; he was a credit to the Metropolitan Lodges, and under those auspices he hoped to have a prosperous year of office. Bros. H. Stiles and H. M. Levy responded to the toast of the Visitors. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Officers, and alluded to their very efficient working. Bros. Palmer, Buscall and White responded. The brethren then separated, after spending a very harmonious evening. Bros. Foxcroft and H. Stiles contributing to the harmony.

Joppa Lodge, No. 188.—The Installation meeting of this excellent working Lodge, whose members are composed of almost an equal number of Jewish and Christian brethren, was held on Monday, the 3rd instant, at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. The term, "a Jewish Lodge," is only characterised by the viands, provided according to the Mosaic Law, and Grace said in the Hebrew vernacular. In all other respects the ritual is the same. Many brethren of the Christian faith have filled the various offices of Masters, Wardens and Officers, and one of the Past Masters of the Lodge, Bro. Albert P.M., was selected to fill the office of Assistant Grand Pursuivant. Present—Bros. S. L. Hickman, W.M., A. G. Dodson, S.W. and W.M. elect, L. Lazarus, J.W., L. M. Auerbach Treasurer, E. P. Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. A. G. Dodson, was installed into the chair, in the presence of 25 W.M.'s and P.M.'s, by the retiring W.M., Bro. S. L. Hickman, in a manner perfect and impressive. The customary salutes having been given, the W.M. invested his officers:—Bros. S. L. Hickman I.P.M., L. Lazarus S.W., Miller J.W., L. Auerbaan Treasurer, E. P. Albert Secretary, M. Spiegel S.D., A. Auerbaan J.D., H. Berkowitz P.M. Chaplain, H. Hymans I.G., P. E. Van Noorden Organist, Campion D.C., H. Jennings, manager to the Albion Tavern Company, and superintended by Bro. Keeping. Grace was said by the Chaplain, and books of the words were distributed to the brethren. The W.M. then proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Albert (who was received with great enthusiasm) returned thanks for the toast of the Grand Officers. Bro. Louis Alexander P.M. returned thanks for the Joppa Benevolent Fund, and Bro. Albert read the report, showing a balance in hand of £1,229 11s 2d. Two applicants were relieved without an entrenchment on the funded property, and it was announced that the brethren had subscribed that evening to the amount of £17 17s, Bros. L. M. and A. Auerbaan being the largest contributors, in the names of the ladies in their family. Bro. R. Emanuel returned thanks for the toast of the newly initiated. Bro. S. L. Hickman I.P.M., then rose and proposed the toast of the W.M. He stated that, by his strict integrity, and hard work, Bro. Dodson had arrived at the grand position he now occupies he would be a credit to the Lodge, and he was sure, under those auspices, he would have a happy and prosperous year (cheers). The W.M., in replying, thanked the brethren for their kind expressions, and also for the high and honourable position they had placed him in; he hoped to discharge his duties to their satisfaction, and to leave the chair with the same good feelings as his predecessor. The W.M. then proposed the health of Bro. Hickman I.P.M., and paid a deserved compliment for his great abilities and the admirable manner he had discharged his duties. He then placed on his breast a magnificent jewel, of artistic design, profusely set with diamonds (manufactured by Bro. A. D. Loewenstark and Sons), and he hoped he might live long in health and prosperity to wear it. Bro. Hickman, in the course of a very excellent speech, said he had to thank the brethren for the valuable jewel presented to him; he would always look on it with pride, for it was a source of great satisfaction to him to know that, during his year of office, the finances of the Lodge were in a flourishing state, and he was indeed gratified to find he had gained the esteem of the brethren of the Lodge. Bro. J. Ross P.M. 205, in returning thanks for the toast of the visitors said, he always considered the Lodge of Tranquillity a good working Lodge, and he felt a pride in it, but he was pleased to witness the perfect manner in which Bro. Hickman had performed the ceremonies of raising and installation. Bro. S. V. Abraham followed, he said it was twenty years since he was initiated in the Lodge. In the name of the visitors he thanked them for the reception they have given him the duties of the Lodge has been excellently carried out, and the brethren might be proud of their Benevolent Fund. The toasts of the Treasurer, Secretary, and Junior Officers were given and responded to by Bros. L. Auerbaan, E. P. Albert, and the latter toast by Bros. A. Auerbaan and M. Spiegel. AFFILIATION FEES.

THERE are a great many wise sayings going round the world in books and in the mouths of the people which would effect considerable good if only people would mind them, but the trouble is that too many of us are satisfied with commending them to our neighbours and paying little or no attention to them ourselves. Masons will recognise the following, from the charges of 1721:

"A lodge is a place where Masons assemble and work; hence, that assembly or duly organised society of Masons is called a lodge, and every brother ought to belong to one, and to be subject to its by-laws and the general regulations," as containing a principle so entirely sound that no one ever has or probably ever will dispute it, for if such were not the clear duty of Masons, then our organisation is not worth a rush, and it being a mere matter of taste whether a brother belong to a lodge or not, our organisations would disintegrate, and the whole system, built up with such infinite labour, and through so many years, in spite of so many chances and changes, would be scattered to the winds.

Nevertheless there are many thousands who have been regularly made Masons, and who have subsequently dropped out of the circle of active labourers, notwithstanding their admitted duty and pledges to the contrary. This well known disposition has long been a subject of anxiety to Grand lodges and well-disposed craftsmen, and has led to a series of legislative experiments, none of which have proved satisfactory in abating the trouble, much less leading to its abrogation. The experiment now being tried in New York is based on an extreme view of the case, but so far as we have been able to judge, its principal effect has been rather to embitter and render more obstinate, than to conciliate and win back the class against which it is directed. This, however, we may remark, in passing, is the ordinary result of such enactments, tending as they do to stimulate the pugnacity of those opposed to them, and hence evoking an opposition based not so much on principle—for the principle is the other way—as upon sheer opposition, right or wrong.

Admitted, then, that every Mason ought to belong to some lodge; admitting the equally indisputable fact that a great many entirely neglect this duty who could much better afford to attend to it than some who are always at their posts, the result seems to take the form of a disease, for which, in all reason, there ought to be some possible remedy. Considering all that has been done up to this time, our own reflections have led us to believe that we have stopped throwing tufts of grass too soon, and resorted to stones without sufficient deliberation, and that there is yet time for mitigating coercion with some milder suggestion in the way of persuasion.

The policy of the Grand Lodge is that which, upon careful examination, will tend to the best interest of the lodges under its direction, and the policy of the lodges is to strengthen themselves by the admission and labour of all the brethren within the circle of their influence. That this may be accomplished, affiliation ought to be made as easy as possible, and in no case ought the disposition of an unaffiliate to resume labour be hindered or impeded by merely money considerations. No brother in this jurisdiction becomes a non-affiliate until he has paid the initiatory fees and one year's dues, which amount may range anywhere from 30 to 110 dollars. This payment admits him not alone to membership in a particular lodge, but makes him also a member of the great Masonic family, and yet, according to the practice of a large majority of our lodges, if one of these brethren, by reason of a change of dwelling, or other reason sufficient to himself, wishes to remove his membership from one lodge to another, he must pay an additional fee, ranging from 50 to 25 dollars. It is respectfully submitted that this is not equitable, and that the only fee charged should be the nominal one required by the Grand Lodge for the necessary change of entries in its books. Greater still is the need of reform in this particular when we desire to win back those who have fallen out of the ranks, but who hesitate to pay an affiliation fee equal to that paid for their initiation for the privilege of coming back. Every non-affiliate who returns to active duty is one more to help bear the heat and burden of the day, one more whose annual dues will help to meet the annual expenses, and therefore every encouragement ought to be offered to such to return, while in a still stronger light is the requirement that every active brother should have the facility of selecting and joining with the lodge in which he feels he can best work and best agree. For these reasons we are fully and clearly of opinion that our lodges will all have done a good thing for themselves when they abolish affiliation fees.—New York Dispatch.

THE MASONIC BANNER.—As the standard or banner of Freemasonry is made up of and derived from the banners of the four leading tribes of Israel, it may be interesting to learn what was the symbolic meaning given by the Hebrews to these ensigns. Vatablus quotes a Jewish writer as saying, "that the man in the banner of Reuben signified religion and reason; the lion in that of Judah denoted power; the ox in that of Ephraim represented patience and toilsome labour; and the eagle in that of Dan, betoken wisdom, agility and sublimity." But although such may have been the emblematic meaning of these devices among the Israelites, the combination of them in the Masonic banner is only intended to indicate the Jewish origin of our institution from Solomon, who was the last King of Israel under whom the twelve tribes were united.—Jewish Chronicle.

WHAT NEXT?—It seems that the Quakers of a Western town, desirous of doing something to distinguish themselves, lately refused to permit one of their number to be interred with Masonic form, as he had requested previous to his death, and as his family also desired. When the funeral cortege arrived at the cemetery, the brethren were obliged to wait outside while the bearers took the body and placed it in the grave. It occurs to us that if we had been Master of the Lodge we would have formed the brethren in due order on the highway, and in the presence of such of the friends as chose to assist, have complied with the dying request of the departed.

THE CRAFT in Ontario, Canada, laid the corner-stone of the new Methodist Episcopal Church, at Belleville, on 17th November ult. The edifice is to accommodate 1,200 persons, and cost 30,000 dols. Deputy Grand Master, Bro. W. H. Weller, officiated, assisted by the Grand Officers. From his able oration delivered upon that occasion we take the following extract:—

From time immemorial, it has been customary whenever Masons have been held in good repute, to seek their assistance in the erection of buildings of a public character; and on no occasion have Masons more cheerfully rendered such assistance than at the erection of an edifice to be devoted to the worship of God,—the promulgation of His just, wise, and beneficent laws, and the proclaiming His most inexhaustible mercies. We have been requested by the clergymen and Building Committee of the Episcopal Methodist congregation, to lay the corner-stone of this church, and by the direction of the Grand Master, I have convened here to-day a special meeting of Grand Lodge to perform that ceremony according to the ancient usages and established customs among Masons. As Masons bound to obey the moral and civil law, to fear God, to honour the Queen and assist in the preservation of peace and good order among men, we feel that it is peculiarly fitting that we should assist at the inception of a building intended for the public worship of the Most High and the propagation of that religion which bringeth "peace on earth and good-will to men." Masonry deals not with any particular form of religious belief; claiming only human origin, human aims and purposes, it can at best be but the handmaid of religion, and must perforce by the true Craftsman be held secondary to his religious belief and his obedience to the laws of his country. To you, Reverend Sir, and the building committee of this Church, I must say that you are to be commended for the zeal and energy you have displayed in undertaking the erection of this building, which, when completed, will not only be a commodious place of worship, but will also, as I see by the design submitted to me, prove an ornament to the town in whose prosperity we are all so much interested. We sincerely trust that you may in every way be able fully to carry out your designs, and that this building may ever be a place for good deeds and the promotion of Christianity and brotherly love."—Keystone.

THE ANTIQUITY OF FREEMASONRY.

IT has been asserted by the enemies of Masonry that the vaunted antiquity of the fraternity is a mere myth, which rests upon no solid basis of fact, and that Masonic appeals to history are but the efforts of the literary acrobat who jumps backwards into the past and fashions for himself the links with which he unites his isolated facts. Possibly the logic of some of the Masonic historians who have written upon the past career of the Order is open to this charge. We have ourselves noticed much loose writing and much vague assertion and surmise in some important Masonic works. But our critics, who are only too ready to discredit the antiquity of the Order, should remember the difficulties which surround the history of any secret society. Masonic history is undoubtedly involved in much obscurity, yet unquestioned proofs exist that the Craft, as a secret fraternity, existed in very early times. The Master Mason is a personage who figures in ancient historical documents, and it is quite certain that he was the chief of a band of subordinates, who held many secrets of the Craft in common. Gibbon tells us, in his history, that previously to the founding of Constantinople, "the magistrates of the most distant provinces were directed, by a royal edict, to institute schools, to appoint professors, and, by the hopes of rewards and privilege, to engage in the study and practice of architecture a sufficient number of ingenious youths who had received a liberal education." A similar mandate was issued by the Emperor Theodosius. In the eight century, Charlemagne had invited artificers from every country of Europe in which they were established, to erect his church at Aix-la-Chapelle. It is therefore certain that bands of artisans so early as the eighth century were scattered over the Continent. After the Norman Conquest, Lanfranc and Gundulph brought over bodies of Masons to this country from the Continent. They had previously been employed in building the churches at Caen, and that attached to the celebrated Abbey of Bec. Gundulph himself appears to have been versed in Masonry, and the designs for some of the castles of the period are attributed to him. William, of Sens, appears to be the first Master Mason whose works still exist in England. He was assisted, and succeeded by William, the Englishman, in the completion of the Choir of Canterbury Cathedral. At the commencement of the thirteenth century the fraternity appears to have been consolidated in this country, as it had been for some years previously in Germany and France. The German school is held by some authorities to have had priority over the French. There was, it appears, a college of Masons at Strasbourg, and another at Cologne, and the Masters of these were allowed a jurisdiction over all inferior societies, wherever they exercised their craft. In these colleges regulations were passed, which were preserved under the strong sanction of good faith and secrecy. These colleges were probably very numerously attended by Master Masons; all instruction, it is said, was delivered orally. It is asserted that the Colleges of Masons, in every country in Europe, received in this century the blessing of the Holy See, under an injunction of dedicating their skill to the erection of ecclesiastical buildings, and that certain immunities were conceded them, such as forming themselves into migratory societies, under the government of a Master of the Craft, with the privilege of taking apprentices, who, after a due initiation, became FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS. This statement, however, has not been verified. Still it cannot be doubted that Masons were at this time banded together in societies, and that the secrets or mysteries of the Craft were jealously preserved from the prying eyes of the vulgar. Many eminent ecclesiastics of the period are mentioned as the designers or builders of Churches and Cathedrals. No doubt, men like William Wykeham possessed some knowledge of architecture, but it is at least doubtful if the priests ever did more than suggest the rough ideas of buildings, while the details were supplied by the skilled craftsmen. Wykeham, indeed, appears to have been a skilled Mason, but many prelates whose names are associated with the building of cathedrals were, probably, mere patrons, who found the cash, and took to themselves the honour which should have been bestowed upon the Master Mason.

In the earliest era of the Masonic establishments, a geometrical figure was adopted in all sacred buildings, the import of which was hidden from the vulgar. It had possibly some Christian signification, but it had likewise a Masonic meaning which was perfectly understood by the fraternity. This symbol was formed by two circles cutting each other in their centres; it was held in high veneration, and was adopted by Master Masons in all countries. It was evidently symbolical of the principles which underlie the construction of the pointed arch. The brotherhood in this country were frequently employed on military works, and in the making of engines of war. The splendid castles of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries were the work of Master Masons and their subordinates; the names of some of the former have been handed down to us. There is little or no trace of the Freemasons as a fraternity from the fourteenth century, until the reign of Henry VI.; a MS., which is said to have been signed by this king, makes some curious references to the secrets of the Craft. The original, unfortunately, is not in existence, but a copy was taken by Leland, and preserved by him in the Bodleian Library. This has been recopied, and was first published at Frankfort, in 1748. This singular treatise is entitled—

Certayne Questions with Answeres to the same, concernynge the mystery of Maconnye, writtenne by the hand of Kynge Henrye the sixthe of the name, and faithfully copyed by me Johan Leylande, Antiquarius, by commande of his Highnesse.*

From the treatise and the acute comments of Leland upon it, it is clearly established that, at this period (1475) the Masons possessed certain secrets. Leland, indeed, declares that such secrets the Masons must have, "for though, as some people imagine, they have no secret at all, even that must be a secret which, being discovered, would expose them to the highest ridicule, and, therefore, it requires the utmost caution to conceal it." The irony of this passage is sufficient proof that Leland was not at the time, when he wrote it, in any way connected with the fraternity, although it has been asserted that he was afterwards admitted a brother. The king's treatise commences with the question, "What mote it (the secret) be?" Answer: "Yt beith the skylle of nature; the understandynge of the myghte that ys herynne, and its sundrye werkynges, sunderlyche, the skill of reckonnynges; of wayghtes and meetynges; and the true manere of faconynge all things for mannys use, lend ie, dwellynges and buildynges of all kindes, and all other laydynges that make goode to manne. techedde mankynde? The Arts Agricultura, Astronomia, Geometria, Numeres, Musica, Poesie, Kymistrye, Governmente, and Religioune." The king was evidently very curious, and we can only wonder that he did not seek admission to the Order. Leland's comments upon the treatise are, as we have shown, evidently from the pen of a man who was inclined to treat the Order with contempt, although he fairly acknowledged its existence and its possession of a secret which he imagines may be no secret at all.

The Rev. James Dallway, to whose work we are indebted for some facts relative to the past history of the fraternity, has printed a list of Master Masons from the twelfth to the end of the fifteenth centuries. William Anglus is the first Master Mason of English birth of whom we have any authentic record; he assisted (twelfth century) at the restoration of Canterbury Cathedral. In the thirteenth century we find Henricus de Ellerton mentioned as "Magister Operum." In the next century, Richard de Stow was the Master Mason of Lincoln Cathedral, and Walter de Weston, of St. Stephen's, Westminster, and Windsor Castle, St. George's Hall. Robert de Skillington was Master Mason at Kenilworth Castle, during the extensive alterations which that structure underwent at the period. Richard II., in 1392, by Royal Warrant, directed Skillington to impress twenty workmen, carpenters, &c., for the purpose of pushing on the work. Preston says that in the computus of payments (1429) of the Cathedral of Canterbury, the names of the Masters, Wardens, and Masons, are all recited. In this century, William Harewood was Master Mason of the Chapel of the College of Fotheringay. John Wastell and Henry Semerk had the contract for the building of King's College, and John Smyth was Master Mason of Eton College. Edward Leaman, of Sewark, Master Mason of St. George's Chapel at Windsor, 1480 and 1499, received as wages one shilling per day, or about twelve shillings of our currency. William Orcheyerde, towards the close of the century, was Master of Masonry of Magdalen College, Oxford, and in the sixteenth century, John Cole had the direction of the works connected with the tower and spire of Louth, Lincolnshire.

A ZEALOUS OFFICER.

"For Charity I'll prodigally spend myself,
And speak away my spirit into air:
For her I'll melt my brain into invention,
Coin new conceits, and hang my richest words
As polished jewels in her bounteous ears."

THE poets and painters have alike exhausted the resources of their respective arts, for the purpose of illustrating the divine graces of simplicity. The greatest writers have told us that the highest refinement and the most perfect simplicity always go hand in hand, and if we wanted an appropriate Masonic illustration from the arts, we might point to the Parthenon at Athens, which for ages has excited the wonder and admiration of the world. Even the ignorant tyro who gazes upon its severe, yet graceful outlines, is compelled to admire; but to appreciate all its grand simplicity and refinement the spectator requires an art education. It is only the artist, or the man of cultivated taste, who can fairly estimate the intellectual rank which must have been attained by the people of Greece before this masterpiece could have been produced. The progress of a people is usually from barbarism to vulgarity, and from vulgarity to refined feeling and a true estimate of what really constitutes elegance and dignity. In our social intercourse with each other we are sometimes inclined to forget the claims of simplicity. We are often willing to permit some foolish but pompous person to push his way into our good opinion, while we ignore the claims to consideration of the man who is content to take the lowest seat at table, or to be accounted as nothing, if, by self abnegation, he may advance the interests of a good cause. Society, indeed, as it is at present constituted, does not generally value quiet and unobtrusive persons. In the upper ranks of life it is no doubt true that men and women of the highest polish are remarkable for their charming simplicity of manner. The middle classes, however, are prone to take individuals at their own estimate of value, and it is no uncommon thing to see a jewelled fop, who cannot clink two ideas together in his empty skull, strutting his little hour upon the stage of life, and throwing his evil shadow across the path of better and brighter men. Fortunately, the mental and moral qualities which wear well, are usually in the end respected by persons who have been duped by empty bombast and insolent pretension. Many of us, who have still a lingering regard for some creature gifted by nature with the art of swaggering and talking big, are yet compelled to confess that the homely person who has won our regard, because of his intrinsic worth, is of more value than all the ornamental persons it has ever been our fate to know. The ultimate verdict of most people is just; and possibly the greatest slave of fashion would, in his sane moments, confess his respect and admiration for plain honesty, ungarnished by any other grace than simplicity.

The brother whose portrait it is our ambition to transfer to the canvas, is undoubtedly remarkable for simplicity of manner. It is one of his prominent characteristics. The mind of the man is like a book, and he who runs may read the open page of his honest heart. His noble enthusiasm for the cause of Masonry has inspired him with strength to perform Herculean labours, although, unlike Hercules, his tasks have somewhat impaired his once vigorous health. Every one speaks of his obliging disposition and uniform affability, but perhaps few remark that the key note of the man's mind is politeness and charity. He is one of those men who really believe there is a vital force in the ethical principles of Masonry. The watchwords of the Order are with him no mere symbols to hang upon the wall, like the arms of a warrior whose fight is done; he really believes that he is called upon to wear them on all occasions, and to fight against evil wherever he sees it. Brotherly love, for example, is with him something more than a mere sentiment; all Masons he regards as truly his brothers, and his fine and noble reverence for charity does not merely lead him to perform those tasks to which we have alluded, but it teaches him to speak no evil of his neighbour. Truth, in its moral and scientific aspects, he holds in equal veneration, and possibly to his mind, as to all ardent souls, the grand lessons which are drawn from the mathematics of Masonry, have helped to press home and enforce the still grander ethical lessons of which they are the fitting symbols. The man, indeed, is true to the core, and in any secular position of trust and confidence he might have made his way.

In the commercial world, the energy and forethought which he displays in the cause of charity, would have led him on to fortune. But we venture to think that he was not conscious of his own powers until he found himself a responsible officer of the Order. His enthusiasm for Masonry, indeed, dates from the period when he was raised to the third degree. He then saw, as in a glass darkly, that there was something of tangible worth in the Order, and he determined to pursue his Masonic studies with ardour. Those studies were indeed laborious, and consumed all his leisure hours. He attended Lodges of Instruction every night of the week, and, like Socrates of old, he astonished all the sages by his insatiable thirst for knowledge. Here, indeed, was a man who, in the grand simplicity of his heart, believed that it was his duty to make himself acquainted with all the lore the Order could teach. No difficulties were too great for his zeal to conquer. He met, of course, with those rebuffs which men of a cold and calculating nature are so ready to bestow upon an ardent novice; but, like Socrates, he was always ready to confess his ignorance, and always willing to learn from any one who could teach. It was impossible for such a man to remain in obscurity. We know not whether our brother is ambitious, but if he be, his ambition is strictly held in subordination to the cause he has at heart. This, however, we do know, that his rise to eminence in Masonry was the result of no merely ambitious longings, but the outgrowth of that generous enthusiasm which shines in all our hero says or does. After sixteen years of such a career as few Masons can boast of, he is at the present time an honorary member of fifty-three Lodges, and of twenty-two Chapters; he has consecrated thirty Lodges, and fourteen Chapters; and for the last three years has held the arduous post of Secretary to one of the great Charities. In this responsible office our hero has given ample proof that he possesses the highest qualifications of an administrator and a man of business. His energetic labours have produced good fruit, and the annual cash statements of the Charity which is under his care are sufficient to show that his official honorarium is dearly earned. Last year the donations and subscriptions reached the large sum of £8,000, and although, from various causes over which he has no control, the amount he will receive this year may fall short of the above sum, the anticipated figure is a very large one. It is natural that voluntary contributions should fluctuate somewhat, and although our Charities are worked together harmoniously, it sometimes happens that they clash in friendly competition; or a district may have been so assiduously worked by a zealous steward that a fallow year is absolutely necessary to restore its waning fertility. There will possibly be some fallow districts this year, but our hero has his eye upon them, and is already calculating the crop he will reap when the soil has been restored to its pristine strength.

Our hero is, we need scarcely say, respected and loved by the good people who are the recipients of the Charity which he, in conjunction with the Committee of Management, has to dispense. The inmates of the Alms-houses regard him as a friend, and are always willing to pour their little troubles into his sympathetic ear. His kindly words, soft and smooth as "Terry" velvet, have often calmed a rising storm. His constant aim is to promote their comfort and happiness, and many an hour is spent by him in work not set down in his list of duties, but which has for its object the good of those for whom, by virtue of his office, he is almoner in chief. In his zeal for the cause he has quite forgotten his own comfort, and his great labours and anxieties have told heavily upon him. If we might venture here to utter a word of brotherly warning, we should counsel him to take more care of his health. All absorbing as are his Masonic duties, he should bear in mind that a break down would be a calamity which would be felt as keenly at home by those he loves, as it would be by the Masonic world. No man who is near the meridian of life should permit the restless activity of the spirit to wear upon the body. Our brother is doubtless as young in mind as he was when he gave his heart to the cause of the Order, but time, which leaves the soul untouched, impairs the vigour of most men. "The spirit, indeed, is willing, but the flesh is weak." We have referred to his home, and we may venture to say here, that within its walls our hero is the same genial, simple soul that he is abroad. If he forgets himself, he never forgets the claims of those nearest and dearest to him, in the person of his wife, sister, and child, but is always a tender and assiduous husband and a most indulgent father. No good Mason ever neglects his home, and if our hero could forget the first duties of a man and a citizen, his kindly honest face would not figure, as it does, on our canvas. He who lays his offerings upon the Altar of Home, approaches the Great Architect of the Universe by the most accessible road, for assuredly the family hearth is the Gate of Heaven. We have said nothing in detail of our worthy brother's relations with the members of the fraternity, but these, we need scarcely say, are of the most cordial character. It is impossible to know him and not to love him. The most obtuse person can see at a glance that he is ever ready to assist when his services are required; indeed, in this respect he is beyond all praise, and our readers are too familiar with this side of his disposition to need any further illustrations from our pen. Briefly, and in conclusion, he is all that a good Mason should be, and in his private life and public career he has shown that the principles of the Order are as vital as those great doctrines which lie at the root of religion. The ethics of Masonry have assisted to make this good man a hero in the truest sense of the term. He has, indeed, fought the good fight, and is still ready for renewed combat. We venture to hope that when the time shall come for him to ground his arms, he may find such reward as the Great Architect of the Universe has to bestow upon the virtuous, while he leaves a name amongst men which will not readily be forgotten.

THE "TWO CITIES."

THERE is a custom which obtains amongst the brethren in the provinces, but more especially in the Scottish metropolis, of forming deputations from one Lodge for the purpose of visiting one or more Lodges which may meet the same evening, and the advertisements in the Scotsman summoning the brethren, for in Scotland our elaborate system of sending a printed summons to each member is comparatively unknown, reads something like the following:—

Rifle Lodge, No. —
Fortnightly Meeting this evening at 6.30 p.m. Initiations — Deputations at 7.30.
Bro. So and So, Secretary.

and at the appointed hour may be sometimes seen two and perhaps three deputations from as many Lodges paying their respects to the W.M. of the Lodge that has advertised a "deputation" night, each deputation consisting of the W.M., or Depute Master, and several brethren. Here in London we are more exclusive, and although the Book of Constitutions expressly enjoins the Master and Wardens of a Lodge "to visit other Lodges as often as they conveniently can," it is rarely that we hear of or see the officers of one Lodge visiting another Lodge in a body. These remarks are a propos of a visit of the W.M. and officers of "The Great City" Lodge to what may, in a double sense, be termed their Sister Lodge, the "City of Westminster," meeting at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, by special invitation, on Thursday.

The Lodge was opened shortly after 5 o'clock by the W.M., Bro. Swallow, supported by Bros. Rev. Holden S.W. and Chaplain, White J.W., Beston S.D., Turner J.D., Parsons I.G., Shand D.C.; Bros. Bishop, Browning, Gibson, Woodward, Waugh, A. Emanuel, E. Emanuel, J. Emanuel, and many other members. Visitors, Bros. Cox W.M., Grosvenor, Hyde Pullen P.G.S.B., Boehr, Burrell P.M., Pratt, and Beverley of the Mount Edgecumbe Lodge 1446, J. Hamilton, Townsend P.M., J. Seex S.W., Stevens P.M., Blackie S.D., Catchpole J.D., de Leliva, and Edward Moody, Secretary of the Great City Lodge. Bros. A., E. and J. Emanuel were elected joining members. Bros. Gardner, Samuel, and Austin were passed, and Bros. Bishop, Hart, and Turner were raised. Messrs. F. C. Bonham and T. W. Jones were initiated. The bye-laws were agreed upon, and ordered to be printed. The Lodge was closed, amidst the hearty good wishes of all the visitors, and the brethren adjourned to the dining room, where, although the summons had only specified "refreshments," an elegant banquet was placed before them.

The Rev. Bro. Holden S.W. being unwell, his place was occupied by Bro. Marrell P.M. When the cloth was drawn, the W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were received in a very hearty manner. In response to the toast of the D.G.M. and the Grand Officers, Bro. Hyde Pullen said that he was more than gratified at the very excellent manner in which the business of the evening had been carried out. He had the honour of being one of the signatories on the petition, and he hoped one day to see the dignity of a purple apron bestowed on some worthy brother of the City of Westminster Lodge.

The health of the W.M. was proposed by Bro. Scott, P.M. and Secretary, in felicitous terms, and was enthusiastically received by the brethren.

Bro. Swallow in responding, said that he, in conjunction with the other founders, had done his best to place the Lodge on a strong footing, and he hoped in time to be able to rival, if not excel, the progress and the working of the sister Lodge, the Great City. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the visitors, designating it as, on this occasion, an extraordinary one, there being such a large number of visitors present. Referring to the officers of the Great City Lodge, he said that, having received from that Lodge two invitations for himself and officers, he and Bro. White J.W. had attended, and had been very much gratified at the kind reception they had met with, and had thought it only courteous to return the compliment. Eulogizing the working that he had witnessed at the Great City, on the occasion of his visit, Bro. Swallow said it would be the constant endeavour of himself and officers to institute a friendly rivalry between the two Lodges, which he thought could not but result in good for the Craft. The toast was received by the members in the most enthusiastic manner, and was responded to by Bro. Seex S.W. on behalf of the Great City Lodge (the W.M., Bro. Townsend, having been compelled to leave). He expressed the great satisfaction with which the invitation had been received by the officers, and hoped that, should he ever arrive at the dignity of W.M., it would be one of his first duties to send an invitation to the W.M. and officers of the sister Lodge. The officers of the Great City desired, through him, to express their thanks to members of the City of Westminster Lodge for the hospitable manner in which they had been received. Bros. Coulton P.M. 382, Cox, Stevens, and Burrill also responded. Bro. Edward Moody, P.M. and Secretary to the Great City, by permission of the W.M., and by request of the W.M. of his own Lodge, proposed the toast of "Prosperity to the City of Westminster Lodge." He said it was a toast that more especially commended itself to the visitors on account of the splendid hospitality with which they had been received, and by hospitality he did not so much refer to the bountiful repast of which they had just partaken, but to the kind, courteous and fraternal greeting the visitors had received from every member of the Lodge. He was proud to claim the W.M., Bro. Swallow, as one of his earliest friends in Freemasonry, they having worked together in Lodges of Instruction for many years, and he knew him as one who, from his great Masonic attainments, from his zeal on behalf of the Order, and from his kind and genial disposition, was well qualified to preside over such a Lodge. From the long array of Masonic talent ready to follow the W.M. in the chair, he could foresee nothing but an uninterrupted run of prosperity for the "City of Westminster Lodge." Bro. White responded, thanking the visitors for the hearty manner in which the toast had been received; they were but a young Lodge, but they hoped, by a careful selection of their initiates, in time to make the Lodge worthy of its name. Bros. Parsons I.G., and Shand D.C., responded to the toast of the Officers. The latter referring to a remark of the W.M., that his officers were noted for their retiring disposition, said that, in exemplification of this, he might mention that, when on a visit to the London Lodge, of which Bro. Hyde Pullen was the W.M., he actually was so bashful as to offer to do the duty of Deacon. Space will not permit us to extend our report of this interesting meeting, one of the most pleasant that it has ever been our lot to be present at. When next "City" meets "City," may we "be there to see."

NEW MASONIC HALL FOR REDRUTH.

BRO. John Farren Penrose, P.P.G.S.D. of Cornwall, yesterday laid the foundation stone of a new Hall at Redruth, which is to be erected for Masonic purposes. A Masonic Lodge was first started in Redruth as far back as the year 1754, but there was an unfortunate lapse about the year 1832, but for which the "Druid Lodge of Love and Liberality" would have been, with only one exception, the oldest in the province. A new warrant was granted in 1851, and from that time to the present the Lodge has made very satisfactory progress, the members at present numbering over a hundred. For some time past the brethren have experienced the great inconvenience of a Lodge room that was far too small for their members, and so, a short time since, a movement was set on foot for the establishment of a Masonic Hall. It was agreed that a company should be formed for the purpose, with a capital of £1,500, in 750 shares of £2 each. The movement was heartily taken up by the Masonic brethren of the neighbourhood, and already considerably more than half the shares have been allotted. Bro. Penrose, who yesterday laid the foundation stone of the new building, in the presence of a very large assembly, is the Chairman of the directors, and a well-known and much esteemed Mason in the province.

The members met in large numbers in their Lodge-room at noon, Bro. F. S. Angove, the W.M., presiding. Bro. Hocking, the Secretary, read the dispensation from the Provincial Grand Lodge for laying the foundation stone of the new Hall. Then a procession was formed, and on its arrival at the site, the Redruth Church Choir, who very kindly gave their services on the occasion, commenced the proceedings by chanting the opening ode. This was followed by prayer from Bro. H. J. Wilcox, the Chaplain to the Lodge.

Bro. Angove, in presenting the presiding officer with a handsome silver trowel, remarked that during the many years Bro. Penrose had been connected with the Lodge he had seen many changes, and he was proud to say those changes had all been in the direction of progress and improvement. (Hear, hear.) These changes were not entirely due to chance or good fortune, but to the skill, ability, and energy with which the affairs of Druid's Lodge had always been managed, and amongst the many brethren who had always been ready to assist them with their hearts and hands, Bro. Penrose had been most conspicuous. (Applause.) His skill, ability, and purse were ever ready to assist in a good cause, and the brethren felt that they could not choose a more fitting occasion on which to present him with a small souvenir than on the day when they assembled to lay the foundation stone of their new Masonic Hall. (Hear, hear.) He trusted that Bro. Penrose would accept the trowel as a small acknowledgement from the Lodge of the esteem in which he was held, and of the brotherly love which the members had for him, and he (Bro. Angove) would now ask him to lay the foundation stone of the building, which he hoped would be perfect in all its parts, a pride to the brethren, and that under its roof would always be found that true, brotherly love which was an essentially characteristic of Freemasonry. (Applause.)

Bro. Penrose, after expressing his deep regret that the Provincial Grand Master who, since his appointment, had identified himself with everything that tended to the promotion of Freemasonry, was unable to be present, said: On an occasion of this kind we cannot help being forcibly reminded of the rapid progress which Freemasonry is making in this great empire. Whether we view it from the standpoint of our own islands, or look still farther to nations that are far away under our rule, we find that Freemasonry is largely increasing in numbers and rapidly growing in importance. To the outer world our proceedings are, to a large extent, veiled in mystery, and we not unfrequently find individuals pointing towards us the finger of scorn, and asserting that the chief object of our meetings is conviviality. I need not tell my brethren present that we have far higher and nobler motives to guide us than that, and that the principles which we inculcate tend to elevate the man, and if acted up to in the spirit of our teaching, they cannot fail to make him a better husband, a kinder father, and a more enlightened member of society. (Applause.) Upon every member entering the Craft we forcibly impress the high duties he owes, first to his God, then to his neighbour, and lastly to himself, and as the rich ore system is veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols, yet we are proud to say that they all have a high moral tendency. (Hear, hear.) One of our great objects is to alleviate the sufferings of our fellow creatures, and do what we can to smooth their difficulties and trials whilst passing through this transitory state. We have the great cardinal virtues, charity, boldly inscribed upon our banner—(hear, hear)—and we view with some amount of pride those noble institutions in the vicinity of the great metropolis for the education of the sons and daughters of Freemasons, and for the maintenance of those amongst our poorer brethren who are unable, from infirmity and age, to battle any longer for the means of existence. And then, coming nearer home, we have our own Provincial Annuity and Benevolent Fund—(hear, hear)—which is most valuable in allowing a grant to brethren in the province to educate their children, and also helping hand to those who, through infirmity, are unable to help themselves. All these institutions are supported by the voluntary contributions of the Craft, and need I say that we, as Freemasons, are proud of them, for are they not carried on year after year with such an unity of purpose as can only be attained by a society so banded together as the members of our Order are?—(applause). But in my zeal for the interests of the Craft I fear I am almost forgetting the more practical object for which we are assembled. The ceremony of laying a corner stone is one of great antiquity, as we find it symbolically alluded to in the volume of the sacred law more than 1,600 years before the Christian era. This stone, laid, as it will presently be, in the north-east corner, implies to us the erection of a stately edifice in the next few months, one that shall be an ornament to the town, and give ample accommodation for all the requirements of our Lodge. We are much indebted to Bro. Hicks for the great taste displayed in his plan of the elevation, as well as for the care he has bestowed on all the internal arrangements—no easy matter, looking at the large number of our members, for I may tell you that, with one exception, we are the largest Lodge in the province, and but for an unfortunate circumstance which happened about the year 1832 we should have ranked second in the province in point of age. The original charter was granted to the Redruth Freemasons on the 14th February 1754. The members then met in private rooms, and continued to do so until the year 1784, when they removed to rooms in the London Inn. Here they met for nearly fifty years, but unfortunately in the year 1832, from a want of zeal on the part of the members, they allowed their charter to lapse. In 1851 the Lodge was reconstituted, and a new charter granted. Since that date it has recovered its ancient prestige, and now has more than one hundred members on its roll—(applause). The Druids have ever taken a prominent position in the province, and as far back as the year 1756 were to have entertained the Provincial Grand Lodge, but in consequence of the rebuilding of the present parish church they were obliged to defer that honour for a subsequent year. In 1869, the brethren feeling that it was undesirable, for the advancement of the principles of the Craft, to continue their meetings at an hotel took a lease of their present Masonic rooms. They then numbered only 38 members, but the desire to join the fraternity amongst the worthy inhabitants of the town was so great that we found it absolutely necessary to provide a suitable building to meet the increasing requirements of the Lodge. (Hear, hear.) About 18 months since an eligible freehold site was offered for sale, and purchased by three or four of the more enterprising members of the Lodge; and it is on this portion of it that we are about to erect our Masonic Hall. An appeal was made to the members for funds to carry out the work, and I am proud to tell you that it has been most nobly responded to. (Applause.) More than 450 shares have been allotted, and I am quite sure if the brethren find we require further help we shall have no difficulty in placing a sufficient portion of the remaining 300 shares to open our building free of debt. (Applause.) To those brethren who have not already subscribed we would say, "Help forward the good work, and show to the world that you value those high privileges you enjoy through being members of our ancient and honourable fraternity." (Loud applause.)

Another ode was then sung by the choir, after which the stone was laid in its place, the presiding officer, according to ancient custom, sprinkling it with corn, as the emblem of plenty, wine, as the symbol of joy and gladness, and oil as the symbol of peace and harmony.

The Chaplain then offered up another prayer, and this was followed by the presentation of the architect's plan—(Bro. Hicks), by the W.M. to the presiding officer, who entrusted them again to the architect, accompanied by a few appropriate remarks as to the erection of the building.

The ceremony being thus far concluded,

Bro. Penrose said: We have now arrived at that point in our proceedings which brings us near the close of the ceremony. Dealing, as our Order does, so thoroughly in symbols, may not the laying of this stone, and the stately fabric which we expect to see reared on its base, in the course of the next few months, teach us a useful lesson? As this building rises from its base, and stone after stone is bonded together by the skill of the expert craftsman, so may our Order continue to be strengthened and bonded together by the brotherly affection which has stood the test of ages, for

> We build upon the noblest plan,
> For friendship rivets man to man,
> And makes us all as one.

—(applause). May the ancient landmarks of our Order be preserved intact by the members who tenant this building, and may the genuine tenets of our profession be transmitted through this Lodge, pure and unsullied, from generation to generation. (Applause.)

The choir having sung an anthem, the benediction was pronounced by the Chaplain, and after singing "God save the Queen," the brethren reformed in procession, and returned to Lodge. Here the W.M. elect, Bro. Martin, was installed for the ensuing year, in presence of a large assembly, which included twenty Past Masters. The ceremony of installation over, the W.M. appointed his officers as follow:—Bros. E. S. Angove I.P.M., John Thomas S.W., W. H. Tresseder J.W., Rev. J. Wilcox, Chaplain, James Sims Treasurer, J. Hocking jun. Secretary, G. S. Bray A.st. Secretary, T. A. Kistler S.D., William Lidgey J.D., James Hicks Superintendent Works, W. T. Chapman I.G., E. P. Thomas Organist, E. T. Pearce D.C., William Martin Steward, Thomas Harry Steward, Thomas Martin Steward, William Thomas Steward, John Polkinghorne Tyler.

After the business of the Lodge was over, the brethren adjourned to Tubb's Hotel, where they partook of an excellent banquet. The usual Masonic toasts followed, and Bro. Penrose came in for the highest eulogy for the admirable manner in which he performed the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the new Hall.

Mr. J. Moody took a photograph of the scene around the stone in his usual excellent and effective manner.—Western Daily Mercury.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Protracted suffering of any kind soon wears down the strongest frame, and were not the most determined spirit, as the dropping of water will in time wear away the hardest granite, so will persistent pain wear away the powers of the strongest mind. Let none, therefore, who are afflicted with Chronic, Rheumatic, or Neuralgic pains, or old painful Sores, and Ulcerations, which render their life miserable, yield to despair, but give these incalculable twin remedies a steady and fair trial, many who have done so (having previously tried "almost everything" without relief) have been delighted and amazed at the change for the better, which has been the result of their use. They are invaluable in skin diseases.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

ST. JOHN'S HILL, S.W.

A QUARTERLY General Court of the Governors and subscribers was held on Saturday, the 8th inst, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, Bro. Colonel Creaton, V.P., P.G.D, in the chair. Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, Secretary, read the minutes of the former meeting, which were confirmed, and the following notices of motion were read:—

By Bro. H. W. Hemsworth, "That not more than two children of same parents be admitted into this Institution at the same time." The Proposer not being present, the consideration of this motion was deferred.

By Bro. R. Kenyon, "That a branch school be established as soon as practicable, and that a Committee of Five Governors be appointed to inspect a Freehold Estate at Sunninghill, comprising about ten acres and a half, with a view to purchasing the same, and erecting the requisite school thereon. That the outside cost of the land and buildings shall not exceed £12,000." This motion was withdrawn.

By Bro. R. B. Webster, Upon recommendation of the General Committee; "That the sum of Twenty Guineas be granted to Miss Moss, late Assistant Governess, as a gratuity on her retirement from the School." It was the opinion of the brethren present that the sum was not sufficient for the valuable services rendered to the Institution, and Fifty Guineas was mentioned as a more adequate sum. Bro. Webster withdrew his motion, and proposed that it be referred back to the House Committee.

Eleven vacancies were declared, for which there were forty-four candidates.

A vote of thanks was recorded to the chairman, after which the meeting was adjourned. There were present—Bros. B. Head P.G.D., H. Browse P.G.D., J. Symonds P.G.D., John Boyd P.G.P., J. Smith P.G.P., Rawson D.G.M. China, J. Rucker P.G.D., Ramsay, R. W. Webster, E. H. Finney, G. Kenning, H. Massey, C. W. Mountie, Kenyon, Ramsay, Disper, H. Moss, S. Poynter, H. M. Levy, J. W. White, Woodford, &c.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE EARL OF LIMERICK, Very High and Eminent Grand Prior of the United Religious and Military Orders of the Temple and of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, Rhodes, and Malta, in England and Wales, and the Dependencies thereof.

The humble Memorial of the Sir Knights of the Province of Bombay in Provincial Priory assembled, Sheweth,—That your Memorialists view with pleasure and approbation the restorations recently made in the Constitution of the Order by the newly-enacted statutes of the Convent General, and emphatically desire to express their approval of the fair and straightforward manner in which those restorations were proposed for the acceptance of the Grand Conclave.

Your Memorialists are of opinion that the omission of the erroneous term "Masonic" from the title of the Order was most desirable. They believe that the Order has never really been a Masonic Order, for, if it had been, entrance into it would have been possible for all in possession of the previous Masonic degrees. But such has never been the case, for reception into our Order has always been impossible for all who have been unable truly to declare that they trust for salvation in our Blessed Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, a qualification which excludes many Masons.

Your Memorialists therefore consider that the adoption of such names and titles as "Encampment," "Eminent Commander," "First and Second Captains," &c., &c., &c., was erroneous, and had no historical foundation, and that the restoration of the names and titles "Preceptory," "Preceptor," "Constable," "Marshal," &c., &c., is most judicious, because it is founded upon historical authority. Such restorations, they believe, will increase the dignity of our Order by emancipating it from the anomalous position into which it had been thrust, and in which it was erroneously made to appear to be an offshoot or dependent of Freemasonry, instead of the parent of the Craft in Europe it really was. Your Memorialists' opinion is founded upon the following facts, that is to say:—The Templars, during their residence in the Holy Land, were received into the Syrian Fraternities, which, under the name of Mysteries, taught the principles of moral truth and virtue, the liberal arts and sciences, and a more definite idea of the being and attributes of God than was possessed by the uninitiated. The Templars taught these mysteries to those whom they affiliated, but divested the ceremony of all its heathen rites. These mysteries are identical with those of Freemasonry, and there is no record of the existence of Freemasonry in Europe previous to the Institution of the Order of the Temple.

Your Memorialists consider the abolition of Past Rank, as it heretofore existed, to be most judicious, as tending to enhance the value of the elective offices of the Order. The officers of the Grand Conclave and Provincial Grand Conclaves were very numerous, and, with the exception of the Treasurers, they were all the nominees of the Grand Master and Provincial Grand Commanders, and though many of them had not attained the dignity of Eminent Commander, and their duties were merely nominal, yet they ranked, during their term of office, and for ever afterwards, above all Eminent Commanders who had not attained Grand Conclave or Provincial Grand Conclave Rank superior to their own. This was manifestly unjust to Eminent Commanders, who, by their installation, had attained a degree, or at least a dignity, higher than that of ordinary Knights, and therefore never ought to have been superseded by them. Your Memorialists therefore consider that the opposition which some are making to the abolition of Past Rank, as it formerly existed, is very ill-advised.

Your Memorialists also consider that it is very desirable to retain the newly-created honours of "Knight Grand Cross" and "Knight Commander," because it would be absurd to make our Grand Master "the Fountain of Honour and Grace" (p. 10, Statutes of the Convent General), and then to deprive him of the power of conferring Honours.

Your Memorialists, however, respectfully suggest that, since "the hope of reward sweetens labour," some reward should be given to those who faithfully and zealously perform the duties of the offices entrusted to them in the Great Priory and Provincial Priories. This reward might be granted to Preceptors in the shape of a distinction, entitling them to rank above all other Preceptors who have not held a dignified office equal to their own, and to ordinary Knights in the shape of a distinction entitling them to rank above all other ordinary Knights who have not held a dignified office equal to their own, but not above any Preceptor. Your Memorialists would further suggest that it be enacted that the attainment of such distinctions shall constitute those who attain them, members of the Great Priory or Provincial Priories in which they respectively attain them, and that it shall qualify such of them as are not Preceptors, but who may become subscribing members of Preceptories in other Provinces, for election as members of the Provincial Priories of those Provinces respectively, in which, whether attending as visitors or members, they shall be entitled to such rank and precedence as their respective distinctions confer upon them, seniority of date of distinctions giving precedence to holders of distinctions otherwise equal in rank.

Your Memorialists have purposely refrained from defining what the distinctions should be, because, in their opinion, that point can best be decided after full discussion in the Convent General.

Your Memorialists therefore pray that your Lordship will be pleased to take such steps, as to your Lordship may seem meet, to bring this Memorial before H.R.H. the Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master and the Convent General at as early a date as the rules of that august body will permit.

And your Memorialists humbly pray that no alteration be made in the Statutes of the Convent General with respect to the name of our Order, or the names and titles of the bodies and officers in it, or with respect to the power of H.R.H. the Most Eminent and Supreme Grand Master to confer the honours of "Knight Grand Cross" and "Knight Commander," but that some provision be made for rewarding those who may faithfully and zealously perform the duties of such offices as may be conferred upon them in Great Priories or Provincial Priories, to take effect from the date of the enactment of the present Statutes of the Convent General.

Signed on behalf of the Provincial Priory of Bombay,

‡ G. S. JUDGE,
Provincial Prior of Bombay.
‡ H. MORLAND,
Provincial Sub-Prior of Bombay.
‡ TUDOR TREVOR,
Provincial Chancellor of Bombay.

NEW ZEALAND.

WE (Auckland Evening Star) understand that the Masons of this province consider that the time has fully arrived for them to be placed on the same footing as their brethren of the Irish and Scotch Constitutions. The latter both have Provincial Grand Lodges here, and that honour is now about to be sought for at the hands of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, coupled with the recommendation to him of the name of a worthy citizen of Auckland as first Provincial Grand Master. Generally, matters Masonic among the English fraternity appear to be looking up. For the first time in its history, a suitable musical service was conducted at the Lodge Waitemata on Bro. Chapman a few days ago, and in connection with the same Lodge it is intended to revive the library and lectures of former days, which for a considerable time have been neglected. Doubtless, before long, we shall hear of great things among the Masons, as the proposed formation of an English Provincial Grand Lodge should give an impetus to the scheme on foot for the construction of a suitable Masonic Hall in Queen-street.

The election of officers for the St. Andrew's Lodge of Freemasons, under the Scottish Constitution, was held 23rd Nov. The result of the election was as follows:—Bros. W. C. Wilkes R.W.M., E. Lidden S.W., Barrett J.W., Lucas J. Martin S.D., Cooke J.D., Hudson Treasurer, Payne Secretary, Kitchen Architect, Rev. Mr. Bruce Chaplain, and Porter Tyler.

A work of art is now being exhibited at Dunedin. It is a card table, of 250 pieces, of New Zealand woods, inlaid with mutton-fish shell, and of Masonic design, manufactured by Mr. De Maus, of Port Chalmers.

We regret to announce that Bro. S. L. Hilsmore, I.P.M. 188, has fractured his leg, which necessitated his removal from the scene of the accident, Broad-street Station, to the London Hospital, where he is progressing favourably. We wish him a speedy recovery.

The members of the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction will in future hold their meetings at Bro. Hollands's, the "Mail Coach," No. 1 Cranmer-street, on Tuesday evenings. Bro. W. C. Hollands is the Hon. Secretary, and he will be happy to give the brethren a hearty welcome in the new quarters of the Lodge.

THE ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—As I see that the changes made in the statutes of our Order are likely to be re-discussed, may I ask you to find room, in your next issue, for this letter and the accompanying copy of a Memorial to the Great Prior of England and Wales, from the Knights of the Province of Bombay,* agreed to on the 25th February 1875, as I hope they will, in conjunction with the Paper issued from the Chancery of the Order, under date "November 1875," which I was glad to see so prominently published in the Christmas number of the Freemason, help many of my brother Knights to form a more correct opinion as to the wisdom and uprightness of those changes. The history of the Order of the Temple is, briefly, this: In 1118 nine valiant Knights formed themselves into a society for the defence of the Holy Land and the protection of pilgrims, under the leadership of Hugo de Payens, the first Grand Master of the Order. With the vows of Knighthood they joined those of Monkhood, and bound themselves to live at Jerusalem, under the Canons of St. Augustine, by the three vows of Poverty, Chastity, and Obedience. Their first permanent residence or church was granted them by Baldwin, King of Jerusalem, on Mount Moriah, near the spot on which the Temple of King Solomon had formerly stood; hence their name of Templars. The Order consisted of three classes, Knights, Chaplains (the Priests of the Order), and Serving brethren. The Grand Master possessed great power. He not only was commander-in-chief, but he also ruled the clergy of the Order as Vicar-General of the Pope. The executive power and the appointment of most of his officers was in his hands, but he was subject to the control of his Convent-General in many important matters. Each Province or Langue had its Great Prior, the representative of the Grand Master with his Great Priory; each province had its Priors in different subdivisions, and each house of residence or Preceptory was governed by its Preceptor. The changes in the statutes of the Convent-General in regard to the nomenclature of the officers are therefore simply in accordance with history.

With respect to the disuse of the term "Masonic," its great inapplicability will become apparent when it is considered that reception into our Order is "impossible for all who are unable to declare that they trust for salvation in our blessed Saviour Jesus Christ, a qualification which excludes many Masons." Still, to show their respect for the Craft, and indifference to the feelings of those who are prejudiced in its favour, the Convent-General have, with a wise policy, retained the Masonic qualification. "Religious" and "Military" our Order was from the very first, but never "Masonic;" so the omission of the latter erroneous epithet from its title is, again, simply in accordance with history.

Some new legislation in relation to "Past Rank" is undoubtedly necessary, and will soon, I am sure, be made; but no one can deny that the old system of the honours of Past Rank being borne by men who became entitled to them after a period of systematic absence from, and open neglect of their duties, was manifestly as unjust as it was absurd. Palmam qui meruit ferat is the only safe rule to go by in such matters, except, of course, in very special and obvious instances.

Wishing you a Happy and Prosperous New Year,

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

MAGIC AND MASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A propos of your article upon this subject, I send you the following, from the Biographical Dictionary of Alexander Chalmers (London 1812); article Agrippa:

"His attention to Magical Studies began early, according to Meiners; in youth he joined a secret society at Paris, which was defended against the profane by peculiar rites of admission. The separation of this cabalistical brotherhood did not occasion the dissolution of their Lodge; on the contrary, each of the members endeavoured to found in his own neighbourhood corresponding societies for similar purposes. In 1510 Agrippa was sent to England on some commission, relative, probably, to the treaty between Henry VIII. and the French King; and on this occasion, as appears by his published letters, he founded in London one of these secret societies for Magical purposes. The same biographer remarks, that a strange mixture of active and passive dupery characterises Agrippa; an alternation of sceptical contempt, and of superstitious credulity respecting the occult arts. If his assertions may be credited, he had attained that intercourse with demoniacal natures, which was the boast of Plotinus and Jamblicus; and his magical pretensions found so much credit with his contemporaries that they describe him as carrying about with him a devil in the shape of a black dog."

Agrippa, I may add, was well acquainted with the effects of what is now known as animal magnetism or mesmerism, but I send you the above to show that a secret society for the study of magic existed as early as 1510 in this country.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN YARKER.

SECTARIANISM IN A FREEMASONS' LODGE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—By the kind invitation of a friend, I had the pleasure of being present at the last Installation meeting of the Joppa Lodge. I was very agreably impressed with the masterly way in which every portion of the work was done, and especially with the excellent manner in which Bro. S. L. Hickman, the retiring W.M., inducted his successor into the chair. Nor must I withhold the praise the sumptuousness of the banquet is entitled too; also to express my sincere thanks for the hospitality shown to me.

All this, however pleasant to myself, can scarcely be supposed to be interesting to your readers, and my object in addressing you is to enter a protest against a custom prevailing in this Lodge, which to my mind is antagonistic to the true principles of the Order. Although the Joppa is essentially a Jewish Lodge, yet I may assert that half the members profess the Christian Faith. At the banquet table, Grace is said first in Hebrew for the Jewish, then a brother is called upon to do the same in the vernacular for the Christian brethren. In reality, there is no great harm in this, but as Masonry is a universal brotherhood, jealously excluding every vestige of sectarianism from its tenets, a Masonic prayer, in which members of all creeds might conscientiously join, would, I think, be much more consistent with the true spirit of the Order. I hold that in a Masonic Lodge all sectarian designations should cease. There we are simply brothers. The pointed distinction to which I have alluded seemed to me so anomalous and unmasonic that I determined to raise my voice against it. I trust, however, my kind hosts of the Joppa Lodge will regard this criticism in the same fraternal spirit in which it is advanced, and, seeing their error, will abolish in their excellently conducted Lodge a mode of proceeding which is alike unconstitutional and quite out of harmony with the teachings of the Craft.

Yours fraternally,

OLD BRAND.

REVIEWS.

Masonic Calendar and Directory for the Province of Hertfordshire, for the year 1876. Compiled by Bro. T. S. Carter I.P.M. 403, 1385, P.P.G.S. Deacon, Herts, Z. 1385, J. 403, P.G.S.W., Herts. Hertford: Printed by Bro. S. Simson.

THIS is a capital little compilation, and will be found useful by all Craftsmen in the Province of Herts. The Calendar contains the days of meeting of the various Lodges and Chapters, with the Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter. Then follow Grand Lodge, Provincial Grand Lodge, and the several Lodges in the Province, in each case a list of the officers for the year 1875-1876; then Grand and Prov. Grand Chapters, with the several provincial Chapters, likewise with a complete list of officers for the same period. Lastly, we have the three Masonic Charities, with the names and addresses of the respective Secretaries, and the qualifications for Governorships and Subscriberships in each case. Doubtless the brethren in Herts will freely accord Bro. Carter their thanks for his useful little publication, and doubtless they will render him all the assistance in their power in making it a sort of annual institution in the Province. Bro. Simson, too, deserves a word of praise for the neatness with which he has printed and got it up.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

It is natural, as the Parliamentary Session will open at no distant date, that Blackwood should contain a political article. Equally natural is that, in the article in question, which is entitled, "Public Affairs," the prospects of the Ministry should be carefully weighed. This survey will certainly please those who look at politics from a Conservative point of view. The article on "Lace and Brigandage" will prove highly interesting, especially to the ladies as regards the former, while those who admire sound literary criticism will be delighted with No. II. of the papers headed, "In my Study Chair." We noticed last month that the "Dilemma" had entered on a new phase, which, in our opinion, did not improve it. This month there is a still further change. Yorke returns to England on sick-leave, having received a severe wound, and, accordingly, we are introduced to a number of new personages, whose portraits are life-like, it is true, but whose presence we could have dispensed with in our impatience to learn more of Mrs. Falkland, or rather Mrs. Kirke. Except to show the author's skill in depicting different kinds of people, we are at a loss to explain why he has devoted so much space to personages who are, apparently, in no way connected with the plot.

Belgravia is to be commended for both its literary and pictorial contents. Among the former we have noted the "Rajah," "Thornleigh Most," "Chantry Manor House," and "The Haunted Lighthouse;" among the latter the illustration to the very neat little poem by Mr. Savile-Clarke, entitled "J'aime les Militaires."

We are glad the number of serials in Tinsleys' is reduced to two. These, which are commenced this month, give promise of being, if anything, above the high average which has almost invariably marked the tales in this magazine. The first of these, "The Duchess of Rosemary-Lane," is from the pen of Mr. Farjeon, and if, as the story is developed, we find the same descriptive power, the same insight into human character as we have evidence of in the prologue to the story, it is certain the fame of the writer will be wonderfully increased. Mr. Grant is the author of the other serial, which is entitled, "Did she love him?" and here, too, as far as we can judge at present, there is every prospect of a well-written and well constructed tale. Of the occasional papers we like most Mr. W. Davenport Adam's "A Dream of Fair Women," and "Dog-Violet and Mignonette." Dr. Maurice Davies, besides his "Social Status Quo," contributes No. 1 of "Love Songs of All Nations." We quote it in full.

LOVE-LORN (from the Persian of Gismi.)

"I fly to hide my heart's distress
Far from the city's noises loud,
Far from the cold and callous crowd,
Into the quiet wilderness.

One only mate my heart will own—
Thy peerless self; and, failing thee,
Though girt with hundred friends, must be
Like him who owns it, quite alone.

But in the vast and lonely waste
I hear no voices wild or rude;
My only friend is solitude,
And then at least one joy I taste.

Those in the body are not there,
But, as the silent sands I pace,
Thine ever beauteous spirit-face
Hannts me in visions bright and fair.

'Tis naught to me, although the rose
Her sensuous odour scatters around,
Or gorgeous carpets swathe the ground—
No luxury my bosom knows

I pray my spirit thus: 'Begone!
Apart from her, I fain would die!'
And still my spirit makes reply,
'Hope lives while life remains; live on.'

The new serials in Cassell's Family Magazine, namely "Caught in the Briars," and "Two Points of View," fully justify the good opinion we formed of them from the opening chapters. They will certainly add to the reputation of the writers. A Family Doctor offers some very sensible remarks on "Winter Clothing and Winter Comfort." Mr. A. G. Payne advises his readers "How to give a Nice Little Supper," and we imagine the reader will be very unwise if he rejects the advice of so practical a teacher. Captain Webb lays great stress on the necessity for making "Swimming a part of Education," and as our newly-joined brother is the greatest swimmer the world has ever known, the counsel he offers must carry weight. There is an amusing paper on "What becomes of the Lost Luggage," and another headed "'Penny Dreadfuls' and their Readers." Of the other items in the programme, those treating of "Rockwork and Ferns," of "Little Accidents, and How to Deal with Them," "Some Curiosities of Music," and "Travelling Third Class," deserve to be read, nor is the way-bill provided by "The Gatherer" in any respect less attractive than usual.

In the Leisure Hour is commenced "A Tale of the American War of Independence," by Frances Browne. The reader will find it very interesting. Of the other contents, must be mentioned Dr. Rimbault on "Old Nursery Rhymes," "A Trip to Palmyra and the Desert," by the Rev. W. Wright, B.A., of Damascus, "Open Spaces and Resting Places," "Wooden Wonders of America," and "England's National Curse." What this last is, our readers need hardly be told. Its companion publication, Sunday at Home, is filled with the usual excellent matter, among which Dr. Stoughton's No. I. of "Westminster Abbey," and "A Jew's First Impressions of England, and First Intercourse with Christians," will be found the most readable. Both these periodicals are well illustrated, the frontispiece to each being admirable.

The last number of All the Year Round is more than usually acceptable. Not only does it contain the usual programme, including the old serial, "A Charming Fellow," a new tale, "Griffiths' Double," a further contribution to the series of "Remarkable Adventures," John Lowe, of Mississippi's Scheme Notoriety, being the subject of the present sketch, with several other contributions of considerable merit. We have also the extra Christmas number, entitled "Davy's Locker," and if there are any of our friends who have not yet read this interesting story, we advise them to do so without further loss of time. Perhaps the ablest and most powerful writing will be found in the two chapters headed, respectively, "The Partner's Story," and "The Commissioner's Story." There is this to be said also. Sundry of the personages figure in both the stories, and thus the one helps us to obtain a better and clearer insight into the action of the other. The other parts of the book possess almost equal merit with these.

The editor of the New Quarterly is to be congratulated on the excellence of the present number. A conspicuous feature in this periodical is the absence of all serial fiction, but there are always two complete tales in each number. The present contains a novelette, entitled "The Mill of Saint Herbot," by Katharine S. Macquoid, and "The Vergaro," a tale by the Countess Galetti, both of which are calculated to please the reader. The editor contributes an admirable paper on "Current Literature and Current Criticism." Mr. John Latouche, whose Travels in Portugal formed so pleasant a feature in the earlier parts describes, in detail, "Lawn Tennis," criticising the rules, and offering several valuable suggestions. There is an eminently readable paper on "Almanacs," by Mr. Mortimer Collins, and another by Miss De Rothschild, on Hebrew Women. "Backward Ho!" by Frances Power Cobbe must be read in order to be justly appreciated. To many of the views which the writer gives expression, we imagine no serious objection can be taken, especially in the matter of architecture, in which there is no question the public taste of the present day has sadly deteriorated from that of former days, when the world was not so highly civilised as it is said to be now. The one other article is from the pen of Mr. Robert Buchanan, and contains a striking comparison between "Æschylus and Victor Hugo." This, too, is a well-written, scholarly paper.

THE DRAMA.

"Clytie" at the Olympic.—"A Quiet Rubber" at the Court.

A NOVEL by Mr. Hatton, which has lately appeared in the pages of the Gentleman's Magazine, has been adapted for the stage by the author, and has been produced in its dramatic form, firstly at Liverpool, and, on Monday last, at the OLYMPIC. Far better novels than "Clytie" have failed, when dramatized, to make any success on the stage: the very analysation of character, and of motive, which may create the success of the book, are almost certain to cause the failure of the drama, and the action which, in the novel, may be extended over years, must, for dramatic purposes, be compressed into a space of time so short as to throw over it an air of impossibility. The story of "Clytie" is one that is rather well worn, and would hardly create surprise if it figured as the plot of a transpontine melodrama. Mary Waller, the lady honoured by this classical appellation, is the grand-daughter of the organist of Durham Cathedral—young and pretty, but of course poor; she is blessed with a pair of lovers, Tom Mayfield, a student, with honest intentions, and Philip Rainsford, the ordinary military libertine. Weary of her quiet home, and dazzled by the promises of Rainsford, she agrees to elope with him, but repenting at the last moment, he converts the elopement into an abduction. We then find her in his chambers in London, where, all his persuasion proving useless, he is about to proceed to personal violence, when interrupted by the arrival of Tom Mayfield, and the usual tableau of triumphant virtue follows. In the next act we find her married to Tom, who has succeeded to a peerage, and is now Lord St. Bernard; but her enemy, Rainsford, renders her life miserable by the circulation of scandalous reports as to her moral character; she is obliged to take some step to clear her reputation, and a sensational libel case at Bow Street is the result. The lawyer, employed by Rainsford, so tortures her with questions referring to her stay in the latter's chambers as to upset her reason, and drive her to desert her home. Retribution, however, speedily follows; a duel is agreed upon between Lord St. Bernard and Rainsford; the latter attempts to murder his adversary, and is afterwards killed in fair fight, leaving behind him a written confession, which completely clears Clytie of any blame: the persecuted lady is found at her native place, and at length restored to reason and to her friends. There is not one incident here which has not been seen on the stage over and over again; there is no novelty in the situations, no freshness in the characters, no redeeming cleverness in the dialogue; the piece is in the last degree commonplace. The only surprise lies in the fact that such an ordinary melodrama should have been produced at the Olympic. Miss Henrietta Hodgson makes a welcome re-appearance, as the heroine, and acts pleasantly, as always; but she hardly looks the informed girl that Clytie, in the beginning of the play, is represented to be. Mr. Haywell and Miss Howard are agreeable in smaller parts, and Mr. Odell, as the lawyer, over acts so much as to become the conspicuous failure of the cast. But where the play itself is so deficient, we shall not attribute much blame to the artists.

Mr. Hare has added to his already strong programme at the COURT a thoroughly charming little one act piece, adapted from "La Partie de Piquet." Lord Kilclare, an old nobleman rich in blue blood and in nothing else, is a guest in the house of a rich manufacturer, Mr. Sullivan, to whose daughter Mary his son Charles is engaged. Lord Kilclare is under deep obligations to his host, but his pride of birth is so great as to lead him into words and actions inevitably hurtful to the pride of one less well born than himself. After an interview, in which many irritations of this kind have been borne with great self-restraint by Mr. Sullivan, the four sit down to a rubber at whist; Lord Kilclare is unreasonably proud of his play, and on a revoke which he has made being pointed out to him by Mr. Sullivan, a quarrel ensues, and is carried so far that the nobleman quits the room to pack his portmanteau and leave the house. The young couple can think of only one expedient to arrange matters. On Lord Kilclare's return to the room for something forgotten, Charles, who is a doctor, administers chloroform to him; the room and whist table are quickly rearranged, and all traces of the disturbance removed. On Kilclare's awaking, he is, with some trouble, persuaded that the quarrel has been merely a dream, and all ends happily. The plot is slight, but admirably worked out, and the dialogue shows great neatness and polish. Mr. Hare himself takes the role of Lord Kilclare, and shows another of those cabinet studies of aristocratic old men in which he is so skilled. Remembering his Sam Gerridge, we shall be very sorry to find Mr. Hare devoting himself to one class of character exclusively, but it must be said that his acting in this class is perfect. Every change of feeling and temper in the proud, irritable old nobleman is shown with admirable expression. Hardly less praise must be awarded to the Sullivan of Mr. C. Kelly, who plays with a breadth of style which contrasts admirably with the more elaborated acting of Mr. Hare. The young people are carefully impersonated by Miss Plowden and Mr. Herbert, and the whole performance is marked by a finish which bids fair to make this theatre a worthy rival to the Prince of Wales's.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

AFTER visiting Benares, where his reception was as cordial as ever, the Prince of Wales went to Lucknow, which city he reached on Thursday evening. The inhabitants turned out en masse to receive His Royal Highness, and their demeanour was most cordial and respectful. In the afternoon of Friday, the Prince held a levée, at Government House, of the European residents, and afterwards visited the old Residency, traversing the whole of the building. He then laid the foundation stone of the Northbrook monument, to be erected in the grounds, in memory of the native soldiers who fell during the siege by the mutineers. An address was read, and the Prince, in his reply, extolled the bravery of the slain, and dwelt on the value of such a monument as an incentive to fidelity. A number of old native veterans, wearing their old uniforms and the decorations they had won so honourably, filed past his Royal Highness, due éclat being given to the ceremony by the presence of the whole garrison. A State dinner followed, and then a fête, organised by the Onde Talookdars, which proved a brilliant success. On Saturday he took part in a pig-sticking expedition, ten pigs, of which the Prince stuck one, being killed. Unfortunately, an accident befel Lord Carington, who fractured his collar-bone. His lordship had to be left behind, but is progressing favourably, and will soon rejoin the Royal party. In the evening a grand ball was given by the United Service Club. Before leaving for Delhi, the Prince presented new colours to the 13th regiment (European). En route for the capital of the old Mogul Empire, His Royal Highness stopped at Cawnpore, and visited the various scenes connected with the Mutiny. At Delhi the reception was very imposing, the whole route from the camp, some four miles in extent, being lined with troops, to the number of 15,000. The crowd was as enthusiastic as it was dense. The levée at noon was numerously attended. A review is in prospect, and great preparations are being made for the military manœuvres. Just previous to the Prince's arrival, Lord Napier of Magdala, the Commander-in-Chief, when attending a parade of troops, was thrown from his horse, and fractured his collar-bone, but he, too, is progressing favourably, his condition giving no cause whatever for uneasiness.

This week, at all events, people have no reason to grumble at the mildness of the weather, we mean, of course, those who rejoice in the usual signs of wintry weather. The ground is well covered with snow, and the temperature has been low enough to cause most of the ornamental waters in the metropolis, and the ponds, &c., &c., in the suburbs, to be covered with a coating of ice, more or less thick, according as they are situate in sheltered or exposed places. If the weather continues as it is at the moment of writing, there is every probability that those who have been practising or learning to skate will have an opportunity of displaying their skill on a surface more slippery, and at the same time more brittle, and therefore more dangerous, than greased asphalte. If the frost continues we shall, no doubt, in the course of a few days, see the Skating Club tent erected on the old spot, by the side of the ornamental water in Kensington Gardens, and its most skilful members disporting themselves at will, cutting figures of eight, doing the outside edge, and gracefully performing sets of quadrilles. No doubt, too, there will be a good deal of rough horseplay, and the strong blackguard element, in London, will have an excellent opportunity for molesting inoffensive persons, especially unprotected women, an opportunity which, we affirm without fear of contradiction, is never missed. No doubt, too, the services of the Royal Humane Society will be in frequent requisition. The average number of silly people, who treat all warnings with supreme contempt, and will venture on ice which is hardly thick enough to bear a dog, will, doubtless, be immersed. Let us hope the only discomfort they may experience will be a somewhat colder bath than they are accustomed to. This is all conjecture, however. The Clerk of the Weather is a very capricious person, and before these lines appear, the snow, perhaps, will have become slush, and the thin surface of ice have disappeared.

Among the dangers to which our railway travellers are occasionally liable, one of an extremely novel character has been lately brought under public notice. An action was recently brought in the Liverpool Court of Passage by a certain Mr. Montgomery, a warehouseman, against the London and North Western Railway Company, for injuries sustained by his wife, under peculiar circumstances. The plaintiff and his wife, with her brother and a friend, were about journeying from the Lime-street Station, when, having some time to wait, they walked about the platform. Mr. Montgomery, seeing some young foxes caged on one of the trucks, drew his wife's attention to them, and she came at once to inspect them, taking her stand just behind her husband. She had not been there very long when her husband was startled by hearing her scream, and on turning round found her in the close embraces of a young Polar bear, who was in a barrel on another truck opposite to the foxes. When she was released, Mrs. Montgomery had to be assisted to the house of a medical man, who administered a restorative, and though she fancied at the time she was not much hurt, she had since suffered severe pains in the lower part of her back, and had been unable to sleep regularly, or attend, as usual, to her domestic duties. After hearing the evidence of several witnesses, including the unfortunate lady herself, the assessor summed up the case, and the jury returned a verdict—damages £60—against the Company. Mr. Montgomery may not be a very jealous man, but we hardly think his wife would voluntarily allow herself to be hugged and squeezed in his presence, at all events, not by a young Polar bear, whose embraces, even at the early age of eight months, must be anything but agreeable. No doubt, after this experience, the London and North Western Railway Company will condescend to give warning to the public when they have a barrel or two of fine Polar bears lying about on their platforms.

At the outset of our career, we urged on our brethren the propriety of providing an endowment fund for the Life-boat presented by the Craft, a few years since, to the Royal National Life-boat Institution. The cost of maintaining this boat is about £70 per annum, and it was suggested that a sum sufficient to yield that amount of income should be raised and presented to the Institution. The scheme, however, has not met with that encouragement which, in our opinion, it deserves. But why should the brethren allow themselves to be outdone by any other body in the United Kingdom in the work of doing good? Let us see what has been done by the Civil Servants of the Crown on behalf of this noble Institution. It was stated, at the Committee Meeting, held on Tuesday, at the General Post Office, of the Civil Service Life-boat Fund, that the names of the Earls of Carnarvon and Bradford, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Right Hon. G. Sclater-Booth, had been added to the list of Vice-Patrons, that the fund was now supported by almost every department under the Crown, and that the list of subscribers had reached a total of 2,607, being an increase of 446 over the number of 1874, and of 1186 over that of 1873. A second Life-boat had also been presented during the past year, at a cost of £480, and both the boats are kept up by the Civil Service Life-boat Fund. The report concluded with an earnest appeal for further support. Here, then, is a body of men, less numerous, perhaps as a whole less wealthy than our fraternity, which has presented, and maintains free of cost to the Institution, two first-class Life Boats. Are we not justified in saying to the Craft, individually and collectively, "Go ye and do likewise." Is the rescue of human life from the perils of the waters a matter less worthy of support than the exploration of the site of Solomon's Temple? True, in the latter case, we may increase our store of knowledge, but in the former case we assist in rescuing many of our fellow-creatures from an untimely and terrible fate.

The result of Cook's great Billiard Tournament is that Kilkenny beat Hunt, who drew a bye, two games out of three, and received the £50, Hunt, of course, taking second prize. The extra prize awarded to the best average during the handicap was awarded to Shooter. The first of the three games between Hunt and Kilkenny was very close, and was won by the former, amid the greatest excitement, by a single point. The first result of this tournament was a match, 1,000 up, for £50, between Kilkenny and Alfred Bennett, which the former, after some excellent play on both sides, won by 50 points, the time occupied being three hours and three-quarters. On Wednesday another match was played, 1,000 up, level, for £100, between Collins and Hunt, and in this Hunt came off victor by 141 points, his principal break being 200, including 65 spot hazards. The table was a championship one, the same as was fitted up by Messrs. Boroughs and Watts for the tournament. Another championship match of rare occurrence was commenced on Wednesday, between A. Fairs, better known as Punch, who has been marker at Prince's Club for over 15 years, and Joseph Gray, marker at Rugby, for the racquet championship of England, and a stake of £500. The match is to be a home and home one, that is, a rubber of seven games to be played in each court, and if the number of games won should then be equal, the scorer of the greatest number of aces to be the winner. The match at Prince's was won by Fairs, by four games to one, and a score of 66 aces to Gray's 44. The second match will be played at Rugby, on Wednesday next.

The veteran Statesman, Earl Russell, has just experienced a severe domestic affliction, by the death of his eldest son, Viscount Amberley, in the 34th year of his age. From May 1866 to December 1868, the noble lord was one of the representatives in Parliament for Nottingham, but being beaten at the General Election in the latter year, when he stood for the County of Devon, Viscount Amberley had remained ever since in strict retirement from public life, devoting himself almost wholly to literary pursuits. In June 1874, Lady Amberley died of bronchitis, and was followed in a few days by her only daughter. Lord Amberley fell a victim to the same complaint, on Sunday morning, after a comparatively brief illness.

A sad death occurred on Monday at Exeter. Miss Jessie Rawe, stepdaughter of Mr. George Kendal, a magistrate, was found on the stairs in a state of stupor, and her maid, after repeated attempts, found it impossible to arouse her. Medical assistance was at once summoned, when it appeared Miss Rawe was quite dead. At the inquest which followed, evidence was given that the young lady was in the habit of taking frequent doses of "solution of chloral," in order to allay pains in the stomach, to which she was subject. On this occasion she had taken, in two hours, no less than 125 grains, 40 grains being a large dose, and when 50 had been taken, medical men had been engaged over four hours in recovering the patient. A verdict of accidental death, in accordance with the evidence, was returned.

A recent Gazette contains the announcement of the promotion and appointment by Her Majesty of several peers, as stated in a recent issue of ours.

Another grand achievement in African exploration has been successfully accomplished by Lieut. Cameron, R.N., of the Livingstone East Coast expedition. The gallant officer, according to advices received by Sir Henry Rawlinson, President of the Royal Geographical Society, has traversed Africa from East to West, the actual distance travelled on foot by him, being 2,953 miles, 1,200 miles being through country previously unexplored. Lieut. Cameron, it seems, is hopeful that the opening up of the interior of Africa to European commerce will be easy of accomplishment, but he offers no opinion whatever on the political difficulties that may present themselves. It was further stated that the young traveller had taken a very large number of valuable observations, and that what he had thus far accomplished would prove of incalculable value in any future exploration that might be undertaken.

There is an uneasy feeling abroad as to the present aspect of the Eastern Question. It is said that Austria is about to intervene in connection with the, as yet, unsuppressed insurrection in the Herzegovina and Bosnia. Montenegro is said to be arming, and matters in Servia have taken a decidedly warlike turn. Russia and Germany, it is believed, support Austria, but the contemplated action of the other great powers is not yet known for certain. In France there has been a threatened Ministerial Crisis, but for the moment the difficulties are said to have been smoothed over, and a manifesto has been issued by the President. Then there seem to be some difficulties looming in the near future between Austria and Hungary, the dual government of the Empire-Kingdom not being conducted, as was hoped, to the mutual satisfaction of the two countries. According to the latest news from the revolted Turkish provinces, the Turks have inflicted more than one severe defeat on the insurgents, and have reached Trebinje, which it was the object of the latter to prevent. The Italian Government has been prorogued; the elections for the new Cortes in Spain are imminent. Don Carlos is said to have applied to his Legitimist friends and relatives for further aid in the forthcoming campaign, in which he hopes to gain a decisive success over his enemies. In the United States the Complete Amnesty Bill has been thrown out in the House of Representatives, having failed to secure the necessary two-thirds majority. Mr. Blaine led the Opposition, on the ground that it would include Mr. Jefferson Davis, the ex-President of the Confederate States, who had been guilty of great cruelty towards the Federal prisoners during the Civil War. The Judiciary Committee of the same house has reported by six votes to five in favour of an amendment to the Constitution, fixing the term of the tenure of the Presidential office at six years, and rendering any one who has once filled the office ineligible for re-election.

The regular meeting of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Gt. Queen-street, Bro. Col. Creaton, V.P., in the chair, Bro. Jas. Terry, Secretary, read the minutes, which were confirmed. This being the last meeting for receiving petitions previous to the next election in May, numerous applicants were placed on the list of candidates, 26 males and 33 females. The inmates conveyed to the Committee their hearty thanks in appreciation of the excellent entertainment provided for them on the 6th inst. The report of the Finance Committee was read, showing the flourishing state of the Institution. The Committee recommended that the salary of the Secretary, Bro. Jas. Terry, be increased £50 per annum. It was then announced that on account of the next regular meeting falling on the date of the Anniversary Festival, 9th February, arrangements had been made that it should take place on the 8th of February. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Chairman. There were present Bros. J. Hogg, S. Rawson, J. Brett, R. W. Stewart, J. Nunn, B. Head, Newton, J. M. Stedwell, G. Bolton, W. Stephens, W. Hale, J. Constable, H. Massey, H. M. Levy, Hilton, T. W. White, F. Adlard, Warren.

We regret to have to announce the death of one of the brightest, and most active Masons in the Colonies, Bro. George Thompson, of Quebec. He was, during many years, foremost in zeal for the good of the Order and in dissemination of its moral and charitable tenets. In this country he is mourned as an erudite and amiable correspondent. The Grand Lodge of Quebec will long lament the loss of one so popular and so dear to Masonry in its jurisdiction.

We have to thank Bro. Hughan for an impression of the rare and very curious Masonic Token of the year 1790 struck in honour of the election of George Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M.

DIARY FOR THE WEEK.

(cheers). Bro. Parsons said he felt a great pleasure in wearing the jewel from the fact of being initiated in the Lodge. He hoped, during the period of his being W.M. he had given them satisfaction. His only aim was the prosperity of the Lodge. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, 79 in number, sat down, in the Crown room, to a very sumptuous banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. Francatelli, Bro. Knill superintending. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Heathcoat showed he was fully impressed with the solemnity of the proceedings. He hoped that his career under the auspices of the W.M., and his proposer, would enable him to become a credit to the Order. Bro. Parsons then proposed the toast of the W.M. He thanked them for giving way for one year so as to enable him to occupy the chair. The W.M. was an old and a valuable member of the Lodge. (Cheers.) He was respected by them all, and he was sure, at the expiration of his year of office, he would leave the chair with the good wishes of all present. The W.M. said he regretted he was not enabled to give expressions in a manner befitting the occasion, he being a foreigner, but having been selected to fill the chair, he felt its duties and responsibilities, and he hoped to discharge them to their satisfaction. He then proposed the toast of the Visitors, saying he was honoured by the presence of many brethren distinguished in the Order. The Lodge was always pleased to see them. Bro. Baxter, P.G.S., in a very eloquent speech, responded, and thanked the brethren, on behalf of the visitors, for the hospitality accorded to them. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Past Masters, said they were a credit to any Lodge. Bro. Bubb Treas., and Bro. Stacey were well known and tried members of the Lodge, and their services were fully recognized. Bro. Parsons returned thanks. He was sure that, from what he had seen of his predecessors, he would be pleased to follow their example. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the officers of the Lodge, and congratulated himself on possessing such efficient ones. Bros. Bubb, Stacey, Annett and Pillin severally responded, and the Tyler's toast followed. Bros. Bubb, Pillin, Herf P.M., Stollard, B. W. Lumley and Mander contributed to the evening's amusement, Bro. The business of the evening consisted in rehearsing the second degree, Bro. Sayer acting as candidate. The W.M., one of the regular pupils of this Lodge, showed considerable progress in his work, which was performed with fluency and intelligence. Three of the sections were worked by Bro. Gottheil, assisted by the brethren, Bro. Tarquand exhibiting tolerable efficiency. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather—the snow falling thick and fast—a large number of brethren attended, which proves, in the first place, that the members of this Lodge are earnestly bent to acquire the necessary knowledge to fit them for the duties they may be called upon to perform, and, secondly, that the mode of instruction is appreciated and made pleasant by those who occupy the position of tutors. Two visitors were proposed as members and unanimously accepted. Bro. D. Fusener was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Star Lodge, No. 219.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 10th instant, at their own hall, 12 Trongate, Glasgow. Present—Bros. J. York Lodge of Instruction, No. 236.—A Lodge of Instruction, attached to and under the sanction of the York Lodge, 236, was opened on the 10th January, when a good number of members of the Mother Lodge were present. The officers for the first Lodge night were as follows:—Bros. Hollins W.M., Wilson S.W., Churchill J.W., Seller S.D., Tissiman J.D., Gainforth I.G., Storry Tyler, and Garbutt candidate. The Lodge was duly opened, when the brethren were instructed in the first degree, Bro. Hollins as W.M. going through the ceremony (for instruction) of initiating Bro. Garbutt, who for that evening was candidate. The working tools were explained by Bro. Gainforth, and the charge given by the W.M. The Lodge was then duly closed. It is intended, in this Lodge of Instruction, to have a change of officers each night, so that every brother may in turn occupy each office until the first degree is well understood, and then change to the second and third degrees, and work them in like manner.

Bank of England Lodge, No. 263.—This Lodge met on Thursday evening at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, when Bro. Morton was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, and Bro. Howden, who was initiated just fifty years ago in the Canongate Lodge, Kilwinning (the Mother Lodge of Robert Burns), at Edinburgh.

There were three gentlemen present for initiation, and as they were unanimously approved of, the Master requested his Deputy, Bro. Jas. Findlay, to work the first degree, which he did in a manner that perfectly satisfied the Lodge, and the members look forward to a very prosperous as well as harmonious New Year's proceedings.

Alfred Lodge, No. 340, Oxon.—This Lodge held its anniversary meeting on Monday, the 4th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Alfred-street, Oxford, when Bro. Prior P.M., in acknowledgment of his valuable services, the Lodge was closed in the usual manner, and the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet, at which about 40 sat down, Bro. Bué W.M. occupying the chair. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were very ably proposed and enthusiastically responded to, and several songs were sung in the intervals between the toasts. The announcement, in the course of the evening, by Bro. Rev. Pickard, W.M. of the Apollo University Lodge, that a telegram had been received from India, in which M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales appointed Prince Leopold, P.G.M. Oxfordshire, caused the utmost enthusiasm. Prince Leopold has been elected W.M. of the Apollo Lodge for the ensuing year, and it is probable his installation as P.G.M. will take place on the 22nd February.

Goule, of Lodge No. 1031, was unanimously elected a joining member, and Bro. Neighbour to be W.M. for the ensuing week. The report of the Audit Committee having been received and adopted, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Cull, the Secretary, for the able and indefatigable discharge of his duties during the past year, and for the efficient manner in which the financial position of the Lodge had been recorded. The following officers were unanimously re-elected, viz.:—Bros. Mander Preceptor, Burrell Treasurer, Cull Secretary. Bro. Mander's re-election gave an opportunity for several of the brethren to testify to the valuable services he had rendered to the cause of Freemasonry in general, and to the Salisbury Lodge of Instruction in particular. The W.M. notified that, in accordance with the rules, the fifteen sections would be worked on the last Thursday in March, at Air-street. The Lodge was then closed in perfect harmony. We may here record the fact that the whole of the above business was transacted between the hours of 8 and 10 o'clock, which speaks volumes for the energy shown and work done in the Salisbury Lodge of Instruction.

Loyal Berkshire Lodge of Hope, No. 574, Newbury.—This Lodge held a successful gathering on Friday, the 7th inst., in connection with the installation of Bro. W. H. Herbert, Senior Warden, as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year. A portion of the Town Hall having been partitioned off, the Lodge was opened there at 2.30 by the W.M., Brother Bance, who conducted the ceremonies on the summons, and then proceeded to present, in the name of the Lodge, a Past Master's jewel to the Treasurer, Bro. F. G. Hall P.M., who, at the previous meeting, had been unanimously made an honorary member in consideration of his long and valued services in the various offices he had filled. Those services were now substantially recognised by the gift of a gold jewel, ornamented with blue enamel and Masonic devices, with a suitable inscription engraved on the back of it. Bro. Hall appropriately acknowledged the presentation. Bro. W. Bigge P.M., Provincial Grand Secretary, then presented a similar jewel, which had been unanimously voted by the Lodge, to Bro. John Bance, the retiring Worshipful Master, in recognition of the exceptional manner in which he had discharged the duties of that office. Bro. Bance expressed his appreciation of this mark of kindness on the part of the brethren, whom he thanked for the cordial manner in which they had supported him by their attendance and assistance during the past year. The next business was the installation of Bro. W. Herbert as W.M. for 1876, the Provincial Grand Secretary ably officiating as Installing Master, assisted by Bro. Gooch, Bart., M.P., the D.P.G.M., Rev. J. S. Brownrigg, and the rest of the P.G. Officers, past and present," Bro. Barron Fielder responded. The P.G. Secretary gave "The health of the newly-installed W.M., Bro. Herbert," who returned thanks. The health of the Installing Master being given, Bro. Bigge returned thanks. Bro. Dew P.P.G. Reg. (Hants) proposed the health of the I.P.M., Bro. Bance, and spoke in eulogistic terms of the working of the Lodge under Bro. Bance's presidency. Bro. Bance having returned thanks, the toast of "The Masonic Charities" was given by Bro. W. Knight, who spoke of the three noble institutions supported by the Craft, namely, the Boys' School, the Girls' School (each providing for some 400 children, all Masons' orphans), and the Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows. Bro. Bance, who, like the proposer, had represented the Newbury Lodge at the Charity Festivals, replied. The healths of the officers of the Lodge were also drunk. Bro. Bance proposed "Success to the Lodge of Instruction," coupling with it the name of the energetic Secretary, Bro. Glover, who responded. The brethren also drank the health of Bro. Stephen Knight, thanking him for the tasteful manner in which he and his family had decorated the room, the walls of which were emblazoned with Masonic emblems. The better health of Bro. Cave P.M., and Bro. Walter Graham, was also proposed in feeling terms, and Bro. Bance called on the brethren to drink the health of Bro. W. Knight, the indefatigable Steward, who returned thanks. The musical arrangements, under Bro. Glover's direction, were excellent, and Bros. Jarman, Glover, Hall, S. Hunt, A Strudling and W. Wilson were among those who contributed to the harmony of the evening.

Rowley Lodge, No. 1051.—The members of this Lodge assembled in their Lodge room at the Athenæum on 3rd inst., for the purpose of installing a W.M. for the ensuing year, and also to celebrate the annual Festival of St. John. The Lodge was opened in due form by Bro. J. Taylor, the retiring W.M. The chair was then taken by Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore P.G.S.B. of England, the installing officer. The W.M. elect, Bro. The W.M. occupied the chair, supported by Bros. Dr. Moore, John Hatch, W. Wearing, J. Taylor, W. Duff, the S.W. and J.W. occupying the vice chairs. After dinner the chairman gave in succession the usual toasts, which were duly responded to. Bro. Moore, in highly complimentary terms, proposed the health of the W.M., congratulating the members on having elected him, and wishing him a prosperous and successful year of office. Bro. Longman was the right man in the right place, and fully deserved the honour which had been bestowed upon him. The chairman in responding, and after thanking the company for the honour done him, said it would be his endeavour to do all he could for the good of the Craft in general, and for the Rowley Lodge in particular. (Hear, hear.) He believed the brethren he had appointed as his officers were prepared to assist him to the best of their ability. With regard to what Bro. Dr. Moore had said as to the attendance of P.M.'s, it was his (Bro. Longman's) intension when he laid down the duties of office, still to visit his Lodge, when he hoped to enjoy that well-earned rest to which he thought he should be fully entitled after having borne the "heat and burden of the day." Bro. Helme proposed the health of the I.P.M., Bro. J. Taylor, complimenting him on the manner in which he had performed the duties of his office, and also on the knowledge he displayed of the ritual of the Craft. Bro. Taylor acknowledged the compliment in suitable terms. Bro. John Hatch proposed the health of the Senior and Junior Wardens, Bros. Jackson and Sutton, who responded. Bro. Sheriff next proposed the health of the Visiting Officers, the toast being acknowledged by Bro. Thomas Atkinson, W.M. of the Lodge of Fortitude, and Bro. W. Wearing P.M. Bro. Moore then proposed the health of the Junior Officers of the Lodge, adding a few remarks as to their duties, Bros. N. Holme and G. King responded. The chairman then gave the health of the Visitors, and said that, as Master of the Lodge, he should be always glad to welcome visiting brethren, and they might rely on meeting with a hearty reception. He approved of visiting different Lodges, believing that such visits contributed to strengthen the social and friendly ties which bound them together as brethren. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. James Roberts (West Brownwich), who responded, and in a pithy speech alluded to the good feeling which Masonry had a tendency to develope among mankind. "To all poor and distressed Masons," was then proposed by the Tyler, Bro. Watson, and having been duly honoured, the proceedings terminated.

Heald proposed the health of the "Bishop and Clergy of the Diocese," after which the chairman gave the toasts of the "Officers of the Grand Lodge" and those of "Provincial Grand Lodges," alluding, in the course of his remarks, to the visit which he had paid to the Grand Lodge on the installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. Bro. Heald proposed the health of the "Worshipful Master," and expressed the pleasure with which he had witnessed his working in the Lodge, which he was confident gave satisfaction to every member. The Chairman, in responding, said he had always endeavoured, since he was elected to the high position of W.M. of the Lodge, to do his duty; he had striven hard to do all that was required of him, though he was conscious of a few shortcomings. He hoped the officers would continue to accord him their support, and that he would be kept up in the work of the Craft, as he felt assured the more he had to do the better able he should be to go through it. He concluded by proposing the health of the "Immediate Past Master and Past Masters," which was responded to by Bros. Edmund Heald and John Bell. Other toasts followed, including "the Wardens," which was responded to by Bros. Conlon and F. G. Dale; "The Treasurer and Secretary," acknowledged by Bros. Ellershaw and R. Wolfenden; and "Masonic Charities," which was proposed by the Chairman; the Tyler's toast concluding the list. During the evening several brethren contributed to the harmony by song and sentiment.

This young Lodge, which was consecrated in August last, has already obtained a good position in the opinion of the Craft. Bro. Turquand, though but a young Mason—having joined the Order in 1873—has been assiduous in acquiring a knowledge of the ceremonies, and in his conduct of the duties of the chair he always exhibits an earnest and impressive manner which sensibly affects those present. The Lodge was opened in the usual form, and the following business was transacted: Messrs. A. Plant and W. Abbott were balloted for, approved, and afterwards, with Mr. Finniger, duly initiated. Bro. Pettit was balloted for as a joining member, and accepted. Bro. Foster was then raised to the sublime degree, and, subsequently, Bros. Frances, P.M. and Secretary then rose, and, in accordance with an intimation he had given at the meeting of the Frederick of Unity Lodge, in August last, requested the Lodge to accept from him a portrait, in oils, of their esteemed Prov. G.M., Major-Gen. Brownrigg. Thereupon the W.M. proposed, and Bro. W. S. Masterman seconded, that the gift be accepted, and a vote of thanks to Bro. Frances be recorded on the minutes. This having been unanimously agreed to, the Lodge was closed. A banquet was then served by Mrs. Dallmann, the kind hostess of the Alma, and she deserves the greatest credit, both for the elegance of the repast and the attention she accorded to her guests. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

THE NUMBER SEVEN.—There is a new proof of the important part which the number Seven acted in the religious and moral life of the Semitic nations. In one of the latest publications of Professor Oppert the version of an ancient Assyrian formula of adjuration is given. In it are first enumerated the seven great disasters, which may befall mankind. On account of it seven species of gods fight, each being composed of seven; four of whom are friendly to man, and three hostile. Then follows the formula of adjuration, consisting of seven invocations by seven divers, divine spirits. Everything marches on and developes and resolves itself in seven and seven. There is, therefore, reason to believe that there is nothing fortuitous in the selection of the number seven, but that there lies in it revealed something pertaining to the primeval spirit.—Jewish Chronicle.

Comp. G. W. Wheeler, Z. of 73, P.G. 2nd S., at once proceeded to open a Lodge of Mark Masters. J. Stewart S.W., J. Kinnaird J.W., G. Macdonald P.M., J. Tweed T., J. Balfour S.D., D. Gilchrist J.D., J. Bannerman I.G, J. Wilson O.G. There were also present Comps. A. Morrison, J. Wilson, D. Buchanan, John Lauris, Andrew Holden, and J. H. Stevenson, when the following 15 brethren were advanced to that degree, viz.—J. Orkney, R. Burness, G. Innis, D. Duncan, G. Haig, J. Anderson, J. Heaton, B. B. Bell, J. Miller, Daniel Fergerson, J. C. Sharp, J. Johnson, J. Park, and D. Buchanan. A Lodge of Most Excellent Masters was then opened, and the same gentlemen were entrusted and passed through the veils. The Chapter was then opened, and the same gentlemen, also with L. Milley, were duly exalted to the Holy Royal Arch degree. The representatives of the Supreme Grand Chapter, who were G. W. Wheeler Z., J. Stewart H., J. Kinnaird J., G. Macdonald P.Z., J. Balfour S.E., D. Buchanan S.N., J. Tweed T., D. Gilchrist 1st S., J. Bannerman 2nd S., E. Barker 3rd S., and J. Wilson as G.J., then proceeded in due form to consecrate the Chapter by the name and title of St. Blane, No. 163. Comp. A. Morrison, who was designated in the charter as the 1st Z., then said he wished to resign that honour in favour of their Provost, Comp. J. Orkney, who was then unanimously chosen to the office. Comp. Morrison being duly elected to serve as P.Z., Comp. Wheeler, with the assistance of the other acting Grand Officers, then proceeded to instal the following Officers as the first officers of 163:—John Orkney Z., Daniel Duncan H., Lauchlan Milley J., George Haig S.E., James Heaton S.N., George Innis Treasurer, Ernest Barker 1st S., Benj. Barton Bell 2nd S., John Miller 3rd S., and Daniel Fergerson Janitor. The Most Excellent Comp. Orkney then, in appropriate terms, thanked Comp. Wheeler and the rest of the Comps., who, at considerable inconvenience to themselves, had come from Glasgow to perform these ceremonies, and expressed his delight at the admirable way in which the whole of the five different ceremonies had been rendered. All had fulfilled their duties so well, that the least they could do would be to make the nine Glasgow gentlemen honorary members of the Chapter. This being unanimously agreed to, they were affiliated by Comp. Morrison P.Z. Comp. Wheeler returned thanks saying it had been a pleasure to himself and Comps. to assist in forming a new Chapter. After the protracted labour was over, the Companions sat down to a well spread table. The chair was taken by Provost Orkney, the new M.E.Z., supported on the right by Comps. G. Wheeler, D. Milley, T. Stewart, and J. Tweed. The Croupier, M.E.H. Councillor Duncan, was supported by Comps. Balfour, Bannerman, Kinnaird, McDonald and Gilchrist. The toast of the Queen, as well as that of the Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family, were received with an enthusiasm worthy of the Royal Burgh, as was also that of the three Supreme Grand Chapters of England, Ireland, and Scotland. The next was the Installing 1st Principal, and the rest of the deputation from Glasgow. The Provost dwelt on the love of the Order displayed by these Companions in coming so far at this season of the year to open their Chapter. In summer time they often had visits from residents in Glasgow, and they were trying now to render their delightful island even yet more attractive to visitors when the season should again arrive, but their friends had not waited for the fine weather to bring them; neither, while here, had they spared themselves, they had worked five different ceremonies, and all of them so effectively and well, that he had never been more delighted with anything than with what he had seen and heard that evening, and their thanks were especially due to the M.E.Z., Comp. Wheeler, for the great care and ability he had displayed in all the different portions of the work. Comp. Wheeler, in replying, said it had been a source of gratification to all the deputation from Glasgow that they should have been honoured by the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland with the permission to come to Rothesay and perform this work. He could assure them it had been a labour of love to them. Individually, he had to thank, not only the M.E.Z. for the flattering terms in which he had spoken of his labours that evening, but also his own office bearers for the way in which they had assisted him to perform his duties. It was true the work had been long and arduous this evening, but the effective way in which each one of his subordinate officers had performed their duties had made his own task comparatively light and easy, and he trusted that the new Z. would be as well supported by the officers he had installed, and if they did the prosperity of 163 would be secured. It was scarcely possible for any body to start under more favourable auspices. In the first chair they had a gentleman who, from his business capacity, benevolence and charity, their fellow-townsmen had raised to the highest position in the Royal Burgh of Rothesay as their Provost, his Masonic qualities were also well known to them, so that they could not have been more highly honoured. Then for H., they had a Town Councillor, well known as one of the first merchants in their community; as J., they had another Councillor and ex-Bailie of their Burgh. The Curator of the Museum and Aquarium was their first S., a gentleman whom he had himself exalted three years ago; the second S. was a gentleman as well known in the Stock Exchange in Glasgow as he was in Rothesay; Their Treasurer was also as favourably known in Glasgow as in Rothesay, he had not the pleasure of personally knowing the other office bearers, but he had no doubt they were equally worthy of their support. It therefore would only rest on themselves to assume a position second to none in the West of Scotland. Again thanking them, on his own behalf and that of the rest of the Glasgow Companions, he could assure them that all felt the honour which had been conferred on them of having their names enrolled amongst the first members of St. Blane 163.

Comp. E. Barker, in a neat speech, proposed prosperity to 163, St. Blane, and the new Z., their noble Provost. Comp. Orkney thanked Comp. Barker for the flattering terms in which both him and Comp. Wheeler had spoken of him, he was afraid he should scarcely be able to fill that chair in the way they had indicated; he thought his predecessor in office, ex-Provost Duncan, who was a good public speaker, would have made them a better presiding officer, but he could assure them that, as far as his ability would permit, he would do all in his power to carry out the very excellent lessons that had been given him to night in the charges, and also in the example in the chair which he had witnessed. Comp. Duncan felt likewise that he was too young in the Order to efficiently fill the chair of H., but he was glad to obey the wishes of the assembled Companions, who appeared to think differently. Craft Masonry had been progressing very rapidly in Bute during the last two years, and he saw no reason why St. Blane Chapter should not prosper in an equal degree, at any rate it should not languish for want of any support that he could give it. The Chairman then gave Bros. Morrison and Innis, without whose exertions they would not now have been assembled, as they had entirely organised the new Chapter.

P.Z. Morrison said he was glad that their efforts so far had been so eminently successful; seven years ago he tried to raise a Chapter in the island, but the Bateman were not then quite prepared for it, and when, about two months ago, Bro. Innis, the J.W. of their Lodge, called on him to ask for his co-operation, he was only too happy to give it. He signed the petition as the nominated Z., but with the full intention of getting some more influential brother, if possible, to take that place, and the Provost having accepted it, he was most happy to retire as a P.Z., but he would be glad to do any thing for the Chapter in any office that might be temporarily vacant. (Cheers.)

Comp. Innis, Treasurer, said it was very true that he had a deal of work for the last two months, and had met with a great many rebuffs, some of them from his not being a Royal Arch Mason himself, but when in Glasgow he called on his friend Wheeler, who immediately wrote to the G.S.E., and got him the form of Charter; from his Chapter they also got a recommendation and members to sign it; now the installation; and he did not regret the trouble he had taken, or that labour, which, as Treasurer, he was likely to get. All that he hoped was, that they would give him plenty of employment.

Comp. Lieutenant Buchanan replied on behalf of the army, and as the oldest Arch Mason present. He had received the degree at Poonah, in the Star in the East, above thirty years ago. He was glad to bear testimony to the general good conduct of the British army, as Provost Marshal for some years to the camp where there were two full European regiments, five native regiments, and two of cavalry; all the officers of these bodies came under his notice, and though there might be a few black sheep, still he was glad, as a Mason, to say the British army was not the set of scamps that some of its detractors would represent it to be.

Comp. Wheeler proposed the "First Sojourner and other officers of the Chapter." They had toasted their three Principals, but the Sojourner was really a principal officer, though ranking seventh in the Chapter, but it was the way in which work was performed that conferred honour, and not the name of the office that was held. Though himself holding office as Z., he considered it an honour to be asked, as he often was, to officiate as Sojourner in some other Chapter. Having himself exalted Comp. E. Barker, about three years since, he had no doubt he would make a good officer, for he had not only the desire to learn, but a most retentive memory, and he was glad to find that he held so important an office in their midst as Curator of the Aquarium, and now First Sojourner in the new Chapter.

Comp. Barker replied in suitable terms. Comp. J. Stewart H. 73 proposed "The commercial interests of Rothesay." When trade and commerce flourished, Masonry would also flourish, and good Masons were also good commercial men; they could not have a better example of this than their worthy Croupier.

Comp. Duncan replied, in the course of his remarks mentioning that, as a fashionable watering place, they depended for a great deal of their own prosperity on the commercial prosperity of their friends in Glasgow and other centres of industry.

Comp. Haig, S.E., gave the fireside of their First Principal, which was suitably acknowledged.

Comp. Bannerman, on behalf of the deputation from Glasgow, thanked the Rothesay brethren for the liberal manner in which they had been entertained ever since their arrival.

Comp. Miller J. proposed the "Health of the worthy host, Bro. Kelly," who had so well catered for their enjoyment.

Bro. Kelly expressed the pleasure it at all times gave him to see his Masonic brethren happy, and one way to make them happy was to give them a plentiful supply of the good things of this life.

Happy to meet, but sorry to part, was then given from the chair, and the meeting, though so long in duration, was found all too short for the enjoyment of the newly exalted Companions of St. Blane 163.

TOADIES AND OTHERS.

IF Masons act up to the principles they profess, there can be nothing like toadyism among them. Unfortunately, as we remarked in a recent issue, men, when they become Masons, do not always cast aside their un-Masonic weaknesses. Of course, we give them credit for striving to do so most earnestly, but the uncomfortable fact remains notwithstanding, that the relations between Members of the Craft are not always as Masonic as they should be.

One of the grand governing principles of our Craft is that of equality, by which we do not mean the cant equality of which theorists are prone to write, but that sensible kind of equality which places all men on an equal footing as regards certain conditions. For instance, men may be unequal as regards rank or wealth, but they may be equally respectable, their good deeds may shine with the same brilliancy, they may possess pretty nearly the same qualities of heart and mind. There may, in fact, be equality in certain respects, if not in all. This is well nigh the utmost we can hope for, and it is in this sense that Masonry regards all men as equal. We do not profess to say that all Masons are on an equal footing in all respects, or that they should be so. That were a proposition, which only an inmate of Bedlam would be likely to lay down. They are bound by the same vows, and to observe the same landmarks, but the equality they preach is not carried to an absurd point. At the same time it must be confessed there are too many members who sacrifice voluntarily, and too often for contemptible reasons, a portion of that equality which is their due. There are some who think it wise to carry respect for rank and ability to an extreme point. There is, perhaps, a magnate in the land who enrols himself a member of some Lodge. The majority of the members hail his advent amongst them with infinite pleasure. They consider his enrolment a mark of respect for the principles they profess. They show him that respect and deference which his status in society would command anywhere. But they do not turn this respect and deference into ridicule by servilely assenting to all his eccentric views and wishes. They claim the right to differ with him in matters of opinion, and, better still, they exercise this right. There are some, unfortunately, who think and act differently. There are those who fancy that any view propounded by a man of rank is better worth adopting than that laid down by his inferiors in the social scale. Cæteris paribus, perhaps, this assumption might not be very far from the truth. Assuming for a moment a perfect equality amongst the members in mental power, in virtue, in wealth, and therefore, in a certain sense, in the power to do good, there appears to be no doubt that inequality in rank would give a superiority to him who occupies the higher position. But this, we have said, is not the reason which actuates all minds. The bare fact that this or that view has been adopted by My Lord Tom Noddy, suffices to enlist the sympathies with him of plain, Mr. A. B. C., or X. Y. Z. These never think of inquiring into the justice or injustice of My Lord Tom Noddy's opinion. It emanates from him. It must be right, and they adopt it accordingly. These have half a mind, perhaps, at the first, to raise some reasonable objection, but the novelty of supporting the views of some nobleman is too much for them. They yield with what grace they may, and support, not for peace sake or some such worthy purpose, but for the single desire to ingratiate themselves in the favour of the great man, any proposal to which he may lend his countenance. This is one form of that toadyism which exerts so powerful an influence in the world. Nor is it only the man of quality who has a number of his fellows always ready to accept implicitly his dicta. The man of fashion and the man of wealth find plenty who will readily yield acquiescence in all their views and actions on all occasions, not because they are of the same mind, but merely to ingratiate themselves in the good opinion of their patrons. It happens, of course, that many of these latter, while readily accepting the homage paid to their superior rank, wisdom, or wealth, have sense enough to analyse and see through the true motives of their followers, and not unfrequently give utterance to a few righteous sarcasms at their expense. But these have little effect. By long observance of toadyism the followers have gradually come to be insensible to every kind of reproach direct or implied. They are as slow at perception, as incapable of estimating the real meaning of what is said, as the Scot is pronounced to be in appreciating a joke. These fulsome adulators of men in high places are a perfect pest to society, and especially in Masonry, where freedom of thought and action, within certain limits, is the lot of every brother. It is no satisfaction to feel, they would, and, in fact, do behave in the same fashion outside the walls of the Lodge. There is no creed so calculated to excite in us a just respect for others, while we yet retain a proper degree of respect for ourselves, as Masonry, and naturally enough we feel annoyed, nay even ashamed, perhaps, on finding that sundry of those who have joined our ranks have in no wise profited by the healthy teachings of the Craft. Masonry is capable of embracing, within its fold, men of all religions, and of every shade of politics, but we require them to be free men, and the toady, who is never happy save when carrying favour with the patron of his choice, is not a free man, but a contemptible fellow.

Then there is the flunkey, whom we are disposed to set down as a more vulgar, a more pronounced specimen of the genus toady. The toady is more often a man of refinement, with sense to conceal the weakness he has so successfully cultivated. We do not mean to imply that flunkeys and toadies are severally representative of the same class of men in different grades. There are flunkeys in every station in life, and there are toadies. But the sycophancy of the latter assumes, we think, a less objectionable form. There is a vulgar meanness about the flunkey, which is less often noticeable in the toady, who, as we have said, has sometimes refinement to conceal the motives of his conduct. The flunkey often grovels in the dust at the feet of his idol, without the slightest sense of shame. The toady sidles up to him and softly insinuates himself into his good graces. The one follows like a cur, the other fawns like a spaniel. We do not venture to say there is, in the main, much difference between the two, but the one has seemingly a more respectable exterior.

Another objectionable kind of individual of the same species is the tufthunter, the man who, whatever his own gifts may be, is never so happy as when courting the favours of the great. Such men will descend to any pettiness in order to win a smile, and a "Thank you!" from one moving in a higher sphere. He is ever their "very humble servant to command," to every one who has a handle to his name, or who is commonly reported to have had a grandfather. Such men not unfrequently enact their part very successfully. Men of good birth were not always men of good sense. They like flattery too, and when they find men of acknowledged parts paying homage to them, they are sometimes weak enough to fancy the tribute of respect is paid not to their rank, but to their virtues. Hence they take kindly to the tufthunter, and patronise him freely, and often to his advantage. The man who is ready at any moment to fall down and worship any image that may be set up by his patron, in order to subserve his own interests, such a man may do so profitably, perhaps, but he is not one whom we should hold up as an example for any friends of ours to follow.

Masonry has no place for the class of men we have been describing. Deference and respect must be paid to all men who are worthy, but the worship of idols is forbidden. The Craftsman who bows respectfully to authority is to be admired, but not he who does so obsequiously, without the slightest sense of self-respect.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 12.)

THE SOLDIER.

"Aye, put aside thy trusty sword, old comrade,
And hang thy batter'd harness on the wall;
Yet, like a war horse champing his curb,
Thou'lt start at the trumpet's sound, and fight
Thy battles o'er again."

THE military art has, in all ages, possessed a singular fascination for mankind. The pugnacity of the human race is one of its marked characteristics, and fighting is not merely life to the man of war, but it is the breath of the nostrils of the man of peace. It is by contention and strife that the world improves in civilization and in wisdom. Warfare, of some sort or other, is the decree of nature, and if we do not advance we die. If we do not fight against the physical evils which surround us, they overwhelm us; nay, if man hesitates to grapple with nature, and combat foot to foot, so to speak, for dear life, the "universal mother," will crush him without pity and without remorse. Life, then, is a battle, and we are all soldiers, fighting under various flags, for honour or for bread. It is perhaps because men instinctively feel that the fighting element in human nature is its most general attribute that the worship of Mars, and the veneration for military glory, is still so widely spread amongst us. The man who goes forth into the primeval wilderness, and with his axe brings the forest giant down, feels that he too, though he wears no livery, and does not march to music, is a soldier in the truest sense of the term. The physician, fighting against grim death and disease, what is he but a gallant soldier of science, who risks his life as often, in the deadly atmosphere of a fever stricken hospital ward, as his red coated brother does in the deadly breach? But the red coats, somehow, have carried off the higher prizes of glory from their less gorgeous brothers. Possibly greater heroism has been displayed by those colonists who contributed to make the western world a new centre of civilization than by any of the heroes of ancient or modern story. But disciplined courage has always had superior fascinations for the mass of men, and perhaps the soldierly nature is a greater favorite with the fair sex than any other. It has been said, and we believe with much truth, that a higher polish is acquired by gentlemen who have "knocked about in the army" than by any other class in the community. A soldier of middle age, who has seen society in all its varied grades, is usually remarkable not merely for ease of manners, and urbanity, but for that exquisite politeness which, in its highest development, approaches the ideal benevolence and self sacrifice of the Christian. Dean Swift, in one poetical piece, has declared that where wit and strength of intellect are concerned—

"Arms to the gown, the victory must yield."

Perhaps this may be true, but, in spite of the popularity of the church, the soldier carries the day in the public estimation. The tongue of the priest may fascinate many minds, but the scarred veteran wins, in the long run, more votaries than he.

We have said thus much of the military calling, because we desire to sketch, lightly and broadly, the lineaments of a brother who, during a portion of his life, was wedded to the career of arms. It was not his good fortune to win distinction in the field, but just as there are "mute, inglorious Miltons" in our midst who have never had a chance of giving forth their concealed poetic fire, so there are, doubtless, in the army ample materials for the making of great reputations. It is not every fighting-man's lot to march to the cannon's mouth, and the soldiers who so distinguish themselves are not always honoured with a line in the Gazette. The stuff out of which heroes are made is to be found in hundreds of officers who have only drawn their swords upon the parade ground. We Englishmen are all aware of this fact, and if our race has a special talent for strategy or tactics, it has unbounded stores of true courage of that cool sort which ere now has won the admiration of the world. Our hero then is a soldier, whose service has been uneventful. If his own inclination had been consulted, he would gladly have taken his place in the field, but fate willed otherwise, and he has merely to look back with just pride to a rigid performance of duty and loyal devotion to his flag. During the stirring times of the Crimean War he was playing an important part in garrison life. Some of us can remember the satisfaction we all felt in the conviction that while the flower of the army was in the trenches, their places at home were supplied by gallant Englishmen, on whose zeal and courage we could all rely.

It was while he was in the army that our hero first had his attention turned to Masonry, into which he threw all the energies which his military duties left at his command. In the year 1852 he was initiated in the Phœnix Lodge, and afterwards joined the Lodge of Antiquity, of which for two years he was the Master. This somewhat exceptional honour was well merited, for from his first connection with the Order our soldier showed a high appreciation of its grand and glorious principles. In the year 1862, under the Grand Mastership of the Earl of Zetland, he was made a Grand Officer, and at the present time he is Vice-Patron and Trustee of the three Masonic Charities. When he was complimented upon his last promotion, he declared, with much truth, that "he had not been pitchforked into the position." He has served on the Board of General Purposes for a period of four years, and during his year as Grand Officer he presided occasionally at the Board of Benevolence. He has passed through all the offices of St. James R.A. Chapter, and now holds the part of Treasurer. He is most assiduous in his attention to his duties in connexion with the Charities, and as Chairman he has displayed that urbanity and good taste for which he is remarkable. Few men have worked harder for the cause than he, and perhaps he feels a just pride in the reflection that he is not indebted to his brethren for any special marks of their confidence and regard. Some day the man who has not received a testimonial will be pointed out as a most distinguished person. The few jewels he wears have been well and honourably earned. Our soldier is distinguished rather as a conscientious worker than as a brilliant orator or merely ornamental Mason. He speaks occasionally, and always to the purpose, but his oratory is usually suggestive rather than persuasive in its style, and has the effect of exciting discussion, or it throws new light on difficult or complex questions. Amongst Masons he is known as a genial and agreeable brother, who has a pleasant word or a bright smile for those with whom he is acquainted. He is, of course, essentially a social being, what military man is not? and enjoys the quiet and unostentatious luxury of his club with the zest of a man whose tastes and sympathies have not been blunted by time.

In the world he is known as a magistrate, and holds the sword of justice as firmly as he once held a not less awe inspiring weapon, and perhaps he feels as much satisfaction in being a terror of evil doers as he once felt when he stood at the head of a regiment of gallant fellows. Of his personal attributes we need scarcely speak. Our readers are too familiar with his features to need any special delineation of them. The broad forehead, from which the hair has receded, indicates intelligence, the keen eye gives promise of humour, and the lines of the mouth, and the contour of the chin, indicate firmness and decision. We may infer that he can tell a good story, and laugh heartily over anything witty or humorous. But his genial face is full of tender sympathy for the suffering or the oppressed. Under a firm demeanour he conceals a humane heart, and, like most cultivated Englishmen, he studies to hide the soft side of his nature under a mask of stoical indifference. A man of action and of decision, and of weight in Masonic counsels, valued for his high character and his simple devotion to truth and justice, his loss—if it would not be irreparable—would leave a sensible gap in our ranks of distinguished brothers. That he may long live to follow those pursuits to which he is attached is our sincere prayer.

"Stay, good Sir! thou canst not thither pass;
Those crétonne folds, with sombre shadows, hide
Our simple plot from prying eyes."

SPECULATIONS ON THE PYRAMIDS.

THE various hypotheses that have from time to time been started with regard to the Egyptian Pyramids have, of necessity, to members of our Craft, possessed a special and peculiar interest. Whatever may have been the intention of the authors of these enormous piles of masonry, there can be not the shadow of a doubt that for upwards of 4,000 years they have remained unsurpassed as monuments of masonic skill, masonic energy, and masonic wisdom. The inquiring vigilance of forty centuries has failed to comprehend the mystery that surrounds their origin, and mysterious, to some extent, they will probably remain to the end of time. The Father of History, Herodotus, writing upwards of 2,000 years ago, makes reference to the Pyramids in a manner which proves them to have been even then of a venerable antiquity, and the objects of general wonder. Strabo, Diodorus Siculus, and Pliny have also had a good deal to say about them, though it cannot be affirmed that their speculations and surmises have added very much to the general stock of knowledge concerning them. Strabo, for instance, relates that one of the Pyramids was erected by the lovers of a famous courtezan, named Rhodopis; and Diodorus, writing a few years earlier, also gives currency to the same tradition. But the account given by Herodotus has certainly more of the appearance of being the correct one. According to this historian, the Pyramids were erected by King Cheops and his immediate successors, to serve as places of burial for themselves. And when it is remembered that the ancient Egyptians attached a very great importance to the preservation of their bodies after death, this does not seem an extravagant or improbable explanation. It is none the less certain, however, that the hypothesis thus broached has never been accepted without question, and at the present day, although the "tombic theory" is the one generally held by Egyptologists, a not inconsiderable section of the most able writers on the subject still hesitate to subscribe to it, or adopt it only in a partial and half-hearted manner.

In the middle ages, particularly during the period covered by the "Arabian Nights," the wildest and most extravagant stories were current as to the origin, history, and contents of the Pyramids. At one time it was asserted, that they had been built as treasure-houses for the Egyptian kings, and countless wealth was declared to be still concealed there; at another, that they contained the implements of unheard-of arts and sciences; and again, that they were the temples and repositories of all kinds of mystic terrors. The Caliph al Mamoun, son and successor of the illustrious Haroun al Raschid, and himself a man of great learning, determined at last to put an end to surmise by forcing an entrance into their inmost recesses. That our readers may have some idea of the degree of excitement which was felt on the occasion, we transcribe the words of a contemporary writer as to their presumed contents at that time. "In the western Pyramid," he writes, "thirty treasuries, filled with store of riches and utensils, and with signatures made of precious stones, and with instruments of iron, and vessels of earth, and with arms which rust not, and with glass which might be bended and yet not broken, and with strange spells, and with several kinds of magical precious stones, single and double, and with deadly poisons, and with other things besides. In the eastern Pyramid (the great Pyramid), divers celestial spheres and stars, and what they severally operate in their aspects, and the perfumes that are to be used to them, and the books which treat of these matters." It was on the eastern, or great Pyramid, that the caliph made his first attack, whence it may be inferred that the scientific treasures said to be concealed there possessed a greater attraction for the learned Mussulman than the treasures of silver and gold in the other Pyramids. An immense number of men were employed upon the gigantic task, and days and weeks were expended in what seemed to be a fruitless labour. The solid masonry for a long time resisted all their efforts. The interstices between the massive blocks of limestone were so exceedingly fine, the blocks themselves were so exquisitely true, that the implements of the labourers were blunted, and their patience exhausted before any considerable headway had been made. At last, just as they were about to abandon the attempt as hopeless, a stone was heard to fall into what seemed to be an empty space within the Pyramid. To work at once they went again with redoubled energy, and in a very short time they had laid bare, not only the descending passage, which had probably been explored by Greeks and Romans hundreds of years before, but also the ascending passage, leading to what are called the king's and the queen's chambers. This, in all probability, had been untrodden since the Pyramid had been first closed up, some three thousand years before. And what did these Mussulmen find there? With frantic haste they clambered up the ascending passage, rushed along the grand gallery, and entered the king's chamber, burning with a desire to clutch the long-hidden treasures. All they found there was an empty and sadless coffer, or sarcophagus. No scientific instruments, no gold or silver, no jewels, magical implements, or even books. Their labour to all appearance had been in vain.

MASONRY AND MAGIC.

THIS then, according to Levi, is the great ARCANUM MAGICUM, the existence of an æther, a universal plastic element, a boundless ocean of power, hitherto concealed by adepts under the terms—Gold, Sol, boiled dew, our Light, our Fire, Holy Spirit—according as they wrote in the jargon of Rosicrucians, alchemists, fire philosophers, Gnostics, or Magi. Is this the same element described by Serjeant Cox, when he could no longer deny the facts of certain supra-mundane phenomena, as PSYCHIC FORCE?

On reconsideration, we are led to modify the assertion contained in our former paper, that this theory fails to account for phenomena affecting solid bodies. It is true we fail to find any explanation of the same in the writings of Levi; but this may be an omission. We can hardly deny the infinite possibilities latent in the manifestations of an element, the forces of which are so imperfectly known; which are only manifest to the mass of mankind in the electric shock or by the control of the mesmerist.

We are tempted to reproduce Levi's definition of

THE MYSTERY OF DEATH.

"Wherefore are we born, to live so short a space? Why lavish such care upon children who must die? is what human ignorance cries, in most frequent and saddest doubt.

Thus also may well cry the human embryo, upon the approach of that birth which will precipitate it into an unknown world, in despoiling it of its preservative envelope.

If we study the mystery of birth, we shall find the key to the mystery of death.

Its fœtal existence determined by a law of nature; the incarnated spirit is slowly awakened and produces with effort those organs which will hereafter be indispensable, but which increase its discomfort in proportion as they grow, in its pre-natal situation. The happiest time in the life of the embryo is when, in simple crysalid form, the membrane which serves as its asylum floats with it in a preservative and nutritive fluid. It is then impassive, living by the universal life, and receiving the imprint of those natural souvenirs which will, later on, determine the configuration of its body and the traits of its countenance. This happy age may be called, the infancy of the embryo.

Adolescence follows, the human form becomes distinct and the sex is determined, changes takes place in the maternal egg, like to the vague reveries of advancing youth. The placenta, the real and exterior body of the fœtus, feels something new germinating within it, which is already attempting to emerge by breaking it. The child then enters more definedly into a life of dreams; its brain reversed, like to a mirror of its mother's, reproduces her fancies with such power, that it can communicate their shape to its own members. Its mother is to it, at this time, what God is to us—an unknown, invisible Providence, up to which it aspires even to the point of identifying itself with all that her emotions point to. It holds to her, it lives by her and sees her not; it would not even understand her; if it could philosophise, it would perhaps deny the existence and intelligence of that mother, who is, to it, but a prison and a preservative apparatus. Nevertheless, little by little, its subjection annoys it, it is agitated, tormented, it suffers and feels that its life is near its end. A moment of agony and convulsion comes, its cords are loosed, it feels that it must fall into the gulf of the unknown. The catastrophe occurs, and it falls; a painful sensation compresses it, a strange coldness seizes it; it gives a last sigh, which is changed into a first cry. It is dead to the life of the embryo, and born into the life of man!

In the life of an embryo it seemed as though the placenta was its body. That was, in fact, its special embryonic body, a body of no use to its new life in this world, and which is therefore rejected as an impurity.

Our body, used in this human life, is a second envelope, useless to our next life: therefore we reject it also, at the moment of our second birth.

Human life, compared to the next life, is but an embryonate. When bad passions end us prematurely, nature makes an abortion, we are prematurely born into eternity, exposed to that terrible dissolution which S. John calls the second death."

The next arcanum, according to old writers on occult metaphysics, is expressed by the two words "Coagula" and "Solve," corresponding to the active and passive principles of nature, to the male and female divisions in creation, to the mystic columns of Solomon's porch, JACHIN and BOAZ. Those, with the grand Arcanum, constitute the Magic triangle, and are formulated by Levi, into a fundamental dogma, THE EQUILIBRIUM OF FORCES. And in the symbol of this again, as superior triangle penetrating and interlaced with inferior triangle—we find the complete key of Art Magical, for our Royal Arch degree—the Seal of Solomon.

Given a knowledge of the grand Arcanum, the Astral Light or Psychic force; the effort of the Magician must be, firstly to gather it, to concentrate it for use, Coagula, and then to use it scientifically, always in due equilibrium, to distribute it in the desired direction—Solve. These arcana, the equilateral triangle seems to have symbolised in the ancient theogonies: expressing the secret of which initiates were the possessors, by which the Gods were influenced and occult forces subordinated to the will of man. Numbers of old fables or parables referred to this subject and the vicissitudes of its pursuit, conveying veiled counsel and warning, even by the voyage of Jason and the amours of Psyche.

Concurrent with the material, there runs a divine life through humanity. Human intellect has had its morning, its meridian is approaching, and its decline (by all analogy) may follow; but the divine part of man, the supra-mundane, must remain related to its source. The first in the order of natural laws is the law of AFFINITY.

The five-pointed star of our third degree, the pentagram of the Magi, is characterised by Levi as the symbol of the intelligence which governs the four elementary powers by unity; the prototype of balanced Light (of our Light in equilibrio), a ray of light descending from and returning to its every point. This, says he, represents the supreme athanor of nature, the body of man. A magnetic stream parts in two rays from the head, from each hand and from each foot. Each positive ray is balanced by a negative ray; the head is connected with the two feet, each hand with a hand and a foot, each foot with a hand and with the head. This is the sign of the Magician's power. The fact of positive and negative magnetic currents from the human frame is well-known to professors of animal magnetism; but we are not aware whether scientific experiment has confirmed the accuracy of the foregoing.

The pentagram, says Levi, when broken or irregularly traced, represents intoxication by the Astral Light, abnormal and irregular projections of the great magic agent, and their consequences in all kinds of wickedness and folly, called the Seal of Lucifer.

MASONRY AND ANCIENT MYSTERIES.

[COMMUNICATED.]

IF we attempt to establish a connection between the far past and the present, we must bear in mind that the ancients have left us few memorials beyond their ruins and inscriptions. Their ruins indicate an amount of knowledge beyond our own; their inscriptions are sometimes in a character we do not yet understand, sometimes in a character we have partly deciphered, and sometimes in hieroglyphics, which, though we partly understand, may contain signs, bearing secret symbols and meanings known only to the priesthood, and lost, at their extinction, to the world for ever; so that, in endeavouring to trace a connection between modern Freemasonry and the ancient mysteries, we have many difficulties to encounter. There cannot be a doubt that "free" or speculative Masonry is intimately connected with, and descended from practical Masonry.

Our word Mason has a very simple origin, being, it is said, derived from Maçon, French, from Mas., an old word, signifying a house; thus a Mason is one who makes houses. As men in the early ages of society were destitute of those methods of diffusing knowledge which we now enjoy; and even of those which were used in Greece and Rome, where the art of printing was unknown, the few discoveries in art and science then made were principally confided to the priesthood. In those ages the pursuit of science must have been a secondary consideration. Architecture could only be preceded by agriculture; the first architects, therefore, would be the first philosophers. In order to preserve amongst themselves that information which they alone collected, appropriate words and signs would be communicated to its members, significant ceremonies would be performed at their institutions, that their engagements to secrecy might be impressed upon their minds, and greater regard excited for the information they were to receive.

Nor is this mere speculation, there exist at this day, in the deserts of Egypt, such architectural monuments as must have been reared in those early ages which precede the records of authentic history; and the erection of those stupendous fabrics must have required an acquaintance with the mechanical arts which is not in the possession of modern architects. It is an undoubted fact, also, that there existed in those days a particular association of men to whom scientific knowledge was confined, and who resembled the society of Freemasons in everything but the name.

In Egypt and the countries of Asia which lie contiguous to that favoured kingdom, the arts and sciences were cultivated with success, while other nations were involved in obscurity and ignorance; it is here, therefore, that Freemasonry would flourish, and here only can we discover marks of its existence in the remotest ages.

It is extremely probable that the first and only objects of the societies of Masons was the mutual communication of knowledge connected with their profession, and that those only would gain admittance into their Order whose labours were subsidiary to those of the architect. But when the ambition or vanity of the Egyptian priests prompted them to erect huge and expensive fabrics for celebrating the worship of their gods, or perpetuating the memory of their kings, they would naturally desire to participate in that scientific knowledge which was possessed by the architects then employed, and as their Order seldom failed, among a superstitious people, to gain the object of their ambition, they would, in this case, succeed in their attempts, and be initiated into the mysteries as well as instructed in the science of Freemasons. These remarks will not only assist us in discovering the source from which the Egyptian priests derived that knowledge for which they have been so highly celebrated, they will also aid us in accounting for those changes which were superinduced on the forms of Freemasonry, and for the admission of men into the Order whose professions had no connection with the royal art. When the Egyptian priesthood had in this manner procured admission into the fraternity, they connected the mythology of their country, and their metaphysical speculations concerning the nature of God and the condition of man, with an association formed for the exclusive purpose of scientific improvement, and produced that combination of science and theology which in after ages formed such a conspicuous part of the principles of Freemasonry.

The knowledge of the Egyptians was carefully concealed from the vulgar, and when the priests did condescend to communicate it to the learned men of other nations it was conferred in symbol and hieroglyphics, accompanied with particular rites and ceremonies, marking the value of the gifts they bestowed. What those ceremonies were we are, at this distance of time, unable to determine, but as the Eleusinian and other mysteries had their origin in Egypt, we may be able perhaps to discover the quality of the fountain by examining the nature of the stream.

The first colony of the Egyptians that arrived in Greece was conducted by Inachus about 1970 years before Christ, and about 300 years afterwards he was followed by Cecrops, Cadmus, and Danaus. The savage inhabitants of Greece beheld with astonishment the magical tricks of the Egyptians, and regarded as gods those skilful adventurers, who communicated to them the arts and sciences of their native land. In this manner were sown, in Greece, those seeds of improvement which, in after ages, exalted that country to such pre-eminence among nations.

About 1500 B.C. the Eleusinian mysteries were instituted, in honour of Ceres; about the same time the Panathena were instituted, in honor of Minerva, and the Dionysian mysteries, in honour of Bacchus, who invented theatres and instructed the Greeks in many useful arts, but especially in the culture of the vine.

That the Eleusinian and Dionysian mysteries were ultimately connected with the progress of the arts and sciences is manifest, from the very end for which they were formed, and that they were modelled upon the mysteries of Isis and Osiris, celebrated in Egypt, is probable from the similarity of their origin; we must, therefore, naturally conclude that the Dionysia and mysteries of Eleusis were societies of Freemasons tinctured with the doctrines of the Egyptian mythology. The striking similarity among the external forms of those several associations, and the still more striking similarity of the objects they had in view, are strong proofs that they were only different streams issuing from a common source.

Those who were initiated in the Eleusinian mysteries were bound, by the most awful engagements, to conceal the instructions they received and the ceremonies that were performed; significant words were communicated to the members, Grand Officers presided over their assemblies, and the candidates advanced from one degree to another till they received all the lessons of wisdom and virtue which the priests could impart.

But besides the circumstances of resemblance, there are two facts transmitted to us by ancient authors which have an astonishing similarity to the ceremonies of the third degree of Freemasonry; the sacrifices, purifications, hymns and dances, which were necessary in the festival of Ceres, have indeed no place in the society of Freemasons, but these points of dissimilarity, instead of weakening, rather strengthen our opinion. It cannot be expected that in the reign of Polytheism just sentiments of the deity should be entertained, and much less that the adherents of Christianity should bend their knees to the gods of the heathens. The ancients worshipped those beings who conferred on them the most signal benefits, with sacrifices, and other tokens of their humility and gratitude; but when revelations concerning the Divine Being had disclosed to man more amiable sentiments, the Society of Freemasons banished from their mysteries these useless rites with which the ancient brethren of the Order attempted to appease and requite their deities, and modelled their ceremonies upon this foundation, that there is but one God, who must be worshipped in spirit and in truth.

The opinions, therefore, of Freemasons that their Order existed and flourished at the building of Solomon's Temple is by no means so pregnant with absurdity as some men would wish us to believe. We have already shewn, from authentic sources of information, that the mysteries of Ceres and Bacchus were instituted about 400 years before the reign of Solomon, and there are strong reasons for believing that even the associations of the Dionysian architects existed before the building of the Temple. It was not indeed till about 300 years B.C. that they were incorporated at Tiers under the Kings of Pergamus, but it is universally allowed that they arose long before the settlement in Ionia, and, what is more to our purpose, that they also existed in the land of Judea; moreover, it is observed by Dr. Robinson, that they came from Persia into Syria along with that style of architecture which is called Grecian; and since we are informed by Josephus that that species of architecture was used at the erection of the Temple, we are authorised to infer not only that the Dionysiacs existed before the reign of Solomon, but that they assisted this monarch in building that magnificent fabric which he reared to the God of Israel.

Nothing, indeed, can be more simple and consistent than the creed of the fraternity concerning the state of the Order at this period. The vicinity of Jerusalem to Egypt, the connections of Solomon with the Royal Family of that Kingdom, the progress of the Egyptians in architectural science, their attachment to mysteries and hieroglyphic symbols, and the probability of their being employed by the King of Israel, are additional considerations which corroborate the sentiments of Freemasons, and absolve them from the charges of credulity and pride with which they have been so frequently branded.

DID NOT LIKE MASONRY.

By Wm. Rounseville.

I ONCE knew a man who did not like Masonry. That is by no means singular, for it has been clearly ascertained that besides Blanchard and the Pope, there are several persons in the world who should be recorded in the same category. But in this particular case there were some incidental circumstances which would serve to separate it from those of the distinguished individuals we have named, if not from the whole remaining list of dislikes of the venerable Institution.

In the first place this man of whom I write was a member of the Masonic body. I do not call him a Mason, because I have an abiding faith that all true Masons like Masonry, and the fact that he did not like the Institution is proof as strong as Holy Writ, to my judgment, that he was not a Mason. However, that may be, he had become one of the Fraternity in the regular way—had been proposed, balloted for, elected, initiated, passed, raised, etc., by the usual methods, and still he did not like Masonry. This is one of the singular and noteworthy facts connected with this case, because a great majority, if not nearly all of those who thus proceed, like the old Institution and speak in its praise. That this member did not, after thus progressing, proves him an exception to the general rule. Most persons like it, and do not scruple to avow the fact whenever an opportunity offers, others, few in number, perhaps, say nothing about it, while this one talked against it.

Another singular fact connected with this case, and which removes the individual from the possibility of a classification with the two distinguished gentlemen above mentioned, is that he was made acquainted with the "true inwardness" of the Institution; had sat in Lodge and Chapter as a member for a space of two years, and consequently might have been expected to know whereof he affirmed, and to have been able to give a reason for the faith that was in him. The gentlemen above named had not those advantages, having neglected to avail themselves of the privilege of entering the door always opened to the worthy. It has been stated, it is true, that the Pope was a Mason before he became a Cardinal, and that he has lately been expelled from his Lodge for un-Masonic conduct, but it is preferred to regard the tale as an idle rumour, and hence our man who did not like Masonry must not be classed with the Pope or the President.

I mention another singular fact that exists in this case; the man who did not find that such was the case when he took the first degree. On the contrary, he liked that well. He did not find his dislike at the second degree; nor at the third degree, nor at the fourth, nor at the fifth, nor at the sixth, neither did he find his cause for dislike to Masonry when he was inducted into the seventh degree. It is allowable to say that he was well satisfied at every one of the stages in his progress, for he immediately went forward until he was a Knight Templar. His eulogies on that Order on the night of his creation were calculated to convey a strong impression that he liked Masonry "from turret to foundation stone." In point of fact, he stated that to be the case then and there, and it was only after a lapse of two or three years that he found that he did not like Masonry. It may be thought strange that it should require so long a period for him to discover the bad points in Masonry, but so it was. To an average mind it would seem that he could have discovered "the cat in the meal" before he had taken thirteen degrees, but, according to his own assertion, such was the fact. He actually took all the degrees in the Lodge, Chapter, Council, and Commandery, and still had not then found out that he did not like Masonry.

There is still another fact in connection with this case that we must not forget to put on record. The earliest period, now recollected by the brethren, at which this member expressed that he did not like Masonry was just after an election in which he had been a candidate and defeated. He was heard to assert, when in company with brethren, that Masonry was good for nothing unless it would assist a brother in such an exigency as that, and he soundly rated those who had not voted for him. This fact presents an inseparable obstacle to our classifying this man, who did not like Masonry, with Blanchard and the Pope, because they uniformly insist, I believe, that Masons do vote for each other against all comers, while he strenuously insists that they ought so to vote but will not. As we do not desire to injure the opposition, we refuse to put together in the same class elements so incongruous.

It was noticed, by the strict attendants, on the meetings of the Lodge that our member was present but seldom. This was the winter following the disastrous election. Hence it was not surprising to them that he should announce that he did not like Masonry. And as they became more intimately acquainted with him some of them wondered why he ever liked Masonry, and what induced him to join the Fraternity at all.

In the spring our man, who had faintly avowed that he did not like Masonry, opened a dry grocery store in the village in which he lived. This fact precludes us utterly from classing him with the two distinguished men named above who do not like Masonry, for neither of them, so far as we can learn, has ever run a grocery, wet or dry. But the fact of the opening of this grocery could not well be omitted from a history of the case, because it is one of the horns of the dilemma on which the man, who did not like Masonry, impaled the Lodge.

Trade opened rather brisk in the afore-mentioned dry grocery, and the proprietor thereof congratulated himself on the prospect that he should soon acquire an abundance of shekels, and that his brethren of the Lodge were fast becoming liberal contributors. He congratulated himself that he had found the true use of Masonry, and that henceforth he would be able to make it pay; whereas, heretofore, to use his own phrase, "it had not paid him the first nickel."

Matters passed smoothly enough through the spring with our grocery man, but on the commencement of the summer there was a very noticeable falling off in his sales and receipts, and what troubled him more than this, was that many of his brother Masons began purchasing their supplies of one who was not a Mason, who kept a shop similar to his a little farther down on the opposite side. To obviate this difficulty and repair this loss, he was seized with an intense desire to attend the communications of the Masonic bodies to which he belonged. Scarcely a meeting escaped him, and he became voluble in the Lodge on the blessings which followed a membership therein. Still there were those who could not forget that he was the man who did not like Masonry, and these did not extend to him their most implicit confidence in regard to his new professions.

We have all of us read the story of the old man who found a rude boy stealing his apples. Our grocery man pursued a similar course of proceedure. When he found that mild measures would not have the desired effect, he tried those more heroic. When Lodge visits and Lodge speeches failed to bring back his customers, he renewed his asseverations that he did not like Masonry—that it had never been worth a cent to him—that he would use his great and overpowering influence to put it down, etc. He should like to know what Masonry was good for if it would not make men patronise a brother in preference to an outsider, and here again our brother showed conclusively that he must not be classed with the distinguished dignitaries named in the first paragraph of this article. He finds fault with Masonry because it fails to incline its members to prefer each other in business; while they charge that very thing against it, and aver that it does compel its members to trade with a brother in preference to a profane. This is a difficult world to please, and Masonry has failed to do it in many an instance.

Time passed on. Neither threats nor abuse brought back the patrons of the grocery store, and when fall arrived there was a notice of "For Sale! Cheap for Cash" over its front door. Things looked old and dilapidated about the premises, and the countenance of the proprietor had a look as though he would hardly attempt to break down any more Lodges.

While matters were in this condition, one morning an old Past Master, who had not worn the threshold of that establishment for the past year, entered for the purpose of purchasing some trifling article.

As he was putting it in his pocket, the proprietor began:—

"Mr. B——, had the brethren of the Lodge extended to me their patronage as I expected, I should not have been compelled to shut up or sell out now."

"Very likely," was the cool reply.

"I think the treatment they have given me is un-Masonic and outrageous."

"That is not so likely to be true," came from the Past Master.

"Ha! you justify such conduct!"

"I justify the members of the Lodge in not buying of you."

"Then you think that one member is not required by the Order of Masons to patronise another member in preference to an outsider?"

"All other things being equal, I think it the duty of members to give their patronage to a brother just as we would trade with a friend in preference to a stranger."

"That is what I asked of them, and they refused to trade with me in preference to my neighbour below."

"But you forget one thing—'all other things being equal.' In your case all other things were not equal. You sold sugar at ten cents which your neighbour sold for nine, and most things in about the same proportion."

"I made only a fair profit."

"Still, he undersold you, and is apparently prosperous, while you are driven to the verge of bankruptcy. This shows that his sales gave him living profits."

"Gave short weight perhaps?"

"A thing you have done sometimes."

"Do you charge me with dishonesty, sir?" shouted the man of goods, seizing a chair as if to smite down the calumniator.

"Keep cool! There is no need of adding crime to crime. I found your weight too small and your measure too short. All that you were full in was the price. In that you never failed. I quit trading with you on that account. I presume my neighbours have done the same for the same reason. I think they did right."

"Just as I expected! I do not like Masonry anyhow."

"And Masonry abhors the actions of which you have been guilty as nature abhors a vacuum. I do not wonder that you do not like Masonry. If you did like it it would prove it corrupt."

"Get off my premises! I will be insulted by your presence no longer."

"First let me hand you a copy of charges preferred against you in the Lodge, and to say that a list of the witnesses by whom it is expected to prove them will be given you as soon as it can be arranged."

As the old Past Master passed out, he heard his brother mumbling to himself, among the words of which he recognised the old refrain, "I never did like Masonry, and now I dislike it more than before."

It is a fact, which has been sometimes stated, that such men as this grocery keeper hardly ever do like Masonry. Unless it will give them votes and nickels, they do not like it. So mote it be.—Voice of Masonry.

ALEXANDRA LODGE, No. 1511, HORNSEA.

THE ceremony of installing the W.M. of this Lodge for the ensuing year took place on Wednesday, and the event excited considerable interest in Masonic circles. This young, but popular and flourishing Lodge, was founded little more than a year ago, for the benefit of those brethren who reside at our suburban watering place, and others who are in the habit of visiting it during a considerable part of the year. The most gratifying success has attended the efforts of its founders, the Lodge now numbering nearly fifty members; while the practical interest it has displayed in the Masonic Charities has already earned for it a considerable amount of credit in the province. At a previous meeting the unanimous choice of the brethren fell upon Bro. Benjamin Lamb Wells as the new W.M., and his installation was witnessed by a large number of the Craft, amongst whom were many past and present officers of rank. The Lodge was opened in due form at half-past three o'clock, under the presidency of Bro. Thomas Oates W.M., when some ordinary business was transacted, and the W.M. elect begged the acceptance by the Lodge of a splendid new harmonium, which had been subscribed for by brethren whose names were engraved on a plate recording the presentation. The gift was cordially accepted. Bro. Oates then vacated the chair, which was taken by the Installing Master, Bro. George Hardy P.M. P.S.P.G.D., to whom Bro. Wells was presented for installation in the usual form. The ceremony was performed in the most impressive manner by the Installing Master, whose rendering of the charges was much admired by the assembly. On the dais was a perfect array of provincial officers, including the W. Masters of Humber and Kingston Lodges, at Hull. The ceremony having been concluded according to the ancient formularies of the Craft, the newly-installed Master invested his officers for the year, as follow:—Bros. Thomas Oates P.P.G.O. I.P.M., William Carr S.W., Matthew P. Hockney J.W., the Rev. T. W. Kelly P.P.G.C., West York, Chaplain, George Hardy P.M. P.S.P.G.D. Lecture Master, John Thompson P.M. P.G.S.B. Treasurer, Wm. Fugill Secretary, Thomas Liggins S.D., J. Helsop J.D., Henry James Amphlett Director of Ceremonies, George Eaton and T. Liggins Stewards, George Milner Organist, Cook Laking I.G., and Thomas Cryer Tyler. The W.M. then, in a few happily chosen sentences, thanked Bro. Hardy for his kindness in officiating on the occasion, and spoke in complimentary terms of the ability displayed in the imposing ceremony which had just taken place. The Installing Master acknowledged the compliment paid him, and expressed the pleasure it afforded him at all times to assist in furthering the interests of this young and flourishing Lodge. A very pleasing incident then took place, Bro. H. Voight stepping forward and presenting to the Immediate Past Master, in the name of the brethren, a very handsome gold Past Master's jewel, in token of their esteem and in recognition of the valuable service he had rendered to the Lodge in the first year of its existence. Bro. Oates accepted the gift with a due expression of his thanks, and was evidently much moved by this unexpected tribute of appreciation on the part of the brethren. The usual formularies were then gone through, and the Lodge was closed with the customary solemnity.

At five o'clock the brethren sat down to a recherché banquet, which was provided at the Alexandra Hotel, by Bro. Harrison. The spacious dining-room had been effectively decorated with trophies, flags, &c., in which the artistic skill of Bro. E. Johnson was admirably displayed, and the apartment presented a most cosy and elegant appearance. W.M. Bro. B. L. Wells presided, supported by the Immediate Past Master, the Installing Master, the Worshipful Master of the Humber Lodge, Bro. Alfred W. Ansell, the Worshipful Master of the Kingston Lodge, Bro. W. Hunt, and Bros. W. Tesseyman P.M., Alderman Charles Wells P.M. (ex-Mayor of Hull), Thomas Simons Prov. Grand Registrar, R. T. Vivian P.M., Martin Kemp P.M., W. D. Keyworth P.M., E. Garforth P.M., J. Hudson P.M., John Thompson P.M., &c., and the vice-chair was filled by the Senior Warden, Bro. W. Carr. At the conclusion of the repast, the usual loyal and Craft toasts were duly honoured.

Bro. Alderman Charles Wells then proposed "The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Prov. Grand Master of N. and E. Yorks, and the W. Bro. John Pearson Bell, M.D., Past Grand Deacon, Deputy Prov. Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire." (Cheers.) They had had an opportunity recently of seeing the way in which the Prov. Grand Lodge was worked, and from what he had seen he felt that the Earl of Zetland left a very favourable impression on the minds of the Hull brethren. At the time when Prov. Grand Lodge was held in Hull, he (the speaker) had the honour of occupying the civic chair of that borough, and in his capacity as Mayor he had the privilege of receiving the noble earl, and of spending some hours in his company at the Town Hall. Their worthy Bro. Dr. Bell was a veteran in Masonry, and was one of the oldest Past Masters in Hull. (Cheers.) During the late earl's illness a great amount of labour devolved upon his deputy, and the same would necessarily be the case for a few years, owing to the inexperience of the present Prov. Grand Master. Some time ago Dr. Bell entertained serious thoughts of retiring from the position he had so long and worthily filled, having attained the highest honours that could be placed upon him in the province. And it was only his firm conviction that his retaining that office would be to the benefit of the Craft generally that he was induced to reconsider his determination. (Cheers.)

The Prov. Grand Registrar returned thanks in a humorous speech, in which he passed a high encomium on the ability and zeal displayed by the Provincial officers.

Bro. W. Tesseyman P.M. next proposed "The Worshipful Master of the Alexandra Lodge, and the newly-appointed officers." He gave this toast with peculiar pleasure, having watched with much interest the rise and progress of this Lodge. From his acquaintance with Bro. Wells he felt that gentleman had all the qualifications requisite for a good Master, and he was assured that when his term of office expired they would have no cause to regret having placed him in that chair. (Applause.) He trusted they would all support the new Master as far as they possibly could do, by attending the meetings regularly, and doing all they could to further the objects of Masonry. No doubt, the Worshipful Master, by his kindness, ability, and good management, would so conduct the affairs of the Lodge that the Alexandra would go on as she had begun, and be held in high esteem, not only in this province but by the Grand Lodge of England. (Cheers.) He wished a successful and happy year to the new Master and his Officers, and concluded by again expressing a hope that the Alexandra Lodge might soon become second to none in the province. (Cheers.)

The Worshipful Master, who was enthusiastically received, briefly returned thanks for the very flattering manner in which the proposer of the last toast had spoken of him. He had been associated with Masonry for many years, and although, unfortunately for himself, he had not been so assiduous as he might have been, yet it was a source of the utmost pride and satisfaction that he had at last attained the honourable position to which the brethren had just elected him. (Cheers.) He was certain that the officers he had chosen were all willing to do their best to assist in the performance of the duties that were required of him; and for his own part, he should spare no effort to prove himself worthy of their choice. He was delighted to see so many Past Masters present on this occasion, and thanked them most sincerely for their attendance, and for the kindly feeling they evinced towards the Alexandra Lodge. He earnestly asked them to render what assistance they could in furthering the interests of the Lodge, and again returned his heartfelt thanks for the great honour which had this day been conferred upon him. (Cheers.)

Bro. Martin Kemp P.M. proposed "The retiring W.M. and his Officers." (Applause.) They were met to celebrate the first birthday of the Alexandra Lodge, and he believed he was speaking the sentiments of the brethren assembled when he sincerely wished it "many happy returns of the day." (Cheers.) He was glad to find that an immense amount of prosperity had attended his efforts, and he expressed a sincere hope that the Alexandra would continue to receive increased support in the future. (Cheers.) The very fact of the brethren having presented to the Immediate Past Master so handsome and valuable a token of their esteem showed how fully his services had been appreciated. (Cheers.) He had the pleasure of discharging a similarly pleasing duty in the Humber Lodge on the preceding evening, when the brethren presented to the Immediate Past Master, Bro. Jonathan West, a like tribute of their regard and appreciation. (Cheers.) It showed that when a man discharged his duty with fervency and zeal he was always rewarded by the gratitude and affection of those with whom he was associated. (Applause.)

Bro. T. Oates I.P.M., in responding, alluded to the difficulties which accompanied the formation of a new Lodge, but which had been happily surmounted, so far as the Alexandra was concerned. The Lodge had been brought into a very successful position, and the officers had all worked well with that single aim in view. (Hear, hear.) He thanked them, one and all, for their kind assistance, and trusted the Lodge might continue to prosper. (Cheers.)

The Worshipful Master then gave "The health of Bro. Geo. Hardy, P.M. P.G.P.G.D.," in doing which he spoke in felicitous terms of the way in which the Installing Master had discharged his duties on that occasion, and the eminent position which he had earned in the Craft by his diligent study of the principles of Masonry. Those principles were not only apparent in Lodge, but they influenced his whole social life—(cheers)—and he returned Bro. Hardy his cordial thanks for the assistance he had rendered to the Alexandra Lodge ever since its foundation. (Cheers.)

Bro. Hardy P.M. P.S.P.G.D. briefly acknowledged the compliment that had been paid to him, and said it had been a source of very great pleasure to be present this evening, and to instal Bro. Wells into the principal chair of this Lodge. He had had the pleasure of Bro. Wells' acquaintance from his boyhood, and felt sure he would faithfully discharge the duties which had been entrusted to him. If the Alexandra Lodge required his services at any time they should be freely offered. (Cheers.)

The Worshipful Master proposed "The Sister Lodges," expressing his thanks for the kind manner in which the past officers and brethren of other Lodges had rallied round him on this occasion. (Applause.)

Bro. A. W. Ansell, W.M. of the Humber Lodge, in responding, wished for the Alexandra a year of prosperity, as the youngest Lodge save one in the province. He felt that the brethren of older Lodges had a right to assist them. They had many old and tried friends in the sister Lodges, and in the Alexandra they felt they had a new friend coming amongst them in the province—one whom they wished to honour and love and whom they intended to support. (Applause.) Masonry was the highest exemplification of human love, tending to bring them into nearer relationship—no matter how far distant the Lodges were from each other; and thus they resolved to further the cause of Masonry wherever it might be. The Humber Lodge would endeavour at all times to support the Alexandra in their endeavours. In the North and East Ridings there was ample scope for the extension of Masonry, and they rejoiced at its unparalled prosperity and progress. (Applause.) Having the Prince of Wales at their head as Grand Master, they felt that Masonry was an honourable profession, of which they had just reason to be proud. "Loyalty and charity" was their universal watchword; and, therefore, they should go hand in hand with all the noble principles inculcated in the Craft. He wished the Master and officers of this Lodge all happiness and prosperity during the ensuing year; and if the Lodge he represented could be of any service to them it would only be a matter of pleasure and duty to lend such aid as he was competent to offer. (Cheers.)

Bro. W. Hunt, W.M. of the Kingston Lodge, also responded to the toast. As a Mason, he had himself had the opportunity of visiting Lodges in countries the languages of which he did not understand, and had had the privilege of fraternising with the brethren in the same spirit of cordiality as he could have done at home. And this went even beyond the civilised countries of Europe. (Hear, hear.) They had the best possible proofs that the aborigines of Australia, though they had lost the civilisation they once enjoyed, knew about Masonry—that it was one of the things which existed amongst them hundreds, or it might be, thousands, of years ago. The Earl of Carnarvon, when a young man, travelled a great deal in Palestine, and at the time of his return, he (the speaker) happened to be Master of a Lodge in Plymouth, and had therefore the honour of entertaining the noble earl. In the course of his speech on the occasion he told the brethren that while he was travelling in some parts of Palestine, and mixing with the Bedouin Arabs, he made himself understood by Masonic signs. They regarded him as a brother, and received him with the same cordial feeling as though he had been one of themselves. (Cheers.) He did not know that there were any Masonic Lodges amongst them at the present time, but no doubt there had been at some remote period, and that the legends had been handed down amongst them till the present day. (Applause.)

Bro. Alderman Charles Wells P.M. acknowledged the toast on behalf of the Minerva Lodge. He had been a member of the Minerva Lodge twenty-eight years, had attended pretty regularly, and had passed through most of the offices. And he felt sure nothing gave greater pleasure to the members of these Lodges than to reciprocate these visits to and from each other. He hoped the Alexandra would continue for a long time to have members in common with the Minerva, and that the latter would be, as they were at present, anxious to give any assistance to this Lodge, which they regarded as an offshoot of their own. (Cheers.) He had double pleasure in being present to-day and seeing his brother in the honourable position into which he had just being installed. He had recognised with much pleasure the Worshipful Master's desire to advance in the Craft, and felt sure the Lodge would not suffer by having placed him in the chair. He wished the Lodge to accept from a very old Past Master his best wishes for its future welfare. (Cheers.)

The Prov. Grand Registrar, in proposing "The Masonic Charities," referred at length to the essential relationship which existed between Masonry and benevolence, and extolled the noble institutions which they, as Masons, combined to support and encourage. Having alluded to these institutions in detail, he earnestly exhorted the brethren to give freely towards their support, and to respond substantially to the appeal which was made annually by Bro. Thompson, the Prov. Grand Steward of the Charities, who was also a most "sturdy beggar" in this respect. (Cheers.) In conclusion, he warmly appealed to the brethren to do all they could in furtherance of the benevolent objects of the Craft. (Cheers.)

Bro. John Thompson P.M., in responding, reminded those present that charity was the foundation of Masonry. The world outside might ask "What is Freemasonry?" and though they could not reveal its secrets they could point to these grand institutions which had been founded by Masons, and which would, no doubt, be vastly enlarged in the future. He wished to his heart every Lodge in the North and East Ridings had done for their Charities what the Alexandra Lodge did last year. (Loud cheers.) They were most all of them sadly deficient; and he compared the existing state of things in this province with the zeal manifested in the West Riding, where they most liberally contributed to the support of the Masonic Institutions. He then proposed to make a collection in the room, and amidst much good humour the plate was passed round, and the sum of £6 5s was realised. A conversation then ensued as to the practicability of raising the sum to ten guineas, which would endow a chair, and give to the Lodge a vote in perpetuity. The Senior Warden (Bro. W. Carr) then generously offered to subscribe five guineas for the purpose, and the announcement was received with hearty and prolonged cheering. The disposition of the sum having been left in the hands of the Worshipful Master, he decided to appropriate it to the Boys' School.

The Senior Warden then proposed "The Visiting Brethren," on whose behalf Bro. R. T. Vivian P.M. responded.

Bro. Charles Wells P.M. gave "The Ladies," for whom Bro. T. Reynolds gallantly responded, and this closed the official list.

During the evening some excellent songs were given, assistance being rendered as accompanyists by Bros. T. Oates and E. Johnson, and the proceedings were characterised throughout by the utmost harmony and good feeling. Bro. H. J. Amphlett officiated as director of ceremonies.

"A suitable gift from a Master to his Lodge."

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE announcement that the Queen will open Parliament in person has been received by all classes with satisfaction. Londoners especially are always glad of Her Majesty's appearance in public, for her visits to the metropolis have of late years been few and far between. Nor will our country cousins be less delighted with the news, for they will have an opportunity of seeing a sight that is worth seeing. It will a be reasonable excuse for them to run up to town and pay a visit to the theatres, and other places of amusement, and none enjoy such little trips so thoroughly. Let us hope we shall have the proverbial "Queen's weather" for the occasion.

There are signs that the third Session of the present Parliament will be a busy one, and that certain questions will give rise to no little excitement. The irrepressible Eastern Question has cropped up again in rather an unpleasant form, and the conduct of the Ministry in relation thereto will call forth no end of criticism. Then there will probably be a pretty sharp debate over the purchase of the Suez Canal Shares. The Slave Circular of the Admiralty has already been the subject of much controversy in the press, and is sure to be very sharply criticised in both houses. Then Army Reform, and legislation in connection with Merchant Shipping, and the conduct of the Admiralty in reference to the Vanguard Court Martial and the accident to the Iron Duke will have to be discussed. All these together make a formidable and important programme for the year's business, while we have taken no notice of finance, and the thousand and one other questions which are sure to arise as the Session advances.

There is little to add to our last week's chronicle of the Prince of Wales's visit to India. We left him at Delhi, and there he remained several days, visiting the places of interest in connection with the Mutiny, and being fêted here, there, and everywhere. His Royal Highness was present at the concluding operations of the military manœuvres, which extended over three days. On Friday he dined with the Rifle Brigade, and on Saturday with the 10th Hussars, of which he is Colonel, and on Monday he left the City of the Moguls for Lahore, where he has since arrived and been heartily welcomed. Occasionally we have news of the Princess of Wales, who, from the announcements we read, must be thoroughly enjoying her visit to Denmark. Now we hear of her dining at the Palace, now of her being present at a Thé Dansant; now she is visiting the Theatre, and now receiving visitors. To-day the Westminster Royal Aquarium and Winter and Summer Garden will be opened by H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, when Fellows', Life

Nominees', and season tickets only will be admitted. Doubtless the gathering of rank and fashion will be considerable, in honour of the Royal President.

De gustibus non est disputandum. A lunatic died a short time since, in the Prestwich Asylum, and a post mortem inquiry into the cause of death led to the discovery of nearly eleven-and-three-quarter pounds weight of articles—comprising shoemakers' sparables, 4-in., 3-in., 2½-in., 2-in. and other nails, tacks, buttons, pieces of buckles and glass, pebbles, a piece of leather, a piece of lead, and an American pegging awl and other things, numbering together 1841—in his stomach. We have heard a saying to the effect, that some boys are capable of digesting ten-penny nails, and we know there are jugglers who earn their living partly by swallowing knives and other choice and delicate articles. But it certainly is a novelty to read of any one living with his stomach full of nails, glass, pebbles, and the like. The coats of some people's stomachs are figuratively said to be of leather. The coat of this man's stomach must have been at least as tough as "old boots"—the toughness whereof is to us an unknown quantity—or perhaps we should say literally as "hard as nails." Had this unfortunate lunatic been a shoemaker at any period of his rational being that he swallowed so many sparables? If so, he certainly showed himself true to the very last.

Not the least among the numerous attractions at the Centennial of the National Independence to be celebrated this year at Philadelphia, will be the International Rifle Match. We have before announced that a challenge has been received in this country from the National Rifle Association of America, and accepted by the National Rifle Association of England. But some doubts having arisen in this country as to whether England, Ireland, and Scotland were invited to send separate teams each, of one nationality only, or mixed, Sir Henry Halford telegraphed for information, and the answer was to the effect that any team, English, Scotch, or Irish, or mixed would be welcome.

The weather, for a few days, was thought by a good many people to be favourable for a little skating, and suburban ponds were accordingly tested by a number of young men and lads, remarkable chiefly for their rash indifference to good advice. As might have been expected, the venturous, in more than one case, suffered, and, unfortunately, the life of one boy was lost, on No. 2 of the Highgate ponds. In the provinces, too, several deaths are reported. Four boys out of six who were immersed in a large pool near Garrison-lane, Birmingham, were drowned, and of two boys skating on the Soar, at Leicester, one was drowned, and the other rescued with some difficulty.

At a ball recently given at Coventry, by the members of the Volunteer Fire Brigade, the small hours of the morning had been reached, and dancing was yet as vigorously proceeding as ever, when all the lights were suddenly extinguished. Remonstrances were made by the firemen and others, but in vain, and lanterns and oil lamps had to be obtained to enable the guests to depart in comfort. It is said the Fire Brigade are so enraged at the treatment they received that they are determined to resign in a body. If this threat be persisted in, the Brigade will cease to exist as such the end of this month. We offer the Fire Brigade our sympathy, and we are sorry we cannot advise them to send the perpetrators of the outrage to Coventry, as the latter are already there, but they deserve such treatment.

Messrs. Smith and Son, publishers and booksellers, of the Strand, were lately summoned by Thomas Cannon, a reporter, for publishing a libel against that gentleman contained in a paper called the Advocate, one copy of which had been sold by one of Messrs. Smith and Son's employés. Mr. Flowers, the magistrate at Bow Street, before whom the summons was heard, adjourned it, on the ground of its being a novel case, and on Monday he decided to dismiss it. Messrs. Smith and Son would find it a hard matter to carry on their business if every paper containing a libel and sold by them should be made the subject of a charge. In the present case they had refused to sell the paper, and it was practically admitted by the complainant that the copy in question might have been disposed of through inadvertence.

A nice question was raised the other day, at the Sittingbourne Petty Sessions, as to whether cutting the combs of cocks was or was not cruel. The summons was taken out at the instance of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The combs had been cut of three bantam cocks which it was proposed to exhibit. Mr. W. H. Jones, M.R.C.V.S., and Mr. Crook, one of the staff of Land and Water, gave evidence in support of the charge, and so did the well-known animal painter, Mr. Harrison Weir. Evidence having been given on the other side, the magistrates dismissed the summons but, on the application of Mr. Smith, of the Home Circuit, who conducted the prosecution, they granted a case for the higher court.

Hanging people must be thirsty work to judge from the amount of liquid refreshment consumed by Marwood on the occasion of the recent execution at Dumbarton. During the three days he was resident in the gaol he was supplied with a bottle of brandy, a bottle of whisky, and a dozen of bitter beer, a bottle for each of the first two days, and the dozen of bitter for the third, when all was over. There were also said to have been consumed, on the morning of the execution, a bottle of brandy, a bottle of whisky, a bottle of sherry, and a bottle of port.

Trade disputes are of frequent occurrence, and there is one in the iron trade in progress at this moment. The men in the employ of Messrs. Easton and Anderson, at Erith, are out on strike against the system of piece-work, which their employers have resolved to adopt. Both parties seem very determined, the men especially appearing to have taken strong measures, so that other men may not have an opportunity of being employed in their stead. We have nothing to do with the matter in dispute, but if it be true that picketing is being adopted, and men, who are willing enough to work on Messrs. Easton and Anderson's terms, are thus prevented, then we have another evidence of the tyrannical lengths to which workmen will go in order to gain their ends. It is high time something was done towards establishing courts of arbitration.

Sir John Hartopp was summoned on Thursday, before the judge of the Reigate County Court, to answer a charge of assulting an innkeeper at Banstead, a Mr. John Ladd, who claimed £50 damages. The plaintiff, it seems, had been in the habit of supplying beer to the defendant's men, and had been ordered not to do so. In spite, however, of all warnings, whether verbal or written, Mr. Ladd had persisted in going on the defendant's land, till one day he encountered the latter when out shooting with some gentlemen, and attended by several keepers, and the assault complained of occurred. According to the plaintiff's version of the affair, he was, by order of Sir John Hartopp, set upon and seized by sundry of the keepers, who well pommelled him first, and then dragged him through a number of ponds afterwards. On the other hand it was contended that the man himself had lain down on the ground when ordered off. In the result a verdict was given against Sir John Hartopp, with forty shillings and costs.

Abroad the situation remains unchanged. The results of the elections in France are not yet ascertained, but general rumour has it, that the Conservative party have gained a decided advantage. On the other hand, the Republicans claim to have been victorious in the struggle. However, when the names of the elect are made public, we shall have an opportunity of judging which is right, general rumour or the Republicans. It seems too, that M. Gambetta has been prevented by the authorities from making a speech which he was at the pains of travelling south to Marseilles for the purpose of delivering. This fits ill with an Englishman's notion of a republic, where all men are free to act and speak as they will, so long as they say or do nothing to the detriment of the commonwealth. The Eastern Question remains in statu quo. Count Andrassy's note, it is believed, will be presented to the Porte with the concurrence of all the Great Powers, England included. The insurrection is not put down, though some of the leaders have surrendered their commands. The Carlist war is still in progress, if firing a few shell and shot from time to time can be described as fighting. Certainly both Carlists and Alphonsists are deliberate enough in their movements. Meantime, unfortunate Spain suffers. The Royal forces become stronger and stronger, yet they fail to beat the enemy. The Carlists must be weaker now than they were a few months since, yet not so weak but they contrive to maintain their position, and occasionally send a few shells into San Sebastian. The Prussian Diet is in Session, and the Emperor has bestowed on some of his generals the Cross of the Black Eagle, a banquet, at which His Imperial Majesty presided, being held in honour of the occasion. Among those who have lately been visiting His Holiness the Pope, and paying him the compliments of the season, should be mentioned the Marquis of Ripon, who is said to have paid over to His Holiness the very handsome compliment of £10,000.

INSTALLATION OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES.

IT is well our readers should be made aware the limit of the time for inserting portraits in the official Historical Engraving of this memorable event is close at hand. None will be received after the end of next month. Any, therefore, who were present, and are anxious to figure in the engraving, should forward their photograph at once, or else they should call upon Bro. Haigh, at 213 Regent-street, and be specially photographed, free of expense. Already, we are told, over five hundred portraits are in hand, and there is yet ample space for some two hundred more. We have also received a list up to date of those brethren who intend patronising the engraving, and this list contains the names of most of the élite of the Masonic world, including the King of Sweden, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, the Earl of Carnarvon, present and past Grand Officers, present and past Provincial Grand Officers, and other Craftsmen of high degree.

We trust the picture will meet with success. Assuredly it deserves to succeed, for the event it depicts is the most memorable in the annals of Masonry since the Union in 1813, and created more enthusiasm throughout the whole Masonic world than any other we can call to mind. It was, indeed, a grand gathering of the Order, and those who were present cannot help, we fancy, wishing to have the fact of their presence handed down throughout all time. In many engravings the question of Who is Who? may be answered much in the same manner as the historic showman, who was asked, as regards the figures in his peepshow, which was Wellington and which was Napoleon Buonaparte? "Whichever you please, my little dears! You pays your money and you takes your choice." This will not be the case, however, in Bro. Harty's engraving of the Installation. Already, as we have said, over five hundred photographs have been sent for the purpose of insertion, and we doubt not the other two hundred for which there is still room will be forthcoming by the time appointed. It was an honour to have been present and taken part in the ceremonial, and this honour is perpetuated in the case of all whose portraits appear in the engraving. Let then any of our readers who have not yet complied with Bro. Harty's invitation do so without further loss of time.

We close this note of warning by repeating our hearty good wishes for Bro. Harty's success.

The Installation Meeting of the Etonian Lodge of St. John, No. 209, was held, on the 4th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Windsor. The Lodge was opened at 4.30 p.m., by the W.M. Bro. J. O. Carter, who was supported by Bros. W. R. Denne S.W. (W.M. Elect), Canvin J.W., Rev. J. S. Brownrigg D.P.G.M. Chaplain, Pulling Treasurer, Strange P.M. as S.D., Hume J.D., J. Roberts I.G., together with a strong muster of P.M.'s and members, as well as a number of visitors, including no less than three Prov. Grand Masters, namely Sir D. Gooch, Bart., Berks and Bucks, Col. Burdett, Middlesex, and Major General Brownrigg, Surrey. Mr. G. Blizard having been ballotted for and elected, was initiated. A handsome testimonial, consisting of a Provincial Grand Officer's clothing, and a clock, was then presented to Bro. Tolley, who, though not a member of the Lodge, had rendered very eminent services to it. The W.M., in his address, spoke very eloquently of the assistance which Bro. Tolley had rendered on all occasions, in working the different ceremonies, and Bro. Tolley displayed considerable emotion in his reply. Bro. W. R. Denne, the W.M. Elect, was then installed by Bro. Carter, and afterwards elected, as his officers for the year, Bros. Canvin S.W., Hume J.W., Rev. J. S. Brownrigg Chaplain, Wilson P.M. Treasurer, Carter I.P.M. Secretary, Roberts S.D., Schiemann J.D., Nichols I.G., Strange P.M. D.C., Peart and Webster Stewards. The W.M. then presented a massive P.M.'s jewel to the I.P.M., Bro. Carter, and a gold albert chain to Bro. Pulling, as a slight acknowledgment by the Lodge of his valuable services as Treasurer during the last twelve years. The Lodge was soon afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Town Hall, which had been placed at their service by the Mayor, and where an excellent banquet was served, by Bro. J. Johnson, of the White Hart Hotel. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed by the W.M., and received with great enthusiasm, Bro. Colonel Burdett responding for that of the "Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers of Grand Lodge of England," with which his name had been associated. Sir D. Gooch replied to his toast as Grand Master of the Province, and Major General Brownrigg to his as P.G.M. Surrey. The Rev. J. S. Brownrigg having first replied to his toast as D.P.G.M. proposed the health of the W.M., who briefly expressed his thanks. Bro. Tolley presided at the pianoforte, and at intervals between the toasts several glees and part songs were sung very effectively and with great taste, by Bros. Tolley, Christian, and Smith. A long notice, of which the above is only a summary, was forwarded to us in due course, but happening, unfortunately, to be misdirected, it returned, after many disconsolate wanderings, to the place whence it came. Considering the name of this journal is by no means unknown to the postal authorities, we think they might have exerted themselves more to find out the right address. Occasionally, we see paragraphs in the papers about the marvellous ingenuity which the Post Office displays in finding out addresses which are either wholly illegible or very imperfectly, and even wrongly, given, but they cannot be said to have exerted themselves in this instance.

Bro. Thos. Butler, pricipal M.C. at the Licensed Victuallers' School, Asylum, and Police Orphanage Balls, announces his fifth annual ball, at the "Criterion," Regent Circus, Piccadilly, in the Grand Hall, on Thursday, the 10th of February. All tickets must be filled up with the name of the presentees. Bros. Coote and Tinney's band is engaged; Bros. Thos. Mockham and R. Johnson will be the M.C.'s.

The composition of sherry has been freely discussed by the press of late years, and there is a pretty general opinion, we believe, that much of the so-called sherry has only the remotest connection with the wine of Xeres. However this may be in the case of certain brands—and there are many it has been our misfortune to taste which we should be sorry to describe as of any particular vintage, from any particular country—we have never found anything amiss with the Specialité Sherry of Messrs. Feltoe and Sons. On the contrary, we have always found it extremely soft and palatable. There is in it neither acidity nor heat, and a man may drink it, in moderation of course, without the lightest fear of its affecting his stomach with a sense of nausea, or his head with a racking pain.

The Lodge of Benevolence held its regular monthly meeting, at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, Bro. James Brett, the Junior Vice-President, presiding. The grants, amounting together to £425, made at the last Lodge were confirmed. Sixteen new cases were then proceeded with, of which one was dismissed. Grants, to the aggregate amount of £180, were made, in eleven cases, and the others were deferred.

We have the pleasure to announce that the 101st Anniversary of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, No. 145, as well as the Centenary Festival and Installation Ceremony, will take place on Tuesday next, the 25th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C. The Lodge will be opened at five o'clock.

A warrant has been granted for a new Lodge, entitled the "New Cross Lodge," No. 1559, and it will be consecrated on Saturday, the 30th inst., at the Town Hall, New Cross. Bro. W. B. Woodman, J.D. 1275 and 946, is the W.M. designate, E. H. Thiellay, A.G.P. Middlesex, the S.W. designate, and Bro. Simmonds J.W. designate.

The 37th Annual Ball of the Old Concord Lodge will be held on 15th February, at the New Grand Hall, Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. G. Hockley, and the following stewards:—Bros. Ward S.W. Vice President, A. Dottridge J.W., Gurton P.M., E. Dottridge P.M., Hancock Treasurer, Watson, Deverrish, W. P. Goosey, Headley; Bro. John Emmens P.G.P., 254 Kingsland-road, is the Hon. Sec.

THE SATURDAY REVIEW AND DR. OLIVER.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—I have had some experience as a reviewer, but I have seldom seen anything more grossly unfair than the following notice which appeared in the columns of the Saturday Review of the 8th inst:—

"The Pythagorean Triangle and Discrepancies of Freemasonry are posthumous works by Dr. Oliver, who, it appears, was a well-known Freemason. They are written in the style of mysterious nonsense, which is characteristic of the Order."

If the writer of these lines is a Mason, he must have heard of Dr. Oliver's high reputation as a Masonic writer, and that, however "mysterious" his works may be or seem to be, they are certainly not "nonsense." If he is not a Mason, he has no business to abuse that of which he knows nothing.

It would be impossible to place the writer of the above notice in the same category with Dr. Oliver. The latter was a scholar and a gentleman. The former may be the one, but he certainly is not the other.

Yours fraternally, "Q."

THE ANTIQUITY OF FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A propos of your article on the "Antiquity of Freemasonry," I must remark that the old MS. therein cited, said to have been signed by Henry VI., and copied by Leland, has not yet been found, and that grave doubts exist as to whether it ever existed.

The foremost Masonic investigators in this country, Bros. Hughan and Woodford, do not hold themselves justified in accepting it, though Dallaway* apparently did not regard it with so much suspicion.

It was first published at Frankfort, in Germany, and all efforts to trace it in England having proved fruitless hitherto, its authenticity remains open to question. As to its inherent evidence, archaisms, &c. experts differ so much that nothing certain can be critically decided on that head.

Yours fraternally, E. P.

MASONIC BALL AT THE TOWN HALL, LIVERPOOL.

THE twenty-seventh annual Masonic ball took place on 10th January and proved a brilliant success. The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution is a credit to the county, and, thanks to the brethren of the various local Lodges, this annual ball materially helps its funds. The Institution can boast of a vested capital of £13,000, and out of this capital between 60 and 70 children are educated, at a cost of £8 to £45 each. This success is mainly attributable to the untiring exertions of Bro. R. Brown, W.M. 241, the Hon. Secretary, and Bro. R. Wilson P.G.S.D., the Hon. Treasurer. The arrangements for the ball were ably carried out by an efficient committee, and upwards of 1,000 visitors were present. The majority wore their Masonic insignia. The ball was under the patronage of His Worship the Mayor (Lieut.-Col. Thompson) and the Mayoress, both of whom were present, the Countess Bective, the M.W. the Earl of Carnarvon, Lady Skelmersdale, Lord Skelmersdale, Major Starkie, Lord De Tabley, Major Leigh, Hon. F. Stanley, Earl Bective, &c. The ball committee comprised Bro. M.W. Lord Skelmersdale, President; Hon. F. Stanley, Vice-President; H. Alpass P.G.S., Chairman; M. Chudley P.M. 241, Vice-Chairman; G. Hutchin S.W. 241, Treasurer; and Bro. H. Nelson P.M. 673 and 1505, Secretary, who was untiring in his exertions. Bro. H. M. Molyneaux was a very efficient M.C. Bro. W. Vines, of the Canton Hotel, proved an excellent caterer, a special supper being provided in the council chamber. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. G. A. W. Phillips, and dancing was kept up until a very late hour.

RED CROSS OF ROME AND CONSTANTINE.

The Lily of the Valley Conclave, 127, met on Thursday, the 13th of January, in Freemasons' Hall, Holytown, Sir Knight H. J. Shields, 33°, M.P.S., Wm. McMurdo E.V.E., Daniel Baker S.G., J. McMurdo I.G.; visitor, G. W. Wheeler M.P.S. 114, who, at the request of Sir Knight Shields, conferred these two degrees on Companions R. Clark, Henry Dyer, and Robert Gray. A Sanctuary of K.H.S. was afterwards opened, when Sir Knight Shields, assisted by Sir Knight Wheeler and his officer bearers, received four Companions into the Sanctuary, and afterwards created them Knights of St. John the Evangelist. The ceremonies were very carefully wrought, all the accessories being perfectly attended to by Sir Knight Shields.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Grand Stewards' Lodge.—This distinguished body met at Freemasons' Hall, on the evening of Wednesday, the 19th inst., for the installation of W. Bro. Edwin March as W.M. for the ensuing year; this ceremony being the only one which the Lodge is empowered to work, neither initiation, passing, nor raising being permitted, and the Lodge being solely recruited by Grand Stewards as joining members every year. The installation was impressively conducted by W. Bro. J. M. Stedwell, the retiring W.M., and after business discussions the Lodge adjourned to banquet. On this occasion, Bro. Francatelli, manager of the Freemasons' Tavern, purveyed the best turtle—thick and clear—that even the City brethren (no mean connoisseurs) ever remembered. The Lodge—No. 0 on the roll of England—certainly vindicated its pre-eminence as regards the banquetting arrangements. During the evening, a beautiful selection of vocal and instrumental music was provided, under the efficient direction of W. Bro. W. Ganz, the Grand Organist, assisted by Bros. Thomas Baxter, George Perrin and F. Penna. Seldom has been witnessed so goodly an array of Grand Officers as here graced the board in the capacity of visitors. Amongst them were General Brownrigg, Provincial Grand Master of Surrey; Hugh Sanderman, District G. Master of Bengal; J. B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes, with Bros. Rucker, Murton, Parkinson, Boyd, Fenn and Dumas, Past Grand Deacons. There were, moreover, Bros. Greenwood P.G. Secretary of Surrey; C. F. Martier, of Manchester, a Grand Steward of the Grand Lodge of Canada, whose name we did not catch, and Walter Spencer, of the Bank of England Lodge. The new Wardens, Bros. B. Baxter and Walsh, showed practiced aptitude, and the old P.M.'s, Bros. R. Spencer, Norman and F. Binckes, were in their usual places. Bro. F. Hockley is the respected and efficient Secretary, and V.W. Bro Rucker has been elected and invested as Treasurer, vice R. Spencer resigned. A pleasanter or more enjoyable evening could not be imagined.

De Swinburne Chapter, No. 24.—This Chapter held its regular meeting on Wednesday, the 12th of January, at Freemasons' Hall, Grainger-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Present—Comps. Smaile acting Z., P. O. Smith H., Sewell J., Blenkinsop N., Smith E., A. Loades P.S., J. Currie Janitor; Comps. Davis P.Z., Fenlaham P.Z. Business—Two candidates were exalted to the supreme degree, by Comps. Smaile P.Z., officiating as First Principal, in a most solemn and impressive manner.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne Lodge, No. 24.—This Lodge held a regular meeting on Thursday, the 6th January, at Freemasons' Hall, Grainger-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Present—Bros. Geo. Cockburn W.M., A. Loades S.W., James Taylor J.W., A. R. Taylor Secretary, W. Cockburn P.M. Treasurer, John Bolane S.D., J. D. Carr. J.D., J. W. Boston Steward, F. Brewis I.G., J. Corrie Tyler. Visitors—Bros. Dean Secretary 541, Harris 406, &c. Business—This was the first meeting held since the installation of the W.M. and appointment of officers. The ceremony of initiation was rendered in a most creditable manner, and the whole business of the Lodge conducted in a way that promises well for the ensuing year.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its first banquet at Bro. Maidwell's, the "Hercules," Leadenhall-street, E.C., on Thursday evening last, 20th January, Bro. Atkins P.M. presiding, Bro. Horsley as S.W., and Bro. Webb as J.W. The banquet, which reflected great credit on Bro. Maidwell's skill as caterer, was thoroughly enjoyed by the brethren, and after some excellent music the meeting dispersed, the brethren expressing themselves highly gratified with their evening's entertainment.

Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Tuesday, the 18th of January, at 170 Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Present—Bros. George McDonald R.W.M., John Bannerman D.M., J. Ballantine S.M., A. McLeod S.W., John Hambridge J.W., R. Richards Secretary, J. S. Ampleford Treasurer, W. Kay S.D., T. Youil J.D., Wm. McFarlane D.C., G. McDonald Steward, B. Levy I.G., A. Kay sen. Tyler. Visitors—Bros. Innis D.M. 408, J. Singleton R.W.M. 178, Wm. Jones 178. Business—Arrangements for the annual festival, appointment of committee to procure a suitable hall for future meetings, after which the Lodge was raised to the 3rd degree, and Bro. Singleton, R.W.M. of Lodge 178, requested leave for a brother to be raised. This being granted, by request of the Master, Bro. W. B. Patterson, in a very careful manner, raised Bros. Caldwell of this Lodge, and A. Jones of the Scotia, to the sublime degree. Bro. Wm. Jones, on behalf of the Scotia, thanked the Lodge and Bro. Patterson for the way in which his brother in blood, as well as in the Craft, had been raised to the degree of a Master Mason.

Mount Lebanon Chapter, No. 73.—The regular meeting of this Chapter was held on the 13th inst., at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, Comps. J. B. Button Z., H. A. Dubois H., J. W. Baldwin J., T. J. Sabine P.Z. Treasurer, F. Walters P.Z. S.E., B. Isaacs P.S., J. T. Muss P.Z., S. Frankenburg, J. H. Spencer, &c. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were confirmed; a ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. J. Mason as a joining member; two candidates were proposed for exaltation. The election of Principals and officers then took place, and Comp. H. A. Dubois was elected M.E.Z., J. W. Baldwin H., J. Mason J., T. J. Sabine P.Z. re-elected Treasurer, F. Walters P.Z. 1st Assist. P.S. Middlesex, S.E. re-elected for the 10th time, B. Isaacs S.N., J. C. Mason P.S., W. Laing P.Z. Janitor. A sum of five guineas was voted for the purpose of presenting Comp. J. H. Button with a P.Z. jewel on his retiring from the chair. The Chapter was then closed, and refreshment followed.

Faith Chapter, No. 141.—At a meeting of this Chapter, which took place on Wednesday, the 19th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, E.C., Comp. E. Gotthell P.Z. installed Comps. N. Glucksteln Z., C. Hogard H., and J. Constable J., after which the M.E.Z. appointed Comps. C. C. Taylor I.P.M., M. Bamberger Hon. Treas., W. E. Gomperts S.E., J. Ross S.N., and Pindar P.S., Holland 1st Asst., J. Barnett 2nd Asst., D. Posener D.C., Ochse W.S., Longstaff Janitor. The following brethren were subsequently exalted to this degree:—A. W. Stead 1297, J. S. Eidmans 225, R. Dunthorne 141, C. E. Towell 1056, L. Asoski 1017, and W. W. Morgan 1385. The ceremony was very creditably performed. Seven candidates to exalt is not an easy task, but every one of the officers was well up to his work, and therefore the task was accomplished smoothly and satisfactorily. An exceedingly well served banquet followed, superintended by that prince of head waiters, Comp. W. Smith. The usual toasts, interspersed by songs and recitations, ended the proceedings, which were prolonged until a rather late hour. The visitors were Comps. Knight 414, Hopwood 49, J. Smith 1053, G. Williams 933, Dodson P.Z. 72, Peartree 185. A handsome P.Z.'s gold jewel was presented to Comp Taylor, on his retirement from the First Principal's Chair, as a token of the high esteem in which he is held by the members of this Chapter.

Domatic Lodge, No. 177.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Friday, the 14th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, in the presence of numerous brethren and visitors. A great improvement was manifest in the room, which has been considerably enlarged, Bro. G. Everett W.M. occupied the chair, Treadwell S.W., Jas. Willing jun. J.W., J. Smith P.M. P.G.P. Treasurer, Williams Secretary, Palmer S.D., and P.M.'s J. R. Foulger, Tims, F. Kent C.C., Walford C.C., &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The W.M. then raised Bros. Gilbert, Farrier, Billinghurst, Sumner, Zoebelli, and W. J. Bennett, and initiated Messrs. W. Cook, S. R. Stevens, and J. Abrahams; the various ceremonies were perfectly and impressively delivered. Bro. Palmer S.D. proposed that the joining fee be in future £10 10s, which was carried. The report of the audit committee was read, showing a balance in the hands of the Treasurer of £50 16s 3d. A board of installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. Treadwell, S.W. and W.M. elect, was installed into the chair by Bro. J. Smith P.G.P., who, at the conclusion of the ceremony, informed the brethren that in the space of one year they would be entitled to apply for the Centenary Jewel. The W.M. was then saluted, and invested his officers:—Bros. G. Everett I.P.M., J. Willing S.W., Palmer J.W., J. Smith P.G.P. Treasurer, for the 35th time in that capacity, Buscall S.D., G. Clark J.D., White I.G., Spink D.C., McLean A.D.C., and Daley Tyler. Bro. Walford P.M. then proposed a vote of thanks to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. J. Smith P.M., for the able manner he had performed the ceremony of installation, which was carried unanimously. Bro. J. Smith thanked the W.M. and brethren for the vote; he regretted the absence of Bro. James Brett P.M., who had for so many years performed that ceremony, but his services were at all times at their command. Bro. Foulger P.M. then gave a notice of motion that in future the initiation fee be £10 10s. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, 135 in number, sat down to a very recherché banquet provided by Bro. Clemow and superintended by Bro. Smith. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts; in alluding to the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales he hoped he would return to his native country in renewed health. Bro. E. P. Albert returned thanks for the Grand Officers, and said he was pleased to see the ceremony of installation so ably performed. Bro. G. Everett I.P.M. then proposed the toast of the W.M., who had been a member of the Lodge for twenty years, and he was sure he would fully discharge his duties during his year of office. The W.M., in the course of a very excellent speech, said he hoped to be enabled to follow in the footsteps of so worthy a predecessor. He then proposed the toast of the Visitors, and Bro. W. Worrell P.M. 766 responded in a very excellent speech. Bro. J. Smith P.M. then proposed the toast of the "Masonic Charities." The toast of the newly initiated followed, and Bro. J. Abrahams, in a few but appropriate remarks, returned thanks. The W. M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters, and in speaking of their individual merits, stated how excellently every one had discharged the duties of the chair. All had worked their way by individual exertion, and the last on the list was Bro. G. Everett, whom every one respected. He then placed a very elegant gold P.M.'s jewel on his breast, and hoped he might live long to wear it. (Loud cheers.) Bro. G. Everett I.P.M., in returning thanks for the valuable gift, replied for the Past Masters, and mentioned how great the success of the Summer Festival at Dulwich had been. He retired from the chair with the knowledge that his year of office has been a successful one, and in a Lodge numbering 195 members there was not one where more harmony and good feeling prevailed. He would wear the jewel with pride, and would always study the interests of the Lodge. (Cheers.) The toasts of the Treasurer, Secretary and Junior Officers was then proposed, and Bros. J. Smith P.M., James Willing S.W., and Palmer J.W., returned thanks, also Bros. Buscall, White and Spink. The Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable evening, Bros. Dawson, Carter and Hudson contributed to the harmony. The visitors were Bros. Draper 1305, C. G. Hill 1366, Odell 866, Stokes P.M. 861, H. Wood 212, E. P. Albert A.G.P., H. M. Tranquillity Lodge, No. 185.—This Lodge met on Monday, the 17th inst., at the Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, E.C. There were present—Bros. John H. Ross W.M., J. Barnett S.W., D. Posener J.W., John Constable I.P.M., J. Peartree Treasurer, P. Levy Secretary, G. Pare S.D., Bailey J.D., Croaker I.G., Rowles Tyler; also P.M.'s Bloomfield, N. Moss, Harfeld, Gottheil, Gluckstein, and H. Myers. The visitors were Bros. H. Browne 1426, G. Lewis W.M. 879, Johnson 879, W. Gimperts jun. 869, T. R. Webb 521, E. T. Jolliffe 22, Charles Mead 141. The business of the evening consisted in raising Bro. Saillard to the third degree, passing Bros. Rowley, Schultz and Davis to the Fellow Crafts Degree, after which Messrs. S. Loewenthal and F. Upcon were initiated in the usual form. The election of W.M., Treasurer and Tyler for the ensuing twelve months resulted in favour of Bros. J. Barnett S.W. as W.M., J. Peartree Treasurer, and Rowley Tyler. Ten guineas, wherewith to purchase a P.M.'s jewel for Bro. Ross, on his retiring from the chair, was unanimously voted. A repast followed, after which the various toasts were briefly given and responded to, the one referring to the W.M. elect, being considered the toast of the evening, was enthusiastically received. Bro. Barnett expressed his sincere thanks, and further remarked that any words that he might be able to utter would fail in conveying his feelings of gratitude to the brethren in having elected him to fill the high position of W.M. of such a Lodge as the Tranquillity. The brethren were aware that ever since he has been placed in office by Past Master Bloomfield, he has endeavoured to do his duties to the best of his abilities in all the subordinate offices, and trusted that when his year of Mastership is over the brethren may not have cause to regret in having put him in this position, or find their confidence misplaced. The visitors, in responding, expressed their satisfaction with all they have seen, heard and partaken of, and some expressed astonishment at the harmony which characterised the elections, and did not seem able to comprehend how it was possible to elect a W.M. without a dissentient. Some excellent songs by Bros. Webb, Constable, Bailey, Gomperts, &c., contributed to the enjoyments of the evening.

Minerva Lodge, No. 250, Hull.—The first meeting in the New Year of the members of this Lodge took place on Wednesday evening last, at the Masonic Hall, Dagger-lane. There was a large attendance of the brethren, who were joined on the occasion by several Past Masters, present Worshipful Master (Bro. W. Hunt), and other officers of the Kingston Lodge. The Lodge was opened in the first degree, the Worshipful Master, Bro. John Brooke, presiding, and Messrs. J. C. Serres and Robert Sawyer were initiated into the mysteries of Masonry. The Worshipful Master was assisted by Bro. J. H. Emes I.P.M. in the performance of the ceremony of initiation, and the Wardens, Bros. C. Newton and R. Toogood, delivered the charges in the most able and efficient manner. Bro. Walter Reynolds P.M. applied to the W.M. for permission to use the Lodge room for working the Rose Croix degree, which was acceded to amidst acclamation. At the subsequent banquet, the Worshipful Master was supported by Bros. J. H. Emes I.P.M., W. Hunt W.M., E. Garforth I.P.M., Dr. Pyburn P.M. of the Kingston Lodge, Thos. Simons P.M. P.G.R., John F. Holden P.M. P.S.P.G.D., George Hardy P.M. P.S.P.G.D., M. C. Peck P.M. P.G. Secretary, Scherling P.M., S. Moseley P.M., W. D. Keyworth P.M. P.P.G.S.W., Walter Reynolds W.M. P.G.D.C., &c. Dessert having been placed on the tables, the customary Craft and other toasts were honoured, the Worshipful Master proposing, in felicitous terms, the health of the W.M. and officers of the Kingston Lodge, who had so kindly paid their brethren of the Minerva a visit. He was exceedingly pleased to meet Bro. Hunt and those who were associated with him in his Lodge, and expressed the satisfaction it afforded him to witness the amity and good feeling which existed amongst the various Lodges in Hull. A proposal had been made with a view to the establishment of another Lodge in the town, and so long as the lines were extended in a proper and Masonic spirit there would be no objection to such a course. While they did not desire to disturb the unity which happily existed amongst their Lodges, they could have no disposition to prevent the extension of Masonic working in Hull if the new Lodge was formed according to the principles he had described. He trusted they might all be actuated by feelings of such amity and good understanding as he was proud to observe now prevailed amongst the various Lodges, and in conclusion he thanked the officers and brethren of the Kingston Lodge for their visit on this occasion. Bro. W. Hunt W.M. suitably acknowledged the compliment paid to him and his officers. Bro. J. F. Holden then gave the health of that veteran in Masonry who had been designated the "sturdy beggar" of the Minerva Lodge, on account of his persistent zeal on behalf of the Charities, and Bro. T. Simons, the Prov. Grand Registrar, responded in a humorous speech. Bro. Pick, Prov. Grand Secretary, then gave the health of a gentleman who had for many years filled the office of Secretary to the Kingston Lodge, but who was about to relinquish that position, in consequence of his leaving Hull to reside in York. He spoke in the highest terms of the efficiency which Bro. James Kay had displayed in the execution of his duties, and of the general esteem in which he was held by the brethren. They all deeply regretted Bro. Kay's severance from the Craft in Hull, but wished him prosperity in his new sphere of action, and trusted that he would manifest the same zeal for Masonry in the city of his adoption as he had done in Hull. Bro. S. Moseley P.M. also spoke in the highest terms of Bro. Kay's personal excellencies and the ability with which he had conducted the affairs of the Kingston Lodge, and the toast was received with prolonged applause. Bro. Kay responded in suitable terms to the compliment paid him. The healths of the Worshipful Master, the Visiting Brethren, and other toasts were honoured, and the proceedings were enlivened with some excellent vocal and instrumental music.

The W.M. was then presented with a P.M.'s. jewel by the Installing Master, in the name of the Lodge, and in doing so he declared that it was an honour which Bro. Howell had won by his zeal and ability, and he hoped it would not be taken as a precedent in the future, but that those only who deserved the prize would obtain it. Bro. The Lodge was closed after a proposition had been made, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Sugar Loaf Hotel. Upon the removal of the cloth, the first toast was "The Queen and the Craft," proposed by Bro. F. Howell W.M. The toast was duly honoured, and the National Anthem was sung, Bro. Randall sustaining the solo, and the company taking up the chorus. The next toast was likewise proposed by the W.M.—"The M.W. Grand Master." The toast was one which was always proposed on these occasions with peculiar pleasure, because His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Grand Master of England, as a man and a Mason, was one whom they were very proud of. The next toast was that of the Pro Grand Master, Deputy Grand Master, and other Grand Officers, to whose eminent services the W.M. paid a just and a graceful tribute, the toast being received with distinguished marks of approbation. Bro. C. B. Harris, the Chaplain, then said:—I rise with feelings of the deepest satisfaction that I am honoured by being entrusted with the next toast, the toast of the evening as it certainly is, that of the Worshipful Master. (Prolonged applause.) We have met here after having been present at his installation as Master of this, Chiltern, Lodge for the second year of office, an honour which he certainly most highly merits and has richly deserved—(cheers)—although it has not been sought, but has come rather adventitiously; it was unexpected to him; and we could not by any possible means have placed in the chair a Mason who would have filled it with greater credit to himself, greater satisfaction to the Lodge, or with more zeal and energy. As a young Mason, I think our W.M. has done wonders during his year of office. I hope that his life and energies may be spared to us, and that he may go through the coming year with even greater results than in the past. (Cheers.) I call upon you most heartily to drink the health of our Worshipful Master. This toast was vehemently applauded. On rising to respond, the W.M. was greeted with round after round of cheering. He said:—Brethren—I am afraid my worthy friend and brother, the Chaplain of this Lodge, has complimented me far too much, and that you, in so handsomely responding to the toast, have been kind enough to give me a reception far beyond my deserts. I am sure that when I took that oath which I did last year faithfully to discharge the duties entrusted to me as the Master of this Lodge, I did so with the very fullest intention of doing everything in my power to further its interests, fully intending that no effort on my part should be wanting to get up the ceremonies, so that they should afford some pleasure to the brethren of the Lodge, and also satisfaction to myself; and you may be perfectly sure of this, that that means some rather hard work, because I do not disguise from any member in this room aspiring to any office in the Lodge, if they wish to fill the chair as the Master with satisfaction to the brethren, in the manner which every Lodge ought to demand of its Master, they will have to devote much time to it. It is, therefore, an office not to be taken lightly, but to be entered upon fully in a spirit of duty. I take your kindness to me as a testimony to the past, and I trust we may be spared to meet again in health and prosperity another year, and that then the pledges which I have again renewed shall have been fully kept to the best of my skill and ability, and to your entire satisfaction. I have to thank you most gratefully for the cordial support to me during my year of office. Your sympathy and kindness have rendered my work lighter, and nothing can exceed my gratitude to you all for your attendance and willingness at all times to render to me that obedience which you declare you will do when you enter the Order. I thank you very heartily, because no one knows better than I do how much the credit of one's year of office depends upon your sympathy and co-operation, and the absence of anything like cliqueism in the Lodge. I am delighted that we work together with singleness of mind to make each other better, to add to each other's prosperity, and to make life agreeable and happy to every brother. I am exceedingly obliged to you for the handsome jewel that you have been pleased to give me. In conclusion, before sitting down, the speaker proposed the health of the Installing Master, bearing testimony to the eminent skill and undoubted ability Bro. T. W. Haselgrove had displayed in the ceremony of the day. (Loud applause.) Bro. T. W. Haselgrove acknowledged the compliment in a graceful speech, in which he adverted to the many pleasant meetings he had attended at this Lodge. Bro. Phillips, of Luton, replied to the toast of "The Visitors" in an appropriate speech, as did also Bros. McCubbin, King, and Alford. The toast of "The Officers" followed, eliciting brief responses from Bros. Randall, Otway, Sinkwell, Cutler, Wood, and Saunders. The visitors having to leave by train, the proceedings were brought to a close at an early hour.

St. Mungo Encampment, Knights Templar.—This Encampment met on Monday, 17th January, at St. Mark's Hall, Sir Knight R. Bell E.C. presiding, who opened a Priory of Knights of Malta, to confer that degree on Sir Knight John Davie; he was assisted by Sir Knights Wheeler as Prelate, MacDade as Aide-de-Camp, McLeish as Warder and Hardie as Sentinel, after which the Ancient Order of the Link and Wrestle was also conferred on the same gentleman. Sir Knight D. Reid was then unanimously chosen to fill the vacant place of Recorder, and Sir Knight Wheeler was elected as Assistant Prelate, as the Rev. J. C. Stewart can so seldom attend; Sir Knight J. Hughes was also appointed as J.W. The Encampment was then closed in due form.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—The regular weekly Convocation of this Chapter was held on Tuesday, the 18th inst., under the presidency of the following officers:—Comps. John Boyd, Treasurer, M.E.Z., Thos. Bull H., John Constable J., George Newman P.S., G. S. Norris S.E., J. H. Leggott S.W. Upon the usual preliminaries having been gone through, the ceremony of exaltation was completely rehearsed by the various officers, in a manner which elicited universal applause, and although the M.E.Z. tendered an apology for his anticipated shortcomings, we have seldom heard him to greater advantage. Comp. Allsopp was candidate. Comps. Morrian and Medwin were elected members, and testified their pleasure with the evening's proceedings. There were also present, Comps. G. V. Morgan, Bull, &c. An unusual treat was afforded by Comp. Boyd, who worked the first clause of the lecture, assisted by the companions.

DEAR SIR,—I can strongly recommend your Pectorine as an invaluable Cough Remedy. PECTORINE cures the worst forms of Coughs and Colds.

THE

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

VOL. III.—No. 57. SATURDAY, 29th JANUARY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE LATEST NEWS FROM PHILADELPHIA.

WE cannot, of course, but feel gratified at the complimentary remarks respecting ourselves which have appeared in a recent issue of the Keystone. It is pleased with our history of "the Masonic Year 1875," and as regards that portion of it which related to Freemasonry in the United States it says, "and in this review events in the United States are detailed with unusual accuracy." It is only proper—and the duty is one of the most agreeable—that we should express our thanks for these compliments, and we do so accordingly without any reserve whatever. But the Keystone is not only complimentary: it is playful likewise. While it admits we have shown an accurate knowledge of American Masonic history, it has come to the conclusion that our acquaintance with home Masonic history is not quite so perfect. It has come to this conclusion from certain remarks in our first leading article of the same issue, in which we spoke of the inferior quality of Masonic periodical literature in England, and of our earnest but humble efforts to improve it. It gathers from this we are unaware of the existence of our contemporary the Freemason, and it adds "it gives us pleasure, therefore, to announce the existence of the London Freemason to our esteemed contemporary." We thank Bro. Keystone both for the announcement and the kindly manner in which it is made. We agree, moreover, that there is ample room for both journals. The announcement, however, hardly comes within the category of news. Our ignorance, as it happened, was more apparent than real. We had not only heard of, but seen the London Freemason long before it ever occurred to us to embark in friendly rivalry with it. But Bro. Keystone will probably be surprised to hear that our existence has been studiously ignored from the very outset. We have been recognised abroad, and have received a very cordial welcome, especially from the American Masonic Press. Nor has it been only an occasional line or two, in recognition of our being, that we have had extended to us. We have been freely quoted, many of our leaders having been reproduced in their entirety. But, while this kindness has been freely extended to us by our American contemporaries, we have not received a single word of recognition from our English contemporary. True, on one occasion, it seemed to cast a doubt on the genuineness of some news we were enabled to publish. True, on another, it admitted into its columns a letter, which some of our friends have been pleased to describe as vulgar, and in which our Masonic fair play was called in question, on the ground that something we quoted from Pomeroy's Democrat, with the usual acknowledgment, had previously appeared in the Freemason. Now, our experience in journalism, dates from some years before the birth of this Chronicle, and we have no hesitation in affirming that we cannot call to mind a single instance in which the existence of a new periodical has been so studiously and so persistently ignored. Generally it happens, when a new paper makes its appearance, its older contemporaries, whether rivals or not, say a few words of encouragement, figuratively pat it on the back, and wish it God-speed in its career. But till the present time, no such good fortune has befallen us. We have been spoken well of by other organs of the English press, both London and Provincial, but the one Masonic journal in this country in existence when we started has not followed their example. Under these circumstances, we had no option but to observe silence. True, on one occasion we rallied it, in no unkind spirit, on its success in imitating our programme, but with this exception, we have steadfastly remained silent. We fancied the Freemason regarded us as an intruder into the domain of Masonic literature, and, accordingly, we kept ourselves out of its way as much as possible. Every man of ordinary gentlemanly feeling avoids any society in which he has reason to believe his presence is not desired. Acting on some such feeling as this, we have kept as much as possible out of our contemporary's path, nor shall we be prompted to act otherwise so long as it seems to wish for the maintenance of the present status quo. We have already said we agree with the Keystone, that there is ample room for both, and it certainly is no wish of ours to remain, we will not say on unfriendly terms, for it is impossible we should experience any unfriendly feeling towards the Freemason, but on terms that are, at all events, not friendly. Having offered these few remarks by way of explanation, we quit the subject, with repetition of our thanks to the Keystone for the invariable courtesy it has extended towards us in the past—a courtesy we shall make it our chief business to deserve—not only at its hands, but also at those of all other Masonic journals.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 13.)

FROM UNDER THE CROWN.

"O, that such muddy flags,
For every drunken flourish, should achieve
The name of manhood; whilst true, perfect merit,
Hating to show itself, goes by despised!
Heart! I do know now, in a fair, just cause,
I dare do more than he, a thousand times:
Why should not they take knowledge of this, ha!
And give my worth allowance before his?
Because I cannot truckle."

IT has been the boast of politicians of a certain school, that the Civil Service of this country attracts within its ranks some of the best and brightest intellects in the community, and that the officers who serve "under the Crown" are second to no body of Civil servants in any dominion in the world. This assertion is, or was, true of the Service as it existed a few years since, before the Cheese Parers and the Economical Enthusiasts had conspired together to drive out of it every man of talent who possessed a will of his own. The principle of "promotion by merit," which was intended to bring talent to the front, has, in practice, placed the lucrative posts in the hands of sycophants and slaves, while men of real merit, whose ability has been recognised even by their enemies, have been passed over to make room for the nominees of the heads of departments, or for persons of inferior capacity, who have exhibited a special aptitude for the art of tale bearing. The Service at this moment is in a state of utter disorganisation, and the political and social doctors are laying their heads together with the view of discovering some cure for its radical defects. Men of mark, who can make their way elsewhere, are throwing up their appointments; and their places, as fast as they are vacant, are either filled up under the principle of "promotion by merit," in which, like the contest of the Jerusalem ponies, the reward falls to the slowest, or the work is done in some sort of fashion by "Writers," hired at a wage of tenpence an hour. Nearly every department under the Crown has been doctored or reorganised during the last ten years, and the general results of this active interference with the Service has been to make its last state worse than its first. Although some prizes are held up within the view of the candidate who is seeking to get his bread by official drudgery, the rank and file are but poorly paid, and the best men have been driven to eke out their scanty salaries by literary or even scientific work. One of the greatest of the scientific lights of the present day was once a computer on the staff of the Ordnance Survey. Scores of journalists and authors of note are, or have been, "under the Crown," and the hero of this sketch has himself confessed that he wasted twenty years of his life at Somerset House. "Twenty years completely thrown away!" Such were his words, which are full of eloquence, because they remind us—though, for our part, we need no such reminder—that for great, or exceptional ability, there is no scope in the Civil Service. Yet our hero, amongst his colleagues, who are not always the most lenient judges, was held in high repute for professional knowledge and zeal. The popular voice proclaimed that he was fitted for the higher posts of his department, but when the opportunity for promotion came he was quietly passed over, and a gentleman, who did not possess a tithe of his talent or business capacity, was placed in the vacant post. Promotion by merit had its usual effect. It simply kept the man of merit down, with his nose to the grindstone, while the man without the black mark of genius on his face was invited, like the unworthy man of Scripture, to go up higher.

Our hero was early connected with literature, and his fame as a journalist was, doubtless, known to the authorities. He was on the staff of the Daily News when the Suez Canal was opened, and was commissioned by the editor to act as special correspondent during the inaugural ceremony. He, of course, obtained the proper leave of absence from his chiefs, and departed to the scene of his labours. Those who desire to know aught of his brilliant despatches from Port Said may turn over a file of our contemporary, and satisfy themselves. It is sufficient for us to say, that his letters fully sustained the reputation of the great journal in which they appeared. His leave having expired, and our hero having further journalistic work in view, coolly telegraphed home (Civil Servants are usually cool fellows) that he was going on to Calcutta, and required extended leave. Our economical readers need not assume virtuous airs, since this further holiday involved the curtailment of pay. Whether or not his pen was busily employed during his brief visit to India we do not remember, but there can be little doubt that the readers of the Daily News profited by his prolonged absence from his official stool of repentance. But the longest holiday must have an end, and one fine morning our hero quietly walked into his old department, "signed on," hung his hat on its accustomed hook, and, after a pleasant chat with his old colleagues, went on for the rest of the day. His Chief, who, whatever his merit as an official, has always failed to see merit in others, at once reported him for absence without leave; but, before the report could be sent in to the authorities, our talented brother, with the lordly contempt of a man who has other irons in the fire, tendered his resignation. Thus ended his long career in Her Majesty's Service—a career which might have been eventful and brilliant if the authorities had had eyes to recognise the stuff of which he was made. It was absurd to expect such a man to drive a quill and cast accounts during the whole of his life; and the fact that he performed this distasteful work for so long a period, proves that the "square men" are wonderfully patient and resigned when the fates place them in the "round holes." No man is more fully competent to write upon the grievances of the Service than he, and, when he enters Parliament, we may expect that he will do something to ameliorate the condition of those with whose lot his own was cast. One recent shot of his has, indeed, fallen like a bomb shell in the midst of the "big wigs." We allude to the wonderful article on "The Board of Inland Revenue," which appeared in the columns of the World, to which journal our hero occasionally contributes.

His Masonic career has been much more eventful than his official life, and, as a Mason, he is known throughout the length and breadth of the land. He is a P.M. of the Universal Lodge, 181, a Past Deputy Grand Master of Middlesex, an office he held for a period of two years. He is Vice Patron of each of the Charities, and P.G.D. of England. So high a position as that which he holds in the ranks of the Order is rarely achieved without merit, and our brother has, indeed, thrown into the cause all those great talents for which he is remarkable. He is an able speaker; indeed, unlike most writers, he is as ready with his tongue as he is with his pen, but, like most literary men, he rarely airs his oratory without premeditation. Those who do not know him intimately are accustomed to speak of his austerity; and, doubtless, to those who see merely the external husk of his mind, he may appear slightly "angular." To those with whom he is intimate he is a most genial friend and companion. Austere manners are often unconsciously assumed by many of the most benevolent and kindly of men. Austerity is undoubtedly an unpleasant trait of character, but we English are all more or less "angular" persons, although some of us manage to get the more acute edges of the mind rubbed down in our intercourse with the world. Some of the best natures, however, like the diamond, refuse to yield to ordinary friction; and, with respect to our brother, if the facets of his intellect are sometimes unusually prominent, we should never forget that they indicate the high quality of the stuff of which his mental organisation is composed. His career since he has left the Civil Service has been one of high success. He has entered keenly into commercial pursuits, and has acquired wealth and distinction in the world. He is Chairman of the Alexandra Dock Company at Newport, Monmouthshire, a Director of several other flourishing companies, and, lastly, he is Master of the Needlemakers, one of the Livery Companies of the City of London, which promises, under his rule, to regain its old position of influence in the Councils of the Common Hall. When at home, our brother dispenses a princely hospitality, and is always glad to be surrounded with his friends. He would be equally glad of the society of some of the humbler members of the animal kingdom, but the rooks, notwithstanding his frequent negotiations, refuse to settle in the nests he has considerately built for them in the trees of his spacious park. Wealth in this country can command much, but rooks appear to despise the blandishments of the rich; and while we are all bowing down before the yellow idol, the independent attitude of this artful and unsnobbish bird almost inspires us with feelings of awe. Let it be said henceforth that the rich man, although he may purchase fame, and the applause of his kind, cannot buy the homage of one poor bird. If the rooks would but condescend to tell us what they think of human society as a whole, we should all be grateful to them. This wise bird is, we believe, given to moralising, and at least he might compose us a satire upon the vanity of human wishes.

Our brother is an ardent collector, not of art treasures although we believe he possesses fine artistic taste, but of horse-shoes. The walls of one room in his house are covered with these homely trophies, which he has picked in the course of his travels at home and abroad. When on horseback, he has often dismounted for the purpose of adding a stray shoe to his collection. Perhaps he has a vague idea, in spite of his training and education, that a horse-shoe is the talisman of good fortune. Many men of culture are not ashamed to confess that they hold theories at which all the schools and the professors of the "ologies" would laugh. But if the horse-shoes bring "luck," perhaps they have the effect of keeping away the rooks. The family to which this bird belongs (Corvidæ) has always had an evil reputation for its supposed alliance with the powers of darkness. The known virtues of a horse-shoe in keeping objectionable beings out of a house, will at once suggest to our brother that some mysterious connection exists between that remarkable room of his and the empty nests in the trees of his park. If he sighs for rooks, let him throw away his horse-shoes, and then, perhaps, the knowing birds will forget his wealth, and condescend to become his guests.

We have referred to the possibility of a parliamentary career for our eminent brother, and we believe he was strongly inclined, at the last general election, to contest a borough. Friends, upon whose judgment he relies, advised otherwise, but we believe it is settled that he is to try his fortune at the hustings, and if merit, which is a drag in the Civil Service, has its due weight with the constituencies, he will have no difficulty in winning a seat. In Parliament, on whatever side of the house he may sit, he will make his way; but we may fairly assume, since he is a member of the Reform Club, that he will be ambitious to sit for a Liberal borough. The party is depressed just now, but there are great questions looming in the distance, and in the discussion of them it may be his fortune to test his powers as a debater. But, wherever he goes, or to whatever work he may devote himself, he will always prove himself to be a man of great ability, of vast capacity for business, and an Englishman of a type which we would not willingly see die out.

SPECULATIONS ON THE PYRAMIDS.

THE Moslem invaders of the Great Pyramid found nothing to reward their labours but an empty, lidless coffer. So at least it would appear from the accounts given by the more sober chroniclers of the time. The romance writers, however, were not altogether silenced, and the descriptions given by these, after the event, were almost as remarkable as the speculations they had indulged in previously. According to one of them a dead body, with a breast-plate of gold, was discovered in the coffer, together with an emerald vase, a foot in length, a carbuncle, which shone with a light like the light of day, a sword of inestimable value, seven spans in length, and a coat of mail, twelve spans in length. Another declared that the coffer was crammed to the brim with gold pieces. Whilst a third launched forth into a multitude of oriental extravagances about columns of gold coins, magical images, and such like. It may, however, fairly be assumed that had anything been discovered of a nature to encourage investigation, the search would not have been so speedily abandoned as it was.

The treasures of ancient wisdom which Al Mamoun and his followers looked for in vain, some modern writers claim to have in part discovered. And it may be questioned whether the imaginative descriptions of the Arabian romancers were one whit more astounding than are the theories which have been gravely propounded by Professor Piazzi Smyth and others in the present century. According to these writers, the architect of the Great Pyramid must have possessed an acquaintance with astronomy such as the ablest scientific men of the present day can hardly claim to have attained. They assert that the standard of measurement employed in its construction was a cubit of 25·025 British inches in length, which was obtained by dividing the earth's axis of rotation by 20,000,000; that the base line of the Pyramid was got by multiplying this cubit by the precise number of days in the solar year, viz., 365·242; and that the height bears to the base line the exact proportion which the diameter of the circle bears to one-half its circumference. And they adduce no less an authority than Sir Isaac Newton for the fact that such a cubit was actually in use amongst the Hebrews, and other oriental nations, at the early period in which the Pyramid is supposed to have been erected. If even thus much of their theories could be substantiated, it would serve to show that the architect at least was in possession of astronomical truths which the utmost precision of modern scientific observation can barely ascertain to demonstration. One of the most recent computations as to the length of the earth's polar axis, that, namely, published by the Ordnance Survey in 1866, gave two results, one of which was about 720 cubits less than the Pyramid estimate, and the other, about 880 cubits more, the mean being almost precisely the length which Professor Smyth affirms to have been in the mind of the designer of the great Pyramid.

But the Professor pushes his contention still further. He asserts that this sacred cubit, the ten-millionth part of the earth's polar radius, has been more or less the origin and foundation of the hereditary standards of measurement all the countries of Europe. The Italian Braccio, the Prussian and Polish Ell, the French Aune, the Portugese Covado, besides the modern Egyptian Pic and the Persian Guerze, are all close copies of the ancient sacred cubit; whilst in England, although no exact equivalent can be found, the British inch, as near as possible the twenty-fifth part of the sacred cubit, affords a sufficient proof of connection with the old Egyptian standard.

The distance of the sun from the earth is also, according to the Professor, symbolically indicated in the Great Pyramid. This is the more remarkable, as the Ancients generally appear to have gone very much astray in their calculations on this head. In the age of the Greeks, the distance was estimated at only a few miles; later on it was computed at about 10,000 miles; even under the comparatively modern Kepler, the distance was thought to be only 86,000,000 miles; La Caille, in the time of Louis XIV., fixed it at 78,000,000; and towards the commencement of the present century it was asserted to be 95,000,000. The computations of the last few years have, however, somewhat diminished this last estimate, and it is now said to be something between ninety-one and a half million and ninety-two and a half million miles. The mean of these last computations corresponds exactly with Mr. Smyth's reading of the Pyramid—viz., 91,840,000 miles. The mean density of the earth is also, according to Mr. Smyth, logically deducible from the design of the Pyramid; whilst the date of its erection can be fixed with an almost certain exactness at the year 2170 B.C.

With regard to the coffer, Mr. Smyth believes that it was intended for, and has actually served the purpose of a general standard measure of capacity. Our English quarter (of wheat) is neither more nor less than a quarter of the content of the coffer, and the Italian Rubbio and the Maltese Salma are simply variations of the same. The bushel again, the eighth part of a quarter, equivalent to the German Scheffel and the Italian Tomolo, is traceable to the same source.

We have even now not touched upon many of the speculations and suggestions that have in ancient and modern times been associated with these monuments. Certain rites of Serapis, for instance, were at one time said to have been performed in the interior of the Great Pyramid, and some Masonic writers have given the traditions concerning them at considerable length. We have probably, however, said enough to show how great a stimulus to human thought and imagination these Masive works have afforded. As a specimen of Masonry, formed to endure through countless years, the Great Pyramid stands unrivalled on the face of the globe, and fairly justifies the inscription said by an Arab tradition to have been written upon its outer casing by the architect, "I have built them, and whoever considers himself powerful, may try to destroy them. Let him, however, reflect that to destroy is easier than to build."

THE Galatea had come from China and Japan, and before that, I think, from Honolulu. At some of these places, especially Japan, the Duke must have had what Yankees call "a good time." I asked how he managed to pass the tedium of long trips between distant ports, whereupon Mr. Yorke (whose abilities in that line I conceived to be of no mean order) enlightened me regarding the Saturday nights' entertainments which they were accustomed to hold, wherein the suite, with selected officers, sailors, and marines (not excepting the Duke, with his violin), enacted concerts, recitations, and plays of all sorts; prizes being competed for on these occasions by the crew, and the greatest possible fun and merriment extracted from grotesque competitions of the honest tars.

If the Duke really supposed he would be taken at his word, and be received simply as the captain of a ship, he was undeceived upon discerning a gunboat steaming out of the river, upon whose deck moved a glittering mass, resolvable under our binoculars into a posse of officials, headed by the Lieutenant Governor (Segundo Cabo) of the Colony. They were coming to bid H.R.H. welcome, in the name of the Governor General; and it was thereupon decided that courtesy demanded a special message from H.R.H. to His Excellency, stating the exact time convenient for landing and officially conveying compliments. This commission was entrusted to me, and, ere the gunboat neared the Galatea, I was well on my way to shore.

After reporting my instructions at the Palace, I drove to the Consular office, with a view to dispose of any current work which might be found pressing. There was the usual contingent of shipmasters, to deposit or receive back their papers; the usual batch of attestations waiting for signature, and the usual British seamen (drunk and disorderly) in charge of police. An unusual number of Spanish officers in full uniform happened to call, and prisoner Jack—with the wit which getting three sheets in the wind engenders—amused me much, by apostrophising one who had not the usual sword at his side, with "Why, mate, you only want a peacock's feather in your tail, to make you a b—— bird of paradise!"

Other matters disposed of, and disorderly Jack furnished with a warrant for the usual lodgings which wind up a poor sailor's spree at a foreign port, I departed for the landing-place, which had been appointed as rendezvous. A tropical shower was soaking all the decorations, and the pennants of the kiosk where I alighted, hung dripping and spiritless. As I stood in its entrance, gazing up the avenue of trees to the city walls, came hurrying along a Spanish orderly, evidently on some mission to somewhere. In gala uniform, without capote, the prospect of being drenched was working him up to fury. Expressive oaths in his own sonorous language, rattled in volleys as he stood up under the eaves; and presently his emotions overcame him. Excitedly taking out his handkerchief, and making a nest of it in his left hand, he emphatically adjured the sky, exclaiming, "Virgin Mother of God, go inside!" and rammed an imaginary being into it, with his right; "San José, a dentro (go inside) !" he continued—"San Pedro, a dentro! San Juan! San Antonio! San Domingo! and so through a long list of his patrons; this over, he gave the kerchief another tight fold, and laying it squarely on the ground, shouted "I jump upon you;" which he forthwith displayed his activity and animosity by doing. His wounded feelings now relieved, he twisted his moustache and bolted out again into the pouring rain.

The chief officials and the Corporation soon began to arrive. From the façade of the pavilion a covered way led to the quay, and overhung the water. From roof and sides depended streamers and escutcheons. The back entrance looked upon an avenue which entered the broad road skirting the city wall. Between road and wall lay the parallel fosse, its banks laid out with flower beds and clumps of shrubbery. Tropical foliage and tree-tops varied the monotony of massive stonework and dusty roadway, with rich perennial green. Along the road were variegated lines of soldiery, white faced with crimson being the predominating tint. The pennons of a troop of Lancers flanked the line of vehicles, and a crowd of brilliantly attired natives swayed in clusters round. Along the river bank, lines of decoration and emblematic devices diversified the frontages on either shore. Arches spanned the roads, surmounted by heraldic allusions to fraternity betwixt England and Spain. Military bands were just visible among the trees by the lofty monument of Magellan, and the old gilt state coaches were there in readiness, each with four horses, to convey the party to the house of Aviles, which had been prepared for the visitors' occupancy in the suburb of San Sebastian.

Sinuously winding through the lines of small craft in the river, came the "Polyphemo," steam-launch of the Galatea, and rounded up against the landing stage, upon which stood the Governor alone. The Duke strode across with a hearty hand-shake, and as the guns of the fort thundered in salute, and the bands struck up our National Anthem, all moved in order through the kiosk to the carriages. Thence, horses prancing and arms presented, a long procession wound through the suburbs, past occasional cheering knots of Englishmen, under the triumphal arches, in a dismal drizzle, to San Sebastian. Here the Governor and other authorities took leave for the time, and left us to comparative quietude and luncheon.

Here cropped up the question of "receptions;" the Governor had a long list of dignitaries to present, and the British residents had their address, to the proper delivery of which every man of them considered his individual presence to be of the first importance. This, it was found upon going into the question, would never do: to me was delegated the unpleasant and invidious duty of impressing the same upon the British community, and of selecting three only out of the number for the privilege.

The presentations were at last got through, including one of specimen school-children under the Jesuit fathers, who had laboriously mastered a speech in English for the occasion. Lucky it was, for the effect of the latter, that I had glanced over it by the Govenor's request, and corrected such gifted aberrations as "delightsomeness," or parents would have lost faith in Padre Bertran, the good Jesuit Prior. Princes are but mortal, and this one, having stood for three hours at 88° in the shade, patiently bowing to the numerous Dons who filed before him, was fatigued when the British deputation reached the ante-room. The spokesman owned a comely presence which would have given full effect to studied emphasis and graceful gesture. To be told that the address—that matchless product of anxious incubation—would be "taken as read" and replied to on another occasion, must have been a heavy blow. With perturbed countenances and hesitating footsteps the deputation entered, the precious scroll was passed into a hand which passed it to somebody behind; for one moment their leader, in the throes of inspiration, paused irresolute, but the bow of congé was not to be mistaken, and they retired—sadder, but wiser men.

LODGE OF PRUDENT BRETHREN, No. 145.

Centenary Festival and Installation Banquet.

THESE interesting events were celebrated on Tuesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and passed off in a manner that must have given the greatest satisfaction to all who had an opportunity of being present. Credit is due to Bro. John Boyd, Past Grand Pursuivant, P.M. and Treasurer, for the proud position the Lodge occupies. In order that time might be given for the day's proceedings, a Lodge of Emergency had been held the previous week. The brethren met in the Zetland room, and ample accommodation was provided for the numerous assemblage. The Worshipful Master, Bro. G. Purkess, occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. E. H. Thiellay (A.G.P. Middlesex) S.W., G. S. States P.G.S. Secretary, and P.M.'s Bros. T. Bull, Moore, &c. Amongst those present as Visitors we noticed Colonel Burdett, Colonel Creaton, J. Nunn, John Hervey, Capt. Phillips, T. Cubitt, C. A. Cottebrune, Rev. P. Holden, H. Norman, J. Constable, G. Kenning, R. W. Little, F. Binckes, Jas. Terry, H. G. Buss, Swallow, D. H. Jacobs, Barnes, Amor, H. Massey, Cox, H. Dicketts, Thomas, Dwarber, Smith, J. Boyd jun., Lane, C. Moody, F. Walters, Pendlebury, Col. Peters, Major Clarke, F. Godfrey, W. S. Nicholls, Dr. Todd, Wills, A. Swanborough and H. M. Levy. After the preliminaries had been gone through, Bro. John Boyd took the chair, and Bro. E. H. Thiellay was presented by Bro. T. Bull. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. Boyd in a most perfect manner, and the P.M.'s and W.M.'s present, numbering 47, expressed their gratification at the ability displayed. Bro. Thiellay appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. G. Purkess I.P.M., Moult S.W., Hazlett J.W., John Boyd Treasurer, G. S. States Secretary, Manby Assistant Secretary, Hughes S.D., Leggott J.D., Lewis I.G., Eater D.C., Wilkinson A.D.C., Terry W.S., and Grant Tyler. The Lodge was then called off, and the brethren sat down to a very sumptuous and recherché banquet, where the wines and viands provided by Bro. Francatelli were of the choicest description. The tickets and the menus were of a chaste and elegant design, and every brother was provided with a "button-hole," furnished by Bro. John Wills, F.R.H.S., while on the table two scent fountains were playing. These were provided by the W.M. and supplied by Bro. Defries. The Rev. Bro. Hobben said grace. Bro. Thiellay, in brief but appropriate terms, proposed "The Health of Her Majesty the Queen," and coupled with it "Prosperity to the Craft." The National Anthem was then sung. The W.M. then proposed the toast of "H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales," who he hoped would be spared to preside over them for many years, even after attaining the proud position of King of this great country. He hoped he would return to his native land in health. (Loud cheers.) The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Past and Present Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of England. He was proud to see Bro. Col. Burdett, Provincial Grand Master, Middlesex, present on this occasion, where he had also been honoured by so many distinguished visitors, members of the Grand Lodge of England. (Cheers.) Bro. Carter then sang "Sweet Madoline," and was loudly encored. Bro. Col. Burdett, amidst loud applause, made a very excellent speech, in the course of which he spoke of the duties of the M.W. the Earl of Carnarvon and the R.W. the Earl of Skelmersdale, and dilated on the qualifications of these noble brethren. He trusted H.R.H. the Prince of Wales would long live to reign over them, and should he cease to preside over their assemblies, he was sure he would not forget the Masonic body. (Cheers.) The brethren referred to in the toast were heart and soul connected with the Order, and he had much pleasure in representing many past and present Grand Officers, who had and would discharge their duties satisfactorily. (Cheers.) Bro. Hyde Pullen P.G.S. then, in very eloquent terms, proposed the Prosperity of the Lodge. He gave a very interesting account of its history and progress. He said it was one of the old Athol Lodges. The warrant was granted, but it had no name until 1813. The brethren met, and the first Lodge was held in Covent Garden. It then met at Bethnal-green, and afterwards at Belgrave-square, then at Freemasons' Hall, and somewhere else for a short time, and now they return in prosperity to the Hall. They worked their way steadily—there was no cessation from their duties, and when a brother was in difficulties their feet never halted until his necessities were relieved. He then asked them to drink, with one accord, Prosperity to the Prudent Brethren Lodge. Miss Matilda Scott sang "Within a mile of Edinboro' Town." Bro. Col. Burdett then proposed the toast of the W.M. He said the one chosen to occupy the chair had been initiated in the Lodge, and had filled every office with credit. All knew his capabilities, and every brother in the Lodge respected him. He felt it the highest privilege to propose the toast of the W.M. (Loud cheers.) The W.M. said it was his crowning aspiration to be in the chair of his Mother Lodge, and if he had shortcomings, he would say to them, "To err is human, to forgive divine." Before resuming his seat he remarked that it was always pleasant to give honour to whom honour was due, but he would not yield to any one in the high estimation in which he held Bro. John Boyd. He then enumerated the great services rendered by that brother to the Lodge, and also to the Craft. He had been Master of the Lodge for two years, and held the office of Treasurer for many more, he was also a distinguished member of the Grand Lodge of England. In the name of each brother of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, who so thoroughly respected him, he presented Bro. Boyd with a silver tea and coffee service and silver salver, and he hoped he might live long in health and prosperity; such, he was sure, was the hearty wish of every brother. (Cheers.) He also had an additional pleasure, in presenting him with the Centenary Jewel, as the oldest member and Father of the Lodge. The brethren would remember this great event. To Bro. John Boyd was due the credit for the arrangement of the proceedings. In conclusion, he said, may the G.A.O.T.U. give him health and strength. (Cheers.) Bro. John Boyd then rose. He had had on many occasions to return thanks in various capacities, frequently as a Grand Officer, and also as Treasurer of the Lodge; it was always a pleasant duty. He had occasionally to keep back a trifle, but that was to give something to the Masonic Charities when a Bro. of the Lodge acted as Steward for one of them, but to-night we hold the 101st Installation meeting, and celebrate the Centenary of this Lodge. He could not find terms adequate to express his thanks for the magnificent testimonial they had presented him with. The W.M. had been pleased to place on his breast the 1st Centenary Jewel. The service of plate he have seen for the first time, and it was only within the last fortnight that he heard it had been in contemplation for 12 months. It showed they were able to keep a secret, and might be justly denominated "Prudent Brethren" (cheers), but their secret having been kept it had a greater charm for him. He concluded by heartily and sincerely thanking them. (Loud cheers.) Bro. Boyd then proposed the toast of the Visitors, mentioning their names seriatim. He, as well as the members of the Lodge, were proud to see those who had honoured them by their presence at this Centenary Festival. Bro. John Hervey returned thanks. It was the greatest compliment that could have been paid the Craft, the fact that so many invitations had been sent out, but at this late hour of the evening he should not take up valuable time, but in the name of the Visitors he could say they had all thoroughly enjoyed themselves, and, as Visitors, wished continued prosperity to the Prudent Brethren Lodge. Bro. T. Bull then proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities, and, in a capital speech, said he was pleased to see three brethren present, secretaries of those noble institutions. To those brethren great credit was due for the able manner in which they had carried out the duties required of them. They had been well supported by the Craft, and several brethren of this Lodge had been Stewards, and had collected large amounts, and would be pleased to do so again. (Cheers.) Bro. Jas. Terry eloquently returned thanks for the toast. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters, and he said every one had discharged his duty faithfully. To Bro. Parkess great credit was due for the manner he had performed his duties during the past year. The summer banquet at the Alexandra Palace was a great success. He then presented him with a very elegant Past Master's Jewel, as a recognition of his services during the past year, also with the Centenary Jewel, and in placing them on his breast he did so with much pleasure, for he well deserved them. Bro. Parkess suitably acknowledged the valuable gifts. He would remember with pride being W.M. of the Lodge, and representing it at the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. He paid a deserved compliment to Bro. G. States for his exertions during his year of office, and who rendered valuable assistance to enable him to carry out those duties. The Lodge was then called on, and the Tyler's toast concluded one of the most enjoyable evenings ever spent in the Prudent Brethren Lodge. The W.M. presented the Lodge with a very elegant oak cigar box, with large silver plate, suitably inscribed, for the use of the brethren. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Theodore Distin and Madame Osborne Williams. Bro. Carter and Miss Matilda Scott delighted the brethren with some very excellent songs.

PALATINE AND JERUSALEM CHAPTER OF ANTIQUITY (No. 2, A. AND P. RITE).

A meeting of this ancient and United Chapter, preliminary to commencing active work, was held at the Crown Inn, near Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Tuesday evening, the 20th January. The Judicial Council, composed of the ruling officers of the three sections of the Rite, met four days previously, and audited the accounts of the present Treasurer, Ill. Bro. John Yarker 33°, and reported the same correct. Their recommendations as to certain derelict brethren was also adopted, and it was resolved to give the previous Treasurer six months' notice to shew cause why he should not be expelled, for withholding funds belonging to the Rite; also six months' notice to certain other brethren in arrears, that they would be excluded. It was considered by all present that it was best to purge the Order and the Rite of objectionable members. Some alterations were made in the list of officers, and the Grand Master, Ill. Bro. Yarker, gave a highly satisfactory account of the progress of the Rite, and exhibited the last proofs of the Statutes, Ceremonials, and History, a book of 220 pages.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The grand secret.—With the fogs and foul vapours of winter, ill health will creep in, unless the blood from time to time be purified, and noxious matters expelled from the body, which all-important operations are effected by this medicine without inconvenience with ordinary occupations. Testimonials from all sorts and conditions of persons, dispersed far and wide, fully establishes this point. In this matter the public may be its own judge. Holloway's Pills may be purchased at a trifling cost. Instructions for taking them will be furnished with the Pills, and a little attention, with few restrictions, will enable persons to keep themselves in health under very trying circumstances. These Pills act as alterative, tonic and aperients.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

A Month in Mayo, comprising characteristic sketches (sporting and social) of Irish Life; with Miscellaneous Papers. By George Rooper, author of "Flood, Field, and Forest," "Tales and Sketches," "Thames and Tweed," etc., etc. London: Robert Hardwicke, 192 Piccadilly, W. 1876.

It may have been the good fortune of some of our readers to have already met with Mr. Rooper in the field of literature, or in other words, to have read one or more of his previous works. In this case then it is hardly necessary we should enlarge on the pleasure they will derive from his Month in Mayo. They will naturally look in these pages for the same practical advice in all matters relating to sport, the same descriptive power as regards scenery and people, the same insight into character, which marked his earlier performances. Nor will they look in vain. The same features characterise his present work as characterised his former. To those who have not yet made the acquaintance of Mr. Rooper as an author, we say advisedly, "Lose no time then in becoming acquainted with him through the medium of the book before us. We are sure you will find him one of the most entertaining writers in this particular branch of literature." And as evidence of the soundness of our advice, we offer the following remarks on the sporting and social sketches comprised in A Month in Mayo, premising, however, that Mr. Rooper, having some time since regularly resided during a part of the year "in a wild corner" of this county, writes as one having authority to write of the people he came in contact with and the country he describes.

The book opens with the arrival of Mr. Charles (or Charlie) on a visit to a Mr. Blake, residing with his niece, Honoria O'Hara, at a place named Bogleese. The welcome he receives is what we should expect, for Mr. Blake is described as having "a pleasant kindly expression in his bright eye, which seemed to glitter with suppressed fun and humour, and a joke seemed to be ever playing round the corners of his expressive mouth." We are further told that "he bore upon his face and in his manner the characteristic marks of the Irish gentleman of the day before yesterday. Courteous, but shrewd, humorous and slightly sarcastic, open, friendly, observant, and discriminating." The very moment almost of Charlie's arrival is marked by the following amusing incident:—His luggage is being tended and the sherry and biscuits have been ordered, when "a ragged, breechless, stockingless, shoeless, capless varlet, some six years old, with sturdy legs, blue eyes, and flaxen, unkempt hair appears." "What is it you're wanting, you little mischief?" says Mr. Blake. "Shure, dadda's afther takin' the pledge, and Minnie sent me to ax yer 'onner to sarve him"—this, by the way, being a new Minnie of dadda's, and it is at her instance the pledge is to be taken by "Larry"—"a wild-looking man, lightly clad in what was once a shooting jacket, evidently of English make, but sadly dilapidated, a pair of corduroy breeches, loose at the knee, worsted stockings, and strong clouted shoes." Larry has taken to himself a second wife, and is anxious, in order to please her, to take the pledge. But it is evident from the following that Larry has gone through this ceremony more than once.

"'Why, Larry,' says Mr. Blake, 'It's not six month's since you took it for a year and a day, and you were found screaming drunk on your own threshhold within a month.'

'Faix, thin, and that's threw for yer 'onner, but it was not forsworn I was; I swore not to taste the dhrop 'inside the house nor outside,' and it was sitting on the threshold itself—one leg in and one leg out—that I took an eggshell, or maybe two, of the craythur. It was my sister's wedding.'

'But you took the pledge again, Larry, not six weeks since, and you were roaring drunk on Tuesday was a week; you know it, Larry, and you had sworn not to taste liquor on the face of God's earth or under it.'

'That's blessed thruth itself, an I'd scorn to tell a lie, let alone swearing one. It was in the boll of the culd pollard nut that I sat, when the little dhrop was brought to me: it was the christening, and troth, that same time mighty quick after the wedding!"

'Well, come and take the pledge at once, then, and mind you keep it, or I'll tell his Reverence and your new wife too.'

'I, Larry Toole, do solemnly swear,——'

'Beg pardon, Mr. Blake,' whispered I; 'you've got a volume of the Sporting Magazine there, not the——'

'Good enough for him, the blaguard!' was the response, and the newly-married convert to teetotalism departed, deeply imbued with the sanctity of the oath, and resolved to observe it, at least until he could find a specious pretext for breaking it!"

It is hardly necessary to assure our readers that Charlie's visit is most agreeably spent, and that it requires a peremptory summons from Cambridge for him to return forthwith to his Alma Mater to bring it to a close. The incidents which are crowded into the brief visit are as amusing—in some cases we may describe them also as instructive—as they are numerous. Even the very first day after his arrival is portioned out into a morning's shooting, to which is added an unanticipated visit to "the Small Still," without in any way disturbing the still small voice of conscience, and an afternoon's shooting under the guidance of Miss Honor, when Charlie makes his first step towards proficiency in fly-fishing, and lands, after a stout fight, a fine salmon, weighing close on sixteen pounds. Nor does this terminate the day's adventures, for they meet an "Irish Ball" on the return home, and have a narrow escape for their lives. The next chapter, on Sea-Fishing, contains an illustration of the wonderful powers of the priesthood over the lower orders in Ireland. A coil of rope had been stolen from the boat belonging to Mr. Blake, but the passage explains itself better than any description we might give it; so we quote it at length:—

Thus, the fact that every Speculative Mason is consid on its ground floor, or checkered pavement, necessarily le

And then, again, the Temple of Solomon is a peculiar s symbol of the Masonic science. It is found nowhere els other symbols of Speculative Masonry may be met with i ganizations—both ancient and modern—which make sp symbolic science. Even the square and compass, which suppose to be peculiarly Masonic symbols, were used, with signification, by the Hermetic philosophers. The scenic, symbol used in Speculative Masonry, have been appropri in the Ancient Mysteries, some by the Pythagoreans, and the Gnostics, the Alchemists, the Theosophists, and other stitutions of antiquity or of the Middle Ages.

But the Temple of Solomon is a symbol to be met wit foundation stone on which the Masonic symbolism has be

It is, therefore, well worth inquiry how this importa originated and how it became incorporated into the M tem.

In prosecuting this enquiry, if we would seek the truth throw aside, in the commencement of our investigation, th ploded theory that there was a Lodge held at Jerusalem, King Solomon presided as Worshipful Master with the t as his Wardens. The fanciful speculations of Anderson must be rejected, and we must be content with the plain ago, Chemin-Dupontes, a learned French writer, said tha myth for the true origin of the symbol.

The first notice of the Temple as a symbol is to be fo

They retorted, "Forty and six years was this temple in bu wilt thou rear it up in three days?" But the Evang prehended his meaning, for he adds: "But he spake of the his body."

This use of the Temple as a symbol of the body, thus by the founder of our religion, was afterwards universally a Christian symbol. St. Paul, the most metaphorical of al Testament writers, repeatedly makes use of it. "Know y says, "that ye are the temple of God;" and again: "The God is holy, which temple ye are," and so in other places.
Christian Fathers, such as Tertullian, Jerome and Orige the same symbolic idea. And at a later period, the Jes pardus, who lived in the sixteenth century, and who wrote tion of the City and Temple of Jerusalem, has carried the to an extreme by details, for he represents the Temple as Christ on the Cross, and as Samuel Lee, in his Orbis Mira presses it, "with a strange and uncouth fancy" interpret of the crucified Saviour as representing the sanctuary, his altar, his feet the eastern gate, and his outstretched hands on the north and the south.

But Christian writers have also symbolised the Temple of the whole congregated Christian church. "As the Tem Lee, "was the material house wherein God was worshi the Jewish administration, so is the church, under the G spiritual Temple of God, wherein his holy spirit dwelleth."
refers to Tertullian as expressing the same idea.

This double Christian symbolism, whereby the Temple w represent man as an individual, and the church as cons in Masonry, where the Temple symbolizes every Mason in his individuality, and also the Lodge or the congregation of a body of Masons. In applying the Temple, Masonically as a symbol, sometimes the former interpretation is adopted and sometimes the latter; but the latter is the one more commonly used, and perhaps more readily comprehended by the Fraternity.

It is, then, apparent that the first application of the Temple of Solomon as a symbol was by the Saviour, who used it while in the Temple as a means of teaching the dogma of the resurrection, by comparing it to his body, which in three days after his death was to rise from the grave.

And so, it is evident that in its first inception and in its subsequent use by Christian writers, the Temple of Solomon was a Christian symbol.

Leaving now, for a time, the question of the meaning of the symbol, let us enquire how the Temple of Solomon became historically, or rather traditionally connected with modern Speculative Masonry.

For this connection we must look to the Old Constitutions of the Operative Stonemasons of the Middle Ages. Now these old Masons in their idea of Masonry united it with Geometry and Architecture, making the three words almost synonymous. Hence their legend of the rise and progress of Masonry was really a legend of the rise and progress of the art of building. They made no distinction in this legend between a builder and a Mason. Their manuscript Constitutions accordingly give us a history of the construction of the most important or famous edifices of antiquity, all of which they supposed or pretended were constructed by the Fraternity. When, therefore, they were identifying their predecessors with the builders of the Tower of Babel, the city of Nineveh and the massive temples of Egypt, it is not to be supposed that they would omit all reference to the Temple of Solomon. On the contrary, in all these Constitutions, except the first, this Temple plays an important part. A very brief inspection of these Old Records will satisfy any one of the truth of of this statement.

The earliest of these Constitutions, that known as the Halliwell MS. (whose date is conjecturally about 1390), though it alludes to the Tower of Babel and the works of Euclid in Egypt, makes no reference to the Solomonic Temple. It is indeed singular that in this eminently Christian Constitution, having more reference to the Church than any that succeeded it, the Temple, hallowed as a symbolic idea by the words of our Lord, should have been passed over in utter silence.

But in the Constitutions called the Cooke MS., which is one hundred years more recent, the Temple theory is fully developed. We have no manuscripts extant between those of Halliwell and Cooke, but it cannot be doubted that there were such, and that the Cooke M.S. is only a copy of an older one. Therefore, we may conclude that the legend of the Temple was introduced into the Masonic legend early in the fifteenth century. The account of the Temple in its relations to Masonry is given in the Cooke MS. as follows. For the convenience of readers not accustomed to the archaic style of these old documents, I give the passage a modern dress, but as literal as possible:—

When the children of Israel dwelt in Egypt, they learned the Craft of Masonry. And afterward, when they were driven out of Egypt, they came into the land of promise, which is now called Jerusalem, and it was occupied. King David loved Masons well, and he gave them charges right nigh as they are now. And at the making of the Temple in Solomon's time, as it is said in the Bible, in the 3rd Book of Kings, chapter v., that Solomon had four score thousand Masons at his work. And the King's son, of Tyre, was his Master Mason. And in other chronicles, and in old books of Masonry, it is said that Solomon confirmed the charges that David his father had given to Masons. And Solomon himself taught them their customs, but little different from the customs that are now used.

In the next extant Constitutions, the Lansdowne MS., whose date is seventy years after that of the Cooke MS., we find the same narrative, but somewhat amplified. And so it continued to be detailed in all the subsequent Constitutions, with no essential variation, up to the year 1714, which is the date of the Papworth MS. The Constitution published in 1722 was undoubtedly printed from a manuscript of a much older date, and, of course, it contains the same story with no important alteration.

In the year 1717 the operative element in the Order was wholly abandoned, and the purely Speculative adopted by the organization or revival of the Grand Lodge of England.

But the legend which connected Masonry with King Solomon's Temple was retained, and many more particular details were added to it.

Accordingly, in the Constitutions, published in 1723 by Anderson and Desaguliers, the history of the Temple is given at some length, and the connection of the Masons with it more minutely described. Solomon is styled the Grand Master of the Craft, and the name of Hiram Abif is for the first time introduced as Solomon's "Master of the Work."

In the Constitutions published by Anderson alone, in 1738, this history is greatly amplified, and the connection of the Craft with the Temple more definitely treated.

And in the earliest rituals of that period we find the Temple introduced. Thus one of them gives as one of the reasons why three make a Lodge, "that there were three Grand Masons at the building of Solomon's Temple."

It is true that in this ritual, which is of the first degree, there is no other allusion to the Temple, those contained in the present rituals being subsequent additions. And hence, Krause, in his Drei ältesten Kunsturkunden (Vol. i., p. 200), urges this silence as a proof that the Temple was not at that time a fundamental symbol of Masonry.

I think that this learned German is here in error. For, in the first place, the very fact that the Temple is mentioned, even though it be only once, is sufficient evidence that the symbolic idea was not unknown to the framers of the ritual; and, again, the first degree is not the one in which the symbolism of the Temple is most fully developed. The most important references to it are to be found in the third degree, which in fact is wholly based on the Temple legend.

Hutchinson, who wrote his Spirit of Masonry, about the middle of the last century, and whose work is necessarily a commentary on the ritual then practised, and on the symbols which it taught, devotes a chapter to "the Temple at Jerusalem," because, as he says, he thinks it necessary to call attention to the circumstances "touching this structure, as an illustration of those secrets in Masonry which may appear to such of our brethren as are not learned in antiquity dark or insignificant." In his opinion, certainly, the Temple was a fundamental symbol.

But Krause admits all that I shall require for the support of my hypothesis when he says that while the old Masons must have greatly esteemed the Temple of Solomon as the Temple of the only God and as a wonderful work of art, they had also another reason for earnestly imprinting it on their minds, which reason was connected with the history of the Corporations of Builders of the Middle Ages. "For," says he, "the Popes had, by various bulls, bestowed upon those wandering builders the privilege of travelling into all Christian countries, and had compared them to Solomon and his architects, because they were aiding in the extension of Christendom by the erection of new Temples, which, like that of Solomon, were dedicated to the only God.

I think, then, that it may be assumed that the Temple of Solomon, as a fundamental symbol, was borrowed by the Speculative Masons at the beginning of the last century from the Operative Masons who preceded them, and that these had introduced it into their "Legend of the Craft," which is contained in all their Constitutions, simply because that legend was really a history of architecture, and the Temple of Solomon, as a wonderful result of that art, could not be omitted in any history of ancient architecture. And undoubtedly another reason for its introduction, was, as Krause suggests, because the Freemasons of the Middle Ages erecting temples for Christian worship, had been compared to Solomon whose temple was constructed for the worship of the one God, according to the Jewish idea.

It is then to the connection of this Temple with the history of architecture, and especially of ecclesiastical architecture, that the Modern Masons are indebted for the important part that it performs in their ritual, and not to any belief that Speculative Masonry was organized at the building of the Temple. That was an after thought unknown to the Mediæval Freemasons.

Having said thus much of the origin of the symbol, it is proper that some consideration should be given to its true meaning and accepted interpretation.

And here we will be struck by the very evident analogy that exists between the Christian and the Masonic signification of the symbol. It has already been shown, in the first part of this article, that the Christian symbolism of the temple was double, that is, that it was sometimes interpreted as referring to man as an individual Christian, and sometimes to men in their collective capacity as a congregation of Christians forming the Church.

And so the Masonic symbolism of the Temple is likewise double. Sometimes it refers to the individual Mason, and sometimes to the collective body of Masons who constitute the Lodge.

When the initiate is presented with the working tools of his profession and is instructed to use them for the "noble and glorious purpose" of erecting in his heart an edifice of such purity that it may be fit for the indwelling of the Divine Spirit, just as the Shechinah or Glory of God rested in the innermost sanctuary of the Jewish Temple: the idea is presented to him of a spiritual man symbolized by a material temple. The Pauline expression now becomes realised and comprehensible—"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" Here the Temple becomes the symbol of the individual Mason.

And, again, when the candidate advances on the checkered floor, or ascends the winding stairs or enters the holy of holies, it is the Lodge that becomes the symbol of the Temple of which each Mason is a constituent stone.

And so this double interpretation is being continually presented in its varied forms, so that in the Masonic as in the Christian symbolism of the Temple both the individual and the congregation of individuals are alternately referred to. It is evident that the Masonic idea being so completely identified with the Christian, the former must have been suggested by the latter.

The summary of all this, then, is as follows:

1. The Temple of Solomon as an historical idea was derived by the Speculative Masons from the Mediæval Stonemasons who inserted it in their legend simply in its architectural relations and without any mystical meaning.

2. As a symbolic idea it was suggested by and derived from the Christian symbol first alluded to by Christ, amplified by St. Paul and repeated by the early Christian Fathers.

Such I suppose to be the true history of the origin of the symbol and of its meaning.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

IN accordance with the announcement made last week, the necessary preparations are being made for the Opening of Parliament by the Queen in person. The arrangements, as on all previous occasions, will be under the management of the police, Captain Harris, one of the Assistant Commissioners, being specially charged with the conduct of the arrangements. It is further stated that the Princess of Wales will accompany Her Majesty, a special messenger having left London for Copenhagen, in order to arrange for the return journey of the Princess.

The latest news of the movements of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales places him at Agra, where the reception accorded His Royal Highness was very magnificent. There were several hundred elephants in the procession, and as many as seventeen Rajahs were present to greet him. En route the Prince stopped at Umritsur, where he witnessed the illumination of the Golden Temple. He also paid a visit to the Rajah of Gallisla, by whom he was splendidly entertained.

We note the sounds of warning that the commencement of the Parliamentary Session is at hand, with greater distinctness every day. Cabinet Councils are being frequently held, while the chiefs of the Opposition have been publicly declaring their opinions on the most important political questions to which the attention of the Legislature will be directed. Among the topics to which reference is most frequently made are the Slave Circular, which appears to come in for a considerable amount of abuse, the Suez Canal, and the note of Count Andrassy which will be shortly presented to the Sublime Porte for its acceptance, and which will be so presented with the concurrence of all the Great Powers. The Disraeli Cabinet have allowed its adhesion to the principles of the note to become publicly known, at the same time, while supporting the action of Austria to this extent, it has reserved to itself the right to be governed in the future by such considerations as may seem desirable. Among the leading Opposition Members who have been addressing their constituents must be mentioned Mr. Bright, whose speech was a very long one, and was well received by his audience, and Mr. Forster, who spoke at Bradford, directing his attention chiefly to the purchase of the Suez Canal Shares, an act which he most strongly condemned.

On Friday last, a Mr. R. B. Oakley was brought before the Lord Mayor and Alderman Sir Robert Carden, on a warrant charging him with having obtained certain sums of money and valuable securities from a Mr. H. R. Snellgrove, of Exeter, and a lady residing in Wales. The defendant is the proprietor and manager of the Co-operative Credit Bank, and it is alleged the amount of his defalcations will reach the very considerable figure of £40,000. Having heard a certain amount of evidence, the prisoner was remanded for a week, the Lord Mayor declining to admit him to bail in the meantime. A Mr. William F. Dyer, a clerk in the employ of the North London Railway Company, has also been remanded to the next Session of the Central Criminal Court, for having uttered counterfeit coin to the passengers by that line. The Treasury have undertaken the prosecution, and the Company's servants have rendered every facility in their power, for which the Treasury Solicitor publicly expressed his thanks in open court. Another alleged case of fraud has been before the Police Magistrate at Worship-street, a Mr. John Greaves being charged with having obtained, within four months of his bankruptcy, goods on credit from various persons, and disposed of them in other than the ordinary course of business. Mr. Greaves was further remanded on the same bail as before.

The Clio has been lent by the Government to the Marine Society to replace the Warspite. It has arrived off Woolwich from the Medway, but Captain Phipps has not yet taken possession, nor, it is said, will he do so till she is safely moored in the berth assigned for her at or near the dockyard. The Ordnance Store Department is reported to be averse to her lying there, on the score that with her draught (17 feet) of water she will ground every tide, and cause damage to her hull.

The Royal Naval School at Greenwich, which has, hitherto, regularly fed, clothed, and educated eight hundred boys for the Navy, will, by a recent decision of the Lords of the Admiralty, be enlarged, so as to provide accommodation for an additional two hundred.

If we except, perhaps, the terrrible Abergele accident, the disaster at Abbott's Ripton, about four miles from Huntingdon, on the great Northern Railway, appears to be one of the most terrible that ever happened, and unpunctuality appears to have been at the bottom of the affair. A mineral train was being shunted when the up express dashed into some of the waggons, and immediately the passengers were jerked to and fro, and several received severe contusions. The down express was known to be due, and the engine of the mineral train went up the line to prevent, if possible, a further catastrophe, but unfortunately, the driver of the down express had an insufficient brake power, and the consequence was, it dashed into the overturned waggons and carriages, smashing them as though they were matchwood, and killing and wounding a considerable number of the passengers. We believe already fifteen deaths have occurred, among them being a young Mr. Boucicault, the son of the actor of that name, while the injuries which many have received have been very fearful. The Great Northern line is said to be worked on the block system, but it is clear the block system is inefficacious to prevent accidents. Considering, too, there are several powerful brakes in existence, it is strange that trains should be allowed to make a journey without being furnished with one strong enough to stop a train in a quarter of a mile. We remember about two years since having inspected a model of the Heberlein continuous self-acting brake, so named after the inventor, and used on a great many German, Austrian and Russian lines. The evidence of the value of this brake was very strong indeed, and its effect when applied was almost instantaneous. Existing carriages and engines could easily be fitted with the necessary apparatus, while the expense, if we remember rightly, was not very considerable. It could be applied to every carriage, or only to the engine and front and hind carriages of all, while the apparatus for working was very simple, a mere pull of the connecting line or the moving of a handle being all that was required to apply it. We believe it is used on a section of the North London Railway, and found to answer admirably. Then, too, there is the Westinghouse air brake, an American invention, and several others, any of which would have been useful to have prevented such a terrible calamity. It is time something was done to reduce danger from railway travelling to a minimum. Life is too precious to be sacrificed to the niggardliness of directors. A brake that will not act in a quarter of a mile is comparatively useless, and there is no excuse for using too little brake power, for the competition last summer showed there were several sorts of brakes it would be possible to have which would act sufficiently in stopping a train even when going at a very high rate of speed. It is further said, with reference to this dreadful accident, that the Great Northern officials were neither courteous nor willing to render that assistance and information which the urgency of the case demanded. An uncle of young Mr. Boucicault bitterly complained at the inquest of the cruel delays interposed by the authorities at King's Cross, at a time when both the nature and extent of the accident were fully known. We know officials are by nature reticent, and it is quite right they should not be too communicative; but the line must be drawn somewhere, and when it is known that a great calamity has happened, it seems to us to be a matter of policy to state all particulars.

We are, it seems, to have a Woman's Whisky War in England, as they have already had in the United States. Intemperance is an evil of the first magnitude, and one which, in the interests of society, it is desirable should be repressed as much as possible. But people are not likely to be made sober by Act of Parliament, nor do we think that any violent action on the part of any class, or of the female sex, will be productive of lasting good. If people are forbidden to go into public-houses, they will simply drink on the quiet. For our part, we see a great objection to violent measures. A crusade against whisky—or any other kind of liquor—drinking will be sure to fail of accomplishing any great amount of good. If the system of licensing were subject to greater stringency, if houses, that is to say, were less easily licensed for the sale of drink, there would be a greater chance of the evil being diminished. Perhaps, too, if spirituous liquors were more costly, were regarded more as luxuries than as necessaries, we should have an abatement in the amount of drunkenness and the crime which it leads to. But while every form of intemperance should be as much as possible discouraged, while all laudable attempts should be made to cure the national evil, we fear that any thing like a war à outrance against the liquor traffic will do harm rather than good.

The condition of the Shakers appears to be somewhat more prosperous. They have erected a fifth tent at their encampment at Hordle, the four they already possess being very substantial erections. They have had many hardships to endure during the winter, but there is no illness amongst them.

There are still several vacant seats in the House of Commons, and the number has been increased within the last few days by the lamented death of Bro. Callendar, the second member for Manchester. Bro. Callendar was very generally esteemed for his many eminent qualities, and by the Masons of his province especially, among whom he had held high provincial rank, his death will be very generally regretted.

It is said that the various Magna Charta Associations throughout the country will be invited to meet outside the house of Dr. Kenealy, in Tavistock Square, for the purpose of escorting the member for Stoke to the House of Commons on the opening day of the Session. We hope no such tomfoolery will be permitted. Imagine what the state of London would be if every M.P. were escorted by his admirers to Palace Yard. If Dr. Kenealy has any common sense he must see that such public processions will not advance the cause he has chosen to advocate. To pass from Dr. Kenealy to the convict Orton is not a particularly abrupt transition, and we note that Mr. Cross, the Home Secretary, has been memorialised by Mr. A. F. Biddulph, of Greville Place, Kilburn, to receive a deputation from the Release Association, relative to the case of the Claimant, but Mr. Cross declined to do so. Mr. Biddulph then wrote again to the Secretary, enclosing affidavits by Charles Orton, Mrs. Jury, and Mrs. Tredgett, to the effect that the man convicted as Arthur Orton was not their brother. The reply of Under Secretary Liddell is a neat specimen of the laconic style of writing. It runs thus: "Sir,—I am directed by Mr. Secretary Cross to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, forwarding affidavits of Charles Orton, Mrs. Jury, and Mrs. Trodgett, stating that Arthur Orton is not their brother.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, A. F. O. Liddle. To Anthony Biddulph, Esq., J.P.

Our interest in foreign news is chiefly directed to the Eastern question. As we have already stated, Count Andrassy's note to the Porte will be presented with the concurrence of all the Great Powers. The presentation will take place early next month, and its acceptance by the Porte is considered certain. The three Northern Powers will present identical notes, not a collective one, as had been expected in some quarters. As to the insurrection which has given rise to the present disturbed state of affairs, if we are to accept the reports which have reached this country, the insurgents have inflicted some rather serious losses on the Turks. In Servia, things look ugly for Prince Milan, who is said to be anxious to retire and live on his wife's estates in Bessarabia. Anything for a quiet life. Prince Milan will enjoy himself more in seclusion than in his capital of Belgrade, He has no money, and half the officers in the army are said to be disaffected. From Bucharest we hear of a dastardly attempt having been made to assassinate the Roumanian Prime Minister, who was slightly wounded in the lower part of his face. The perpetrator, who appears to have been dismissed the Government Service for embezzlement, has been arrested. The Chamber of Deputies, on hearing of the attempt, at once passed a vote of sympathy with the President, and of regret that the attack on him should have been made. The elections to the Spanish Cortes have resulted in an overwhelming majority for the Government of King Alphonso. It is believed the opposition will be very inconsiderable in point of numbers, there being only three Republicans, three Radicals, about from 35 to 40 Constitutionalists, from 15 to 20 Neo-Catholic Moderados, and some 35 to 40 others, who will give a general support to the Government, but not on the question of religion. As to the war, there has been a considerable amount of fighting, and the Royal Troops are said to have gained some successes, but as to the nature and extent of such successes, we have, as yet, no means of forming any opinion. The Carlist General Elio is reported to be dead. In France the election of Senatorial Delegates has gone in favour of the Conservatives. Arrangements are being made by the railway companies for the conveyance of these elected Delegates to the chief towns of the departments, where they are to elect members of the Senate. We shall then be in a position to judge whether the above rumour about the recent victory of the Conservatives is true or not. There is news of more fighting in Perak, with the usual result; the Malays were put to flight, but the chief offenders, those who are believed to have instigated the murder of Mr. Birch, have not yet fallen into our hands. Altogether there has been much to excite the public mind on the Continent, nor can we say matters look quite as satisfactory as we could wish.

The Quarterly Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons will be held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, 2nd February, at 7 p.m.

A Grand Council of Knights, K.H. 30°, will be held at the Masonic Hall, Golden-square, on Thursday, 10th February, at 4.45 p.m.

We have been much gratified by the inspection of the very ornate summons, banquet ticket, ménu card, and programme of Music issued by the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, No. 145, on the occasion of their 101st installation meeting and centenary festival, the proceedings of which are chronicled elsewhere in our pages. The designs do infinite credit to the Lodge, and, we trust, herald a revival of artistic taste in these particulars. The Summons, in gold and colours, is headed by a charmingly grouped shield of Masonic emblems, somewhat resembling those designed by Hogarth for the old P.M. jewel of the Grand Stewards' Lodge. The banquet ticket exhibits, in gold, scarlet, and purple, the arms of the Ancient Masons, in use before the Union, with a crest in silver. The ménu and toast card is bordered with a classical design upon light blue, and the programme, similarly bordered, is so arranged as to fold in half over this, lozenge wise, to represent the flap, whilst the former resembles the body of a Masonic apron. Hitherto, the Lodges in some cities of the United States have been far before us in England, as regards the elegance of these accessories to our festivals, which confer an additional grace upon the proceedings, and are preserved as worthy and delightful mementos of pleasant hours, when the hard facts of life in the outside world have been lost sight of in "the feast of reason and the flow of soul."

The New Cross Lodge, No. 1559, will meet at 5 o'clock this day, Saturday, at the New Cross Hall, Lewisham Road, for the purpose of consecration and installation of the W.M. Bro. Jas. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, is the consecrating officer, and he will be assisted by Bro. the Rev. G. P. P. Colles, P.P.G.C. Oxon, as Chaplain, and Bro. W. Kippe as Organist.

The brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1056, which meets at the Portugal Hotel, Fleet Street, and of which Bro. J. R. Stacey P.M. is the Preceptor, will visit the brethren of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507, at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville Road, on Friday next. Bro. Stacey will work the fifteen sections, assisted by the brethren, and a very instructive evening may be expected.

Our esteemed Bro. Adams purposes holding his Annual Private Ball at Willis's Rooms, King Street, St. James's, on Tuesday, the 1st prox. Dancing will commence at 9 p.m., and to judge from the programme, a copy of which has been sent to us, there will be ample scope for the enjoyment of those who may be present. The music, which is always so important a feature at these gatherings, will be of excellent quality, as it will be Bro. Adams's own band to which the dancers trip "the light fantastic" on the occasion. The prices of tickets are as follow:—Double tickets admitting lady and gentleman, or two ladies, a guinea; single ticket (lady) half-a-guinea, single ditto (gentleman) twelve shillings. These include tea, coffee, light drinks, and supper. We wish Bro. Adams all the success he so fully deserves.

The St. James's Union Lodge will hold its 14th annual ball on Thursday, 10th of February, at Freemasons' Hall, in aid of the Benevolent Fund attached to the Lodge. Ladies' tickets ten shillings, and gentlemen's fifteen shillings each. Bros. Coote and Tinney's band will attend. The following brethren have consented to act as stewards:—Bros. W. C. Parsons, I.P.M., President, A. W. Staden, V.P., G. Bubb, P.M., Treasurer, L. B. Pillon, S.W., Hon. Sec., E. H. Harison, E. Farwig, J. Miles, H. A. Stacey P.M., R. Rickards, I. Wood, A. Hays, H. W. Baker, H. C. Sharp, A. Annett S.W., W. Stollard, F. A. Hussey, I. Atkin, J. H. Stacey, A. Pinto Leite, &c.

On Wednesday next the Fifteen Sections will be worked, in the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524. This Lodge of Instruction meets at the Havelock Tavern, Albion Road, Dalston, under the preceptorship of Bro. Gilchrist. On this occasion Bro. Marx Gross will preside, and the attendance of brethren is solicited.

At the meeting of the Burdett Coutts Lodge, No. 1278, held on Friday last, Bro. W. J. Crutch W.M. presiding, a very interesting presentation was made to Bros. Terry and Verry, in acknowledgment of their services in connection with the presentation last summer to the Lodge by the Baroness Burdett Coutts of three handsome chairs. These brethren had had entrusted to them the superintendence of the manufacture of the chairs, Bro. Terry having been the first W.M. of the Lodge, and Bro. Verry being the Secretary. This superintendence and the preparation necessary for the ceremony, had entailed a considerable amount of time and labour, and in recognition of their services, the Lodge determined to present a splendid silver Epergne to Bro. Terry, and a Massive Gold P.M.'s and Secretary's Jewel to Bro. Verry. Accordingly, the regular business of the Lodge having been disposed of, Bro. Crutch rose, and formally presented these tokens of the Lodge's appreciation of their labours, expressing himself highly pleased that it should have devolved upon him to be the mouthpiece of the Lodge on this occasion. Bros. Terry and Verry made suitable replies, expressive of the pleasure they felt at having been thus honoured. Bro. Terry also took the opportunity of assuring the brethren present of the deep interest which the Baroness Burdett Coutts felt in Masonry, and how greatly flattered she had felt when permission was asked for her name to be given to the Lodge.

According to the New York Courier of the 9th inst., the Knights of that city are making great preparations for their pilgrimage to Philadelphia, when the Centennial will be celebrated by a general parade of Knights at the Annual Conclave of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania. "The enthusiasm," say the Courier, "of the Knights of this city almost equals the days of Peter the Hermit. Palestine Commandery, No. 18, will go in a body, under the leadership of the Grand Master, E. Sir Ellwood E. Thorne."

According to the Leigh Chronicle, the Leigh Handbell Ringers were invited to supper with the brethren of the Marquis of Lorne Lodge, No. 1354, on Wednesday, the 19th instant. Supper was served in the ante-room, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. The ringers gave several pieces, and fully sustained their reputation as the first amateur handbell ringers in the county. Several brethren also contributed to the evening's entertainment, among them Bro. Kerfoot, Lodge Organist, and Bro. Hall, who gave several admirable recitals on the Harmonium. We learn from the same source that, the same evening, Bro. Jas. Jackson, on behalf of some members of the Lodge, presented Bro. Rose, the proprietor of the Leigh Chronicle, with a purse of money, in token of their approval of the manner in which he defended an action for libel, settled at the last Autumn Liverpool Assizes.

The inauguration, on Saturday last, of the Royal Westminster Aquarium and Winter Garden, by H.R.H the Duke of Edinburgh, was a great success. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs attended in State, accompanied by several members of the Court of Aldermen. These occupied a box to the left of that reserved for His Royal Highness, while in the corresponding box to the right were assembled several members of the Corps Diplomatique, among them being the French, German, Russian, and Turkish Ambassadors, with their several attachés. The united bands of the Company and of the Coldstream and Scots Fusilier Guards helped very agreeably to while away the time between the seating of the spectators and the arrival of the Duke. The guard of honour in attendance was furnished by the Royal Naval Artillery Volunteers and was under the command of Lieutenant Boom. On the arrival of His Royal Highness, General Cotton, on behalf of his colleagues, presented the usual address, bound in a handsomely emblazoned volume. This having been graciously accepted and acknowledged, diplomas of fellowship for himself and the Duchess of Edinburgh, enclosed in ivory cases, were next presented, after which His Royal Highness is understood to have expressed to General Cotton his entire satisfaction with the arrangements, the great pleasure he felt at what he had seen, and a hope that the undertaking would turn out to be prosperous. The concert, under the able guidance of Mr. Arthur Sullivan, was then proceeded with, and though of brief duration, was admirably rendered, all the pieces, both vocal and instrumental, being by English masters. The concert over, the Duke, with his suite, and the Lord Mayor, partook of a déjeûner, served by Messrs. Bertram and Roberts, in a pavilion at the back of the Royal Box. On the departure of His Royal Highness, some three hundred guests sat down to another déjeûner provided in the West Dining Hall by the same excellent caterers. This was not the least successful part of the day's proceedings. The Westminster Aquarium has our hearty good wishes for its prosperity.

The following account of ye George Hostelrie, Winchester, kept by Bro. William Palmer, Fidelity, No. 3, may interest our readers :—

Dr. Milner, ye well knowne historian, speaks of ye George Inne having existed on ye same spot as early, at least, as ye reyne of King Edward IV.; whilst a more recent writer hath stated that "this Inne is mentioned in the Manuscript Tarrages, but not before Queen Elizabeth's reyne." (Woodward's General History of Hampshire.) These are ye only statements which hath appeared in pryate touching ye antiquity of this Inne, though this word itself disappeared from its sign in 1840, for the more fashionable phrase "Hotel." Ye ground upon which it standeth formerly formed ye south-west corner of ye parish of Seynt Peter's in Macelis otherwise called ye parish of Seynt Peter's in Fleshmonger-streete. In ye reyne of Richard II. its site was occupied by an hostelrie, or Inne, y'clept Ye Moone, whilk had probably long existed as such, and becoming decayed by age, it was replaced by a newe buyldinge about ye yeare 1416.

Atte this period Seynt George stood high in popular estimation—ye celebrated battel of Agincourt having been fought with ye war cryе of Seynt George for ever, and it was considered not only to have been won under his tutelage, but "there were some," says ye chronicler, "who asserted that they saw Seynt George fightyng for ye King." Ye newe buylding was graced with his sygn, and it was henceforth ycleept Ye George Inne. In 1417 it is mentioned as "ye hospice ycleept ye George's Inne, otherwise ye New Inne." William Benham was "mine hoste," by ye annual rente of six poundes thirteen shillings and fourpence. Ye property was then owned by Henry Somer and Katherine hys wyfe, who was ye daughtere of Mark le Fayre, and upon their deaths it devolved upon ye Corporatione. In addition to ye above rente, ye tennante hade to pay annually ten shillings to ye Abbot of Hyde, three shillings and fourpence to ye Priore and Convente of Seynt Swithun, and a similar sum to ye Brothers of ye Friary and Kalendar (charged upon this property for ye celebraytion of certaine religieuse services), and a quit rente of sixteenpence to ye bayliffs of ye citte, making a totale of seven poundes ten shillings and four pence. In 1431 ye sd William Benham is recorded as holdyng a lease of ye same for eight years, atte ye sd rental. Ye inne havеing thus obtained its name in ye begynning of ye fifteenth century, ye same hath been retained, notwithstanding several rebuildynge, the last about a century synce.

Itte may be of intereste, to note that ye George Inne atte Alresford received itte name about ye sd time Itte predecessor is mentyoned as "ye hospice where ye Angele is ye sign;" but was more popularly knowne as ye Broadgate Inne. In ye year 1418 a newe buildyng was erected upon ye sd site, at ye cost of fifty poundes (equal to seven hundred and fifty poundes of present money), ye contract for its erection being still extant. To this newe edifice was given ye name of ye George Inne, and an account of ye expenses of ye erection of its sygn in 1423 may still be seen. Ye fygure of Seynt George standyng upon a poste, with a tablet hangyng belowe bearing shieldes of armes and writing, coste three poundes thirteen shillings and four pence. Ye postes coste two shillings and four pence, and a planke bought for joyning ye postes for the platforme of ye statue one shilling; besides four pence gyven for raising ye sd postes and tablet. To ye plumber for two days worke, leadeninge ye planke on whilk ye fygure stode, together with sixteen pence for four poundes of solder boughte of hym, two shillings; and lastly, payd to ye manne diggying ye hole for ye said sygn, four pence.

STRANGE MASONIC INCIDENT.

A Grand Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons of the Province of Devon was convened at Newton, on Thursday, the 20th inst., for the purpose of consecrating a new Chapter, and the Provincial Grand Superintendents were in attendance, together with a large number of distinguished Companions from all parts of the country. The Chapter was duly formed and opened, and it was then discovered that one of the principals named in the Grand Chapter Warrant for Consecration was not in attendance. The absentee was Captain F. D. Bewis. Although waited upon by a deputation, he declined to attend, on a point of etiquette. The consecration, consequently, could not proceed, and the whole matter was referred back to the Grand Chapter of England, of which the Prince of Wales is Grand Superintendent. The Provincial Grand Superintendent stated that, in his long experience of Masonry, he had never known such an occurrence, and the whole affair has caused much astonishment and excitement.—Dublin Daily Express.

PRESENTATION AT MULLINGAR.

On Thursday, the 20th inst., the Provincial Grand Lodge of Meath, No. 131, assembled in Mullingar, to the number of about 40 brethren, for the purpose of presenting a token of their esteem and affection to Bro. William Fetherston-Haugh J.P., of Carrick. The presentation took place in the spacious ball-room of the Greville Arms Hotel. The dinner, which comprised all the delicacies of the season, was furnished by the proprietress, Mrs. Carroll, and gave unqualified satisfaction. The presentation was a very elegant centre-piece, with suitable inscription, manufactured by Waterhouse and Company. The cloth having been removed, and the usual loyal toasts given and responded to, the presentation was made on behalf of the Grand Lodge by G. N. D'Arcy, Esq., of Hyde Park, Honorary Secretary, and feelingly acknowledged by Bro. Fetherston-Haugh. The afternoon was spent with that perfect harmony which characterises all the meetings of the noble Order of Masonry, enlivened by some exceedingly well-performed and suitable songs and glees.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Tuscan Lodge, No. 14.—This Lodge held its installation meeting on the 25th January, at Freemasons' Hall. Present—Bros. A. C. Sadler W.M., W. Nash S.W., Isaac Bristow J.W., Stanley Robinson P.M. Secretary, S. Glover P.M. Treasurer, C. Turner S.D., N. Smith J.D., Frank Richardson P.M. D.C., W. P. Nettleship Steward, Percy C. F. Tatham I.G., John Daly Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. H. W. Vallance, W. Richardson, S. G. Grady, H. Lapworth. The installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year was the only business before the Lodge.

St. Mungo Lodge, No. 27.—This old and well conducted Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, 20th January, in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, Bro. Dugald Butler R.W.M. in the chair. Present—A. McTaggart, M.A., P.G.S. Deputy Master, D. Duke S.M., J. McNeus S.W., J. McCombie J.W., J. McEwan S.D. Amongst the Visitors we recognised E. Arthur, Mother Kilwinning, G. W. Wheeler 73, A. McLeod 143, Burns Thompson 153, and J. Fergurson P.M. 503. The Lodge having been raised to the second degree, Bro. Bain P.G.B.B. passed Bros. Moses McGregor, Joseph Thompson, James Deckie, John Goldfinch, Robert Huntley, and M. McIntyre to the Fellow Craft degree. The Lodge was then raised to the third degree, when Bro. Bain raised the following eight gentlemen to the sublime degree, viz., Bros. Kidd, Speir, Bell, McGregor, Thompson, Deckie, Goldfinch and Huntley. Both ceremonies were very admirably worked. The R.W.M. then proposed Bro. Burns Thompson for honorary affiliation, which was unanimously agreed to. Bro. Burns Thompson returned thanks. We may state this brother is the only son of Robert Burns' daughter (Mrs. Thompson), and besides his other good qualities as a man and a Mason he inherits in a marked degree the poetic temperament and genial disposition of his honoured grandfather, and has written many pieces himself, but he is too modest for the present fast and pushing age to fully appreciate his merits.

Strong Men Lodge of Instruction, No. 45.—This Lodge held a meeting at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, on Monday, 24th January. Present—Bros. Pearcy W.M., Stock S.W., Hill J.W., Lake S.D., Saul J.D., Todd I.G., Beckett Preceptor, Killick Hon. Secretary, and a very large muster of the members and visitors. The Lodge was opened in the usual manner, and the minutes of previous meeting confirmed. Bro. Robinson was raised to the M.M. degree, the W.M. rehearsing the traditional history; Lodge closed down to first degree. Bro. Beckett worked several of the sections, assisted by the brethren. Bros. Todd 228 and Malins 138, Grand Orient of Paris, were elected members, and Bro. Stock elected to preside that day three weeks. The annual supper will take place on Monday next, at the above house, Bro. J. Driver W.M. 45 in the chair. The fifteen sections will be worked on Monday, 7th February, Bro. Beckett, the worthy Preceptor, presiding.

The report of the Audit Committee showed a balance of £118 12s 5d. A Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. J. Kew P.M. occupied the chair, and Bro. Burt S.W. and W.M. elect was then presented to the Lodge, and installed by Bro. Kew, amid the congratulations of the brethren. The W.M. having been saluted, invested his officers:—Bros. R. Tyrrell I.P.M., Bennet S.W., W. Hopkins P.M. Treas., W. Hughes P.M. Sec., Green Asst. then closed, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Clemow and superintended by Bro. W. Smith. The W.M. then proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and said he was proud to see present at his installation a Grand Officer who was well known and respected, and he would couple the toast with the name of Bro. W. Ough P.G.P., who, on rising, was received with great enthusiasm. Bro. Ough said he was always pleased to be present at the Manchester Lodge. This was not his first visit. He could say that every officer of the Grand Lodge of England was always willing to render any assistance required of him, and he hoped one day to see a member of the Manchester Lodge a Grand Officer. (Cheers.) Bro. Tyrrell I.P.M. then proposed the toast of the W.M., who he said was respected by every brother in the Lodge; he hoped that during his year of office the Lodge would be a very united one, and he was sure brother Burt was well calculated to produce that happy result. The W.M. in reply thanked brother Tyrrell for his kind words, and also for the hearty response the brethren had given. He trusted, during his year of office, to discharge the duties of the Lodge to their satisfaction. Bro. R. Turner P.M. 795, and Bro. F. Binckes returned thanks for the toast of the Visitors. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Past Masters, alluded to the excellent manner they always had performed any duty required of them, Bro. Hopekirk also had always faithfully discharged the duties of Treasurer, and every one was pleased to see how excellently Bro. Kew had performed the ceremony of Installation. He afterwards proposed the toast of the Masonic Charities, and informed the brethren that Bro. Hughes P.M. had consented to act as Steward at the forthcoming Festival for Aged Freemasons, and Bro. Berry P.M. as Steward for the Girls' School, and he hoped the brethren would liberally subscribe to those noble institutions. Bro. F. Binckes P.G.S., and Secretary Boys' School, replied in his usual eloquent manner, and, in the course of his speech, said he hoped the next year would be more successful than hitherto, for they had larger claims on all the charities. He said it afforded him great satisfaction to announce the W.M. had consented to act as Steward to represent the Lodge at the next Anniversary Festival for the Boys' School. He had been associated with the Institution for 25 years, and he hoped every brother would look back with pleasure after contributing at the good he had done. He hoped the brethren would never neglect the Masonic Charities. The toasts of the Wardens and Junior Officers were given, and Bro. Hopekirk responded to the latter. The Tyler's toast was given, and a very agreeable evening was passed. Bros. Wicks, Hopekirk and Jackson contributing to the harmony. The Visitors were—Bros. W. Ough P.G.P.R., Turner P.M. 795, H. Benham W.M. 1339, W. Drake 766, H. Stranger 1381, J. Reynolds 1329, C. Hume 742, Wicks 813, Manns 1107, F. Binckes P.G.S., and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, at Bro. Gosden's, Masons' Hall Tavern, Coleman-street, E.C. Present—Bros. Abell W.M., W. Corner S.W., G. S. Pare J.W., J. K. Pitt Secretary, J. Constable Treasurer, F. Croaker S.D., Blackall J.D., Sayer I.G., Christopher Tyler. Past Masters—Bros. E. Gottheil Preceptor, Turquand and Ross. Visitors—Bros. Peter Dewar, Royal Arch Lodge, Scotland; also Bros. Walker, Ockendon, Gomm, Holland, Lees, Posener, Fenner, G. Corner, Pilton, Barber, Morgan, Maidwell, and others. Business—Upon the confirmation of the minutes of the last meeting, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M. The 2nd section of the lecture was worked by the Preceptor, assisted by the brethren. Bros. Barber and Dewar were elected members. It was announced that the ceremonies of consecration and installation will be rehearsed on the 16th February, at 7 p.m., respectively by Bros. Terry, Secretary Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and John Constable, Treasurer of the Lodge. Bro. W. Corner was elected W.M. for the ensuing meeting.

Lodge Star, 219.—Held its regular fortnightly meeting on Monday, 24th January, when the Lodge room was crowded by members and visitors who were desirous to witness the excellent working of Bro. J. Morgan the R.W.M., there were five candidates for initiation, and the ceremony was performed with that care and completeness that mark Bro. Morgan's working.

Zetland Chapter, No. 286.—The regular quarterly meeting of this Chapter was held on Wednesday, when the election of officers for the ensuing year took place as follow:—Comps. J. Todd P.Z. M.E.Z., T. Smallwoods H., the Rev. H. V. Palmer J., W. Cowling P.Z. Treasurer, T. B. Whytehead S.E., Lord Zetland S.N., T. S. Walton P.S. Ballots were taken for Bros. T. J. Wilkinson and J. Rhodes, both of the Falcon Lodge, Thirsk, which proved successful. Comp. Major Thomas Butterworth Prissick, of the Stadacona Chapter, Quebec, was also elected a joining member.

Caledonian Railway Lodge, No. 354.—This Lodge met on Wednesday, at 30 Hope-st., Glasgow. In consequence of Bro. J. Shaw (whose installation we recorded in a late number) having to leave the City, the Lodge was presided over by Bro. A. Smith P.M., who, after their election, installed the new officers, Bros. Ferguson R.W.M., Harvey S.W., and McKenzie J.W. There being no other special business, a couple of hours was spent in harmony, to the satisfaction of all present, and the Lodge was closed in due form.

Athol Lodge, No. 413.—This Lodge held its first Harmony meeting under the new Master on Tuesday, the 25th of January, at 213 Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Present—Bros. James Lonttit R.W.M., Wm. Neilson D.M., J. Barker S.M., D. Leads S.W., A Holmes J.W., G. Bennett Chaplain, G. Robinson S.D., Wm. Grundly J.D. P. Hamilton, J. O. Brise, D. Cameron, and J. Burns Stewards, J. Lockie I.G., R. Gardner Tyler. Visitors—Bros. Wm. Ball I.P.M., and T. B. Ball 3 bis, J. Booth R.W.M. 87, J. Ferguson R.W.M. 116, Wm. Jack R.W.M. 128, J. Morgan R.W.M. 219, J. Ferguson I.P.M. 503, and many members of other Lodges. Business—Arrangements for the annual Festival, after which the Lodge was called for refreshments The following brethren materially contributed to the evening's enjoyment, namely, G. Robertson, J. Scott, W. Scott, McPhie, Gourlay, Simpson, Grant, Hatton and others, and all were highly pleased with the way in which the new Master conducted his Lodge.

Pelham Lodge, No. 939.—The brethren met on Thursday, the 20th inst., at their rooms, Corn Exchange, Worksop, when the W.M. elect, Bro. the Rev. F. Vernon Bussell, M.A., was duly installed in a very able manner by Bro. Joseph Allen, P.M. of the Lodge of Peace, Meltham (West Yorks), who threw an amount of energy and zeal into his work, which was evidently much appreciated by those present. The Board of I.M. (12 in number) having been duly opened, the W.M. elect was installed in the East with the customary honours, after which the brethren were re-admitted, and the successor to K.S. proclaimed in due and ancient form. The working tools of the three degrees were presented by Bro. Enoch Drury, P.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Sheffield, and P.P.G.W. West Yorks, whose admirable working of the numerous ceremonies of Craft and Royal Arch Masonry is well-known and appreciated by the brethren of West Yorkshire, Derbyshire, Lincoln and Notts. The W.M. (Bro. Bussell) appointed his officers as follow:—Bros. A. J. F. Russell I.P.M., William Mallender S.W., W. Allen J.W., Rev. H. A. Steel Chaplain, Edward Baxter P.M., and P.P.G.W. Notts, Secretary, P. Lowe S.D., Thomas Henderson J.D., John Appleton I.G., William H. Caparn Organist, and T. Mallender Tyler. The banquet was excellently served by Mr. Morris, of the Lion Hotel, Worksop, after which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and songs and recitations followed. The Visitors present were—Bros. the Rev. Canon Maltby, W.M. of the Royal Sussex Lodge, Nottingham, William Newton, P.P.G.W. Notts, Enoch Drury, P.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Sheffield, and P.P.G.W. West Yorks, Henry Ecroyd, W.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Sheffield, Rev. J. B. M. Elliott, of the Yarborough Lodge, Yarborough, Thomas Harrison, P.M. of the Goderich Lodge, Leeds, Robert Rains and Edward Hart, of the Minerva Lodge, Hull, &c. The W.M was also ably supported by Bro. the Rev. E. Hawley, Vicar of Worksop, and by Bros. Edward Baxter, and Thomas Webster, P.M.'s of the Pelham Lodge, and P.P.G.O.'s of Notts, who enlivened the evening by giving songs and recitations. Allusion was made to the present unsatisfactory state of the Province of Nottinghamshire, over which the Duke of Newcastle presides as P.G.M. No provincial meetings have been held for some time, and no new Provincial Officers have been appointed. The brethren in the Province are strongly in favour of a speedy resuscitation of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Nottinghamshire, and if the Duke of Newcastle feels himself unable to give the necessary attention to the duties of his office, it is to be hoped that our Royal G.M. may be pleased to appoint a successor in his stead. We must not forget to allude to the speech of the newly initiated brother (Rev. W. J. Humble), who, in response to the toast, "to the newly initiated," expressed his great satisfaction at becoming a brother amongst us, and congratulated himself upon having taken his first step in the Craft on the occasion of the installation of his old schoolfellow and college friend, Bro. Bussell. He had hitherto considered that the principal events in a man's lifetime were three in number, viz., his birth, his marriage, and his death; but from this time forward he should add a fourth to the list, and count his initiation into Freemasonry as equally important with the other three events. This closed a most agreeable evening, and the brethren separated, in order, harmony and brotherly love.

Urban Lodge, No. 1196.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 25th inst., at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, Clerkenwell. The usual routine business having been dispensed with, a ballot was taken for Mr. G. E. Miele, who was then initiated, after which Mr. C. E. Hawksley and Mr. J. S. Hayne and then Mr. S. Dowsing were initiated. Bro. F. Eckstein was raised, and a motion, expressing the sympathy of the Lodge with the widow and members of the family of Bro. J. D. Cowland, was proposed by Bro. R. Pearson, and passed. The installation of Bro. J. Tickle, the late S.W., as W.M., then took place, and he invested the following as his officers:—Bros. J. Simpson S.W., E. G. Legge J.W., R. W. Blachford S.D., J. F. Heath J.D., J. D. Loverdo I.G., Dr. J. E. Carpenter Sec., Robt. W. Pearson Treas. and Lehmeyer Org. The installation ceremony was worked by Dr. J. E. Carpenter, who certainly deserves great praise for the manner in which it was conducted. Bro. J. Pearson, the retiring W.M., was presented with a P.M.'s jewel, and after the closing of the Lodge, the brethren adjourned to a banquet. Among the visitors were Bros. Bianchi, T. G. Tippetts, G. L. Walker, Caravoglio, Donald King, Montrie, Webb, &c.

Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, 20th January, at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road. Bros. J. J. Michael W.M., Jas. Willing jun. I.P.M., Williams S.W., Kingham J.W., Tims P.M. Sec., J. Douglass S.D., Scales J.D., Stiles D.C., Colls W.S.; Bros. Hatton, Saintsbury, Clarke, Rogers, Check, Solomon, Carter, Cavett, Rapkin, W. Stiles, &c. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Cave, Van Camp and Lovegrove were raised to the 3rd degree, Bros. Baddeley, Edwards, and H. Scales were passed to the 2nd degree, and Messrs. A. Clarke, Hewitson, G. Clarke, Long, Knight and Beardsall were initiated into the Order, the work being perfectly rendered. Mr. T. S. The Mason, advancing, will conquer the world!
When rulers infuriate, marshal their strength,
And war, with its horrors, seems coming at length
When the lips of the many are pallid with rage,
And the heart of the warrior burns to engage;
When maidens and matrons are praying for peace,
Would Masonry rise and bid Passion to cease!
But tho' nerving fast and expanding in girth,
Not yet is our Empire supreme in the earth.
The quickening progress of culture and mind,
The growth of the general weal of our kind,
Will yet loud proclaim, in the blaze of the sun,
That tho' rulers are many, THE PEOPLES ARE ONE
Then Masons will hail their behest from above,
And preach to humanity—BROTHERLY LOVE

o call the attention of our readers to the supporting this Charity. The Annual eld on Wednesday next, under the presi- t Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy G.M., fforts of those brethren who have under- s, and oftentimes thankless, duties of ove, at least, as successful as in former n further, and express a hope that, as the numerically stronger every year, and has much higher in public estimation, the ognise the imperative necessity there is e monetary aid hitherto forthcoming in ds of this Institution. There is, too, one the Festival of 1876 should be a very l that is the presence in the chair of of our Grand Officers, who now, for the is appointment to the high position of ster, has an opportunity of aiding, by his ous advocacy, that cause which all true at heart—the cause of Charity.

dwell on the claims of this Institution to e Craft. In our very first issue we drew gin, purpose, and progress. We pointed m a very small beginning indeed, it had d its sphere of operations, till now it was onsiderable Institutions of its kind in the The first election took place in May 1843, and then fifteen brethren were chosen to annuities, varying from £10 to £30, according There are now one hundred and thirty male an each of whom is in receipt of £36 per annum, one female annuitants, severally receiving £28 per ann sixteen widows of former annuitants in receipt of of their late husbands' annuities. Thus the nu annuitants, men and women together, has grown fro men, in 1843, to two hundred and forty-six, in just ended. This, of course, is an eminently sat picture, but it is possible to do much more t Clearly, therefore, more than this must be done. "must" advisedly. It is the duty of Freemaso charitable, but when not all is done that can it is manifest the duty is imperfectly fulfilled, or in a loose perfunctory sort of way. Therefore shall have a right to feel disappointed if the sut list to the Festival of Wednesday next is not in excess of the lists in previous years. But whi due regard to all eventualities, we note the possit the subscriptions may not be progressively incr amount from year to year, we incline to the ho the amount in 1875 showed an increase of abo over the amount in 1874, so the sum realised by of the Stewards in 1876 will be little, if anything £2,000 in excess of 1875. In such case it will power of the Committee to add to the number ficiaries; and, as last year, owing to the libera made to the funds of the Institution, they felt the a position to increase the number of male annui one hundred and twenty to one hundred and thirty, and the number of females from eighty-eight to one hundred, as announced in our issue of 13th February last, so this year, if our brethren but do their duty, we ought to hear of at least an equal, if not greater, addition to the numbers.

As regards the income of the Benevolent Institution, this, taking the male and female funds together, amounted to somewhere about ten thousand pounds, while the inmates receive not far short of eight thousand pounds. Of the income, only about £2,100, including contributions from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter to the extent of £950, is permanent, the rest being interest on invested moneys. Thus hardly less than six thousand pounds must be subscribed annually in order to maintain the Charity "only in its present state of usefulness." But while it cannot be said to be a loss to maintain this or any other institution at its normal standard of efficiency it must not be considered creditable to a body which is constantly increasing in numbers if the institutions it maintains do not increase in a corresponding ratio. Last year there were thirty-four female candidates for eighteen vacancies, and thirty-three male candidates for twenty-eight vacancies, after making due allowance for the additions, by the Committee, of twelve female and ten male annuitants. Thus sixteen female and five male candidates, all of whom had been approved as worthy of election, were doomed to disappointment. So long as we are obliged to disappoint worthy claimants on our support, so long must we labour to increase the funds of the Benevolent Institution. It will be time enough, when there are more vacancies than candidates, to direct our surplus energies into some other channel.

We must not close these brief remarks without wishing the indefatigable Secretary, Bro. Terry, all the success he himself desires. He is a genial, good soul, whose efforts it is a pleasure to record. His labours to promote the comfort of our patriarchs are hardly less appreciated by the Craft than they are by his ancient charges themselves. His uniform kindness, his unwearying, unselfish efforts on their behalf, do him honour; and knowing and appreciating these efforts as we do, in common with all other brethren, it enhances the enthusiasm with which we support a charity, when we know its management rests principally on his shoulders. In fine, let it be borne in mind, and acted upon, that five shillings per man all round the Order annually means, as we said on a former occasion, an income of something like £12,000. If we cannot achieve this we ought—shall we say?—to consider ourselves as only imperfectly discharging one of our most important obligations.

We append a List of the Stewards for the Anniversary Festival of 1876:—

and distinctions, this sketch would degenerate into a mere catalogue of titles and degrees, and we therefore hasten to an event in his Masonic life which has had a marked influence upon his subsequent career. We allude to his election as Secretary of the Boys' School. This important step was obtained in the year 1861, and he has since devoted himself to his duties with such zeal and attention as leave nothing to be desired. When he took office the annual income of the institution was but £2,048, while last year the sum of £13,246 poured into its coffers. This vast increase is in a great measure owing to his exertions, which have been scarcely paralleled in the history of any charitable institution in this country. His conduct as an officer has been beyond praise, and in the performance of his duty he has never thought of his own ease or comfort. Like some brave bishop of primitive times, he is always engaged in the task of visiting some portion of his vast diocese, and in the congenial work of encouraging, counselling and fostering the faith of those who toil in the cause. But although he has given right royal service to the school he has not escaped calumny; a groundless charge, which was brought against him recently, has been triumphantly refuted, and the Committee of the Institution, with a sublime faith in their Secretary—which has been warranted by the result—nobly stood by him, and defended him against the unprovoked attacks of the agressors. It is the fate of us all to be exposed to misrepresentation, and the great master poet tells us that those who are as pure as ice, and as chaste as snow, shall not escape the arts of the traducer. Men who are placed high above the common herd are peculiarly exposed to the attacks of envious rivals, and greatness of any kind or degree invariably brings its attendant sorrows. Our distinguished brother has known what tribulation is, he has felt the keen shaft of the detractor, but he has triumphantly passed the ordeal, and his honour shines the brighter for the trial to which it has been exposed.

But we must hasten to bring our very imperfect sketch to a conclusion. The recent recognition of his great services must be fresh in the memory of our readers. They cannot have forgotten, since so many of them were active workers, that the Craft presented to him the sum of £1,000 as a mark of its high appreciation, not merely for his official work, but for those labours of his which have tended in no slight degree to place Masonry in the grand position which it holds at the present time in the eyes of the world. Jewels and minor distinctions have been showered upon him, and we are saying much when we add that testimonials have not had the effect of blunting his enthusiasm. It often happens that the reflex action of gifts like these is injurious to those who are the happy recipients. The acknowledgment comes like a warning to the sensitive brother that his task is finished, or that he should clear the way for ambitious rivals. Happy he who receives a testimonial from his brethren, but thrice happy he who regards the gift as a mere incentive to futher exertions. The best friends of our Hercules have often expressed their regret that his voice is so seldom heard in Grand Lodge. Some of us have a lively recollection of his eloquence, of his generous heat in debate, of his plain mother English, and the fearlessness with which he expressed his opinions. It is said, indeed, that upon his election to the office of Secretary of the Boys School, it was understood that he would not take part in any debate in Grand Lodge not affecting the Charities. If this be so, we can only express our deep regret that the powers that rule us should have thought it good policy to close the mouth of a paid officer. The understanding, if it really exists, is not we imagine in the terms of his appointment, but, whether it be or not, while it remains in force it has the effect of depriving Grand Lodge of the counsels of a brother who has been gifted by Nature with a larger brain than most men can boast of. He has never in his advocacy of any cause permitted himself to be influenced by merely personal considerations, and in the memorable discussions of 1855-6, on the Canadian and other great questions, he was a prominent leader against Grand Lodge, on the Blue side.

This truly great man might have been eminent in any position in life. His wisdom in debate, his eloquence and his fearlessness, might have helped him on to fame even in the great council of the nation. Behind the "Master Marks" of genius which are so prominent in his character, he possesses social qualities which endear him to those who are included in the wide circle of his friends. He is an unassuming English gentleman, a jovial companion, and a warm and an attached colleague.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE, ARMAGH.

IN accordance with a resolution unanimously passed at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Armagh, held at Dundalk on 27th November last, a grand banquet will be held at the Tontien Rooms, Armagh, at 6 p.m. on Thursday the 24th instant, being the evening of the day on which the Prov. Grand Lodge is summoned to meet for labour. The banquet will be held for the purpose of celebrating the re-appointment of R.W. Bro. Maxwell C. Close, M.P., as Provincial Grand Master, and the re-nomination by him of V.W. Bro. John G. Winder, J.P. as Deputy P.G.M. In order to give as much éclat as possible to the occasion, the honorary secretaries to the banquet committee, Bros. Robert Turner, Past P.G.S.W., and Arthur Nelson, P.G. Organist, have issued a circular letter, copy of which has been kindly forwarded to us, to the Secretaries of the different Lodges in the Province. Therein they state that any brother may obtain tickets for himself and Masonic friends, on application to the Committee, and Lodge Secretaries are courteously invited to lend their co-operation and assistance to the Committee in their efforts to do honour to the Prov. G.M. and his Deputy. There are twenty-two Lodges in the Province, which embraces the counties of Louth, Monaghan, and Armagh, and each Lodge is requested to nominate one of its members to act as Steward at the banquet. The Honorary Secretaries request that the names of these Stewards may be returned for insertion in the programme, by the 15th, and also that the various Lodge Secretaries will forward lists of those brethren who propose to be present not later than the 14th. A form of application for tickets, the price of which is fixed at eight shillings and sixpence, accompanies the circulars. We can only express a hope that our brethren of the Province will respond in considerable numbers to the invitation, and that the banquet will prove a great success.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS OF ENGLAND.

THE Quarterly Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday, the 2nd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street. Comp. General Brownrigg as G.Z., S. Rawson G.H., H. The Grand Scribe E. further announced that the M.E. Pro First Grand Principal had appointed Companion Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, P.S.B., President in the room of Companion Savage deceased, and Companion Robert Grey 2nd Asst. Sojourner to fill the vacancy caused in the Committee by his death.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Companions William Lawrence Twentyman as Z, William John Doveton as H, Richard Nathan Hubberstey as J, and ten others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of the Rock, No. 200, Trinchinopoly, to be called "The Rock Charter," and to meet at Trinchinopoly, Madras, East Indies.

2nd. From Companions Charles Godfschalk as Z, James Jackson Avery as H, Henry William Thomas as J, and ten others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Dundas Lodge, No. 1255, Plymouth, to be called "The Dundas Chapter," and to meet at the Royalo Masonic Temple, Plymouth, Devonshire.

3rd. From Companions Henry Griffiths as Z, William Henry Lloyd as H, Thomas Waite as J, and six others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Kenyard Lodge, No. 1258, Pontypool, to be called "The Kenward Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Pontypool, Monmouthshire.

4th. From Companions Perceval Alleyn Nairne as Z, William Viner Bedolphe as H, James Hadland Vockins as J, and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Sphinx Lodge, No. 1329, Camberwell, to be called "The Sphinx Chapter," and to meet at the "Surrey Masonic Hall," Camberwell.

The foregoing Petitions, being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee have further to report that they have received petitions:—

5th. From Companions Richard Miles Roberts as Z, Richard William Hoskins Giddy as H, Francis Henry Samuel Orpen as J, and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Richard Giddy Lodge, No. 1574, Kimberley, South Africa, to be called the "The Richard Giddy Chapter," and to meet at Kimberley, South Africa.

This Petition is regular, excepting that the proposed J is not yet registered as an Installed Master.

6th. From Companions Gabriel Joshua De Cordova as Z, Osmond Dilgado as H, David Barned as J, and nine others for a Chapter to be attached to the Phœnix Lodge, No. 914, Port Royal, Jamaica, to be called "The Phœnix Chapter," and to meet at Port Royal, Jamaica.

This Petition is also regular, excepting that the Lodge recommendation is not attached thereto.

The Committee therefore recommend that, subject to the proof of the proposed J being an Installed Master in the case of No. 1574, and the recommendation of the Lodge in the case of No. 914, which have both been written for, being respectively received, that the Prayers of these Petitions be granted.

It having come under the notice of the Committee at their Meeting on the 20th October 1875, that Companion Price, who was one of the Petitioners for a Chapter to be attached to the Royal Lebanon Lodge, No. 493, Gloucester, and who had been exalted in the Foundation Chapter, No. 82, Cheltenham, as far back as the 10th October 1866, had not been registered until October 1875, the Committee directed the three Principals of the Chapter to be summoned to account for the neglect, and to produce their Books and Charter, dispensing, however, in the first instance, with the personal attendance of the Principals.

The Committee regret to say that, on an investigation of the Books and Registry Book of Grand Chapter, a most inexcusable amount of laxity appears to have prevailed in the Registration of Companions exalted in the Foundation Chapter, Companions exalted in 1865-6 and 7 not being registered until 1869; one exalted in 1863 and one exalted in 1866 were not registered until 1870; three exalted in 1859, one in 1863, and one in 1865 were not registered until 1871; and, without going through the whole list, it would almost appear that no Companion was registered until his certificate was required for some special purpose.

The Committee, therefore, to mark their sense of the great irregularities which have prevailed in the Foundation Chapter, and its total disregard of Art. 20, page 19, of the Royal Arch Regulations, Edition 1869, or Art. 64, page 21, Edition 1875, which requires a regular return from each Chapter once in every year, have inflicted a fine on the Chapter to the extent of three guineas.

The Committee hope and believe that the business of the Chapter for the last year or two has been conducted with more regularity so far as relates to the Registration of its Members.

(Signed) JOHN CREATON, President.

All the business on the agenda paper was duly transacted, after which Supreme Grand Chapter was closed.

PRESENTATION AT HULL.

A VERY gratifying testimonial of esteem and regard was presented, on Monday evening, by the brethren of Kingston Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons to Bro. James Kay, who for the last five years has most satisfactorily discharged the duties of Secretary to that Lodge. On its becoming known that Bro. Kay was about to leave Hull for York, a wish was spontaneously expressed that some tangible expression should be given by the brethren of the Lodge of their respect for his personal merits, and high appreciation which was entertained of the services he had rendered as Secretary. Accordingly, a substantial sum was subscribed, which was devoted to the purchase of a very massive and handsome timepiece and set of candelabra, and these were duly presented to Bro. Kay on Wednesday night by Bro. Simeon Moseley P.M. The timepiece was of black marble with gold numerals and hands, and richly ornamented; the candelabra being of the Venetian style, in bronze, and enriched with gold. On a plate beneath the dial of the timepiece was the following inscription: "Presented by the members of the Kingston Lodge, No. 1010, to Brother James Kay, their late Secretary, January, 1876." In making the presentation, Brother S. Moseley P.M. said, as the senior Past Master of the Lodge he had had the honour conferred upon him of asking Bro. Kay's acceptance of this testimonial. He felt sure that no lengthened remarks from him were necessary, and he would therefore discharge his duty in a few homely, yet sincere words. The brethren deeply regretted that Bro. Kay was about to sever his connection with the Lodge in which he had spent his early career as a Mason. It reflected undoubted credit upon him that, having been among them such a short period, he had shown such assiduity and zeal in his adherence to the cause that the Lodge had become essentially indebted to him for its welfare. Moreover, every member had felt and appreciated his gentlemanly and merk conduct in endeavouring to add to their comfort (applause). If they had given expression to their feelings in the little testimonial now before them, of their recognition of his worth and merits, it was not for Bro. Kay that those feelings were fully represented by that trifling outlay of money (applause). They had been guided in a measure by the desire that their estimation of his services should be tangibly represented to his wife, his family, and his friends. If the brethren regretted—as they did regret for their own sakes—Bro. Kay's departure from amongst them, they still hoped he might be going where his worth might not only be appreciated but increased. And as Bro. Kay grows older might he learn to feel that his present efforts were puny compared to what they will become in the cause of Masonry. He trusted they might frequently see Bro. Kay amongst them in the future, and that their mutual friendships might increase (applause). Bro. Kay, in accepting the testimonial, said he scarcely knew how adequately to return thanks for the beautiful gift with which the brethren of the Kingston Lodge had just presented him. When he undertook the office of Secretary, little more than five years ago, he looked upon it as a responsible and sacred charge. He then promised that he would try to serve the Lodge faithfully and well, and to the best of his humble ability he had done so (applause). This very beautiful expression of their approval had satisfied him that, to some extent, he had succeeded in his efforts, and it was very gratifying to him that on leaving Hull he was able to take with him such a testimonial of their esteem. It would be cherished as one of his most valuable possessions, and it would be a source of lasting pride and gratitude to himself and those with whom he is connected. He should take the earliest opportunity of identifying himself with Masonry in the city of York, where he is going to reside, and where he is pleased to know Masonry is rapidly on the increase (applause). He thanked the brethren, one and all, for the uniform courtesy and kindness they had always extended to him, and concluded by saying that he should be ready and glad to afford any assistance he could to his successor in office (applause). The brethren subsequently sat down to a substantial banquet, when the customary Craft and other toasts were duly honoured.

CONSECRATION OF THE NEW CROSS LODGE, No. 1559.

THIS interesting event took place on Wednesday, at the New Cross Hall, Upper Lewisham-road. Bro. E. H. Thiellay A.G.P. Middlesex was originally the W.M. Designate, but he having lately been installed W.M. of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren, No. 145, Bro. W. B. Woodman, S.W. Designate, was chosen to fill that office.

At the time appointed the brethren assembled, and the ceremony of consecration was performed in a most praiseworthy manner by Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, 1360, who had been appointed by the M.W.G.M., assisted by Bros. the Rev. Dr. Colles P.P.G.C. Oxford, Chaplain 1275 and 1538, and Frederick Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 73, &c. After the consecration, Bro. W. B. Woodman was presented to the Lodge; a Board of Installed Masters, consisting of 24 W.M.'s and P.M.'s was formed, and Bro. Terry duly installed him into the chair of King Solomon. The W.M. having been saluted, the investment of officers took place: Bros. E. H. Thiellay S.W., Simmons J.W., F. Walters Treas., H. Keeble P.M. Sec., L. Beck S.D., Green J.D., Hartman I.G., Rev. Dr. Colles Chaplain, W. Kipps Org., and Church Tyler.

The tracing boards were very artistically painted by Bro. H. Francis. Bro. F. Walters then proposed that votes of thanks and honorary membership be given, and recorded on the minutes to Bro. James Terry, for his able rendering of the consecration and installation, and also to Bros. Colles and Kipps for their valuable services, and to Bros. Hubbuck and Hogg for their assistance. A special vote was also given to Bro. J. T. Sabine, and to whom also honorary membership was given. These honours having been duly acknowledged, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a very capital banquet. During the interval of the dinner, the brethren were asked to take wine with Bro. Keeble sen., of the Phœnix Lodge, Stowmarket (the father of Bro. H. Keeble, the newly appointed Sec.), who had been 53 years a Mason, and had arrived in good health at the age of 77 years. The W.M. then proposed the usual toasts. Bro. W. Smeed P.M. 946 then proposed the toast of the W.M., and said he was a good Mason and well respected; he was sure the New Cross Lodge would prosper under his gavel.

The toast having been duly honoured, the toast of the Visitors followed. Bro. J. T. Moss P.P.G.R. Middlesex responded. He thanked them for their hospitality, and he augured a successful year of office to the W.M., who was one well calculated to fill the position. The toast of the Wardens and Officers was given, who severally responded, and the Tyler's toast followed. Altogether a very enjoyable evening was passed, Bro. Louis Beck delighting the brethren with some capital songs, in which he was accompanied by Bro. Kipps.

Among those present were Bros. J. T. Moss P.G.R. Middlesex, H. Francis P.G.S.D. Surrey, Nash P.M. 79, Hubbuck P.G.S., C. Hogg P.G.S., Griffin P.M., G. Andrews P.M. 871, Myatt P.M. 871, J. Sweasey, W. Smeed P.G.J.W. Middlesex, H. Green W.M. 1538, Chapman P.M. 147, Turton Gloster 1531, Hardman 1531, J. Wright P.M. 1158, Bothell P.M. 1337, J. I. Hyman 188, M. Hyman 188, J. White W.M. 228, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, &c.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Constant Success.—No diseases are more trying to the temper, or more distressing to the constitution, than its pains in the side and joints caused by exposure to wet or cold. Whenever the slightest attack of suffering is felt recourse should be had to the celebrated remedy which will be found a sure friend in winter, dry thoroughly, and immediately rub in Holloway's inestimable Ointment, to obtain ease. Gout, rheumatism, neuralgia, and the dolorous pains are soon relieved, and ultimately cured by the use of this unequalled ointment, aided by Holloway's purifying and aperient Pills. REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

The opening and closing articles are, perhaps, the most conspicuous features in Blackwood. The former deals with Army Reform, from a point of view independent of that adopted in a paper on the same subject last month. The latter is party-political, and will be admired by those of the same way of thinking. "The Dilemma" is advanced another stage. Yorke is still in England, and visits some new people, the Peevors, of Peevor and Hancke, the great Clarified Balsam people, whose hospitality is on a very grand scale, quite overwhelming, in fact, after the manner of parvenu families. Yorke is somewhat smitten with one of the girls, to the extent of a mild flirtation, which it will be no fault of the pater if it should not become something more serious. Teaching young ladies billiards and whist is a somewhat dangerous game, even for a Victoria Cross man to indulge in too extensively. Of the other contents the sketch of "Alphonse de Lamartine," which forms No. 10 of "A century of Great Poets," is an admirable specimen of what such a sketch should be, while the paper on the recently published volume of Mr. Thackeray's sketches, the Orphan of Pimlico and others, contains some of the most delightful reading imaginable.

We are getting on famously with the two new serials with which the new year was commenced in Tinsleys'. Mr. Farjeon's "Duchess of Rosemary Lane," bears out the promise of last month. Besides these, we have further "Liltings from the Lowlands," another of the "Thespian Cartes," in which the Court Theatre, its company, and the class of entertainment provided is very impartially estimated, another of the "Dreams of a German Jew," and the second of Dr. Davies's series of "Love Songs of all Nations." There is too, another of those excellent acrostics which emanate from time to time from the pen of Mrs. Bainee. Accordingly we quote it, for satisfaction of our readers.

F ew months so scant as this for poets' lay;
E 'en March is more suggestive of a theme.
B ehold the landscape oft-times clad with snow;
R eposing Nature shows no sign of life,
U nyielding yet reserving for a time;
A nd so a tardy season has its use.
R eluctant earth, though holding back her stores,
Y ields up her treasures as the months come round.

We would suggest, however, that while, from a scenic point of view, February is perhaps the dreariest of months, the occurrence of St. Valentine's day affords the poet something very, very like a poetic theme. There are three other excellent papers which we commend to the notice of our readers. These are "Rambles on the Byways to Health," No. 1, by Mr. W. W. Fenn; "The air we Breathe," by A. E. Spencer, and W. H. Penning's, "Natural Science in the Nineteenth Century.

There is hardly a line in Belgravia to which exception can be taken—if we except the introduction of such a personage as Madge Templeton into the story of "Twixt Red and Green." For the life of us we cannot understand why the demi-monde should play so conspicuous a part in so many modern novels. The social evil may be a necessity of civilisation, but the less prominence that is given it the better, at least according to our way of thinking. Mr. Albert Stratzer might, we think, have made something more than he has of so famous a subject as "The Theatre in Germany." However, Mr. Horace St. John writes well on the "Art-of Luxury," and there is a well written sketch of that prince of diplomatists, "Monsieur de Talleyrand," by Mr. William Stigand, while Mr. Percy B. St. John contributes "A Tale of the Polar Regions," bearing the title of "The Spectre Ship," and Mr. Capon a further "Peep at Domestic Life in India," in which we are treated to a description of some marvellous Indian jugglery. "Swells, Past and Present," and Mr. Talbot's exposition of "How I came to be a Manager," with a few other contributions, complete the number. Among them, by the way, is an extremely pretty "New Musical Valentine," by the author of "Lady Audley's Secret." We hope to see, in future numbers of Belgravia, more such graceful contributions from the same pen.

Mrs. S. Townshend Mayer's story of "Sir Hubert's Marriage," and Henry Kingsley's, "The Grange Garden," still form the pièces de résistance of the St. James's, which, under the able editorship of Mr. Mayer appears to have entered on a fresh career of prosperity. At least, the general excellence of its contents fully justify us in expressing a hope that this is the case. Anything associated with the memory of the First Napoleon will always find a numerous class of readers, and, accordingly, Part IV. of the sketches of "Napoleon at St. Helena," by one of his attendants, will be read with interest by very many. Moreover, these glimpses at his life in captivity are worth reading, not only for the occasional insight we get into his character, but because they are a good specimen of this class of writing. We fully endorse the remarks of Mr. Thomas Carlisle, in his admirable essay—if we may call it such—on "Mud Moralists." We take leave to quote the following:—

"Then"—that is, following after certain scurrilous publications—"Among the crowd of Christmas books appeared a disgraceful pamphlet—The Coming K—, libelling the Royal Family, and from that time each December has witnessed the emission of similar abominations. Garlanded with garbage, frolicking in filth, rolling in refuse, the teachers of this new learning would, however, have us believe them actuated by high moral motives. They merely gambol among abominations to show all men that

'Vice is a monster of such frightful mien,
As, to be hated, needs but to be seen.'

This hypocrisy is nauseous. Railing Thersites, polluting and defaming all things, animate and inanimate, with his scurrilous tongue, is anything but a pleasant spectacle. But when Thersites pretends that his obscure vocabulary is employed for a noble object, and that he has to discharge a high moral mission by mud-throwing, the spectacle becomes doubly repulsive."

The paper concludes thus:—

"Enthusiasts in natural history declare that all creatures have their proper functions in the universe, and that the destruction of any one species must upset the equilibrium of creation. This may be so, though the disappearance of Mastodons, Ichthyosauri, and their congeners, has not, so far, acted thus destructively. Be that as it may, no reasonable person will doubt that, if the Mud Moralist followed the Dodo into the limbo set apart for creatures no longer useful, immense benefit would result to the public. His purpose may be of the loftiest, his mission noblest, his virtue immaculate, and his self-abnegation perfect. But it is hard to believe that scurrilous defamation, done into dirty doggrel, and spiced with suggestive nastiness, can have any other end in view than that of filling Sir Pandarus' pocket with dirty gains. At all events, it is absolutely certain that English literature would be greatly benefited by the summary suppression of the prurient parasites now clinging to his skirts. We are not ordinarily in favour of reviving obsolete institutions. Nevertheless, it is impossible to help, occasionally, wishing for a temporary renaissance of the stocks and pillory, even if the humane spirit would not tolerate cropped ears."

We are certain there is not one of our readers who does not hold similar views. Vicious attacks on the fair fame of the Royal Family will find no favour among Freemasons.

We cannot speak too highly of the domestic contributions to Cassell's Family Magazine. All are excellent, but, perhaps, the most useful paper of all is Mr. Payne's "How to make Tempting Food for Invalids." Readers of this periodical have already had numerous opportunities of testing, if they were so minded, the merits of Mr. Payne's sensible papers on matters culinary. Invalids too often fare indifferently at the hands of the cook, who imagines that any preparation will do for the sick room. An order from the medical man to a patient to be put on "slop" diet is generally interpreted in a literal sense, and the unfortunate invalid gets any quantity of washy stuff called beef-tea, mutton broth, gruel, &c., the one effect of which is to add dyspepsia to his other ailments. However, if the simple directions laid down by Mr. Payne for the preparation of beef-tea, mutton or chicken broths, gruel, barley-water, and toast-and-water are followed, the invalid will have reason to be thankful. It always has occurred to us that the careful preparation of any kind of food involves certainly no more trouble than the careless. It happens occasionally, indeed, that a want of care is in the end more troublesome. At all events, there is every reason why the invalid should be well treated in the matter of food. People in rude health can take care of themselves. The other papers of this class are those on "Little Accidents, and how to deal with them," "On some Minor Points of Etiquette," "Home Dressmaking," and "Domestic Service for Gentlewomen," by Mrs. Crawshay, with the usual "Chit-chat on Dress" of "Our Paris Correspondent." A family doctor gives good advice as to "How to Preserve Eyesight and Hearing," and any who may wish to become citizens of London will learn all the various modes in the article "How to become a Freeman of the City of London." Should any of our readers be desirous of becoming "gentlemen of the long robe," let them consult Mr. Tyssen's paper, "How to become a Barrister," and they will soon learn all about the mysteries of preliminary examination, eating terms, &c. The Gatherer's collection this month is a goodly one, and the serial tales maintain their interest.

The Leisure Hour has, as usual, a most excellent programme of contents. The first on the list is "1876: A Tale of the American War of Independence," in which the characters of Captain Devereux and Constance Delamere are admirably drawn thus far, and in which we begin already to get some inkling of the course the tale will run. Mr. E. Whymper follows suit, with an account of "Arctic Expeditions of the Nineteenth Century," which has the merit of being clearly and concisely written, not too burdened with detail. Dr. Rimbault contributes from his treasure house of musical lore an interesting article on "American National Songs," and to the Rev. Canon Rawlinson we are indebted for a very scholarly paper on "Egyptian Civilisation." The series of articles, "Concerning Shoes and Shoemakers," contains a fund of information respecting those of whom the worthy St. Crispin is held to be the tutelary deity. Besides these, we have a continuation of the account of the Rev. W. Wright's "Trip to Palmyra and the Desert," a sketch of "Duck Island, St. James's Park," with abundant information respecting its numerous inhabitants. "Antiquarian Gossip on the Months" and "Weather Proverbs" ought to find a host of readers. We quote, from the latter, the following, relating to the 3rd, 6th and 14th of this month. As to the 3rd, St. Vincent's Day, the proverb runs thus:

"Remember, on St. Vincent's Day,
If that the sun his beams display,
He sure to mark his transient beam,
Which through the casement sheds a gleam;
For 'tis a token bright and clear
Of prosperous weather all the year."

This relates to the Sixth—"Old" St. Paul's Day:

"If St. Paul's Day be faire and cleare
It doth betide a happy yeare,
But if by chance it then should rain,
It will make deare all kinds of graine

Digitized by Google

And if ye clouds make dark ye skie,
Then neate and fowles this year shall die;
If blustering winds do blow aloft,
Then ware shall trouble ye realm full oft."

These concern Candlemas Day—February 14th N.S.—there being more proverbs relating to this than any other day in the year.

"If Candlemas Day be fair and clear, There'll be twa winters in the year."

"As far as the sun shines in on Candlemas Day,
So far the snow will blow in afore old May."

"The hind had as lief see his wife on the bier,
As that Candlemas Day should be pleasant and clear."

The following, from the French, is in agreement with our English experience:

"A la Chandeleur
Grand froid, grand neige!
S'il fait beau l'ours sort de sa tanière
Fait trois tours,
Et rentre pour quarante jours."

The most interesting features in the Sunday at Home, are the second of Dr. Stoughton's series of papers on "Westminster Abbey," and the continuation of "A Jew's First Impressions of England, and First Intercourse with Christians." We must also mention, among the "Pages for the Young," a short tale of no little interest, entitled "The Young Huguenot."

THE DRAMA.

The Royal Duke's.—Miscellaneous.

WITHIN a very short space of time the Holborn has twice changed its name, to little purpose. Its career, from the commencement, with but a single exception, has been an unbroken series of misfortunes The attempt to loosen the spell by a change of name was made by Mr. Horace Wigan, not a very long time since, and for a season the theatre was known as The Mirror. But whatever the mirror reflected it was certainly not success, and we have now to chronicle the assumption of a second alias, viz., the ROYAL DUKE'S. The play selected to inaugurate the new name is a semi-historical drama, by Mr. H. T. Craven, entitled Too True. We fear we cannot prophesy a lengthened run for this production. Unlike most other of Mr. Craven's plays, Too True is wanting in sustained interest. The plot is loosely constructed, and the characters generally inartistically drawn. Mr. Craven, Miss Louisa Moore, and Mr. Righton, who sustain the principal burden of the performance, do their utmost to save the play from failure, but their efforts are only partially successful. The piece will never draw, and may as well at once be withdrawn. The after piece, the ever welcome Black Eyed Susan, runs as merrily as of yore.

The present winter has been a fatal one for actors. George Belmore, Rogers (of the Haymarket), and the veteran Frederic Lemaitre, have made their final exits from the world, whilst Fechter has been compelled to have one of his legs amputated, and the late railway accident lost Dion Boucicault a son.

A new burlesque, Cracked Heads, a parody on Gilbert's Broken Hearts, has been produced at the STRAND.

BAD EYESIGHT.—Many people complain of fatigue in the eyes, or weakness of sight; they cannot read or write for any length of time without the page becoming indistinct and the letters running into each other. These are symptoms which can be removed by attention to the general health, rest, tonics, and frequently (three or four times a day) bathing the forehead and eyes with cold water. But never neglect them. Cold bathing to the whole body every day, making a habit of it, in fact, is a grand conservation of sight. For this purpose, if the person can bear it, the shower-bath is the best. But in taking a plunge-bath, alway dash a little water in the face first, then spring boldly in; don't take the water a toe at a time. When your eyes are at all weak, never work or read in the twilight, and never go out in very bright sunshine, especially if the ground is covered with snow. Out in Greenland, after shooting for five or six hours on the ice, we used always to come on board as hungry as hawks, but blind as moles. We were all right while on the snow, but the steward had to lead us to the table, and assist us in eating. In about two hours we came round again. This snow-blindness is caused in a great measure by extreme contraction of the pupil. Cold water to the eyes and a few whiffs of chloroform tend to dispel it.—By a Family Doctor, in "Cassell's Family Magazine" for February.

GREAT PUBLISHING UNDERTAKING.—The most superbly illustrated work ever yet produced on so comprehensive a scale is announced for immediate publication, under the title of "Picturesque Europe." It has been for several years in preparation, and will present a complete descriptive and elaborate pictorial illustration of the greater part of the European Continent, by bringing together, in a form never before attempted, representations of the numberless objects of Nature and of Art which make Great Britain and the Continent so pre-eminently picturesque. The illustrations will consist of exquisitely-engraved steel plates, and of engravings on wood, rivalling the productions on steel. All these will be absolutely new and original drawings, executed from recent sketches taken on the spot by eminent artists who have visited the various parts of Europe for the purpose. "Picturesque Europe" will be published in monthly parts by Messrs. Cassell Petter and Galpin, and the first part will be published the 1st of March.

GRAND LODGE HONOURS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Can you inform me how I am to proceed to obtain Grand Lodge Honours?

That I am worthy, no one can deny; my failings are diffidence, and a want of that modesty which usually characterises parasites and sycophants.

I have been told that I should rise to eminence by merit, live respected, and die regretted; the first I have failed to realise, the second I hold in proud and enviable veneration, and the third is not likely to be posthumously proclaimed, as I am a bachelor, with a fortune, and a myriad of poor but deserving relatives.

I find upon analysis that many bedizened brethren are conspicuous by their inaptitude for Masonic duty, and particularly by the absence of their names from the list of subscribers to our Charities.

In the land of my adoption (America) brethren are raised according to proficiency, service, and benevolence; but, in London, it appears that intellect, merit and charity are not requisite qualifications for the council who dispense Masonic favours.

Your kind reply to my question will b esteemed.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother

Yours fraternally,

LEGITIMATE AMBITION.

Lincoln, 1st Feb. 1876.

PLURALITY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—Pluralism is justly condemned, whether in political or clerical circles, for two reasons, one—that the aggrandizement of the individual tends to his greater selfishness; the other—that damage is done to the community by depriving efficient persons of the opportunity, which they would otherwise have, of serving their church or their country.

But, unfortunately, the same evil which we deplore in other bodies exists likewise in the Craft, and we find brethren, doubtless of great qualifications, filling various posts in different Lodges—as, I think—to the detriment of the Craft, by the unnecessary repression of junior brethren, whose opportunity of advancement is barred by the fact that offices to which they might reasonably aspire are already filled by those who hold posts in other Lodges. I do not doubt that in some cases such state of things may be desirable—as, for instance, it may be expedient that a brother may be Master of two Lodges at one and the same time, but then a dispensation from the Grand Master must be obtained, and I think a similar dispensation should be (and indeed is far more) necessary in the case of inferior offices. I am desirous of bringing the subject, at a future time, before the Grand Lodge, but should be glad if you would allow the matter to be ventilated in your columns, that I may be enabled to gauge public opinion on the subject.

I am,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

HONOUR TO WHOM HONOUR IS DUE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—I see that the Great City Lodge paid a fraternal visit to her sister Lodge at Westminster, such being considered to mark an era in the annals of Freemasonry. Will you allow me, on behalf of a Devon Lodge, to state that we, almost the youngest Lodge in the province, have, for more than twelve months, been in the habit of inviting the whole of the brethren of a Lodge in a neighbouring town to visit us, which they have done, en masse; they have reciprocated by giving us invitations in return, and we have visited them, almost all our members attending, although our two towns are twelve miles distant and we have no railway. These visits have given an opportunity of exchanging fraternal courtesies, to our mutual advantage. I saw a report of one of our visits in the "FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE" a few months since, and as such visits cannot fail to benefit all concerned, I was very glad to see "The Great City" walking in the steps of its humble provincial sister Lodge, and hope that country Lodges especially—which the more need each other's help—will thus strengthen each other, to their benefit and to the advantage of the whole Craft.

Yours truly,

X. Y. Z.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

ON Tuesday next, the third Session of the present Parliament will be opened by the Queen, in person; in attendance on whom there will, of course, be the usual array of Grand Court Officials. Doubtless, too, in accordance with past experience, we shall hear of the House of Lords being graced with an assemblage of peeresses and other ladies in gorgeous dress, and glittering with jewels. The diplomatists will be certain to muster in strong force on this occasion, for there is more than one question of public interest on which foreigners will be anxious to be informed. As regards the Princess of Wales, she has already started on her way home, and is expected to reach

London on Sunday morning. She, with the Princesses Louise and Beatrice, will accompany Her Majesty when Parliament is opened, and we doubt not will be received with the enthusiasm invariably extended to the Royal Family on all public occasions. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has reached Gwalior, on his Indian tour, and been magnificently received. There was a grand review and sham fight of Scindiah's troops organised specially in honour of the occasion. As to the banquetting, receptions, return visits, and the like, we think we need say little. Scindiah himself must be taken as expressing the feeling of his people; and he, at the banquet given at his palace in honour of the Prince's visit, expressed himself most warmly on the occasion, declaring afterwards in open Durbar that while many Scindiahs had preceded him, not one had been so highly honoured. On Wednesday, the Prince reached Agra, and left for Jeypore yesterday.

On Wednesday, H. R. H. the Duke of Edinburgh, presided at the biennial dinner of the Dover National Sailors' Home, an institution which, during the period of its existence, has received more than four thousand wrecked seamen of all nations. There were present to support His Royal Highness the Earl Granville, Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, the Mayor of Dover, Mr. C. L. Freshfield, one of the Borough Members, Admiral Sir W. Hall, Colonel Mackenzie, C. B., 78th Highlanders, the Rev. W. Yate, the Secretary and founder of the Sailors' Home. The usual loyal and complimentary toasts were then proposed; after which the Duke rose, and proposed in eloquent terms the toast of the evening, namely, "Prosperity to the National Sailors' Home of Dover," alluding in the course of his remarks to the splendid efforts of the Secretary and founder of the Institution, to the excellent work it had accomplished, and particularly to the service it had rendered to the shipwrecked passengers and crew of the ill-fated Northfleet. It is almost needless to add that the toast was received with the greatest enthusiasm—Mr. W. Yate acknowledging it appropriately. The other toasts, including that of Earl Granville, having been disposed of, the Duke vacated the Chair, and the Company dispersed.

Several Cabinet Councils have been held since our last Budget, and there have been, as usual, at the commencement of the month, a number of political articles, which have appeared in the current numbers of the monthlies. There are, too, several vacancies in the House of Commons—the elections to fill which are attracting no small amount of public attention. Among these vacancies must be mentioned that of Manchester, caused by the lamented death of Bro. Callender. No doubt the rival parties will strive their utmost to secure the vacancy, Manchester being next to London and, perhaps, we may add, Liverpool, the most important constituency in the United Kingdom.

The strike at Erith is still in progress. Both parties claim to be succeeding in the purpose they have in view. Messrs. Easten and Anderson say they are getting new hands daily, while the men out on strike appear to take a very hopeful view of the case. But, under any circumstances, it is most lamentable to note these terrible struggles between capital and labour, which, so far from having interests that are hostile to one another, must be said to be literally in the same boat. Capital will not unlikely be diverted into other channels if labour is so often in antagonism with it, and labour will not be forthcoming to a sufficient extent if capital does not hold out a kindly hand to it in its efforts to achieve, legitimately of course, a better position. We have said before that something like Courts of Arbitration should be established, as we believe is the case in France, so that all these disputes might be settled off-hand, and without creating that amount of ill-feeling between these too grand sections of the manufacturing community which there is no doubt exists, and has existed for a considerable time past.

Our readers will be sorry to hear that the health of the eminent retired judge, Sir John Coleridge, is in a state far from satisfactory to his extensive circle of friends. Lord Coleridge and other members of the family have been summoned to Sir John's residence, and by the latest advices there has been a slight improvement. But Sir John Coleridge is well advanced in years, and the statement that his health is not as it has been must doubtless have caused considerable anxiety among his friends and well-wishers.

How great soever the commercial progress we have made of late years, it is an unpleasant fact that commercial frauds increase almost in a corresponding ratio. Hardly a day passes but we find cases reported in the papers in which either companies or individuals are proved or alleged to have been guilty of transactions which will not bear the light of day. Now it is a case of fraudulent bankruptcy, now the directors of a company are accused of utilising the securities of their clients. We noted two or three cases of this kind last week, in one of which the presiding magistrate refused bail. On Thursday the trial of the promoters of the Eupion Gas Company was commenced, at Guildhall, before the Lord Chief Justice, and at the moment of writing is still in progress. Under these circumstances we naturally abstain from offering any comment on the case; but, true or false, such repeated charges as these are an ugly sign of the times we live in. On the same day on which the commencement of the Eupion case was reported, we noticed as many as five cases of various kinds of fraud. In two out of the three tried at the Central Criminal Court convictions were obtained, the other standing adjourned. Of the two cases brought under the notice of the magistrate at the Southwark Police Court, in one the prisoner stands remanded till Tuesday next, in the other the prisoner was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

The Annual General Court of the Royal Free Hospital, Grays Inn Road, was held on Thursday, Mr. James Hopgood, chairman of the committee, presiding. The receipts from all sources during the past year amounted to a little over £7800, the balance at the bankers at the end of the year amounting to £2500. The amount of Government Stock temporarily held by the trustees, and available for general purposes, is £2166 13s 4d. It was intimated, further, that Mr. George Moore intended to found a convalescent hospital for the reception of patients from the Royal Free and St. Mary's Hospitals, and also that nearly the whole of the late Mr. Milne's estate had been realised, and, as the accounts would shortly be closed, the Hospital would come into possession of about £9000. The report having been adopted unanimously, and a vote of thanks to the Committee passed, the meeting came to an end.

Already the presidents of the two University Boating Clubs are doing their utmost towards getting together the crews for their annual contest on the Thames, which will take place this year on the 8th of April. In a week or two's time the crews, we presume, will be complete, and go into training for the grand struggle. As the race falls somewhat later this year, the visitation of "blue" fever, to which London is annually subjected, will be somewhat more prolonged.

The Alphonsists have entered on what, without inclining one way or the other, we hope will prove the decisive campaign of the war which has so long raged in the North East Provinces of Spain. The telegrams from Madrid report the achievement by the Royal troops of more than one very substantial success. The London Carlist Committee announce the repulse of one attack on their lines. Which will triumph in the end it will be time enough to announce when the end has come. What most people desire is, that Spain may enjoy peace, and so have an opportunity of developing her magnificent resources. There has also been some fighting between the Turks and the insurgents, in which the latter appear to have suffered a defeat. The Austrian Consul General in Belgrade reports the situation in Servia as menacing, and goes so far as to say that it will be extremely difficult to restrain any longer the warlike disposition of the people. It is also stated that the Prince of Montenegro gave Schect Effendi, the Turkish envoy from Ali Pacha, a very cold reception, contenting himself with saying, in reply to the Turk's request, that he abstained from all interference, but not offering to forbid his subjects to join the insurrection. This Eastern question seems to become more serious every day. Hungary has lost one of its ablest men—Francis Deak, with whose name and fame most Englishmen are familiar. His countrymen paid him honours commensurate with his worth and the great services he had rendered to the state. His body had lain in state since Sunday, and on and around the coffin were a number of wreaths, one of which had been placed there by the Empress Elizabeth. On Thursday, the funeral took place the attendant procession comprising, besides the relatives of the deceased, several of the most notable men in Hungary. Some thousands of representatives from the different Hungarian Societies and authorities, deputations from the comitat of Zala, where Deak was born, and from Pesth, which he had represented in the Diet, together with a number of priests, Count Andrassy as representative of the Emperor, and the Hungarian ministers and several magnates clad in the national costume, brilliant with gold and precious stones. Throughout the city the shops were closed, the balconies hung with black, and most of the large houses hoisted a black flag. In honouring Deak, the Hungarians have done honour to themselves.

The funeral of our late Bro. W. R. Callender, M.P. for Manchester, took place on Saturday morning, at the Churchyard of St. John's, Heaton Mersey. The procession, which was timed to leave the residence of the deceased about half-past ten, consisted of about one hundred and fifty private carriages, which contained the representatives of numerous public, political, and charitable bodies. There were present, also, a strong muster of brethren from the Lodges in Lancashire and Cheshire, who formed a double line from the gates of the churchyard to the porch of the church. No Masonic emblems were, however, displayed. The Masonic part of the procession was headed by R.W. Bro. Le Gendre N. Starkie, P.G.M. East Lancashire, there being present, according to the Manchester Examiner and Times of the 31st ult., representatives from the following Lodges:—Callender, Anchor and Hope, Humphrey Chetham, Trafford, Blair, Integrity, Zetland, St. George's, Caledonian, Friendship, Egerton, Harmony, Richmond, Yarborough, Unanimity, Alexandra, Newhall, Shakespeare, Architect, Faith, Marquis of Lorne, Duke of Athol, Ashbury, De Grey and Ripon, St. David's, St. John's, Virtue, Wilton, Endeavour, Milton, Wike, Bridgwater, Light, Imperial, George, Earl of Ellesmere, Kirkcaldy, and others. By command of the M.W.G.M. of Mark Masons, Grand Secretary Bro. Binckes has issued a circular letter, to the effect that all Mark Lodges shall be suitably draped with mourning, and all members thereof wear mourning for the space of six months, as a token of respect and esteem for the late Bro. Callender, who held the position of Deputy Grand Mark Master and Prov. G. Mark Master for Lancashire.

The Confidence Lodge of Instruction has voted three guineas towards the purchase of Bro. Harty's engraving of the Installation of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales as M. W. G. M. It were well if other Lodges followed the good example thus set. We would also suggest that the presentation to a retiring master of a work which records so memorable an event in Freemasonry would in very many cases be preferable to the gift of a P.M.'s jewel, however elaborate and massive the latter may be. In both cases merit would be duly honoured, but where the engraving was given, a brother's family, assuming him to be a Benedict, might be said to participate in his honours.

Bro. Louis Beck S.D. 1559 announces his annual ball for Tuesday, 8th February, at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's. Bro. Jarvis is the M.C.

The 21st annual ball of our respected Bro. T. Adams P.G.P. was held on Tuesday, the 1st inst. The ball, as usual, was a success, about 250 brethren and ladies being present. The usual supper took place. Bro. W. Smith P.G.S. rose, and said:—He, as well as every one present, regretted the absence of Bro. Adams, owing to a domestic affliction, and he, as well as the numerous assembly, would drink his health and long life, and hope he would soon become reconciled to his sad bereavement. He trusted, under the circumstances, there would be no other toasts. The company then repaired to the ball room, where dancing was kept up with great spirit, Mr. Bradsell conducting the band. Bro. Jarvis was an efficient M.C. Among those present were Bros. T. Cubitt, R. W. Little, T. Ball, W. Smith, Bennett, Manders, Swallow, Michael, White, Miller, Cremer, W. C. Parsons, Scales, Stiles, Read, Keefe, Davis, Lindner, Cox, Bethel, Treadwell, Kingston, H. M. Levy, &c.

We have received a copy of the Calendar for the Province of West Yorkshire, compiled by Bro. Henry Smith, Prov. Grand Sec., and of an Annual for the Provinces of Durham and Northumberland, compiled and published by Bro. Jas. H. Coates, which we recommend to the members of the Craft. We would suggest to Bro. Smith that in future editions he should adopt the book form, retaining the distinctive features of his present issue. The Annual for Durham, which is the third year of publication, has this year been increased by the addition of the list for the adjoining province of Northumberland, and other useful information.

FREEMASONS AS MEN.

From The Keystone.

THE principles of Freemasonry are perfect, but their practical exemplification by Freemasons is sometimes imperfect. It is much pleasanter, and it sounds better, to laud the former and overlook the latter, but it is not quite right to do so. We must consider facts as they are, and not merely as they ought to be, especially if we wish to rectify them. When we admit that all Freemasons do not "act upon the square," we state a painful, but not a remarkable fact. We are none of us as good as our principles. There is no religious sect that does not possess members who both consciously and unconsciously are neglectful of its doctrines. To err is human. The spirit may be willing, but the flesh is always weak. We state the matter thus, not to extenuate the serious and intentional faults of brethren, but to place members of the Masonic fraternity upon the same level with those who espouse noble principles, but are occasionally neglectful of them in practice. A bad Mason does not prove Masonry to be a failure, any more than a bad Christian argues rotten Christianity. It is the old, old story of the variation between faith and practice—no matter how perfect the former may be, the latter will be less so. Hence the necessity of aiming very high in every case, if we would make our actions agree with our principles.

We said it was pleasanter to praise than to blame. So it is. But if there be great faults, it is right to find fault. A physician who is called to attend a patient afflicted with a serious disorder, does not tell him there is nothing the matter, and try to laugh him convalescent, but he gives him something like a true account of his case, and administers to him it may be some unpalatable medicines. In other words, he works for a cure. He may even cut off a limb to save a life. It would be an unpardonable offence—one that even the law would take cognizance of, for him to be carelessly guilty of the malpractice of allowing the limb to become gangrenous, and to poison the whole system, for want of amputation. No more have we a right to shut our eyes to the gross and inexcusable imperfections of Freemasons, and cover them with the mantle of charity. We believe in charity, but we believe also in the suspension or expulsion of those who are openly and persistently false to the principles they, under the most solemn sanctions, have promised to uphold. Hence, we do hesitate to deprecate the injurious actions of weak or vicious brethren, for two reasons—first, that such may see them in their true light, appreciate their enormity, foresee their legitimate results, and save themselves from the disgrace of exposure and expulsion, and the Craft from their ill-repute; and second, that young members of the Craft, who possibly may have themselves been among the sufferers by their actions, may not lose faith in the principles of the Fraternity, or in the purity of the large body of its members.

It is true in Freemasonry as in the world, that the love of money is the root of much, if not all evil. All men are not honest. We cannot read a daily newspaper without finding in it a record of defalcations, which run from thousands to hundreds of thousands. But there should never be defalcations officially among Masons—nevertheless there are. Even Lodge Secretaries and Treasurers have, occasionally, broken the solemn obligations they were under to keep safely and unimpaired the funds confided, almost sacredly, to their keeping. And individual Masons have sometimes borrowed sums of money from young brethren, which they had no certainty of being able to return. Such things ought not to be. Let the world and the church have its defaulters, but let not those who wear the lamb skin or white leather apron sully its purity. If they cannot or will not "act upon the square," let them not wear it upon the lappel of their coats. If they cannot come into the Lodge with clean hands, free from iniquity, let them not cover them with white gloves. Would that such would see the impropriety of wearing the garb of Masons when they are not Masons in their hearts? Would that they might become, at least, non-affiliates, and we would then not say one word against that class, nor persuade them to join a Lodge.

Young Masons naturally expect and hope great things of the Craft, and have a right to do so. They consider what it undoubtedly is in its principles, and in a brother they look for the exemplification of true brotherly love. Hence, if they in any instance unfortunately do not find it, they may suffer their own love to grow cold, and become indifferent Masons, rarely attending the Lodge, and losing faith in the efficiency of its principles. This ought not to be. In the beginning their experience may have been unfortunate, but they may rest assured the body of the Craft is true to its principles. Bad Masons are the exception, not the rule. There is a power in Masonry for good, and it profits by the support of those who are in real sympathy with it. It has its mercenary members, we regret to say, but they are comparatively few in numbers. It has those, too, whose words are not as good as their bonds, and whose bonds, even, are valueless, but they are but a vulgar fraction of the fraternity. They are Masons in name, but not in truth, and Masonry itself should not be discredited with their deeds.

In this connection we would remind the reader that Masonry should never be unduly connected with business. Business is business, and should be always transacted upon business principles, and in a business-like way, even between Masons. Give a man because he is a Mason, but never lend to him on that account. Many a bad debt has arisen in this way. Masonry does not enable a man to pay a debt—that depends upon his financial ability alone. The principles we have enunciated, and the facts we have referred to, are worthy of the conscientious and careful reflection of all, and if they are painful in some aspects, they deserve the more to be considered and corrected.

for his efficiency in the chair, and Bro. Gottheil expressed the pleasure he felt in listening to the excellent manner in which the ceremony was worked by so young a brother. Joppa Chapter, No. 188.—A Convocation of this Chapter was held on Monday, 31st ult, at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, City. M. Emanuel M.E.Z., H. M. Levy P.Z. as H., W. Littaur P.Z., J. S. V. Auerbach, Mellish, J. S. Lyon, L. Davids, &c. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Comp. Bockbarder, Regularity Chapter, was duly elected a joining member. The report of the audit meeting was read, showing the flourishing state of the Chapter, which leaves a balance in its favour of £20 7s 10d. The resignation of 5 Companions was accepted, and 3 brethren were proposed for exaltation at the next meeting. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to a banquet, provided by Comp. W. G. Jennings, of the Albion Tavern Company. Rev. J. Myers said grace for the Hebrew Companions, and J. Constable for the Christians. The M.E.Z. then proposed the usual loyal and R.A. toasts. The M.E.Z., in proposing the toast of the Visitors, said the Chapter was always pleased to see them, but it rarely fell to their lot to see so many distinguished in the Order. Comp. Cohen had done his work well, and he hoped to have him among them as a joining member. Comp. John Boyd, P.Z. 145, had honoured them by his presence; he was not unknown to the Craft. In the Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement he had, in connection with good workers of known celebrity, tended to perfect the ceremonies of R.A. Masonry, and it was only on Tuesday last, at the Centenary Festival of the Lodge of which he is so distinguished an ornament, that he was presented with a massive silver service, a silver waiter, and the centenary jewel; his valuable services had been recognised, and he was respected in every capacity he occupied. (Cheers). The next was Comp. John Constable, J. 141. The M.E.Z. referred to the admirable manner Comp. Constable had performed his duties in the chair of his Lodge; the just praise of the Craft was due to him for his laudable services rendered in the noble cause of Charity. (Cheers.) His name was simply a household word; he had, by his energetic exertions, given large amounts to the Masonic Charities, and would do, and he trusted those energies would never fail. (Cheers.) Comp. Cohen P.Z. first responded to the toast, and said how pleased he was to visit the Chapter and see it in so flourishing a condition, not only in the working, but also in a pecuniary sense. He had occupied the post of Treasurer for eleven years, his residence from town was his cause of resignation, but he hoped at a future time to rejoin the Chapter. Comp. John Boyd then thanked the M.E.Z. for his kind expressions, he regretted his inability to be present earlier; he was sure, by the well-known working of the Joppa Chapter, that it was perfect, and he would at a future period avail himself of the kind invitation of the M.E.Z. Comp. John Constable thanked the M.E.Z. for his hospitality; he impressed on the Companions the necessity of visiting the Chapter of Improvement. They would there see how the beautiful ceremony was carried out, and in concluding his remarks said—his motto was, and always would be, "Deeds, not words." Comp. H. M. Levy, I.P.M., then proposed the toast of the M.E.Z., and paid a just compliment for his efficient working, he having occupied every office with satisfaction to himself and credit to the Chapter. The M.E.Z., in reply, said, his services were always at their command; he knew he had the support of the Companions, he had always met with a suitable recognition, and those mementoes he would never forget. He then proposed the toast of the P.Z.'s, which was severally responded to. The M.E.Z. then proposed the toast of the officers; no Chapter could boast of better ones. Companion Dickinson was a model S.E., and L. Lazarus was a worthy follower. Comp. L. Jacobs, the P.S., had been absent, but that had been on the occasion of his marriage; he hoped, in the course of time, to see him in the chair, and a "Lewis" to be exalted in the Chapter. The toast having been responded to, the M.E.Z. said he was about to propose a toast out of the ordinary course, and that was the health of a Comp. who had that night tendered his resignation, viz.: Comp. Walford, whom he hoped to see among them again on a future occasion. The toast was responded to by Comp. Walford, who said it was with feelings of pleasure that he had joined the Chapter, and he hoped to be with them again; his uncle, the late David Moses, had been Treasurer of the Lodge of Joppa for 43 years. The Janitor's toast was given. Bros. J. Constable and Rogers during the evening sang some capital songs.

Bro. Sherwood proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. Penfold, who, in responding, stated that his duties were so light that his office was a sinecure. Bro. Kennett, in thanking the brethren for his election to office, stated that it was his intention not to accept a mere sinecure, he should carry out the duties required of him. Two gentlemen were proposed as candidates for initiation at the next Lodge, after which the proceedings terminated.

The retiring Master was then presented with a magnificent jewel, for the able and efficient manner in which he had conducted the duties of his office for the past year. Several candidates were proposed for initiation, after which the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which terminated a pleasant evening.

Canonbury Chapter, No. 657.—The ordinary Convocation of this Chapter was held at Masons' Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street, on Thursday evening, the 27th ult. There were present: Comps. Reynolds M.E.Z., Clarkson H., Bond J., Cox P.Z., Thomas Scribe E., Read Scribe N., Vincent P.S., and several others. The Chapter having been opened, Bro. Whitby, of the Temple Lodge, No. 101, was exalted to the sublime degree of Royal Arch Mason, the ceremony being most impressively performed. Present—Companions Hodges Z., Tolley H., Griesbrook J., Dixon Scribe E., Powell Scribe N., Fleck P.S., Devereux P.Z., James Stevens P.Z., Reid, Collins, Roberts, J. O. Carter, L. W. Denne, W.M. of No. 209, into Royal Arch Masonry, in his well known, efficient and effective manner. Companion Bryett, J. of Chapter 834, was admitted as a joining member. A presentation of an interesting nature here took place. It was resolved, at the last regular meeting, in October, to present Companion James Stevens with a suitable token of appreciation of the members of the Chapter, for the admirable manner in which he has presided over them for the three years ending October last. The actual presentation was made by Companion Devereux, who said it was his pleasing duty to present to Companion Stevens, on behalf of the Chapter, a Silver Salver, and expressed his admiration of the manner in which the affairs of the Chapter had been conducted under Companion Stevens's long reign; he knew that it was sometimes at considerable inconvenience that he attended. He also expressed the pleasure it afforded him to find the presentation was not of the ordinary kind, but something which he knew would be appreciated by Companion Stevens's wife and family, not only at the present time, but also in years to come. He concluded by gracefully wishing, not only Companion Stevens, but also his wife and family, every possible happiness and prosperity, a sentiment he knew would be endorsed by every member of the Windsor Castle Chapter. Companion Stevens, in reply, said the handsome present was of greater value than he knew his services had been to the Chapter; he had always been pleased and proud to attend the meetings since he first joined. He greatly admired the propriety of departing from the usual rule, instead of adding another to his numerous decorations; this was a present he should value indeed, as it was something of domestic utility, and would, he was sure, be highly appreciated by his wife and family. He thanked the Companions for the kind expressions towards his wife and children. The Salver, which is both costly and handsome, bore the following inscription: "Presented to Companion James Stevens P.Z., by the Windsor Castle Chapter, No. 771, in recognition of past and valuable services to the Chapter, and in remembrance of the three successive years he so kindly and ably filled the First Principal's Chair as M.E.Z." The Chapter was afterwards closed in due form.

Carter P.P.G.J.D., Terry P.G.D.C.; Bros. Yolland P.G.S.B., Paterson P.G. Organist, &c. &c. Visitors—Bros. Neal P.M. 1209 P.P.A.D.C. Kent, Fowler P.M. 194, Constable P.M. 185, Baker 500. Ireland, Hickman 228, Mitchell 186, Campkin W.M. 403, Wilson S.W. 403, Boatwright P.P.G.S.Wks. J.W. 403, Le Strange 645, F. Binckes Secretary Boys' School. The Lodge was opened, and after the preliminary business had been transacted, Bro. P.M. Lowthin took the chair, and Bro. James Cutbush, S.W. and W.M. elect, was presented. A board of installed Masters having been formed, the ceremony of installation was conducted, in an admirable manner. Venables S.D., Gray J.D., Newman D.C., Brown Steward, Emerby I.G., Goddard Tyler. After the usual charges had been given, a P.M.'s jewel was presented to the I.P.M., and after routine business, the Lodge was closed. An elegant banquet followed, served by Bro. Fisher in capital style, and to which ample justice was done. The W.M. gave the loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Binckes, Secretary Boys' School, replying to that of the Grand Officers. In proposing the health of the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., Bro. J. Cutbush referred to the high estimation in which he was held, and trusted he might long continue to preside over the Province. The toasts of the W.M., and the installing Master were then severally given and replied to. Bro. Terry, in proposing the health of the Past Masters, referred to the fact of their having received Provincial honours, and added that these honours were fully deserved. The toast of the Visitors was next given, and the W.M. said he should like each one to respond, but he would restrict them to two minutes each, a precedent we should like to see more often carried out. In proposing the next on the list—that of the Masonic Charities—the W.M. made a most forcible and telling speech. Bro. Terry, in reply, urged the brethren to use every effort for the support of our charitable institutions; increased demands were being daily made, necessitating additional funds. He called attention to the large number of candidates now awaiting admission, and expressed his belief that the past exertions of the Gladsmuir brethren were only a prelude to what might be expected at their hands. Whatever they might do subsequently for the Boys and Girls, their support should now be directed to the Benevolent Institution, the Festival of which will take place on the 9th proximo. A most satisfactory result was the consequence, the sum of £27 15s being subscribed towards the list of the W.M. as Steward for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The evening's entertainment was enlivened by some excellent songs, and as many of the visitors had to return to town, the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close at a somewhat early hour. We may add that the comfort of the guests was full considered, and that the attendance by Bro. Fisher's staff left nothing to be desired.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—The first anniversary banquet was held on Friday, the 28th ult., at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville Road, King's Cross. Previously to the meeting the Lodge was opened. The minutes of the former meeting were read, and all business being ended, the brethren adjourned to a banquet, provided by Bro. Cox. Bro. James Willing I.P.M. 1507 occupied the chair, Bro. Williams the vice-chair, supported by Bros. Michael WM., W. M. Stiles Secretary, Side, Solomon, Reepe, Shand, Saintsbury, Rogers, Gilbert sen. and Gilbert jun., Berrie, Gomm, Child, Ormiston, Solomon, Little, Van Camp, Shanklin, Ferner and Fisher, H. Stiles, Swangman, &c. The Lodge of Instruction was in a flourishing state, and this enabled the W.M. to dilate on the success that had been achieved. Bro. James Willing, as W.M., proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Michael W.M. 1507 then rose, and said he had great pleasure in proposing a toast, and that was the W.M. He was the first W.M. of the Lodge; he was one who had always carried out, in every respect, the duties required of him in the Lodge, and also in the Lodge of Instruction. He regretted the absence of one who had endeared himself to them. He referred to Bro. Adams P.G.P., who, he was sorry to inform the brethren, was incapacitated, by domestic affliction, from being present. Bro. Willing had discharged every duty required of him; he was one of the founders of the Lodge, he was the Treasurer of the Lodge of Instruction, and every brother truly respected him. (Cheers.) Bro. Jas. Willing responded to the toast, and said he was pleased to see his successor, Bro. Michael, had conducted the duties of the chair in the Parent Lodge; and he also felt proud to see how the Lodge of Instruction had prospered, as the present gathering showed. Whatever duties were required of him, were at their service, but to Br. T. Adams, the Preceptor, the greater credit was due; he was always zealous in the cause of Freemasonry his very name was a tower of strength, and they all regretted his absence. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the officers. They were, as Founders of the Lodge, regular attendants, and two brethren were in office who were a credit to it. He would couple with the toast the name of the worthy and excellent Secretary. Brother W. M. Stiles replied, He thanked Brothers Willing and Michael for their kind assistance, his services were always at their command, and he would, in his capacity of Secretary, do all he could to further their interests. Bros. Massey, Lewis and Davis responded for the toast of the visitors. The W.M. then proposed the health of the W.M. of the Parent Lodge, Bro. Michael, whom he characterized as a thoroughly good working Mason. The attendance at the Lodge of Instruction was now very numerous, and he was glad to see its prosperous condition, he was also pleased to see Bro. Michael present. (Cheers.) This brother, in responding, said he was proud to be Master of so flourishing a Lodge; he might say they had more initiations in the past year than any other Lodge. They had their regular Lodge meetings, and five emergencies, and seven gentlemen were on the list to be initiated, clearly shewing that Masonry was not superficial, for in their Lodge there were three brethren who were initiated the first night, who now occupied offices; it was also to the Lodge of Instruction he owed being in the chair. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the officers, particularly referring to Bro. Adams, the veteran Preceptor, 86 years of age, who came among them to give instruction to the younger members. The Treasurer and Secretary were all indefatigable in the discharge of their duties. The health of Bros. Williams S.W., Scales W.S., and Side was then given, they were thorough good working Masons. The Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable evening.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—We have repeatedly spoken of the energy displayed by our brethren in the eastern part of the metropolis in their search after a knowledge of Masonic ritual. We announce frequently that bands of these "wise men" have made arrangements to work the Fifteen Sections, and it usually falls to our lot to chronicle that these arrangements have been carried out in a satisfactory manner. Last week we directed the attention of our readers to the fact that the Fifteen Sections would be worked on Wednesday, the 2nd February, at the Havelock Tavern, Albion Road, Dalston, by the brethren of the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, and accordingly, at the appointed time, a goodly attendance of members and friends presented themselves. The Lodge was opened under the presidency of Bro. Marx Gross, who was supported by Bros. Austin S.W., Jas. Stevens J.W., Young I.G., and nearly fifty brethren. The minutes having been read, the W.M. worked the Fifteen Sections, assisted by the undermentioned:—

younger branches of the Craft, who are zealous, and particularly perfect in all they attempt, and reflect great credit upon their able Preceptors. On the motion of Bro. Gilchrist, Bro. T. Austin was unanimously elected an honorary member, and Bros. Crouch, Musto, Chitson, Eisenstein, Job, Diagnalm and Morgan were elected joining members. A vote of thanks, accompanied with the tender of honorary membership, was given to Bro. Gross for his services to the Lodge, and after a suitable reply from Bro. Gross, the brethren separated.

GRAND MASONIC BALL IN HULL.

ONE of the most important and agreeable réunions which it is the lot of Hull people annually to enjoy is the ball given in aid of the Masonic and local Charities, under the auspices of the Humber Lodge, No. 57. Each succeeding Worshipful Master seems to be animated with a determination, if possible, to surpass the efforts of those who have gone before; and, brilliant as was the ball last year, the event of last Wednesday evening was quite equal, if not surpassing it, both in point of numbers and general display. In every respect the ball was a perfect success; the arrangements were of the most lavish description; and nothing was left unstudied that could at all conduce to the pleasures of the assemblage. The ball was under the patronage of the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon R.W. Prov. Grand Master of England, the R.W. the Mayor of Hull, Dr. Kelburne King, the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland R.W. Prov. Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire, the Ex-Mayor (Bro. Alderman Charles Wells) P.M. P.P.G.W., Bro. Dr. J. P. Bell P.G.D. of England and D.P.G.M. of North and East Yorkshire, the Sheriff of Hull (Mr. A. K. Rollit LL.D.), the Ex-Sheriff (Bro. Francis Summers) Past S.W. 57, Bro. Charles Morgan Norwood, M.P., Mr. Charles Wilson M.P., Bro. Christopher Sykes M.P. P.S.P.G.W., Bro. Lieut.-Col. Pease, J.P., Bro. Alderman A. Bannister, J.P., P.S.P.G.D., and the Worshipful Masters, officers, and brethren of the Minerva (Hull), Constitutional (Beverley) St. Germain's (Selby), Londesborough (Bridlington), Pelham Pillar (Grimsby), Kingston (Hull), Sykes (Driffield), and Alexandra (Hornsea). It was no matter of surprise that, with such distinguished countenance and support, backed up by the assiduous exertions of the committee, the event should have attracted a very large amount of public interest; and, as the officers and brethren of the various Lodges in the Province generally responded to the invitation to appear in full Masonic costume, a very gay and animated scene was the result. The company began to assemble soon after nine o'clock, and for a couple of hours afterwards visitors continued to arrive in rapid succession, until the commodious assembly-room was thronged by a brilliant gathering. The aspect of the ball-room at eleven o'clock, when the festivities were at their height, was picturesque in the extreme; and all around were an aspect of gaiety and luxury. Although the architectural features of the public rooms leave little need for extraneous decoration, yet the committee spared no pains in putting finishing touches here and there in the matter of embellishment, which tended vastly to enhance the coup d'œil. In the orchestra were numerous bannerets bearing Masonic and other devices, prettily interspersed with conifers and other ornamental shrubs, whilst in front of the organ were the silk banners of the Humber Lodge and Chapter. The façade of the orchestra was adorned with mirrors, which were tastefully festooned with lace, &c., whilst underneath was a comfortable lounge, draped with scarlet, in unison with the other seats placed around the room. Over the entrance doors were trophies of flags, surmounted by banners, and in the recesses were other mirrors, set off with boxes of choice flowers, including some magnificent camellias in bloom, ericas, liliums, and other products of the conservatory. The floor was covered with holland, and with an abundance of good light and good music all the essentials of a successful and enjoyable ball were present. Nearly two hundred and fifty guests were present, including the Mayor (Dr. King), the ex-Mayor (Bro. Alderman Charles Wells), the Sheriff (Dr. Rollit), the Worshipful Masters of several Lodges, and many brethren who hold prominent positions in the Craft, and the mingling of regalia and uniforms amongst the groups of ladies, whose toilettes were more than ordinarily elegant, made up a scene of surpassing gaiety and animation. The brethren who rendered such efficient service on the ball committee consisted of Bro. A. W. Ansell W.M., Jonathan West I.P.M., H. Toozes S.W., Edward Kidd J.W., W. Tessyman P.M., W. H. Wellsted Secretary, M. Haberland Lecture Master, T. Cook S.D., T. D. Wing J.D., R. Beevers C.S., T. Thompson D.C., and E. Stone I.G. The last named gentleman, as the hon. secretary of the ball committee, was most indefatigable in his exertions to make the affair a success, and deserves the especial thanks of those who were most deeply interested in that object. All the other members of the committee worked with a will, and we congratulate them sincerely upon the triumph which they achieved. The following gentlemen officiated as Stewards, and to whose assiduity and attention so much of the enjoyment of the evening may be attributed: Bros. J. R. Ansell, James Scott, A. Loftus, Alfred Milner, T. Middleton, T. Greasley, and B. Cohen. Bro. G. T. Milner officiated as master of ceremonies. For hours the dancers continued to

"Chase the glowing hours with flying feet,"

And although, now and then, there would be a brief lull after the valse or quadrille was done, with a few moments of "circulating" and crossing—in which uniforms, bright dresses, brighter faces, scarlet, gold, and flowers made up the charming human bouquet—still at the first sound of the music each and all seemed inspired with renewed ardour for the fray. We agree with the modern writer who says:—"We may be sure that, whatever changes come about in the course of time, the ball is sure to endure; for it is founded on a happy and a substantial basis, and the pleasant variety—the alternation of waltz or galop, with the judicious insertion of the quadrille—will prevent coming generations feeling any amusement in this pastime." For the comfort and convenience of those who chose to remain passive spectators of the ball, as well as those who sought rest and retirement from the exertions of the dance, the ante-chamber had been luxuriously fitted up as a drawing room, exquisite suites of furniture having been supplied by the firm of Messrs. Andas and Leggott, upholsterers, of Paragon-street. To add to the appearance of the room a number of magnificent cabinets, bronzes, vases, &c., had been furnished by Messrs. King and Co. and Bro. James Scott, silversmith, Market-place, and the apartment was as warm and cosy as it could possibly be rendered. In the vestibule light refreshments were served, and the whole of the arrangements were perfect in this respect. At twelve o'clock supper was announced, in the long room up stairs, which, with its gay decorations and brilliant lighting, the tables set out with every luxury, and embellished with silver vases and epergnes filled with sweet-scented flowers, looked picturesque in the extreme. The W.M. presided, and at the conclusion of the repast proposed "The Queen and the Craft," the toast being duly honoured. The other Masonic toasts followed, after which the W.M. thanked his Worship the Mayor of Hull for his presence on the occasion, a compliment which was enhanced by the fact that Dr. King was not a member of the Fraternity. In proposing this toast, he deeply regretted his worship, not being a Mason, could not fully enter into the feelings which possessed him at that moment. But he acknowledged that gentleman's appreciation of the charitable objects of the Craft. (Applause.) The Mayor felt very deeply the kind way in which the toast had been received. He had not the pleasure of being a Mason, but from what he had seen to-night he could very well understand the great advantages which must accrue to the community from men uniting themselves together as Masons for the purpose of following up certain ends, of which charity seemed to be uppermost. (Hear, hear.) In conclusion, he gave the "Health of the Worshipful Master of the Humber Lodge" in felicitous terms, and Bro. A. W. Ansell suitably acknowledged the compliment which had been paid him by the chief magistrate. The Senior Warden (Bro. H. Toozes) proposed "The Visitors," on whose behalf Bro. John Brooke, W.M. of the Minerva Lodge, and Bro. Alderman Charles Wells P.M. briefly responded. The toast of "The Ladies" was given by Bro. G. T. Milner, and suitably acknowledged by Bro. Alfred Milner. The toasts having ended, a hurried return was made to the ball-room where dancing was resumed with increased zest and ardour, and the enjoyment of the party reigned supreme, until four o'clock, when the guests took their departure, having enjoyed a thoroughly harmonious and happy réunion. At intervals during the evening the ball-room was brilliantly illuminated by a lime light apparatus, gratuitously furnished and most successfully worked by Bro. James Scott, and this tended to enhance the novelty as well as the interest of the occasion. A selection of newest music was played by the excellent quadrille band, which consisted of most of the chief musicians, whose abilities tended so greatly to maintain the prestige of the Arion Orchestral Union in Hull.

Freemason's Chronicle;

VOL. III.—No. 59. SATURDAY, 12th FEBRUARY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE ANACALYPSIS OF GODFREY HIGGINS.

IN the November and December numbers of the Voice of Masonry is a very elaborate review, by Bro. Hughan, of the late Godfrey Higgins's "Anacalypsis, an attempt to draw aside the Veil of the Saitic Isis, or an Enquiry into the origin of Languages, Nations and Religions." This work was published by Messrs. Longmans and Co. in 1836, but as only two hundred copies were printed, it has already become very scarce, and when a chance copy is on sale the price demanded is considerably beyond the means of the ordinary student. Thus Bro. Hughan has rightly judged that a sketch of those portions of it which relate to Freemasonry will be heartily welcomed by the Craft, and, accordingly, we have thought it desirable to give a digest of the two valuable papers he recently contributed to our American Masonic contemporary.

Bro. Hughan begins by noting the learned and abstruse character of the work, and considers this a reason why it is so little known among Masonic students. He then offers a few remarks on the preface, which was written by the author himself, and in which he explains how he was led to inquire into the subject, and the time he devoted to its study. He then passes at once to Freemasonry, and quotes Bro. Higgins's opinion of it to the effect that "the designed effect of all Masonic initiation is to render a man more virtuous—consequently, more happy. A perfect Mason, if such a thing could be, must be a perfect Buddhist, a perfect Jew, a perfect Christian, and a perfect Mohammedan." Bro. Hughan expresses his perfect agreement with this definition of Freemasonry, and adds:—

"Whilst Freemasonry is unsectarian, its oldest charge under the modern system, forcibly acknowledges the foregoing by declaring that the fraternity should seek, by the purity of their own lives, to demonstrate the superiority of the religion they may profess." Also, that a "Mason is particularly bound never to act against the dictates of his conscience." Were all craftsmen actuated by such motives, we need not fear any opposition to our society from without; for so long as we are pure within, no other danger can permanently affect us."

We are then presented with the following interesting extract:—

"On the ruins of Mundore, may be seen various mystic emblems, as the quatre-feuille, the cross, the mystic triangle, the triangle within a triangle, &c. Col. Tod says, 'Among ancient coins and medals excavated from the ruins of Oojein, and other ancient cities, I possess a perfect series with all the symbolic emblems of the twenty-four Apostles. The compound equilateral triangle is among them; perhaps there were Masons in those days among the Pali (i.e., the Philistines of the Indian Gaza, and of Gaza, a few miles from Solomon's Temple in Western Syria.) So, my good friend, Col. Tod, you are surprised that there should be Masonic emblems upon the ruins of Mundore. . . . But though this may surprise you, it will not surprise his Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, or any Mason of high degree. But the author is himself a Mason, and that of high degree. He may say no more. Yet he will venture to add that, though much of the learning of that ancient Order remains, much is lost, and much may yet be recovered. But it is not every Apprentice or Fellow Craft who knows all the secrets of the Order."

Bro. Higgins, we are told, was a Royal Arch Mason, and as he did not penetrate beyond, evidently he regards that rank as one of high degree. Then follow two more extracts, both bearing on the subject of Masonry, the first reads thus:—

"Brother Mason, what do you know of Solomon's Temple? Here are the word Alming in Synastrens, and the Masonic emblems in Mandore—the town of Cycles, or Cyclopes. Be assured the wood was carved for certain sacred parts of the building, and by Freemasons, too. Probably, all the fourteen Temples of Solomon, of which we read, were partly constructed of this sacred wood, and by Freemasons."

The second is:—

"When I wrote the CELTIC DRUIDS, I was not a Mason. It is no secret (i.e., the Mystic Temple), and, as Col. Tod has observed, is found with other Masonic emblems; or, probably, the oldest building in the world, the Cyclopean walls of Mundore. Did Masonry arise during the building of these walls? * * * * * Why do the priest-led monarchs of the continent persecute Masonry? Is it because they are not entrusted with its secrets; or, because their priests cannot make it subservient to their base purposes? All these questions I may ask, gentle reader; but all I may not answer."

As regards the question of secrecy, Bro. Higgins, in Bro. Hughan's opinion, "ably proves the esoteric character (as also, of course, exoteric ceremonies for the public) of all ancient religions, Bro. Higgins declaring that:—

"The heads of the church must now see very clearly, if they were to confess what cannot be denied, that (if the most learned and respectable fathers of the church are to be believed) Christianity contained a secret religion, that the populace would not consent to be kept in the dark. But whether the secret doctrine be lost or not, it is a fact that it was the faith of the first Christian fathers, admitted by themselves, that there was such a secret doctrine, and before I have done, I will prove it clearly enough."

Every religion that has any ancient tradition or history at all is examined into in the Anacalypsis, but Bro. Hughan very properly omits, as inadmissible into the pages of a Masonic Magazine, any lengthened notice of this portion of the inquiry. Otherwise, there are, he thinks, many objections that might be raised against the views expressed by Bro. Higgins, though, at the same time, he acknowledges "there are hidden springs of wisdom in this singular work which would be wholly unobserved by the casual reader, but which are most suggestive to the reflective Masonic student."

Passing to the history of the Knights Templars, Bro. Hughan thinks it impossible to decide now, how far these were connected with the operative Masonic societies of the time, as "we literally know nothing of the craftsmen at the period when the Warlike Knights were in the ascendancy, and certainly after the persecution of the latter, we have not apparently any evidence that their secret ceremonies were preserved by the Freemasons." He then quotes the following opinions, by Bro. Higgins, as to the character of the Templars:—

In the persecutions of the Knights Templars, which are known to everybody, a certain mystification and secrecy may be observed, as if the whole of the charges against them were not brought publicly out. This arose from various causes. The persecuted were really very religious, and were bound by the most solemn Masonic oaths (and Masonry was intimately connected with these matters) not to divulge the secrets of the Order. This caused them to recant at the stake, when all hope had fled, what they had confessed when on the wheel; and by this means they endeavoured to make amends for the secrets betrayed, and the oaths involuntarily broken on the rack.

Bro. Higgins, we are told, "considers also, that if the secret mysteries of the Christian religion were told by any traitor, so many false stories were told along with the true ones, that their secrecy is by this means most effectually secured—probably like those of the Freemasons."

The cause of the Crusades, in Bro. Higgins's opinion, was "the expectation of the Millennium, the desire to be present at Jerusalem at the grand day when the Son of man should come in his glory—the great day of God Almighty." A link between ancient and modern Freemasonry was the Mohammedan sect of "Ishmalians, or Society of Assassins," which was "at once both a military and religious association, like the Templars and Teutonic Knights." Further on, Bro. Higgins affirms distinctly that "the Templars were nothing but one branch of Masons; perhaps a branch to which the care of some peculiar part of Temples was entrusted, and I think that the name of Templars was only another name for Casideans." Pursuing the subject still further, we read—

In the very highest orders of Freemasons, viz., the Templars and Rosicrucians, as I imagine them to be, there is no emblem more sacred than the Cross. Here I stop. Verbum Sapienti. Mr. Hammer has observed that the identity of the symbols of the Templars and of the Architectonici, by whom he means the Freemasons, are demonstrated. In this, I think he is perfectly correct. The Chaldeans and the Mathematicians, of whom we read in the Augustin age, as being the fortune-tellers, or the magicians, or the judicial astrologers of the great men of the day in Rome, were, in fact, Freemasons, and of this the emblems above, copied from his work, in plate IV., are a sufficient proof. I need not tell any one, whether Mason or not, how large a space the history of the building of the Temple of Solomon occupies in the ceremonies of Masonry.

We read later on, on the same subject:

The Templars had no objection to the Jewish Temple, for the same reason that the Mohammedan, the Jew, and the Christian sit down together, as I have, with great pleasure, experienced, at a Lodge or Chapter of Freemasons. If there be anything in their ceremonies to prevent this (i.e., the Rosicrucians and Templars), it is a heresy, and contrary to the spirit of their Orders. Let them remember this: Without Jew, that is Judaite, there is no Christian; without both Jew and Christian, there is no Mohammedan.

Bro. Higgins, it seems, did not join the Rosicrucians and Templars, in order that he might be free to publish his views. He expressed his belief they were the "Culdees" of Iona and the Crypt of York Minster where the Grand Masonic Lodge of England was held. He also considers "Free-Mason is PH—RE—P.H., the Coptic emphatic article and RE the Sun, 'Mason of the Sun.'" He further tells us:—

The very essence of Freemasonry is equality. All, let their rank in life be what it may when in the Lodge, are brothers—brethren with the Father at their head. No person can read the Evangelists and not see that this is correctly Gospel Christianity. It is the Christianity of the Chaldees, of the Patriarchs, of Abraham, and of Melchisedek. Every part of Christianity refers back to Abraham, and it is all Freemasonry.

It is possible, as Bro. Hughan suggests, that the writer may have had a different view than that which the words convey, but dealing necessarily with the words as they stand, Bro. Hughan very properly describes the ideas of Bro. Higgins as "crude and visionary."

As an example of the facility with which assertions may be made, Bro. Hughan quotes the following:—

The striking similarity between Masonry and Pythagoreanism has been well pointed out by Mr. Clinch in his essays on Masonry, who states that the best account which he has seen of Masonry is in the Encyclopædia Londinensis in vote Masonry: though, as every Mason must see, it is not correct, and particularly respecting the York Masons. I think it may be discerned that there were several Lodges of Freemasons in Britain, whose origin cannot be traced, but perfectly independent of each other, though now united under one head—the Duke of Sussex—the old Lodge at York, now extinct, being clearly the oldest, as far as can be traced. Popular prejudice has supposed Freemasonry to have been invented in Scotland, and to have travelled thence to France with the Stuart refugees. That the Scotch refugee Masons might establish Lodges in France, I think very probable; but they were not then new; though perhaps not numerous or much known. I have no doubt that the Masons were Druids, Culidei, or Chaldei, and Casideans. The Chaldeans are traced downward to Scotland and York, and the Masons backwards from this day to meet the Culidei at York. It has been observed that the Masons, and particularly the Templars, always held their Lodges or Chapters under the crypts of the cathedrals; of this I entertain no doubt. FROM A MASONIC DOCUMENT NOW IN MY POSSESSION, I can prove that no very long time ago, the Chaldees at York were Freemasons, that they constituted the Grand Lodge of England, and that they held their meetings in the Crypt under the Grand Cathedral of that city. The Circular Chapter House did very well for ordinary business, but the secret mysteries were carried on in the Crypts.

Bro. Hughan points out that the Grand Lodge in London was not formed until A.D. 1717, and the rival Lodge at York not before 1725. The Assembly of Freemasons at York is another matter, the "Old Charges" from the 15th century being sufficient proof. But Bro. Hughan denies the right of any Mason to describe such assembly as a Grand Lodge, and even were it so, that there is, he points out, no evidence whatever of the use of the Crypt by the Chaldees. Continuing his criticisms, Bro. Hughan says, "the only time that the Records speak of the Crypt of the Cathedral being used by any Masonic body at York was during the latter part of the last century. All the early assemblies of the ancient Lodge, which are recorded at the meetings subsequently of the Grand Lodge from A.D. 1725 were generally held in the private houses of the members. Particulars as to several of these Lodges may be found in our 'Masonic Sketches and Reprints.'" The minute of the one meeting held in the Crypt, of which there is a record, is referred to in the following extract from Bro. Higgins's work:—

"After I had been led to suspect, from various causes, that the Culdees noticed in the notitia monastica, and in the last Chapter, and there stated to have been found in the Cathedral at York, were Masons, I searched the Masonic records in London, and I found a document which, upon the face of it, seemed to show that that Lodge, which was the Grand Lodge of All England, had been held under the Cathedral in the Crypt at York. In consequence of this I went to York, and applied to the only survivor of the Lodge, who showed me, from the documents which he possessed, that the Druidical Lodge, or Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, or Templar Encampment, all of which it calls itself, was held for the last time in the Crypt on Sunday, May 27, 1778. At that time the Chapter was evidently on the decline, and is is since dead. From these books it appears to have claimed to have been founded by Edwin in the year 926. From a curious parchment document, formerly belonging to the Lodge, and restored to it by Francis Drake, author of the Eboracum, as appears by an endorsement on the back of it, signed by him, stating that it came from the Castle at Pontepact" (? Pontefract), "it seems probable that, according to the tradition to that effect, the ancient records of the Lodge had been sent to that place for safety in the Civil Wars, as it is well known that many of the title deeds of Yorkshire families at that time were, and on its destruction were like them destroyed or dispersed."

We cannot give the whole of the passage quoted by Bro. Hughan, but the purport of the latter portion of it may be briefly described. Bro. Higgins, having referred to a contest for supremacy among the Masons of England, the Lodge of Antiquity in London claiming it and the York Lodge refusing to recognise it—a contest terminated by the union under the Duke of Sussex—goes on to say that though he does not pretend absolutely to prove "the Druidical Royal Arch Chapter, Lodge, or Encampment of the Temple of St. John at Jerusalem, or of the Tabernacle of the Temple of the Holy Wisdom, as it calls itself, of Jerusalem" was actually "the same as that of the Culdees of the Monastica;" but I think the presumption is pretty strong. Though he does not "by mathematical demonstration connect the Culidei or Chaldeans and Masons at York," he does so "in the mathematici and Chaldæi at Rome." No matter how far back he goes in history he finds traces of the Chaldei all over the world, and he thinks them "Freemasons" in India. A note is also quoted in which Bro. Higgins speaks somewhat patronisingly of the learned Preston, author of the well-known Illustrations, which amuses Bro. Hughan, and affords him an opportunity for bestowing well-merited praise on that ably written work, remarking that, "Making all due allowances for the times in which the work was written, we are still of the opinion that the Book, 'take it for all in all,' has never been surpassed." He points out further that Preston was never a partizan, that he never claimed priority for the Masons of London over those of Scotland or York, and that his Illustrations are entirely free from any party bias. Next, he corrects Bro. Higgins's version of the contest for supremacy, which he describes as "altogether inaccurate, and almost perniciously so." There never was a contest, he points out, between the Lodges of Antiquity and at York. On the contrary, when Preston and his friends were expelled by Grand Lodge (Moderns), "the Grand Lodge of all England located at York granted them a Deputation to act as a 'Grand Lodge south of the Trent,' which they did for a few years, and so far from there ever having been a quarrel between them, the two Lodges were always on the best of terms." The contest, as Bro. Hughan says, was between Grand Lodge, London, constituted in 1717, and a body of seceders, also located in London, who formed a rival Grand Lodge in 1753, known as that of the "ancients," while the older was known as the "moderns." Long after the York Lodge had died out the union of these rival Grand Lodges in London took place, under the auspices of the Duke of Sussex, aided by his brother the Duke of Kent. A few remarks on the High Degrees mentioned by Bro. Higgins, which were the Royal Arch and Knight Templars, and which, about 1780, came to be recognised by the York Grand Lodge, and a statement that "the York authorities never warranted any Lodge out of England, all foreign Lodges constituted under English auspices, hailing from London, so that London Rite is what they follow," conclude the first portion of this most interesting paper. The remainder we shall sketch next week.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 15.)

A MERCHANT PRINCE.

"Our heroes are of nobler stuff;
They tunnel the mountains, and bridge the seas;
Delve in the earth, and, from her massy ribs,
Wrench out the shining ore; they spin, and weave,
And clothe the world; send stately ships across
The deep, and from torrid, or from frigid climes
Bring back great store of treasure."

MR. RUSKIN, and men of his school, have preferred some serious charges against the tendency of society of the present day, which have scarcely merited the attention they have received. The great art critic tells us, in passionate language, that, in the pursuit of wealth, we are forgetting everything that is beautiful and true; that we are turning England into a huge factory, the workshop of the world, and while the population has increased, the people have become brutalised by ignorance or degraded into machines. Mr. Ruskin, of course, sees but one side of our social life, and in his passion for æsthetics he is content to ignore the daily wants and wishes of humanity. Art, indeed, is necessary for the development of a healthy national life, but bread is one of the first necessaries of existence. The people must live, although Mr. Ruskin may not see necessity for their existence. He who paints great pictures is, cæteris paribus, as much a teacher as he who drills a crowd of children in a school. Man does not live by bread alone, nor does he live by art, and perhaps the enterprising capitalist who sinks a mine or opens a factory is a greater benefactor of his species than Leonardo or Turner. The man must be well clothed and fed before he thinks of gratifying the longing of the eye, and art can only flourish in a state of society where there is a leisurely class with more than enough of this world's goods to spare. The English capitalists are a much abused class, but it is to their enterprise that we mainly owe our proud rank amongst the nations. They have bridged the Atlantic with lines of vast mail steamers. Their ships cover every sea, and the meteor flag of England is at this moment floating in the breeze in every port in the world. The silly people who, in their mad rage for art, are ready to declaim against the triumphs of modern civilisation, care little for the comforts of the common people. What is it to them that the masses, so far as mere physical comforts and enjoyments are concerned, are in the position which was occupied by the middle classes two centuries since. What is it to them if the houses of the middle classes are furnished more luxuriously, if not more elegantly than the mansions of the nobles of the time of Elizabeth. A man who has a craze about art would probably sacrifice much if he could roll back the tide of civilisation or inspire his countrymen with those instinctive ideas of the beautiful which were the common property of the poorest of the Greeks. We should be the last to decry art, but we do not forget that the necessaries of life are more essential than a few yards of painted canvas, or a few cubic feet of chiselled marble. The great deficiency of the English mind is familiar enough to us, but we still hope the day may come when our countrymen will learn how to combine the beautiful and the useful in due and proper proportions. Some of us may live to see railway bridges that are not absolutely hideous, and public monuments that are not absolutely grotesque. But we are a practical people, and our greatness is unique of its kind. Carthage, and its parent, Tyre, pale before our commercial activity and our naval strength. The vices of a commercial community are indeed ours, but no one can reproach us, as the ancient world did Carthage, for mendacity. Punic faith was a bye word with the Greeks and Romans, but the word of an Englishman is still respected, and his bond is still an equivalent for gold.

Here, for example, is a great merchant prince, who has done more to aid on the material prosperity of his country, than a host of the superfine critics who talk moonshine in the guise of wisdom. He is one of those giants of capital whose greatness far surpasses that of any feudal lord. His mines afford employment for an army of toilers. His foundries are the centre of animated industry; and he pays each week of his life a sum, in wages alone, which would have gone far to furnish an outfit for the enthusiasts who marched to the first crusade. Our great art critic, doubtless, regards such a man as the enemy of the principles he seeks to inculcate, but he is nevertheless a merchant prince in the truest acceptation of the term, and has not in all his great enterprises sought alone his own personal advantages. Mere profit has not been his only object in life. In times of depression he has kept his works going at great loss to himself, and has cared little for the account on the wrong side of the ledger. To give bread without pauperising the community—this is the problem which has puzzled the wisest—but he has solved it often enough, while seeming to do only his duty. And yet our merchant prince is no friend of that great Manchester school which has claimed for itself the credit for all the good works which have benefited the people. He was born in 1830, and educated at Winchester College. In politics he is a Conservative; although, socially, he is most liberal, and he has sat in Parliament as member for Truro since 1865. He is the second baronet of a family which is perhaps more highly respected for its personal worth than for its great possessions, or its high social position. He is a man of mark in the West of England, respected and loved by all who know him; he is one of the best-hearted and truest of Masons, and second to none in his appreciation of the principles and objects of the Fraternity. He was initiated, January 1863, in Lodge No. 331, and is a member of Lodges 10 and 1159, London, D.P.G.M. Cornwall, a representative of the G.O. of Portugal, and P.G.M. of the Mark Lodge for Cornwall. He has been a bountiful friend of the Charities, and his princely liberality in this respect has placed him in the front rank of the Order. He is the largest contributor to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity Fund, and his purse-strings are always relaxed when cash is wanted for any special purpose. On his installation as the first Provincial Grand Mark Master, he presented the district with some magnificent jewels, which are highly prized by the brotherhood. But our brother is valued not alone for his princely contributions and for his zeal as a Mason, but for the high personal qualities which shine resplendent in his character. Socially he is everything that could be desired, and politically he is no mere partizan, but possesses that rarest of all gifts—a judicial mind. He readily sees good in the side which is not his own; he can place himself in the stand point of his political opponents, and is no mere upholder of institutions which have no other claim to consideration but their antiquity. He is indeed a conservative of that type which, to our thinking, is one of the outcomes of recent social and political changes; a reformer, where reform is really needed, but no mere clap-trap tribune of the people. He would scorn to mount to fame and distinction on the shoulders of the masses, and he is not the man to repeat a political cry because it happens to chime in with the wants and wishes of party. Intellectual conservatism was once the dream of a small knot of young politicians, who have now grown grey in the service of the State, and after ceaseless political changes it at last stands a chance of being realised. Masons, as such, care not for parties, but in reviewing the career of a distinguished brother, whose life has been a political one, it is impossible to avoid reference to contemporary history, and we note the fact with pride that our Masonic legislator is, in the largeness of his sympathies, and in the breadth of his views, not merely member for Truro, but for all England. Yet our hero is no brilliant talker, and cares not to air his oratory either in the House or on the stump. But when he speaks he always talks good sound sense, and his speeches read like essays rather than orations. Perhaps if he could not speak at all we should like him better. We tire of the continual stream of talk which overflows the land, and are thankful for silence, and can only excuse the breaking of it when the orator has something to say. The idle chatter of politicians is becoming one of the nuisances of the day, and we regret to see that the talking mania has invaded the sacred arcana of the Lodge. A sound practical man, who talks little, but who is strong in common sense—or rather uncommon sense, for the faculty is by no means generally diffused—is a treasure; and we respect our brother as much for his "brilliant flashes of silence," as for his occasional words of wisdom.

In his own social circle he is know as a man of taste and refinement, a patron of the fine arts, a princely host, and a generous friend of the poor. He is no mere slave of wealth, but uses the advantages with which Providence has blessed him well and wisely. Even Mr. Ruskin might admit, if he were privileged to walk through our brother's picture gallery, that some at least of the merchant princes of England have as just an appreciation of the æsthetic side of life as any of the dreamers who, in the secure fastnesses of their ideal artistic arcadia, can afford to rail at the gross material tendencies of the age in which we live. To such men as our brother England owes a debt of gratitude. It is our boast that the nobles and the upper ranks of society generally busy themselves with the practical work of life. Some of these men could afford, if it so pleased them, to sink into the condition of mere Lotos eaters, or into that state of swinish ease which contributed to make the old aristocracy of France and Spain a bye word and a reproach to the civilized world. Many of our richest men are amongst the hardest workers in the community, and our distinguished brother finds in toil and responsibility, his highest pleasures. We are here for something higher than mere frivolity; and it is because we are an earnest and practical people that we are great and powerful. Duty is the keynote of an Englishman's moral philosophy, and life, to all who think, is a solemn reality. "It is all we have to front eternity with." Let us all work, then, "even as he has done and does—like a star, unhasting, yet unresting."

At the usual weekly meeting, on Wednesday next, at Bro. C. Gosden's, Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue, of the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, the ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be rehearsed by Bros. Terry and Constable respectively. We trust there will be a strong muster of members on the occasion. After the business of the evening is over, the brethren will sit down to a slight and economical repast.

We have to announce that the proposal to purchase the lease, for 88 years, at £100 per annum, of the house and premises known as "Kent House," and situated opposite the Boys' School, Wood Green, for a sum not exceeding £500, was carried at the pecial General Court held on Saturday last.

It is with feelings of deep regret we inform the brethren of the demise of Bro. Rev. E. Thompson, Chaplain of No. 1, Grand Master's Lodge, and Chaplain of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. He expired on the 2nd instant, at Worthing, after a very short illness. He was present at the Centenary Festival of the Lodge of Prudent Brethren. His loss will be deeply felt by his bereaved family, and a numerous circle of private and Masonic friends.

Sir Michael Costa, P.G.O., not being sufficiently recovered from his late indisposition, was unable to conduct the Sacred Harmonic Society's Concert, on Friday evening last. M. Sainton conducted. Mr. Sims Reeves was also unable to appear, Bro. Vernon Rigby, who was in excellent voice, supplying his place.

The brethren of the Fitzroy Lodge, No. 569, which meets at the Honourable Artillery Company's Head Quarters, Finsbury, intend giving a ball, in connection with their Lodge, on the 16th instant, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. F. Graves, No. 4 Company, and under the patronage of Bro. Lord Colville, late Lieut. Col. (who has signified his intention of being present), Bro. Major Burgess, and other distinguished members of the Lodge and the Regiment.

As the pantomime season is now so well advanced, those of our friends who have not yet paid a visit to Covent Garden for the purpose of seeing the grand pantomime of Cinderella will do well to lose no further time. They will be highly delighted with the performance, the acting, scenery, and ballets being all of unusual excellence, while the harlequinade leaves nothing to be desired. If we mention that Miss Nelly Power—to speak more Hibernico, the prince of pantomimists—is the leading actress, we offer one of the strongest inducements to our brethren to act upon the advice we tender. We may add also that Cinderella is preceded by a curtailed version of the Merchant of Venice, in which Bro. Rice very ably enacts the part of Shylock.

Just at the moment of going to press we have received Le Monde Maçonnique, for the months of January and February. It contains much valuable matter, to which we shall have occasion to refer in a later issue. We may mention, however, as very far from being the least meritorious contribution to its columns, a paper on "Causerie," signed "E. Littré."

ADVANCEMENT OF H.R.H. PRINCE LEOPOLD TO THE 30TH DEGREE.

THIS interesting ceremony took place on the afternoon of Monday, the 7th instant, at the Masonic Hall, 33 Golden-square. The R.H. the Earl of Carnarvon, Sovereign Grand Commander, 33°, presided. The proceedings were conducted in all solemnity by General Clerk, assisted by Major S. H. Clerke and Hyde Pullen, in the presence of Captain N. G. Philips, Lieutenant Grand Commander; Montagu Pulteney Montagu, Grand Chancellor; Charles J. Vigne, Past Grand Commander; Colonel Adair, H. D. Sandeman, Raphael Costa, and Samuel Rawson, with Andrew Hay, members of the 33rd degree. There were also present:—The Earl of Limerick, Charles H. Gregory, Jas. Glaisher, Colonel Goddard, Colonel Burdett, Major Barlow, and Captain W. Portlock Dadson, members of the 32nd degree; General Brownrigg, Charles Horsley, Arthur B. Cook, John Hervey, and J. C. Parkinson, of the 31st degree; the Earl of Shrewsbury, Captain Bourke, Colonel Burney, Frederick Binckes, C. Grillion, Montague Guest, R. W. Little, J. B. Monckton, J. Read, Hugh H. Risch, Walter Spencer, Raymond Thrupp, Captain Fr. Trower, E. B. Webb, Colonel West, and C. E. Willing, members of the 30th degree.

At 5 p.m. the Supreme Chapter of Rose Croix was opened, in the presence of the Prince and other visitors, for the purpose of consecrating a new chapter—the "Studholme"—a ceremony which was effectively conducted by the Earl of Carnarvon, assisted by Major S. H. Clerke, by the Prelate, and Hyde Pullen. The "Studholme Chapter" being then declared open, the following brethren received the 18th degree:—Sir John Harrington, Sir Bruce Seton, Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Captain Ormsby, H. H. Dobree, K. R. Murchison, F. Pattison, Sir George Prescott, George Claridge, Sir W. H. Drake, Captain J. Beacham Hayes, R. H. Collins, and E. H. Bedford.

General Brownrigg was installed M.W.S., and appointed his officers:—Colonel Randolph and Captain Brownrigg as his Generals, and the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg as Prelate. A banquet at Willis's Rooms followed.

The notices of the foregoing which have appeared in the daily papers are inaccurate.

THE DRAMA.

"Anne Boleyn" at the Haymarket.

A NEW poetical and quasi-historical drama, from the pen of Mr. Tom Taylor, is an event of some importance in the present dearth of dramatic talent in England. Notwithstanding what has been said of him by his detractors, Mr. Taylor cannot with justice be denied a place amongst the two or three foremost dramatists of the present day. In constructive skill he is probably without a rival, and if his dialogue is surpassed in force, brilliancy and humour by that of Mr. W. S. Gilbert, at least we know of no other writer who can claim the same superiority over him. The life of Anne Boleyn offers opportunities for spectacular effect, of which most playwrights would gladly have availed themselves, but these our author has, and we think wisely, avoided. The events of the time were sufficiently stirring and romantic to render unnecessary the adventitious aids of crowded processions, gorgeous tournaments, and impossible ballets. We do not, however, think that Mr. Taylor has been altogether successful with his materials. The heroine, to begin with, does not command the sympathies of the audience. In the case of Mary Stuart, Queen Elizabeth, or Charles the First, a skilful writer is able to present them under amiable and generous aspects. Their faults can be glazed over, their good qualities brought into prominence. But Anne Boleyn is a more difficult subject. She was condemned as an adulteress by a tribunal which comprised several persons who might be expected, from relationship or otherwise, to take a most lenient view of her case. But even if the verdict of modern times should acquit her of this charge, the fact that she encouraged the attentions of Henry whilst Katherine, her Queen and mistress, was still his legal wife, prevents any deep feelings of sympathy from being awakened on her behalf. It is probably, therefore, owing to the inherent difficulty of the subject, rather than to any fault of the author, that the heroine of the play does not excite that high degree of interest which the occasion would seem to require. But, admitting this difficulty, we still think that the most has not been made of the story. The first and second acts might with advantage have been compressed into one, and this would have enabled the author to elaborate more fully the powerful incidents of the accusation and condemnation. As it is, however, the play evolves some striking situations, and carries with it, from first to last, a genuine and fairly-sustained dramatic interest. The fourth act in particular is full of excitement, activity, and bustle. The dialogue throughout is above the average, though here and there inclining to verbosity. As performed at the HAYMARKET, the characters are very fairly cast, Mr. Harcourt sustaining the rôle of King Harry, and Miss Neilson making a most charming and unconventional Queen Anne. The piece is well worth seeing.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE first of the three Annual Festivals, that of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, and proved a most interesting and successful event. The chair was occupied by the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, R.W. Prov. G.M. for Western Division of Lancashire, and he was most ably supported, the list of Stewards comprising many of the most influential Masons of the country.

There was a goodly attendance of ladies, who occupied the gallery, and the number of brethren present was reported as close upon 400. The banquet, considering the size of the building, was fairly served. After the cloth had been removed, the Chairman proposed the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. He said he was sure all present must rejoice in the fact of her being present at the opening of Parliament, where she was supported by her daughters and accompanied by her daughter-in-law, the Princess of Wales. The toast was well received, and the National Anthem sung. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales K.G. M.W.G.M., the Patron and President of the Institution; the Princess of Wales, and the other Members of the Royal Family," was next given, the Chairman saying: He was sure that they all looked forward to the day when their Most Worshipful Grand Master would return to this country, after the glorious success which had attended his visit to India, a task which he had imposed upon himself. However glorious had been his reception there, the Chairman was quite sure that the hearty welcome his Royal Highness would receive on his return, especially from his Masonic brethren, would be far greater and more hearty than he had ever received in Hindostan. He thanked God that good health had attended their Grand Master, and, as they all knew that he had the welfare of the Craft at heart, he hoped the Prince would long rule over them, and that his lovely Princess might be blessed with long life to reign with him. The National Song and chorus—God Bless the Prince of Wales, followed. The third toast, "The right Honourable the Earl of Carnarvon M.W. Pro G.M." was given. He was well known amongst those present, and there was no one but could recollect how willingly he had come forward to perform the duties required of him at the Installation Ceremony in the Albert Hall. The Rev. Dr. Cox next proposed the health of "The Right Honourable Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, Chairman of the day," and spoke in eulogistic terms of his Lordship's Masonic qualifications. After the reply of his Lordship, "the Present and Past Grand Officers" was given, and replied to by the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Past Grand Chaplain. The noble Earl then gave. "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons." When he looked back at the annals of the Institution he could not but remember that in the year 1847 the subscriptions at the annual festival amounted to only some hundreds, but now a little bird had whispered to him that they were several thousands. (Applause.) This showed that the great brotherhood of Freemasons was increasing in the works it professed to uphold, and that the operations of Charity were gaining ground in this country. At every one of these festivals the subscriptions were increasing. But still it was only one out of every five or six Freemasons who subscribed. If each Mason would subscribe something, the Institution would be well supported, without any begging lists, and that is what he would like to see. Bro. James Terry, the Secretary of the Institution, then rose, and proceeded to call over the List of Subscriptions, which, in the aggregate, amounted to £9,184 10s 6d, a result which elicited the hearty congratulations of all present. The several other toasts on the list were afterwards given, Bros. Little and Binckes replying to that of "The other Masonic Institutions." The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Smith, who was ably assisted by Madame Liebhart, Mrs. Seymour Smith, Miss Marion Severn, Bros. A. Lester, G. T. Carter, F. W. Farmer, and Chaplin Henry, and Mr. Michael Watson, who presided at the pianoforte.

As on the last occasion, we subjoin, for the information of our readers, the several Stewards' Lists, together with the numbers of the Lodges and Chapters contributing, and the amount contributed by each, to the above Institution :—

GRAND LODGE HONOURS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—There are hundreds of good Masons who sympathise with your correspondent of last week in the non-realisation of the object of "Legitimate Ambition."

It is, however, idle to whine over blighted hopes, or to indulge in lamentations over unacknowledged services. What is required is, action! Let the members of Grand Lodge assert their independence, and prove themselves worthy of the privileges they possess. Let them emancipate themselves from an oligarchical tyranny which, standing between them and their trusted and respected rulers, obstructs the graceful exercise of prerogative, and perverts the course of justice by pernicious conncils. In the "Antient Charges" I read, "All preferment among Masons is grounded upon real worth and personal merit only," and in the simplicity of my early days in Masonry I interpreted these words in their natural sense. Alas! for the fond delusion, from which I have been rudely awakened.

I worked hard, I strove heartily, I laboured diligently, and flattered myself that the possession of the following qualifications might prove stepping stones to preferment:—

1. A thorough knowledge of Ritual.
2. Devotion to study of Masonic practice, law and constitutions.
3. The Mastership of various Lodges.
4. A diligent attendance at the meetings of Grand Lodge.
5. Service in connection with the Masonic institutions, including Stewardships, and such contributions from year to year as my means would permit.

All in vain! I remained, after long years of hard work, a miserable specimen of "vaulting ambition," having fallen, and that heavily, "on the other side."

What then, your readers will inquire, must be done to give a chance of wearing the much coveted purple?

"Bow the knee to Baal," my friends, and do not refuse, as many of us have refused, "at what time the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music is heard," to "fall down and worship the image which" has been made. Let those who can, read between the lines.

If I am wrong in my conclusions, how is it that so many who possess scarcely any of the qualifications I have enumerated, have been singled out for promotion?

I pause for a reply!

Having abandoned all hope of entering within the charmed circle, I calmly survey passing events, and never thought of inflicting my views or opinions on your readers.

Let "Legitimate Ambition" console itself with the experiences of

"ONE WHO KNOWS."

London, 8th February 1876.

"HOW DO I LOOK, PAPA?"—This is the title of a most charming little picture in colours, issued as a frontispiece with the LITTLE FOLKS' MAGAZINE for February, in which part are announced the Prizes gained by LITTLE FOLKS in the competition for the BEST-DRESSED DOLLS, which furnished one of the chief features of attraction in the Christmas programme of the Alexandra Palace.

LITTLE ACCIDENTS, AND HOW TO DEAL WITH THEM.—There is, in CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE for February, a very useful paper on this subject, which every one ought to learn by heart, so as to be prepared for the many emergencies which are continually arising in families.

MASONIC BALL AT BRIGHTON.

THE W.M. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, Bro. J. M. Kidd, and the brethren, gave a Private Invitation Ball, which was attended by nearly 200 ladies and gentlemen, at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. The entire suite of rooms was engaged, and, in point of adornment, every care and pains were taken to secure the comfort of the company. The music and north drawing rooms were reserved for dancing, and the banqueting room for supper; the saloon for light refreshments, and the south drawing room for lounging and card playing. The decorations were artistic, and produced a charming effect. Pedestals, with lamps, were placed, surrounded by shrubs and exotic plants. The mantel-pieces and the stairs at each end were decorated with hothouse plants, supplied by Messrs. Balchin and Nell, of the Western-road, while Messrs. Reed, of North-street, supplied the lamps. The supper, of the most recherché description, was, together with the wines, supplied by Mr. A. Rayeard, of North-street. Mr. Miles, of the West Brighton Nursery, decorated the supper tables, and a platform was arranged at the east side of the music room, where the music could be distinctly heard in the drawing room. Here Bro. Devin and his thoroughly efficient band discoursed sweet music, which was fully appreciated. Hilarity prevailed, and the company thoroughly enjoyed themselves, thanks to the efficient arrangements of the brethren, who did not separate till nearly four o'clock.

DROWNING, HINTS FOR CASES OF.—Send for medical aid and blankets as soon as possible, but until they arrive to take at once instant measures for recovery, without waiting to remove the patient to a house, as delay may prove fatal. Lay the patient on his face, with one arm under his forehead, that any liquid may flow from his mouth. Wipe away froth from his throat and nostrils. Turn him on his side, and endeavour to excite inspiration by applying snuff, pepper, or smelling-salts; alternately rub his chest and face, to promote warmth, and throw hot and cold water upon them. If these measures are not successful, turn him gently, but completely on one side, and a little beyond, then towards his face, and repeat these movements alternately, deliberately, and perseveringly fifteen times in a minute. Continue them for hours if necessary, and meantime rub the limbs upwards firmly and energetically, and tear off the wet clothes, substituting blankets and warm coverings. This is all that can be immediately done.—From "Little Accidents, and how to deal with them," in "Cassell's Family Magazine" for February.

COMMEMORATION OF THE BOSTON "MASSACRE."—A large number of Bostonians assembled at the old South Meeting House, and were addressed by Joseph Warren, who chose for the text of his speech the evil effects of standing armies in time of peace. The holding of such a meeting at all was against one of the recent Acts of Parliament, but this of course added zest to the performance. Some forty officers of the English army and navy were present, and were placed by Samuel Adams, who occupied the position of moderator, in conspicuous positions on the platform, close to the speaker. Warren made an inflammatory address, the real purport of which was but thinly disguised by obviously insincere expressions of a desire to remain united with Great Britian. This most imprudent, if not malicious, piece of declamation was heard by the officers with exemplary patience; but, on a motion being made to appoint an orator for the ensuing year "to commemorate the horrid massacre," they began to hiss. The people threatened vengeance, and there would probably have been a riot on the spot had not Adams, by his influence with the citizens, managed to restore order. But, although a collision was thus avoided, the military were greatly exasperated by what they could not help regarding as a set purpose of provocation. They determined to adopt the favourite custom of their adversaries, and to subject the obnoxious to the brutal practice of tarring and feathering. A countryman who had bought an old firelock from a private, in contravention of an Act of Parliament, which forbade trading with soldiers, was paraded through the streets in that ignominious state, surrounded by a guard with fixed bayonets, playing "Yankee Doodle" in derision. Samuel Adams took great credit to his fellow citizens for their virtuous self-control in putting up with such indignities, rather than precipitate a crisis. He said nothing of the numberless provocations by which this counter-provocation had been preceded.—From "Cassell's History of the United States" for February.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Influenza, Coughs, and Colds.—In diseases of the throat and chest, ever prevalent in our changeable climate, Holloway's Ointment rubbed on the chest, and these Pills taken as directed, will speedily relieve, or so completely cure, as to leave undoubted evidence that the disorder has been eradicated from the system. These disorders are too often neglected in their commencement, or are injudiciously treated, and in either case the most fatal consequences may be feared. Whatever the condition of the patient, Holloway's Remedies will operate; if recovery be possible, they will retard the alarming symptoms with unfailing certainty, and, when such is the case, gradually re-establish the vital functions, and restore the patient to perfect health. By promptly resorting to Holloway's Pills and Ointment, a cure is secured at the outset, and thereby is saved the expense of a doctor's bill. Thousands of persons have testified that, by the use of these remedies alone, they have been restored to health, after every other means had failed.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

PARLIAMENT was opened by the Queen in person on Tuesday. Her Majesty was accompanied by their Royal Highnesses the Princess of Wales, the Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne), and the Princess Beatrice; the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh and the Princess Mary of Cambridge (Duchess of Teck) being also present. The Royal procession was of the usual character, and a considerable number of people, including, of course, a strong muster of country cousins, congregated along the line of route. The House of Lords presented, as usual, a magnificent spectacle, the whole of the chamber, with the exception of one or two benches, being occupied by the fair sex, splendidly appareled. The Great Officers of State were in attendance upon the Queen, and the part of the House set apart for the Corps Diplomatique was well filled with the representatives of Foreign States. The speech was not delivered by Her Majesty in person, but by the Lord High Chancellor. Its most notable feature is its brevity, the long array of promised measures which has hitherto garnished this important document being wisely, we think, omitted. Naturally enough the subjects principally referred to were those relating to the Eastern Question and the Suez Canal. Nor did the visit of the Prince of Wales to India pass unnoticed. It seems, indeed, that as a consequence of this visit, the Queen will extend her regal titles. A bill is announced, having for object to enlarge Her Majesty's titular dignity, and doubtless ere long she will be proclaimed not only as Queen, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain and Ireland, and Defender of the Faith, but also as Empress of Hindostan. The one objectionable feature in connection with this important ceremonial appears to have been, according to the Daily Telegraph, the unruly entry of the Commons, when summoned to the Peers' House in order to hear the speech. There is usually an ugly rush on the part of the Commons, whose members come into the presence of their Sovereign in a manner most undignified. But in this instance, alleges our contemporary, the pushing of the peoples' representatives was of the rudest, and the Premier had to retire from the mêlée. If this be the case, the sooner the elect of our boroughs and counties learn manners, the better. This, however, seems to have been the only contretemps which marked the occasion. It only remains to add that the Queen left the House in the same state with which she entered it, and that her reception by the sightseers, both on going and returning, was respectful and quietly cordial.

In the evening of the same day, the work of Parliament commenced. In the House of Lords, the Earls of Aberdeen and Ellesmere respectively moved and seconded the Address, in reply to Her Majesty's most gracious speech. The leader of the Opposition, Earl Granville, as a matter of course, offered a series of criticisms on its subject matter, to which the Earl of Derby, as most of the subjects touched upon related to foreign politics, replied. In the House of Commons, Messrs. Ridley and Mulholland performed the same functions as the Earls of Aberdeen and Ellesmere in the Lords, the duty of critic resting with the Marquis of Hartington; while the Premier, Mr. Disraeli, defended the conduct of the Government with his usual eloquence, the only other speaker of note being the ex-Premier, Mr. Gladstone, whose support of Ministers in reference to the Eastern Question was very hearty.

It comes not within our province to discuss political questions, but we note with pleasure the announcement of a Government measure for the better regulation of our Mercantile Marine. Mr. Plimsoll has again entered himself for the same stakes (to use a sporting phrase), and doubtless, between the Government, who are evidently in earnest in their desire to settle this important question, and the member for Derby, whose advocacy of the sailors' cause is most disinterested, and most creditable to his philanthropy, we shall have a measure passed this Session, which will satisfy both sailors and ship owners.

In the Masonic world the event of the week has been the anniversary festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, full particulars of which will be found in another page. The week's history, however, would certainly be incomplete without a brief reference to it here. We announce, therefore, with infinite pleasure, that the advocacy of Bro. Terry, and the hearty efforts of the two hundred Stewards, resulted in an addition to the funds of the Charity of the unprecedented sum of over £9,000. Lord Skelmersdale, our respected D.G.M., presided on the occasion, and it must be in the highest degree gratifying to his Lordship that so magnificent a success should have attended his maiden presidency at one of our Charitable Institutions. This success almost excites the hope that none of the candidates for election this year will be disappointed. We are not much given to trumpet our own praises, but it is a satisfaction to note that the £2,000 in excess of last year's subscriptions, which we expressed a hope would be realised as nearly as possible, represents the difference between the amounts subscribed in 1875 (in round figures £7,000), and in 1876 (over £9,000). We shall begin to flatter ourselves that we are more than ordinarily skilled in the art of divination. But grand as is the success, on which we most heartily congratulate the genial Bro. Terry, he must not be content till he has gone a long way ahead in double figures, as regards the "thousands." The one other noteworthy Masonic incident of the week is the advancement, on Monday, at the Hall of the Supreme Council of A. and A. Rite, in Golden-square, of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, to the 30th degree. The Earl of Carnarvon presided, and there were present, among others, the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Lord Skermersdale, the Earl of Limerick, Major-General Brownrigg, C.B., Colonel Burdett, Bros. Parkinson, Sir W. Drake, J. B. Monckton, S. Rawson, and others. Bro. Willing presided at the organ.

There are several vacancies in Parliament, the number having been increased by the recent death of Viscount Gallwey, M.P. for North Notts. The contest which excites the most attention is that for Manchester, consequent upon the death of our lamented Bro. Callender. This will be determined next week. Among other deaths of distinguished persons must be mentioned that of Earl Howe, who is succeeded in his title and estates by his brother.

Dr. Kenealy went, a part of the way at least, to take his seat in the House of Commons on the opening day, in state, if the attendance of a miserable rabble can be so described. The Times had an article on the subject, and very properly described it as in "impudent" rivalry with the royal cortège. The raggamuffins, however, as disreputable in appearance as the wretched company with which old Jack Falstaff refused to march through Coventry, and who only boasted a shirt and a half amongst them, and the half was a kind of dish-clout—were very properly sent to the right-about by the police in Parliament-street, and even the cab containing the precious memorial of the Magna Chartists was ignominiously sent back a little further on, so that Dr. Kenealy went down to Westminster alone in his glory, Nocitur à sociis. We judge of Dr. Kenealy by those with whom he finds most favour. We need say no more.

It is announced that H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh will shortly assume command of H.M. ironclad the Sultan, one of the Channel Fleet, recently ordered to Plymouth, in consequence of an outbreak, among the crew, of scarlatina. The Sultan will shortly go to Portsmouth, to be paid-off and refit, after which the Duke will join her, and proceed on a special cruise.

The so-called International walking match between Weston, an American, and Perkins, the English champion, came off at the Agricultural Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday. The two were entered to walk one hundred and fifteen miles in twenty-four hours, but neither accomplished the feat. The Englishman was obliged to give up after walking about sixty-six miles, in something less than fourteen hours, owing to his feet failing him. Weston walked on the whole time, and covered close on one hundred and nine miles—a marvellous performance, if we bear in mind that this represents an average of four and half miles per hour, and there were, of necessity, rests during the term of the struggle. It is just possible that had Perkins been shod in stout shoes and walked on gravel instead of boards, he might have done better. As it was, he stuck manfully to his work, and only gave in when his feet were bleeding, so that his stockings had to be cut off. Our readers are aware, perhaps, that the Englishman has walked eight miles within the hour.

The event of the week in the theatrical world has been the production, at the Haymarket, of a new five-act drama, by Mr. Tom Taylor. The subject is that of the unfortunate Anne Boleyn, and, from the accounts we have read, the talented author appears to have treated the subject with his usual ability. It is suggested, however, that considerable curtailment of the play is desirable. The principal characters were enacted by Messrs. C. Harcourt as King Henry, Arthur Cecil as the Ambassador Chapuis, and Howe as the Earl of Surrey; while Miss Neilson took the rôle of the Queen. Sundry of the pantomimes are coming to an end. That at the Crystal Palace ceases this week, and Friday next is announced as the last performance of the Yellow Dwarf at the Alexandra Palace. The latter has had a grand run of success, and may safely be pronounced one of the best pantomimes that have been seen for the last few years. Not the least interesting feature in it is the Shadow Pantomime. The whole performance, in fact, is worthy of the highest praise, and if there are any of our readers who may not have seen it, we strongly advise them to turn one of the remaining few days, during which it will run, to account.

It is always a pleasure to record any act of beneficence, and the gift of £5,000 to the Commissioners of St. Stephen's Green, in order to enable them to pay off their debts and convert the Green into a public garden is a benefaction of which Ireland generally, and Dublin in particular, may well be proud.

An attempt at stealing a truck was neatly foiled a few days since by one of Pickford's van drivers. The van with its driver, John Shirley, was standing in Fore Street, when some men placed a sack on a truck which was outside the premises of a Mr. Eldred. Some loitering vagabonds took the opportunity, when, as they supposed, no one was looking, to make off with the truck, but John Shirley promptly pursued them, and encountering a policeman made known to him the circumstances. The men finding they were discovered made off, leaving the truck behind them, but one of them was captured and committed for three months, with hard labour, by the presiding magistrate, Alderman Figgins. Shirley the van-driver was rewarded for his honesty with a sovereign, and Mr. Eldred was very properly censured for putting temptation in the way of thieves. We should like to see careless people more frequently censured, and then perhaps we should hear of fewer robberies.

For the moment, the severe weather is said to be an obstacle to further military operations in Spain, but if the telegrams from Madrid are to be relied on, and there seems to be no reason why they should not be trustworthy, the Alphonsist armies have been making considerable progress. As we have more than once said, it matters little to us which of the rival claimants to the Spanish throne is successful, so long as Spain obtains the priceless boon of peace. Hence it is we hail with pleasure the recent Alphonsist victories, not from any preference for Alphonsism, but simply because they seem to us to foreshadow an early termination of the struggle. The elections in France are not yet over, and among the candidates still before the electors are M. Buffet, the Premier, and M. Rouher, the chief support of the Imperialist party. M. Gambetta has been making a speech at Lille, which, as regards language appears to have been more moderate than M. Gambetta's speeches usually are. When his say was said, the ex-dictator, as he is sometimes called, was adopted as a candidate for the representation of Lille. There has been a terrible colliery accident in the neighbourhood of St. Etienne, and from New York we hear of a terrible conflagration, which has destroyed half a block of houses, bounded by Broadway, Howard, Crosby, and Grand Streets, including two hotels and several clothing warehouses. Three firemen were killed, and five injured, and property estimated at three million dollars destroyed. We learn from Cairo, that a contract has been signed between the Egyptian Government and the Anglo-Egyptian Bank, for an advance of £2,000,000 sterling on certain security, and that another contract for a loan of fourteen millions to the Khedive, to provide for the floating debt and other charges, has also been signed. We hope that Mr. Cave's mission to Egypt will have the desired effect of placing the finances of Egypt on a somewhat satisfactory footing. The insurrection in the Turkish provinces is still in progress, but nothing material has happened to alter the status. There is no question but Servians and Montenegrins keep the insurrection on its legs, and it strikes us the first step which the great European powers will be called upon to take, will be to insist that the people of these petty principalities no longer shall be a stumbling block in the way of peace. What the spring and summer may bring forth it is impossible to say, but the assurances of the Earl of Derby, on the opening night of the Session, that the efforts of the Great Powers will all tend in the direction of peace, are eminently satisfactory. We trust the integrity of the Turkish Empire may be maintained, but to this end it is absolutely necessary that the reforms promised by the Grand Vizier should be immediately introduced. The Eastern Question is a ticklish one, and will sorely tax the ability of the diplomatic body in Europe.

The regular meeting of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Tuesday, the 8th instant, in lieu of the 9th (that being the day fixed for the Anniversary Festival), at Freemason's Hall, Great Queen Street. Bro. Colonel Creaton, V.P. in the Chair. The Secretary, Bro. James Terry, read the minutes of the former meeting, which were confirmed. Two deaths were announced. Owing to the prosperous state of the funds, seventeen male, and twenty female candidates are to be elected at the next election. Bro. Colonel Creaton, in pursuance of notice of motion, and at the recommendation of the Finance Committee, moved,—"That, in consideration of the increased work in the office, and the large augmentation to the duties, the salary of the Secretary be raised £50 per annum, commencing from the 1st December 1875." Bro. Colonel Creaton said how ably Bro. Terry had discharged his duties, for since his occupation of the post of Secretary the funds had increased one-third. Bro. R. W. Stewart seconded the motion, he remarked the fact of placing ten additional widows on the list of candidates was a very pleasing fact; and that is sufficient to show how well the work had been done. He (Bro. Stewart) had served over twenty stewardships, and at one time £500 was thought a large sum, and now, under the care of Bro. Terry, the Institution had prospered. The motion was carried unanimously. Bro. Terry thanked the brethren. A vote of thanks was accorded to the Chairman. There were present Bro S. Rawson, B. Head, J. Brett, T. Cubitt, J. Constable, Hilton, Tattershall, H. Massey, Newton, L. Stean, C. Lacey, H. M. Levy, R. W. Stewart, Le Maitre, J. Beleriby, C. Hogard, &c.

Our readers will have noticed an advertisement in our columns of last week relating to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, in which it was announced that any brother, not serving the office of Steward, who may collect for either of these Institutions the sum of fifty guineas, shall, when that sum is completed, be made a life subscriber and have one vote for life, an additional vote being allowed him for every additional fifty guineas he may raise. This proposition was carried at the Special General Courts of the two Institutions held at Freemasons' Hall, on Saturday last.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Enoch Lodge, No 11.—This Lodge held its regular meeting at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday, the 9th inst. Present—Bros. E. C. Taylor W.M., Tubby S.W., Oxenham J.W., C. J. Watson P.M. Treasurer, P. Matthews P.M. Secretary, Pigott S.D., Held J.D., L. Garrett I.G., Nutt D.C., and Past Masters Honey, McQueen, C. Mentrio, Bradshoet, J. Young, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The name of a brother was placed on the agenda paper for passing, but he was not present. Bro. Farquarson was unanimously elected a joining member. The Lodge was then closed, and instead of partaking of the usual banquet, adjourned to the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, under the banner of Bro. C. J. Watson, who was a Steward. Bro. C. E. Packer, I.G. of the Whittington Lodge, was present as a visitor.

Newcastle-upon-Tyne Lodge, No. 24.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, 3rd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Grainger-street, Newcastle-upon-Tyne. Present—Bros. George Cockburn W.M., Loades S.W., Taylor J.W., Taylor Sec., J. Bolan S.D., Carr J.D., W. Fouldsham P.M. D.C., Boston Steward, Bewis I.G., Corrie Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Cochrane I.P.M., and Fouldsham. Visitors—Bros. Spearman W.M. 481, Wilson 1017, Cook P.M. 481, Sewell J.W. 481. Business—First and second degrees were given in a manner that shows that the W.M. and officers of this ancient Lodge are determined to keep up its traditionary good working. After business a most enjoyable evening was spent, the W.M. contributing greatly to the harmony by his excellent singing.

Egyptian Lodge, No. 27.—The installation ceremony of this celebrated Lodge was held on Thursday, the 3rd inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Present—Bros. S. R. Lamble W.M., J. Green S.W., Hale J.W., H. G. Buss P.M. Treasurer, J. B. Poole P.M. Secretary, and P.M.'s Bros. Atkins, J. Coutts P.G.P., Libbis, T. Sheppard, Palmer, Hoare, D. H. Jacobs, Harrison and C. B. Payne. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Pattison was passed to the 2nd degree in a very able manner. A board of installed Masters was then formed, Bro. John Coutts P.M. P.G.P. then occupied the chair, Bros. J. Smith P.G.P. as S.W., John Boyd P.G.P. as J.W., when John Green S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge. The late respected Bro. John Savage P.G.D. had performed the ceremony of installation for the last thirty years, and a worthy successor was found in Bro. John Coutts P.M. P.G.P., who installed Bro. Green into the chair in a very excellent and perfect manner, thirty-seven W.M.'s and P.M.'s being present. On the admission of the brethren the customary salutations were given, and the following officers were invested:—Bros. Hales S.W., Walker J.W., H. G. Buss P.G.P. Middlesex Treasurer, J. B. Poole P.M. Secretary, Pattenden S.D., Richards J.D., T. Maidwell I.G., Salmoneso D.C., D. H. Jacobs P.M. W.S., and Potter Tyler; and to judge by the demonstrations of the brethren, the appointment of officers gave great satisfaction. Bro. Poole announced that it was the intention of the brethren to apply for a warrant for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge. The widow of a deceased brother was relieved with the sum of £5. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, eighty-nine in number, sat down to a sumptuous banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. Clemow, and superintended by Bro. Smith. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Dr. Jabez Hogg P.G.D., in a very eloquent speech, responded to the toast of the R.W. the Earl of Skelmersdale D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, and in the course of his remarks said Bro. John Coutts P.G.P. had shown a good example by the manner in which he had always done his duty, and his rendering the ceremony of installation, he hoped, would prove an incentive to the younger brethren; he felt proud, on behalf of the Grand Officers, to return his sincere thanks for the kind hospitality afforded them. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors, who were very numerous—there being above forty present—he, as well as each member of the Lodge, was pleased to see them. He would couple the toast with the name of Bro. Howe P.G.P. Middlesex, who returned thanks, and said how gratified they were by the admirable working of Bro. John Coutts; under the able presidency of the W.M. the Lodge would not lose any of its lustre. Bro. Lamble I.M.P. proposed the toast of the W.M., who, in reply, said he thanked the brethren for the enthusiastic manner they had drunk his health. He was initiated at an installation meeting; he made a step in advance each succeeding year, and he now had arrived at the summit of his ambition. He then proposed the toast of the Installing Master, Bro. John Coutts, who had so perfectly rendered that ceremony. Bro. Coutts thanked the W.M. and brethren. He, as well as every one present, deeply regretted the loss they had sustained by the death of their respected brother, John Savage, but he was proud if they were satisfied with his exertions. His services were always at their command, and he hoped always to have the good wishes of each brother in the Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Lamble, whose excellent working was well known and fully appreciated. He had great pleasure in placing on his breast a very elegant gold Past Master's jewel, with appropriate inscription, in just appreciation of his services during his year of office, and he hoped he might live long to wear it; it was not the only one the Lodge had presented him with, but he was sure he would be equally proud to wear this. The toast of the Past Masters followed, and the W.M. mentioned their names seriatim; they had each one rendered valuable assistance to the Lodge, and they were entitled to the regard and esteem of every brother. Bro. Lamble responded. The W.M. then said he had to propose, he might say the last of the evening, and that was the Masonic Charities. The Lodge had done some good for them, and he hoped they would do more. They had the pleasure of having amongst them the three Secretaries of those noble institutions; each were indefatigable in their exertions.

(Cheers.) Bro. R. W. Little responded, and was followed by Jas. Terry, who, in the course of his speech, said he thanked the Lodge for the support they had given the institutions. The Lodge was a Vice-President of each, and if many other Lodges were like them they would be enabled to place on the list more candidates. He thanked Bro. Bass for his kind support; he was sure, on Wednesday next, at the Festival, his list would be a credit to the Lodge. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Officers, said no Lodge could progress without good officers, and they were all calculated to discharge their duties earnestly and faithfully. They were all perfect in their various duties. Bros. Bales and Walker returned thanks for the Wardens, and Bro. T. Maidwell for the Junior Officers. St. Andrew's Chapter, No. 69.—This Chapter held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, the 8th instant, at 170 Buchanan-street, Glasgow, when the Z. Comp. J. D. Humphries, Dr. Ph., proceeded to open a Mark Lodge, with G. Herrin H. as S.W., J. Balfour S.E. 73 as J.W., G. W. Wheeler Z. 73 as P.M., J. Wright S.E., J. Blackwood Treas., E. Arthur as S.D., J. Pash J.D. Arrangements were made for taking a fresh place of meeting, and the Z. gave in his resignation of the chair, stating that he was removing to London, and regretting that the change would involve the severance of the ties that had so long bound him to Chapter 69. Comp. Herrin proposed the thanks of the Chapter to their Principal for his conduct in the chair for the last four years. Comp. G. W. Wheeler seconded the motion, saying the Chapter would never be able to repay the obligations they were under to Dr. Humphries. He had not only fulfilled the ordinary duties of a First Principal, but had it not been for his extraordinary exertions, the Chapter would have been closed two years since, but he had kept it open when very few would have been able to do so, and whoever they might get to fill that office in future, he was sure they would never get any one who would devote more of his time to their service, or preside with greater judgment over their deliberations. Comps. Blackwood and Wright supported the motion, which was carried by acclamation. Comp. Humphries said it was a source of pleasure to find that his exertions were recognised by those for whom he had laboured, but he must say, had it not been for the help of Comps. of 73 his own efforts must have failed; but Comps. Wheeler and Balfour had always been ready to do all in their power to assist him, and he knew he might promise, on their behalf, that they would do the same for his successor, for it was from love of the Order, rather than personal friendship to him, that they were actuated. He hoped to join some Chapter in London, and he had no doubt that their confidence in him, and the position in which they had placed him, would prove a passport to any body he might wish to join; but, when there, his thoughts would often revert to St. Andrew's, 69, whose kindness he could never forget, and he now regretted that, in closing the Chapter he closed his own official connection with it.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—The weekly meeting was held on Tuesday. Comp. J. K. Leeman M.E.Z., Hazard H., Constable J., White S.E., E. S. Norris Ass. S.E., W. Dodd S.N., J. Wyer P.S., C. B. Pelton acting as candidate. The first and third sections were worked by Bro. Gottheil, assisted by the brethren. The replies of the second section were very perfectly rendered by Bro. Turquand. The Lodge was then lowered to the first degree. Bro. Gottheil, in proposing the W.M. for the next meeting, observed that although in the regular course Bro. Posener, the present S.W., was entitled to fill the position, yet in order that the ceremonies of consecration and installation, which will be worked by Bros. Terry and Constable, might be worked in their entirety, it is necessary that an installed master should be elected. He, therefore, suggested that Bro. Turquand should be chosen for the purpose. This was seconded by Bro. John Ross, and unanimously carried. The Lodge will meet on Wednesday next, at 4 p.m.

3rd degree; and Capt. West, and Messrs. J. Clarke and E. J. Davey were initiated into the Order. These ceremonies were excellently and perfectly rendered by the W.M. Three applicants were relieved, from the fund of the Lodge, to the amount of 4½ guineas. Bro. L. Lazarus S.W. then proposed that a letter of sympathy be sent to Bro. S. L. Hickman I.P.M., who is now lying in the London Hospital, wishing him a speedy recovery, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. Bro. E. Walters then announced his intention to act as a Steward at the Anniversary Festival of the Boys' School, on the 28th June next, on which occasion the Right Hon. Lord Leigh R.W.G.M. for Warwickshire will take the chair, and the sum of £10 10s was voted for his list. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to slight refreshments. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. E. P. Albert returned thanks for the toast of the Grand Officers. Bros. L. Alexander P.M. and I. Abrahams responded to the toast of "Prosperity to the Benevolent Fund." Bro. L. Alexander P.M. then proposed the toast of the W.M., and regretted the absence of Bro. Hickman I.P.M., who had met with a severe accident, but was pleased to inform them Bro. Hickman was slowly recovering, they had seen how admirably the W.M. had that evening performed his duties, and he must have given a great amount of study to attain such proficiency. Bro. Hickman had discharged his duties to their satisfaction, and he was sure the brethren hoped, at their next meeting, to see him among them. (Cheers.) The W.M. said nothing should be wanting on his part to study the interests of the Lodge, and the comfort of the members. Bro. Cheeswright responded to the toast of the Visitors, who were Bros. J. Emmanuel 1540, J. Rogers, J. H. Rose W.M. 185, H. Beadell 65, Boyce and Cheeswright 907. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Initiates, Bros. Clarke and Smith, said the attention they had paid to the ceremony, showed they were fully impressed with it, and he was sure they would be a credit to the Order. Bro. Clarke responded; it had long been his wish to become a Mason, and he was pleased to say he was acquainted with many members of the Lodge, and he hoped to become a worthy member of it. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Past Masters, regretted the absence of Bro. Hickman. Bro. Israel Abrahams, in a very eloquent speech, returned thanks for the toast, and Bro. H. M. Peard, on assuming the chair, and in response to the proposer and seconder, not only put a vote of thanks to the Chapter, but heartily supported it himself, as Ill. Brother Rodda had done his work exceedingly well, and deserved the enthusiastic reception which was given him. The new M.W.S. appointed as officers—Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., P.M.W.S., Rev. Dalhousie Lodge, No. 860.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 10th of February, at Anderton's Hotel Fleet Street. Present—Bros. W. H. Wallington W.M., Knox S.W., Allen J.W., L. F. Littell P.M. Secretary, White S.D., Mason J.D., Weige D.C., Cheshire Steward, Dodson I.G., Gilchrist Tyler P.M. Bro. Underwood, &c., Seymour Smith Organist. Visitors—Bros. Thomas Laxton P.M. Berkhamsted 504 G.P. Herts, Charles Raydon W.M. Mount Lebanon 73, Cambridge S.D. Old Kent 15, Robinson British Oak 831, Morgan Gladesmuir 1385, Harwood Clanton 1365. The Lodge was opened, and the regular proceedings followed. The W.M. then raised Bro. Thomas Pinn to the sublime degree. Bros. Kitchingman, J. Pinn, Lipson, Gabriel and Barker were then interrogated, and having made satisfactory replies, were passed to the 2nd degree. A ballot was then taken for Messrs. Joseph Turner and Sydney Woodhead, which proved favourable, and these gentlemen were initiated. The whole of the ceremonies were worked by Bro. Wallington, and from his well-known qualifications, it is scarcely necessary to say they were carried out in a most satisfactory manner. The initiates, by the deep attention they paid, shewed they were greatly impressed by the ceremony. After routine business, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a banquet, which was most ably served under the superintendence of Bro. Smith. When the cloth had been removed, the W.M. rose and proposed the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. This was the first and most important toast, and one he was sure the brethren would honour; he would simply ask them to drink it, and he would couple with it Prosperity to the Craft. The next on the list was the M.W. the G.M., the Prince of Wales. Bro. Wallington said, that to us, as Freemasons, it was an especial one. We knew not whether Providence would permit His Royal Highness to return to us, but he was sure it was the sincere wish of every Freemason that he should, and that with increased health and strength. To the toast of the Pro. G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon, full justice was done by the W.M., who stated that the multifarious duties that devolved upon the M.W.G.M., necessitated his having assistance, and in the noble Earl we have a most zealous and indefatigable Mason. With the Earl of Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, was connected the health of one of the visitors, Bro. Laxton, who, in reply, stated that he was hardly the right person to respond. He was not a Grand Officer, but only an insignificant member of a Provincial Grand Lodge. He thanked the W.M. and brethren for the cordial greeting they had given him, and assured them he had derived great pleasure from his visit. Bro. P.M. Littell then rose to propose the health of the W.M., he said: the pleasing duty devolved upon him, but he regretted it had not fallen into better hands. He had had great pleasure in watching the career of Bro. Wallington, since his introduction to the Lodge. He had noticed how determined their W.M. had been to make his mark, and how well he had served the several offices. He referred to the progress the Lodge was making. When he occupied the chair, he thought he had done well in initiating nine gentlemen into the Order during his year of office; his predecessor had added eight; but Bro. Wallington had initiated 16. He referred to the way in which the ceremonies had been conducted, and was gratified to see the impression made upon the candidates. The toast was then drunk most enthusiastically. Bro. Wallington said it was painful for him to rise on this occasion; it being the last opportunity he should have during his year of office. He must embrace the occasion to thank the officers and brethren for their kind attention and assistance. He was sorry to have to return thanks, and yet glad; sorry because it was almost for the last time. He was fond of work, and he regretted that he should so soon get out of it. The health of the P.M.'s was given, and ably responded to by Bro. Littell. Bro. Woodward responded for the Initiates, and hoped that he might, by God's blessing, become a credit to the Order. In referring to the Visitors, the W.M. spoke of the advantages to be derived from the members of Lodges seeing the way in which the business was conducted elsewhere. The toast was replied to by Bros. Raydon and Cambridge. Bro. Cambridge spoke of the zeal evinced by Bro. Wallington, not only in connection with his own Lodge, but for the benefit and instruction of the Craft generally. He, and all the Visitors, had been much gratified by what they had witnessed, and it was a source of great gratification to all present to know that the Dalhousie Lodge was evidencing such prosperity. There were many young Masons in the Lodge, and several of them had already distinguished themselves, and he was sure all would benefit by the instruction his worthy Bro. Wallington was so well able to impart. The toast of the Officers was associated with Bro. Knox, who briefly summed up the qualifications of each, and the Tyler's toast brought the evening's proceedings to a close. Some excellent songs, ably rendered, were given during the evening, the W.M. and Bros. Dodson, Knox, Weige, Skinner, &c., distinguishing themselves.

Doric Lodge, No. 933.—This celebrated Lodge, originally founded in the extreme east of London, may be said to have now fully established its claim to be considered one of high standing in the City. Indeed, for some years past its importance has been recognised and acknowledged, not only by reason of the high standard of excellence which pervades every part of its internal conduct, but from the persevering and successful efforts in the cause of charity originated by its leading members. The task of reporting the proceedings of this Lodge is exceedingly pleasant, for the language of praise, so frequently abused, can here be conscientiously and unhesitatingly employed. From beginning to the end of the work the hand of the expert craftsman is perceptible. At the last meeting, which was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, E.C., on Tuesday, the 8th inst., in the presence of a large assemblage of brethren, amongst whom were present, Past Masters: T. Barnes, Bonnor, Yetton, Marsh, W. Wainwright and Griffin. Bro. R. Ayton the W.M., a pupil of Bro. T. Barnes sen., concluded the duties of his term of office, about to expire, by first passing Bro. Giddins to the second degree and installing, in the presence of five-and-twenty installed Masters and Past Masters, Bro. Jonathan Taylor as his successor. The latter somewhat difficult ceremony was performed with remarkable ability, and it is no small praise to state that Bro. Ayton managed to secure the undivided attention of his rather fastidious audience, who expressed their pleasure and appreciation by continued and genuine applause. As was to be expected, the new W.M. entered upon his duties with practical good sense and tact, and at once commenced his work as if he had been accustomed to it all his life. With a brief and appropriate address to each, he invested the following officers for the year—viz., R. Ayton I.P.M., J. G. Stevens P.M., 554 S.W. R. J. Tucker J.W., T. Barnes sen., Hon. Treas., J. Bourne Hon. Sec., Digby S.D., Geo. Hollington J.D. Edney I.G., T. Yetton W.S., Wintle D.C., Seddon Org., Grant Tyler. The appointments met with general satisfaction, as was evinced by the hearty applause which greeted the officers while being conducted to their several positions. The W.M. then proceeded to initiate Messrs. James Bagg, Henry Harris, and Alfred Tapley. The ceremony was most intelligently rendered, and the quiet impressiveness with which the salient points were delivered indicated how thoroughly Bro. Taylor understood the spirit of the ritual, and the importance of making clear to the novices its moral bearings and social influences. The business of the Lodge room concluded with the presentation of a gold P.M.'s Jewel to Bro. Ayton, for his services during the past year. After a sumptuous banquet and dessert, superintended by genial Bro. W. Smith, the Loyal, Masonic, and complimentary toasts were proceeded with. In proposing the health of the W.M., Bro. Ayton wished he possessed sufficient eloquence truly to express his opinion of the qualifications of Bro. Taylor for the dignified post he now occupies, but the brethren had a specimen of his abilities in the Lodge, and for his own part he had never heard any Master do his work better, and too often not nearly as well. The W.M. replying, sincerely thanked the I.P.M. and the brethren for their good wishes. He might perhaps not prove all they could wish at the banquet table, having been a total abstainer for five and twenty years, but that did not prevent him from asking them to enjoy themselves. In this matter, he judged for himself, and they must act as seems good to them. But in the Lodge work he would endeavour to do his duty, he hoped to their satisfaction, especially supported, as he has the good fortune to be, by a staff of officers whom they witnessed doing their respective duties this evening most creditably, owing mainly to the many P.M.'s the Doric Lodge can boast who have made Masonic work their study, and who are not only willing, but anxious to devote their time in instructing all who are desirous to place themselves under their tuition. Doric working, erewhile sneered at, is now being adopted in the best Lodges, not only in the east as heretofore, but equally so in the north, west, and south. Doric working is Bro. Barnes's working, and, being one of his oldest pupils, he hoped to do credit to his tutor, and that the brethren may have no occasion to regret having placed him in this high and dignified position. (Cheers.) To the toast of the P.M.'s several responded. The names of Bros. J. G. Stevens and Myers were connected with that "to the Prosperity of the Charities." Bro. Stevens said: "Worshipful Master and brethren, I am really pleased you have coupled my name with the Charities, as you are aware of the interest I take in promoting their prosperity. I have frequently had occasion to give you my sentiments upon the subject, and a 'thrice-told tale falls upon the ear and blunts the understanding;' but I will address myself especially to the initiates, to whom this tale has never yet been told, and therefore to them it cannot be a thrice-told tale. I trust they will place their names upon the Steward's list. I do hope no Mason's charitable instincts require stimulating, but should any one be inclined to hesitate, I would advise him to attend the elections and there witness scenes upon which, were I a poet, I could write an epic long enough to last until doomsday. The anxiety visible in the faces of the applicants; the aged Mason, who nobly fought the battle of life, yet failed; the widow, in her desolation, vainly hoping for the relief success might bring to her home. Let him watch the animation and brightness which illuminates the features of those to whom the thrice-welcome intelligence is announced that the votes were in their favour and the annuity secure, and of those in whom the momentary gleam of hope is extinguished, and the utter dejection in which they reluctantly retire from the contest. If he will do that, I am sure he will resolve never to neglect bestowing his mite in upholding, and to try his best to enlarge the capabilities of our noble Institutions; and you must bear in mind, brethren, that as Lodges increase and members become more numerous, so in proportion will the calls upon the Charities be augmented. I may say, I hope, without annoyance, and with my natural and inherent modesty—(laughter)—that I have done good suit and service to these institutions; but do not for one moment imagine that I have done yet. I hope to represent this Lodge at the next Festival of the Boys' School, and shall want all your names on my list, which the Lodge promised to head with 20 guineas—(cheers)—and I give you now fair warning that in this matter I do not mean to be modest, but pertinacious, and I am sure you will all do your best, knowing, as you do, that you merely help to educate the orphan, and to instruct them in morality and religion, and thus fit them for their entrance into social life." (Loud cheers.) Bro. Myers, in his reply, stated that he represents the Lily of Richmond Lodge at the Festival for the Aged, and would be glad to receive subscriptions. A number of names were handed to him, amongst whom were the newly initiated. One brother subscribed 10 guineas. Bros. Gotthell and Candick replied to the toasts for the Visitors. In responding to the health of the officers, Bro. Barnes took occasion to observe that he felt a considerable amount of pleasure in having two brethren present who are closely identified with the reminiscences of his Masonic career. There was Bro. Gotthell desiring to introduce him into his Lodge (Faith 141), held in this very house, but circumstances would not permit—that was eventually instrumental in introducing him into the Doric—and there was also Bro. Stevens, who descended him at his initiation, which took place in 1863; and he, being now the father of this Lodge, was truly happy to meet those brethren, especially as their activity in the cause of charity, for which they have for many years been conspicuous, is in no way diminished. The Tyler's toast ended the proceedings. Just upon 100 brethren sat down to banquet, including between 40 and 50 visitors, amongst whom were Bros. O'Brien 754, W. Richards 1257, R. Coombs 12, A. Woodliffe 87, W. Musto P.M. 1369, F. W. Wackins 611, P. Probyn P.M. 453, Tepton P.M. 49, C. Legg, Dr. O'Connor 536, Myers P.M., Candick S.W. Langthon Lodge, and E. Gotthell P.M. 141, 185; Bros. Coombs, Newton, Batchelor, Stevens, and Maynard contributed to the enjoyment of the evening by their excellent singing of well-chosen songs.

Egginton, P.M., for a moiety of the jewel to be presented to the Installing Master, carried unanimously. A Lodge of Instruction in the second degree, Bro. Egginton in the chair, and the acting W.M. as candidate, gave much satisfaction. After resuming the Lodge in the first degree, and receiving nominations, the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

Devon Lodge, No. 1138.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Tuesday, the 8th of Feburary, at the Masonic Hall, Devonsquare, Newton Abbott. Present—Bros. Jno. Oliver W.M., Wm. Harris J.W., B. Martin Sec., C. Stevens J.D., E. Cooke Steward, W. H. Banfill I.G., Jno. Haywood Tyler. Past Masters, Bros. W. R. King I.P.M., Philip D. Michelmore, G. Stokmans jun. The Lodge was then opened in 3rd degree, when Bro. G. Townsend Warner was raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. by Bro. King I.P.M. The Lodge was then resumed to the 1st degree when a candidate was balloted for and unanimously elected. The Lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

Perfect Ashlar Lodge, No. 1178.— A meeting of the above Lodge was held on the 3rd inst., at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark. Present—Bros. J. A. Smith W.M., W. Batchelor S.W., W. Lover J.W., F. H. Ebsworth P.M. Treasurer, F. Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex Secretary, F. Garbett S.D., J. Stock J.D., J. Porter as I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. C. Deakin and H. Harnsworth. Taylor, Shaw, Gauntlett and Vagg were passed to the 2nd degree; and Messrs. Hancock, Amens, Murdoch, Ford and Fenwick were initiated. Fifteen guineas was voted to the Boys' School. The Lodge was then closed. There was no banquet. The visitors were Bros. D. Steinhauer 1326, C. Lacop 1326, C. Graham 1540 and P. Magee J.D. 548.

Aldershot Camp Lodge, No. 1331.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 3rd day of February, at the Assembly Rooms, High-street, Aldershot, at 6 o'clock p.m. Present—Bros. Thos. Anderson W.M., Walton Mercer S.W., John Smith J.W., Edwin Harper Sec., Alex. Richardson P.M. and P.P.G.S.W. Treas., Usher Lucas S.W., Fred. Field P.M. J.W., Alex. Richardson D.C. (pro tem), John Edmund Steward, John McClisham I.G., and John Thompson Tyler. Past Masters of the Lodge Bros. R. White P.G.P., A. McKenzie P.P.G.P., and John Kennedy, with numerous brethren of this flourishing Lodge. Among the visitors were—Bros. R. Erie P.M. and P.P.G.S.D., and P.M. J. Pomeroy, of the Panmure Lodge, No. 723, P.M. J. Hall of the Royal Sussex Lodge, 342, and many others, numbering about 60 in all. Mr. Douglas was initiated, the ceremony, by particular desire, being performed by P.M. Richardson, in a masterly and impressive manner. The first charge was rendered with great effect by the J.W. (Bro. Smith), and the lecture on the tracing board was delivered with fluency by P.M. Bro. R. White. Bros. Craft, Weldon and Irish were duly passed to the 2nd degree by the W.M. Bro. Anderson, who delivered the charge in that degree in accordance with ancient custom. This brought the evening's work to a conclusion after a most successful, pleasant, and instructive Masonic gathering.

Royal York Lodge of Instruction, Brighton.—A very pleasing reunion of the members of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, at the Royal Pavilion. A dinner was excellently served by Messrs. Sayers and Marks, the brethren and ladies mustering to the number of 70. Bro. C. Sanderson occupied the chair, and Bro. W. T. Nell, the W.M. elect, the vice-chair. At nine o'clock the tables were cleared, and light refreshments were supplied, when the company was reinforced by nearly 1300 ladies and gentlemen, who came to the ball, which it had been arranged should follow. There was a well selected programme, under the direction of Bro. W. Devin. The whole arrangements were admirably carried out by Bro. R. J. Pope, the Hon. Secretary. The tables were very tastefully decorated, as was also the main entrance.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507. — A meeting was held at the Metropolitan Club, King's Cross, on Friday, the 4th February. Present—Bros. Stacey W.M., Mander S.W., Willing J.W., W. H. Lee S.D., Abell J.D., I. Lee I.G., Briggs P.M., Stiles Secretary, and fifty brethren. At the invitation of this Lodge of Instruction, the members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction (which holds its meetings at the Portugal, Fleet-street) worked the fifteen sections:—

The whole of the working was excellent, and a cordial vote of thanks was unanimously given to the brethren. Bros. Stacey and Mander were elected honorary members of the Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction. The Lodge was about to close when Bro. Shand said he had a motion to propose, that he thought should have emanated from an officer of the Lodge. He felt that in the recent loss sustained by Bro. Adams, their worthy Preceptor, in the death of his daughter, no doubt many of the Craft would tender their individual sympathy, but there were many young Masons, like himself, who would not wish to obtrude upon Bro. Adams's feelings. This being the first meeting since the sad event, he moved that a vote of condolence be entered upon the minutes, and conveyed to Bro. Adams in a letter from the Secretary. Bro. Solomon stated that he echoed every word of Bro. Shand's motion, and he would therefore second the resolution, which was carried unanimously.

Northumberland and Berwick Lodge of M.M. Masons. —This Lodge held its regular meeting on Wednesday, the 26th of January 1876, at Freemasons' Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Present—Bros. Fonlsham, and Redesdale. Business—The unusual number of ten brethren were advanced to the degree of M.M.M. in a manner that reflected the greatest credit on the W.M. and his officers. The Mark degree seems to be making great and rapid progress in this province.

BRO. HUGHAN begins his second part of the Review of this work by quoting the following exposition of Freemasonry by the Author:—

"Freemasonry is known to be founded on principles of universal benevolence, and not to be confined to one class, or to one religion. I think I may venture to say, it is so constituted, that, although it would not refuse to receive a single Deist, no test being required, yet all its forms, ceremonies, and doctrines, are so constituted as, in a very peculiar manner, to be applicable at the same time to the doctrines of Judaism, Christianity, and Mohammedanism."

This view, thinks Bro. Hughan, is far too liberal for some Grand Lodges of the present day, and directly at variance with the regulations of those Grand Lodges which require that candidates within their several jurisdictions shall hold the Christian faith. The opinion, he owns, is correct as regards British Freemasonry, but doubts if it would commend itself to all the Grand Lodges in the United States and in Europe, though the majority of them are liberal and in harmony "with the width and breadth, and heighth and depth of universal Freemasonry." He then quotes, in a modernised form, the first of the Old Sectarian Charges of Dr. Anderson, who, "early as it was then to recognise the neutral platform which Freemasonry of the future was to occupy," he says, "appears to have had a glimpse of the subsequent career of the Fraternity, and of the unsectarian basis on which the permanent Freemasonic Institution was to rest." This charge distinctly lays it down that—

"Though in ancient times, Masons were charged in every country to be of the religion of that country or nation, whatever it was, yet it is now thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions to themselves—that is, to be good men and true, or men of Honour and Honesty."

Thus, says Bro. Hughan, "the Christian character of the Society under the operative régime of former centuries, was exchanged for the unsectarian regulations which were to include under its wing the votaries of all sects—without respect to their differences, or colour, or clime, provided, the simple conditions were observed of morality, mature age, and an approved ballot." He then quotes Bro. Higgins as to the ancient mysteries in relation to Freemasonry:—

"I believe," writes the latter, "that a certain class of persons, initiated into the higher mysteries of the ancients, were what are called Carmelites Therapeutæ and Essenens," or that they constituted a part of, or were formed out of these sects, and were what we now call Freemasons. They were also called Chaldei and Mathematici (p. 304, vol 1.) * * * * I think the mysteries were like Masonry; indeed, we shall soon see, it is highly probable, that the Masons were a branch of the initiated—Masonry, a branch of the art. (p. 590). * * * * I think I have stated enough to raise or justify what the Jesuits call a probable opinion, that the Masonic ceremonies or secrets are descendants of the Eleusinian mysteries. Everybody knows the now ridiculous traditionary fancy that a Mason is, in some way, marked or branded or mutilated before he can be admitted into the Order. I believe this, like most other traditions, had not its origin from nothing. I believe the higher classes of Masons were originally persons who were admitted into the mysteries of Eleusis and Egypt, and that they were Chaldeans and Mathematici, and I believe that what the above tradition of the branding alluded to, was circumcision, and that they were circumcised. Origen and Clemens Alexandrinus both affirm, that the secret learning of the Egyptians was only taught to such persons as had undergone the operation of circumcision; for which reason, it was submitted to by Pythagoras. The same word in Hebrew means both initiated and circumcised." (p. 724.)

A remark by Schiller, in connection with the initiation of Moses by the Egyptian priests, is also given:—

"These ceremonies were connected with the mysterious images and hieroglyphics. And the hidden truths so carefully concealed under them, and used in their rites, were all comprised under the name of mysteries, such as had been used in the temples of Isis and Serapis, which were the models of the mysteries of Eleusis, and Samothrace and, in more modern times, gave rise to the Order of Freemasonry."

And then is given an opinion of Bro. Higgins to the effect that "the mysteries were not the origin of Masonry: they were Masonry itself; for Masonry was a part of them." But, though, as we have seen, Bro. Hughan has quoted freely, with a view to make apparent the nature of Bro. Higgins's belief as to the ancient mysteries and ancient Freemasonry, he does not endorse them, save when it is distinctly so stated. Bro. Hughan thinks it well the character of the work should be known, but he will not constitute himself the judge of its merits. We "only retain," he says, "what we may adopt, and exclude from these pages what seems to us entirely fabulous," leaving it to the reader to form his own opinion from the passages quoted, passages "all the more valuable as they have been quoted direct from the originals." Proceeding in his commentary, he then gives the following declaration by the author:—

"I have no doubt that the cabalistic œconomy was similar to that of a Lodge of Freemasons, and proceeded to the top by gradation, and that Masonry, which was a part of it, existed long before the time of the Exod from Egypt. * * * * The ancient Jews maintained that their cabala was revealed by God to Moses, and was transmitted verbally; it being too sacred to be written. (This is very like Freemasonry). (p. 817, vol. I.) * * * * If a person reflect deeply upon the circumstances in which the first priests must have been placed when the earliest attempt at building a temple was made, he will perceive that it was quite natural for them to become Masons. * * * * The Christian religion was divided by the early fathers, in its secret and mysterious character, into three degrees, the same as that of Eleusis, viz.: Purification, Initiation, and Perfection." (p. 822).

To this Bro. Hughan takes exception. He "cannot see that similar customs, in early religious systems, and modern Masonic societies, should be taken as proof of the latter having been the creation of the former, or, indeed, that Masonry ever had intimate or partial connection with them. The simple fact of the introduction of grades into Freemasonry, ought surely not to be taken as indicative of the Masonic character of the ancient religions mentioned, because they also had grades, and so, of course, they were Masons! The operative origin of Masonry is a much more desirable foundation for our society to rest upon than the strange and most extraordinary beginning and early career sketched by Bro. Higgins, and which, when judged in the light of our late discoveries, certainly vanished into thin air.'" He thinks, however, it would be a great advantage if Bro. Dr. Mackey would examine the author's assertions, on all that refers to our history, so far as it may be involved in the study of the ancient mysteries. Such an opinion would be exceedingly valuable, and we trust the learned editor of the Voice of Masonry will find the time to comply with Bro. Hughan's invitation. But to return to Bro. Higgins. The following statement by him is next given:—

"The monks of Tibet, at Eleusis, in Egypt, at Jerusalem or Carmel, in our circular chapters, were the preservers of the secret Pythagorean doctrines of numbers, of the Rae, or Mystery, or Masonry, or perhaps, more properly, the doctrines of the IE, the JAH,—the mesos or mason-ry, or the Saviour, or cross-bowse—renewed in every cycle, as described in Virgil. I need scarcely remind my Masonic reader that all the secrets of Masonry are concealed in the Hebrew or Chaldee language; that is, in the language of the Brahmin of Ur and Colida, where Mr. Ellis was poisoned for being known to possess them (p. 790, vol. I.)"

On this, Bro. Hughan remarks:—"In our Masonic Investigations we have always been most anxious to separate fact from fiction, actual occurrences from simple traditions, and whilst not at all desirous to undervalue the importance of our traditions, yet we have always maintained they should not be invested with the character of being actual realities, when they are not, but that they should be just regarded simply as traditions and nothing more." On the other hand Bro. Higgins "apparently seizes hold of every tradition—no matter how absurd or unlikely — as if he had unequivocal evidence before him." Hence Bro. Hughan declines to accept sundry of his statements, "unless supported by positive proof." Hence, too, he regards the foregoing statements not as the narration of facts, but only as curious fancies put into words.

Then comes a passage from Bro. Higgins, in which is recorded "a curious incident not without food for consideration."

"After I had, from various sources and by various means, added to reasoning, nearly arrived at a conviction, that the ancient order of Freemasons arose in India, and was established there, as a mystery, in the earliest periods, my conviction acquired wonderful strength from a knowledge of the fact which I shall now mention. I shall be censured for stating facts in this way; but I write truly and for the truth, and for this purpose alone. The style or order in such a work as this is not worth naming. At the time that I learned from Captain ————, the gentleman who was named in my last chapter, the particulars respecting the tomb of St. Thomas, I was also told by him that he was on the strictest intimacy with the late — Ellis, Esq., of the Madras Establishment: that Mr. Ellis told him that the password and forms used by the Master Masons in their Lodge would pass a person into the sanctum sanctorum of an Indian Temple; that he, Mr. Ellis, had, by means of his knowledge as a Master Mason, actually passed himself into the sacred part or adytum of one of them. Soon after Mr. Ellis told this to my informant, he was taken suddenly ill, and died, and my informant stated that he had no doubt, notwithstanding the mistake which his friends called it * * * * * in giving some medicine, that he was poisoned by his servants for having done this very act, or for being known to possess this knowledge. Now, when this is coupled with the fact of the Masonic emblems found on the Cyclopean ruins of Agra and Mundore, I think, without fear of contradiction, I may venture to assume, that the oriental origin of Freemasonry cannot be disputed,—and that I may reason upon it accordingly."

Bro. Hughan thinks it unlikely that any, having the fate of this Mr. Ellis before him, will voluntarily encounter the risk of a similar fate, in which case he asks, "how are such statements to be tested? It falls in with the popular notion of the universal character and powers of Masonic signs, but certainly does not agree with our facts, which have been laboriously accumulated and examined time after time without their testimony being shaken."

The opinion of the American Masonic Bibliographer, Bro. Enoch T Carson, is quoted as to the two works, the Celtic Druids and the Anacalypsis, by Bro. Higgins, but while Bro. Hughan expresses a very favourable judgment of their merits, he very properly points out that the views expressed in them must be most rigidly examined before they are accepted "as correct," and that "while we cannot fail to admire the diligence of the author, we must also admit that his inferences are frequently not justified by the evidence he submits." We are then invited to a consideration of the following passage bearing on the Royal Arch Degree. Says Bro. Higgins:—

"The Temple at Elensis had a very large dome, which was of great antiquity, long before the time usually allotted to the invention of the arch, with radiated stones. * * * * I request my brother Masons of the Royal Arch to place themselves in the middle of the new room at Freemasons' Tavern, when lighted up, and then to reflect upon all their ceremonies, on which of course I cannot enlarge, and I suspect they will find themselves both at Elensis and at Bitcheen, and in India. * * * * We know very well that there were no arches in the Temple of Jerusalem, that is, radiated arches; but we also know that there were vaults in which there were great treasures. * * * * These arches, I apprehend, were of the nature of that of the Treasury of Atreus at Messina, and of the Cupola of Kosnilar, described by Col. Tod. If a person wanted to open such an arch, he would use a rope, putting it round the cap, and pulling it inside; if he wanted to open a key-stone arch he would not use a rope, but a hammer (p. 719, vol. I.)

"The persons called Royal Arch Masons were the Archi-tect-onici, before the invention of key-stoned or radiated arches the Cyclopean builders of the only stone edifices, at that time, in the world, which were temples. * * * * The Archi-tect-onici, the Chaldæi, the Gnostici, the Mathematici, the Dionisiaci, constituted a MYSTERY, and erected Gothic buildings, the ruins of which now remain in India, thousands of years before they existed in Europe. * * * I beg to repeat to such of my readers as are Royal Arch Masons, that Solomon was a Ras or wise man, and that a Mason in Rajapootana is called a Ras, which also means mystery; and now I take the liberty of observing to my brethren, that they are called Royal Arch Masons, not because they have anything to do with kings, but because they are Raja-Poot-an Masons (p. 770.")

On this, Brother Hughan remarks that he has "never been able to trace the Royal Arch of Freemasonry long before 1740;" that he believes his experience agrees with that "of the editors of the VOICE, particularly of Dr. Mackey, who has made the Ritual and History of that degree his special subject," and that he has "had more than one friendly discussion with our esteemed and learned brother, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., who rather leans to a much older origin than we can ascribe to Royal Arch Masonry." He further bestows a word of just praise on the late Dr. Oliver's Origin of the English Royal Arch (London: R. Spencer & Co.) He further states he is pretty sure "that nothing has yet been published to prove the existence of such a degree prior to A.D., 1738," and he knows that "Rituals about the period mentioned, as well as those of later dates, clearly point out the fact that for some years afer the Revival of Freemasonry in London, A.D., 1717, the real and distinctive ceremonies of Royal Arch Masonry were worked in the Master Mason's Degree. If such," he says "were not the case, what means the frequent reference to the fact that Master Masons journeyed to the West 'in search of that which was lost, but is now found,' which subsequently is declared to be the 'Master Mason's word,' and which word is then exchanged for the substituted word communicated in the former part of the ceremony? If the Royal Arch Degree in its separate and distinct form existed prior to 1738, and indeed, was as old as the Third Degree, how comes it that the regular Grand Lodge of England persistently refused to recognise it until 1813, but the body of Masons which seceded from this original and premier Grand Lodge, made much of the degree, and by it we may truly say, succeeded in making their numerical position in a few years, almost equal to the regular Grand Lodge itself?" Bro. Higgins, however, it is pointed out, "distances all of us, in his belief in the antiquity of Royal Arch Masonry, for he considers the society existed and its members flourished before the invention of key-stoned or radiated arches." Bro. Hughan thinks this must be intended "in a figurative sense;" otherwise, he cannot follow him in his faith, "as he has failed to afford us the necessary evidence!"

Respecting the Masonic Societies of Germany, Bro. Higgins, we are told, says:—

"About the middle of the last century, the Masonic societies showed themselves in Germany in a more prominent way than they had done for many generations, and, under the guidance of several able and philanthropic men, both Catholic and Protestant priests and laymen, it is probable, gave encouragement to resistance to the united despotism of the Roman Pontiffs and the Royal tyrants of Europe, which, in France and Germany, had risen to such a pitch as to be no longer tolerable. The activity of the Masons being discovered, it produced the persecution of their Order all over the Continent, and it was much increased in consequence of several publications of three persons, called Zimmerman, Barruel, and Robinson. The first was decidedly insane, and the other two were operated upon by groundless fears in such a manner as to be in a state very little better, and which rendered them totally incapable of distinguishing between the destruction of religion, and the destruction of the base system to which the professors of religion had made it subservient. They all admit that the British Masons had nothing to do with these hydra-headed conspiracies, and endeavour to draw a line between them and their continental brethren, being unable to see that the difference was not in the Societies, which were the same, but in the countries—Britain being comparatively free and happy, the other countries enslaved and miserable.

Bro. Hughan applauds this view of the subject. He points also that "Freemasonry, of course, is entirely neutral as a Society, both as respects religion and politics and so it has always been claimed to be since the revival of 1717." Before then, however, it had not been "neutral as regards religion, for nearly all the copies of its Regulations and traditionary History commence with an Invocation to the Trinity, and contain many references to the Scripture and the Church which clearly illustrated the intimate connection subsisting between the Priesthood "of past centuries and Operative Masonry," an intimacy not wholly severed in some countries during the last century, and even now preserved in some Lodges, where the Chaplain will conclude a prayer with the words, 'through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour,' even when Jews and Turks are sitting side by side with Christians." Bro. Hughan further expresses his opinion that it is impossible to "obliterate all traces of religion—and even Sectarian religion, as exhibited in the Holy Bible of the Christians—from Freemasonry, without obliterating the Society at the same time." But we should as much as possible refrain from "exhibiting the peculiar characteristics of Christianity in our Lodge prayers, when a due regard to the universal tendencies of the Craft should incite us to sink our differences when we 'meet on the square,' and unite in our appeals to the Heavenly Father and Creator of the Universe, who is adored by all religious societies, and is the Great I Am of all creeds." As regards politics, however, there is assuredly nothing to warrant the belief that Freemasonry was ever "a political society of any kind, at any time, or politically was ever of any consequence to mention, to any party, whether in power or otherwise. On the contrary, its real tendencies are, and appear to have ever been, to soften and well-nigh extinguish all political distinctions and rivalries within the sacred precincts of the Lodge." In fact, says Bro. Hughan, "We know of nothing which practically is so unpolitical in its general action, and yet so purely religious in its morality and constitution—apart from Christianity—as Freemasonry."

Then are reproduced some early traditions, quoted in the 'Anacalypsis,' as likely to prove of interest to all Masonic readers, and especially to Royal Arch Companions, who are able to detect in the following, much that is not new to them.

"The Mosque or Temple on Mount Moriah was built by the Caliph Omar, the son of Caleb, about the year 16 of the Hegira, A.D. 637. Chateaubriand says:—'Le Mosquée prit le nom de cette roche Gamest-el-Sakhra.' It has a large dome, under the centre of which is a cave, and at the top of it the sacred stone which, in all these religions, is generally found in or close to the temple or church. In the description of the Temple (of Jerusalem), given by Mons. Chateaubriand, is an account of the sacred stone to which I have alluded. In this Mahommedan Temple, there are in the stone Pillar and the Cave both the Nabli or navel of the earth, and the Yoni and the Linga, though they may now not be understood. * * * Here, if I understand Mons. Chateaubriand, the stone is placed over the cave. Now I do not doubt that, in the ancient Temple of Solomon, there were the cave and the mysterious stone pillar, pedestal or whatever it might be, the same as at Delphi and other places; but in it the pillar or pedestal was probably not over the cave but in it, as described by Nicephorus Callistus (a Greek historian of the fourteenth century) Lib. x. chap. xxxiii., in the following words:—'At the time when the foundation was laid, one of the stones, to which the lowest part of the foundation was attached, was removed from its place and discovered the mouth of a cavern which had been hollowed out of the rock. Now since they could not see to the bottom, on account of its depth, the overseers of the work, wishing to be perfectly acquainted with the place, let down one of the workmen by means of a long rope, into the cavern. When he came to the bottom he found himself in water as high as his ancles, and examining every part of the cavern, he found it to be square as far as he could ascertain by feeling. He afterwards searched nearer the mouth of the cavern, and on examination, discovered a low pillar, very little higher than the water, and having placed his hand upon it, he found lying there a book, carefully folded in a piece of thin and clean linen. This book he secured, and signified by the rope his wish to be drawn up. On being drawn up he produced the book, which struck the beholders with astonishment, particularly as it appeared perfectly fresh and untouched, though it had been brought out of so dark and dismal a place. When the book was unfolded, not only the Jews but the Greeks also were amazed, as it declared, in large letters, even at its commencement, In the beginning, &c. To speak clearly, the writing here discovered, did most evidently contain all that Gospel which was uttered by the Divine tongue of the virgin disciple."

Naturally, Bro. Hughan refrains from particularising the several references to the account of the cave which occur in Masonic Legends, nor does he seek to explain their bearing, "for undoubtedly it must be conceded that our Traditions are, in many cases not peculiar to Masonry, but adopted from older Societies and Historical MSS. for the purpose of conveying moral lessons." He goes on to quote from the second of a number of old books bound together in a curious little volume. This book which has no date, but "is apparently of the same age" as the first, namely, 1699, is entitled "*An Historcal Catechism, containing Ingenious Answers to many notable Questions of several wonderful matters in ancient History, as, What is the opinion of all our Historians about the apple old mother Eve tempted Adam withal—Why the devil should take the shape of a serpent: of the Building of the Tower of Babel. * * * Part I. Registenden the Hall Book of the Company of Stationers*" In this occurs, after a description of the attempt of Julian, the Apostate, to rebuild the Temple, the following, so much like the above extract from Nicephorus, "that nothing short of a common origin can account for their agreement."

"Q. What happened at their laying a foundation?

A. There was a stone which slipped from its place, and discovered the mouth of a cave cut in a rock—The overseers of the work not being able to see to the bottom of it, let down a labourer by a rope. Being come to the bottom, he was up to his ancles in water, and found the place four square, and laying his hand on a little pillar above water, he met with a book wrapt up in a clean linnen cloth. Being drawn up, the spectators were amazed it should be so fresh lying in such a dark hole. The book being opened, surprised both the Jews and Grecians that were present; they found in the beginning of it these words were capital letters: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God"—and indeed, saith the historian, that Scripture did manifestly contain all the Gospel which the beloved disciple, St. John, had declared.

Other curious references to legends now incorporated in Masonic degrees, Bro. Hughan says, he has been told are to be found in ancient writings, especially in a book by Philostorgois, a Greek author, who flourished in the fifth century; and he invites Dr. Mackey to dip into the history of this Greek, in order to trace, if possible, the origin of other Masonic legends, adding, "If we mistake not, the Cave, so graphically and similarly described in the two preceding extracts, is, in all probability, the original of the legends of the Royal Arch and some of the degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. It is surely more reasonable to suppose that each legend of our Masonic degrees is an adaptation of Traditions previously circulated without any connection with the Craft, than to believe that our Masonic legends or traditions are peculiar to the society, and have always been so—a belief contrary to fact."

Here ends Bro. Hughan's dissertation on Godfrey Higgins's Anacalypsis. It has afforded us great pleasure to read it, and still greater pleasure to reproduce it in these columns for the benefit of our readers.

THE CHURCHMAN.

"Thy Church, Sir Priest, shall dominate the world;
It shall win, by peaceful means, supremacy,
And govern men by omnipotent love.
O'er the vast globe its gentle sway shall reach,
And, with the glowing orb of day, the sun of
New Jerusalem shall shed its mild, undying beams."

IT is the boast of our Order that its precepts find favour, not merely with various minds and temperaments, but that men of all creeds can unite on the neutral floor of the Lodge room in perfect accord and amity. Every shade and denomination of the Christian religion finds its representatives amongst us, and the pure Theist, the Brahmin, or the Mahommedan are welcomed as brothers. Modern civilization, with its levelling and humanising influences, could alone have achieved a triumph like this. The brotherhood of man is first roughly taught by our necessities and our dependence on each other, before Masonic morality—with its vast and far reaching influences—can fairly come into play. However widely the Masonry of the middle ages was spread in Europe, it was chiefly propagated amongst Christians. The early rites to which we trace our ritual were indeed wide enough to comprehend the Jew and the Greek, the Egyptian and the Chaldean, but modern Masonry, with its grand message of peace and goodwill to mankind, has finally levelled the inequalities of the human heart, and taught the world the difficult lesson of practical toleration. From one section of the Christian Church we have experienced hostility and persecution, and its rulers ignorantly declare that the principles of the Order are incompatible with true religion and morality. Masons, however, do not pay much attention to the thunders of the Vatican, nor are they inclined to return railing for railing. They point with pride to the fact that the clergy of the established religion in this country have recognised the value of the Order as a great and abiding moral force. They are proud to point to the fact that many of the distinguished brothers who have achieved the highest eminence in the Craft are clergymen, who have virtually admitted that revelation and the Order are in harmony with each other. Those principles which are eternally true, and which lie at the root of all the great religious systems of the world, will always command the veneration and the assent of mankind, and it is with these that Masonry deals. As regards practical morality and veneration for the Supreme Being, the Order is in harmony with the highest teaching of the Vedas or the Koran, with the sublime self-sacrifice of Buddha, and with the teachings of the Sacred Scriptures. Some of the hymns of the Rig Veda, in honour of the

Digitized by Google

Great Architect of the Universe, might be paraphrased for use in the Lodge. The moral teachings of Buddha, the Prince who became a beggar for the good of mankind, finds its counterpart in our ritual and our practice, and the practical morality of the Koran is, we need scarcely say, so far as it goes, in accord with ours. We may indeed boast that our principles touch the deepest chord in the human heart. The harp of a thousand strings has a gamut of wonderful range, but a child in mere worldly knowledge may play upon it, provided he is familiar with a few of the great master truths, which, while man retains his humanity, will never pale or sink into obscurity.

The Established Church in this country has supplied many Masonic recruits to our ranks who, in the pulpit and out of it, have been consistent members of the fraternity. The reverend gentleman whose portrait we are about to sketch is, perhaps, one of the most distinguished of the clerical band whose eloquence has so often been employed in the service of the Craft. His Masonic career has been a most eventful one, and is almost without a parallel in the annals of the Order. He was initiated in the Apollo University Lodge, at Oxford, in the year 1822, and was passed and raised in the usual course of things. He has served as W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Exeter, and is a subscribing member of several Lodges in the Province of Devon. In the year 1835 he was appointed Provincial Junior Grand Warden, and a similar honour was accorded him on three subsequent occasions. In the year 1844 we find him filling the honourable post of Provincial Grand Senior Warden, and in 1850 he was appointed by patent, under the hand and seal of the late Earl Fortescue, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Devon. In the year 1862 he was Grand Chaplain of Grand Lodge, an office which he has twice filled. He is a Past First Principal of St. George's Chapter, Exeter, and of the Chapter of Fidelity, Devonport. He has been Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masons (Devon), and Grand Sojourner in the Supreme Grand Chapter of England. As a Mark Mason he has risen to the highest provincial rank, and he is equally distinguished in the military orders of H.R.D.M. Grand Election Knights Templar, K.D.O.S.H. of St. John of Jerusalem, Palestine, &c., &c., and has served as Eminent Commander of the Rougemont Encampment stationed at Exeter.

We should weary our readers if we were to enumerate all the honours and distinctions which have been won by this eminent Mason, whose services have been highly appreciated by the brethren of the province in which he has mainly laboured. Testimonials and votes of thanks have been showered upon him but we have merely space to record the fact that the Rougemont Encampment, in 1846, presented their Eminent Commander with a beautiful mediæval Toast Cup of hammered silver, which was originally the property of the late Grand Master the Duke of Sussex. On his installation as P.G.M., a gold chain, with other paraphernalia of office, valued at 200 guineas, was presented to him by the members of the Province. He has often presided, with singular tact and ability, over the deliberations of Grand Lodge, and he is one of the few Knights Grand Crosses appointed by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

Such a career as this is almost startling in its exceptional brilliancy, and we are proud to say that our brother has achieved his high position in the Order by merit and industry alone. He has not been pitchforked into high office, nor has he ever endeavoured by mere self-assertion to push his way to the front. Love of the cause, and a desire to benefit humanity, have been the primary motive forces of his great career. In the service of the Church he has been a faithful minister, and all the reserve energy which he could spare from his work, as a parish priest, he has devoted to the cause of the fraternity. Benevolence, in its finest phases, is characteristic of him; he has been a large contributor to the Charities, and his amiable lady, who is, we are almost inclined to think, as good, if not as great a Mason as himself, has liberally given from her own private purse in aid of the same good cause. Socially our brother is most genial and kindly in all his relations with his fellow creatures. In his parish he is loved and honoured by all, and he fulfils the obligations incident to his sacred calling with all the simple dignity of the venerable priest who has been immortalised in Goldsmith's "Deserted Village." If the splendid talents which he has devoted to works of Christian charity and to the duties of our Order had been expended upon mere clerical intrigue, he might have risen high in the Church. But he has been content to remain a parish priest, the friend, adviser and champion of the poor.

> "Truth from his lips prevailed with double sway,
> And fools, who came to scoff, remained to pray."

To many of our readers his features are as familiar as their household gods. In the south-west of England his name is a tower of Masonic strength, and the magic of his influence is widely and deeply felt in the metropolis. In the deliberations of Grand Lodge he has exercised a great and deserved influence, and perhaps there are few Masons on the great roll of illustrious brethren who have done so much to render the practical working of the Order familiar to the outer world. Such men as he are our best media of communication with that section of the public who are inclined to scoff at the high claims of the Craft. He virtually proclaims to the world that Masonry and the religion of the Bible are in harmony, and he attests that the Order exists for something better than the mere self-glorification of ambitious men, or for the mere indulgence of convivial pleasures.

MASONRY AND MAGIC.

A DEFINITION of the Astral Light or Soul of the World, which seems more than accidental, was given by the gifted author of the "Coming Race" in his description of the supposed agency Vril. "I should call it electricity, except that it comprehends in its manifold branches other forces of nature, to which, in our scientific nomenclature, differing names are assigned, such as magnetism, galvanism, &c., the unity in natural energic agencies, which Faraday thus intimates. I have long held an opinion, almost amounting to conviction, in common, I believe, with many other lovers of natural knowledge, that the various forms under which the forces of matter are made manifest have one common origin, or are so directly related and mutually dependent, that they are convertible, as it were, into one another, and possess equivalent of power in their action."

But the only perfect definition of this agency is said to have come from immemorial antiquity in the "emerald tablet," of Hermes. This source is Egyptian, but from the nature of earliest extant notices and the reverence it has inspired through ages, we should feel no surprise at its discovery by the indefatigable Mr. George Smith upon some cylinder from Babylon, 2000 B.C. It runs: I speak no fable, but that which is most certain and true.

That which is above is like that which is below, and that which is below is like that which is above for working the miracles of the one thing.

As all things were engendered from one by the will of One, so all things are produced from this one thing, by adaptation.

The sun is its father, the moon its mother, the wind bore it in its womb, the earth is its nurse. . . This thing is the very power of power, for it subdues all that is subtle and penetrates all that is solid.

It is here implied, says Levi, that the atmosphere is its receptacle or prison, and that though engendered by the influences of the sun and moon, it is set going in equipoise, or, as it were, in oscillation, by the heat that radiates from our orb.

Levi's commentary continues, that from this force or light, a universal solvent may be obtained, also a formative and coagulative agent; that it may be extracted from bodies where it lies latent, in the condition of fire, of impetes, of luminous gas, &c., &c., so as to imitate by various manifestations all forms of Creation.

Those of our readers who have no personal experience of the so-called Phenomena of modern spiritualism, will regard these lucubrations on the occult, as lacking a raison d'être, as mere empty speculations. We have, however, already observed that an occult principle will be proved, even by the movement of a pin without known cause against known natural law: and as evidence of much more, we cite the pages of the Quarterly Journal of Science, 1st July 1871, and the pamphlet of William Crookes, F.R.S., entitled "Researches in the Phenomena of Spiritualism." London, 1874.

We adduce also the following curious instance, which no received theory can satisfactorily explain, from our own knowledge:—

A well-known spiritualist had been giving his experience, of what is called crystal-seeing, to a near friend of ours, to whom he lent a fine large pure crystal for the purpose of trying whether he were gifted with the supposititious faculty of a seer. Our friend, during several patient trials, could see nothing in it but reflections of the objects around him and of his own features. His housekeeper, an ordinary, unpretentious, but decidedly truthful woman, entered his study one evening upon some errand, and he casually handed the crystal to her. Holding it up, she at once exclaimed, "How very pretty!" and proceeded to describe with vivacity, a forest scene and a herd of deer. The lights and shadows of the foliage, the beautiful eyes and graceful movements of the animals were minutely dwelt upon; and she laid it down, supposing it to be a new and curious scientific toy. Our friend, as may be supposed, was much astonished, and took frequent subsequent opportunities of repeating the experiment with his housekeeper, in the presence of his wife and another. On each occasion, different spectacles were described, sometimes several scenes in succession. At last, desirous of turning the matter to some practical use, and of verifying the descriptions, he requested that an absent person might be shown, and gave the name of a relative, with whom the seer was totally unacquainted. After a pause she announced the appearance of a book, apparently bound in scarlet, and with gilt edges, open at the blank page behind the cover. This seeming highly unsatisfactory as well as enigmatical, our friend demanded to know the title of the book. The seer then described the closing of the book, the appearance of its cover, and with some hesitation spelled out the small gilt letters of the first word in its title. It was "Postage." Our friend and his wife were instantly reminded of a gift recently made to their relative, in furtherance of his pet hobby—the collecting of postage stamps—and at once recognised the description of the Postage Stamp Album, in which he was at the time almost absorbed, classifying and transferring to its pages his numerous collection. Of this gift, or this hobby, the seer had no knowledge, any more than of the person invoked.

In this instance, it does not seem to us that Levi's Astral Light theory covers all the ground. The manifestation of the album was not in the mind nor swayed by the will of any person present, and the theory of spiritualists that the appearance was intended and determined by some intelligent will, not there in the flesh, seems far more feasible. Curious experiences occurred at subsequent experiments, which were terminated by an unforeseen calamity.

Many of our readers will, no doubt, have witnessed the remarkable and eccentric performances of the planchette, of which we could also say a few words; and in cases where the planchette has spontaneously given information of facts unknown to the holder of it and to the spectators, we do not see how the Astral Light theory can be tenable, without some intelligent agency behind.

In crystal-seeing, it is asserted that the vision is not actually shown in the crystal, which is only a medium aiding its conveyance and fixing the eye, but thrown upon the brain of the seer and reflected into the eye from inwards. The mystery still remains, how objects, foreign to the seer's knowledge, and which must therefore be invented for the occasion by some external intelligence, can be presented.

Speculations upon these and upon many other analogous marvels are cleared up by Eliphas Levi in a manner quite satisfactory, to himself, but not so to us, who have not the same insight into their secret springs and their correspondence with material laws. But he does give us a faint inkling of the value and power which may be attached to symbols, and of the mathematical skeleton which underlay the formulæ of the alchymists, astrologers, wizards, and shall we say Masons—of old. He asserts that Magic, in revealing the universal law of Equilibrium and the harmony resulting from the analogy of Opposites, attacks all science at the root, and preludes a revolution in every branch of knowledge. To the generative principle of numbers it attaches the generative principle of ideas, and consequently the generative principle of worlds, completing the imperfect intuition of Pythagoras; that it maintains a clear and absolute dogma, and that the alpha and omega of universal motion (or existence), both of ideas and forms, it sums up in a few algebraic signs like an equation. This dogma is what he calls the Law of Equilibrium, or the balance which results from the analogy of opposites.

To trace out the circle of human knowledge: thence, by conveying radii, to find the centre in Deity.

To find a scale of proportion between effects, wills and causes, in order to ascend to the great first will and cause.

To perfect a knowledge of the analogies of ideas to their first source.

To render religious truth as demonstrable as a geometrical problem.

And the great magic secret has been symbolised by the lamp and poignard of Psyché, the Apple of Eve, the fire stolen from Heaven by Prometheus, and the sceptre of Lucifer, as well as by the Redeemer's Cross. To possess it in order to abuse and divulge it is to merit every punishment; to possess as it should be possessed, is to have gained the Absolute. So says Eliphas Levi.

GRAND LODGE HONOURS!

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER, — "One who Knows" has replied to "Legitimate Ambition" in strong terms, and, according to the evidence submitted, certainly not too strongly, but he has not indicated any method whereby the "dead lock" complained of might be altered, avoided or remedied. His advice as to "bowing the knee to Baal" is evidently not such as he would follow himself, for if otherwise he would not have been "left out in the cold," and he will doubtless be aware that many of the Grand Officers have not owed their promotion or distinction to any such low, selfish and unworthy motives, at least none that I know of. In such cases we can but reason from what we know, and to me it has long appeared that the real test for Grand honours, in addition to the qualifications as to Masonic proficiency and social respectability, is the support bestowed upon our charities. Years ago no brother could be appointed a Grand Officer without having been a Grand Steward, and member of the Grand Steward's Lodge, unless after the payment of a heavy fine! I propose, now that this rule is abrogated, to require that no brother shall be called to the dais without having previously qualified as Life Governor of our Masonic charities, or served as Steward for those most excellent institutions! It would be well, also, that as of late years it has been customary to appoint Deputy Provincial Grand Masters to Grand offices who have already distinctions of value in their own provinces, the compliments paid to such brethren, and indeed to any brethren in the country should be more sparingly given. It should be remembered that in the London District there is no Provincial Grand offices to be obtained, and that a tremendous number of hard working Masons and Past Masters never receive any recognition of their valuable services, whereas in the country, each Provincial Grand Lodge usually dispenses some dozen offices presumably to worthy brethren, and in the course of years few Past Masters of average Masonic zeal and ability are overlooked. In London several Lodges have not a "purple amongst their number!" and yet many of their members are known throughout the City for their Masonic and general excellence. I think the number of red apron Lodges should be increased to 36 in the London district, and permanent rank be given to Past Stewards as Past Grand Officers, and those who support the charities—other conditions being equal—eventually promoted from time to time.

Fraternally yours,

A YOUNG BROTHER.

A GUINEA FOR JACK'S HOSPITAL.—Money is wanted to extend the efficiency of one of the noblest of our national charities—the most expressly national, indeed, of them all, yet at the same time more than national. That is, dear friends, the Seamen's Hospital, late the Dreadnought, at Greenwich, open not only to British Seamen who need laying up for repairs, but likewise to seamen of all nations requiring to go into dock. To the funds of this excellent and sorely-needed institution the Goldsmiths', the Clothworkers', the Saddlers', the Mercers', the Drapers', the Skinners', the Vintners', the Salters', and last, not least, the Worshipful Merchant Taylors' Company, have liberally subscribed—the latter to a donation of £31 10s having added a grant of free admission to their Convalescent Institution at Bognor, which has accordingly received many patients from the Seamen's Hospital during the past year. However, the support of Jack's Hospital concerns not only the City and Port of London, but every Port in England—indeed, every Port and Harbour all over the world. It is itself a Universal Harbour of Refuge. In their fifty-fifth Annual Report, just published—a pretty little blue book—the managing body of the Seamen's Hospital Society apprise all whom it concerns—that is, everybody—that, for reasons which are: "The Committee ask the public to come forward, and increase the amount received in Annual Subscriptions from £2,000 to £5,000, and then, if on an average £50 annually be received from each Port that sends patients to the Hospital in the course of the year, the Society will be established on a sound national basis." This appeal is now made known to the world at large by the one periodical which can truly boast a world-wide circulation.—Punch, 19th February 1876.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

St. John's Lodge, No. 3 bis.—This Lodge held their usual meeting in their own hall, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, 18th February, Bro. Nelson in the chair, supported by Bros. W. Bell I.P.M., J. B. Young D.M., T. B. Bell S.M., J. Sellars S.W., Brownlie J.W., J. Dick Secretary, Dunn Treasurer, Cameron S.D., Paton J.D., and London Chaplain. The following P.M.'s were also present—McMillian, Smillie, Fletcher, and Bell, and amongst the Visitors, J. B. McNair I.P.M. 332. At the request of the R.W.M., Bro. T. B. Bell initiated three candidates, working the ceremony on two separate occasions. Thereafter Bro. J. McMillian P.M. raised twelve brethren to the sublime degree of Master Masons, both ceremonies being wrought with that care and completeness which make this one of the best as well as the oldest Lodge in the west of Scotland.

Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held, for the first time since its removal from the Terminus Hotel, on Thursday, the 10th inst., at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street. Bros. Black W.M., E. Grabham S.W., Rice P.M. as J.W., Starling P.M. Treas., W. H. Bywater P.M. Sec., and many brethren; Past Masters Bros. C. Tyler, Whitmore, Pound, Williams, Rice, Nicholson, Goldsmith and Potter. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Mr. F. E. W. Collard was initiated. Bro. C. Jeppes was passed to the 2nd degree. The working of the W.M. was worthy of attention, from its perfect intonation and the impressive manner of delivery. A board of installed masters was formed, and Bro. E. Grabham S.W. was duly installed by Bro. Bywater P.M., 27 W.M.'s and P.M.'s being present. The W.M. then invested his officers—Bros. Black I.P.M., Hollingsworth S.W., Allen J.W., Starling P.M. Treas., W. H. Bywater P.M. Sec., Charles S.D., J. W. Foster J.D., H. Glenn I.G., Pound P.M. W.S., and J. Gilbert P.G. Tyler, Middlesex Tyler. The W.M. in feeling terms adverted to the death of a brother of the Lodge with whom they had been associated for so many years. Bro. Dr. Whitmore, in a very excellent speech, paid a just tribute to Bro. the late John Savage, he spoke of him as a thorough good Mason; and one whom the distinguished brethren present knew and appreciated for his good qualities, which were known not only to the members of the Lodge of which he was so distinguished an ornament but also to the outer world. In order that his name should be perpetuated a committee had been formed. Bro. Bywater then read the resolution, which had been placed on the minutes, as follows:—That the members of the Royal Athelstan Lodge, No. 19, deeply sensible of the loss which they and the Craft have sustained by the death of their respected Bro. John Savage P.M. P.G.D. feel it due to his memory to place on the record of their proceedings the expression of their high admiration of his Masonic character and attainments. As a working Mason, and on all subjects relating to the ceremonies and observances of the Order, he was equalled by few and surpassed by none. As a member of Grand Lodge he brought to bear on all subjects that came under his consideration great sagacity. In Masonic Charities his benevolent sympathies were also enlisted in the support of deserving objects. The kindness of his disposition, characterised as it was by great heartiness and cordiality of manner, rendered him deservedly popular with all who knew him, and he supplemented these qualities by an earnest regard for the welfare and prosperity of the Craft. His memory will be perpetuated by every brother with the deepest feelings of regard and gratitude. It was resolved that a copy of the foregoing resolution and a letter of condolence be sent to the relatives of the late brother, and that printed copies be forwarded to every brother of the Lodge and other Masonic friends. Bro. Goddard gave notice of motion—"To consider the desirability of raising a sum sufficient to make the Lodge Vice-President of the three Masonic Charities." A distressed brother was relieved with the sum of £10 10s. Bro. Whitmore P.M. proposed that an address of congratulation be sent to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. on his safe return from India. Bro. Goldsmith P.M. proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes, and the usual jewel be presented to the W.M., on his retirement from the chair, for the efficient manner he had discharged his duties during his year of office. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, 70 in number, sat down to a very recherché banquet, provided by the Company, under the personal superintendence of Bro. Whitfield. The table presented a magnificent appearance; the meal was perfect, and the viands and wines gave great satisfaction. Grace was said by the Rev. Bro. P. Holden, G. Chaplain Middlesex. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and, in mentioning that of H.R.H. the W.M. the Grand Master, wished him a speedy and safe return to his native country, in renewed health and vigour. (Loud cheers.) Bro. Mason P.G.S.B. returned thanks for the toast of the Grand Officers in very eloquent terms, and was followed by Bro. J. Smith P.G.P. The W.M. then proposed the health of a noble brother who had honoured them by his presence. He was one who was always appreciated. His Masonic qualifications were well known and always respected, and whenever he was present the brethren were proud to have him among them. (Loud cheers.) There were also three brethren of the Province present, and he need not say that they were equally welcome. Bro. Col. F. Burdett, who, on rising, was received with enthusiastic cheers, said he was proud to hold the position of P.G.M. of Middlesex, and also pleased to see three members of the Province present. He spoke of H.R.H. Prince Leopold having been appointed P.G.M. for Oxfordshire. He said he had been present at many Lodges, but he had never seen better working—everything in connection with the ceremony had been fully carried out, and he might say, with pleasure, there had been no hitch. On behalf of himself and the brethren of the Province of Middlesex, he begged to return them his sincere thanks. (Cheers.) Bro. Collard replied to the toast of the Newly Initiated. Bro. Dr. Whitmore then rose, and said: The W.M. has proposed the toast of the distinguished visitors holding Grand Offices, but there were also many present who held high positions by their literary and other qualifications, and among them was one not unknown to fame—that was Bro. Charles Dickens. (Loud cheers.) He was the W.M. of the Maybury Lodge. He mentioned other names seriatim, and said they were always pleased to see them. He would couple the toast with one whom all respected as a good man and a good Mason, and that was Bro. Geo. Lambert. (Cheers.) Bro. Lambert returned thanks for the toast in his usual happy and genial manner. Bro. Black I.P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M., who was a good working Mason, and one who would efficiently carry out the duties required of him. The W.M. replied. He was pleased to see the manner in which the brethren had received the toast. His great aim would be to study their comfort, and it afforded him great satisfaction to hear the expressions of Bro. Black and the brethren, who had so cordially responded. The comfort and welfare of the Lodge had always received his utmost attention, and with their co-operation he hoped to continue to do so. Bro. Goldsmith P.M. proposed the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Black. He possessed true Masonic talent, which they all fully recognised. Bro. J. Smith P.G.P. said he was pleased to have a toast placed his hands, and that was the Past Masters. There were 13 present; they were all able to perform their duties perfectly. They had seen the I.P.M., Bro. Black, perform the ceremonies, and Bro. Bywater's rendering of the ceremony of installation was perfect; he hoped they would live long to enjoy their proud position of Past Masters of so celebrated a Lodge. Bro. Rice P.M. responded. The toast of the Masonic Charities was given, coupled with the names of Bros. Little and Binckes. The W.M. had consented to act as Steward for the Girls' School, and he was sure the Lodge would be to the front with a worthy list. The Charities were carefully looked after. The toast having been responded to, the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary was given. Among the visitors were Bros. Col. Burdett P.G.M. Middlesex, C. R. Jardine 56, N.Y., H. Brett W.M. 134, J. Mason P.G.S.B., R. W. Stuart P.G.D., A. J. Lewis P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, A. H. Lilley P.M. 12, G. Page P.M. No. 1, Cooper J.W., 754, R. W. Little S.G.W. Middlesex, F. Binckes P.G.S., Spicer 569, Sims 145, D. James P.M. 969, Klenck P.M. 1339, W. Wilson P.P.G.W. Herts, Gibson 142, J. B. Sorrill Green 1491, C. W. Thompson 969, W. Bateman 12, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188, &c.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the Hercules, Londenhall-street, on Thursday evening last, 17th February, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Briant W.M., Ellis S.W., Hill J.W., Salmoneae S.D., Hollands J.D., Maidwell I.G., Grammer Hon. Sec., and Austin P.M. Preceptor. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. T. Jennings being the candidate. The 1st section of the 3rd lecture was worked by the W.M., assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was then resumed to the 2nd degree and the 1st and 2nd sections of the lecture were worked by the W.M., and the 3rd section by Bro. Horsley, assisted by the brethren. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in ancient form. The fifteen sections will be worked in this Lodge next Thursday evening (24th February) at 7 o'clock precisely. Bro. Musto P.M. will preside, Bro. Austin P.M. being S.W. and Bro. Horsley J.W.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction, No. 45.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, E.C., on Monday, 14th February. Present—Bros. Stock W.M., Hill S.W., Lake J.W., Pilbeam S.D., A. W. Cook J.D., Todd I.G., Tolmie Dep. Preceptor, Halford Treas., Killick Hon. Sec. The Lodge was opened in the usual manner, and the minutes confirmed. Bro. Powell passed to the degree of F.C. The W.M. worked the 1st section, and Bro. Tolmie the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed on Monday, 6th March.

Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on the 15th February, at 170 Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Present—Bros. George McDonald R.W.M., J. Bannerman D.M., Jas. Balentine S.M., Alex. McLeod S.W., John Bainbridge J.W., R. Richards Secretary, J. S. Ampleford Treasurer, W. Kay S.D., G. McDonald J.D., W. McFarlane D.C., D. Ramee Steward, B. Levy I.G., A. Kay Tyler, and P.M. Bro. T. Stuart. Business—The case of a brother just deceased was laid before the Lodge, and as he had been ill for thirteen months, the funeral expenses were ordered to be paid, the case of the widow to be considered on a future occasion. £1 was also voted to relieve the temporary necessities of a brother. The Lodge was then raised to the 2nd degree, and Bros. G. W. Wheeler and Abraham Abrahams was raised to the F.C. degree. The Lodge was then opened in the 3rd degree, when the R.W.M. raised a brother to that sublime degree.

London Lodge, No. 108.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Saturday, the 12th inst., at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street. Present—Bros. Hyde Pullen P.G.S.B. W.M., Sims S.W., E. Dé Rhe Philipe J.W., R. W. Stewart P.G.D. Treasurer, and P.M.'s Le Maitre, F. Giles, Dudley Rolls, W. Jones, Snellgrove, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Messrs. A. Collard and B. F. Cramer were duly initiated into the Order. Bro. Wright was passed to the second degree. Bros. Hora-Edell and Holloway were raised to the third degree. A board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. E. Dé Rhe Philipe, P.G.D. Kent, the W.M. elect, was installed into the chair by Bro. Hyde Pullen, in a manner that was a pleasure to listen to. The W.M. then invested his officers:—Bro. Jefferson S.W., Alphonse as J.W., R. W. Stewart P.G.D. Treas. and acting Hon. Sec. Green S.D., Alphonse J.D., Smith I.G., Davidson D.C., and Gilchrist P.M. Tyler. Bro. R. W. Stewart proposed that a Past Master's jewel should be presented to Bro. Hyde Pullen I.P.M. for the valuable services rendered by him to the Lodge during his year of office, and the regard and esteem he is held in. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to one of those recherché banquets Bros. C. and A. Painter are so successful in supplying. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. The toast of the Grand Officers could not have found a more able and eloquent exponent than Bro. J. Philbrick P.G.D., Q.C. Bro. Hyde Pullen then said he had to propose a toast he was sure would be acceptable to the brethren, and that was the W.M., he had known him from infancy, and felt proud to have had the pleasure of installing him. Bro. Philipe was well calculated to fill the chair, he was not new to Freemasonry, holding, as he does, Provincial Grand Honours. (Cheers.) The W.M. said he was fully impressed with the kind words of Bro. Pullen, and so long as he had the co-operation of the officers of the Lodge and the brethren, it would lose none of its prestige. Bro. Cramer returned thanks for the toast of the Newly Initiated. Bro. F. Binckes P.G.S. returned thanks, in his usual finent manner, for the Visitors, who were Bros J. Philbrick P.G.D., Q.C., G. Cordwell P.G.R. Middlesex, Dr. Ramsay P.M. 259, H. King 72, W. H. Ransford 795, Fletcher 1216, W. R. Pullen 175, Snelgrove 12, Lawson 144, Heald 1365, Shand 1507 and H. M. Levy P.M. 188. The W.M. in proposing the Past Masters, mentioned their qualities. They required no eulogism on his part, so he would merely connect with the toast the name of Bro. Hyde Pullen, whom it was only to know to respect. The toast having been duly honoured, that of the Treasurer was given, also that of the Wardens and Officers, and the Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable evening. Bros. Snelgrove, Cramer and Heald contributed to the harmony.

Peace Lodge, No. 149, West Yorkshire.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Saturday, the 12th of February, at 6 o'clock, p.m., in the Masonic Rooms, Meltham. Present—Bros. Charles Rayner W.M., Minrod Farnshaw S.W., David Cairns J.W., C. H. Redfern P.M. Secretary, Daniel Wood P.M. Treasurer, H. W. Wrigley as S.D., John Ellis as J.D., Wm. Sugg I.G., Henry Buckley Tyler Past Masters Bros. Geo. Heywood, Thomas Allen Haigh P.P.G.D., Wm. Haigh, Wm. Myers, and several other brethren. The minutes of last Lodge meeting were read and confirmed, when the W.M. rose and said:—"Brethren: Having been placed in the position which I have now the honour of occupying in this Lodge, it falls to my lot, this evening, to have to discharge a very pleasant duty, and although I feel very conscious of my inability to do that justice to it which it so much deserves, yet I feel sure that you will all agree with me when I say that no brother could help but experience great pleasure and feel very proud of having the privilege of discharging such a duty. The duty to which I refer, brethren, is that of having, on behalf of the Lodge, to present to Bro C. H. Redfearn P.M. a Past Master's Jewel, as a token of esteem and regard for the long, faithful and valuable services he has rendered to the Lodge, and as a mark of the high estimation in which he is held by the brethren. You are all aware, from the minutes which have just been read and confirmed, that, at our last Lodge meeting, a resolution was passed to present him with this jewel, and I can assure you, brethren, that in the passing of that resolution a spontaneous unanimity was displayed such as is seldom to be met with anywhere; and I must also say that in making the proposition Bro. P.M. Wood, with his usual tact, very accurately gauged the feelings of the brethren on the subject, as did also Bro. P.M. Doctor Haigh, when he so promptly seconded the proposition. The jewel has now been purchased, and an inscription engraved upon it, which I will read to you:—'Presented by the Lodge of Peace, 149, to Bro. C. H. Redfearn P.M., for faithful services. February 1876.' That is the inscription, brethren, and here is the jewel, which I shall now have very great pleasure in presenting to Bro. Redfearn, if he will kindly step forward." Bro. P.M. Redfearn, then advanced to the pedestal, and the W.M., in a very impressive manner, addressed him as follows:—"Bro. P.M. Redfearn, by referring to the books, I find that you have now been a member of this Lodge for 18 years, you have been a P.M. of the Lodge 15 years, you have acted as Secretary of the Lodge 10 years. During the time that you have been a member of the Lodge you have acted as purveyor for a great number of years, in addition to performing your duties as Sec. I believe that at a very early period of your Masonic career you embraced the opportunity of making yourself thoroughly acquainted with the ceremonies; and I also believe that for the last ten or twelve years each succeeding new W.M. who has passed through this chair has been more or less indebted to you for the

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

WE are informed, by Bro. JAS. TERRY, Secretary, that it is the intention of the Committee to propose an increase in the annual allowance to the annuitants, viz.: from £36 to £45 for males, and from £28 to £32 for females, a step every member of the Craft will hail with intense satisfaction. We mentioned, last week, that ten additional widows would be placed on the roll of inmates.

Two comparatively trifling errors occurred in our list, published last week, of the Stewards and their several contributions to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. We hasten to correct them. In the one case Bro. Smithett is set down as of Lodge 180, whereas it should have been Lodge 58. In the other Bro. Lucking is set down as of Lodge 1000, whereas he is of Lodge 160.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

PARLIAMENT is gradually settling down to its work, several measures of importance having been introduced. Thus, in the House of Lords, on Friday last, the Lord Chancellor introduced a Bill having for object the establishment of a final Court of Appeal. The noble Lord's speech on the occasion was a very able and exhaustive one, and clearly set before the House the character of the proposed Court. After a few remarks from Lords Selborne and Denman, the latter of whom denounced the measure as destructive of the constitution of their Lordships' House, the Bill had a first reading. The sittings on Monday and Tuesday were very brief. On Thursday the Earl of Carnarvon described the proposed exchange with France of territory in the Gambia.

In the House of Commons, after the usual array of questions had been asked and answered, Mr. Sclater-Booth, on Friday, introduced a measure for the Valuation of Property, which was subsequently read a first time. On Monday Mr. Disraeli announced the composition of the new Royal Commission, to inquire into Her Majesty's engagements with other powers on the question of fugitive slaves. The House then went into Committee of Supply, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, after a lengthened exposition of the circumstances connected with the purchase of the Suez Canal Shares, called for the vote of a sum not exceeding four millions sterling. The Marquis of Hartington sought to have the motion postponed, but Mr. Disraeli, in spite of a further appeal from Mr. Gladstone and others, would only consent to an adjournment of the debate till that day week, and this was assented to by the House. On Tuesday leave was given to Mr. Hubbard to introduce a Bill explanatory of the law relating to crossed cheques, after which occurred the first division of the Session, on the second reading, moved by Mr. Rathbone, of the Municipal Officers' Superannuation Bill, which was carried by 101 to 94. On Wednesday, Mr. Beresford Hope moved the second reading of the Increase of the Episcopate Bill, the debate on which stands adjourned till some day in July. On Thursday a Bill to allow Her Majesty to add to her titles was introduced by Mr. Disraeli, and read a first time. The Merchant Shipping Bill passed its second reading.

There is little to record of the further progress of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in his Indian tour. He has visited Jeypore, and, by the latest advices, is enjoying a shooting excursion in Kumaon and the Nepaul Serai. The Royal party are advancing by easy stages towards Nepaul, and strike camp daily. On Tuesday the Prince and Lord Aylesford each shot a fine bear. It is gratifying to hear that all are in excellent health, and still more gratifying to know that His Royal Highness, no long time hence, will be back again among us. The Bill for adding to the titles of the Queen, which is the first "outcome" of the grand reception the Prince has met with in India, is now before the public, and if, as we doubt not, it passes the two Houses, Her Majesty, we presume, will henceforth be known as Empress of India as well as Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, &c., &c.

His Grace the Duke of Abercorn was present at the Lord Mayor of Dublin's banquet, and took that opportunity of congratulating the assembled company on the manifest improvement in Irish affairs which had occurred of late. Among other matters he noticed as subject matter for congratulation was the diminution of emigration. He also announced that it was in contemplation by the Government to establish a museum of art and science in Dublin similar to that now existing in Edinburgh. His Grace is nothing if not genial, and the whole tenour of his speech was marked by the most perfect geniality. The sovereign is certainly fortunate who can point to so admirable a representative of her rule as is our respected brother the M.W.G.M. of Grand Lodge, Ireland.

On Wednesday next the Oxford Masons will hold high festival. On that day, His Royal Highness Prince Leopold will be installed Provincial Grand Master of Oxford. This will no doubt materially strengthen the position of the Craft in that province, and our Oxford brethren are to be congratulated on having so illustrious a personage for their chief. The event will be fully chronicled in these columns next week, and we doubt not the record will be a highly interesting one.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh presided, on Wednesday evening, at the annual dinner, held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, of the friends and supporters of the Warehousemen and Clerks' Schools. The Lord Mayor, the Sheriffs, and other notabilities were present, and an agreeable evening was spent. The usual loyal toasts were given and responded to very heartily, that of Prosperity to the Institution being specially honoured. Towards the close of the entertainment, a subscription list was announced, amounting to the very handsome sum of 2,700 guineas.

The annual dinner, held the same evening, at the Westminster Palace Hotel, of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, was presided over by Mr. Sampson Lloyd, M.P., and among the guests were the Marquis of Salisbury, Secretary of State for India, Lord Tenterden, General Schenk, the United States' Minister, and a number of other influential gentlemen. The Marquis of Salisbury replied to the toast of Her Majesty's Ministers, eschewing party politics, of course, but speaking at some length on the importance of our commercial interests in India, and expressing equally, of course, a feeling of satisfaction at the purchase of the Suez Canal shares.

Several elections for vacant seats in Parliament have recently taken place. The most important being that for Manchester in the room of our late Bro. Callender, who is succeeded by Mr. Jacob Bright, a staunch adherent of the Liberal party. Other elections are still pending. Mr. Hurst, lately returned, after a sharp contest, for Horsham, in place of Sir S. Fitzgerald, has been unseated on a petition by Mr. Justice Quain, so that a second contest looms in the near future.

The ex-judge, Sir John Coleridge, to whose illness we alluded in our last issue, died before the week was out, at his residence, Heath Court, Ottery St. Mary, Devon, at the ripe age of eighty-five. The learned judge was a nephew of the celebrated poet, Samuel Tayler Coleridge, and several members of the same family enjoyed more or less literary reputation. He was born at Tiverton, in 1790, and was educated at Eton, which he left for Oxford, where he carried off the Chancellor's prizes, for Latin verse, and for the English and Latin essays, and took first-class Classical honours. He was called to the bar in 1819, became Recorder of Exeter and a Serjeant-at-law in 1832, and was raised to the Bench 1835. On his retirement, in 1858, he was made a member of Her Majesty's Privy Council. For a short time Sir John Coleridge was Editor of the Quarterly, and author of "Recollections of the Poet Keble." He also brought out an edition of Blackstone's Commentaries, in 1825. One of his sons is Lord Coleridge, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and one of his daughters is married to the present Bishop of Oxford.

On Wednesday Mr. Gladstone was presented with the freedom of the Turners' Company. The Master of the Company, Mr. Edward Caffin, presided, and Mr. Jones, in obedience to the chair, addressed Mr. Gladstone in a very flattering speech, after which the ceremony of induction was gone through with the usual formalities. The Right Hon. gentleman expressed his thanks for the honour conferred upon him that day, in a long and very genial speech, which was frequently interrupted by loud and hearty applause. A few words from the Lord Mayor, who, with the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Lady Pollock, and several other ladies, was present, and sundry complimentary votes brought the proceedings to a close.

As the year gets older, a great amount of activity is noticeable in the sporting world. At Oxford and Cambridge the crews are working hard, and will, in a short time, enter on a strict course of training. There were a number of athletic contests at the Agricultural Hall on Saturday and Monday. Then there has been the grand coursing event of the year (contest for the Waterloo Cup), the result of which we are unable to give. We note besides a somewhat warm discussion is going on as to the merits or demerits of football, owing to a player having died from injuries received when playing the Rugby Union game. We are the last people in the world to encourage games of violence, but one fatal accident no more justifies the abuse so freely lavished on this popular game than a single death in a railway accident would justify wholesale abuse of railway travelling. Athletic exercise is an essential part of a man's early training, and the more—in reason of course—we have of it the healthier, both in mind and body, are we likely to be. Athleticism may be carried too far, as, on the other hand, it may be carried not far enough. The question is not one of excess or defect, but whether games in which nasty accidents occasionally, but very rarely, occur, should be encouraged. Anything like brutal violence in football or any sport must be sternly put down, but our English youth will have to be made of different stuff ere they give up a healthy game because of a solitary fatal accident. The kind of athletic feats we feel most inclined to discourage are of the class to which belong the recent so-called International Walking Matches, where men back themselves to accomplish feats which they are never likely to be called upon to repeat in their every day life. What good end does it serve that Weston can walk his 110 or 115 miles in twenty-four hours? He shows, of course, that he has great powers of endurance, and no doubt he makes a comfortable penny out of the enthusiasm of his supporters, but will he ever be called upon to put his walking powers to such a test as this? These very big feats are well enough once in the way, but again and again repeated, they become a nuisance, and may, moreover, be harmful by inducing men to over-exert themselves.

The charge of fraudulent bankruptcy brought against a bootmaker of Hackney Road, has resulted in the committal for trial of the defendant. The case for the prosecution of the Eupion Gas Company is concluded. Council have addressed the jury in defence of their respective clients. The Lord Chief Justice has concluded his summing up, and the verdict which the jury have recorded is that of guilty against certain of the defendants, two being acquitted. We wish these charges and prosecutions were a less conspicuous feature of the age, and that people thought a little more of the old maxim about honesty being the best policy.

A deputation from the London Trades' Council, accompanied by Mr. Charles Lamport, F.R.S., recently waited on the Duke of Richmond and Gordon on the subject of the high price of meat. Mr. Odger, who was one of the deputation, was quite right in saying that what cost sixpence five-and-twenty years ago, costs a shilling now. This is not, perhaps, to be wondered at, if we bear in mind how luxurious the mechanic and artisan classes have become, and how wasteful they are. A working man now-a-days will scorn to eat what satisfied his father, and what many a poor clerk is only too glad to put up with. Nor in quantity either is he content with such rations as his father throve upon. Then his wife, if he have one, has absolutely no knowledge of cookery, and uses twice as much as is necessary. Of course, in the eyes of this class of people it is thought mean to be careful. Our readers possibly remember Punch's butler of some years since, who before accepting a new situation was anxious to know what "wines" were allowed in the kitchen. If our memory fail not, the butler declined the service because only port and sherry—which were good enough for the parson—were allowed. People are so mighty grand now-a-days that people of plain habits, who look with any degree of affection on the simplicity of by-gone days, are held in contempt. But to return to our deputation. The President of the Council pointed out that the restrictions on the movement of cattle were absolutely necessary, if we did not wish our herds destroyed, and that to whatever cause the present high prices were attributable, a falling off in the number of beasts imported from foreign countries was not one of them. The fact is, if people ate less meat food they would be better in health, and in pocket, too. Again, what the Duke said about prices in Smithfield market is quite true. A man may buy there for eightpence or ninepence a pound what the retail butcher sells at a shilling or fourteen-pence. Poor gentlefolks, who struggle through life uncomplainingly, deserve our sympathy far more than the unthrifty working classes.

From abroad there is, as regards one country, some satisfactory news to record. The Spanish armies under Quesada and other Alphonsist Generals have gained some very substantial successes, and there is, therefore, a better prospect of this miserable contest being brought to an end. We shall not, of course, cry jubilantly till we are well out of the wood, but we cannot restrain our feelings of exultation that the fair provinces of Spain, which have been so long the theatre of war, seemly likely to enjoy once again the blessings of peace. In France the elections still exercise the public mind. In Germany Prince Bismarck appears to be having it out with the press. From Turkey we hear the Bosnian insurgents have issued a manifesto against Count Andrassy's Note. They refuse to lay down their arms, and appeal to the justice of Europe. In such case the best course for Europe to pursue will be to aid the Porte in bringing the latter's unruly subjects to their senses. The reforms which have been submitted for the acceptance of the Sultan, with the approval of all the Great Powers, and accepted by His Majesty without reserve, and without sacrifice of dignity on his part, are sufficient to meet the legitimate demands of the insurgents, and we shall rejoice mightily if Europe gives these troublesome people to understand that peace is to be disturbed no longer. In the United States the centennial celebration of Independence is the all-absorbing feature of the day, and in Masonry especially there will be one on a very grand scale. The Grand Commandery have invited Knights Templar from all countries, and it is anticipated that something like fifteen thousand of them will be present. From Egypt we hear that Mr. Cave's departure has been postponed, and further, that a Burmese Embassy has reached Suez on its way to Europe. There is, too, a rumour that the Empress of Austria will pay an early visit to this country to see her sister, the Ex-Queen of Naples, at present residing here with her husband.

The Grand Lodge of Benevolence held its usual monthly meeting at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, on Wednesday, the 16th inst.; there was a very numerous attendance of the brethren, owing no doubt to the many distressing cases brought under the notice of the Board. Bro. J. Clabon, the President, occupied the chair, and the Vice chairs were filled by Bros. J. Nunn P.G.S. and J. Brett P.G.P. Grants to the amount of £130, voted at the previous meeting, were confirmed, and 29 new cases were relieved to the amount of £700. The following brethren were present: Bros. R. J. Spiers, R. W. Stewart, C. A. Cottebrune, John Boyd, T. Cubitt, J. Wright, E. P. Albert, Wilcox, C. Harcourt, J. Smith, B. Swallow, J. M. Stedwell, C. Hogard, W. Howe, S. May, Poynter, T. J. Sabine, Peter Matthews, H. Massey, W. H. Myers, F. Binckes, Bingemann, H. Marsh, Barnard, R. Marsh, G. Bolton, Koch, Taylor, W. H. Lee, Holtham, Larlham, J. Hervey, H. G. Buss, Pendlebury, H. M. Levy, G. Everett, W. Mann, H. Potter, Moore, Andrews, L. J. Drew, W. H. Stephens, C. B. Payne, &c.

Loyalty and Charity Lodge, No. 1584, will be consecrated, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge, this day, Saturday, at 4 o'clock, by Bro. James Terry P.G.D.C. Herts and P.Z.

The Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 196, which has been in abeyance for some months, will be reasscitated on Saturday, 26th inst., at Bro. Fysch's, the Jolly Farmers, Southgate Road, corner of Church Road, Islington, when Bro. James Terry, P.G.D.C. Herts, will rehearse the consecration and installation ceremonies, at seven o'clock. Brethren to appear in Masonic clothing. C. K. Killick, Hon. Secretary pro tem.

About 300 ladies and gentlemen assembled on Thursday evening, the 10th instant, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, to celebrate the 15th Annual Ball in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the St. James's Union Lodge, No. 180. Dancing commenced shortly after nine, to the strains of Coote and Tinney's band, conducted by Bro. Coote P.M., &c., and was kept up with unflagging spirit till nearly five o'clock a.m., when the company dispersed after assisting at a most enjoyable réunion. The pleasures of the evening were very much enhanced by the untiring efforts of Bro. Pillin J.W., the Hon. Secretary, to whom a great part of the success may be ascribed. We may express a hope that the object for which this Ball was held may be benefited by this successful gathering.

Royal Arch Companions will no doubt be gratified to learn that a Chapter of Improvement is about to be formed, under dispensation from the new Clapton Chapter. A preliminary meeting was held on Wednesday, 16th, at the White Hart Hotel, under the presidency of Comp. John Ramsey P.Z., at which the code of Bye-laws were arranged. The committee will meet again on Wednesday next, at 7 o'clock, to sign petition and complete arrangements.

It is always a pleasure to us to announce that some eminent brother is about to be presented with a testimonial of his worth. Bro. Spiers, who for the past twenty years has held the important rank of Deputy Provincial G.M. in the Province of Oxford will, on Wednesday next, be thus honoured by the brethren over whom he presided in that capacity so long and so meritoriously. Bro. Spiers resigned his office early last year, and in May an Honorary Committee was constituted, with Bro. Æ. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, as its president, and several influential members of the Oxford and other Provinces as members, among them Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M., the Marquis of Hamilton S.G.W., the Earl of Jersey P.G.W., the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot P.G.M. Staffordshire, Earl Percy P.G.M. Northumberland, Lord Holmesdale P.G.M. Kent, Lord Balfour of Burleigh P.S.G.W., the Earl of Beetive P.G.M. Cumberland, Sir M. Hicks Beach, Bart. P.S.G.W., W. W. B. Beach P.G.M. Hants, T. F. Halsey, P.G.M. Herts, Lieut.-Col. A. W. Adair P.P.G.M. Somerset, Maxwell Close P.G.M. Burmagh, T. Mansel Talbot P.G.M. South Wales, and others. Bro. Walter Thompson, W.M. 340, is the Honorary Secretary. There is also a local committee at Oxford, over which Bro. Reginald Bird, D.P.G.M. Oxon, presides, the Treasurer being Bro. Thomas Randall, Prov. G. Treasurer. The list of the contributors is a very long one, and includes the names of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, the Earl of Jersey, Lord Clifton, and very many of those above named as on the Committee. We heartily congratulate Bro. Spiers on the honour in store for him. May he live long to enjoy this substantial recognition of a long and faithful service!

instruction you were enabled to give them in the ceremonies, and for your advice and guidance in the conducting of the practical business of the Lodge. The officers of a lower degree have also been much indebted to you for the instruction they have received from you. Your usefulness to the Lodge has not ended here, but, as all the brethren very well know, whenever any work has had to be done for the Lodge, no matter of what kind, you have always been found ready to put your shoulder to the wheel and to work for the good of the Lodge with a zeal which has been altogether unsurpassable. It is on account of these great and valuable services, which you have so freely rendered to the Lodge, that the brethren have agreed to present you with this jewel, and I, in their name, have now the pleasure of handing it to you. I do so with the fullest confidence that it will be highly prized by you; that it will be treasured up by your family as an heir-loom; not for its intrinsic value, but for the warm and kind feelings of the brethren of this Lodge, which it will ever have the effect of calling to your remembrance, and when you are gone hence and are no more; when your spirit has ascended to that magnificent mansion above, not made with hands, it will no doubt be handed down to your children, and to your children's children for many generations to come, who, in their turn, will look upon it with feelings of satisfaction and pride at the thought of having had an ancestor in the olden times who was held in such high estimation among the Masonic brethren with whom it was his lot to associate." The W.M. (then shaking hands with him) said, in a very fervent manner, "Bro. P.M. Redfearn, allow me to congratulate] you, and may the Great Architect of the Universe give you a long and a happy life to wear the jewel which has now been presented to you by the brethren of this Lodge." Bro. P.M. Redfearn, in a very feeling manner, then thanked the W.M. for the very flattering terms in which he had spoken of him, and of what he had done for the Lodge; he also thanked the brethren for their very handsome present, assuring them that the jewel would be highly prized by him as long as he lived. It had always been his earnest desire to do all that he possibly could for the benefit of the old Lodge of Peace, and he trusted that he should always merit a continuance of their good wishes. The Secretary then read a communication from the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, appealing to the brethren for their usual annual subscriptions to that Institution, which was liberally responded to, and some additions made to the list of subscribers. The Lodge was then closed, and supper was served in the Lodge room.

Temple Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 173.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Green Dragon, Stepney, on Monday, the 14th inst. There were present—Bros. Lacy W.M., Geo. Verry S.W., E. Gottheil J.W., Mortlock I.P.M. and Treas., Hood Sec., the rest of the officers, and a considerable number of brethren. Although only two years old, the Lodge numbers 45 subscribing members. The Visitors were—Bros. Binckes G.S., J. Terry, Southwark Lodge, Henley, Thistle, Simonds, St. Mark's, J. Smith, St. Colum's, Geo. Yaxley Macdonald, and R. Berridge, W.M. Macdonald. In the course of the evening Bros. S. H. Rawley P.M. 174, John Newton P.M. 174, E. J. Moore P.M. 174, R. C. Davies 1278, and Hicks were regularly advanced to this degree. Bro. Lacy and the rest of the officers then vacated their positions, when Bro. Mortlock P.M. assumed the chair, appointed two Grand Officers as temporary Wardens, and proceeded to instal Bro. Geo. Verry W.M. for the year. The ceremony was performed with that steady and quiet deliberation, pleasant to the ear and clear to the understanding, for which that brother's working is famous. Bro. Verry then appointed his officers as follow:—E. Gottheil S.W., J. Hood J.W., T. Mortlock P.M. Treas., Sturtivant Sec., Marsh M.O., Snow S.O., Mole J.O., Cundick S.D., Wallington J.D., Geo. Hollington I.G., N. Glucksteln D.C., John Heath Ross W.S., Grant Tyler. Bro. Verry, presenting the W.M. with a P.M.'s jewel, observed that it is not an idle compliment which has been engraved on the reverse of the jewel, but one richly deserved by Bro. Lacy. He hoped Bro. Lacy would live for many years to wear this jewel, and give his services to the Lodge. Bro. Lacy replied in suitable terms, after which a vote of thanks to Bro. Mortlock, for the excellent manner in which he performed the installation, was unanimously carried. The Lodge business being concluded, a banquet followed, after which the loyal and Mark Masonic toasts were proceeded with. Responding to the one of the Grand Officers, Bro. Binckes G.S. said: "I will lose no time in making a few observations, and they shall be brief. I do so with mingled feelings of pleasure and pain. You are all aware of the loss we have sustained in the death of our Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Romaine Callender. Having been closely associated with him during many years, I can speak of his kindly disposition, the great services he has rendered, and the liberal and material support we have received at his hands; and in his public career, outside Freemasonry, he was one who could never say nay to any request, and always ready at the call of duty. But I will not now on this festive occasion indulge in any sentimentality, for it is with us as it is with States and Nations—'Le roi est mort, vive le roi.' We deeply deplore our loss, and shed a tear of sympathy over the grave of the departed friend; but, on the other hand, we have cause to rejoice in having acquired the services of a nobleman so highly esteemed as Lord Skelmersdale to fill the vacant post. The readiness with which the successor was secured shows the exhaustless vitality of this degree, and proves the wisdom of Earl Carnarvon when he said that no society or institution should ever place entire dependence upon one individual alone, but there should always be some one ready whose practical training and general abilities will enable him to supply the place whenever emergency may arise. I am thankful, and, with proud and heartfelt enthusiasm, say, that the studious and thoughtful now take the greatest interest in Mark Masonry, which, I am sure, they must find placed on a sound and sure basis; and I have, therefore, every confidence that we shall always find men able, ready, and willing to undertake any duty, and to occupy any position which may be entrusted to them. I assure you, in the distribution of Grand Lodge offices, as far as is practicable, distinction is conferred upon merit alone. Every name is submitted to the Grand Master, and the passport to his favour is zeal, energy, and ability, and honour is done to those who have borne the heat and burden of the day. This is the spirit in which our affairs have been conducted for the last 15 or 16 years, and all things done straightforward, without fear, favour, or affection, and unbiassed by any extraneous influences. Hence our success. May that flourishing condition remain; and, repeating the sentiments of Past Master Lacy, may we all be spared to meet on similar occasions for many years to come." Bro. Terry, responding, said: "This toast to the Masonic Charities is, of course, more intimately connected with Craft Masonry; but we are under great obligations to the Mark Grand Lodge, and, indeed, to the members of this degree generally, for their very liberal and generous support. I will not dilate largely upon the subject, as Bro. Binckes is here, and we three Secretaries have introduced a wholesome rule, namely, whenever occasion arises, that brother should be allowed to plead for his Institution whose anniversary takes place immediately following the meeting of any Lodge at which they happen to be present. You have all heard of the grand and glorious result of the last Festival in connection with the Benevolent Institution, and I take this opportunity of expressing my sincere and heartfelt thanks for the great support with which the Mark and other Lodges have seconded my humble efforts. But, brethren, we require all the help we can possibly obtain when we reflect that there are at the present time 46 candidates for the Girls' School, 59 for the Boys', and 38 for the Aged. I need not tell you that the interests of the Boys' School is in excellent hands. In spite of the false and malicious reports that have been spread, the calumnies, abuse, and dirty accusations which have been heaped upon our highly esteemed Bro. Binckes, he has been enabled successfully to refute them. I am sure you have never lost faith in him, and will support him with redoubled confidence." Bro. Binckes appealed on behalf of the boys with his well-known energy and apt allusions, and persisted in the statement that all the world are in favour of "Our Boys," which, while other pieces at different theatres have a short or precarious existence, "Our Boys" has already had a run for 350 nights. Respecting the Mark Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund, he was happy to state that, by means of the little annual gatherings, consisting of about 150 individuals, a sum of £800 had been invested in Canadian Guaranteed stock, and a sum of £200 to the general fund. He wished them to understand that a subscription of £5, or a collection of £10, entitles a brother to wear the Mark Charity jewel, which is presented, free of expense, by the Grand Master in open Grand Lodge. Bro. T. Mortlock P.M. announced his intention of representing this Lodge at the next anniversary. Several excellent songs were sung, by Bros. Davis, Henley, and Wallington, and a whistling duet, extremely well performed, by Bros. Mortlock and Henley, was much applauded by the brethren.

Domatic Lodge, No. 177.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Bros. Treadwell W.M., J. Willing jun. S.W., Palmer J.W., J. Smith P.G.P. Treas., Buscall S.D., G. Clark J.D., White I.G., Spink D.C., and P.M.'s G. Everett I.P.M., Time, Foulger, J. Brett P.G.P., and Walford. Bros. Harris, Pinkey, Swallow, Norris, Richard, Montague, Forcroft, Beard, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Jennings and Friend were raised to the third degree; Bros. Gwynn, Cook and J. Abrams were passed to the second degree, and Messrs. J. P. Killingback, Moss, Jewell and J. Jennings were initiated. Bro. J. R. Foulger P.M. proposed that the initiation fee be increased to £10 10s, which was carried unanimously, it was also decided that no brother be a country member unless he resides ten miles from the Lodge. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren, nearly a hundred in number, adjourned to a very excellent banquet, where the usual loyal toasts were given and harmony prevailed. The visitors were Bros. H. Massey, Hollis, Mently, Rowe, Craikshank, Atkins, Harper, Phillips P.G.P. and Graham.

St. James's Union Lodge, No. 180.—The first meeting of this Lodge since the installation took place on Tuesday, the 8th ult., when the W.M. being on the Continent, the chair was occupied by Bro. Bubb P.M. Treas., the rest of the officers being in their places, viz.: Bros. W. C. Parsons I.P.M., A. Annett S.W., L. B. Pillin J.W., H. A. Stacey P.M. Hon. Sec., S. Smith S.D., E. S. Harrison J.D., E. Farwig I.G., and Stollard W.S., also Bros. Sconce P.M., Herf P.M., and several other brethren. A ballot was taken for a gentleman to be initiated into the Order, and was unanimous in his favour, but he did not arrive in time to be shown the light of Freemasonry. Bro. Heathcote was passed to the second degree. Two members of the Lodge were relieved from the Benevolent Fund, and there being no other business the Lodge was closed and adjourned to the second Tuesday in March.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—The anniversary of this Lodge was celebrated at Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C., on Wednesday, the 16th inst. A considerable number of brethren attended, no doubt induced by the announcement that the ceremonies of consecration and installation would be rehearsed by those two celebrated Masons, Bros. Terry and Constable. It would be superfluous to enter into a detailed description of the excellence which distinguished their performance, the names of the two brethren being sufficient to indicate the manner in which their respective duties were conducted. The completeness of the effect was due, in great measure, to Bro. Miller P.M., to whom the musical part had been entrusted. Bro. Turnbull, the W.M. of the Addiscombe Lodge, was installed, and he, with appropriate addresses to each, appointed his officers, namely—D. Posener S.W., Churchward J.W., J. Constable

Treas., Pitt Sec., Hollands S.D., Croaker J.D., Ockenden I.G. A vote of thanks to Bros. Terry, Constable, and Müller ended the proceedings. The brethren having partaken of refreshment, at which Bro. E. Gottheil P.M. and Preceptor presided, the usual toasts were given and responded to, during which Bros. F. Binckes and Raynham Stewart unexpectedly entered; they were received with loud acclamations of pleasure. Bro. Terry, in his response, pointed out the necessity of steady support to the Benevolent Institution, and declared that if every brother were to subscribe five shillings a year a greater number of applicants might reap the benefit of the annuities, which, at the same time, could be considerably augmented. He was sure so small a sum can easily be spared, and he thought should willingly be subscribed by every individual. Bro. Constable, replying to the toast, "Prosperity to the Confidence Lodge of Instruction," said that, were he possessed of the power of a Demosthenes, he could not more fully convey to the brethren his sentiments of gratitude than is conveyed by the three simple words 'I thank you.' The duties he had had the honour to perform that evening, however onerous, were nothing compared to the trouble our Preceptor has taken, in times gone by, to perfect him in the ritual. It is to him the thanks are due, for it is to him he was indebted for the Masonic knowledge he possesses. Bro. Turquand next proposed the health of the Preceptor, whom he characterised as genial of temperament, and patient in his mode of instruction. Bro. Gottheil expressed his sincere thanks, and spoke of the many years he has been connected with the Lodge, first as Secretary, and then as Preceptor, in succession to Bro. F. Theodore Foulger. He felt still a considerable amount of nerve and activity in his constitution, and, while that is the case, the Lodge may rest assured of his services. With "The Press" Bro. W. W. Morgan's name was coupled, who said that Bro. Gottheil inadvertently represented him as the proprietor, instead of the publisher, of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. The proprietary body is the Craft, and each one of you may participate in the proprietorship by taking a single share. The paper has been established upon certain fixed principles, which should faithfully mirror the opinions, sentiments, and aspirations of the Craft. We have hitherto strictly adhered to our programme, and met with considerable encouragement from brethren in all parts of this country and abroad. While that support is continued, it will demonstrate the necessary existence of the paper, and, when it is withdrawn, its publication will be discontinued, as a matter of course. The names of Bros. Binckes and R. Stewart were exceedingly well received. Bro. Binckes said:—"While thanking you for your kind expressions, it appears to me that I ought not to occupy your time by any remarks of mine, as I feel like an intruder, and as one who had no business to be here. But, peeping in at the door, I saw ranged around this board so many well-known faces, that I could not resist the temptation to enter and exchange greeting. The W.M. has just stated that the toast to the prosperity of the Charities had already been given, and I am sure the brother on my immediate right (Bro. Terry) has ably responded to that. I had not intended to say more than five words. But it is our duty, as Secretaries to the Institutions, to appeal to you whenever opportunity occurs, for we exist only by your suffrages and support; we cannot appeal to the outer world; indeed, they would not listen to us. You have heard it announced that for the Benevolent Institution £9,184 have been collected. Now there is amongst the Secretaries a friendly rivalry, and when, at the last Festival, this large amount was announced, I assure you I felt glad, but the first thought that passed through my mind was, I must beat that, but how? As to the means, I have not even yet arrived at anything like a clear decision. You have just heard Bro. Morgan state that you might all become part proprietors in the FREEMASONS' CHRONICLE by taking a single share. Well, in the same way I wish you to become part proprietors of our Institutions, by your annual subscriptions. This evening, at the Board of Benevolence, a brother presented himself as an applicant for relief, who, but a short time since, moved in the highest circles, but, through misadventure in business and a variety of unforeseen and unfortunate circumstances, he became ruined or, in vulgar phrase, failed for £500,000. This brother, in his days of prosperity, did literally nothing to benefit our charities, yet in adversity he has immediate recourse to the Benevolent Fund. Although neglectful of his duties—for we do not like to enquire too minutely into what a man ought to have done and did not do,—a liberal amount was voted to him. But how much pleasanter it would have been for him to present himself before that Board with the consciousness of having contributed towards the relief of others when it was in his power. Now brethren, think of that, do all you can, for the demands upon our Charities vastly exceed the means at command. Bro. R. Stewart, as a member of all the Charities' Committees, and in the absence of Bro. Little, echoed the remarks of the last speaker, and pointed out the necessity of continued efforts on behalf of the Institution. Bros. Constable and Churchward contributed to the harmony of the evening by some excellent songs, and Bro. Ockenden recited, with considerable talent and effect. A very pleasant and delightful evening then came to a close. Bro. Preceptor will preside at the next meeting, when he proposes to rehearse the first and third degrees.

Lodge of Friendship, No. 206.—This Lodge met at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street, on Thursday, 10th instant, Bro. R. Ramsey, the newly-installed W.M., occupied the chair. Bros. Taylor S.W., Stephens J.W., W. Ramsey Treas., Squirrell S.D., Golophin J.D., Steel I.G., John Ramsey P.M. Sec., and a fair muster of Past Masters, members, and visitors. The only work on the summons was the initiation of Mr. Frederick W. Passees, and he having been duly balloted for and prepared, the young W.M. made his first essay, and performed the ceremony in a perfectly correct, impressive and masterly manner, to the great satisfaction of all present, and the immense delight of his relative and Preceptor, Bro. John Ramsey. The other offices were well sustained, and nothing could excel the part of J.D., by Bro. Squirrell (also his first candidate). Bro. Frances expressed himself highly pleased and gratified with his reception into Freemasonry. After notices of motion, in accordance with the bye-laws, for sums of money to be given to the Masonic Charities, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to pay homage to the good things of life, and passed an harmonious evening.

Hill, the newly appointed Organist, in the course of the evening showed the capabilities of the instrument. The R.W.M., in his careful and elaborate style, then initiated three candidates, Messrs. Thos. McGowan, Jas. Fullerton and Wm. Golden. The Lodge was then opened in the 3rd degree, and Bro. G. W. Wheeler, at the request of the Master, raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason, Bros. Wm. Scott, Wm. Robertson, Wm. McDonald and Chas. Greer.

A cordial vote of thanks was given to the J.W. for the gift of an instrument that was much required in the Lodge. Mr. J. McCallum having been proposed and unanimously accepted, was then initiated by the R.W.M., and as it was his first time of working, it augurs well for his efficiency in that office. The Lodge was then raised to the third degree, and Bro. J. Fergurson I.P.M., Dalmuir, raised a brother to the sublime degree in the solemn but peculiar style known as the Vale of Seven working, Bro. Morgan R.W.M. 219 kindly acting as the S.D. for him. The Lodge was then closed and the Visitors returned to Glasgow.

Sons, Harwitz, Syer, Brail, Galleweski, and Cusel were raised to the third degree, and Mr. E. Armand was initiated. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Cafe Royal, Regent-street, were they sat down to a very excellent supper, provided by Bro. D. Nicolls. The usual toasts were given. The visitors were Bros. J. W. Speth 183, L. Blum, N. Blum, C. Hogard P.M. 1017.

Ellis received an unanimous ballot, and was duly initiated by the W.M. Afterwards, on behalf of the members, the W.M., in a feeling and able address, presented a magnificent album to Bro. Dr. Clifton I.P.M., containing portraits of every brother in the Lodge, as a mark of their appreciation of his services when W.M. 1874-5. Bro. Clifton expressed his heartfelt thanks in a manly reply, and remarked that nothing the brethren could have presented would be more highly valued than this album, containing their portraits, especially as it was expected, and, he thought, undeserved. He would never forget the happy year he spent in presiding over the Commercial Lodge. This cordial and successful meeting ended at eleven o'clock, with the National Anthem.

Bon Accord Lodge of Mark Masters.—This Lodge met at 2 Red Lion-square, on Thursday, the 17th inst. Bro. John Perry Godfrey, of No. 1261, was advanced and congratulated, the ceremony being ably conducted by W. Bro. Major George Barlow, 33°, R.W. Bro. Samuel Rawson, P.D.G.M. of China, who was one of the founders of the Lodge, nearly thirty years ago, was unanimously re-elected a member, the ballot being declared with acclamation. The revision of new Bye-laws was continued and completed. W. Bro. Lieutenant Colonel H. Somerville Burney honoured the Lodge with his presence as a visitor. The brethren adjourned to banquet at 7 Vernon-place.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—The Companions met at the Jamaica Coffee House, St Michael's-alley, Cornhill, on Tuesday, 16th February. Present—G. Newman M.E.Z., E. S. Norris J., W. V. Ratcliffe H., J. Boyd Treas., T. W. White and J. Ramsey Scribes E., J. Allsopp S.N., J. Wyer P.S.; J. Smith, W. Stephens, G. K. Lemann, W. W. Morgan, J. H. Leggott. The ceremony of Exaltation was rehearsed. Comp. Ramsey worked the 1st and 2nd clauses of the 1st Section, Comp. John Boyd most ably dictating the answers. The following were elected officers for the next fortnight—Comps. Norris Z., Stephens J., Wyer H., Smith Scribe E., C. R. Miles P.S. On Tuesday, the 29th inst., after the usual business, it is proposed to rehearse the ceremony of Installation of the Principals, and we commend the attention of qualified Companions who may desire to be present to this announcement.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—The regular meeting of the above was held on Friday, the 11th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, King's Cross. Present—Bros. Michael W.M., H. B. Fowler S.W., Kingham J.W., C. Scales S.D., W. Read J.D., Fenner I.G., W. M. Stiles Secretary, and Rapkin, Reepe, Little, W. A. Fowler, Rogers, Side, Shand, Ormiston and Tottenborn. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, W. A. Fowler acting as candidate, and the ceremony of initiation followed, Bro. Reepe candidate. The first and second sections of the first lecture were worked by the brethren, under the direction of Bro. Side, in a very perfect manner. Bros. Rogers and Fowler were elected joining members, and Bro. Side was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

United Military Lodge, No. 1536.—How many victories have been lost because subordinates considered the orders of their superiors unreasonable or unwise? "Sire," said the Marshal to Napoleon, "it is impossible to lead the troops by the route you have pointed out." "Let me see the order," said Napoleon. He took it, read it, returned it, and only said: "That is your order; execute it." He did execute it, and the army of Napoleon was soon bearing the victorious eagles of France across the plains of Lombardy. Equally so might the brethren have thought it would be impossible for them to find the New Masonic Hall, Plumstead, on the night of Friday, the 11th inst., in one of the densest and most disagreeable fogs which has visited us for many a day. Pressantibus, pressantibus; and at the assembly, 8 p.m., there were but few vacant chairs in this splendid hall. Bro. F. G. Fournall W.M. opened the Lodge, assisted by Bros. W. A. Weston S.W., G. Spinks J.W., R. Croisdale I.P.M., T. Cooper Secretary, W. Murphy Treasurer, H. G. Picken S.D., A. Shaw J.D., R. J. Lapham I.G., J. McCaffery D.C., J. Lockland Tyler, and Capt. C. Phillips P.M., R. McClellan, E. G. Latham, W. Land, R. Softley, R. Hill, E. McNight, H. Harding, T. Tims, S. Morris, Y. Sealy, J. Gibson, J. Picking, Webb, J. Warren, J. White, Williams, G. Smith, H. Oakley, D. Deeves, J. Ashworth, M. Tormay, B. Thompson, P. Sharpe, B. Rovell, M. Young, J. P. Donnelly, G. Williams, H. Carlin, A. Masterson, and others. Amongst the Visitors were Bros. G. P. Davies P.M. 13, T. Hosgood 13, C. Hosgood P.M. 192, Lieut. Ward W.M. 700, T. Butt S.W. 700, T. Hutson 13, O. Hutson 13, T. Butt 700, D. C. Capon 913, J. Coombes 182, C. Morris 1331, E. Soulley 1076, A. Cloake 13, F. Archer 13, L. Cocke 700, Wray 1257, W. Harris 913, C. Jolly 913, and J. Brown P.M. 946. After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. A. Brock as a joining member; such being in his favour, he was duly admitted. C. Webb and J. Young were then presented for advancement, and were accordingly questioned by the W.M. as to their proficiency in the science; the same being satisfactory, they were prepared and introduced, and passed to the degree of F.C., in a very able manner, by the W.M. This being a military Lodge, the mode of advancing from W. to E. was perfection. Likewise a word is due to the talented Organist for the expressive rendering of Rossini's "Cujus Animam." There were two gentlemen proposed for initiation, and the W.M. brought the case of a widow of a deceased brother of Lodge 13 to the notice of the brethren, and we are pleased to say he was well supported. There being no other business before the Lodge, it was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshments. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, honoured, and responded to. Bros. Brown, Harris, Jolly, and C. Hosgood responded on behalf of the Visitors. We may here state that this Lodge was consecrated on the 25th June 1875, and now numbers upwards of 105 members, and meets on the second Friday of every month at the Masonic Hall, adjoining the Sir Robert Peel Tavern, Crescent-road, Plumstead, where the W.M., his officers, and brethren generally vie with each other to carry out the hospitality for which the United Military Lodge is proverbial. Esto perpetua.

Alexandra Palace Lodge, No. 1541.—An emergency meeting took place at the Alexandra Palace, on Saturday, the 12th inst. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the chair was occupied by Bro. G. Kelly King, who was supported by Bro. Dyte S.W., Palmer J.W., E. M. Haigh S.D., Lee J.D., Daniels I.G., and Rawles Tyler. In the early part of the proceedings, Bro. J. R. Stacey P.M. and Secretary, acted as I.P.M. The ballot was taken for Messrs. George P. Harris, Alfred Stebbins, Thomas Calvert, Henry G. Gush, and Walter Delvalle, and being clear, those gentlemen were initiated into the Order. The chair was then vacated in favour of Bro. P.M. Stacey, who passed Bros. Arnold and Todd. The ceremony of raising was then most ably rendered, Bro. Ward being the candidate for the sublime degree. Both W.M.'s conducted the proceedings in a most solemn and impressive manner. An audit committee was then appointed. Letters of apology were read from the W.M., Bro. Parkinson, and two other brethren. The Secretary announced that the acting W.M., Bro. Kelly King, had requested the Lodge to accept from him a copy of the Volume of the Sacred Law. The proffered offer was acceded to and recorded on the minutes. The business of the Lodge having been formally completed, the members repaired to the banquet room, where a very agreeable repast had been provided. The W.M. gave the health of Her Majesty, and expressed the satisfaction it had afforded all classes in her having emerged from her solitude, during the week, to take part in the opening of Parliament. In proposing the toast of the M.W.G.M. Bro. King said that His Royal Highness had done and was doing great work in the distant realms he was visiting, and he trusted that on his return to his native land he would meet with a grand reception from the Masonic body. In speaking to the health of the Grand Officers, the Chairman regretted that no representative of the purple was present, they had, however, in one of their members, a P.G.S., and he had pleasure in associating Bro. Haigh's name with the toast. Bro. Haigh briefly replied: He supposed the W.M. was correct in describing him as a companion in arms—or rather in fig leaves—with the officer of Grand Lodge. He firmly believed that those officers possessed the confidence and the esteem of the entire Craft, and he thanked all present for the heartiness with which the toast had been received, and for the kind manner in which they had associated his name with it. The Initiates were then toasted, and the W.M. said he was pleased to see that five foundation stones had been placed that day, from these he hoped that polished structures might arise, and from the quality of those brethren who had been enrolled, he firmly believed great results might be anticipated. The several Initiates, in a few words, acknowledge the compliment. Bro. Haigh now took the gavel, and proposed the health of the acting W.M., Bro. J. Kelly King, who in reply said he should be wanting in common courtesy if he did not acknowledge the kind feeling exhibited by every member of the Lodge. To Bros. Stacey, Dyte, Lee and Haigh he was especially grateful for the services they had rendered in placing the Alexandra Lodge in the position it occupied. The progress they had made had been all that could be wished, in spite of the failure of the overtures to associate the brethren connected with the Alexandra Palace. The original intention of the founders was that theirs should be essentially a Press Lodge. Saturday afternoon was the only time that could be devoted by those engaged in this capacity, and he was pleased to be able to announce that three out of the five who had joined their ranks that day were connected with the Press. They had no desire that the Lodge should become a too numerous one, and he thought it would not be long before they would have to consider the desirability of raising the entrance fee. The next toast, that of the Officers, was replied to by Bro. Dyte, who urged upon those present the benefits to be derived from Lodges of Instruction, and who said he would most readily place his office at the disposal of any who might desire to meet there for that purpose. Bro. Stacey followed, and said he would use every exertion to make the Lodge thoroughly efficient in its working. After responses from other officers, the health of the Visitors was given, which was replied to by Bro. W. W. Morgan, who said he could advance some claims to wishing prosperity to the Alexandra Palace Lodge. He was associated with the Company, inasmuch as he was one of their agents. The W.M. had endeavoured to impress upon those present that theirs was essentially a summer Lodge, and that they were there that day summoned by every aspect of winter. He (Bro. Morgan) must say the reception they had given him was anything but of a wintry nature; on the contrary, it had been of a warm and most genial character. This was the third invitation to visit them he had received, and he regretted that on the two previous occasions circumstances had prevented him availing himself of their kindness. Other toasts, followed by that of the Tyler, were given, and an agreeable evening's proceedings were brought to a close.

City of Westminster Lodge, No. 1563.—This new and rapid increasing Lodge held its regular meeting on the 10th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, Bros. Swallow W.M., C. A. Cottebarne P.G.P. Treas. as S.W., White J.W., Scott P.M. Sec., Turner J.D., W. C. Parsons P.M. 180 I.G., Shand D.C., Hutchinson W.S., and nearly 40 brethren. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the 13th January were read and confirmed. Bros. Pratt 1446 and Shepherd J.W. 945 were elected joining members. Bros. Turner and Gardner were passed to the 2nd degree, and Mr. Irving was initiated. These ceremonies were very impressively delivered by the W.M. The W.M. stated that an emergency meeting would shortly take place, as several candidates were desirous of being initiated. A very sumptuous banquet was given. In proposing the toast of the Grand Officers the W.M. was proud to have among them one whose excellent working in Freemasonry was fully recognised, he referred to Bro. C. A. Cottebarne P.G.P., who, in responding to the toast, eloquently said he was indeed gratified to belong to this Lodge, seeing so many members around him who were such excellent Masons. He then proposed the toast of the W.M., whom he had known for many years; he had laboured hard to bring the Lodge to a state of perfection and prosperity, and no Master could have started and carried out a new Lodge in a more creditable manner than their first Master. The W.M. responded. He was pleased to preside over so prosperous and harmonious a Lodge, and he was amply repaid by the success that attended it. The toast of the Visitors was given, and Bro. Sorrell replied, followed by Bros. Stiles, Townley, and other visitors, who all expressed their pleasure at the working of the W.M. Bro. Townley said he would ask Bro. Shand to propose him as a joining member. The toast of the Initiates followed, also that of the Officers. The W.M. regretted the absence of the S.W., Bro. the Rev. P.M. Holden. He was proud in the selection he had made in his officers. The Tylers toast was given, and the brethren separated.

Elliot Lodge, No. 1567.—The second meeting of this promising young Lodge was held on Saturday the 3rd inst., Bro. J. Mason W.M. in the chair, supported by Bros. H. G. Buss Prov. G. Treas. acting as I.P.M., F. Green S.W., W. Dunham J.W., J. R. Nicholls S.D., A. J. Neton J.D., J. H. Pearson I.G. S. L. Green D.C., J. W. Clarke W.S., W. T. Howe Prov. G.P. Treas., and J. Elliot Sec. The Lodge was opened in the usual manner, and the minutes of the consecration and an emergency meeting having been read and approved, the ballot was taken for five gentlemen as candidates for initiation. This being unanimous in each case, four of them, being in attendance, were introduced, and received the benefit of the first degree, which ceremony was rendered in a most impressive manner. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, when Bros. Pearse and Nicholls, having passed the necessary examination, were duly advanced to the degree of Fellow Craft. The S.W. presented the Lodge with a very handsome bible, which for elegance of design and workmanship we have seldom seen surpassed. The present was duly received and acknowledged on behalf of the Lodge, by the W.M., who said he trusted that not only would the members look upon it as a gift to the Lodge for their use here, but that they may, by careful study, and strict adherence to its principles, be guided to that Grand Lodge above, where he was sure it was the earnest desire of every one present they may meet when this life and its meetings shall have passed away. Bro. Howe then proposed, and Bro. F. Green seconded, a motion that as Sir G. Elliot had given permission to use his crest for all Lodge purposes, that this become at once a banner Lodge, which motion being duly carried, the W.M.'s banner was at once unfurled, and was much admired by all present. Several gentlemen having been proposed for initiation, and one as a joining member, the Lodge business was brought to a close, after which about thirty of the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, supplied by Bro. Harris, who was assisted by the well known caterer, Bro. Stone, of Hallsford. Upon the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the usual Masonic toasts, which were well received. In proposing that of the M.W.G.M., he referred to his present visit to India, and thought that if anything was needed to prove the high estimation in which he was held both in and outside the Craft he was sure that need had been now well supplied. He trusted he would be sheltered by the G.A.O.T.U. and return safely to his native land. The Lodge was honoured by a visit from Bros. H. G. Buss P.G. Treas., R. W. Little Prov. G.S.W., J. Coutts P.G.P., E. M. Haigh P.G.S., B. Swallow Prov. G.S. and W.M. 1563, J. Green, G. Townsend, J. Barfield and A. Glover. Each of the toasts being given and received in a truly Masonic manner, the Tyler's toast brought to a close one of the most enjoyable meetings we have attended for some time, and we heartily wish the Lodge that success which it deserves, and which is evidently attending its every movement, as we understand that a list for contributions to the Girls' School was opened at the previous meeting, which already amounts to nearly £40, and we think this should stimulate some of the other Lodges in the Provinces to greater exertions on behalf of the forthcoming Festival.

Upper Norwood Lodge, No. 1586.—The consecration of this Lodge took place on the 10th inst., at the White Hart, Upper Norwood. Present — Bros. W. Jenett Miller W.M. designate, W. Hopekirk S.W. designate, G. Cragg J.W. designate, and Bros. Paul, Kidman, Drake, Pringley, Pugsby, Crowch, Ledger and J. Hammond. Visitors—Bros. Coward P.G. Org., H. E. Frances P.G.D., Surrey, Consecrating Master, W. Hammond P.P.G.D. Middlesex, Kane P.P.G.S. Warwickshire, Fox 1339, Steadman, Berham W.M. 1339, Kew P.M. 197, and F. Sawyer 1339. The brethren having formed a procession, the Lodge room was entered, Bro. Coward playing a march. The Consecrating Master then proceeded to open the Lodge in the three degrees, and the ceremony of consecration was most impressively performed. The oration, one of Bro. Frances's own composition, was heard with deep attention, and much appreciated by the brethren. At its close Bros. Coward, Fox, and Steadman gave the glorious anthem "Behold how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity," and the brethren of the Lodge could with difficulty restrain their applause, so exquisitely was the music rendered. In fine, the whole ceremony was done well by all engaged in it, and must be looked back to as a most successful and pleasureable commencement. Bro. Kew then took the chair and installed Bro. Miller as W.M., Bro. Frances acting as D.C. and investing the officers in the following order:—Bros. Hopekirk S.W., Cragg J.W., Kidman S.D., Paul J.D., J. Hammond as Treas., Drake Sec. The ceremony of installation was ably performed. Bros. Frances, Coward, Fox, Steadman, Kew and Wm. Hammond (who had officiated as Chaplain) were then elected Honorary Members. Seven or eight gentlemen were then proposed for initiation and two for joining. The Lodge was closed and the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet that reflected great credit on the host, Bro. Ledger, and was appreciated by the brethren.

NEW ZEALAND.

The election of officers for the St. Andrew's Lodge of Freemasons, under the Scottish Constitution, was held on 23rd Nov. The result of the election was as follows:—Bros. W. C. Wilkes R.W.M., T. Ellison S.W., Barrett J.W., Lucas J. Martin S.D., Cooke J.D., Hughson Treas., Payne Sec., Kitchen Architect, the Rev. Mr. Bruce Chap., and Porter Tyler.

The brethren of the Sir Walter Scott Lodge of Freemasons at the Thames celebrated St. Andrew's Day. An emergency meeting was called to raise a number of brethren to the sublime degree of Master Masons, and the ceremony over, a cold collation, which had been prepared to the order of the newly raised brethren, was served. The chair was taken by Past Master Brodie, who had presided over the Lodge meeting, in the absence of the Rev. J. Hill W.M.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—When the weather is changeable and treacherous it is necessary to be very watchful for the first signs of illness; pains in the back and limbs, headache, neuralgic symptoms, and sore throat are some of the first indications of cold having been taken; they should be at once attacked by these remedies, and they will soon disappear under their use; allowed to continue unchecked it is impossible to foresee the ulterior consequences. Fever may develope themselves, inflammations of the lungs and other formidable diseases may arise, entailing much suffering and danger. All these may be averted by a timely resort to these never failing medicinal agents, which are within the reach of all, rich and poor.

THE PERFECT MASON.

The lesson of the three degrees.

THE mass of marble, in the quarry piled,
Lay hidden, under vegetation wild.
Time passed, and rising o'er the common mart
Stood statues, robed in loveliness of art,
And Temples in magnificence appear'd
On perfect ashlars in due order rear'd.
Upon the marble, Genius came and shone,
And wrought ideals from the blocks of stone.

E'en so, in human nature's hidden deeps,
In every human breast a giant sleeps;
Unrecognised, inert, unfelt, unknown,
Like those ideals in their homes of stone;
Until Occasion's spirit-stirring din
Rouses the tenant from his rest within.

For all the prodigies that shake the earth
Spring up unmark'd and from a common birth:
The mighty conqueror who all subdued,
Whose dinted tracks ran o'er with kindred blood;
The frenzied orator, whose words of fire
Kindled the peoples to their fierce desire;
The stern lawgiver, in his creed arrayed,
Planning his empire-vision, undismayed;
The dauntless maiden, pure and simply grand,
Driving the spoilers from her native land;
These brilliant types all herded with the rest
Till Destiny woke the giant in the breast.

A type like these, tho' flaming out so bright,
Is but the meteor, not the steady light;
Infrequent, and at night, the meteors fall;
The Great Occasion cannot come to all.
Yet every earthling grovelling below
May beam with brighter and celestial glow,
In the GRAND LODGE'S infinite design
Each may adorn the OVERSEER'S shrine:
For ends more glorious our race is ripe,
Our culmination is a higher type!

The GREAT GEOMETRICIAN above
By whose behest the Craftsmen live and move—
Each sordid human frame His image holds,
Altho' disguised within its mortal folds.
The Master Mason, sculptor of the soul,
With this ideal for his work and goal,
Developes it in love, thro' patient years;
Trait after trait the type divine appears
With beauty that its Prototype endues,
Chef d'œuvre for the GREAT ARCHITECT to use.
Till, when the time is come, as come it must,
For what is dust to fall to kindred dust,
The type divine soars up to the Divine
With an immortal brilliancy to shine,
Proved by the aid of Wisdom, Truth and LOVE—
A perfect Ashlar in its place above.

THE INSTALLATION OF PRINCE LEOPOLD.

LESS than a year ago it was our pleasing duty to chronicle the elevation of the heir to the throne to the highest dignity in the power of our Craft to bestow. The Prince of Wales was, in April last, installed Most Worshipful Grand Master of English Freemasons, and we need scarcely say that the affability, frankness, and generosity of disposition which have ever distinguished our right royal brother render him a peculiarly fitting representative of his exalted office. To-day we have again to record the accession to Masonic dignity of a prince of the royal blood. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold was, on Tuesday last, installed Worshipful Master of the Apollo University Lodge (No. 357, Oxford), and on the following day, at a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, he was formally installed Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire. It may be remembered that the Prince of Wales was himself Worshipful Master of the Apollo Lodge, in 1873, and it was in the following year, upon his proposition, seconded by Bro. Morrell, the then Worshipful Master, that Prince Leopold was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of the Craft. He became an active member of the Lodge, and rapidly extended his knowledge of the ceremonies and ritual of the Order. For twelve months he occupied the Chair of Senior Warden, and distinguished himself by the attention and skill which he bestowed upon the performance of his duties. He has now reached what may be regarded as the culminating point of every Mason's ambition—the Mastership of his mother Lodge. The ceremony was impressively performed, before a very full Lodge of members, and a distinguished circle of visitors. Among the latter may be mentioned the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Provincial Grand Master of Staffordshire, Lord De Tabley, Provincial Grand Master of Cheshire, Lord Methuen, Provincial Grand Master of Wiltshire, Colonel Burdett, Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, Bro. M'Intyre, Q.C., Major Shadwell Clerke, Colonel Campbell, and other well-known members of the Craft.

The Lodge over which Prince Leopold has been elected to preside is not one of very venerable antiquity, the day of the installation coinciding very nearly with the 57th anniversary of its establishment. In an institution like Freemasonry, whose history dates back to the very earliest times, an existence of 57 years supplies but an insignificant title to distinction. But the Apollo Lodge has other and more genuine claims to honour amongst the fraternity. It appears that as far back as the year 1769 a Lodge was established in connection with the University of Oxford, under the title of the Lodge of Alfred. It is improbable that this Lodge ever attained a high degree of vitality, and in 1783 it died a natural death. For 36 years the University was without a Lodge, and this fact, combined with the failure of the Alfred, affords a sufficient evidence of the difficulties that had to be surmounted before a Lodge could be successfully established. In 1818, however, the attempt was again made, and in the February following the Lodge was safely launched, and its prosperous career commenced. Since then it has steadily advanced in popularity, and at the present time it can boast a roll of members in number and social position scarcely equalled by any Lodge throughout the country. On looking over the list, one cannot fail to be struck by the number of familiar and celebrated names that there find record. Thus, under the year 1833, we find the names of two ex-Cabinet Ministers—Lord Granville and Robert Lowe; a year or two earlier those of Earl Canning, the Marquis of Abercorn, and Lord De Tabley; and four years later the name of the late member for Horsham, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald. To be elected to the Mastership of so distinguished a Lodge was an honour worthy of a prince's ambition.

But a further dignity awaited his Royal Highness on the following day. At a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of the county, held in the Sheldonian Theatre, he was formally installed Provincial Grand Master. The ceremony was conducted in the presence of a distinguished assemblage of the brethren, including the following officers of the Grand Lodge:—Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M., Marquis of Hamilton S.G.W., Alderman Stone J.G.W., the Rev. Canon J. Simpson G.C., Æneas J. McIntyre Q.C. G.R., John Hervey G.S., P. J. Morrell J.G.D., Sir A. W. Woods, Garter, Grand Director of Ceremonies; besides the Earl of Hardwicke, the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Limerick, Lord de Tabley, Lord Methuen, Lord Leigh, Lord Balfour, the Earl of Jersey, Lord Ramsay, Lord Newry, General Brownrigg, Colonel Burdett, J. C. Parkinson, Frederick Binckes, and many other members of the Craft. The installation was conducted by Lord Skelmersdale, acting for the Grand Master of England, who took occasion to compliment His Royal Highness on his promotion, and on the steadfastness he had displayed in the cause of Masonry during the period of his association with the fraternity.

Some other proceedings were gone through, and, amongst them, the presentation to Bro. R. J. Spiers, who had for twenty years held the office of Deputy Provincial Grand Master, of a massive silver inkstand, a purse of 500 guineas, and an album containing the names of the subscribers. The Lodge was then formally adjourned to May next. We need scarcely add that the proceedings of both days were brought to a close by a banquet, at which the usual toasts were given and received with due honours.

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER.

"There stands the messenger of truth,
There stands the legate of the skies;
His theme divine, his office sacred,
His credentials clear. By him
The violated law speaks out its Thunder, and by him, in strains
As sweet as Angels use, the gospel
Whispers peace."

THERE are a number of foolish people in society who think it is one of the signs of good breeding to affect an utter indifference to all the questions which interest the great mass of people. They declare that they never could be enthusiastic, that they never had a hobby, and have never felt any particular interest in any subject under the sun. These people are, of course, affected creatures, who assume the air of the stoic just because it happens to be the fashion with their set. Some of them may indeed be really lymphatic persons, constitutionally unfitted to cope with the business of the world. If the fashionable stoics had their way, society would soon be reduced to a dead level of dulness and misery. Laughter would be interdicted, not merely for its inherent vulgarity, but because of its supposed injurious effect on the features. Criticism would be voted a bore, and exertion, or any undue display of energy, the height of absurdity. Fortunately, the great mass of men, the people who mould a generation and direct the stream of civilisation into new channels, are not much influenced by the inane chatter of a few votaries of fashion. Enthusiasm, energy, and muscular Christianity have achieved much. The mind of man is indeed a force, compared with which the steam engine is a child's toy. It is the thinker who really produces revolutions in society; but it is the man of action—the man with well-balanced brain and well-developed muscles—who really carries out the behests of the man of thought. No phrase, to our thinking, is so expressive of a beautiful combination of strength, gentleness, and goodness as "muscular Christianity." Its author has been much ridiculed for having coined it, but only by unthinking persons, or by that small knot of sentimental fanatics who are rapidly sinking into obscurity and contempt. Why should not a Christian be muscular?—why should he not jump a five-barred gate, if need be, or bare his arm to protect innocence from the wrongdoer? The combination of strength and goodness is, we repeat, beautiful in our eyes, and we are always moved when we see a strong man fighting manfully against evil.

We know not whether the subject of our sketch may fairly be called a muscular Christian, or whether he would feel flattered by the designation; but of this we are assured, that his honest, kindly face is indicative of a well-balanced mind, and his frame is that of a man who possesses a fair share of muscle to back up his brains. We feel assured that he can laugh as heartily as any member of his flock, and that he is just as much pleased with the feats of strength performed by the village lads as he is with their proficiency in the Catechism. We are not quite sure whether he can ride across country, but if he can and does, we are quite certain that his ministrations in the pulpit are not injuriously affected thereby. We imagine that his professional labours are really a pleasure to him, and that he feels a just pride in performing the simple service of the Protestant ritual in his truly magnificent parish church. That church indeed is a fit temple for the worship of a devout Mason. Built at a time when the Gothic architecture was in its most vigorous condition, it strikes the observer by its vastness, the beauty of its proportions, and the grace of its ornament. One imagines that it must have been built by one of those old master Masons who have adorned this country with so many works of genius. In this grand pile one might dream away an hour or two over the glorious symbolism of the Gothic builders, or one might fancy that these masters of the art of construction were magicians, who compelled the rigid stone, under mystic spells, to assume a plastic nature. But the magnificence of his church has carried us away from the central figure, the good clergyman, who ministers in this grand house of prayer. It is not our intention to write his biography, or to sketch his clerical career. It is sufficient for us to say that his professional life has been an eventful one; that he has been a great worker, and has carried away with him to his rural deanery the gratitude and love of many congregations of Christians. His Masonic career, of course, arrests our attention, and claims all our consideration, and that career has been a very remarkable one indeed. He was initiated into Masonry in the Apollo University Lodge, at Oxford, in January 1856, and was successively Inner Guard and then Secretary. He also joined the Alfred and Churchill Lodges. In 1858 he was W.M. of the latter, and on the occasion of his installation the Provincial Grand Lodge was held under his banner. In the same year he was appointed Provincial Grand Secretary of Oxfordshire, and occupied that post on the occasion of Lord Zetland's visit to Oxford. He was made a Royal Arch Mason with Lord Carnarvon and others, and was Secretary of his first Lodge, the Apollo, when Lord Skelmersdale was initiated. At Oxford he was made a Knight Templar of the Cœur de Lion Encampment, and with this distinction his Masonic career at the University appears to have terminated. Subsequently, we find him a member of the Faithful Lodge at Harleton, in Suffolk, and while engaged in church work at Cheltenham he joined the Foundation Lodge, of which he was successively S.W. and W.M. In the year 1865 he was a Mark Master Mason at the latter town, and in 1868 was appointed Grand Chaplain of Mark Masters of England, and Grand Aide de Camp in Grand Conclave. In the following year, Lord Zetland appointed him Grand Chaplain of England, which office was renewed by Lord Ripon the following year. The inhabitants of Cheltenham, feeling greatly honoured by the fact that our worthy brother had achieved this last distinction, presented him with a testimonial, in the shape of a magnificent full length portrait of himself. This portrait was exhibited in the Royal Academy in 1870. In this latter year he became Grand Principal Sojourner in Grand Chapter, and upon taking up his abode at Long Melford Rectory he joined the Stour Valley Lodge at Sudbury, which was then struggling for existence, and was shortly afterward elected its W.M., an office which he held for two years. Under his able administration the Lodge speedily passed through the critical difficulties of its infancy, and it is now in a most flourishing condition. During his Mastership, the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk met at Sudbury, having previously attended service at Melford Church, on which occasion our brother preached a sermon to the assembled Craft, which was afterwards published, under the title of "The True Masonic Temple." It is impossible for us in this sketch to mention in detail all the honours and distinctions our worthy brother has won, but we may say, before we leave this part of our subject, that he is a Vice Patron of all the Masonic Institutions, and has served as Steward at the Anniversary Festivals of the Charities on sixteen occasions.

In society our brother is highly popular. Like many clergymen he possesses an intimate knowledge of human nature. He has a host of friends, and so far as we know not a single enemy. He is philosophical enough to hold that there are few things in this world worth quarrelling about, and none worth the loss of temper. Christians generally would stand higher in the estimation of men of the world if they were all to imitate this side of his character. Quarrels about trifles degrade "professors" in the eyes of "worldlings," and loss of temper is one of the besetting sins of a multitude of worldly people. Into our brother's domestic circle we shall not venture to intrude, but we may mention that his family make a perfect Lodge in number, and that his eldest son is at Harrow, under the tuition of his distinguished father's old master.

Our brother is, we need scarcely say, a regular attendant at Grand Lodge. During the last ten years he has only missed one meeting. He speaks occasionally, and always to the point, and takes the greatest interest in the working of the Charities. Indeed, he never visits a Lodge without making some attempt to stir up the members to renewed exertion in the cause of these admirable Institutions, which have largely profited by his intelligent appreciation, and his great labours on their behalf.

"Rear'd, was this stately pile, by pious
Reverential hands, whose cunning work
Mocks the base art of these degenerate days.
Fit temple this for sacrifice, or prayer;
Here, in its arched aisles, and shadow'd nooks,
The humble, toilsome peasant, turns
His weary heart to God."

THE SUBSCRIPTIONS AT THE RECENT FESTIVAL.

WE have been at considerable pains in analysing the subscription list at the annual Festival, on the 9th instant, of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Our purpose has been to show our readers not only what was done on that occasion, but also where brethren of energy may find fields open to them in their zealous promotion of the cause of charity. It is not just that the same brethren should be called upon to repeat their donations every year, while others are entirely overlooked and left out in the cold. The support accorded to our Institutions must be, not sectional, but general, and in the course of the evidence we shall offer by-and-bye, we shall clearly demonstrate that only a very small section of Masonry contributed on this occasion to the funds of the Benevolent Institution. No doubt it will be urged that several who do not figure in this year's list were not unmindful of their duty last year. We shall have occasion to mention one or two notable instances. No doubt it is creditable to a Lodge to figure two years running in the subscription list to the same Charity, but it does not speak well for the general activity of the Craft when we find so many as 63 Lodges sent representatives to both Festivals. It will also be urged that figures may be made to prove anything, but we deny emphatically that the most experienced manipulator of figures could so have dealt with them in this instance as to show that all sections of the Craft are equally attentive to the claims of charity. We have already expressed our gratification that the sum realised this year is so considerably in excess of last year's amount. But all is not done that could and should be done, and till the universal practice is in accord with the universal precept, we must not rest from the task of urging on Craftsmen the fulfilment of their duty. We have no hesitation in saying that if all worked equally, the income of each of our Institutions should reach the sum of £20,000 per annum. We are a long way from this figure yet, and to show how it is we are so far off, we invite our readers to ponder well over the following analysis. We will premise that the sum subscribed is stated in our report of the Festival as £9,184 10s 6d, but the list of amounts in detail casts to £9,178 8s—owing, no doubt, to one or more trifling clerical errors having crept in. We have distributed and redistributed these details in a variety of ways, but no matter how we arranged them, they always cast to £9,178 8s, and it is this amount we have dealt with.

We have distributed the subscriptions under three heads—London, Provinces, and Abroad—with the following result:—London, £4,067 14s composed thus: 73 Lodges, £3,779 7s 6d; four Chapters, £107 11s 6d; various (including M.M.; the President and Treasurer of the Board of Stewards, and Bro. T. Cubitt) £180 15s; Provinces £5,040 14s; Abroad £70, including D.G.L. Punjab, £10, Andrew Hay P.D.D.G.M. Bombay £5, L. 549, Mazagon Bombay £5, and L. 1307 Mooltan, Punjab, C. Rushworth, own donation £50. We next compare the number of Lodges contributing with the number on the roll of Grand Lodge. In London, there were, according to Grand Lodge Calendar for 1875, 212 Lodges. Of these, 71 Lodges, of which 41 contributed last year, appear in the present list, together with two that have been since constituted, making together 73. As regards the provinces, we note the following facts:—Bedfordshire (5 Lodges) and the Provinces of Berks and Bucks (14 L.), Bristol (8 L.), Cambridgeshire (4 L.), Cornwall (24 L.), Cumberland and Westmoreland (17 L.), Derbyshire (17 L.), Durham (23 L.), Gloucestershire (14 L.), Monmouth (7 L.), Notts (8 L.), North Wales and Shropshire (19 L.), Staffordshire (19 L.), Warwickshire (26 L.), Worcestershire (10 L.), and Jersey (7 L.), are not represented directly, nor do any of their Lodges appear in the list. Of the remainder, Cheshire with 37 Lodges is represented by 1 Lodge, contributing £47 7s. Devon with 45 Lodges by two, contributing together £122 10s; Dorset (13 Lodges) is represented by its D.P.G.M., Bro. Montagu, and figures for £222; Essex (15 L.), stands for £42 10s, the contribution of 1 Lodge. Of 28 Lodges in Hants and the Isle of Wight, five contribute together £285 11s 6d. Of 4 Herefordshire Lodges, one appears with £66 5s. Four of the nine Herts Lodges contribute £102 13s. Six of 39 Kent Lodges send £465 19s. East Lancashire with 80 Lodges has a single representative only, for £15. West Lancashire with 69 Lodges grandly supported Lord Skelmersdale, its Grand Master, to the magnificent extent of £1,508 10s. Leicestershire and Rutlandshire (9 Lodges) is set down at £109 16s, while Lincolnshire with 19 Lodges appears with £6 10s, the contribution of a single Lodge. In Middlesex there are 19 Lodges, of which 6 contribute £198 2s. Six of the 14 Norfolk Lodges contribute £128 6s together; Northumberland (13 Lodges) is entered for £112 10s, Oxfordshire (6 Lodges) gives £87 10s, and one of its Lodges, No. 1036, Chipping Norton, is down for £12 12s; total for Oxon £100 2s. Somersetshire (12 Lodges) is represented by £66 6s from one of its Lodges. The two Divisions of South Wales (17 Lodges together) appear for £250. Two of the 16 Suffolk Lodges contribute £77; three of 12 Surrey Lodges £65 5s, 1 Sussex Lodge out of 17 sends £106. Wilts (9 Lodges) stands for £201 6s 6d. The North and East Ridings of Yorkshire (22 Lodges) are represented by 2 Lodges for £46, while West Yorkshire by the hands of its G.M. and 25 other stewards, and having 58 Lodges, figures for £550. Thus, of 41 Provinces, or with Bedfordshire, Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands, of 44 groups of Lodges, 18, comprising together 229 Lodges, are not represented this year, at least so far as we yet know—we say this because there are some lists still outstanding; Bristol, for instance, appearing by its P.G. Registrar in the List of the Board of Stewards, but not in the List of Subscriptions. We may reckon that to the end of the year 1875 there were 850 Lodges in the Provinces, and if we allow that all the Lodges contributed in the case of those provinces which appear for a lump sum, and that in the case of West Yorkshire each of the 26 Stewards represented a Lodge, we can only account for about 170 Lodges, or 20 per cent., as contributing. Again, of the Provinces which are not entirely excluded: Cheshire had 37 Lodges at the beginning of last year, and in it are such rich and influential towns as Birkenhead, Macclesfield, Staleybridge and Stockport, yet to a Crewe Lodge (No. 321) is left the honour of representing Cheshire. A Plymouth Lodge (No. 156), and an East Stonehouse (No. 189), out of 45 Lodges, support together the honour of Devon. Durham, which includes Durham, Gateshead, Sunderland, and Stockton, is down for nil. From the Hants and the Isle of Wight Province so important a town as Southampton sends nothing. East Lancashire comprises 80 Lodges, of which 17 are in Manchester, 4 in Bolton, 5 in Bury, and 5 in Salford, but a Rochdale Lodge (No. 54) alone contributes. Cottonopolis Lodges give not one farthing this year towards the support of the Benevolent Institution, nor did one of its Lodges contribute last year. For two consecutive years, the brethren in this seat of the cotton trade, one of the richest cities in the United Kingdom—we may go further and say, in the whole world—have not given the smallest fraction of a penny towards the support of indigent Masons and the widows of Masons. On the other hand, of 25 Liverpool Lodges, 13 figure this year for an aggregate sum of £733 3s. Lincolnshire stands for £6 10s, from a Lodge at Bourn (No. 1232), but last year it nobly did its duty, contributing £573. Staffordshire, again, though it is not represented on this occasion, well supported its P.G.M., the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, in 1875, and contributed £171 5s. But Warwickshire, which includes the wealthy and important town of Birmingham sends nothing. Birmingham, the centre of the hardware trade, with 14 Lodges, is wholly unrepresented this year, and only one of these 14 (Lodge No. 925) contributed last year, the sum of £35.

There are, or were according to G. L. Calendar for 1875, a thousand and thirty-seven Lodges in England and Wales, and the Channel Islands, two hundred and twelve of them being in London. Of these, less than twenty-five per cent. have added to the funds of the Benevolent Institution this year. One hundred and forty-one London Lodges have given nothing; eighteen out of forty-four country districts stand aside, and leave the claims of Charity to be supported by others. Two of the most important and richest towns in our provinces, namely, Manchester, with seventeen and Birmingham with fourteen Lodges, contribute nothing. The former of these did nothing whatever last year, while Birmingham raised only a paltry sum towards the service of Masonic Charity. The few lists that remain to come in will not materially affect the accuracy of the picture we have drawn, nor do we for one moment affirm that the Lodges and Provinces which have not contributed to this Charity have overlooked the claims of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. We must point out likewise that where a Province appears for a round sum, it is impossible to say which Lodges in that Province contributed and which did not. We have taken the list as it appeared in our issue of the 12th instant. The conclusions we have drawn are based on that and the similar list we published last year, and we have no hesitation in saying that, apart from what may have been or will be done for the other two Institutions, the claims of the Benevolent Institution are not as warmly or as generally supported as they deserve to be. We must practise charity as well as preach it, or we shall be as the stage players or hypocrites who feign a part that is not their own.

Obituary.

It is with deep feelings of regret that we announce the death of the wife of our highly esteemed brother, Rev. Dr. P. H. E. Brette, W.M. of the Thames Valley Lodge, No. 1460, Prov. G.C. Middlesex. The deceased lady, who had been in failing health for some time, expired at Christ's Hospital, on the 19th inst. In her the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls has lost one of its best friends, and most of the children of that Institution will miss the amiable lady who had so often cheered and encouraged them by her kindly sympathy.

We have to record the death of Bro. John Newton Tomkins, Past Grand Deacon, whose services during a long Masonic career were neither few nor unappreciated. Of late, he was, perhaps, best known to the Companions of the Chapter of Fidelity, No. 3, of which he was P.Z., and for many years a constant attendant in the capacity of Treasurer. His age was 63. Would that we all could leave behind us so sincere a tribute in the hearts of brethren and Companions, to valued services and modest worth, as that which we now insert at their request.

QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION OF GRAND LODGE.

Two candidates were placed on the list for election in April next.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The seeds of disease are often unconsciously sown by some neglect of those precautions which are so necessary in this changeable climate of ours: the earlier symptoms of deranged health are often neglected, and hence another great source of after consequences of a serious character arises. Amongst the precautions most necessary at the change of the season is that of attention to the clothing, and to the advent of any touch of throat disorder, which should at once be treated by these remedies, which will quickly remove all chance of their taking hold of the system and producing consumptive symptoms. A few doses of these Pills are the best remedy for all hepatic and dyspeptic symptoms.

APOLLO UNIVERSITY LODGE, No. 357, OXFORD.

THIS Lodge, which in 1873 was honoured in the fact that our present R.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales held the position of W.M., has this week conferred upon itself additional honour by electing to the chair of K.S. H.R.H. Prince Leopold, who was initiated into Masonry within its precincts, on 1st May 1874, and who, during the past year, has ably filled the chair of S.W. The day fixed for this ceremony was Tuesday, and, accordingly, on the afternoon of that day, the Lodge was opened in due form, at 3 p.m., by Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard M.A., W.M., who was supported by Prince Leopold S.W., and the other officers of the Lodge. There were also present, among other distinguished members and visitors, Bros. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Lord De Tabley, Lord Methuen, Colonel Burdett, R. J. Spiers, Rev. Reginald Bird, J. Bird, J. B. Monckton, Revs. C. J. Martyn, Walter F. Short, T. F. Ravenshaw, Æ. M'Intyre, Q.C., Captain Philips, Major Shadwell Clerke, Colonel Adair, Victor Williamson, Rev. R. K. Bedford, and P.M.'s Tyrwhitt, Dallon, and Cave Brown-Cave. The first important business was the raising of Bros. Sankey and Swithinbank to the sublime degree. Prince Leopold was then presented to the W.M. by Bro. Morrell, the I.P.M., and was installed according to ancient custom. The appointment of officers followed—Rev. R. W. M. Pope Deputy Master, Williamson S.W., Sackville West J.W., Rev. L. K. Hilton Sopior Chaplain, Rev. E. D. Whitmarsh Junior Chaplain, Rev. Reginald Bird, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Oxford, Vice Principal of Magdalen College, Treasurer; J. C. Bodley, of Balliol College, Senior Secretary; Paget, of Christ Church, Junior Secretary; W. M. Glencross, Christ Church, S.D., Drummond, Christ Church, J.D., Gordon Campbell, F. Hedges, Gandy, Maxwell, Douglas Campbell (of Blythswood), and Jansen, Masters of Ceremonies; Gandell I.G., Parratt Organist, Rev. H. Deane, Tuke, Weatherley, Knollys, Berrington, La Terrier, Gerard, Leigh, Grenfell, Symonds, and W. Little Stewards, and Norwood Tyler.

After the usual congratulations had been tendered, and gracefully acknowledged, the customary formal questions were asked—resulting in five gentlemen being proposed for initiation—the Lodge was closed. A banquet, at the Clarendon Hotel, followed, where His Royal Highness presided, and gave the customary toasts. In reply to "The Health of the Worshipful Master," which was proposed by the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot in his usual hearty manner, Prince Leopold said:—"Brethren, it is with feelings of great pride and most heartfelt pleasure that I rise to thank you for the cordial manner in which you have welcomed me, and I beg to thank Lord Shrewsbury for the kind manner in which he has proposed my health. I feel it a very great honour that, after having served so short an apprenticeship to Masonry, the members of this Lodge have unanimously chosen me to be their Master. I esteem it also for another reason, that it will give me an opportunity of returning from time to time to Oxford, where I have already spent so many happy days. When I think of the prestige that has always attached to the Apollo, and the many distinguished Masons who have preceded me in my office, I do, indeed, feel and appreciate the warm encouragement and kind support which I have met with this evening at your hands. I trust that I may be able to come among you frequently during my term of office, and that I may perform its duties in a manner not altogether unworthy of my predecessors, though I am well aware that will prove no easy task."

Bro. Col. Burdett, P.G.M. Middlesex, acknowledged the toast of the "Visitors not of the Province." Bro. the Rev. H. A. Pickard, M.A., I.P.M. replied to that of the "Past Masters," and likewise proposed the toast of "The Masonic Charities," to which Bro. Rev. C. J. Martin P.G.C. very gracefully responded. Other toasts followed, the last being, as usual, "The Tyler's," when the brethren rose, and coffee and conversation alliteratively and actually filled the brief interval till midnight.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF OXFORDSHIRE.

On Wednesday Prince Leopold was installed Provincial Grand Master for Oxfordshire. The ceremony, which was most numerously attended, took place in the Sheldonian Theatre, which had been placed at the disposal of the brethren by the Curators.

At half-past ten o'clock the Stewards assembled at the theatre, and began the necessary arrangements. At twelve o'clock the brethren began to arrive, and at about half-past one the procession was formed in the Divinity School, all who were not either officers of the Province or of the Grand Lodge of England having previously taken their places in the theatre. At two o'clock the procession started and entered the theatre, the organ playing. The following distinguished brethren were present:—

Lord Skelmersdale Deputy Grand Master of England, Æneas J. M'Intyre Q.C. G.R. in charge of the Province, Reginald Bird D.P.G.M. Oxfordshire, Lord Limerick P.G.M. Bristol, Lord Methuen P.G.M. Provincial Lodge was opened by Bro. Æ. McIntyre G.R., and it was then announced that Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., was in attendance. Accordingly, his Lordship having been introduced and saluted, Bro. McIntyre vacated the chair in his favour. The D.G.M. then announced the immediate objects for which the Lodge had been convened, namely, the installation as P.G.M. of Prince Leopold the presentation to Bro. Spiers P.D.G.M., of a testimonial of his merit, and the appointment of a new Prov. G. Steward in place of Prince Leopold. The patent of His Royal Highness's appointment by the M.W.G.M. having been read, and it having been intimated that the Prince was in waiting, a deputation was formed, and His Royal Highness was conducted into the Lodge, the order of the procession being as follows:—

Three Provincial Grand Stewards; Provincial Grand Masters' gloves and apron, on a cushion borne by Master of a Lodge; collar and jewel of Provincial Grand Master, on a cushion borne by Master of a Lodge; Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, Provincial Grand Registrar, Provincial Grand Treasurer, Provincial Grand Chaplains, six Past Provincial Grand Wardens, his Royal Highness Prince Leopold (the Provincial Grand Master), two Equerries, two Provincial Grand Stewards.

Prince Leopold took his seat to the left of the D.G.M., and, after prayer by the Prov. Grand Chaplain, the ceremony of installation was proceeded with. After the usual proclamation and salute, Lord Skelmersdale addressed a few words of congratulation, both to the Prince on his appointment to the high and honorable office of a Provincial Grand Master, and to the brethren of the Province then assembled, for the honour that had been conferred upon them by the M.W.G.M. in appointing his brother to preside over them. The Prince gracefully acknowledged these remarks, and the hearty response they had met with from all present. Bro. Reginald Bird was then reappointed to the office of D.P.G.M., and Bro. W. J. Douglas Campbell was called up and invested with the insignia of a Provincial Grand Steward, vice His Royal Highness. The Provincial Grand Officers were then re-appointed to their several offices as follow:—Revs. John Galpin P.G.S.W., H. R. Cooper-Smith (Magd. Coll.) P.G.J.W., Rev. R. W. M. Pope P.G.C., Rev. W. Alexander Ayton P.G.C., Alderman T. Randall P.G.T., R. I. Williamson (Ch. Ch.) P.G.R., William Henry Horn P.G.S.D., Jason Saunders P.G.J.D., Sipehair Frankland Hood (Magdalen College) Prov. G. Secretary, Chas. Bishop P.G.S.Wks., Julius Sladden P.G.D.C., Carlisle J. S., Spaldden (Queen's Coll.) P.G.D.C. Alderman W. Eagleston P.G.S.B., Henry Plumridge, P.G.O.; Henry Williams P.G. Pursuivant, Gordon Campbell (Exeter Coll.), Cecil G. Paget (Ch. Ch.), J. E. Courtney Bodley (Balliol Coll.), William Pepperconrand Frederick Dolley P.G. Stewards, and W. Stevens and George Norwood P.G. Tylers.

Bro. J. C. Parkinson P.G.D. then presented to His Royal Highness the following address of congratulation from the G.O. of Italy:—

"To his Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire.

"Most Illustrious and Puteut Brother,—Italian Masonry, which rejoices at seeing ever more honoured in the most noble nation of England that universal brotherhood of which it, too, is not the last portion, hastens to send you its most respectful and affectionate congratulations on the auspicious event of your Royal Highness's exaltation to the office of Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire.

"Happy the people among whom men of the loftiest social standing appreciate and practise the grand principles of that humanitarian progress which it is the object of Masonry to vindicate and to diffuse throughout the civilized world! Accept, most illustrious and potent Brother, our most devoted and sincere congratulations and our fraternal salutations.

"In the absence of the Grand Master, the Grand Master Associate,

"GEORGE TAMAIO, 33°.

"Rome, February 18, 1876."

There then only remained one other portion of the day's programme to carry out, and this was the presentation of a very handsome testimonial to Bro. Spiers, for his eminent services to the Province of Oxford in particular, and to Freemasonry in general. In May of last year Bro. Spiers tendered his resignation of the post of D.P.G.M., a post he had filled for upwards of twenty years, and it was then resolved by the Brethren in the Province to raise funds for the purpose of presenting to Bro. Spiers some kind of testimonial in recognition of his long and meritorious service. Thus the presentation of this testimonial, which consisted of a handsome inkstand, an album containing the names of the subscribers, and a purse of 500 guineas, was among the earliest acts of the Prince as G. Master.

Prince Leopold thereupon rose and spoke as follows:—

"Brethren, a pleasant duty has devolved upon me, which I now rise to accomplish. It is to present a testimonial to Brother Spiers, who has now for many, many years been associated with Masonry, not only in the province but also in the Grand Lodge. It is the great zeal and energy which he has ever shown for the Craft which merits the slight testimony of regard from many friends in our brotherhood (applause). I have been asked to act to-day as spokesman on their behalf, and it is with great pleasure that I fulfil the task. Brother Spiers, in the name of a large number of Masons, most of whom you see here to-day, I present you with this inkstand and this purse, containing the sum of 500 guineas, as a token of their esteem and regard for yourself and of their gratitude for the work you have done for Masonry in general." At the same time was handed to Bro. Spiers the address voted to him at the last Provincial Grand Lodge, when he tendered his resignation as Deputy Provincial Grand Master, It was beautifully illuminated on vellum, and was to the following effect:—

"19th May 1875.

"At a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Oxfordshire it was resolved, 'that the members of this Lodge desire to express, and hereby do express their gratitude to the Very Worshipful Bro. Richard James Spiers, Past Grand Sword Bearer of England, for the eminent services which he has rendered to Freemasonry in general, and to the province of Oxford in particular, in discharge of his duties as Deputy Provincial Grand Master for upwards of twenty years.'"

The remarks of his Royal Highness drew great applause from all present, and then Bro. Spiers acknowledged the presentation in the following terms:—

"May it please your Royal Highness, my Lords and Brethren, — May I ask for some indulgence at your hands, at this trying moment, while I endeavour, however inadequately, to express what I feel on this occasion. I accept this magnificent testimonial with deep gratitude and with great humility, and these are increased by the circumstance that the presentation is made to me by the hands of Royalty, and in the presence of so many distinguished brethren. For the last 32 years, when I first entered our noble Institution, it has been my high privilege to be associated, more or less, in honoured communication, Masonically, with a large number of those now around me, and especially by many who have contributed so liberally to this testimonial; and their names, which are recorded in the album now handed to me, will be ever most highly valued by me as associated by so many happy recollections." After tendering his sincere thanks to the committee, to the Treasurer, Bro. Alderman Randle, whose name is most kindly remembered by all Oxford University brethren, to Bro. Thompson, the Honorary Secretary, whose name, during three several generations, has been held in such high esteem by all Oxford Masons, academical and local; and to all those who have assisted in any way to this testimonial; he concluded by saying that he should hand down to his family, some of whom were present, this beautiful plate, to be preserved as a precious heir-loom, and for which they would ever feel truly proud and grateful.

Grand Lodge was then closed, with the customary formalities. The banquet, at which Prince Leopold presided in person, was held at the Corn Exchange.

CONSECRATION OF LOYALTY AND CHARITY LODGE, No. 1584.

THIS interesting event was celebrated on Saturday last, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge.

The warrant, graciously granted by his R. H. the M.W.G.M., enumerates the names of brethren already holding high position in the Craft; and these, combined with those who signed the petition, make up a goodly army of hard working, charitable brethren. This augurs well for the future success of the Lodge, which is designated by the watchwords of the Order.

Upon the solicitation of the petitioners, Bro. James Terry, G.D.C. Herts, and Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was appointed consecrating and installing officer, and he was ably assisted by Bros. Robert Wentworth Little, P.P.G.W. Middlesex, and Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, H. C. Levander P.M. 507, and John Constable P.M. 185. At four o'clock precisely the brethren assembled in the anti-room, and were arranged in order of rank, according to the Constitutions, with the petitioners in the rear; they then entered the Lodge room, amid solemn music, exquisitely rendered by Bro. Thomas Cross. The consecrating officer assumed the chair of K.S., and appointed Bros. R. W. Little and H. C. Levander respectively Senior and Junior Wardens. Upon the Lodge being opened in the three degrees, the presiding master addressed the brethren upon the nature of the meeting, and the principles enunciated by the Order, concluding with the hope that nothing might arise to mar brotherly love, or to make the watchwords a misnomer.

The acting Secretary, Bro. Dodd, read the warrant, and in reply to the Master, the petitioners approved the names of the officers mentioned therein.

An oration was then given by the presiding officer, followed by the anthem:

"Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is, brethren, to dwell together in unity!

It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down unto the beard; even unto Aaron's beard, and went down to the skirts of his clothing.

Like as the dew of Hermon, which fell upon the hill of Zion:

For there the Lord promised his blessing, and life for evermore."

Then followed the first portion of the dedication prayer, with "Omnes," "Sanctus," and Invocation, with the portion of Scripture contained in 2 Chronicles 1—16.

The elements of Consecration, viz.:—Corn, wine and oil having been poured upon the Lodge, and the addresses given, the 122nd Psalm was rendered:—

"I was glad when they said unto me: Let us go into the house of the Lord.

Our feet shall stand within thy gates: O, Jerusalem.

Jerusalem is builded as a city that is compact together.

Whither the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, unto the testimony of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord.

For there is the seat of judgment; even the seat of the house of David.

O pray for the peace of Jerusalem; they shall prosper that love thee.

Peace be within thy walls; and plenteousness within thy palaces.

For my brethren and companions' sakes, I wish thee prosperity.

Yea, because of the house of the Lord our God: I will seek to do thee good."

Also anthem:—

"Glory be to God on high;
Peace on earth,
Good will towards men."

The censer was conveyed round the Lodge three times, followed with addresses and second portion of dedication prayer, upon completion of which the officers designate, and petitioning brethren rearranged themselves in form, and the completion of the Consecration was brought to a close with the following anthem:—

"The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame
Their great original proclaim.
The unwearied sun, from day to day,
Does his Creator's power display,
And publishes to every land,
The work of an Almighty hand;
What though in solemn silence all,
Move round this dark terrestrial ball,
What though no real voice nor sound,
Amid their radiant orbs be found.
In reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice,
For ever singing as they shine,
The hand that made us is divine.

The installation ceremony was then proceeded with. Bro. Henry Martin, P.M. 15, W.M. designate, was presented and obligated; brethren below the degree of Past Masters having retired, a board of fifteen Masters and Past Masters was formed, and Bro. H. Martin, was ably installed, according to ancient custom, as the First Master of the Loyalty and Charity Lodge. The Board of Masters having been closed, the brethren were re-admitted, and the W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. Joseph Peake Richards S.W. Designate S.W., G. Lewis J.D. 444 J.W. Designate J.W., Alfred A. Pendlebury P.M. 1056 Treas., Wm. Dodd 1194 Sec., Wm. Lane O'Neil 1056 S.D., J. Hooper S.D. 444 J.D., G. N. Hayden 44 I.G., W. A. Gorman 27 D.C., Gilbert Tyler. Propositions were tendered for four joining members, and Messrs. M. C. E. Mortimer and Thomas Denbere were proposed for initiation. Bros. Jas. Terry, R. W. Little, H. C. Levander and Thos. Cruss were unanimously elected honorary members of the Lodge for the services rendered in the proceedings of the day. With such influence and laudable rivalry as these brethren are likely to engender, the Lodge may be congratulated on the step pursued. These brethren severally returned thanks. May we here suggest the appointment of an organist to the Lodge, as there is no adjunct to the ceremonies of Freemasonry more likely to inspire due reverence than the strain of solemn music. Often has it been our pleasure to listen to organ accompaniment in various Lodges, and to see its beneficial effect.

The Lodge was closed and the Brethren adjourned to banquet, supplied by the worthy host, Bro. J. H. Stanbury, in his usual good style. The viands were of a recherche character, and personally we think our host for his attention, and heartily recommend the famed Star and Garter, Kew Bridge, to the members of the Craft. It is one of the most pleasant summer resorts, being within easy distance of the great City of the World; communication, both by South Western and North London Railway Companies, frequent and rapid.

Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave evidence of his wonted geniality. He rose and proposed the toast of the Queen and the Craft, which was heartily received, and was followed by the National Anthem from Bro. Cross.

The toast of our Royal Grand Master produced vociferous cheering. The W.M. said our Grand Master was performing a duty in India which would no doubt consolidate the peace of the world—(a waggish brother here suggested "pig sticking!")—and bring into closer relationship the country which he would some day rule as England's future king. Every member of the Craft was anxiously looking forward to the time when his Royal Highness would return in health to our midst, to assume the duties of his high office. (Cheers.) Song—God bless the Prince of Wales.

The W.M. gave the health of the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers.

In proposing the toast and health of the Consecrating Officer, the W.M. spoke at same length, and remarked the readiness at all times of Bro. Terry to assist in promoting the interests of the Craft, those who had witnessed the day's proceedings he felt sure would concur in this. There was not a member of the Order more efficient in the various functions required, and the Master desired to thank him personally, as well as on behalf of the members, for the able assistance he had rendered in consecrating the Loyalty and Charity Lodge. The toast was received with great enthusiasm.

Bro. Terry said: Worshipful Sir and Brethren, it is with feelings of the most profound gratitude that I reply to the toast you have so kindly proposed and so cordially received. There is nothing so pleasing to me as the respect of my brethren, which you, Sir, individually, and many with whom I am more intimately connected, have always been pleased to extend to me. When I gaze from face to face at this board all are so familiar that I cannot feel any new atmosphere surrounding me, and the fond recollections of many happy hours spent in this very room are productive of great pleasure. You, Sir, have presided in other Lodges, with great credit, and I am sure that your presidency here will be no exception. Your efforts to promote the interests of our Institutions, and your adherence to the Order, are highly appreciated by all who know you, and the name of your Lodge is synonymous with yourself. Worshipful Sir, and brethren, I thank you most sincerely for the honour you have done me.

The W.M. gave the Visitors' toast, remarking: We are pleased indeed to see so many visitors around us, and we have to thank many for much of our comfort to-day. To Bros. Gardner and Roe I tender my personal thanks for the use of a portion of the paraphernalia, and also for their recommending our petition. We shall be glad to see them, as well as the rest of the visitors, again in our midst, for we not only intend to be charitable, but hospitable and liberal, as we have been to-night. Visitors always lend éclat to our gatherings, and particularly to any young Lodge, which, without them, would be small. The toast was coupled with the name of Bro. Gardner, W.M. of the Royal Alfred Lodge, who said: I thank you for the kind manner in which you have received this toast, both for myself and the visitors. We have been pleased with the interesting ceremony of to-day, which was performed in a most able manner. This Lodge is numbered 1584, while ours, which was started 7 years since, bears 780, hence I conclude that during this period 804 Lodges have been consecrated. This augurs well for the prosperity of the Craft, which is sure to continue under our M.W.G.M. Brethren, I thank you heartily, and should you desire any further remarks in reply to the toast the brother on my right will speak to order if you so wish.

The Charities followed, the W.M. remarking that they were the grandest and best portion of Masonry, and thought that Masons should be happy in the possession of such magnificent Institutions, and the thanks of the Craft were due to those who conducted them. Brethren, you should all contribute to these as far as possible. As a rule Masons think more of the festive board than of the deserving brethren and orphans, of whom there are many in Freemasonry. It has been calculated that by an annual subscription of 5s from each member under the English Constitution the Institutions would not only be able to admit each applicant, but become even more useful and important. I hope all will subscribe, and those brethren who have not done so, I ask to come to such a determination in the course of the month. With this toast I have the pleasure to couple the names of Bros. Little and Terry. The former responded, and said: I am afraid that, after the peregrination of the pig round the table, I cannot approach the subject so seriously as the case demands. I must remind you, brethren, that your W.M., in his recommending you to support the Charities, was not preaching what he did not practise. With regard to the great utility of these Institutions, I may say that upwards of £9,000 was collected at the last Festival for Aged Freemasons and their Widows. Bro. Terry has accommodation for only a limited number in the Benevolent Institution, the remainder receiving the annuity at their own residences, but in the educational institutions we must provide for the daily increasing number of candidates by enlarging our buildings, this can only be done by increased exertions. We have not yet farmed our children, nor are we likely to do so. The result is, they are brought under one roof. Therefore, if the number is to be increased, we must, of necessity, enlarge our buildings, and provide for the heterogeneous masses daily claiming our assistance, and by carrying out the words of a song we have just heard, "success must ensue."

Bro. Terry said: Upon one occasion, a male annuitant at the Institution was ill, and asked permission for his nurse to sleep in the same room, but the Committee was so careful of the morals of the inmates that permission was refused. Subsequently the young gentleman, of the age of 67 years, was anxious to get married to an inmate. In this instance permission was given, the blushing bride being 70 years, and I am pleased to say the young couple are enjoying good health, and are extremely happy.

The W.M. said he was pleased to know he possessed such able officers as Bros. Pendlebury and Dodd as Treasurer and Secretary. It was impossible to find two more competent for their respective posts, and he was sure the Lodge would not suffer in their hands, but be raised considerably. He proposed the healths of Bros. Pendlebury and Dodd. Bro. Pendlebury replied, thanking the W.M. and brethren for their expressions of appreciation towards himself and colleague, and said: I do hope and believe hereafter you will find our duties discharged with proficiency, sufficient at least to merit the kind words of the W.M.; we shall certainly labour to this end, and strive to make the Lodge equal to any in existence. I am sure it will ultimately succeed and realise the sanguine hopes of all, for it has commenced with the fairest and brightest prospects under our W.M., Bro. Martin. I will conclude with the words of the poet:—

THE BUILDERS.

All are architects of fate,
Working in these walls of time,
Some with massive deeds and great,
Some with ornaments and rhyme.

Nothing useless is, or low,
Each thing in its place is best,
And what seems but idle show,
Strengthens and supports the rest.

For the structure that we raise,
Time is with materials filled;
Our to-days and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.

Truly shape and fashion these,
Leave no yawning gaps between;
Think not, because no man sees,
Such things will remain unseen.

In the olden days of art,
Builders wrought with greatest care
Each minute and unseen part,
For the gods are everywhere.

Let us do our work as well,
Both the unseen and the seen;
Make the house where God may dwell
Beautiful, entire, and clean.

Else our lives are incomplete,
Standing in these walls of time;
Broken stairways where the feet
Stumble as they seek to climb.

Build to-day, then, strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base,
And ascending and secure,
Shall to-morrow find its place.

Thus alone can we attain,
To those turrets where the eye,
Sees the world as one vast plain,
And one boundless reach of sky.

Bro. Dodd conveyed his grateful acknowledgments, suitably concurring in every way with the remarks of Bro. Treasurer.

In reply for the Officers, Bro. Richards S.W. said: Worshipful Master and Brethren, Bro. Lewis and myself have to thank you for the kind manner in which this toast has been proposed and received. I think if we were the most incompetent, with such a Worshipful Master, and under his guidance and tuition, we must become efficient working members. My Bro. Lewis J.W. is more apt at speaking than myself. I therefore depute him to finish. This Bro. Lewis did, and remarked he did not know why the S.W. deputed him the task, but concurred with him, and thanked the W.M. and brethren for their kind expressions. He added: We have made a good beginning, and are not likely to go back. I thank you for the cordial reception of my name. The Tyler's toast closed the proceedings, and the brethren returned to town at 10 p.m. The following brethren we may announce as also present—W. H. Lovejoy 195 New York, George H. Savage 46, Charles G. Hill 1365, Abel Perrot, B.A., 720, F. Brown 174, W. F. Laxton 1238 S.D. Middlesex, C. B. Pane Grand Tyler, and Edward Moscom jun. 1194.

LITERATURE.

Wilson's Shares and Stock Tables for calculating the cost of Shares in Railway, Insurance and other Companies. By R. Erwin Robinson, London: Effingham Wilson, 11 Royal Exchange. 1876.

We cannot do better than use the publisher's very words in order to explain the nature and purpose of these Tables. They are intended "for calculating the cost of any number of shares,—at prices from 1s 3d per share,—with minute gradations—to £310 in value, and from one share to 500 in the following manner:—

From 1-16th of £1 sterling (or 1s 3d) per share, advancing by 16ths to £10 per share.

From £10 per share, advancing by 8ths (or 2s 6d) up to £100 per share.

From £110 advancing by £5 up to £310 per share, and from one to 500 shares.

These Tables are also applicable for calculating English and Foreign Stocks in even hundreds, by considering each £100 stock to represent one share."

This explanation speaks for itself, and will make it evident to our readers that it is well nigh impossible to have a better set of Tables of their kind. This indeed, is proved by the fact of the present issue being the sixth edition.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE sittings of the House of Lords, on Friday and Monday, were extremely brief, and nothing occurred that requires any comment. On Tuesday, the fitness of the Martini Rifle was brought under the notice of the House by the Duke of St. Albans, who cited cases in which complaints had been made as to its fitness for general use throughout the army. A discussion followed, in which the Earl of Cadogan, the Duke of Cambridge, and Lord Cardwell, took part. On Thursday, the Marquis of Salisbury brought in a Bill, which subsequently received a first reading, based on the recommendations of the Report of the Commission appointed to enquire into the revenues of the University of Oxford.

In the House of Commons, on Friday last, considerable progress was made in Committee of Supply, the estimates for several of the Government departments being agreed to. An attempt to get rid of the Lord Privy Seal, or of the salary of his office rather, was defeated by 145 to 50. On the vote for the salaries and expenses of the Civil Service Commission, Mr. Macdonald moved to reduce the vote by £1,700, namely an addition to the salary of the First Commissioner, Lord Hampton, amounting to £500, and £1,200 being the salary of a new Commissioner. The motion was defeated by 87 to 62, and a second amendment by Mr. Mundella, to reduce the vote by £500, was also rejected by 79 to 63. The vote was then agreed to, as were other votes. On the house resuming, a debate ensued on the second reading of the Commons Bill, the subject being an amendment, moved by Mr. Shaw Lefevre. Ultimately the amendment was withdrawn, and the Bill passed its second reading, the Committee being fixed for Thursday week, the 2nd prox. On Monday, the adjourned debate on the Suez Canal Shares Resolution, was brought to a close. Mr. Lowe criticised the conduct of the Government unfavourably. Sir H. D. Wolff defended it. Then followed Mr. Gladstone, who spoke at great length relative to the purchase. Other speakers followed, including the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Roebuck, and Lord George Hamilton, who all supported the resolution, and the debate was brought to a close by Mr. Disraeli in an able and effective speech, after which the House agreed to the vote amidst general cheering. On Tuesday, Mr. Whitbread moved the resolution he had given notice of, on the subject of the Government Slave Circular. This gave rise to a long debate. Mr. Hanbury moved an amendment. Among the speakers who followed were Mr. W. E. Forster, the Attorney-General, Sir H. James, and Mr. Gathorne Hardy. When the last resumed his seat, the adjournment of the debate till Thursday, was moved and agreed to. On Wednesday, the second reading of the Electoral County Boards (Ireland) Bill, was negatived without a division. On the second reading of the Grand Jury Presentments, &c., Ireland Bill, moved by Mr. J. Butt, a division occurred, the Bill being defeated by 181 to 153, whereat there was much cheering from the Liberal benches. On Thursday, the debate on the Slave Circulars of the Government was resumed by Mr. Herschell. Among the speakers were Mr. Forsyth, Sir H. James, Sir W. V. Harcourt, the Hon. D. Plunket, and Mr. Disraeli. A discussion then ensued, the Government being victorious by 293 to 248. Mr. Fawcett then moved an amendment to Mr. Hanbury's amendment, but was defeated by 290 to 245. The latter was then put as a substantive motion and carried.

There have been three elections to the House of Commons. In the first, Colonel Barnes has been returned for East Suffolk, in the second, Mr. Wroughton for the County of Berks, and in the third Mr. W. B. Denison has been returned for the Borough of East Retford. The nomination for Horsham, in which the Solicitor General, Sir Hardinge Giffard, is a candidate, is fixed for to-day, and the polling will come off on Tuesday next.

The Queen held a Court at Buckingham Palace on Thursday afternoon. Of the Royal Family there were present, the Princess of Wales, the Princess Beatrice, the Dukes of Edinburgh and Cambridge, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein. Her Majesty's Body Guard, under the command of the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, and the Yeomen of the Guard with their Captain, Lord Skelmersdale, were both on duty. The Chief Officers of State were in attendance upon the Queen, the Diplomatic and General Circles were numerously represented, and a large number of presentations to Her Majesty were made. As it was a Collar day, the Knights of the several Orders wore their respective Collars. The Duchess of Edinburgh, who is now en route to St. Petersburgh, was prevented from attending the Court in consequence of being in deep mourning for her aunt, the Grand Duchess Marie, sister of the Emperor of Russia.

Beyond all question the most interesting event in the week's history has been the grand Masonic celebration at Oxford. It is barely two years since H.R.H. Prince Leopold was initiated into Freemasonry in the Apollo University Lodge, No. 357. Last year he was appointed S.W., and on Tuesday last he was installed into the Chair of K.S., there being present several Grand and Provincial Grand Officers, together with a strong muster of P.M.'s and members. Afterwards the Brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Clarendon. On Wednesday, His Royal Highness was installed as Grand Master for the Province of Oxford, in the Sheldonian Theatre. It would occupy too much space to give the names of all who were present. The Officers present and past of the Provincial Grand Lodge were in strong force, and of Grand Officers there were present Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy G.M., who performed the ceremony of Installation, the Marquis of Hamilton, G.S.W., Alderman Stone, G.J.W., Rev. J. Simpson, D.C.L., Grand Chaplain, Bro. Æ. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, Bro. John Hervey, Grand Sec., and Sir Albert W. Woods, Grand D. of C. Among Prov. G.MM. and others, were Bros. Earl of Hardwicke, Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Earl of Limerick, Lord de Tabley, Lord Methuen, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, the Earl of Jersey, General Brownrigg, Colonel Burdett, W. W. B. Beach, M.P., T. F. Halsey, M.P., J. B. Monckton, &c., &c. His Royal Highness having been installed, was duly proclaimed and saluted according to ancient form. Bro. Reginald Bird was then reappointed D.P.G.M, and Bro. W. J. D. Campbell was appointed and invested as Provincial Grand Steward in place of the Prince. There next devolved upon the newly installed G.M. the very agreeable duty of presenting to Bro. R. J. Spiers, a splendid testimonial, consisting of a splendid silver inkstand, an album with the names of the subscribers, and a purse of 500 guineas, as a slight recognition from the brethren of the Province of the eminent services to Masonry which Bro. Spiers had rendered during his twenty years' tenure of the office of Deputy P.G.M. The gift was feelingly and suitably acknowledged, after which a congratulatory address from the G.O. of Italy was presented by Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D. The Lodge was shortly after closed; but in the evening a banquet, presided over by His Royal Highness, was held in the Corn Exchange. Thus Masonry is to be congratulated on the occurrence of a second auspicious event in the course of less than twelvemonths.

While this important ceremony was being enacted at Oxford, an elder brother—in more senses than one—of His Royal Highness, namely, the Duke of Edinburgh, was present at a meeting, presided over by the Lord Mayor, at the Mansion House, for the purpose of promoting the cause of the National Training School for Music. A meeting of this character, it may be remembered, was held some time since at Marlborough House, under the presidency of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, when a resolution was passed to establish free musical scholarships in the City of London and Metropolitan district. The meeting of Wednesday was held to give effect to this resolution. The Duke of Edinburgh moved the adoption of the report presented by the City of London Committee. Mr. Morley, one of the honorary secretaries, read the report, from which it appeared that already 93 scholarships have been provided, and this number was largely increased before the close of the meeting. The report was adopted unanimously. Other resolutions were proposed and agreed to, after which the Lord Mayor proposed a vote of thanks to the Duke for his presence on the occasion, and the Duke, after acknowledging the compliment, proposed a similar vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor for his kindness in presiding. Lunch was then served in the Long Parlour, the only toasts being those of the Queen and the Duke. Among those who have given scholarships must be mentioned the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, one each, the Corporation of London ten, the Lord Mayor one, the Society of Arts four, Messrs. Rothschild two, besides several of the City companies and others.

The Prince of Wales, in his Indian tour, has reached Nepaul, having reached the Camp at Bushussa on Saturday last. Sir Jung Bahadoor, the Nepaulese Prime Minister, crossed into British territory for the purpose of meeting His Royal Highness and conducting him within Nepaulese territory. A picked force of troops of all arms was drawn up to receive the Prince, and was inspected by him before the ceremonial of the day was over. Presents were interchanged, the meeting being most cordial on both sides. The sport in the Kumaon Serai during the previous week had been very fair, and preparations on a grand scale had been made for a grand tiger hunt. On Monday the Prince and Sir Jung Bahadoor had great success. Upwards of 600 elephants were employed in beating the jungle, and seven tigers were shot, six falling to the Prince's own rifle. The Prince is reported to be in the enjoyment of excellent health. We shall soon hear of his return to England, when, doubtless, he will experience a right hearty welcome.

Another fatal collision occurred off Dover, towards the end of last week, by which a German ship ran into a British vessel, the Strathclyde. Of a crew and passengers numbering together about 70, little more than one half have been saved, over 30, and among them several ladies, having been lost. An inquest has been held at Dover, on the bodies of certain persons recovered, a verdict of manslaughter being returned, and there will, of course, be an inquiry by the Board of Trade. The Franconia is under arrest, in Victoria Docks, and it is reported that she did not render all the assistance in her power to the disabled vessel. The body of a young lady that was brought into Ramsgate has been identified by Mr. Boucicault, brother of the actor, Mr. Dion Boucicault, as that of his step-daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Green, aged 29, who had only quite recently been married to an officer in the Indian army.

Our operations in the neighbourhood of Perak, consequent upon the murder of Mr. Birch, the British resident, have been highly successful, and it is reported that several of the persons implicated have been made prisoners. Both the naval and military authorities appear to have co-operated most zealously, and the duty of punishing the guilty has thus far been performed most efficiently, though not without the loss of more than one valuable life.

It is always satisfactory to learn that the memory of a great man is about to receive public recognition. A public meeting was held on Tuesday, at the Westminster Palace Hotel, for the purpose of founding a Professorship of Ancient History in the University of Cambridge, in memory of the late Right Rev. Connop Thirlwall, Bishop of St. Davids. Bishop Thirlwall will always be remembered as one of our grandest historical scholars, and his History of Greece is one of the best that has been compiled by an Englishman. Dr. Thompson, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, took the chair, and there were present, the Bishop of Melbourne, the Dean of Lincoln, the Dean of Lichfield, Dr. C. Scott, head master of Westminster School, Mr. Beresford Hope, and others. It is proposed to raise a sum of £5,000 towards the endowment of a Thirlwall Professorship of History, as one is greatly needed at Cambridge. A vote of thanks to the Chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

From the annual report of the Newspaper Press Fund it appears that the number of new members elected during the past year is thirty-two, making a total of 337 members, of whom 227 reside in the metropolis and 110 in the country. There are 57 life members, and grants to the number of 36, representing a sum of £731 were made. The stock and securities to the Credit of the Fund, by the purchase of £600 New Three Per Cent. Consols, now amount to £9,600, and the ordinary income is estimated at £773 2s. Eleven members have been removed from the roll for the non-payment of subscriptions in arrears, and four members have died. A sum of £25 has been placed at the disposal of Dr. Richardson, the honorary physician, to enable him to meet any pressing cases that may be brought under his care.

On Thursday a numerous and influential deputation of those interested in cotton manufacture waited on the Marquis of Salisbury, Secretary of State for India, to represent to his Lordship the difficulties they labour under in competing with the cotton spinners established in India, and praying for the abolition of the Indian import duties on cotton goods and yarns. The noble Marquis, in reply, stated the nature of the instructions he had sent out to India, their object being to secure the abolition of the tax at some fixed date, and to introduce a graduated scale of reduction in the meantime. The deputation expressed their thanks to his lordship, and retired.

Both University Crews have been going through a severe course of hard work, and if the accounts we read in the daily and other papers are to be relied upon, we may anticipate a very close struggle, on the eventful day, for what is called the Blue Riband of the Thames. There has been another sensation match at the Agricultural Hall, Weston having challenged any one on the following terms: Weston to walk and the other to get over his ground in any way he chose. These were accepted by a pedestrian named Rowell. Up to 10.45 p.m. on Thursday, Weston had accomplished 187 miles, while Rowell was 48 miles to the bad. To the surprise of the judges, press, and the public, however, an announcement was made in the course of the afternoon of that day to the effect, that Rowell had been allowed from the very first, a start of 50 miles. "Under these circumstances," says the Standard, "we consider any further comment on the affair superfluous."

The elections in France have gone most decisively in favour of the extreme Radicals, of whom M. Gambetta is the acknowledged head. M. Buffet, the Prime Minister, was rejected at each of the four places for which he was a candidate. This and the decision of the election in favour of his Radical opponents has led to his resignation, and Marshal Mac Mahon has entrusted the formation of a new Cabinet to M. Dufaure but the change in the personnel of the Ministry will be very inconsiderable. The consequence of all this has been a kind of panic on the Bourse, and in the good City of Paris. People are asking What next? and there seems to be some doubt as to the kind of answer that will be given. The status quo in the insurgent provinces of Turkey remains, but the Porte has taken another step in the right direction, and has fixed a term within which the insurgents must lay down their arms, granting them an amnesty if they accept these conditions. This must more than ever incline the Great Powers of Europe to uphold the dignity and integrity of Turkey. The Turks are gentlemen, and the insurgents are—well, we need not describe them. Anything more overwhelming than the defeat of Don Carlos and his supporters by the troops of King Alphonso can hardly be conceived. Estella has been captured and the Carlists have been defeated and are flying in all directions, so that peace will no doubt resume its sway in the course of a short time. This is satisfactory, but what shall we say of the following telegram, transmitted to the Standard by its correspondent at Madrid. "The Archbishop of Toledo and other prelates have petitioned the Cortes to grant Catholic unity, and to prohibit the exercise of any other worship on Spanish territory." We hope the Spanish Cortes will have sense enough and patriotism enough to reject this petition with all the scorn it merits. Spain will doubtless remember that she is living in the light of the nineteenth century, not in the darkness of the Middle ages.

We were in error last week in stating that Bro. Terry had intimated there would be an increase to the annuitants of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Two members of the committee, it appears, have expressed an intention to make a proposition to this effect, and there is every probability that the motion will be carried.

Bro. S. Adams, the courteous manager of the Royal Music Hall, Holborn, announces his annual benefit for Thursday, the 9th of March, on which occasion a host of talent will be present to give their valuable services. Bro Adams has occupied the position of manager for the last 14 years, and during that period has gained a host of friends who will, no doubt on this occasion rally round him.

Bro. George Reeves Smith, the General Manager of the Royal Aquarium, Brighton, has tendered his resignation, having been selected to fill a similar post at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster. The directors and shareholders of the Brighton establishment must regret this, as the successful state of its finances, as declared at the last meeting, was attributable to our worthy brother's indefatigable exertions as manager and caterer.

Miss Emily Mott has just concluded an engagement at the Royal Aquarium, Brighton, where her reception on each occasion was most enthusiastic. Her perfect vocalisation in the songs of "The Minstrel Boy," "The Banks of Allan Water," and "The Skipper and his Boy" received deserved applause from crowded and fashionable audiences. As her voice is greatly improved, we hope soon to hear her in oratorio, where she would be heard to advantage.

THE DRAMA.

"Othello" at the Lyceum.—"The Gascon" at the Olympic.

IN the entire range of Shakspearian impersonations the part of Othello is probably by far the most difficult. We have seen more than one adequate representative of Hamlet, and Iagos of fair mettle by the dozen, but we know of but one Othello, and that was Edmund Kean. Garrick, with all his genius, could never entirely surmount his physical disqualifications for the character, and it may be remembered, by students of theatrical history, that in this part, and in that of Romeo, his much inferior contemporary, Barry, was more than his match. The performance of Edmund Kean has probably never been excelled, and as each fresh actor essays the part, the conviction seems to grow upon us that in this century, at all events, he never will. Mr. Irving can only be said to add one more to the long list of its failures. In saying this, however, we would not be understood as urging that his conception does not show signs of careful study, or that it fails to afford a large amount of satisfaction to the audience. The character represented is powerful and original, but it is not Othello. In the earlier scenes we missed the enthusiasm, the hearty self-confidence of the soldier as Shakspeare painted him, and the character we did see was already one tinged with an unnatural melancholy. When doubts began to be suggested to him, he was too ready to listen to them, and long before the climax of the play had been reached the torrent of passion into which he had fallen was already beyond his control. The climax and catastrophe were consequently wanting in force and impressiveness. In some of these respects the actor may hope to improve, but we doubt if he will ever achieve more than un succès d'estime in this character. Miss Bateman as Emilia was more successful, and indeed there was much real force and intelligence in this lady's impersonation. Mr. Forrester also appeared to advantage in the character of Iago; but the Desdemona of Miss Isabel Bateman was weak and monotonous. The performance will probably draw better than Macbeth, but it will not have the success which was achieved by Mr. Irving's first Shakspearian impersonation—Hamlet.

A new drama, adapted to the English stage from a French original produced a few years since at the Gaité, Paris, was performed for the first time at the OLYMPIC on Monday last. The play may be considered as a semi-historical one, since several of the characters, notably Mary Queen of Scots, and her romantic admirer, Chastelard, are personages who have figured with effect in history. But the hero, a Gascon adventurer, is a purely fictitious character, and fictitious also to a great extent is the story. The play possesses a fair degree of interest, is well mounted, and capitally acted: and we think it more than probable that it may achieve a genuine, if not a lasting success. The hero is of course played by Mr. Neville, and the part could scarcely be in better hands. Queen Mary is interpreted with some success by Mrs. Rousby, and another rather important character, a maid of honour to the Queen, by Miss Fanny Josephs. The part of Chastelard is rathly weakly played by Mr. W. H. Fisher.

A drama, founded upon the novel of "Bleak House," is being performed at the GLOBE; but we must defer our notice of this until next week.

The ceremonies of installation will be rehearsed after the regular business of the Chapter on Tuesday evening next, by Comp. John Boyd. The following Comps. made up the assembly :—George Newman, G. E. Lemann, J. Allsopp, J Smith, W. H. Green, G. Gilbert, H. W. Linder.

Provincial Grand Lodge of Wigton and Kirkcudbright, No. 21.—This Lodge held its annual meeting on Friday, the 18th of February, at St Cuthbert's Lodge Room, Kirkcudbright. Present—Bros. Bell Treas., James Cowan acting S.D., John Pearson acting J.D., Lawrentius Norén acting I.G., and James Livingstone Tyler. The R.W.P.G.M., Captain Harriott, having granted commissions to the following brethren, they were installed in their respective offices, viz., A. McK. Millman R.W.D.P.G. Master, W. McHuraith R.W.S.G.W., Jas Ritchie R.W.J.G.W., John Lowden P.G. Sec. Elective officers were chosen—Bros. W. McLellan P.G. Treas., John Pearson P.G.J.D., Wm. Shaw P.G.S.D., Jas. Cowan I.G., Jas. Livingstone Tyler, R. Terry, Castle Douglas.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the "Hercules," Leadenhall-street, on Thursday evening last, 24th Feb., when the fifteen sections were worked. Present—Bros. Musto W.M., Austin S.W. and Preceptor, Horsley J.W., Webb S.D., Blackall J.D., Maidwell I.G., Grammer Hon. Sec., Atkins Treas., and numerous other brethren. The sections were worked by the following brethren :—Salmon (2), Blackall, Collins, Lowe, Williams, Horsley, Barnes, Crane, Webb, Ellis, Brient, Gross and Austin. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73.—This Lodge celebrated its 122nd Anniversary by a grand festival and ball at the Assembly Rooms, Campbell-street, Glasgow, on Wednesday, 23rd February, the R.W.M., Bro. G. McDonald, in the chair, Bros. A. McLeod S.M., J. Ballantine S.W., and J. Hanbridge J.W. acting as croupiers. There was a large turn out of brethren and their lady friends. Full justice having been done to the excellent repast, provided by Bros. Sinclair and Kemblingson, the Chairman gave "The Queen" (National Anthem), "The Prince of Wales, Grand Patron of Scotch Masonry," and the rest of the Royal Family (God Bless the Prince of Wales). He then gave "The Three Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland." Bro. G. W. Wheeler replied, as a member of the English Constitution as well as the Scotch, pointing out the respective merits of the two systems, and urging on them the desirability of emulating their English brethren in the extent of their Charities. He also alluded to the high position the Craft had now attained, as evidenced by the fact that at this very time the brethren were assembled in Oxford to instal Prince Leopold as P.G.M. of Oxfordshire. Bro. Hanbridge, of the Provincial Grand Lodge, made a neat speech. Bro. J. Kinnaird P.G.S. replied, stating that they were doing good work; with regard to benevolence, they had been enabled to more than quadruple the amount they formerly could give to each of the calls for help, and yet they had £700 invested, while they gave more than even the Grand Lodge itself. They also visited every Lodge in the province, to fully see into their mode of work, and he was glad to say they found nothing to blame in that of Thistle and Rose. Bro. W. B. Pattison then gave "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers." He dilated very much on the fact that, as Masons, we did not confine our sympathies to the members of the Craft.

Macdonald Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 104.—A meeting of this Lodge was held at the Mason's Hall, Coleman-street, on Saturday, the 19th inst. The brethren attended in regretful mourning for the late Deputy Grand Mark Master, Bro. W. Romaine Callender, whose lamented decease was the subject of generally expressed regret. The W.M. Bro. R. Berridge opened the Lodge at the appointed hour, and amongst others present were the W. Bro. W. Worrell P.G. Org. I.P.M., Bros. T. W. White S.W., N. Ritherdon M.O., the V.W. Bros. Thos. Maggy P.G.M.O. and Treasurer, and James Stevens P.G.J.O. P.M.'s, C. Hammerton P.G.D.C. P.M. and Secretary, Bros. W. P. Collins S.D., F. H. Cozens J.D. and Organist, N. J. F. Barnett, I.G., G. Yaxley D.C., G. W. Verry W.M. Temple Mark Lodge W.S., J. Close C.S., W. C. Hales, J. K. Pitt, H. P. Partridge, J. F. Honey, F. G. Baggett, J. R. Williams, H. H. Cook, W. Grant, &c. There were no visitors on this occasion, and the business was not so heavy as usual in this Lodge. Bro. Edwin Frost, of No. 1347, was duly advanced with full and perfect ceremonial. The W.M. offered his services as Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Mark Benevolent Fund, an offer which was cordially accepted, with promises of support. The Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The customary toasts were severally proposed and responded to, the only one requiring special mention being that of the Deputy Grand Mark Master and the Past and Present Officers of Grand Mark Lodge, in response to which Bro. Maggy feelingly alluded to the loss the Order had sustained by the death of Bro. Callender, whose good works, both in Craft and Mark Masonry, were so generally recognised both in the metropolis and in his large and important province. In the noblemen about to be appointed in his stead, Bro. Maggy hailed an influential addition to the future prospects of the Mark Degree, and having further expressed his conviction of the earnestness with which the officers of the Grand Lodge endeavoured to perform their duty to the Order, thanked the brethren in the name of his colleagues present for the compliments the W.M. had paid to them. Charity was not forgotten, and on the toast of "The Mark Benevolent Fund" being responded to, the offered Stewardship of the W.M. was gratefully acknowledged. The very enjoyable evening was enlivened by some capital songs, Bro. Cozens presiding with his usual ability and urbanity at the pianoforte, and was brought to a close at a reasonable hour by the Tyler's toast.

Lodge of Prudent Brethren, No. 145.—The first meeting of this Lodge, since the Centenary Festival, was held on Tuesday, 22nd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, Bros. E. H. Thiellay P.G.P. Middlesex W.M., Moulte S.W., Hazlett J.W., John Boyd P.G.P. Treas., G. S. Santos P.G.S. Sec., Manby Asst. Sec., Hughes S.D., Leggett J.D., Lewis I.G., Lyster D.C., and Bros. F. Chinnery, Talbot, Chorer, Taylor, Wood, Cuffid, Lister and P.M.'s Bros. G. Parkers I.P.M. and J. Bull. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. A. Mears was impressively initiated by the W.M., and Bro. G. Parkers, by the courtesy of the W.M., raised Bros. Hill, Rees, Curtis, Deaves and Sims. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. John Boyd P.M. P.G.P., and recorded on the minutes, for the services rendered by him on all occasions to the Lodge, more especially for his exertions in connexion with the Centenary Festival, every detail of which was efficiently carried out. The charity jewel was voted to Bro. G. Parkers I.P.M., for having served two Stewardships for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Votes of thanks were carried to Bro. Read for his artistic production of the initiation cards and menus, and also to Bro. J. Wi[illegible], F.H.S., for the floral decorations. Bro. H. Dicketts was proposed as an hon. member. The Lodge was then closed, there being no banquet.

Tranquillity Lodge, No. 185.—There was a goodly muster of members, and not a few visitors present at 3 p.m. on Monday, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, when the Lodge was opened in due form by Bro. John H. Ross W.M. A ballot having been held for Mr. N. Harris, and having been declared satisfactory, the W.M. vacated the chair in favour of Bro. M. Harris, one of the oldest P.M.'s of the Lodge, in order that the latter might have the pleasure of initiating his youngest son into Masonry. The ceremony was most ably performed, and, considering that Bro. Harris, as we were informed, had not filled the office for the space of fifteen years, we cannot withhold from him our very warm congratulations. Towards the important hour of five, other members flocked in in considerable numbers, and the report of the auditors having been read and agreed to, and Bro. Bilby O. having congratulated the Lodge on the increasing amount of their Benevolent Fund, the ceremony of installing Bro. J. D. Barnett, W.M. Elect, into the chair of K.S. was begun. For this purpose Bro. Constable P.M. took the chair, and if we say that he performed this duty with all his wonted ability, our readers will be satisfied that it was done as few other members of the Craft could have done it. The W.M. having been proclaimed and saluted according to custom, proceeded to invest the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year, namely, John Peartree S.W. and Treasurer, D. Posener J.W., P. Levy Secretary, G. S. Pare S.D., W. D. Bayley J.D., F. Croaker I.G., A. Posener D.C., J. Barber W.S., F. W. Sadler W.S., G. Bilby O., and J. Rawles, Tyler, to each of whom the W.M. offered a few kindly words of gratulation. There then devolved upon Bro. Barnett that most agreeable of all a Master's duties, the presentation to his predecessor in the chair of a testimonial, as once honourable and substantial, in recognition by the Lodge of valuable services rendered on its behalf. This duty was most feelingly discharged by Bro. Barnett, who spoke in eloquent, yet just, terms of the manner in which Bro. Ross had filled the office of W.M. Bro. Ross, in a very appropriate speech, acknowledged the testimonial, which consisted of a P.M.'s jewel and an ormolu clock and two vases. He admitted that he had done his best to promote the well being of the Lodge, and he would certainly yield to no one in his anxiety to promote the cause of charity. He feared, however, the gift was somewhat beyond his deserts, though he hoped, in his present position as a Past Master, to still further aid the cause of Masonry. The jewel bears following inscription:—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Tranquillity, No. 185, to Bro. John H. Ross, in recognition of his services as W.M. during the past year. Given in open Lodge, 21st February 1876, together with an ormolu clock and vases." We may add that the clock and vases not only form part of a very graceful tribute of respect to a worthy brother, but they confer infinite credit on the artistic taste of the Lodge committee who made the selection. After this interesting episode the Lodge, by command of the W.M., was called to refreshment, or in other words, adjourned to a banquet, in what is known as the Pillar room of the hotel. It may seem churlish on the part of a guest to quarrel with his fare, but we have been present at many a better, though not more costly, banquet, in spite of the French menu we found on the table before us; nor, considering the laxity of attendance, are we any wise surprised that the Athelstan and, we believe, other Lodges should have forsaken the Terminus Hotel for other quarters. Be this as it may, the banquet passed off very well, and when the cloth was removed and the columns charged, the W.M., in a few happy sentences, proposed the first toast, "The Queen and the Craft." Bro. Bilby then sang with admirable spirit the national anthem. The toast of the M.W.G.M. "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales" was then given, Bro. Barnett expressing his firm belief that His Royal Highness on returning to England would, as far as the onerous duties of his high rank would enable him, exhibit actively that deep interest in Freemasonry he was known to take in all its proceedings. Bro. Hubbard sang "God Bless the Prince of Wales." This was followed by the toast of the P.G.M., the W.M eulogising on the distinguished merits of the Earl of Carnarvon, both as a statesman and a Mason. Bro. E. P. Albert A.G.P. briefly but appropriately responded to the health of the "The Deputy Grand Master and Grand Officers." Bro. Harris said a few words in acknowledgment of his health as an Initiate. With the toast of "The Visitors," whose presence was acknowledged in a few complimentary terms, was associated the name of Bro. Dodson W.M. 180, Joppa. When he had said his say, Bro. Hilm W.M. 1017 (Montefiore) expressed the very great pleasure he felt at having assisted at the Lodge meeting and banquet, offering at the same time a few words to a similar purport on behalf of Bro. Regen, of Vienna, who was unable to express himself adequately in the English language, but who was nevertheless anxious to record his pleasure at being present. Bro. Cohen W.M. 205, also responded to the same toast. The I.P.M. then proposed the health of the W.M., anticipating that the Lodge would flourish under his rule, and that at the end of his year of office, when the W.M. vacated the chair in favour of another member, the condition of the Lodge would be as prosperous, or if not more prosperous than before. The W.M. replied that he confidently relied on the brethren for their support in the fulfilment of his arduous duties. He knew that reliance would not be misplaced, and though he could not command success, he hoped that by the aid of the G.A.O.T.U. he should realise the belief of Bro. Ross, and that his successor would find the condition of the Lodge to the full as satisfactory as it was now when he was entering on his year of office. Before sitting down the W.M. proposed the health of the I.P.M., who responded briefly. Then followed the toast of the P.M.'s, to which Bro. M. Harris replied, and then that of "The Tranquillity Benevolent Fund," which was acknowledged by Bro. Saul Solomon on behalf of the Trustees. Bro. Solomon spoke well to the point, drawing special attention to the fact that the relief administered was so administered in secret, the names of the recipients never under any circumstances being divulged. During a brief interval of rest, a sum of fifteen-and-a-half guineas was subscribed to this Fund. Then Bros. Peartree and Posener acknowledged the toast of "The Treasurer, Secretary, Senior and Junior Wardens, and the rest of the Officers," Bro. Pare as S.D. not rising to speak, as what the Peartree said would not unnaturally be endorsed by the Pare. Bro. Bilby, however, spoke at length, recording a very interesting experience of his own in Masonry, which occurred years since in the West Indies. "The Tyler's toast" having been duly honoured, the Lodge was closed, and after coffee and leave-taking, the brethren dispersed to their several homes. The following is a list of the visitors present, namely:—Brothers J. Harris, Regen, Vienna, Albert A.G.P., Ruben 12, Andrew 25, Daniel J.W. 65, Stuart P.M. 141, Burke 141, Grant 115, Zimmerman W.M. 180, Benzer 192, Cohen P.M. 205, Jacobs W.M. 205, Bumstead P.M. 548, Hamilton P.M. 554, Parker 619, C. Harris 889, Stone 889, Blunt W.M. 1017, Pollitzer P.M. 1017, Braham P.M. 1022, Hegold 1050, Corner S.W. 1139, Moss 1185, Perry W.M. 1185, Holland 1216, Jekell W.M. 1319, Willard 1319, Abbott 1385, Sawyer 1321. In the intervals between the toasts several songs and glees were sung. Bros. Child and Rose being the soloists, while Bros. Perry, Child, Moss and Hubbard sang the glees, which included By Celia's Arbour and the Chafers. This part of the evening's proceedings afforded all present the most extreme pleasure. Bro. Child's rendering of "Sally in our Alley" was simply charming, while the others who, we believe, had never sung together before, and had not rehearsed for this occasion, were equally successful.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Wednesday, the 23rd of February, at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street. Present—Bros. D. Posener W.M., Blackall S.W., Croaker J.W., J. K. Pitt Sec., J. Constable Treas., Hollands S.D., Ockenden J.D., Tollis I.G., Christopher Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. E. Gottheil Preceptor, Bloomfield, Ross, and a full Lodge of brethren. Business—After the opening of the Lodge, the usual proceedings as to the confirmation of minutes, and the rest of the etceteras being disposed of, the first and third ceremonies were ably rehearsed by the W.M., Bros. Trigg and Gomm acting as candidates. The Charity Association connected with this Lodge will draw to a close in March next, the ever active Bro. Constable is about to commence Association No. 2, for which a nucleus of names have already been given in. Brethren who prefer obtaining Life Governorships by the payment of easy installments, rather than paying a lump sum, have now a good opportunity. No. 1. Association will very shortly have paid to the Institutions no less a sum than 600 guineas—no dispicable amount, considering that it has been collected, at 1s per week, in less than four years. There are many of these societies in London, all of which deserve to be well supported. By the proposition of Bro. Gottheil, which was seconded by the J.W., Bro. Blackall was elected to preside at the next meeting. This brother has, in a comparatively short time, made considerable progress in the knowledge of the ritual, which he works with fluency and remarkable correctness. Brethren desirous of instruction cannot do better than attend this Lodge, in which so many have attained unsurpassed proficiency.

Union Lodge, No. 332.—This Lodge held its regular fortnightly meeting in the Hall, 170 Buchanan-street, on Monday, February 21st. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. McKirdy the R.W.M., Bro. J. B. McNair I.P.M. opened the Lodge, and there being one gentleman proposed and accepted for initiation, he received the E.A. degree in the careful way in which Bro. McNair always works. The R.W.M. having now arrived, he assumed the chair, and the committee appointed to see to the pecuniary wants of a new hall, made their report, and had the matter remitted back to them to make further enquiries.

Athol Lodge, No. 413.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Tuesday, 22nd February, at 213 Buchanan-street. The chair was taken by the R.W.M. Bro. J. Louttit, who was supported by Bros. J. Nellin S.M., Bakare D.M., Leids S.W., Holmes J.W., Graham Secretary, Agnew Treasurer, J. Wallace I.P.M., and the whole of the other office bearers. An application was read from Mr. George Sword, and at the request of the R.W.M. he was initiated by Bro. J. Annand. The Lodge having been raised, Bro. Louttit passed Bro. John Thorn to the 2nd degree. Amongst the Visitors present were the Rev. J. Rice, of Acacia Lodge, 225 I.C., J. Fergerson R.W.M. 116, J. Melville 178, J. H. Wood R.W.M. 335, R. Currie and G. W. Wheeler 73.

Wiltshire Lodge of Fidelity, No. 663.—This Lodge held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, the 17th of February, at the Town Hall, Devizes. Present—Bros. F. B. Cox W.M., J. W. Burman, M.D., S.W., William Nott P.M. Sec., D. A. Gibbs P.M. Treas., W. H. Burt S.D., H. Howse J.D., S. Badham Org., W. Day Steward. P.M.'s Bros. H. J. Ward I.P.M., the Rev. H. Richardson, M.A., Chaplain, J. H. Chandler, &c. Business—Ballots were taken for two candidates for initiation, Mr. G. S. A. Waylen (son of one of the earliest members of the Lodge) and Mr. W. H. Bush, which proved unanimous in both instances, and they being in attendance, were successively initiated by the W.M., the charge being subsequently delivered by the Secretary, Bro. Nott P.M. The Charity bag was afterwards sent round in favour of the Assistant Tyler, who is extremely ill, and the appeal proved very successful.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The regular meeting of the above Lodge was held at the Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney, on Tuesday last, 22nd February. Present—Bros. Perrin W.M., Cambridge S.W., Smith J.W., Wesley S.D., Johnson I.G. Wallington Preceptor, also Bros. Allen, Barker, &c. The W.M. worked the three degrees in a very steady and able manner. Bro. Cambridge was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Lodge was then closed with prayer. On Thursday, the 7th March, the annual supper in connection with this Lodge of Instruction will take place, at seven o'clock.

Whittington Lodge, No. 862.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, the 21st inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Present—Bros. T. Kingston W.M., Walker S.W., Walmisley as J.W., Jas. Weaver P.P.G.O. Secretary, Blakemore J.D. Middlesex P.M., C. Roberts as I.G., S. Godden W.S., and Past Masters Bros. Hurlstone, Pate, Brown, Sedgwick, F. H. Roberts, Ross, W. Devine, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Collinson and Brown were raised to the third degree. Bro. Walker was elected trustee to the Benevolent Fund. The W.M. gave notice of motion for the revision of the bye-laws. Two gentlemen were proposed for initiation at the next regular meeting. The Lodge was then closed. Although no banquet was announced, the W.M., in a spirit of liberality, provided a very good and substantial supper. He proposed the usual loyal toasts. The Prince of Wales was upholding the dignity of this great country in India, and every Mason and loyal subject would wish to see him return to his native country in renewed health. Bro. Walker S.W. said he had great pleasure in proposing the toast of the W.M. He was one whom all respected. He had but recently occupied the chair, but he had shown them what his capabilities were, and at the expiration of his year of office the brethren of the Whittington Lodge, he was sure, would have reason to be proud of him. The W.M., in a few, but appropriate words, responded to the toast, and then proposed the toast of the Past Masters. Bro. James Weaver, P.M. and Secretary, had always discharged his duties to their satisfaction; another old and valued P.M. was also among them. He alluded to Bro. Hurlstone, who, he hoped, might be spared many years to rank among their number. The toast was responded to, and Bros. Lancaster and H. M. Levy, P.M. 188, responded for the visiting brethren. The brethren then separated, after passing a very enjoyable evening. Bro. Walker gave a capital recitation. The W.M. related some interesting anecdotes. Bro. Blakemore and others also contributed to the harmony. The visitors were Bros. H. J. Brown 871, S. Kingston 1269, J. W. Baldwin P.M. 1343, Lancaster 1287, W. K. Mackenzie, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Elliot 749 was elected a joining member. Bro. J. T. Moss P.M. then initiated Messrs. Wingate and Beckwith into the Order. A board of installed Masters was formed, and Bro. James Baxter Langley, W.M. elect, was presented to the Lodge, and installed by the retiring W.M. in a very perfect manner. The W.M. then invested the officers:—E. H. Thiellay P.A.G.P. Middlesex S.W., T. J. Sabine P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex J.W., H. A. Dubois P.P.A.G.D.C. Middlesex Treasurer, F. Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex Secretary (for the 4th time), E. W. Dovereux S.D., S. Woolf J.D., A. F. Loos I.G., J. Mason Organist, B. Wright Asst. Secretary, J. Johnson D.C., M. Underwood W.S., H. Faiji C.S. and J. Gilbert P.G.T. Middlesex Tyler. A vote of thanks was accorded to the W.M., and recorded on the minutes, for the able manner he had performed the ceremony of installation. A notice of motion was given to present £31 10s to the three Masonic Charities, and a ten guinea jewel to be presented to the Secretary. A very elegant gold P.M.'s jewel was presented to the retiring W.M., for the services rendered by him to the Lodge during his year of office. There were several propositions for initiation. The new bye-laws were passed. The Lodge was then closed, and a sumptuous banquet followed. The visitors were Bros. A. G. Dodson W.M. 188, J. Hawker P.M. 871, M. A. Lochhead 871, T. Kingston W.M. 862, B. Stead 813, T. Painter P.M. 749, H. R. Harker 76, J. M. Kender 1512, T. W. Clark 1342, J. W. Hiscox 1512, &c.

Peckham Lodge, No. 1475.—The second installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall on Thursday, the 17th inst. The brethren assembled at the somewhat early hour of four o'clock, and at once proceeded to the first business on the summons, viz.: The confirmation of the minutes of the previous regular meeting of the Lodge, and those of a Lodge of Emergency, which a pressure of business had rendered necessary. This having been done in the usual manner observed amongst Masons, the principle business of the evening was proceeded with. The S.W., Bro. Walter Charles Canton, was presented to Bro. J. T. Dalby, the retiring W.M., as the brother who had been selected to preside over the Lodge during the ensuing year, and Bro. Dalby only expressed the sentiments of every member of the Lodge when he declared himself "heartily rejoiced at the selection made." The customary ceremony was then gone through by Bro. Dalby, whose rendering of the installation was perfect, both as regards ritual and elocution, and at the completion of the charges he received his just reward in the unanimous plaudits of the large assemblage of brethren. Having been duly installed, Bro. Canton proceeded to invest his officers, who, it may be stated, were appointed in rotation, viz.: Bros. Duck S.W., Bro. Stephens J.W., Harvey S.D., Jackson J.D. The only appointment vacant, that of I.G., was conferred upon Bro. Murley, and those of Treasurer and Secretary continue to be held by Bros. Warren P.M., and Gomperts P.M., whose services on behalf of the Lodge have not failed to obtain the recognition they have deserved. In fact, the announcement by the W.M. of the brethren appointed to office was in each instance received with hearty and unanimous expressions of approbation. The ceremonies of installation and investiture were presided over by Bro. David Rose P.M., who holds the office of D.C. in this as well as in several other Lodges. The newly installed W.M. commenced the duties of his exalted position by initiating into the "mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry," Messrs. Dalley, Measom and Smithers, and although exhibiting some tokens of the nervousness incidental to a first appearance in the chair, he delivered the ritual in a manner which proved that he intends to sustain the character the Peckham Lodge has gained for the perfection of its working. The Lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren proceeded to the discussion of an excellent banquet. The usual toasts were proposed and duly honoured, and Bro. Dalby the I.P.M. was presented with a ten guinea Past Master's Jewel as a token of the brethren's recognition of the valuable services he has rendered to the Lodge during his year of office. The proceedings were enlivened by the vocal displays of several brethren, whose efforts were, however, to some extent, restrained by the absence of a piano, a defect which will doubtless be remedied at future meetings of the Lodge. In conclusion, it may be remarked, that the Peckham Lodge, which has just commenced the third year of its existence, has thus far shown remarkable prosperity. It numbers on its books sixty subscribing and two honorary members, no less than twenty gentlemen having been initiated during the past twelve months. Among the numerous visitors were Bros. Allan C. Wylie W.M. 869, S. H. Wagstaff P.M. 1216, Henry W. Goempertz S.D. 1364, Dann P.M. 72, Henry Moore P.M. 73, Chas. P. Hogard P.M. 265, G. Edmonds P.M. 975, Smith P.M. 1172, Reynolds 169, Jas. Garner S.D. 975, J. Drew J.D., 1261, &c., &c.

Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507.—The regular meeting of this young and flourishing Lodge was held on the 18th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road, King's Cross. Present—Bros. J. Michael W.M., Jas. Willing Jun. I.P.M., Timms P.M. 177 Sec., Williams S.W., Kingham J.W., Scales S.D., Side J.D., Stiles I.G., Daley Tyler, and Bros. Read, Solomon, Cheek, Carter, Rogers, Jones Simond, Cavet, Clarke, Cadett, H. Stiles, Colls, Gilbert, Bunkell, Easey, &c. The business commenced with the usual preliminaries. Bros. A. Vanderpump, H. Scales, and P. Vanderpump were raised to the 3rd degree. Bros. Edwards, Owens, Morgan, Raney, Clark and Greenslade were passed to the 2nd degree, and Messrs. Brooker, Robins, Van Camp, and Frith were impressively initiated into the Order by the W.M., whose perfect working was fully appreciated. The Lodge was then closed, and the usual banquet followed, provided by Bro. Cox. The W.M. presided, and gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. In speaking of that of the I.P.M., the W.M. impressed on the brethren the necessity of their regular attendance. They would then be competent to judge of the capabilities of the W.M. whom they might elect, and assured the brethren that the Senior Warden was fully capable of filling the chair; indeed, he might say every officer was perfect. The toasts of the W.M., Visitors, and Officers were given and responded to, and the Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable evening. The visitors were Bros. Jordan 511, Barrie 1185, Pinkey 177, and Harries 177.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—The regular meeting was held on the 18th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road. Present—Bros. Side W.M., H. B. Fowler S.W., C. I. Scales J.W., Jas. Willing P.M. Treas., W. M. Stiles Sec., J. W. Berrie S.D., A. W. Funner J.D., J. W. Smith I.G., and Bros. H. Scales, J. Cadett, C. Cox, W. Read, H. Child, &c. Business—The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. H. Scales acting as candidate. The traditional history was then given by the W.M., for which a cordial vote of thanks was accorded. The 1st and 2nd sections of the 1st Lecture were then worked by the brethren, ably assisted by the W.M. Bro. Jas. Willing was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, on which occasion he will rehearse the ceremony of installation. Several members of the Emulation Lodge have expressed their intention to be present.

Hemming Lodge, No. 1512.—The usual monthly meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday week, the 17th inst., at the Lion Hotel, Hampton. Present—Bros. E. Hopwood P.M. 141 W.M., W. Hammond P.M. 201, 1326, and 1512, I.P.M. P.J.G.D. Middlesex, D. Raw P.M. Treasurer acting S.W., J. Hurst J.W., T. C. Walls acting S.D., C. W. Fox J.D., J. C. Jessett I.G., T. W. Ockenden D.C., J. E. Hunt, J. Chilcott, F. W. Kent, J. W. Hiscox, T. Moody, H. Tagg, &c. Visitors—Bros. Tench 511, and H. Jones 1326. The Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the W.M. raised Bros. T. Moody and Harry Tagg to the sublime degree. Two gentlemen were prevented, at the last moment, from coming up for initiation, also a brother for passing. Bro. E. T. Barrett 1503 was unanimously elected a joining member of this Lodge. Several propositions were made for the ensuing meeting, and the Lodge being duly closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts followed; the health of the W.M., proposed, in a few well chosen words, by the I.P.M., meeting with much enthusiasm, as did also that of Bro. Hammond. The brethren separated after having spent a most enjoyable evening, Bros Hurst, Walls, and Jessett enhancing, by their vocal efforts, the harmony of the occasion. The R.W.P.G.M. (Bro. Col. Burdett) was expected, but, owing to a domestic bereavement, was compelled to postpone his visit until the next regular meeting, which will take place on Thursday, 16th March.

New Cross Lodge, No. 1559.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge (which was only lately consecrated) was held on Wednesday, the 16th inst., at the New Cross Hall, Upper Lewisham-road, Bro. Walter B. Woodman W.M. occupied the chair, E. H. Thiellay P.G.P. Middlesex S.W., Simmons J.W., Keeble P.M. Treas., F. Walters P.G.P., Middlesex Sec., L. Beck S.D., Green J.D., Hardman I.G. The Lodge was opened, and the following gentlemen were balloted for and unanimously accepted, and afterwards duly initiated by the W.M. in a manner that reflected great credit on so young a member of the Order—viz., Messrs. S. Jewell, H. Hinton, S. H. Beckles, J. Moss, and W. Smithwaite. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a very excellent dinner. The W.M., who very genially presided, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. S. Jewell responded to the toast of the Initiates, and he, as well as the other brethren, expressed their satisfaction at the able manner in which the beautiful ceremony had been delivered, saying it would make a lasting impression on them. Bro. E. H. Thiellay S.W. then proposed the toast of the W.M., and congratulated him on the able manner he had conducted the duties of the Lodge. The toast of the Visitors was responded to by Bros. J. Haywood W.M. 946 and Smith, Perfect Ashlar, both of whom congratulated the brethren on the selection they had made. The toast of the Officers followed, which was severally responded to, and the Tyler's toast concluded a very harmonious evening, interspersed with songs and recitations by Bros. Smith and several other brethren.

Lamb, which had been subscribed for by the members of the Chapter, for which Comp. Carter thanked them.

PROVINCE OF HAMPSHIRE AND ISLE OF WIGHT.

Sudden Death of the Senior Grand Warden.

THE brethren of this province have just met with a very heavy loss in the death of Bro. Samuel Darley Forbes, one of the oldest members of the Craft—if not actually the senior—in the Province. He was a most indefatigable Mason, ever ready to lend a helping hand to young members, and particularly to brethren just installed as Worshipful Masters. Very few Masons joining the Craft when young men, as he did, evinced so much zeal and took so active a part for a long period in promoting the welfare of the institution. The deceased, although he had been a Mason over 36 years, was only fifty-nine at the time of his death, which took place at his residence in Portsea, on Saturday, the 12th inst., after only a few days' illness. He had, at intervals, suffered from rheumatic gout, more especially during the present winter, but up to less than a week before his death he was actively engaged in his ordinary occupation, and took a prominent part in the proceedings at the Provincial Grand Chapter, held at Portsmouth on the 31st ult. Bro. Forbes was initiated in the Royal Sussex Lodge, Portsea, on the 7th December, 1839, and he received the third degree in the following February. He joined the Lodge of Harmony, then held at Gosport, on 3rd December, 1840, and was Worshipful Master in 1843. He was one of the founders of the Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487 (late 717), in 1843, and was appointed Secretary. He was W.M. of the Portsmouth Lodge for the years 1844 and 1845, and was appointed Secretary again in 1847. He was elected an honorary member of that Lodge in March, 1860, in recognition of his services to Masonry in general, and the Portsmouth Lodge in particular. He was also one of the founders of the United Brothers' Lodge, Southsea, No. 1069, in 1865. He was a P.P.G. Warden of Essex, and was appointed Senior Grand Warden of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight at the last Provincial meeting, held at Ryde in July, 1875.

In addition to these numerous offices Bro. Forbes had filled the office of First Principal in several Chapters. He was also a Knight Templar, and, we believe, a Rose Croix Mason; he likewise evinced great interest in Mark Masonry, and took an active part in reviving it in Portsmouth a few years since, and also in inducing Earl Percy, then Grand Master of the degree in England, to pay a visit to Portsmouth and preside at a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge. There was on that occasion a large gathering of Mark Master Masons, and the result was a considerable accession of strength to its numbers in that district. Bro. Forbes was, at the time of his death, I.P.M. of the Portsmouth Mark Lodge, No. 17. The other offices he filled this year, in addition to being Senior Grand Warden of the Province, were P.G.Dir. of Ceremonies of the Chapter (to which he was appointed a fortnight previously), and Director of Ceremonies of the Lodge of Harmony, No. 309, with which Lodge he had been associated so many years. He was held in high esteem by the Prov. Grand Master (Bro Beach, M.P.), as will be judged by the important office he was filling in the Province. In addition to Freemasonry, our deceased brother took a prominent part in the Volunteer movement, when it was first started in Portsmouth, and for many years held a commission as Quartermaster in the Artillery branch of the service. On the unexpected news of his death being communicated to the brethren, the Worshipful Masters of the Lodges in the neighbourhood held a meeting, to arrange for the attendance at his funeral of those desirous of showing a last mark of respect to so worthy a Mason. Accordingly, on Thursday, the 17th, upwards of a hundred brethren assembled, and preceded the funeral cortège to the Portsea Cemetery, where they formed up on either side, while the body was conveyed to the Chapel, the Wardens, two Past Masters, and the Worshipful Master of his old Lodge, No. 309, walking in front of the body, and the other members filing in after the mourners. The funeral service was impressively carried out by Bro. Rev. E. B. C. Churchill, one of the Provincial Grand Chaplains, and at the close the brethren threw sprigs of myrtle and acacia into the grave, but no other Masonic ceremonial took place, the funeral being, at the request of the family, a private one. We may add that all three of his sons were initiated into Masonry by Bro. Forbes. Two were present at the funeral, but the third is living in Rome.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUFFOLK.

THE Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk, Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Waveney, held a Provincial Grand Lodge at Bury St. Edmund's, on Saturday, for the purpose of constituting and consecrating a new Lodge in that town, to be called the Abbey Lodge, No. 1592. Provincial Grand Lodge was opened in the Lodge-room at the Suffolk Hotel at half-past four, among the brethren present being the Rev. E. I. Lockwood D.P.G.M., J. Hedley Bevan P.G.S.W. W.M. 1008, J. R. Thompson P.G.S.B., W. H. Lucia P.P.J.G.W. P.G. Sec., W. Armstrong P.P.G.J.D., S. H. Wright P.P.G.J.W., W. E. Bailey P.G.A. Sec., T. P. Lucia P.G.S., E. J. Griffiths P.G.S., the Rev. R. Evans, the Rev. H. Hall, G. Thompson P.M., W. J. Nunn, H. Thompson, W. Pead, A. Last, E. G. Castledine, J. G. Oliver, C. Lawrence, J. Shepherd, J. Cornish, A. Webb, W. H. Smith.

Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened in due form, the R.W.P.G.M. constituted the new Lodge under the title named in the warrant of Grand Lodge, which was read by the P.G. Sec. The pedestal was then consecrated with the usual Masonic rites, the corn, wine, and oil being carried by P.M.'s Lucia, Thompson, and Bailey. An ode in honour of Masonry was then sung, after which the D.P.G.M., Bro. the Rev. E. I. Lockwood, presented to the P.G.M., the Worshipful Master elect of the new Lodge, Bro. W. H. Lucia, whom the P.G.M. regularly installed, and invested with the collar of office. The Wardens named in the warrant, Bros. J. Armstrong S.W., and E. J. Griffiths J.W., were next presented and invested, after which the W.M. proceeded to the election and investiture of his other officers as follow: Bro. W. J. Nunn S.D., E. G. Castledine I.G., W. E. Bailey P.M. Sec. Afterwards Bro. J. H. Bevan P.G.S.W. gave the charge to the W.M., the Wardens, and to the brethren. Eleven joining members were proposed, and four candidates for initiation were proposed, so that in the event of their election the Abbey Lodge will begin with the very satisfactory number, including those brethren who signed the warrant, of 22 members.

Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, the brethren retired to refreshment. A very elegant repast had been prepared, which reflected the highest credit on the manageress, Mrs. Sparke. About 30 brethren sat down to dinner, under the presidency of W.M. Bro. W. H. Lucia, who after proposing "The health of the Queen," "The Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and "The Grand Officers of England," introduced the toast of "R.W.P.G.M. of Suffolk, Lord Waveney," of whose zeal for Freemasonry he made due acknowledgments, instancing as the last proof of it that his Lordship had come down from London that day specially to consecrate the Abbey Lodge, and after the banquet he would have to post to Flixton. He tendered to his Lordship the hearty thanks of the brethren for his great kindness, which he assured him they fully appreciated.

The R.W.P.G.M., in responding, said it had given him very great pleasure to witness the progress of Masonry in Bury St. Edmund's, and it was because he felt that he could not be absent from the consecration of the new Lodge that he had requested the postponement of the ceremony from the day originally fixed. The number of members of the Royal St. Edmund's Lodge who had joined it convinced him that the establishment of this Lodge was not a sign of division, but was an earnest that the work was still progressing, and he had no doubt that the two Lodges would act harmoniously together, and be animated by a spirit of generous emulation. His Lordship mentioned as a singular circumstance that during his stay in Rome he visited the English college there, which he need scarcely say was Roman Catholic, and the Principal showed him a number of old archives, and last of all he produced one which he said he especially wished him to see; and that was the charter of a charitable institution of St. Edmondsbury, founded in the 13th century, which had been incorporated with the English college. He told the Principal that the Christian King suffered martyrdom within a few miles of his own home in Suffolk, and it would give him pleasure to mention what he had seen on his return to England. It was pleasant, his Lordship remarked, then to note how the stream of charity had constantly flowed from this neighbourhood, and that it continued to flow they had one instance in the support given at the present day to the Masonic Charities. In conclusion his Lordship wished every prosperity to the Abbey Lodge, and proposed, in complimentary terms, "The health of the W.M.," who suitably responded.

The other toasts were "The Charities," "The Past Masters," "The Officers," &c. During the evening some capital songs were sung, and everything passed off harmoniously.

MASONIC ZEAL.

WE drew attention last week to the unequal manner in which the various Masonic Lodges throughout the country show their appreciation of the great Masonic Charities. In other respects, also, the amount of Masonic zeal might be shown to be no less unequal and various. Some Lodges seem never to tire of well doing, and in every great Masonic movement their names are to be found amongst the foremost, the most active, and the most liberal. Others, on the contrary, are slow to move, and if they move at all, come lagging in at the extreme rear. Is there a Lifeboat to be established or to be endowed for the honour of the Craft, we could guess pretty nearly what Lodges would figure upon the first list of subscriptions, what upon the last, and what not at all. It is precisely the same if a publication is started in the interests of the Craft, if a great Masonic festival is to be organised, or in fact in any movement whatever that makes a demand upon the personal exertions or liberality of the Fraternity.

It is difficult to find a satisfactory explanation for this seeming want of harmony amongst the various sections of the Craft. That some Lodges are more wealthy than others might explain why some should give more liberally, but it offers no elucidation of the fact that some Lodges give much and often, whilst others give nothing, or next to nothing. Our principles are the same, our hopes, aspirations, and sympathies should also be in perfect harmony. Yet we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that whilst we are all brothers, some of us must be considered to be weak brothers. Masonic enthusiasm is not equally distributed, whilst in some Lodges it can hardly be said to exist at all.

We know many men, who, at first, have been most enthusiastic supporters of any reasonable proposition, and who readily commit themselves to advocate almost any scheme, yet on the slightest rebuff have been equally ready to find a plausible reason for not doing what they had undertaken. By this means individuals undertake liabilities and incur responsibilities which, without such promised support, they would never have entertained.

As in Lodges, so also, though in a lesser degree, in the case of individuals. In every Lodge there are active and passive members. The Mason who is prompt and ready to initiate or follow up whatever he thinks will advance the interests of the Craft, and the meek half-hearted brother who attends but seldom, proposes nothing, and restricts his share in any Lodge discussion to suggesting difficulties in the way of the proposals of others; these men are to be found in most Lodges, and often in about the same proportions. Fortunately, however, the robust party, even if only equal in numbers to the weaker, is generally the stronger in argument and influence; and so the half-hearted are gradually brought to a sense of their responsibilities, and made to assume at least the appearance of zeal. But, in those Lodges where the torpid elements are in a considerable majority, the most active and zealous members in time lose heart by the constant discouragement they receive, and the maxim point de zèle becomes the order of the day. Henceforward, in every Masonic movement, they are conspicuous on the lists of supporters or subscribers only by their absence. How to extend amongst the many the zeal, activity, and enthusiasm which already so worthily distinguish the few, is a problem which it must be the wish of every true Mason to solve.

THE MYSTIC.

"Great honours are great burdens, but on whom
They are cast with envy, he doth bear two loads.
His cares must still be double to his joys,
In any dignity; where, if he err,
He finds no pardon, and, for doing well,
A most small praise, and that wrung out by force."

WAS the elixir of life a fable, and the philosopher's stone a myth? Did that mysterious order, the Rosicrucians, ever exist, or are the stories which are told of it mere allegories? Was there ever such a structure in Europe as the House of the Holy Ghost, and is "Christian Rosy Cross" but the invention of the fertile mind which invented, so say the sceptics, the fable of mystics who dealt in occult science, and studied laws of nature which are still unknown to the learned of our day? If these questions were put to a man of science, he would return no doubtful answer. He would tell us that the Rosicrucian mysteries are but fables, and the elixir a mere dream of a heated imagination. Yet, in spite of the ban which science has placed upon studies which are beyond the range of experimental research, there are mystics who do not fear to affirm that the Rosy Cross is no fable, and the elixir no mere dream of an enthusiast, but a grea treality. These men do not, indeed, pretend that the stores of knowledge which were once the peculiar property of a secret order, are now in their keeping, but they affirm that the tools, or symbols, by the aid of which those secrets may be rediscovered, are theirs. These symbols, indeed, speak a language which, wherever intelligent beings exist, must have a tangible meaning, for they are drawn from the eternal fount of all wisdom, and have been revealed to man by his study of the physical universe. The idea that mathematical signs are eloquent teachers of great moral as well as scientific truths has been held by man for many ages. The Egyptian symbol of eternity was a circle, but it was a circle made eloquent by the artist who gave it the form of a serpent, the ancient type of wisdom. Pages of occult lore have been written on the pentacle, which, in Masonic rites, and those of deeper meaning, into which we cannot now penetrate, has a value which we are certainly not called upon to reveal in this paper. A few years since it was considered a reproach to call a man a "mystic," but spiritualism, with its startling phenomena, has compelled thoughtful men to ask whether, after all, there may not be more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in our philosophy; and with the growing demand for inquiry into this new "craze" a certain freedom of opinion has been conceded by all but the dogmatist of science. A man may now declare himself a spiritualist, or a mystic, without exciting the derision of his fellows. The attitude of the scientific world is distinctly unscientific with reference to the "gross superstitions" of the spiritualist. It demands that the phenomena shall be exhibited under conditions which the spiritualist declares to be fatal to discovery of truth, and it pooh, poohs! the evidence of believers because the testing glasses and measuring scales of the materialists are not permitted to play their part in a séance. Electricity might have remained one of the hidden forces of nature if the enquirers of the past had insisted upon compelling it to conform to rules of their own making. The expositions of Messrs. Crookes and Varley are contemptuously set aside by Professor Tyndall, on the ground that they are fallacious, but this eminent son of science, with unscientific disdain, declines to follow in the track and study for himself. We do not venture to express an opinion upon the phenomena of so-called spiritualism, nor upon the theories of those of the Craft who are engaged in a diligent enquiry into the Rosicrucian mysteries, our mind is fully open to receive truth from whatever quarter it may come to us, but we are constrained to say that we should sorrow much if the narrow theories of the materialist should prove to be true. Man sighs for a higher and a noble life. The great cry of the human heart in these days is for more light, and the univeral want of man is some tangible evidence that the mind and the individuality exist beyond the grave. If the mystics of the Rosy Cross, or the spiritualists can give an adequate solution to this profound mystery they will have rendered mankind an inestimable service. Armed with a belief in the immortality of the soul, faith will again be possible to us all. Faith in things unseen by the vulgar eye, faith in the existence of a spiritual empire co-extensive with the vast material universe which lies around us.

We feel, then, no hostility towards those whose studies have carried them away beyond the narrow boundary of experimental science, and we have selected the title of our paper in no mocking spirit, but with a sincere desire to do honour to the brother who is sitting to us for his portrait. If he feels inclined to quarrel with us for applying the word "mystic" to him, we may at once hasten to assure him that it conveys to our mind merely the idea of a philosophy which refuses to be fettered by the set rules of evidence, or by the instruments which are used for weighing and measuring ponderable bodies. The mind is the true realm of the mystic. Into this mysterious world the materialist has indeed entered, and he seeks to solve its problems by vague talk about the grey and white matter, and the convolutions of the brain. If there is anything in the Rosicrucian mysteries, the key to its lost secrets must first be sought in the vast realm of mind. The orbit of intellect has never yet been measured, and, as Dr. Holmes has remarked, there are minds so vast that the curve they describe does not sensibly differ from a straight line. But this study is not for us now; we are merely attempting to trace some rough and blurred outline of a brother, who, whatever high views he may have of human destiny and human discovery, is first, and before all things, a practical Mason.

Our brother, then, although born of English parents, first saw the light in Dublin, and received a classical education under the tuition of the Rev. Benjamin Gibson and Mr. D. P. Sullivan. He was a schoolfellow of Major General Clarke, an eminent Mason, who is too well known by the Craft to need further mention here. Our brother distinguished himself at Montjoy Academy, and holds high testimonials for his proficiency in classical and mathematical studies. At an early period in his career he was a clerk in the Government Emigration office in his native city. In 1855 he came to London, the grand goal of all men who possess energy and talent, and entered actively into business pursuits. He did not, however, succeed as a man of commerce, and was again compelled to try his fortune with the quill. In the year 1862 he was appointed to a clerkship in the Grand Secretary's office, and was promoted to be second clerk and cashier in 1866. In this comparatively obscure position he remained until November 1872, when he was elected Secretary of the Girls' School. The income of this institution was then £5,200, but in the following year it reached the large sum of £7,700, and in 1875 £8,664 was realised. These advances in the financial prosperity are due in a great measure to his active exertions, and wise administration. His Masonic career is brief but eventful, he was initiated in the Royal Union Lodge, Uxbridge, in 1861, and is now honorary member of eighty Lodges and Chapters. He was the first P.G. Secretary of Middlesex, on the Provincial Grand Lodge being established, and was P.G.S.W. in 1875. In the same year he attained the rank of Prov. G.H. in Chapter, the highest possible position within reach of Masonic ambition. He has passed the chair of every Masonic degree that is known in this country, and is a most active and zealous worker in the cause. He is constantly engaged, either in the duties of his office, or in the not less congenial task of spreading the principles of Masonry, and has had the honour of consecrating all the Lodges in the province of Middlesex. Yet, although he has proved himself to be worthy of all the honours that Masonry has to bestow, he has not yet obtained those of Grand Lodge. He has still to make his way to the dais, and perhaps he will find this task more difficult of achievement than any of the labours in which he has hitherto engaged. This distinction indeed is an honour to which many aspire, but few are fortunate enough to obtain. Our great Masonic Parliament is based upon the popular suffrage, and its decrees therefore are entitled to due respect. We believe that no unworthy Mason has ever received the highest honours of the Craft. Grand Lodge in this, as in other matters which come under its notice, no doubt acts wisely, and if our brother really aspires to the last distinction which the Fraternity has to bestow, we can merely counsel him to take courage, and to exercise patience. His time may yet come.

Our brother may emphatically be styled a literary Mason. He is learned in the lore of the Order, and has written some very able papers on Royal Arch Masonry, which attracted their due share of attention. He is the editor of our mystic contemporary, "The Rosicrucian," and has contributed many able articles to its columns. A true mystic would be manifestly unfitted for his researches without a touch of the poetical element in his nature. The highest and grandest truths find their fullest and fittest expression in numbers, and the true poet is ever an antagonist to that fleshly school which seeks to degrade the nature of man to a level with the brutes. Our brother has written some verses which have achieved popularity, and his song of the "Red Cross" has been sung by many who know little or nothing of the true nature of this wondrous symbol.

EAST, WEST AND SOUTH.

VII.

THE Duke desired to have the Spanish officials his hosts, to dine with him the following evening, and invitations were given to that effect. His Equerries, M. Chevalier, Lord Charles Beresford, and other officers were lodged at his quarters in San Sebastian. The leading British residents, notwithstanding their disappointment with the address, determined with characteristic hospitality, to make some of the Galatea's junior officers comfortable also, at their houses. The arrangements again fell to my lot to make, and I still retain the letter of thanks from the commanding officer which acknowledged my exertions.

Next day (Sunday) early salutes from the bay and batteries announced the birthday of H. R. H. the Princess of Prussia. In the afternoon, the invited guests repaired to the Duke's house to dinner. The Governor-General and the Archbishop were unable to be of the number, but there were the Commander-in-Chief, the Admiral, and though last, not least, the Chief Justice, or Regent of the Royal Audience, Don Manuel de Ostolaza.

Of the last-named, I must say a word; for of the many noble and true-hearted Spaniards I have known abroad, he was the truest and the noblest—a large hearted man of even tolerance and vast experience of human nature. He came from Spain to his post in 1866, and put up at a private boarding house, with the Duc d'Alençon, the Baron de Bache, and myself. After the departure of the former we became fast friends. At official proceedings, when he was not present, he would always send his carriage and servants for my use in substitution for my humbler vehicle. For advice in questions of International Law, I found his friendship invaluable, and on one occasion, his aid prevented serious injustice and trouble to a British subject.

An Englishman, whose wife was ordered home to Europe for the preservation of her life, by her medical attendant, had determined to wind up his affairs finally, in order to accompany her. Worried exceedingly with a multitude of details, and worn out with anxiety, he was one day pestered about some trifling business by a native. Saying that he would attend to it another time, he ordered the man to leave his house; which, with considerable impertinence the fellow refused to do. The Englishman probably lost his temper, and pushed the man down the stairs. This was enough for an astute Indian to make a case. Knowing that the passage of the family had been taken to Europe, and that the avoidance of delay would be worth some pecuniary sacrifice, he left the house limping, took to his bed, and employed a hanger on of the law to commence a suit for grievous assault. Our countryman treated it lightly, all unconscious of the dire injuries which were promptly imputed to him by the Indian "Escribientes" of the local Alcalde, which soon covered many a ream of paper. In the Philippines, there is no such thing as a trifling "pleito," or action-at-law. The unlucky European who gets into the meshes of that complicated system of justice has, ever after, too good cause to remember it. There are no viva voce examinations and cross examinations, all is slowly and laboriously written, and got up on reams and reams of paper, signed by a notary on every leaf. The object of the underlings is to swell the fees to the State by covering as many sheets of paper as possible (at 1s per stamped sheet), and to endeavour to get some pickings by seizing every opportunity for errands, intervention, and meddling. The Alcalde is assisted by an "Escribano," or notary, and native interests are represented by a public prosecutor or "Fiscal," each of them Spaniards. Indisposition of one of these brings all to a stop; frequently, business takes one of them out of town; native writers mislay urgent papers, and by one of the thousand dexterities, known only to themselves, can protract a suit almost indefinitely, until pulled up by some awakened superior.

When the vessel in which our friend and his family were to sail, was advertised to start in ten days, he did what he ought to have done at first, apply to H.M.'s Consulate. I told him he ran great risk of detention, and induced him to put the case in the hands of a lawyer, for the purpose of stirring up all concerned. Things now went on in better train, except that the complainant put in his claim for heavy damages,—incapacitated for work, medical expenses, &c., &c. The "Fiscal" of the case whom I did not know, had, it seems, lately arrived from Spain, knew nothing of the Indian character, less of the English, and was imbued with the determination that no wrong should be suffered by a native, without the fullest redress. Had the defendant been a Spaniard, acquaintanceship or backstairs influence would probably have exonerated him; but with an Englishman, all wore a different complexion. Three times I attended the Alcaldia to hear the pleadings of the Fiscal and the lawyer; the former expatiating on "lawlessness, enormity, defenceless population, &c., &c." asking that an example should be made once and for all. He demanded the utmost allowed by law, for assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm This violence, I confess, startled me, but I was positively thunderstruck, when the day before the sailing of the vessel, the Alcalde sent me a copy of his sentence, "Two months imprisonment."

The British subject soon appeared, in the utmost distress and indignation. His sick wife, children, and baggage were on board, his passage to England paid, his business sold, and his affairs wound up. The warrant was out, his passport stopped; any moment he might be taken, jail lay before him, and his wife might die on the voyage. Of this contingency I had made the Alcalde aware, and knowing the real merits of the case, my blood boiled at the pig-headedness or possible malice of that official. There was but one hope—inspired with which I drove instantly to the lawyer's, obtained the papers, and crossed the river to see Ostolaza. I found him at luncheon and trespassed on his patience, whilst I gave a rapid history of the case and sorted out the documents which illustrated its salient parts. He skimmed through them with me, and asked me, on my honour, whether I were convinced that it was a "trumped up" claim. I replied unhesitatingly that it was. The true friend then blazed up; he ordered his carriage and drove in state to the private dwelling of that Alcalde, rated him unsparingly, tore up the signatures, and with peremptory order which suffered no remonstrance, obtained reversal of the sentence on the spot. Whether this were consistent with official forms, I know not, but the same supreme power of the Regent in the judicature of the Colony was exercised on my favour on one other occasion, and I have often seen Alcaldes (magistrates of the first instance) quail before him.

That night the Englishman was released from all anxiety, and left for England on the following day.

Don Manuel Ostalaza, therefore, merits more than a passing word; besides, his manner had a singular charm, and though sixty years of age, he was full of energy and wit.

The Colonial Government ordered everything for the Royal guest on a most liberal scale, and actually paid 20 dols. or £5 for every cover placed on table at the dinner I now describe. Some contractor must have made a good thing of it, for though an English resident (Dr. Burke, noted for his advanced tastes and liberal hospitality) loaned his chief cook for the occasion—the spread was nothing extraordinary.

Coffee was coming, as it should, immediately after the cheese and celery, when the guests, whose seats faced the entrance-hall, were petrified by an unexpected apparition. A tall, stalwart piper, in kilt, bonnet and sporran complete, with silver mounted bagpipes swelling on his bosom, marched up with measured and majestic pace. The Spaniards had never beheld such a spectacle—their open-mouthed astonishment was changed into I know not what, when the Highland instrument began to yelp and screech after the manner of its kind. I must plead guilty to a want of appreciation of this music (?) and, after dinner, I think it calculated to drive one mad. On came the splendid piper, blowing and squeezing at his pet, which skirled and strained and shrieked with most unearthly vehemence. All conversation was suspended, and the astonished gazers held their breath with awe. Whether the Spaniards thought of the feast of Domitian, and believed this to be a prelude to some ghastly tragedy, I cannot tell; but they looked as though they anticipated more than even the torture of the ears. Three times did this mysterious visitant encircle the table, discoursing what may have been sweetest of melody to those who understand it, and then stalked away through the hall and out of sight as slowly and majestically as he came. The Spaniards who were present, will not soon forget Prince Alfred's piper. As an example of their delightful ignorance of everything British, I may observe, that they habitually spoke of Mr. Yorke as the Duke of York; they may have thought the piper even his superior, or to have been the ship's boatswain, or the ghost of one of our English kings.

I was chatting away with my opposite neighbours, Lieutenant Haig and the Admiral's Aide, when I was surprised to hear my name as though called by some one. Expecting nothing less, I looked around and saw the Duke tilting back his chair prior to calling me again. Of course I jumped up, and was then asked to translate a toast which he was about to give. It was, the health of his sister, the Princess of Prussia, whose birthday it was that day.

MASONIC LIFE GOVERNORSHIP ASSOCIATIONS.

ANOTHER of these useful adjuncts to the Craft was established on Monday last, the 28th ult., at the Railway Tavern, Fenchurch-street. This, which is styled the City Masonic Benevolent Association, has been inaugurated under the auspices of the Sincerity Lodge of Instruction. The objects are to secure to the brethren, by weekly instalments, the Life Governorships of the three Masonic Charities, and when we add that the following brethren are founders, it is a sufficient guarantee for good faith.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Precarious Position.—Though the cruel cold and severe trials of winter have at length passed away, many of their ill consequences still lurk within the frames of the feeble, delicate, and aged, ready to seize upon them from any trifling existing cause, and rapidly pass through the curable stages to that irremediable condition, whence no human art can extricate the patient. When the throat, air-tubes, lungs, heart, or the sensitive membrance of joints, prone to gout or rheumatism, have received mischief from atmospheric influences or other sources, Holloway's Ointment, early and diligently rubbed upon the surface, as near as possible to the seat of suffering, will give great comfort and safety from danger.

OUR FUTURE PROSPECTS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Masonry, it may be safely asserted, was never in a more flourishing condition than at the present time, as evinced by the announcement, in your last week's issue, that warrants had been issued for no less than eighteen new Lodges during the past quarter. The Statistical Article with which you favoured us in the same number has deeply interested me. It is true that, owing to the strenuous exertions made by zealous brethren, many members of our Order are becoming Life Governors of our Institutions, through the various Masonic Charities Associations, and that large amounts are subscribed to the several Benevolent Funds attached to Lodges, but this is, in itself, not sufficient for the numerous pressing claims that are constantly being made. It has occurred to me that a movement might be inaugurated, whereby every subscribing member to a Lodge should be enabled to raise something annually towards the support of our Institutions. You have pointed out more than once that an annual contribution of 5s to each of our Charities would produce an amount that would exceed the requirements of the Institutions as at present constituted. It may be urged that these Institutions will grow, and that should the amount we may now fix as the maximum be raised, new demands would arise. This argument I will not attempt to controvert, but I would urge that it is sufficient now to provide for present requirements, and let future demands be tackled when they arise. The question for consideration is—How is this to be done? For sake of illustration we agree that 15s per annum from every member of the Craft who subscribes to a Lodge will give the amount we are so anxious to see raised. Again I ask—How is this to be done? And, in the way of most writers who ask questions, I will endeavour to reply. At the present day, for numerous reasons—which we need not now consider—Lodges are increasing the amount of their subscriptions. Why not apportion 15s of this amount towards the support of our Charitable Institutions? In those of our Lodges where but six or seven meetings are held during the year, and appeals are made through appointed stewards, a call is made at nearly all the gatherings, and those amongst us who, perhaps, are too ready to avail themselves of any excuse that may arise, frequently urge they seldom attend a Lodge without having to put their hands into their pockets, hence they prefer to stop at home. Another suggestion I would respectfully offer!—Let our respected secretaries take counsel, and see what can be done in the question of Past Masters' testimonials. How would it be if, in any given months, or month—were it deemed advisable—the result of acknowledged merit should be accepted, as it really should be, not for what it was intrinsically worth, but for what it was given. The veteran soldier, whose breast is bespangled with decoration, looks as fondly on his iron cross as on his diamond decoration, and I am sure we have in our ranks many who would as soon exhibit an iron or bone ornament, provided it represented what had been achieved by the wearer, as they would exhibit the most costly jewel, set though it might be with diamonds.

I have frequently heard remarks to the effect that P.M.'s jewels are now given so indiscriminately that a truly conscientious Mason almost feels ashamed to wear one, so little being required by the members of some Lodges at the hands of their W.M. ere they vote him the jewel which should only be given for valuable services rendered. To instance more especially what I mean,—a case occurs to me where a W.M., who had not spoken fifty words—leaving out of the question the mere formal opening of the Lodge in the first and second degrees, the third he never had the courage to attempt—during the entire year of his Mastership, and who shone conspicuously from the fact that he never had visitors, nor was honoured by any addition to the number of his member roll, this man, I say, was voted a P.M.'s jewel for the valuable services he had rendered to his Lodge. I think this, Sir, needs no further remark.

I could add much more to this communication, but I fear I shall weary your readers. What I want is, that some of your correspondents will endeavour to follow out the very dim outline I have drawn, and suggest some practical way in which our noble Institutions, may be permanently benefited, and the reckless waste of Lodge funds prevented.

Yours fraternally,

AN ASPIRANT.

GRAND LODGE HONOURS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In reference to the correspondence upon this subject in your columns, I venture to assert that no principle of selection which is adopted in the secular world is followed by our Masonic rulers.

It is an undoubted fact that many brethren are appointed to Grand Lodge honours irrespective of their Masonic labours or merits, and if proof be wanting, I have particulars sufficient to substantiate the assertion; probably some of these brethren have been selected for services rendered, but unknown to the general body of the Craft.

Am I to assume, Sir, that the recipients of Grand Lodge honours are selected from a certain circle of society, and that no one who has not obtained a passport to that circle can be admitted to the dais?

It is well known that there are a few exceptions to the so-called rule of selection to which I have referred, but the very fact that we point with some degree of wonder and astonishment to two or three brethren, who, without the aid of birth or fortune, have risen to a high position in Masonry, proves that I am justified in asserting that mere Masonic labour and charitable exertions are not regarded as sufficient qualifications for the Masonic dignity of Grand Lodge.

The belief to which I incline is, that the apathy of the Craft (proverbially known) with regard to this subject is rather the result of ignorance than indifference.

Masons are content with a vague declaration of equality, and they have not yet discovered that, in practice, we, like some States of society, have our aristocracy and our commons.

When will the Masonic commons endeavour to put an end to a Government which ignores in its practice the first principles of Freemasonry?

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

ENQUIRER.

OUR SYMBOLISM.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

Sevenoaks, 29rd February 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER.—The title of your articles, "Masonry and Magic," refers, I presume, to the use of the symbolism current in our Order, which is common to many ancient schools of philosophy, and the origin of which is shrouded in darkness. For as to any intermixture of Theurgia with the practice of Freemasonry as we understand it, even in remotest times, I am an entire disbeliever. It is probable that such studies were pursued in the adyta of ancient India, Egypt and Greece, and that they were intimately connected with ancient Theosophy, but their relation to the scientific wonders of olden time remains to be shown. It must be evident to every student of our ritual that many links in its symbolism have been dropped; the astronomical allegory, for instance, which underlies it, is imperfectly developed. The onward path of the candidate and his revolution, if I may so term it, in an orbit punctuated by the sun, the moon and the Master of the Lodge, is a fruitful subject of speculation. The late Bro. Melville, in his great work, "Veritas," has exposed to view many of those "missing links," and shown that a deeper meaning lies veiled under astronomical signs, closely related to the secrets of ancient initiations. The origin of the astronomical signs for the constellations and the zodiac lies far back in the mists of antiquity together with the symbols now considered Masonic.

The five-pointed star refers to higher mysteries than our five points, so does the double triangle or seal of Solomon, but I have yet to learn that the magical properties attributed to them by dreamers and mystics or by the mediæval Rosicrucians have any foundation in fact.

Can you throw any light upon the origin or Masonic reference (as to the Craft) of the symbols pertaining to the Christian degrees?

Yours fraternally,

PARMENIO.

A meeting of the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will be held on Wednesday next, the 8th inst., at three o'clock in the afternoon, for the transaction of general business.

The Doric Lodge of Instruction meets every Friday evening, at eight o'clock, at the Earl Grey Tavern, Mile End Road. Bro. T. Austin is the Preceptor, and the Lodge has, on its roll of members, a large number of brethren who have attained eminence as workers of Masonic Ritual.

Brother Sam Hague's Minstrels have been performing nightly to crowded audiences at the Philharmonic Theatre, Islington, Bro. J. D. Solomon being the lessee, and Bro. T. Stanley Dust the business manager. This troupe has been playing for five consecutive years at the St. James's Hall, Liverpool. A fire, however, took place on 1st May 1875, which caused them to make a tour, until their new hall will be completed. Their success at the Philharmonic has been such that the proprietor has taken down the private boxes in order to afford additional space for the public. On Ash Wednesday they performed to crowded houses at Croydon. A visit to the Philharmonic during their stay in London will not be regretted.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Brighton Aquarium, arrangements were made whereby the services of Bro. G. Reeves Smith were retained; he to continue to occupy the position of Secretary and General Manager. The shareholders may be congratulated on their securing the services of one who, from its opening to the present time, has untiringly and successfully worked to promote their interests.

REVIEWS.

—:o:—

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

—:o.—

All the World Over: Edited by EDWIN HODDER, F.R.G.S., author of "Memories of New Zealand Life," "On Holy Ground," &c. Volume II. London: Thomas Cook and Son, Ludgate-circus; Hodder and Stoughton, 27 Paternoster-row. 1876.

THIS, though one of the most recent, is very far from being the least attractive of our periodicals, and as each fresh volume is completed it is presented to the public in a neat, we may say handsome, cover. Thus in the course of time there will be quite an array of prettily bound volumes. Nor are the merits of All the World Over confined to mere external adornment. Its speciality is the numerous papers and notes on travel, which form, in fact, the bulk of the contents. The former are well written descriptions of home and foreign cities, scenery, habits, customs, and the like, sometimes in detached papers, as are those in which the Editor describes Alexandria and Cairo, sometimes in the form of a series, as are Mr. Ritchie's articles, entitled "On the Track of the Pilgrim Fathers." The letter contains, among much valuable matter, plenty of good sound advice for the benefit of intending travellers. Under the head of "Our Travellers' Club," we find a number of questions propounded, and answers given on such important details as the best kind of equipment and the best time for, and the probable cost of a tour in this, or that country, as to the relative merits of different means of transit, or of the different routes to one and the same place, as to the health of localities, &c. We have, besides, with each volume, a considerable number of very fair illustrations, half-a-dozen maps or plans of cities and towns, and a carefully prepared index. In fact, as far as we can judge, no feature that would be likely to enhance the merit of this Magazine has been overlooked, for, as the public are in love with serial stories, Mr. Ambrose Heath contributes an excellent tale, in 12 chapters, entitled "A Love Chase; or, Autumn Manœuvres." Thus, with well-written descriptive papers, useful notes, well-drawn maps, fair illustrations, and a love story to beguile the intervals of study, All the World Over exhibits a combination of points of usual strength. There may be some few who will expect an even stronger guarantee than this. To such we offer the name of Cook and Son as one of the publishing firms, and the tried literary reputation of the Editor.

Freemasonry: a Catholic Bond of Love and Unity to the Churches. Sermon preached in St. Paul's Church, Rothesay, on St. John's Eve, 1875. By R. Gascoigne Weldon, M.A., Incumbent and Hon. Chaplain. Published by request of the R.W.M. and Brethren of St. John's (292), Rothesay. Proceeds to be given to aid in building a larger Church in Rothesay. London: Strahan and Co.; Edinburgh: R. Grant and Son; Dublin: W. H. Smith and Son; Glasgow: Menzies and Co.; Rothesay: W. C. Harvey. 1876.

THE text of this sermon is from the Gospel of St. John: "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another," and following verse, the Rev. Chaplain has been highly successful in his treatment. The tone is excellent throughout, the language is excellent, more ornate, perhaps, than we usually hear from the pulpit, the style fervent and impressive. Even the most bigoted enemy of the Order will find it difficult to note a flaw in the application of the text to the ruling principle of Freemasonry—Charity, by which, as is very properly pointed out, not even almsgiving only is intended, but charity, in its fullest and widest signification, the charity of which another of the Apostles so eloquently wrote in one of his Epistles. It is an admirable sermon, and as the purpose to which the proceeds of the sale will be devoted is equally admirable, we advise our readers to buy and judge for themselves. The modest outlay necessary to procure it will be well spent in a twofold source. The brother who buys one will obtain a stout apology for Freemasonry, and will likewise promote the cause of religion in the good town of Rothesay. We quote one sentence, in which the writer speaks of the Order thus:—

"Till these good times come again, and as an earnest of them, I hail your mighty brotherhood, stretching out its hands over all creeds, countries, colour; embracing all, uniting all, for it joins by one common tie, initiates by one common form, Jew, Greek, Barbarian, and Scythian; Albert Edward Prince of Wales, as well as the poorest, humblest man now before me; teaching all one common language, one common faith: 'Honour all men, love the brotherhood, fear God, honour the King.'"

The Keystone Centennial Masonic Almanack, 1876. Philadelphia Masonic Publishing Company.

THIS will be found a very useful almanack, especially by the Pennsylvania brethren. It will likewise prove interesting to English Craftsmen, containing, as it does, full particulars of the Grand Lodge, Grand Chapter, Grand Commandery, Grand Council, and other Masonic bodies in the State, including the Grand Officers and the several charitable funds connected with Masonry. We gather from these that, according to the latest authentic returns, issued up to 27th December 1874, there were 357 Lodges working up to that date, with an aggregate membership of 38,137. Since then, 13 new Lodges have been constituted, so that there are now 370 Lodges in the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge Charity possesses a capital of close on 60,000 dollars, the beneficiaries being "poor and respectable widows, orphan children, mothers and unmarried sisters of brother Master Masons who die in good standing." The Stephen Girard Charity Fund amounts now to 59,000 dollars, having increased to the extent of 4,600 dollars in the past two years, the interest being applied to "the relief of poor and respectable brethren in the Masonic Jurisdiction of Pennsylvania." Under Grand Chapter are "97 Chapters, 3 Mark Lodges, and 10,100 Companion R.A. Masons." The Grand Commandery rules over 54 Commanderies, the number of Knights being 5,467. The annual Grand Conclave will be held at Philadelphia on 30th May, and two following days, "when there will be a GRAND RE-UNION OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR, in commemoration of the HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE, to which all the Commanderies in the world have been invited." The Grand Council has under its jurisdiction 27 Councils, and 2,113 members, and there are four bodies working under the A. and A. Scottish Rite in Philadelphia. A full list of Lodges, Chapters, Councils, &c., is added, thus completing the needful information respecting the Craft in this State. May its prosperity be ever on the increase!

The Royal Masonic Cyclopædia. Part III.

AN apology is now offered for the slight delay that has occurred in the appearance of this number. No apology, we think, was needed. We are already half-way through the work, which is one involving a vast amount of labour and research on the part of the editor. It is far better that an occasional delay should happen, and the work be made as accurate as possible, than that strict punctuality should be observed, and then, perhaps, a discovery made of sundry errors. We have every confidence that Bro. Kenneth Mackenzie will do his work well. It is a heavy task, the extent of which can only be judged by those who have had imposed upon them the labour of compilation. He has succeeded well thus far, and we are quite content he should take his own time—within reasonable limits, of course—in completing the volume.

CONSECRATION OF ROYAL NAVAL COLLEGE LODGE, No. 1593.

ONE of the most interesting meetings of the year took place within the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, on the 22nd ult., when a goodly number of eminent brethren assembled for the purpose of consecrating the above Lodge. As we so recently gave the detailed particulars of this ceremony, we need only remark that the formula was not only ably, but most eloquently performed, by the Rev. Bro. Thos. Robinson M.A. P.M. 88, 709, P.P.G.S.W. Kent, who afterwards installed Professor Robert Kalley Miller P.M. 859, P.P.J.G.W. Cambridge, W.M. designate, into the chair of K.S. The W.M. then invested the Wardens designate, viz., Bros. Scott James Bailey Wilcox R.N. S.W., and Thos. Charles Pascoe R.N. J.W. The following officers were then appointed and invested:—Bros. Dr. Pink Treasurer, W. J. Blakey P.M. 184, 1174 P.P.A.D.C. Kent, Secretary pro tem, Lieut. Southwell T. Bourke S.D., Lieut. Francis Knowles J.D., Lieut. George Cotton Stapleton I.G., Lieut. Francis A. Symes Organist.

After several names had been tendered for increasing the numbers of the Lodge, it was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Trafalgar Hotel, where they were regaled with the good things of life. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., in terms which elicited the warmest enthusiasm, and "Our Hercules," in his response for Grand Lodge Officers, took the opportunity to enlarge upon the merits of our Charitable Institutions, and by his open, honest and candid declarations, succeeded in cementing more firmly the ties of friendship, which the founders of this Lodge have so long held towards him. Upon the toast of the Consecrating and Installing Officer being given, which was received with vociferous cheering, the W.M. thanked our Rev. Brother, on behalf of the Lodge, for the inestimable service he had rendered in the day's proceedings.

Bro. Robinson briefly responded, assuring the brethren that the pleasure was equally great to him, inasmuch that the founding brethren were bound to make the Lodge an unprecedented success. He desired, before sitting down, to propose the toast of the W.M., a brother whose talent had won for him great honours. Not only had he distinguished himself at the University of Cambridge, but as a Mason he had made his "Mark," and all wished him health to continue the labours to which he was so fondly attached. The remainder of the toasts having been gone through, the brethren separated. Amongst those present were—Bros. Skinner G. Gilbert, C. G. Robinson W.M. 709, Dudley Court, J. C. Dockwell, A. Wodehouse, F. Binckes P.G.S., W. Bristow P.G.S., G. White W.M. 1174, T. S. Warne P.M. 20, P.P.G.A.S. Kent, E. G. Bumstead P.M. 548, Dr. Crittenden W.M. 548, J. J. West P.M. 548, Captain Watson P.P.G.D.C. Kent, J. C. Board W.M. 140, with his two Wardens, E. A. Maund J.W. 859, J. Shaw W.M. 79, H. W. Townsend S.W. 1428, R. Trim P.M. 1320, L. B. Sparks 140, Madgwick 1029, H. Robert 79. We congratulate the members of this Lodge upon its consecration, and hope the bright and happy future may be realised, and in wishing the W.M. health and strength to perform his duties, beg to say, we shall be glad to hear from him at all times upon Masonic matters in the interest of his Lodge.

CONSECRATION OF THE UPPER NORWOOD LODGE, No. 1586.

A WARRANT having been granted for a new Lodge as above, the brethren assembled at the White Hart Hotel, Upper Norwood, on the 26th ult. Bro. Frances P.M., P.G.D. Surrey, was the Consecrating officer, and he discharged his duty in a very perfect manner. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Jas. Coward P.G.O., and the singing was excellently rendered by Bros. Fox and Steadman. A board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Jas. Kew P.M. 179, in a very efficient manner, installed Bro. Muller into the chair. The following were the officers appointed—Bros. Hopekirk P.M. 179 S.W., G. Cragg J.W., Hammond P.M. Treas., Drake Sec., Kidman S.D., Paul J.D., Boyer I.G., Pugsley D.C., Crouch W.S., Pringle A.S., Guest Org. Several brethren were proposed for joining, and propositions for initiation were handed in. Votes of thanks were unanimously given, and recorded on the minutes, and honorary membership to Bros. Frances, Kew, Coward, Fox, Steadman, and Hammond P.G.S. Middlesex. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, provided by Bro. Ledger. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts and complimentary speeches were given. Bros. Fox and Steadman contributed to the harmony, Bro. Coward presiding at the pianoforte. The Visitors were Bros. Kain P.P.G.S., Warwick, Benham W.M. 1339, J. F. Sawyer and Hopwood P.M. 1512.

On Tuesday next the Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction will hold its anniversary meeting at the Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney, supper on table at 7 o'clock.

Bro. R. W. Bell, late of the Enterprise Tavern, Long Acre, has purchased Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, where several Lodges and Chapters are held. Bro. Bell, well known as a caterer, will doubtless prove a worthy successor to Bro. Gosden.

Bro. Wills, F.H.S., of the Royal Exotic Nursery, Onslow-crescent, had the honour of receiving the commands of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh for the floral decorations of the Royal Albert Hall and the Royal Box. He also supplied the magnificent and tastefully arranged bouquets that were presented to Her Majesty the Queen, H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Princess Beatrice.

At the conclusion of the consecration ceremony, the W.M. designate of the Caradoc Lodge, Bro. John Rogers P.P.G.S.B., was presented to the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, by the V.W. Deputy Prov. The ceremonial observances being conducted throughout by the R.W.P.G.M.

The following brethren were then appointed and invested as officers for the year:—Bros. James Livingston (Mayor of Swansea) S.W., Rev. John J. Stevenson Moore LL.D., P.G. Chaplain J.W., W. Votes of thanks having been proposed, agreed to, and acknowledged by the R.W.P.G.M., and the W.D.P.G.M., several candidates were proposed for initiation, and after some routine business the Lodge was closed.

The brethren afterwards dined together at the Mackworth Arms Hotel, Bro. W. Stone catering, to the satisfaction of all concerned. The W.M. Bro. John Rogers presided, supported by the R.W. the P.G.M., the W. the D.P.G.M., and an excellent attendance of P.G. officers and other brethren. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given with marked ability. Bro. Harding, of Carmarthen, presided with great ability at the pianoforte, and favoured the brethren with a few of his choicest songs. The harmony of the evening was further contributed by Bros. H. W. Williams, J. Jones-Hewson, and others, and a most agreeable and enjoyable evening was spent. The Caradoc Lodge thus takes its place among the established Lodges in the province. It starts on its career with the hearty good wishes of the brotherhood, and that career, it may be predicted, will be one of usefulness to the Craft, and honour to the province. The Lodge will be presided over by one of the most capable Masons in the district, one who has already won golden opinions for accurate working, skilled in the noble science, and admirably qualified for the position to which he has been elevated by the suffrages of the brotherhood, and aided by a carefully-selected staff of officers. We doubt not the Lodge will soon earn a repute for being a thoroughly well-worked, well-conducted, and prosperous one.—Cambrian.

THE ANTI-MASONIC VICAR.

FROM THE "SQUARE."

"I HAVE sent for you, although I know my summons must be inconvenient, because I choose you to be present at an interview which has been forced on me by a deputation from the Freemasons: they aim at persuading me to allow them to assemble in my church. A likely matter, indeed! a very likely matter!"

So spake, with flushed cheek and quivering lip, my well-intentioned, but nervous incumbent, one memorable Saturday in the month of August.

"Very well, sir," was my reply; "you may depend on my heeding and recollecting the sentiments of each party."

"Would to Heaven!"—this was an aside—"that these Mason people had chosen some other day than Saturday for their conference! Neither sermon written! The Leading Library accounts all in confusion; Mrs. Watkinson's sick baby to baptize; and two funerals in the afternoon to a certainty!"

"They must be cut short—yes! very, very short!" ejaculated the vicar, decisively and emphatically.

"What, the sermons?" cried I, reverting at once to the topic uppermost in my own mind. "Oh, very well; your views, sir, are mine. They shall be shortened to a certainty."

"You are dreaming," remarked my superior, pettishly. "I allude to the speeches, the oratorical displays, the verbiage of these mystics."

"Ah, precisely so," was my dutiful reply. "You, sir, and no other, hold the check-string: the length of the interview must depend on your pleasure. Masons!" this was another aside—"I wish they were all walled up in the Pyramids. Six: and no tidings. It will be midnight before I shall have completed my preparations for to-morrow."

"I am not narrow-minded," resumed Mr. Gresham, fidgeting fretfully in his chair; "far from it, my views are liberal and enlarged; I never by any chance indulge in a harsh surmise touching any one of my fellow-creatures. But these Mason people alarm me. They have a secret; there is some extraordinary bond, stringent and well understood, by which they support each other. I look upon them as little better than conspirators." Then, after a brief pause, "In fact, they are conspirators."

"You really think so?" said I, for the first time feeling an interest in the subject.

"I do—seriously and solemnly," said the vicar, with an air of the most earnest and portentous gravity.

"Rat-tat-tat! Rap, rap!"

"The Deputation, sir," said the butler, bowing five middle-aged gentlemen into the study.

For a set of "conspirators" they were the oddest-looking people imaginable. There they stood, a knot of portly, frank-featured, cheerful men, upon whom the cares of life sat lightly; who greeted their pastor with a smile, and seemed in high good humour with themselves and all around them.

The spokesman of the party began his story. He said, in substance, that a new Lodge being about to be opened within a mile and a-half of Fairstream, it was the wish of the brethren (the more firmly to engraft on the noble tree of this new Masonic scion) to go in procession to Church, and there listen to a sermon from a clerical brother. In this arrangement he, in the name of the Lodge, represented by the parties then in his presence, most respectfully requested the vicar's concurrence.

That reverend personage, with almost distant and forbidding air, replied, that he could sanction no such proceedings.

Perplexed by this response, which was equally unpalatable and unexpected, the deputation, with deference, demanded my incumbent's reasons for refusal.

"They are many and various," replied he; "but resolve themselves mainly into these four. First: There is nothing Church about you!"

The deputation stared.

"I repeat, that of Freemasons as a body the Church knows nothing. You admit into your fellowship men of all creeds. Your principles and intentions may be pure and praiseworthy; and such I trust they are. But the Church is not privy to them. The Church is in ignorance respecting them. The Church does not recognise them, and therefore, as a ministering servant of the Church, I must decline affording you any countenance or support."

The banker here submitted to the vicar, that in works of charity—in supporting an infirmary, a dispensary, a clothing club, a stranger's friend society—identity of creed was not essential. Men of different shades of religious belief could harmoniously and advantageously combine in carrying out a benevolent project. And one of the leading principles of Freemasonry was active, and untiring, and widely spread benevolence. Could success crown any charitable project, any scheme of philanthropy, any plan for succouring the suffering and the necessitous if no assistance was accepted save from those who held one and the same religious creed? "Charity," he contended, "knew no creed. No shackles, forged by human opinions, could or ought to trammel her. He was no friend to his species who would seek to impose them."

The vicar shook his head repeatedly, in token of vehement dissent from these observations, and proceeded.

"Next I object to you because you are friendly to processions; and, I am given to understand, purpose advancing to church in long and elaborate array. All processions, all emblems, all symbols, I abominate. Such accessories are, in the sanctuary, absolutely indecent; I will not call them unholy; I term them downright profane. What has a thinking being—particularly when proceeding, for the purpose of worship, to the temple of his Creator—what has he to do with processions? They are, one and all, abominations."

The little placeman here briskly stepped forward and said, that "in that Book, with which he was sure the vicar was better acquainted than any one of them, processions were repeatedly mentioned, and never condemned. They occur in all parts of the sacred volume, and in a very early portion of it. A procession of no ordinary description followed Jacob's remains when, with filial love, Joseph brought them out of Egypt into Canaan. A procession, long and elaborately arranged, attended the removal of the Ark from its temporary sojourn in the house of Obed Edom. A procession, glorious and imposing, preceded the dedication of Solomon's Temple. A procession——"

"Pray," said the vicar, sharply, "do you mean to contend that any one of these processions was at all the counterpart of a Masonic procession?"

"I do not, I disclaim all such irreverent intention," returned the other gravely, "my object was simply to show that, by the very highest authority which man can produce, processions are not forbidden. Usage sanctions their adoption among ourselves. They form a part of our most august ceremonies. When the peers present an address to the sovereign on his escape from the hands of an assassin, on the birth of an heir to the throne, on the marriage of one of the royal family, they repair to the royal presence in procession. At the coronation of the sovereign one of the most important features in the pageant is a gorgeous and lengthened procession. That procession, let me remind you, Sir, wends its way to the house of God, and for the purpose of worship. It enters the Abbey. There divine service is performed; in the course of which the sovereign receives the crown and takes an oath to the people. These points are pressed on you as pertinent to the subject. Surely, after considering them, you will hold us blameless, if, as Masons, we wish to 'go up to the house of God in company'—in other words, 'in procession?'"

"Plausible, but hollow!" was the vicar's comment; then, after a pause, "you have failed to convince me. I object to you, strongly, on the score of your processions, and I object to you still more decidedly on the score of your—secret. You are a secret society; are held together by a stringent oath; now I hold that, wherever there is mystery there is iniquity!"

"A harsh conclusion, indeed!" exclaimed Mr. Walford, the merchant, who now took part in the discussion; "you cannot be serious in maintaining it? When you assert secrecy to be criminal, you have forgotten its universal agency. It has escaped you how largely it pervades both public and private life. In every department its operation is traceable. The naval commander sails from his country's shores under sealed orders. He has private papers which contain his instructions. These he is to open in a certain latitude and longitude. Meanwhile their import is 'secret' to him, and to those who serve under him. But he accepts his trust unhesitatingly. The 'secrecy' in which his orders are veiled does not indispose him towards their fulfilment, make him suspicious of their origin, doubtful of their necessity, or render their faithful performance one whit less obligatory upon his part. His duty is to obey. Take another instance: The cabinet council which deliberates on the interests of this great country, and advises the sovereign in matters of policy, is sworn to secrecy. No member of it is allowed, without distinct permission from the reigning prince, to divulge one syllable of what passes at its sittings. It is a secret conclave. But no one questions, on that account, the legality or propriety of its decisions. In private life secrecy obtains. In a commercial partnership there are secrets—the secrets of the firm. To them each co-partner is privy; but is solemnly bound not to disclose them. In a family there are secrets. In most households there are facts which the heads of that household do not divulge to their servants, children, and dependents. Prudence enjoins secrecy. So that, in public and in private life, in affairs of state, and affairs of commerce, secrecy, more or less, prevails; why, then, should it be objected to the Freemason, that in his Order there is a secret which is essential to the existence of the fraternity, and which he is bound to hold sacred?"

"Ha! ha! ha! An adroit evasion of a very awkward accusation!" cried the vicar, with an enjoyable chuckle: "who is the General of your Order? There must be Jesuits amongst ye No argument from Stoneyhurst could be more jesuitically pointed!!" And again the vicar laughed heartily.

The deputation did not join him. They looked on in silence. Perhaps they thought the refusal of the Church a sufficient annoyance, without the addition of the vicar's bantering. His pleasantry was not infectious. Perchance they held with the delinquent negro, in one of our West India colonies, who was first severely reprimanded, and then soundly thrashed by his owner: "Massa, massa; no preachee too and floggee too!"

At length one of them, with great gravity, inquired whether Mr. Gresham had any further objections to urge?

"Oh, dear, yes! I am hostile to you because you combine."

The banker now fired his broadside.

"We do. We are as a city at unity in itself. We form a band of united brethren, bound by one solemn obligation, stringent upon all, from the highest to the lowest; and the object of our combination, boundless charity and untiring benevolence. We must be charitable and kindly affectioned to all; but more especially to our brethren. With them we are ever to sympathise readily, and their necessities to succour cheerfully. Respect are we to have none, neither as to colour, creed, or country. And yet it is our charity, to be neither indiscriminate, wasteful, nor heedless. We are to prefer the worthy brother, and to reject the worthless. And our warrant for so doing is His command who has said, 'Thou shalt open thine hand wide to thy Brother, and to thy poor, and to thy needy in thy land.'"

"The latter remark none can gainsay," said the vicar, coldly; "and thus, I believe, our interview terminates."

The deputation retired desperately chagrined.

The Church was closed against them. The new Lodge was opened, but there was no public procession, and no sermon. To me, lightly and carelessly as I then thought of the Fraternity, there seemed much that was inexplicable in the rebuff which it sustained.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

IN the House of Lords on Friday, Lord Granville explained a statement, made by Mr. Disraeli the night before, when speaking on the Fugitive Slave Circular, after which the Appellate Jurisdiction Bill was discussed and read a second time. On Monday Lord Stanley of Alderley drew attention to the state of affairs in the Malay Peninsula. On Tuesday the Lord Chancellor moved the second reading of the Crossed Cheques Bill, which, after some discussion, was read. On Thursday the Archbishop of Canterbury moved the second reading of the Ecclesiastical Offices and Fees Bill, which being done, the Bill was afterwards referred to a Select Committee. On the motion of Lord Redesdale, an order was agreed to, by which it was made compulsory that all appeals in their Lordships' House should be heard before not less than three Law Lords.

On the order for going into Committee of Supply in the House of Commons on Friday last, Mr. J. Holms expressed an opinion that, in his idea, some reform was necessary in our military system. His views were embodied in a resolution, which was opposed by General Shute and others. Mr. Secretary Hardy, in the course of his remarks on the subject, said he considered the course adopted by Mr. Holms of addressing public meetings during the recess on the subject was objectionable. Mr. Holms afterwards offered to withdraw his resolution, but this the House refused, and it was negatived, without a division. Several votes for the Civil Service were then agreed to. On Monday Mr. Anderson gave notice that he intended moving, at an early date, a resolution with respect to the collision between the Alberta and the Mistletoe. Mr. Goschen then called the attention of the House to the loss of the Vanguard, criticising the conduct of several of the officers at great length and with some severity. Mr. Hunt replied, and stated that for months he had been assailed on this subject, but considered that he had done all he could in the matter; after some further discussion, and some remarks from Mr. Disraeli, the motion of Mr. Goschen, for the production of certain papers, was agreed to. On Tuesday Mr. Secretary Cross stated, in reply to Mr. Pell, that it was the intention of the Government to bring in the promised measure relating to prisons about the time the Budget was introduced. Sir C. Dilke then directed attention to the question of the unreformed municipal corporations, on which subject some amount of discussion ensued. On Wednesday a proposal to read the Municipal Franchise (Ireland) Bill a second time, made by Major O'Gorman, was fully considered, and eventually negatived, the House, on dividing, shewing a majority of 28 against the reading. After some further unimportant business the House adjourned. On Thursday two new members took their seats, viz.:—Mr. Denison for East Retford, and Mr. Brown for Horsham. Captain Nolan proposed, on the order of the day for going into Committee of Supply on the Army Estimates, that the inducements to enter the army be increased, which, after some discussion, was negatived, without a division. Some other proposals were made, and the House then went into Committee of Supply, when Mr. Secretary Hardy made his annual military statement.

Her Majesty the Queen, attended by the Princess of Wales, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold was present at a concert at the Albert Hall, on Friday last. On Tuesday a Levée was held at St. James's Palace, by the Duke of Edinburgh, on behalf of Her Majesty the Queen.

Intelligence has been received of the total loss of the ship "Strathmore," which was wrecked on a rock near the Crozet group of islands on the 1st of July last, during a fog. It is stated that out of a total of 89 souls on board 45 are missing. On Wednesday, the "Glenaray," of Glasgow, from Adelaide, went ashore during a dense fog, off the Isle of Wight, and became a total wreck. All hands were saved by the Coast-guard and others.

Abroad, the principal event of the week has been the flight of Don Carlos and the consequent stoppage of the long Civil War in Spain. On Monday he asked for the protection of France, which was accorded him, and he then started for England. The French authorities have determined to put a stop to ready money betting, and this rule being enforced at a race meeting on Sunday last, caused great commotion, several men being served with notice of prosecution. Some disastrous floods have taken place on the Continent, France, Austria and Hungary especially suffering.

We heartily congratulate our good Brother, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, upon the success of his researches after what is known as the "Wilson M.S. Constitution," which, we trust, may prove to be of more archæological value than has been supposed.

We see, by a contemporary, that he has traced this M.S., which was noticed by the Masonic writers Hutchinson and Preston and ascribed to the time of Henry VIII., into the possession of a relative of Sir Thomas Phillips, to whom it had been sold by the Wilson family. It is on vellum, and ascribed by its present owner to the 17th century. In the "Old Charges of British Freemasons," by the eminent Masonic writer, William James Hughan, Past Grand Deacon, issued in 1872, we find the above classified with the various ancient Constitutions, whose originals were then unknown, as Y.

Obituary.

It is our painful duty to chronicle, this week, the death—which occurred on 27th ultimo—of Brother William Farnfield, a worthy Mason, whose labours extended over a period of upwards of fifty years. Bro. Farnfield was initiated in the Lodge of Union on 31st August 1825, and continued a member until his death. He was P.M. of the Lodge, and for many years its Secretary. He joined the Constitutional Lodge, No. 55, on 17th February 1830, and was a member till 1873; was also P.M. of this Lodge, and for many years Secretary. He joined St. George and Corner Stone Lodge, No. 5, on 8th February 1869, his membership terminating December 1872; here also he acted as Secretary. He was exalted in St. George's Chapter, No. 5, on 1st November 1830, and was a member till 1873; was P.Z. and S.E. for many years. He was the first Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons, which position he held till October 1872. He was for more than 40 years in the Grand Secretary's Office, and held the rank of Asst. Grand Secretary for many years, in fact he was the only brother who ever held that position. For several years past infirmity had compelled him to retire from active duty; but so highly were his past services appreciated that his declining years were solaced by Pensions from Grand Lodge and the Institution of which he was the late Secretary. Bro. Farnfield's remains were interred at Tooting Cemetery, on Thursday last. His mourning family may, with laudable pride, look back and revere his memory, for no brother ever carried out the duties of a father more faithfully.

Bro. John Hawker, P.M. 871, died suddenly on Friday, 18th February, at the comparatively early age of 51. He suffered from heart disease, and was only ill for a short space of time. He was initiated in the Royal Oak Lodge, 871, on the 22nd October 1862, and continued a subscribing member up to his death. He served the office of W.M. in 1868, doing all the work and installing his successor. He was a Life Subscriber to one of the Charities. He took an active interest in his Lodge, seldom missed a meeting, and was well and deservedly respected by all who knew him. He has left a widow and a family to lament the heavy loss they have sustained.

THE DRAMA.

"Jo" at the Globe.—The Rival Othellos.

THE production, at the Globe Theatre, of a play founded upon the more tragic and dramatic incidents in Mr. Dickes's "Bleak House," has evoked a considerable amount of attention and criticism. The episode of the death of the street arab, "Jo," the murder of Mr. Tulkinghorn, and the grave, misdirected suspicions to which that crime gave rise, are eminently susceptible of dramatic treatment, and in the drama under review are brought into effective prominence. The centre of interest is undoubtedly "Jo," and Snagsby and Chadband, Lady Dedlock and Mr. Bucket are more or less subordinated to the general purpose of the play. In this the author has shown a wise discretion. It is a common fault with dramatic writers in adapting novels to the stage that they attempt too much. They forget how much wider the scope of a novel is than that of a play. The former will admit of several more or less distinct threads of interest. In the latter it is essential that there should be but one central story, and that every other episode introduced should be clearly subordinated to this. Yet if the author is to be complimented on the skill of his own work he is no less to be congratulated on his good fortune in obtaining adequate exponents for the various characters. Miss Jennie Lee, in particular, who sustains the part of Jo, is a real acquisition to the London stage, from which she has been far too long away. Some of our readers may recollect her success at the Lyceum in a somewhat analogous character about five years since. Her present performance, however, shows a manifest advance upon that. The pathos of this admirable character is fully brought out, and a thousand little natural touches testify to the thoroughness of the actress's study. The other parts in the play are also well sustained, and it can scarcely be doubted that the production will prove a success.

Some years ago, when Mr. Fechter and the late Mr. G. V. Brooke were competing for London favour in the character of Othello, a kind of farcical burlesque was brought out (based, we believe, upon an older play of a similar kind), entitled "The Rival Othellos." The conjunction of the two histrionic planets, Salvini and Henry Irving, in this part during the past few months, has been thought to furnish a sufficient reason for the revival of this farce, and it is now being performed with considerable success at the Strand. Mr. Terry presents a humorous caricature of Mr. Irving in the part, and M. Marius is equally happy in hitting off the weaknesses of the impersonation of Signor Salvini.

Northumberland and Berwick Lodge of Mark Masters.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Wednesday the 23rd ultimo, at Freemasons' Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Present—Bros. R. H. Holmes Prov. G.J.W. W.M., W. S. Hughes P.P.G.S. of W., S.W. W. E. Franklin J.W., John Edward Robson, Prov. G.O. Sec., Richard Locke Treas., L. Armstrong S.O., T. J. Armstrong J.O., T. Halliday S.D., J. C. Bell J.D., Wm. Foulsham P.P.G.J.W. D.C., J. D. Stephen Steward, R. G. Salmon I.G., H. C. Martin Tyler. Past Master Bro. John Ridsdale. Visitor—Bro. Samuel Harris, of Albany Lodge. Business—There being a candidate, this beautiful degree was ably given by the W.M. Bro. W. Foulsham P.M. congratulated the members upon the great prosperity of this Lodge, and the good attendance and excellent working of its officers. The Lodge expressed deep regret upon learning the death of the D.G.M., Bro. W. Romaine Callendar. Another candidate was proposed for advancement.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—Some fifteen or twenty years ago this was one of the most noted of the Lodges where instruction was imparted, and many Masons who at the present day hold high position in the Order acquired their knowledge of the ritual from its Preceptors. From a variety of causes the attendance declined, and for some time the Lodge of Instruction ceased working. The parent Lodge, however, ranks amongst its members some of the most painstaking and persevering brethren in the Craft, and, accordingly, an effort has been made to resuscitate the Lodge of Instruction, and for this purpose the services of our worthy Brother Jas. Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, were called into requisition. Bro. Terry is at all times ready to assist in the ceremonies of consecration and installation. Saturday, the 26th February, was fixed, and on the evening of that day a large muster of members of our Order, both from the immediate neighbourhood and the surrounding districts, attended at the Jolly Farmers' Tavern, Southgate-road, Islington, where it has been arranged the Lodge of Instruction shall hold its future meetings. Bro. Terry briefly explained the object of the gathering, and rehearsed the ceremony of consecration in a most effective and impressive manner. At the conclusion Bro. John Constable introduced Bro. W. B. Heath as the W.M elect, and Bro. Terry installed him into the chair of King Solomon. The investiture of officers followed: Bro. Cooper S.W., Main J.W., R. Pearcy S.D., Stock J.D., Saul I.G., Halford Treasurer, and Killick Secretary. The W.M. then rose and said, that all present could not but feel greatly indebted to Bro. Terry for the great kindness he had shown in coming amongst them, and for the excellent way in which he had conducted the business of the evening. He had great pleasure in moving a vote of thanks, which he was convinced would be unanimously accorded. This was seconded by Bro. Halford, and was carried amid acclamation. Bro. Terry replied. A proposition was then made that Bros. Heath and Cooper should be elected honorary members, which was carried, and duly acknowledged. After a large addition had been made to the list of members, the Lodge was closed, and a goodly contingent partook of a slight repast, and afterwards spent a pleasant hour in social converse. The ceremonies of the evening were rendered doubly impressive by the able assistance of Bro. Whaley, 813, who presided at the harmonium. It is intended that the Percy Lodge of Instruction shall meet each Saturday evening, at eight o'clock, under the Preceptorship of Bro. Richard Pearcy. If we might be allowed a suggestion, we would remark that the time fixed is too late; 7 or 7.30 would be much better for those brethren who reside at a distance.

Drogheda Lodge, No. 411.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Drogheda, on the 10th ultimo. Present—Bros. Whitty W.M., Dean P.M. as S.W., Glenny J.W., Griffin S.D., Preston J.D., Hannan Chaplain, Horan Organist, Sapple I.G., Browne Tyler, P. E. Clarke, P.M. H.K.T. Sec. and Treas. Past Masters Bros. Dean, Clarke, Harbinson, Parsons, Jeffers. Visitors—Bros. Wisdom, Lodge 84, Wilkins 351. Business transacted—Bro. E. C. Bassett was passed to the Fellow Craft degree, and Mr. H. G. Cary initiated. Two new members were proposed for initiation, one brother for affiliation, and a former member of the Lodge (recently afflicted) was proposed for honorary membership.

Borough Lodge, No. 424.—This Lodge held its annual meeting on Monday, the 21st of February, at Freemasons' Hall, West-street, Gateshead. Business—Installation of Bro. W. C. L. Hartig as W.M., who appointed the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. A. Anderson S.W., T. S. Miller J.W., T. S. Wraith P.M. Secretary, J. Marchant P.M. Treasurer, P. J. Jackson S.D., Geo. Hardy J.D., J. Marchant D.C., Jas Ward S.S. and R. Grant J.S. Stewards, John Roy I.G., J. Carry Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. J. E. Robson P.M. 48, Joseph Cook P.M. 481, Adam Wilson M.D. P.M. 1342, R. Gregory W.M. 48. The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Half Moon Inn, and partook of a sumptuous dinner, provided by Bro. T. Pearson, after which the evening was spent in harmony.

Cherwell Lodge, No. 599.—The anniversary meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, the 28th ult., at the Red Lion Hotel, Banbury, when Bro. John Potts, P. Prov. G. Sup. of Works Oxon, was installed W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremony was performed by Bro. R. Havers, P.G.S.D. of England, in an impressive and masterly manner. Bro. Potts afterwards appointed and invested his officers as follow:—Bros. Rev. J. Spittal S.W., Rev. A. Ayton J.W., R. Havers P.G.S.D. Treasurer, J. B. Locker P.M. Secretary, Capt. H. C. Norris S.D., E. J. Hartley P.M. J.D., Dr. Griffin P.M. D.C., W. Chamberlin and T. Fowler Stewards, R. C. Humfrey I.G., T. Moss Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined together, under the presidency of the newly installed W.M.

Whittington Chapter, No. 862.—The regular convocation of this Chapter was held on Friday, the 25th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Comps. W. Stephens as Z., Jas. Weaver P.Z. as H., J. Kingston J., Murlis S.N., Tinney P.S., &c. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. H. Cuff 511, and J. Symonds, M.D., 1356 were duly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. The Chapter was then closed and the usual banquet followed. The loyal and R.A. toasts were given, also that of the Z., principals and officers. Comp. McIntyre, of Melbourne, was present as a visitor.

Royal Oak Lodge, No. 871.—This Lodge held an emergency meeting on Monday, 21st February, at the White Swan Tavern, High-street, Deptford. Present—Bros. S. O. Lewin W.M., H. J. Tuson W.M. elect and S.W., John J. Pakes J.W., Frederick Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex P.M. Sec., John Baxter Langley J.D., R. Harman D.C., J. G. Vohmann Steward, H. J. Fisher Organist, J. Rapp, F. H. Barr, J. G. Thomas, R. J. Harvey, J. Rennie, E. James, J. Woollett, G. A. Leighton, W. Simmons, G. Eve. Ballots were unanimous in favour of Messrs. G. Eve, G. A. Leighton, and W. Simmons, and these gentlemen were initiated by the W.M. and Bro. G. Andrews I.P.M., who ably conducted the proceedings. In consequence of the awfully sudden death of Bro. J. Hawker P.M., senior initiate and nearly senior P.M., it was agreed not to have a banquet on installation meeting. He died on Friday Feb. 18th, aged 51. There was no banquet or any refreshments supplied.

Royal Oak Lodge, No. 871.—The Installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 24th ultimo, at the White Swan, High-street, Deptford. Present—Bros. S. O. Lewin W.M., H. J. Fuson W.M. elect S.W., J. J. Pakes J.W., W. Andrews P.M. Treas., Frederick Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 871, Sec., W. Wyatt P.M. S.D., John Baxter Langley W.M. 1423 J.D., G. T. Limm I.G., R. Harman D.C., J. G. Vohmann Steward, H. J. Fisher Organist, J. Bavin P.M. 147 Tyler. Past Masters Bros. F. Walters, W. Andrews, W. Myatt, G. Andrews, J. Truelove. Visitors—Bros. H. J. Green W.M. 1538, E. Debar W.M. 169, J. T. Tibbals P.M. 169, J. Pattle P.M. 147, J. Lightfoot P.M. 147, J. J. West P.M. 548, H. Keeble P.M. 1275, &c. The minutes were unanimously confirmed. Bro. F. Walters P.M. Sec. presented Bro. H. J. Tuson to Bro. G. Andrews for installation. The following are the officers:—S. O. Lewin I.P.M., W. Andrews P.M. Treas. (re-invested for ninth time), F. Walters (father of the Lodge) Sec. (re-invested 16th time), J. J. Pakes S.W., John Baxter Langley J.W., H. J. Fisher Organist (re-invested third time), G. T. Limm S.D., R. Harman J.D., J. G. Vohmann I.G., J. Andrews D.C., W. Myatt W.S., J. Bavin P.M. 147 Tyler. On the motion of Bro. F. Walters, it was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks be given to Bro. G. Andrews, for his admirable, painstaking manner during Installation. A P.M.'s Jewel (the most valuable ever given in this Lodge) was presented to Bro. Lewin. It was arranged that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of Bro. John Hawker. Ten pounds was voted from Lodge funds to a male annuitant.

Phœnix Lodge, No. 904, Rotherham.—The anniversary meeting of this Lodge was held on the 24th ult., when Bro. Clement Hamil Perrot (a Past Master of the Lodge) was installed as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, by Bro. Oxley P.M. and P.P.G.R. of West Yorks. The W.M., after being saluted and proclaimed in the three degrees, appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. John Fawcett I.P.M., Benjamin Saville S.W., H. I. Bingham J.W., Thomas W. Roome Secretary, J. W. Wragg S.D., Charles Harvey J.D., and Wilfrid Badger I.G. Bro. Needham P.M. was appointed Almoner. The ballot was taken for a candidate, who had been proposed and seconded at the last regular Lodge, when he was declared not elected. Hearty good wishes were presented from Lodges 108, 139, 241, 296, and 1239. Amongst the Visitors present were Bros. Thomas Jefferson S.W. of the London Lodge, No. 108, London, William Jarvis S.W. and John Arthur Binney, of the Britannia Lodge, No. 139, Sheffield, John Cobham P.M. of the Merchants' Lodge, No. 241, Liverpool, Henry Ecroyd W.M., and John Rideal S.W. of the Royal Brunswick Lodge, No. 296, Sheffield, William White W.M. and Samuel Bramhall Ellis S.W. of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1239, Sheffield. During the evening, the W.M. called the attention of those of his brethren who were present at the Installation of the Prince of Wales as Grand Master, to the Pictorial Record of that event now being engraved under the auspices of Bro. E. J. Harty, at No. 213 Regent-street, London, and advised them to send their cartes without delay, so that their portraits may be included amongst those inserted. Attention was also called to the London Masonic Club, now in course of construction on an eligible site in Queen Victoria-street, London, E.C., and those brethren desirous of joining were informed that a ballot would be taken on the 1st of March, after which joining members will be liable to an entrance fee. Bro. Marsh (Solicitor) expressed a wish to know how far brethren, who become subscribers, will be liable for the debts of the club. Bro. Henry Ecroyd (of Sheffield) pointed out that the prospectus as well as the application forms distributed amongst brethren likely to avail themselves of the advantages offered by the club, distinctly state that members incur no liability whatever beyond their subscriptions. Bro. Marsh, in reply, said that the undertaking being "proprietary," it was a question how far subscribers may become responsible for the liabilities under certain possible contingencies, and he desired that the promoters of the club would explain on whom the liabilities will fall should the club, unfortunately, prove unsuccessful. Many brethren doubtless have similar scruples about joining the club in the absence of definite information on these points, and if the worthy Secretary—Bro. Captain Lathbury—will kindly give the information asked for by Bro. Marsh, in the columns of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, he will obtain the active support of many worthy country Masons.

MOTHER KILWINNING FESTIVAL.

THE Bairns of the Old Mother, in Glasgow and its vicinity, are now so numerous that they have now, for the fifth year, held a Festival together. On this, as on a previous occasion, the R.W.M. of St. John's, No. 3 bis, which claims as great, or even greater, antiquity than the Mother Lodge, kindly placed their magnificent hall at their disposal. This is as it should be, and shows that true Masonic spirit, which looks above all petty jealousies, or foolish rivalries, to the general good of the Craft.

The chair was occupied by Bro. R. Willis, Past Provincial Grand Master of Ayrshire, but who delights in the humbler title of the Secretary of Mother Kilwinning. He was supported by Bros. J. A. Ferguson P.S.W. No. 0, J. Thompson F.G.S. No. 0, J. Shaw No. 0, D. M. Neilson R.W.M. 3 bis, W. Bell I.P.M. 3 bis, J. Baird P.M. 3 bis, D.P.G.M. of Glasgow, and P. Brownlie J.W. 3 bis, Stodart, Secretary of the Glasgow Committee, acted as S.W., supported by Bros. Jamieson and Balfour P.G.D. of C., J. Walker as J.W., supported by Bros. J. Tweed P.J.W. No. 0, and C. Stobo, there were about 50 other members of the Old Mother present, who did ample justice to the bill of fare provided by Bro. J. C. Galloway, after which the Secretary read letters of apology from Col. W. M. Neilson P.G.M. Glasgow, Sir James Fergerson, Bart., Rev. J. Gils, of Kilburn, P.G. Chaplain, and others. The Chairman, in an excellent manner, gave the usual Loyal toasts, which were heartily responded to. Bros. Brodie at the harmonium, and D. B. Fleming with his voice, leading in the National Anthem, and "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The toast of the Army, Navy and Reserve Forces were replied to by Bro. Sergt. Reid.

The Chairman said they had now got to that part of the programme where what was known as the "chairman's address" came in, but first of all he felt it to be his duty to thank them for honouring him with the position of chairman on that occasion to preside over the "sons of light" who were cradled in the Mother Lodge Kilwinning. Assembled as they were that night around the social board, drawn together by the most sacred ties of brotherhood, he had chosen as text for his few remarks, "What is Freemasonry?" They were again invited to answer that question by those who had not entered within the portals of the Masonic temple; and as they were aware their Order had been assailed and anathematised by the Church of Rome. Well, Freemasonry, as they understood it in these days, had been defined as "a beautiful system of morality, veiled in allegory, and illustrated by symbols—faith, hope, and charity being among its brightest jewels." Its principles were inconvertible, they were based on the broadest ethical truths; it was founded on the Bible. Freemasonry sought to infuse its members with the spirit of love, charity, and benevolence; to break down the partition wall between class and class. In a Masonic Lodge, peer and peasant, rich and poor, learned and illiterate, met fraternally on the same level. Freemasonry had been denounced for being a "secret" society, but he held that whatever and whenever secrecy was necessary, it was also commendable. But what were those secrets? Remove from Masonry the pass-words, signs, and tokens, and the manner of conferring the degrees, and the whole secrecy of the matter disappeared. The benefits of the Order, however, remained, being reserved for the initiated who contributed to its support; and its cosmopolitan language was used only as a sign and test of brotherhood. (Applause.) Having referred to the olden times when Masonry was exclusively a guild society, when none but operative Masons were admitted to enjoy its privileges, the chairman said it was worthy of remark that the Lodge Glasgow St. John, within whose walls they were highly privileged to meet that evening, was the last to give up this ancient character. Within that time honoured Lodge non-operatives were not admitted until so recently as the year 1842; and not till the year 1850 did they see fit to join themselves with the Grand Lodge of Scotland. (Applause.) In concluding his remarks, the chairman said that the Freemasons did what in them lay to aid in healing dissensions and in bringing good and honest men into one indissoluble brotherhood. The door of a Masonic Lodge was open to every man of "good report," irrespective of his religious or political creed. Notwithstanding all that had been said by the uninitiated against Freemasonry—and be admitted that, like all merely human institutions, it was not perfect—the fraternity seemed in a fair way of becoming co-extensive with terra firma. (Applause.) It was a somewhat trite saying that "the sun never sets on the British dominions," an apt and forcible illustration of the wide distribution of their Order. (Applause.) Lodges had been formed in all the great geographical divisions of the world, in Europe, Asia, China, along the coast of Africa, the two Americas, and Australia. Hence they might truly say that in almost every clime there was a Lodge, and in every Lodge a band of brethren—thereby doing somewhat to hasten the time of which our national poet prophesied—

"When man to man, the world o'er,
Shall brithers be and a' that.'

The chairman resumed his seat amid much applause. The toast of the "Province of Glasgow" was given by Bro. Thomson, P.G.S., and responded to by Bro. John Baird P.G.S.M. The latter said he felt exceedingly sorry that the P.G.M., Bro. Neilson, had not been able to be with them that night. He could assure them, however, that he (the P.G.M.) had been successful in promoting and maintaining the cause of Masonry in Glasgow. That he had been successful was shown by the fact that there were now 28 Lodges within the province, and that, at the last visitation of them by the P.G.L. every one of them was found to be in a promising condition. (Applause.) The prosperous condition of the P.G.L. itself was shown by their now being able to give away regularly a large amount in charity. Before sitting down, Bro. Baird begged to propose the toast of "Mother Kilwinning." In so doing he remarked that it certainly did seem strange that in every country in the globe the name of Mother Kilwinning should be known. Such was the case, however, and that its prosperity might yet more increase, and its borders be extended in time to come, was the wish not only of those present but in every quarter where Masonry was known. (Applause.)

Bro. J. A. Fergerson P.S.W. replied, stating the gratification he experienced at the way in which so eminent a member of St. John 3¼, had proposed this toast, it was a pleasure to find that the Glasgow brethren had so warm a feeling towards the old mother. The chairman proposed prosperity to St. John 3¼, and though they could not show them so fine a building in Kilwinning he could assure them of a hearty welcome when they came to see them in their "auld clay bigging." Bro. Neilson R.W.M. of St. John replied in an excellent speech, stating the pleasure it gave him as well as the other officers of the Lodge to welcome under their roof the descendants of those who had rocked the cradle of Freemasonry in the dark ages of humanity. Bro. Walker J.W., in a very elegant speech, proposed the Clergy, contending they had done more for the permanent interest of Scotland than any other class of men. In the absence of the Chaplain, Bro. Jamieson replied. The Visiting Brethren was proposed by the S.W., and replied to in a brief but effective manner by Bro. P. Brownlie J.W. of 3 bis. Bro. G. Grant, in a highly humorous speech, proposed the Ladies, who found a capital exponent of the claim in the reply of Bro. C. Stobo. The croupier gave the Press, which was responded to by Bro. J. Johnson, of the North British Mail. Bro. Bell proposed the Chairman, and Bro. G. W. Wheeler the croupiers, Bros. Stodart and Walker. Bro. Shaw proposed the Committee and Bro. Fergerson responded. Auld Lang Syne was then sung by the whole company, we should also say that Bros. Brodie, Clark, Duncan, Fleming, Shira, Smith, Granger, Johnson, Wheeler and others contributed, by their songs and recitations, to enhance the harmony of this highly successful re-union of the Glasgow bairns of Mother Kilwinning.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

WE have received a copy of a pamphlet, purporting to be the Report of a Committee of Investigation appointed by Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire "to investigate the management and expenditure of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys." Into the causes that led to the appointment of this Committee it is not our purpose to enter, although we cannot help expressing our opinion that something like unfriendliness of tone pervades the wording of the report, which cannot be altogether ascribed to the results of the enquiry. It does not appear that these results are of a very serious character. The Committee asserts that the total cost per boy in the Masonic Institution is considerably greater than a reference to the cost of other similar establishments would seem to justify. The London Orphan Asylum School, for example, in 1874, maintained and educated 491 children, at an average cost per head of £31 6s 3d; the Commercial Travellers' School in like manner maintained 228 children, at a cost of £30 4s per head; the Ackworth Schools, with 290 inmates, cost £31 10s 6d per head; the Sidcote Schools, with 97 inmates, £33 19s; the Yorkshire Boys' School, with 55 inmates, £33; the Masonic Girls School, with 140 inmates, £36 16s 11½d, and the Clergy Orphan Boys' School, with 110 inmates, £43 18s 0½d. As compared with these figures, the cost per head in the Masonic Institution, £54 10s 3d, certainly appears high, though it by no means follows that it is excessive. Even if it be a fact that the Masonic Institution is more expensive than other Institutions of a similar kind, a fact by the way which can hardly be said to be proved by a comparison with the cost of some half dozen selected establishments, it might still be replied that the full worth of the money was obtained, that the subscribers did not begrudge the expenditure, and that the Institution was in a position to afford it. We do not say that this reply would be made, but only that, for all that the investigation has proved, such a reply might be made. The second charge is a more serious one, viz.: that the instruction has not been attended with the most satisfactory results. Of the nineteen boys entered for the Cambridge Local Examination in December 1869, six failed entirely, and eleven obtained certificates only; of the ten entered for the Oxford Local in June 1871, three only obtained second class honours, four third class, and three failed entirely: and of the three entered for the Oxford Local in June 1873, two failed entirely, and the other only obtained third division. Without further particulars it would be impossible for us to express any opinion in regard to this allegation. But we would ask, may it not be that the conductors of the School aim rather at a fairly high general standard for all, than a superlative degree of excellence for a small number of show pupils? The only other subject of complaint is with regard to the mode of keeping and presenting the accounts. The Committee recommends the adoption of a mode of presenting the accounts in use in the London Orphan Asylum, by which the average outlay per head for the various items of expenditure is clearly shown. This, and some other trifling suggestions, might perhaps be adopted with advantage to the Institution. But until we have both sides of the question before us, we must refrain from expressing any decisive opinion upon the other questions raised by the Committee of Investigation.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 19.)

A MODEL MASON.

"Dub thyself hero, and the false, fickle world,
Will pay thee willing homage. Declare thyself
Saint, and the dull throng will bend the knee
And worship. But, play thy part in silence,
And be but honest man; bend to no rising
Sun; keep to thy work most steadfastly,
And square thy life by duty's strictest rule;
Yet shall the mob curse thee, and Impudence
Shall trample on thy skirts, and push before thee,
To fortune and to fame."

IT has been our fortune, hitherto, to sketch the lineaments of brethren who have achieved high distinction in the Order, and, in giving them our special attention, we have been obliged to pass over many men whose zeal for Masonry is second to none of those who have achieved Grand Lodge honours. We have in our portfolio a long list of eminent Past Masters whose features and mental characteristics we hope ere long to transfer to the canvas. These gentlemen are indeed the pillars of the Masonic edifice. The fame of many of them is confined within the immediate circle of their Lodges; but they have been content to toil on in comparative obscurity, and their work is not the less valuable because it has not been trumpeted to the four winds of heaven by the heralds of fame. The Order owes much to the steady industry of a host of worthy brothers who never seek publicity, and who would be, perhaps, rather annoyed than pleased if we were to drag them, without ceremony, into the full light of day. We have the highest respect and admiration for these modest ones, and we are of opinion that the best work, both in the world and within the Order, is done by people who never take the trouble to assert themselves, and who are simply animated by a loyal devotion to duty. The subject of our sketch is a man of this stamp. He cares nothing for fame, or the hollow applause of the multitude, and we are quite certain that he will be very angry with us if we venture to say a word too much of his private worth, or of his Masonic career. To us he is known as a painstaking official, in the confidence of a great Corporation, in whose service he has spent the best years of his life. Thirty-six years since, our brother took service with the Civic Fathers, and spent the usual term of probation, if we may so call it, in hard and honourable work. Step by step he advanced in the esteem of his official chiefs, and at this present writing he holds a position analogous to that of a secretary in a great public company. Few persons who are unacquainted with the subject know anything of the real nature of the work or the responsibilities of public servants. Thoughtless people suppose that official life is a bed of roses; they imagine that the official merely plays, like Trafalgar Square fountains, from ten to four, and then retires to his neat suburban villa, to dine in happy contentment with his family. The public know nothing of the wear and tear of such a career; of the long hours of steady labour which are often exacted from a public servant, or of the heavy responsibilities which he is called upon to bear. It would be useless for us here to attempt to set the world right with reference to the duties or the emoluments of men of this class. We might as well attempt to set forth the true nature of Freemasonry to the denizens of the outer world. It is sufficient for us to say, and we speak, be it remembered, from experience, that the strain of official life is very serious, and that its rewards are not always as brilliant as they might be. If our brother, for example, had entered upon a commercial career he might have made a fortune. As a secretary of a public company his knowledge of public business would have been simply invaluable. Many of these latter officials are realising princely incomes, and are not called upon to grind daily in the official mill. Their work is rather of the ornamental kind, but those who know the great body to which we allude are aware that it has wisely determined to keep no more cats than can catch mice. Yet, perhaps, our brother, highly as he is placed on the official roll, might have risen higher still if he had been conversant with those arts which, while men remain gullible creatures, will always help to push mediocrity to the front. He does not possess either arrogance or effrontery, and does not care to assert himself. His mind is fully stored with precedents and general official lore, but he has not the knack of "mouthing" his knowledge to make it appear more valuable than it really is, nor is he possessed of that bad eloquence which can transmute dross into pinchbeck. We have lived long enough to know that the highest success in life is rarely if ever achieved by modest unassuming worth. It is the man with the brazen front and leaden conscience who "gets on." It is the man who values himself highly who contrives to compel the world to place a fictitious value upon his own talents. Bluster has actually a high marketable value in these days, and he who is master of the art of "talking big" may be certain of success, of a kind. Yet, in the end, high personal worth is justly appreciated by the deserving few, whose opinions are of more real value than those of all the rest of the world. The man who possesses genius or talent would rather win the applause of men of high culture than the gaping adulations of fools. The homage of the latter is usually bestowed upon idols of gilded clay, whose resplendent brilliancy always far surpasses that of the sterling solid metal. We have known fools who could merely talk bunkum and strike an attitude, who went down to their graves with the praise of a thoughtless world ringing in their ears. We know honest and painstaking men, such as our brother, whose robust constitutions require no such gingerbread nutrition.

Our brother's Masonic career has not been a remarkable one, but of its kind it is, so to speak, typical. We might, indeed, style him a model Master Mason, since his knowledge of the Craft is solid and thorough. He was initiated in the Dalhousie Lodge on the 13th October 1864, and at once entered zealously into Masonic work. He attended his Lodge with the greatest regularity, and made it his business to perfect himself in Masonry. In April 1867 he was appointed Junior Warden, and in the following year he was Senior Warden. In 1867 he was elected the W.M. of the Lodge, having attained this high and honourable post in the unusually short period of less than six years. His promotion was owing entirely to his Masonic and personal merit, and we are assured that he filled the chair with honour to himself and credit to the Order. In the same year he acted as Steward at the Anniversary Festival of the R.M.B. Institution for Aged Freemasons. Some four years since he took an active part in the promotion of the Kennington Lodge, No. 1381, and was appointed acting Past Master; this Lodge is now in a flourishing condition, and we may have occasion to speak of it more fully in future sketches. In 1874 our brother was Treasurer of his Lodge, but in 1876, at the unanimous request of the brethren, he was induced to take the office of Secretary, which he still holds. To this honourable and laborious post he has brought an intellect trained to work of a congenial nature, and we are assured that he performs the duties of the post in a style which leaves nothing to be desired. His minutes of the proceedings are models of perspicuity. We should be glad, indeed, if we could say the same of similar work from the pens of Lodge Secretaries generally, who are not always the most luminous of scribes. Our brother is greatly and deservedly respected by the members of the Dalhousie Lodge, and, indeed, by all who know aught of his Masonic or his secular career. His loyal devotion to duty, and his unaffected earnestness are appreciated by those who value sterling metal, and who are not disposed to pay homage to mere gilded gingerbread. He has toiled steadily and honourably for the Order, and yields to none in genuine enthusiasm for the grand principles which lie at the root of the fraternity. His kindly face would be missed if sickness should ever compel him to throw down his secretarial pen. But he is blessed with a robust constitution, and gives ample promise of a green and honoured old age. In official work he has long since won his spurs, and we may, perhaps, be permitted here to express a hope that the substantial rewards which fortune sometimes has in store for those who do not bend the knee to Mammon, or court the rising sun of power, may yet be showered upon him. He has indeed no reason to quarrel with the fickle dame, who yet perchance may cast the best things in her budget at his feet.

WE have altered the title of these essays to the above, as conveying more clearly our design. We acknowledge our indebtedness to the erudite "Parmenio" for his letter in our last issue, and should be equally obliged to any other brother who may honour us by enlarging upon our text, and by taking up the scattered threads of Masonic symbolism. We have pointed out the value of the five pointed star and the Seal of Solomon in magical formulæ, and believe that both these emblems were prescribed for use by the Catholic Church in acts of exorcism. The exorcist (or caster out of demons) stood within the double triangle, and traced the pentagon upon the ground between him and the possessed one. We cannot call to mind our authority, but evidence of the same will be found in Vol. 1 of "Glimpses of the Supernatural," by Rev. Mr. Lee.

And here, we must disclaim the intention of enlisting our readers in favour of the practices of modern spiritualism, its erratic developments, and fraudulent mediums. We only wish to keep our eyes open to the unexplained phenomena which occur under the auspices of that movement, which seem closely related to animal magnetism, or to the "Psychic force" of Serjeant Cox, but which yet baffle our hypotheses. The existence of unseen forces around us is proved by the Bible and by every page of history; apparitions of the departed have been attested in scores by evidence which would be received in any court of justice; the case of the apparition to Lord Brougham* should be enough to make any man suspend judgment, and hesitate before denying their possibility.

The ceremony of RAISING in the third degree was evidently designed to illustrate and prefigure the inevitable transition of every man from one life into another; and this particular ceremony seems to us likely to have descended from remotest times. Psychic investigation in this connection would, we consider, be especially in place; even were we not already enjoined in the second degree to study the hidden mysteries of nature and science.

We cannot see the force which emanates from the loadstone, nor from the skilful mesmeriser, nor from the will power of individuals, of which the effects in their way are no less evident. What is that mysterious mutual attraction or repulsion perceptibly experienced by individuals in each other's presence, the tones of whose characters, constitutions or surroundings are not in harmony? Whence come the premonitions which some have, of danger to themselves or others, which in numerous recorded instances have been beneficially acted upon? All these questions are of great interest, and their attempted theoretical explanation was, in olden times, veiled under a system of symbols.

Wonderful powers were and are ascribed by the Jews to the ineffable name or Tetragrammaton. It is said to have been preserved by the Essenes, never communicated but in a whisper, and then so disguised that the connected whole remained a mystery. It was believed to include all things, and to shake heaven and earth, and is called in Calmet the KING-NAME. The biography of a cabbalist reputed to have possessed the knowledge of this name (Rabbi De Falk, of London, 1780), is found in the "Royal Masonic Cyclopædia,† and it is of some interest. The Jews represented it by a triangle which contained the Hebrew letter Jod, symbol of inaccessible Light and primitive existence; also by three points radiating from a centre, and by their letter Schin. It is noteworthy that all these symbols are triune, implying the Trinitarian idea of Deity.

The two columns in the porchway of King Solomon's Temple have been held to symbolise the male and female principles which pervade creation. We cannot help suspecting that the Trinity of the heathen mystics consisted of these two principles, and of the Astral Light—the magic triangle.

Of early Christian writers, Irenæus says that God is fire; Origen a subtle fire, and the latter expressly states that the Holy Spirit is female. "The soul is maiden to her mistress, the Holy Ghost."*

The tetragrammaton is said to have been a pass-word to the secret chambers of initiation in ancient Egypt. The modern Jews say that the four lettered name of it was engraved on the rod of Moses, empowering him to work his miracles, and they accuse our Saviour of having stolen it out of the Temple.†

The late Rev. George Oliver D.D., recorded his conviction that Freemasonry is not a scion of the ancient mysteries, but the original institution from which all mysteries were derived; that the mysteries of all nations were originally the same, and that only local and political variations occasioned their diversity.

Freemasonry bears inherent evidence of its antiquity, it is a system of LIGHT, it contains a fragmentary system of astronomy, it incites to the exploration of hidden mysteries, and it teaches in unmistakable pantomime the resurrection from the dead. When to these points we add the possession of certain significant traditions and complex symbols, we think it is evident to a Master Mason that very much of the old system has lapsed into abeyance, which would have linked its severed fragments, and given a connected explanation to the whole. We utterly reject the accusation that it was invented in the beginning of the eighteenth century. No man of that time, whether lettered or not, would have explained the three Great Lights to mean the Sun, the Moon, and the Master of the Lodge, an apparent solecism. It is lamentable that symbols of importance are even now in process of lapsing out of our knowledge, their representation falling into disuse; for instance, the circled serpent, the rainbow, the beehive, the cross and tau.

The astronomical or astrological allegory which must in its perfection have underlain the ceremonies of Freemasonry at some distant day, is perceptible under other symbols in all religions—our own included. The animals which we always see pictured by the side of the four Evangelists (as described in Revelations) the lion, the ox, the eagle and the man, were symbols of the four cardinal points throughout the ancient world, and there is a strong presumption that the banners of the twelve tribes of Israel were no other than the twelve signs of the zodiac. All ancient religions had Cabala, or secret doctrines, which were not written but transmitted orally: time and political convulsions altered them. Some were revived under new systems, others died away. The temple of Solomon was a microcosm of the Universe in construction and wealth of symbolism, of which the like has never been repeated. Parts of the Jewish Scripture evince the profound wisdom of high Oriental philosophy, whilst other parts betray the crudest scientific doctrines, adapted probably to the limited comprehension of the vulgar. Modern criticism is separating the dross from the gold, and showing how many writers must have intervened in the authorship of even one book, as it has come down to us. Of the Creation, Genesis contains two distinct accounts; Deuteronomy records the promulgation of the law in a different manner from Exodus. In this study, as in all else, we must use our divine gift—Reason. One proof of the comparatively late authorship of part of the book of Genesis, or of a later interpolation therein‡; is the list of the kings of Edom (xxxvi. 9-43) wherein the succession is brought down to Hadad—a ruler of the time of Solomon: an indication as significant as would appear a notice of Queen Victoria in a history of the reign of Hadrian. Learned ancient Fathers—Clemens of Alexandria and Origen—held the book of Genesis to be allegorical, which the learned Jews Philo and Josephus held also. The allegory, if there be one, is now inexplicable, except as regards the received doctrines of the Church.

The motto of our Order is "Hear, See, Be Silent." The motto of Magic was "Know, Dare, Will, Be Silent." The latter is defined as the traditional knowledge of Nature's secrets, transmitted to us from the Magi, i.e., Hermes, Osiris, Orpheus, Apollonius of Thyana, Julian, Apuleius, Merlin, Cornelius Agrippa, &c. The world is a battle field to the Magician, in which free will contends with inertia for supremacy, by opposing to it "action". "Physical laws," says Eliphas Levi, "are the mill-stones, of which thou will be grain, if thou art not able to be the miller. Thou art called to be ruler over air, earth, water and fire, but to govern these four symbolic beasts, they must be conquered and chained. The initiate must have a human head for speech, eagle's wings to soar, the bull's flanks for heavy marching, and the lion's claws to clear the space around." The foregoing definition would apply equally well, we conceive, to an explorer of any branch of knowledge: powers of rhetoric, ideality, laboriousness and incisiveness are useful in everything.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE, PUNJAB.

THE Quarterly Communication of this District Grand Lodge was held on Friday, the 14th of January last, at Freemasons' Hall, Lahore. There were present R. W. B. Major M. Ramsay D.G.M., W. Bros. Walter Adlard as D.G.S.W., Col. J. Campbell as D.G.J.W., J. Brown Brunesson B.A. D.G. Chaplain, Major W. H. Mackesy D.G. Treasurer, Major Hadow D.G. Registrar, George Davies D.G. Secretary, Henry T. District Grand Lodge having been opened at 7 p.m., and the routine business concluded, the R.W.D.G. Master stated that the first business was the appointment of officers for 1876, when the following were selected:—

Wor. Bro. Major W. H. Mackesy 782 as Depy. D.G.M.
" Captain John Chalmers 1394 as D.G.S.W.

" Colonel Robert Crutchly 1463 as D.G. Standard Bearer.
Bro. W. J. Lennarchand 782 as Org.
Wor. Bro. H. W. Warmington 1215 as Pursuivant.
Bros. Sirdar Bikramah Singh 782, H. L. Jones 782, W. Rossmond 1483, C. Carrol 1483, W. Donaghey 1215, Hyat Khan, C.S.I., 782, Stewards.

In the above list 12 out of the 17 Lodges in the district are represented.

The D.G.M. then referred to his visit to England, and stated that it would give him the greatest pleasure to appear among them on his return. During the absence of the D.G.M. W. Bro. Mackesy will be invested with full powers; and in announcing this the D.G.M. congratulated the brethren on having at hand one so able and willing. Referring to the visit of our M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the D.G.M. said:—

"It had been finally arranged that an address be presented to H.R.H., enclosed in a model of the left hand pillar of King Solomon's Temple, of koftgaree work. This will be a handsome as well as a Masonic Casket. As regards the presentation, I deeply regret H.R.H. is unable to receive it except at the hands of a deputation, in like manner as he received the addresses at Madras, Calcutta. On receipt of this news, I made an attempt through Sir Henry Davies, to induce H.R.H. to reconsider his decision, and permit the whole body of Masons to be present; but I am excessively sorry to say the attempt failed. The deputation will therefore consist of myself, the D.D.G.M. and the two Wardens. I know this will be felt as a great and grievous disappointment by all the brethren who prize loyalty as one of our watchwords, and who looked forward to being present at the presentation; and nobody can be more grieved than I am at their hopes being dashed to the ground. However, it is our duty as good and true Masons to bow to the wishes of our M.W.G.M., and to be believe that he has good grounds for acting as he does."

From the report of the Board of General Purposes, we find that the warrant of the Morning Star Lodge, which was returned from Dera Ghazi Khan, in consequence of there not being sufficient brethren to work the Lodge, has been transferred to Dharmsalla. The accounts of the Fund of Benevolence where then submitted, after which the D.G.M. expressed his thanks to those officers who had worked under him while in charge of the District (over 3 years), and stated that he considered the satisfactory state of D.G.L. Funds was entirely due to the energy of the Secretary, W. Bro. Davies and W. Bro. Mellor. The D.G.S. then read the reports of the Board of General Purposes, and of the Fund of Benevolence, and W. Bro. Charles Harry Chetham having been unanimously elected D.G. Treasurer, the Lodge was closed.

ODDS AND ENDS.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

IN Tuesday's daily papers I find the following telegram: "Berlin, March 4. The Imperial Gazette states that Count Munster, German Ambassador in London, expressed the thanks of his Government to Commander Rodney M. Lloyd, of the 'Bullfinch,' for services rendered on the West India Station on behalf of German subjects in Columbia, during the late insurrection in Bolivar." It is not generally known nor has the Almanack de Gotha recorded, that the officer referred to is a monarch, but it is nevertheless a fact. In January 1867 he was first Lieutenant, of H.M.S. "Pelorus" then at the Pelew Islands for the purpose of enquiring into the murder of a British subject, Captain Cheyne. A long investigation ended in the guilt being brought home to H.M. the King of the Pelews, whereupon the native notables formed themselves into a Court, and executed the offender. Lieutenant Lloyd was then elected by the Islanders to fill the vacant throne, which was intimated to him in due form by the ci-devant heir apparent. The first and only act of sovereignty of King Rodney I. was to impress upon his people the duty of supplying his vessel with fruits and vegetables, and soon afterwards the "Pelorus" sailed away. In an old desk I find the following document pencilled on cardboard, addressed "O.H.M.S., Captain Stevens, R.N.," and dated "Head Quarters, 9 o'clock. Dear Sir,—Herewith I send Gibbons, who appears willing to impart what he knows, or pretends to know, about the murder. With him, also, go four or five natives, amongst them Arrokoko, and the supposed murderer, who was brought in last night, and has been staying in one of the Club Houses, but I have taken no notice, except posting sentries to watch and report. Even now I understand the supposed murderer goes off with the rest of his Club, not as a prisoner but merely to parley with you—tho' I fancy they will offer to give him up when they get on board. They say nothing can be got out of the old King, who is hiding in the bush on North Island. The place is filling with natives, but the women and nobility remain away. If you want the boats to come off soon, will you hoist letter Q, as the tide is falling, and to get away I must haul them out very far, before they ground. I think they will lay at the end of the long pier, if taken out before low water. Sincerely yours, Rodney M. Lloyd."

In the same old desk I find other curious odds and ends of notanda. In 1864 I was in Java, and was struck by the appearance of some of the barn-door fowls, not apparently a distinct breed, but promiscuously mixed up with everybody's poultry. Their feathers, instead of lying flat one over the other, stood straight out from the skin; when one of them was before the wind, of course the feathers blew right over the wrong way, and had a very grotesque appearance. A more extraordinary breed of fowls is in Japan; they are the size of bantams, and their legs are so short they seem to walk about on their bellies. Europeans, both in China and the Eastern Archipelagos, are often shocked at the dinner table by finding the bones of fowls jet black. This does not arise from disease, the fowls thus distinguished are as eatable and succulent as any; whether they are of a different breed to others in the same places, I forget, but the outward appearance of all is similar.

The most beautiful animal I have seen is among the fauna of Java. It is called the "mouse deer;" a perfectly formed deer, with delicate legs thin as matches, soft eyes, tiny hoofs, and miniature horns; it stands about a foot high. I bought two, which became tame, and would eat out of the hand: notwithstanding my care, change of climate killed them.

The cats of China are peculiar. They are born either without tails, with short tails, or with one or more joints in the tail. The latter are bent at each joint, or else seem knotted. Sailors describe the tails as "kinked." I saw very few cats in China with tails like our cats, and those few might have been crossed with the European breed. I commend this fact to Mr. Darwin.

The prettiest dogs in the East are the Pekin dog and the Japanese pug-spaniel. The latter have great globular eyes and flat faces, the nose seeming to have been flattened in as if by a heavy blow.

A curiosity in its way is the common hairless dog of China, with shiny slate-coloured skin; the hairless tail is especially repulsive. These are the favourite pets of the Chinese ladies. They are also common in Lima and other South American cities, whither, I presume, the breed has been introduced by the Coolie immigration.

The most beautiful bird in the Philippine Isles is the "Paloma de Monte." It is a lavender tinted dove, with what looks exactly like a bleeding wound upon the breast, to which the feathers seem stained in exact imitation. The first sight of one is quite painful, and only contact can convince one that the bird is unharmed. They are rare, and, of course, the Spanish priests have attached to them a religious legend.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE Committee of this Institution held its regular meeting on Wednesday, Lieut. Col. Creaton in the chair. Secretary Bro. Terry reported that at the recent Festival there were 214 Stewards, whose efforts resulted in a subscription list of £9,174 10s 6d, with eight lists outstanding; six of these had since come in, and raised the total to £9,274 18s 6d. He had also communicated to Lord Skelmersdale the vote of thanks accorded him for having presided at the Festival, but as yet he had received no acknowledgment. Bro. Terry also reported the death of Bro. Farnfield, upon which Bro. Raynham W. Stewart proposed, and Bro. W. Hale seconded, a vote of sympathy with the family of our deceased Brother. The motion was declared to be unanimously accepted. Bro. Terry then reported the deaths of three annuitants. A motion by Bro. Stewart, seconded by Bro. S. Rawson, to the effect that the Stewards' visit of last year be repeated this, was carried. Other business was then transacted, and the Committee adjourned.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

A GENERAL Committee was held on Saturday last, Bro. W. Roebuck in the chair. Additions of £10 and £5 to the salaries of the fourth and fifth Masters respectively, as recommended by the House Committee, were confirmed, as also was the recommendation to purchase Kent House for £2,000, subject of course to the authorization of the Quarterly Court in April. A letter, from the East and West India Dock Company, offering to receive boys educated in this Institution, was read and accepted, a letter of thanks being directed to be sent. A third gift of 14 volumes, by Bro. Head, was acknowledged, with thanks. The number of boys to be admitted at the April Election is 16. After some discussion the Committee adjourned.

EXHIBITION OF COSTUMES AT THE ALEXANDRA PALACE.

AN Exhibition of a very novel and interesting character will be held at the Alexandra Palace, under distinguished patronage, immediately after Easter. Prizes of considerable value will be awarded by the Alexandra Palace Company, and a Committee appointed to carry out the Exhibition, for the best designs in ladies costumes, the decisions being based upon the originality, elegance, and economy of the dresses displayed. Several hundred varieties, including morning, evening, ball, and bridal costumes, &c., will be included in this competitive exhibition, and valuable opportunities of comparison will thus be afforded to costumiers and others, whereby it may be hoped that greater economy and elegance in dress may be attained than is afforded by the extravagant eccentricities which too frequently characterise the fashions of the present day. As buyers from all parts of the country visit London at the above-mentioned period, this exhibition will afford them facilities for inspection hitherto unprecedented. That it will attract an immense concourse of ladies cannot be doubted, inasmuch as the attractions of the shops and show-rooms of Regent-street and the West End will, for the time being, be transferred to Muswell Hill.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your paper of 26th Feb. is an article analysing the subscription list at the Annual Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution on the 9th ult. In that article the Province of Warwickshire in general, and the town of Birmingham in particular (and the latter with all the conspicuousness of italics), are held up to the reproach of our brother Masons, because, this year, we have contributed nothing to the funds of the Masonic Benevolent Institution, and last year raised only a "paltry sum for the service of Masonic Charity." I will not here animadvert on the want of good taste which characterises the article, nor stop to inquire how far remarks such as I have quoted are likely to goad brethren to contribute to the Institution named. I am only concerned to show that the Province of Warwickshire, including the town of Birmingham, is not behindhand in the "service of Masonic Charity." So far back as the year 1860 I find that our R.W.P.G.M., Lord Leigh, presided at the first Annual Festival of the Benevolent Institution, and on that occasion some fifty Warwickshire brethren supported him as Stewards. I believe that Lord Leigh was one of the first P.G.M.'s who ever presided at the festival of this and the other Masonic Charities. Up to this period the G.M., D.G.M., or some London Mason presided, but the Provinces rarely assisted. In the two succeeding years Lord Leigh presided, in 1861 at the festival of the Girls' and in 1862 at that of the Boys' Schools, and in the three years a sum of £1,400 was raised by the Warwickshire brethren in aid of the three Masonic Charities, and it should be remembered that at that time there were but sixteen Lodges in this Province. It is impossible to tell the amount subscribed by the Warwickshire brethren year by year for the "service of Masonic Charity," as, until 1874, there was no organised body whose special duty it was to attend to the claims of our Masonic Charitable Institutions. In September of that year, at a Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, the following resolution was unanimously passed:—

"That a Charity Committee be formed, consisting of the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, the Provincial Grand Treasurer, and Provincial Grand Secretary, and a representative to be selected from each Lodge in the Province, to be called the Charity Steward. The duty of the Charity Steward will be to bring the Claims of the (Masonic Charitable) Institutions periodically before his Lodge, to collect the voting papers of brethren and forward them to the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, prior to the half-yearly election."

Since that date many meetings of the Charity Stewards have been held, and the result of their efforts was last year, not "the paltry sum of £35," but upwards of £500 was raised in this Province for the "service of Masonic Charity." Our R.W.P.G.M. has again promised to take the chair at the Boys' School Festival in June next, and of course the brethren here are anxious to support him, our energies are, therefore, this year, concentrated on the Boys' School, and from the progress already made by the Charity Stewards, I have no doubt that Lord Leigh will be as "grandly supported" by the Warwickshire brethren at the Festival of that Institution as was Lord Skelmersdale by those of Lancashire in February last. We have in this Province a Benevolent and Annuity Fund of our own, raised by voluntary contributions from the Lodges; there are always a number of widows and others receiving sums of from 5s to 8s a week from this fund. Not very long ago a sum of over £500 was raised for the support of an aged Mason and his wife, and outside, as well as inside the pale of pure Masonic Charity, our P.G.M. is continually leading us on to works of benevolence. Within a very short time the foundation stones of a church, a hospital, and an asylum for idiots have been laid, with Masonic rites, and contributions made by the brethren to each of those institutions. A life-boat, named the Lady Leigh, has been purchased by the brethren, and presented to the National Life Boat Institution, and within the last few days a sum of £300 has been guaranteed for the purchase of a reredos for the Parish Church, which has recently been re-built. In fact, so far from the Warwickshire brethren being indifferent to the claims of Charity at the present time, I doubt whether at any previous period they were so active in its cause. One more instance, and I have done. One of our Lodges (938) has recently revised its bye-laws, and one runs thus:—"Within one month after the receipt of an initiation fee the Treasurer shall forward, on behalf of the Lodge, the sum of five guineas to one or other of the three Masonic Charities."

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

P.M. 468.

THE REV. R. GASCOIGNE WELDON'S SERMON ON FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR,—I thank you for your generous, noble advocacy of my sermon, "Freemasonry, a Catholic Bond of Love and Unity to the Churches," in your issue of 4th March.

The times are now ripe and urgent for united action on the part of the religious denominations. Our laity, at any rate, are sick to death of our interminable, and infinitesimal, and miserable childish divisions. I can foresee that, in God's good providence, Freemasonry will form one great means of enabling us to close our ranks against the coming attacks of a bigoted, superstitious, and baneful infidelity.

Will you allow me to add that the brethren are anxious to spread this sermon in thousands over the three kingdoms, and that funds have been placed at our disposal to supply specimen copies to any Lodge, and to send them out, in not less than 12, at 6s 8d, post paid, if ordered direct from the Sec., 292, Rotheasy, or from

Yours, &c., &c.,

B. Gascoigne Weldon, M.A., Incumbent and Hon. Chaplain Rotheasy, St. Paul's, 76.

NORTHUMBERLAND AND BERWICK LODGE OF MARK MASTERS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—An error has crept into your report of the meeting of the above Lodge, the Ceremony of Advancement was performed by the W.M., Bro. R. W. Holmes P.G.J.W., and not by Bro. Foulsham P.M. Bro. Redesdale I.P.M. communicated the peculiar secrets of the degree, and explained the working tools.

Yours fraternally,

MARK MASTER.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All Letters and communications must be addressed to the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, 67 Barbican, London, E.C.

We cannot undertake to receive return communications.

S. W.—In regard to the admission of members to join our Order the Book of Constitutions, page 83, is very clear on that point. Therein it states, No person shall be made a Mason without a regular proposition at one Lodge, and a ballot at the next regular Lodge; nor until his name, addition or profession, and place of abode, shall have been sent to all the members in the summons. But in cases of emergency, the following alteration as to the mode of proposing a candidate is allowed. Any two members of a Lodge may transmit in writing to the Master the name, &c. of any candidate whom they may wish to propose, and the circumstances which cause the emergency; and the Master, if the emergency be proper, shall notify the said recommendation to every member of his Lodge, stating the name, age, addition or profession and place of abode of the candidate, and may at the same time summon a Lodge to meet at a period of not less than seven days from the issuing of the summons, for the purpose of balloting for the candidate, and if the candidate be then approved, he may be initiated into the first degree of Masonry. The Master shall, previous to the ballot being taken, cause the said proposition and the emergency stated to be recorded in the Minute Book of the Lodge, and where no special Lodge of emergency is required, the foregoing is sufficient for the W.M. to issue his fiat for the admission of a candidate at any regular Lodge Meeting, should he deem that sufficient, after the necessary qualifications have been authenticated by two brethren of the Lodge.

M. M.—The fact you mention would be constitutional under dispensation, but not otherwise. See report of proceedings of last Quarterly Communication.

P. M.—We are greatly flattered by your expressed desire to reproduce some of our Masonic Portraits in the local press, and regret that we cannot comply with your request. They are strictly copyright, and it is probable that we shall reissue them in a permanent form.

THE TRUE MASON'S DUTY.—What can be more divine than the moral precepts of Masonry? What more sublime than Charity—the soul and essence of Masonry? To love your neighbour as yourself; to love your Creator without reserve; to love even your enemies; to forget injuries; pardon offences; conquer evil with good; to be joyful with those that are happy; to weep with those in affliction; to enlighten those who are in darkness; to reclaim those who have strayed; to judge not rashly, lest ye be judged; and to assist the unfortunate, are among the duties we are called upon to fulfil by the action of our Masonic vows. We are not to measure the riches or talents of our neighbour, but to dispense our gifts to those who lack them. Not to advance our own interest, but rather to sacrifice them to the general good of humanity. We are to be good, true, compassionate, affable, generous merciful and clement. To be a faithful subject in the country where you live, respect the laws, a constant friend, a worthy husband, a good father, a tender, respectful and submissive son, a careful and vigilant master, full of charity toward all, and favour and countenance all honest intensions. Show me a world of true Masons, and I will point you to the peaceful abode of innocence and happiness.—Masonic Jewel.

Death.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

THE opening of Parliament naturally furnishes Blackwood with an opportunity for discussing the relations between Her Majesty's Government and Her Majesty's Opposition. A hopeful view of the prospects of the former is almost a matter of course, Maga having a firm and abiding faith in Conservatism. The measures already proposed, or which may be introduced in the course of this Session, are glanced at with an approving eye, and if Maga prove a true prophet, the Session will result in the passing of several useful measures. Being of necessity neutral in matters political, we shall applaud the passing of any measure that may in any way advance the public good. In "The Dilemma" Yorke, who is still in England, enjoying himself to the best of his ability, is still a guest of the Powers, and not without good reason. There is an attraction powerful enough to account for this. But towards the end of this Part XI., a new and exciting element of interest is aroused in us. Two of the personages who figured so prominently both before and during the siege of the Mustaphabad Residency re-appear on the scene. Of these one has been given out as dead, and the writer of the tale is to be congratulated on the rare skill he has exhibited in so interweaving the details as to induce this belief in the minds of most of his readers. Only those who have followed every incident of the story can have been prepared for such an event. We shall watch the further progress of "The Dilemma"—a most appropriate title as matters now stand—with an ever increasing interest. "Some Gentlemen in the City" is well written. Few will experience any difficulty in recognising the Guildenstorns, the Ossad Lloyd, and the Grahams of this fiction as being drawn from the life. In another paper, "Some aspects of Friendship" are very ably discussed, while the other contributions are equally meritorious, though hardly needing any special comment.

"Joshua Haggard's Daughter" is still the most attractive feature in Belgravia, the author of "Lady Audley's Secret," showing in every page of the story the skill and cunning of so practised a writer. There are some writers, of whom the author of "'Twixt Green and Red," is apparently one, who think the introduction into a tale of fiction of one or more vulgar characters is a matter of course. We admit that such characters when well drawn may offer an effective picture. But there are some people too conspicuously offensive to be thrust upon our notice, and of these two at least figure in this serial. We shall be heartily glad when it no longer appears in the contents table of Belgravia. "How I fought my First Duel" describes to us how they manage these things in Germany. We admit the writer has shown no small amount of descriptive power, but we think German student life would be vastly improved if duelling were forbidden by the authorities. Mr. Percy Boyd describes the career, thus far, of "Lord Chancellor Cairns," and Dr. Maurice Davies contributes a paper on "Curates," while "The Strange Adventures of a Crown and Sceptre," by Mr. Robert Kemp, are in the highest degree interesting. The illustrations are generally good, Mr. George Kirby's "A Quaint Bit of Scandal,"—in which the grouping and pose of the several figures are admirably managed,—especially so.

Among the illustrations in Cassell's Family Magazine, that which accompanies a neat little poem, by Isabella Fyvie Mayo, entitled "Sailed to-day," is one of the best we have seen for some time in this magazine. As regards the literary contents there is quite an embarras des richesses, and it is somewhat difficult to make a selection when all the contributions are so well written. The serials are good, and the same may be said of the short papers. Not the least interesting among these latter are a paper by Professor Andrew Wilson, "About Sea-Cucumbers," A Family Doctor's directions as to Beautiful Hair: How to Get and Retain it," "The Game of Stool-Ball: an old pastime revived," "Home Dress Making," "Education in Merchant Taylors' School," and "How to qualify for the Medical Profession." There is also a paper entitled "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," in which the writer offers "A few Words on Tontines." Mr. A. G. Payne is instructive, as usual, in his "Little Extravagancies of the Table," and there is a highly amusing story about "Our Night Alarm on the Pacific Railway." "Chit-Chat on Dress" will interest the ladies of course, and "The Gatherer" furnishes sundry notes, among which, perhaps, an explanation, "What is a Bee?" and a brief description of a new tramway car, invented by Mr. Scott-Moncrieff, of Glasgow, are the most noteworthy.

We have much pleasure in quoting from Colburn's New Monthly the following acrostic by Mrs. Baines.

MARCH.

M arch dust, they say, is worth its weight in gold,
A pack will pay the ransom of a king.
R eckless winds now blight the early buds,—
C ruel yet kind, as when the young die soon;
H eaven spares those yet who have their work to do.

Of the other contributions, "Scattered Arrows," by Sarlette Normans, will be found to contain some amusing writing. "East Indian Life," by Lieutenant-Colonel Copinger, from what we have read elsewhere of ye manners and customs of Anglo-Indian society, we should judge to be a true and effective picture. Those interested in the Natural History and Resources of "Turkey," will find the agriculture of that country very fully described by the Editor. There are, likewise, sundry other contributions of considerable merit.

We have noted, in the St. James's, a very able paper, by Mr. Thomas Carlisle, on "The Paralysis of the Indian Army," and a most agreeable "Olla Podrida," by the Editor. The writer of the former supports his case with a very formidable array of figures, and all we need say is, the sooner the authorities take the requisite steps to place our Indian military resources on a proper basis, the better it will be for the future maintenance of our power. We have referred to the "Grange Garden," and Mrs. Townshend Mayer's serial, "Sir Hubert's Marriage," and their merits stand in need of no further praise. We must speak in commendation, however, of Mr. John Morgan's sketch of "Robert Hall: the great Baptist Preacher," as well as of Roger Quiddam's paper, entitled "Recruits for the Ranks of Crime." Not the least attractive item in the number is a sonnet "To the Nile," by the celebrated poet, Shelley, which, the Editor tells us, has never before been published.

In the Leisure Hour the highly interesting "Tale of the American War of Independence" is continued, and some exciting scenes are introduced. Indeed, we are, so to speak, getting into the thick of the story. The Rev. W. Wright also continues his account of "A Trip to Palmyra and the Desert," and Dr. Rimbault contributes another of his musical papers, headed "The Story of an Old Concert Room." "The Rocket Apparatus, and its Work," is a very useful and instructive paper, while other attractions will be found in "Natural History Training," "Antiquarian Gossip on the Months," and "Weather Proverbs." We must not pass unnoticed "Schoolboy Training," and the Rev. Canon Rawlinson's "Early Civilisation—Babylon." They are very far from being the least valuable contents of a most excellent number.

Of Sunday at Home we can do little more than renew the praise which it has been our duty to bestow on all previous numbers. There is the usual quantity of matter for the Invalid and for the Afflicted, of Poetry, and of Pages for the Young. But besides these we have continuations of Dr. Stoughton's History of "Westminster Abbey," and of "A Jew's First Impression of England and First Intercourse with Christians," together with a description of "Prisons in Finland." The number in short is excellent both as regards its literary and pictorial contents.

The present number of Tinsley's is marked by the commencement of a new serial, bearing the title of "Maggie," by Mr Frank Barrett. The two chapters forming the first instalment are written in a neat and flowing style, but it is early days yet to judge of "Maggie's" merits as a story. Of Messrs. Farjeon's and Grant's serials, suffice it to say they evince the same excellence as has distinguished the previous chapters. Dr. Maurice Davies's "Social Status Quo" is again too prosy. It is very well for him to plead "it is his nature to" speak on clerical matters, but as regards the readers they may plead with equal force "it is not their nature" to relish this kind of writing in the pages of a non-clerical magazine. It is all the greater pity that Dr. Davies should devote six out of eight pages to this single and, with all due respect, in this place uncongenial subject, for in the other two pages he proves he can deal right pleasantly with topics of general and genial interest. As for the third of his "Love Songs of All Nations" none, we are sure, will read it without a feeling of pleasure. The third of the "Thespian Cartes" is an admirable paper, in which the writer tells many a home truth as to the glaring absurdities which mark the dramatic criticism of the day. "The Gift of the Gab," and the other contributions, without exception, are well worth reading.

We have received Part I. of Picturesque Europe, a new serial publication by Messrs. Cassell, Petter and Galpin. The book, we are told in the accompanying prospectus, "has been several years in preparation," and its purpose is "to present a complete description and elaborate pictorial illustration of the greater part of the European Continent, by bringing together representations of the most notable objects of Nature, and of that which makes Europe so strikingly picturesque." The illustrations will consist of both steel and wood engravings, all new and original, being executed "from recent sketches taken on the spot by eminent artists," and we are assured "that neither labour nor cost has been spared" to make them not only valuable from an artistic point of view, but also trustworthy. The subjects will include mountains, rivers, lakes, and valley scenery, as well as the temples and ruins of ancient Greece and Rome, cathedrals, churches, castles, quaint towns, palaces, &c., &c., and in order, as far as possible, the perfection of the world. The letter-press will be from the pens of authors of high standing, "whose co-operation has been sought not merely for their eminent literary ability, but in view of each one's peculiar fitness for the portion of the work assigned to him." Naturally enough, with England begins this survey of Picturesque Europe, and it is equally natural that Royal Windsor and its surroundings should take precedence of all other places of interest in picturesque England. Accordingly, we find that the steel engraving which serves as frontispiece to the work is of Windsor Castle, by A. Willmore, from a beautiful drawing by Birket Foster. The wood engravings are the work of Mr. Whymper, from drawings by Messrs. P. Skelton, Boot, and other artists. These, too, which portray different parts of the Castle, or the noble pile itself from different points of view, and such objects of interest in its neighbourhood as "William the Conqueror's Oak," "the Watch Oak," "the Fishing Temple, Virginia Water," "In the Cedar Walk, Virginia Water," are admirably executed. The engraving on the title page is an exquisite bit of scenery at Lynmouth, and as regards the letter-press, it fully bears out the promise in the prospectus already referred to. We shall watch the progress of the work with the greatest interest, and we need only add that if succeeding parts confirm the promise of the opening one, the work will be one of the most valuable, in respect both of its literary and artistic contents, which has ever yet been published, even by the most enterprising firms. The parts are to appear monthly, and the price of each is half-a-crown.

WHAT IS MASONRY?

From the Keystone.

AN eminent English barrister and Member of Parliament, who was also a Provincial Grand Master of Masons, once said that if Freemasonry be not scientific it is nothing. We agree with the spirit of his remark, but not at all with the letter. He stated one truth, in an exaggerated form, but not the whole truth. It is impossible to boil down into a brief verbal phrase the whole purpose and function of Freemasonry, so as to define them in a single sentence. Ours is a Royal Art, richly endowed of old, and through all the ages since deriving a constantly increasing heritage of intellectual wealth. From tradition we learn that the wisdom of Solomon founded the Craft; the architects of Europe and the East preserved its form and substance; and the revivalists of the early part of the last century, finding it had been gradually assuming a speculative as well as an operative form, superseded the latter by the former, and made the Craft what we find it to-day. It is apparent then that Freemasonry is a growth, a development; that it was not born in a day, nor reared in a generation, nor matured in a century—but is the heir of the ages, and now has more noble and glorious purposes than it ever had before. With this ancient and noble lineage, with the royal purpose of the Fraternity to develope the higher nature of its members, and make them morally and mentally wealthier, and socially happier, it need not surprise any one if it be impossible to state in a single sentence the object of Freemasonry. We will devote several sentences to an attempt to state, in as few words as possible, our view of this important subject.

Freemasonry is a social and convivial Order. It gathers into the closest fraternal intercourse those who are qualified by nature and education for admittance into its Lodges. It spreads before them refreshment that strengthens the inner man, and developes the finest social and healthiest convivial propensities. The Lodge is the Mason's home, where he meets with brethren only, sitting with them around both the Tressel Board and the Banquet Board—where heart beats to heart and hand clasps hand. In this union there is Strength, for the Mystic Tie is Love. This is one statement of what the Craft is and does.

Freemasonry is a moral Order. It builds no longer perishable edifices of stone, but living spiritual temples. Man is immortal, and it is upon man it labours. And it works with proper tools. All of the Craftsmen's implements are symbolical—every one teaching its lesson. Twenty-four inch guage and common gavel, plumb, level, and square, trowel and compasses—all adorn a moral and point a tale, all lead to reflection upon the lower nature in man, which is to be subjected, and the higher nature which is to be made supreme. Faith in God and belief in the immortality of the soul are the first and last lessons of Freemasonry.

Freemasonry is an intellectual Order. It stores the mind with knowledge ready phrased for the memory, where if it once find lodgment it will never depart. The work of Masonry is a fruit of perennial growth and bloom, through time into eternity. Those who are made Masons in heart, and whose careers are redolent with the charities of life, whose minds expand under the culture which the Craft affords in the great hereafter when we shall rise to a higher sphere of existence will be prepared to advance from one stage of intellectual growth to another. But the work, proper, of Masonry, does not embody all of its culture. It was this thought, doubtless, that prompted the words of the English Provincial Grand Master that we quoted at the beginning of this article—that Freemasonry is nothing if not scientific. We agree with him so far as to unequivocally assert, that no matter how well the work of Masonry is done, more needs to be done, or after all the work is not well done. Sign and symbol require other and fuller explanation than those regularly given at the Altar. The truths of Masonry need to be illustrated, amply and forcibly illustrated. This is the province of the ancillary lecture. The records of every Lodge and Grand Lodge prove that, at certain epochs, Masters and Grand Masters have performed their duties in this regard, but they need to have their memories jogged continually respecting them, for they are too readily overlooked or forgotten. By means of the lecture, Freemasonry may become truly scientific, for there is scarcely any learning that may not be made tributary to the elucidation of the origin, history, and symbolism of the Craft. The brethren need it for their true understanding of the underlying principles of their Order, as well as for the adornment of their minds. It is well to exemplify the work, and thus secure its uniformity, but it is better still, after having exemplified it, to illustrate it with force of reason and fertility of imagination.

The Invention of Gunpowder.—That Roger Bacon knew, invented, and made the discovery of gunpowder is beyond all question, as he tells us that "thunder and lightning may be produced by art; for that sulphur, nitre, and charcoal, which, when separate, have no sensible effect, when mixed together in due proportion, and closely compressed and fired, yield a loud report." A more exact and precise description of gunpowder cannot be given in words; yet fifty-six years after the time of Bacon, the discovery was assigned to Berthold Schwartz, an Augustinian, who resided at Friburg, in Brisgau, twenty-six miles south of Strasburg. This monk, says Sainte Foix, having put a composition of sulphur and saltpetre in a mortar, it took fire and blew off the stone which covered it with great violence, which led the chemist to think it might be used with great advantage in attacking fortified places. He accordingly added to it a quantity of charcoal, to render it more apt to take fire and to continue it. Thus, adds our author, the French were long in possession of this terrible secret, but it was left to the "ferocious temper" of the English to make use of it (!), as they did with such signal success at the battle of Cressy, thus awkwardly admitting that the English were in possession of the secret also.—From "Biographical Sketches" in the "Technical Educator" for February.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

THE late mail via, San Francisco, brings us one or two items of interest regarding Freemasonry in the far off, but rising colony of New Zealand. On the 10th of January a new Lodge, under the Scotch Constitution, was opened at Onehunga, a village some four miles from the city of Auckland. There was a large muster of brethren under the English, Scotch and Irish Constitutions, from Auckland. The dispensation from the District Grand Master at Dunedin was read by Bro. Marshall, acting Prov. Grand Secretary, and the ceremony of installation was most ably performed by Bro. M. S. Leers P.M., Sec. of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 1388, E.C. Bro. Leers is one of the most active and zealous Masons in that part of the colony, and is always ready to give advice and assistance when properly called upon. Bro. Nicol is the first W.M. of the new Lodge, which is called the Manukau Lodge. We may add that had there been an English District Grand Master for the Province of Auckland the warrant would undoubtedly have been applied for under the English Constitution.

The question of the appointment of a District Grand Master and formation of a District Grand Lodge in Auckland is still on the tapis, and the feeling of the oldest and most experienced brethren is entirely in favour of the appointment to that office of Mr. G. S. Graham, who was nominated at a meeting of Masters and Wardens of Lodges held some little time since. We have no doubt that Mr. Graham would do honour to the choice, but much regret the fact that Sir George Grey, one of the leading men in that part of the world, and a former governor of the Colony, should have declined to accept the office.

It is not to the interest of Freemasonry in that part of the world that the brethren should be broken up by division under the several Constitutions, and we confess that we should very much like to see a movement set on foot for a New Zealand Constitution. Such a system would much simplify matters, and would obviate the misunderstandings which occasionally arise in consequence of the different privileges exercised under the English, Irish and Scotch Constitutions.

The brethren of the Southern Star Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons celebrated the festival of St. John the Evangelist on Monday, the 27th Dec. last, at high noon, when the Worshipful Installing Officer, Bro. W. B. Sealy, installed Bro. J. C. Mostray into the chair of the Lodge as W.M. for the ensuing year. The ritual and ceremony were very effective, and the admonition, the charges and address of the Installing Officer were very impressive. The Master then invested his officers, and the Lodge adjourned until Wednesday evening, the 29th Jan, when the Craft-in-general assembled to a banquet, excellently provided at the Masonic Hall, by host Tregea. The usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were drunk; as also the health of the retiring W.M., the W.M. elect, the Sister Lodges of the district, certain highly esteemed brethren, &c., and the evening's entertainment was heightened by good music. We are assured that the position of the Lodge at this time is highly favorable, and a prosperous and harmonious year is confidently looked forward to by the Brethren. The Wardens for the year are Bros. Dr. L. G. Boore and W Holmes.—Nelson Daily Times.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Multitudes, suffering under a complication of disorders, might obtain relief through these healing and purifying remedies, which should be employed without a day's delay. When the weather is variable and cold, and influenzas are prevalent, this Ointment, well rubbed upon the throat and chest, gives the greatest ease, and checks all tendency to inflammation in the lungs and other organs. The Pills assist the curative power of the Ointment, inasmuch as they purify the blood, and so quicken its circulation, that congestion is rendered almost impossible. Holloway's treatment deals most successfully, too, with that very troublesome, and often tedious, ailment, indigestion—which is the bane of thousands, from over-work and fast living, in the present day.

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

FRIDAY'S sitting of the House of Lords was chiefly spent in Committee on the Appellate Jurisdiction Bill. Lord Redesdale having previously offered a few remarks on the character of the measure, which he concluded by expressing approval of it, the several clauses were agreed to, in some cases with certain verbal amendments, and the Bill emerged from the Committee. On Monday, Lord Stratheden and Campbell moved for copies of the Turkish Firman on Reforms, and of the Andrassy Note. After a few words from Lord Morley, the Earl of Derby explained how matters stood, pointing out at the same time what had been the intention of the British Government, and to what extent it had committed itself in supporting the note. On Tuesday, a remark of Mr. Disraeli, in the House of Commons on the previous Friday, brought Earl Granville on his legs for the purpose of offering a personal explanation. The Earl of Derby, of course, offered some observations, and the matter then dropped. The Exchequer Bonds Bill and the Consolidated Fund Bill, both relating to the purchase money for the Suez Canal Shares, passed their second reading, and the standing orders of the House being dispensed with, they likewise passed their remaining stages.

Then Viscount Cardwell, on presenting a petition for the withdrawal of the Government Slave Circular, took the opportunity of backing the prayer of the petition. The Lord Chancellor differed. Lords Selborne, Coleridge and Hatherley were in favour of its withdrawal. Lord Derby naturally enough supported the Lord Chancellor, after which the House adjourned. At Thursday's sitting the second reading of the University of Oxford Bill, moved by the Marquis of Salisbury, was carried, after a long debate on an amendment, moved by Lord Colchester, expressing regret that any legislation should be undertaken without a more comprehensive inquiry than had yet taken place. Among the speakers were the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Carlingford, the Earls of Carnarvon and Morley, Lord Houghton, and the Marquis of Salisbury. The amendment was put and negatived without a division, and the Committee fixed for that day three weeks.

Nearly the whole of Friday's sitting in the House of Commons was occupied with the discussion of Mr. O. Morgan's resolution on the subject of Burials in Churchyards. Among the principal speakers, besides Mr. Morgan himself, were Messrs. Cross and Disraeli, who vehemently opposed the resolution; while Sir W. Harcourt and the Marquis of Hartington supported it with equal vehemence. On a division, Mr. Morgan was beaten by 279 to 248, a result which elicited cheers from the Opposition, and these were followed by counter-cheers from the Conservatives. After this, the Exchequer Bonds (4,080,000) Bill, having relation to the purchase of the Suez Canal Shares, passed through Committee. After the transaction of some other business, the House adjourned at a Quarter to Two o'Clock—a division of 16 to 6 showing there was not the requisite quorum. On Monday, the Exchequer Bonds Bill passed its third reading, but not without a debate of considerable length. Mr. Gladstone criticised the conduct of the Government, complaining especially of the dismissal by M. de Lesseps of Sir D. Lange; the Marquis of Hartington and Mr. Lowe speaking in a similar strain, while Mr. Disraeli defended his cabinet. On the motion that the House go into Committee of supply on the Army Estimates, Sir W. Lawson interposed with a resolution to the effect that our interest did not warrant any increase of expenditure. Mr. H. Richard seconded it, Mr. Holms spoke to it, and Mr. Hardy opposed it. A division followed, and the House decided by 192 to 63 to go into Committee. The adjourned debate that the number of men proposed should be reduced by 10,000 was resumed. Several honourable and gallant members spoke, among them being Lord Elcho. Mr. Hardy defended the estimate of the Government, and Mr. Pease having withdrawn his resolution, the vote was agreed to, as also was the vote for the pay and other services, after which progress was reported. After the transaction of other business the House adjourned, at a quarter past four o'clock. On Tuesday, Mr. Cartwright moved for a select Committee to inquire into the mode of levying the Customs duties on wine. The Chancellor of the Exchequer opposed, as did likewise Sir J. M'Kenna, and the motion was then put and rejected without a division. The O'Donoghue was defeated on a motion relating to the Tralee Savings' Bank, by 133 to 54. A long debate followed, on a motion by Serjeant Spinks, relating to the Railway Passenger Duty. It was defeated, however, and a motion for a Committee of inquiry into the operation of the law on the present act was ultimately accepted by 137 to 23. Other business followed, and the House adjourned. On Wednesday, the second reading of Mr. M'Lagan's Game Laws (Scotland) Bill was carried, in spite of the Government opposition, by 172 to 150, majority 22. Among the other business got through was the third reading of the Epping Forest Bill. On Thursday, the greater part of the sitting was occupied with the debate on the second reading of the Royal Titles Bill. This was moved by the Prime Minister in person, who, in the course of his speech, announced that the addition proposed to be made was that of "Empress of India." Mr. Samuelson moved the adjournment of the debate. Mr. Gladstone made a long speech; other speakers followed, among them being the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Marquis of Hartington. On a division the adjournment of the debate was negatived by 284 to 31, and the second reading was agreed to. The House then went into Committee of Supply, and several army votes were passed. After some farther business, the House adjourned, at a late hour.

Unquestionably the event of the week has been, at least as regards the metropolis, the opening, by Her Majesty, of the Grocers' Company's wing of the London Hospital. The royal cortége consisted of four carriages and four, occupied by the officers and ladies of the Household, and a fifth drawn by six horses containing the Queen, H.R.H. Princess Beatrice, and the lady of the bed-chamber in waiting and the Mistress of the Robes. The route followed was through the Horse Guards, along the Thames Embankment, Queen Victoria Street, Leadenhall Street, Aldgate, and Whitechapel. All traffic was stopped for some time before the hour fixed for the visit. Military and police in strong force lined the way, and after Blackfriars Bridge was passed the number of banners, &c., &c. increased in numbers, while the manifestations of loyalty, as the Queen passed, became louder and more continuous. In Whitechapel especially the enthusiasm was most intense. The Lord Chamberlain and the Home Secretary awaited Her Majesty's arrival at the Hospital, where also the Duke of Cambridge, as President of the Institution, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Lord Mayor, the Vice-Presidents and other officers, the Master, Wardens, and other members of the Grocers' Company, had assembled, together with a large number of ladies and gentlemen. The ceremony having been gone through, and the wing formally declared open, two of the wards were named respectively the Queen Victoria and Princess Beatrice wards. After this the Royal party rose and left the building, but before returning to her carriage the Queen visited two of the accident wards in the Alexandra wing, expressing great sympathy with the unfortunate patients. The procession then returned to Buckingham Palace, by the same route as on going.

On Monday Her Majesty held a levée at Buckingham Palace, which was numerously attended, about 170 presentations being made. On Wednesday there was a Drawing Room, which was also very fully attended, and at which a considerable number of ladies were presented.

The Empress of Austria has arrived in England, and is expected to remain at Easton Neston, near Towcester, till the end of the hunting season. Her Imperial Majesty travels incognita under the style and title of the Countess Palfi. It is believed the Emperor of Austria will join Her Majesty in England in the spring.

The Prince of Wales, after visiting Nepaul, has reached Allahabad, where he was received in state by the Viceroy, and where he held a Chapter of the Star of India for the purpose of investing certain officers. His Royal Highness left for Indore on Tuesday, so that his return to England may be shortly expected.

On Thursday the Freedom of the City was presented in a gold box, of the value of 100 guineas, to the Lord Chief Justice of England. The City Chamberlain, as usual on these occasions, was the spokesman, and he spoke in the most eulogistic terms of the eminent services of his lordship. The Lord Chief Justice was loudly cheered on rising to reply, and spoke at considerable length, gratefully and gracefully acknowledging the very high honour they had that day conferred upon him. There was a numerous attendance of City magnates, including the Lord Mayor, and a strong force of ladies mustered to witness the interesting ceremony.

The funeral of Lady Augusta Stanley, wife of the Dean of Westminster, took place on Thursday, in Westminster Abbey. Besides the Dean and the principal mourners, there was a large attendance of general mourners, including a large number of distinguished personages. The Queen, who with the Princess Beatrice witnessed the sad ceremony from the gallery over the Dean's private entrance to the gallery, was represented in the procession, as also were the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duke of Connaught, and other members of the Royal Family.

The Senate and New Chamber of Deputies have held their first sitting at Versailles, but they will not be fully constituted till the beginning of next week. Mr. Belknap, lately Secretary for War in the United States, will be impeached for malfeasance in the discharge of his duties. He is succeeded by Judge Taft. General Schenk has also somewhat suddenly resigned his post of Minister to the Court of St. James's. The Carlist war is at an end, and Don Carlos himself—who, by the way, was greeted on his arrival in England in a most shameful fashion—is in London. King Alphonso is expected to enter his capital in triumph, accompanied by his generals, on the 16th instant. Meanwhile great preparations are being made for his reception, and the festivities will be on the grandest scale.

There is every reason for rejoicing, when so long and terrible a struggle is at length ended. Spain will, no doubt, devote herself forthwith to the improvement and extension of its vast resources. Let us hope so at least.

OUR ROYAL BRETHREN.

February the 23rd, the day which witnessed the installation of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, as Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire, saw his brother the Duke of Connaught admitted to the 18th (Rose Croix) degree at Gibraltar, in the Europa Chapter. The ceremony was performed by the M.W.S. Captain George L. Gilbard. His Royal Highness afterwards attended a Masonic Ball, in the insignia of the Order.

MANUSCRIPT CONSTITUTIONS.

We beg to ask our respected Bro. W. J. Hughan for a list of the Manuscript Constitutions traced up to this period. We have a copy of Bro. Hughan's "Old Charges," but since its publication other manuscripts have been discovered, and the complete list will be interesting to our readers.

The Inaugural Ball, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, in aid of the funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, has been fixed for the 19th of April. A most influential list of Stewards has already been published, and we wish the promoters every success.

The number of Bank of England notes paid in for the last seven years is about 94,000,000. They fill 18,000 boxes, and if placed side by side would reach three miles. The notes, placed in a pile, would be eight miles high, or if joined end to end would form a ribbon 15,000 miles long. Their superficial extent is more than that of Hyde Park. Their original value was over £3,000,000,000, and their weight over 112 tons.

At a meeting of the Council of the Geographical Society, in Saville Row, on Monday last, under the presidency of Mayor General Sir H. Rawlinson, His Grace the R.W. the Duke of Manchester, &c. Bro. Israel Abrahams, P.M. 188, was elected a Fellow of the Society.

On Monday, the 1st inst., a very artistic and magnificent testimonial, consisting of three solid silver flower stands, was presented to Bro. C. Best, of the Horseshoe Hotel, by his numerous friends.

Of the eighteen candidates presented for the Cambridge University Local Examination, December 1875, from the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, four only failed. Three received 1st class honours, one 2nd class, one 3rd class, and nine others satisfied the examiners.

We are pleased to hear that Bro. Sir Michael Costa had so far recovered from his recent severe illness to be able to resume the baton on Friday last at the rehearsal, by the Sacred Harmonic Society, of "Samson."

On the occasion of a recent visit to his establishment in Oxford Street, Mr. Holloway, the well known proprietor of "Holloway's Pills and Ointment," presented to his employés, in the shape of bonuses, upwards of £3,000. Those of the recipients who had been in his employ for twenty-years receiving each £200 or its equivalent, together with a congratulatory letter.

The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be worked by Bro. James Terry P.G.S.B. for Middlesex, in the Burdett Coutts Lodge of Instruction—which meets at Approach Tavern, Approach Road, Victoria Park—on Friday evening, 31st March next. Lodge will be opened punctually at 7 p.m.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

British Chapter, No. 8.—A Convocation of this Chapter was held on Friday, the 3rd instant, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and was honored by the presence of Companions distinguished in the Order, who all expressed their gratification at the admirable and perfect working of this sublime ritual. Comp. Edwin March occupied the chair of M.E.Z., Long H., H. Thorne J., Stanley Robinson S.E., Humphreys S.N., Stohwasser P.Z. Treasurer, Mesnent P.S., Music 1st Asst., W. Ganz and P.Z.'s J. B. Monckton, Nettleship, Cowland, Richardson, Evans, and D. Griffiths; Comps. Pilcher, Yeo, Barron, Grady, Webb, Edkins, T. Fenn, Glover, &c. The Chapter was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Ballots were taken and were unanimously in favour of Bros. Charles Dickens P.M. Maybury Lodge, W. B. Scott S.W. Shakespeare Lodge, W. R. Winch, and W. Blakemore, who were duly exalted into Royal Arch Masonry. The rendering of the ceremony by the M.E.Z. was a pleasure to listen to, the H., J. and the P.S. were equally perfect, and well deserved the encomiums passed on them by the Companions and Visitors. Two brethren were proposed for exaltation. Comp. Stohwasser P.Z. proposed that the sum of two guineas be given to each of the three Masonic Charities. The M.E.Z. announced his intention of serving as Steward at the next Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to a banquet, where the M.E.Z. presided. He proposed the usual loyal and R.A. Toasts. The National Anthem was sung, Comp. W. Ganz accompanying on the piano. The Z. in proposing the toast of the Grand Z., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, said he had done good service to the Order, and he was sure every Companion would wish him a safe return to his native country. The Z., in proposing the toast of the Grand H., J. and the rest of the Grand Officers, said, That night they were favoured with the presence of distinguished Companions, J. Hervey G.S.E. and T. Fenn, also Comps. J. B. Monckton and W. Ganz. The two latter being members of the Chapter. They were pleased to see them at all times, and he would couple the toast with the name of Comp. J. Hervey, who replied in his usual eloquent manner: The Offices of Grand Chapter could not be better filled than at the present time; the Companions might with truth say, that they might go to 99 Chapters out of 100, and yet not find better working than that they had witnessed to-night; they had seen the duties performed admirably, which was indeed a pleasure. You have among your members one who is able to perform any functions required of him, for very few can excel him, and that is Companion Monckton. (Cheers.) He then mentioned the various qualifications of the Companions of Grand Chapter, who were always ready to render any assistance required of them. Comp. Nettleship then proposed the toast of the M.E.Z. and the H. and J., and he said the Chapter may indeed congratulate itself on the selection they had made; while the eulogistic remarks of the Grand Scribe E. was sufficient to shew how excellently they had discharged their duties. Comp. W. Ganz then played a Fantasia from Traviata. The M.E.Z. in responding said, He thanked Companion Nettleship for his kind remarks, and if he had pleased the Companions by his working it was sufficient gratification to him. Companion Long replied, the H. and J. following. The M.E.Z. proposed the Toast of the newly exalted Companions, and stated that for some time there had been no exaltations in the Chapter; they had here five, whom they were proud to see. The names of Companions Charles Dickens,—a Household Word,—Scott, Winch, Blackmore and Marshall were also well known and respected. He regretted three of these Companions were obliged to leave, but he would couple the toast with the names of Comps. Scott and Blackmore. The former Comp. responded: The words uttered in the beautiful ceremony, so admirably delivered, would never be effaced from his memory, it was so solemn and sacred that it well deserved the encomiums they heard passed, he hoped to carry out every detail in R.A. Masonry to their satisfaction. Comp. Blackmore followed. The M.E.Z. then proposed the Toast of the Visitors, and said that from time immemorial the Chapter had always been pleased to see Visitors, but they had been most highly favoured that night by distinguished Visitors, he would couple the Toast with the names of Comps. Fenn and Vallance. The former responded in a very excellent speech, and was followed by Comp. Vallance who paid the M.E.Z. a just compliment; when he had to speak of the pleasures of memory, he recollected the admirable qualities of Comp. Stohwasser, and also the late respected Comp. Herbert Lloyd, and he was sure from what he had seen the British Chapter would be pre-eminent in the Order. Comp. Nettleship returned thanks for the P.Z.'s. The M.E.Z. in proposing the Toast of the Officers, said: There was one whom every one respected, and that was Comp. Stohwasser; the Comp. Scribe E. was also equally worthy of their regard. They had seen the working of Comps. Mesnent, Chubb, and Music, and did not forget Comp. W. Ganz, who was known as a talented musician and a good R.A. Mason. Comp. Stohwasser returned thanks, and said, he had held Office for 17 years, and he hoped to continue to do so. (Cheers.) Comp. W. Ganz said he had forgone many engagements to be present at this Chapter, and the pleasing associations connected with it would never be forgotten by him. Hickman, the immediate Past Master, expressing the sympathy of the members with him in his sad accident. It was announced that an answer had been received, and this the worthy secretary read. It stated that Bro. Hickman had been enabled to leave the London Hospital; that he was now at his residence, and he hoped on an early occasion to be present to meet the brethren. This statement was received with great pleasure, and Bro. Alexander P.M. proposed, and Bro. Levy seconded a motion, that Bro. Hickman's letter be recorded on the minutes. Three brethren were now proposed for initiation, and two distressed brethren were relieved. The Lodge was then closed, and those present, who numbered over 100, sat down to a very sumptuous banquet, provided by Bro. W. G. Jennings, and superintended by Bro. Keeping. The toast of the R.W. the Earl of Carnarvon M.W. Pro Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers was then given, the W.M. coupling with it the name of Bro. E. P. Albert P.M. He thought the time of the brethren might be better occupied by listening to the harmony provided, than by hearing long speeches. A call was then made on Bros. Morgan and Massey, as representatives of the Masonic press. Bro. Morgan said it had afforded him great gratification to be present, and congratulated the brethren on the prosperity of the Joppa Lodge. He thanked the W.M. for his kindness in proposing the toast, and requested permission to correct a slight mistake that he had been led into. Bro. Dodson had referred to him as the proprietor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE; this was not the case, as he was only the manager of that paper. The proprietorship was vested in the Craft, and he was proud to be able to announce that the exertions of the conductors were appreciated by the Fraternity, and that success was attending their efforts. Bro. Massey followed, saying that so far as he represented the fourth estate he would use his best endeavours to promote the welfare and advancement of the Order. The toast of the Newly Initiated was then given, Bro. Stransky replying. Bro. L. Alexander P.M. then proposed the toast of the W.M., who had performed all his duties in a respectable and creditable manner, and he was sure his working was to their satisfaction. The W.M. said he was overwhelmed by their kindness. He had but one point of view for his conduct, and that was to do his duty, and conform to the Book of Constitutions. The toast of the Past Masters followed, and Bro. I. Abrahams, H. M. Levy and O. Roberts returned thanks. To that of the Officers, Bros. H. P. Isaacs and Spiegel responded. The Tyler's toast was then given. The W.M. provided the brethren with a splendid musical entertainment, that reflected great credit on the artistes selected by Bro. P. E. Van Noorden, who had engaged the services of Madame Roche, Misses Dore and Reeves, Bros. Frank Elmore and Cherill. The brethren listened with feelings of great pleasure to the admirable singing. Star Lodge, No. 1275.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Friday, 3rd inst., at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. Present—Bros. J. J. Limebeer W.M., H. J. Green (W.M. 1538) S.W., R. W. Williams J.W., J. Smith P.G.P. Treasurer, F. Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex Secretary, C. W. Williams S.D., W. B. Woodman (W.M. 1559) J.D., W. Kipps (J.W. 1531) I.G., Rev. G. H. P. Colles Chaplain, W. Ough P.G.P. P.M., C. J. Hogg P.G.S. P.M., H. Keeble P.M., and above 30 members. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. C. Marr was raised to the 3rd degree, and Messrs. J. S. Leaper, J. W. Neale, and T. Gilloch were initiated. The working was excellently done by the W.M. and Officers. Bro. Smith P.G.P. was elected to act as Steward at the Festival for the Girls' School. Several propositions were handed in for initiation and joining, after which the Lodge was closed. A very excellent banquet followed. The visitors were Bros. Thomas 130, W. Lover 1178, E. M. Hubbard P.G.S. P.M. 58, J. T. Moss P.P.G.R. Middlesex P.M. 1423, T. Reynolds 58, Stainer 172, &c.

Kennington Lodge, No. 1381.—This now and rapidly increasing Lodge met on Tuesday, the 6th inst., at the Oval, Kennington. Bro. Geo. Everett W.M. occupied the chair, Higgins S.W., Reeves J.W., E. Page P.G.S. P.M. Treasurer, W. Stewart P.M. Secretary, Walls S.D., Kohler J.D., Speedy I.G., Ellis Organist, Robinson D.C., and P.M.'s W. Mann, Koco, Gardner and Dryadale. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Grimwade was raised to the 3rd degree, and Messrs. J. King and J. Wardley were duly initiated into the Order. The ceremonies were perfectly and impressively delivered by the W.M. Bro. Koch P.M. stated that the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, would be inaugurated by a ball, and the net proceeds would be given to the three Masonic Charities. The Secretary read the bye-laws of the Lodge, which was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large hall, and sat down to a very sumptuous and recherché dinner and dessert. The W.M. in his genial and happy manner proposed the health of the Queen and the Craft; and in giving the toast of the Most Worshipful Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, said that ever since he had been in the Order, and also at the Albert Hall in the presence of 7000 Masons, he had shown his zeal in the cause of Freemasonry; his progress in India was pleasing to note; and he wished him a safe return, in health and vigour. The toast of the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Deputy Grand Master the Earl of Skelmersdale was then given. Both were highly distinguished in the Order, and it was gratifying to know how ably the latter had presided at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, where the large sum of £9,140 was collected. He also ably presided on Wednesday last at Grand Lodge. Bro. E. J. Page P.M. P.G.S. then proposed the toast of the W.M., he had been a Mason for many years, but he had never seen working done better. The Lodge would sure to be successful under his auspices, and he hoped he might live long to enjoy the fruits of his labour. (Cheers). The W.M. in reply thanked the brethren for their kind expressions; he had left the chair of one Lodge to occupy the chair here; his great aim was to do good for the Craft, and he predicted a bright future in store for the Kennington Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the visitors. He was pleased, and so were the members of the Lodge, to see them; many were well known and respected for their Masonic qualifications. It was a good custom for brethren to visit other Lodges, where an interchange of fraternal feeling was shown; brethren often see beneficial improvements. He would couple with the toast the name of Bro. Greenwood P.G.W. Surrey, who very eloquently returned thanks. He quite agreed with the pertinent remarks of the W.M. with regard to visiting Lodges, he was proud to say he had been initiated into Freemasonry by Bro. Drysdale, seventeen years ago. Bro. Alcot followed, and said he had been travelling North and South for eighteen years, and he had visited in China Lodges once a month for many years, but he had never seen better working. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the newly initiated brethren; nothing could be a greater pleasure to a W.M. than to disseminate those beautiful tenets. Eighteen years ago he was initiated, and that sacred ceremony would never be effaced from his memory. The Initiates had seen very little of it at present but the foundation, Brotherly Love, Relief, Truth and Charity. He was sure they would never regret the step they had taken; all that they had heard was but a portion of the sublime degrees in store for them. Bros. J. King and Wardley returned thanks in very appropriate terms. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Past Masters, he was pleased to say he was the 5th W.M., and it was sufficient to recall the services they had rendered, not only to this newly formed Lodge, but to the Craft at large. Brother Page was well-known as a P.M. of several Lodges, and a Past Grand Steward, he was respected by all who have the pleasure of knowing him. The same may truthfully be said of Bros. W. Mann, Koch and Gardner, they had rendered every service required of them. Bro. Gardner P.M. responded, he felt it almost like his mother Lodge, for he and Bro. Page had done all they could for the Lodge; it was a success, and they could not have a better W.M. than the present. The W.M. then proposed the Toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, Bros. E. J. Page and Stuart, while the Lodge had two such officers it would be sure to prosper. The toast was responded to, also that of the Wardens and Officers. The Tyler's toast concluded a very enjoyable evening. Bros. Sargood, Webb and Walls sang some ballads sweetly, Bro. Ellis ably accompanying on the piano. The Visitors were Bros. W. Palmer 177, G. L. Everett 177, Day 1138, Greenwood P.G.W. Surrey, G. A. Alloot 525 (China), H. Massey P.M. 619 and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Thames Valley Lodge, No. 1460.—It is proverbially acknowledged that the members of our Order know how to appreciate good things, and it is equally recognised that our brethren know where to find comfortable quarters. The members of the Thames Valley Lodge, in selecting the village of Lower Halliford, near Shepperton, as the locale for their gatherings, must be congratulated, as a more picturesque spot could not possibly have been chosen. This Lodge was consecrated in 1874, and our worthy brother Col. Peters was its first W.M. During his year of office the Lodge made such progress that it soon took a position as one of the most flourishing in the Province. The Rev. Dr. Brette, whose domestic affliction we have so recently had to announce, succeeded Col. Peters, and under his genial sway rapid strides were made. On Saturday last the brethren assembled, at four o'clock, at their rooms, at the Ship Hotel, for the purpose of installing Bro. J. Llewellyn Jones, the J.W. and W.M. elect, into the chair of King Solomon. The Lodge was duly opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Previous to the ceremony it was announced that the business on the summons, relating to the passing of Bro. M. Davis, and the raising Bros. H. H. Blythe, P. Dunn, and J. S. Tyler, would be postponed. Bro. W. Pass then rose, and said every member of the Lodge must deeply regret the cause that prevented their worthy W.M., Bro. Dr. Brette, from being present; and he proposed that a vote of condolence should be passed and sent him, thus manifesting the sympathy each brother of the Lodge felt for him in his deep affliction. This was carried, and authority given for its record on the minutes. The ceremony of installation was then proceeded with, and was ably rendered by Bro. William T. Howe, P.G.P. Middlesex P.M., and the following officers were appointed:—Rev. Dr. Brette Prov. G.C. Middlesex I.P.M., W. T. Howe S.W., T. B. Yeomans J.W., W. Pass P.G.S. Treas., J. G. Marsh P.M. 28 and 192 P.G.P. Midd., Sec., W. Sweetland S.D., J. E. Kershaw J.D., J. H. E. Gowan I.G., W. Alcock D.C., J. Woodstock Tyler. The usual charges were then given, and the customary congratulations made, after which the auditors' report was read and adopted. In the absence of Dr. Brette, it was suggested that the Boys' School, for which he had accepted a Stewardship, should not be forgotten, and a sum of five guineas was voted for that Charity, to be placed on the Doctor's list. Reference was made to the death, which had occurred since the last meeting of the Lodge, of Bro. John Magee, the J.D., and a deserved tribute was paid to his memory. It was then proposed, seconded and carried, that a letter of condolence be sent to the widow of Bro. Magee, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. Two gentlemen were then proposed as candidates for initiation, and it was announced that the ballot for them would take place at the next regular meeting. The Lodge was afterwards closed, with the usual formalities. After a short interval, an elegant repast was served, to which ample justice was done. The W.M. presided, and conducted the proceedings in a most happy and animated spirit. On proposing the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty, he referred to the fact of her sons, with but one exception, being members of our Order. On rising to give that of the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales, Bro. Jones said it was now a very safe and genial sort of toast he had to propose. The Prince of Wales was an Englishman in every sense of the word, and Masons might congratulate themselves upon having such a man at the head of their Order. He was sure that, on his return from India, he would not only receive a hearty welcome from the members of the Craft, but from the whole of the people of England. In speaking to the toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present, the W.M. said the brethren referred to were eminently calculated to watch over the interests, and promote the good of the Craft. Bro. Townsend here sang, in a most effective manner, "The Pride of Kildare." The next toast was that of the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, which was given and received in a most cordial way. Bro. Jones said that some time since, before he had the honour of acquaintance with the P.G.M., he was interested in the case of a candidate for the Girls' School, and he was advised to apply to Col. Burdett for assistance. On his replying he did not know the Colonel, he was told that did not matter, as he would find that Col. Burdett was always ready to advise and assist any one, so far as it laid in his power. He could fully endorse that sentiment, for a kinder-hearted gentleman he was sure never lived, and he had great pleasure in welcoming as a guest so true a Mason as Col. Burdett. The Prov. G.M., in reply, said he thanked the W.M. for the way in which he had proposed, and the brethren for the way in which they had received the toast. He felt it was more than he deserved. He was always anxious to do all the good it was possible, but that was only his duty. This did not apply especially to his Province, but to the world at large. He felt bound to do this, not only as a Mason, but as a public man. We all know that in our Order there are a great many who require assistance; we have our Girls' School, our Boys' School, and our Benevolent Institution, and we are all bound to do what we can for their support. He referred to a scheme for a system of organisation throughout the Province, by which the cause of charity might be promoted, and trusted that when the scheme was matured, it might be acceptable to the Order in general. He was pleased to note the progress the Thames Valley Lodge was making, and augured a proud future for it. He advised a thorough investigation of the character of all candidates for admission, and he trusted the W.M. had been careful to appoint good officers, and that those officers would exert themselves to carry out their duties in a satisfactory manner. P.M. Col. Peters then rose to propose the health of the newly-installed W.M. He said that, as one of the founders, and a P.M. of the Lodge, he with great pleasure submitted the toast for their consideration. So long as he had known Bro. Jones he had always done his duty as a man and a Mason. During his year of office, he was sure he would do all he could for the prosperity of the Lodge. He (Col. Peters) had begun his Masonic career late in life, but he had made rapid progress. Bro. Jones was a more experienced Mason, and he was sure that all who might be initiated would be good men, and all would be done by Bro. Jones that was possible to keep up the character of the Thames Valley Lodge. The toast was then honoured in a most hearty way. Bro. Jones said he had to thank Past Master Col. Peters and the brethren for their kindness, first in electing him as their Master, and secondly for the way in which they had received the toast, and the consideration they had shown him since he had been in the chair. He hoped he should not fail; he had an eye to the fact that he might do so, hence he had been careful to appoint officers on whose assistance he knew he might rely. Those who had been appointed that day were brethren in whom any W.M. might feel a pride, and he hoped the members of the Lodge would never have cause to feel ashamed of their third Master. The W.M. then gave the toast of the Visitors, who were Bros. W. Winn P.M. 657, W. Maple 657, C. Potter 657, and A. E. Stanley Carr, Eureka Lodge, No. 47, Ireland. He assured them they might always count on a hearty welcome should they feel inclined to repeat their visit. This was acknowledged by Bro. W. Winn P.M. 657. The health of the Past Masters followed, and was replied to by Bro. Col. Peters, who deeply regretted the unavoidable absence of Bro. Dr. Brette the I.P.M. He might, however, say he was convinced that he would have every assistance from his Bro. Brother to keep up the character of the Lodge. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Officers, and referred to the excellent way in which the Senior Warden, Bro. Howe, had performed the ceremony of installation. With such officers as he had to support him, he was convinced the working would be everything that could be wished. Bro. Howe briefly replied. The toast of the Press was next proposed, and with it was coupled the name of Brother W. W. Morgan, who thanked the W.M. and brethren for the cordial reception they had given him. Their worthy I.P.M., Dr. Brette, in the midst of his affliction, had expressed a hope that he (Bro. Morgan) would visit the Lodge on the present occasion, assuring him that the members would do all in their power to make him comfortable. This had been most fully carried out, and he would long remember the kindness he had been received with. He trusted that a brilliant future was before the Lodge. He did not, however, quite agree with what Bro. Jones had said about having to learn the bitter word fail. He did not think their W.M. need attend a Spelling Bee to learn how to spell that word; he would call to their remembrance the lines which Lord Lytton had put into the mouth of Richelieu,—"In the lexicon of youth that aspires to a bright manhood there must be no such word as fail." This he was sure would be fully endorsed by all present. Bro. Morgan concluded by thanking the brethren for the kind manner in which they had responded to the toast. The evening's entertainment was enlivened by some excellent singing, Bro. Hislop's rendering of "Bon jour, Sizon," and Bro. Marsh's "Empress of the Wave" deserving special commendation. After the Tyler's toast, the brethren returned to town, expressing themselves gratified at the arrangements which had been made for their comfort by Bro. Stone, the host of the Ship.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—At the meeting held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday, the 1st March, there were present, Bros. Crane W.M., H. Meyer S.W., Brand J.W., Fieldwick S.D., Coombes J.D., Dietrich I.G., Gilchrist P.M. Preceptor, and Bros. Brasted, Poole, Hill, Meyer, Robinson, Gross, Dignam, Baber, Dallas, Lee, Chapman and Shackleton. Business—Initiation ceremony, Bro. Dignam acting as candidate. 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th sections were worked by Bro. Gilchrist, assisted by the brethren. Bro. H. Meyer was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Bro. Brasted (1524) having kindly presented the Lodge with a Volume of the Sacred Law, Bro. Gilchrist proposed, and Bro. H. Meyer seconded, that a cordial vote of thanks be tendered to him, and recorded on the minutes, for his timely and serviceable gift, also the evident desire Bro. Brasted has for the prosperity of the Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction by enabling the brethren to conduct Masonic business in a just manner, was carried unanimously. Nothing else offering, the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the Hercules, Leadenhall-street, on Thursday evening, 9th March, at 7.30. Present Bros. Hollands W.M., Rodderforth S.W., Briddle J.W., Webb S.D., Crane J.D., Ellis I.G., Grammer Hon. Secretary, Austin P.M. Preceptor, and numerous other brethren. The ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Maidwell being the candidate. The 1st and 2nd sections of the Lecture were worked by Bro. Webb, assisted by the brethren, and the 3rd, 4th and final sections by Bro. Horsley. All Masonic business being finished, the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

THE SUBSCRIPTIONS AT THE RECENT FESTIVAL.

WE are extremely sorry to have wounded the susceptibilities of any member of the Craft. We necessarily endeavour to convey any strictures we may feel it our duty to make in the kindest and gentlest tone possible. It is evident, however, from a letter which appeared last week in these columns, and which bore the signature of "P.M. 468"—No. 468 being Lodge Light of Birmingham—that sundry of our comments, in an article we published on the 26th ult., have caused pain to that worthy brother. We hasten, accordingly, to express our sorrow. We cannot, of course, expect to please every one, but we may at least hope to wound nobody's feelings. However, if P.M. 468, who has assumed for the nonce what is so often the unpleasant duty of critic, will kindly accompany us through the remarks we made on the composition of the subscription list at the recent Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, we feel sure he will see grounds for altering, or, at the least, considerably modifying the judgment he has passed upon the tone of our article.

He will kindly note, perhaps, in the first instance, that our opening and closing remarks were for the most part general, not particular. When we came to analyse the list with a view to pointing whence came, and whence did not come the subscriptions, we had necessarily to individualise. In noting, too, the results of our analysis, that we should specify certain districts was unavoidable. Otherwise, however, we sought to be—and with every respect for "P.M. 468's" judgment, we opine we were—entirely general in our comments. Again, at the very outset, we stated the purpose of our analysis was "to show our readers not only what was done" on the occasion of the Recent Festival, "but also where brethren of energy may find fields open to them in their zealous promotion of the cause of charity." And we added significantly, "it is not just that the same brethren should be called upon to repeat their donations every year, while others are entirely overlooked and left out in the cold." The meaning of this is obvious. Certain sections of the Craft give to this particular Charity, and give twice, or even, it may be, many times, because it is brought under their notice and their aid solicited. Other sections, we suggested, have not given on this, or other occasions, not because the inclination to give was wanting, but because the Institution has not been brought under their notice. It is very evident that if the canvass for subscriptions is not general, the subscription list cannot be generally representative of the Craft. Thus we began by palliating, if not entirely excusing, those Provinces which were unrepresented in the last subscription list, by suggesting the unlikelihood of people giving to a particular charity if its claims were not brought under their notice. We desired to impress upon our readers that Institutions, such as the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, should be actually as well as nominally supported by the general body, and in this endeavour we were only iterating what the Marquis of Ripon, when he presided at one of our festivals, urged in far more pointed language than any to be found in our recent article. He went so far as to say, that while a handsome subscription was very gratifying, it was creditable to those who gave, but the reverse of creditable to those who, being able, yet stood aloof from giving. Other presidents have spoken in similar terms, if not with as forcible language as he did. The idea, therefore, we were insisting upon was very far from being original. Then we cited, in our analysis, both Staffordshire and Lincolnshire as having freely contributed last year, and we assigned this as the reason why, possibly, the former did not figure at all, and the latter for only a very small sum in the present year. In the next place we must draw the attention of P.M. 468 to the following clause, which occurs towards the end of the article, "Nor do we for one moment affirm that the Lodges and Provinces which have not contributed to this Charity have overlooked the claims of the Boys' and Girls' Schools." And, later on, we add, "we have no hesitation in saying that, apart from what may have been, or will be done for the other two Institutions, the claims of the Benevolent Institution are not as warmly or as generally supported as they deserve to be." Thus taking, in the first instance, the general tenour of the article, and in the next the particular sentences or clauses to which we have just drawn attention, we see no valid reason why our remarks should not have been accepted in the sense they were evidently intended to bear, and in no other. True, in speaking of Birmingham, we observed that it was down for nothing this year, and only gave last year "a paltry" (that is, insignificant) "sum towards the service of Masonic Charity." But we are surprised P.M. 468 did not see the evident lapsus calami in this passage. It is so obvious that it should have been read as "the service of this Masonic Charity," that we confess to feeling not a little amused at our correspondent's sensitiveness. It was open to him to question the pertinence or propriety of our remarks, but he might have given us credit for not intentionally and flagrantly contradicting ourselves in the course of half-a-dozen lines.

We heartily congratulate "P.M. 468" and our Warwickshire brethren on the picture he draws of their zeal for the cause of charity. We are aware there is no more active member of the Craft, or one more ready to do good service, than Lord Leigh. Nor have we any misgivings that the Craft in his Province will support him loyally and handsomely on the occasion of the Boys' School Festival in June next. Yet we justify having noted the absence of Birmingham from the recent subscription list, and having done so "with all the conspicuousness of italics." Birmingham is one of our most populous and wealthiest towns, and with a few exceptions there is none that has a greater number of Lodges. We feel, under these circumstances, that it is incumbent on Birmingham to figure in all three subscription lists, in proportion to its population and wealth, every year. We have no desire "to goad brethren to contribute to this," or any other "Institution." Gifts so given would not be charity. We have no desire, indeed it is our duty studiously to avoid holding up Birmingham or any other town "to the reproach of our Brother Masons." But a duty, how unpleasant soever it may be, must not be shirked. On glancing at the subscription list which recently appeared in these columns we found large towns and whole provinces unrepresented. We suggested more than one apology for their absence, at the same time we laid down the very intelligible proposition that institutions whose benefits are open to the general body should be generally supported.

We have the pleasure to announce that the Grand Lodge of Idaho, U.S.A., has recognised the Grand Orient of Egypt, and that Grand representatives have been exchanged.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 20.)

A CHIP FROM JOPPA.

"Oh, are we not Thy children, who of old
Trod the Chaldean idols in the dust,
And built our altars only unto Thee?
Didst Thou not lead us unto Canaan
For love of us, because we spurned the gods?
Didst Thou not bless us that we worshipped Thee?
And when a famine covered all the land,
And drove us into Egypt, where the King
Did persecute Thy chosen to the death,—
Didst Thou not smite the swart Egyptians then,
And guide us through the bowels of the deep
That swallowed up their horsemen and their King?
For saw we not, as in a wondrous dream,
The up-tost javelins, the plunging steeds,
The chariots sinking in the wild Red Sea?"

A HEBREW gentleman has recently written the history of the Jews in England. It is a remarkable work, and contains a record of struggles, and sufferings, of perseverance and patience under persecution, for which the grand old stock of Abraham are so remarkable. This book has come at an opportune time, since Jewish disabilities are now amongst the things of the past, but it is, we trust, but an introduction to a greater work on the history of the Jews in Europe which yet remains to be written. This latter work, if it ever emanates from the pen of the historian, will read like a romance or a great poem. The Jews, with Christian charity, have been the first to forget their wrongs, but we cannot forget that our ancestors treated them like wild beasts; that they were tortured by barons, plundered by kings, and rabbled by the common people. Yet this grand old race had never given its tormentors a shadow of an excuse for the cruel laws which were enacted against it. The Jews have always been the most peaceful of citizens; and they have been pioneers and princes of commerce in the days when trade trembled at the uplifted lance of a feudal lord, or cities were compelled to close their gates against the military bands which should have protected the burgesses. The Jew has always displayed, in a pre-eminent degree those intellectual qualities which fit a people to play a great part in the world; and it is not alone in trade that their great gifts have been expended. Art and science owe much to them. Some of the greatest musicians were Jews. There were profound students of science before exact knowledge had won any place or consideration in the world. They were daring thinkers at a time when free thought was under the terrible ban of the Church, and, to this day, we are indebted to Spinoza for learned enquiries into regions of thought into which, in his time, few Christians dared to venture. Commerce is indebted to them for many of the grand doctrines of credit, which are daily put in practice by the most eminent of merchants without one thought of the source from whence they came. In our own time they have displayed the truest loyalty and affection for the governments which have conferred upon them the rights of citizenship, and in England no section of the community has more public spirit than the Jews. They are foremost in good works. Their charities amongst their own people are princely, and they do not stay their hands when the cry of distress comes from a Christian. It is characteristic of them that they get their bread by mental rather than physical labour. It is the rarest thing in the world to meet with a Jew who lives by rough mechanical work. They are born traders, and keen as are their commercial instincts, they rarely permit their zeal to carry them beyond the boundary line of integrity. Our criminal classes receive but few recruits from the ranks of this remarkable people, who are content to obey and abide by the laws. The Jew is a blessing to any country in which his lot is cast. If he enriches himself he helps indirectly to enrich the community, and with our knowledge of his peaceful habits and unremitting industry we can only wonder that our ancestors could have regarded him with suspicion or dislike. We have a high respect for the Jews, and it is based upon some knowledge of their solid worth in the every day business of the modern world, and some acquaintance with the history of their unmerited sufferings in the past.

In the history of modern Masonry this people have played a conspicuous part. They have materially helped to spread a knowledge of the principles of the Craft to remote lands, and at home they have founded Lodges which have achieved an eminent position in the Order. Our "Chip from Joppa," we need scarcely say, is a member of the Hebrew community. Proud of his race, and of his old faith, he is perhaps prouder of his status as a British citizen, and still prouder of his well-earned Masonic honours. He was born at Portsmouth, where his father was in practice as a surgeon, and was educated at the High School of Edinburgh. At an early age he was apprenticed to a dentist at Bristol, and in 1844 he came to London and practised for himself. He had the honour of studying under Sir George Villiers, who was afterwards Colonial Secretary at Sierra Leone, and no doubt learned much from this able master. Our Chip married in the year 1852, and in the following year he entered upon his Masonic career, and was initiated in the Joppa Lodge, and two years afterwards he was exalted in the Chapter. He studied Masonry with a view of mastering its principles, and after the usual term of probation he was elected W.M. of his Lodge and Z. of Chapter. He had the honour of founding the Montefiore Lodge, and was elected P.M. The death of the W.M., which occurred soon after the first meeting, left the chair vacant, and our Chip succeeded him, and was duly elected. A somewhat similar incident occurred in the Joppa Chapter. The week after his retirement from the principal chair the M.E.Z. died, and our brother consequently served for two years. He is Secretary of the Joppa and Montefiore Lodges. In addition to these honours and distinctions, he was elected in 1869 an honorary member of the Lodge of Friendship, Port Lewis, Mauritius, and in the following year he was appointed Proxy Master, an office which he resigned three months since. These marks of recognition from distant brethren were conferred upon him for valuable services which he rendered to the Lodge. Some difficulty had arisen between the members, the Master designate, and the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and the Charter for the formation of the Friendship Lodge had not been transmitted. Our Chip, as a distinguished Mason known to some of the brethren at Port Lewis, was chosen as its British advocate, and after some negotiation he succeeded in obtaining the all-important document from the Scottish authorities.

He is honorary member of the Canongate and Leith, the oldest Lodge in Great Britain, and has been presented by the Scottish Freemasons with a jewel and the clothing of Grand Lodge of Scotland. Finally, to complete the record of his Masonic career, we may mention he is Assistant Grand Pursuivant of England.

In his profession, our Chip is well and widely known, and suffers the pains and joys which are so familiar to medical men who are blessed with an extensive practice. He is highly and justly respected by his professional friends, and by the world generally, and in the world of Masonry his zeal and enthusiasm, knowing no bounds save those of prudence, have won for him the esteem of all the brethren who are privileged to know him. Joppa Lodge regards him as one of its most illustrious sons, and if we may venture to refer to the accidents of creed and race in connection with the fraternity, we may add that he counts many distinguished Christian brethren amongst his dearest and best friends. In society, both secular and Masonic, he is renowned for his genial qualities and for his benevolence, which is bounded by no considerations of creed. He has not, however, in the exercise of a wide toleration forgotten the cherished ritual or ceremonial of his people. He is a Mason in his far-reaching sympathies, a practical Christian, if he will permit us to say so, in his daily life, and yet, before all and above all, a Jew who does not forget that the voice that thundered from Sinai still speaks to the chosen people from the pages of Holy Writ.

ABUSE OF FREEMASONRY.

WE advise any of our readers who may be afflicted with extreme nervousness to abstain from reading last week's issue of The Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer, a newspaper hailing from Belfast. It seems the trade of this important town has for some time past been in a declining state, so, at least, says this journal, for we do not profess to be posted in the ups and downs of trade in this special locality. There have been several heavy failures, wages have been reduced, the credit of the town is at a discount; in fact, Belfast, on the authority of this native journal, is in a bad way. And what, think our readers, is the cause of this disastrous state of things? Freemasonry, says The Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer, on the faith of a very long winded writer whom it is at the pains to introduce to its readers as a "valued and honourable correspondent." We are quite willing to admit that the writer thus described may be a "valued correspondent," according to this journal's estimate of value. We see no earthly reason why a perverse minded person should not be as honourable as the most keen-sighted quick-witted individual that ever walked in two shoes. But we fail utterly to trace any connection between the flax trade and Freemasonry, beyond the fact of their both beginning with the letter F. Were we disposed to analyze these precious papers—the first of a promised series—which appeared in the Belfast journal last week, it might be pertinent to inquire, if the influence of Freemasonry on the Belfast flax trade is so baneful, how comes it that its influence on the trade of other large cities and towns in the United Kingdom is not equally productive of harm? But though there are Lodges of Freemasons in Dublin, Cork, Galway, in Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, in Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen; though our Order is hateful, both at home and abroad, to the Roman Catholic hierarchy, we have never yet heard of Freemasonry being held responsible for the depression of trade. So far from this being the case, there are many silly people who describe the purpose of our Order 'to be good living and a display of finery. This being so for argument sake, it follows that Freemasonry must encourage all those trades which enable people to live well and display finery. However this may be, this "valued and honourable correspondent" of the Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer thinks he has somehow established a connection between the flax trade and Freemasonry, greatly to the detriment of the former. Yet assertion is not argument. These preliminary papers of his,—though they occupy four and a half pages of the Belfast journal, and are introduced to its readers with a preliminary flourish of trumpets,—these four and a half pages contain an abundance of assertion, an equal amount of abuse against Freemasonry, but not a single argument.

It were a waste of time to bestow more than a passing glance upon this farrago of inane twaddle. The writer proclaims at the outset that he takes up his pen solely in the interest of right and justice. "I have," says he, "no base ends to serve. I have no personal motive to egg me on, I feed but no ancient grudge by my exposure. I have not a personal enemy in the trade." . . . But every person engaged in this combination and Masonic Trades Union, the Compasses and Square 'Ring,' which I mean to expose and denounce, is my deadly enemy, is the enemy of every one of my co-religionists; is not only that but his own worst enemy, the sworn enemy of his employers, the fellest enemy of the Ulster staple trade." Freemasonry has a few lines before been described as "the arch-conspirator, the conscience destroyer, this thing of envy, malice, hatred and all uncharitableness, this plague and pest." "These be fine words," and on the whole, we may affirm without fear of contradiction that this "valued and honourable correspondent" makes a very fair beginning. His language is emphatic. He can quote scripture after the manner of a certain other personage we have read of, glibly, if not pertinently. But though the men who compose the "Compasses and Square 'Ring'" are his enemies, it is comforting to learn that he is not theirs. He is "tolerant to a fault;" he is "charitable in the fullest and best sense of the word." He simply deplores their moral intarpitude. They live in a vitiated atmosphere redolent of bigotry. "In their schools, in their churches, in their play-grounds, in their Lodges, in their workshops, in their clubs, in their athletic sports, in their cricket and football—their rinks and archery fields—everywhere they know, see, hear, learn, imbibe, inhale nothing but bigotry, intolerance, exclusiveness, sectarianism, class hatred, domination." No wonder, with all these verbs and substantives to back him, that the writer should aim a "vital thrust at imposture, iniquity, sham, unfair dealing, trickery, fraud, corruption, conspiracy, combination," all which terms, we are told, are "but synonyms for Freemasonry in its unscrupulous manipulation of the staple trade of Ulster." We cannot, of course, pretend to explain these choice samples of the writer's abuse of Freemasonry. They have a meaning, no doubt, but we have already said we are not posted in the fluctuations of Ulster trade. We repeat, therefore, in all single-mindedness, we see no connection whatever between flax and Freemasonry. The latter may be all the writer paints it, and even a great deal worse. Yet it puzzles us to see how a body, in a great measure composed of tradesmen, should be the enemy of trade. We can understand the hatred of an Ultramontane priesthood, for our Order. Freemasonry is opposed to bigotry, and bigotry and Ultramontanism are interchangeable terms. We can understand the charge of the silly people who describe us merely as a band of good-livers. Masons, when the labours of the Lodge are ended, do sit down at table together and enjoy themselves in moderation. But why Freemasonry should be the enemy of trade is utterly beyond our comprehension.

It is most unfortunate for this "valued and honourable correspondent" of The Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer that, as he says, "The conditions under which I write—the restrictions I have imposed upon myself—prevent me from giving proof, from entering into details, from naming culprits, from citing cases. Details, names and cases are ready to my hand; I could fill a page of this journal with them, and still have as many more in my wallet." This, we remark, is most unfortunate. When a man comes forward to make a public accusation, he ought, in common fairness, to furnish evidence of the charge he makes. If he cannot do this, if the restrictions he has thought it wise to impose upon himself, or which have been imposed on him, forbid this, the least he can do is to hold his tongue. His assertions go for nothing if they are incapable of proof.

We have a right to assume that this "valuable and honourable correspondent" is a Freemason; that being a Freemason in name, he is also learned in all the mysteries of the Craft; and thus it is he is in a position to describe its aims and the influence it exercises on the trade of Belfast. If he be a Freemason, there are few "valued and honourable" people in this world who will attach any value to his denunciations of Masonry. Renegades are a class of people in whom no man of sense has the slightest confidence. On the other hand, if he is not a Freemason—and for the honour of the Craft we trust he is not—his denunciations are equally worthless, for he is writing about that of which he is profoundly ignorant.

If this writer we have dealt with in the foregoing remarks has any common sense in him, let him exercise it. Let him say boldly, he hates Freemasonry because the teachings of his religion require him to do so. Let him say he hates it because he does not understand it; but, in the name of all that is manly and honourable, let him refrain from making accusations he cannot prove. If he must write vapid, indescribable nonsense, let him address himself to the inmates of lunatic asylums and asylums for idiots. There, at least, he will find a body of appreciative readers.

NATURE AND SCIENCE.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

IT was my good fortune to meet in South America, Dr. Forbes, then of H.M.S. "Topaze," formerly surgeon of the old "Acheron," on the South Sea Station. I had perused, with much pleasure, his prize essay on "Vancouver's Island," treating of the capabilities of that Colony. "Is it," I asked, "equal to New Zealand in natural advantages?" "No!" said he, "not a patch upon it." This coincided with my own impressions, for I was quite at a loss to understand the high-flying articles published some years ago in the Times, to incite immigration into the former place and British Columbia. As an emigrant, I should never think of going thither whilst the more genial climates and superior resources of Australia and New Zealand remained open to me.

Dr. Forbes gave me, as the result of his observations of the Pacific Islands, that they were the mountain-tops of a great submerged continent. The similarity of race and language of all the Kanâkhas proves them to be a branch of the Malay family, of subsequent immigration. The hypothesis of submersion has since been endorsed by our scientific schools. New Zealand, however, is an exception: its peculiarities would seem to indicate an upheaval of comparatively recent date. Nor does the latter appear in connection with the mainland of Australia, for the vegetation and peculiar marsupial animals are wanting. Its only indigenous quadruped was a rat, called the "Maori rat," which has been exterminated by the Norwegian rat imported in European vessels. Owing to the absence of native quadrupeds, the few pigs, dogs and cats left there by Captain Cook and early voyagers, soon multiplied to an alarming extent, and proved a serious trouble to early settlers on the Middle Island. Extensive contracts were given by the sheep farmers to adventurers for the destruction of these pests. Moore of Glennark gave one contract to Moses, a Maori, for the destruction of 15,000 pigs on his estate; the exterminators preserved the skins, salted some of the flesh, and were paid besides 9d for every pig's tail handed over. Like Ireland, New Zealand has ever enjoyed immunity from reptiles, the only specimen being a small lizard, similar to the "gheeco" which is elsewhere met with. A striking instance of the struggle for existence, and survival of the fittest is furnished by the European imported grasses. The native grass is long, rank, and yellow, well suited for nourishment of animals which have a large space to roam over; but the foreign clovers and grass seeds which have come clinging to the fleeces of successive importations of sheep, have by degrees supplanted the native grass throughout large tracts, enabling the farmers to maintain a larger number of sheep per acre.

The fact that the Dutch and other islands to the South of Asia were formerly a portion of that continent, uniting it with Africa on the west, has been established by the industry of Mr. Alfred Wallace, who shares with Darwin the honour due to the development of the theory of descent. The frank avowal of the former of his conversion to Spiritualism must be an inexplicable enigma to Dr. Haeckel and his materialist followers. Refined Spiritualism affords, nevertheless, the only explanation which has appeared, as yet, of the primal motor or life, which must be admitted as precursor and necessary factor before the theory of descent, in whatever light considered. The life or spirit which determines the properties and transmission (heredity) of organic and inorganic bodies is not accounted for by Dr. Haeckel, as a corollary of his plan of materialism; yet without it the beautiful structure of the latter seems to rest on no foundation; if accepted alone, it would entail moral consequences shocking to humanity.

The Maoris of New Zealand, an amiable and exalted race, are disappearing, in like manner with the inhabitants of the other Pacific groups. Antagonistic habits and irritations, as it were, on the periphery of civilisation, undermine their constitutions physically and morally, before they can be absorbed into its core. Like the Maori rat and the Maori grass, they succumb in the inexorable struggle which permits only the "survival of the fittest."

I well remember, when digging foundations for a stable by the river Waipera, turning up heaps and heaps of bones of the Moa-bird (Apteryx) out of the bog. They lay so thickly, over so large a space, that I could only conclude they had assembled huddled together from terror, and been overwhelmed by an eruption of mud, or that this had been their burial-place. Traces of recent volcanic activity in the neighbourhood strengthened the former opinion. I pie ed together the bones of a perfect leg, over 5 feet long. The extinction of the Moa must be of very recent date; there are great hopes even now of survivors being discovered in New Guinea. What natives declared to be fresh footprints were, in my time, frequently reported, and they still profess much fear of meeting one.

PHARISEES, SADDUCEES AND ESSENES.—In the face of misconceptions which have been fruitful of widely-spread errors, it cannot be sufficiently urged that as little as the names of the three sections give an idea of their nature, as little as the word "sects" an appropriate designation of their mutual relations. The Sadducees had nothing of the nature of a religious sect, but had everything required for constituting a political party. What relation they had with religion was owing to the eminently religious character of the Jewish nation and to their tendency towards freeing themselves from those religious forms which interfered with public life. The Pharisees were their political opponents, though from religious principles, but they can the much less appropriately be called a sect, as they constituted the bulk of the nation. The Essenes, at the utmost, might be called a religious sect, because of their keeping aloof from public life, but again they do not deserve that designation, since at the outset their principles where not different from those of the Pharisees, but only an exaggeration thereof. Nor were the Pharisees the mediators between two extremes, but rather the national stem, from which the Sadducees separated themselves by placing the secular interests above the religious, and the Essenes by their eccentric forms of life. How little the Sadducees or the Essenes represented the national thought, is proved by the fact that neither of them have been able to produce a literature of their own, all the literary creations of the consequent period bearing decidedly the Pharisean stamp. Of the Sadducees, whose aims were of an exclusively practical nature, only one unimportant literary production is known, and also as to the Essenes we know only the name of one of their books, called "The Assidean Scroll" (Megillath Chassidim), out of which again only one single sentence has come down to posterity. It reads, "If thou forsakest it (the law) one day, it will forsake thee two days."—Gratz.

EAST, WEST AND SOUTH.

243 Bute Road, Cardiff,
9th March 1876.

SIR,—My attention has been drawn to a paper in your last week's issue—"East, West and South, by a Wandering Freemason,"—in which I find recorded an incident affecting myself. I was the unlucky British subject who fell into the meshes of the law at Manila, and am able to endorse your narrative as a true statement of facts. The writer might have enlarged somewhat on the iniquitous state of the law, as there administered, and the corruption which rules the native underlings. The native who got me into such trouble, and who shammed serious injury, was walking about whole and sound on the day of my departure. I had to pay the costs, which amounted to a good deal, and was glad to get off so cheaply, for the term of imprisonment would have been a most severe blow, and I doubt not that my afflicted wife would have sunk under the trial. I shall, therefore, feel greatly obliged if you will kindly publish this in your next issue, thus affording me the great pleasure, not only of endorsing the writer's narrative, but of expressing the gratitude of my wife, as well as myself, for the personal kindness and interest exercised by him and the Chief Justice on our behalf at such an important moment to us.

Trusting this will not encroach too much on your valuable pages,

I am, Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

CHARLES COOPER.

MAGIC SYMBOLS IN MASONRY.

3 Vincent Grove, Canterbury.

DEAR SIR AND BRO.—In your impression of the 11th, subject—"Magic Symbols in Masonry," "the two columns in the porchway of King Solomon's temple have been held to symbolise the male and female principles which pervade the creation. We cannot help suspecting that the Trinity of the heathen mystics consisted of these two principles, and of the Astral Light—the magic Triangle." This is no difficult matter to trace. If we turn to Layard's Nineveh and Babylon, page 605, he there states that the "equilateral triangle" was the symbol of the "Babylonian Trinity." The Egyptians also used the "triangle" as a symbol of their triform Divinity, and if we turn back to page 160 of the above work, we shall there find an engraving of the triform Divinity, with the male and female on either side a column of acorns. In Parson's "Japheth," page 184, there is a representation of the "Triform Divinity," as worshipped by the Pagans of Siberia.

The Astral Light I take to be symbolised in our Lodges by the "Sun." This "Sun" was the symbol of Ceres, the Goddess of Corn.* "No mortal hath lifted my veil: the fruit which I have brought forth is the 'Sun.'" Then "Ceres" is supposed to be the same as "Rhea." The symbol of "Rhea" was "Eye, encircled by vultures wings." And is not the "eye" a symbol to us "Masons?" Does not His "All-seeing eye behold us."

I hope, Dear Sir, I have not trespassed on your valuable time and space. I am but a young Mason, and read your able articles with interest. With brotherly love,

Yours fraternally,

T. B. ROSSITER, 972, St. Augustine.

GRAND LODGE HONOURS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—For some considerable time past we have been boasting of our prosperity. Words could scarcely be found vigorous enough to express fully our pardonable pride in everything pertaining to our cherished Institution. "Loyalty and Charity" were the watchwords, willingly accepted as soon as they had issued from the Royal lips. The whole aspect seemed brilliant and full of encouragement. But, alas! for the uncertainty of all mundane hopes and anticipations, a change for the worse is imminent. There is treason in the camp. The banner of revolution is about to be unfurled. Already the Masonic horizon is overcast with ominous clouds, and prophetic indications alarmingly point to the coming storm. The stability, if not the very existence of the Masonic Government, is threatened, and a kind of Red Republican Administration is to take its place. And after that, of course, the Millennium. In imagination, I see your intelligent optics open wide with astonishment at these remarks, and a shadowy thought flit through your mind that I must be dazed. Nevertheless, I have been stating a positive fact. Do you still continue sceptical? Then I refer you to a letter on page 148 of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and there you will discover that "Enquirer" is at the bottom of it all. Peruse the epistle carefully, its language, if not plain and clear, is, at all events, extremely suggestive. You will there find we are scolded for being content with "a vague declaration of equality," for our stupidity in failing to discover that, "in practice, we, like some states of society, have our aristocracy and commons," and with marked impatience we are asked, "when will the Masonic commons endeavour to put an end to a government which ignores, in its practice, the first principles of Masonry?"

* Bunsen, Vol. 1, pp. 366 and 367.

"Enquirer" further condescendingly favours us with one of the articles of his belief, "that the apathy of the Craft, with regard to this subject is rather the result of ignorance than indifference" (i.e., apathy).

Having satisfied yourself of the bona fides of what I have advanced, please put the paper aside and permit me to ask your correspondent why he is not consistent? Why does he not practise what he preaches. In the first place, he should enlighten our obtuseness by pointing out what are the first principles of Freemasonry, which, in its practice, the Masonic government ignores; and, in the second place, he should show less apathy himself, while blaming our indifference in not endeavouring to put an end to it. Endeavour! Why he, as the would-be leader and champion, ought to have moved in the matter with sufficient energy to induce us to emulate his glorious example. This Masonic Peter the Hermit ought long ago to have said, why should men with cultivated minds, refined tastes and habits, and of immense social influence, and consequently of the highest benefit to the Order, monopolise the high places and have it all for themselves. Notwithstanding that affairs have been conducted with so much wisdom and discretion, and the prosperity of the Institution advanced to a pitch unparalleled in the history of Masonry of this, or any other country, we will have a change—Liberty, Equality, Fraternity—let the plebeian element predominate. Suppose the power were given to our friend to try the experiment, he will but find another corroboration, if one were needed, that muddle is the inevitable result of every attempt to better that which is perfect, or requires no improvement. Again, how is it "Enquirer" was so apathetic as to permit, without a protest, the re-election of His Royal Highness? Why did he fail to show his zeal and earnestness in the principles he advocates by submitting the name of a brother he would prefer? I have no doubt he has in his mind's eye those he would deem qualified for the post. For instance, there is Bro. Growler, P.M. of Lodge Noname, No. 000, a worthy man, subscribes to the Charities, is perfect in the knowledge of the Ritual, which, however, in strict veracity it must be recorded, he repeats like a parrot, and like that precocious grey or green plumed biped, he is composedly ignorant and indifferent as to its drift and meaning. He is, however, genial and trusty, and in his unsophisticated way a staunch advocate of democratic principles, but profoundly contemptuous of the manners and usages of refined society. Have him at the head of the Craft. Admit that he is in the highest degree honourable, yet his mental culture being of a low standard he will naturally shrink from fraternising in too close communion with those whose intellectual calibre, or social rank, is so far above his own, he will therefore appoint his subordinates, and surround himself with men who possess affinity to his own tastes and sentiments. Thus would be alienated from us nobility of birth, mental culture, and, in all probability, the power and influence of wealth. I can only most sincerely exclaim, may that time never arrive, for the result of such a consummation can be better imagined than described. "Enquirer" asserts "that no principle of selection which is adopted in the secular world is followed by our Masonic rulers." What of that? Supposing the method unique, is it therefore to be deprecated, is not its value clearly determined by its practicability, and sufficiently demonstrated by its perfect adaptability to all our requirements?

Curiously enough, on the same page on which appears the complaint of "Enquirer," is a statement by "An Aspirant," that "Masonry was never in a more flourishing condition, as evinced by the announcement, in your last week's issue, that warrants have been granted for eighteen new Lodges during the past quarter," and in another column your ingenious and versatile contributor, whose sketches of eminent and well known brethren give so much pleasure, and are so deservedly admired, points out that "Our great Masonic Parliament is based upon the popular suffrages, and its decrees, therefore, are entitled to due respect. We believe that no unworthy Mason has ever received the highest honours of the Craft. Grand Lodge in this, as in other matters which come under its notice, no doubt acts wisely, and if our brother really aspires to the last distinction which the Fraternity has to bestow, we can merely counsel him to take courage and to exercise patience." Let "Enquirer," "Legitimate Ambition," and the rest of the dissatisfied mark, learn and inwardly digest the foregoing sensible and well considered sentiments. It is so easy, though sometimes pleasant, but often an imperative duty, to find fault with things as they exist, yet experience teaches how difficult it is to eradicate, or even modify any custom, however undesirable, or usage however pointless, which tradition and time has sanctified. How much more rugged, thorny and hopeless would be found the path to upset a system, the rapidity of whose progressive strides prove its enormous power and vitality. "Let well alone," is an old adage; finality would be bad policy because progress is the law of existence, but progress, when unobstructed, pursues its steady march, silently sowing the seeds of reform, which blossom and fructify when the necessity for improvement is ripe. Sudden or violent changes have ever wrought incalculable mischief; when the method of selection of which "Enquirer" and others so ceaselessly complain, shall prove inimical to the best interests of the Craft, then will be the time to consider conditions likely to secure any attention for the better. I venture to assert that the vast majority are thoroughly content with the existing system; the dissentients few. Let it also be borne in mind that the offices Grand Lodge has to bestow are limited, and the number of worthy brethren who are fully deserving to be honoured exceedingly great, and that, therefore, the disappointments must be many; of this, however, we may rest assured, that those who make themselves conspicuous by active services, either in supporting the charities or in other respects exert their influence for the benefit of the Craft, and men who are universally honoured for their blameless lives or intellectual attainments, or the prestige of whose names is calculated to shed additional lustre upon the Institution are not likely to be passed by, overlooked or forgotten.

Yours fraternally,

E. GOTTHEIL.

INTERESTING RESEARCHES.

THE early history and transactions of the Grand Lodge of New York are now to be brought to light, authority for the publication of the same having been granted to Kane Lodge, No. 454, which has undertaken the work. Part I., covering a period from 1781 to 1784, this latter date being the time when the Grand Lodge was formally organised as an independent Body, is now before us. The pamphlet also contains an interesting sketch of Masonry in New York prior to the formation of the Grand Lodge, with citations from the records of the Provincial Lodges that were in existence in that jurisdiction previous to the days of the Revolution.

Extracts from the records of "Master's Lodges" in Albany, constituted in 1768, give evidence that the Secretary was the right man in the right place, and the proceedings are given with a clear detail of statement. Thus, under date of 6th June 1870, this entry appears: "Brother Hogan paid his fine for coming after the hour, 6d, which was given the Tyler, making up 4s, in fines delivered to him to purchase a pair of genteel snuffers for the use of the Lodge." If some Masonic organisations of which we have knowledge imposed fines on brethren lacking in punctuality the revenues of such organisations would be greatly increased.

The fines imposed in Master's Lodge were not appropriated always to the purchase of snuffers and such like articles of furniture, for a little further on we come to this entry: "That the fines arising from the non-attendance of members, and coming after the hour, shall be appropriated for the use of liquor for the good of the Lodge, when called from labour to refreshment. Paid for liquor 2s."

At this communication "Bro. Bleecher was fined 4s for going out without permission." Verily the discipline in those days was somewhat rigid! Perhaps the fines increased more than was for the good of the Lodge, as a few years later this vote appears on record: "that no brother be allowed to drink more than half-a-pint of wine each Lodge night. Ordered that the Stewards pay strict attention to the above."

Under date 2nd May 1781, this entry appears: "Brother Treasurer reported that he had purchased, pursuant to an order of the Lodge, a New York City Lottery Ticket, No. 21,186, which is deposited in his hands." This would seem a strange kind of business to engage in now-a-days, but at that period it provoked no criticism. Even the Grand Lodge at its first session invested in two "State Lottery Tickets," besides putting on record the following expression of its gratitude for the gift of another Ticket: "Resolved, that the thanks of this Grand Lodge be given to Bro. Joshua Waton, Grand Treasurer, for his liberal donation of a Lottery Ticket, and that the Grand Secretary transmit the same in terms of suitable respect and affection, for so particular an instance of benevolence." The flight of a century brings about many changes in opinions and practices, for "time makes ancient good uncouth." We should not want to return to the customs of the fathers, albeit we may believe that they were as faithful to the light of their day as we are to the superior illumination of our time. Nevertheless, it is every way profitable and interesting to explore the early history of the Craft, and to bring to light the transactions that indicate the characteristics of Lodges and Masons in the former days. We trust that the enterprise of publication undertaken by Kane Lodge may be generously sustained, and prove an incitement to like movements in other jurisdictions.—Freemasons' Repository.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN CHINA.—There are three grades of capital punishment: 1st, strangulation; 2nd decapitation, which is much feared, from the idea that a person goes into the next world in the same state in which he left this one; and 3rd, for heinous crimes, such as treason, parricide, sacrilege, &c., the punishment, which the Europeans somewhat incorrectly style, cutting into ten thousand pieces. This consists in the prisoner having his face and other parts of the body so slashed, before the final blow is struck, that he enters Hades not only headless, but with his skeleton partially divested of flesh. Crucifixion and sawing asunder are two of the other horrible modes by which criminals are executed, and strange to say, the former means, with all its long, lingering torture, is often preferred to decapitation, simply because the crucified man saves his head, in which he is anxious to figure before his ancestors in the next world! In all these punishments a rich man can usually obtain a substitute; the great difficulty being, not in bribing a man to take the real criminal's place, but simply to bribe all the officials whose business it is to see the sentence carried into execution; or, indeed, primarily, the one who has to pronounce it. Chinese prisons are terribly severe in their discipline, so that to avoid these Tyo-yo, or Hells, as they are popularly called, for long terms, death is frequently preferred.—From "The Races of Mankind," by Dr. Robert Brown, for February.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—NO FRUPTIONS.—Cold winds, heated rooms and disordered stomachs display their deleterious effects upon the human skin; roughness, irritation, eruptions about the mouth and nose, cracked lips and chapped hands are readily cured by the application of Holloway's Ointment, which renders the skin soft and healthy. This Ointment is the best corrective of the red spots, dry patches, and irritable pimples incidental to tender skins. It saves all the torments of such affections, and spares their unsightly blemishes, which are not light or questionable advantages. At the change of seasons, in all countries, no means of securing the human frame against disease can surpass, in safety and potency, the good effects derivable from Holloway's remedies.

THE HEROINE OF JERICHO.

From POMEROY'S DEMOCRAT.

"THE Lodge" is sometimes a source of jealousy and annoyance to the lady friends of Masons; they complain that "Lodge night" takes their fathers, husbands, brothers and lovers from them, and they cannot see what they can find in those "tiresome Lodges" that is so interesting and captivating, and many are the strategems adopted to discover the "great secret" which they know must exist. Listen, ye fair daughters of Eve, and your curiosity shall be satisfied. The secret is contained in these two simple yet sublime commands, "Love ye one another," "Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you." The head and front of our offending hath this extent—no more; our institution is founded upon the sentiments expressed therein, and the brother that is thoroughly imbued with the principles contained in them cannot fail to fulfil all the duties of life in such a way as to be a comfort and pleasure to his friends, a better citizen, and an honour to the Craft.

There are a number of degrees known as "Adaptive Masonry," which can be conferred on the mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of Masons, by which they can make themselves known in their Masonic relationship to a well-informed brother; by which they can call for assistance in the hour of danger; appeal for help in time of difficulty, and prove their right to Masonic aid, sympathy and kindness in the day of misfortune. The following incident will illustrate the beauties of the system:—

A Mason's wife had often heard her husband and his friends speak of the degree of "The Heroine of Jericho," but when asked if she would take it, had ridiculed the idea of her being a Mason or that she would ever have occasion to use it, or that it would be of any benefit, no matter what situation she might be placed in; a Masonic Lodge was, in her opinion, only a cover to hide deviltry of some kind, but as time wore on and her husband became older in his Masonic life, she began to waver in her objections to Masonry. She closely watched the class, character and conversation of the men it brought her husband in contact with, and she frequently heard, while they were in conversation on other subjects, such remarks as "how will such a course comport with our duties as Masons," and she began to think that after all she might have been unjust in her estimation of Masonry, and another opportunity being offered her to take the degree it was conferred upon her, when she lost no opportunity to become instructed in all its details, its requirements, and the manner of working it.

Months rolled on to the tomb of time. Life, in the main, was a pleasant dream to her, as her husband was wealthy, and she was surrounded with all the comforts of life. Summer came, and as usual she went to visit some friends in Pennsylvania. On her return she had purchased a ticket to New York, and placed it in her porte monnaie with all the money she had, returning it to her dress pocket. The train came to the station. She bade her friends farewell, and had taken her seat in the cars, thinking that a few hours would soon find her at home with her husband. The conductor came through to take up the tickets, when, upon putting her hand into her pocket, the porte monnaie was missing. Whether she had dropped it or her pocket had been picked she could not tell, but she had neither ticket nor money, and as telegraphic communication was only in its infancy, she could not communicate with her husband or friends. The conductor came to her, she told her story, who she was, where she came from, and where she was going. He merely replied, "that is an old song; I will see you again." When he had gone through the train he returned. She repeated her story, when he said, "You appear to be a lady, but we are so often deceived by appearances that I must enforce the rules. You must pay your fare or leave the train. Then for the first time the thought of her Masonic degree flashed through her mind, and she said, "I have often heard that most of the conductors are Masons; are you? He replied that there were quite a number of Masons on the road, but he was not. She then asked him to let her go on to Philadelphia, to which he consented. On arriving at the city she left the train, called a hack, and was taken to one of the best hotels, registered her name and requested the clerk to pay the hackman and send the proprietor of the hotel to her in the ladies' parlour. When he came she asked him if he was a Mason. He replied he was not; "but I have a porter in my employ who says he is." She requested to see him; upon his entering the parlour she said: "Are you a Mason, and have you taken the degree of Heroine of Jericho?" He replied, "I am a Mason, but have not taken that degree; but the Master of my Lodge has." She asked, "Who is the Master?" He gave the name of one of the leading merchants of the city, adding that his store was only a short distance off. The lady then said, "will you send word to him that a Mason's wife is in trouble and would like to see him?" Word was sent and the Master came. Upon being introduced, she asked, "Are you a Sir Knight of Jericho?" He replied in the affirmative, when the lady said, "Prove me that I am a 'Heroine,' and then I will tell you my story." The proof was given, her story told; when the Master laughingly said: "Rest easy; the scarlet cord is an amulet that will protect you. When do you wish to go on?" "By the first train," she answered, "as my husband was to meet the train I started on, and he will be worried." You cannot go before evening now; so keep quiet and at the proper time I will return for you." To the hotel people he said: "Send all bills for Mrs. — to me. She is a Mason's wife." Evening came; he called with a carriage and escorted the lady to the cars. Upon placing her in a seat he handed her a through ticket to New York, saying, "Take care of this one, but should any accident occur you will find the conductor on this train a Mason. He is a member of my Lodge. When you arrive at Jersey City he will procure a carriage to take you to your residence. I will introduce him to you so that for the balance of your journey you can feel that the scarlet cord, although invisible, is about you. Good bye, and a safe journey to you." On arriving at Jersey City the conductor called a hack, placed her in it, bade her good night and in a short time she was at home, when, to her surprise, upon requesting the hackman to wait for his fare, he replied: You are a brother's wife in trouble. My orders were given me before I left Jersey City. Good night!" She found her husband at home, worried and wondering why she had not come on the train appointed. She laughingly told her story and her experience as a "Heroine of Jericho," saying: "I have now realised the strength of the bond that binds you Masons together, and of the invisible shield which you throw around your wives and families. May God ever bless the Masonic fraternity." The next day her husband wrote to the Master, thanking him for his kindness, inviting him to call on him when he came to New York, and inclosing a blank check for him to fill up for the amount he had expended in his wife's behalf. In due time an answer was returned, sending back the check, saying: "I do not do business in that way in Masonry, but I will see you shortly." In about a month the Philadelphian went to New York, called on his Masonic brother, was heartily welcomed and at once taken to his residence, where the lady welcomed him with smiles. In the course of conversation on business topics, the Philadelphian remarked that his errand to New York was to purchase a quantity of silk of a peculiar variety, but that he was fearful of being deceived, as he was not conversant with the article. The New Yorker said: "Good, it is my turn now to do you a kindness. I am not in that line of trade now, but was at one time, and have the name of being an expert, and my knowledge is at your disposal." The goods were bought, and the brother about to leave for home, when the New Yorker said: "Come, let me return to you the amount you expended for my wife?" The Master said: "No; I never take anything back I spent in Masonry; but if you desire to repay the money, give it in my name to some Masonic brother or family you may learn are in want, but, as far as I am personally concerned, I think it the best investment I ever made, for it has made me your acquaintance, and the knowledge I have obtained from you regarding the goods I have bought, and the reduced price you enabled me to purchase them at, has repaid me a hundredfold the small sum I expended for your wife. Say no more about it, but let there be a bond of friendship between our families." A bond was formed that was never broken until a few short months ago, when the sister was called from life to eternity.

A Scrap of Paper at the Court.

MR. PALGRAVE SIMPSON'S clever adaptation of M. Sardou's celebrated comedy, "Les Pattes de Mouche," has been revived at the Court Theatre, and will probably enjoy a lengthened run. The piece, like many others of M. Sardou's productions, has a history. Produced originally at the Parisian Gymnase, some fifteen years ago, the two chief parts were "created" by M. Lafontaine and Mdlle. Rose-Cheri, and a great success was achieved. It was almost immediately adapted for the English stage by Mr. Charles Mathews, under the title of the "Adventures of a Billet-doux," and shortly after, Mr. Simpson's version appeared at the St. James's, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wigan were provided with two of their most successful impersonations. The play, as now revived, is only altered in regard to the names of the characters from the version so successfully produced by Mr. Wigan. The part of Suzanne—or, as it is now called, Mrs. Hartley—is exquisitely enacted by Miss Madge Robertson, and that of her opponent in the playful duel, by Mr. Kendal. Mr. Charles Kelly plays the part of the husband with considerable ability, and the minor characters are more than adequately sustained by Miss Ingram, Miss Hollingshead, Miss Hughes, and Mr. Cathcart. The rôle assumed by Mr. Hare, that of Paul in the original, is brought into more than usual prominence by the excellence of that actor's performance.

RELIGIOUS AND MILITARY ORDER OF THE TEMPLE.

THE Chapter General held its annual meeting at Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, on Monday, 13th March. In the absence of the Grand Master, J. White Melville, Esq., of Bennochy, G. R. Harriott, of Killiesmere, presided. In addition to the Grand Council, the representatives of St. Mungo's Encampment, Glasgow, Sir Knight R. Bell, Esq. M.E.C. and G. W. Wheeler were present. The Grand Registrar, Sir Knight Major Hamilton Ramsay, of Garion, read the annual report, which was unanimously approved, the principal topic was the repairing an old Priory at Dunfermline, which has started afresh under very favourable auspices.

The committee on Statutes brought up the new code of statutes, which as they they had previously received the sanction of the Grand Master were passed and ordered to be printed. A document was read from the Sepreme Council of the 33° for Scotland, referring to two members having been concerned in obtaining a charter or the power to open a Council in New Zealand from an unauthorised body calling themselves The Supreme Grand Council of Egypt. The Grand Registrar was requested to communicate with the Prior of Otago, New Zealand, informing him of the true state of affairs. The election of Grand Officers was then proceeded with, and the following declared to be duly elected:—Grand Master J. White Melville, of Bennochy, Senechal Viscount Strathallan, Preceptor Earl of Rosslyn, Constable Colonel Kinlock, Admiral Sir David Dundas, Hospitaller and Almoner G. R. Harriott, Chancellor G. F. R. Colt, of Gartsherie, Treasurer and Registrar Major Hamilton Ramsay, of Garion, Primate Rev. V. G. Faithfull, Provost Henry Ingles, of Tarsonce, Bancennifer or E. of G. OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

IN the House of Lords, on Friday, the Earl of Shaftesbury brought the subject of "Training Ships for the Mercantile Navy" under the notice of their Lordships, advocating the extension of the system, and citing in evidence the case of the Chichester, which had supplied nearly 1,600 boys to the Mercantile, and nearly 200 to the Royal Navy. Lord Elphinstone, the Earl of Lauderdale, the Dukes of Somerset and Richmond, and Viscount Midleton took part in the discussion that followed. On Monday, the Earl of Rosebery moved for certain papers relating to the island of Heligoland. The Earl of Carnarvon consented to the production of sundry of them, and the motion, as amended, was agreed to. The Iron-clad Fleet formed the subject of a motion by Lord Dunsany, his object being to obtain greater strength and readiness, and power of resistance at a sacrifice of speed. The Duke of Somerset and Lord Elphinstone addressed some remarks to the House, after which the motion was negatived. A motion by the Duke of Bedford, in the absence of Earl Russell, for the production of all circulars relating to slaves was agreed to. On Tuesday, the Patents for Inventions Bill was read a second time, and the Appellate Jurisdiction and Epping Forest Bills a third time. A long discussion, originated by Viscount Halifax, then followed on the "Indian Tariff," the gradual reduction and ultimate abandonment of certain import duties on cotton goods, forming the text of the noble Viscount's speech. Among the speakers were the Marquis of Salisbury, Secretary of State for India, the Duke of Argyll, the Lord Chancellor, Lords Lawrence and Winmarleigh, and Earls Grey, Carnarvon, and Granville. After a few words from the Duke of Richmond, the subject dropped. On Thursday, the Judicature of Ireland Bill was introduced by the Lord Chancellor, and received a first reading.

In the House of Commons, on Friday, after the usual array of questions had been asked and answered, Sir J. Lubbock proposed a motion relative to the Education Code, but it was negatived after a long discussion, in which Mr. Forster and Viscount Sandon took part. A long debate then followed on the present condition of our Merchant Seamen. The subject was introduced by Mr. T. Brassey, his ultimate object being the establishment of a Sailors' Pension Fund. Shortly after, the House went into Committee of Supply, when several votes were agreed to. The Navy Estimates occupied the greater part of Monday's sitting, but before going into Committee, a motion of Mr. Bentinck to the effect that a Civilian should not preside at the Board of Admiralty, was negatived by 261 to 18. Mr. Reed then raised a discussion as to the present state of our Iron-clad Fleet. The House then resolved itself into Committee, and Mr. Hunt moved the first vote of the Navy Estimates, in a long and exhaustive speech. Mr. Goschen, as an ex-First Lord, had some remarks to offer, and other speakers having expressed their views, the vote of 60,000 men and boys and 14,000 marines was agreed to, as, likewise, another vote for the wages of the men. On Tuesday, Mr. C. S. Reade brought forward a motion on the subject of Contagious Diseases among Cattle, his aim being to secure uniformity of action throughout the United Kingdom in dealing with these terrible diseases. The long and instructive debate which followed was concluded by Viscount Sandon, who urged the House to leave the action of the Government unfettered, announcing that the President was most earnestly watching the state of our cattle and cattle traffic throughout the country. To this appeal the House listened with favour, and the motion of Mr. Reade, as well as an amendment thereto by Mr. W. W. Beach, were both withdrawn. On Wednesday, Mr. M'Laren moved the second reading of the Church Rates Scotland Abolition Bill, but was defeated by 210 to 155. On Thursday, the whole of the sitting was occupied in discussing an amendment by the Marquis of Hartington to the motion for going into Committee on the Royal Titles Bill. An attempt to adjourn the debate was defeated by 324 to 132, the result of the debate being that the amendment was defeated by 305 to 200. Majority for the Government 105.

Friday last being the thirteenth anniversary of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales, the event was celebrated by the Court Tradesmen by a ball, after the manner followed during the past ten years. The Princess of Wales and her children the same day left Marlborough House for Windsor Castle, where Her Royal Highness will remain on a brief visit to her Majesty prior to the latter's journey to Germany, which is arranged to come off shortly. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has at length completed his Indian tour, and is now on his return home. He will visit Malta and Gibraltar en route, and will also make a stay of a few days at Lisbon, as the guest of the King of Portugal. Preparations are also being made at Oporto in the event of his His Royal Highness visiting that important city.

On Monday, a Grand Fancy Dress Ball was held in St. Patrick's Hall at Dublin Castle. The Viceroy, His Grace of Abercorn, appeared as Charles I., and Lady Georgina Hamilton as Elizabeth of Austria, Queen of Charles IX. of France. The Duke's household were Cavaliers and dames of the period, while the ladies of the Court appeared in costumes of the time of Mary Stuart. There were five character quadrilles, including a Shakespearian, a Venetian, and an Eastern Question Quadrille, in each of which the ladies and gentlemen appeared in appropriate costumes. All wore fancy dresses with the exception of the Lord Mayor, the Judges, and the Officers of the Garrison. The scene was a most brilliant one, and the ball passed off with the greatest éclat.

It is no news, of course, that our old friend the Clerk of the Weather has been behaving very badly during the last few days. On Sunday, there visited us one of the most tremendous storms which have occurred—shall we say, in the memory of the oldest inhabitant?—at all events, for some time past. Very serious damage is reported along the coast and in different parts of the country. The valley of the Thames about Windsor is again submerged, and on the south side of London, adjoining the banks of the river, considerable injury has been done to property, though, happily, no lives are reported to have been lost. Close by the Angel, Islington, an unfortunate stableman, who was driving an omnibus to the stables, had his head almost severed from his body by a telegraph wire, which a short time before had been blown down. The Empress of Austria, too, was delayed some three hours on her return journey from Windsor, whither she had gone on a short visit to the Queen, by reason of the telegraph poles having been blown across the rails. High winds have since prevailed, more or less, throughout the country, and hundreds of shipping are reported as being detained by stress of weather at all the ports along the coast. We cannot say if the old proverb about March coming in like a lion and going out like a lamb will be completely verified. The lion-like aspect of the month has been fully verified, but as to its lamb-like retirement, that remains to be seen.

On Tuesday, the forty Christ's Hospital Boys, on the Royal Foundation of King Charles II., repaired to Windsor for the purpose of having their charts and drawings inspected by Her Majesty, according to annual custom. The Boys were accompanied by Mr. Allcroft, the Treasurer, the Rev. Sir E. G. Moon, and the Rev. H. G. Watkins, Governors, the Rev. G. C. Bell, Head Master, the Rev. T. J. Potter, Head Mathematical Master, and Mr. H. Watts Mason, Head Drawing Master. H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge, the President of the School, was likewise present. Luncheon was served to the Masters and Boys in the dining room, after which the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Beatrice, and attended by the ladies and gentlemen of her household, entered the corridor shortly before 3 p.m., and after the presentation of the school authorities in attendance, inspected the charts and drawings, which were laid before Her Majesty by each boy separately. Her Majesty was greatly pleased with the evidence of the Boys' ability, and the inspection over, the latter returned to town by train.

The Lord Mayor presided on Wednesday evening, at the annual festival of the British Home for Incurables, held at Willis's Rooms, St. James's. This institution was formed some fourteen years ago, and has for Patroness H.R.H. the Princess of Wales. Since its foundation, 147 patients have been admitted within its walls, and 246 annuitants have been elected with annuities for the remainder of their lives. Beyond, however, about £1000 per annum, the interest of invested funds, the House is entirely dependent on charity, some £9000 having to be raised to meet the requirements of the institution. The usual toasts marked the occasion, and the appeal of the evening resulted in a subscription of £1,165.

Weston, the great American long-distance walker, failed to achieve the task he had essayed, namely to walk 500 miles in six days. He covered the enormous distance of 450 miles within the specified time, and considering that he rested a little over six hours per day, he walked an average throughout of eighteen hours per day at the rate of four and a quarter miles per hour. This is the most astounding feat of pedestrianism we have yet read of, and it is just possible that, had Weston allowed himself a longer respite after his previous feat of walking 275 miles in 75 hours, he might have succeeded on this occasion. The attendance at the Agricultural Hall during the last two days was very considerable, there being present each day over ten thousand people. Weston, of course, was loudly cheered on completing the 450 miles.

The Athletic world is beginning to assume its wonted activity. First and foremost in interest among coming events is the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race, which, as we have announced before, is fixed for the 8th prox. As accounts of the doings on the Cam and Isis appear daily in the newspapers, our readers, of course, are sufficiently posted in the work that has been done, and the respective chances of the two crews. The Inter-University Sports are fixed to come off about the same time as the Boat Race, and the Amateur Champion Sports will likewise be held then. Both these fixtures come off at Lillie Bridge, and we should advise any of our readers who may have a taste for athleticism to take an opportunity of attending on, at least, one of the appointed days at the West Brompton Grounds. They will certainly be rewarded by seeing some marvellous athletic feats.

In France, the new Ministry are gradually settling down to their work, and the Chambers are now fully constituted. It is impossible to foresee what is on the carpet, but at present, things appear to work smoothly enough. At Berlin, has been celebrated the centennial anniversary of the birth of Queen Louise, mother of the Emperor William, whose memory is dear to all Prussians for the generous part she played in the great war, when her utmost efforts were directed towards achieving the independence of her country from the galling rule of the first Napoleon. Nor is she moreover less revered for the indignities she was called upon to endure at the hands of that imperious conqueror. Carlism has collapsed utterly, and all that now remains to be done is to pacify the districts which were so recently the theatre of war. The more complete the amnesty extended towards the Carlists by the Ministers of King Alphonso, the sooner this desirable object is likely to be achieved. In the disaffected districts of the Turkish Empire, matters are much as they were. We hear occasional rumours of the defeat of the Turks, but neither side appears to be able to act decisively. However, an important leader among the insurgents, with an unpronounceable name, has been arrested by an Austrian patrol on Austrian territory. In Italy, there appears to be a prospect of a Ministerial crisis, while from the United States we have news of a fire having broken out in an Almshouse at Norwich, Connecticut, resulting in the loss of fourteen lives. According to latest advices, the Egyptians appear to have inflicted a serious defeat on King John of Abyssinia, and the latter is said to be suing for peace. Beyond these few items, there is little or nothing to record of interest in connection with foreign politics.

It is contrary to our usual custom to draw attention to the case of any candidate for either of our Charitable Institutions, but we have been requested to bring under the notice of the subscribers to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls to the (second) application for election next April of little Lucretia Wilton, aged 7½ years, the daughter of a brother who long resided in the East, and who has left a widow with four children in great need. The Lodge, No. 508 (Singapore), to which Bro. Wilton belonged, has distinguished itself by regular subscriptions to all our Charities for nearly thirty years, besides large contributions to Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund. This is, we believe, the first time that aid has been solicited on the Lodge's behalf. It is, moreover, noteworthy that Singapore, where our late brother resided, is a central port of call, and that the wants of distressed brethren passing through are supplied by the local Lodges and their members to a considerable amount every year. Charity is extensively practised by them, and we doubt not that brethren at home who may have votes undisposed of will, under these circumstances, be most ready to reciprocate their noble efforts, and will help the case of this orphan, which, besides the highest local recommendation, is supported by that veteran in Masonry, Brother Alexander Dobie, Past Provincial Grand Master of Surrey, and other well-known patrons of the Charity. Proxies will be gratefully received at Spencer's Masonic Depôt, opposite Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, London.

A meeting of the general committee of the Cheshire Educational Institution will be held this day, at the Masonic Chambers, 55 Argyle-street, Birkenhead, for the purpose of taking into consideration an application for the education of Walter Meacock, aged 9 years, son of the late Bro. Robert Meacock, Mersey Lodge, No. 477, Birkenhead, as well as applications for the advancement of Louisa and Elizabeth, aged 13 and 14 years respectively, daughters of the above, and Samuel Foden, aged 15 years, son of the late Bro. C. Foden, Lodge No. 295, Macclesfield. If these applications should be favourably entertained, the committee will then determine the amounts to be voted, and commend them for adoption at the next Court of Governors, to be held at Crewe on Wednesday, the 29th inst. Among the other business for to-day is to receive the Treasurer's Accounts as Audited, and Auditors' Report, the audit being fixed, for the convenience of the brethren, at 12 o'clock. This Educational Institution is indeed a credit to the county of Chester. Its advantages are limited to Cheshire Masons, the children being educated at schools in the neighbourhood of their own homes. When the education is over, situations are provided, and up to the age of 19 a sum is annually voted towards the expenses of their maintenance. There are now 23 children in the enjoyment of these advantages, and last year the capital of the Institution reached the handsome sum of £2,216. No opportunity is lost of adding to the funds. It is not so very long since we recorded an entertainment by Bro. Chas. Duval, an Irish brother, one-half of the proceeds of which was handed over to this Institution. On the 23rd and 24th ult. was given a grand amateur dramatic performance, and the result was a further increase of the funds to the extent of from £80 to £100. The performance consisted of the farce entitled Two Poltz, and Shakspeare's tragedy of Macbeth, and was under the patronage of Lord de Tabley P.G.M. Cheshire, Sir Watkin W. Wynn P.G.M. Shropshire and North Wales, Earl of Shrewsbury P.G.M. Staffordshire, Lord Skelmersdale P.G.M. West Lancashire, Lords Combermere and Richard Grosvenor, Earl of Bective P.G.M., Cumberland and Westmoreland, Lord Sandon, and a numerous array of influential brethren. The male performers were all Masons, and the performance gave general satisfaction.

Bro. Richard Leigh Davies, No. 511, announces his first benefit at the Duke's Theatre, Holborn, on Saturday, 8th April, on which occasion an entire change of performance will take place.

Obituary.

It is with very great regret we announce the death, on the 27th ult., of Bro. John Barwell, of Norwich, Grand Treasurer for the Province of Norfolk. Bro. Barwell's Masonic career extended over upwards of fifty years. He was initiated in Union Lodge, No. 52, on the 25th January 1820, and was W.M. in 1829, and again in 1834. He was advanced to the Mark degree in 1821, exalted in the H.R.A. in June 1821, and became a Knight Templar in September of the same year. For many years Bro. Barwell held the post of Provincial Grand Secretary, and in 1856 was elected to the office of Treasurer for his Province, an office he continued to hold to the very day of his death. Bro. Barwell was universally respected, and his loss will be severely felt throughout the Province of Norfolk.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We cannot undertake to receive return communications.

C. J.—A Brother having tendered his resignation in open Lodge, and it having been accepted, he cannot be re-admitted unless he be proposed, seconded, and balloted for, as a joining member.

A "LEWIS," that is to say a son of a Mason, takes precedence as a candidate for initiation.

OPENING OF A NEW LODGE AT GLASGOW.

The extension of the City of Glasgow has created a new district known as Plantation, lying between Glasgow proper and Govan. As there were already several Masons living there, and the two nearest Lodges, the Govandale, 437, at Govan, and the Neptune, 419, at Glasgow, both signed the petition for the erection of the new Lodge. The charter was granted at the Quarterly Communication in February, by the title of "Plantation Lodge," No. 581, and on Monday, 13th March, it was formally opened by Bro. A. McTaggart A.M. P.G.S., who proceeded to open a Lodge, appointing Bros. Neilson R.W.M. of 3 bis as S.W., and J. Munro R.W.M. of 360 as J.W. He then installed Bros. Thomas Stibo as the first R.W.M., Alexander Gow as D.M., and William Fergerson as S.M. The following office-bearers were then appointed and installed:—Bros. D. Peacock S.W., J. Henry J.W., William Taylor Treasurer, R. Allen Secretary, A. Imrie S.D., J. Hall J.D., M. McIntosh as Chaplain, A. McLean I.G., and John Cumming Tyler. Bro. McTaggart addressed the officers on the necessity of acting in unity to support the Master and uphold the dignity of the new Lodge. There being four candidates for initiation—namely, Messrs. J. Neish, Neil Thompson, E. S. Garraway, and R. H. White, Bro. W. Bell, I.P.M. of St. John, No. 3 bis, proceeded to initiate them in his well-known able style, setting a good example to the new office-bearers. Refreshment followed labour, and the usual toasts were duly honoured.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

St. John's Lodge, Lisburn, County Antrim, Ireland.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Friday, 10th March. Present—Bros. R. M. Tilly W.M., W. Graham S.W., J. Higginson J.W., Wm. Milson as S.D., Wm. Johnston as J.D., J. Pryde as I.G. There was also a large attendance of members and visitors. Bros. Francis Duffin, Lodge 356, Larne, and G. G. Tew, Esq., Ulster Bank, were ballotted for and found clear, the latter was initiated into the 1st degree, by Bro. Tallentire, in his usual impressive style. Bro. William Johnston introduced his motion for the increase of the annual subscription of this Lodge to the Masonic Male and Female Orphan Schools, Dublin, which was seconded by Bro. M'Bride P.M., and strongly supported by Bros. R. M. Tilly W.M., Wilson and Higginson, and it was unanimously agreed that the amount be increased from £2 to £4, and the hope expressed by several of the members present that, if the state of Lodge funds permit, they would still further increase the subscription next year. Bro. Higginson then presented, on behalf of the committee appointed, a report as to the steps that had been taken in order to procure a Royal Arch Chapter in connection with this Lodge. After considerable discussion the matter was adjourned for further consideration on next night of meeting; as was also the motion, by Bro. Gilliland, for the revision of the bye-laws of the Lodge. Bro. W. D. Duncan, Lodge 351, Monaghan, was then proposed as a candidate for affiliation. Lodge then closed and adjourned to the supper room for refreshments, Bro. Tilly presiding. After the usual toasts had been given and responded to, several excellent songs were sung by the members, and after spending an hour in pleasant social intercourse the brethren separated.

Kilwinning Lodge, No. 4.—This Lodge held an emergency meeting on Wednesday, the 15th inst., in their own Hall, Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Bro. Prowl R.W.M. presiding, who was well supported by his officers, there was also a large attendance of visitors. The 2nd and 3rd degrees were wrought in a satisfactory manner.

Albion Lodge, No. 9.—This old established Lodge met on Wednesday, at the Regent Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street. Present—Bro. E. Kimber W.M., E. T. Scott S.W., W. R. Lake J.W., T. Moring P.M. Treasurer, J. A. Abbott P.M. Secretary, F. McCarthy S.D., S. Coote P.M. D.C., J. Forbes Organist, G. Roby I.G.; and P.M.'s I. S. Carter, H. Friend, E. Storr, S. Vallentine, E. Coote, and W. R. Marsh. The Lodge was opened, and there were several candidates placed on the agenda paper. The W.M., in feeling and appropriate remarks, presented, in the name of the Lodge, a very elegantly emblazoned and handsomely framed testimonial to Bro. W. R. Marsh I.P.M., for the zeal, energy, courtesy and dignity with which he conducted the duties of the Lodge during his year of office as W.M. Bro. W. R. Marsh acknowledged the valuable gift with grateful feeling. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet, where the usual toasts were given, and a very agreeable evening was spent. The testimonial, as a work of art, is perfect; it was produced by Bro. T. Moring P.M. and Treasurer.

Kent Lodge, No. 15.—This Lodge held its annual meeting at Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of installing Bro. James Pinder S.W. and W.M. elect into the chair of K.S., on the 8th inst. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. H. Martin P.M., with his accustomed ability. The W.M. having been proclaimed and saluted according to ancient form, appointed the following as his officers for the ensuing year, namely: Bros. S. Wharman S.W., J. H. Cambridge J.W., S. Weingott S.D., C. Gimian J.D., F. Steinsom I.G., J. Beckett Tyler. Bros. Barlow and Dukes were re-invested Treasurer and Secretary respectively. The next duty of the new W.M. was that of raising Bro. T. W. Legge to the sublime degree, and all who know Bro. Pinder will imagine, more easily than we can describe, the ability with which he performed this solemn ceremony. The Lodge then voted the sum of £10 to the widow of a deceased member. There were only two P.M.'s present, besides the Installing Master, namely Bros. Barlow and Dukes, and among the visitors were Bros. F. Irebeck and J. E. Sims, both of Lodge 1445. There was no banquet; for as soon as the W.M. elect heard of the sad death of his predecessor in the chair, Bro. John Giles, well-known and respected in musical circles, he sent round to the members of the Lodge, announcing that the usual festivities incident to the appointment of a new Master would not take place. This, of course, will in a great measure account for the paucity of the attendance. But, considering the popularity of Bro. Pinder, his great energy, the skill he has acquired, at various Lodges of Instruction, in our ritual, and his readiness at all times to take a leading part in Masonic studies, we confess we were greatly surprised the brethren were not present in greater force to witness and applaud his elevation to the chair.

Angel Lodge, No. 51.—The monthly meeting of this Lodge, held on the 7th inst., was one of the most successful which has been held for a considerable time. The W.M. had issued invitations to the brethren of the sister Lodges of the neighbourhood to pay a friendly visit, and the consequence was a very large gathering, upwards of sixty brethren being present in Lodge. The actual business was confined to the ceremony of raising, which was performed in the most impressive manner by the popular W.M., Bro. Welsh; the organ accompaniments being played by Bro. J. J. C. Turner, the Organist. Bro. P.M. Becker drew the attention of the members of the Lodge, and also the visitors, to the case of Solomon Hiram Shury, a lad of about eight years of age, who is a candidate, second application, for election into the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The father of the boy, Bro. Becker stated, was in his 73rd year, and in very indifferent health, and it would be a great comfort to him to see the boy, who was a most promising lad, elected this time. He trusted that the Secretary would do his utmost to secure the election, and that individual brethren would also lend their aid. The Secretary stated that he was doing all that in him lay to forward the case, and was circulating a large number of printed papers among the subscribers. Bro. Cole P.M. remarked that he had represented the case at the election in October, and hoped to do so with greater success in April, as he felt that they could not do too much for so worthy and thorough a Mason as Bro. Shury, whose income was very small, owing to the early age at which he was compelled, on account of failing sight, to leave the Post Office service. Lodge having been duly closed, the brethren adjourned for refreshments, and on the removal of the cloth, the usual Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. In replying to the toast of the Visitors, proposed in felicitous terms by the W.M., Bro. Colonel Morrison took occasion to allude to the very able and solemn manner in which the W.M. had performed the ceremony of the evening, and stated that in all his experience he had never heard it better rendered. The gallant Colonel also enlarged upon the antiquity and stability of Freemasonry, and attributed its having been able to withstand the destroying hand of time to the fact that its foundation rested upon the book of God' revealed will. The proceedings of the evening, which were of a most harmonious character, were interspersed with some excellent vocal and instrumental music by Bros. S. Chaplin, T. M. Bear, A. R. Staines, J. T. Browning, R. Nash and C. Winterbon, under the direction of the organist; and before the meeting dispersed the W.M. thanked those brethren, in the name of the Lodge, for the treat they had afforded. Among the brethren present during the evening were Bros. Col. Morrison, commanding Royal Engineers, Col. Bray, commanding 96th Regiment, Col. Stallard, commanding Royal Artillery, Lieut. G. F. Guyon, 7th Fusiliers, R. S. Nunn, M.R.C.S., Rev. E. H. Crate, Rev. T. C. Brettingham, A. R. Clench W.M. 697, H. Basham Sec. 650, R. Gregson I.P.M. 281, Chas. Cobb I.P.M. 51, G. Gard Pye S.W., S. W. The W.M. having been saluted, invested his officers, advancing each a step, which also exhibited appreciation of their working qualities. A notice of motion was given to remove the Lodge to a more convenient place, and a committee was appointed to carry that into effect. Several matters in connexion with the Lodge were discussed, and the resignation of a member was accepted. Pledge J.W. 1436, and the V.W. the D.P.G.M. of Kent, Bro. Jas. S. Eastes. The Lodge was opened punctually at 3 o'clock by Bro. J. Kennett (in consequence of the indisposition of the W.M.), and he was assisted by Bros. S. Stallwood and R. H. Pledge as Wardens. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the first business was the election of a brother to serve on the Charity Committee for the Province of Kent, Bro. S. Penfold P.M. being elected to fill that office. The Secretary then read a statement of accounts, showing a balance of upwards of £15. The brethren then proceeded to ballot for Mr. S. Joseph, and it being unanimous he was initiated into the ancient mysteries of the Craft, which ceremony was very ably performed by Bro. Kennett. Bro. Adamson then took the chair, and assisted by Bros. Earnshaw and Kennett as Wardens proceeded to instal the W.M. elect, Bro. S. S. Stallwood, into the chair of K.S., which was again most admirably performed, in Bro. Adamson's well known fluent style. Previous to the installation the brethren rose to salute the D.P.G.M., who kindly honoured the Lodge with his presence on this occasion. The W.M. then invested his officers for the year, viz.—C. Woollett S.W., C. Fagg J.W., Dr. J. B. Gill S.D., D. Jones J.D., R. Taylor I.G., H. Stock P.M. Sec., Jas. Kennett P.M. Treas. A very handsome Master's chair was presented to the Lodge by Bro. Kennett. The Master, on behalf of the Lodge, accepted the same, with a few appropriate remarks, and the chair was much admired and appreciated by every one present. The brethren then adjourned to the West Cliffe Hotel, where a very recherché banquet was prepared by Mr. Wedderburn, and the brethren expressed much satisfaction at the manner in which the repast was served. The gavel was wielded by the W.M. in such an able way that the usual Masonic toasts were quickly disposed of, until that of the V.W. the D.P.G.M., Bro. Eastes, was given and enthusiastically received. Bro. Eastes, in response, spoke of the progress of Freemasonry during the past few years, and of the many influences at work to cause it. One of the great duties of a Freemason was charity, and the Charities of the Institution had risen in proportion to the increase of its members. The brethren must not allow it to be used merely as an axiom, but it must become the duty of every brother to support and encourage those charitable institutions as far as lay in his power. The W.M. then gave "the Installing Master." Bro. G. Adamson briefly responded, and said, as they knew, it always afforded him the liveliest pleasure to come over and assist the Temple Lodge in any way. "The Mayor," Bro. Sherwood P.M., was then given by Bro. Poole P.P.G.S.W., who dwelt upon the popularity and esteem in which the chief magistrate was held by all classes of the community. The Mayor, in responding, made many trite and appropriate remarks upon Freemasonry, and said that during the fourteen years he was in the Council Chamber a gentleman, who was a Freemason, had occupied the civic chair about eight times. Bro. Gosling P.P.G.P. replied for the "Prov. G. Officers." After "the Visitors," "the Secretary and Treasurer" and "the Junior Officers," the Tyler's toast brought the evening's proceedings to a close. Several songs added to the pleasure.

United Lodge, No. 697.—At the monthly meeting of this Lodge, held at the George Hotel, Colchester, on the 10th inst., Bro. A. R. Clench W.M. was re-elected to occupy the chair of K.S. for the ensuing 12 months. This Lodge has flourished considerably during the past year, under the presidency of Bro. Clench, who has proved an active and popular master, but his reign will ever be distinguished by a resolution unanimously passed at a recent meeting, that the Lodge should subscribe twenty guineas per annum till it becomes a Vice President of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Some very earnest but timid brethren were opposed to the Lodge being pledged to provide such a sum beyond the current year, for fear that it would not be in a position to meet the charges, but Bro. Clench was equal to this emergency, and announced that he proposed to have a guarantee, which had already been signed by many of the members, that if in any year the funds of the Lodge were unequal to the sum named the guarantors would make up the deficiency or provide the whole if necessary. This met with cordial support, and reflects honour upon the Lodge.

Dalhousie Lodge, No. 860.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on 9th March, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Present—Bros. W. H. Wallington W.M., Knox S.W., Worsley acting J.W., Smith acting S.D., Dickins J.D., Dodson I.G. Lodge opened, and minutes read and confirmed. Bros. Kitchingman, Pian, Gabriel and Barker were raised to the 3rd degree. Bros. Cole and Turner passed to the 2nd degree, and Mr. Charles Silcock, having been duly balloted for and elected was initiated into the Order. The working was done by the W.M. in his usual perfect and impressive manner, and he was well aided by the officers of the evening. The bye-laws of the Lodge were then read by the Secretary. There was a large muster of P.M.'s and brethren present, it being the night for election of the W.M. This resulted in the re-election of Bro. Dilwood I.P.M. to the chair, Bro. Wallington W.M. to be Treasurer, and Gilchrist Tyler. An audit committee was then selected, consisting of Bros. Smith, Skinner, and Burleton, the meeting to take place at Anderton's Hotel, on Friday, 24th March, at 5 o'clock. The Lodge was then closed and the brethren, after partaking of slight refreshment, separated.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction.—The brethren met on 14th inst., at Bro. Allen's, Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney. Present—Bros. Worsley W.M., Smith S.W., Cambridge J.W., Appleby S.D., Folliott J.D., Johnson I.G., also Bros. Wallington, Barker, Brown, Fieldwick. Bro. Barker having answered the usual questions the W.M. very ably passed him to the 2nd degree. Lodge opened and closed in 3rd degree, and the 1st section of the lecture was worked. Lodge closed to 1st degree, and the 2nd and 3rd sections were worked by Bro. Fieldwick, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Smith was unanimously elected to be W.M. on Tuesday next, and appointed the officers in rotation. The Lodge was then closed in due form. The ceremony of installation will be rehearsed on Tuesday next, by Bro. Wallington, the Preceptor.

Montefiore Lodge No. 1017.—The usual meeting of the above was held on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the Regent Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street. Bro. J. Granebaum I.P.M. occupied the chair in the absence of the W.M. A. Ekell P.M. as S.W., Gulliford J.W., Allin S.D., L. Jacobs Treas., E. P. Albert P.M. Assistant Grand Pursuivant Sec., Hirschfeld I.G. and P.M.'s J. De Solla, S. Pollitzer Blumenthal, Lowenstark, J. Lazarus and S. V. Abraham. The Lodge opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. J. Davidson was elected a joining member. Bros. Emden, Vriesslander and Hobinstock were raised to the 3rd degree. A notice of motion was given that the regular Lodge held on the 3rd Wednesday be in future the 4th Wednesday in the month, also a notice of motion was given that a Lodge of Instruction be formed in connection with the Lodge, and a committee be appointed for the purpose of carrying out the same. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a capital banquet provided by Bro. Nicoll. The acting W.M. gave the usual toasts. Bro. E. P. Albert returned thanks for the Grand Officers, J. De Solla for the P.M.'s, Bro. Gulliford for the Officers, and Bro. S. Lazarus P.G.W. Wilts for the Visitors, who were Bros. Lee 185, Lang 1507, Dinspecker 73, Micklebergh 1425, and Webb 382.

Capper Lodge, No. 1076.—At a regular meeting of this Lodge, Bro. T. Day W.M., Bros. Simpson, Morgan, Smith and Jolliff were raised to the sublime degree of M.M., Bro. Bull was passed to the second degree, and Mr. Down was initiated. Notice of motion, by Bro. S. Levy, after a very warm discussion, was not carried. The Lodge then adjourned, the brethren partaking of refreshments together. Some capital songs were sung by Bros. Batt, J Henderson P.M., and Sherwin, Organist.

Burdett Coutts Lodge, No. 1278.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 16th of March, at the Approach Tavern, Victoria Park. Present—Bros. W. J. Crutch W.M., Wm. Toye S.W., C. K. Cronch J.W., G. Ward Verry Secretary, Jas. Terry P.M. Treasurer, A. Lazarus S.D., W. T. Christian J.D., J. J. Berry as I.G., W. Gilchrist Tyler. Past Masters—Bros. Henry Lloyd and J. Ashburner. Visitors—Bros. J. Starkey, Geo. Brookes, Capt. M. A. Coles R.E., N. J. Evans, J. McCutcheon, James Bishop, W. W. Morgan, &c. The Lodge was opened with the customary formalities. Bros. J. Aiken and H. Fairbank were examined as to their proficiency, and then passed to the second degree. Mr. Geo. Peall and Dr. Edward John Adams were then balloted for as candidates for initiation, and the result being satisfactory, they were introduced and the ceremony was performed by the W.M. Bro. Crutch did his work in a most creditable manner, and the Burdett Coutts Lodge repute for excellency will be well sustained while he fills the chair. Several communications were read and discussed, and the W.M. announced his intention to act as Steward at the Festival for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys in June next. The Lodge was then closed. After a short interval, supper was served, the W.M. presiding. On the removal of the cloth, the usual toasts were briefly proposed. In addressing the initiates, Bro. Crutch told them they might expect to be brought into contact with many of those friends with whom they had so long been associated, and expressed a hope that they might attain the proud position he now had the honour to occupy. Bros. Peall and Adams acknowledged the compliment paid them, and hoped they might prove to be good and sincere Masons. Bro. Terry next gave the health of the W.M., and referred to the fact that he had not been able to work the ceremony of raising on this occasion, consequent upon Bro. Evans not being present. From the way in which he had performed the ceremonies of initiation and passing, he was sure that the third degree would be well done, and he hoped that on the next occasion Bro. Crutch would have the opportunity he so much desired. Bro. Terry concluded his remarks by saying he was convinced that the members of the Lodge had before them a prosperous and successful year. Bro. Crutch thanked the brethren, it was gratifying to learn the esteem in which he was held, and he hoped that his conduct during the period he held office would meet the approbation of the Lodge. The toast of the Past Masters brought forth some genial remarks from Bro. Terry, who referred to their prosperous condition, and spoke of the W.M.'s kindness in presenting the admirable portrait of their noble patroness, the Baroness Burdett Coutts. The Past Masters would be was sure do all in their power to uphold the honour of the name the Lodge bore. Bro. Lloyd followed, and referred to the announcement that has already appeared in these columns that Bro. Terry would rehearse the ceremonies of consecration and installation in their Lodge of Instruction on the 31st inst. Bro. Ashburner, after thanking the brethren for the way they had received his name, expressed a desire to be allowed to supplement the gift of Bro. Crutch by offering for the acceptance of the Lodge copies of the elegant photographs which had been taken of the Bible and chairs which had been presented by Baroness Burdett Coutts. The remaining toasts were done full honour to, and that of the Tyler brought a pleasant evening to a close. Some capital songs and recitations were given, Bro. Aitken's rendering of Eliza Cook's beautiful poem on Charity, and the Grave Scene from Hamlet deserving special commendation, while Bros. Wallington and Fairbank's vocal efforts gave equal satisfaction.

The Great City Lodge, No. 1426.—On Saturday last the members of this Lodge met at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. This being the last regular meeting of the season, there was a very large attendance. The business commenced at two o'clock, with the usual preliminaries. Bro. Edward Moody P.M. occupied the chair, and was supported by Bros. N. B. Headon I.P.M., Jas. Stevens P.M., J. Seex S.W., R. Stanway J.W., Blackie S.D., F. T. Keeble J.D., J. Freeman I.G., Amor D.C., Rev. R. J. Simpson Chaplain, Steadman Tyler. There were also present amongst the visitors, Bros. T. S. Carter, C.W. Noehmer, Wilkie, Leopold R. Mills, A. Codner, C. Jeckels, D. Green, Samuel Poynter, Geo. Allcot, J. Brockman, Henry John, Geo. Bisset, N. D. Partridge, Botterill, W. Rickwood, W. W. Morgan, &c. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, the ceremony of raising was performed, Bros. Wyler, Boyd, Roberts, Boote, Sampson White, and De Lelive being the candidates for the sublime degree. This ceremony was most carefully and impressively performed by Bro. E. Moody, and all the candidates evinced their appreciation of the manner in which it was conducted. The working tools having been fully explained the Lodge was closed in this degree, and afterwards resumed to the first. Bro. J. Hamilton Townsend, the W.M. of the Lodge who had been prevented from attending in the early part of the day, now took the chair, and the ballot was taken for Mr. William Styles. This proved favourable, and the candidate being present he was duly initiated, the ceremony being conducted by Bro. Townend, while Bro. Headon explained the working tools of the degree. The next business on the paper was the election of the W.M., and this resulted in Bro. John Seex, the Senior Warden, being unanimously chosen. Considering that the Great City Lodge now numbers on its roll of members over 100 brethren, this must be most gratifying to Bro. Seex, and we add our hearty congratulations to those which were showered upon him by those who were present. The W.M. elect, in a few well chosen remarks, acknowledged the kindness the brethren had exhibited in electing him. Bro. Freeman, who, since the formation of the Lodge, had acted in the capacity of Treasurer, now rose and said he had last year expressed a wish that the members would relieve him of the cares of his office, and appoint one of the Past Masters to fill the post; he hoped that due consideration would be given to this request, which he now reiterated. After some little discussion it was proposed that Bro. Headon be appointed, but this being a matter wherein it was necessary that the ballot should be used, that course was adopted, and resulted in the unanimous election of the Immediate Past Master. Bro. Headon acknowledged the honour paid him, and hoped the Lodge would continue to enjoy the same amount of prosperity as had hitherto attended its career. Bro. Steadman was re-elected Tyler. The appointment of auditors resulted in the selection of Bros. Hartley, Stamp, and Measures. A sum of £2 was voted from the Samaritan Fund of the Lodge for the widow of a deceased brother of the Panmure Lodge. Bro. Headon gave notice of motion, which will be seconded by Bro. Seex, that the Lodge present their late Treasurer, Bro. Freeman, with a Past Treasurer's jewel, this to be considered at the next meeting. The names of three gentlemen as candidates were then handed in, and the Lodge was closed. A banquet followed, which was ably served in the large Hall of the Cannon-street Hotel, and to which ample justice was done. At its conclusion Bro. Townsend proposed the usual toasts. He was greatly pleased to know that Her Majesty had, during the past few weeks, issued from her retirement, and he hoped she would allow her subjects to see her as in times gone by; if what she had lately done could be taken as an earnest of what she intended in the future, he was sure the most exacting could have no cause to complain. This toast was most heartily received, and was followed by the National Anthem. To the health of the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Bro. Townsend said: The visit of the Prince would cement the bonds of union between our Indian subjects and the people of this country. We all know that he is a good Mason, and all will drink with heartiness the health of His Royal Highness. With the health of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present, was coupled the name of the Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G.C. and Chaplain of the Great City Lodge, and our reverend brother made a most eloquent reply, in the course of his remarks saying: He thanked the brethren very much for the kind way in which they had associated him with the toast. Lords Carnarvon and Skelmersdale were well known, both for their private worth and for the way in which they performed their public duty. He was convinced that Freemasonry had a very great future before it. In it were combined the necessary elements for the proper government of mankind, and in it were contained the right religious principles that should regulate men in all their actions. As the ocean was composed of drops, and the sands but of grains, so the doctrines inculcated would leaven the whole lump. He was pleased to see the important position the Great City Lodge was taking in the City of London, and he trusted the true principles which it advanced would have a beneficial influence on the morality of this city. It was deeply to be regretted that so many men of high position were wanting in the principles which true Masons strive to uphold. He was gratified to know that in this Lodge the question of dining was not made a paramount consideration. He felt that for the brethern he entertained a regard which he could only express as that of Founders' Kin; hitherto he had been only an honorary member of the Lodge, he trusted, however, they would gratify him by making him a full member, as he was anxious to enjoy all the benefits which membership would confer. The rev. speaker, whose remarks were listened to with the greatest attention, concluded by saying that "Masonry knows no distinction; all in its ranks are equal; it promotes the glory of T.G.A.O.T.U., and brings about the happiness of ourselves." Bro. Headon next proposed, in a few pertinent remarks, the health of the W.M., Bro. Townsend, who briefly responded, and then gave the health of the Past Masters, which was replied to by Bros. Headon and Jas. Stevens. The initiate of the evening was next honoured, Bro Townsend remarking that this was the first occasion, since the inauguration of the Lodge, that the name of but one Bro. had to be considered in connection with this toast. Bro. Styles acknowledged the compliment. During the evening the toast of the Visitors brought forth the combined eloquence of that distinguished body, as it is a custom of the Great City Lodge that all present shall respond to any toast with which they may be associated. Space prevents our giving the speeches, and we advise those of our readers who may regret this decision, to endeavour, on future occasions, when our Great City Brethren meet, to be present to hear this sort of thing for themselves. We can assure them the amusement to be derived from a Spelling Bee is nothing compared to it. Bros. Stevens, Keeble, Hock, Middleton, Clarke and others gave some excellent songs and recitations, and the Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Henley Lodge, No. 1472, North Woolwich.—The installation of Bro. J. Ives, W.M. elect, took place at the Three Crowns Hotel. Bro. B. Brayshaw, the retiring W.M., performed the ceremony in such an excellent manner that a testimonial was unanimously voted to him by the members of the Lodge. The newly appointed officers were Bros. Steel S.W., Silver J.W., Manning S.D., Turner J.D., Standford I.G., Plume D.C., Elder W.S., Steadman Tyler. Bro. F. Geller was unanimously elected Treas. and John Henderson Sec. The newly elected W.M. then worked the 1st degree very creditably, showing the confidence of the brethren had not been misplaced. A P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. Brayshaw I.P.M. The Lodge then adjourned, and the brethren sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. E. West P.M. and host. The harmony of the evening was enhanced by the good singing of Bros. J. Plume D.C., Standford I.G., and Bro. Sherwin, Organist 1076, who likewise performed the duties of organist in the Lodge and pianist at the convivial board. The brethren parted at a reasonable hour, having expressed their enjoyment of the day's proceedings.

Addiscombe Lodge, No. 1556.—The regular bi-monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Alma Tavern, Addiscombe, on Saturday last, the 11th instant. Present—Bros. S. T. Turquand W.M., Black S.W., J. P. Smith J.W., Masterman A.P.M. Treasurer, Frances P.G.D. Secretary, Pitt J.D., Field I.G., Carpenter D.C., A. Lambert S.; also Visitors—Bros. Black I.P.M. Royal Athelstan No. 19, Field Saint Albans No. 29. The ceremonies of passing and raising were worked by the W.M. Bro. Firminger being duly passed to the second degree, and Bros. Coulston, Davis and Godwin raised to the sublime degree of M.M., after the Masonic business had been transacted the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet at which the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the evening closed with mutual congratulations.

Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1558.—This young and prosperous Lodge held its fifth regular meeting at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Thursday, the 9th inst. Bro. W. Snowden W.M. being unavoidably absent on important business, Bro. J. Dunn P.M. and Secretary officiated as W.M., Bros. W. S. Cuckett S.W., T. Sleap J.W., W. Mitchell S.D., A. Runacres J.D., E. W. Boyton D.C. as I.G., W. Chalk W.S., also members of the Lodge, Bros. R. Scott, J. R. Smith, C. E. Power, J. Kemp, J. Nixon, J. E. Pentreath, W. Grayson, J. H. Swan, C. Sims. Also visitors, Bros. J. Stanford, Royal Jubilee, No. 72, E. G. Webster, Royal Jubilee, No. 72, G. Allcot, Zetland, China, No. 525, J. Sutcliffe, Acacia, No. 1309, C. E. Towell, Victoria, No. 1056, H. T. T. Ross, S.W. Vitruvian, No. 87, M. S. Latham, W.M. Surrey Masonic Hall, No. 1539, J. Ruff, Eastern Star, No. 95, J. Hernaman, Lebanon, No. 1326, J. W. Brooke, Kensington, No. 1381, E. W. Devereux, S.D. Era, No. 1423. The Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of the last Lodge meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots were taken for Messrs. W. Fish, J. W. Smith, and W. G. Bott, who were candidates for initiation. The ballot was unanimous in each case, and these gentlemen being in attendance were regularly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry according to ancient form. Bros. R. Scott and J. R. Smith were raised to the sublime degree of M.M., and Bros. W. Bower, J. Dixon and W. Grayson, duly passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. The W.M., Bro. W. Snowden arrived, and took the chair. Notice of motion was given by Bro. T. Sleap J.W., that at the next regular meeting of the Lodge the propriety of altering bye-law No. 1, so as to reduce the number of meetings from nine to six in every twelve months, and that the meetings take place every alternate month, be taken into consideration, as more conducive to the interests of the Lodge; also to consider the question of raising the visitors' fee for refreshment. Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned till Thursday, the 13th April. The brethren then partook of refreshment in the banquet room of the Hall. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and heartily responded to. In reply to that of the Visitors, several neat speeches were made, congratulating the Lodge on its harmony, good working and prosperity. Bro. Allcot 525, said, that when, in China, he had heard that the Masonic Ceremonies were conducted in a very slovenly manner in England. Since he had been in this country he had visited many Lodges, and on his return to China he should be able to acquaint his brethren there that Freemasonry in England is conducted with the utmost regularity and decorum. In short, that in every part of the globe he had visited it is one universal science. The remainder of the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner, and the brethren separated in perfect harmony.

ENLARGEMENT OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

IT has long been evident that, with the steady numerical increase which has marked the progress of our Order of late years, a considerable, if not a corresponding increase must be made in the benefits dispensed by our charitable institutions. Election follows election, and yet the number of candidates is invariably three or four, and occasionally five times as great as the number of vacancies to be filled. As regards the Benevolent Institution, the number of annuitants has been increased. The number of pupils in the Boys' School is greater every year. But in the Girls' School, though the candidates are as numerous as ever, it has not been found possible materially to extend its sphere of usefulness, and this because the space at command will only accommodate the present number of pupils. It is not surprising then that with the greater energy now shown in collecting funds for this Charity, and having regard to the increasing number of candidates, several schemes for the enlargement of the school should have been submitted from time to time to the governing body. At the Quarterly General Court of Governors and Subscribers held on the 9th October of last year, several motions were submitted, all having for object the extension of the school, the result being that these various schemes and any others which might be framed in the meantime were referred to a Select Committee of Inquiry, in order that they might examine into and report upon the merits of the different plans. At the Quarterly Court in January, Bro. Kenyon submitted a resolution for the establishment of a branch school, and that for this purpose a freehold estate at Sunninghill should be inspected, and, if found eligible, purchased, and suitable premises erected thereon, the cost of the land and buildings not to exceed £12,000. The next Quarterly Court will be holden on Saturday, the 8th prox., when a number of rival schemes will be submitted for acceptance. First on the list comes that of Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, who proposes the extension of the existing premises, so as to permit an addition to the number of pupils of fifty-six. Lieut.-Col. Creaton's original proposition was for such an enlargement of the school as would admit ninety-four additional girls, but the cost of such enlargement was found to be too considerable. It would have involved an outlay of over £20,000, while the modified plan can be carried out for less than half that sum, the exact estimate being £9,400. Number two is Bro. Browse's scheme, and differs but slightly from Lieut.-Col. Creaton's, provision being made for fifty additional pupils, while Bro. Tattershall's may be placed under the same category, the further number to be provided for being seventy-three, and the cost being estimated at £12,250. Bro. Ravnham Stewart adheres to his original scheme of utilising the present infirmary for educational purposes, and building a smaller infirmary. Bro. Nunn's plan is to purchase land at Claremont, at £180 per acre, or on Banstead Downs, supplied with gas and water at £300 per acre, or elsewhere, and build the nucleus of a new school. Bro. Kenyon renews his proposal for the purchase of 10½ acres at Sunninghill, at £530 per acre, and there to build the centre of a new school-house for the accommodation of fifty children, while Bro. Monckton proposes to purchase Richmond Hill House, and adapt the same for the purposes of a subsidiary school, to accommodate eighty-two more children. Other schemes may be submitted at the General Court, but the ones we have specified are those which have engaged the attention of the Special Committee of Inquiry, and the result of their labours is, that they recommend for adoption the first on the list—namely, Lieut.-Col. Creaton's, which will, as we have pointed out, cost less than £10,000, and provide for fifty-six additional girls. Evidence was given before the Committee by the medical officer of the School as to the healthiness of the present locality, so that any misgivings that may have occurred to any members of the Committee on this ground must necessarily be set at rest by the authoritative statement of this official. For ourselves, we have carefully weighed the several schemes, and the conclusion we arrive at is, that the committee have done rightly in recommending for adoption the modified scheme proposed by Lieut.-Col. Creaton. The number of pupils will be sensibly increased, at a comparatively small outlay. The enlarged premises will suffice to accommodate over two hundred girls, and if we reckon interest on the sum expended at 5 per cent. the cost, as regards the accommodation of the additional pupils, will but slightly exceed the very moderate average of £8 per girl. Circumstances, of course, may arise in the future which may necessitate the provision of even greater space. As the Craft becomes numerically stronger, there is no doubt the number of applicants for admission into this Charity will be greater. In such case it may be found desirable to remove the School into the country. The Committee, however, after the most careful deliberation, have come to the conclusion that for the present, at least, no such need has arisen. They believe the existing premises can be made to accommodate over fifty more pupils at a moderate outlay, and very wisely they content themselves with recommending the scheme propounded by Lieut.-Col. Creaton. We are glad of this, and we hope when the General Court meets, this day fortnight, that all who have a voice in the matter will heartily support the recommendation of the Committee.

We have assumed, of course, throughout these remarks, that all the plans submitted are submitted bonâ fide, or, in plain English, that no brother is interested, either directly or indirectly, in the success of his scheme. But should our assumption be wrong, we trust that any brother who may be, even in the remotest degree, interested in bringing his scheme to a successful issue, will have the good sense and propriety to abstain from pressing it.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 21.)

A PILLAR OF MASONRY.

"We know the gentleman
To be of worth and worthy estimation,
And not without desert so well reputed."

WHAT is the secret charm of Freemasonry? Why is it able to attract within its mystic folds men of all creeds and shades of thought, and of every conceivable variety of disposition? What can be the nature of that ethical teaching which is accepted without question by the Jew, the Christian, the Theist or the Mohammedan? Is it as broad as Christianity? Is Masonry but the fundamental basis of religion? and does it merely give expression to those feelings of awe and veneration for the Unknown which form the master truths of all the religions of the world? Questions such as these are often asked by candid and reverend enquirers, who, without desiring to gratify their curiosity by entering the Craft, are yet anxious to know something of the nature of the tie which has linked so many rugged natures in its silken folds, a tie which has united humanity in the truest bonds of brotherhood. We cannot answer these questions here. They can only be solved in the secret recesses of the Lodge, and the tyro who enters the Craft may, perhaps, often find that, although he has learned much, he has yet everything to learn. Our business now is not with the ethics of Masonry, its mystic ceremonial, or its scientific method of teaching truths which are as old as the universe. We have to do with persons rather than principles in these sketches, but we may, in passing, say that our Portrait Gallery, in the variety of its subjects, is no very imperfect epitome of the Craft generally. Some of the most distinguished members have passed the portals of our studio, and amongst the rough sketches which hang on our walls will be found the features of brethren who are merely known in limited circles for their practical common sense and steady attention to the business of their Lodges, rather than for any high distinctions which they may have acheived in the Order. The subject of our present sketch is a working Mason, who has done much to influence the Craft for good. He has toiled steadily and quietly in the path which has been allotted to him, and without seeking fame he has won the respect of a large circle of the brethren. He is one of that sturdy class of Englishmen of which we are all so proud, he is a man who minds his business, who has been content to plod on in the straight and narrow path of integrity, and by industry and attention to his daily duties he has, at all events, achieved a position in his business which is the envy of younger men. He learned early in life that steady industry was of more value than the reversionary interest in a fortune, and understood that energy and integrity were alone sufficient to enable any man to conquer the world. The people who grow rich, and who are ironically pointed at by idle fools as the lucky persons who have drawn prizes in the lottery of life, are always the first to confess that there is no secret at all about their success. Men of business are the first to recognise the omnipotence of labour. Every man may not, indeed, be able to acquire a fortune, but competency is within the reach of all; and if our young men who lounge about the drinking bars or the music halls could be made to understand how priceless in the eyes of an employer are those qualities which our brother so early displayed, they would possibly think less of cigars and brandy, of barmaids and the photographs of the last female ornament of the stage, and betake themselves heartily to even uncongenial work. Our brother commenced his career at a time when people did not mind spending the best portion of the day in the shop or the counting house. The Saturday half holiday was not then thought of, and the employé remained daily at his post until long after the late dinner hour of these superfine days. Steady attention to business has, as we have hinted, brought with it its reward, and now, in mature life, with the cares of the world lightened, or wholly removed from his shoulders, he is able to devote himself to Masonic duties, and in some degree to the business of public life. Our brother was initiated in the year 1859, in the Globe Lodge (No. 23), and entered steadily upon his Masonic studies. His rise to distinction was slow but sure, and it was not until the year 1866 that he filled the chair of K.S. He had the honour, in 1863, of filling the same position in the Dalhousie Lodge (No. 860), where his high character and complete knowledge of ritual were much appreciated. He was the promoter of the Kennington Lodge, and was its first Master, in 1871. This Lodge, owing in a great measure to his active exertions, has achieved a great position of prosperity. Our brother's great services were substantially acknowledged some time since, when a silver tea service was presented to him by the Lodge. He is, at the present time, its treasurer, and is most constant and assiduous in the performance of his duties. In 1866 he was Master of the Grand Steward's Lodge, a position which few working Masons are fortunate enough to reach. During his Mastership of the Globe Lodge he was Steward of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and in 1867 he held a similar position on behalf of the Boys' School. He is a Vice-President of all the Charities, and his wife, who yields to none in her appreciation of Masonry in its practical aspect, is V.P. of the Boys' and Girls' Schools. He is an immense favourite with the scholars of the Boys' School, who hold his name in veneration as a household word. It has been his custom to present the Institution annually with the material adjuncts of the athletic sports. Bats, balls, wickets, and other articles of value he has generously contributed, with the view of encouraging the lads to perfect themselves in manly pastimes. His generosity, we are happy to state, has met with fitting and graceful acknowledgment, in the shape of an emblazoned testimonial, which was the spontaneous gift of the lads, and bears the signatures of thirty-six of the leading spirits in the school. This little incident speaks volumes in itself. It is given to few of us to win the confidence and the esteem of the young, and perhaps those alone succeed who are able to keep the heart fresh and youthful. In social life our brother is one of the most cheerful of companions. He is hospitable in the best and truest sense of the term, and is never happier than when he is surrounded with a select circle of his friends. For some time past he has devoted a portion of his leisure to public affairs, and is a most assiduous worker upon the local governing body of Lambeth. In this sphere of usefulness he finds much scope for the exercise of his business talents, and his constituents are thoroughly satisfied that their interests are safe in his keeping. Whatever sphere he may fill in the future, or however high he may yet be destined to rise in Masonry, we are fully assured that he will always be a warm and steady friend, a kind hearted dispenser of charity, a worthy member of the community, and a devoted husband.

EAST, WEST AND SOUTH.

VIII.

THE Duke of Edinburgh stated that it was not an occasion for toast proposing, but that the one he had brought forward was exceptional. After it had been duly honoured, however, Ostalaza rose, and introduced one to the health of His Royal Highness, whom he described as a young prince, travelling over the globe for the purpose of acquiring knowledge which might hereafter be devoted to the general benefit. "Oh, that Spain," said he, "may some day find such an one to rule over her!" In pursuance of this idea (which, it may be remembered, was one mooted by Marshal Prim about this time in Spain), the Regente, after dinner, begged me to convey to the Duke his fervent aspiration that the crown of that country might be worn by His Royal Highness. The Duke made me no reply upon the subject, except by what may have been a satirical smile: but a compliment of the sort cannot bequite disagreeable, and I saw them shortly afterwards holding an animated conversation (in French), which terminated in their going out together for a drive round the illuminations of the city.

The official programme for Monday included sight-seeing of various kinds, and a grand ball to be given by the Governor at the Opera House; for Tuesday more sight-seeing; for Wednesday, a review and a ball to be given by the British community.

Monday morning I was able to devote to my usual duties. Among the skippers who deposited their ships' papers was one whom I will call Captain "Mahon," of the "Idalia," an old tub recently bought by a British trader of Manila, and registered at Hong Kong. The character of the owner did not stand high, reports of some smuggling operation in connection with the vessel had preceded her arrival. Captain Mahon complained that a double guard of Carabineros (Customs Guards) had been placed on board, and that his movements were watched in a most unpleasant manner. Knowing the reports in circulation, I could give him no encouragement, though he opened his grievances by making a Masonic sign, having been told, I suppose, that I was a Freemason. He said he was about the oldest pilot on the China coast, and that he had more than once done good service to our fleet in the last war, that he was the first to undertake the navigation of the Upper Yang-tse, up which he had piloted the vessel of Captain Roderick Dew. For that officer he retained a lively respect and appreciation, claiming him for an especial patron on the following grounds: "He was a credit to the Service, and no mistake." Says he, "just you mark my words, Mr. Mahon! if you run H.M.S. aground I'll have you triced up to a grating and give you three dozen in a brace of shakes, now mind that!" Though I did not respond very readily to his fraternal overtures, he favoured me with some of his Masonic experiences, and concluded with the mystic knocks, saying, "that will always open the door to a true Mason!" For the rest of the day I thought of him no more; and attended the Governor's ball, which was resplendent with every variety of uniform and most elegant toilettes. The ladies get the latter direct from Paris by every mail, and a fashion may sometimes be found at Manila almost before it is seen in England. Our Duke danced and seemed to enjoy himself; his suite included both naval and military men, and the British scarlet shone conspicuous.

At six on Tuesday morning, as I was taking chocolate in deshabille after the bath, an unusually early visitor appeared—the Captain of the Port. He apologised for intrusion, saying the case was urgent. The violent conduct of the master of the "Idalia" had induced him to place a further guard on board that vessel, which had come into the river. Captain Mahon had shut himself in his cuddy overnight, with a full supply of liquor, had passed the hours in making himself furiously drunk, and had then, using most outrageous threats, loaded the ships' firearms, which he had ranged ready to his hand. His threats and imprecations were continuous, and the Spanish officers were in instant fear of a violent sortie. The man was mad with drink, and must be disarmed at all hazards; a movement to that end by the guard might provoke bloodshed, and it was therefore thought best to claim my intervention to effect it by peaceable means. This was not a cheerful commencement of my day's work; but the urgency of the case gave me no option, so donning the "brass-bound" cap of authority, I repaired on board. There I found the guards stationed round the forecastle, an officer in the waist, and a sentry on either side of the cuddy, bayonets fixed. The growling and yelling from within proclaimed that exasperation was still at its height. After a whispered conference with the officer, I tried the cuddy door; an ominous clatter of steel with a torrent of oaths responded: thereupon I rapidly gave the mystic knocks, and cried "Good-day, Captain Mahon, this will always open the door to a true Mason." The open sesame was found, the right key struck: to my great joy, he opened the door, from whence a delightful whiff of stale whiskey swept across me. Haggard, his eyes bloodshot, with trembling grasp he shook hands, placed a chair, and burst into incoherent abuse of the Port and the authorities. Bottles, tumbler, and revolver were on the table; upon the floor and against the furniture were a dozen muskets, and some cutlasses. As though to make room to shift my chair, I huddled some of them together near the doorway, and chimed in with indications of sympathy for his grievances and hopes of their redress. I soothed him, and tried to change the current of his ideas. I helped myself to some whiskey (which I valiantly swallowed), and having thus started an amicable fellow-feeling, rallied him upon his small arsenal, and showed that I thought he had behaved like an uncivilised being. On his seeming disconcerted, I said he had acted like a lunatic; then feeling I was on the right track, I piled the remaining muskets with the others. As I resumed my chair and took possession of the revolver, the officer from the doorway handed out the muskets, the caps of which were immediately knocked off by the sentries.

The foregoing is an instance of the evils which result from that over-fussiness and display of authority which is met with in Spanish and other parts. By a display of force and parade of restrictions, excitable men like Mahon, who are accustomed to the greater freedom and less offensive authority of British ports, are apt to be annoyed and exasperated, until, if at all giving to seek solace from the bottle, serious embroglios ensue.

All that transpired afterwards I don't remember. I believe the skipper became more subdued, got maudlin and wanted to embrace me; but the strain of the situation over, the half hour of excitement past, his subsequent conduct did not claim the same attention, nor retain hold on the memory. I know that within a few days he was discharged by his owner, against whom he then brought an action for breach of contract, which had to be given in his favour, and I met him two years afterwards at Hong Kong, still harping upon the condescension and the compliments which he had merited from Captain Roderick Dew.

I cannot hold up Mahon as a typical Freemason, though I believe he differed little from others of his class whose manners have been affected by years of a particularly hard life and trying career in troubled times and dangerous waters, but I give the story as an instance of Masonry being successful in serving a purpose, which probably nothing else would have done with similar efficiency.

Part of Tuesday was devoted, by our Duke, to witnessing a diversion, cockfighting, which has become quite a passion with the natives. Most dwellings of the humbler classes have one or more cocks tied by the leg upon the threshold whose perpetual crowing is one of the nuisances of the place. Indians, with a bird under each arm, are continually met in the streets. Sometimes two will halt, squat down in the roadway, inflame the combativeness of their protegés, and hold them opposite each other by the tails, beaks an inch apart; after a few minutes of this exercise, they will gravely catch up the animals and trot on again. On fighting occasions, they arm them with terrible razor spurs, one stroke of which will generally decide the battle. So dear is a good game-cock to its Indian owner, that a current jest with Europeans runs to the effect, that in a conflagration, the Indian will hurry with his bird to a place of safety, altogether oblivious of his wife and family; this expresses a fact in many instances.

It is remarkable that a high standard of honour more generally governs participants in games of chance than in the transactions of ordinary and commercial life. The lowest Indian or Chinaman, who will cheat unscrupulously in business, and rob mercilessly when in service, will behave at a cockfight with strict integrity as regards his bets. Europeans often give great offence, when at these spectacles, by contemptuously refusing to take wagers offered by a wretched-looking native, clad only in a dirty shirt and drawers, on the supposition that means of payment are lacking, and that it is simply an attempt to swindle a stranger. Hundreds of pounds change hands sometimes among these people upon a single main, frequently among the dirtiest and the poorest looking. The fights are only held in specially licensed places, and are a large source of revenue to the State, which, moreover, encourages gambling in its most insidious form by holding a lottery every month. A servant is thus led to feel that he may become suddenly rich by these investments, and house-cooks frequently spend the cash destined for the family dinner upon them. Money is given to them overnight for the early morrow's marketing, and it is quite a toss-up, when the cook is bitten with the gambling propensity, whether the family of his employer get their regular meals or not. Sometimes, however, one is agreeably surprised at finding a more choice and plentiful spread than usual, explanation being found in the circumstance that the cook's recent speculations have proved unusually successful, and that, as a man of honour, he feels bound to give his employers a share in the benefit.

ODDS AND ENDS.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

THAT the vicissitudes of life surpass the imagination of romance can, I think, only be fully realised by those who have seen for themselves. I have known a ship's steward become a general in China, a sailor-boy a millionaire in Peru, one English baronet destitute among savages, another tending sheep, a Peer of England driving a bullock-dray, an Honourable working before the mast, and a Scotch Lord earning a precarious livelihood as billiard-marker.

The last-named was deprived (for intemperance) of his situation at the Royal Hotel, Christchurch, Canterbury, N.Z., and was fain to transfer his title and services to the reeking rooms of a sailors' inn at Port Lyttelton, where he died of d. t. I could tell also a lamentable tale concerning one of the very bluest of blood, but reserve it for a special narrative on some future occasion.

The Provincial Government of Canterbury, N.Z., in 1859 used to pay 5s per diem to all applicants for employment, at roadmaking; these were the lowest current wages, and the last resource of the destitute. One road gang comprised the son of an admiral, of an archdeacon, a former cavalry officer, a solicitor, and a Church of England clergyman. On the diggings greater anomalies were common. One baronet, whose beautiful ancestral seat is a household word in England, married a newly-arrived Government emigrant, so did the peer before mentioned, but he was not happy, for the lady eloped with the son of a well-known linen-draper of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Amongst farmers and graziers on the Wairau were a son of Mr. Hudson, the Railway King, and Donald McDonnell of Glengarry, the last of his race; near Karapoi settled a nephew of the D——— of ———, and further inland a fine fellow who would have been welcome any time these twenty years in many an English country-house. I saw a good deal of a relative of one of our greatest generals, his age was twenty-two, and he was not successful in finding occupation suited to his talents; he at last agreed to pay a sheep farmer £30 a year to be allowed to go a-shepherding.

I met many that ruin, dissipation or disgust had driven from home and society, who sought renovation, moral, mental and physical, in the purer air and more healthy colonial life: some of them had been intimates of the great.

The gold discoveries, and an unparalleled development, have flooded over those old times. Gas, railways, and telegraphs have invaded the wilds; Masonic Halls and Mechanics' Institutes stand now amidst flourishing townships, on spots where we used to bivouac when our drays stuck fast in the mud. In the Land Office at Dunedin, Lake Wakatipu (as supposed to exist) was marked haphazard on the map with dotted lines. Within four years the district settled, and steamers plied daily between three considerable townships on its banks, "Kingstown," "Queenstown," and "Fraser-town."

Life in the Colony then was a reckless, dare-devil business, especially for the young. Excessive drinking was the rule, delirium tremens the exception which proved it. I once spent an evening at a Christchurch hotel, with an Australian who had settled in the Province, who, after a week in town "on the spree," intended to return home that night. We drank every known of mixture of claret, champagne, gin and ginger beer—called "stone-fences" and other queer names; I left him at midnight with fully as much as I could carry. After my departure he mounted, and started with a brandy-bottle in each holster. Having gone twenty miles, he alighted by a clump of flax bushes to take a drink, finished one bottle and cached the other under the bushes to serve him another time. After going twenty miles more he reached his homestead and prepared for bed, but missed his pocket-book, which contained papers of value. He concluded he must have left it in Christchurch, or dropped it among the bushes where he had halted, so saddled another beast and started back again. At his halfway halting-place, he found the book, and disinterred the second brandy-bottle. Whilst finishing this at leisure, he reflected that having come so far on the road to town, it would be quite a pity not to do the whole journey. I was considerably astonished within twelve hours of the time when I had left him the night before, to find him again at his hotel, where he stayed on for another week.

I remember the same man undertaking to drive another round by the Sumner-road to Lyttelton, to catch the Mail steamer. He drove a gig with a horse called "Black Tommy." Both had poured copious libations to Fortune before starting. The road zigzags in one part very precipitously—it's edge being a sheer descent of about 60 feet. Hereabouts Black Tommy jibbed, turned his head to the cliff and his tail towards the road's edge. The two jumped out just as the gig-wheels were over the precipice and down went the whole concern. Gazing over with horror they saw it crashing through the brushwood, a black object which they concluded to be the horse's head, rolling over separately. From a farmhouse two miles away they procured ropes and bullocks, and forced their way through the underwood up the ravine. There they found gig and harness all to pieces, but Black Tommy still alive and not so very much injured by his terrible fall. The black object proved to be the bag of the traveller, who, of course, missed the Mail.

*Chester MS. (MS. of A.D. 1600, once the property of the late Bro. the Rev. W. Crane, Prov. G. Sec. of Cheshire).
*Morgan's MS. (MS. said to have been taken abroad by Bro. Morgan, G. Sec. of Ancients, A.D. 1751).
*Dermott's MS. (MS. exhibited by Bro. Dermott at "Ancient" Grand Lodge, A.D. 1752, and declared to have been written by one Bramwell of Canterbury, in the reign of Henry VII.)

The majority of these MSS. have been traced by myself and friends within the last ten years, the chief amongst the number being the well-known Masonic student, Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., P.G.C. Those marked with a * are still missing,† and I shall be delighted to correspond with any brother who knows of any possible clues to the discovery of either of them. I do not despair of several more versions being traced, and as each MS. comes to light the early connection between operative and speculative Freemasonry is rendered still more certain, and the antiquity of our Society is placed on a still firmer, wider, and historical basis.

† i.e. The originals are missing or uncertain. many of the MSS. under class 1 are copies of still older documents and all unite to prove that the Freemasonry of to-day is the lineal descendant of the early Operative Masonic Guilds and Companies.

GRAND LODGE HONOURS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I regret extremely that my letter on Grand Lodge Honours has had the effect of disturbing the equanimity of your able correspondent, Brother Gottheil. My remarks were, I apprehend, quite legitimate and fair; and as freedom of discussion has not yet been suppressed throughout the fraternity, I venture, though with the utmost diffidence, to say a few words in reply to the manifesto with which I have been honoured. Your readers who have read Brother Gottheil's remarkable effusion have doubtless not taken the trouble to turn over a file of the CHRONICLE with the view of ascertaining how far he has correctly expressed my views, in the finest string of invective which fills more than a closely printed column of your valuable journal, and I am therefore constrained to tell them that I have no desire to replace the present governing body by a Red Republican administration, that I am not a traitor, and have not been preaching treason or rebellion, but have simply expressed views which, I believe, are held by many independent and thoughtful brothers. As an Englishman, I am not inclined to give up my privilege of free speech, even at the behest of so distinguished a dogmatist as my critic, who seems determined to thrust his opinions down my throat whether I consent or not. My remarks were directed against a system of government which I regard as a despotism, and, notwithstanding the quotation with which I had been favoured from the pen of the author of those "Masonic Portraits," which are so valuable a feature of your paper, I am still disposed to say that our "popular" government is a mere fiction. The members of Grand Lodge have, it is true, full power to accept or reject any proposition which may be set forth on the agenda paper; but they are absolutely powerless to influence the nomination or the appointment of Grand Lodge officers, who are selected by a process which has been frankly exposed by Bro. Gottheil himself. He tacitly admits that the social position of candidates is always taken into consideration by our rulers, and he draws a singular picture of a condition of things which might arise if some brother of high integrity, profoundly versed in the ritual of the Craft, a subscriber to the Charities, but ignorant of the "manners and usages of refined society," were placed in high office. The usages of refined society are then a sine qua non. A man who cannot walk through the "Lancers" or "Caledonians" with ease and grace, and who cannot talk nonsense to brainless young ladies, is, in Brother Gottheil's opinion, not fitted for the dais of Grand Lodge, however great his Masonic knowledge may be. This admission, coming from such a champion, of the existing state of things, is truly refreshing. But I do not know on what authority my critic makes this remarkable statement. In what Book of Constitutions shall I find it laid down that the Grand Lodge Officers must, of necessity, be Brummells or D'Orsay's? Were the leather-aproned Master Masons of the Middle Ages skilled in the etiquette of Court? My reading tells me that they were rough, sturdy men, who were skilled in the science of construction, and whose pay was too scanty to permit them to indulge in silken doublets and point lace. But Masonry in these days has become superfine, and knowledge of the Craft must be held in strict subordination to that superior knowledge which must be learned in the social university of May Fair. I thank Brother Gottheil for his amiable frankness. It is something gained for the cause of truth when a man is bold enough to preach a doctrine of pure "caste." Controversy is rendered easy indeed when our opponent is willing to confess his real creed before the whole world. Half our differences arise from pure misapprehension of each other's meaning, but, thanks to Brother Gottheil, I and those who think with me are now informed, with some show of authority, that my charge against Grand Lodge was a just one. Rugged aspirants for honours must begin to polish up their manners. Young Masons who are ambitious must study dancing under Professor Fandango, and people who never had a grandfather must go to Herald's College for coat-armour. Anything in the shape of arms will, no doubt, satisfy our chiefs, and even a band sinister, for lack of something more respectable, will be better than no blason at all.

Brother Gottheil taunts me because I have not yet put my views into practice. He asks why I did not vote against the election of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The question would be pertinent enough if I had declared myself opposed to his appointment; I dealt with principles in the letter which has excited my critic's ire, and did not think it incumbent upon me to speak of individuals. Perhaps, had I done so, he would have learned that I yield to no member of the fraternity in respect for and loyalty to the Grand Master. That I have not yet sought an occasion to put my views into practice has nothing to do with the question. If I am right in holding that Grand Lodge honours are reserved for a select circle, and after Brother Gottheil's remarkable confirmation of my opinion I cannot have the smallest doubt, my silence in my place in the great council of the fraternity is of little account. I am not quixotic enough to fight alone in the face of apathetic and indifferent brothers who care little for the issue I have raised. I am content to do my best to form a healthy public opinion, if that be possible, amongst the members of Grand Lodge. In my little circle I shall seek to restore feeling to the apathetic, and shall aim at compelling the indifferent to throw off their neutrality. My critic in an obscure sentence appears to stumble over the words I have placed in italics. If he has confounded their meaning I would venture to refer him to Johnson's Dictionary which will at once set him right. That, however, is a small matter, but it is by no means a small matter to find a writer possessing so much strength and knowledge as Bro. Gottheil hopelessly stumbling over his own figures of speech. He likens me to Peter the Hermit, because I have hitherto remained dumb, and appears to forget that his illustration is a most unfortunate one. Peter the Hermit contrived to make his voice heard all over Europe, and perhaps the time may come when I, in emulation of his zeal and earnestness, may preach a crusade against the oligarchy of Grand Lodge.

But I am called upon now to enlighten my critic upon the first principle of Masonry, and I shall do so in very few words. I hold that equality lies at the very root of our organisation; as Masons we are, in theory at least, a great democracy. That we are so in fact has been proclaimed over and over again to the outside world. Theoretically, it is held that any Mason may rise to the highest position in the Order. But practically, and this is the ground of my complaint, the "common herd" are thrust aside, however deserving they may be, while gentlemen of fortune or position are pushed to the front. I demand for the fraternity a voice in the selection or the appointment of Grand Lodge officers. I care not for the sophistries of those who pretend that the present system works well. The present system exists in flagrant violation of the first principle of the Order. It gives us highly ornamental rulers it is true, but if these rulers are too high and mighty to permit plebeians to share the sweets of the Masonic Olympus, the sooner we return to common sense and equality the better it will be for the permanent welfare of the Craft.

I am, Sir,

Yours fraternally,

22nd March. ENQUIRER.

SMART PRACTICE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am desirous of laying before your readers a curious instance that has lately come under my notice with regard to the admission of members into a Craft Lodge, and to ask their opinion on the transaction.

At the regular meeting, a fortnight since, of a certain Lodge in a cathedral city in the north of England, three candidates were duly proposed and seconded, and last week the summons gave notice that on Monday (20th March) the ballot would be taken for the three candidates nominated. In the meantime it had been intimated to the W.M. that if the names were submitted to the ballot they would be black balled, and that it would be better they should be withdrawn. The time of meeting of the Lodge in question, as announced on the summons, is 6.30 p.m., but for years past it has always been understood that 7 p.m. should be the hour of Lodge opening, and during an experience of several years of membership I have never known one instance of a brother turning up at the Lodge room before 7 p.m. On this occasion, the W.M., on receiving the intimation with regard to the objections of certain brethren, set off to hunt up certain trusty henchmen, and arranged to meet half a dozen of them punctually at 6.30 (the Secretary being one of the trusty ones), at the Lodge, open the Lodge, and hurry over the ballot before any of the rest of the members were likely to be on the spot.

Accordingly, this was done, although in spite of the punctuality trick, one black ball appeared in the box. However, as according to the bye-laws of the Lodge in question two black balls are required for a negative, the three candidates were declared duly admitted, the Lodge was closed, and a number of brethren who turned up as usual about 7 o'clock were astonished to hear that all was over and that they might have spared themselves the trouble of coming at all.

This curious bit of smart practice took place in a Lodge numbering over 150 members, the only Lodge in a city of 50,000 inhabitants, and I should like to know whether you and your readers think that the conduct of the W.M. and the brethren who assisted him to open the Lodge by previous agreement as described was Masonic or not.

As to the future of such a Lodge, I will leave you to imagine it.

Yours fraternally.

ONE WHO LIKES FAIR PLAY.

THE MARQUIS OF RIPON.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—May I ask the Secretaries of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, through the medium of your columns, why the name of the Marquis of Ripon is retained in the lists of Vice-Patrons of [illegible] Institutions? The noble Marquis has abandoned our Order, and long since resigned his position of Trustee. By retaining his name the Secretaries, or whom it may concern, are honouring a man who has deliberately dishonoured us.

Yours fraternally,

"Q."

GRAND LODGE, MASSACHUSETTS.

THE Annual Communication of this G. Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Boston, on the 8th December last, M.W. Bro. Percival Lowell Everett, Grand Master, presiding. There was present a strong force of Present and Past Grand Officers, together with representatives from nearly all the Lodges within the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge. Grand Lodge having been opened in ample form, the records of the Special Communication of 6th August, and the Quarterly Communication of 8th September were taken as read. The records of the Special Communications of 28th September, at Brookline, for the purpose of dedicating the new Masonic apartments of the Beth-Horon Lodge, and at Chicopee, for the purpose of dedicating the new quarters of the Lodge, and installing its officers were read and approved. Amendments to bye-laws were presented for approval, and referred to the Committee on bye-laws. The proceedings relative to the organisation of the Grand Lodge of Dakota were submitted by the Grand Secretary, and referred to a Committee consisting of R.W. Bros. S. D. Nickerson and T. P. Cheever, and W. Bro. A. B. Wentworth. R.W. Bro. Hon. T. A. Doyle P.G.M., Rhode Island, then presented, in the name and on behalf of Bro. G. H. Smith, residing in London, a most artistic portrait of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in full regalia as the M.W.G.M. England. R.W. Bro. John T. Heard P.G.M., in an eloquent speech, moved that the thanks of Grand Lodge be accorded to Bro. Smith for the gift so felicitously offered on his behalf by Right Hon. T. A. Doyle, and the motion was carried unanimously. From the report of the Audit Committee, which was next read, it appeared the receipts for the year amounted to 95,908,75 dols., and the expenditure to 94,217,41 dols., leaving a balance in hand of 1691,34 dols. The indebtedness of Grand Lodge is at present 299,991,73 dols., while the receipts during the past year, in respect of the sinking fund, amounted to 186,839,75 dols. The Grand Master then read his annual address, referring, of course, at considerable length to the most prominent events of the year. Amongst other matters he mentioned the number of initiates in 1875 was 1440, and that dispensations had been granted for five new Lodges. Grand Lodge then proceeded to the election of Grand Officers, the result being that M.W. P. Lowell Everett was re-elected G.M., R.W. A. H. Howland of New Bedford, and R.W. D. Upton of South Adams were elected Senior and Junior Grand Wardens, while R.W. J. McClellan and R.W. C. H. Titus, both of Boston, were re-elected Grand Treasurer and Grand Secretary respectively. The Committee, to whom were referred certain amendments to Article IV., Part III.—referring to trials, &c.—of the Grand Constitutions, then submitted their report. The Committee on new Grand Lodges recommended that the Grand Lodges of Prince Edward Island, Manitoba, and Dakota be recognised, and the recommendation was adopted. The Charity Committee next delivered their report for the year, from which it appeared that the receipts, including balance brought forward, amounted to 1,938 dols. 64 cents., while the disbursements reached 1,878 dols. 64 cents., leaving a balance in hand of 60 dols. On the motion of R.W. Sereno D. Nickerson, it was agreed to subscribe the sum of one thousand dollars towards the completion of the Washington Monument, on certain conditions. After this Grand Lodge was closed in ample form, till the 28th of the same month, for the installation of Grand Officers and the celebration of the Feast of St. John the Evangelist. Accordingly, on that day Grand Lodge was opened in due form for the purpose stated, the ceremony of installing the new G.M. being performed by R.W. S. D. Nickerson, the junior P.G.M. The ceremony over, the G.M. installed the Grand Wardens, Treas. and Sec., and appointed his other officers, who were installed by the Deputy G.M. Sundry reports having then been submitted, Grand Lodge was closed in ample form. A grand banquet in the banquet hall of the Temple followed. On the removal of the cloth, the first sentiment to which honour was done was that of "the Holy Saints John," the next "the Memory of George Washington," and the third "the Memory of the late Senior P.G.M., Dr. Winslow Lewis." The usual toasts followed, one of the speakers—R.W. John T. Heard—expressing great regret at the smallness of the attendance. From the statistical tables appended to the report of the foregoing proceedings, it appears there are twenty districts, including those of Chili and China, with 218 Lodges, six of which are under dispensation, while the number of affiliated members is 26,798, being an increase of 1389 over the previous year.

To-day, at the Alexandra Palace, will be given another of the series of Afternoon Popular Concerts, the artistes including Madame Edith Wynne, Mr. Courtney, and Signor Mosari-Rocca, and the selections being from the works of Beethoven, Weber, Auber, and others. To-day, also, and on Monday and Tuesday of next week, will be held a grand Cat, Rabbit, and Guinea Pig Show, which, so far as the last named animal is concerned, will certainly be a novelty. The show of Hyacinths, Tulips, and Spring Flowers, by Messrs. Cutbush, which has been on view during the week will be closed to-day. On Tuesday next will be performed the Heir-at-Law, the most important members of a very powerful cast being Mr. Compton, who will enact the rôle of Dr. Pangloss, and Mr. Lionel Brough, who will play Zekiel.

The Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, will commence its season on Tuesday next, Rossini's Guglielmo Tell being the opera selected for the opening night. Among the artistes who will take part in this opera will be Mdlle. Bianchi, Mdlle. Ghiotti, and Mdlle. Cottino; M. Maurel, and Signori Tagliafico, Rossi, and Marini. On Thursday will be given Verdi's Opera, Un Ballo in Maschera, when Madame Pezzotta, Mdlle. Schalchi, and Signor Graziani will appear. On Saturday there will be a performance of Mozart's Opera of Don Giovanni, when Mdlle. Zaré Thalberg and Mdlle. D'Angeri will make their first appearance this season. Signor Vianesi will wield the bâton of conductor during the season.

Efforts are being made by a number of City gentlemen to obtain the release of a Mr. Fred. Wm. Palmer, a broker of Mincing Lane, who was recently sentenced to a month's imprisonment for assaulting a person who was about to enter a railway carriage which was said to be already full. For this purpose a number of merchants and brokers waited on the Lord Mayor yesterday afternoon, and prayed him to use his influence in bringing the matter under the notice of the Home Secretary. It was stated that the assault was of a most trivial character, and it was alleged that the Railway authorities were animated by a feeling of spite towards Mr. Palmer, who had, two months since, formally complained of persons being thrust into railway carriages which had their full complement of passengers, and had threatened to bring the subject before the Board of Trade. The Lord Mayor promised to communicate the views of the deputation to the Home Secretary, and, if necessary, to introduce them to him. The over-crowding of railway carriages is a nuisance. Perhaps if a similar plan could be adopted with railway companies as with omnibus conductors, and a system of fines imposed for putting more passengers into a compartment than it is marked to carry, there would be ampler carriage room provided. As it is now, a passenger who objects to the intrusion of surplus passengers into his compartment, is not only annoyed by the over-crowding, but in far too many instances, where the customers are somewhat rough, stands a chance of being offensively bullied during the journey.

On Thursday afternoon, St. James's Hall was the scene of a grand Spelling Bee, the attraction being prizes to the amount of £25. Sir Thomas Chambers Q.C. M.P. was the chairman, the Rev. A. J. D. D'Orsey the interrogator, and three other gentlemen acted as referees. The competitors numbered 250, and some dissatisfaction is said to have been evinced at the manner in which the Bee was conducted. The first twenty words were written down from dictation, and very sensibly diminished the number of the competitors. Then oral spelling was resorted to, and then again the written test. Before the contest was over, an adjournment to a smaller room became necessary. At length, a Mr. Cannoway, a gentleman of colour, and a student of the Inner Temple, was declared the winner of the first prize of £10, and the other prizes were awarded after a keen struggle.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

From the "New England Freemason."

THE world, mankind, will never cease its interest in secret societies; the bare mention of them is a fascination; and any details of their origin, history, and objects, portrayed with the self-assured presumption of a ready book compiler, are seized upon by the uninitiated as positive new light. Indeed, it is to be feared that occasionally new members of the great Masonic family are not unfrequently led by a natural curiosity to peruse publications bearing the attractive title; partly, no doubt, to see unfolded,—as they think,—in a popular form, farther or varied narratives of the symbols, mysteries and ritual which has opened upon them in the successive steps of the wondrous work. Upon all such let us once for all endeavour to impress an important fact, namely: that all real knowledge of the Masonic art which ever has been, or can be furnished publicly, or in this popular form of narratives, treatises, allegories, or what not, had already been done fully, ably, together with the seal and token of absolute authenticity, and by authority from high accredited, legitimate, Masonic sources. Moreover, manuals, text-books of the Order, its very trestle-boards themselves, are hand-books of positive knowledge concerning Masonry. To all this must be added the frequent expositions running over the centuries since the invention of printing in orations, occasional addresses, centennial celebrations, wherein learned and distinguished Freemasons have gathered into eloquent presentation the marvellous story of its antiquity, its progress, its very landmarks, its scope and accomplishments. Verily, can profane heads, instigated by that spirit of persecution which would bring to nought a love of independence, a lofty, heaven-guided aspiration; a spirit, which would smother the dearest longings of humanity, flying in the face of the most precious instincts of our common nature—can such a spirit, we say, be trusted for light upon an Institution whose purposes, open as the noon-day sun, have been hallowed by the intimate devotion and association of the purest men for ages?

We have been led to this topic from reading one of the most recent works of the "ready book compiler," entitled "The Secret Societies of all Ages and Countries," by Chas. Wm. Heckethorn, London, 1875. From the Magi to the Ku-Klux, the work of course is complete. Where single societies have engaged the patient, unrewarded toil of noted antiquaries, our author has full returns, item upon item; political, civil and religious, all classes of secret societies which have made notable marks illustrative of curious phases in the conduct of men from remote ages are at length and again laid bare.

As no book of this sort can get on without seeking to gratify the traditional intensity of desire to peer more and more into Freemasonry, so the illustrious Order is complimented with a space occupying quite half the volume before us; and, what is noteworthy, whether it be the intention of the compiler or not, he seems to reckon much of its renowned symbolism an emanation from the best of all the other secret societies which he marshals to view.

The great body of this work is drawn from De Castro's History of the Secret World. All this, however, is immaterial, inasmuch as successive books purporting to give a history of secret societies are in nearly every case either a rehash or paraphrasing upon what has been before printed. The reflections in each are apt to be the author's own; in the one before us, we are pleased at any rate to think so, and while he shoots wide, drawing with a long bow, in what he terms facts, but in what are really statements out of the whole cloth, we recognise justness in discrimination; as, for instance, where he declares that "every secret society is an act of reflection, therefore of conscience. For reflection accumulated and fixed is conscience. In so far, secret societies are, in a certain manner, the expression of conscience in history."

We have not space nor inclination to refute the tendency of such publications; they dwell upon points which have over and over again been set in their true light and value; and by an audacious assumption of premises wholly unwarrantable, infer conclusions prejudicial to the rights of all confidential associating for any purpose whatever. The closing chapter upon Freemasonry we read twice, taken by the minor headings, as well as by the proper desire to see what our author, who had dwelt in so many pages upon the career of the Order, could find in his breast to sum up with.

These headings are as follows:—"Vain Pretensions of Freemasonry," "Vanity of Masonic Ceremonial," "Masonry Diffuses no Knowledge," "Masonry is unfitted for the Task," "Decay of Freemasonry," and lastly, "Masonic Literature."

On these themes, without noticing obviously gratuitous charges, there are, here and there, considerations which a loyal lover of the mystic tie may find suggestions worthy of thought. They are not necessarily attacks upon the principles of the Order or its peculiar organization, but on its mode of meeting the quickened beneficent impulses of the age.

Again, the author finds fault with the growth of the Order, in the view that unworthy admissions must occur, bringing with them all manner of worldliness.

Unwittingly, perhaps, but nevertheless the author in vain conceals under all his thoughts of criticism the conviction in his own mind that the Order has had a great mission, and been powerfully instrumental for the promotion of human welfare. On the whole, this history of secret societies is entertaining and readable. It evidences painstaking, yea, erudition somewhere, and if the reader has the wit to separate the chaff from the wheat, may be read with profit.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—It would be startling to many were it possible to state accurately the number of persons who have been restored to health and relieved by these remedies; and if all the details connected with each individual case could be collected, the enormous amount of pain and suffering which has been soothed and got rid of would be beyond belief. These remedies are so well known in the present day, East and West, South and North, that it is strange any individual should remain in ignorance of their valuable qualities in correcting all blood impurities, whether hereditary or acquired, the ill effects of which they effectually modify and counteract, rendering the sickly and feeble physically strong.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

The Year Book of Facts in Science and the Arts, for 1875. Edited by Charles W. Vincent, F.R.S.E., F.C.S. (London and Berlin), Assistant of the Royal Institution of Great Britain. London: Ward, Lock and Tyler, Warwick House, Paternoster-row.

THE object of this Year Book is to furnish to the general reader a summary of the scientific and mechanical progress made during the past year. It is not in everybody's power to consult the published journals of our various scientific societies, and even those who fortunately possess that power find so much to bewilder them in their pursuit after a knowledge of simple facts that a work of this kind, which is essentially a book of reference, cannot fail to be of great utility. This book is well arranged, the place of honour being assigned to the new metal "Gallium," the most important discovery of the year. The general contents are classed under various heads. First comes the "Physical Science," then "Chemistry," then "Technology," "Geology" "Mineralogy," "Anthropology," "Natural History," "Geography," "Astronomy," "Mechanics," and "Miscellaneous." The sources whence the information is derived are authentic, being the organs of our different scientific bodies, or those scientific publications whose merits are generally recognised. In addition, the addresses of such able scientific lights as Professors Balfour Stewart and Tyndall, Frankland, Hofmann and Abel on different subjects, and of Sir John Hawkshaw, Bart., at the meeting at Bristol, last year, of the British Institution, are carefully abstracted, so that the reader will have no difficulty in grasping the leading facts referred to. The labours of compilation must have been very considerable, and Mr. Vincent is to be congratulated on the evident care he has bestowed on his work. Here and there, where it has been found necessary or desirable, are sundry illustrations to supplement the letter press, and to crown all, there is a well prepared index. We strongly recommend this Year Book of Facts to the notice of our readers. They will find it immensely useful in their researches after scientific knowledge, and we can only hope that sufficient encouragement will be given to the editor to warrant him in continuing the publication from year to year.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THREE-QUARTERS of an hour sufficed for the transaction of business in the House of Lords on Friday. The Council of India (Professional Appointments) Bill received a second reading after a short debate, in which the Marquis of Salisbury, the Duke of Argyll, and Lords Lawrence and Sandhurst took part. A Bill to amend the laws relating to the Peerage in Ireland was introduced by Lord Inchiquin, and read a first time. The sitting on Monday was mostly of a conversational character. Lord Stanley of Alderley asked the Foreign Secretary if the same protection would be afforded to fugitive coolies as to fugitive slaves. The Earl of Derby did not think it would be advisable to lay down any precise instructions. Lord de Mauley made a motion expressing regret that the Government, in its recent transactions with the Khedive, had brought no influence to bear on him in relation to the Slave Trade. The Earl of Derby pointed out that, during the last four months, negociations had been going on with the Khedive, which, it was hoped, would result in a more effective suppression of slavery. The Marquis of Lansdowne wished to have the names of the Oxford University Commissioners a day previous to that fixed for the Committee on the University of Oxford Bill. The Marquis of Salisbury was unable to give the names at present. Lord Cottesloe asked for certain information as to the proposed exchange of the Gambia for the French settlements on the West Coast of Africa, but Lord Carnarvon stated that the French and English Governments were unable to agree as to the terms of the exchange, and that, therefore, the negociations had been abandoned. On Tuesday, the Council of India (Professional Appointments) Bill passed through Committee. On Thursday, the sitting lasted half an hour.

In the House of Commons, on Friday, on the motion for going into Committee of Supply, Mr. Goldsmid moved a resolution respecting the Purchase of Telegraphs. Col. Alexander seconded the resolution, and Messrs. Norwood and Goschen, Lord J. Manners, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer were among the speakers. The last-mentioned suggested that Mr. Goldsmid should place himself in communication with the Government, with the view of arranging the terms of the reference to a Committee of Inquiry, and the proposal being deemed satisfactory, the resolution was withdrawn. Mr. Meldon then made a motion, the object of which was to increase the Salaries of Irish National School Teachers, and secure them pensions on retirement. Several Irish members addressed the House, and the Irish Secretary having given an assurance that the subject was being anxiously considered by the Government, the motion was, by leave, withdrawn. After the case of Arthur Orton had been brought under notice by Mr. Whalley, the House went into Committee, and passed sundry votes. On Monday, the greater part of the evening was occupied in Committee on the Royal Titles Bill. Several amendments were proposed, and on one of them a division occurred, the Government being victorious by 171 to 92, but ultimately the Bill passed without amendment, and the third reading was fixed for Thursday. A number of votes were then agreed to in Committee of Supply, and, shortly afterwards, the House adjourned. On Tuesday, Mr. Ritchie moved for a Committee to inquire into the constitution and efficiency of the Fire Brigade. After Sir J. Hogg, Chairman of the Board of Works, Mr. Cross, and others had addressed the House, the motion, with an addition proposed by the Home Secretary, extending the inquiry so as to ascertain the best means of providing security against loss of life and property, by fire was agreed to. A motion on the subject of the Ecclesiastical Dilapidation Acts calling for a Committee of Inquiry into this operation, was agreed to. The case of the Talisman, a British steamer, seized by the Peruvian Government, led to a very long debate, which occupied, indeed, the rest of the sitting; the result being its adjournment to some future day. On Wednesday, the afternoon was occupied with the debate on the second reading of the Coast and Deep Sea Fisheries (Ireland) Bill, in the course of which Mr. Butt gave a very interesting sketch of the history, during the last two hundred years, of the Irish Fisheries. Sir M. H. Beach, the Irish Secretary, opposed the Bill on behalf of the Government, and on a division the second reading was lost by 215 to 131. On Thursday, the Royal Titles Bill passed its third reading, in the teeth of the opposition offered by Messrs. Gladstone, Lowe, and others, by 209 to 134. On the motion for going into Committee on the Merchant Shipping Bill, Mr. Gorst moved that the Labour Laws passed last year, should be applicable to seamen, for so long as the ships they were engaged to serve in should be in British waters. The motion was received very favourably by both sides of the House, but was withdrawn on an assurance from the Chancellor of the Exchequer that clauses embodying such a proposal should be added to the Bill. The House then went into Committee, when Clause 3 came under discussion, but progress was reported without dismissing the clause. The House Occupiers' Disqualification Removal Bill, the debate on the second reading of which was ultimately adjourned, pretty well occupied the rest of the evening.

The Serapis with H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and suite on board dropped anchor off Aden on Sunday evening, and was welcomed with a royal salute from the land batteries. The Prince did not land, however, and the Serapis sailed again on the morning of Monday. His Royal Highness is reported to be in excellent health.

It is announced that the Queen will hold drawing-rooms at Buckingham Palace on the 10th and 12th May, and further, that Her Majesty's birthday will be celebrated on Saturday the 27th of the same month. The twenty-eight birthday of H.R.H. Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, was marked by the customary honours paid, on such occasions, to members of the Royal Family. Royal salutes were fired, and the bells of St. George's and the parish church of St. John, rang merrily during the day.

On Friday Lord Mayor Cotton was initiated in the Bishop Bonner Court into the mysteries of the Ancient Order of Foresters, the impressive ceremonial being performed, by dispensation from the High Court of Foresters, in the Egyptian Hall, several other gentlemen being initiated at the same time. Considering the lively interest which the City of London has taken in the preservation to the public of Epping Forest, this compliment to its chief magistrate seems a most appropriate one. At the lunch which followed, the Lord Mayor, in returning thanks for the newly initiated brethren, expressed the gratification it afforded him to have joined this Ancient Order, and his belief that Forestry, Freemasonry, and Oddfellowship could not have existed so long and been so prosperous had they not been based on the principles of morality, integrity, and honesty.

On Saturday evening, in honour of his recent enrolment as a citizen of London, the Lord Chief Justice of England was entertained at a banquet at the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor, a considerable number of guests being present to grace the occasion. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given, that of the guest of the evening being received with the greatest enthusiasm. Sir A. Cockburn acknowledged the honour with much heartiness. The health of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress likewise evoked similar manifestations of cordiality.

The Oxford and Cambridge Crews reached London on Monday, a full week earlier than usual. No time was lost in commencing the work of preparation on the London waters, both crews having a stiffish pull the same day, Oxford in the forenoon, and Cambridge in the afternoon. The odds, of course, are in favour of the former, but the knowing ones, or those who pretend to be knowing ones, think Cambridge will make a great fight for it on the eventful day of the race. So much the better; a hollow race is but a tame affair, even though London should be in a delirium of blue fever for the rest of its existence. Our wish is intelligible enough. Be it light blue or dark blue, may the best crew win. One thing is certain. The good old coaching days are not yet gone altogether, or the papers would not be dinning into our ears that this or that crew was coached on such a day by certain old 'Varsity oars. By the way, as, under the new system, the crews must not only row well but slide well, the appearance of Jack Frost on the scene of action seems by no means uncalled for.

Friday was St. Patrick's day, and in Ireland the customary honours were paid the worthy saint, the Queen's Viceroy setting an honourable example. In London, the 93rd anniversary of the Benevolent Society of St. Patrick was held at Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of the Earl of Milltown. In response to the earnest appeal of the chairman for support towards the funds of this excellent charity, subscriptions to the amount of about £700 were announced. At the Royal Albert Hall was held an Irish festival, the programme consisting almost entirely of Irish music. On Saturday there was an Irish fête at the Alexandra Palace, the chief attractions being the Colleen Bawn, and a concert consisting of Irish melodies. There was also a "demonstration," at which the various Irish political and temperance societies assisted. The number of visitors is set down at 15,000, and everything appears to have passed off most harmoniously.

We shall be hardly fulfilling our duty as newsmongers, if we omit to say a word or two as to the weather. For the edification of any of our readers who may be impervious to cold and indifferent to storms, we announce that snow has fallen several times since our last issue, and that severe gales have been experienced in different parts of the country. Having relieved our conscience in respect of this important announcement, which, at least, has the merit of coming better late than never, we pass at once to the next topic of the week.

The annual general meeting of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street. In the absence, from ill-health, of the Duke of Northumberland, Earl Percy presided. The chairman, in his address, spoke of the vastly increasing tonnage which cleared from our ports, and stated that the wrecks and other casualties which have occurred round our coast during the last ten years amounted to 23,098, while the number of lives saved annually during the same period was 832. Mr. R. Lewis, in his annual report, said there were 254 life boats, and the number of lives saved during the past year was 727. Twelve silver medals, eighteen votes of thanks on vellum, and £3,289 had been granted by the society for saving life, the number saved from the institution of the society being 23,790. The receipts for the year were £39,835 15s 4d, of which £12,932 9s 6d were special gifts towards defraying the cost of thirteen life-boats. The expenditure, including liabilities, reach £39,395 7s 5d. The report having been moved and adopted, and other resolutions having been agreed to, a vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

The Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot presided, on Wednesday evening, at the 13th Anniversary Festival of the Royal Society of Musicians, held at Willis's Rooms. Over two hundred gentlemen, many of whom were distinguished musicians, were present to support his Lordship, who, in his usual kindly and eloquent manner, advocated the claims of the society to the support of every lover of music. The society, which has received the patronage of all the leading composers and musicians of their day, from the time of Handel downwards, grants monthly allowances, independent of grants for the education of children, to all worthy claimants. It also maintains and clothes the orphans of members, and apprentices them to respectable trades or professions, and further presents them with a gratuity of £10 for good conduct when the term of their apprenticeship has expired. The members exceed two hundred, and there are at present eight members, forty-two widows, and fifteen children receiving funds from the institution. Seven children, also, with each of whom a premium of £25 was paid, have been apprenticed. The expenses for the year to 31st December last amounted to £3701 16s. 10d., and the portion of the funeral expenses of the late Sir W. Sterndale Bennett, which had to be borne by the society, was £83 10s. The musical arrangements of the evening were admirable, the services of the different artistes being rendered gratuitously.

The new French Ministry appear to be settling down steadily to their duties, and matters seemingly go on more harmoniously than was expected. Our violent friend, Bishop Dupanloup, however, appears to have grown very angry again, because the Minister for Public Instruction, Mr. Waddington, has announced his intention of restoring to the state the sole power of granting degrees. This the reverend Bishop regards as a declaration of war against the Church on all points. The Emperor of Germany completed his 79th year on Wednesday. The occasion was generally celebrated throughout Germany, the majority of whose princes sent representatives to offer His Imperial Majesty their felicitations. Field Marshal Wrangel addressed the emperor on behalf of the army. Berlin was illuminated, and there was a grand court dinner at which Imperial and Royal Ministers and others were present. Madrid has been the scene of grand rejoicings on the occasion of the triumphal entry of the young King Alphonso at the head of a portion of his victorious army. There seems at length to be some prospect of an armistice between the Turks and the insurgent subjects of His Majesty the Sultan. This is said to be due partially to the decided attitude of Austria's representatives, as well as to the earnest exhortations of the Prince of Montenegro in favour of peace. The new Italian Ministry is not yet completely constituted, but it is regarded as certain that Signor Depretis will be President of the Ministry and Minister of Finance, Signor Melegari will take the Foreign portfolio, and Signor Mancini that of Justice. As regards a successor to General Schenk as Minister at the English court, the Senate Committee have reported against the nomination by the President of Mr. Dana. Severe storms are said to have prevailed throughout the United States, and several wrecks have taken place on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts; in other parts of the world, too, the weather has been most unfavourable, so that we in England are not the only people whom the Clerk of the Weather has been troubling of late. It is but a sorry consolation, however, that others have been suffering the same discomforts as we have. Perhaps, next week we may be able to report some improvement; we hope so, at all events.

The regular meeting of the Grand Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Bro. James Brett P.G.P. in the chair. There were 34 cases. Grants to the amount of £238 previously voted were confirmed, and fresh cases to the amount of £536 were relieved. There were present Bros. J. Smith, E. P. Albert, S. Rawson, Hyde Pullen, J. Wright, H. Dicketts, F. Binckes, A. Cottebrune, J. Boyd, T. Cubitt, J. Hervey, H. G. Buss, W. C. Crick, W. H. Myers, H. Bartlett, S. Poynter, Griffiths Smith, W. Mann, W. Wiggington, M. Suffield, E. Harris, J. Cox, T. Cohn, W. Stephens, J. J. Perry, J. A. Barnard, C. F. Hogard, E. Budden, M. Chubb, B. Clegg, C. Burmeister, E. H. Stanwitz, W. H. Hemsworth, M. Higgs, J. Carnaby, R. Grigg, C. Martin, E. H. Honeyman, E. King, J. Barnes, Ward, J. Green, W. Buck, C. W. Kent, A. Vanderlyn, P. Wagner, C. Pulman, George Lambert, J. Burt, J. Watts, B. Swallow, J. Cox, H. M. Levy, &c., &c.

On Thursday, the 30th instant, the ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Crystal Palace District Gas Company, of which Bro. Magnus Ohren is Secretary, will be held. From the Directors' report for the half-year to 31st December 1875, which will then be presented, it appears that the general working of the Company has greatly improved during that period, and the directors have accordingly resolved to reduce the price of gas to four shillings per 1,000 cubic feet. They will also recommend that out of the balance of profit and loss, amounting to £9,060 7s 1d, the following dividends be paid, namely:—at 6 per cent. per annum on preference capital; at 7 per cent. per annum on the ordinary 7 per cent. capital; at 10 per cent. per annum on the original capital; at 7 per cent. per annum on the converted 7 per cent. capital, and at 10 per cent. per annum on the converted 10 per cent. capital; all to be paid less income tax. This will absorb £8,685 7s 0d, and leave £374 19s 7d to be carried forward to the profit of the succeeding half-year. The capital account of the company shows a total of receipts to 31st December of £229,504, and a total expenditure of £214,745 15s 6d, leaving a balance of £14,758 4s 6d. The revenue account shows receipts amounting to £48,561 19s 1d, and expenditure £38,277 9s 9d, leaving a balance carried to profit and loss account of £10,284 9s 4d. The profit and loss account shows receipts £10,622 6s 9d, of which £1,500 is carried to reserved fund, and £61 19s 8d has been paid as interest on temporary loans, and loans on bonds accrued to 31st December, leaving a balance of net profit, as already stated, of £9,060 7s 1d.

It is not our custom to take note of matters which relate to the action or influence of any religious denomination. But the claims to supremacy over the civil power advanced by the Pope and certain Romish dignitaries on behalf of the Roman Catholic Church are so preposterous, that we are in no wise surprised the Protestant Alliance should be anxious to draw attention to the pecuniary aid afforded to Roman Catholicism by the State in the United Kingdom and its dependencies. From a paper we have received we gather that a sum exceeding three quarters of a million sterling is granted annually in England to the Roman Catholic church, while in Canada the annual value of Roman Catholic endowments exceeds a quarter of a million. Thus the section of Christianity which claims to lord it over all other Christian sects, as well as over the power of the State, derives no small proportion of its means from the government grants. There are some who justify this expenditure, on the ground that education and religious instruction of any kind have a tendency to repress crime, but the statistics contained in this paper show unmistakably that of the sum expended in England in 1875 for the repression of crime, one-fourth was occasioned by Roman Catholics, whereas, according to population, it should only have been about one-twentieth. In Ireland, the expenditure under the same head of service exceeded a million and a quarter; it should have been somewhat less than three quarters of a million. In Scotland, it considerably exceeded a quarter of a million, whereas it should have been only a few hundreds over £75,000. We have taken the figures furnished in this paper as correct, and we cannot but acknowledge that, having due regard to the action of Roman Catholicism, the Protestant Alliance is fully justified in bringing these matters as prominently as possible under the notice of the British public.

The ceremony of consecration and installation will be worked in the Islington Lodge of Instruction, Crown, and Cushion Hotel, Winchester-street, London Wall, on Wednesday, 12th April, at 6.30, by Bro. James Terry, Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons; Brethren to appear in Masonic costume.

The third meeting of the Board for the current year, of the Hospital Saturday Fund, was held on Saturday, in the theatre of Middlesex Hospital, under the Presidency of Captain Charles Mercier, Chairman of the Fund. The chief business to be transacted was the election of a Secretary and an organising agent. For the former office there had been 153 applicants, of whom four were recommended, while for the latter there were 80 candidates, of whom three were selected. The election resulted in the appointment of Mr. Napier as Secretary, and Mr. Haley as Organising Agent. Mr. Alderman Gould was elected Honorary Secretary, and Dr. Ambler and Messrs. Deans, Moss, Sains, and Harmer, members of the Council. A Finance Committee, consisting of Messrs. Harmer, St. V. Mercier, and Moss, with an Audit Committee, consisting of Messrs. Dean and Thurlow, were unanimously appointed. Votes of thanks to the authorities of Middlesex Hospital, for allowing the meeting to be held in their theatre, and to Captain Mercier for presiding, brought the proceedings to a close.

We read in Le Monde Maçonnique for the current month that the Council of the Grand Orient of France have voted a first contribution of one thousand francs in aid of the sufferers by the recent terrible explosion at St. Etienne. We are also informed that, on the 25th January, a course of instruction in the English language was opened under the auspices of the Grand Orient. Fr. Armand, assisted by FF. Caubet and Seinguerlet, presided at the inauguratory meeting, and there were present about one hundred and fifty persons. Fr. Armand explained at length the object the Grand Orient had in view, and justified its action by the great success which had attended the German classes. These courses of instruction are given gratuitously, being open to any who may wish to attend them, and the Grand Orient trusts that from time to time it may be able to extend its sphere of usefulness and lend its aid in the promotion of other and equally serviceable schemes.

At the election at the Girls' School, which is fixed for the 8th April, there are eleven vacancies and forty-three candidates. Of the latter, three apply for the fifth time, eight for the third, twelve for the second, and twenty for the first time. Three, if they fail now, will be struck out of the list on the score of age. Sixteen hail from London. Lincolnshire sends five candidates, Devonshire three, Hants and Isle of Wight three, Middlesex two, Warwickshire two, and South Wales E.D., Antigua, Cambridgeshire, Singapore, Hong Kong, Lancashire W., Yorkshire W., Wilts, Suffolk, Kent, Staffordshire, and Monmouthshire, one each. The fathers of seven of the children were either stewards or subscribers to one or more of our charitable institutions. One had been a member 27½ years, a second 24½ years, and a third 24 years, while another died before completing the first year of his membership. In seven cases both parents are alive, in three neither. One child has lost her mother, and the other thirty-two are fatherless. One belongs to a family of eleven children and has already a sister in the institution by purchase. Two have one sister, and one two sisters in the School, while two others have each a brother in the Boys' School.

How to get rid of a Winter Cough.—As so much depends upon the way in which we treat ourselves in ailments of this kind, and considering how seriously a long-standing cough affects the Constitution, the subject is well worthy of a prominent place in "Cassell's Family Magazine," in the April Number of which a paper, by a Family Doctor, embodying the best and simplest remedies, is announced to appear.

The Greek Church.—We understand that the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol will contribute a paper to "The Quiver" for April, on the question of Intercommunion between the Church of England and the Greek Church.

Club House Playing Cards.—Mogul Quality, picked 1s 3d per pack, 14s per dozen packs. Do. seconds 1s per pack, 11s per dozen packs. If by post 1½d per pack extra. Cards for Piquet, Bésique, Ecarté, &c., Mogul Quality 10d per pack, 9s per dozen packs.—London: W. W. Morgan, 67 Barbican, E.C.

St. Mungo's Encampment of Knights Templar met at St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on Monday, the 20th inst., Sir Knight Robert Bell E.C. presiding, who opened the Encampment in the usual form, and afterwards reported the proceedings of the Chapter General of Edinburgh. He was glad to see amongst them Sir Knights W. M. Pearson, of No. 88 Encampment, Tower-hill, Dunfermline, whom he proposed for honorary affiliation, which ceremony was performed by Sir Knight H. J. Shields P.E.C., of Monhatton, Commander 33rd degree. The officers who were elected at the last meeting, Sir Knight Wheeler as Prelate and D. Reid as Recorder, were installed by Sir Knight J. O. Park, along with Sir Knight Colin McKenzies as Marshal, and J. McLeish as Warder. The E.C. said in consequence of domestic affliction he was reluctantly compelled to resign his office before the end of the year, but having held the chair for nearly six years he trusted the Sir Knights would now allow him to retire. The resignation was received with regret, and the Encampment closed in due form.

The audit committee were appointed, consisting of the W.M., the officers of the Lodge, and Bros. Saintsbury, Cheek and Child. Bro. Rose, Treas., proposed that a Past Master's Jewel of the value of ten guineas be presented to Bro. H. Michael on his retiring from the chair, for the able and efficient manner he had conducted the duties of his office, and in token of the regard and esteem in which he is held by the brethren. This was carried unanimously. The Lodge was then closed until October, and the brethren, sixty-five in number, sat down to a very excellent banquet. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the M.W. Grand Master, said he had endeared himself to those around him wherever he had been, and the homage and enthusiastic feeling of respect with which he was hailed make us look forward with pride to him as our future king. On his return to his native country he would receive from every brother a hearty welcome. Bro. Jas. Willing then said it would be the last time he should have the opportunity of addressing the brethren in the capacity of I.P.M., he was the first W.M. of this Lodge, which now mustered so numerously. The W.M. had ably discharged his duties, the Lodge now numbered over eighty members, and to his list for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution the brethren had liberally subscribed. He had great pleasure in proposing the health of Bro. Michael. The W.M. made a very eloquent speech, and in the course of his remarks said:, It was also the last time he would have the opportunity of presiding, but in following out the duties required of him he hoped he had given them satisfaction, he hoped he had followed the footsteps of a worthy predecessor. It was indeed pride to be Master of so rising and flourishing a Lodge, and he hoped that when being ranked as a P.M., the brethren would say that during his year of office he had done all that was required of him; he had initiated twenty gentlemen into the Order, but Bro Jas. Willing had, during his year, initiated nearly double that number. (Cheers.) He might, however, say with pride, that he resigned the chair to a worthy successor. The W.M. then proposed the health of Bro. Jas. Willing I.P.M., who had, as the first Master, brought the Lodge to perfection. Whatever he had undertaken was well done, and so far as Masonic eulogiums could go he could say nothing more than that he was an ornament to the Craft. He alluded to the portrait which was placed on the wall, it would be a lasting evidence of their respect, but he hoped his genial face would be present among them for many years. (Cheers.) Bro. James Willing appropriately responded. He said it was satisfactory to him to say he was one of the founders of the Lodge and its first W.M. The Lodge was indeed flourishing, but they also had attached to it a Lodge of Instruction, with a very able Preceptor, and the instruction they had received there they had profited by; it would eventually enable many brethren to occupy the chair. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the W.M. elect said, the brethren could not have made a better selection; he had the interests of the Lodge at heart, and he was sure at the expiration of his year of office, he would leave it with the satisfaction of every member. Bro. Williams S.W. and W.M. elect returned thanks. The toast of the Visitors was given, Bros. Yeates, Millis and H. M. Levy returning thanks. The toast of the Treasurer and Secretary was also honoured, as was that of the Wardens and Officers, which was responded to by Bro. T. Kingham. After this the Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren separated. Great credit is due to Bros. W. M. Stiles and W. B. Clark for their attention to the comfort of the brethren and visitors. Amongst those present were Bros. W. A. Cornock 1216, S. Millis P.M. 157, Yeates 957, H. Lewis 1426, Walton 157, Merrington 890, Hamburger 1366, Snelling 180, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Hunt, J. N. Rogers, S. K. Knaggs, T. C. Walls, F. N. Kent, H. Tagg, J. W. Hiscock, J. Chilcott. Messrs. Gavarron, Donald and Day were initiated into the mysteries of the Order. Two brothers on the list for passing and raising respectively not being in attendance the W.M. proceeded with the further business of the evening. This consisted of the election of the W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. Hurst J.W. was duly elected W.M., and Bro. Raw having resigned the office of Treasurer, Bro. Hopwood was unanimously elected in his stead. On the motion of the I.P.M., seconded by the J.D., a P.M.'s jewel was voted to the retiring W.M. The labours of the evening being ended, the Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the brethren separated, after having spent an enjoyable evening.

Macdonald, Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction, was present as a visitor.

THE ROYAL ORIENTAL ORDER OF SIKHA AND THE SÄL B'HAI.

THIS ancient Indian Order, being now fully established in the West, is daily gaining strength amongst influential brethren, and the return of H.R.H. the M.W.G.M. the Prince of Wales from India is about to be celebrated by a Grand Asyana or assembly of the Order in the metropolis. Before His Royal Highness quitted his native land, on his perilous journey, he was graciously pleased to accept a Sasana or Mandate at the hands of the authorities of the Order, and proposed to satisfy himself of the legitimacy of the claims of the Order to Masonic support in this country. We have every reason to believe that nothing has taken place to shake the confidence of the M.W.G.M. in the statements made to him by the chiefs, and, in consequence, preparations are being made to fittingly commemorate this signal and important visit of conciliation to that vast and splendid empire. It may be added that during several years past minor Asayani have been held in various parts of England. The object of the Order is to maintain the principles of pure Craft Masonry intact, as well as to strengthen every tie between the truly educated Brahmans, whose system of Masonry is very ancient, and the Masons of England and other parts of the British dominions. This announcement will no doubt be received with gratification by our brethren throughout the world.

PROVINCAL GRAND LODGE OF LANARKSHIRE, MIDDLE WARD.

CONSECRATION OF TWO NEW LODGES.

IT is not often that a Provincial Grand Master can boast of having two fresh Lodges started in his Province in one week. But Bro. Merry's Deputy had the honour of consecrating two lately. On the 9th inst. the brethren assembled at Latters Hall, Uddingstone, to consecrate No. 579, to be called St. Brydes, Uddingstone. The P.G.L. was opened by Bro. J. C. Forrest Deputy P.G.M., C. Spalding P.G.S.W., A. Ramsay P.G.J.W., A. King P.G.T., J. Nesbit P.G. Sec., Rev. W. D. Brown Chaplain, W. Forrest B.B., Wm. McMurdo P.G.D.C., W. Dunlop P.G.S.D., C. Nelson and D. Wright P.G. Tylers. The ceremony of consecration, in accordance with the Constitutions, was fully performed by Bro. Forrest. The P.G. Chaplain, who is only a young Mason, on this occasion delivered his first oration, in a manner that convinced all present that the Order had obtained a valuable acquisition in obtaining his services. In the course of his discourse he alluded to its alleged Secrecy; the only secrecy was the tie by which we were bound, and recognised each other. All our doings as a society were patent to the world as those of any society or body of men in existance. In secrecy were produced the germs from which arose our glorious constitution, under which we enjoy more liberty than any other nation on earth. Every family, every firm has its secrets, cabinets have their admirals sail with secret orders. Why then should Masonry be discredited because it also has its secrets, only to be revealed at the proper time to proper parties? It has a mission to perform, were it not so I would be the first to give it decent and honourable burial. But the fact that we are here, consecrating a new Lodge, proves that we have much work yet to do. I will now speak of our objects, these are 1st Charity—in proof of this the Rev. gentleman quoted what the three great English institutions were doing. 2nd. Its universality, binding all men together in one common brotherhood for the furtherance of charity. 3rd. It is an handmaid to religion, taking the rough material of the mind and breaking off its protuberances, smooths the surface and raises it to a higher level more easily reached by religion and rendering them more susceptible of its benign influence; these were some of the reasons why, as a Minister of the Gospel, he was glad to be present and lend his aid in this consecration of a new temple for Masonry. At the conclusion of the consecration a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. Wm. McMurdo duly installed Bro. W. J. Easton as the first R.W.M. of 579, as well as M. Flowers of 36, M. Malcolm of 88, and R. McInnes of 203, all R.W.M.'s of their respective Lodges. He afterwards invested the following brethren as the Officers: Bros. Walker S.M., Halkel S.W., Baird J.W., Short Treas., Crawford Secretary, Walker S.D., Robertson J.D., Bryden S.S., Watson J.S., Ruddock I.G., and Rae Tyler. Deputations from the following Lodges were present: No. 0, 3½, 7, 31, 73, 88, 102, 203, 215, 235, 305, 406 and 351. Refreshment having been served to the brethren, after the usual loyal and Masonic toasts Bro. Forrest D.P.G.M., in a neat speech proposed prosperity to St. Brydes. The new Master appropriately acknowledged the same. He then gave the Visitors, most of whom then left to return by train.

On Friday, the 10th March, the Provincial Lodge was again opened at Motherwell, with the same office bearers, except the Chaplain, for the purpose of consecrating Lodge No. 573, Livingstone, St. Andrews, Bro. J. C. Forrest, Deputy P.G.M., again officiating as Consecrating Officer. Bro. Wm. McMurdo I.P.M. 305, P.G.D.C., delivered an excellent oration, in the course of which he considered the helpless state of man by nature alone, solitary, unaided, powerless even to the very idea of good by himself, he wants not only the vigour and strength to do great deeds, but fails in the very desire to do them unless assisted in his labour by his fellow men. Instinctively, therefore, he flies to the protection of society, which is erroneously created, not by the wisdom, but by the necessity for association, for assistance and protection. It is thus we find in the world's history—of empires and dynasties, of religions and politics springing up, and showing us men engaging in associations for particular objects, not necessarily connected with the great career of natural progress. It is to this great instinct that we owe the birth of Freemasonry, which is one of the grandest exponents of the great principle of social and moral association. It is a development noble in intention, but still nobler in its results. An association of good men, united for the accomplishment of one common object, or rather of many noble objects; but time will only permit me to name one, Charity, not only almsgiving, but the Charity that thinketh no evil. We have here to-night another illustration of this instinctive principle of association. The brethren who now form the Lodge of Livingstone, St. Andrews, found that alone, isolated, every one going withersoever he would without a centre to rally round and radiate from, they were little more than nonentities in the Masonic world. But from this day forth a new impetus will be given to their Masonic life. They have become united, and their adversaries will find how hard it is to break the threefold cord that binds the brotherhood together. Let them take care to further within themselves this union, to cement it with good feeling and brotherly love, and then not only the Lodge, but the town of Motherwell will have reason to be proud of this day's work. (Cheers.) A profuse as well as really good banquet had been provided by Bro. McNaughten, in whose hall they were assembled, but the P.G. Officers were unable to remain, and after the P.G.M. had wished them all prosperity, and the Master had acknowledged the same, they left; the remainder of the guests, as well as the members, did ample justice to the fare, after which the assembly commenced, and dancing was kept up with great spirit till four o'clock in the morning, all saying that St. Andrew had started with the best augury of success.

EGYPTIAN CHRONOLOGY.—We cannot doubt that the contemporaneity asserted, more or less, by all the Egyptologers except M. Mariette, is an established fact; but the extent to which it pervades Manetho's lists is, we admit, a matter of much uncertainty. Hitherto we have seen no disproof of the views taken by Mr. Stuart Poole and Sir G. Wilkinson, according to which—Manetho's dynastic numbers being accepted—the date of Menes is brought down to about B.C. 2700. But we do not regard this date as in any sense established. There may have been more contemporaneity than even Mr. Poole and Sir G. Wilkinson suspect; and Manetho's dynastic numbers we regard as wholly uncertain. They are frequently wrong where we can test them, and they are evidently arrived at (as a general rule) by a mere addition of the numbers of the regnal years assigned to the several kings. But as association was largely practised in Egypt, such a mode of reckoning the years of a dynasty would be certain to produce a result greatly in excess of the truth. And further, we very much doubt whether Manetho, with the best intentions, had any materials for reconstructing the chronology of the Old or Middle Empires. The Shepherd conquest of Egypt threw everything into confusion, produced a complete shipwreck of Egyptian literature and civilisation. The length of the Shepherd domination was unknown when Egypt, under the eighteenth dynasty, recovered itself, and was variously estimated at 260, 350, 511, and 953 years. In reality, Egyptian chronology only begins with the accession of the eighteenth dynasty, and even then is far from exact, the best critics varying in their dates for this event by nearly 200 years. We should be inclined to place it about B.C. 1500, or a little earlier. If the Shepherd period lasted about two centuries and a half, which is the view of Canon Cook, the Old Empire would have come to an end about B.C. 1750. That there was such an empire is, we think, clearly established; and we have no doubt that the pyramids and various tombs now existing belonged to it. But its duration can only be guessed. We should be inclined, on the whole, to allow it from 500 to 700 years. The establishment of a settled monarchy in Egypt, and with it of civilisation, would then fall between B.C. 2450 and B.C. 2250. This view appears to us to be more in accordance than any other with the general facts of Oriental history and chronology. Its compatibility with the chronology of the Bible will be evident, if it be borne in mind that, according to the Septuagint version the date of the deluge was certainly anterior to B.C. 3000.—Canon Rawlinson in the "Leisure Hour."

ABUSE OF FREEMASONRY.

WE revert to the subject we dealt with under this title in our issue of the 18th ult. We then noticed an attack on Freemasonry, made in the columns of a Belfast journal, by one who was described, in a somewhat elaborate editorial, as "a valued and honourable correspondent." We did not, of course, doubt the said correspondent's value, nor did we for a moment question his being honourable. We pointed out, however, that the series of articles he was then entering upon were likely to prove a very perfect illustration of the class of writing which is commonly known as "twaddle." We even went a little out of our way, and mentioned the only people who, in our opinion, would be likely to appreciate the writer's peculiar style. Since then we have received copies of The Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer for the 18th and 25th ult., and the letters they contain from the pen of this ready writer more than confirm the views we gave utterance to a fortnight since.

It will be argued, perhaps, and not without a certain show of reason, that if the letters are of the character we have described, we are honouring them by a second notice, beyond their deserts. We hinted, however, that nervous people are often disconcerted by a false charge again and again repeated. The views they have long held become more and more unsettled, till, at length, reason is overpowered by sheer impudence. This must be our apology for reverting to this attack—this and the evidence the writer has since furnished of his ignorance and profound stupidity.

This "valued and honourable correspondent," who, we are further told in his opening letter, is "talented and respected," announced, with becoming modesty, "that he was tolerant to a fault," yet he is abusive in the last degree. He is "charitable in the fullest and best sense of the word," yet apparently is he nothing if not vindictive. He knows "no distinction of sect or party," yet his best efforts are being directed towards exciting hatred between the Roman Catholic and Protestant inhabitants of Belfast. But the simulation of our antagonist is comparatively of little moment; it is his assertions which concern us most. In the third of the series of letters we are told, that in all probability "there is a great future before our trade." The war in Spain is over. Cuba will soon be pacified. The United States are slowly but surely recovering from the effects of the late Civil war, and the American trade of Ulster "will soon know lively times." There is, again, a magnificent opening for pushing Belfast wares in Japan. Foreign competition, however, is the great thorn in the side of Belfast. Not that foreign competitors have any means or material at their disposal. On the contrary, "foreign flax spinning is not spinning." "Foreign yarns are not yarns." Foreign flax spinners "work their machinery till it is decrepid." "They dwarf and demoralise the workers," and "buy their flax from ten to twenty per cent. dearer." And yet, in the teeth of all these disadvantages, foreign linen finds an excellent market in Belfast. We have already said we are not posted in the fluctuations of trade in Belfast or elsewhere. We are not in a position therefore to examine these statements. We simply note them. And what, think our readers, is the root of all this evil? The flax trade is in the hands of the Protestants, and the Protestants are all Freemasons. Freemasonry "does what it likes with the trade." "It is the corruption and cancer which are consuming the very vitals of the trade." "For a dozen years or more you (i.e., Freemasonry) have held the trade in your viper clasp, and now you have it as nearly strangled as it was when the incompetents, your forerunners, had it almost garroted (sic) in '38." Here we pause for a moment, partly in order to recover our equanimity, partly to trace the argument, which is apparently as follows:—The Belfast linen trade is in a bad way, but has a fine future before it, only foreign competition is a thorn in its side. Foreign linen is worthless, yet it finds a market in Belfast in preference to the linen of native manufacturers, because the Belfast manufacturers are Protestants, and the Protestants are Freemasons. Ergo, Freemasonry has ruined the trade of Belfast. We cannot say we by any means see the force of this so-called argument. We imagine there must be an "undistributed middle" somewhere, that the major and minor premisses, if there be any, must have gone off at a tangent, and consequently that the conclusion is a little out of joint. This, however, is all we have been able to make out of the first two columns of the third letter. The Belfast trade is in a bad way. It might be better. But the manufacturers are all Protestants, and the Protestants all Freemasons. Verily this is logic gone mad. But there is more yet to come. The higher mill employés are Protestants, and soon become Freemasons and Orangemen. Thus "they are a happy family of mill employés, all of one caste and colour, all moulded in the one matrix—the matrix of Freemasonry; all reduced to the one dull, dead, soulless level of debased Freemason uniformity." True they were born with certain individualities, but "in the crucible of Freemasonry the heterogeneous individualities are fused into a homogeneous whole." This last sentence reads very prettily. "Freemasonry is the Rarey which tames them all down to the Lodge level." They are loyal, in the first instance, to the Lodge, and then any superfluous loyalty that may remain is exhibited towards the mill and its master. This is Masonic Trades Unionism. It excludes Catholics that "the Lodge may reign aristocratically." And the mill employé may do as he likes. He may go out on a "bender" in the evening, and the overseer—we beg pardon, the "surveillant—will take no heed of his incapacity for work the next day. He need not, or he does not, study the moral economy of flax-growing countries, or the geogrsphical distribution of flax. He has no time, in fact. He must attend his Freemason and Orange lodges. He must frequent bars, chaff barmaids, play billiards, and go in for bicycling, hundred-yards sparts, betting, and other weaknesses of human nature. Moreover, he draws his salary without study, and even without work. Thus it is the flax-trade is depressed, and foreign competitors have it all their own in the market of Belfast." So, at least, says our "talented and respected correspondent" of The Weekly Examiner and Ulster Observer in his third letter, and he is an "honourable" man.

Our amiable correspondent in his fourth letter is not more illogical, for that were impossible, but he is a wee bit more violent in the language he uses. This perhaps is due to his exaltation, in the interval between writing the two letters, to the degree of R.A.M., for he is at the pains to introduce us to the "Royal Arch Confraternity." But, as "whoso exalteth himself shall be abased," we have hardly had time to realise the new status when we rapidly descend below the level of the drunkard. "An incurable drunkard is not an efficient employé. But a hardened, confirmed, inveterate Freemason is worse." The drunkard is "said to be 'nobody's enemy but his own.'" But the Freemason "is the friend of his brother of the craft, and of none other." It will be seen that we are advancing in our argument—slowly, it is true. Yet is it a comfort to know that we are advancing, and, accordingly, we pause for a moment to sum up the case as it now stands. Belfast trade is in a bad way. It may be better if foreign competition will cease to be a thorn in its side. Foreign linen is worthless, but it finds a market in Belfast, because the Belfast manufacturers are Protestants and Freemasons. The mill employés are Protestant Freemason Orangemen, who play billiards, chaff barmaids, get drunk, &c., &c., to the exclusion of study and often also of work. Though members of the Royal Arch Confraternity, they are worse than incurable drunkards. Thus it is that Freemasonry is ruining the Belfast linen trade. We ought to be getting a little nervous at finding ourselves below the level of incurable drunkards, but, strange to say, we feel quite lively. The damnation—(N.B. We are not swearing)—of Freemasonry by this "talented and respected" correspondent is producing quite an exhilarating effect. And thus animated, we plunge incontinently into his fifth letter. Happily, our summary of it need be but brief. The writer begins by lamenting the hard fate of Belfast Catholics, who are excluded from all employment in mills, and have only the arts, the professions, the Civil Service, to fall back upon. For this, by some wonderful hanky-panky we do not pretend to understand, Freemasonry is made responsible. "God knows the struggle for existence with many Catholic families is often sore, hard, trying; when to that is added the penalties and disabilities which Freemasonry imposes on them it becomes almost intolerable, almost unendurable." Intolerable and unendurable have much the same meaning, but when a man is writing for effect the multiplication of adjectives often stands in good stead. Then follows a picture of the striking contrast between the flax trade as it was in the good old days and as it is under the domination of Freemasonry. Before the American civil war the Catholic flax trade flourished. When that struggle began it gave a great impetus to the linen trade, and the Protestant Freemason Orangemen started new mills, and we presume we are to infer they have continued ever since to work with such a will that now, it seems, they have the whole linen trade in their hands. Then came the riots of 1864, which "was another of the break-necks of the Catholic employés." Since then the P.F.O. brotherhood have gone from bad to worse, and have ended by usurping the despotic regulation of the trade in general. And then the writer asks, "And what has this weakly-strong, strongly-weak despotism done for the trade? It has led it from blunder to blunder, from disaster to disaster. And what has it done for the mills it directs? The share list will tell that. It has filled every post in its gift with incompetency like itself." Then follows a sentence which we are sorry to say we do not understand. This may be owing to a certain native dulness on our part, or to the obscurity of the writer's language. Whatever the cause, we simply quote it; our readers must interpret for themselves. "Being incompetent, it knows not what is competent, and if what was competent came across it, it would clash with its incompetency, and to differ from the despot means decapitation—otherwise discharge. If these men had any moral sense they would go and commit 'happy despatch.'" We frankly admit this sentence is worthy in every respect of the "talented and respected correspondent" whose fifth letter appears in The Ulster Observer and Northern Star.

It is a great pity this "talented and respected," this "valued and honourable" correspondent of the Belfast journals should have written so much to so little purpose. The gist of his so-called argument appears to be—Before the American war the flax trade was in the hands of the Catholics, and Belfast flourished. Since then Protestantism has established a despotism over the trade of Belfast, and everything has gone or is going to the bad. Protestants are Freemasons, and thus it is that Freemasonry is the root of the whole evil. We need hardly trouble ourselves to analyze this miserable abortion of an argument. There are other places in the world besides Belfast where Freemasonry largely prevails, and trade flourishes. If it is to be permitted to this correspondent to associate the depression of trade in Belfast with the baneful influence of Freemasonry, we may fairly connect the prosperity of trade in other places with the benign influence of our Order. In the United States there are over half a million of Masons, and we have yet to learn that the United States are unprosperous. Masonry is powerful both in England and Scotland, in Germany and in France, but we never yet heard it associated with the fluctuations of trade. It is true that trade exercises a certain influence for good or for evil over Freemasonry, in this respect at least—if trade is prosperous, the large body of tradesmen who are Freemasons get their share of the prosperity; if trade is depressed, the Freemason tradesmen suffer in proportion. But the principles of Freemasonry have nothing in common with trade. Freemasonry is a kind of universal religion, and whoso believes in it and acts up to its principles will make an upright man and a good citizen. This our correspondent, if he be a Mason, must know; if he is not a Mason, this long-winded tirade of his is worthless.

As we said in our previous article, why has not this valued and honourable correspondent the manliness to come forward and say boldly—I am a Roman Catholic; the Romish priesthood tell me to hate Freemasonry, and I hate it accordingly. This would not be a logical hatred, or consistent with the true principles of Christianity, which is the religion of love, but the world would understand all about it. That this is the real motive for his attack on our Order is evident enough. He may say that he is tolerant to a fault, that he is charitable, that he knows no distinction of sect or party. But those who read between the lines will see that it is the deadly hatred of Roman Catholicism for Freemasonry which is at the bottom of this furious onslaught. If the writer is wise, as well as talented and respected, he will pull up sharp and write no more nonsense. The more he writes the more ridiculous he makes himself. For ourselves, we may fairly pray, "Oh that mine enemy would write a book!" The more we have of these letters the higher shall we rise in the estimation of the public. Therefore, if the five that have already appeared become fifty, or even five hundred, so much the better will it be for Freemasonry. Whether the readers of these two Belfast journals will rejoice in this rigmarole if it be continued much longer is a matter that concerns us not.

MASONIC PORTRAITS (No. 22).

BAYARD.

"Good morrow to thee; welcome:
Thou look'st like him that knows a warlike charge:
To business that we love we rise betime,
And go to 't with delight."

THE Grand Lodge of Ireland differs from our own, inasmuch as what are known as the "High Grades" there form a regular hierarchy above the Craft. The degree of Mark Master is, in the sister isle, a necessary preliminary to that of the Royal Arch, after which, in turn, follow the degrees of Knight of the Sword, Knight of the East and West, Knight Templar, and Knight of Malta. Higher still is the grade of Prince Rose Croix, and the whole Order is administered by Councils of the 30°, 31°, 32° and 33°, at the head of the last being the Grand Master. The higher the degree, the more select it is and difficult of access. Very few Irish Masons can attain the rank of Prince Rose Croix, and only on showing proofs of special qualifications. This aristocratic government, if we may so style it, has in no way prejudiced the cause of Masonry on the other side of St. George's Channel, indeed the Order is very popular with the protestant minority, and very large numbers of the lower as well as the upper middle class are enrolled in it. In England it is rare to find a person in humble circumstances a member of the fraternity, but in Ireland, at all events in the north, many members of the working classes are brothers, and the Craft Lodges, if they lack splendour, are not wanting either in enthusiasm or Masonic lore.

The subject of our sketch, who first filled the Master's chair under this aristocratic constitution, is, we need scarcely say, a soldier, who has seen hard and active service. He was one of that gallant band of heroes who suffered, bled and conquered in the Crimea. It was not his fate, however, to follow his regiment through all the dangers and trials of that memorable campaign. At the battle of the Alma he was struck down by a Russian bullet, and his wound was so severe that he was invalided home. During the weary period of convalescence he was attracted by Freemasonry, which has ever had a peculiar charm for men of intellectual and speculative bent. He was raised in the St. George's Lodge, at Liverpool, in 1855, and on joining Lodge 311, under the Irish Constitution, at Templemore, was soon elected W.M. This Lodge was in a somewhat languishing condition, but the energy imparted into it by the new member helped to raise it in a short time to a high standard of excellence. His services were gracefully acknowledged by the presentation of a valuable ring "as an inadequate testimonial of his great zeal and ability." On the same occasion the brethren presented his wife with a valuable gem, as an acknowledgment of her great courtesy and hospitality towards them. Subsequently he was advanced to the Mark and R.A. degrees, in Chapter No. 13, at Limerick, and through the intervening grades to that of Knight Templar and St. John of Jerusalem in the Encampment (No. 13), in the year 1858. Provincial offices in Ireland being of a permanent character, and not as in this country of annual tenure, it will be seen that his appointment to office in North Munster must have been the result of unusual ability and zeal. He became, moreover, first Principal of the Triune Chapter and Commander of the Triune Encampment at Limerick in 1858, dignities which were rapidly followed by his admission to the degree of Prince Mason of Ireland.
