Freemason's Chronicle;

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

VOL. IV.—No. 79. SATURDAY, 1st JULY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

OUR FOURTH VOLUME.

AT the commencement of our fourth volume it behoves us once more to survey our position, to review the ground we have traversed, and to consider in what respects our past experience may afford us guidance and help in the future. The half-year just closed has been a period of almost universal depression in trade, and newspapers, in common with every other description of property, have suffered ill effects from the prevailing dearth of enterprise. Remembering this, we cannot but feel gratified and encouraged by the fact that, during the whole of this eminently dull season, our circulation has steadily continued to increase, and that at the present moment the popularity and repute of this journal stand at the highest point they have yet attained. We could wish that our progress were more rapid, cela va sans dire, but we have still the great satisfaction of knowing that, if slow, it is at least unceasing. As we glance through the goodly list of Lodges in the three kingdoms, we feel, at times, that there must be a large number of members of the Craft who, if they did but know the strong efforts we were making to maintain this journal at the high standard we have chosen for it, to uphold before the world a worthy representative of the aims, principles and sympathies of the fraternity, would gladly come forward and assist in the good work. To such as these, and we are sure their name is legion, we offer the hand of fellowship, and cordially invite their sympathy and co-operation in carrying the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE to a still higher stage of excellence than it has yet reached, so that it may in time become what the organ of the English Freemasons should be,—the acknowledged leader of the Masonic press throughout the world.

During the past half year we have continued, with what success we will leave it to our readers to declare, the series of Masonic Sketches commenced in the preceding volume. Suffice it for us to say that they have afforded gratification to the personal friends of the distinguished Masons whom our artist has portrayed, and occasioned some degree of interest among the still larger circle of their acquaintances. Where criticism has been administered, it has been dealt out with a gentle hand, and if a little good-natured banter has at times been introduced, we have reason to know that this has not been unkindly taken by the subjects of the sketches. In one instance we may mention the name with which our artist dubbed his hero may be expected to hold a place in Masonic annals. The sketch of "Bayard," published in our impression of the 1st of April last, has given the title to a new Lodge, "Bayard, No. 1615," which was consecrated on the 17th of May, the original of the sketch being himself present on the occasion.

With regard to the future, we may state that it is our intention to publish a series of articles upon the History of the most celebrated Lodges, tracing their antecedents from the dates of their foundation down to the present time. The facts which will be required to make this series really valuable, will be supplied from the archives of the various Lodges, and we need hardly say that no pains shall be wanting on our part in preparing and presenting them to our readers. In all other respects it will be our endeavour to make good the ground we have gained, and to extend the usefulness of the CHRONICLE by the introduction from time to time of new and attractive features. We wish it to be understood that our prime object is to benefit the Craft, by extending the means of intercommunication amongst members of the fraternity, and by upholding before the world the standard of our Order. Any hints or suggestions therefore that are calculated to conduce to this object, we will at all times gladly receive. To the many brother Craftsmen who have aided us in this way hitherto, we tender our sincere thanks. And with a loyal and lofty purpose, with energies undaunted and faith unimpaired, we look forward in hope and confidence to the completion of our Fourth Volume.

LORD LEIGH'S CRITICISM OF OURSELVES.

IN the early part of this year, or to be more precise, two or three weeks after the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, we published an article headed "The Subscriptions at the Recent Festival." In it we stated its purpose to be "to show our readers not only what was done on that occasion, but also where brethren of energy may find fields open to them in their zealous promotion of the cause of charity." A long and careful analysis of the (then) recent subscription list formed the bulk of the article, and in noting the Lodges and Provinces which had not contributed, occurs the following passage: "But Warwickshire, which includes the wealthy and important town of Birmingham, sends nothing. Birmingham, the centre of the hardware trade, with 14 Lodges, is wholly unrepresented this year, and only one of these 14 (Lodge No. 925) contributed, last year, the sum of £35." A few sentences further on was the following remark, "while Birmingham raised only a paltry sum towards the service of Masonic charity." A fortnight after this leader appeared, we published a letter from "P.M. 468"—No. 468 being a Birmingham Lodge—in which he took us somewhat severely to task for the general tone of our article, but especially for the seemingly disparaging remarks we have quoted above. We rejoined with a second leader, in which we endeavoured to point out that we had studiously sought to avoid giving offence to any Craftsman; that our remarks were intended to be general, and that we had only specified particular Lodges or Provinces where such specification was unavoidable. We stated further that our purpose had not been to establish any invidious comparisons between this and that Province or Lodge, or to hold up any one of either to the reproach of our brother Masons, but simply to point out where brethren of energy might find new opportunities for exercising their zeal in the cause of Masonic charity. We said also that we had striven to account in every possible way for the absence from the list of sundry Provinces. Staffordshire, for instance, we noted had done well the year before; so had Lincolnshire. Some, again, we suggested, had supported our other Institutions, and in the case of others there were local charitable Institutions which required and received assistance from the local Craftsmen. We added, however, that Birmingham, as one of the most populous and wealthiest towns in England, should under no circumstances be absent from any subscription list. There the matter rested till the Festival of the Boys' School on Wednesday, when Lord Leigh, the respected Grand Master of Warwickshire, in proposing, as Chairman of the Festival, the toast of Prosperity to the Boys' School, referred, towards the end of his speech, in very pointed terms, to the criticisms we had passed in February last. His lordship did not, it is true, mention this journal by name, but there can be no question it was the CHRONICLE for which his remarks were meant. We have no intention of entering into any controversy, but a few words of explanation seem called for, on the assumption at least that his lordship referred to us.

We deeply regret that any comments of ours should have given pain to any brethren in the province over which Lord Leigh has so long and so ably presided. He will pardon us, however, for doubting if either he or our former critic, "P.M. 468," can have been at the pains of reviewing our article as a whole. Exception is taken to certain passages, but these must not be considered separately from the leader in which they occur. We were anxious to impress on our readers that the support accorded to our Masonic Institutions should be general, not sectional. Others have again and again enunciated the same doctrine long before this journal came into being; there was nothing novel, therefore, in our proposition. In the course of our analysis it was inevitable we should particularise certain sections as having either contributed or not contributed. We had previously, however, taken, as we thought, every possible precaution, so that our object in making the analysis might not be misinterpreted. We had no desire to make—it was, indeed, our duty to avoid making—any invidious comparison between this and that Lodge, or Province. We suggested every reason that occurred to us at the time, why certain of the Provinces might not have contributed on that particular occasion. Yet, in spite of precautions and suggestions, the propriety of our remarks is now for the second time publicly questioned, and on this occasion by one of the foremost members of the Craft, at one of our three annual Festivals. We are sorry this should have been done, but, as we have already hinted, we do not think our second any more than our first critic has fairly studied our remarks, and if so, his criticism is certainly premature. Lord Leigh complained that the writer of the article—we assume he meant the journal in which the article appeared—had instituted a comparison between the subscriptions received from West Lancashire and those received from the other provinces and London. As a matter of fact, the article contains no such comparison. The subscriptions were taken under three heads—London, Provinces, and Abroad. Not a word, however, was said about a comparison between London, provincial, and foreign subscriptions, nor is there anything to justify the idea that any such comparison was intended, As to the provinces, they were dealt with in two categories, in alphabetical order. First were mentioned those which did not figure in the list; then came those which contributed. On reaching West Lancashire we remarked—"West Lancashire, with 69 Lodges, grandly supported Lord Skelmersdale, its Grand Master, to the magnificent extent of £1,508 10s"—the plain statement of a fact. Every one expected West Lancashire would support Lord Skelmersdale, West Lancashire did support him, and we noted the fact, in order to explain why it was the other contributing provinces showed to less advantage, Lord Skelmersdale being the chairman of the Festival. Other remarks follow. The absence of the Manchester Lodges is noted and regretted. The smallness of the Lincolnshire contributions is sought to be explained, and so, too, is the absence of Staffordshire from the list. Then follow our remarks, already quoted, about Warwickshire and Birmingham. To the latter, as to Manchester, we gave what our first critic, "P.M. 468," called, "the conspicuousness of italics." We justify this, as we do the following announcement: Warwickshire, with 26 Lodges, "grandly supported" Lord Leigh, its Grand Master, to the magnificent extent of—in round figures—£2,000, at the Festival held three days since.

However, we are not now, nor were we then, instituting any comparison, either favourable or unfavourable, as between Warwickshire and other provinces. We made our analysis at the time, for a sufficient reason, distinctly and clearly laid down. We made, as we imagined, the needful provision against any misinterpretation of our reason. In spite of this, both "P.M. 468," and Lord Leigh will have it—we say it with all deference—they know better than ourselves what it is we have done, and why we did it. We must ask our critics to judge us by our articles as we, not they, interpret them.

We are aware that when Lord Leigh presided some years since he was loyally supported by his province then, as now. We know, too, the service of Masonic charity generally is not neglected in Warwickshire, though, we honestly confess, we are not as well posted in the details as "P.M. 468" and Warwickshire Craftsmen are likely to be. We cannot call to mind exactly when it was that we first learned that Lord Leigh would preside at the Boys' Festival just passed. We are not usually behindhand in the matter of news, and this reached us at an early date, as early as it did any other journal. We cannot say when it was we first heard of Warwickshire stewards working hard for the Festival of Wednesday. Lord Leigh must be easily satisfied if, with no knowledge whatever of us personally, he is aware of our ignorance of certain points he enumerates. We have, however, neither time nor space to dwell further on his lordship's remarks. We have no objection to criticism, but we have a decided objection to our articles being described as other than they are, that is, as conveying a meaning they were never intended to bear. We have already explained why the article was written. We have once before disclaimed emphatically other reasons attributed to us, and we have just grounds for complaint that, in spite of our disclaimer, the reasons we object to are still thrust upon us. We may have occasion to refer to the subject again; for the moment let it suffice that Lord Leigh's idea of the article is not in strict accordance with the article itself.

HISTORIES OF OUR LODGES.

WE have received permission to publish from time to time the particulars which are obtained of the History of the various Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, some of which we fully expect will prove specially instructive, and reveal the presence in English Freemasonry of very many distinguished men. The story of the formation, early career, vicissitudes and position of Lodges cannot but be interesting to every student of social movements which have had important bearings upon our national history, and have strongly tinged our national life. We commence, this week, by narrating the career of the LODGE OF FRIENDSHIP, GREAT YARMOUTH.

On March 23rd 1757 a Warrant was issued by the Grand Lodge of England for a Lodge to be held at the Dove, in the parish of St. Lawrence, Norwich, under the No. 223. This document was unfortunately lost, and no records are forthcoming until 16th September 1823, when a Warrant of Confirmation was issued to "our right trusty and well beloved brethren Henry Davy, William Downing, William Coldham, John Browne, Henry Ransome, George Tompson, John Lacoobee and others, by H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex G.M., countersigned by Sir John Doyle D.G.M., W. H. White and E. Harper Grand Secs., to continue the Lodge at the Pope's Head Inn, St. Peter's, Mancroft, Norwich; it is therein recorded that, by the alteration in 1770, the Lodge became No. 182, in the year 1781 No. 148, in 1792 No. 133, and at the Union of 1813 No. 159. To this, we are now enabled to add, that it shortly became No. 117, and removed to the Bear Hotel, Great Yarmouth, whence in 1850 it migrated to the St. George's Tavern, thence in 1853 to the Duke's Head, and finally in 1860 to the Crown and Anchor Hotel in the same town, where it still meets. In 1862, upon the last alteration of Lodge numbers, it received its present number, 100, on the register.

In the year 1853 it consisted of only 22 members, and some difficulty being experienced in forming a Lodge, several brethren of Lodge "United Friends" (then No. 392, now 313) of the same town, volunteered to join and Officer No. 117; this proposal was cordially accepted, and the Lodge of Friendship has since that time pursued a uniform career of increasing usefulness and prosperity, averaging 30 members up to 1864, with an annual increment of about 6 per annum since.

Its appreciation of zeal, ability, and urbanity has been evinced by the presentation of a handsome gold P.M. jewel to Bro. Oswald Diver in 1861, of a silver salver to Bro. William Wright (Secretary from 1861 to 1874) in 1874, of a gold watch and chain to Bro. C. L. Chipperfield in 1870, and of a P.M. jewel to Bro. James Bond in 1876. To the Masonic Boys' School the Lodge has contributed of late years the sum of 27 guineas, to the Girls' School 22 guineas, and to the R. M. Benevolent Institution 6 guineas. Its present Officers are Bros. E. J. Bonfellow W.M., Richard Martins S.W., R. W. Hubbard J.W., O. Diver P.M. Treasurer, and D. R. Fowler Secretary. We notice that ten of its P.M.'s have been honoured with Provincial rank, and that Bro. Rev. James Mangan, D.D., LL.D., P.G. Deacon of Norths and Hunts, a Past Grand Officer of Ireland, has joined its ranks this year.

The foregoing particulars have been furnished by the fraternal kindness and public spirit of W. Bro. James Bond, who adds the following interesting note:—"In a building situate in St. George's Row (West), Great Yarmouth, which has not been used for Masonic purposes for upwards of 30 years, is a mural tablet, inscribed:—"A.L. 5828.—W. T. Coke, Esq., M.P., Provincial Grand Master, Norfolk.—This Hall, erected by the Brethren of the United Friends, No. 585, was dedicated to Masonry, Dec. 29th 1824, by J. Ives, Esq., M.A., F.R.S., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Richard Ferrier W.M., Joseph Harper S.W., James Sayers J.W.

It cannot but be a subject of regret to the Lodges in Yarmouth that circumstances should not have allowed this Hall, specially erected for the performance of our mystic rites, to remain dedicated to the purpose for which it was originally intended.

FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE Seventy-Eighth Anniversary Festival of this Institution was held on Wednesday last, at the Alexandra Palace, Wood Green, and was very numerously attended, a fair proportion of those present being ladies. The Right Hon. Lord Leigh, R.W. Provincial Grand Master for Warwickshire occupied the chair. After Grace, the toasts were proceeded with. Lord Leigh in proposing that of Her Majesty the Queen, Patron of the Institution, said he was sure no words were necessary to call forth a hearty response to this toast. Her Majesty had reigned over us for 39 years, and this was the anniversary of her coronation day. He asked them to drink to her not only as Queen of England, but also as the Patron of this Institution. He was pleased to see so many ladies present, and hoped they would join in drinking the health of the best sovereign that ever ruled over us; may she long live in the regard of her subjects! After the National Anthem, the Chairman proposed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, President of the Institution, and hoped he would long continue as our Grand Master. We must rejoice at the success of his Indian tour, and his safe return therefrom; it has done a great deal to secure the good feeling that exists with our Indian Princes. The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M., Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M., and the Grand Officers, was the next toast. Lord Leigh said, that with an experience of 25 years, he had never attended so successful a meeting as the present one; we must acknowledge that success is due to the heads of the Order. Never has Freemasonry stood higher than it does at present. The Prov. G.M. for Middlesex is a brother esteemed throughout the country, and he hoped that so important a province as the one over which he presides would long have such a Mason at its head. Colonel Burdett in replying said, it was with extreme pleasure he returned thanks for the toast of the Grand Officers, which had just been so heartily received. We all consider our officers a credit, and never have we had more efficient ones than at present. He might dilate at considerable length, but thought all were acquainted with their merits. It gave him the greatest pleasure to propose a toast which he was sure would be acceptable to all. It was not the first time the present chairman had filled the position he now occupied. The province of Warwickshire holds up its head in a most wonderful manner, and has always supported our Institutions nobly. He expressed his pleasure at seeing such a meeting of ladies as well as brethren, and gave the health of the noble Chairman. Lord Leigh in reply said, he felt most sincerely and gratefully the compliment paid him, and thanked Bro. Burdett for the flattering way in which he proposed the toast; he considered it a great honour and a pleasure to preside at the 78th Festival of the Institution; he felt satisfied that the ladies who were present felt a great interest in the School, and he thought he might address them as sisters. He then proposed, Prosperity to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and pointed out the progress the Institution had made. 78 years ago, he said, there were 6 boys, and now we have 186; upwards of 1,300 boys have been educated, clothed and maintained from the subscriptions of the Craft. They were not now placed out in various schools as formerly, but were accomodated in a building which was the freehold of the Freemasons. The debt on the building had been paid off, and lately a detached house had been bought, to serve as an hospital. He then referred to the position the boys held after leaving the school, and also at the examinations, and remarked that he was pleased to say a Warwickshire boy stood first at the local Cambridge Examination; great credit was due to the masters. He had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of the head master, Dr. Morris, and he considered him the right man in the right place. He had wished to see for himself whether the charge of extravagance was well founded, and had visited the Institution in company with Bro. Machin, the D. Prov. G.M. for Warwickshire, and he considered that the charge could not be sustained. In 1875 he said the cost per head was about £40, and in 1874 about £43, and it was clearly proved that a saving had been effected. He believed the Institution worthy of support, and considered it one of the best schools in the kingdom, and one which the Freemasons ought to be proud of. He was delighted to find so long a list of Stewards. We all ought to feel indebted to those Stewards, and especially to Sir Henry Edwards, who acted as President of the Stewards. He thanked those Stewards who came up from his own province, and hoped the Institution would continue to flourish. It has no funded property, and has to depend very much on the subscriptions of Grand Lodge and members of the Craft, and if we continue to educate only 186 boys, as at present, the expense will be £7,000 per annum, but we ought to increase that number to 200. He would like to see some scholarships formed, to send our boys to Oxford and Cambridge, where he was sure they would be a credit to the school. Before concluding he wished to allude to an article which appeared in a Masonic publication last February, which analysed the subscriptions received at the Festival of the Benevolent Institution. Allusion was made to the support accorded Lord Skelmersdale, who presided, by his province. So far he endorsed the remarks, but when a comparison was made between the amount subscribed by West Lancashire and that of the other provinces and London he considered it unfair, especially with reference to the province over which he had so long presided, and which included, as stated in the article, the wealthy and important town of Birmingham. He felt sure that at the time the article was written the writer could not have known that the province had upwards of 80 stewards at work for the Boys' School, and that it was really impossible that the same province could support two of the Charities the same year, and in addition 14 or 15 years ago the Craft of Warwickshire came forward nobly to support this Institution, when the noble Lord also presided for two consecutive years, the province sent up large amounts to support the three institutions successively. He concluded by saying he did not consider that comparisons ought to be drawn between subscriptions raised in one province over another. As a matter of course the Masons of the province to which the chairman of the Festival belonged would do all they could to support him. He hoped they would soon hear that Warwickshire had subscribed a tolerable sum to the charity this year, but would it be fair to compare it with any other province when they had their own P.G.M. to preside? he was sure Warwickshire would support him that evening, and he knew they felt great pleasure in so doing. He hoped the remarks, which he considered somewhat personal to himself and his province, would be excused; but he could not refrain from expressing his opinion on account of the kindness he had received from the brethren in his province specially. He then gave the toast, and coupled with it the name of Bro. George Plunkett, the Treasurer of the Institution. Bro. Plunkett, in responding, said he had to thank the brethren for their liberal support hitherto, and he did not expect the subscriptions of the evening would be at all behind any of former years; he considered the Institution owed much to the Stewards, to his Lordship for presiding, and to their Secretary, who, he was certain, would begin to-morrow morning to provide for their next Festival. Bro. Binckes on rising stated that he had 280 Stewards. The first Festival after he was appointed Secretary was presided over by Lord Leigh, and now, after a lapse of 18 years, he had the pleasure to see the noble Lord again at their head. He thanked him, and remarked that the best answer to newspaper articles would be the result he was about to announce (the list of subscriptions which were announced as £12,100 odd, with 20 lists to come in, included £2,000 from the province of Warwickshire.) The toast of the Vice Patrons, &c. was proposed by Rev. Bro. W. Bedford, and was responded to by Bro. Raynham Stewart. The Chairman proposed success to the sister Institutions. He hoped that Masons would give their support to the three Institutions so long as the world existed. Bro. J. Terry thanked the brethren for the way the toast was received, and also on behalf of the Institutions for the very handsome support received. We must congratulate, he said, the Chairman and Secretary, and all concerned, at being enabled to announce an amount nearly equal to that of last year. The sums raised for the three Institutions this year had amounted to £32,000, and they hoped, with the assistance of the brethren, to realise a sum far in advance of that for next year. "The Stewards" was proposed by Col. Burdett, and "The Ladies" by the Rev. Bro. Randall, after which the company adjourned to the concert room. The number who sat down to the banquet was 535.

The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Chaplin Henry, who had secured the services of Madame Thaddeus Wells, Miss Bessie Stroud, Mdlle Luigia Gardona, and Miss Marion Severn; Masters Pitt, Pounds, Matthews, Mantle, Powell and Rorke; Bros. Wilford Morgan, J. Large, Frank Elmore and R. Farquharson; solo clarionet Bro. H. Lazarus; Bro. Fountain Meen very ably presided at the piano. The new Masonic song, "The Prince and the Craft," was sung after the toast of the Grand Master, and was very well received, Bro. Frank Elmore rendering it most creditably. The programme generally gave very great satisfaction, and Bro. Chaplin Henry is fully entitled to the thanks of all present for a highly successful result.

We append the List of Patrons and Stewards, with the several amounts collected or subscribed. Where no amount is inserted the list had not been received up to the time of our going to press.

ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES AT THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

A MOST interesting gathering of the friends and supporters of this Institution took place on Monday last, at Wood Green. These annual visits of the Festival Stewards are considered red letter days by all who take part in the proceedings, and on Monday last the distinguished company were especially favoured by the weather. The building and grounds of the Institution were thrown open at one o'clock, and at this hour the visitors began to arrive. The time fixed for beginning the business on the programme was three o'clock, and long ere this all the seats in the capacious school-room were occupied. The energetic Secretary, Bro. Binckes, commenced the proceedings by making a few remarks in reference to a letter that had appeared in a contemporary respecting the members of the Supreme Council. He then introduced those representatives of that distinguished body who were present, and referred to the good work the Council were doing in the cause of charity. He then called attention to the success that had attended the candidates from the Royal Masonic Boys' School at the last Cambridge Examination, and drew a most gratifying comparison as to the per centage of those who had obtained prizes against scholars from similar institutions. After a few remarks from Bro. J. Montagu, the actual business of the programme began with the part song, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," which was effectively rendered by the choir. The successful pupils then advanced, and received the several prizes that had been awarded by the Institution, a few cheering words being addressed to each recipient by the worthy brethren who had undertaken the duty of distributors.

This was followed by a song, "Speed on, my bark," from Mr. Lyons, and the part song, "Men of Harlech," by the choir. Dr. Morris, Head Master of the School, then announced that the lads who were engaged in the English Play were ready. After an overture had been played, the curtain was raised, and discovered a very neatly arranged stage, and the farce, by Thomas J. Williams, Esq., of "Ici on Parle Français," commenced. The characters were apportioned as follows:—Major Regulus Rattan, W. Beaumont; Victor Dubois, W. R. Jones; Mr. Spriggins, R. Bryant; Mrs. Spriggins, W. R. Parker; Angelina (their daughter), E. E. Oates; Julia (wife of Major Rattan), E. T. Sage; Anna Maria (a maid of all work), W. S. Sparkes. Our Brother Samuel May had sent for the use of the performers everything requisite in the shape of dresses and wigs, and our boys readily availed themselves of the facilities so kindly placed at their disposal. The farce was well sustained throughout; special praise must, however, be given to R. Bryant, who enacted his part with a smoothness that contrasted favorably with the energy displayed by the gallant Major Rattan. A Part Song, followed by the Duet—"Broken Spells," were the next items. After this came the distribution of prizes to the following classes:—

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

THE eleventh half-yearly meeting of this Association was held on Tuesday, 13th June 1876, at Alton Towers, which, by the kind permission of the Earl of Shrewsbury, was visited by a Masonic party of gentlemen, accompanied by many ladies. From a report just issued by the Association, we learn that the Masonic charities pertaining to the province are ably managed, and the support given to the three Royal Masonic Institutions for Girls, Boys, and Aged Freemasons is of the most encouraging character. Life subscriberships to each of the above-named Institutions are obtained for Staffordshire brethren by means of the Charitable Association, and the voting strength of the province is thereby considerably increased in favour of any Staffordshire candidates requiring aid. Twenty-nine of these life subscriberships were ballotted for at this meeting, as follows:—Bros. Frederick Brandon, Lodge 418, Edwin Peake 637, Frederick Arkinstall 662, Senior Warden of 1520, Edwin Hodson 624, James Alcock 98, T. G. Fellows 1520, Arthur Barnes 1039, K. Macrae 624, W. G. Bagnall 662, James F. Wileman 546, James Miller jun. 469, George Bennion 546, Wm. Wykes 482, David Griffith 460, Wm. Bentley 98, Alfred Caddick 662, C. Marsh 460, Ardee Hardwick 546, Robert Plant 456, W. R. Blair 546, J. Clark M.D. 1039, J. V. Barber 482, Charles Trigg 1039, J. Norris 451, Silas Gibson 966, Edward Corn 451, T. C. Graham 624, T. M. Humphries 539. (The two last-named brethren served as stewards at the festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys this week.) A pleasing feature indicative of the growth of this Association is found in the fact that more than one-third of the Freemasons in the province are supporters of the Masonic charities through the medium of this organization. Much permanent good is likely to accrue from the efforts of its promoters, whose most sanguine expectations have been hitherto fully realized. The local education of the children of deceased brethren is undertaken by the Committee of Management in addition to the assistance rendered to the London Institutions.

Obituary.

We have to record the death of Lord Harlech, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of North Wales and Shropshire, who was raised to the peerage only last year. He was initiated in the St. Oswald Lodge, Oswestry, No. 1124, in the year 1866, and installed Deputy P.G.M. in February 1874.

Brother Syers, of the Oxford Music Hall, whose improved state of health was last week announced, we regret to say, suffered a relapse, and died at Geneva, on Friday last, the 23rd ult.

The death of Bro. J. Codner, P.M. Strong Man Lodge, W.M. of No. 23, P.M. Marylebone Lodge, P.Z. of Chapters Nos. 25, 382 and 946, is also announced. It took place, after two days' illness, on 22nd June.

Bro. G. Shalless, 140 and 1320, who had been in failing health for some months, died last week, at the age of 48. At his funeral, which took place at Shooter's Hill Cemetery, about 30 of the brethren were present, and Bro. Scard delivered a short and feeling address over his grave.

The fifteen sections will be worked on Wednesday next at the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue. The hour of meeting will be 6.30 p.m. and a strong muster of the Craft may be expected. Bro. Barnes, P.M., &c., will preside as W.M.

LODGE REPORTS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The able letter of your correspondent, Bro. Gottheil, upon the above subject, is one which is well deserving of preservation; and it is to be hoped that the hints which he has thrown out to those upon whom falls the duty of furnishing reports of Masonic meetings will be acted upon, and that readers of Craft literature may for the future be spared the tedium of perusing so much of wearisome detail. It is no uncommon occurrence for reports of Lodge meetings to appear in print full of the objectionable matter referred to by Bro. Gottheil, to the exclusion, presumably for want of space, of what is far more interesting, and certainly of greater value in every way,—the reports of the addresses from able Craftsmen with which we are favoured from time to time at our meetings. Let these appear whenever an opportunity occurs, and your valuable periodical will become still more acceptable to your numerous readers.

Yours fraternally,

A PAST MASTER.

MASONIC PORTRAITS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—My idea is that when a Mason has got anything on his mind respecting a Brother Mason, he should take an opportunity of speaking privately to him, and thus settle, if possible, any differences. There is nothing I detest more than to see Brother Masons writing against one another in a public paper. Showing how ready some are to pick a hole in something said or done by, or of, another, it is not only un-Masonic, but ungentlemanly. This remark has been called forth by reading a letter, by Bro. Frances, in your paper of the 24th inst., in which he says: "At no period of the history of the Frederick Lodge, has there been any want of vitality." In reply to this, I simply say that Bro. Frances has been misinformed. Bro. Frances joined the Frederick Lodge of Unity in August 1868, and at that time I was J.W. and acting Secretary, and had introduced new members, two of them being in office on the day Bro. Frances joined, viz. Bros. Wm. Sugg J.D. and W. C. Poole I.G., both now being P.M.'s of the Lodge, and subscribing members. I acknowledge that it may have been rather strong colouring. "He resuscitated the Lodge," for I was helped by my friends, and the willing workers in the Lodge at the time. But let me assure Bro. Frances that at times we had to bring up the landlord from his ban to make a perfect Lodge, and as the members present at the banquet had to pay the expenses, we have dined three "strong," and had to pay for the six or seven dinners ordered. At the last meeting we had 31 to dinner, including 8 visitors! There were 45 subscribing members on the books, and 3 initiated in addition.

Yours fraternally,

MAGNUS OHREN, P.M. and Secretary of 452.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.—THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The letter and articles that have appeared from time to time in the pages of the "CHRONICLE," on "Masonic Jurisprudence," have attracted considerable notice on this side of the border, and your continued attention to them must, doubtless, eventuate in good to the Craft at large.

I should, therefore, feel much obliged if you, Mr. Editor, Bro. Binckes, or any other of your talented correspondents, could enlighten me on the legal status of Mark Masters made under the authority of a Craft Lodge Charter. Your so doing would also confer a favour on a large body of Scotch Masons, for your reports in last week's issue, from three R. A. Chapters in Glasgow, prove that this is a question that is exercising some influence on the minds of the brethren north of the Tweed.

I think I understand the position of an English Mark Master, for, although he is not recognised either by the Grand Lodge of Freemasons, or the Grand Chapter simpliciter, yet he has a Grand Lodge of his own, which is recognised by several other Grand bodies, and so he has a locus standi independent of them both. Here, on the contrary, both Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter recognise the degree, and give authority to confer it. The Grand Chapter declaring it an integral part of their system, and making its reception an indispensible prerequisite for exaltation to the R. A. degree. On the other hand, the Grand Lodge of Scotland, while declaring that they will only recognise, sanction and promote the three degrees of St. John's Masonry, namely those of E.A., F.C. and M.M., yet say that they consider the Mark degree as a portion of the Fellow Craft, and it may be conferred, but only upon Master Masons.

For many years, very few Lodges availed themselves of this complex arrangement, but lately, several Craft Lodges have opened what they call "Mark Lodges," with separate officers, meeting on a different night, issuing a distinct Diploma and charging a s[illegible]al fee. All the distinctive features of a separate order, you will observe. This being the actual state of matters, I would feel glad if you will state, first, if the Lodges so acting can be said to be only working the three degrees of St. John Masonry as restricted by their Charters? and, second, can the Mark Masters thus made claim to be admitted either into an English Mark Lodge, or a Lodge of Mark Masters working under a Charter from the Supreme Grand Chapter of Scotland?

Yours fraternally,

W. G. RELEEHW.

SHARP PRACTICE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR BROTHER CHRONICLE,—Although an elderly man, I am but a youthful Mason. Before I joined the Craft, I deliberated long and seriously on the (to me) important step. I reasoned that, after all, I should find only human nature in the institution, but diligent inquiry convinced me that I should also find within its mystic portals a human nature that had become elevated, refined, and made more charitable by Masonic training. In the fulness of this faith, I became a Mason. Soon—alas! too soon—however, I found that my belief was premature. I discovered—nay, had forced under my notice—petty intrigues and jealous cabals at work, to influence elections, that made me blush for human nature in general, and Masonic human nature in particular. Our acting W.M. was gathered to his fathers, and we were left without a chief, and in straightened circumstances. Then it was that a brother, with Masonic honours full upon him, effusively and patronisingly came to our relief. He would be responsible for our circumstances, and ordinary gratitude could do nothing less than elect him to the vacant seat of our deceased W.M. The matter was broached to the S.W., who at once gave way. By accident or management this election took place three months before the annual meeting. Some misgivings were felt about the legality, and the ultimate effect of the election; but the W.M. elect silenced all opposition by deliberately pointing out that he would do nothing but what was perfectly fair and legal to his brother officers. (Ah, that word legal is too suggestive of Old Bailey sharp practice to be altogether in place in a Masonic Lodge. If Masonic rules are to be examined and cavilled at with trained legal acumen, it may be bad for the spirit of the law; the letter may be so strained that a promise may be kept to the legal ear, and yet be broken to the Masonic sense.) The W.M. then proposed to depose the acting S.W., and place the J.W. in the S.W.'s chair; but this idea was ultimately abandoned. In course of time the annual election came on, and then the W.M. took a course that was hardly in accordance with his previous promise. Legally he may have kept it; but in the sense in which it was understood, at least by me, he broke it. He made a speech, full of fulsome flattery of the good points of a certain brother, pointed out how charitable he was,—how he had done this, that and the other,—and how he would do more if made W.M. The result was that this brother was elected, and the S.W. (or P.S.W. as the W.M. styles him), who had made way for him, has been completely shunted. Further, the W.M. privately used his influence to procure the election of the W.M. elect, and efforts were actually made to induce the S.W. to give way a second time, the reason alleged being that the ambitious brother was about to remove to the country, and wished to go there as a W.M. This last fact scarcely fits in with the talk about the good he would do our Lodge, &c.

I have necessarily been brief in my statement, but it is explicit enough, I think, to show that the S.W. (or P.S.W.) has been somewhat hardly dealt with, and that wrong has been done to those brethren who have been thrown back a year in their chance of election to the highest post.

I hope, for the honour of Masonry, that my experience has been exceptional. It is humiliating to think that such a noble institution can become the arena for fostering petty ambitions. I may be wrong, but it seems to me that it is not always a good thing to be able to wear half-a-dozen P.W.M.'s jewels, each jewel acquired in a different Lodge. Surely, in such cases, other brethren must have lost an opportunity. You will understand that it is a hard thing for young members to attempt to resist the patronage of P.W.M.'s who possess the advantage of being persistent, and who do not hesitate to make their Masonic knowledge a stepping-stone to the highest seat in a struggling Lodge. It would be more Mason-like if they gave their advice and assistance to place and maintain younger workers in the position they themselves grasp; but then, you see, they could not legally wear so many jewels.

Hoping that you may be able to show me that the case I have mentioned is isolated, and altogether out of the usual order of Masonic practice, I beg to subscribe myself, what I trust I shall continue to be,

A "FREE" MASON.

SIR CHRISTOPHER WREN.

Royal Geographical Society, Saville-row,
23rd June 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Are you aware that there exists, carefully preserved by the Lodge of Antiquity, the mallet or gavel which was used by Sir Christopher Wren on laying the foundation stone of St. Paul's Cathedral? The Deputy W.M. of that Lodge (under H.R.H. Prince Leopold), Professor Erasmus Wilson, would confer a great favour upon many brethren if, with his usual courtesy and urbanity, he would afford information through your well circulated pages regarding the career of that historic implement, and the manner in which it came into possession of his Lodge.

I remain, yours fraternally,

M.M.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE past week shows some good Parliamentary work. The Merchant Shipping Bill received a second reading on Friday, in the House of Lords. On Monday, in the same assembly, sundry questions were asked respecting alleged Bulgarian atrocities, Servia and Turkey. The needful explanations were furnished, as far as possible, in reply. On Tuesday, the forts of Malta and Valetta, and the Irish Learned Societies were among the topics discussed. On Thursday, Lord Derby said that he feared there was no chance of war between Servia and Turkey being averted.

At the morning sitting on Friday, in the House of Commons, opposition was raised by Mr. Butt to the further progress of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Ireland) Bill, but he was defeated. In the evening, Captain Nolan drew attention to the new mobilisation scheme. Mr. Holms, Mr. Stanley, and the Secretary for War took part in the discussion that followed. The House was afterwards counted out. On Monday, a motion by Captain Pim relative to the administration of the Admiralty, was negatived without a division. The House then went into Committee of Supply on the Navy Estimates. The day following, at the morning sitting, the Volunteer Review in Hyde Park to-day, and the Poor Law (Scotland) Bill were the subject of question and discussion respectively. Our relations with China were introduced to the notice of the House, in the evening, by Mr. Richard. On Wednesday, the Real Estate Intestacy Bill was defeated at the second reading, by 210 to 175. On Thursday, Mr. Disraeli made a somewhat similar statement to Lord Derby's respecting the Eastern Crisis, and then the adjourned debate on the second reading of the Land Tenure (Ireland) Bill was brought to a conclusion, the bill being thrown out by a large majority.

The Queen, since her return to Windsor Castle, has had an opportunity of witnessing the game of La Crosse, the Canadian and Iroquois Indian teams having been graciously permitted to exhibit their skill in it. Her Majesty was much pleased, and presented a copy of her photograph to each of the players. On Wednesday, a State Concert was given at Buckingham Palace. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Louise, Prince Leopold, the Duke and Duchess of Teck, and Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, were present, and among the other notabilities were Prince Hassan Pacha and Sir Salar Jung. The artistes included Mesdames Christine Nilsson, Adelina Patti, and Trebelli-Bettini, and Signori Nicolini and Graziani.

To-day the Prince of Wales will review the Volunteers in Hyde Park. From the published lists, it would seem as if the muster on this occasion would be greater than at any previous inspection, the number of those expected to be present and march past His Royal Highness being set down at about 30,000 men. If the weather prove auspicious, there will doubtless be a grand gathering of spectators to witness this imposing display. Now, indeed, is just the time of year when our volunteer forces come in for their full share of public attention. The annual meet at Wimbledon is close at hand, while not a few of the regiments are undergoing a brief experience of real Camp life. Others again have frequent long marches, and rifle competitions are quite the order of nearly every day in the week. Before another moon has passed we shall be able to record the winner of the Queen's Prize for the year 1876.

Just now indeed, the season may be said to be at its height, and hardly a day passes without some special attraction. On Monday and Tuesday it was Lord's that drew its thousands of spectators to witness the cricket contest between the two Universities. The enthusiasm was of a very pronounced character, as is always the case on these occasions, and perhaps the next most noteworthy feature of the event was the amusing ignorance of the game exhibited by the fair lookers-on, who must be sorely puzzled to distinguish the umpires from the scorers, find "overs" a great nuisance, and are incapable of appreciating the difference between a bye and leg-bye. They enjoy themselves, however, amazingly, do these enthusiastic young ladies, especially about lunch time, and that after all is the most important part of the day's programme. As to the result of this particular contest, we need hardly inform our readers that Cambridge won the day by nine wickets. The next great public event at Lord's will be the Public Schools' Match, when Eton v. Harrow will meet in friendly rivalry.

The Oxford and Cambridge match is very far from exhausting the list of sporting events. There has been a struggle for the professional championship of the Thames, and an Australian sculler, by name Trickett, has won the day, defeating Sadler the former Champion by a good four lengths. No less than eleven steamers accompanied the race, which was further witnessed by a considerable number of spectators from the river banks. On Thursday and Friday, the quiet town of Henley was alive with visitors to see the annual Regatta. The sport was of the usual character, and excited the same amount of enthusiasm as in former years. The amateur aquatic strength of Oxford, Cambridge, Eton, London, and Dublin was very fully and ably represented.

Nor has Masonry been behind the rest of the world. It, too, has been celebrating one of its grand annual festivals, with what result is recorded in another part of our columns. The Prize Day at the Boys' School on Monday was held under the auspices of the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and proved a great success, while on Wednesday, Bro. Binckes effected one of his most brilliant coups at the Alexandra Palace, in the presence of some hundreds of ladies and brethren. The labours of "our Hercules" are many, but he overcomes them one after the other with almost the same facility and certainly with as complete success as his great namesake. May his shadow never grow less! May he live a thousand years! Nor is the Secretary the only official connected with the School who deserves a word of praise. Dr. Morris, during his tenure of the Head Mastership, has laboured hard to promote the success of his pupils. That his efforts have been crowned with success we think those who heard the opinions expressed on Monday will readily admit. We congratulate Dr. Morris on the efficiency of the School over which he presides, and we trust he may yet have many years of useful labour before him, and attended with results as brilliant.

People are apt to say silly things in very hot weather when they take upon themselves the office of critic. Last week a correspondent of our Masonic contemporary sapiently remarked that some one had called Bro. Binckes "Our Hercules;" but he, the said correspondent, was ignorant why our worthy brother had been so named, unless it were because "his labours were so many." Amazingly simple correspondent! A man has been dubbed "Our Hercules" because his labours are herculean. Had his labours been few and of small account, there would have been some grounds for criticism. Another equally sapient critic wonders how an impersonal body like the Council of the A. and A. Rite could preside at any festival. Our answer is—By its members; and the proof is, It did so preside on Monday at Wood Green, and very ably and successfully, too. We are always willing to do a service if possible. We would suggest that our comtemporary devote a part of its space to stale news and absurd queries.—A bright idea, certain to promote increase of circulation!

The recent mention of the Alexandra Palace, reminds us that to-day will be held there, the Great Scottish Fête and Southern gathering, when the programme of contests will include Highland Flings, Putting the Stone, Tossing the Caber, Pibroch playing, &c., &c. Monday will be another grand day. The Foresters of the London district, hold their annual festival, and Robin Hood, Little John, Friar Tuck, and the other great historic personages of our King John's time will appear again in the flesh, and, no doubt, enjoy themselves thoroughly. The gathering should be on a very large scale, especially as the day's entertainment is announced to be wonderfully attractive. A balloon race, a brilliant display of fireworks, twelve military and other bands, and last, but not least, "the Great Mackney" himself, will draw several multitudes.

The news from the East of Europe is less promising than it was a few days since. We hear of war being imminent between Turkey and Servia, and Russia is said to be having a hand in it, and exciting the latter to take the initiative. We hoped it was only a canard, but Lord Derby's statement on Thursday forbids us indulging this. He sees no chance of a contest being averted. Servia has been stirred—by whom matters not—to a state of the most intense warlike enthusiasm. Quite a panic has occurred on the Paris Bourse, for the belief is gaining ground that once the din of battle is heard, there will be no localizing the struggle. We have every confidence the British Government will do its utmost to prevent such a catastrophe. A terrible responsibility rests with those who are said to have been promoting these disturbances. Servia by herself would not have dared to provoke the power of the Sultan, and if our ministry can confine the struggle to these two states, Europe may yet be spared the calamities of a general war. We trust this may be so.

The Provincial Grand Master of the Mark Degree in Lincolnshire, Bro. John Sutcliffe, who, we understand, is to be installed as head of the Royal Order of Scotland for Lancashire and Cheshire, at Manchester, on the 5th inst., has, with his accustomed public spirit, endowed the chair of his new office with a Vice Presidency of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. We commend this example of enlightened liberality to future Provincial Grand Masters on their accepting office, as one calculated to court general estimation beyond the limits of a province, and to associate their names with the general public benefit.

We note that the subscription list presented from Lincolnshire at the festival of the above named institution, i.e. £234, when added to that sent from the same province to the sister school, makes a total of nearly £1,000 contributed in one year.

It is worthy of special mention that the Cripplegate Lodge, No. 1613, which was only consecrated last Saturday, is already a Vice-President of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, having voted the sum of fifty pounds towards that charity at its opening meeting. A further sum of ten guineas has also been raised among the members, and this will form the nucleus of a second contribution to one of our other institutions, so that the new Lodge may take its place among the contributors who rank as Vice-Presidents. This is indeed a commencement worthy of the highest praise, and augurs well for the future career of the Cripplegate. The older Lodges, too, must look well to their laurels, or they will find those of but yesterday's creation outstripping them in friendly rivalry. We imagine that, in the matter of charity, the founders of this new Lodge must have been studying of late a certain well known glee:—

> "Uprouse ye, then, my merry, merry men,
> It is our opening day!"

Bro. Corke, Treasurer, took the initiative in this most admirable movement.

The Seamen's Hospital, late (Dreadnought,) Greenwich, is an institution which deserves the warmest support from all classes of the community. Its benefits are open to the seamen of all nations, but so long as England remains the chief maritime power in the world, it is to her this hospital must look for its chief support. Nor, we feel assured, will it look in vain. The sympathy of every Englishman is easily aroused if the object be a sailor in distress, or whose health is suffering from disease of any kind, and no charitable institution has done more real service to the afflicted sailor than the Seamen's Hospital. But in order that its ability to help may be commensurate with the very heavy demands made upon its resources, it is absolutely necessary that special appeals for support should be made at frequent intervals. The permanent income of the hospital is quite inadequate, and the authorities are urgent therefore that those who may have superfluous funds at their disposal should bestow some, according to their ability, on this deserving charity. We have lately received a copy of the last annual report and the balance sheet, unfortunately, is not a favourable one. The ugly word "deficiency" occurs on the face of it, and in order to make good the excess of expenditure over income, a most earnest appeal is now being made everywhere for further contributions. We trust these efforts will prove successful. We feel that no apology is needed for introducing the subject to our readers. All of them, no doubt, can form some idea of the perils which they encounter who go down to the sea in ships. Many, indeed, must be personally conversant with these dangers, for in both our Royal and Mercantile Navies are many Craftsmen. Let, then, those who are able help forward the good cause to which the Seamen's Hospital is devoted. They may find other institutions equally worthy of support, but we are certain they will find none worthier. We may add that no less a sum than seven thousand pounds is needed for the service of the present year. Subscriptions will be most thankfully received for the Treasurer, Mr. H. S. Thornton, by Messrs. Williams, Deacon and Co., 20 Birchin Lane, and by the Secretary, Mr. Henry C. Burdett.

CRIPPLEGATE LODGE, No. 1613.

SATURDAY last was the day appointed for the Consecration of this new Lodge, and a large gathering of the brethren of our honoured Craft assembled at the Albion Tavern, to take part in the interesting ceremony. Bro. James Terry, Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, had been appointed Consecrating Officer, and all who have seen how our worthy Bro. Terry does his work on these occasions will agree with us that no better qualified brother could have been selected. We have now so frequently to record the consecration of new Lodges that our readers will agree with us that, on this occasion, we need not go into details, suffice it to say that the ceremony throughout was conducted in a highly satisfactory way, and gave the greatest gratification to all present. The approval of the brethren to the Officers named in the warrant having been given, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. J. R. Foulger, P.M. 177, was presented to the Lodge by Bro. W. Crutch D.C., and received the benefit of installation at the hands of Bro. Terry. The customary salutations having been given, the following appointments were made:—Bros. G. M. Felton 1056 S.W., C. J. Benson 192 J.W., Corke Treasurer, R. Abbott Sec., Mc Carthy S.D., B. Groner J.D., Soares I.G., Stevenson D.C., R. Clark W.S., E. Coste P.M. No. 9 I.P.M. The warrant was recommended by the W.M. and brethren of the Domatic Lodge, and bore the names of the following petitioners: Bros. Carle, Baker, Bright, Edwards, Medwin, Cohen, Lake, King and B. Groner. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. Terry received the deserved encomiums of every brother. Numerous propositions for joining and initiation were handed in, and hearty good wishes were tendered from the members of the various Lodges present. The J.W. then proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. James Terry, the Consecrating Officer, and also the brethren who officiated, viz. Bros. H. H. Hodges, H. G. Buss, J. Constable, and W. Crutch. The W.M. in putting the proposition, said he had heard the ceremony performed many times, but never better than on the present occasion. Bro. James Terry appropriately replied for himself and the brethren named. Bro. Felton S.W. proposed and Bro. E. Coste I.P.M. seconded, that Bros. James Terry, H. G. Buss, H. H. Hodges, J. Constable, and W. Crutch, should be elected honorary members. This was carried unanimously. The Lodge was then closed and the brethren, who mustered to the number of 65, sat down to a sumptuous and recherché banquet, provided by Bro. W. G. Jennings, and superintended by Bro. Keeping.

The W.M. proposed the toast of Her Majesty the Queen and the Craft. The national anthem was sung by Bros. Chaplin Henry, G. T. Carter, J. W. Simons and F. H. Cozens. The W.M. then proposed the toast of H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master, whom they were pleased to see had returned to his native country in health, they all looked with pride to him as the head of the Order, he had received a hearty welcome during his progress in India, and they were delighted again to see him among them. (Cheers.)

The new national song and chorus, "Welcome to our Prince," verses by F. Enoch, and the music specially composed by Sir Julius Benedict was then sang. The toast of the Pro G.M. the Earl of Carnarvon was afterwards given. Bro. Chaplin Henry singing a new song, composed by Bro. Louis Diehl, entitled "A Song of Neptune." The toast of the R.W. the Earl of Skelmersdale D.G.M. was then given by the W.M., who said he had received letters from Bros. J. Hervey G.S., and Bro. J. B. Monckton P.G.D., President of the Board of General Purposes. He regretted their absence on this occasion, but they expressed a wish to be present at a future meeting, and he was sure the brethren would only be too pleased to see them whenever they would honour them with their presence. (Cheers.) Bro. Cozens sang "Down by the Brook Side."

Bro. E. Coste said, he had been appointed I.P.M. for the ensuing year, and in that capacity he had to propose a toast, that was the W.M. Every one holds him in high esteem, and he hoped he would have a successful year of office, he would call on the brethren to give him a hearty reception, as he was sure the Cripplegate Lodge would flourish under so able a Master.

The W.M. in reply said: Brethren, I rise on this occasion with the greatest amount of diffidence, feeling overwhelmed with the reception you have been pleased to accord to the toast which the acting I.P.M. has so eloquently, and, on my part undeservedly, placed before you. (No, no). When the move was made for a new Lodge in Cripplegate, I was somewhat astonished to find myself in the proud position of the first Worshipful Master, and I am doubly gratified to know the Grand Master has confirmed the choice you, brethren, had been pleased to make. I sincerely hope that the Cripplegate Lodge will be true to the precepts of the Order, that the members will unite in promoting its interest, and do all that is honorable in our noble cause, and, more especially, work zealously for the Charities of the Order, to which we point with such laudable pride. It is said, charity should begin at home; but, brethren, after judiciously considering this, let us show to the authorities of Grand Lodge that Cripplegate has been well selected, and that it is here where they may find brethren who have the cause at heart. Not only have we an Asylum for our Aged, and Schools for our Girls and Boys, but we have the energy and determination to support these to the full extent of our power; and we may depend that the more the principles of the Craft become known, the greater will be the accession to our number, with a corresponding patronage and support to our noble Institutions. It may not be out of place here to glance at the past history of this ward of Cripplegate, and I beg to recapitulate a few facts that I have jotted down. I find it stated that, in 1010, when the Danes approached Bury St. Edmunds, Bishop Alwyn removed the body of Edmund the Martyr to St. Gregory's Church, near St. Paul's, and as it passed through Cripplegate, such was the blessed influence, that cripples became straight, and thanked God for their miraculous cure. We have also records of such names as Milton, Fox, and Cromwell, while the vaults of the old pile contain the ashes of more worthies than these. In the year 1244 the gate of the Ward was re-built by the Brewers of London, and again in 1491. In 1739 a Lodge was held at the Mitre, Union-street, Cripplegate; but now no Mitre exists, although it is believed that the Five Bells is the same place where the former stood. Lord Blaney, then G.M., was present at the Lodge in 1776, at which period the initiation fee was 21s, visitor's fee 1s 6d, quarterly subscription 2s 6d, and supper 6d. If we contrast these with the different fees now paid, a lesson might be learned with some advantage. In March 1808 H.R.H the Prince of Wales, G.M., commanded that the Gentlemen of his household should be initiated in the Lodge. And in December of the same year the W.M., with his two Wardens, were summoned to Special Grand Lodge to accompany the G.M. to lay the foundation stone of Covent Garden Theatre. These are but a few of the historical facts that are to be gleaned in connection with Cripplegate and Freemasonry. Speaking now more of myself. It was in Cripplegate that I first planted the seeds of my career, and there I had my first residence; there it was, too, that some amount of success attended me, and I married there also; my offsprings saw light, and were baptized in the old church of the Ward. In the same parish I became a Freeman and Liveryman, in fact, my whole life has been spent in Cripplegate, hence I venture to say that I have some claim as a brother in this very celebrated district. In conclusion, I hope that prosperity may surround all our proceedings, and that brotherly love, relief and truth will distinguish us while the Lodge lasts. I beg to thank you most heartily.

The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Consecrating Officers, coupled with the name of Bro. James Terry, who he complimented for the able rendering of the ceremony. It was always a pleasure to listen to Bro. Terry, but upon this occasion he had excelled himself. Bro. Terry responded on behalf of himself and the brethren who had assisted him. Bro. G. Carter then sang "Madoline." The W.M. said he had to propose a toast for the first time, and it gave him a great amount of pleasure; it was that of the Visitors. The names on the list were numerous, many of them were distinguished in the Order, he hoped they were all enjoying themselves, and, in the name of the Lodge, he would give them a hearty welcome. He then called on Bro. Abbott P.M. 192 to respond. Bro. Cozens then humorously sang "Nancy o' Bristol," this created roars of laughter. Bro. Abbott responded, and was followed by Bros. Scott and Capt. Wilson, who expressed their thanks for the hospitality shown them, and accorded especial praise to the Consecrating Officer. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the recommending members of the Domatic Lodge, No. 177. He was sure they were not ashamed of their child; he was pleased to see among them the W.M. of that Lodge (Bro. Treadwell). He felt proud to say that No. 177 was his Mother Lodge, and he hoped they would give the toast the reception it merited. (Cheers.) Bro. Treadwell remarked that he did not anticipate he should have the pleasure of responding to the toast. He had been a member of the Domatic Lodge for 27 years and the W.M. of this new Lodge had also occupied its chair, with credit to himself and satisfaction to the brethren. He was thoroughly proficient in his duties, and having inaugurated his career in so satisfactory a manner he was sure the new Lodge would flourish. The W.M. then said he had a toast to propose that would go to their hearts; that was "The Masonic Charities," We have to-night the pleasure of the company of the worthy Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, who is a true and zealous brother, and when we begin to support our Charities we must not forget him, nor the Institution with which he is associated. At the same time we must not forget the other two Charities. However, he would now couple the toast with the name of Bro. James Terry. Bro. Chaplin Henry then sang "The Friar of Orders Grey." Bro. James Terry in the course of his reply said: on Wednesday next the Festival of the Boys' School will take place, and he was pleased to say it had 285 Stewards, who would all exert themselves on that occasion. At a former Festival the large sum of over £14,000 was contributed, but he hoped this time that amount would be exceeded. The Charities have been nobly supported in the past. At the Festival for the Aged the amount contributed was £9,380. The last Festival of the Girls produced £8,200; and we can with pride say the result of the three Festivals amounted to £31,200. An increase had been given to the male and female annuitants. There were three aged candidates over 80 years of age who were placed as annuitants without an election. Many brethren present that day had visited the Asylum at Croydon, the Girls' School at Battersea Rise, and also the Boys' School at Wood Green. But if there were any present who had not seen either of those noble Institutions, then let them visit the Boys' School on Monday, there they will see the result of "Our Hercules'" great labors in which he has been ably assisted by the brethren at large, and he hoped the members of the Cripplegate Lodge would give their support to the aged as the first Charity they might be induced to represent. (Cheers.)

Bro. Corke, Treasurer, said he would like to see their new Lodge a Vice-President, and as a nucleus, he and his partner, Bro. Abbott, Secretary, would each give the sum of £10, and he hoped the brethren would support him. Bro. E. Coste I.P.M. had only five days since consented to act as Steward, and he was proud to say he would take up on his list over £120 for the Boys' School, notwithstanding this, he would only be too pleased to contribute his share. After a very short interval, the W.M. announced, amidst great cheering, that the brethren had nobly responded to the call, and had contributed the sum of £60. This would make the Lodge a V.P. of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and £10 could be given for one of the other Charities. This amount would, no doubt, be augmented afterwards. Bro. James Terry said, this was the 61st Lodge he had consecrated, and it would indeed give him pleasure to inform his Committee of the noble manner the Cripplegate Lodge had, on its first meeting, behaved. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Wardens. The Treasurer, Secretary and Officers was afterwards given and responded to. Bros. H. Massey P.M. 619 and H. M. Levy P.M. 188 responded to the toast of the Masonic Press. The Tyler's toast was then given. Every brother and visitor present expressed the greatest gratification at the Masonic treat they had witnessed and the hospitality shewn them. The excellent harmony provided by Bros. Chaplin Henry, Carter and Cozens was deservedly commended. Bro. R. Clark, as Steward, was assiduous and most successful in looking after the comforts of the brethren. Among the Visitors were:—Bros. C. Gammon P.M. 795, H. H. Hodges P.P.G. S.W., Berks and Bucks, A. NORTH WALES AND SHROPSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

THE members and supporters of this most valuable Masonic Institution held a half-yearly meeting on Tuesday, 20th June, and celebrated the event by a pic-nic at Glanllyn, the seat of Bro. Sir Watkin W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., on Bala Lake. With his usual kindness and generosity, Bro. Sir Watkin had thrown open his house and grounds for the inspection of the visitors, and under the influence of one of the loveliest summer days that has visited us this season, the magnificent scenery of the locality was seen to the best advantage, the place, in fact, being one of the most lovely spots for a pic-nic that could well be desired. The main body of the party, which numbered about seventy, reached Bro. Sir Watkin's private station at Glanllyn about one o'clock, whence they were conveyed in a steam launch and in pleasure boats across the lake to the house. A sumptuous luncheon had been provided in some adjacent buildings by Miss Davies, of the Plascoch Hotel, Bala, to which the company sat down, the chair being taken by Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn, president of the Association. Amongst the guests were Mr. Bodenham, Newport; Mr. Spaull, Oswestry; Captain Williams, Bala; Mr. Horatio Jones, Shrewsbury; Mr. R. King, Shrewsbury; Dr. Brookes, Wellington; Mr. W. Boucher, Shrewsbury; Mr. Vaughan Williams; Mr. Evan Morris, Wrexham; Mr. Owen, Wrexham; Mr. Salmon, Chester; Mr. Parmeter, Bala; Mr. Jones, J.P.; Captain Anwyl; Dr. Jones, Bala; Rev. David Evans, Rector of Bala; Captain Jones; Mr. Woodcock; Mr. Anwyl, Bala; Mr. Passingham, Bala; Mr. Attwell, Llangollen; Mr. Lloyd, Bala; Mr. T. Williams, and Mr. W. Williams, Bala; Mr. Owen, Bala; &c., &c. A hearty attack was made upon the provisions that had been most bountifully provided, and at the conclusion of the luncheon it was announced that no formal toasts would be proposed.

The half-yearly meeting for business was then held, Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn presiding, and, amongst other business, a life subscribership to one of the London charities was voted to Bro. Spaull, of Oswestry, in recognition of his exertions in promoting the interests of the Association. Life subscriberships to one of the London Charities were also awarded by ballot to the following brethren:—Bros. Roff King 601; John Barber 601; Attwell 1369; E. Bunney 117; Evan Morris 1336; J. Creston 117; R. Waters 117.

A sum not exceeding ten guineas was voted towards the education of a boy named Head, the son of a Mason, during the current year, and it was unanimously resolved that the next half-yearly meeting should be held in Shrewsbury in December next.

Votes of thanks were then passed to the sub-committee for carrying out the arrangements for the pic-nic, and to Bro. Bodenham for acting as Treasurer, after which the proceedings closed with a cordial vote of thanks to Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn for his kindness in presiding, and for throwing open his house and grounds to the visitors. The band of the Bala militia was present during the afternoon, and enlivened the scene with a variety of dance music, which also found amusement for the lovers of dancing, who mustered somewhat numerously. Bro. Sir Watkin's steam launch, and several pleasure boats, were placed at the disposal of the guests, and were extensively used. The whole party were conveyed across the lake in boats to meet the 7.15 train at Glanllyn station, and thus the pic-nic, which had been very delightful throughout, was brought to a close.—Oswestry Advertiser.

HACKNEY CARRIAGE PROPRIETORS' BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

THIS Institution held its Anniversary Festival at the Alexandra Palace, Wood Green, on Thursday last. The Association was established in 1873, for the purpose of relieving old and decayed members of the trade, and providing annuities for widows and orphans of subscribing members who may receive injury or meet with accident, and from such cause become unable to support those dependent upon them. We gather from the Rules that a subscription of one guinea per annum, paid for three years, will entitle subscribers to become candidates for the annuity, which at present is fixed at £26 per annum. A donation of ten guineas will qualify the donor as a subscriber for life, and entitle him to two votes at all elections; whilst five guineas will entitle to one vote at all elections. A committee, consisting of thirty members of the trade, assisted by J. C. James, Esq., as Honorary Secretary, meet monthly at the Clarence Hotel, Aldersgate-street, to carry on the business. Bro. Herbert Rymill, of the Barbican Repository, who is President of the Society, presided on this occasion, and the company, who had assembled to the number of between three and four hundred, comprised nearly all of the principal members of the trade, who were accompanied by a numerous contingent of the fair sex. The dinner was very well served by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, and seemed to give satisfaction to all present. After grace had been sung the usual loyal toasts were given. In proposing that of "Prosperity to the Hackney Carriage Benevolent Institution," Bro. Rymill commenced by stating the circumstances under which the Institution was started. A meeting was held in 1873, at the Myddelton Hall, and it was then agreed, notwithstanding a few dissentients, that such an institution was a necessity, and that in order to place it in a working position a fund of £5,000 should be raised to commence with. Some of those dissentients, who on that occasion occupied mansions in the West end, had since, by themselves, or still worse by their families, been obliged to appeal elsewhere for relief—a humiliation with which they would not have been visited, even had they dabbled in Turkish and Egyptian Funds, had the fund necessary to the well working of the Hackney Carriage Institution existed. In a city in which 11,000 cabs, 25,000 horses, and 20,000 men were at work daily it was a matter of shame, considering the magnitude of the trade, that they were not in the possession of a fund for the assistance of their neighbours, if not of themselves. It was humiliating to have to admit that notwithstanding the advocacy of these claims for the last three years, the balance at their bankers amounted at present to only £1,500. That, he must say, without any desire to offend, was a disgrace to the trade. Bro. Rymill concluded by wishing success to the Benevolent Fund. Mr. Gamble, a member of the committee, responded, exhorting the company to help the fund by their subscriptions to a total of £5,000, when the managers would be able to give to such deserving persons as should be elected pensions amounting to £26 a year each. After several other toasts had been given, Mr. James, the Hon. Secretary, announced that the amount of annual subscriptions and donations promised by those present reached the sum of £2,000. Some capital music was given during the afternoon, under the direction of Mr. Edwin Gray, who was assisted by Madame Ashton, Mr. T. W. Simons, and Bro. Farquharson, who acted as accompanyist.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—When the weather is hot, it will be found that persons who suffer from swelled feet and ankles, varicose veins, ulcers, and sores of all kinds, and in fact from any skin disease, feel these complaints more troublesome and aggravating than at any other time of the year, they will soon find relief in the use of these remedies, for if the wounds or ulcers are dressed with this Ointment, it at once soothes the irritability of the skin, causes the discharges to lose their acrimonious character, and lessens any inflammation that may be present. It cannot be too widely known that these twin remedies are the most powerful of antefebrile and anti-inflammatory agents we possess.

Alexandra Palace Lodge, No. 1541.—We were reminded last week of the rapid strides with which Father Time pursues his course by receiving an invitation to attend the First Anniversary of this Lodge. It seems to us but a few weeks back that we heard of its consecration, and now we have to record that the young Lodge has already entered on its second year, and that every prospect of a successful future lies before it. The Alexandra Palace Lodge was promoted by a few energetic brethren, whose only time of leisure was the Saturday afternoon, and was inaugurated under what we may certainly describe as most favourable auspices; our worthy brother J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D., and P.P.G.M. for Middlesex, was appointed its first W.M., and at the first and subsequent meetings of the Lodge numerous propositions for initiation and joining were handed in. It afterwards transpired, however, that the days which had been fixed for the meetings of the Lodge were not in accordance with the business engagements of those who had promised to join, and were officially engaged on the Palace staff. This was unfortunate, but the promoters were men who were not to be daunted, and the Lodge now has on its roll of members a larger number of subscribers than its most enthusiastic friends could have anticipated, and even this long list would probably have been exceeded had Bro. Parkinson's numerous engagements allowed him to have presided more frequently. On Saturday last, in the absence of the W.M., Bro. J. C. Parkinson, the Lodge was opened in the three degrees by the acting W.M., and the chair was subsequently occupied by Bro. J. R. Stacey P.M., who was supported by Bros. J. Dyte as S.W., Palmer J.W., E. M. Haigh S.D., Lee J.D., W. S. Daniel I.G. The business paper was a very full one, and the proceedings commenced with the usual formalaries, after which Mr. Morris Lewis Dight was initiated into the Order. This was followed by the ceremony of passing Bros. Stubbins, Fitch, Neil and Beaman, who received the benefit of the second degree. Bro. Daniel was then raised, the ceremonies being rendered by Bro. J. R. Stacey in a highly satisfactory manner, while the several officers acquitted themselves most creditably. Bro. Kelly King was then presented by Bro. W. C. Parsons P.M., and a board of installed Masters was formed. The ceremony of installation was performed by Bro. J. R. Stacey. After the customary salutations, the appointment of officers was made as follows:—G. J. Palmer S.W., E. M. Haigh J.W., J. Lee S.D., W. S. Daniel J.D., Chapman I.G., J. R. Stacey P.M. Secretary, J. Dyte Treasurer, Rowland D.C., and Speight Tyler. After the customary addresses, which were given by Bros. Parsons and the Installing Officer, Bro. Sir Edward Lee was introduced, and underwent the customary examination previous to his being raised, which ceremony was afterwards conducted by Bro. Kelly King, and was most impressively gone through, the musical portion being ably sustained by Bros. William Winn, T. Lester and W. T. Wrighton. A discussion then arose respecting the arrangements that had been made with the Alexandra Palace Company as to season tickets, and a notice of motion respecting Bye Law No. 8 was handed in for consideration at the next meeting. The Lodge was then closed. After the banquet, which was very well served by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, the customary toasts were given. The W.M. presided. He said that so much time had been occupied by their business proceedings, and the serving of the banquet, that there would be little opportunity for speech making. He would therefore be very brief in any remarks he might have to make. He then proposed the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and coupled with it Prosperity to the Craft. This toast was followed by the National Anthem. The W.M. then remarked that having drunk allegiance to the Queen, he would now give them the health of the Sovereign of our Order, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master. We, as all loyal subjects, are especially grateful to the Grand Architect of the Universe for having watched over him during his late journey to India. Our Royal Master had fully sustained the dignity of the Order since he had been at its head, and it must be the wish of all that he might long live to cement good feeling, and to set an example to the world. The National song and chorus, God Bless the Prince, was then given by the musical brethren. In giving the next toast, Bro. King spoke of the great esteem the Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master were both held in, and to the satisfactory way in which the affairs of Grand Lodge were conducted by the Grand Officers. The toast of "The Worshipful Master," was entrusted to Bro. Rooke P.M., who, in a few pertinent remarks, referred to the services rendered by Bro. Kelly King. There was an old saying, that you should taste and try before you buy, and all would agree with him that they had an opportunity of trying their W.M. before they had appointed him. The way Bro. King had acted as their Pro W.M. had given universal satisfaction, and if such could be taken as a specimen of what they had to expect, all must be gratified. Bro. King then rose and said: He should be wanting in gratitude, and certainly in courtesy, if he did not immediately reply. He was sure any little services he had rendered hardly entitled him to such kind expressions as had been given utterance to. He had, in the absence of the W.M., done all he could to keep the Lodge together. He had filled the chair in other Lodges, and he must say he was a great stickler for ritual; he relied upon his officers to carry out all the details required. His heart was in the Lodge since its formation, and he could assure them that he looked upon it as a child of his own. He trusted the Great Architect would give him strength to carry out the duties required of him, and should he exhibit any shortcomings he hoped they might be overlooked. He was especially pleased to know that the Lodge had attained so proud a position, and he was sure all the members would put their shoulder to the wheel, and do all in their power for its continued prosperity. The W.M.'s next toast was that of the Past Masters, and with this was coupled the name of Bro. Rooke, who said that he might liken the duties of the Past Masters to those of judicious bottle holders, who were always ready to assist so long as their services were required. The next toast was that of the Visitors, and was replied to by Bro. E. J. Harty. Bro. Dight responded for the health of the Initiates. What he had seen of Masonry that day he was much gratified with, and it had certainly impressed him with a strong desire to know more. He hoped he might have many future opportunities of making acquaintance with those around him. The health of the Honorary Officers, Bros. Dyte and Stacey, and the Working Officers, Bros. Palmer and Haigh, was duly honoured, and the Tyler's toast brought an interesting day's proceedings to a close. The musical arrangements were of a most satisfactory character, and the artistes received a good meed of applause. Amongst those present as Visitors were:—Bros. E. Archibald, Athol Lodge, No. 15, Halifax N.S., J. B. Kinney, Olive Branch, No. 6, New York, E. J. Moore P.M. 174, H. Johnson 174, F. Morgan 1572, E. Lazarus 279, E. Farwig 180, Eidmann 225, E. J. Harty 228, 1201, W. H. Green 619, Dodman, W. F. Wrighton 23, W. Winn 600, Sir Edward Lee 25, Ireland, G. W. Verry P.M. 554, W. C. Parsons P.M. 180, W. W. Morgan 1385, Jas. Munro 405, Rooke 46, &c.

Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 28th ult., at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark. Bro. T. J. Sabine W.M. P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M. 73 in the chair, J. C. Mason S.W., E. S. Stidolph J.W., W. Hudson P.P.G.D. Sussex, P.M. Treas., F. Walters P.P.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. Secretary, W. J. Kemp S.D. H. Faija I.G., Hanks D.C., A. P. Stedman W.S., J. J. H. Wilkins P.M., Wright P.M., &c. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed; the working consisted of raising Bros. Harrison, Blackwell, Hooper, Disck and R. Buck, and passing Bro. H. Levy. The absence of the J.D. Bro. Hudson was accounted for by his being the representative of the Lodge as Steward at the Boys' Festival. The members subscribed the sum of ten guineas to make the Lodge, in the person of the W.M., a life subscriber in perpetuity, it was announced that the W.M. for the time being was a life subscriber of the Boys' and Girls' Schools, both subscribed for by the liberality and voluntary gifts of the members. Several important notices of motion were given, and the Lodge was closed. An excellent banquet followed, the usual toasts were given and responded to; the visitors were Bros. H. Keeble P.M. 1275, A. Pulley P.M. 169, Sandeman P.M. 315, J. Walls 141, R. Buck 1559, &c.

Prudence Lodge, No. 1550.—Bro. J. P. Rogers, the W.M. elect, was installed at the Huyshe Temple, at Plymouth. The ceremony was performed by Bro. R. G. Bird, the I.P.M., in the presence of several installed Masters. After the ceremony was concluded, the W.M. invested his officers as follow:—Bros. R. Bird I.P.M., C. Philp S.W., J. G. Kevern J.W., J. J. Avery Treasurer, J. S. Bunce Secretary, the Rev. W. Whittley Chaplain, A. Stewart S.D., R. G. Tippett J.D., W. Garland I.G., M. Stevens D.C., J. Ware A.D.C., W. H. Blackmore S.S., E. Cloke J.S., E. Hart Organist. Before the brethren separated a guinea each was voted to the Blind Institution, the Sailors' Home, and the South Devon Hospital. These sums are taken from the fees of honour. The annual banquet was afterwards held, the W.M. presiding. There was a large attendance of brethren, the D.P.G.M., Bro. Metham, being amongst the number. For the toast of "The Grand Lodge of England" Bro. Metham responded. In proposing the "P.G.M., Bro. Huyshe, and the D.P.G.M., Bro. Metham," the W.M. said the Freemasons of Devonshire had reason to be proud of having such a leader, who had for a long series of years devoted himself to the interests of the Craft. The P.G.M. had reached to so great an age that they could not hope to have him amongst them much longer, and therefore it should be their aim to make as much of him as they possibly could during the time that he yet remained with them. Bro. Metham had in a great measure devoted himself to doing good, and helping those who were unable to help themselves, and his earnestness in the work of charity had earned for him the esteem and love of every Mason in the province. The D.P.G.M., in acknowledging the compliment, spoke of the P.G.M. as his dearest friend, and as one who, in whatever capacity in life, was without a flaw in his character. His life and character conveyed a lesson to all Masons, and showed how wide and extended their sphere ought to be. He then referred to the support which Freemasons had given to the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum; and said that as so many orphans of deceased brethren had been elected to the Asylum, he thought they could fairly go on contributing towards its funds without any qualms of conscience. He concluded by proposing the health of the W.M. The W.M. having suitably responded, proposed the health of the I.P.M., Bro. R. G. Bird, and speaking in the highest terms of the manner in which Bro. Bird had discharged the duties of W.M. during his year of office, he asked his acceptance of a handsome gold Past Master's jewel in recognition of his services. Bro. Bird acknowledged the gift in a few well chosen words, in which he alluded with pleasure to the great progress which the Lodge had made during its short existence. Bros. Philp and Kevern returned thanks for the Senior and Junior Wardens; Bros. J. J. Avery and J. S. Bunce, for the Treasurer and Secretary. Bro. Bird then proposed the health of Bro. Gover, who has just retired from the office of Secretary, and presented him, in the name of the Lodge, with a handsomely illuminated address on vellum, as a mark of the esteem in which he has been held by the brethren. Bro. Gover responded, and remarked that the testimonial was one which he should always most highly value. Bro. Jones, of Exeter, proposed the Deacons and assistant Officers of the Lodge, and the toast was acknowledged by Bros. Tippett and W. Garland. Bro. Gover proposed the "The Sister Lodges and Visiting Brethren;" and Bros. D. Box, W.M. of Harmony Lodge 156, Hooper, of Chacewater, Gross of St. Columb, and Hendry returned thanks. The toast of "The Masonic Charities" was proposed by the W.M., who referred to the valuable services which Bro. Curteis had rendered to the great Masonic Charities of the country, and remarked that he was, in that respect, an example, to other Masons in the province. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Curteis in responding, made an earnest appeal to the Lodges in the province for their support of the great Masonic Charities. He also mentioned that Bro. Rogers had set an excellent example by making himself a Life Governor of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Bro. Godschalk also responded. Bro. Aubrey Thomas humourously returned thanks for the "Masons' Wives and Sweethearts," and the last toast on the list was "Our poor and distressed brethren."

Bayard Lodge, No. 1615.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, 26th ultimo, at 33 Golden-square. Bro. Colonel H. S. Somerville Burney W.M., Captain Leeson S.W., A. E. Watson J.W., Captain P. Dadson Secretary, Captain Compton S.D., Rev. Dr. J. Robbins J.D., Dr. J. Keene P.M. D.C., Sir Thomas Dyer Bart. Steward, R. Tyers I.G., G. Austin Tyler, P.M.'s Captain Hunter, Chevalier Habicht, Captain Phillips and Major Wemiss. The Lodge was opened, and Bros. Lethbridge, Compton, Kampe, Rose and Thorne were passed to the 2nd degree, and Captain Gossett 54th Regiment, Captain Dyer 51st Regiment, Captain Murray Robinson West Kent Militia, C. Malcolm Wood late Bombay Civil Service and Lieut. A. G. Walker, were initiated into the Order. Bros. W. L. Fielden, late 13th Light Dragoons, Captain W. S. Gilbert, Surgeon Major, R. Wolseley, Major A. Wood, Bombay Army, and F. Callow, were unanimously elected joining members. A sum of £10 10s was voted to the Royal Masonic School for Boys. The Lodge was then closed. The visitors were Bros. Major Bracebury 654, Major Blakeley the Buffs, Raphael Costa P.M. 263, of St. Michaels, Aberdeen, &c.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF CORNWALL.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge and general communication of the Masons of Cornwall, was held on Thursday, 22nd June, at Falmouth. From the railway station to the new Town Hall, at which the Lodge was held, a distance of a mile and a half, the streets were crowded with flags, interspersed with devices in evergreens and flowers.

Falmouth holds the oldest Masonic Lodge in the province, "Love and Honour," No. 75, now held at the Masonic rooms at the Royal Hotel, but the Masons of the town contemplate erecting a Masonic hall to be solely dedicated to the requirements of the Order. Falmouth was last visited by the Prov. G. Lodge in 1864. On that occasion at the then advent of the rule of the late respected P.G.M., Bro. Augustus Smith, the Province numbered eighteen Lodges. To these were added during his period of office six Lodges, and now during the rule of the present P.G.M. three more, thus increasing the strength of the province by one-half since the last visit of its Lodge to Falmouth. That increase was also well exemplified in the attendance of the brethren on this occasion.

The Lodge was opened at 10.30 a.m. by the R.W.P.G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, supported by the officers of the year. The roll of the Lodges were called over, and all the twenty-seven of the province were reported represented.

Apologies for non-attendance through previous engagements were reported to have been received from Sir F. M. Williams, Bart, M.P., and other brethren.

The P.G.M. spoke of the progress of the province during the past year. Three new Lodges had been established, the Fort at Newquay, the Duke of Cornwall at St. Columb, and one at Camborne, which had honoured him by taking his name. The Fort had already increased from 25 to 40 members. The satisfactory progress of the principle among Lodges of erecting private buildings for their meetings was also gratifying. Out of the 27 Lodges in the province 20 had already their own Masonic halls; of the other seven two had been very recently formed, and could not therefore as yet be expected to build, and the Lodges at Launceston, Chacewater, and Falmouth were either building or contemplated doing so. The returns this year had been sent in more promptly, to the convenience of Bro. Hughan in publishing his Directory, and that of the Secretary in carrying out the business. He would suggest that to avoid a difficulty those returns should for the future be made up to November, and sent in by December instead of January, as difficulties occasionally arose through the returns being made out just as the change of officers took place in December. The membership in the province had risen from 1,240 to 1,433, an increase of 192 members. During the time he had been in office the increase had been from 400 to 500 members in the province, and he believed it was generally observed that the tone and status of the brethren had not deteriorated, but rather improved. The balance in hand was £58 this year against £46 last year, while at the same time about £80 had been expended in the charities. They had also been very successful in establishing their candidates on the Grand Masonic Charities. For this they were much indebted to the laudable exertions of Bro. Hughan, who had not spared trouble, nor even personal expense in carrying out the measures that brought such satisfactory results. He had received two applications from East and two from West Cornwall in reference to where the P.G. Lodge should be held next year. He thought West Cornwall could hardly expect to have their application favourably entertained. The next turn would certainly belong to East Cornwall.

The report of the P.G. Sec. was read. It recapitulated the P.G.M.'s statements as to the increase of members and of Lodges. The increase of members had been 193, the number of brethren being 1,433. The Treasurer's report showed a balance of £58 in hand.

W. Bro. Chirgwin read the reports of the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund. The Treasurer's report showed an increase in the Fund of £232 since last year, making a total capital of £2,493. The Secretary's report stated that a vacancy had occurred among the annuitants by the death of Bro. Hemmings on the 29th of December last, and that an application had been made for that vacancy on behalf of a Bro. at Chacewater. An application had also been made for an educational grant on behalf of the son of a deceased Bro. at Helston. Two other applications had been made for the benefits of that fund; but too late for election at that meeting. A suggestion had likewise been made to appoint a small committee to consider the alteration of some of the rules of the fund, and to report at the next P.G.L. meeting. The Secretary's duties having recently much increased, the committee suggested the appointment of an assistant secretary, at a salary of £10 per annum; the assistant secretary to be appointed by the secretary, subject to the approval of the Prov. G.M. The committee also recommended that a sum not exceeding £100 should be voted to be dealt with by the subscribers at the next annual P.G.L. meeting. The increase on the subscriptions, as compared with last year, had been £16.

W. Bro. Jenkins presented the report of the Committee of Relief, which recommended the grant of £8 in a case of relief, and announced that three grants of £2 each had been made by the Committee in various cases.

All the reports were received, and in recognition of the services, trouble and expenses of Bro. W. J. Hughan in securing the establishment of candidates from the Province on the Grand Masonic Charities, twenty guineas were voted to be invested in Bro. Hughan's name in one of those Charities, and it was resolved that for the future all his expenses incurred in these matters should be paid. £25 was voted to the Cornwall Masonic Annuity and Benevolent Fund, and ten guineas each to the Masonic Boys' School, Girls' School and the Institution for aged Freemasons and their widows. The Treasurer and Secretary of the Cornwall Masonic Annuities and Benevolent Fund, W. Bros. Reginald Rogers and T. Chirgwin, were re-elected, and W. Bros. G. W. Trenory 967, and S. Jacob 121, were elected the auditors for that fund for the year.

The brethren then adjourned in procession, headed by a volunteer band, to the parish church, where an excellent sermon was preached by W. Bro. the Rev. G. L. Church P.G. Chap. from 2 Cor. xiii., 6, 7.

Bro. Church was, after the return of the brethren to the Lodge at the Town Hall, thanked by the P.G.M., on their and his behalf, for his excellent sermon. The offertory amounted to £15 8s. Bro. W. J. Hughan being absent from the Lodge through illness his report respecting his management of the votes of the London Masonic Charities on behalf of the Province was read by W. Bro. Chirgwin. In it he urged the continued consolidation of the voting power of the Province, pointing out that by that course success could alone be obtained. He also recommended that a grant of £15 per annum for three years should be granted from the educational fund for the education of the boy that had been applied for, pointing out that through his age the lad would be ineligible for election to the London Boys' School. During the past ten years the province had received about £2,000 in value from the London Charities, by the success of its candidates, and the Province should therefore do its best in aid of those institutions. He hoped on the 28th inst. to send up at least 400 guineas for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. The results of the voting on the two applications for the benefits of the fund of the Province were that the Bro. lost his election, but the grant for the education of the boy was carried nearly unanimously, the dissentients only differing as to amount or length of time of grant. W. Bro. Tweedy was unanimously re-elected the Treasurer of the Province.

THE SUBSCRIPTION LISTS AT THE RECENT FESTIVAL.

WHILE it would never occur to us wantonly to go out of the way for the purpose of giving offence to any section of the Craft, we are so convinced that those who have taken upon themselves to criticise our analyses of former subscription lists, have had so little heed for the motives which influenced us that we hesitate not to submit a similar analysis of the subscriptions to the recent Boys' Festival. As we are moved by the same purpose now as on the previous occasions, and in order that this purpose may not, for the third time, run the chance of being misunderstood, we tell our readers again why it is we make these analyses. We said in February, when we discussed the aspect of the List at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, we said again last week, in answer to Lord Leigh's criticism of our conduct, and we repeat now, that our sole object is to show not only what has been done for the Boys' School this year and by whom, but likewise, and indeed as a natural consequence, "where brethren of energy may find fields open to them in their zealous promotion of the cause of charity." We have before remarked, and we remark again, that "it is not just that the same brethren should be called upon to repeat their donations every year, while others are entirely overlooked, and left out in the cold." We are anxious "the support accorded to our Institutions" should be "not sectional, but general." We are aware that many of those who did not figure on the previous occasion have given freely and without stint at the other Festivals. Some gave last year, others may be reserving themselves for the work of 1877. Others again are active in supporting local Masonic charities. Still, when we have made every possible allowance for every possible contingency, there is yet a very considerable section of the Craft which, for reasons we will not stop to inquire into, is "entirely overlooked and left out in the cold." We have no reason for supposing this section is less mindful of its duties. We do not doubt their contributions will be forthcoming when their support is solicited. It is quite on the cards that those who give not are as liberally disposed as those who give. We may analyse a list as it appears in these columns, but we shall not undertake the thankless task of analysing people's motives, nor were it Masonic we should do so. We are content with pointing out who do and who do not give in the recent list. We wish it, moreover, to be understood that we are not going to establish an invidious comparison between this and that Province or Lodge. We have no wish to force people into giving. Gifts so given partake of the character of a forced levy. They are not unlike the "benevolences" of old, to which the sovereign helped himself, whether his subjects were willing or not. In short, we state the plain facts of the case. We leave it to others to draw what inferences they think proper. Having, for these very obvious reasons, been as careful as we can be to guard ourselves against every possible misconstruction of our motives, we now pass to the consideration of the last subscription list.

The amount of the contributions this year to the Boys' School, as published in our last issue, represents the very handsome total of £12,100, with twenty lists still to come in. As previously, we class them under three categories—London, the Provinces, and Abroad. Of these, London, represented by eighty-three Lodges, two Chapters, and a Mark Lodge, contributes £4,675. Last year eighty-two Lodges and two Chapters figured in the list, the Mark Degree being represented by "Royal Sussex," No. 75, with £514. Of the Lodges no less than forty-eight and one Chapter appear both years. According to Grand Lodge Calendar for 1875, there were 212 London Lodges; in 1876 the number had increased to 224 Lodges, and others have since been consecrated. It follows then that about one-third, more or less, of the London Lodges have not contributed to the support of the Boys' School, at all events, since 1874, at the Annual Festivals. Some of these of course, may have given at odd times during one or other of these two years, while others have supported the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, or the Girls, one or both. Still there must be a considerable number in which the cause of Masonic Charity is "entirely overlooked and left out in the cold." We advise our more energetic brethren to bestir themselves, and prevent the recurrence of a like misfortune in future years. For the remark, by no means original, will bear repetition, that what is of general interest should be supported generally. The Provinces are down for £7,384. There are, as our readers are aware, 41, or taking Beds, Isle of Man, and the Channel Islands into account, 44 Provinces, or groups of Lodges in England. Thirty-one of these are included in this year's list, the thirteen absentees being Beds, five Lodges; Bristol, eight Lodges; Cambridgeshire, four Lodges; Dorset, thirteen Lodges; Herefordshire, four Lodges; Monmouth, eight Lodges; Northampton and Hunts, eight Lodges; South Wales, Western Division, eight Lodges; Worcestershire, ten Lodges; Yorkshire North and East Ridings, twenty-two Lodges; Man, three Lodges; Jersey, seven Lodges; and Channel Islands, four Lodges. Of these, however, five, namely: Bristol, Dorset, Northampton and Hunts, South Wales—West, and Yorkshire North and East, contributed in 1875. Still, it remains that eight Provinces or groups are not among the contributing bodies to this Institution, either in 1875 or 1876. Of the provinces included in the list, Berks and Bucks, with fifteen Lodges, is down for £132, the representative Lodges being 771 (Windsor), 945 (Abingdon), and 1101 (Reading), its contribution last year being over £280. Cheshire comprises thirty-eight Lodges, gives a similar amount, and is represented by the same number of Lodges, 425 (Chester), 537 (Birkenhead), and 1357 (Sale). Bro. Hughan acted as steward for the Province of Cornwall (twenty-four Lodges), and very zealously must he have worked, for the amount of his list is largely in excess of any other steward's, and amounted to no less a sum than £453, including the twenty guineas voted recently to our worthy brother by the P.G.L. for his expenses, and by him transmitted to this Institution. Cumberland and Westmoreland include seventeen Lodges, the aggregate of whose subscriptions reaches a total of £147. This Province and Cornwall were not in last year, but Cheshire was represented by three Lodges, for a lesser amount. Derbyshire, with seventeen Lodges, figured both last year and this, four Lodges sustaining its honour at each festival. A Sidmouth Lodge (No. 164), and an East Stonehouse (No. 189), the latter with £173 and odd shillings, do battle for Devonshire. A Seaham Harbour Lodge (No. 661) represents the twenty-three Lodges of Durham, the stewards' lists reaching the very considerable amount of £275. Two of the fifteen Essex Lodges contribute together close upon £145. Gloucestershire includes fourteen Lodges, four of which are represented, and contribute together over £276, while the twenty-eight Lodges in Hants and the Isle of Wight are represented by four of their number, whose joint subscriptions just exceed £176.

The compact little province of Herts, with its nine or ten Lodges, is very worthily represented by the Gladsmuir, whose W.M., Bro. James Cutbush, furnished a contribution of close on £83. There are forty Lodges in Kent, nine of which sent Stewards, whose exertions resulted in the handsome total of £660, short by a few pence only. The Eastern Division of Lancashire is the strongest of all our Provinces as regards the number of its Lodges. There are now eighty-two of these, and last year there were just eighty. Three only, one being a Manchester, are on this year's list against five, including two Manchester, in 1875, and eighty-four guineas is the outcome of the Stewards' exertions. It should be noted that this most important town of Manchester, the centre of the cotton trade, and one of the richest in England, was not on the Girls' or Benevolent Lists either last year or this, in spite of having seventeen Lodges, while as to the Boys' School, No. 62 (ten guineas each time by the hands of the steward), and No. 645 are the only two which have appeared in either list since 1874. Here, then there is manifestly a grand field open for the display of energy, and we trust this self-evident fact will not be forgotten between now and the festivals of next year. West Lancashire is represented by two of its seventy-one Lodges, and figures for one hundred guineas, but its support of Lord Skelmersdale at the Benevolent Festival was on a grand scale, and we have already said it is not just the same Lodges should be so frequently called upon. Leicester and Rutland has nine Lodges, and contributes only a small sum (£12 10s), but last year it did its duty admirably, to the extent of over £181. Lincolnshire seldom allows a Festival to pass without some kind of contribution; a sum of over £245 is the amount on this occasion. It has also in the course of these two years given over £540 to the Girls', and over £570 to the Benevolent. Middlesex contributes £121, was on last year's list, as well as among the contributing provinces to both our other Institutions. Norfolk stands for forty-three guineas, Northumberland for somewhat in excess of £300. No. 1434 does duty for Notts. Oxford has only seven Lodges, but it stands well in the lists for both 1875 and 1876. Somersetshire subscribes to this festival the moderate sum of sixty-nine guineas, but it held a foremost place in 1875, over £540 being the sum of its contributions. Staffordshire, which gave £221 last year, is within a fraction of £300 this. Suffolk, Surrey, and Sussex are among the provinces which figure at both festivals, and so is Warwickshire. Last year two Birmingham Lodges did duty for the province, and their labours resulted in the subscription of £380. This year its G.M., Lord Leigh, presided, and Warwickshire was determined to show itself worthy of its president. Accordingly, over eighty brethren took upon themselves the labours and responsibilities of Stewards, with a result never previously exceeded in the chronicles of Masonic Charity. The aggregate of the Warwickshire subscription is exactly £2,000, or nearly one-sixth of the whole product of the Festival. We note likewise, to the credit of Birmingham, that every one of its fourteen Lodges is represented, indeed of the twenty-six Warwickshire Lodges there is only one unrepresented by a Steward or Stewards. Lord Leigh has said that some former remarks of ours were personal to himself and his Province. For this reason is it we have gone somewhat out of our way both here and in our opening comments to particularise the case of Warwickshire. It gives us great pleasure to note its recent exploit in the service of Masonic charity, and we shall be still better pleased if our Warwickshire critics will not go out of their way to misinterpret our purpose. North Wales, Salop, South Wales—East, Wilts, and West Yorkshire gave both last year and this, the last over £800 in 1875 and close upon £340 in 1876. We think it right to give some prominence to this fact, as it was this particular Province which took so leading a part in a recent painful controversy. We said we anticipated something of this kind only a week or two since, and we gladly record this fulfilment of our hopes. From abroad somewhat over £100 is down as the contributions of the Punjab District and Greece. Such then is the result of the year 1876, which will only be a little less productive than its immediate predecessor. It is a grand result to be able to record that in two years the funds of the Boys' School have been benefited to the extent of £25,000 and some few hundreds over. Well done, Stewards! We congratulate you most heartily, Bro. Binckes.

ANGLICAN INTOLERANCE IN LINCOLNSHIRE.

WE are never surprised when we read that a new attack has been made on Freemasonry by some member, more or less prominent, of the Romish section of the Catholic Church. We know the bitterness of feeling which animates its priesthood. We know, indeed, full well why it is so bitter against us. A body of men that dares to have an opinion of its own on certain questions of importance, a body which not only will not sanction, but strictly forbids its members from taking people to task for their religious and political convictions, is sure to be regarded with hostility by those who deny freedom of thought to any but themselves. We expect the priests of the Roman Church to attack us frequently and fiercely, and as a matter of fact, we think that Freemasonry prospers more the more Romanism confers on us this otherwise invidious distinction. The Bishop of Orleans, Pope Pius IX., and others have condemned us utterly, and the more they have done so the more have we flourished. We confess, however, the picture of a clergyman of the Church of England exhibiting a like antagonism to the Craft is not to our taste. It bespeaks, in the first place, what we fear must be written down as the insolent assumption of a narrow-minded priest, that all his clerical brethren who belong to our brotherhood are, ipso facto, unworthy the blessings of Christianity. At least, this identical clergyman, whom, for the benefit of our readers, we particularise as the Rev. Wm. John Wylie, of Brigg, in Lincolnshire, and with whose illiberal action towards Masonry we have become acquainted through the instrumentality of our Rev. Bro. Daniel Ace, D.D., Vicar of Laughton, Gainsborough, in the same county—this clergyman, we repeat, denied our brethren, in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, the use of his church for the purpose of praying and expressing their sense of thankfulness to the G.A.O.T.U. for blessings received. This privilege of praying in a house of God is, as Dr. Ace very properly points out, accorded to convicts. The Rev. Mr. Wylie denies it to Masons, notwithstanding a neighbouring clergyman and many other clerical members of the Anglican Church belong to our Craft. In the next place, Mr. Wylie exhibits a most profound ignorance, as well as —we do not like writing so sharply, but it is our duty—an utter want of that Charity which a certain inspired writer has told us is the basis of Christianity. Who should illustrate the beautiful love for God and our neighbour, which Christianity enjoins on all men, more unceasingly or more emphatically than a priest of the Christian Church? Even if Masons are a godless set of people, that is, indeed, the greater reason why they should not be denied the benefit of prayer when they seek it. If Mr. Wylie knew what Masonry was, what it practised and preached, he never would have descended to so low a level as to set the precepts of his religion at defiance, for the purpose of denouncing us, by act, if not in word. We have made these remarks in sorrow, not in anger. Let Mr. Wylie read our Constitutions, and, to mention no others, the various works of the late Dr. Oliver, and we dare venture to think he will have a higher opinion of Freemasonry, and in future, perhaps, may prove himself a more orthodox exponent of Christian Charity.

FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We have been requested to make the following corrections in amounts collected for the Boys' School Festival of last week:—

Province of Cornwall, per W. J. Hughan, should be £453 12s.

Doric Lodge, No. 933, per John G. Stevens, S.W. P.M. 554, should be £228 18s.

Perfect Ashlar Lodge, No. 1178, per Joseph Stock J.D., should have been £66 3s; this latter amount was put right in part of our issue last week.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart will propose at the meeting of the Girls' School, to be held to-day:—

"That considering the satisfactory condition of the funds of the School, ten of the unsuccessful Candidates at the last election highest on the Poll, be admitted without further election, at the same time as those already elected, and that arrangements be made for their reception in the Infirmary until the alterations now in progress at the School are completed."

HISTORIES OF OUR LODGES.

WE have much pleasure in reproducing, from the Southampton Times, of 27th April 1872, the able History of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, No. 130, Southampton, by our lamented Brother J. Rankin Stebbing, P.G.D. (late Deputy Prov. G.M., Hants and the Isle of Wight). In last week's issue of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE we reprinted a transcript of the Warrant, issued by the "Ancients" in A.D. 1772, which is inserted in the Bye-Laws of the Lodge.

The history is a most curious one indeed, as it is quite evident, from an examination of the records, that the members had two warrants, one being from the regular Grand Lodge, and the other from the "Ancients," the Lodge being fond of playing the "Modern" tune at one time, and the "Ancient" at another.

Our readers will doubtless be glad of the particulars afforded in the racy sketch by an old and esteemed friend and P.M. of the Lodge, now, alas! to be reckoned amongst the departed.

ROYAL GLOUCESTER LODGE.

THE ancient and honourable institution of Freemasonry affords numerous instances of long established Lodges, and in our own province many exist that much exceed one hundred years from their original formation. Cowes, Winchester, Ringwood, and Bournemouth are amongst the number. The history of the Lodge of Hengists in the last-named town has been ably written by the Rev. Bro. P. H. Newnham, its W. Master in 1870, and is commended to the perusal of the studious Mason; but the history of the Royal Gloucester Lodge is one peculiarly its own, and it is proposed to give that history at some considerable length, connecting with it the highly interesting proceedings of this most auspicious day, the distinguished presence of the most Worshipful Grand Master, his Grand Officers, his highly popular representative in this province, Bro. Beach, and the Provincial Grand Officers, the Masters, Officers, and members of the local Lodges, as well as many from other parts of Hampshire, and especially and prominently so large an attendance of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, all mark abundantly a great day for Masonry and a great testimony to the amity and brotherly love which should ever exist amongst Masons.

It is not proposed at this time to dwell on the antiquity of Freemasonry, but it is necessary to say, in reference to the Royal Gloucester Lodge, that in 1717 there existed two great Masonic bodies known by the name of the Antient or York Masons, and afterwards the Athol Masons, claiming to be the Grand Lodge of all England, and another the Modern or London Masons, afterwards called the Sussex Masons, adopting the title of the Grand Lodge of England. This latter body was so far re-constituted in 1717 as to admit as members of the Masonic body persons who were not practically associated with architecture, and then for the first time, gentlemen, professional men, and persons of various occupations were admitted into Masonry, provided they had the advantage of good character, were free by birth, and of the full age of 21; though at one time no one was admitted under 25 years, and now in our own more advanced age freedom by birth is not insisted upon.

Under this former body (the York or Athol Masons) the Royal Gloucester Lodge came into existence, though not then having that or any distinctive name, but simply "No. 174." It may, however, be observed that amongst the papers of the late Bro. Slade the Lodge was called (and evidently from some authority he had seen) the Holy Trinity, No. 174, the manuscript book containing which is in the hands of Bro. P.M. Hickman. Nor can this designation be discarded from certain considerations that may present themselves, as many of the prayers and invocations in use at the time were specially of a Christian character.

The first meeting of the Lodge was held, under dispensation, on the 12th day of January, and again on the 4th of February 1772, the founders being Jos. Adams, a schoolmaster, and Edwin Jones, a sailmaker, afterwards in the warrant as W. Master and Senior Warden. At this time the Thos. Widdell whose name appears in the warrant as Senior Warden was not a Mason, but was made one on the 6th of February following by dispensation, in consideration, as is entered on the minutes, of W. St. Barbe (who acted as Warden on the 12th of January) going to sea, and in order to keep up the Lodge. No delay seemed to have been allowed, for the Lodge met again on the 12th, 15th, and 26th of February, the 11th, and 30th of March, and the 8th and 16th of April. They proposed, balloted for, entered, and passed Mr. Antram and Captain M. Smetham on one and the same evening, and afterwards had a lecture on the "Prentice and Craft," and on the 22nd of April 1772, the Lodge was formally constituted, as is thus extracted from the minute book of the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Freemasons, from 1760 to 1778.

Closed at 3 o'clock, and adjourned to the next General Grand Lodge.

The warrants for "three hours only" was the custom in those days when Brethren were deputed to hold Grand Lodges, but to prevent any misuse of that power their authority lasted only for a very limited and specified time.

The Lodge was therefore formed and constituted under the Athol constitution, and was always an "ancient" Lodge, and very frequently a modern Lodge, for many years keeping two sets of books and corresponding with each Grand Lodge as a true and faithful ancient or modern Lodge, as best suited the occasion, but in its early days very faithful to the Athol Grand Lodge for a very lengthened period. So severely did the ancient and modern Masons keep apart, that although the difference in their ceremonies was very trifling, they were not allowed to visit each other's Lodges unless re-made according to the form of the Lodge they desired to join: thus February 12 is this entry:—In order to strengthen the Lodge rose Bro. Thomas Widdell to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, also entered, passed, and raised Bro. Josh. Truelove, "he being a modern Mason." The Lodge met now with great regularity and success, sixteen meetings and thirteen initiations in 1772, twenty-one meetings and six initiations in 1773, twenty-eight and five in 1774, and so on with increasing numbers and success. Joseph Booth, William Wakeford, William Graves, Phil Osbaldiston, Thomas Adney Payne were among those initiated, and may possibly be predecessors of present families of that name. Many persons of Guernsey and Sunderland were also initiated, and very many of Portsmouth and Winchester. The lectures were given with great regularity, modern Masons were rigorously excluded, the brethren attended Divine service in procession, and so the Lodge progressed till 1784, when, a subscription having been previously raised for the purpose, the brethren moved from the Vine Tavern to a spacious and private room and other premises in East-street, in the same town. St. John's Day appears to have been always kept with great strictness, for they were summoned 8th June 1785, at 8 o'clock in the morning. The singers were desired to attend to sing an anthem, and the brethren to appear in aprons and gloves, at their own expense. At 11 o'clock the Lodge proceeded in form to Holy Rood Church, thirty-three in number, when a sermon was preached by the Rev. Richard Mant. Twice in 1786 the master was fined for not sending the keys in time, and the treasurer for keeping the books. Several brethren were excluded the Lodge for non-payment of dues. Brethren who were non-resident continued to be proposed, balloted for, and made and passed the same evening, and 2nd May 1790, the Rev. Thos. Rook was made a Mason, being the first clergyman on the list.

The banquets appear to have been frequently got up in kind, of which the following entry gives a sample:—

Br. Baker	to find a ham
Br. Steele	"	a quarter of lamb
Br. Graves	"	bread, biscuits and lemons
Br. Amor	"	a couple of fowls
Br. Osbaldiston	"	a pudding
Br. Edwards	"	sauce for the salmon
Br. Macklin	"	a pigeon pie
Br. Muzzle	"	a ditto
Br. Hart	"	a gooseberry pie
Br. Jacobs	"	a bushel of peas
Br. Figes	"	a Cranbury pie
Br. Wm. Baker	"	a salad
The Lodge	"	a salmon

In 1792 some important matters took place. 2nd August the Lodge met to consider an offer from Mr. Thomas Dunckerley, Provincial Grand Master, under the Modern Grand Lodge, to consider the propriety of accepting a Dispensation to hold a Lodge under the Prince of Wales, and the ballot being taken there appeared for 11, against 4, and on the 8th August a dispensation was received, and the Lodge now became and number 503, under the new Registration.

The Royal Gloucester Lodge,

On the 3rd of August, and probably connected with the foregoing, the foundation stone of All Saints' Church was laid, with all due Masonic pomp, by Thomas Dunckerley, P.G. Master. The Hants Chronicle stated that a vast number of Brethren attended from the Isle of Wight and the most remote parts of Hampshire. The ancient Lodges of Free and Accepted Masons in this town, in order to qualify themselves to form in procession at the laying the foundation stone of All Saints' Church, obtained a Modern Institution, the night before, from Thomas Dunckerley P.G.M. The procession returned to the Audit-house, where an oration was delivered by Bro. Thomas Jeans, M.D., of Southampton.

The circumstances of the Hants Chronicle speaking of Lodges, and another publication of the oration having been delivered at the Audit-house, renders it probable that another Lodge was associated in this goodly work; for a Lodge, called the Lodge of Concord, also an ancient Lodge, then existed at Southampton, and assembled at the Audit-house, many of the Corporation and principal inhabitants belonging to it. A few names subjoined (members of that Lodge) will be familiar to Southampton ears:—

Ward, James Amyatt, Peter Gauntlett, Thomas Smith, John Fuller, Richard Vernon Moody, Thomas Ridding, George Waring, John Edwards, George Frederick Pitt, Bryan Edwards, Hon. H. F. Forbes, Dr. Jeans, Samuel Harrison, John Keele, William Jolliffe, John Jelliffe, and as many as ten clergymen. James Grierson was at one time Master of the Lodge, and the handsome ebony and ivory working tools of the Lodge came into the hands of Bro. Charles Deacon, who presented them to the Royal Gloucester Lodge, and when the Lodge of Concord broke up, the members remaining gave the portrait of their first Master, Lord Montague, to this Lodge, and it now graces these walls. The Lodge of Concord existed as far back, at least, as 1778, and probably became dormant in 1812, though it remained on the Masonic Calendar till 1817, but no vestige of its warrant or books remains.

Referring again to the Royal Gloucester Lodge, Bro. Dunckerley now appears to have paid it great attention. He attended a Lodge of Emergency, 17th of September 1792, and with a warrant of constitution regularly constituted the Lodge. He appointed Bro. Grierson his D.P.G.M., and made other grand officers of the province, and on his own proposition he and Bro. Grierson became members of the Lodge, a new book of proceedings was ordered, and the Lodge then seemed to have left the ancient body of Freemasons.

This, however, was never really done, but the brethren thenceforth were sometimes ancient and sometimes modern Masons, and it must be confessed, in a somewhat stealthy style, for in the ancient book, 24th of June, it is agreed to hold a Lodge, and that the transaction shall be entered into the old book, as before; and on looking to the Royal Arch Book of proceedings of a corresponding date, it is ordered that the Grand Lodge dues for this ancient society shall be paid out of the Royal Arch Chest.

The custom in the Lodge from 1772 to 1792 was invariably to appoint the Master and officers for six months only, and it was probably a general practice, as the minute books of the Lodge of Economy, Winchester, show a similar system. At this time the Master and officers were chosen for the year, the Lodge, and not the W. Master, appointing the officers.

The Lodge continued to progress very favourably, the lectures were frequently delivered, and the Lodge sometimes opened as a modern and sometimes as an ancient Lodge. September 22nd 1795, Bro. Dr. Jeans D.P.G.M., and Master of the Lodge of Concord, attended, and obtained names of all the members, and delivered a lecture on the 1st degree. In 1796, 23rd March, Mr. Rice was proposed as a member by the W. Master, but being a Quaker, the ballot was deferred till the opinion of the Grand Lodge was taken, and, 13th April, the Grand Secretary of the Ancient Grand Lodge wrote that he could not be admitted.

In more modern times Grand Lodge takes a very different view of things, and, with its entire approval, several members of the Society of Friends have been initiated in the Royal Gloucester Lodge.

It seems to have been the custom at this time to instal the Wardens as well as the Masters of the Lodge; and it is on record that the late Grand Secretary, Bro. W. H. White, stated that at one time he had been installed Senior Warden of a Lodge, and took an obligation, 1798, June 27th. It was agreed to drop the modern constitution, and not to work under it any more; and on the 14th of October 1799, a letter is written to the D.P.G.M. to say that, being all registered in the Ancient Grand Lodge under the Duke of Athol, they beg to discontinue their modern warrant. This seems not to have been carried out, for on the 8th of September 1802, two sets of returns are made, and one sent to each Grand Lodge. On the 24th of June 1803, the brethren agreed to continue the warrant under the Duke of Athol; but on the following 14th of September this was reversed, and the same changeableness seems to have characterised all the proceedings; and finally, at the union in 1814, the brethren renounced their modern 503 warrant, and adopted the Athol warrant, No. 174, by which we now celebrate our centenary in 1873, instead of 1892, and our ancient brethren remained faithful to their original constitution. It may not be uninteresting to the brethren to be informed that all Lodges in the Masonic Calendar without dates were originally Ancient or Athol Lodges, and those with dates modern or Sussex Lodges; and that, although this Lodge appears next to 1763, it cannot claim an older date than 1772, though entitled to the seniority preceding 1764.

The Royal Gloucester Lodge gave its first ball and supper 8th January 1813, and in 1814 Colonel Sherborne Stewart, of the Great Salterns, became P.G. Master, and in the same year, to the great benefit of the Masonic fraternity, the two opposing Grand Lodges became one. Thus was established upon an enduring and lasting basis the United Grand Lodge of England, the most powerful Grand Lodge in existence, and extending its beneficent sway over the greater portion of the civilised world.

Here, in 1814, the Lodge of Concord disappeared, and the Royal Gloucester Lodge became the only Masonic body in the town, taking the new number of 212, and so matters remained for some fourteen or fifteen years.

In 1815 the Provincial Grand Lodge assembled at Southampton. Under Colonel Stewart and Dr. Jeans the Lodge progressed very satisfactorily, many influential residents were initiated, amongst them Sir William de Crespigny Bart., Sam Le Feuvre, John Witt, Joseph Lobb, now happily amongst us, and upwards of fifty years a Mason. Sir Wm. De Crespigny having become W. Master of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, was in 1821 appointed to the office of P.G.M. The Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex, of blessed memory, came down and initiated him, and the Lodges of Hampshire assembled in great strength to pay homage to their illustrious chief, the Worshipful the Mayor and Corporation gave many facilities, and joined the Masonic body in the procession to church.

Shortly after, Abel Rous Dottin, one of the members for the borough, the Rev. W. Waring, Admiral Bullen, Dr. Shadwell, Wm. J. Le Feuvre, the father of the present immediate Past Master of the Lodge, Thomas White Clement, Stephen Judd, Charles Davis, Charles Maul, Captain Ranier and others, whose memory is still cherished by many in this town, were initiated into Freemasonry. In 1826 Charles Ewens Deacon, the father of this Lodge and Senior Past Master, was initiated. He is happily present this evening, and long may he live to receive the grateful recognition of his brother Masons. In 1827 Bro. Abraham, the father of our excellent treasurer, became a joining member, and, the numbers increasing, on the 4th of February 1829 a new Lodge was formed, called the Southampton Lodge, and of whom Sir John Millbank became the first Master, and Edward Bryant and Joseph Lobb first Wardens, the Lodge then meeting at Benwell's rooms, but now occupying the same premises as the Royal Gloucester Lodge, the members of both Lodges being on terms of much good feeling and mutual respect. In the years 1835-36 Bro. Deacon occupied the Master's chair, and revived the Lodge from a temporary dullness. On leaving the chair he received a very handsome jewel from the members of the Lodge, a presentation that had then very rarely been made to any one.

The Lodge had removed in 1823 from East-street to the present Masonic Hall, but the hall got into private hands, and in 1838 was nearly lost to the brethren by a sale for commercial purposes. Bro. P. M. Deacon, with immense energy, rallied a few of the brethren around him, and in two or three days succeeded in raising £1,300 in fifty-two shares of £25 each. The Masonic body now found a home for Masonry, which, though not now sufficient for the increasing numbers, has been a source of great comfort and happiness to the brethren, and of great advantage to the Lodge.

Bro. Stebbing having folded up the paper from which he had read the foregoing, proceeded to say: Leaving the hasty sketch of the Lodge's history now brought down to times within the memory of many then present, and which would probably be more completely given to the Craft at an early day, he had but to glance at a few interesting points in conclusion, and especially at the names of several brethren amongst them whose families, in various relations, had been members of the Royal Gloucester Lodge. Three of the Le Feuvre family were amongst the number, and one, Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre, their present well-skilled immediate Past Master, was now on the dais. Two of the Lobb family, father and son—to the former of whom he had before had the pleasure of referring—and one case of especial interest, that of Bro. Abraham Abraham, formerly Sheriff of Southampton, and the first gentleman of the Jewish persuasion who ever held that office in any town in England, and who, with the worthy Treasurer of the Lodge, Bro. Henry Abraham, then on his right hand, afforded, he believed, the only instance in the Royal Gloucester Lodge where both father and son served the honourable office of Master. The father of the present W. Master was a member of the Lodge, and Past Master of another, affording a somewhat similar, but not the interesting instance of both father and son being Masters of one and the same Lodge. Three brothers of the Perkins family were members of the Lodge, all men of mark and energy in the town, and two of them were present that day, Bro. George Perkins, who was excellent in office, and Bro. Frederick Perkins, who not only served more than once as Master of the Lodge, but had been four or five times Mayor of Southampton, to the great advantage of the municipality. Both J. R. and A. H. Weston had also been Masters of the Lodge, full of usefulness and thorough men of business—the pleasure of the company of the former was much dimmed by the absence and serious illness of the latter. He referred with pleasure to his amiable friend Bro. Edward Coxwell, having been Master of the Lodge, and his eldest son, Captain Coxwell, one of the members; and lastly and sadly to say, another Past Master, who had worked so well in preparation for that celebration, and who stood so high in the province as Grand Secretary, was, with his eldest son, also a Mason, now sorrowing over the remains of their much-loved son and brother, who only forty-eight hours since had been, in very early manhood, called to another and a better world. The portraits of some of the present and many of the former Masonic worthies now adorned that hall, and some of the public acts of the Masons of the town and county were a part of the history of Southampton. He had alluded to their laying the foundation-stone of All Saints' Church, and they formed an important portion of the Masonic body that assisted Admiral Sir Lucius Curtis in a similar work at the commencement of the Southampton Docks, now one of the most successful commercial undertakings in the town; and the W. Master of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, Bro. Trew, had in olden time, accompanied by its members, laid the foundation-stone of the Royal South Hants Infirmary—an institution devoted to purposes so entirely akin to Freemasonry, and flourishing in the blessed work of diminishing human suffering and soothing the afflictions of their neighbours and fellow-townsmen. He had but to refer once more to the centenary of that Lodge, to the long and peaceful course that it had had. There had been no cessation to its meetings for a hundred years—customarily every month, but frequently much oftener; and that day it commenced a second centenary, with the highest hopes and under the brightest auspices, graced, as the presiding genius, with the Sovereign of the Order, and surrounded by the brethren of every grade in Masonry. Long, long in the memory of those present would live the distinguished visit of the Marquis of Ripon and the kindness of the Mayor, the reception of the Corporation, and his Lordship's most courteous bearing and eloquent address, the brilliant array of Grand Officers that surrounded him; and the presence of the much-loved Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Beach, and his officers, would, in their recollection in the future, be almost as dazzling as to-day. The hundreds of Masons in their various Lodges now courteously present would long be gratefully remembered, whilst the crowd of brethren of the Gloucester Lodge, to swell the pleasing picture of Masonic rejoicing, would ever and anon be the theme of congratulation. Their visiting brethren that day would not soon forget the architectural beauty of the hall in which they were assembled, bearing a reasonable comparison with that magnificent hall in the metropolis, the Home of Freemasonry, and probably the finest room in England. The splendid decorations of the place in which they were assembled, so fairy-like, so elegant, so Masonically appropriate, the richly-clothed brethren—the gold, the purple, the jewels, and the rich and varied paraphernalia of the Order—would, in years to come, be often talked of and seem to be but of a few years since; but let him be pardoned for saying that the visit of these distinguished Masons, however noble in rank or great in virtue, would at some distant time be less remembered, and the brilliancy of the scene gradually fade away. The highly wrought jewellery, the gay tinsel, the rich purple, and the fine linen, would succumb to the destroying hand of time, but the principles of Masonry faithfully applied would live for ever, and the gorgeous character of the scene and the happy proceedings of the day did not take his mind captive from the consideration of the great good that that Lodge had effected over a period of a hundred years. It had begun in amity and friendship, and had promoted in Southampton the formation of many friendships, and brought together men of various opinions, creeds and politics, that would otherwise have been kept at an immeasurable distance. No unhappy differences had marred its progress, and it reached the centenary in peace and tranquillity, and with hearts dedicated to brotherly love. Over that hundred years it had taught loyalty to the Crown and a love for the peace and good order of society. Charity of thought and charity of deed had been a solemn inculcation; they educated the children of their decayed brethren, and found a home and an income for the old Mason and his widow; but whilst regarding the household of faith, their hands had been extended to the outer world. They well knew of frequent donations of ten guineas to the poor of the town, to the distress of Chicago, sometimes to Ireland, to India, or at home, always unsolicited, and with a free and open hand. He would not boast of private charity, but if many of the silent aids in cases of distress could be but known, the outer world would think more kindly of Freemasonry than sometimes they were inclined to do. It could, therefore, have been no small advantage to the town of Southampton that over one hundred years of time a body of men loyal to the throne, faithful to good order, devoted to charity, cultivating brotherly love, had lived and thrived in Southampton, and had now thought it right to hold a public rejoicing, and loudly celebrate the event; they had humbly offered their thanksgiving to the Giver of all good that day, and gratefully acknowledged the blessings that surrounded them. These high and lofty purposes far outstripped all the vast attractions of that day, and justified him in saying that the principles of Masonry would yet flourish in the freshness of immortal youth, survive the wreck of mighty empires, and resist the destroying hand of time. Mercifully spared as that Lodge had been for a period of one hundred years, and entering that day on the commencement of a second centenary, may the great Architect of the universe bless it in the future, prosper its career, extend its usefulness, put it in the hearts of the brethren to be kindly affectioned one towards another, to practice charity, to love mercy, and to be in all things an honour to their profession, and a credit and blessing to the town of Southampton in which they had the happiness to live.

ANTIENT AND PRIMITIVE MASONRY.

SOVEREIGN SANCTUARY.

A MEETING of the Sovereign Sanctuary of the Antient and Primitive Rite of Masonry, 33rd and last degree, in and for Great Britain and Ireland, was duly held, at Manchester, on the 1st inst. The places of the three Principal Officers were filled by Illustrious Brothers John Yarker G.M.G., Charles Scott J.P., G.A.G., Beeby Bowman Labrey G.K.G. of G.B. Apologies were announced from three brethren who were absent, and unable to attend, either from the great distance or prior engagements. The minutes of the last Convocation were read and confirmed, as well as the proceedings since; firstly, as to the Order of Misraim, that a fee of 10s should be charged to cover cost of certificate and manual, and a joining fee of 31s 6d to members of foreign jurisdictions for the same; secondly, as to the publication of the Statutes, Constitution and History. Satisfactory evidence of the progress of the Rite was adduced under Illustrious Bros. Alexr. B. Mott, M.D., of New York, and George Canning Longley, of Maitland, Canada; as also in this country.

The decoration of the Grand Star of Sirius (conferred every five years) was awarded to the Right Illustrious Bro. S. P. Leather, of Burnley, Treasurer General, for the zeal and ability he had shown in the propagation of the Rite: the next year's award of the Alidee to be made by the Grand Chancery, as also to any deserving cases for the Bronze Order of Merit.

The past dignitary officers were confirmed in the rank they now hold, but Illustrious Bro. B. B. Labrey was appointed Deputy to the Grand Chancellor General.

It was directed that two parts—Section V. (Areopagus), and Section VII. (Council)—of the Ritual should be placed in the printers hands as the funds of the Sovereign Sanctuary would allow. A revisal of the 30° was submitted, and highly eulogised as the most beautiful ceremony in any known system of Masonry. The proceedings were closed with enthusiastic wishes for the progress of the Rite.

LORD LEIGH AND THE "FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have not the honour of knowing either the R.W. Bro. Lord Leigh, Prov. Grand Master of Warwickshire, or the editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, so I may be fairly termed a disinterested party in the present question as to the criticism of the editor, and Lord Leigh of the article, which appeared in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

I have carefully read the analysis of the Stewards' lists at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, 9th February 1876 (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE of 26th February), and can see no ground of complaint by the Province of Warwickshire, or indeed by any other Province alluded to as defaulters at that Festival. Indeed, I think that if the deservedly esteemed Lord Leigh will again peruse the "Leader" that his Lordship will agree with me in the opinion that the editor dealt with facts alone, and in no case did he cast any unfair or un-Masonic reflections on any Province whatever.

It is a difficult task to analyse the lists and contributions at our Masonic Festivals, and considering all the drawbacks, I think the editor did his self-imposed labours squarely and good naturedly. His aim, according to his statement, was to show his readers, not only what was done on that occasion, but also where brethren of energy may find fields open to them in their zealous promotion of the cause of charity * * * * the support accorded to our Institutions must be, not sectional, but general. Our Brother says he was at considerable pains in analysing the subscription list, and I believe him. In my opinion, however, no pains would prevent errors creeping in in such a work, as there is always the unknown in the way of making a complete review of the contributions of the whole of the Lodges. Many Lodges contribute from year to year without subscribing through the medium of Stewards, and it would be absurd to put down a Lodge or a Province as not contributing to our Institutions because their names were absent from the Stewards' lists.

If, however, their names were absent from the Stewards' lists—as the Provinces of Bedfordshire, Berks and Bucks, Cambridgeshire, Cornwall, Cumberland, Staffordshire, Warwickshire, &c., in reality were at the Festival in question—it would be but the simple truth to say as much, and also to note the fact that better they had been represented on such an occasion. Now this is all the editor has said, and yet, for saying so, Lord Leigh has thought it well to state that he considered (the article) somewhat personal to himself and his Province!

How can a remark be fairly considered personal when so many provinces are mentioned, and why should his Lordship consider that personal which in reality—if I know aught of the English language—is of a general character? I grant that the article in question leaves out of the analysis any account of contributions of the Lodges and provinces not represented at the Festival under consideration, but as the remarks of the Editor refer only to the Festival, why should they be strained to appear as if they had also to do with the side subscriptions, so to speak, of the brethren and Lodges in question?

I must say that I felt a little aggrieved myself at first to see my Province (Bristol) mentioned as a defaulter, for its contributions are not confined to the Festivals, as I well know, but on a closer inspection of the article, I plainly see that the Editor refers to the Festival alone, and so by such he must be judged, for Bristol was certainly unrepresented on that occasion, added to which, it is most desirable the contributions of each province should be massed at such times.

Fraternally asking each and all of the brethren of the province of Warwickshire—the province this year for the "Boys"—to read the article carefully and impartially again, I conclude this "rough note" by expressing my admiration of the right noble support given by that province to their Provincial Grand Master as President of the Festival for 1876 of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys,

I have the honour to remain,

Yours fraternally,

P.M.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.—THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Perhaps the following, which I have gathered from various sources, may help to elucidate the question raised by your correspondent, who signs himself "W. G. Beleehw," respecting the status of Mark Master Masons.

First as to their status in England. As your correspondent appears to understand their position here, my remarks will be very brief. It will suffice if I state that in the brief historical sketch of The "Origin of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons, &c, as set forth by order of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons," which precedes the authorised version of the Constitutions of the Mark Grand Lodge, all the information that can—as far as my poor judgment goes—be needed will be found. In Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence, the fourth Section of Chapter V.—"the Status of a Master Mason"—is devoted to a brief consideration of "Mark Masonry." The author tells us that, before the Union, the Mark Degree "was practised by many Lodges in conjunction with two or three others, which were unitedly denominated 'Ark, Mark and Link,'" the Mark being "conferred without the authority of a separate warrant. We are then informed that "under some systems the Mark is divided into two degrees, one of which is called Mark Man, and conferred on a Fellow Craft; the other Mark Master, which comes after the third degree; while in others it is all comprised in one degree, as a necessary link to connect the second and third." Then follows a description, who, historically, were the "Mark Men," and who, "the Mark Masters." However, no difficulty is likely to arise here, for Mark Masonry is not recognised by our Grand Lodge.

Mackey, in his Lexicon of Freemasonry, defines the "Mark Master" as "the fourth degree in the York rite." In the United States, he says, "the Mark Master's is the first degree given in a Royal Arch Chapter." Further on he adds, that "until lately the degree was not given in England, and Royal Arch Masons, arriving from that country, were obliged to be marked, before they could be permitted to enter the American Chapter."

In Scotland the case, as far as I can make out, stands thus.

Bro. Murray Lyon, at p. 71 of his valuable work on "Freemasonry in Scotland," says:—"The Mark Degree was introduced into Scotland at an advanced period of the last century, as a prerequisite for the reception of other steps, so called 'high degrees,' that in some Lodges had been surreptitiously dovetailed into the Masonic curriculum. It appears not to have been worked by the Lodge Journeymen till about 1789; by Mary's Chapel, not till 1869; by Kilwinning, never. William James Hughan of Truro has, in the following excerpt from the minutes of Lodge Operative, Banff, of date January 7, 1778, produced the earliest authentic record yet made known of the existence of the Mark Degree in Scotland: 'That in time coming all members that shall hereafter raise to the Degree of Mark Mason shall pay one mark Scots, but not to obtain the Degree of Mark Mason before they are passed Fellow-craft. And those that shall take the Degree of Mark Master Masons shall pay one shilling and sixpence sterling into the Treasurer for behoofe of the Lodge. None to attain to the Degree of Mark Master Mason until they are raised Master.'"

Bro. Lyon had previously (p. 69) stated that "the conferring of marks had no place in the Symbolical Degrees for the dissemination of which the Grand Lodge of Scotland was instituted; and so recently as 1838, in its deliverance upon an application from a daughter Lodge for permission to work the Mark Degree, that Grand Body held this step to belong to another Order of Masonry than that of St. John. This once repudiated Degree has, however, through the elasticity of the Scotch Constitution, since become grafted upon the second degree practised under Grand Lodge charters, a wide-spread feeling of repugnance to the multiplying of oaths, already held to be needlessly numerous, has prevented the step being adopted to any considerable extent. Its reintroduction to Mary's Chapel—if 'reintroduction' it can be called—after an absence of a century and a half, was inaugurated in 1869."

Much else of interest will be found bearing on the subject of Marks in Bro. Lyon's work, but considerations of space forbid me extracting more.

But what say the Constitutions of Grand Lodge of Scotland on the subject? At p. 46 we read, "all Lodges holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland are strictly prohibited and discharged from holding any other meeting than those of the three Orders, viz.: Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason denominated, St. John's Masonry, the Mark forming part of the second degree (though only to be conferred on Master Masons)." At p. 2 we read, "the Grand Lodge of Scotland practises, and recognises no degrees of Masonry but those of Apprentice, Fellow Craft, and Master Mason, denominated SAINT JOHN'S MASONRY," and there is added in a foot-note, "including the Mark, which, however, Grand Lodge does not recognise as a separate degree."

In Bro. Chalmers Paton's, Freemasonry and its Jurisprudence we are told: "In Scotland, all Fellow Crafts are entitled to a Mark. This, according to legend, they all possessed in former times; and when the Royal Arch was instituted in Scotland, this degree was taken up and worked by them." We are next furnished with the agreement entered into "some time ago"—date not given—between the Grand Lodge of Scotland and the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland; the following being "the Resolutions of the Committees appointed by "these two bodies" on Mark Masonry, and "declared to be held for the future as the Laws and Statutes of Grand Lodge," viz.:—

1. That all Lodges holding of the Grand Lodge of Scotland shall be allowed to work this degree in virtue of the charters which they already possess.
2. That, to prevent confusion with brethren belonging to Lodges out of this Kingdom, or with Sister Grand Lodges, this degree, although held by the Grand Lodge, to be a second part of the Fellow Craft Degree, shall only be conferred on Master Masons, and the secrets shall only be communicated in presence of those who have taken it either from a Lodge or Chapter entitled to grant it.
3. That the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland shall adopt the same ritual in conferring the degree, being that now adjusted by their respective Committees.
4. That any candidate applying to be admitted to the Royal Arch Degree,—if he has received this degree in a regular Lodge of St. John's Masonry,—shall not be required to take it a second time from the Chapter into which he seeks admission, but, in the event of his not having received it, he shall be obliged to take it from that Chapter.
5. That, as regards the Royal Arch Degrees, this Degree shall be reckoned the fourth degree in Masonry.
6. That nothing contained in these Regulations shall interfere with the superintendence which the Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter claims over Mark Masonry out of Scotland, or with the Lodges holding of it in England or abroad.

The quotation from Oliver and excerpt of Bro. Hughan, quoted by Bro Lyon, will probably explain the association of the Mark with the degree of Fellow Craft, and yet that it must be conferred only on Master Masons. From the Scotch Constitutions and the extract from Bro. Paton I deduce, (1) that a Craft Lodge in Scotland may legally confer the Mark Degree on a Master Mason, but it is not recognised as "a separate degree," (2) "it is not necessary that a candidate for admission to the R.A. degree, who has already received the Mark Degree in a regular Craft Lodge, should receive it a second time from the Chapter; but if he has not, his reception of it from the Chapter is obligatory. Taking into account what Bro. Lyon describes as the "elasticity of the Scotch constitution," I should hesitate to say what may or may not be done in connection with the Mark Degree, but looking fairly and fully at the statement of your correspondent, I must certainly incline to the opinion that "issuing a distinct Diploma and charging a special fee" appears to be a very near approach to that recognition of the Mark as "a separate degree," which according to the footnote p. 2 of the Grand Lodge Constitutions already quoted, is distinctly forbidden.

In saying this, I am only expressing my opinion. Abler and more competent brethren must decide the point.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am a fairly aged Mason, but having the misfortune to live in the country am poorly posted in Masonic Jurisprudence; however, having seen in your issue of the 17th ult. reports of R.A. Chapters 50 and 87, and noted the discussions that took place in these Chapters on the Mark Degree, some of our most enlightened Companions, such as Dothie and "Eclechw" taking part in them, I waited with some curiosity, not unmixed with an itching for knowledge, for the "CHRONICLE," and am glad to find Bro. "W. G. R." asking from "Bro. Binckes," or any other, "enlightenment on the legal status of Mark Masters made under the authority of a Craft Lodge Charter." Allow me to ask, is it not sufficient for us "North of the Tweed" that, by both the laws of our Grand Lodge and S.G. Chapter, any Brother so advanced, is legally so?

Bro. "W. G. R." must recollect a Craft Lodge in Glasgow, some 16 or 17 years ago, being suspended by the P.G. Lodge of Glasgow for working the Mark Degree, and on appeal to Grand Lodge, that body, from the evidence produced, was "compelled to admit that the Mark Degree was, in point of fact, a part of the F.C. Degree." Hitherto, S.G. Chapter had full and undivided power over this Degree, now, it became necessary that a change should take place, and accordingly a joint committee of Grand Lodge and S.G. Chapter, agreed upon, and issued the enclosed circular, for which I hope you will try and find room in your next issue. "W. G. R." says, "several Craft Lodges have opened what they call 'Mark Lodges,' with separate officers, meeting on a different night, issuing a distinct diploma, and charging a special fee. All the distinctive features of a separate order, you will observe." This being the actual state of matters in Glasgow, but nowhere else, I am of opinion that, with the above exceptions, all those Lodges who practise the Mark Degree keep strictly within the bounds to which they are restricted by their charter.

I should like to see the reply of "Our Hercules" to the two last questions of "W. G. R."

Fraternally yours,

NOUS VERRONS.

The following is the circular referred to above:—

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

Freemasons' Hall, Grand Secretary's Office,
98 George-street, Edinburgh.

R.W. SIR AND BROTHER,—I have to direct your attention to the Resolutions of the Committees appointed by Grand Lodge and Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland on MARK MASONRY, which have been finally adopted by these two Bodies, and declared to be held for the future as the LAWS and STATUTES of this GRAND LODGE, viz.:—

[Here follow the clauses Nos. 1 to 6, same as quoted by our correspondent "Q.," and which we give in his letter.]

You will observe that the Mark Degree here mentioned, although held to be a part of the Fellow Craft Degree, is only to be conferred on MASTER MASONS, and only to be communicated in presence of those who have already lawfully attained it.

The Ritual, prepared in terms of the above Resolutions, lies here for reference, where all interested are invited to consult it.

The Grand Committee have not yet been able to report on the Degree of Chair Master.

I am, R.W. Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

5th November 1860. JOHN LAURIE, G. Clerk.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Cui Bono? Masonry: What's the use of it? or, the last secret of Freemasonry revealed. Being Five Lectures on the Utility of Freemasonry, delivered by the late FRANCIS MASON, M.A., D.D., author of "Pali Grammar," "Karen Grammar," "Karen Trigonometry," "Burmah," "The Story of a Working Man's Life," &c., "Past Grand Deacon of the Grand Lodge of Missouri, and Chaplain of Lodge Greenlaw, No. 1,095, Toungoo, Burmah. Edited by E. G. Man, Barrister-at-Law, Past Master, Lodge "Rangoon," District Grand Registrar in the District Grand Lodge, British Burmah. Printed for the editor by Cassell, Petter and Galpin.

THESE lectures were in the first instance delivered in open Lodge, but much new matter having since been added, the author takes upon himself all responsibility for the sentiments to which he gives expression. We imagine, however, his views will prove in the main acceptable. He is most enthusiastic in his advocacy of Freemasonry. He makes it apparent that the objections so frequently raised against it rest on no satisfactory basis, and that only the most wilful opponent can refuse to be convinced of the utter worthlessness of such objections. He is very methodical as well as very careful in his statements, his arguments being very skilfully strung together. His apology is, indeed, a great success, whether we look at it logically or as to its literary merits, and a brief sketch of the lectures may not prove altogether without interest to our readers.

The first two are devoted to a consideration of Ancient Masonry—in the one, as it was anterior, in the other, as it was posterior to Solomon. Our readers will, of course, be able to form some notion of the principal points referred to in these. We pass, therefore, to the Third Lecture. Herein are dealt with the "Passive Use of Speculative Masonry." Having first noted the evils which must arise where class distinctions exist, and having pointed out that men are gregarious animals, or rather, as the author puts it, society-animals, he then proceeds to argue the necessity there is that some Œcumenical Society should be established, and he affirms that the germ of such a society already exists, and will be found in Freemasonry. In the next chapter are shown the "Aggressive Uses of Speculative Masonry." The title of this lecture is suggestive of a certain amount of violence, and violence, too, of a serious kind. The word "aggression" usually implies an offensive movement—offensive, that is to say, in more senses than one. This, however, is not the meaning here given to "aggression." It is intended to show the good that Freemasonry might effect if only it directed its attention to overcoming, by its influence and example, the many abuses to which men are liable. The aggression is intended to be directed against what is baneful to society, and here the writer enlarges on the amount of good of which Masonry is capable. No doubt, as its influence becomes greater, many of the evils we have such reason to complain of will disappear. Masonry is the one Order or Society which affords a common ground for men of different political and religious views to meet upon, and when men meet more frequently, they will necessarily work more harmoniously. Thus Freemasonry is the opponent of all that is discordant, and the steady progress it will certainly make against whatever disturbing elements exist may rightly be set down as among its "aggressive uses." The concluding Lecture, in which are set forth "the Unity of Love, the Unity of Masonry," sums up the author's case very admirably.

Having said this much, we leave the rest to our readers. Let them read, and determine for themselves whether these lectures are, or are not, worthy of the encomiums we have passed upon them. We have not the slightest misgiving as to the verdict they will pronounce. We feel sure they will be well satisfied that, even if any other line of defence, in protecting our Order from the attacks so pertinaciously made upon it had been thought preferable, the effect would not, by any means, have been more telling. Dr. Mason, whose death occurred so recently as March 1874, was a Mason of long standing, having completed, at the time of his death, a connection with Freemasonry extending over more than half a century. He had held office both in the United States and under the English Grand Lodge, and from his long and intimate acquaintance with the meaning of our mysteries he was better able than most brethren to form a just conclusion of its merits and power. We trust the publication of these lectures, which have been most carefully edited by Bro. E. G. Man, will prove of service both to the widow, who, we are very sorry to hear, is left in not over prosperous circumstances, and the Craft. We are sure it will enhance, if that, at least, be possible, the respect in which this earnest exponent of Masonry was held by all sections of the Brotherhood. A few essays such as these will be of undoubted good in furthering the cause of Masonry.

The Royal Masonic Cyclopædia. History, Rites, Symbolism and Biography. Edited by KENNETH H. MACKENZIE, ("Cryptonymus"). Part IV. London: Bro. John Hogg, 15A Paternoster Row, E.C.

THIS Part takes us as far forward in the alphabet as the letter N, which is completed up to Nov. We find everywhere in it the same evidences of care in the compilation and selection of matter, the same power of easy condensation, very few of the articles extending to any length, while all are fully explanatory of the subjects they deal with. Precision and clearness are two of Bro. Mackenzie's most conspicuous traits, but the former is never obtained by any sacrifice of necessary exposition. We have before said that this Royal Masonic Cyclopædia will, when complete, be a most valuable work, in fact, one of the most important additions to Masonic literature during the last quarter of a century. Certain it is, the closer becomes our acquaintance with Bro. Mackenzie's work, the more convinced are we of the correctness of this opinion. It is a clear, concise and accurate compilation, and, as such, we hope it will be well and worthily supported by the Craft generally.

Cook's Tourist's Handbook for the Black Forest. London: Thomas Cook and Son, Ludgate Circus, E.C.; Simpkin, Marshall and Co. 1876.

THE remarks we recently made on another of these useful Handbooks apply equally well to the one before us. The first dozen pages are, for the most part, of general interest, while the rest of the work is devoted to a description of the Black Forest itself, its general and particular features, its scenery, agriculture, inhabitants, history, &c. How to proceed, what places to stop at, what hotels to patronise, the scenes of interest that demand a special notice, all these are detailed very fully and circumstantially, so that a tourist who follows the directions laid down in these pages will have himself only to blame if his visit to this attractive part of Europe is not an agreeable one. The Appendix contains a list of places in Europe, with the principal festivals, and the days on which they are held. There is also a carefully prepared Index of names of places, &c., and the various features of note which the tourist is expected, or will in all likelihood be prompted, to "do." These, with a capital map, will be found most valuable. We have no hesitation in recommending this Handbook to all intending tourists. The information it contains is complete and accurate, and has the further advantage of being well arranged for reference.

A Few Words of Advice on Travelling and its Requirements. Addressed to ladies. By H. M. L. S. With short vocabulary in French and German. Second Edition. London: Thomas Cook and Son, Ludgate Circus; Simpkin, Marshall & Co.; New York: Cork, Son and Jenkins, 261 Broadway.

WE trust none of our fair readers will think us ungallant if we say that a little work of this kind is very necessary. Good advice, of course, is always welcome, and we know of no class of people who stand more in need of it than the tourist, and the lady tourist in particular. Men do not find it imperative to burden themselves with many impedimenta, but ladies, when contemplating a trip abroad, are often at a loss what to take with them, what to leave behind. If a visit to some foreign capital is intended, then a sufficient assortment of dress similar to what is worn at home is necessary. People ought to dress equally well in a foreign city as in London. If, however, the trip is of a more ambitious character, then dresses for travel as well as for civilized society must be provided. Be it remembered that the conveyance of luggage in nearly all foreign countries is somewhat expensive, and certainly involves trouble. The packages should be few in number; they are more easily looked after, and stand less chance of being lost by the way. Their contents should be of good quality, able to stand wear and tear, and not requiring to be changed too often. Only a veteran can speak with authority on these matters, and it is a veteran who tenders advice in these pages. For this reason alone we are by no means surprised these hints as to "Travelling and its Requirements" should have reached a second edition. Other reasons there are, however, and among them, that advice is offered to visitors to any and every part of the habitable world: what and how much a person should take to India, what to America, what in making the circuit of the world. Other information there is,—for instance, as to souvenirs, and where to buy them; as to money, hotels, fees, custom-house establishments, &c. &c., and the Vocabulary in French and German will be found extremely useful. We cannot call to mind a book of this class which contains more valuable hints within so modest a compass, and we strongly advise our fair friends who are not already provided with one, to purchase a copy; they will find the money spent a most profitable investment.

Cook's West of England Tours will prove useful to intending visitors to this part of England, and especially to those who have formed no plan of travel. The pamphlet includes a series of "Programmes of a new system of Tours between Bristol and the Land's End." Every point of interest is noticed, and full particulars are given of the various modes of conveyance, by rail, steamer, coach, or private vehicle. There are also several illustrations, accompanied by descriptions, of certain of the principal towns in the district.

Experimental Spiritism. The Medium's Book, or Guide for Mediums and for Evocations. By ALLAN KARDEC. Translated from the 84th French edition, by ANNA BLACKWELL. London: Trübner. 1876.

THIS is a book for Spiritualists, or at least for people who are not indisposed to believe in Spiritualism. The statements made, and the theories advanced in it are of so extraordinary a character that the incredulous reader would probably be only the more confirmed in his incredulity by its perusal. Yet the author has evidently written in good faith, and the views he enunciates, it cannot be doubted, he himself implicitly believed. Many of the chapters are moreover closely argued, particularly the first two, entitled respectively "Do Spirits Exist?" and "The Marvellous and the Supernatural." It is in the latter chapters that the sceptic will find his greatest difficulty. When he is asked to believe that Louis IX., in a disembodied condition, is the patron saint of the Kardec Association of Spiritualists, that the souls of living persons can be evoked and bullied, that Judas Iscariot and Chateaubriand, Jean Jacques Rousseau and Saint Augustine, the four Evangelists and Napoleon Buonaparte, are in constant communication with a group of Parisian spiritualists, reading them gentle lectures and rhapsodising on religious topics, it is impossible to resist the conviction that his scepticism will rather be strengthened than destroyed, or even weakened. To spiritualists however the work can hardly fail to be deeply interesting. The author is a lucid and eloquent writer, and his eloquence and clearness of diction have been reproduced by Miss Blackwell in the translation.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THERE is not overmuch to note in the Parliamentary history of the week. In the House of Lords, the Archbishop of Canterbury moved, on Friday, for a select committee to inquire into the prevalence of Intemperance, and the motion was agreed to. On Monday, the Earl of Derby promised the papers on the Eastern crisis. In the House of Commons, a motion by Mr. Butt, on the subject of Home Rule, found only a feeble body of sixty-one supporters in a house of over three-hundred and fifty. On Monday, Mr. Disraeli promised papers on the Eastern question. Ordinarily, such a promise is deemed sufficient, but the author of "Ginx's Baby," who, eminent as he may be as a writer of grotesque stories, is by no means a shining light among politicians, must needs be more importunate than the liberal leaders. Mr. Jenkins's opinion about the relations between Servia and Turkey is, probably, of no great value. Were it otherwise, were his political wisdom as clearly defined as his self importance, no doubt he would govern himself more discreetly. The frog in the fable failed ignominously in his attempt to swell himself to the dimensions of the ox. The representative of Dundee attempting the rôle of a Palmerston is not likely to be impressive. The Prisons Bill passed its second reading the same evening by a majority one short of two hundred. Other measures, of greater or less utility, have been dealt with, but none of them call for any special remark.

On Tuesday, a State Ball was given, by command of Her Majesty, at Buckingham Palace. The Royal party included the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Louise, the Dukes of Connaught and Cambridge, and the Duke and Duchess of Teck; and there were present also Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar and Sir Salar Jung. The diplomatic and general circles were numerously represented.

The Volunteer Review in Hyde Park on Saturday was a grand success. Over thirty thousand volunteers took part in it. These came from all parts of the country, the Metropolitan contingent being necessarily the largest, but Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Notts, and Lancashire were well represented, and the home counties were also in great force. The regulars, too, and the militia also took part in the display, the Household Cavalry, and two squadrons of the 20th Hussars taking the right of the line, followed by the Light Horse of the Honourable Artillery Company and some of the Middlesex Yeomanry, while a very strong Brigade, composed of battalions of the Guards and the London Militia, represented the regular infantry and militia. All the best known Volunteer regiments—the London Scottish, London Irish, Inns of Court or the Devil's Own, the Artists, Civil Service, Victorias, the Robin Hoods, &c., &c., were strongly and efficiently represented. The arrangements were as nearly as possible perfect. The Prince and Princess, accompanied by the Commander-in-Chief, were received as they came on the ground with a Royal salute, and after the formal brief inspection, the march past began, and continued uninterruptedly for over an hour and a half, the spectators heartily cheering the better known corps as they swung past the Royal party. It is a long while since the Volunteers have been thus honoured by Royalty, and never before have they carried themselves better. It is not impossible such a display of our citizen soldiering may have its effect. Many abroad may look upon it as a demonstration, though nothing of the kind was ever intended. This and the shooting at Wimbledon, soon to be in full progress, will probably satisfy our continental friends that as regards the material of which armies are composed, and our skill with arms of precision, we are not yet reduced to a nonentity.

Till quite lately Mr. W. G. Grace, the cricket champion, the leviathan, &c., &c., has not been as successful in running-getting as in former seasons. On Saturday, however, he made a score of ninety at the Oval, and at Lord's on Monday he was even in better form, for he compiled no less a number than 169, including a nearly straight drive for seven, right away to the nursery plantation. This must be highly instructive to the rising generation of cricketers, as yet only in swaddling clothes.

The directors of the Alexandra Palace were extremely fortunate on Saturday and Monday as regards weather. On the former day was held the Scottish Fête, and what with Highland flings, pibroch playing, tossing the caber, putting the stone, and throwing the hammer, in the last three of which Donald Dinnie, as in previous years, was facilè princeps, the visitors had plenty to see and to entertain them. The programme was to have been held in the Central Hall, but as the weather was so fine the company adjourned to the cricket ground, where the sports were held. On Monday the London section of Forestry held its annual festival. There was a very strong gathering, and the entertainment was on a grand scale, every preparation having been made to meet the different tastes of the visitors. Thursday was set apart for a wholly different class of entertainment. A grand Italian concert was given, and among the artistes were Madame Adelina Patti, Mdlle. Marimon and Mdlle. D'Angéri. The day being one of the few for which the admission fee is fixed at half-a-crown, the audience it may be imagined were very select. But still the attendance was worthy the occasion. Yesterday the Rose Show opened, and will be on view to-day likewise, so that the week just ended must be set down as one of the most eventful this season. On Monday will be held the Summer Pony and Polo Race Meeting.

At the Crystal Palace the latest additional attraction is Myers' Great American Hippodrome, and here, too, there has been a highly successful exhibition of Roses. On Tuesday a special programme will be provided in honour of the Fête of the National Temperance League.

To-day, Madame Titiens' Grand Morning Concert will be given at the Royal Albert Hall. Among the artistes will be Mesdames Christine Nilsson and Trebelli-Bettini, Signor Campanini, and M. Faure. To-day, too, is the last of the Floral Hall Concerts; and next Saturday will see the last performance this season at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. Her Majesty's, Drury Lane, will remain open a week longer, till Saturday, the 22nd instant. And when these close, fashionable London will distribute itself in the country or on the Continent. Our watering-places and our inland pleasure resorts will be filled with visitors, and every capital in Europe will have a strong contingent of English visitors. Many, no doubt, will find their way to the seat of war, and some perhaps may even get in the way of the bullets and be shot for their pains. As we are not ambitious of becoming food for powder, we have resolved to give the Turks and Servians a very wide berth indeed.

As to foreign news, the one piece of intelligence about which there is no doubt, is that Servia and Montenegro have declared war against their Suzerain. The reports as to Servian and Turkish victories seem very untrustworthy. Each side claims to have gained the honours of the day in the opening engagement, or it may be engagements, for there appears to have been fighting going on in several places. The whole country is anxious as to what will come next, what will be the policy of the three Emperors, and especially of the Emperor of Russia, without whose connivance it is pretty generally believed that Servia never could have dared to throw down the gauntlet to so powerful a neighbour. As far as we can make out, there is not the slightest shadow of a justification for this aggression of Servia in Turkey, and if the combatants are left to settle the dispute without foreign intervention, we believe Servia will bitterly repent the day she declared war. Turkey has a powerful fleet and a considerable army. In 1853 she held Russia at bay on the Danube, and inflicted more than one serious defeat on the armies of Czar Nicholas. We do not think the Serbs will succeed where Russia failed. Be this as it may, there is no question as to the excitement that prevails in every capital in Europe. In Vienna, in Paris, at Berlin, at St. Petersburg, in London, all classes of people are on the tip-toe of expectation to learn what next will happen. No doubt every effort will be made to confine the struggle to its present limits, and we trust they may be successful. Should any other power intervene, there is no saying what may happen. It is, however, a comfort to feel that Lord Derby at the Foreign Office, and Sir Henry Elliott at Constantinople, are, to use a hackneyed expression, the right men in the right place.

SIR MOSES MONTEFIORE LITERARY AND ART SOCIETY.

A MUSICAL and Dramatic entertainment by this Society took place on Saturday, 1st July, at St. George's Hall, Langham-place. Madame Emrick sang the song of the "Raft," and well merited the deserved plaudits she received for her artistic singing. The comic drama of the "Batchelor of Arts" followed. Mr. J. Faulkner played Harry Jasper with an easy, gentlemanly bearing; while great credit is due to Bro. H. Laurance, who possesses all the elements of a good actor. Messrs. Maynard, Rubenstein and Bro. S. Druiff also deserve praise. Bro. Montague Barnett was applauded for making the most of a small part. His acting was excellent. Mrs. S. Druiff as Mrs. Thornton was ladylike, while Miss Fanny Albert (a pupil of Sir Julius Benedict, and daughter of Bro. Albert P.M.) showed talents of no mean order. Mrs. S. Hassfeld sang, "Oh, haste ye Birds." Madame Emrick was loudly applauded for her exquisite rendering of "Grazie Clemente Dei;" Miss De Solla gave a recitation from King John, and Bro. H. Laurance one entitled "Shamus O'Brien," with great humour and pathos. Bro. B. M. De Solla was the accompanyist; the committee was represented by Bros. J. Abrahams P.M., F.R.G.S., F.S.S., and H. S. Hassfeld. The hall was well attended.

Providing that the Above named Brethren and their Successors always pay due Respect to this Ancient Grand Lodge otherwise this Warrant to be of no force nor Virtue . . . . . .

Given under our hands and Seal of the Ancient Grand Lodge, London, this 18th Day of June, in the Year of our Lord 1755, and in the Year of Masonry 5755.

LAU. DERMOTT, G. Secy.

Constituted, July 17th 1751...5751.

The present title and number are the Lodge of "Enoch," No. 11, Freemasons' Hall, London. We may be excused pointing out the important fact that the above is the earliest transcript of an "Ancient" Warrant yet printed, and is of the same year (1751) as the present No. 7, Royal York Lodge of Perseverance, of which we hope to procure a copy ere long. It is palpable therefore that No. 17, now held at Quebec, and not on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England as formerly, cannot be of an earlier date, so again Bro. Hughan has been proved right with respect to the age of old Lodges, and his American friendly opponent (Bro. Tisdall) must try his hand at something else.

JOHN CONSTABLE.

The ceremony of Consecration and Installation will be worked on Wednesday, the 19th inst., at seven o'clock, by Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, and Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, at the Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1288, held at Bro. Pegot's, the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters' Road, Holloway; Bro. P. Dickinson Preceptor. The brethren to assemble in full Masonic costume.

The Summer Festival of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, will be held on Wednesday, the 26th July, at Bro. Lewis's Hotel, Maidenhead Bridge, Taplow, under the presidency of Bro. J. J. Michael, on which occasion ladies and non-Masons will be present. The tickets for ladies will be 6s, and for gentlemen 7s, to be obtained of Bro. G. Tims, 269 Pentonville-road, on or before the 22nd inst.

Obituary.

We have to notice the death of Bro. Henry Moxon, who had held the office of Superintendent of the Telegraph department under the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company for about fourteen years. He was the inventor of "Moxon's Treadle Bell," and several other electrical patents. As a Mason, Bro. Moxon participated in the esteem of his brethren, for he possessed personal qualifications which secured for him warm attachment. He was initiated in Lodge of Faith, No. 581, Openshaw, near Manchester, on the 21st June 1871, was Junior Deacon 1872, Senior Warden 1873, and Worshipful Master 1874. He was exalted in Rectitude Chapter in 1874, S.E. 1875, and J. 1876. The deceased was very highly respected, he had suffered for some time from bronchitis. To the last, Bro. Moxon continued to be a faithful and amiable Mason, practising that greatest of all Masonic virtues—Charity. His remains were removed from his residence, Ellesmere Villas, Eccles, to their last residence place at Harpurhey Cemetery, Manchester, on 23rd June 1876. It will be a melancholy satisfaction to his family to witness the respect paid to his memory by those personally acquainted with him. Bro. Moxon died 20th June 1876, in the 39th year of his age.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SUFFOLK.

THE annual Provincial Grand Lodge for the province of Suffolk was held at Ipswich, on Monday. The brethren assembled at 12 o'clock in the handsome Council Chamber of the Town Hall, and ranged themselves under their respective banners. They were presided over by the R.W.P.G.M., Lord Waveney.

On the roll of the Lodges being called it was found that all were represented except one, and in nearly every case the representative was the W.M.

The minutes of the Finance Board, held on the previous Monday, recommended grants of £10 to the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and their Widows, 10 guineas to the Masonic Boys' School, and 10 guineas to the Masonic Girls' School, and the grants were unanimously confirmed. The R.W.P.G.M. also intimated that, in the exercise of his prerogative, he should order £10 to be given to the widow of the late Rev. J. J. Farnham, an application on whose behalf had been made, but in an informal manner.

The R.W.P.G.M. then proceeded to the appointment and investment of officers, and the following brethren were conducted to the pedestal by the D. of C.:—Bros. S. H. Wright 516 (Stowmarket) P.G.J.W., A. D. George 114 (Ipswich) P.G. Reg., W. Clarke 959 (Ipswich) P.G.D. of C., W. D. Paine 959 (Ipswich) P.G.A.D. of C., Lindley Nunn 114 (Ipswich) P.G. Org., Dakin 235 (Ipswich) P.G. Steward, A. Read 376 (Ipswich) P.G. Steward, G. Paine 1008 (Bury St. Edmunds) P.G. Steward.

The P.G. Lodge then proceeded to the election of Treasurer, and Bro. T. J. Huddleston was unanimously re-elected.

The P.G.M. then delivered an address on the general business of the province, congratulating the brethren on the steady progress made by the Craft, as shown by the returns made by the representatives of Lodges, and welcoming amongst them the brethren who had been kind enough to accept the invitation which had been sent to the province of Norfolk.

The brethren attended Divine service at the Church of St. Mary-le-Tower, at about two o'clock. The benches in the nave were reserved for the members of the Craft. The side benches, reserved for the general public, were well filled. The Rector, the Rev. J. R. Turnock, and the curate, the Rev. A. C. Raymond, and the Rev. R. N. Sanderson took part in the services, the last-named gentleman reading the lessons. The sermon was preached by the P.G.C., Rev. J. B. Tweed, of Capel, who took for his text Matthew xxiii. 8: "All ye are brethren." The Rev. gentleman delivered an eloquent and appropriate discourse. He alluded to the fact that on occasions of that kind the brethren were in the habit of assembling together in the place where prayer was wont to be made—not as a mere matter of routine in connection with the observance of the day, but they came their to express their gratitude for blessings spiritual and temporal that God had poured upon them during the past year, and to pray for His help, direction, support and blessing in the future. Speaking of our mutual relation to each other, the preacher showed that Christ's design in coming into the world was to unite the whole of mankind in one universal brotherhood, and he said the closer we were united to Christ the closer was the tie which bound us to each other. In the course of his remarks on this head, he pointed out that the spirit and profession of the Masonic brotherhood was in harmony with the mission of the Christian Church, as to the promotion of brotherly love and Christian Charity, and it was because the design and objects were so good that he, as a clergyman of the Church of England, could give them his support and seek to extend its influence. It could be said of Masonry, as of Christianity, "All ye are brethren." Having spoken of Masonry as a very ancient institution, the Rev. gentleman proceeded to remark that we had one nature in common, and we were bound to exercise the intentions and fulfil the obligations of brethren towards each other. He made some admirable observations as to what those intentions and observations were. We ought to live as brethren; unity was the strength of our race. We were not born to live in a state of independence of each other. In combination, men might accomplish great things. Isolated sparks of fire were very easily extinguished, but when millions were blended together they became almost unextinguishable. If we would accomplish a great work and exercise great power, we must be united. Division was weakness, union was strength. Let us seek to be united in heart as well as in name—in fact as well as in form, and we should be stronger, both to derive and to communicate good. Our unity must be more than mere sentiment—it must be practical. They, as Masons, were bound together to afford mutual sympathy and help in times of adversity. In any way, and in every way, they must help their brethren when help was needed. In conclusion, the Rev. gentleman commented on the special duties and obligations which rested upon those who belonged to the brotherhood.

The musical portions of the services were admirably rendered by the large and efficient choir connected with the church. Bro. Lindley Nunn, Mus. Bach., presided at the organ, and played an introductory and concluding voluntary. The latter, "Thanks be to God," from Elijah, was executed in a manner which brought out to perfection the powers of this, one of, if not the finest organ in the county. Bro. Nunn was that day appointed P.G. Organist. The offertory was devoted to the Children's Wing of the East Suffolk Hospital.

On leaving the Church, the brethren re-formed in procession and marched back to the Town Hall, when the remainder of the Lodge business was then completed, and P.G. Lodge was closed in due form.

The banquet was held at the Assembly Rooms, Northgate-street, the R.W.P.G.M., Lord Waveney, in the chair, and covers were laid for 120 persons, the company present being much the same as those who attended P.G. Lodge. The dinner was admirably served by Bro. Ashford, of the Running Buck, and altogether about 110 sat down.

Grace having been said, the R.W.P.M. gave "The health of the first Lady of the land and Mother of their Grand Master," and with this toast was also coupled that of "The Craft." The toast was most enthusiastically drunk, and the National Anthem was then sung by an amateur choir, the solos being taken by Bro. Steel P.G.S.D.

The Chairman next gave the first Craft toast of the evening, "The health of the first Mason of the land," who having left us for a short time, had returned, bearing with him a load of affection, respect and admiration from the foreign subjects of England, such as would bear down any man who was not prepared to bear what he would have some day to bear—the mighty weight of the Crown of England. He gave the "Health of the Prince of Wales," with Masonic Honours. (Applause.)

Song: "God Bless the Prince of Wales," Bro. Grayston.

The R.W.P.G.M. next gave the toast "Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge." The acting or Pro Grand Master he personally knew; the Deputy Grand Master, on no very distant occasion, gave them, in Norfolk, a proof of the interest he took in the Craft; and as for the Grand Officers, their work spoke for themselves. (Applause.)

Duet:—"Love and War," Bros. Grayston and Steele.

Bro. Benjamin Head, with whose name the toast was coupled, said he thanked them most heartily for the manner in which the toast was received, but they must remember that he was not a stranger among them. His visit to the Suffolk Lodge was always one of the most delightful he ever spent. He was one of themselves, and had been a member of one of their Lodges for fifty years, and was a Prov. Grand Officer of Suffolk. (Applause.)

The R.W.P.G.M. next gave "The Representatives of the P.G. Lodge of Norfolk, a hearty welcome to them, much prosperity, and great sympathy with them in the bereavement they had suffered by the death of their respected Grand Master."

Song: "Will-o'-the-Wisp," Bro. Steele.

W. Bro. Morgan, D.P.G.M. of Norfolk, whose name the R.W.P.G.M. coupled with the toast, returned thanks for the kind and thoroughly Masonic hospitality and welcome they had given the Norfolk brethren that day. Their thoughts were naturally carried back to the day, in November last, when the brethren of Suffolk and their P.G.M. honoured them with their presence. Little did they then think that their sun was so soon to set. The Norfolk brethren thanked those of Suffolk for their invitation to be present to-day, but ten thousand times more from the bottom of their hearts for the deep sympathy, so eloquently expressed, and so deeply felt, as he was sure it was, in the calamity under which they were at present suffering. It would not be well to dwell too much upon such painful thoughts on the present occasion. After the sun sets the sun rises, and they had in Norfolk the prospect of a very admirable Provincial Grand Master, probably appointed and probably to be installed by His Royal Highness in October or November next. If they would on that occasion honour Norfolk with their presence, he could assure them they would have as cordial a welcome as they had given to their brother or sister county to-night. (Applause.) His presence that night recalled the day when he had the honour of witnessing the installation of the R.W.P.G.M. of Suffolk, Lord Waveney, in the chair, which he trusted he might not be deemed presumptuous in saying he filled with such intense satisfaction to the Craft,—(applause),—not only in this province, but throughout the country,—(hear, hear),—and fulfilled, he might add, in a manner that must be satisfactory to his own conscience. (Hear, hear.) It seemed to be a geographical mistake to have separated Norfolk and Suffolk, but he would ask them not to perpetuate that mistake, but in all Masonic objects to show that their was between them a peculiar Masonic feeling. (Applause.)

The D.P.G.M. in proposing "the health of the Provincial Grand Master, Lord Waveney," acknowledged the kindness and indulgence which he always received from him, and testified to his readiness at all times to turn away from the high and responsible duties which devolved upon him as a peer of the realm to devote his time to the welfare of the Craft. (Applause).

The P.G.M., in responding, said he felt they had received him with a welcome far more warm than he deserved, but it was a pleasure to be comforted and supported with the evidence they had given of the manner in which they had appreciated his efforts, as expressed by his worshipful friend on the right. He had every day something to learn, and if he had to sit at the feet of a teacher, as the saying was, he should be a Suffolk man if possible; he should be one well acquainted with the peculiarities of Craft knowledge; and he should be such a one as their Brother Head, who in pointing out some mistakes in the programme, did it with the authority of age, but without its severity. (Hear, hear.) The way to reap advantage from another's knowledge was to follow his precepts, and he (the R.W.P.G.M.) attributed the success they had credited to him in a measure to what he had learned from him. He had learned one lesson in particular, "Once engaged as a Suffolk Craftsman, engaged for all time." (Applause.) He (the R.W.P.G.M.) was not amongst them as much as he could wish, but when he came they received him as well as if he had been with them every week giving them counsels, which, if they had been worth anything, he felt would have been effective, from the effective way in which they would have been carried out. (Hear, hear.) He was proud of being in such a field, with such colleagues as he had. He thanked them once more for their hearty welcome, which compensated for many a doubt, many an anxiety, many an uncertainty, assuring him, as it did, of their confidence, that it was his strong desire to do that which was right and just in his position. (Applause.)

The P.G.M. then proposed the health of a brother, who, he said, was the worthy head of their organisation, who was always amongst them, and had grown old in their service. He was indebted to him for faithful, true counsel at all times, and he wished honour to be given to whom honour was due. (Applause.)

Song: "The Pilgrim of Love," Bro. Abbott.

The W.D.P.G.M. in responding, said his labour was a labour of love, and as long as they would bear with him in his old age, so long would he have pleasure in being associated with the Province of Suffolk. (Applause.)

The R.W.P.G.M. then gave "The health of the P.G. Chaplain, and the Clergy of the Province," speaking in the highest terms of the excellent sermon which the P.G. Chaplain had given them that day.

The P.G. Chaplain and the Rev. R. N. Sanderson responded, the latter explaining that he had declined the offered honour of P.G.S.W., not because he did not appreciate the honour which the R.W.P.G.M. thereby paid him, but because he was more proud of having been P.G. Chaplain for eight years than of any other honour that could ever be conferred upon him, and he did not wish to lose from his badge the first of the three great lights of Masonry. (Applause.)

The P.G.M. then gave "The present and past Officers of P.G.L.," for whom Bro. Dorling and Bro. J. H. Bevan responded.

The toast of the "Visiting Brethren" was next given from the chair, and was responded to by Bro. Pye (Harwich), and Bro. Rev. T. L. Kyffin (Anglesea, Wales).

The P.G.M. then proposed the "Health of the P.G. Sec.," whom he characterised as a true friend of the Craft, and a steady supporter of the great principles of Masonry. (Applause.)

Bro. W. H. Lucia, in responding, said that so long as he remained in office he hoped he should deserve the approbation they had been pleased to give him that night.

The remaining toasts were the "Charities," responded to by Bro. Head and Bro. W. Boby, the "Masters of Lodges in the Provinces," responded to by Bro. Westgate, and "The Ladies." The "Tylers'" toast brought a very pleasant evening to a conclusion.

By the kind permission of Earl Dudley, a musical matinée was held at Dudley House, on Thursday, by Madame Luisa Villa. A large and fashionable audience was present, and accorded a most enthusiastic reception to this lady, especially for the manner in which she rendered a new song composed by Bro. Tito Mattei, the composer himself accompanying her. Bro. Mattei also played a brilliant solo on the pianoforte, and among the other artistes were Sig. E. Bonetti, M. Leone Valder, and Sig. Rocca, whose songs were most effectively rendered and rapturously applauded. Mr. Ernest Nathan played admirably on the violoncello, and the Signorina V. de Bono exhibited great skill and the feeling of a true artist in her performance on the violin. Madame Emilia Chiome, accompanied by Sir J. Benedict, sang very sweetly an air from Faust. Mr. A. Des Roseaux created quite a furore by his inimitable drollery. Madame Villa was very warmly greeted in the duet from L'Elisir d' Amore with Sig. Rocca, and also for her rendering of the Romance of L'Assenza ed il Ritorno, the composer of the latter, Professor Bergsen, being the accompanyist. Madame Bertini and Mr. Alfred Baylis were also successful, and reaped the honours of success in the shape of very hearty plaudits from the audience.

JOSEPH SINGLETON, R.W.M. OF THE SCOTIA LODGE.

We regret to have to record the death of Bro. Singleton, R.W.M. of the Scotia Lodge, No. 178, Glasgow, which occurred on Sunday, the 25th June, quite suddenly, he having been about the city the previous day pursuing his usual avocations. In the absence of the P.G.M., application was made to his Deputy, but as the deceased, owing to the suddenness of his death, not having expressed a decided wish to that effect, Bro. Baird D.P.G.M. refused to grant the permission asked by the officers of the Scotia Lodge. But as the deceased was very generally known and esteemed in the province, a great many of the brethren spontaneously resolved to accompany his remains to the grave in plain mourning. The hall of the Clydesdale Lodge being in the vicinity of the residence of our departed Brother, they assembled there, and though Lodge was not opened, Bro. the Rev. J. C. Stewart, Prelate of St Mungo Encampment of Knights Templar, engaged in a funeral service. The deceased was a K.T., and amongst the mourners we noticed the following Sir Knights:—J. Clanachan P.E.C., Rev. J. C. Stewart P., G. W. Wheeler P., J. Murray, S. Scott, J. Mathison, Wm. Phillips, J. Howie, P. Hepbourne, C. Richmond, J. Peacock, J. Wallace, and J. Dunbar. The following Lodges were also represented, in most cases by the Master and principal office-bearers, viz.—St. John 3 bis, St. Mungo 27, Thistle and Rose 73, St. John Greenock 75, Union and Crown 103, Royal Arch, Pollockshaws 153, Scotia 178, Star 219, Shamrock and Thistle 275, Girvon St. John 297, Commercial 360, St. Clair 362, Neptune 419, Govandale 437, Glasgow 441, Clydesdale 556, Kenmuir 570 and the Dramatic 571. The deceased first saw Masonic light about 18 years since in the Shamrock and Thistle, and one of the chief mourners was Bro. Wm. Higgins, the S.S. of that Lodge, who was made on the same day. Bro. Singleton, however, soon after joined the Scotia Lodge, and in 1869 was chosen Master thereof, being re-elected in two succeeding years. As a P.M. he was equally attentive to his duties, and in 1874 he was again chosen to preside, and at the last election in November he was re-elected for the fifth term of office; he was exalted in the Shamrock and Thistle Chapter, No 87, and had filled the chair of Z. with credit to himself and Chapter. As already mentioned, he was a Knight Templar, but held no office, no doubt thinking the Lodge had the first claim on his time and attention. He was a good working Master, not a mere ritualist, but a genial chairman and a pleasant companion. Whilst his widow and family will mourn his loss most, there are few Masons in the city of Glasgow that will not miss his cheerful smile and kindly greeting at their annual assemblies as well as at their Lodge meetings. He had a kind heart, an open hand, and a friendly word for all, rich or poor, and the Lodge may well regret their late Right Worshipful Master.

National Rifle Association.—At the forthcoming meeting at Wimbledon, the proprietors of the popular "Specialité Sherry" (Messrs. Feltoe and Sons, of Albemarle Street) again give a prize, value £20.

Cornwallis Lodge, No. 1107.—The Installation meeting of the above Lodge was held on Wednesday, 5th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Erith. Bro. C. Reuter P.M., in the absence of the W.M., occupied the chair. Present—J. J. Michael S.W., T. Pusey J.W., J. Storey P.P.G.S. Kent, Treasurer, J. Henderson P.M. Secretary, C. J. Sutton, J. W. Knight G.D.C. Kent, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Apologies were made for the absence of the R.W. the P.G.M. and the D.G.M. The W.M. elect, being the present W.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge, 1507, a dispensation from the M.W.G.M. was read, enabling him to occupy the chair of this Lodge. This was duly entered on the minutes. Bro. Milward, of the Manchester Lodge, was then passed, by the courtesy of the acting W.M. Bro. J. J. Michael S.W., W.M. elect, and W.M. of the Metropolitan Lodge, was then presented to the Lodge; a Board of Installed Masters was formed, and he was duly installed into the chair by the acting W.M., Bro. C. Reuter. There were 17 W.M.'s and P.M.'s present to witness the ceremony. Bro. Robins kindly acted as Organist. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the warmest encomiums were given to Bro. Reuter for his very excellent rendering of the ceremony. Bro. C. Reuter was then nominated to represent the charities for the Province of Kent. The W.M. then invested his officers:—C. Reuter I.P.M., T. Pusey S.W., Legge J.W., J. Storey G.S.W. Kent Treas., J. Henderson Sec., Dr. Spurrell S.D., R. Searle J.D., Simmonds I.G., Bonnett Tyler. The W.M. appropriately addressed each officer, and the applause which greeted the several brethren on their investiture showed that he had made an excellent selection. Hearty good wishes being given, the Lodge was closed. The brethren then proceeded by train to the Ball Inn, Dartford, where a banquet had been provided by Bro. W. T. Bray. This old hostelry exhibited an air of comfort. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers; grace having been said, ample justice was done to the viands. The W.M. then proposed the toasts of Her Majesty the Queen and the Craft, the M.W.G.M., the Pro G.M., the Deputy G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers. He then proposed that of the R.W. the Rt. Hon. Viscount Lord Holmesdale, P.G.M. of the Province of Kent, from whom he had had a letter, regretting his absence on the present occasion; every brother knows the interest he takes in the welfare of the province. Bro. Knight G.D.C. responded to the toast. He said he was pleased to see the kind feeling exhibited by the brethren at the mention of the names of the R.W. the G.M., and the P.G.M., he regretted their absence. The Province of Kent was never backward in supporting the Charities. Bro. Reuter then rose and proposed the toast of the W.M. He had been initiated in this Lodge; he also occupied the chair of the Metropolitan Lodge. He was proud to see him installed as W.M. of his Mother Lodge. Bro. Michael was one who could in every respect carry out the duties required of him. The W.M. thanked Bro. Reuter for the kind manner he had spoken of him. He never expected, after having been so short a time in the Lodge having to occupy the chair. He was, however, sure that he would have the co-operation of every Brother of the Lodge. He hoped at the expiration of his year of office that his occupancy of the chair will have been satisfactory to every Brother present. He then proposed the toast of the Past Masters. They had seen what Bro. Reuter had done by his rendering of the ceremony of installation. He had a pleasing duty to perform, in presenting him, in the name of the Lodge, with a P.M.'s jewel. He had, unfortunately, by a fire, lost his jewel, and he was pleased to place a fresh one on his breast. He hoped he would live long to wear it, and trusted that no misfortune of that nature, nor of any other, would cause him to lose this. Bro. Reuter returned thanks. He had already been a P.M., and had, to-day, been re-invested in that capacity. He had had his last jewel presented to him, but his house was burnt, and he, with his wife and child, were rescued through the blessing of divine providence. He thanked the brethren of the Cornwallis Lodge for replacing that jewel; he never could forget their kindness. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the visitors; he was pleased to see so many distinguished ones among them; while he occupied the chair, he would only be too pleased to see them, and hoped during his year of office not only to see members of the Province, but also the members of London Lodges who might honour the Lodge with their presence. The toast of the Visitors was responded to by Bros. Austin, H. M. Levy, Stephens, and several others, all expressing their great satisfaction for the hospitality received. The toast of the Treasurer, Bro. Storey P.M., was next given; he was a host in himself, and one whom all respected. The Officers and the Tyler's toast concluded a very delightful evening. Every brother and visitor on leaving expressed to the W.M. the great pleasure they had experienced. The Visitors were—Bros. T. Austin P.M. 933, H. Cox D.C. 1319, C. H. Stephenson 1319, Themans P.M. 141, Ed. Terry J.W. 1319, J. Willing P.M. 1507 and 177, Williams 1507 and 177, G. Adam 76, R. Rose 1507, Bolton P.M. 1227, Cheek 1507, W. A. Tinney S.W. 1319, G. James Robertson M.E.Z. presiding, T. McNidder Scribe E., and John Robertson Scribe N., acting as croupiers. In the course of a very excellent address the chairman said:—"As the operative Mason uses all his skill to rear the fabric destined for the worship of God, so we also rear a fabric, but of far nobler proportions, a more enduring structure—a moral and intellectual temple, adorned with all the Christian graces. And to the building up of this temple of the mind, all should contribute, but especially the members of our Royal Arch Chapters, for it is here we expect to find the best men, the pick of the Craft, and therefore from them we should get the best moral builders."

A request was received from the W.M. of the Macdonald Mark Lodge, that Bro. J. G. Edgcumbe, who had been duly accepted in that Lodge, might be advanced on their behalf. The request was at once unanimously acceded to, and Bro. Edgcumbe was duly and regularly advanced. This being the annual period of election for W.M. for the ensuing year, a ballot was taken, which resulted in a unanimous vote for Bro. Trusler S.W. to occupy that important position. Bro. Lilley P.M. was also unanimously re-elected Treasurer. It was proposed by Bro. Poore P.M. &c., and seconded by Bro. Stevens P.M., and carried, that a P.M.'s jewel be presented to Bro. Pulman on his retiring from the office of W.M., to mark in some small degree the esteem and appreciation of his services during his tenure of office. Nothing further offering, the Lodge was closed in due form.

Lawler, Hodges and Thornton was highly appreciated by the brethren present.

Manchester Lodge, No. 179.—This ancient Lodge held its summer banquet on Thursday, 22nd ult., under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. J. U. Burt. A four horse drag conveyed some of the party to the Goat Inn, Enfield, where the W.M. had ordered a cold collation. The tables were decorated with flowers, and a button-hole was provided for every Bro. and visitor. The company after luncheon proceeded to their destination, enjoying a most delightful drive through the charming country. On arrival at Bro. Beningfield's, the Crown, Broxbourne, the W.M., anxious to provide his friends with every enjoyment, at once organised a water party; commodious boats had been prepared, and under the direction of Bro. Lovett I.G., the party started for a "pull." This over, the party, numbering forty, sat down to a sumptuous banquet, supplied by the host in his well-known style, and a very excellent dessert followed; the wines and viands were of first-rate description, and gave every satisfaction. The W.M. was most successful in his efforts to secure the comfort of all present. Only one toast was given, that of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, and with it was included the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., and the Craft. Bros. Kew P.M., Hughes P.M. and the W.S. rendered goodly service. A pleasing episode in the day's proceedings was the appearance of a hale and hearty gentleman, ninety-four years of age. He came with his grandsons, and at the close of the day did not appear at all fatigued. At 8 o'clock the company started homewards, with the lively recollection of having spent a most enjoyable day.

Star Lodge, No. 219.—This Lodge had its annual excursion on Thursday, the 29th ult., to Carrie, on the Isle of Arran. The R.W.M., Bro. J. Morgan, and the principal members, with their wives and 100 friends, assembled at seven o'clock at the Broomilaw, on board the splendid saloon steamer the Guinevere, in charge of Capt. McIntyre, an active member of the Lodge. The sail was all that could be desired, passing as they did some of the finest scenery in the world. After lunch they landed on what is considered one of the most romantic islands in the Firth of the Clyde, where some betook themselves to exploring the beauties of the surrounding scenery, whilst others engaged in various athletic sports, and some joined parties of the fairer sex in a dance on the green, but all appeared to be thoroughly enjoying themselves. All too soon, however, the sound of the bell recalled them to the vessel, where, in the spacious saloon, upwards of a hundred sat down to a repast that would not have disgraced the cuisine of many of our fashionable hotels. Few persons who have not travelled by them can imagine the luxurious comfort of a Clyde saloon steamer. The enlivening strains of the band and the beauty of the passage made the homeward journey short, and when they landed all were satisfied with a happy day well spent.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The regular weekly meeting was held on Tuesday, the 4th inst., at the Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney. Present—Bros. Smith W.M., Weige S.W., Christian J.W., Worsley S.D., Cambridge J.D., Brown I.G., P. M. Wallington Preceptor, and a good muster of brethren. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Barker candidate. The Lodge was then regularly opened and closed in the second and third degrees, and Bro. Allen worked the third and fourth sections of the lecture. Bro. Weige was elected W.M. for the following Tuesday.

Lodge of Montefiore, No. 1017.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on the 28th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street. Bros. J. Blum W.M., A. Eskell P.M. as S.W., V. Myers J.W., E. P. Albert Grand Pursuivant Sec., L. Jacobs Treas., Alba S.D., L. Salomons J.D., Brillas I.G., P. E. Van Noorden Org., and Past Masters A. Blumenthal, S. Lazarus, De Solla, Loewenstark, S. Pollitzer, and a numerous attendance of the brethren. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Barnett was passed, Bro. Grunefeld was raised, and ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. Pasta and A. Lewis, which being unanimously in their favour, they were initiated into the Order. The latter brother, through the courtesy of the W.M., by Bro. E. P. Albert P.M. G.P. The Lodge was then closed until the fourth Wednesday in October. The brethen afterwards sat down to a very recherche banquet provided by Bro. Nicoll. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts; Bro. S. Foxall A.G.P. returning thanks for the Grand Officers. The toasts of the W.M., the newly initiated, and the visitors were then given, the latter finding a very eloquent respondent in Bro. Rev. J. R. Simpson P.G.C. The Wardens, Officers, Past Masters, and the Tyler's toast was duly given. The W.M. provided a musical entertainment, which was under the direction of Bro. P. E. Van Noorden, Organist to the Lodge, and an agreeable and harmonious evening was passed. The visitors were Bros. Rev. J. R. Simpson P.G.C., S. Foxall A.G.P., J. L. Lieberman, Lipner, S. A. Pawlikski, Spiers, Dr. Berkhart, Myers P.P.G.C., East Jamaica, Chambers 141, Wendt, and S. Buckwort.

Victoria Chapter, No. 1056.—The members of this Chapter have reason to be gratified with its prosperous condition. At the meeting of the audit committee, which took place on Friday, the 30th of June, at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C., it was shown that after having defrayed all expenses, and without any debts whatever, a considerable balance was in the hands of the Treasurer, exclusive of a large amount of arrears. Moreover, at the next regular meeting annual subscriptions are due, when the existing fund cannot fail to be largely augmented. Comp. Jas. Brett P.Z., who has been the Hon. Treasurer of the Chapter ever since its foundation, and under whose careful management its present prosperity has been attained, resigned the office at the last meeting, very much to the regret of every member. Comp. E. Gottheil P.Z. was elected to the vacant post. The balance, therefore, of nearly £60, was handed to him. The Companions, fourteen in number, afterwards partook of refreshment, served by Bros. Bell and Bradgood in a manner reflecting the highest credit upon the new management. The viands were well dressed and prepared. Both the eye and palate were gratified, so much so that the hosts were asked to present themselves, and Comp. Geo. Newman M.E.Z., who presided, expressed the hearty thanks of those assembled for the very liberal and excellent manner in which everything had been provided for their enjoyment. The two brethren were requested to stay awhile. Bro. Bell, in returning thanks, said that the aim of his partner and himself was to provide first-class fare only; the charge would naturally be somewhat higher, but he thought in the end would be more satisfactory to all parties.

Dundas Chapter, No. 1255.—The first quarterly meeting of the above Chapter was holden at the Huyshe Temple, Plymouth, on Monday, 26th ult. Comps. Charles Godtschalk M.E.Z., J. J. Avery H., H. F. Hearle as J., E. Comp. J. B. Gover P.Z. as S.E., H. J. Ham S.N., W. Bell P.Z. Treas., W. H. Triplet P.S., R. M. Anderson, R. Bird, and numerous visitors being present. This being the first meeting for actual business since the consecration in March last, the minutes of that day being necessarily lengthy, including the bye-laws of the Chapter, their confirmation by the Most E. Supt. of the Province, the Rev. John Huyshe, together with a letter from that esteemed Comp. congratulating the Companions of the Dundas Chapter on the excellence of their bye-laws, adding they required no additions or alteration at his hands. These minutes having been distinctly and impressively read by E. Comp. J. B. Gover P.Z. acting as S.E. were confirmed. The E. Comp. J. B. Gover then referred to the letter of the Most E. Supt. of the Province, speaking of the kind and brotherly sentiments therein breathed and expressed by our beloved Comp. John Huyshe, adding, his words were an honour to the Chapter, suggesting that they should be bound up with the bye-laws of the Dundas Chapter, which was unanimously assented to. The ballot was then taken for several brethren, amongst whom was the W.M. of Dundas Lodge, Saml. J. Hearle, which being approved, he was duly exalted by E. Comp. Charles Godtschalk Z. of the Chapter. The work of the chair Z. being done with fulness, expression and feeling, rendering the beautiful points of R.A.M. definite and clear to all present. The work of the chairs H. and J. were rendered perfect by Comps. J. J. Avery and H. F. Hearle respectively, while a word of more than mere praise must be given to Comp. W. H. Triplet for his able rendering of the important and difficult office of P.S. The Chapter was then closed in the ancient and prescribed form.

Hayward Edwards, &c. Visitor—Bro. Walter Spencer, Bank of England Lodge. The only business consisted in the raising of Bro. W. W. Morgan, the ceremony was well conducted by the acting W.M. The Lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. J. H. Bentham, supported by the following distinguished brethren:—Bros. B. J. Tompson P.G.S., E. C. Davis P.G.C., G. Bro. J. Nicholson S.W. and W.M. elect was then presented to the Lodge, and a Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and he was duly installed into the chair by Bro. E. D. The Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large banquetting hall, where a very excellent dinner was provided, which was ably superintended by Bro. Simes. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. Hopper P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M., which was most enthusiastically received. Bro. Foulsham P.M. ably proposed the health of the Installing Master, Bro. Davis. He alluded to the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the ceremony of installation. The toast having been suitably replied to, that of "The Wardens, Officers and Tyler" brought a delightful evening to a close. The visitors present were:—Bros. E. D. Dowi P.G.D.C., Marell 111 G.P.S.D. (Durham), J. Cook P.M. 481, W. Monday W.M. 406, S. M. Harris 406, W. J. Atkinson 636, &c.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting on Tuesday, the 4th of July, at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road, N. Present—Bros. Fenner W.M., Side S.W., H. Stiles J.W., Wm. Stiles Sec., Willing Treas., Berrie S.D., Kingham J.D., Leye I.G., Cox Tyler, P.M.'s T. A. Adams P.G.P. Preceptor, Scales, Belsey, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting confirmed. Ceremonies of initiation and passing were rehearsed. The first and second sections of the First Lecture were worked by Bro. Adams Preceptor, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Side was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing meeting.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting on Wednesday, 5th July, at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston. Present—Bros. Brasted W.M., H. Meyer S.W., Robinson J.W., Chapman S.D., Hill J.D., Dignam I.G., Gilchrist Preceptor, and Bros. Spencer, Ferrar, Lording, Fieldwick, Bailey, Marsh, Garbutt, Bell, Stock, Jacob, J. B. Shackleton, &c. Business—Lodge opened in due form, minutes of last Lodge meeting read and confirmed; initiation ceremony was rehearsed, Bro. Bailey candidate. The 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Fieldwick, assisted by the brethren. Proposed by Bro. Ferrar that Bro. Jacobs 1567 become a joining member; carried unanimously. Bro. H. Meyer was elected W.M. for ensuing week. A letter of condolence having been voted to the widow of the late Bro. Acker, the same has been engrossed and illuminated on vellum, by Bro. W. W. Morgan, and was handed round the Lodge for the inspection of the brethren, who were loud in their praises of the elegance of design and beauty of execution; it was signed by all the brethren, and ordered to be delivered to Mrs. Acker. The following is the text:—

"MADAM: We the undersigned members of the Lodge of Freemasons named the Duke of Connaught, of which your late lamented husband was a member, desire to express to you our sincere condolence on the loss you have sustained, as well as to convey our sympathy to yourself and family in their bereaved affliction. To this expression we beg to add that the memory of your departed partner will long live with those from whom he has been called, and we further hope that such expressions may in some slight degree temper the grief of those whom our respected brother has left to mourn his loss." Here follow the names.

Nothing else offering, the Lodge was closed and adjourned to Wednesday, 12th July, at 8 p.m.

Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge, No. 1539.—It is gratifying to us to have to record the success which is attending the efforts of the promoters of the Surrey Masonic Hall. The building is well adapted for the purposes for which it was designed, and as evidence of this we may state that at the present time no less than twelve Lodges have made arrangements for holding their meetings there. The foundation stone of the Hall was laid on the 29th day of May 1874, by R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Midd., and on the 14th July 1875 it was formally dedicated to the purposes of Freemasonry, by the Most Worshipful Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of England, and Prov. G.M. of West Lancashire. It is built in the classic style, and was designed by Bro. E. Clark, the erection being entrusted to Bro. John Oliver. The Lodge room is a handsome and well appointed building, while the ante chambers, refreshment rooms and banquetting hall are specially arranged, so as to meet every requirement of the brethren. In addition, there is a spacious hall, capable of seating five hundred persons. This will be found admirably suited for public meetings or for entertainments, and this remark, we are sure, will be endorsed by those of our readers who were present at the Ball held there in April last. The Surrey Masonic Hall Lodge was the first that was consecrated in the new building, and on Thursday last the brethren met to celebrate their first anniversary. The members assembled at three o'clock, when the following officers were present:—Bros. W. S. Larlham W.M., Ramsey S.W., Green J.W., Ritherdon S.D., Smale J.D., Ross I.G., J. Oliver Secretary. The Visitors were Bros. Major Shadwell H. Clerke, C. A. Cottebrune, Joseph Wright, James Dawson, H. Thompson, William Harris jun., W. W. Morgan, &c. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The report of the auditors was submitted; it showed that the funds are in a prosperous condition. The W.M. next proceeded to raise Bro. Cannon, who had answered the usual questions in a satisfactory manner. Bros. Walden and Timms were then examined as to their proficiency, and were afterwards passed. Bro. M. S. Larlham rendered both ceremonies in a most perfect manner, while his officers, it is almost needless to say, considering his well-known ability as a Preceptor, rendered him every assistance. The Lodge was now called off for a short interval. On the return of the brethren, Bro. Larlham proceeded to instal Bro. William Ramsey as the second W.M. of the Lodge. After the customary salutations, Bro. Ramsey invested the following as his officers: M. S. Larlham I.P.M., T. L. Green S.W., N. Ritherdon J.W., A. Murray, Secretary, M. S. Larlham I.P.M. Treasurer, Ross S.D., Harvey J.D., A. Martin W. Steward, Allen I.G., Geider Tyler. A P.M.'s jewel was unanimously voted to the retiring W.M., and in consideration of the great services rendered to the Lodge by Bro. John Oliver, who had acted during the year as Secretary, it was proposed and unanimously carried that a jewel be presented to him at the next meeting of the Lodge. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting room, where an elegant repast had been provided, which gave the greatest satisfaction to all present. On the removal of the cloth Bro. Ramsey gave the customary toasts. A very pleasant evening was spent, and it was universally acknowledged that the system under which the Lodge carried out its domestic arrangements was most successful.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—At the meeting on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at Masons' Hall, Masons'-avenue, City, E.C., in accordance with the announcements previously made by us, the Fifteen Sections were worked. Present—Bros. J. T. Barnes P.M. W.M., James Stevens P.M. S.W., John G. Stevens P.M. J.W., J. K. Pitt Secretary, John Constable P.M. Treasurer; P.M. Bro. E. Gottheil Preceptor. A large number of the members were in attendance. The Lodge was opened, and the sections were most satisfactorily worked by the W.M., assisted by the undermentioned:—

1st	Section	Bro. L. Bone.
2nd	"	" W. Blackhall.
3rd	"	" G. Walker.
4th	"	" James Stevens.
5th	"	" J. Beckett.
6th	"	" T. Griffiths.
7th	"	" E. Williams.
8th	"	" I. P. Cohen.
9th	"	" J. Berry.
10th	"	" J. Constable.
11th	"	" W. H. G. Rudderforth.
12th	"	" W. Yetton.
13th	"	" C. H. Webb.
14th	"	" J. Constable.
15th	"	" W. Yetton.

Bros. Lovelock, H. Thomas and Williams, were elected members. Bro. Blackhall was appointed W.M. for next meeting. In proposing a vote of thanks to the W.M., Bro. Gottheil said that Bro. Barnes was one of those men who did their work quietly and without ostentation, never expecting either fee or reward for what they did. When Bro. Barnes first entered the Craft, the work used to be done by men whose earnestness it would be unfair to question, but who never bestowed a serious thought upon the possibility of rendering the work more in accordance with the progess which, in this nineteenth century, is everywhere visible. But our W.M. is one of those whose nature will not permit them to attempt anything unless convinced of their ability to do it well. Although some of those whom we may term the conservatives of the Order still endeavour to oppose what they are pleased to term innovations, yet gradually the improvements which Bro. Barnes has introduced are gradually being adopted in all Lodges in which brethren of intelligence assemble. His activity for the benefit of the Charities is also well known, but in all cases Bro. Barnes has done his work quietly and without ostentation. Those, however, who know him appreciate his exertions, and the good opinion of these, I am sure, he values. I wish we could do more, but it is only in our power to vote our thanks to him for his kindness in coming amongst us this evening, and for the way in which he had conducted the work of the Lodge. The vote of thanks was unanimously passed, and after an acknowledgment from Bro. Barnes, the brethren separated.

Sir Hugh Middelton Lodge, No. 1602.—The increasing number of propositions since the recent consecration necessitated another emergency meeting being held, this took place on the 23rd June, at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. The W.M., Bro. E. Somers, occupied the chair, E. G. Sim S.W., T. J. Coombs J.W., J. Weston Secretary, J. Osborn Treasurer, A. Rowley S.D., F. Allen J.D., W. Norris D.C., W. F. Poulton Steward, H. De Solla Organist, and acting P.M. W. H. Lee 1624, and several brethren. The Lodge was opened, Bros. J. H. Oppenheim, W. Payne, Sidney Rowley, R. J. Thomas, J. Pettigrew, J. G. Rimell, J. S. Furlong and W. Richardson were passed, and Messrs. E. Abrahams and J. E. Dodson were initiated into the Order. A committee was formed for the purpose of having a summer banquet, and to report thereon at the July meeting; this consisted of the W.M., Officers of the Lodge, and Bro. Dawson. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, where the usual toasts were given and responded to. Bros. H. De Solla (Organist) and Upward contributed to the harmony. Bros. Gibbs 1306 and Peckham 754 were present as visitors.

MR. F. VENABLES has been favoured with instructions to SELL by AUCTION, at the Mart, Tokenhouse-yard, Lothbury, E.C., on Thursday, 13th July 1876, at 12 for 1 o'clock precisely, in seven lots, a PORTION of the very valuable FREEHOLD PROPERTY, known as the Harringay Estate (land tax redeemed), situate in the Green-lanes, a short distance from Wood Green, Hornsey, and Tottenham, about a mile beyond the Manor House, at Woodberry Down, and facing Harringay Park, comprising about 15 acres of the most eligible building land within so short a distance of London. It possesses most important frontages to the high road from London to Southgate, and the roads from West Green to Tottenham. The estate is within 13 minutes' walk of the Alexandra Palace, and the houses already erected are family villas, and are always tenanted, and the constant and increasing demand for residences in this favourite neighbourhood will prove this a very advantageous opportunity to both speculators and investors being anxious of creating a fine estate of freehold ground rents. SOCIAL GATHERINGS.

A SHORT time since we spoke as to the desirability of craftsmen cultivating among themselves a closer degree of intimacy than at present exists. In the majority of cases the eight or nine, or, it may be, the dozen Lodge meetings which are held in the year, are the only occasions on which members have the opportunity of interchanging the ordinary courtesies of life. And even when these occur, the business of the Lodge very properly takes precedence of all else, so that the cultivation of good fellowship is left to the chapter of accidents. To say the least, this is a most irregular mode of procedure, and, in our humble opinion, very unconstitutional. We are aware this particular capitular body has what we may call an organised disorganisation peculiar to itself. The doctrine it professes is the doctrine of probabilities, its laws are the laws of chance. It is only, however, when other hopes and other means have failed him that the wise man trusts to the chapter in question. Whoever has a purpose in view leaves no regular stone unturned in order to gain it. When these have done him no service, then it is he says to himself, "I must look to the chapter of accidents." Now, the promotion of good fellowship is one of the leading aims of Freemasonry. We strive to become "jolly good fellows," not in a bacchanalian sense, but in the sense of being genial and kind towards each other. We are bidden to love and respect our neighbour, and the first step towards loving and respecting him is to know him. Yet the facilities for knowing one another are hardly worth mentioning, hardly, indeed, exist. We meet and labour, and refresh the inner man; the rest takes care of itself. Outside the Lodge we may know each other in the course of business, or we may not. All this is mere accident.

We are not so silly as to imagine that no class distinctions exist in Freemasonry. There are gentle and simple, learned and unlettered, business and professional folk among us. Some, again, are wealthy, while others must content themselves with a bare competency. As, then, in the outer, so in the Masonic world, it were absurd to expect all these different classes to be on terms of familiar intercourse. As a rule, however, Lodges are composed for the most part of members of the same social rank, and there is no reason we know of why they should not have at least the chance of meeting outside as well as inside the Lodge. The men of sympathetic tastes and temperaments will very soon find each other out, and mere casual acquaintance may gradually ripen into warm and enduring friendship. It is necessary, however, there should be afforded the opportunity of meeting, or the sympathy will remain latent.

Our readers are, doubtless, wondering what it is we have in view in writing thus formally. Our purpose is very harmless, and one in which we hope to have the sympathy of our readers. We are merely anxious to promote good fellowship among Lodges and members, and as a means to that end, the social gatherings which belong to this period of the year are as likely to do good as any we know of. It is the general opinion, among profanes at least, that people become more sociable the more they have the opportunity of cultivating each others' society. Accordingly, in those circles to which many of us belong, we find that little parties are organised into the country, to some quiet nook hid somewhere amongst the Surrey Hills, or in Kent, or northward in the direction of Harrow, of Hatfield, or of St. Albans. The number of such places within a radius of twenty or twenty-five miles of London is considerable, and there is hardly one which is not easily accessible by rail or, better still, by road. It would not be very difficult to get half-a-dozen men to club together and arrange for a day's visit to some pleasant quiet spot. Ladies might be of the party, and a few well furnished hampers would suffice to contain the needful provender. People enjoy themselves amazingly at these jaunts. True, vinegar is now and again mistaken for claret, pepper and sugar get commingled. The stout member of the party is somehow fixed in the strawberry-ice tub, till his fawn-coloured pantaloons blush continually at his misadventure. The genial little Tompkinson, an inexperienced youngster of perhaps four or five and twenty summers, finds champagne or claret cup a pleasant beverage under a broiling summer's sun. He consults it often, and is as ready for a toast as the celebrated Pickwick was when he went shooting in a wheel-barrow. The young ladies laugh pleasantly and musically over the little contretemps that take place. They, too, find an occasional taste of the cup is a fitting reward for the labours of the valse or galop over the smooth greensward. Their kindly hearts beat warmly as the day advances, and if a deeper glow than usual mantles their pretty cheeks as the hours of evening set in, if they are less careful about crumpled muslins and sashes on the return journey than at starting, if John and Amy, Tom and Cicely, Dickon and Carrie are less reticent towards each other, we may be sure the party has been one of pleasure unalloyed. So thinks, at least, that buxom fair faced matron, who, while watching Tom Meadows and his blue-eyed cousin flirting, has more than once during the day recalled the pleasant memories of her own girlhood. So does Meadows senior, who has just been singing "Our old friend John," with hearty good will, if not quite tunefully. Very pleasant are these parties, and very much appreciated are they in all classes of society. Why should not we Masons have our occasional fits of ruralising, and take our feminine belongings with us to some quiet little spot a few miles out from the noise, and heat, and turmoil of business? One or two drags or waggonettes would suffice for a nice little party of between twenty and thirty, and without a care to harass us, we might "spend a happy day" in homely fashion, and, to use a common phrase, "be happy as the day is long," with just a little happiness, perhaps, left over for the morrow. We are not, as a rule, at labour just now; why not be boys again together, and have our frequent bouts of play? It would not cost much, and well assured are we the game would be well worth the candle.

Or if pic-nics and similar "outings" do not commend themselves either to London or Provincial brethren, there is the more formal summer recreation banquet at the Crystal and Alexandra Palaces or at some distant Rainbow or Star and Garter. At these, too, we have the company of the ladies, and their presence it is needless to say graces the festive board as no other presence can. Well do we remember one such banquet that was held last summer at the Muswell Hill Palace, when Messrs. Bertram and Roberts catered admirably for their guests. There was a strong muster, both of ladies and brethren, and seldom have we spent a more agreeable day. Again, there are water picnics, when parties in boats visit the reaches of the Thames above Teddington. The timid go in substantial wherries, safe as any barge, and as surely warranted not to give its occupants a ducking. That pleasant theatrical water party so ably depicted in Jacob Faithful flits before our mind's eye. Let the reader glance at the few pages of this excellent work of Marryat's, in which the events of this memorable party are detailed, and we think he will utter the very natural wish, he had been one of them. Certain are we he will think it no act of folly to "organise"—that we believe is the right word—a similar excursion, and equally certain, if he is successful in organising one, that he will thoroughly enjoy it. We have taken part in many picnics and country excursions by land and water both, and we never had occasion to regret it. Some may urge that such "outings" detract from the dignity of Freemasonry. As well may a king or noble be said to cast aside his dignity when he throws off his state costume. Even for these, however, we have an answer in the shape of an old precedent set by Grand Lodge itself in the early days that followed the Revival of 1717. In Preston's Illustrations, at pp. 175-6, Oliver's edition, we read: "At the meeting"—that is, when Viscount Montagu was installed Grand Master—"it was first proposed to have a country feast, and agreed that the brethren should dine together at Hampstead, on the 24th of June, for which purpose cards of invitation were sent to several of the nobility. On the day appointed, the Grand Master and his Officers, the Dukes of Norfolk and Richmond, the Earl of Strathmore, Lords Carpenter and Teynham, and above a hundred other brethren, met at the Spikes at Hampstead, where an elegant dinner was provided." This was in the year 1732, and though ladies are not mentioned, we know that ladies then, as now, took an interest in Freemasonry. Some thirty years later, in May 1767, Her Grace the Duchess of Beaufort was unanimously elected "Lady Patroness of the Lodge of Friendship,"—now No. 6 on Grand Lodge Roll—and presented by the brethren with a pair of embroidered gloves, value five guineas, to mark their sense of the honour done to the Lodge by Her Grace. Who can say how much the presence of the ladies last year and this at the Boys' Festival has had to do with the marvellous success of Bro. Binckes on each occasion; and who knows but Freemasonry may find even greater favour in the eyes of the fair sex, the more opportunities they have of taking part with the brethren in such harmless homely jaunts as we have been suggesting? In the United States, the Craft is very popular with the ladies. We do not think the same amount of public display of Masonry would be welcome in England, but we certainly think the course of Masonry would prosper the more, the more it encouraged these social gathering of members and their friends.

NATURE AND SCIENCE.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

WHETHER the fate of Ismäel Pasha be to rise or fall, he will have established a lasting claim to be revered by posterity, through the enlightened support which he has accorded to scientific investigation.

Most interesting are the verifications of dates and places throughout Egypt in illustration of ancient history. The result of the researches of Brugsch Bey into the geographical misconceptions and alleged mistranslations of names from the Book of Exodus connected with the sojourn and flight of the Hebrews, was communicated by him to the Congress of Orientalists, and is now published in the volume of "Transactions," edited by Professor Douglas (Trübner. 1876.) The main misconception he affirms to arise from the translation of the name of the "Red Sea" instead of "Sea of Seaweed," meaning Lake Sirbonis.

Numerous alternative routes based on the names Sukkoth, Etham, Migdol, &c., have been conjectured by savants, with the help of names given by Greek and Roman writers of the times of the Ptolemies and Cæsars, and almost all concur in leaving undoubted the actual passage by the Israelites of the Red Sea. Brugsch Bey now, after twenty years of labour, claims to have succeeded in uniting the disjecta membra of ancient Egyptian topography, with the following result.

The Hebrews were settled on the eastern side of lower Egypt, to the west of the Pelusiac branch, which has disappeared from the map, but the site of which the ruins of border cities identify. In the south of their settlement was the town of An or On (Heliopolis); then the town of Pibast, Pibeseth, Bubastus: more to the north is Faquer, Phacoussa, Gosem, or Goshen; due north between Gosem and the Mediterranean is Pitom, in the country of Sukot. In the same neighbourhood, between the Pelusiac and Tanitic Nile branches is Zoan or Pi-ramses. All these names will be readily recognised. The very deserts and lagoons, now so familiar to travellers by the Suez Canal, formed in ancient times, the banks of the Pelusiac branch of the Nile delta—the district of the Sethroïte nome, Sukot, the first station of the fugitives after they had quitted the town of Ramses. At the entrance of the old high road from Egypt to Palestine, near Lake Sirbonis, was a small frontier post or fortification called Anhu "the wall," a name which was translated by the Greeks "ta Gerrhon," and by the Hebrews "Shour," words of the same signification. The marshes and lagoons were by the Egyptians called "Athu," after the seaweed, reeds, rushes and papyrus plants, with which they were choked; this by the Hebrews was also literally translated "Yam Souph," the sea of seaweed. On the eastern side of the nome of Sukot, bordering the desert, stood the tower "Migdol," or Samout, regarded as the most northern point of Egypt. On the sandy plain now named "San," strewed with gigantic ruins, is the site of Tanis or Zoan (see Psalm lxxviii, for "the plains of Zoan"). This was the station where journeyers from Egypt into Palestine loaded their beasts; another name of it was Pi-ramses, as ascertained from inscribed monuments on the spot. These and the papyri are filled with dates referring to the building of the city, to the stone and bricks with which the workmen were overburdened to finish their task quickly, and with details so precise and special as to render it impossible, says the learned author, not to recognize the Bible account of the hard servitude of the Hebrews. "One must be blind not to see the light which pierces the shadows of thirty centuries, and which allows us to transport to their proper places events which the good fathers of the Church, excellent Christians but bad connoisseurs of antiquity, would have upset for ever, had not the monuments of the Khedive and the treasures of the British Museum come in good time to our aid."

To displace the position of this town of Ramses, would introduce irreparable confusion into the recorded geographical order of "the names and villages of Egypt." This is named by Egyptian texts as the boundary of Egyptian territory, the commencement of foreign soil. From hence, from Zoan Ramses, Thothmes III. departed, 1600 B.C., to attack the land of Canaan. Its plains served as manœuvring ground, its port was filled with the commerce of Egypt and Syria. Here the Israelites were captive, Moses adjured the Pharaoh of his day, and here the Hebrews took farewell of Egypt. From hence they went to Sukot, and from Sukot to Khetam on the edge of the desert, rendered by them Etham. Of this Khetam (in the province of Zor) a drawing is represented on a monument of Sethos I., it was situated upon both banks of the Pelusiac Nile, its two opposite parts being joined by a bridge, a name to perpetuate which continues to the present day—"the last reminiscence of the only passage, which, in ancient times, allowed of an entrance into Egypt from the frontier, without wetting the feet." From Khetam, which was reached on the third day, they travelled to Migdol, on what we should call the King's highway. This route led from thence to the Mediterranean shore, to the wall of Gerrhon or Shour, situated at the extremity of Lake Sirbonis. The lake, now almost dried up and forgotten, was well known to the ancients; it was separated from the Mediterranean by a tongue of land, and was covered with a rich vegetation of rushes and papyri, which hid fatal quicksands of prodigious depth. Along the narrow tongue of land, bordered on one side by the Mediterranean, on the other by the "lagoon of seaweed," the Sirbonis, the Hebrews went; and after they had crossed the shallows, a high tide overtook the Egyptian army of pursuit. Struggling with frightened horses and disordered chariots, it happened to the Egyptians as is described by Strabo long after. "At the time of my sojourn in Alexandria, there was a high tide at Pelusium, and near to Mount Casios. The waters inundated the country, so that the mountains appeared islands and the road leading to Palestine became practicable for ships." And as related by Diodorus of a catastrophe which befell the army of Artaxerxes at the same place, "when the Persian King had united all his troops, he made them advance towards Egypt. Having arrived at the Great Lake, where they found places named 'gulfs,' he lost part of his army, because he was ignorant of the character of that region." Another classic author, describing the Sirbonis with minuteness of detail, says that "whole armies have been there swallowed up."

Brugsch Bey gives the translation of a papyrus—a simple letter written by a scribe thirty centuries ago, describing his departure from Piramses in search of his absconded servants. "I started from the royal palace the ninth day of the third month of summer, towards the evening. I arrived at the bulwark of Sukot on the 10th day of the same month. There I was informed they had deliberated to pass towards the south side. The twelfth day I arrived at Khetam. There I was informed that the fugitives had crossed the country of the wall, to the north of Migdol. . . . Here we have the exact description of the march of the Hebrews, (imitated by this scribe and his absconded servants). Both the Hebrew and the scribe reached Sukot the day after their departure from Ramses; as they stopped at Etham the third day, so did he at Khetam, where the desert commences; as the fugitives turned to the north, towards Migdol, and towards 'the wall' Gerrhon, so did the Hebrews. "The truth is simple," says Brugsch Bey, "and needs no further demonstration:" he nevertheless continues to identify other stations of the route, and to adduce corroborative details of philology and topography of a most interesting nature, of which the following may be here given.

The Egyptians are said to have overtaken the Israelites encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth, before Baal-zephon (Exodus xiv. 9). Khirot is the ancient name answering to the gulfs in the lake of seaweed, near the place Gerrhon (the wall). The Biblical word Pihahiroth literally designates "the entrance to the bogs." The name Baal-zephon is found on one of the British Museum papyri, written Baali-zapouna, or the Egyptian God Amon, "master of the northern countries, of the marshes, of Khirot"—i.e. of the gulfs of the marshy lagoons. This deity was afterwards called by the Greeks Zeus Kasius. This explains the Semitic Egyptian name of the region where his temple was. It is Hazi or Hazion, "the land of the asylum," and the sanctuary of the God actually stood at the extreme Egyptian frontier on the eastern side. The narrow tongue of land extended from the point of entrance to the Kiroth, or gulfs, on the west, to the sanctuary of Baal-zephon on the east, in face of the great catastrophe occurred.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERE'S A WAY.

A MAN is none the worse for an occasional new suit of clothes, and an old proverb redressed often brings home to us an old truth with overwhelming force. The proverb we have selected as the text of our present remarks is very ancient. With a new application, however, it will serve admirably our present purpose. It is a duty we owe to the Craft, and one which we delight in fulfilling; to the best of our ability to bring prominently under the notice of our readers any special attempt to promote the interests of one or other of our Charitable Institutions. The Boys' School has just had, for the second year in succession, a most satisfactory Festival. Again have we had to record a list of donations amounting up to close on £13,000. In quite another than the ordinary sense, "one good turn deserves another," and as two Boards of Stewards have invariably done the School so excellent a turn as to furnish such munificent contributions towards its funds, it is only just, at all events only natural, that a third Board of Stewards should make an effort to outdo the exploits of their predecessors. Already preparations are being made for the Boys' Festival of 1877. Indeed, we are violating no secresy in saying that even before this year's Festival was held Bro. Binckes's list of Stewards for 1877 numbered some twenty or thirty brethren, and among them must be mentioned the name of Bro. Constable, who has resolved to throw the whole of his amazing energy into the somewhat thankless task of collecting funds, but this time for the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. His first effort was on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and the result was a list of £349. Last year he exerted himself in the service of the Girls' School, and the amount of his contribution was £420. Next year he will act for the Boys', and a little bird has whispered to us that he means gathering together no less at all events than a round thousand. Such a result will be simply magnificent, and if he achieves it will redound infinitely to our brother's credit. Nor know we any one who is more likely to succeed in such an enterprise. "Where there's a will there's a way." Bro. Constable has formed his resolution, and we have every confidence he will fulfil it. With him to plan and to execute are not separated by any impassable gulf. At starting he takes a good look at the goal he will have to reach, and having taking in at a glance all the obstacles he is likely to encounter by the way, he braces up his loins and sets out manfully, determined to succeed. How he succeeds is worth a moment's consideration. When he first entered the lists as a champion in the holy cause of Charity, Bro. Constable saw that one of the chief difficulties which a Steward had to put up with was to include in his list the contributions of the many who could afford to bestow the very smallest donations, amounting to one or perhaps a few shillings only. It occurred to our worthy Brother that many a good Mason would contribute his mite if a means were invented by which he could help the cause of charity, and yet not be thrown into the shade by the larger contributions of the wealthy. Accordingly, he devised his system of shilling tickets, each ticket giving the holder a chance of winning a Life Governorship of ten guineas or pounds, according as they were issued, for the Girls and Boys and Benevolent Institutions. The first attempt was highly successful. Bro. Constable had prepared and printed two thousand tickets, and these brought him the handsome sum of £100, being the amount of ten Life Govenorships to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and that, too, in addition to close on £250 collected in the ordinary manner from the members of his Lodge and his friends in Masonry. Last year, Bro. Constable repeated his scheme, with even greater success, for the Girls' School, the amount he obtained by his tickets being £189, the value of eighteen Life Governorships, the total of his collection from all sources being £420. Next year he will try his hand a third time, for "Our Boys." He will issue a still larger number of tickets than previously, and he is confident that if a knowledge of his scheme is widely circulated thus early the harvest he will reap from this source will be very largely in excess of his former results. We have said that Bro. Constable is invariably in earnest in everything he undertakes. He makes up his mind to carry all before him, and his enthusiastic impetuosity generally takes him through successfully. If all goes well, and we are alive next July, we trust it will be our good fortune to record the result of a third and supreme effort on the part of our esteemed Brother, and that "Our Boys" will benefit by his exertions to the full extent of his hopes. He means a four-figure list in 1877, and when a man means winning he is said to be already half-way on the road to success.

The Annual Benevolent Fund Festival of the Mark Master Masons will be held on Wednesday next, at the Alexandra Park banquetting hall. As one of the objects of the Festival is to assist the fund established for the relief of Mark Masons, their widows and children, we hope it will be numerously attended, and a large amount in donations raised.

At a Quarterly General Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, held on Monday last, it was decided to elect eleven boys—from a list of fifty-eight—at the quarterly meeting to be held on the 16th October next. The Secretary stated he expected several amounts in addition to those announced at the Festival. A vote of thanks to the Chairman, Bro. J. M. Clabon, P.G.D., terminated the proceedings.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have signified their intention of visiting the Crystal Palace on Wednesday the 19th inst., when their Royal Highnesses will be accompanied by the King and Queen of Greece.

H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., has been pleased to appoint the R.W. Lord Suffield, of Gunston Park, to be Provincial Grand Master for Norfolk. The installation will take place in October next.

His Majesty Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria, has been pleased to confer on our worthy Bro. S. Pollitzer, P.M. 1017, P.Z. 188, 583 (Vane Chapter), the honour of the Golden Cross of Merit, with "the Crown," in recognition of his services in the interest of Austrian industry.

Old Warrants.

We have pleasure in publishing the following from our esteemed correspondent, Bro. Jacob Norton :—

Boston, 14th June 1876.

My Dear Brother Constable,—I thank you for publishing the Old Warrants, especially those of the Ancients, and with pleasure I hasten to contribute some documents emanating from the said organization. The following introduction, by Bro. Joseph Fletcher Brennan, in his "History of Masonry in British America," omitting only some erroneous statements of the author, will be read with interest :—

"In 1758 there were received at Halifax, by Erasmus James Phillips, who at that time was a member of the first General Assembly of Nova Scotia, a Provincial Grand Warrant and two Lodge Warrants, written by Laurence Dermott, as Secretary at London of the Grand Lodge, organised by him but two years previously [that is an error]. Those Lodge Warrants are numbered respectively No. 2 and 3. The Provincial Grand Warrant bears the No. 65 * * * There is no doubt of the receipt of those Warrants at Halifax, as all three are to be found in the archives of the fraternity of the present day in that city. Except in the statement quoted from, and nothing in that, there is no evidence that any of them were ever used. Two of them, the Provincial Grand Warrant and the Lodge Warrant No. 2, are written on parchment, apparently by the hand of Laurence Dermott himself, and stamped with a slightly oval seal of wax, having on the superior portion thereof a square and compass, and beneath a naked dagger, the whole partially surrounded with the word, "Virtue and Silence."

The following is a copy of the Grand Warrant, and it is very strange that Bro. Dermott spelt the name of the G.M. Blesinton, instead of Blessington :—

Lau Dermott Gd. Secretary.

A copy of the above, upon a sheet of cap paper, which Bro. Brennan thinks to be the handwriting of Charles Bearlock, G.S. of the Ancients in 1780, also exists in the Nova Scotia Archives, to which the following address is added :—

"To the Right Worshipful Brethren, viz :

Excellency Charles Lawrence, Govr. of Nova Scotia, M.
William Nesbett Esq. D.M. George Frenchville
P.S.G.W. Mr. — Le Compte, P.J.G.W. &c., &c., &c."

With the above, as already stated, came two Warrants for Lodges respectively numbered 2 and 3. It seems from the above Grand Warrant, as well as from a copy preserved in Philadelphia, that Bro. Dermott numbered his Deputations to Provincial Grand Masters for holding Provincial Grand Lodges among his list of Lodges. Having given the above Deputation as No. 65 in England, and No. 1 in Nova Scotia, I now give a copy of one of the Warrants, which has merely the No. 2 on it, without intimating its No. in England.

No. 9.

To which Bro. Brennan adds :—"Except in the names, Warrant No. 3 is the same in every particular as Warrant No. 2, the number and seal occupy the same position, John Keen, Edward Barron, and William Arlow, are written respectively in No. 3 for Master, Senior and Junior Wardens, and the Deputy G.M. is blank, as in No. 2. The copy is written in the office of the Grand Secretary of the Ancients in London, on a half sheet of cap paper, the broad way, that is, from end to end of the half sheet. Of course it bears no seal, the place being alone indicated by a circle with a pen, and "Grand Seal" written therein. This copy is in the lower left hand corner, marked, "A true copy, attest, Jo. Gridley, Gr. Sec'y."

The above copies, my dear Bro. Constable, will suffice at present. Next week I shall forward some more if the All Wise permits.

Yours sincerely and fraternally,

ALBION LODGE, QUEBEC, AND ORIGIN OF FREEMASONRY IN NORTH AMERICA.

By Brother William James Hughan.

(From the "Keystone.")

I HAVE been much interested in reading Brother Jacob Norton's able letter in the Keystone of the 29th April respecting the claim advanced by the Square, that the Albion Lodge, Quebec, was constituted A.D. 1721, and, consequently, that Philadelphia must retire from its present position as the "Mother-City of Freemasonry in America."

Bro. Norton has done exceedingly well with the scanty materials furnished for his analysis, but not having all that is necessary to fully answer the erroneous claim, I herewith proceed to supply the information necessary to a complete understanding of the subject.

I have already sent to the Masonic Review a few particulars, which will doubtless interest your numerous readers, and enable them to arrive at a correct conclusion, and the following will supplement my communication to that excellent publication, wherein I first noticed the claim advanced by the Square.

First of all let me say, that your editorial on the subject was to the point, and in accordance with the facts of the case, the "Ancients" not having warranted any Lodges until after 1750, and Albion Lodge being under that jurisdiction, 1721 clearly cannot be the year of its origin.

Unless New Jersey or New York can produce evidence of the existence of a regular Lodge prior to 1730, I think the Keystone State will remain in possession of her laurels; and I hope yet to finally settle the matter.

1. Bro. Norton refers to the Grand Lodge of England Masonic Calender of 1855, which contains: "17. Albion Lodge, Quebec, 1721." He will likely find it is a mistake to add the year after Quebec, but that 1721 is credited to the previous Lodge on the List, and the one afterwards. No Calender of mine, published by the Grand Lodge of England, has any year to No. 17, nor have I ever seen any. The custom, since 1815, has been to insert the years of the constitution of the regular or "Modern" Lodges, and to leave blanks after the descriptions of the Lodges formerly under the "Ancients," or seceders, by which means the Lodges of both organizations are easily noted.

Digitized by Google

Until recently, for some years, the dates of constitution of several old Lodges have been incorrectly given in the Calenders of the Grand Lodge of England, hence the year 1721 has been placed after certain Lodges instead of 1722, and was doubtless so printed in the copy seen by the writer of the notice in the Square. Even then, however, the year only had reference to the "Modern" Lodges, and never to No. 17, or of any Lodge of the "Ancients."

In my List of Lodges on the Roll of the two Grand Lodges immediately preceding and following the "Union," the years of constitution are given correctly, and indeed were mostly taken from the old Calenders of last century, or from the authorised Bye-Laws of Lodges containing historical sketches. The following extract includes all the Lodges to No. 20, and to fully explain the matter, I have, as far as possible, inserted the years of constitution of the "Ancients" subsequently:—

No. in 1863	NAME AND LOCATION.	No. after Union (1814).	No. in 1813, Moderns	No. in 1813, Ancients	Moderns Constituted.
	Grand Stewards' Lodge, London	—	—	—	1735
1	Grand Masters' Lodge, London	1	—	1	*
2	Antiquity Lodge, London ...	2	1	—	Time Immemorial.
3	Fidelity Lodge, London... ...	3	—	2	*
4	Somerset House, London ...	4	2	—	Time Immemorial.
5	St. George's Lodge, London ...	5	—	3	*
6	Friendship Lodge, London ...	6	3	—	1721
7	Royal York Lodge, London ...	7	—	4	*
8	British Lodge, London	8	4	—	1721
9	Albion Lodge, London	9	—	5	*
10	Westminster Lodge, London ...	10	5	—	1721
11	Enoch Lodge, London ... ...,	11	—	6	*
12	Fortitude Lodge, London ...	12	[6	—	1722
13	Union Waterloo, London ...	13	—	7	*
14	Tuscan Lodge, London	14	7	—	1722
15	Kent Lodge, London	15	—	8	*
16	Royal Alpha Lodge	16	8	—	1722
17	Albion Lodge, Quebec	17	—	9	*
18	Old Dundee Lodge, London ...	18	9	—	1722
19	Royal Athelstan Lodge, London	19	—	10	*
20	Royal Kent Lodge, Chatham ...	20	10	—	1722

Eleven out of this list of Lodges belonged to "Moderns" (so-called), the first of which was constituted 1735 (Grand Stewards' Lodge), the next two existed before the formation of the Premier Grand Lodge of the World at London, 1717, the succeeding three were warranted in 1721, the next four in 1722, and the last in 1723. The remaining ten Lodges are all "Ancients," and I distinguish them with an asterisk (*). No. 1 was constituted in 1759, and having ceased to work was revived in 1787. No. 3 was constituted after 1750, and so were all the rest. No. 7 was constituted A.D. 1751, according to its Centenary Warrant. No. 9 originated in 1751, but had a second charter in 1774, and No. 19, was started in 1769, according to an excellent history of that Lodge which was printed recently. It will be seen that there are two Lodges by the name of Albion, Nos. 9 and 17. The first was, as I have said, started A.D. 1751, but the date of origin of the second No. 17 I have not been able to determine, but that its Warrant should testify, if preserved, and I hope that the friendly discussion on the subject will be the means of securing the publication of that document if it is still preserved. For certain it was after No. 9 of the same name of A.D. 1751, and likely enough not long before No. 12 of A.D. 1769, of the same jurisdiction. No. 17 was formerly held in the Royal Artillery, at Quebec, and that changed the name to the "Albion," as it now stands under the Grand Lodge of Quebec. It petitioned the Grand Lodge of England recently for a Centenary Warrant to enable the members to wear a Centenary Jewel, according to the English custom, though the Lodge had left that jurisdiction and joined the Grand Lodge of Quebec. The prayer of the petitioners was supported by their Grand Master, and accordingly the members were allowed the privilege desired.

Doubtless, as Bro. Norton states, the old and new styles of chronology rendered it awkward occasionally in deciding as to the years of constitution, but supposing the years recorded on our list of Lodges were according to the old style, which they are not, the Warrants must have been issued prior to 25th March of each year to be affected by the alteration.

I support Bro. Norton's statement most warmly that a history of the Albion Lodge at Quebec (No. 17 when under the Grand Lodge of England), "accompanied with quotations from its records, would be a valuable addition to Masonic literature," and I hope the Canadian Masonic News will succeed in obtaining that boon for Masonic students.

I may state that at the present time there are FORTY Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England warranted prior to the existence of the "Ancients," and consequently before the constitution of any of its Lodges, including the Albion Lodge, Quebec (Royal Artillery, formerly), under which organization it was numbered nine.

In conclusion I will add that I shall be happy at any time to furnish information respecting the old Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, through the columns of my friend The Keystone.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.—THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is very good of your correspondents to seek enlightenment, but, for myself, I must ask permission to refrain from expressing any opinion on the status of Mark Masonry, or the rights, privileges or position of Mark Master Masons under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge or Grand Chapter of Scotland. Truth to tell, I am not sure that I thoroughly understand the question. All I will now say is, that the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England is desirous of cultivating amicable relations with all Supreme Bodies by whom the Mark Degree is recognized, and to be on fraternal terms with all those Bodies who deem it prudent to withhold recognition of the Mark Degree. The doors of her Lodges are open to all brethren as visitors, and to receive them as affiliated members if they can produce proof of being regularly advanced Mark Master Masons, i.e., advanced in a constitutionally established body authorised to confer the Mark Degree.

I am, dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

11th July 1876. FREDERICK BINCKES.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am glad that my letter has elicited those of "Q." and "Nous Verrons." The former has gone into the subject more elaborately than I ventured to do, from fear of trespassing upon your valuable space, and "N. V." supplies the data that he wanted. He may also find a confirmation of the agreement between the Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter for Scotland in the Grand Chapter Reporter for 1861. I had no doubt as to the legal right, though I may question the desirability of Scotch Lodges making Mark Masters, if they confine themselves to the law as quoted, merely "Including the Mark, which, however, Grand Lodge does not recognise as a separate degree."

Knowing that Bro. Binckes has devoted considerable time to the elucidation of the Mark degree, I ventured to ask "Our Hercules" to take this small additional labour, and elucidate this part of the question, namely, is a brother so made eligible to take his seat in an English Mark Lodge or a Scotch one, bearing in mind that the latter is essentially a Royal Arch Chapter, working for the time in that degree?

Bro. Laurie, the son and successor in office of the John Laurie who signed the circular quoted by "N. V.," and the Grand Scribe E., Comp. Mackersay, should be able to say authoritatively, the one if the Lodges acting in the way specified in my former letter are exceeding their powers, and the other, if members so admitted into the Order are entitled to all the rights and privileges of those regularly initiated in a Mark Lodge working under a Charter from the Grand Chapter, or if the principals of these Chapters are justified in refusing admission of such brethren pending that decision.

Fraternally yours,

W. G. RELEBHW.

BRO. BAXTER LANGLEY AND HIS CRITICS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I hold that Bro. Baxter Langley is perfectly right, and that he is receiving very harsh treatment at the hands of your contemporary and his correspondents. Bro. Langley's ideas are the result of study, shared in by vast numbers in this age of unshackled thought and earnest enquiry. Have those who condemn him, and are attempting to throw obloquy upon his outspoken utterances, ever mastered the painstaking researches of Godfrey Higgins, Hargreave Jennings, and the hosts of those who have made the cults of the world their study? Let our brother be content. When time and opportunity serve, there will not be found wanting brethren with will and ability to support him.

Yours and his,

12th July 1876. A SYMPATHISING STUDENT.

The consecration of the West Middlesex Lodge, No. 1612, is fixed for this day (Saturday). The ceremony will be performed by V.W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who will be assisted by Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer for Middlesex. Bro. Hervey will afterwards instal Bro. A. Beasley, P.M. No. 780, as Worshipful Master. The brethren will meet at the Institute, Ealing, at half-past three o'clock, and there will be a banquet at Brown's Railway Hotel at six p.m.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

Our readers will find the current number of Blackwood just what a magazine should be at this season, well furnished with light yet profitable matter. "A Woman Hater" is developing into an admirable tale. "In a studio—Conversation No. V." is genially written. "Lady Adelaide, a Study," is a pleasant piece of sketch work, and "A Wanderer's Letter," in which the scene of Napoleon's terrible defeat at Leipzig is described, well deserves perusal. It is almost a matter of course that "The Eastern Question" should have its notice, but that is not Maga's fault. The concluding article is "The Autobiography of a Joint Stock Company (Limited)."

Belgravia, we regret to say, is much weaker than formerly in the matter of illustration, L. Cattermole's May and December being the exception, but in all other respects it well maintains its high character. The gem of the number is Mr. Swinburne's poem, "A Song in Season." "From Dreams to Waking" is the title of a new story by Mrs. Lynn Linton, and we augur well of its career, from the opening instalment. Mr. Charles Reade's series of "Good Stories of Man and other Animals" is continued, and "A Special Constable" is capitally told. The old serials are still current, and the reader will find Mrs. Lovett Cameron's "Juliet" a well-planned tale, with more than one piece of life-like portraiture in it.

Tinsley's, latterly, has included more solid reading than formerly, and this offers a very pleasing contrast to the fiction and papers of a more passing interest. The author of "Famous Bohemians" contributes, this month, a good article on "Voltaire and Gibbon," and we shall heartily welcome more of the same class in future numbers. "Some Modern Pastimes," by W. Bellars, contains some common sense. The manner in which people endeavour to pass time is often painful in the extreme, and the writer points out how easy it is for people who are so minded to find amusement. His suggestions are not in the form of a lecture. Remarks that assume this character are more frequently resented than heeded. Mr. Bellars wisely draws a distinction between what is merely done as a kill-time and amusement which is in no sense a labour and yet genuine. He cites more than one instance to point his moral, and people will find his advice well worth following. The serial stories, which may be said to form the strength of this magazine, are all that can be desired. The plots are well interwoven, and the characters life-like. As usual, too, the poetic element is well represented, Dr. Maurice Davies, with his "Love Songs of all Nations," being still a leading contributor.

In Cornhill there is a choice array of articles, fiction, in the shape of the new tale of "Carità," heading the list. "The Rev. Adam Cameron's visit to London" is commenced this month; but to very many readers the account of "A Lady's visit to the Herzegovinian Insurgents" will just now prove the leading attraction. When, last year, the Consuls of the Great Powers traversed the disturbed Provinces of Turkey, it was said the chief difficulty they experienced was in finding any insurgents. The experiences of one who has actually come in contact with them will be all the more interesting. Of the other contents, "Thoughts of an Outsider: International Prejudices," and the portrait of "A delightful woman," will be found very agreeable reading, while "Horace's art of Conduct" is admirably sketched.

We are promised in the August number of the Gentleman's a complete story by Mr. Charles Gibbon, to be called "In Pastures Green," and in September will be given another, "As she comes up the stairs," by the author of "Comin' thro' the Rye." This month we have the opening chapter of a story by Mr. Justin McCarthy. The title is "Love in Idleness," and the hero, Mr. Stephen Acton, a very pleasant personage to become acquainted with. Latterly, Mr. Hepworth Dixon has been writing somewhat fully on matters political. A while ago it was the purchase of the Suez Canal Shares, which evoked his comments; now, under the title of "Three Emperors' Policy," he is quite as outspoken about the irrepressible Eastern Crisis. We must leave our readers to form their own opinion as to the correctness of Mr. Dixon's views. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke's Recollections, and the third part of Red Spinner's Ocean Log are still current. The Table Talk is excellent, as usual.

Baily is always one of the most attractive periodicals, and just now there is plenty of seasonable matter to discuss. The Cricket season is at its height, and the recent doings of the University Elevens at Lord's naturally form the subject of one of the articles. Then the North and South match at the same ground on Whit-Monday and following days for the benefit of Hearne is passed under review, and the writer of "Our Van" is as lively as ever in his comments de omnibus rebus. "In the Park" is a highly chatty paper, and there is a sketch of "Quail Shooting near the Pyramids." We deeply sympathise with the reader who cannot enjoy these. His "works" must want a little looking after.

We are more than ordinarily pleased with the contents of the present number of the New Quarterly. Those who care to study "The Spirit of Modern Agriculture," will find the subject discussed in a long and able article by Mr. Richard Jefferies. Major Knollys gives a detailed account of "Our Disasters in Affghanistan," showing how they arose, and how, with ordinary caution on the part of our chiefs, the terrible losses we suffered might easily have been prevented. Fiction is always an important element in this periodical, and the tale of "Allan Glayne," as told by Sir Charles Young, Bart., very worthily represents this branch of literature. "The Tourist in Portugal" is from the pen of Mr. John Latouche, and those who remember his pleasant record of Travels in the same country will rejoice at his re-appearance among the contributors to the New Quarterly. "A Wit of the Last Generation" is well sketched, the subject Joseph Jekyll, many of whose terse and witty sayings are quoted by the writer. "The Academy and the Salon," by J. W. Comyns Carr, and "The Troubles of An Automaton," by Clementina Black, are excellently well written, while the editor has done his part admirably, his review of "Current Literature and Current Criticism" being a model specimen of critical writing.

Cassell's Family Magazine contains the usual programme. The serial fiction is in the highest degree interesting, the elder of the two stories being admirably told. "The Gatherer" publishes a whole regiment of useful and entertaining notes. Among the practical papers, for which this Magazine is so generally appreciated, we must mention the "Chit-Chat on Dress," and another of Mr. Payne's excellent papers on Cookery. The paper on Gardening, too, is well worth studying, the information it contains being more serviceable and far better compiled than we find usually in such articles.

The illustrations in the Leisure Hour and Sunday at Home are very well drawn indeed. "The War of American Independence" is still continued in the former, and so are the Notes on the Months and the Weather Wisdom we have so often quoted specimens of. The chief attractions of Sunday at Home are Dr. Stoughton's papers on "Westminster Abbey," continued, a second interesting contribution by Mrs. Finn on "Agriculture in Palestine," and articles on "General Sir Hope Grant," "Whale Fishing," and "Russia in the Latter Years," the last being by Dr. Keith. We can strongly recommend both these periodicals to the notice of our readers. The young especially will find plenty of wholesome matter.

PRECEPT AND PRACTICE.

From the "HEBREW LEADER."

THE following conversation, between a friend and ourself, meeting at a festival in the Temple, should be of interest to the Brotherhood:

"It is now twenty-six years since I joined the Order you love so well, and to which you devote so much of your energy, and it has been thirteen years since I was exalted as a Royal Arch Mason, and exactly that length of time since I have entered its doors. This seems strange to you; but let me explain the reason why. You know I am of a genial nature and fond of social company, and therefore you will wonder the more." "Let us hear you," we replied, "for you have never shown in the many years we have associated any outward sign of your connection with an institution which we should think would be your ideal of mental enjoyment, in study, in making the great principles a chief topic in converse, and, in truth, presenting yourself a practical demonstration of the beauties of its teachings and of its lessons inculcated, for you lead an exemplary life." "Hold!" said our companion; "you have struck upon the key-note of my exception. I grant all you say as to precept, but the practice in the Order is so widely different. I was young, and fond of jovial society, but loved the very word 'charity' in its noblest and broadest sense. Many of my young companions were of the Order, but little insight led me to knock, and the door was open to me. I drank every word that was uttered, I revelled in every ceremony, and as a student few surpassed me. At the close of every communication, as I advanced to the third degree, I accompanied the Lodge companions to the nearest refreshment saloon, and with them enjoyed the passing cup. Great freedom and license were used in conversation, and while my nature and spirit rebelled, I silenced them with the thought 'this is a casual outburst intended complimentarily to my passing the grades.' But as time wore on, I found the fortnightly communications followed invariably by the same hurrah, and less restraint at my presence, or other incomers, and what was bearable at first not only became irksome, but with numbers of the members becoming too familiar with the refreshments, ribaldry, unseemly jest and questionable song ruled the hour, and time flew past without one word of intellectual enjoyment, and my little home began to be neglected. I had the manliness and courage to stop right there, to go home direct from the Lodge, and to visit and know for myself if this was a Masonic ruling passion. 'Tis true I found many Lodges different from my own; but many, I regret to say, of the same faulty habit, undoing the good so beautifully taught within the walls of our Masonic home. I dropped my attendance, while ever cherishing what I had so beautifully learned of the noblest Order in the land—noble in precept, but not so in practice. But now let me add my mind would not let me give up the Order, and thirteen years ago I concluded to join the Chapter, deeming that there I would find the cream of the Brotherhood, and my heart's wish gratified. But no, no change; and I have been outside the sanctuary ever since."

Having had much experience, we had to acknowledge much of the force of our friend's remarks. It is to a great extent a sad truth, but neither our pleasure or our duty to act as did our friend. We insist upon remaining in the Lodge and in the Sanctuary, and not only by precept, but by example and practice, to induce others, if they feel the need of refreshment after the hour's labour, that they shall not spend it in intemperance or excess, but in an enjoyment that shall be intellectual in the main, and worthy of gentlemen and Masons. Every one exerts some influence; and if he does in the right direction with one companion, it will soon yield its fruit, and the influence will be sensibly felt among the whole body. The impression upon the initiated will be everlasting, and the precept become of necessity his practice.

God is immutable and eternal, and wishes rather the good purpose, when once begun, to be persevered in to the end of life. Pope Alexander, in his famous bull to the Knights Templars, in 1179, says:—

Digitized by Google

"And whosoever of these are received into your college, they must make the promise of steadfastness of purpose, of reformation of morals, and that they will fight for the Lord all the days of their lives, and render strict obedience to the Master of the Temple, the Book in which these things are conned being placed upon the altar."

A large amount of the apathy evinced in the Lodge assemblages may be attributed to the excess of indulgence in that which poisons the mind and body after the evening service is over. The best men and members, except the undaunted workers, withhold their presence where the weak and poorer class of companions attend, and after the labours are over, by example injure the fair name of the Lodge and its otherwise would-be attendant. The Master and Wardens, and as well the other officers, have a great responsibility resting upon them in this respect. They are the immediate instructors, and their example becomes more marked, especially by the young and tender Mason. Their faces should be boldly set against the introduction of the after-social hour of intemperate, cankering conversation. Some Commanderies wisely make it reprehensible for a Sir Knight to enter the open saloons while wearing the uniform. Let them go farther, and with the fraternity of all grades and departments discountenance all unseemly conduct and bearing at all times, but especially upon the close of an evening's solemn instruction and service.

In what are herein said, let each Mason strive for good, and good will result. The greatest weakness of the Order, known to our enemies, is that of which we herein speak. Let us, then, eradicate it. We are told, "Why, yes, your Order is in everything beautiful as to precept and promise; 'but by their fruits ye shall know them.'" Let each one act as the sunbeam in practical good, that giveth light and warmth, and correcteth the dark places in a sinful world, and we shall have our reward.

"A sunbeam left the sun, and, as it sped,
I followed, watched, and listened what it said:
'Wherefore, with all this brightness am I given
From Sun to Earth? Am I not fit for Heaven?
From God I came once; and, though worlds have passed,
Ages, and dooms, yet I am light to the last.
Whatever God hath once bent to His will,
Is sacred.' Let us entreat Him to so mould us
That we may be a light to the last."

"From the MASONIC JEWEL."

THE number of impostors and drones that are now travelling over the country, seeking Masonic aid and charity, is almost alarming. They come in all guises and under all circumstances, each one having a peculiar tale suited to his or her taste or disposition. The order is so numerous that a willing ear can be found in most any locality, and the brightness of the applicants is almost as proverbial as they are numerous. No situation is too high or to lowly for them to assume, no disaster or misfortune so great but they have experienced it. Many are too proud to beg; they simply desire a loan. Many are away from home, helpless, starving and destitute. Help must be given at once; the case is too desperate for consultation or investigation—the telegraph and mails are too slow for their pressing needs. "Now is the accepted time—now is the hour of their salvation." To require any proof but an examination is an absurdity with them. Lodge receipt for dues, Lodge certificate of membership or diplomas are useless, or have been misplaced, lost, or left behind as valueless. The proof of all their claims is in their heads, and their tongues are rapid on a preliminary obligation and ritual. "Bright" is the word for nearly all of them.

Our present number of the JEWEL "shows up" many of these impostors who are travelling over the country. Not any of these, perhaps, but others, will come upon us like a thief in the night, and before we know it, will have bit and gone, seeking other victims and other charities.

All this shows that our system of examination is defective, and our system of charity still more so. Masons, while they must at all times act the gentleman and the Mason, must also turn detective, and take but little for granted; proof should be demanded. Receipts for dues and Lodge certificates go a long way as circumstantial evidence, and ignorant and stupid is the Mason of this enlightened day who expects to obtain relief among strangers without a resonable explanation of their absence, or an expectation to await the action of mail or telegraph.

Dimitted Masons have not yet learned that most of them should be considered drones—useless to the Masonic fraternity and "unworthy of our protection as Masons;" and impostors are astonished or indignant at requiring proof outside of their assertion and the ritual. With them it is generally the first time they have applied for help, and when in prosperity they had given cords of money away to relieve their brethren; now, in their need, who could be a Mason and refuse? Blessed to them are the ignorant and the "rusty" when they apply.

We have said that our system of examining strangers was defective. A test by the ritual of our order is the last step for a brother examining to resort to; let him satisfy himself on all other points: documentary evidence first—the test oath next—and then let the stranger be thrown upon his own resources as to what he knows. Aid him where aid is necessary for a proper understanding of words, but let that be the last test. He is the person to be benefitted, not you; he is the person seeking to tell what he knows about Masonry, not you; he is the party "challenged," not you. Where grave doubt arises, let the telegraph or mails settle the question. Many of them are so fortunate, however, as to hail from "obscure corners" where mails seldom or telegraph never reaches.

Charity is the groundwork of Freemasonry. "Charity is twice blessed—it blesses him that gives and him that receives." But it is wicked to give to the unworthy. It is aiding vice and crime and wrong and laziness. It is stealing from the mouths of the hungry the distressed, and the worthy. Masonry as yet cannot take in the whole human family "for charity's sake." Her substance is limited, and her family is too large to seek those who have gone out from among them and those who have never entered her fold. Masonry is a reality, and poor is he, and poor and worthless the Lodge that does not strive to take care of its own household.

It is only by intelligence that we may expect to ward off impostors and drones. "Light" is needed in very many of our Lodges, and it is hard to tell which is entitled to the most sympathy or rebuke: the Lodge that is too listless, worthless and cold to give anything for charity or intelligence—or the Lodge that is so stupid and ignorant as to be the prey of impostors and drones. The latter, however, has a right to some consideration, while the former has not even a ghost of an apology.

At the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hertfordshire, held on Saturday, 8th inst., under the presidency of R.W. Bro. T. F. Halsey, M.P., at Cheshunt Great House, Cheshunt, it was proposed by Bro. Lowthin, P.G.S.W., P.M. 1385, 1479, &c., that a sum of twenty guineas be voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and it was seconded by the P.G.J.W. Bro. Lambert, in opposition to the motion, asked if the brethren had considered the vast amount of funded property in the possession of the Institution, and further remarked that even after they had increased the number of Girls to be received, as he understood they were about to do, they would not be able to spend their money. He proposed that the money should not be voted. His amendment was seconded, but we are pleased to say the original motion was eventually carried. We regret any opposition was raised to this vote, as we consider that when a Province becomes, as the Prov. Grand Master afterwards remarked, "so large, and the Lodges so scattered" as those of Hertfordshire, a small amount like the one in question ought to be voted from its Grand Lodge funds unanimously.

An emergency meeting of the Angel Lodge, No. 51, will be held on Tuesday next, at the Three Cups Hotel, Colchester, at 8 p.m.

A Lodge of Instruction, called the Lewis Lodge of Instruction (under the sanction of the Lewis Lodge, No. 1185), has been formed at Wood Green, and the first meeting was held on Wednesday evening, the 5th inst., at the King's Arms Hotel, when Bye-Laws were submitted to the meeting and approved, and the following officers appointed for the ensuing year, viz.—

Bro. Vesper P.M., Preceptor.
Bro. Alfred Durrant W.M. 1185, Treasurer;
Bro. T. H. Turner J.W. 1185, Secretary.

Mrs. Geo. Newman kindly presented the Lodge with the first books. The meetings will be held at the above hotel every Wednesday evening, at seven o'clock, and it is hoped that the brethren residing in the neighbourhood will lend assistance, occasionally, by their presence.

Part III. of Cassell's Picturesque Europe takes us to that part of England which to us Masons shines at the present time most brilliantly. Warwickshire, the first on the list of Provinces at the late Festival of the Boy's School, is here treated in a way we must all admire, for all that artist and engraver could do has been brought to bear. The views in this, as in former numbers of Messrs. Cassel's publication, are beyond praise, and our only regret is that we are not at the present time on the same journey the artist must have taken to see the sights he has here transferred to paper.

We learn from the Voice of Masonry that a new Masonic Hall was dedicated, at Fairbury, Illinois, on the 16th June. The new building is of elegant design, and takes the place of the one destroyed by fire some months since. Past Grand Master Cregier delivered an address, and he and Past Grand Marshall Duvall represented the Grand Lodge of the State in the dedicatory services, which were accompanied with music.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

SATISFACTORY progress with several important measures has been made this week in both Houses of Parliament. On Friday, in the Lords, the Merchant Shipping Bill passed through Committee, with more than one amendment. On Monday, certain alleged atrocities committed by Turkish irregular troops in Bulgaria formed the subject of a question by Earl Granville, while the Poor Law Amendmant Bill received a second reading on Tuesday. In the Commons, on Friday, the House, after some discussion, went into Committee on the Appellate jurisdiction Bill, and were considering the 6th Clause when the debate was adjourned. At nine o'clock the sitting was not resumed, as the necessary quorum was not present. On Monday, after Mr. Forster had asked the Prime Minister as to certain alleged atrocities by the Turks in Bulgaria, Mr. Richards moved an amendment to the motion for going into Committee on the Elementary Education Bill, but the honourable gentleman found only ninety-nine supporters against 317 in favour of the Committee. At the morning sitting next day, the Committee was resumed, and considerable progress was made. In the evening the law relating to Coroners and Coroners' Inquests was discussed, and subsequently the case of Captain O'Sulivan and the Admiralty was hotly debated, a somewhat close division in a thin house being cheered by the opposition. Intoxicating Liquors were the subject of Wednesday's debate, and on Thursday, further progress was made with the Education Bill.

On Tuesday, the Prince and Princess of Wales gave a garden party at Chiswick. The Queen, with the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, attended by the members of her Court, were present, travelling from Windsor by the South Western line, and returning home a little before eight o'clock in the evening. Previously the King of the Hellenes, brother of the Princess of Wales, who reached London the same morning, visited Her Majesty at Windsor Castle. He was accompanied thither by his sister and brother-in-law, and on arrival at Windsor station was received by Prince Leopold and the Queen's equerries. Subsequently, at a private investiture of the Order of the Garter, the King was invested with the insignia of the Order, the Prince of Wales and Prince Leopold assisting the Queen in performing the usual ceremony. Sir Albert Woods, Garter, was in attendance on the occasion. In the afternoon the King, the Prince and Princess of Wales and some of their children, and the Duke of Teck, witnessed a Polo match at Hurlingham, between two teams representing Monmouthshire and Hurlingham respectivaly. Play was to continue for an hour and a quarter, and when time was called the former were declared victors by five goals to two. The attendance was numerous and fashionable, and the band of the Royal Artillery played a choice selection of music during the afternoon.

The Prime Minister has held a second banquet and reception at the Foreign Office. Among the guests at the former were the Duke of Cambridge, his sister the Princess Mary, Duchess, and the Duke of Teck, together with the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, the Duke of Northumberland, and others of the nobility. The reception was both numerously and fashionably attended. The same evening the members of the Navy Club gave their annual dinner to the First Lord of the Admiralty, at Willis's Rooms, St. James's.

The Wimbledon Meeting has been most fortunate in respect of weather; that is, there has been plenty of sunshine, and of course the heat has been terrific. The light was not very favourable on Wednesday, and operated very greatly to the detriment of the marksmen, whose scores were, of course, affected by the glare which prevailed at intervals. Many good scores were made, however, and no doubt the skill of Scotch, English, Irish, and Colonials will be as conspicuous this year as at previous meetings. Next week, of course, will be the grand week, when the Queen's and the other principal prizes will be decided. The usual review will be dispensed with, an athletic meeting, such as was held some time since at Lillie Bridge, being appointed to take its place. The fun of the meeting is on the same scale as ever, and visitors, if they can stand the heat, are sure to enjoy themselves at this annual encampment of our Volunteer marksmen.

We cannot say we envy the cricketer who stays all day at the wickets, even though he distinguishes himself and makes a long score. Still less do we envy those who spend seven or eight hours fielding under a broiling sun. Still, de gustibus, &c. &c.; it seems to agree well enough with the three Graces—the Gloucestershire Graces, not the mythic young ladies whose scanty costume is so familiar to the art amateur. A day or two since, Mr. W. G. Grace carried out his bat for four hundred runs, the opposing team being a twenty-two of Grimsby. The total score reached 681, a greater total than has ever been compiled before in the annals of cricket. Years gone by, a Mr. Ward made 276, not out, at Lord's, and took three days about it, we believe; but the performance of the great W. G. is far beyond anything we ever heard of. While on the subject of cricket, we may mention that on Wednesday a match at Prince's was abruptly broken off in a manner greatly to be regretted. An old and highly respected professional cricketer, the well-known Box, the wicket keeper of thirty years ago, about midday fell back dead in the scorer's box. Box was sixty-eight years of age, and heart disease is set down as the cause of his sudden decease. The match, which was between Notts and Middlesex, was at once abandoned.

The inquiry into the death of the late Mr. Charles Bravo has been resumed this week by the Surrey Coroner, so there is a prospect that the mystery attaching to the death of this gentleman will shortly be dispelled.

The case of Twycross v. Albert Grant and others is in a manner concluded. Mr. Grant was occupied several days in making his defence. When this was ended, Lord Coleridge had to sum up, and then the verdict of the jury was given. Judgment, however, has been respited while the defendants carry their case further.

The Metropolitan Amateur Regatta came off at Putney on Tuesday. There was a considerable attendance of spectators, while the sport offered very many attractions, some of the races being very keenly contested. The principal competing crews were London, West London, Thames and Ino. The prizes were distributed by Mr. Playford. Of the sports which find favour at this season, yachting appears to us by far the most agreeable, and not a week passes now but one or more Yacht Clubs hold some meeting. We know few things more pleasurable than yachting, provided, of course, there is no risk of being sea-sick.

As to news from the seat of war, there is little that is trustworthy. The Governments of Turkey, Servia, and Montenegro overhaul all news before they will allow it to become public. This is done to ensure confidence, but the reverse is the result in this case, as indeed invariably. However, the general opinion appears to be that Servia has met with some rather serious reverses. Considering that she has played the part of aggressor, the fact of her having made no impression on the first line of Turkish defence is confirmatory of this view. It is even said that an armistice is at hand, in which case all doubt as to whether Turkey or Servia has fared better will soon be set at rest. The Emperors of Austria and Russia have had their meeting, and greeted each other most affectionately. We are delighted to hear this, and shall be still more delighted if the chances of peace being preserved among the Great Powers are increased. We read daily that Russia is resolved to keep free of the contest between Turkey and her vassals, and as the other powers are pretty sure to observe a similar policy, the chances of the general peace not being disturbed are just now a little brighter. Our Government, however, is resolved to be on the safe side, so as to meet all eventualities. More ships are being sent to the Mediterranean, and our fleet there will soon be the most powerful we have had afloat for many a year in those waters. This is well, and the likeliest policy to secure a peaceful issue of the present disturbance. There is little else in the way of foreign news to record. So long, indeed, as the Eastern Crisis continues, the events that happen elsewhere will not attract much notice.

On Saturday, 8th July, at noon, was held a Quarterly General Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, at Freemasons Hall. The following motion, proposed by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, and seconded by Bro. Kenyon, was carried :—

"That, considering the satisfactory condition of the Funds of this School, ten of the unsuccessful Candidates at the last election highest on the poll be admitted without further election at the same time as those already elected, and that arrangements be made for their reception in the Infirmary until the alterations now in progress at the school be completed."

The result of this most satisfactory resolution, is the proximate admission without further polling, of the children :—Rosa Milligan, Florence Moore, Isabella Douglas, Lily Searle, Eliza Daly, Edith Potts, Lucretia Wilton, Marion Morgan, Ann M. Strong and Edith H. Escott.

The regular meeting of the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons was held on Wednesday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen Street, Lincolns Inn Fields. Bro. B. Head, V.P., was in the chair. Bro. James Terry, the Secretary, read the minutes of the former meeting, which were confirmed. The deaths of one male and one female annuitant were announced. A vote of thanks was accorded Bro. Dr. Strong for his gift of 200 plants, and for his kindness in allowing his gardener to plant the same. The report of the Finance Committee was read; it showed the balance at the bankers was £3319 5s 7d. A letter was read from Miss Norris, thanking the Committee for her appointment. Bro. Terry informed the Committee that, on the 24th ult., he had the honour of consecrating the Cripplegate Lodge, No. 1613. He was pleased to say, the brethren on that occasion had contributed the sum of £50 to constitute their Lodge a Vice President of the Benevolent Institution. Bro. Terry added that he was sure this announcement would gratify all present. The meeting was then adjourned to the following month. There were present Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, W. Stephens, J. Stevens, Hyde Pullen, C. E. Lacey, J. Newton, T. W. White, H. Farnfield, H. Massey, H. M. Levy, &c.

Bro. A. W. Fenner, who has been associated with the business of the late John Lillywhite for many years, and who, since the death of that celebrated cricketer, has been carrying on the business for the benefit of the family, has just received the following interesting communication :—

MARLBOROUGH HOUSE, PALL MALL, S.W.

Sir William Knollys is desired by the Prince of Wales to thank Mr. Fenner for the volume of "Lillywhite's Cricketer's Companion," which he forwarded to His Royal Highness, and also to express the Prince of Wales's sense of his attention in sending his congratulations upon his safe return from India.

7th July 1876.

The little work referred to is so well known to cricketers that it has become almost indispensible as a book of reference. To those of our readers who follow the noble game, we cannot do better than advise them to procure a copy.

HISTORIES OF OUR LODGES.

TRANQUILLITY, No. 185.

THE above Lodge has had a precarious and eventful career from its constitution, the Warrant is dated 20th December 1787, and was granted by the Earl of Antrim, G.M. of the "Grand Lodge according to the Old Constitutions" (or "Ancients"), as the following transcript testifies:—

Old Warrants.—No. 10.

JOHN M. CORMICK, Grand Secretary.

NOTE.—This WARRANT is registered in the GRAND LODGE, Vol. 6, Letter F.

The present place of meeting is the City Terminus Hotel. Its original number was 244; in 1813, at the "Union," 308, in 1834 it was 218, and in 1863 it was 185. Its name was not mentioned until 16th March 1816, (see report of Quarterly Communication of that date, which is kept in the Grand Secretary's Office, Freemasons' Hall); there being no minute to show assumption of title. The names of the Grand Officers who signed the Warrant, and of those who were the Founders of the Lodge, are given in the above copy of the Charter. The first initiate was Patrick Connor, to whose name, in the Minute Book, is appended, "this is y^e^ first making." The Lodge has worked by the same Warrant from its constitution, never having purchased an older number, as many Lodges did under the "Ancients," and the members possess the valuable old Charter as their prized heirloom and memorial of their departed brethren. In 1790 it held its meetings at the Ipswich Arms, Thames Street; in 1791 at the Mail Coach, Sherborne Lane, and at the Rose, Rose Alley, Bishopsgate Street; in 1793 at the White Hart and Lamb; in 1795 at the Crown and Anchor, Leadenhall Street, and at the White Horse, Bartholomew Lane; in 1797 at the Dolphin, Ludgate Hill; in 1807 at the Ship and Star, Minories; in 1813 at the Angel, John Street, Minories; in 1824 at the White Hart, Abchurch Lane; in 1834 at the George and Vulture, Cornhill; in 1841 at the Piazza Coffee House, Covent Garden; in 1847 at Freemasons' Tavern; in 1849 at the George and Vulture, Cornhill; in 1855 at the Bridge House Hotel, Blackfriars; in 1860 at Radley's Hotel, Blackfriars; and in 1871 at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon Street, E.C. The following carefully compiled account of distinguished members, with dates of their initiation and offices served, will no doubt prove interesting to all concerned:—James McCann initiated 18th May 1807, Secretary 1809, S.W. 1811, W.M. 1812, elected a member of the Lodge of Reconciliation at the Union 1813, elected on Board of General Purposes 5th June 1816, and also 7th June 1820, appointed J.G.D. 29th April 1818, elected on Board of Finance and Works 7th June 1820, Treasurer 1818-20, W.M. 1830-1; Robert McCann initiated 1809, Grand Sword Bearer 1813, Junior Grand Warden 1813, and member of Board of Works; Thomas Satterley initiated 21st September 1807, S.W. 1809, 1813, W.M. 1810, 1817, 1823-4, 1828-9, J.W. 1826-7, 1831, Treasurer 1832-3, elected on Board of General Purposes 5th June 1816, re-elected 4th June 1817; Dr. Hermann Beigel initiated 1st February 1863, I.G. 1865, J.D. 1866, S.D. 1867, J.W. 1868, S.W. 1869, W.M. 1870, appointed, in 1870, a Staff Surgeon to the Prussian Army. He was the first founder of a Lodge in Austria this century (the Lodge, though virtually an Austrian one, meets for work at Pressburg); he is also editor of a Masonic journal.

As to its fluctuations of fortune and position, we may state that in September 1802 it was resolved, "Suppers be done away with, as Lodge was in debt to Treasurer £10 15s 8½d." This was subsequently reduced to 3½d. In the following May the balance against the Lodge was £10 8s 2½d, and in June 1803 £9 4s 0½d. In November 1837 the tide turned, and the Lodge held a balance in its favour of £31 7s 10d, which in 1842 was further increased to £40 2s 8d. In December 1842 it was again adverse, in the sum of £5 8s 10d, in 1843 £11 10s 4d, and in July following £19 17s 4d. In 1846 there was a favourable balance of £20 11s 9d. In 1848, apparently the worst period of its existence, the adverse balance was £35, and as a consequence the Lodge ceased to meet from April 1848 until January 1849, at which period it was resuscitated by seceding members from the Lodge of Joppa, No. 188, the dues being all paid. Since then success has attended the Lodge, it having, at the present time a balance of upwards of £70 to the credit of the general fund. The average number of members from 1787 to 1812 was 14, from 1812 to 1837 3½, from 1837 to 1862 10½, 1862 to 1876 (April) inclusive, for fourteen years average number 11¼. In the way of special presentations to zealous members, silver tea and coffee services have been presented to the Treasurer, the Secretary and Past Master E. Harfeld, a silver claret jug to P.M. A. E. Sydney, illuminated testimonials to P.M. Saul Solomon and Bro. F. Croaker, a Life Governorship of the Girls' School to P.M. S. E. Moss, a salver to P.M. M. Hart, a silver salver, gold jewel and illuminated testimonial to P.M. J. Constable (the originator of the drawings for the Life Governorships of the great Masonic Charities, by which means many hundreds of pounds have been raised through his exertions, and the example thus set has been followed in the provinces to such an extent that already the good so achieved has been most gratifying), and an ormolu clock and vases to Bro. J. H. Ross, and, in addition, each P.M. has received, on retiring from office, a P.M.'s jewel. The financial position of the Lodge is now most satisfactory, there being ninety-eight subscribing, and four honorary members. Its present W.M. is Joseph D. Barnett, John Peartree is S.W. and Treasurer, D. Posener J.W., and Philip Levy Secretary.

Names of surviving P.M.'s, with dates of their initiation:—Alexander Levy, initiated in 188 4th January 1847, W.M. 1851; Saul Solomon, initiated 17th February 1851, W.M. 1855; Meyer Harris, initiated 21st March 1853, W.M. 1858; Maurice Hart, initiated 16th November 1856, W.M. 1861; Algernon E. Sydney, initiated 16th March 1857, W.M. 1862; Samuel E. Moss, initiated 15th December 1856, W.M. 1863; Ellis Harfeld, initiated in 205 8th November 1859, W.M. 1866; Lewis A. Israel, initiated 17th November 1862, W.M. 1867; John Holbrook, initiated 19th May 1862, W.M. 1869; Louis Barnett, initiated 16th November 1863, W.M. 1871; Richard Z. Bloomfield, initiated 21st November 1864, W.M. 1872; Nathan Moss, initiated in 216 14th September 1865, W.M. 1873; John Constable, initiated 19th December 1870, W.M. 1874; John H. Ross, initiated 19th December 1870, W.M. 1875.

Tranquillity Lodge has not neglected the "distinguishing characteristic of a Freemason's heart," as its present position with respect to the Masonic Charities indicates, the Lodge being a Life Governor in perpetuity of both the Girls' and Boys' Schools. To the former it has subscribed £21 since 1873, and to the latter £31 9s since 1864. It is also a Life Governor for fifteen years of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to which it has subscribed £20 since 1867. Its Benevolent Fund, which was established in 1852, and to which every member pays six shillings per annum, at present has cash in hand to the amount of £30, while £600 has been invested in India Railway Bonds. Since the first demand was made upon the Fund, in 1856, grants have been made varying in amounts from £5 to £100, and aggregating a total of £705.

In 1874 a History of the Lodge was compiled, by Bro. John Constable P.M., and afterwards printed by the authority of the Lodge. By those competent to judge, the work has been pronounced a "Model Lodge History." The initiation fee, which in 1787 was £2 2s, is now £7 7s, and the joining fee, in 1787 5s, is now £3 3s. The Lodge has made payments to Grand Lodge in:—

The above sketch has been taken from the excellent History (the property of the Lodge) by W. Bro. John Constable. This work can be obtained of the Author, of Messrs. Spencer and Co., or of Bro. W. W. Morgan, at the original cost of five shillings. We know not of any History of the kind which can rival it, many of the particulars given being of a most interesting character; at the same time it contains several illustrative documents not only curious, but which will be found exceedingly valuable to the Masonic student. The preface is written by W. Bro. William James Hughan, the Masonic Historian, of itself a sufficient indication of the importance of the work.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Shortness of Breath, Coughs and Colds. Thousands of testimonials can be produced to prove the power possessed by these corrective remedies in cases of asthma, incipient consumption, and all disorders of the chest and lungs. The Ointment, well rubbed upon the chest and back, penetrating the skin, is absorbed and carried directly to the lungs, where, in immediate contact with the whole mass of circulating blood, it neutralises or expels those impurities which are the foundation of consumption, asthma, bronchitis, pneumonia, and similar complaints. On the appearance of the first consumptive symptoms, the back and chest of the patient should be fomented with warm brine, dried with a coarse cloth, and Holloway's Ointment then well rubbed in. Its absorption will subdue advancing symptoms, and baffle this formidable foe.

STATUS OF ENGLISH MASONS SOJOURNING IN THE UNITED STATES.

BY GEORGE FRANK GOULEY, OF MISSOURI.

HAVING had so many enquiries propounded to us relative to the exact standing of English Masons sojourning in this country, and their claims upon our Lodges for relief, as well as to the evidence or certificate to be presented with their petitions for affiliation in American Lodges, we concluded to have the whole matter settled by explanation from the home office in London, in pursuance of which we submitted a list of questions embodying the material points, and from the courteous and able Grand Secretary, R.W. Bro. John Hervey, we received a reply under date of 22nd May, from which we condense the following facts:—

1st. The Grand Lodge certificate given an English made Mason at the time of his making, is evidence that he received the degrees therein specified, but not evidence that he is now a member, or in good standing. Such evidence must be obtained by subsequent enquiry.

2nd. English Masons, in affiliating with one or more Lodges in England, must present the same documentary evidence of good standing, &c., as is required by American Lodges generally.

3rd. An English Mason, at initiation, becomes ipso facto a member of the Lodge, unless otherwise specified at the time.

4th. All applicants for relief must present satisfactory evidence of membership and good standing.

5th. All English Masons, being members of a Lodge, are charged Lodge dues, whether at home or abroad.

6th. It is the law and the custom for every visitor to present his certificate before being examined for admission, hence no American should try to visit an English Lodge without a certificate or diploma, nor should American Lodges examine a visitor from outside of the United States or Canada without his Grand Lodge certificate of membership, in order to avoid impositions. In Missouri, the requirement is of many years' standing.

7th. English Lodges, as a rule, do not issue dimits, but membership is severed by a formal resignation, which is entered upon the record, and certificates of that fact may be subsequently obtained.

8th. An English Mason may be a member of as many Lodges as he pleases, at the same time, but pays his dues in all of them, and dereliction in one is dereliction in all.

In carefully reading the English Book of Constitutions in connection with the explanations given by the Grand Secretary, we find that our American Lodges, as a rule, have been very loose both in the examination of, and donations of relief to, foreign visitors and sojourners. It is a common thing for a foreign Mason to say that he has lost his Lodge certificate, whereas it is a very easy thing for him to write and get a duplicate, if he is still in good standing, and it is almost impossible to find an English Mason, although living here for years, to be able to present a receipt of payment of his Lodge dues, or any other documentary evidence of present membership. He will sojourn here for several years, and when in need will present nothing but his original certificate of receiving the degrees, which is no evidence whatever that he is not now an expelled or suspended Mason. Even if he claims to have resigned his membership, he rarely presents a certificate of that fact, which, if presented, may show that he has been ever since a non-affiliate, not having paid a cent into any Lodge or charity fund.

If an English Mason applies for membership here, his present status should be written home for before a ballot is had (unless he has the evidence with him), and if he is found correct, then his Grand Lodge certificate will be equivalent to a dimit to file with his petition, as he may be a member both here as well as in his mother Lodge, and his election and payment of dues here does not release him from his dues at home, nor vice versa. In writing to Bro. Hervey for this information, we stated that we needed it, not only for our local State jurisdiction alone, but for publication for the benefit of all our States, and would, therefore, suggest to other Masonic journals the propriety of copying this report for the use of Lodges generally.

We are, evidently, doing our sister English Lodges great injustice, in too many instances, by harbouring and aiding sojourners who have no legal Masonic standing at home, and of which fact we remain ignorant by our failure to compel the visitor to produce a proper certificate, and the applicant for relief proper evidence of good Masonic standing and worthiness. We refer more particularly to those who have lived in this country one or more years, and not to those making merely a temporary visit to the States, and whose certificates are generally of a recent date.

From Bro. Hervey's letter we learn that Scotland and Ireland have the same system of membership and certificates, although not so strict a system of Lodge dues, except that Ireland is rapidly adopting it.

We think it is time that American Lodges should be more circumspect in their intercourse with visitors, both those from home and abroad.—Voice of Masonry.

We are constantly told that "nothing" bearing on Masonry should be printed; and at a recent Provincial Grand Lodge Meeting even the information necessary in a calendar was included in the list. Whether this is correct or not, we must leave our readers to decide. Suffice it to say that many Provinces do issue calendars or official directories, and where these do exist we have found them useful, and generally appreciated by the Craft. Had we to decide which Province was best supplied in this respect, we should certainly have accorded the laurels to Cornwall, for there the efforts of our respected Bro. W. J. Hughan are concentrated. And yet, if we may judge from appearances, they are not sufficiently supplied, for we have just received a "Masonic register for Devon and Cornwall." Although on a somewhat similar plan to that of Bro. Hughan, it has its advantages and distinguishing features. One or two things which we admire in Bro. Hughan's list are omitted, still it is a very useful little work, and we hope that, ere long, it will be the rule for Provinces to have such lists, and not, as at present, the exception.

There seems to be a general impression that the main object of the existence of all our Masonic bodies is to make Masons; and although we deny this in theory, we practically admit it, by calling those bodies dead which have no candidates. When we correct this impression, and teach the brethren practically that there are other objects sought to be attained by our institution, and that there other methods of making our gatherings interesting, we shall hear no more complaints of apathy and indifference.—Keystone.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

St. John's Lodge, No. 795.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, 4th inst., at the Raymead Hotel, Maidenhead. Bros. J. H. Sadler W.M., Pinto Leite J.W., H. H. Hodges P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Berks and Bucks, Secretary, C. Gammon P.M. Treasurer, H. C. Sharp J.D., J. Bell W.S., A. Preston, J. Baker, A. Ludovic, &c. After the Lodge had been formally opened and the minutes confirmed, three brethren were elected joining members, and one candidate was proposed for initiation. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The toasts included that of the W.M., P.M.'s, Wardens, Officers, and Visitors. The latter were Bros. A. J. Boddington, of St. Paul's Lodge, Birmingham, and Ward, of Leicester. After the Tyler's toast, the brethren returned to town in a saloon carriage, which had been specially provided.

Acacia Lodge, No. 1314.—The installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on Tuesday, 11th inst., at the Bell Hotel, Bromley, where a numerous assemblage of the brethren and visitors were present. W. Seaman W.M., E. Coste P.M. S.W., J. Wyer J.W., Williams P.M. Treas., A. Avery P.P.G.R. Kent P.M. Sec.; P.M.'s Bros. Knott, Manger, Wells, &c. The report of the audit committee was read, it showed the flourishing state of the funds, and had a balance in hand for the Benevolent Fund attached to the Lodge of £16 15s. A ballot was taken for the admission of Mr. T. Kelsey, who was duly initiated into the Order by the W.M. Bro. E. Coste P.M. No. 9, S.W. and W.M., elect was then presented to the Lodge and a Board of Installed Masters was formed, Bro. A. Avery, P.M. P.P.G.R. Kent, then installed him in a perfect and impressive manner. Bro. Kipps presided at the harmonium. The newly installed W.M. was then saluted. He invested the following as his officers:—W. Seaman I.P.M., J. Wyer S.W., Lovett J.W., J. R. Williams P.M. Treas., A. Avery P.M. P.P.G.R. Kent Sec., Chubb S.D., Carrington J.D., Farmer I.G., Harvey D.C., W. Kipps Org. and Bavin Tyler. The W.M. addressed a few appropriate remarks, that fully impressed his officers with the duties incumbent on them. Bro. W. Seaman I.P.M. proposed, and Bro. Knott P.M. seconded, that a vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. A. Avery P.M., and recorded on the minutes, for the Masonic treat they had experienced in the perfect and impressive manner he had performed the ceremony of installation. The W.M. added a few remarks, expressive of his own gratification at the excellent rendering of the ceremony. The vote was carried unanimously. Bro. Alfred Avery then proposed that a vote of thanks be forwarded to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Kent, for their liberality in presenting this Lodge with the sums of £0 guineas for the Boys' School, 20 guineas for the Girls' School, and £20 for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The W.M. had, at only five days' notice, acted as Steward, and he had taken up a list of 120 guineas. He had made his son (who was a Lewis) a Life Governor of the Boys' School, and the Lodge had voted him the sum of five guineas on his list. This was carried unanimously. Bro. Seaman I.P.M. then stated his intention to act as Steward at the next Anniversary Festival for the Girls' School, and he hoped to excel the W.M. in the amount on his list for that Charity. Bro. A. Avery informed the brethren that Bro. Manley was about leaving the Lodge to reside at Chester, and from the respect he was held in they should express their appreciation of the many services rendered by him to the Lodge, and regret at his leaving. The Lodge passed a resolution to give the sum of five guineas to present him with a fitting testimonial. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where the tables were profusely decorated with flowers. 57 sat down to an excellent cold collation, with hot soups and vegetables, provided by the worthy host, Bro. Sutton. Grace having been said, the W.M. proposed the Queen and the Craft; the National Anthem was then sung. The health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., was given. This was followed by the song and chorus, "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The toasts of the R.W. Viscount Holmesdale M.P., Provincial G.M., came next. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Mastes, and the rest of the Grand Officers, said, it was a source of pride to this Lodge, so young in existence, that the P.G.M. had selected one of its members for the office of P.G. Registrar; no one more worthy could have been chosen. He referred to Bro. Avery. Bro. Hyatt rendered, most artistically, the ballad of "My Sweetheart when a Boy." Bro. Avery, in an eloquent speech, returned thanks, they were gratified to receive such liberality from the Provincial Grand Lodge for the Charities. The following day would be the annual gathering of the Prov. Grand Lodge, at Deal, where he hoped many of the brethren would be present. They would there have an opportunity of witnessing the kind way the brethren would be received by the Prov. G. Master, who had endeared himself to all throughout the Province. He thanked the brethren, in the name of the Prov. G. Master and the Prov. G. Lodge, for their liberal grants. Bro. W. Seaman I.P.M. then rose. He felt a vast amount of pleasure in proposing the next toast, and that was the W.M., Bro. Edmund Coste. He was one of the founders of the Lodge, and from that time had faithfully and zealously conducted the duties of Secretary. He was thoroughly proficient, having previously occupied the position of W.M. of a very influential Lodge; he was also Secretary of the newly consecrated Cripplegate Lodge, and he was sure the interests of that Lodge were in good keeping. He added that some of the Past Masters had liberally contributed various gifts to the Lodge, and the W.M. that day had presented it with three dozen firing glasses. He hoped they would drink this toast in a hearty manner, and give him a true "Kentish Fire." (Cheers.) The W.M. said that, after the flattering manner Bro. Seaman had spoken of him, and the kind reception he had received, he could hardly find words to thank them. Since the formation of the Lodge he had rarely been absent. He had their interests at heart, and he never could forget their kindness. He hoped, at the expiration of his year of office, to have similar marks of approbation from them. Bro. Musgrave sang the song of "the Wolf." The toast of the Visitors was then given, and Bro. D. H. Jacobs P.M. 27 eloquently responded to it. He was followed by Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. 188, who also returned thanks on behalf of the numerous visitors, and expressed the gratification they felt at the reception they had met with. Bro. D. H. Jacobs sang "Sweet Hawthorn Tree." The W.M. then proposed the toast of the I.P.M., Bro. Seaman. He was one who had discharged his duties with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Lodge. He had occupied every office in the Lodge from I.G., his working had been fully recognised, and in appreciation of this, he felt great pleasure, in the name of the Lodge, in presenting him with a jewel. In placing it on his brother, he hoped he might live long to enjoy it, in health and prosperity. (Cheers.) The jewel is of very elegant design, artistically enamelled, with suitable inscription, having on it the arms of the Prov. G. Master. Bro. Hyatt sang "Thou art so near and yet so far." Bro. Seaman replied. He thanked them for their valuable gift. He would always look on it with pride. From the first moment he entered the Lodge, he made up his mind to do his duty, and he hoped he had succeeded. While in office, he had met with the co-operation of the brethren, and to that his success was mainly due. Any services the Lodge might require of him, the brethren could command. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters; this being the seventh year of the Lodge's existence, he was pleased to see six P.M.'s present. This was very gratifying. Every one had done his duty. Bros. Hyatt and Farmer then sang the duet from "the Lily of Killarney." Bro. Manger P.M. replied to the toast. Bro. W. Seaman returned thanks for the Masonic Charities. Bro. D. H. Jacobs sang "Come with me, and be my love." The toasts of the Wardens and Officers were given and responded to, the W.M. paying them deserved compliments for their knowledge of their respective duties. The Tyler's toast concluded a very agreeable and harmonious evening. The Visitors were—Bros. Bradstreet P.M. 11, J. Kew P.M. 179, W. Sharp 463, Musgrave 1309, G. Porter 87, J. Savill 1314, J. F. The 1st and 2nd sections of the 1st lecture were worked by the veteran Preceptor. Bro. H. Stiles was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and the meeting was adjourned to the following Tuesday.

A Committee of the principal officers of the Lodge, assisted by Bros. S. Lambert, Lowrie, and Wheeler, was then appointed to audit the accounts, and Sherrard was re-elected Tyler. Several of the brethren having spoken in highly eulogistic terms of the able manner in which the outgoing Master had performed the ceremonies and general working of the Lodge during his term of office, it was proposed by Bro. Frances, Secretary, and seconded by Bro. Mullett S.W., and carried unanimously, that a P.M.'s jewel be presented to Bro. S. J. Turquand on his retiring, to express in some slight measure their high estimation of his services during his tenure of office. The proceedings concluded in perfect harmony. Upton Lodge, No. 1227.—The brethren of this prosperous Lodge held their annual gathering at Broxbourne, on Thursday last, and the festival passed off with unusual éclat. The beauty of the weather, the loveliness of the gardens, and the excellent arrangements were in perfect keeping with the good fellowship of the brethren and their charming ladies. The banquet was well served, the speeches appropriate, the toasts well given and acknowledged—especially that of the evening, "The Ladies," which was responded to by Bro. Kinnear. The songs also were admirably sung. We can but congratulate Bro. Holtham, the W.M., his officers and the members of the Upton Lodge upon the happy day they and their ladies spent at Broxbourne.

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

VOL. IV.—No. 82. SATURDAY, 22nd JULY 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

GRAND LODGE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

WE have received copy of the Proceedings at the last Quarterly Communication, held at the Masonic Temple, Boston, on 14th June, of this Grand Lodge. Bro. Percival Lowell Everett M.W.G.M. presided, and was supported by R.W. Bro. Charles H. Welch D.G.M., the Grand Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary, and other Officers past and present, including Bros. W. Parkman, Charles C. Dame, and Sereno D. Nickerson, Past Grand Masters. The Lodge was opened in ample form at 2 p.m. with prayer by the R.W. Rev. Charles H. Titus. The record of the previous Quarterly Communication was taken as read. The Grand Master then announced a vacancy among his officers, and that he had appointed Bro. Avery to fill it. Bro. Avery was thereupon invested with the office, namely, that of Grand Standard Bearer. Bye-laws and Amendments to Bye-laws from several Lodges were submitted to the Committee on Bye-laws, whose report was delivered before the proceedings came to an end. A petition from the Satuit Lodge for a Charter was then presented and referred to the Committee on Charters. Their report was to the effect that, having examined the Bye-laws and other necessary documents of the Lodge, which had been under dispensation for more than a year, they found everything satisfactory, and recommended accordingly that a Charter be granted. A letter was then read from the W.M. of the Winslow Lewis Lodge, requesting, in the name and on behalf of that Lodge, the acceptance by Grand Lodge of a portrait of Bro. Sereno D. Nickerson, a Past Grand Master. The portrait was accepted and the Grand Master requested to convey to the W.M. and brethren of the Winslow Lewis Lodge the thanks of Grand Lodge for the very handsome addition thus made to the portraits of Past Grand Masters. On the motion of Bro. John McClellan, a sum of five hundred dollars was voted to be disbursed for charitable purposes by the Committee on Charity. The Committee on the appeal of a brother against the action of the Plymouth Lodge and its W.M. delivered a long report, in which, after a careful examination of the circumstances of the case, they recommend that the appeal be dismissed. The Committee on Ritual then reported favourably on the proposed new Trestle Board, and it was resolved unanimously that it should be the only authorised Trestle Board for use in the Lodges under this jurisdiction. A Committee to superintend its publication was accordingly appointed by the G.M. The petition of a brother to be formally healed having been examined and recommended, and further time having been accorded to those Committees which had not been able to report, notice was given that a special communication, for the purpose of constituting Satuit Lodge, and installing its officers would be held on the 21st of the month. There appearing to be no further business to be transacted, Grand Lodge was closed in ample form at a few minutes after 4 p.m., prayer being again offered by R.W. Bro. Rev. Charles H. Titus.

A MASONIC CALENDAR FOR THE PROVINCE OF HERTS.

A DISCUSSION arose at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Herts, on the 8th instant, as to the merits and demerits respectively of Provincial Masonic Calendars. The proposition, as moved by Bro. Lambert, merely went to the extent of suggesting that Prov. Grand Lodge consider the propriety of establishing a Calendar for the Province. The principal grounds on which Bro. Lambert advocated his motion were, that the Herts Masons would find it very agreeable to visit the different Lodges in their province, as people in the country must have some amusement, and that there many places in Herts about which the brethren would find it delightful to have some information. Bro. Halsey, the P.G.M., mentioned a third reason, of considerable importance, namely, that the Province was becoming more considerable; there were more Lodges in it than formerly, and these were widely scattered, so that a Calendar, if properly managed, might be made very advantageous to the Craft. Bro. Carter has already been at the pains and cost of publishing a small but useful compilation of the character in question, and no doubt this might be taken as the basis of a larger and more ambitious work. It is satisfactory, however, to learn that the Herts brethren are bestirring themselves in such a matter, and we trust before another year has passed that Herts may find itself on as good a footing in this respect as other provinces we know of.

This is not the sole object we have in view in referring to the discussion which arose in Prov. Grand Lodge. We have a few remarks to offer on one or two other points of importance, and we take this opportunity of offering them. We think it well, however, to state that, as no member of our staff was present, and no brother thought it worth his while to send us any particulars, we are indebted to common conversation and other sources for our knowledge of what was said. We say this in order that our readers may know the character of the foundation on which we have built up our comments.

It is, in the first place, a somewhat strange idea to emanate from any Craftsman, and most of all from one who has attained Provincial rank, that brethren will find "amusement" in visiting the various Lodges located in their Province. We usually associate the notion of fun with the word amusement. We say a certain play or exhibition was amusing, Mr. So-and-so is an amusing fellow, or, we were highly amused the other day by the antics of a monkey, the droll appearance of some one we passed in the street, and so on. In this, which is the sense we ordinarily connect with amusement, we cannot see the slightest shadow of justice in Bro. Lambert's first, and we presume, therefore, his most important reason. We see nothing amusing in a Lodge meeting, though we often mix there with some very amusing people, that is, with people who possess the faculty of amusing their fellows. A Lodge, however, meets for the fulfilment of certain duties, many of which are solemn, and all of which are important. When the labour is ended, we are wise enough on most occasions to devote any spare time that may remain to us before separating to the very enjoyable occupation of amusing one another. We do not see how the establishment of a Calendar will either increase or diminish the value of this very sensible custom. It is very unfortunate, when so many excellent reasons may be urged for establishing a wholesome institution like a Provincial Directory, that any brother should have descended to urge one so frivolous. Masonry is not an amusement, but a science. It is no compliment to the principles we profess to say that a Provincial Masonic Calendar will be useful on the ground that people in the country must have amusement, and so a guidebook will enable brethren to visit each other more frequently. If, however, we cannot congratulate Bro. Lambert thus far, we fully recognise the force of his other argument. There are places of great interest to the Craftsman in the Province of Herts, and Cheshunt Great House, so kindly placed at the service of the Gresham and King Harold Lodges by Bro. the Rev. C. Mayo, and where Prov. Grand Lodge met on the 8th instant, is one of them. This, indeed, is a reason worthy alike of the Craft and the brother who suggests it. Bro. Halsey, too, spoke very sensibly when he urged that the Province was becoming more important, while the Lodges were scattered over a wider surface. But Bro. Taylor has evidently formed a somewhat low estimate of mankind generally, and Hertfordshire Masons in particular. He is in fear and trembling for the future if a harmless Calendar is instituted. In the days to come he thinks it possible that some evil-minded brother, some Masonic impostor, may abuse the purpose for which the proposed Calendar was instituted. This class of persons, he thinks, will be going about the Province seeking whom they may dupe, and the Calendar, whose information enables them to discover the whereabouts of their dupes, will be at the root of the evil. We do not possess the gift of prescience. We cannot say if Bro. Taylor's anticipations will be realised. We think it very likely there will be impostors in the future as in the past. We do not doubt they will turn to account all useful information they may be able to obtain, in order to effect their evil purposes. We do not anticipate, however, that imposture will be the order of the day, the rule instead of the exception. We think it will exist to no appreciable extent. We say, then, that to object to what the majority of Craftsmen will make proper use of, because a very few may be found who will abuse it, is contrary to the dictates of common sense. No doubt Bro. Taylor means well. With him, we should like to see all Masons the perfection—the very pink of humanity, but as humanity never can be void of all evil, our duty clearly is to promote the welfare of the greater number. It is only here and there we shall find a brother or an impostor who will abuse a Masonic Calendar, or rather the information it contains. We do not see why the well-disposed should be deprived of an undoubted benefit, because a stray black sheep or two may occasionally be found in our midst. We hope the Province of Herts will not be led aside from the path of progress by such weak arguments as Bro. Taylor appears to have urged against the publication of a Masonic Calendar.

ODDS AND ENDS.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

At the last meeting of the Royal Geographical Society a telegram was read, announcing the successful navigation of the Albert N'Yanza, and the establishment of a chain of regular military stations which would assure the safety of travellers to its shores. The President humorously remarked that the Lake would doubtless be included next year in the routine of Cook's tours.

It might be suggested to that enterprising firm to engage the services of Mr. Stanley as cicerone, and boldly to advertise the formation of a Grand African Caravan, equipped with portable steamers, tents, freezing apparatus, and every luxury; provided with suitable beasts of burden, and guarded by Sir Samuel Baker's "forty thieves," whose services might perhaps be secured by judicious promises of pay and backsheesh. By Lakes Victoria and Albert, across country to Ujiji on the Tanganyika, thence after an excursion on its waters, along the Lukuga to Lake Lanji. Here the party might advantageously be divided; one detachment proceeding north westward, in boats and Boyton's apparatus, through Lake Sankorra (keeping a look out for traces of the Count di Brazza's expedition) down the Congo to the coast; whilst the other might pass southward to Kilemba, for an introduction to King Kasongo, from whence, by Cameron's track overland, they might traverse Ussambi and Lovalé, emerging into Benguela in Latitude 12°. Plenty of writing and sketching materials should be taken, to the end that each tourist on his return might write a book, the publication of which would doubtless go far towards defraying the expenses of the trip. This expectation might, however, prove presumptuous, in view of the cost of Cameron's little journey, £11,000, a large proportion of which was found by the Royal Geographical Society. The services of a travelling chaplain could not be dispensed with, in view of the tourists' natural desire for Christian burial.

A joint-stock company, entitled "The Society for Trips round the World," has lately issued its prospectus, under distinguished auspices. It undertakes to have a large steamer, ready to start from Havre in the month of May every year, for a voyage round this little globe that we live on. The vessel is to be specially constructed, fitted in the smallest details with reference to the comfort of its passengers and to the pursuit of scientific studies, furnished with library, instruments, and a competent staff of savants. Passengers will be supplied by the influential "Patronage Committee," with letters of recommendation to the places they may visit, which will afford them an entrée to foreign society.

It is the philanthropic aim of this Association to smooth all asperities from the path of those who are ambitious of seeing the world; by reducing the inconveniences of travel to a minimum. This is what we have lost by being born before our time, say fifty years too soon. Instead of peril and privation, we should have had ample opportunity for study and exploration in a state of greater positive security than we enjoy at home. Ensconced in a luxurious saloon, with iced-cream-sodas and obliging professors at their elbow, skimming along the world's highway from port to port and from island to island, travellers may laugh at the horrors of the rail and the perils of the streets, smile at suburban burglaries and pleasantly commiserate the myriad troubles of a luckless householder on shore. Prying into a changing kaleidoscope of society as they skip from colony to colony, unrestrained by the trammels of conventionality, they may suck science with every breath, whilst they rejoice in emancipation from our social treadmill; and finally, on returning after a short ten months, they will have acquired a crushing authority upon all manner of topics, feeling that they have trod in the footsteps of Humboldt, and that iced-cream-sodas were not invented in vain.

The scheme deserves wide commendation. To the glib but shallow curate; to the amiable but dogmatic Philistine; above all, to the bore—our dear deserving friend who buttonholes us when we are in a hurry, whose bewildering notions upon the opium-traffic, oceanic-currents, abiogenesis and the Eastern question, so often have streamed into our ears till we have collapsed saturated with nonsense. Now is the time for him, the chance to make his mind expand, his ideas concrete themselves; the strain of novel observation on the cerebral organs may tighten the lax chords of speech. He might return to us an altered being: most cordially we would wish him "Bon Voyage."

The Society's capital is £80,000, in 4,000 shares of £20. Amongst the founders' names are MM. the Duc d'Abrantes, Bischoffsheim, Drouyn de Lhuys, Ronciere le Noury, Louis Wolowski, and Ferdinand de Lesseps. Its London office, 20 King William-street, Strand.

THE LEGEND OF ADJIGARTA.

Remarkable coincidences have been pointed out between numerous oriental legends and the Bible narratives, indicating a certain plagiarism one from the other, or derivation from a common source. One of the most interesting is found in the pages of the Hindoo theologian, Ramatsariar, who relates a story similar to that of the patriarch Abraham on Mount Moriah, with the addition of interesting particulars, which would seem even to promote the consistency of the narrative. His work is, we believe, of undoubtedly later production than the Pentateuch. It can thus afford no ground for criticism of the sacred writings; even did we not bear in mind an elaborate calculation of primitive civilisation in Egypt, which was grounded upon soundings of a well driven successively deeper into the Nile mud, until the too confident explorer fished up—from the very bottom of it—a Roman brick; but it is sufficiently remarkable for us shortly to reproduce.

"As the child (corresponding to Isaac) approached its twelfth year, his father resolved to proceed with him to offer commemorative sacrifice on the mountain where Brahma had granted his prayer. After having, as before, selected a young goat without spot, Adjigarta went thither with his son. On their way through a forest they came on an unfledged dove, which had fallen from its nest, and was pursued by a serpent; the child killed the reptile with his staff, and replaced the young dove in the nest, to the great joy of its mother. Adjigarta was pleased to see him so courageous and good. Having reached the mount, they began to gather wood for the pile, when the goat, which they had tied up, broke its rope and fled away.

"Then, said Adjigarta, 'behold here is the wood, but we have no victim!' and he knew not what to do, for they were far from any habitation, and he would not return without accomplishing his vow. He, therefore, bade his son fetch the young dove, that it might serve the purpose. Thereupon the voice of Brahma was heard, saying, 'thou commandest thy son to fetch the dove that he had saved, in place of the goat that has escaped. Didst thou save it from the serpent only to imitate its enemy? Such sacrifice is not agreeable to me. He who annuls the good deeds he has committed, is not worthy to worship me. To atone thy fault thou shalt sacrifice even the son that I have given thee.' And Adjigarta was seized with anguish, and cried, 'Oh, my wife Parvady, what wilt thou say when I return alone, and thou askest what I have done with thy first-born?' Thus he wept until the evening, unable to accomplish the sacrifice; yet he dreamed not of disobedience, and his son incited him to execute the divine commands. Then, with trembling hand, he bound his son and raised the knife—when Vishnu, in the shape of a dove, descended upon the head of the child, saying, 'Cut the victim's bonds and scatter the pile, oh Adjigarta; Brahma is satisfied of thy obedience, and thy son's courage has found favour in his sight.'"

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS.

ANNUAL BENEVOLENT FUND FESTIVAL.

THE Eighth Anniversary Festival in aid of the Mark Benevolent Fund took place at the Alexandra Palace, on the afternoon of the 19th instant, under the presidency of Lieut.-General J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., Grand Junior Warden. Amongst those present were Bros. C. F. Matier, Robert Berridge, R. G. Marsh, J. Waldram, Sigismund Rosenthal, H. W. Binckes, D. M. Dewar, and Frederick Binckes (Grand Mark Secretary), many of them being accompanied by the ladies of their families.

A sumptuous and well served banquet was followed by Loyal and Masonic toasts. The gallant chairman congratulated himself upon being for the first time thus honoured, where the presence of the fair sex added grace and charm to the occasion. Bro. Frederick Binckes proposed his health with some eloquence. The proceedings throughout were characterised by an obvious spirit of cordiality and enjoyment. The music was under the able direction of Madame Thaddeus Wells. We subjoin the list of Stewards.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.

WE call the attention of our readers to the inaugural banquet of the Masonic Club, which will be held on Wednesday next, the 26th instant. We anticipate the opening will be a great success, and we trust, for the sake of Craftsmen generally throughout the country, our anticipations will be realised. A club of this character is certainly needed. There is, in this huge metropolis of ours, absolutely no common ground on which brethren can meet and enjoy a quiet half hour or so. There is, as far as we know, not a single corporate body which has not some kind of head quarters, where members can meet and enjoy social intercourse with each other. The Masonic Club has been started to meet this want. The directors make no secret of their desire to promote Craft interests. It is not with them—so far as we have had an opportunity of judging—a commercial speculation. They are animated purely and simply by a desire to meet an acknowledged want. They have met thus far with a considerable amount of support, and if they go on as they have begun, we have no hesitation in saying they will be worthy the support of the whole fraternity. We shall probably have occasion to refer next week at greater length to the Masonic Club, but for the moment we must content ourselves with saying that the Directors have our hearty good wishes for the success of their project. Let those who desire to know more pay a visit to Bro. Joseph Langton, at the Club, 101 Queen Victoria-street, or the Offices, 37 Queen-street, Victoria-street. They will be most courteously received, and will have every information most readily accorded them.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of Middlesex and Surrey will be held this day, Saturday, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond, at 5 o'clock. A Lodge of Instruction will be opened at 4 o'clock. Tickets for the banquet (price 15s, including wine) can be had of the Prov. Grand Secretary, Bro. W. G. Brighten, 4 Bishopsgate-street-without.

A warrant has been granted by H.R.H. the Most Worshipful the Grand Master for a new Lodge to be called the West Smithfield Lodge. The meetings will be held at the New Market Tavern, West Smithfield. Bro. J. Smith P.M. P.G.P. is the W.M. designate, T. W. Adams S.W. 765 the S.W. designate, G. S. Elliott 749, 1275, and 1423, the J.W. designate, and F. Walters P.M. P.P.G.P. Middlesex, Secretary pro tem.

Bro. Dr. Farre, No. 1532, has been unanimously elected Medical Officer of Health for Lambeth.

We notice that at the National Rifle Association Meeting Corp. W. Sangstroth, of the Canadian Volunteers, was the winner of the Quarter Cask of "Specialité" Sherry given by Feltoe and Sons, of Albemarle Street. This was competed for on the 18th instant.

The Lodge of Loyalty, No. 1607, which was consecrated on 18th May last, and which will hold its meetings at the Alexandra Palace, Muswell Hill, on the first Saturdays in the months of September, October, November, February, March and April, held an emergency meeting on the 17th inst., when five gentlemen were initiated into the Craft. The W.M., Bro. John Newton, P.M. 174, was ably supported by his officers, and the ceremony was worked most creditably. Bro. James Terry, who is an honorary member, was present. Bros. Hawksley 1196, W. Bateman 12, Miller and Fraser 174, were visitors. After the Lodge was closed, the brethren sat down to an elegant banquet, served by Bros. Bertram and Roberts. The occasion was rendered interesting by the presentation, by the founders, of a beautiful album to the wife of the S.W., Bro. Brown, for the interest shown by her in the organisation of the Lodge. The next meeting will take place on Saturday, the 2nd September next.

CONSECRATION OF THE WEST MIDDLESEX LODGE, No. 1612.

ON Saturday last another Lodge was added to those on the muster roll of the Grand Lodge of England. The pretty little suburb of Ealing is the locality selected for its head quarters, and accordingly, at half past three o'clock, there was a large assemblage of the brethren to meet the Very Worshipful Brother John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who had kindly consented to officiate as the Consecrating Officer. The intense heat of the weather during the past fortnight had naturally raised some anxiety in the minds of the promoters of this gathering as to the capabilities of the Ealing Institute, where the brethren intend holding the meetings of their Lodge, to accommodate all who were expected to attend on this interesting occasion. However, it was soon evident that those who had undertaken the management of the day's proceedings were fully capable of carrying out all that was required of them, and when the company had taken their places an air of comfort was apparent that at once showed the brethren were not new to their work. The Lodge room had been most elegantly laid out, the furniture and appointments were of a neat and substantial character. Bro. A. Beasley, P.M. of the Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 780, well known and highly respected as one of the most careful and intelligent of the supporters of our great Institution, was the Worshipful Master designate, and we much question whether a more competent brother could have been chosen, or one more fitted to ensure the prosperity of a new Lodge.

Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. Grand Treasurer, Middlesex, acted as Director of the Ceremonies, and, marshalled by him, the brethren entered the Lodge room. Bro. John Hervey took the chair, and appointed Bro. Thomas Fenn P.G.D. to the Senior Warden's chair, and Bro. Weaver P.M. to that of the Junior Warden. Bro. J. Chambers Roe acting as Secretary. The Lodge was then formally opened. Brother Hervey addressed the brethren, and in the course of his remarks referred to his long experience, which enabled him to point out the shoals and quicksands that should be avoided if they wished prosperity to attend them. He adjured them to be specially careful in the selection of those who might offer themselves as candidates for initiation, and also that the antecedents of those brethren who might desire to join the Lodge should be carefully inquired into. He mentioned instances that had come under his notice, where one obnoxious brother had upset the good feeling that had existed, and had even caused the breaking up of a Lodge. He spoke of the feeling of charity that should exist,—not charity in the common acceptation of the term, but that charity that taught us all to bear with what we might think the shortcomings of our neighbours, and with those with whom we might be intimately associated. He urged on those who might in the future have the appointment of brethren to fill the several posts, to be careful in the choice of officers to govern the Lodge. Much might be said in favour of office by rotation, but unless members qualified themselves for a proper performance of their duties, others, more worthy, should be selected. Our esteemed brother then referred to the power held by the members of Lodges in the use of the blackball, and earnestly commended them to use that power with judgment and discretion. He hoped that no private piques, or petty jealousies, would ever actuate any of those present while exercising the powers thus vested in them. Bro. Hervey, whose address was most attentively listened to, concluded by expressing the pleasure he felt at being present, and hoped a brilliant future was before the West Middlesex Lodge.

After prayer by the Rev. O. G. D. Perrott, late Head Master of the Royal Masonic School for Boys, Bro. Roe read the petition and warrant. Approval having been given to the Officers named, the Consecrating Officer called on the Chaplain, Bro. Perrott, who delivered the following oration:—

WORSHIPFUL SIR AND BROTHER,—Having already assisted at one Consecration to-day, that of a neighbouring church, and melting, like several I see around me, under the present more than tropical heat, I feel that this is not an occasion for making a long speech, and I shall therefore not weary you by indulging in those commonplaces, not unfrequently, perhaps, insincere, about inability, &c, but proceed direct to the task assigned me, viz:—an oration, if I may venture to call such the few remarks I have to make, respecting the nature and principles of Freemasonry. In an age like the present, when every Institution, whatever its antiquity and usefulness, has suffered more or less from the inroads of the sceptical and levelling tendencies of the day, it is not to be wondered at that our Craft has been from time to time assailed, ridiculed and even anathematised; and if this is more especially true of its present history, it is not less true of the past; and, notwithstanding all that has been said against it, I make bold to say that never did the Craft stand on a firmer basis than at present, rearing its head aloft at the grandest ceremony ever witnessed, in the Albert Hall, and having for its chief H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. The uninitiated may well enquire, what can this system be which exhibits such vitality, and has survived the many attacks that have been made against it? And, Worshipful Sir and Brother, without committing myself, or pledging you to an acceptance of those traditions which would point to Adam as the first Freemason, and would identify as brethren of the Craft the sons of Lamech, who are said to have engraved our secrets on certain stone pillars, which should outlive the Deluge, it seems pretty certain that Freemasonry can boast not only of considerable antiquity, extending back perhaps into the sphere of immemorial tradition, but also of many persons of illustrious rank, and of men of genius and talent, whose works survive as monuments of their greatness, and who have held the proud position of Grand Masters of our Craft. I need mention only the names of Sir Christopher Wren, whose magnificent structure is at once the pride and ornament of our metropolis, of Inigo Jones, and of Cardinal Wolsey, who, notwithstanding his ambitious projects, is said never to have neglected his duties as Grand Master. And what is it, brethren, which has given such stability to our Order? Is it not from the fact of its being based on the three grand principles of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth? Yes, we may point with pride to our Charities, which testify to the benevolence of past and present members of the Order, no less a sum than £32,000 having been subscribed during the present year. And here I would remark, quoting words which fell from the lips of our late revered Grand Master, that these Charities ought not to be dependent on the generosity of the same few, who always give liberally, but that every brother should give his quota, remembering the old adage, "Mony a mickle makes a muckle." I need not plead with Freemasons about the duty of giving, for it is a practical expression of our belief in Brotherly Love, and besides giving, to quote the words of another distinguished Brother, it becomes our duty to take an interest in the working of our charities, and I feel sure, that by occasionally visiting them, and watching, and aiding in their management, great good would result to our Charities; let those who cannot make themselves at once Life Subscribers, and Life Governors sink the pride they may feel in seeing their names in print, and give, according to their means, towards the endowment of the chairs in a Lodge; in this way, as is done in some of the provinces, greater power in the management of the Charities is acquired by the Lodge, and the success of one's candidates becomes more assured. Another principle on which our Craft is based, is Truth; we are required to rule our every action by that unerring volume of truth which lies open in every Lodge, and which reveals to us the Word of God. I fear that much of the ridicule to which we are exposed is owing to the licence and excess which some few brethren indulge in, and which the laws of the land do not tolerate even in places of public resort. It was only the other day, when mentioning to a friend our ceremony of to-day, he observed, "It is all moonshine, you are no better than Antediluvian Buffaloes, it is all knife and fork business with you Masons, only a question of eating and drinking." Now it can hardly be questioned that this is a prevalent opinion amongst the uninitiated, and however true it may be with respect to some few amongst us, I venture to say, that the great majority of the brethren do act up to the principles they profess, that though they may, like other mortals, have their differences, still they do forget and forgive with that brotherly love they profess, and reflect in the general tenour of their lives the grand principles of the Order. And, brethren, may it please the Grand Architect of the Universe to grant that all the members of this Lodge may be bright members of the Craft, and may become living stones in that Grand Lodge above where all secrets shall be revealed.

The ceremony of Consecration was then proceeded with, in accordance with the customary formalities.

Bro. Buss then introduced Bro. A. Beasley as the W.M. designate, and Bro. Hervey most impressively performed the ceremony of installation. After the W.M. had been saluted, the Officers were invested, as follow:—

Bros. Thomas Kingston W.M. 862 S.W., H. L. P. Kasmer 382 J.W., T. Brown P.M. 780 Treasurer, J. Chambers Roe S.W. 780 Secretary, Burr S.D., Green J.D., Compton I.G., Leonard D.C., Rev. O. G. D. Perrott Chaplain, F. Delevanti Organist, Harrison Tyler.

The W.M. said the first duty he had to perform was a pleasant one indeed, it was to thank Bro. Hervey, and those who had rendered him such goodly assistance, for their kindness. It was not much the Lodge could do in return, but he would propose that Bros. Hervey, Fenn, Weaver, Buss, and their Reverend Bro. Perrott, be elected honorary members of the West Middlesex Lodge. This proposition was seconded, and unanimously carried. After Bro. Hervey had acknowledged the compliment, for himself and those associated with him in the day's proceedings, the bye-laws for the governance of the Lodge were finally approved, and propositions for initiation and joining were handed in. The Lodge was then closed.

The brethren afterwards repaired to Brown's Hotel, where an excellent banquet had been provided. After the cloth had been removed, Bro. Beasley, who presided, rose and said, that he should, during the evening, set an example, by only making short speeches. His first toast would be that of the Queen and the Craft. We all honour and revere Her Majesty the Queen, and he was sure all present also honoured and revered the Craft. The National Anthem having been sung, the W.M. gave the toast of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. It was gratifying to them all to know that the Prince of Wales considered it an honour to be at the head of the Order. This toast was followed by the solo and chorus, "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The next on the list was the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. The Worshipful Master said this toast was of personal interest to the members of the West Middlesex Lodge, as the names of the most prominent of the Grand Officers had been brought before them in reading the Lodge Warrant. Bro. Thomas Fenn, Past Grand Deacon, with whose name he would associate the toast, was a power in Masonry, and whenever he went into a Lodge he conferred an honour on those he visited. Bros. Baxter, Carter and Lawler then sang the glee, "Just like Love." Bro. Fenn, in replying, thanked the brethren for the compliment they had paid him in coupling his name with the toast. "Just like Love," is an old saying, and he thought that a gay young batchelor like Bro. Hervey was in a better position to reply after such a song than he who was a grandfather. He had been a member of Grand Lodge upwards of twelve years, and he considered the Grand Officers were always willing and desirous to be of service to members of the Craft, and in consideration of their devotion to Masonry they were honoured with the Purple. These appointments were necessarily limited. He had never been at Ealing before, but he considered, from its importance, that it ought to be represented in the Parliament of Freemasonry. He considered the remarks of the Grand Secretary as to the choice of officers were correct, and that the prosperity of a Lodge was dependent on careful selection.

The next toast, the V.W. the Consecrating Officer, Bro. J. Hervey, G.S., P.G.D., was proposed by the W.M., who remarked that Bro.

Hervey was fully entitled to their recognition as a Grand Officer. Personally, he owed a great debt to Bro. Hervey, who had guided his steps into the right path whenever he had consulted him on the business of the Lodge, and whose knowledge of the Constitutions had been of great service; and they had to thank him for the great service he had performed in consecrating the Lodge, the ceremony, which had occupyed upwards of two hours, being most perfect. Bro. Hervey acknowledged the toast, and concluded by proposing the health of the W.M.; the Lodge, he said, was sure to prosper under his Mastership. Bro. Beasley said he would not detain the company. He could not allow a moment to elapse ere he acknowledged the toast which had just been honoured. All he had done had been with a hearty good will, for the common good, and for their Lodge in particular. A Lodge at Ealing had been proposed for some time, and when he was asked to be the first W.M. he was extremely gratified. He had been greatly assisted in the formation of the Lodge by Bro. Roe, the Secretary, and he was sure no better Secretary could be found. During his year of office he was glad to have so able an assistant. He would endeavour to set an example to his successors, and always do his best for the West Middlesex Lodge.

The toast of the W.M. of "The Recommending Lodge" was then given, and Bros. Gardiner W.M. and Hilton I.P.M. the Alfred Lodge responded. Bro. Hilton congratulated the W.M. on his occupying the chair of the West Middlesex Lodge. "The Chaplain and other Assistant Consecrating Officers" was then given, the W.M. thanking them personally for their assistance. Bros. Perrott, Buss and Weaver responded. The Secretary, the Treasurer, the Visitors and the Press were severally honoured by toasts, and each was responded to. The "Officers of the Lodge" and the Tyler's toast terminated the proceedings. Amongst the visitors were Bros. John Hervey, T. Fenn, Rev. O. G. D. Perrott, R. E. Hannis, J. Laye, E. H. Taylor, Thomas Lawler, Gardiner, W. Goss, Tyrrell, Hilton, Bourne, J. W. Fisher, B. Sidney Wilmot, J. Greco, Wm. Hilton, C. B. Payne, A. M. Yetts, J. B. Lancaster, R. Kershaw, W. F. Savage, W. T. Wrighton, Geo. Watts, James Weaver, W. Savage, W. J. Murlis, F. Lawrance, C. J. Taylor, C. F. Fogarty, R. Cooker, H. Massey, W. W. Morgan, &c.

SUMMER EXCURSION OF THE LODGE OF FIDELITY, No. 3.

NOTHING is, of course, more highly essential to the success of a summer excursion than fine bright weather: wanting this element, all the arrangements, though faultlessly made, and after the maturest consideration, and, though the localities chosen to be visited may be the loveliest existing in this fair creation—the ladies the most charming and the gentlemen the most chivalrous,—yet, when Dame Nature puts on her garbs of sadness, and appears, to a fanciful view, to be shedding "tears of regret for the loss of the sun," all efforts seem to be in vain, and that which was hoped to be a bright memory in the future, becomes only a sad regret when it has passed away in the ever rolling stream of time.

When, however, everything is the reverse of this—when the sun beams high, and scatters his genial rays all round—when gentle breezes make the "little leaves to sing;" when glorious weather induces the finny tribe to dart about, and the hearts of all to leap with ever increasing pleasure, when the verdure is in its gayest green, presenting an infinite variety of charming objects, panoramas of living loveliness, "ever fresh and ever fair," on every hand—when birds chirp and summer airs sigh—we feel that the world is full of beauty, and that "Nature is the chart of God, mapping out all His attributes.

Such a glorious day was Thursday, the 13th instant, the day chosen by the members of the Fidelity Lodge for their annual excursion, in the Maria Wood, on the Thames. The place selected for the starting point was Kew-Bridge, the hour twelve o'clock. Previous to this, just 111 ladies and gentlemen, including several friends of the brethren, had assembled, at an elegant déjeûner, awaiting their arrival, and Edward's London Nobility Band prepared to furnish those lively strains without which, what has been named by Schiller "corporeal poesy," becomes, if not impossible, at least exceedingly tame. At 12 o'clock the guns were fired, and, drawn by seven horses, we proceeded at the majestic pace of about half a mile an hour towards the fair town of Richmond.

A well selected programme of dances had been prepared, and, once "on the wing," this ever favourite pastime was commenced. We had not "sailed" far before, notwithstanding the consummate skill of two "trusty and well-beloved liegemen" at the helm, we ran aground, in consequence of the lowness of the tide. This occurred on two or three other occasions during the day, but many were so intent on saltatory exercises as not even to notice the temporary cessation of progress. For—

> What care we for wind or tide,
> Whether we ground, or whether we glide?
> On, on with the dance, let mirth abound,
> With landscapes peering all around.

On approaching Richmond, the band, with that inherent sense of just appreciation, which is not uncommon amongst Englishmen, complimented the inhabitants by playing that most delightful old ditty, "The Lass of Richmond Hill," and the company soon after, between three and four o'clock, left the covered deck, which was crowned with an awning, and went below, where the banquet was served, supplemented by a magnificent dessert. The temperature of the weather being exceedingly high, made the libations of iced champagne and claret cup peculiarly acceptable, especially to the dance-fatigued company. The repast over, a few speeches appropriate to the occasion were made, and cordial thanks given to all who had so successfully organised the day's excursion, the names of Bros. J. Phillips W.M., H. Dearsley P.M. Treasurer, J. Squire P.M. Secretary, and J. W. Squire M.C., being particularly specified, each and all of these brethren were indefatigable in their exertions throughout. Some excellent songs succeeded, after which dancing was resumed and continued till the programme was exhausted. The greatest distance traversed was a little below Richmond, and at eight o'clock Kew Bridge was regained. But the company, who had enjoyed so brilliant a day, felt little disposed to separate at that early hour, and a number of extra dances were added whilst the barge remained moored in the middle of the river. At length, at nine o'clock, the "National Anthem" was played, and soon the gratified company were landed in boats, whence by rail and road they speedly reached their homes once more, their only regret being that so long a period as twelve months must elapse before another excursion of the "Fidelity" will take place, and "joys then sweet, now sad to mention" can be renewed.

A word of praise is most certainly due to those who so successfully organized and brought to conclusion the proceedings of a day, charming in every aspect.—[Communicated.]

It is our painful duty to announce the sudden death of Brother the Rev. Frank W. Churchill Simmons, Past Grand Chaplain, District of Otago, N.Z., the Head Master of the Nelson College, who was found dead in his bed at Foxhill, on the morning of Monday, 15th May inst. For some weeks past our brother had been suffering acutely from rheumatic fever. Last week, however, he felt better, and on Saturday left Nelson for Foxhill, in company with Mrs. Simmons, intending to return yesterday. On Sunday evening Bro. Simmons appeared well and in good spirits. He retired to rest early, but was unable to sleep, and in consequence took a dose of chloral, which proving inefficacious, at a later hour he took a second dose of the drug, with (as was proved at the inquest) fatal effect. In the morning Mrs. Simmons called him at half-past six, to enable him to return to town by the early train, when the discovery was made that he was dead. The Rev. Frank W. Churchill Simmons was educated at Rugby and Lincoln College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1852. He was appointed Head Master of the Dunedin High School in 1865, in succession to the Rev. Mr. Campbell, who was drowned in Dunedin Harbour just after his arrival in the Colony. The Rev. Bro. Simmons continued to discharge the duties of the office to which he was appointed with conspicuous ability, and speedily won for himself a scholastic reputation, and for the school over which he presided the first position in the Colony. Then came the episode of his humorous letter to his old friend the late Bishop of Brechin, who having in a rash moment put the epistle into print, caused a commotion among the "unco guid" in Dunedin, who straightway, with all the ferocity of narrow minds, fell upon the writer, and by imputing evil where none existed, succeeded in making Bro. Simmons's position a very uncomfortable one. So successful were his detractors, that he was glad at the end of 1867 to embrace the chance of changing his place of residence by accepting the Head Mastership of Nelson College. Of his work here it is impossible in a short obituary notice to speak in adequate terms. It may be all summed up in this, that Nelson College is in the first rank of the educational establishments of the Colony, and this is chiefly due to the remarkable power possessed by our deceased brother to impart the knowledge of which he possessed an extraordinary store. So much for his public career. Those who knew him privately—as friends know each other—can tell how thorough and true a gentleman he was. Never prone to resent, and ever ready to forgive an affront; quick to apologise if even inadvertently he had, as he thought, hurt any one's feelings; liberal with his purse in any charitable direction, full of true sympathy with real distress of every kind, genial and hospitable, with weaknesses like the rest of us, such was our Bro. Simmons. Deceased was a member of the Southern Star Lodge, Nelson 735 (E.C.), and a Companion of Trafalgar R.A. Chapter 157 (S.C.), and his fellow-workmen mourn for him as a worthy brother called by the Grand Master from labour to rest. The funeral was attended by a very large number of the friends of the deceased gentleman. The mournful cortege left the College at half-past two for the Stoke Cemetery. Immediately after the hearse were coaches containing the nearest and dearest relatives and friends of the departed, and behind these came the Collegiate scholars, followed by a great many young men who had left the institution, but bore in grateful and respectful remembrance the valued services of a kind and able master. After these a carriage containing the College Governors and the masters of the various public schools, then came three carriages occupied by well-known members of the Masonic fraternity (without the regalia of the Order) and the sad procession closed with a long string of vehicles of every kind.

The service in the Church was read by the Bishop of Nelson, assisted by the Rev. J. Kemptborne, after which his Lordship read the service at the grave in a very impressive manner. At the conclusion of the service, according to the time-honoured custom of Freemasonry, the brethren present drew near the open grave and deposited sprigs of acacia upon the coffin, thus paying a last tribute of respect to the memory of their well-loved and deservedly esteemed Brother Frank W. Churchill Simmons.—New Zealand Paper.

CORRESPONDENCE.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for the opinions of our Correspondents.

We cannot undertake to return rejected communications.

All Letters must bear the name and address of the Writer, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We have received a communication from Bro. Walter Hill, of No. 517, late of No. 1233, dated Wellington, N.Z., 20th May, setting forth, "in extenso," certain complaints of irregularities of Masonic working in that city which have been preferred by him to the Grand Secretary, together with Bro. Hervey's replies to the same.

No good purpose can be served by publishing a grievance which is not preferred by a strong section of the Craft, which re-opens questions which have already received the attention of the Colonial Board, and which has been officially dismissed. Bro. Hill's complaints may be founded on proved irregularities, and he may feel hurt that his zeal for the law has not been fruitful in result. But we must all remember that in an administration of the Order so widely spread, whose members cohere loosely in the remoter branches, the utmost circumspection is needed on the part of the executive, lest any pressure which may be applied to certain points may derange interests of more vital consequence. Many political systems of the present day exemplify the evils of over-zeal and over-government. Our executive has to exercise a wise discretion in treating delicate questions, in the face of which, individuals should condone difficulties where possible, cementing and healing to the utmost of their power: ever bearing in mind that the very essence of all organizations is obedience to constituted authority, and that before its decisions (founded, may be, on grounds not appreciable to a private member) it is our duty to give way.

BRO. BAXTER LANGLEY AND HIS CRITICS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

17th July 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I know that your Correspondence Column is open to all good men and true; but lest silence should be construed to imply consent, I venture, for myself at least, to disclaim sympathy (apart from any difference of opinion) with the topic referred to by "A Sympathising Student." I deem it calculated to give offence, consequently in bad taste—and fervently trust that this is the last allusion which will be made to it.

Yours faithfully,

WALTER SPENCER.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR AND BROTHER,—A question has frequently been raised among the Lodges of New Zealand upon which all are not agreed as to the position of a brother defaulting in payment of his fees—whether he ceases to be a member, or is merely suspended? The opinion of your correspondents upon this important matter will be highly esteemed and acknowledged. (1) Can a Mason, after a long cessation of his payments, return back to his Lodge by payment of twelve months' dues and (2) can such a defaulter claim re-admission on application to his mother Lodge, under any circumstances, without again undergoing the ordeal of the ballot?

I remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

W. M. S.

Southern Star Lodge, 735,
Nelson, New Zealand, June 1876.

THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Any brother who has read the report of "A Conference of Delegates," held in London on the 3rd and 4th April 1871, on "the subject of the position of the Mark Degree in England," would all but anticipate the reply of Bro. Binckes to "W. G. R.," who will now understand that regularly advanced Mark Masters, i.e. brethren advanced to that degree under the authority of either the Grand Lodge of Scotland, or Supreme Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland, will be received into Mark Master Lodges in England. Thanks, Bro. Binckes.

I suppose I may give an opinion on the still unanswered questions of "W. G. R.," and, first: Lodges acting as described by him are exceeding the powers conferred on them by their Charter, but let it not be forgotten, as I previously hinted, that this state of matters is confined almost, if not altogether, to Glasgow.

Second. Seeing that those who receive the degree of Mark Master in a Craft Lodge, have no right to claim admittance under Royal Arch authority, First Principals of Chapters are justified in refusing admittance to those so advanced; but how does this contrast with the fraternal spirit exemplified by Bro. Binckes, speaking on behalf of English Mark Master Lodges, and that the more especially, as in both the Scottish cases, at least, it is the same ritual that is worked? Multum ex parvo.

Bro. W. G. R. has made a slight mistake in persons, the John Laurie who signed the Circular is the same John Laurie who is now Grand Secretary.

Yours fraternally,

NOUS VERRONS.

Early History and Transactions of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York, 1781—1815. Published by authority of the Grand Lodge. Granted to Kane Lodge, No. 454, June 1874. Parts I., II., III., IV. New York: Masonic and Miscellaneous Publishers, No. 2 Bleecker-street. D. Sickles and Co., Managers. 1876.

WE think it well, at the outset, and before entering upon our notice of this important work, to express our hearty thanks to the "Masonic and Miscellaneous Publishers" of New York for their courtesy in forwarding us a copy of the numbers thus far issued of this history. In common with all others who are engaged in Masonic literature and the promotion of its interests, we heartily welcome the appearance of every new work which seems likely to throw light on the history of our Craft. Why it is that, in the case of a body which from the period of its revival in the early part of the 18th century till now and which has always and in all countries numbered amongst its members so many conspicuous personages, its progress should be involved in so much doubt and obscurity is a point we acknowledge it is beyond our power to solve. We can fathom the mystery to a certain extent. We see good reason why the work of a secret society should be kept secret from the general public. We can understand that over-scrupulous members should object to any measure of publicity being accorded to any of the archives of our Craft. We can see well enough why it is that at different periods in our career doubts may have arisen as to the literal accuracy of our rituals. But every Mason of average intelligence knows well where the line must be drawn between what it is is imperative should be held sacred and inviolable from the inquisition of profanes, and what may harmlessly be made known to the whole community. Masonry is indeed a secret body. That is, Masons have secrets which it were an act of the foulest perjury to divulge. These secrets, as all our brethren are aware, are quite harmless, nor have we established them or insisted upon their strict observance through any sense of shame or fear that, if published, they would involve us in discredit. It is open to any reputable person, to any one who is free and of unblemished character, to seek admission into our brotherhood, and once there he will in time be entrusted with a knowledge of all our mysteries. We are not, then, a secret society in the sense ordinarily attached to the definition of a number of persons banded together for political or other purposes. We have no fear whatever of Light, indeed, it is the constant endeavour of all true and upright Masons to obtain more and more of this infinite blessing. We have, however, our forms and ceremonies, and these are very properly known only among ourselves. We say, again, that up to certain point we can well understand why it is the Masonic historian should experience a great amount of difficulty in fulfilling his duty as a chronicler. In the earlier days of speculative Freemasonry it was not made sufficiently clear what might be published, and what must be kept a profound secret. But no society of men was ever yet formed whose existence did not sooner or later become known among the community in which it existed, and of which it necessarily formed a part, and hardly any society of men, of which we have read, has ever existed in an organised form which has not left records, more or less trustworthy, of its organisation. At the very outset of our Order in modern times, the different Masonic bodies existing in London met together, and established a Grand Lodge, appointing officers and laying down rules for its government. This Grand Lodge had not been in existence many years before it exercised the authority vested in it, and established other Masonic bodies, not only in other parts of England, but likewise in other countries. Gradually, as Freemasonry obtained more and more countenance from the public, as it attracted within its ranks more and more personages of rank and station and parts, the Grand Lodge, which sufficed for the government of a small number of Lodges, found itself becoming more and more powerless to deal with a greater number scattered about in different parts of the world. Hence, authority was issued by the primary Grand Lodge to the leading members of our fraternity in more distant places, granting them powers to organise Provincial and district governments after its own model. As time wore on, some of these dependent Masonic governments claimed and exercised independence. Thus, in a very few years from the Revival in 1717, not only was the Grand Lodge, in London, at the head of a number of Provincial Grand Lodges, scattered about in countries colonised by, or politically dependent upon, England, but a number of similar bodies elsewhere, indebted, in the first place, for their existence to the London Grand Lodge, had made themselves independent, had established their own form of government, and exercised undoubted jurisdiction over brethren residing within the limits of their several districts. All this, however, involved no secrecy whatever. It is one thing to know that certain persons are Freemasons; it is quite another to know what constitutes being a Mason. The former knowledge might safely be made public, the latter could not be divulged. But warrants for new Lodges, deputations for new Provincial Grand Masterships, must have had about them some evidence they were issued by some legally constituted authority. Some records must have been kept of who granted them, and to whom and when they were granted. It is but natural to suppose that a register of all such important documents was established, and that more than ordinary care would be exercised in preserving it. But, while for centuries before the Revival it was deemed necessary in the outer or profane world to establish legal evidence of certain things, and carefully preserve and transmit from generation to generation all such documents; while in nearly all ages, in the absence of direct, we mostly find important indirect or circumstantial testimony in support of this or that deed or grant; in Freemasonry there exists the most profound difficulty in tracing any matter of real historic value. Considering, as we have said, how soon Freemasonry attracted within its fold so many men of station, it seems, to say the least, strange that so little remains to us of the early archives of the Craft. Our laws or Constitutions, as published or amended at different epochs, are preserved. Old and curious MSS. yet remain to excite the enthusiasm of the curious. But of the earlier warrants few exist in these days, and when a learned brother assumes to himself the rôle of an historian, he finds he is beset on all sides by difficulties of the gravest character. Let him essay to trace the progress of Freemasonry in England and abroad, and he will be, even at the outset, well nigh forced to abandon the task in despair. Of course, if he cares to discharge his duty in a perfunctory manner, he may succeed in compiling a very readable and probably a highly interesting sketch. This, however, is not what we have in view. We are thinking of an authentic history of the Craft, which students may not only read but have confidence in. Masonic historians of past days have been content to accept statements of the loosest and most untrustworthy character, or they have advanced theories of their own on very insufficient warrant. They have, indeed, fulfilled their duty most imperfectly, following, we fear, very exactly in the footsteps of our earliest rulers, who seem to have been at marvellously little pains to preserve evidence of the constitution and development of a society, which it was their great pride to have served in so healthful and so glorious a fashion. So much for the importance we attach to any carefully prepared addition to the historic literature of the Craft. So much in the way of welcoming such additions, when we have reason to believe it undertaken with the bonâ fide object of illuminating the mind of Craftsmen as to the earlier history of the Masonic fraternity. This history of the New York Grand Lodge is undertaken by the Kane Lodge, No. 454 of that jurisdiction, with the sanction and by the authority of Grand Lodge itself. We bring ourselves, therefore, to the study of its pages with a strong prejudice in its favour. We feel assured the work will be done carefully, and we hope it will be done exhaustively. We shall not, however, allow our judgment to be overruled by our partiality. We shall have the candour to note errors, if such are found, whether they be errors of omission or of commission. We are anxious that the history of Freemasonry should be as authentic as the histories of other societies, and the only prospect we have of seeing this wish realised is to fulfil the duties of the critic with perfect impartiality. In this spirit we now enter upon those duties.

The introductory chapter contains all that is known of Freemasonry in the State of New York prior to the establishment of the Grand Lodge in 1781. When we say that about forty pages suffice for details extending over some fifty years, our readers will at once perceive that what is vouchsafed in them is meagre in the extreme. This, of course, is no fault of the editor and his coadjutors. They have laboriously collated every document of importance, every scrap of intelligence from contemporaneous literature that could possibly throw even a feeble ray of light on the doings of Craftsmen during this period of time. Small blame, indeed, to the workmen who has an arduous task to accomplish, and only the scantiest materials wherewith to accomplish it. What is done, however, is done well. The matter that has been brought together is from authentic sources. More might, of course, have been written had the compilers endued themselves with more or less of that imaginative power which has distinguished so many of our historians. They have rightly availed themselves of what can be authenticated, and that only; and as our New York brethren prior to 1781 appear to have been very chary in their labours, the story, of necessity, is imperfect. Further researches may, perhaps, result in further valuable discoveries, but what is furnished in this chapter seems to us to represent the sum and substance of what is known to have occurred between 1730 and 1781. Roughly described, the contents show the establishment of the Provincial Grand Lodge and the Lodges under its jurisdiction, most of the latter being still on the roll of Grand Lodge. Now and again we come across a letter or document of surpassing interest, illustrating the character of Masonry in those days, but generally the matter exhibits, in chronological sequence, the constitution and early progress of the several Lodges. This at some later period may be amplified. But what is here collated will ever remain the backbone, as it were, of every history that may be written, and Bro. "John G. Barker, P.G. Librarian," whose name is subscribed to the chapter, is worthy of all praise for the labour he must have bestowed on his work and the success he has achieved in his performance. One slight omission calls for remark. We fully endorse the maxim of Horace as to people, and writers among others, plunging at once in medias res. Even a line or two, however, should have been furnished as to the Revival of Freemasonry in England in 1717. The "deputation" of 1730 was among the earliest results of that revival. We do not think the Craft heretofore has shown itself very enthusiastic in its study of our history, not more so, perhaps, in New York than in other Masonic jurisdictions. Only a very few brethren have even heard of this revival, which is certainly a most important epoch in our history. The date of this, the certain origin of Modern Masonry, would have been news to most Craftsmen, and would assuredly have added to the completeness of the sketch.

The Elements of Banking. By HENRY DUNNING MACLEOD, M.A. London: Longmans and Co.

THERE are few subjects connected with the science of political economy so generally important, or so little understood, as the science of banking. That it is important, a single fact will suffice to show. It is estimated that, at the time of the commencement of the Franco-Prussian War, the total amount of the precious metals in use in France as money, ranged between 330 and 350 millions sterling. Now England, by means of a more perfect system of banking, is able to conduct a business far larger than that of France, with a metallic currency that does not exceed one-third of this amount. That it is little understood by the generality of people is evident from the success which has, from time to time, attended the efforts of reckless speculators, to foist sham banking companies upon the public. The present work, written by a thorough master of the subject, is well adapted to enlighten business men as to both the theory and practice of banking. A thoroughly practical book, it yet does not fail to show the rationale of the various operations to which it refers, whilst its comments on the numerous legal points raised are eminently judicious and valuable. A careful study of this volume may preserve the speculative man from many a bad investment, and even the ordinary reader, who may possibly never have invested a sovereign in his life, will find his knowledge of the general business world around him considerably increased by its perusal. The author's remarks on accommodation bills call to mind a trial of some importance which occurred about this time last year. He says:—"From these accommodation bills to forged bills there is but one step. It is but a thin line of division between drawing upon a man who is notoriously utterly unable to pay, and drawing upon a person who does not exist at all, or forging an acceptance. In practical morality, and in its practical effects there is none." We can, with every confidence, recommend this book to the consideration of all who are in the slightest degree interested in the questions of which it treats.

THE DRAMA.

The close of the Season—The Haymarket.

THE dramatic season is now rapidly on the wane. Covent Garden has closed its doors, the farewell performance of Her Majesty's Opera at Drury Lane takes place on Monday, the Court Theatre closes on Friday next, and the Prince of Wales's a week later; whilst the Olympic, the St. James's, the Opera Comique, the Charing Cross and the Globe are closed already. That theatre of many aliases, the Holborn, or, as it now happens to be termed, THE DUKE'S, has been converted into a promenade concert hall, and flowers, ferns, ice grottos, fountains and fair lady singers have taken the places of comedy, tragedy, farce and extravaganza. The only novelty—if such it may be called—in theatrical matters, is the revival of Wild Oats at the HAYMARKET, with Miss Henrietta Hodson in the character of Lady Aramanth. The cast of the present performance will hardly bear comparison with that of the original production of the play, when Macready, Munden, Lewis, Quick and Blanchard sustained the principle male parts, and Miss Pope played the heroine—but the piece is fairly acted for all that, Mr. Howe and Mr. Harcourt showing especial excellence.

At the last regular meeting of the One and All Lodge, No. 330, Bodmin, the ballot was taken for W. Bro. John Constable, P.M. 185, as a joining member, and was unanimous, as expected. At the former meeting the proposition to that effect was made by W. Bro. Capt. Colvill, P.M 330, P. Prov. S.G.W. of Cornwall, and seconded by W. Bro. Richard Rich, P.M. 330, P. Prov. J.G.W. of Cornwall, and was received with acclamation, likewise a vote of thanks to Bro. Constable and Mrs. Constable for their valuable services and numerous votes in aiding in the election of Mrs. Harvey (the widow of Past Master Harvey of the Lodge) as an annuitant of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The vote of thanks and the certificate of honorary membership have been duly forwarded to Bro. Constable, and as it is the second of its kind from Cornwall, our energetic brother may be excused if he feels a "wee bit" proud. The certificate is signed by the regular officers of the Lodge, the W.M., John Craig, being Mayor of Bodmin, and the J.W. the Hon. T. C. Agar-Robartes, son of Lord Robartes of Lanlydrock.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE week in Parliament has resulted in further progress with two Government measures. The Commons Bill has passed through Committee in the Lords, and the Elementary Education Bill has had the full amount of discussion so important a Bill is entitled to in the Commons. On Monday a short debate arose in the Upper House anent the Declaration of Paris; in the other, Lord Henry Lennox having offered a personal explanation of the reasons that had led him to retire from the Ministry, the Premier enlightened the House as to the alleged Turkish atrocities in Bulgaria. Such had been exercised not only by Turks towards Christians, but likewise by Christians towards Turks. The first offenders were a number of agitating scoundrels, who had burned out the unoffending inhabitants of Turkish villages in Bulgaria, but the retaliation of the latter had been excessively severe. On Wednesday an attempt to repeal the Contagious Diseases Act proved a failure. On Friday and Tuesday the House of Commons was counted out a few minutes after nine, the hour fixed for the resumption of the sitting.

On Tuesday their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales held a second garden party at Chiswick. The guests were numerous, and the Royal party included the King and Queen of the Hellenes, the Prince and Princess Christian, the Princess Louise, Marchioness, and the Marquis of Lorne, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duke and Duchess of Teck. On Wednesday the Prince and Princess, with their Hellenic Majesties, paid a visit to the Crystal Palace, the directors of which, though the time allowed them was short, exerted themselves very successfully to provide an entertainment worthy of the occasion. The chief features of the programme were a grand concert and the performances in the Hippodrome. Over fifteen thousand visitors entered the Palace and grounds.

On Friday last an appalling accident occurred on board one of our monster ironclads, H.M.S. Thunderer, one of whose boilers burst in the afternoon of that day, and caused a fearful loss of life, besides seriously injuring a still greater number of persons. About a score of persons were killed outright, and nearly four times as many most terribly damaged. Of the latter a number have already succumbed to their wounds, and there are close upon forty deaths recorded, while the condition of ten or twelve more is said to be most precarious. The funeral of the victims was attended with every mark of respect which the Dockyard and Naval and Military authorities of Portsmouth were able to show. The Queen, on hearing of the catastrophe, at once telegraphed her deep sympathy with the sufferers, as did likewise the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other members of the Royal Family. A subscription for the families of the sufferers has been opened, and among the contributors are the Queen and the Prince of Wales. The usual coroner's inquiry has been opened, and every endeavour will, no doubt, be made to ascertain the cause of the accident. Our new ships of war have happily had no chance of proving their strength at the expense of our enemies, but they are very formidable to ourselves. The Captain turned turtle in the Bay of Biscay, and cost us between four and five hundred valuable lives. The Vanguard lies at the bottom of the Irish Channel, whither she was sent in a few minutes by a sister ironclad. And now the boiler of a third ironclad has cost us already some forty more valuable lives. How it will fare with these monsters in the day of battle remains to be seen.

We gladly pass, however, to more agreeable topics. The Lord Mayor entertained the Archbishops and Bishops of the Established Church, at the Mansion House, on Wednesday. A very numerous array of reverend and other guests assembled round his Lordship's hospitable board on the occasion, and Archbishop Tait delivered a very eloquent speech in reply to the toast of the Church. Among the other speakers were Mr. Pierrepoint, the new American Minister in London, who, to judge from this speech of his, will prove an amusing as well as an effective speaker at our public banquets. Mr. Pierrepoint has not been among us very long, but already his experience is considerable. He finds himself more frequently called upon to speak publicly in London than in New York, and he imagines the explanation of a countryman of his for stammering more in New York than in Baltimore, namely, a "larger place," will in a measure account for this. We fully reciprocate the Minister's hope, expressed at the close of his remarks, that England and the United States may go on hand-in-hand extending the blessings of civilisation among the nations.

The National Rifle Association has been enjoying a succession of warm days in their Camp at Wimbledon, which is certainly one of the hottest places in the neighbourhood of London. So far as the purpose for which the meeting is held, everything appears to have passed off most satisfactorily. To-day the proceedings close, but at the time of writing most of the important competitions have been determined. An Englishman, Serjeant Pullman, of the 2nd or South Middlesex Rifles, and a member of the firm of R. and T. Pullman, leatherdressers, of Holborn, is the fortunate winner of the Queen's Prize (£250), and the Gold Medal and Badge of the N.R.A. His score was 74 out of a possible total of 105 points, namely 23 at 800, 28 at 900, and 23 at a 1,000 yards, seven shots at each range. A 3rd Lanarkshire man came second with a score of 67, and then a 37th Middlesex, so that the Home County has brilliantly distinguished itself this year. In the match between the two Houses of Parliament the Commons proved victorious. In the match that resulted from the challenge of the Australians, four teams of five each competed, representing England, Scotland, Canada, and Australia. The weapon used was the Martini-Henry, and Scotland took the place of honour with a score of 402, England being next with 401, the Australians with 389, and then Canada with 364. Ireland was not represented, as Captain Leech found himself at the last moment unable to bring together the team he desired. For the Chancellor's Challenge Plate Oxford has beaten Cambridge by 552 to 534, but the latter is still ahead on the general result by nine victories to six achieved by Oxford.

Mr. Lowe is in his element in dealing with matters Educational. On Wednesday, he presided at the distribution of prizes in the Middle Class School, Cowper Street, Finsbury. The pupils number thirteen hundred, and prizes were awarded to about one hundred of them. Mr. Lowe's speech was admirable, and we trust the advice he so freely and so forcibly tendered will be justly appreciated by the boys. In these days of progress a youth must enter life well provided with useful knowledge or he stands a poor chance of success. Mr. Lowe himself furnishes one of the most brilliant proofs of the help that education affords. It is by talents early developed, by long, deep, and laborious study, that he has risen to his present high position, an ex-Cabinet Minister and Member for the University of London.

The second inquiry into what is known as the Balham mystery is likely to be a protracted one. Several days have already been consumed in the examination of some of the chief medical and other witnesses, and as yet there are no signs of the end being near at hand. Every care is being taken to sift the matter thoroughly, and any doubts that may have existed in the public mind respecting the cause and manner of Mr. Bravo's death will, we trust, be for ever set at rest by this inquiry.

The struggle between Turkey and its vassals still continues. One day we read of Servian victories, the day following, that the Turks are offering a successful resistance to the attacks of the hostile armies. There has been, no doubt, a good deal of hard fighting, but nothing decisive has yet occurred. The general result, however, appears to be unfavourable to the smaller power. She has not made as yet any visible impression on the power of her adversary. All her available men, even to the very old and the very young, have been sent to the front to serve as food for the enemy's powder, and the greatest dissatisfaction is said to prevail in Belgrade, the Servian Capital. Meanwhile fresh Turkish troops are being sent to the scene of war, a part of the Egyptian Contingent has already arrived, and it is quite possible that in a short time we may hear of Servia being utterly defeated. As regards the Montenegrins, we hear less of their doings. They are reported to have gained several successes; but Fame is a fickle jade, and it seems well nigh impossible amid the multitude of contradictory telegrams that reach this country to learn the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. The recent statements made by the Earl of Derby, in reply to certain influential deputations that waited upon his lordship, appear to have given general satisfaction not only here but in the leading foreign capitals. It will certainly not be the fault of the English Ministry if the struggle is not strictly localised. England will not constitute herself the champion of the Turks, but she will leave no effort untried to bring about a just solution of the present difficulty.

We have had the following sent us for publication, and we publish it with great pleasure. It is a vigorously written letter, and should have the desired effect of stifling once and for ever the ill feeling which still appears to rankle in the minds of some of our West Yorkshire brethren anent the management of the Boys' School. Surely it is enough that due inquiry has been made by a special committee, and that that inquiry has resulted in demonstrating the management to be worthy of all honourable support. We call upon West Yorkshire brethren, or rather upon those who have taken a more or less prominent part in the recent squabble, to observe the good old manly English custom of fair play. A committee has decided their report is based on erroneous views. All the agitation in the world will not overrule this decision. Indeed, the more urgent in opposition to what is settled, and should be dead and buried, are D.P.G.M. Tew and his friends, the more disgusted will the Craft be generally, the more convinced that all such opposition is not meant to be in the interest of the School, but simply factious. We abstain from offering any opinion ourselves, beyond what we have already offered. It is high time, however, West Yorkshire should acquiesce in what has been done, and done openly in the light of day, or uneasiness will be generated as to the genuineness of our Masonic principles:—

TO THE LIFE GOVERNORS OF THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS IN THE PROVINCE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

Audi Alteram Partem.

GREAT GRIMSBY, 14th July 1876.

Brethren,—I have been living in the vain hope that the strife and uncharitableness which a short time ago was stirred up in our Province would have subsided, but I am sorry to see a Notice on the Agenda for our next Prov. Grand Lodge, re-opening and renewing that ill-feeling.

It appears most strange to me that in that once happy and proud Province there is not one resident brother who will take up the subject and endeavour to bring about an end to this unpleasantness.

I received Prov. G.L. Summons on the 12th instant, and yesterday morning a brother voluntarily sent me a copy of a pamphlet, printed by Bro. Tew, and ready to be sent to any Lodge within the Province which considers it worth while to pass upon him a vote of thanks for the prominent part he has recently taken. The receipt of this has aroused in me a desire to say something on the subject, having, outside the Province, taken some little interest in the movements of West Yorkshire. If time permitted I could say much, and give you a considerable amount of information on the un-Masonic proceedings of our D.P.G.M. He complains of the short notice Bro. (Mr.) Binckes gave him of the Quarterly Court on the 10th April. I do not know that it was the duty of Bro. Binckes to give him this notice at all, but I may tell you that our D.P.G.M. knew of Bro. Woodford's notice on the 3rd April, when he was at Hull. The notice of the motion was only given to the Committee in London on the 1st, so that Bro. Tew had as much time to organise his forces as any man in England, and all was done that possibly could be done to arouse the Province by a strong appeal in Prov. G. Lodge at Wakefield on the 5th by the S.W. and J.W. What say you for the candour of your D.P.G.M., in wishing it to be inferred that he did not know of Bro. Woodford's motion until four days before the meeting of the Court? It was advertised in the daily papers in the usual way. Bro. Tew knows (or ought to know) the four fixed days on which Quarterly Court is held. Shame on him then wishing to make it appear he knew nothing about it until four days before. In the same paragraph he talks about a packed meeting. How ridiculous to talk about a packed meeting in the heart of London at mid-day! That large meeting assembled to shew their indignation of the un-Masonic conduct of our D.P.G.M., some of which I will expose to you before our next P.G. Lodge in October. Talking about a packed meeting comes with the most wretched grace from him! He and two of his satellites "stumping" the country, got together a meeting at Hull on the 3rd April, and when told that I had been invited to attend, wrote by return of post to Hull objecting to my being present; why forsooth? "Because John Sutcliffe of Grimsby is opposed to our movement." What do you think of that from our D.P.G.M.? But I was there notwithstanding his attempt to have a packed meeting, and in my next will tell you how he and his satellites conducted themselves. I will tell you some things, which I think will arouse that old spirit of Freemasonry and fair play, which, I feel certain still exists in W. Y. Defer your decision on the proposal of the "ex parte" statement of Bro. Booth on the 12th, until you hear some further communication in answer to the report of our Investigation Committee.

At the close of the pamphlet before me he refers to the formation of the House Committee. Does Bro. Tew wish to get on that Committee? If so, he knows (or ought to know) how to proceed to get elected, and until he or some of his party have been refused admission, I say, it is most un-Masonic and ungentlemanly to attack the private character of that body. It has been said of many agitators that they rail against some supposed grievance, but never take any real action and have no desire to remove it. Is this the case with Bro. Tew? His grievance would be gone if he (or any of his friends) get on the Committee. See also his inconsistency—praising the Girls, censuring the Boys' House Committee, although several of the same brethren are on both.

In writing this I hope it may have some effect in arousing the dormant spirit of W. Y. I know there are many good men in the Province who disapprove altogether the late proceedings. How is it therefore, they quietly sit to be led by the D.P.G.M. and his clique? I have heard it said that one high in rank—none more beloved in all the Province—"blushes" for it, and I have before me a note from another brother who stands high also, who would grace the D.P.G.M.'s Chair, and would rule in Peace, Love and Harmony, and not in constant Strife, Envy and Hatred, and who writing to a Friend since the last Boys' School Festival, says:—"I am quite delighted at the very marked success of the Festival, and the damper, I may say, the severe rebuke, it has given to our D.P.G.M., who has done his best to set the Province by the ears: surely it will read him a lesson."

Surely—surely there are many, many more, holding the same good honest opinions. Why don't they speak out and do away with the strife and ill-feeling engendered in our once proud and happy Province.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN SUTCLIFFE.

Old Warrants.

Boston, 18th June 1876.

MY DEAR BRO. CONSTABLE,—The Masonic student is in every step baffled by puzzles. Thus, in 1768 Dermott sent two warrants to Halifax, respectively numbered 155 and 211, the same Lodges and numbers may be seen on Bro. Hughan's list of Lodges, 1814 ("Masonic Memorials of the Union"). The puzzle is, why were two Lodges of the same date numbered so far apart? The V.W. Bro. John Hervey, however, informed me that while the G.L. of England invariably ranked its Lodges according to seniority, the ancients followed no such a rule, and that Nos. of defunct Lodges were often transferred to new Lodges "for a consideration." For instance, suppose that No. 10 ceased to exist, the No. would then be sold to the highest bidder; and if No. 100, we will say, offered the highest price, it would have No. 10, and take precedence of No. 11, though in reality it may have been twenty years the junior of No. 11, and hence I suppose that the Halifax Lodge, No. 155, must have received, for a consideration, the No. of an extinct Lodge.

I send with this a copy of one of these warrants, as the former warrants of 1757 (including the Provincial Grand Master's warrant) were respectively numbered "in Halifax 1, 2 and 3, this one is No. 4 accordingly. On comparing No. 4 with the former, likewise with the warrant of the Tranquillity Lodge, given in your history of that Lodge, you will notice that those of 1757 were written either on parchment or paper, this one (i.e. No. 4) is printed on a square piece of parchment from regular book type. The words "Grand Master" and a couple of other sentences are printed in black letters, while the warrant of the Tranquillity Lodge was engraved on copper plates. Charter No. 4 is surrounded with a flowery border, in accordance with the printer's fashion of those days. The seal of this warrant differs also from that of 1757; this one is not oval, but round, it contains the same emblems, and in addition to the words "virtue and silence," "Grand Lodge, London," is engraved thereon.

Again, the 1757 warrant did not specify the time of Lodge meetings, but this one does, and Bro. Brennan believes that the Lodge kept up the same days till now. The seal of the former was on wax, but this seal is impressed on two strips of vellum, with a wafer between, standing clearly in relief (without wax). As I stated above, the form of the charter is printed, but blank places were left for filling up with the pen. The latter are in italics to distinguish them from the printed parts.

Another important difference in the phraseology must be noticed. The Charter of 1757 begins with, "We, the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted (York) Masons," and the same phrase is repeated in the closing part thereof, but in this one, the word "York" is omitted, and, "according to the old Constitutions granted by his Royal Highness," etc., is newly introduced. The reason for this change in the phraseology is simply this:—when the Ancients first started, they claimed to have derived their authority from the Grand Lodge of York. At that time the York Grand Lodge was dormant, and the Ancients could claim anything with impunity; but as the Grand Lodge of York resumed activity in 1761, our Bro. Dermott found it necessary to claim his authority from some other source, hence the language was changed as above stated. And now for the warrant.

No. 11.

No. 4 in Halifax. Thomas Mathew, Grand Master.
L. Dermott for the S.G.W., Wm. Dickey D.G.M., L. Dermott for the J.G.W.

No. 155 in England } To all whom it may concern.

We the GRAND LODGE of the most Ancient and Honourable FRATERNITY of FREE and ACCEPTED MASONS (according to the old constitutions granted by His Royal Highness Prince EDWIN at York, Anno Domini nine hundred twenty and six, and in the year of Freemasonry, four thousand nine hundred and twenty and six) in ample form assembled, viz. The Right Worshipful and Honourable Thomas Mathew of Thomas Town in the Kingdom of Ireland, Esquire, now residing in that part of Great Britain called England.

GRAND MASTER OF MASONS.

The Worshipful William Dickey, DEPUTY GRAND MASTER. The Worshipful Edmund Buttler, SENIOR GRAND WARDEN and the Worshipful Henry Allen Esqr., JUNIOR GRAND WARDEN (with the approbation and consent of the WARRANTED LODGES held within the Cities and Suburbs of LONDON and WESTMINSTER) Do hereby authorise and impower our Trusty and Well beloved Brethren, viz., Mr. John Cody, One of our MASTER MASONS, Mr. Thomas Mc Lenon, his SENIOR WARDEN, and Mr. John Woodin, his JUNIOR WARDEN, to Form and Hold a LODGE of FREE and ACCEPTED MASONS aforesaid at the sign of the General Amherst in the town of Halifax, and Province of Nova Scotia, North America, upon the first Tuesday of every Kallendar month, and on all seasonable Times and Lawful Occasions. And in the said LODGE (when duly congregated) to admit and make FREE MASONS, according to the Ancient and Honourable Custom of the ROYAL CRAFT, in all Ages and Nations throughout the known World. And We do hereby farther authorise and impower Our said Trusty and Well beloved Brethren, Messrs. John Cody, Thomas Mc Lenon, and John Woodin (with the consent of the Members of their Lodge) to nominate, chuse, and install their Successors, to whom they shall deliver this WARRANT, and invest them with their Powers and Dignities as FREE MASONS, &c. And such Successors shall in like Manner nominate, chuse, and install their Successors &c. &c. &c. Such Installations to be upon (or near) every ST. JOHN'S-Day during the Continuance of this LODGE for ever. Providing the above named Brethren and all their Successors always pay due Respect to this Right Worshipful GRAND LODGE, otherwise this WARRANT to be of no Force, nor Virtue.

Given under our Hands and SEAL of our GRAND LODGE in LONDON this Twenty sixth Day of March, in the Year of our LORD, One thousand Seven hundred and sixty and Eight, and in the year of MASONRY Five thousand Seven hundred Sixty and eight,

Lau Dermott, GRAND SECRETARY.

Note. This WARRANT is registered in the GRAND LODGE. Vol 6th
Lette F.

I shall only here add, that I copied the seal from the Philadelphia Dedication Memorial, wherein there is a copy of a Provincial Warrant sent by Dermott to the Philadelphia brethren in 1764, and as the seal is identical with the one on the Halifax charter, I copied it, and hope it will be engraved.

Fraternally yours,

JACOB NORTON.

[What would be a puzzle for American Masonic students to unravel respecting the "Ancients" has long ceased to trouble us in England, as we have long known that the number of an "Ancient" Lodge is no evidence of its antiquity, and the selling of the dormant Warrants to the "highest bidder" by that Grand Lodge, is not anything new to us.

We have pleasure in inserting Bro. Norton's interesting communication, and shall be still more pleased to print a transcript of the "Albion" Lodge, Quebec (late No. 17), which Bro. Hughan has announced, in an American Paper, is in all probability of the year 1756, and not of 1721 as Bro. Tisdall erroneously claims. We take exception to Bro. Norton's ipse dixit that the Grand Lodge of all England held at York was dormant A.D. 1757. It may have been, but certainly no one is as yet entitled to say so as a fact. We cannot be too careful in our investigations, and therefore had better refrain from positive assertions in the absence of evidence.—EDITOR.]

The Rev. Dr. I. Strauss, Jewish minister of Bradford, has been appointed Chaplain of the Lodge of Harmony (600), of Bradford. The greater number of the members of the Lodge (including the Master) are Christians, and the appointment is therefore all the more gratifying. We can only regret that there are still a few countries where the ruling principles of Freemasonry are disregarded by Masons, and Jews excluded by reason only of their faith. We question whether the time has not arrived for English Jewish Masons (an enormous number) to take a more spirited action in this matter. The act of the late Mr. Fandell in the Grand Lodge of England about a quarter of a century ago in raising an objection to the admission of the Crown Prince of Prussia (the present emperor) on the ground of the exclusion of Jews from German Lodges is still remembered, and its significance should not be lost upon young and active Jewish Masons of the present day.—Jewish Chronicle.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—These twin remedies exercise in a manner peculiar to themselves such an effect on the liver and excretory organs of the body, that the presence of impoverished bile, or any foreign, effete, or morbid material in the stomach and bowels, is rendered almost impossible. It is scarcely possible to over-estimate the benefit conferred on mankind by such results, for if used in the commencement of bilious disorders and intestinal irritations, the removal of the exciting cause would reduce to a minimum, if it did not altogether avert, the supervention of typhoid and enteric fevers, which are in the present day so rife amongst all classes of the community, especially during the hot and sultry summer months.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the Hercules, Leadenhall-street, on Thursday evening last, 20th July, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Webb W.M., Grammer S.W., Maidwell J.W., Crawley S.D., Rudderforth J.D., Lamb I.G., Austin P.M. Preceptor, and several other brethren. The ceremony of the 3rd degree was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Hogarth acting as candidate. The W.M. worked the three sections of the third lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Grammer was elected W.M. for next Thursday, and the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C. on Wednesday, the 19th instant. Bro. Rudderforth occupied the chair. The chief business of the evening, after preliminaries, was the rehearsal of the third ceremony. The candidate was represented by Bro. Fenner. The duties were excellently well performed by the W.M., who was ably assisted by Bros. Crucher S.W., Turquand J.W., Bagg S.D., D. Posener J.D., Tollis I.G., and Christopher Tyler. Notwithstanding the closeness of temperature, the Lodge was tolerably well attended. Bro. E. Gottheil P.M. Preceptor was in his place, and gave his accustomed assistance to the proceedings. The lecture was worked by Bro. Gottheil, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Lowenthal of 185 was elected a joining member. Bro. F. Croaker will preside next Wednesday.

Royal Union Lodge, No. 382, Uxbridge.—This rapidly increasing and flourishing Lodge met on Monday, the 17th inst., at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge. Bros. J. W. Davis W.M., B. H. Swallow P.M. as S.W., W. Smith, C.E., being unavoidably absent, S. Holliday J.W., Coulton P.M. Treasurer, W. Coombes, P.M. P.P.G.S. Middlesex, Secretary, Webb S.D., Cook J.D., Lonsdale I.G., Russe D.C., Allen and Cobley Stewards, Longstaff Tyler, and P.M.'s Adams, Fehrenbach, Weedon, Woodward, &c., with a numerous attendance of the brethren. The Lodge having been opened, and the minutes confirmed, Bros. Cecil, Cooper and Marriott were raised. Bros. Brown, Denenbourg, Hanson, and, by courtesy of the W.M., Bros. E. Humphrey and H. F. Swears, of Lodge La Tolerance, No. 538. Ballots were unanimously in favour of Messrs. W. H. Matthews, H. W. Nicolson, R. Henderson and H. J. Price; they were "By Fiat" duly initiated into the Order by the W.M., of whom the Lodge may be justly proud, considering the careful manner in which he performs the various ceremonies. The seeds of charity sown in the hearts of the members of this Lodge will reap their reward. Five guineas was voted to the widow of a deceased brother, five guineas to the children of a distressed Brother, and ten guineas to be placed on the list of the W.M., who is a Steward for the next Anniversary of the Boys' School. Bro. G. Hine, Oak Lodge, No. 180, was elected a joining member. Bro. Coombes P.M. brought before the Lodge, for its recommendation, a petition for a new Lodge to be held at West Drayton, near Uxbridge, which was duly signed by the W.M., officers and brethren. The Lodge was then closed, and about sixty brethren adjourned to the Grapes Hotel, where Bro. Drinkwater provided a capital banquet. The W.M., in proposing the usual Loyal, Masonic and complimentary toasts, fully justified the encomiums passed on him by the brethren. A very agreeable and harmonious evening was passed, Bros. Coombes, Sturt, Brown and Matthews giving some excellent harmony. Bros. C. A. Cottebrune P.G.P., Humphrey 538, Syer 1017, Barnsfield W.M. La Tolerance, West P.M. 538, Pike 1563, Wean 538, Youngsland 538, Cattermole 217, W. M. Salisbury, Stammerworth, &c. were present as visitors.

Frederick of Unity, No. 452, Surrey.—This Lodge held its regular meeting at the Greyhound, Croydon, on Tuesday, the 18th inst. Present—Bro. J. W. Sugg W.M., supported by his officers, Bros. Wright S.W., Jefferies J.W., Masterman I.P.M., G. Robins P.M. Treasurer, Magnus Ohren P.M. Secretary, Sugg P.M., Edmonds S.D., Pawlay J.D., Sugg I.G., Spaight Tyler, and a number of members. Visitors — Bros. Turquand and Cowland, G. Stewards, Macaulay, and Abbott. The Lodge was opened. The business transacted included the passing to the second degree of Bros. George F. Cousins, John Methven and John F. W. Rogers. Bro. Trinnely was balloted for and elected a re-joining member. Mr. D. W. Sugg having then been balloted for and elected, was duly initiated. The ceremonies were very impressively rendered by the W.M., and two candidates having been proposed and seconded, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony. Dinner was then served. Some amusing doubts had been expressed as to whether the room would accommodate the number of guests, and whether the pabulum provided would be ample enough. Bro. Ohren as Secretary, with his usual forethought, had invited members to inform him, by post card, of their intention to dine, but only one had done so, and he, as it happened, came not. These doubts, however, were quickly dispelled. The room was found large enough, and the provision more than sufficient, as well as of the usual excellent character. On the removal of the cloth, and when the loving cup had been passed round, the usual toasts followed in their regular sequence. Bro. Sugg is an excellent chairman and speaker. In prefacing the various toasts, his remarks were felicitous as well as pertinent. Bro. Cowland responded for the Pro Grand Master and other Grand Officers past and present, Bro. George Robins for the P.G. Master and Officers of Surrey, Bro. Turquand for the Visitors, and Bro. Initiate, with native modesty, for himself. Bros. Ohren, Jefferies, Geo. Robins jun., and others, sang several songs in the course of the evening; and when the guests rose to depart, none, we fancy, felt any evil effects from the general omission to send post cards to the Secretary.

Yarborough Chapter, No. 554.—A Convocation of this Chapter was held on Thursday, 13th inst., at the Green Dragon Hotel, Stepney. Comps. Finch M.E.Z., George Ward Verry P.Z. as H., W. G. Clark J., J. H. Wynne P.Z. Treasurer, Rev. D. Shaboe P.Z. S.E., J. J. Berry S.N., Toye P.S., B. Carter 1st Assist., C. A. Crouch 2nd Assist., Gross D.C.; P.Z.'s R. Taylor, S. Vasey; Speight Janitor. The Chapter was opened, and minutes were confirmed. A ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. Westoby Lowles, Finsbury Lodge, No. 861, which being in his favour, he was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry with a degree of solemnity and such perfect working as was a pleasure to listen to. The Chapter possesses a very elegant throne, decorated with four Corinthian columns. The M.E.Z. announced to the Companions that a sum had been voted by the Chapter, and augmented by the Companions, for the purpose of presenting Comp. G. Ward Verry P.Z. with a jewel, he being the first P.Z. who had been presented with one, and he remarked that it could not have been more worthily bestowed, Comp. Verry having occupied every office in the Chapter, and he carried out his duties in every respect to their satisfaction. The jewel is of solid gold, and is ornamented with the arms of the Earl of Yarborough, and bears the following inscription: "Presented by the Yarborough Chapter, No. 554, to Comp. G. Ward Verry P.Z., as a token of regard, and in appreciation of his service as M.E.Z. of the above Chapter. 10th Feb. 1876." Companion Verry, in a few but appropriate remarks, thanked them for their valuable gift, and said if the Companions required any services of him he would only be too pleased to assist them. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions sat down to a very excellent cold collation, provided by the worthy host, Comp. T. Walters. The M.E.Z. proposed the usual Loyal and R.A. toasts. Comp. G. Ward Verry I.P.M. proposed the health of the M.E.Z., and complimented him on the admirable manner in which he had performed the ceremony, also on the way he had conducted the duties of the chair. The M.E.Z. responded. He thanked them for the hearty way the toast had been received. He had been a Mason twenty years, and had passed every office. He hoped he had given them satisfaction. Comp. Wynne P.Z. proposed the toast of the H. and J. Comp. G. Clarke responded. The M.E.Z. in proposing the toast of the P.Z.'s, stated they were always ready and willing to render valuable assistance. He was pleased to see old and venerable Past Principals among them, and he hoped they would be spared for many years. As in Lodges, so in Chapters, it was always pleasant to see familiar faces, as a reminiscence of the past, and a hope in the future for them to continue among them. Comps. Wynne and Taylor returned thanks for the toast. The M.E.Z. gave the toast of the newly exalted Companion, who was the J.W. of the Finsbury Lodge, was greatly respected, and would be a credit to the Chapter. Comp. Lowles very appropriately responded. Companions Davis 1260 and H. M. Levy P.Z. 188 returned thanks for the visitors. The toast of the Officers was given, and Comp. D. Shaboe P.Z. and S.E., in a very eloquent speech, returned thanks. He was followed by Comps. Crouch and Berry. The Janitor's toast was given. Some very capital harmony emanated from Comps. Shaboe, Davies, Vasey and the M.E.Z.

D. H. Jacobs, Carrington, Wrangham, &c. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes of the former Convocation were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for the admission of Bro. Francis Sharratt, of the Beadon Lodge, No. 619. This was in his favour, and he was duly exalted into R.A. Masonry, the working being admirably rendered by the Principals. The Chapter was then closed, and slight refreshment followed. The M.E.Z. gave the usual Loyal toasts, also those of the Principals and Officers, and the newly exalted Companion. In proposing the health of Comp. W. Sneed P.Z., he said he hoped the day was far distant when that Companion would be absent from the Beadon Chapter, his thorough knowledge of the duties in every capacity was fully appreciated. A very enjoyable and harmonious evening was passed, Comps. D. H. Jacobs, Sharratt and Coste contributing to the harmony.

Sydney Lodge, No. 829.—The Installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, 11th July, at the Black Horse, Sidcup, Kent, when Bro. T. Smith P.M., P.P.G.P. installed Bro. At the banquet the I.P.M. presented a silver goblet, emblazoned with Masonic emblems, and the names of the subscribers engraved thereon, to their esteemed late Treasurer, Bro. G. M. E. Snow P.M. Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1288.—On Wednesday last the ceremonies of consecration and installation were rehearsed by Bro. James Terry, Prov. G.D.C. Herts, P.M. 228, 1278, 1366, and Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons; he was supported by the following brethren, who met, on this occasion, at seven o'clock:—Bros. Davies S.W., Wright J.W., H. B. Dunn Sec., J. Pigot Treas., Chant S.D., Rothschild J.D., P. Dickinson D.C., T. Goode I.G., Burr Organist, and a large attendance of members, with several visitors. The proceedings were admirably conducted by Bro. Terry, and afforded great gratification to all, many of whom had never been present at a consecration. The ceremony of installation was also carried out most satisfactorily, Bro. Pigot acting as the candidate for the chair, and investing his officers in a most efficient way. At the conclusion, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. Terry, and he was elected an honorary member of the Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Terry acknowledged the compliment which had been paid him. Bros. C. H. Webb, E. G. Legge, C. Hawksley, W. D. Dickeson, C. Mitchell, H. Beck, Robinson, W. W. Morgan, Powell and Lane were elected members. This Lodge of Instruction meets at the Finsbury Park Tavern, which is close to the station on the Great Northern and North London Railways. To those of our brethren who prefer the fresh air to the heated atmosphere of some of our Lodges, and who desire to keep up their Masonic studies, we recommend a stroll round Finsbury Park, and an hour spent in instruction, under the able preceptorship of Bro. Dickinson. They will doubtless agree with us that their time could not be spent more satisfactorily. The brethren meet each Wednesday at 8.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326.—The installation meeting of the above was held on Saturday, the 15th inst., at the Red Lion, Hampton. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. B. Sharp P.M. 168, P.M. 84, and P.Z. 84, was unanimously elected a joining member. The report of the audit meeting was read and adopted. It showed the Lodge funds were in a flourishing condition, as was also the Benevolent Fund. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. E. Gilbert S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge, and duly installed into the chair. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. received the customary salutations and then invested his officers: H. A. Dubois P.P.G.A.D.C. I.P.M., E. W. Fox S.W., R. W. Williams J.W., S. Wickens P.M. W.S., Mitchell Organist, Meyer and G. W. Stone Stewards, and Gilbert, P.G.T. Middlesex, Tyler. A ballot was taken for Mr. David Smith, and was unanimous. The newly installed W.M. initiated that gentleman into the Order in a manner highly creditable. Bro. H. A. Dubois I.P.M. then proposed, that the best thanks of the Lodge be accorded, and entered on the minutes, to Bro. F. Walters P.M., for the able manner he had performed the ceremony of installation. Two propositions for initiation were handed in. Bro. F. Walters P.M. informed the brethren that he had been appointed by the R.W. Col. Burdett P.G.M. to the office of Junior Grand Deacon of Middlesex, on the recommendation of the Acacia Lodge, No. 1309. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the garden, where a marquee had been erected. A very excellent banquet was provided by the worthy host. The W.M. gave the usual Loyal toasts. He proposed the health of the R.W. Colonel Burdett, Provincial Grand Master, and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. F. Walters, who in replying said he hoped the appointment of officers for the ensuing year would give equal satisfaction as in former years. Bro. H. A. Dubois I.P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M., he was pleased to see him occupying the chair. They had witnessed what he had done since his installation; how excellently he had rendered the ceremony of initiation, and how ably he presided over them, every office he had held he was perfect in, and he wished him a successful year of office. The W.M. thanked the brethren for the cordial manner they had drank his health, he did not wish to make long speeches, but whatever he did utter was from his heart, and said with all sincerity. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the Past Masters, spoke of their various qualifications, and in mentioning the worthy brother who was now the I.P.M., one whose name in connection with Freemasonry is a household word, one who had devoted all his energies for the good of Freemasonry, and who while in the occupation of the chair had discharged his duties faithfully, he had much pleasure, in the name of the Lodge, to present him with a jewel, which he hoped he might live long to wear. The jewel, a gold locket, with a Past Master's emblem in front and monogram on the reverse; inside is a silver plate, bearing the following inscription:—"Presented by the Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326, to Bro. H. A. Dubois P.M. 1423, P.G.D.C. Middlesex, as a slight recognition of the the efficient manner in which he officiated as W.M. for year 1875-1876, and to perpetuate a successful year of office. Bro. Dubois returned thanks for the elegant and valuable testimonial presented to him. He said it would be worn by him with pride and pleasure, as a souvenir of their kindness; he hoped to be among them for many years in the capacity of P.M. The W.M. proposed the toast of the Officers, who were all capable of performing their duties. Bro. Fox S.W. responded, he hoped the Officers appointed that day might in due course occupy the chair. Bro. H. Potter P.M. W.S. also replied. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the visitors, he strongly advocated the interchange of visits to Lodges, it produces a good feeling in Freemasonry. He had been originally a visitor to the Lodge; he became a joining member, and was proud to say he was now the Master of the Lodge. It was gratifying to see the visitors present; he would couple with it the name of Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley W.M. 1423, who responded. Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. replied for the toast of the Press. He assured the brethren that all reports in the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE should be faithfully given, and nothing would appear therein that was not in strict accordance with the tenets of the Order. The Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren, who had thoroughly enjoyed themselves, separated. The visitors were Bros. Dr. Baxter Langley W.M. 1423, G. Regan 55, J. McGill, E. Hopwood P.M. 141, S. Thorn P.M. 165, and others. The work before the Lodge was the balloting for Mr. H. E. Taylor, who was afterwards initiated into the Order, the passing of Bros. Sealy, Weston and Cooper, and raising of Bros. Hanson and Williams; the whole of the work being done in a very perfect and impressive manner. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, presided over by the W.M. On the removal of the cloth, the usual loyal toasts were given and responded to. Bro. the Hon. W. Warren Vernon, Grand Junior Warden, replied to the toast of the Grand Officers, and in the course of his remarks congratulated the Lodge upon having a brother to preside over them who was in every way worthy of their highest esteem, a brother whom he had known and respected for some years, and who had entered on his year of office with such brilliant prospects of success. The health of the Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex was then given, and responded to by the brethren in a very hearty manner. Bro. Col. Burdett, in replying to the toast, spoke of the excellent working he had witnessed, and gave the brethren some exceedingly practical suggestions as to the future comfort and wellbeing of the Lodge. Bro. Grabham, Provincial Grand Steward Middlesex, responded to the toast of the Provincial Grand Officers, and took the opportunity of acknowledging the favourable recognition which the labours of Bro. Knyvett I.P.M., and himself had received at the hands of the Provincial Grand Master. The health of the W.M. was then proposed by Bro. Knyvett, in eulogistic terms, and was received by the brethren with much enthusiasm. Bro. Archer in responding expressed the pleasure it afforded him to preside over a Lodge which had already taken so high a position in the Province. During his year of office he would do all in his power to make the Felix Lodge worthy of the position to which it had attained, and looked for the support of the brethren; he willingly gave them his best services. The health of the initiate, Bro. Taylor, was then given and responded to. The W.M. proposed the health of the Past Masters, to which Bro. Knyvett replied. Bro. Berridge P.M., Grand Steward, S.W., responded for the officers, who were complimented by the W.M. for their thoroughly good working. The Tyler's toast brought the meeting to a close, and after the enjoyment of a pleasant evening, rendered more so by the excellent singing of Bros. Sealy and Hunter, the brethren returned to town.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—A meeting of this Lodge was held at the Metropolitan Club, King's Cross, on Tuesday, 18th July. Present—Bros. H. Stiles W.M., W. M. Stiles S.W., Fenner J.W., Side S.D., Scales J.D., Leve I.G., Adams P.G.P. Preceptor; and Bros. Read, Carter, Cox, Williams, Ormiston, Little, &c. The Lodge was opened in due form, and minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation rehearsed. 1st, 2nd and 3rd sections of first lecture were worked by Bro. Adams, Preceptor. Bro. W. M. Stiles elected W.M. for ensuing week. A cordial vote of thanks was given to the W.M., Bro. Henry Stiles, for his able and efficient conduct in the chair for the first time, the same to be recorded on the minutes.

Cranbourne Lodge, No. 1580.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Tuesday, the 18th inst., at the Red Lion Hotel, Hatfield. Upon the Lodge being opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Webb was raised to the sublime degree, the W.M. performing the solemn ceremony with his wonted impressiveness. We have seldom, indeed, seen it better performed. Bro. Thody, who was also to have had this degree conferred upon him, was unfortunately absent, having fallen from his horse and sustained some injury. The W.M., too, we regret, was in great pain during the whole of the meeting, as he had also sustained some injury to his leg. But in spite of this he fulfilled his arduous duty, as we have said, most admirably. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to dinner, the W.M. presiding. The usual toasts were given from the chair, and we cannot too highly commend the brevity and excellence of the Chairman's prefatory remarks in each case. The result was one of the most enjoyable evenings we remember, in the course of a pretty long experience, to have spent. All was perfect harmony throughout, and the meeing was more like that of a family than any we have yet attended. We trust the Cranbourne has a long and prosperous future before it, and if later occupants of the chair will only follow the splendid example of Bro. Bowyer, the success of the Lodge will be secured beyond all possibility of question. The Visitors were Bros. A. C. Fetch Prov. G.R. Herts, E. T. Edwards, J. Constable, Joseph Stock, W. G. Jennings, and others.

The tenacity of prejudice has lately once more been evidenced by the successful opposition offered in one of the most influential Prussian Lodges to the admission of Jews. While at Bradford a Lodge chiefly composed of members professing Christianity, elected a Jew as their chaplain, another Lodge at Berlin—the Three Globes—declare that a Jew is ineligible, were it even for the office of Tyler. The principal ground on which the existence of Freemasonry can be vindicated is its religious neutrality. Remove this and there is no reason why any individual should join the Craft. A thousand channels of charity are open to him apart from those pointed out by Masonry, and the aids to leading a useful moral life are as plentiful outside the Masonic temple as within it. It is principally to join those in brotherly love whom the difference in race and creed has a tendency to separate that Masonry has been founded. This is its chief merit. It is by girdling the globe with a tie of fraternity that it has won the attachment of so many that love progress and goodness and the respect of so many more. Sever this tie and you have cut through its vital nerve. Exclude at Berlin Jews, and there is no reason why you should not keep out Christians at Constantinople, and Christians and Moslems at Pekin. Yet this is what the Berlin Lodge has done. It is poisoning the stream at its fountain head. The unity of the Craft is destroyed. How is it that English Masons look on with indifference at this heresy? How is it that no Lodge is public-spirited enough to protest against this apostacy, to rouse the other Lodges here, in America and on the Continent, to remonstrate against the suicidal conduct of the German Lodge, and to cut off all fellowship with it, should it after due warning still persevere in its evil way? Were such an attempt made, even German Lodges would join in the condemnation; for they must much more sensibly feel the disgrace brought upon the Craft through one in their midst than those of other countries. The time for such a movement has come. Never has liberalism felt so much the necessity of close union, irrespective of race and creed, than now, when ultramontanism levels at it its most deadly shafts.—Jewish Chronicle.

ACROSTIC LINES.

By George W. Wheeler.

Sir Knights of the Cyrene Commandery,
In Faith and Hope I greet you now once more,
Returning my best thanks for making me

Knight of your honoured body, Thirty-four.
No Masonic title that now I bear
Is more highly, dearly prized by me;
Granted on Sir A. M. Rambo's prayer,
Honorary certificate you sent to me.
To-night I feel again impelled to write,

And wish each and every one God speed;

My spirit gladly joins with yours to-night,

Returning thanks to Him who helps in time of need.
Atlantic waves, in vain you dash and roll—
Miles of ocean and land may lay between,
But soul can hold communion still with soul,
O'er sea and land, whate'er may intervene,

Commend me now to all Knights Templar true!
Your Centennial festival who grace—
Right glad my heart could I have been with you,
Encamped e'en in the most desert place.
Noble the object you now celebrate—
Enlightened reason must of it approve.

Centennary of a nation young but great,
One that the truly wise and good may love!
My thoughts and sympathies are with the free,
My prayers for your prosperity arise.
America, the Nations look to thee—
Nor need they look with their averted eyes.
Dear are thy hero's names in every land—
England respects and honours all your brave,
Recounts the honours of that glorious band,
Yearning their country's liberties to save.

For them weave a crown of laurels still,
Regard them as earth's noblest, bravest sons,
Of their bright deeds we feel no jealous thrill,
Making them stand by our own undying ones.

Gladly, as Templars, we endorse these views,
Embrace this opportunity to put them forth,
Only our feeble and imperfect Muse
Regrets its inability to show their worth;
Gladly as Templars your Fraternal band
Extends the hand of friendship to a brother,

Welcome him to every tent within the land.

With no less zest England extends to you another.
Henceforth all fears and jealousies forget,
Each anxious to fulfil a brother's part,
Each willing to improve the other's lot,
Loving each other with a faithful heart,
Even as I now tender love to each of you,
Regretting much that I must say adieu.

Glasgow, Scotland, May 1876.

MASONIC EDUCATION.

THAT Masonry educates and makes its members men among men no one will doubt who is acquainted with its power. Indeed, it is difficult for any class of minds to pass through its portals without drinking in more or less of its mystic waters. In its very vestibule men are made to reflect. Their minds are brought in contact with the laws of preparation—the emblems of reception—the forms of recognition—the obligations of responsibility, and the lectures of general Masonic intelligence, through all of which few can pass without receiving those impressions of mental and moral, social and relative obligations which have given ubiquity to the Mystic Order and made it the greatest—because it is the strongest fraternal institution on the face of the globe.

The world should not understand that this fraternal feeling is sectarian or narrow or selfish—for if it were any of these it would be at once unmasonic—for true Masonry is not only intelligently honourable, but it is, both in its spirit and power, wholly cosmopolitan in all its workings and charity.

Hence a selfish Mason, and there are such, is a living paradox in the mystic Brotherhood whose personal presence adds nothing to the high integrity of the meeting of the Craft, as his mystic relationship makes nothing for the honour of the institution.

As a college of manly intelligence and substantial virtue, the Masonic student, when he is a proper candidate, and is intelligently initiated into its mysteries, receives at each step of his advancement that knowledge of principle which he knows will help, aid and assist him in the building up of his manhood; and it is only where their principles are neglected or forgotten that individual failures become visible. It is true, that some men will never make themselves true or intelligent Masons, no matter how many degrees they are dragged through. They from the beginning "go it blind," and they fail to comprehend the elevating and advancing character of the institution—consequently they never grow into a living Masonic temple.

We meet some of these men in our canvassing travels. They take no Masonic paper, read no Masonic literature, and in the general way it may be frankly said, that the light that is in them is only darkness. Some of them have money to spend for unmasonic beverages, while others patronise every sort of a paper save a Masonic.

That such men fall behind in the spirit and intelligence and enterprise of Masonic life is not strange—for they have none of the life of the Mystic Tie within them. Their Masonic education is but primary, and yet, full of content, as they are of ignorance, they only have a name to live while they are dead.

To let these brethren alone, "to die in their nests," would be a wrong committed on the Fraternity itself, and therefore we write thus plainly, hoping that in some way we may stir them from their lethargy and bring them within the range of some Masonic light. Our Masonic light. Our Masonic journals, to a large extent, are the living educators of the age—their liberal patronage, in the present numerical increase of the Craft, has grown to be imperious, if we would not fall by the voluntary ignorance of our membership.

To such of our Brethren who have reflected upon this subject, it is not necessary for us to say a word. They see the danger, and frequently speak of it with deep concern, and the remark is frequently made that we have too many Lodges, and are making too many Masons, such as they are. Whether these allegations are true or not, they are often made, and we may well inquire into their validity in time, lest the near future should give us trouble, such as but few have ever dreamed of as being possible.

The facilities of the age, in connection with the "art preservation of all arts," are enabling some men to officiate and to administer obligations in a manner that even Grand Lodges may well look after, if they desire to hold and preserve, immaculate, the ancient prestige of the Mystic Order.

For more than one hundred and fifty years the work of the Craft has been carried on, in the order and forms of its venerable antiquity, in this country, until it has grown stronger and more numerous in these United States than it is in any other portion of the globe.

Of all this, as Masons, we may well feel proud. And yet our great prosperity places us under increased obligations of duty and carefulness. Many of our initiates are young men—many of them young men of culture, and, we trust, of well timed ambition. They have come in among us to learn what Masonry is, and to develope in themselves its time honoured principles. They look around them to see what may be seen, and of course stand ready to receive instruction from almost any one of the Fraternity who may offer it. They should have wise instructors and safe advisers. Good examples should be set before them in the peace and harmony of our Lodges, and proper books and periodicals should be placed in their hands, in some way, if we wish to see their true and proper development.—Masonic Advocate.

A PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF RECONCILIATION.

WE are pleased beyond measure with what passed at the recent meeting, at Huddersfield, of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire. There had not been wanting evidence that a fresh campaign in connection with the Boys' School was contemplated by some of our brethren of that wealthy and influential Province. A new pamphlet had been talked about, and we began to think a fight à outrance was imminent between the friends and opponents of the School management, and that too in broiling summer weather, when the bare idea of violent exertion, whether mental or physical, is enough to frighten people into an apoplexy. The calamity has been happily averted. Those who were anxious to keep the ball of discord rolling for, at all events, another six or twelve months, in the belief that by doing so they would be most likely to promote the blessings of peace, will not have the opportunity vouchsafed them of proving the wisdom of their good intentions. The pamphlet will be turned to a far better purpose than that of perpetuating the practice, so recently indulged in by many, of "crimination and recrimination." It will go the way of other stale and unprofitable literature, and may probably be used for culinary purposes, or for the decoration of West Yorkshire butter, or West Yorkshire hams. The Provincial Grand Lodge will be no longer a scene of anxious or angry disputation, but a Lodge of Perfect Harmony, in which the members, without exception, will zealously emulate each other in the fulfilment of charity in the widest acceptation of the word. The battle of the pamphlets, and the havoc it momentarily created among the kindlier feelings of Craftsmen, will be utterly forgotten. One ray of hope will henceforth illumine the minds of all, the hope that in the future, as in the past, West Yorkshire, and the other generous supporters of the Boys' School, will be found strenuously co-operating in its behalf, with the view of making it, if possible, a greater success than it is. A kind of millennium—let us hope, in perpetuity—will succeed the recent state of turmoil, and goodfellowship will henceforth reign alone.

We rejoice at the fortunate turn events have taken, at the happy picture we have just drawn, which will occupy the place of the dismal and disheartening scenes we had so much reason to forbode. And to whom are we indebted for the bright change that has come o'er the spirit of our dream? Last week we published a long and vigorous letter from a worthy and generally-esteemed member of our Craft, which left no doubt in our minds that another season of strife was in store for us. Almost at the very time of writing the few remarks we prefixed to it, another, and equally high-minded brother, enjoying almost the highest rank it is in the power of his Provincial Grand Master to bestow, and holding also the most important municipal office his fellow-townsmen could confer upon him, our respected Bro. Gill, Provincial Grand Senior Warden for West Yorkshire, and Mayor of Wakefield, rose in his place in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, and in terms of simple eloquence invited the Provincial Grand Junior Warden, Bro. Booth, to withdraw his contemplated motion respecting the proceedings of the last Quarterly Court of the Boys' School. Bro. Gill, in doing this, is reported to have said that "he had listened with much pain to the bickerings at these meetings on this Boys' School subject. He had been to London, in compliance with the request of Prov. Grand Lodge, and was willing to go a dozen times if good could come, but his belief was that such would not be the case. From our contributions we have shown our interest in this school, but by our action we are losing our force and influence." And again: "If any wrong exists in the internal arrangements of the school, let complaint be made in regular order, in all the friendliness of Masonic feeling, and so put an end to all this crimination and recrimination." This was a manly and generous appeal, and was earnestly supported by Bro. Bentley Shaw, P.P.D.G.M., in a few telling sentences, as well as by Sir Henry Edwards, the Provincial Grand Master, who said he was anxious to receive the cooperation of all good workers on behalf of this charity, and was afraid this would not be obtained if the motion were pressed. Thereupon Bro. Booth, very properly disclaiming all personal feelings in the matter, withdrew his motion, and Provincial Grand Lodge closed in perfect harmony. This is pretty well what we counselled last week. All are now agreed, to use Bro. Gill's own words, to "let what has passed be passed." West Yorkshire, whose interest—to its credit be it proclaimed—has never really been interrupted, will again cooperate, as of yore, in furthering, to the utmost of its ability, the interests of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Even during the progress of the squabble it contributed liberally, both at last year's Festival and at this. But it is in the nature of things that the full effect of its ability to render valuable help should not have been felt on either of these occasions. It is one of our wealthiest and most considerable Provinces. It has invariably stood firm to its Masonic principles, and has done its duty magnificently. It has just resolved unanimously to enter upon a further term of active labour in behalf of our Charitable Institutions. It has nobly resolved to stamp out any lingering soreness it may feel at the result of the recent differences. This resolution it has undertaken at the instance of P.G.S.W. Gill, seconded by P.P.D.G.M. Bentley Shaw and P.G.M. Sir Henry Edwards. Henceforth, then, we repeat, there will be perfectly harmonious cooperation in the cause of the Boys', as of our other Institutions, among all the Provinces, and we have to thank, and do hereby thank, Bro. Gill, who took the initiative, and Bros. Bentley Shaw and Sir Henry Edwards, who so heartily seconded him, that this consummation, devoutly to be wished, has been so satisfactorily attained. May West Yorkshire brethren always be able to boast such shining lights to guide them in threading difficult and dangerous passes!

ANOTHER THEORY ABOUT OUR INSTITUTIONS.

WERE our various charitable institutions as richly endowed as some of the collegiate and scholastic institutions of England, there would be a certain show of reason in the occasional outcry that is raised against the heavy annual demands made throughout the Craft towards their support. In such a case, our Anniversary Festivals would be occasions for hearty congratulation over the prosperity of our Charities. We should hear, no doubt, a great deal said as to the zeal and ability of the officials; in the case of the two schools, about the excellent results of our educational system, as evidenced by the knowledge and discipline of present, and the success, in after life, of former pupils; and, generally, much in praise of former generations of brethren, to whose wise care and liberal provision we were indebted for the establishment of these same Charities. Little, however, would be said about the necessity for subscriptions. Stewards, on these happy occasions, might be appointed, and we imagine they would fulfil their duties with diligence and successfully; but, compared with what it is now, the office would be a sinecure. No subscriptions being required, no canvass would be necessary. The Institutions being richly endowed, would, of course, enjoy large permanent incomes, sufficient, under proper management and control, to meet all possible and probable expenditure. This would be very gratifying, and none would rejoice more than ourselves were this picture a reality. Unfortunately, our Charities are not in the possession of rich endowments; in the case of one of them, there is hardly any endowment whatever. Their permanent incomes, therefore, are utterly inadequate to meet the demands made upon their resources. Our three Institutions, indeed, are in the same position as many other similar institutions. They lead a hand-to-mouth life. They have, perhaps, one or two comfortable little nest-eggs, which serve as a kind of nucleus round which to collect a sufficient amount of means. But there is no certainty they will succeed in collecting the wherewithal to defray the year's expenditure. There is, then, at the present time, an absolute necessity that, with each recurring year, the plan of raising a large sum by subscription be followed. The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution is committed to an expenditure, in the way of annuities alone, of some eight thousand pounds per annum. Its permanent income, comprising the interest on invested moneys, and the annual subscriptions from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter, is a little in excess of two thousand pounds. Taking the Girls' School at its present strength, the annual outlay must exceed £6,000, the income, from investments and Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter contributions being about one-third. In the case of the Boys' School, there are one hundred and eighty pupils, but in the way of investments, nothing appreciable in amount. Consequently, the grants from Grand Lodge and Grand Chapter are the only means on which its Governing Body can rely. All else that is required for the maintenance and education of the pupils, and for expenses of office, must be drawn annually from the pockets of Craftsmen. All this while we are using the most strenuous efforts to enlarge the scope of these Institutions. We have increased the number of our male and female annuitants. We have raised the number of pupils in the Boys' School, and, only a few months since, the General Court of the Girls wisely resolved to extend the existing school premises, with a view to enlarging the school to over 200 pupils. While, then, the additions to reserve funds are comparatively of little or no account, we are contracting very heavy additional obligations, and yet there are brethren unwise enough to proclaim that our Charities are not in need of funds! Something of this kind happened, indeed, quite recently, at the Provincial Grand Lodge of Hertfordshire. Bro. Lowthin, P.G.S.W., proposed a modest donation to the Girls' School of twenty guineas, and the proposition was carried, but Bro. Lambert raised his voice against the motion. He is reported to have said: "Have the brethren considered the vast amount of funded property the Institution possesses? I understand they want to increase the size of the buildings, and increase the number of girls received, and when they have got them, they will not be able to spend their income." [N.B.—The italics are ours.] We have not the pleasure of Bro. Lambert's acquaintance. We do not doubt he is a most excellent and well-intentioned brother, while it is evident that, as far as any influence he may be able to exercise over the minds of his Hertfordshire brethren, he is, fortunately, quite harmless. We will be at the pains of asking Bro. Lambert this very pertinent question. He says he understands that even when the School is enlarged it will be impossible to spend its income. We may fairly assume, from the manner of this statement, that Bro. Lambert has derived any knowledge he may possess of the subject from foreign sources, that, in other words, his statement is not based on his own knowledge. We ask, then, has Bro. Lambert examined the published accounts of the Girls' School? Has he noted whence chiefly is derived its income? Taking the figures, as given by Bro. Clabon at the last Quarterly Court of the Institution, we find "the vast amount of funded property" it possesses, was stated at £42,000. We admit that £42,000, if not a vast amount, is certainly a very handsome sum; but even at 5 per cent. per annum, which is in excess of the actual interest received, the income would only reach £2,100, or, it may be, one-third of the expenditure which the School is bound to incur. The School is about to be enlarged at a very considerable outlay. For this purpose, a proportionate demand will have to be made upon the invested funds, and this, of course, will reduce the permanent income; but, says Bro. Lambert, in effect, even when the enlargement has taken place, "they will not be able to spend their income." This, we admit, is a contingency which must not be lost sight of, but it is grounds wholly different from Brother Lambert's view. If, as is stated in the report we have before us of the Prov. Grand Lodge Herts meeting, the outlay amount to £42,000, it will just absorb the investments of the Institution, and they—we presume, the Governing body is intended—"will not be able to spend their income," because there will be no income derived from this source to spend. We say it in no unfriendly spirit, but when a brother takes upon himself the office of critic, he should be at the pains to acquire just some little knowledge of the subject he intends criticising. Had Bro. Lambert fulfilled his duty properly, that is, had he first of all studied the published reports of the Girls' School, issued annually and upon proper authority, he would have learnt, in five minutes, how much of the school income was permanent, and to what extent it was dependent for support on the beneficence of the Craft. We should all of us like to see our Masonic Institutions as well furnished with endowments as are most of the Colleges at Oxford and Cambridge, very many of our public schools, and a great number of our public institutions. This, however, is, unfortunately, not the case. The buildings are ours, and in the case of two out of the three Charities, there is, at present, a fair amount of money invested, but the bulk of the funds necessary to maintain them at their existing strength and free from debt must be raised annually from the pockets of the Craft. The sum thus raised is very considerable, amounting, for this year, to somewhere about £30,000; but we do not think the demand thus made is excessive, whether we take into account the service to which the money is devoted, or the body from which it is gathered. The former is in the highest degree praiseworthy, the latter bears the strain upon its resources with genuine equanimity. It is ready, indeed, to do more, if more is needed. And this will happen if we go on increasing the number of our annuitants and scholars, as latterly we have been doing. Until, as we have pointed out, each institution has a permanent income large enough to cover its expenditure, these annual calls upon the goodwill of the brotherhood must be made, or we shall fail to carry out the obligations we have contracted. We have taken upon ourselves certain heavy responsibilities, and it is imperative, for the honour of Freemasonry, that these responsibilities be fully discharged. We feel justified, under these circumstances, in urging upon Bro. Lambert and other Craftsmen who may have brought themselves to similar erroneous conclusions respecting the needs of our Charities, think well before objecting to the grant of money to one or other of them. Our Charities, we rejoice to say, are very liberally supported, but they are by no means liberally endowed. They will experience no difficulty in usefully appropriating any moneys that may be bestowed upon them. The demands upon their resources are incessant, as well as heavy, and having in view their probable enlargement as years roll on, these demands must become heavier in the same proportion. Any who may feel disposed to withhold their contributions on the ground that the existing provision is already more than enough, will be omitting a graceful act, for reasons which will not bear examination. Let them remember, too, that great as have been the successes of the various Boards of Stewards during the last two or three years, annual subscriptions are apt to fluctuate. They may go on increasing by an arithmetical or any other progression, but they may also go on diminishing. A few years hence the country may be less prosperous. It behoves, therefore, all good and true Masons to use every exertion in behalf of our Charities now and always. Then, if less prosperous times come, and the donations are less considerable, we may at least have the consolation of knowing that our old folks and our orphans will not be wholly without provision.

Bro. Rev. J. H. Smith, of the Old College, Dulwich, has been appointed Honorary Chaplain to the Loriners' Company.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB.

WE congratulate the Craft on the establishment of this institution in London, the head quarters of Masonry. We have long felt the need of it; it has been our frequent pleasure to receive a brother just arrived on a trip from some distant province, who has been anxious to visit London Lodges, to make the acquaintance of prominent brethren, or to discuss Masonic topics with men of town experience—in want, in short, of a rendezvous where genial faces and ready introductions might be found, without rushing about and putting his one or two town friends (perhaps just then immersed in business) to too much trouble. It is true, there is Freemasons' Hall, with the adjoining tavern, but the nature of his requirements would not authorise him to take up the valuable time of the hard worked officials at the one, whilst no satisfaction whatever was to be derived from a visit to the other. Where could we take him? If a member of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, he would find always a courteous reception at Golden Square; but even there, "time is money," and unless his objects were definite, he could hardly expect to meet at first sight a volunteer mentor and cicerone. Now all will be made easy for him and for us. He will become a country member of our Club, at a most moderate subscription. If he come to town without his family, as is so frequently the case, he will take a room at some good hotel in the centre of the city, and then go to his Club. There every provision is made for his comfort, every attention paid to his wants, full information on the Order forthcoming, and, in all probability, kindred spirits are to be found, bound on similar errands, and appreciative of his acquaintance. Lodges will soon be established there, and when the new temple, which we hear is projected, is established adjoining, the place will be to all intents and purposes the real head quarters of London Craft Masonry; always excepting the Grand Lodge, with its Committees, which may not, however, have the same immediate interest for our typical Provincial brother as the general undercurrent of the life of the Order, to be met with at the Club and in private Lodges, would. Should he not have become a member, then all the satisfaction will be ours in introducing him as a visitor; in giving him there, perhaps, as good, or better, a little luncheon, or recherché dinner, as can be had at any Club in London, and in introducing him to congenial minds, with the least possible trouble to ourselves.

We have a suggestion to make for the consideration of the Committee. In clubs established in our Colonies and the East, there is a generous rule constituting all officers of Her Majesty's Service who may visit the place, members of the club pro tem; it is a rule which is highly valued, and which has been found to work with equal satisfaction for both sides. We have ourselves had the great pleasure, at Hong Kong and elsewhere, to come under this category, and have been saved from the discomforts of hotel life with its exorbitant overcharges in consequence, besides making many valuable acquaintances which might not otherwise have come in our way. Now would not something of this kind be graceful and applicable here? We have doubtless many brethren abroad, without friends in England, bachelors, who may be coming home for a spell on furlough or business. To keep up a permanent subscription for years, as "country members," on the chance of their some day visiting the "old country," would be unreasonable to exact. Why not allow a brother so situated, on being introduced by a member, to enjoy the privileges of temporary membership, say for two weeks, with the option of taking it up permanently at the end of that period? If such a rule could be established, and be made generally known abroad, we believe that, in the course of time, it would be found to act most beneficially, to mutual advantage; that it would probably prove to have contributed appreciably to the flourishing permanence of the concern. Most brethren thus benefited would not hesitate to pay the fee and join permanently. But to attract them from alternative places, the additional incentive of a generous and fraternal reception, on their own merits as brethren from abroad, to a social Masonic point of réunion, would go very far. Many a brother has aimlessly joined the "Thatched House," the "Temple" and other Clubs, because a friend happened to take him there. Let him come to our Club as a right, and he will join that. The privilege should of course not depend simply upon the production of a Masonic certificate, but should be guaranteed by the personal introduction of a member, in like manner as though he were proposed for joining.

To the brethren abroad who may read these pages (of whom we have a goodly number on our subscription list), we are happy to be able personally to testify to the excellence in management and convenience of which the Club gives promise. Not all of us can get into "Boodles'" or "The Rag and Famish," and of Clubs which stand in the second and third row we expect that, in point of comfort, this will be second to none.

UNITED GRAND ORIENT OF BRAZIL.

WE are indebted to the pages of le Monde Maçonnique for the following excerpt from le Bulletin du Grand Orient Uni of Brazil, which cannot fail to be interesting to our readers, and especially to those among them who may be members of the A. and A. Scotch Rite.

On the 22nd November, the Grand Orient authorised the constitution of a new Lodge of the rite of Schroeder, under the title "Zur Eintracht," in the Orient of Porto-Alegre, Province of Rio Grande do Sul. This Lodge is composed of German brethren, who being enabled to work in their own style, have already manifested an ardent resolution to combat intolerance wherever it presents itself, and put in practice the doctrines which form the glory of our Institution.

Accepting all recognised rites, we point to another German Symbolical Lodge, in the Orient of Joinville, Province of St. Catherine, bearing the title of "Amizade ao Cruzeiro do Sul (Amitié, à la Croix du Sud), and a Lodge of the York Rite, called the Washington Lodge, Orient of St. Barbe, Province of St. Paul, composed of American brethren, who work in the English language.

From September to December, nine Lodges and five Chapters have been established, and the United Grand Orient of Brazil now comprises 185 Lodges, 107 Chapters, five superior Lodges, one Supreme Council, and Grand Orient, or in all 299 Lodges.

The correspondence department contains a registered translation of the views interchanged between the Supreme Council of France, and that of the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of America, on the subject of the conflict of jurisdiction in the Sandwich Islands, which owes its rise to the decision arrived at by the Congress of Lausanne, and which, unhappily, has resulted in the rupture of the relations existing between the two bodies.

The Supreme Councils of Switzerland, Belgium, and Scotland have confirmed the recognition, as a regular, legitimate, and legally-constituted body, of the United Orient, and have interchanged representatives with it.

In the Foreign Review we note minutely all the most important events in Masonry which come within our knowledge by means of the published organs of Masonic opinion.

The Congress of Lausanne deserves especial attention as an event which for some time past has aroused the curiosity of a great number of our brethren. We give, from documents we have received, the acts of that assembly, in which were represented sundry Supreme Councils of the Scotch Rite. We abstain altogether from formulating any opinion as to the practical results of the Congress, in order to avoid prejudicing in any way the resolution our Grand Order must take anent the deliberations adopted towards itself. We shall assert, however, that the conflicting claims over the Sandwich Islands have been determined hastily, and in a manner quite opposed to the right for a long time past vested in all Masonic powers, namely, that of founding Lodges in countries where there is no Supreme Body. In fact the delegates of the eleven Supreme Councils which met at Lausanne, have resolved an important question which came not within their competence to settle, and, without hearing one of the parties interested, thus inaugurating a new system of Masonic law entirely opposed to established usage. It seems to us that the Congress, when erecting a tribunal for the purpose of determining issues that might arise between confederate bodies, would have exhibited greater wisdom and sounder sense had it referred to that tribunal the question in dispute between the two Supreme Councils of France and Charleston. Instead, however, of re-establishing harmonious and fraternal feeling in the bosom of our Institution, the Congress of Lausanne has raised its voice in opposition, and has increased the discord already existing between certain Councils of the Scotch Rite.

For ourselves, we anticipate the Supreme Council of Switzerland, which is the executive body of the Confederation, in defining our position towards other bodies of the Scotch Rite, will take into consideration the resolution arrived at by the Congress as to the legality and legitimacy of our Orient. The Supreme Council of France in furnishing the list of regular Supreme Councils declares, in a circular letter addressed to the Lodges within its jurisdiction, that Brazil will be added to the list when certain difficulties of detail have been removed. As regards the recognition of the Supreme Council of the Old Scottish Rite in Brazil, La Vérité informs us a determination has been arrived at which in due course will be communicated to those interested by the Supreme Council of Switzerland. These are the only data we possess thus far on the subject.

If the difficulties to which the Supreme Council of France refers, arise from our peculiar Constitution, which we are aware is very far from professing the Scotch Rite in all its purity, such as it is laid down by the Grand Constitutions of 1786, revised by the Congress, we note that among the regular Supreme Councils there are bodies whose Constitution differs but little from our own. There are among them indeed certain, which have altered and reformed even more than we have, what are called the fundamental laws of the Scotch Rite. If our exclusion from the Confederacy is due to the existence of an irregular Masonic body in our country, this hypothesis, although the most admissible—for the Supreme Council for Switzerland should be the organ of the Congress with the interested parties—must give rise to comments far from favourable to the powers represented in the assembly at Lausanne, if they sustain the acts of their delegates. In certain countries, such as Italy, the Argentine Republic, and the United States of Columbia, there existed more than one body claiming to represent the Scotch Rite, and yet the Congress has unhesitatingly designated the bodies it holds to be regular in these countries.

As the United Grand Orient and Supreme Council of Brazil maintains official relations with most of the Supreme Councils represented at the Congress, one of them having even besought us to recognise it, it is difficult to understand how the same assembly has unanimously—all its decisions were unanimous—called in question our legitimate rights, long since recognised by nearly all the powers—such as the Supreme Councils of Belgium, Colon, Hungary, Portugal, Switzerland, Greece—which sent delegates. Add to this, that we were twice formally invited to take part in the assembly, and that the plans it was intended should be discussed were submitted for our consideration, thus apparently recognising a right. However, a happy inspiration induced us not to send a representative to the Congress, which, in order to be logical, must have denied entrance to the delegate of a body whose legitimacy it had called in question. Thus, then, in order to disperse the darkness which surrounds us, we must wait till the Executive of the Confederacy enlightens us as to the nature of Scotch Freemasonry in Brazil. We will then fully discuss the question.

Firmly resolved to maintain friendly relations with the regular Masonic powers of the world, be they of what rite they may, so long as its own dignity is not directly assailed, the United Grand Orient of Brazil is anxious the deliberations of the Lausanne Congress may not be productive of an effect contrary to its desires, by dividing Freemasonry into opposite camps, and giving the world the sad spectacle of dissensions originating out of questions of secondary importance and of mere formality. The division of a universal institution into associations equal in point of number to the rites they severally follow, and the forms of government they have severally adopted, would be attended with serious results to Freemasonry and the principles of liberty and toleration which are its peculiar appanage. If our duty is to combat intolerance, in whatever form it manifests itself, we must not exclude from the Masonic community those bodies which do not hold the same views as ourselves on matters possessing an interest purely administrative. No inconvenience will arise to mankind because a power regulates itself in accordance with certain laws more or less adapted to the manners and customs of the countries in which it exercises its functions. To seek to establish uniformity of view in the practice of laws in no way affecting the essence of the constitution, that were a Utopian idea, in this age when Freemasonry cannot venture to abandon its duty of keeping pace with the progress of civilisation.

THE LONDON MASONIC CLUB

SITUATED in commodious premises, at No. 101 Queen Victoria Street, City, was inaugurated last Wednesday evening, by a banquet, under the auspices of the Committee, presided over by Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M. The cuisine showed that the resources of the establishment are of a high order, being exquisitely cooked and served; the wines of the choicest brands. Songs and music by skilled artistes diversified the Loyal and Masonic toasts which followed. The health of the noble chairman was proposed by Bro. George C. Boor (in the absence of the chairman of the Committee). He thanked him heartily for taking the chair, and assured the members that the kind aid and countenance of his Lordship had had no small share in promoting the success of this undertaking. The fact of his presiding there not only evinced his Masonic courtesy, but showed also that the thoughts of his heart were bound up with Masonic interests. The formation of the Club had not been unattended by difficulty, but on Lord Skelmersdale's adhesion and support being secured, difficulties had been successfully overcome. To that was due the roll of influential names he had now before him. The chairman tendered his thanks for the enthusiasm which the toast evoked, and expressed the pleasure the occasion afforded him, notwithstanding that some of his Masonic duties and routine he found heavy and difficult. When H.R.H. appointed him to the post he held in Masonry, he forgot to provide him with two bodies. He really found there would have been ample work for both. He then proposed, "Success to the London Masonic Club," remarking that it would tend to promote the spread of that excellent idea, the withdrawal of Lodges from Taverns into edifices specially intended for the Craft. This idea had been successfully inculcated in Lancashire, and action taken upon it in Liverpool. Thus only they could be certain of being well catered for. Not that that consideration should be a too prominent one, for he held, for his part, that where a sum of £70 or £80, for instance, was expended by a Lodge at a single banquet, it was tantamount to a robbery of the Craft. Their energies should be reserved above all for the sacred cause of charity.

Bro. J. K. Stead, in reply, expatiated upon the unavoidable difficulties the Committee had encountered, and the kind response and support which had enabled them to fight the battle, with especial reference to the interest taken by the Chairman.

Bro. Langton, Chairman of the Sub-Committee, explained the unavoidable absence of Lords Limerick and Donoughmore, also of Sir Frederick Perkins, Sir Francis Truscott, John Hervey, Alderman Nottage, Alderman Hadley, Captain David Sewell, ex-Lord Mayor Stone, and others.

The Chairman coupled the "Corporation of London," in a highly complimentary strain with the name of Bro. J. B. Monckton (Chairman of the Board of General Purposes), who, in the course of his reply, stated that he had two other invitations to dine that evening—one with the Lord Mayor of London, and one with the Lord Mayor of Dublin—but he stood to the Craft, which, the longer he lived the better he loved.

"The Committee" was then proposed. Bro. Langton suitably acknowledged the toast, and stated that their labours had resulted in the acquisition of about one thousand members. He added that it was their hope and desire shortly to be able to purchase an adjoining site for the erection of a Masonic Temple; a structure worthy of the Lodges of so great a city, which should accommodate them in every way, and obviate the necessity of meeting at places of public entertainment. He sat down amid much applause.

Bro. Frederick Binckes responded for the "Charities," and Bro. Samuel Wright for the "Visitors." Amongst other known brethren present were Bros. Terry, Little, Captain Philips, Hyde Pullen, Hyde Clarke, Dr. Sterling, Colonel Drage, Driver, Cooke, Thorne, Lane, Middleton, Percival, Fountain and Langton Jones. Also Bros. R. D. Stead and Rev. W. H. Blorsome.

We enjoyed the opportunity of inspecting the establishment, and believe it to be well fitted in all respects for the purposes in view. Good dining room, billiard room, strangers' room, news and lounge room, with a thoroughly fitted modern kitchen, to whose excellence the dinner bore ample witness; and as Manager our well known and skillful brother George States, of City Company and Mansion House catering fame.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—These highly efficient remedies should be at once resorted to on the first appearance of febrile or bowel complaints. It is well known that during the heats of summer and early autumn, the mucous membrane of the alimentary canal is peculiarly liable to become irritated and inflamed, and then dysentery, diarrhœa, cramps, English cholera, and various other complaints of that nature are very frequent. To remedy these painful and dangerous diseases, Holloway's Ointment should be thoroughly rubbed into the surface of the stomach and bowels, and it will be found that as soon as it penetrates the skin that the vomiting and nausea will abate, the cramps and pain disappear, and all other symptoms quickly subside.

HAVING expressed our regret that no allusion is made to the Revival in 1717, of Freemasonry, and the establishment of that Grand Lodge of Speculative Freemasons, from which all other Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges established since then have sprung, we pass now to a more detailed notice of the contents of the Introduction. The sketch begins with a copy of the Deputation issued by the Duke of Norfolk G.M., on 5th June 1730, to Daniel Coxe Esq., to be Provincial Grand Master of the "Provinces of New York, New Jersey, and Pensilvania in America." This, as our readers may remember, was inserted in the Memorial Volume of the Dedication of the new Masonic Temple at Philadelphia, in 1874. It is appropriately given here as marking the introduction of a regular Masonic government into the then Province of New York, though there is no evidence to show that Bro. Coxe ever exercised any of the prerogatives conferred upon him by this important instrument. We have not space to give the whole of the "Deputation," but an outline of its contents seems desirable. In the preamble it is stated that "whereas, application has been made to us by our Right Worshipful and well-beloved Brother, Daniel Coxe, of New Jersey, Esq., and by several other brethren, Free and Accepted Masons, residing, and about to reside, in the said Province of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, that we would be pleased to nominate and appoint a Provincial Grand Master of the said Provinces," the said Daniel Coxe is "nominated, ordained, constituted, and appointed Provincial Grand Master of the said Provinces, with full power to appoint his Deputy Grand Master and Grand Wardens for the space of two years from the feast of St. John the Baptist now next ensuing." After this time, the brethren residing, or who may hereafter reside, in the said Provinces, shall have the power of electing "every other year on the feast of St. John the Baptist," a Provincial Grand Master, who shall enjoy similar powers. The Provincial Grand Master is further empowered to constitute the brethren residing in the said Provinces "into one or more regular Lodge or Lodges, as he shall think fit, and as often as occasion shall require." He is to see that all members of such Lodge or Lodges have been regularly made Masons, and that they observe the Regulations contained in the Book of Constitutions, and such other Rules and Regulations as from time to time may be transmitted by the Grand Master or his Deputy. He or his Deputy is to send "annually an account in writing of the number of Lodges so constituted, with the names of the several members of each particular Lodge, together with such other matters or things as" may be thought "fit to be communicated for the prosperity of the Craft." He is further to ensure the observance of the feast of St. John the Evangelist, and on that occasion especially, as well as at all Quarterly Communications, to "recommend a General Charity to be established for the relief of poor brethren of the said Province." Such are the leading features of this important instrument, a copy of which was furnished to the New Jersey Committee by our late Grand Secretary, Bro. Wm. Gray Clarke, and which is universally accepted among our Pennsylvanian brethren of to-day as the initial evidence of the existence of Freemasonry in the then North American Colonies of Great Britain. Bro. Clark, however, appears to have made to the New Jersey Committee the following statement, quoted in the pages of this history:—"I cannot find any application from Bro. Coxe and others for the appointment of Provincial Grand Master. Bro. Coxe did not make any report of the appointment of Deputy Grand Master or Grand Wardens; neither did he report the congregating of Masons into Lodges. He did not transmit any account of having constituted Lodges, and does not, indeed, appear to have established any.

"At the period when he was appointed, it was a rare thing for any Reports to be made by the Provincial Grand Masters abroad, of their doings. Brief details came in once or twice from Bengal, but I find none from any foreign country.

"The names of members belonging to Lodges abroad, I imagine, were never sent home until the year 1768, when the system of registration was established."

There seems, however, to be very little doubt now-a-days as to the existence of a Lodge in Philadelphia in the year 1730, and this may have been chartered by Bro. Coxe; or of a Grand Lodge, of which the immortal Benjamin Franklin was Senior Warden—and soon after, Grand Master—having been convened in the same city in 1732. It is also stated herein, that Daniel Coxe was in England, and present at the meeting of Grand Lodge on January 29th 1731, when his health was drunk, as "Provincial Grand Master of North America." But whatever Bro. Coxe may or may not have done in connection with the Province of "Pensilvania," there is found, as yet, no conclusive evidence that he ever exercised his authority "in the Provinces of New York or New Jersey." Bro. John G. Barker P.G. Librarian of New York is, however, sanguine that evidence will in due course be forthcoming.

The next link in the chain is the appointment, by Warrant dated 30th April 1733, of Viscount Montagu G.M., of Henry Price as Grand Master in North America, with power to appoint his Deputy and other officers, and to constitute Lodges. This appointment resulted from the "application of a number of brethren residing in Boston," —see note p. 176 Oliver's edition of Preston's Illustrations—and applies generally to the States comprised in the designation of "New England." However, on the 15th November 1737, it appears that Captain Richard Riggs was deputed Provincial Grand Master of New York, by Grand Master the Earl of Darnley, but no records exist of his administration. We are told the New York press did not regard favourably the gatherings of Freemasons, the New York Gazette of 1737 containing an article on the subject, which, in our opinion, it would have been better to have quoted in extenso,—if that were possible—if not in the body of the narrative, at least in a foot note. Two excerpts, however, are given from that journal for the year 1739, in the first of which it is announced that the brethren will in future hold their Lodge meetings at "the Montgomerie-Arms Tavern, the first and third Wednesday of every month," while the other is a notice of meeting, at the same place, for the 26th of September. Both these are issued "by order of the GRAND MASTER," and both signed "Charles Wood, Secretary." In 1751, Francis Goelet was appointed Provincial Grand Master of New York, under a patent from Grand Master Lord Byron. He remained in office two years, and, on the 26th December 1753, publicly installed and proclaimed his successor, George Harison, whose Deputation, dated 9th June 1753, was issued by Grand Master Lord Carysfort. Bro. Harison held office for no less a period than eighteen years, during which he appears to have fulfilled his duties most ably and zealously. The following Lodges we quote as having been "Warranted under his administration:"—

"King David's, City of New York, Feb. 17th, 1769.

"Solomon's No. 1, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., April 18th 1771."

"The following," we are told, "were located in the City of New York, during his term of office, and were, no doubt, established by him at, or prior to the dates appended thereto:—

Temple Lodge - - -	1758
Trinity Lodge - - -	1767
Union Lodge - - -	1767
King Solomon Lodge - -	1767
Hiram Lodge - - -	1769."

His successor was Sir John Johnson, who received his commission from Grand Master, Lord Blany, in the year 1767, and was installed in 1771. He appointed Doctor Peter Middleton to be his Deputy, and his authority continued during the war. But owing to the fact of his adhering to the Royal cause, and to the consequent necessity he was under of seeking the protection of the British army, we are told there are "but few records of his official acts as Provincial Grand Master." It seems, however, that he confirmed, on the 3rd July 1773, the Warrant issued in 1765 by his predecessor, to Union Lodge, Albany. On 21st June 1774, he issued a dispensation to form a Lodge at Shenectady, the warrant being granted on the 14th September of the same year, under the title of St. George's Lodge No. 1, of Shenectady. There were also warranted during his Mastership, St. John's Regimental Lodge, No. 1, on 24th July 1775, and the Military Union Lodge in April 1776. During the war, the City of New York Lodges, we are told, "virtually ceased to meet," but those in the northern part of the Province, with one exception, "continued their labours, and were subjected to but little interruption." Thus, after 1776, no records exist of Sir John Johnson's rule. "The necessary executive business of the Craft was transacted by the Deputy Grand Master and such officers as he appointed, from time to time, to assist him. Sir John went to England at the close of the war, but returned and settled in Canada in the year 1784.

Thus far the history of Freemasonry in this Province is wholly associated with the society known as "the Moderns." But when the English army occupied the city there were introduced with it a number of Lodges warranted by the Grand Lodges of Ireland and Scotland to the Ancient Grand Lodge in London. We are told there was little or no intercourse between these and the Provincial Lodges. Great progress, however, must have been made by the interlopers, for we read:—

"In the beginning of 1781, the Army Lodges in the City of New York took steps to form a Grand Lodge, or, what is more probable, to continue and perfect the organization of one already established by them, as will be seen by the following documents on file in the archives:—

'Minutes of Lodge 169, Ancient York Masons, held at their Lodge-room, on Tuesday evening, the 23rd January, 1781, being a Grand Lodge assembled in ample form.'

There were present twenty-nine Masters and Past Masters, representatives of five Lodges, namely—Nos. 133, 169, 210, Solomon's Lodge No. 212, Registry of England, 441 Registry of Ireland, and Zion's Lodge U.D.

The Grand Lodge was opened in 'due form' by the R.W. Bro. McCnen G.M., Bro. Brown S.G.W., and Bro. Taylor J.G.W. It was unanimously agreed that an election of officers be held, and the following brethren were unanimously elected:—

The Rev. William Walter, 169, Grand Master; Bro. John Brownrigg, 441, Senior Grand Warden; and the Rev. Bro. John Beardsley, 210, Junior Grand Warden."

A committee waited on the newly elected Grand Officers for the purpose of apprising them of their election, and a written acceptance was returned by each to the said committee. Subsequently, steps were taken to petition the Grand Lodge (Ancients) of England for a Provincial Grand Lodge warrant. The petition was successful. A warrant was granted on the 5th September, 1781, and under this authority the Provincial Grand Lodge, the first regular records of which commence December 5, 1782, was constituted. During the Mastership of the Rev. Bro. Walter, the Lodge retained its character of a Provincial Grand Lodge. When, however, at the close of the struggle, M.W. Bro. Walter signified his intention of leaving the city for England, the R.W. Bro. Cock, Junior Grand Warden, was unanimously chosen, and duly installed as Grand Master. This occurred at the Grand Lodge held on the 19th September 1783; and this, therefore, is the date when the Grand Lodge of New York asserted its position as an Independent Grand Lodge. Thus to M.W. Bro. Cock belongs the honour of having presided as the first Grand Master of Masons in New York. He did not, however, retain his office for very long. At the Grand Lodge held on 4th February, 1784, Bro. Cock announced it to be his intention to resign the office, and proposed the Honourable Robert R. Livingstone as his successor. The proposition was unanimously agreed to, and Bro. Livingstone, by proxy in the first instance, and subsequently at the Lodge on the 3rd March, was duly installed and proclaimed Grand Master. And him we find still retaining his position in the year 1797, when Part IV., the last that has reached us, is concluded. This, then, shows the rise and earlier progress of the present G. L. of the State of New York. It now becomes our duty to unfold some of the details we have read thus far in the course of this not uneventful history. We have already given the list of the Lodges constituted during R.W. George Harison's Grand Mastership. We purpose now extracting a few particulars of their early career.

First in order comes St. John's Lodge No. 2, Provincial, English Registry, 272. This was warranted by the Provincial Grand Lodge on December 7, 1757, and still flourishes, being No. 1 on Grand Lodge Roll. Its early records, it seems, are not entirely missing, but are imperfect. From the cover of the Washington Bible in its possession is quoted the following: "St. John's Lodge Constituted 5757; burnt down March 8, 5770; rebuilt and opened Nov. 28, 5770; officers then present, Jonathan Hampton, Master; William Butler, Senior Warden; Isaac Heron, Junior Warden." After the war, the warrant was brought back by that part of the Lodge which had left in 1776, and the Lodge was again convened and met regularly. In 1783 the W.M. announced that a Lodge calling itself St. John's Lodge (No. 4) had become possessed, during the war, of the Lodge properties, and refused to restore them. A coalition of the two was proposed and agreed to, in spite of some opposition, notably from a Bro. Fream, Senior Warden, who appears to have possessed himself of the warrant of St. John's No. 2, and retained it. In March 1784, the Warrant was surrendered to Grand Lodge, and was allowed to take rank of all Lodges constituted after the said surrender. On June 3, 1789, the Committee of Grand Lodge appointed to determine the rank and precedence of the various Lodges under Grand Lodge jurisdiction reported St. John's Lodge No. 2 as the premier Lodge, and it was accordingly assigned and still holds, as we have said, the first place on the roll of Lodges.

"St. John's Independent Royal Arch" Lodge, as it is designated in the earliest returns to Grand Lodge in 1784, or "the Independent Royal Arch" Lodge, as in the returns of the year following, was warranted by P.G.M. George Harison, December 15, 1760, applied for and obtained admission into Grand Lodge on June 2d, 1784, when Bro. John Clark was W.M., Bro. Garret Sickles being the Senior Warden and Bro. Samuel Fleming, Junior Warden for that year. At this time it was known as No. 8, and met at No. 9 Nassau-street, in the City of New York. When, in 1789, the rank and precedence of the Lodges was determined, the Committee reported that "Independent Royal Arch" Lodge came second, and it was therefore accorded and still holds the second place on Grand Lodge Roll.

"Zion Lodge No. 1, Detroit," No. 448 Registry of England, was constituted, April 27th, 1764, by R.W. George Harison, the officers named in the Warrant being Lieut. John Christie of the 60th Regiment, Master, Samson Flaney, Senior Warden, and Josias Harper, Junior Warden. There are no early records existing. It surrendered its warrant and had a new one granted by Grand Lodge of New York on December 3rd 1806. At first it was registered as No. 62, but subsequently it was assigned a position as No. 3, which position it retained on the roll till the organisation of the Grand Lodge of Michigan in the year 1827.

As regards "Union Lodge No. 1, City of Albany," it seems that previous to, or during the year 1759, a Lodge No. 74, Registry of Ireland, in the second Battalion Royal, holding a Warrant from Grand Lodge, Ireland, dated October 26 1737, was located in Albany. Being about to leave the city, they were petitioned by the resident members for authority to hold a Lodge, when the Lodge prepared and gave them a fac-simile of their own Warrant, with the following endorsement:—

"We, the Master, Wardens and Brethren of a Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons No. 74, Registry of Ireland, held in the Second Battalion Royal, adorned with all the honours, and assembled in due form, Do hereby declare, certify and attest, that Whereas, our body is very numerous by the addition of many new members, merchants and inhabitants of the city of Albany, they having earnestly requested and besought us to enable them to hold a Lodge during our absence from them, and we knowing them to be men of undoubted reputations and men of skill and ability in Masonry, and desirous to promote the welfare of the Craft. We have, therefore, by unanimous consent and agreement, given them an extract and true Copy of our Warrant as above, and have properly installed Mr. Richard Cartwright, Mr. Henry Bostwick and Mr. Wm. Ferguson, as Assistant Master and Wardens of our body, allowing them to Sit and Act during our absence, or untill they, by our assistance, can procure a separate Warrant for themselves from the Grand Lodge in Ireland. Given under our hands and seal of our Lodge in the City of Albany, the eleventh day of April, in the year of Masonry 5759, and in the year of our Lord God, 1759.

Signed,

John Steadman, Secretary. Anias Sutherland, Master.
Charles Calder, Senior Warden.
No. 74 of Ireland. Thos. Parker, Junior Warden."

On 21st February 1765, P.G.M. Harison granted the said brethren a Warrant nominating Richard Cartwright, Master, William Benson, Senior Warden, and John Vischer, Junior Warden, under the name and title of Union Lodge. This Warrant was confirmed, 3rd July 1773, to the same officers by Sir John Johnson, Bro. Harison's successor as P.G.M. No records exist prior to 1800. Its roll of members, however, is complete from 1773, and includes, we are told, the names of many distinguished in the history of the State. It was represented in Grand Lodge in June 1784, surrendered its warrant March 1806, and was assigned rank as No. 3 in accordance with the date of original warrant. On the admission of Zion Lodge of Detroit, the Union Lodge was displaced and became No. 4, but when the Zion Lodge severed its connection, 1827, with the Grand Lodge of New York, for the purpose, as already stated, of organising a Grand Lodge in Michigan, the Union it recovered its rank as No. 3.

"St. Patrick's Lodge, No. 8, Johnstown," which "was undoubtedly the first Lodge established west of the Hudson River," was constituted May 23rd 1766, Sir William Johnson being the first W.M., with Guy Johnson as Senior Warden, and Daniel Claus Junior Warden. Sir John Johnson P.G.M. of the Province appears to have been a regular attendant at the Lodge between the years 1767 and 1773, mention being made of him in the following extracts from the minutes:—

"December 5th, 1767, Sir John Johnson, Knight (son of Sir William), being lately arrived from London, where he had been entered, passed and raised to the degree of Master Mason in the Royal Lodge at St. James, and received his Constitution as Provincial Grand Master of New York, applied to visit the Lodge, and being examined, was admitted, agreeable to his degree."

"Dec. 1st, 1768. The Warrent appointing Sir John Johnson Provincial Grand Master, for the Province of New York was read; upon which he was congratulated by the members present."

"November 7th, 1771. The Worshipful Master acquanted the brethren that the Right Worshipful Sir John Johnson, Knight, Provincial Grand Master of New York, by virtue of a commission from Lord Blany, Grand Master of England, had lately been installed into that office by the Grand Officers in New York, and intended them the honour of a visit as such. He was accordingly introduced and received by the body, and placed in the Chair with the usual Ceremonies."

On Dec. 27th 1769 the Lodge, with the Ineffable Lodge, and several members of Union Lodge No. 1, and Masters Lodge No. 2, of the City of Albany, met for the purpose of celebrating St. John the Evangelist's day. In 1770, Sir William Johnson having meanwhile become Master of the Ineffable Lodge, resigned his Mastership of St. Patrick's, being succeeded by Col. Guy Johnson, Daniel Claus being elected Senior Warden, and Michael Byrne Junior Warden. The year following, the Lodge witnessed the "laying of the 'capstone' of the Church at Johnstown," the Senior Warden, by direction of the Master, performing the duty in the presence of a large number of inhabitants and visitors. "The corner stone of said Church was laid by Union Lodge No. 1 of the City of Albany, some few years previous." No minutes, we find, are recorded from May 5 1774, to the end of the war. In 1784, the Lodge petitioned and obtained a warrant from New York Grand Lodge. Owing, however, to the absence of the original warrant, removed to Canada by the officers who remained loyal to the English Government, the Lodge was unable to establish, for some years, the rank it was entitled to. Subsequently, the Warrant was returned, with other properties, and it now stands No. 4 on the roll of Grand Lodge. It derives a considerable annual revenue from property in its possession, and its original Warrant and earliest records are still reverently preserved and cherished by the members.

We are gratified to be able to announce that the refusal of the church at Brigg to Freemasons did not obtain the approval of the Archdeacon of that province, who would have been happy to have prevented, if possible, the refusal, and to have paid his personal respects to the Freemasons when assembled in that town. Bro. Dr. Ace has received commendations from all parts of England for his able letter in defence of the Brotherhood. The Craft in Lincolnshire are especially indebted to the Doctor for his championship of their cause, and the energetic resistance against tyrannical oppression which he, as a true and loyal member of the Brotherhood, has always exhibited.

INNOVATIONS IN MASONRY.

From the "MASONIC ADVOCATE."

MASONRY, as an organized society, is governed by laws and regulations peculiar to itself. In many respects their counterpart cannot be found in any other society or organization in the world. Many of them have existed from the first formation of the Order up to the present time, and must for ever remain unchanged in all time to come; and it is in this regard that we find one of the peculiarities of which we speak. It was evidently the purpose of the founders of Masonry to incorporate in it and throw around it such restrictions as would prevent a subversion of the main object they had in view by its organization. Unalterable laws were enacted, to the faithful observance of which they bound themselves by the most solemn covenants. Since their time, all who have been made Masons have taken upon themselves like obligations to support and maintain these laws as they received them. Every Master Mason is strictly charged to carefully preserve the ancient landmarks of the Order entrusted to his care, and never suffer them to be infringed or countenance a deviation from the established usages and customs of the fraternity. Before being installed into office, every Worshipful Master elect must declare that it is not in the power of any man or body of men to make innovations in the body of Masonry; and thus the institution has passed down through succeeding generations without any material changes from its original plan. While other institutions have sprung up and flourished for a short season, and then passed away into oblivion, Masonry has pursued a steady course, growing in numbers, in strength and influence, until it has spread over the entire civilized portion of the habitable world, and it is to-day a marvel to those who know not the secret of its talismanic power. Hundreds of thousands of good men and true, united in one common purpose, as members of the grand symbolic Lodge, which extends from east to west and between the north and south, attest the wisdom of the original plan of Masonry, and of following it to the letter, as has been done through all the past.

To every well-informed Mason it is evident that the future prosperity of Masonry depends very much upon a strict observance of the same policy in the government of the Craft. All innovations must be met at the threshold and driven back with resistless force. If any have already gained an entrance, let them be expelled at once, and the doors more securely tyled in the future. It must be done, or Masonry cannot long maintain that superiority over all other Orders which has been so often claimed for it and generally admitted.

It would seem that there could be but one sentiment among Masons upon this subject, for all have been instructed alike upon it, have taken the same obligations, and what is the duty of one is the duty of all. We find, however, in these latter days, a disposition among a certain class of the membership of our Lodges to introduce some new features into Masonry, not in harmony with ancient usage and the long-established principles of the Order. They seem to think that something ought to be done to make Masonry more popular in public opinion, and to accomplish this end they seek to ally it with all the great reform movements of the day, and to make an exhibition of Masonry upon all public occasions. They would have Masonic Lodges in all Fourth-of-July processions; insist on their turning out on decoration days, or when any important event is to be celebrated which would afford them an opportunity to display to the world the insignia of the Order. Any excitement in a community upon the subject of intemperance, they regard as a golden opportunity for the Lodge to gain a little popularity. The Lodge must pass some strong temperance resolutions, discountenancing the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, sympathizing with the "crusaders," &c., and have them published in the newspapers, duly attested by the W.M. and Secretary. The Grand Lodge must enact prohibitory laws, making it a penal offence for a Mason to manufacture, sell or use intoxicating liquors, which must be punished by the severest penalty known to Masonic law. These and many other things equally foreign to the legitimate business of Masonry have been attempted; and in some instances actually perpetrated. They are as much innovations in the body of Masonry as would be the removal of what are known as the ancient landmarks of the Order. The difference is simply this: In the one case the Masonic tree is being cut down one branch at a time, while, in the other case, it would be cut off at the ground. One is killing by inches the other outright.

But a brother asks: What harm is there in Masonic Lodges joining in Fourth-of-July celebration? or, why should they not unite with other organizations in a warfare against the liquor traffic? We answer, simply because Masonic Lodges are organized for an entirely different purpose. They have their own legitimate business to transact and work to perform, and all matters not pertaining strickly to the Order are prohibited. In their individual capacity as citizens or as members of any other society, organization or party, Masons, outside of the Lodge room, are at liberty to act as best pleases themselves, so that they keep within the bounds of the law and the requirements of good morals. They may argue any of the great questions of the day; discuss religion, politics, or any of the thousand and one issues that are constantly agitating the minds of the people. But when they come inside of the Lodge room they must leave these matters outside the tyler's door, for nothing can be permitted there that can disturb the peace and harmony of the Lodge.

Masons must not lose sight of the fact, that among their number are men from every nation on the face of the globe; representing nearly every church, sect or social organization in existence. They should remember, too, that in the Lodge room they are all citizens of only one country, which is the great globe itself; members of only one family, which is the entire human race; children of only one Father, which is God; and it is in this relation that they must "Meet upon the level and part upon the square."

This feature of Masonry is one of its grandest characteristics, and it can only be maintained by standing fast by the landmarks and ancient regulations of the Order, as handed down to us through the generations of the past.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

AS the end of the Session approaches, a vast amount of work is being got through. We do not envy our legislators their task. Some days in the week the morning and evening sittings together occupy from ten to eight hours, and this is heavy in the month of July. On Monday, the debate in the House of Lords on Extradition Treaties was abruptly terminated, the Lord Chancellor being seized with so violent a fit of coughing as to be unable to proceed with his remarks. The discussion therefore was formally adjourned, and will be resumed shortly. The greater part of the week, in the House of Commons, has been devoted to the consideration in Committee of the Government Elementary Education, and several smart passages of arms have occurred between the opponents and supporters of the measure. Ministers, in fact, have accepted an amendment proposed by Mr. Pell. Hence, a battle-royal has been fought over the proposal, the result being substantial success, as far as numbers go, on the part of the Conservatives. Our readers must judge for themselves of the value of the measure generally—Mr. Pell's proposal in particular. On Monday, the author of Ginx's Baby was again to the fore, with a question relative to the Earl of Derby's answers to certain recent deputations to his lordship on the policy of England in the Eastern crisis. Mr. Jenkins, in the character of a politician, is a picture that creates ridicule. Apparently, he has a firm belief in his own unrivalled excellence, but few people seem disposed to agree with him. When we see a pigmy challenging a giant, we usually feel a little nervous for the pigmy. Feeding bottles were a better subject than foreign politics for Mr. Jenkins to tackle. The discussion on the Foreign policy of the Government in the great Turkish question is fixed for Monday.

On Monday, the Queen, who is now at Osborne, held a Court for the purpose of receiving the deputations appointed by the cities of London and Dublin, and the Commission of Lieutenancy of London, to congratulate Her Majesty on the safe return from India of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. Lord Mayor Cotton, Aldermen Carter, Sir W. A. Rose, and Sir Thomas Dakin, the Recorder, the Sheriff, City Remembrancer, and some forty Common Councillors represented the Corporation of London. The Lord Mayor and a number of gentlemen appeared for the Lieutenancy of London, and the Lord Mayor, Councillor Maurice Brooke M.P., Alderman Fry, Councillor O'Neil and others, formed the deputation from the Dublin Corporation. The Queen, accompanied by the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, and attended by the principal officers of State, entered the reception room about half-past one. The Deputations were severally ushered in, and most graciously received by Her Majesty, the mover and seconder of each address being personally presented. Luncheon having been served, the Deputations returned to London.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have been, this week, to Goodwood, where, as our readers know, is held one of the most attractive race meetings of the season. Lord Hartington's Monaco won the Stewards' Cup, on Tuesday, and, on Wednesday, the favourite, Hampton, came in first, and secured the Goodwood Stakes, Admiral Byng running a good second. Perhaps, however, the beauty of the Duke of Richmond's park, the freshness of the sea breezes, and last, but not least, the excellence of the lunch, find even greater favour with visitors than the sport, though the latter certainly includes two or three of the most important fixtures of the year.

The Wimbledon meeting is now over. Of the contests which we left unnoticed last week, that for the Elcho Shield terminated in favour of England, while the Australian International contest, of which we gave the results of the first stage only, ended, after a close and exciting struggle, in favour of the same country, by only three points, Scotland, which had headed her most formidable rival by a single point in the first stage, being defeated in the second by four points. These competitions having been determined, the athletic meeting was held, nearly every kind of race and contest being included in the programme. Afterwards took place the distribution of prizes, the Princess Mary of Cambridge, Duchess of Teck, being the central figure at this important ceremony, and offering a few kindly words of congratulation to those of the recipients who appeared to receive the sports of victory. The distribution took place this year in front of "the Cottage," instead of facing the Grand Stand, as in accordance with the previous practice. Consequently the attendance of spectators was less numerous. Many, too, were elsewhere congregated to witness the sports. Still those that came, saw, and afterwards went away, cheered the most important winners most heartily, the English eight, or a part of it rather, who won the Elcho Shield, and the Winchester Boys, winners of the Ashburton Challenge Shield, coming in for a very large share of applause. Sergeant Pullman, however, the winner of the Queen's Prize, and the hero, therefore, of the meeting, was the most enthusiastically greeted, both when he advanced to receive the money and gold medal, and, subsequently, the rifle, presented to him by the Secretary for War, with which he had won his honors. And the ceremony over, little remained but to pack up baggage and depart, and Wimbledon, we imagine, has now resumed its wonted aspect.

There was a terrible, though fortunately a partial, storm on Sunday, which visited some of the northern suburbs of London, and caused a very considerable amount of damage to windows and hot and greenhouses. We believe the common story of hailstones as large as pigeon eggs falling was realised. The storm, which travelled very rapidly, lasted for a short time only. It passed from the North-West over Wood Green and West Green towards Tottenham. The Alexandra Palace escaped injury, but we believe the banqueting house in close proximity had a good deal of its glass smashed. There is said also to have been loss of life as well as loss of property, but this we cannot vouch for.

On Saturday, the Second Army Corps was reviewed by the Prince of Wales and the Commander-in-Chief, at Aldershot, Sir Salar Jung, Lord Lucan, Lord Elcho, Sir Henry Havelock, and a number of foreign officers being on the ground, while the general public mustered in great force. General Sir Wm. Codrington received the royal visitors, and after lunch, the inspection of the troops began. Then followed the march past, in which all the troops acquitted themselves well. The third Infantry Division was composed entirely of Militia Regiments, and the marching of these was very firm, drawing more than one complimentary expression from the Commander-in-Chief. The Artillery then trotted and the Cavalry cantered past, and an advance of the whole line in review order brought the day's proceedings to a close. The Prince and Duke shortly afterwards returned to town.

More deaths have resulted from the terrible accident on board Her Majesty's ship Thunderer, the number who were killed or have died of their injuries being now forty-two. Several of the wounded are still in a very precarious state. Preparations for the inquest are being made, and the coroner will be allowed the expenses he may incur to have an assessor, but the appointment of one will be made on his sole responsibility, the Government being very anxious that the inquiry should be conducted with the most perfect impartiality.

The Bravo mystery is still in course of solution, if indeed it ever it will be solved. A mass of evidence has been taken, and some of it is regarded as of the very last importance. The inquiry is a most painful one, but it is desirable the manner of Mr. Bravo's death should be cleared up, if possible. There is a formidable array of counsel engaged in the case, among them the Attorney-General and Sir Henry James.

A singular accident has occurred at the Clifton Hall Colliery a few miles from Manchester, but unattended with any loss of life. A collision happened between an ascending and descending cage, the result being that all communication between the pit's mouth and the workings was for a time suspended. In consequence the 330 men and boys who were at work in the mine were imprisoned for some forty hours, when means were devised for bringing them to bank. Great excitement necessarily prevailed, but shortness of provisions was the worst of the consequences to the imprisoned miners, many of whom had with them only a very modest supply. When the first relief was sent, in the shape of bread and cheese, great excitement prevailed, and the men broke into the store and helped themselves. On Sunday morning the whole of them were relieved from their uncomfortable position.

The King and Queen of the Hellenes took their departure from London for the Continent on Saturday. On the same day the Emperor and Empress of Brazil arrived at Liverpool from the United States, and at once left for London, whither they were accompanied by the Brazilian minister, who had met them on landing. Their Imperial Majesties drove to Claridge's hotel, and in the evening paid a visit to Her Majesty's, Drury Lane, staying till the end of the entertainment.

On Wednesday, the London Masonic Club, Queen Victoria Street, was formally opened. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master of the Craft, presided at the inaugural banquet, and was well supported by a number of influential members of the Craft. Everything passed off most satisfactorily, and the directors have our hearty congratulations on the success that has thus far attended the progress of their most excellent scheme. We hope for the interests of Craftsmen, this attempt to organize a Club will prove an enduring success, and that, as time goes on, the West as well as the East end of London will be provided with suitable Club premises, where brethren may meet and enjoy quiet, social converse. Other classes and societies do so very successfully; why should not we Freemasons, who ought to be, if we are not, "clubbable" men? We give a full report of the proceedings elsewhere, and also offer a few comments on the scheme of the directors, which we may state, at once, is worthy of the most generous support.

The Lord Mayor is very far from having completed his round of hospitalities. During the whole of his mayoralty, Alderman Cotton has been entertaining guests at the Mansion House, and on Wednesday it was the London School Board, in whose honour he gave the banquet. As usual, a most agreeable entertainment passed off most agreeably, Sir Charles Reed, M.P., Chairman of the Board, returning thanks for the principal toast. The day previous, a special meeting of the Common Council was held at Guildhall, for the purpose of presenting to Sir Salar Jung the honorary freedom of the City. Bro. Monckton read the resolution conferring the freedom, and then followed the usual courteous speeches, the recipient of the honour conferred departing well pleased with the proceedings. In the afternoon the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress entertained Sir Salar Jung and some three hundred guests at the Mansion House, among the latter being many representatives of the fashionable world and a strong muster of city magnates.

To-day, at the Alexandra Palace, will be held under Royal patronage, the Balfe Memorial Festival, Madame Christine Nilsson, Mesdames Enriquez and Rose Hersee, and Messrs. Vernon Rigby and Edward Lloyd will take part in the programme, which will include selections from Il Talismano, the Bohemian Girl, and other works of the eminent composer. We trust the occasion will prove a great success.

It seems pretty clear, from the various accounts received, that failure has thus far attended the operations of the Servian armies. They have advanced into Turkish territory, have made no impression whatever on the forces of the enemy, and now we hear of their withdrawal into their own country. Nor is it by any means certain that the Montenegrins have fared much better. On the other hand, the Turks, though they have stood their ground well on nearly every occasion, show an indisposition to follow the Servians and take advantage of their greatly superior numbers in order to achieve a decisive success. The telegrams to this effect may or may not convey the truth, but various conjectures are afloat to account for this singular apathy of the Turks. The general belief appears to be that Turkey is unwilling to press Servia too closely, in order to avoid arousing Russian sympathies with the latter, for then even the government of the autocratic Czar might find it impossible to restrain his subjects, and a chance of the war exceeding its present limits might intervene and destroy the hopes we have all been recently indulging, that the struggle would be purely a local one. Any day, indeed, any hour, may bring fresh news of an exactly opposite character, and it would surprise few people if the next intelligence that reached us was to the effect that the Turks were well on their road to dictate peace at Belgrade. On Monday, the long looked for discussion of the Eastern question will come off, and then, perhaps, we may obtain some insight into the future course which ministers propose to adopt.

The following list, which has been sent us for publication, needs no analysis. Yet a few remarks will not be out of place. It is, in the first instance, very gratifying to an educational staff when those or sundry of those placed under its charge earn one or more public distinctions. Several of "Our Boys" have passed honourably in the Science and Art Examination held in the month of May last. This is very creditable to Dr. Morris and his coadjutors. Brethren who are instrumental in carrying the election of a boy or girl candidate are naturally anxious for the future scholastic success of their protégé or protégée. In the case of orphan children all who recommend and work for the election of such constitute themselves, in a certain sense, their guardians. Being thus, as it were, in loco parentum, they of course experience a lively sense of pleasure when their young charges win for themselves some distinction. In the case of successful pupils who may have one or both parents still living, the pleasure the latter must feel under such circumstances may be imagined but not described. These are reasons for publishing such a list, and for congratulating thus publicly the staff of the school, the guardians or parents of the boys, and the boys themselves.

We have received a report of the Special Communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon, held at the New London Inn, Exeter, on Thursday. The object of the meeting was to hear the decision of the Provincial Grand Master re the irregular initiation of a person into Freemasonry in one of the Lodges in his Province. The offence was admitted. Deep regret was expressed at its occurrence, and previous services to the Craft having been pleaded in mitigation of punishment, those inculpated were sentenced to different terms of suspension, varying in length according to the greater or less gravity of their several cases. We repress all names and details, which, in a matter of this kind, should not, in our opinion, be made public, unless the publicity is first sanctioned by the Provincial Grand Master.

The Brethren will be pleased to hear that Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, the respected Secretary of the Royal Masonic School for Girls, at Battersea Rise, has so far recovered from his severe illness that he was enabled to be present, and render assistance to the Audit Committee, on the 25th November. All present congratulated him, and hoped, in future, to see him with renewed health and vigour among them.

The United Strength Lodge of Instruction, No. 228, meets every Wednesday, at 8, at Bro. Green's, the Grafton Arms, Prince of Wales Road. Bro. J. N. Frost, P.M. 228, 704, 835, P.Z. 753, is the Preceptor, under whose able tuition the brethren in the north of London can receive the benefit of Masonic Instruction.

We are indebted to a friend for the following cuttings from New Zealand Papers:—

At a meeting of Master Masons held in Wellington at the Masonic Hall, Boulcott-street, it was decided that the installation of Sir Donald McLean as District Grand Master of the North Island of New Zealand (E.C.) should take place on the 26th June. The District Grand Masters of Otago, Canterbury, and Westland are to be invited to attend, as also representatives of the various Lodges in the district.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Lodge Sir Walter Scott, No. 533, S.C., held on the 19th April, Bro. T. L. Murray was duly installed as Secretary for the current year, by the R.W.M., Bro. Rev. J. Hill.

The sixth anniversary of the Thames Lodge of Light, No. 454, I.C., was commemorated on the 3rd of May, in the Lodge Room, Masonic Hall, Grahamstown, Bro. L. J. Bagnall, W.M. of the Lodge, in the chair, supported by R.W.M. Bro. Rev. J. Hill, and R.W.P.M. Brodie, Lodge Sir Walter Scott, S.C., and Past Masters Bros. Power, Wallnutt, Climo, and Mitchel, of the Lodge of Light. There was a large attendance of the brethren of the various constitutions at the Thames, and an efficient choir, which rendered some excellent selections of Masonic Music, conducted by P.M. Bro. E. T. Wildman.

Bro. Henry Mandesley, one of the partners in the celebrated engineering firm of Mandesley and Field, is now making a tour of New Zealand. He attended a meeting of the Pacific Lodge of Freemasons in Wellington lately, he being a Past Provincial Grand Master, and a P.S.G.G. of the Grand Lodge of England. He gave some interesting particulars of his travels, mentioning that he had been lately at Jerusalem, and had attended a Lodge meeting held on Mount Zion. He also had been present at a Lodge meeting held among the American Indians. He also remarked that much light had been thrown on Scripture history, and many evidences of its truth discovered by late explorations in Palestine. He referred to the natural wonders of New Zealand as grand illustrations of the Almighty power of the Great Architect of the Universe.

The brethren of the Masonic Order at the Thames have resolved to send two officers to Wellington to be present on the occasion of the installation of Sir Donald McLean as District Grand Master of the English Constitution, which ceremony is to take place on the 24th of June (St. John's Day). The Masonic Lodges in Auckland have, we believe, taken no steps to be represented.

The Advertiser's correspondent telegraphs from Dunedin that Bro. W. McCullough's resignation of Deputy Provincial Grand Master of the Freemasons has been received and accepted, through differences at the Thames.

In Memoriam.

It is our mournful task to record the death of Bro. Richard Spencer, Past Grand Steward, &c., whose portrait, as the Father of the Lodge, was sketched at page 322 of our last volume. Though somewhat ailing for some months past, he had been generally active and cheerful until Wednesday, the 19th inst., when, after an evening stroll, he sat up rather later than usual, enjoying a game of cribbage, in excellent health and spirits. In the course of the night he was attacked, and died at 1·30 a.m. on Friday morning (21st), after 20 hours' illness. The interment, which was attended by his family and Masonic friends of long standing, took place at Nunhead Cemetery, on Tuesday, the 25th. Flowers, which he loved during his lifetime, were thrown into the grave. His loss is lamented by very many, as that of a good man and Mason, ever genial and kindly. Many an orphan has been elected into our schools through his unremitting exertions, and the heart of many a widow and aged brother been soothed by his sympathy and aid. He leaves behind a sorrowing widow and only son. The well-known "Masonic Depôt," which he founded many years since, in Great Queen Street, has been for some time conducted by the latter, an esteemed contributor to our pages. Bro. Richard Spencer departed at the ripe age of 76, having outlived most of his early intimates, now reunited to the companion of their former toils.

"God keep his memory green!"

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the "Hercules," Leadenhall-street, on Thursday evening last, 27th July, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Grammer W.M., Maidwell S.W., Rudderforth J.W., Horsley S.D., Salmoneso J.D., Hogarth I.G., Crawley P.M. Preceptor pro tem, and other brethren. Rudderforth, assisted by the brethren. It was proposed by Bro. Crawley P.M., and seconded by Bro. Rudderforth, that a vote of thanks be entered on the minutes to the W.M., Bro. Grammer, it being the first occasion that he had filled the chair in this Lodge of Instruction. The same was carried unanimously. All Masonic business being ended the Lodge was closed in due form.

Cathedral Chapter, No. 67.—This Chapter held its regular meeting on Tuesday, 25th July, at Glasgow, Comp. J. Duthie Z. presiding, who opened a Mark Lodge, G. W. Wheeler Z. 73 acting as S.W., D. Ronald J. as J.W., Goldie S.D., when Bro. R. S. Hamilton of Lodge 441 was duly advanced to the degree of Mark Master by Comp. J. Duthie. There being no further business the Chapter was duly closed.

Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73.—This Lodge held an emergency meeting on Wednesday, 26th July, at St. Mark's Hall, Glasgow. The Lodge was opened by the R.W.M., Bro. G. McDonald, Bros. Bain P.M. 103 acting as S.W., J. Miller P.M. 278 as J.W. A Mr. J. Smith was proposed for initiation, and Bro. Morgan, R.W.M. of the Star 219, wrought the degree. Bro. Dr. J. S. Simpson was a candidate for the 2nd degree, and was passed as a Fellow Craft by Bro. J. Booth, R.W.M. of the Thistle, No. 87. The Lodge was then opened in the 3rd degree, and Bro. McDonald himself raised two brothers to the sublime degree. With such a staff of workers it is needless to say that all the degrees were admirably wrought, and those present were highly gratified by the intellectual treat they had enjoyed.

Caledonian of Unity Chapter, No. 73.—The regular meeting of this Chapter was held on 26th July, Comp. G. W. Wheeler Z. presiding, who opened a Mark Lodge, assisted by Comps. J. Duthie Z. 67 as S.W., John Kinnaird J.W. Visitors—Comps. J. Morrison P.Z. 93, J. Duthie Z. 73, D. Ronald J. 67, W. Harper J. 69, J. Fash S.E. 69, J. McInnis P.S. 69. Application was made for admission of Bro. J. McNeild on behalf of Chapter 69, which was granted, and he, along with Bro. John Robb of Lodge 68, Dorio, Kilwinning, were then duly advanced to the degree of Mark Master. A Lodge of Excellent Masters was then opened, and Bro. Robb received that degree, and was afterwards exalted into the Royal Arch degree by Comp. Wheeler, J. Duthie as H., J. Kinnaird J., T. Balfour S.E., J. Banermann Treasurer, D. Gilchrist P.Z. as 1st S., J. Campbell 2nd, J. W. Harding 3rd. Comp. Fash returned thanks on behalf of Chapter 69 for the favour done them in exalting their candidate.

Domatic Lodge, No. 177.—The summer banquet of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 20th instant, at the Rye House, near Hoddesdon, Herts, when over one hundred ladies and gentlemen were present, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Treadwell. After inspecting the grounds, the points of historic interest connected with this ancient building, and enjoying boating trips, &c. the company sat down to a banquet and dessert. The wines and viands were of first rate quality, and reflected great credit on the worthy host, Bro. Teale. An excellent band discoursed sweet music during dinner. The W.M. gave the usual Loyal toasts. Bro. J. R. Foulger P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M., which was ably responded to. The toast of the Past Masters was replied to by Bros. J. R. Foulger and Elmes. Other toasts followed. Bro. James Willing humorously returned thanks for the ladies, who, he said, particularly expressed their gratification at this happy meeting, which he was sure would promote good feeling. Among those present were Bros. Turner, J. Kent, Sinclair, Shenstone, Braid, Willis, Anley, Wigmore, Jennings, Purchase, Stiles, Bedal, Turner, Elcor, &c.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge met at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C. and was opened on Wednesday at the regular hour of seven, by Bro. F. Croaker, who rehearsed the ceremony of initiation with great credit to himself, and to the entire satisfaction of those present. By solicitation of Bro. Posener (W.M. elect of the Upton Lodge), Bro. Croaker vacated the chair to allow him to rehearse the ceremony of raising, which he did in an able manner, evincing his ability for the important position to which he will shortly be elevated. The following officers and members were present:—Rudderforth S.W., Abell J.W., Fenner S.D., Staley J.D., Blackhall I.G., and Gottheil P.M. Preceptor, J. Constable Treasurer, Walker, Battye, Colmer, Pelton, W. W. Morgan, Gomm, W. W. Morgan jun.; Christopher Tyler. Bro. Rudderforth was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. We cannot refrain remarking that the members of this Lodge support their Preceptor by a regular attendance, a compliment Bro. Gottheil holds in high estimation. At this particular season, with the thermometer at blood heat, seventeen members may be considered an excellent attendance; this in itself is a sufficient proof that the knowledge herein imparted is of a sound and thoroughly Masonic character.

Glasgow Lodge, No. 441.—This Lodge held an emergency meeting at their own hall, 24 Struthers-street, on Monday, 24th July. Bro. Jas. Wood R.W.M. presided, assisted by most of his officers. The work consisted of the passing of one brother to the Fellow Craft degree, which ceremony, like all his other work, was ably performed by Bro. Wood.

Prince Frederick William Lodge, No. 753.—The Installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday, the 26th inst., at Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood, Bro. Austen W.M., Pigot S.W., Pringle J.W., Claechen Treas., H. A. Stacey Sec.; Past Masters Bros. Baker, T. Robinson, T. A. Adams P.G.P., W. D. Slyman, and T. J. Wnest, and Bros. W. Amor, R. Pilling, T. Thomas, H. Seymour, F. Hedges, J. Powell, Hollyman, J. H. Jones, D. W. King, E. Parker, J. Dodd, Gordon, &c. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. J. R. Lawrence P.M. No. 901 was unanimously elected a joining member. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Dawkins and passed Bro. Maybrick of the Athenæum Lodge, No. 1491. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. Pigot S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge, and duly installed into the chair by the retiring W.M., in a manner that reflected great credit. On the re-admission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient form, and then invested his officers; he afterwards initiated Messrs. Press and Frampton into the Order. He then, in the name of the Lodge, presented the I.P.M., Bro. Austen, with a very elegant P.M.'s jewel, with appropriate inscription, for the able manner he had discharged his duties during the past year. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a banquet provided by the worthy host. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and included the W.M., P.M., Wardens, Officers and Visitors. Bros. Maybrick and Davis contributed to the harmony. Altogether a very agreeable and harmonious evening was spent. The Visitors were Bros. R. Tubbs 1305, Maybrick 1491, Brander P.M. 157, L. R. Rogers P.M. 902, Koester P.M. 435, R. V. Davis 1288, C. J. W. Davis W.M. Royal Union 382, Woodstock P.M. 733, Ramsey P.M. 165, T. Meekham P.M. 1228, Jupe J.W. 1287, Price J.W. 1287, and Ayden 105.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The weekly meeting of the above was held on Tuesday, 25th July, at the Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney. Present—Bros. Cambridge W.M., Barker S.W., Smith J.W., Brown S.D., Worsley J.D., Johnson I.G., Worsley Secretary, Allen Preceptor pro tem. The ceremony of initiation and passing was worked by the W.M., Bro. Davies acting as candidate. The Lodge was resumed to the first degree. Bro. Allen worked the first and second sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Barker was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation.

Upton Lodge, No. 1227.—A regular meeting of this Lodge took place on Thursday, the 20th instant, at the "Spotted Dog," Upton, Essex. There was a very full attendance. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Alfred Holtham W.M., Bro. B. Bolton occupied the chair. The officers present were Bros. D. Posener S.W., G. Brown J.W., J. Wayland Treasurer, B. Pickering P.M. Secretary, W. Webster S.D., J. Andrews J.D., A. W. Fenner I.G., F. C. Kinnear W.S.; P.M.'s G. Levick, G. Bratton, R. W. Goddard. In the course of the evening Bros. Belsey and Lund were crafted, and Mr. James R. Mabbitt was permitted to enter the Order in due form, and in accordance with ancient custom. The most important business however was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year. The ballot proved unanimous in favour of Bro. D. Posener S.W. The popularity of that brother in the Upton Lodge was exemplified by the hearty applause which greeted the announcement. Bro. J. Wayland was re-elected Treasurer. Business ended, ample refreshment was served, after which followed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. In speaking to the toast of the W.M. elect, Bro. Bolton, the presiding W.M., observed that it augured well for the prosperity of the Upton Lodge that they had among them a brother upon whom their unanimous suffrages had been bestowed this evening, possessing such fine abilities and sterling Masonic qualifications as the Worshipful Master elect. The Lodge will have reason to be proud of its choice. Indeed, the P.M.'s will have to look to their laurels, for the ground they had hitherto occupied will be cut from under their feet, and their former standing as Past Masters will most assuredly be obscured by the lustre of the new Master's capabilities. Bro. Posener, W.M. elect, replying, deprecated the eulogiums so lavishly heaped upon him. He, however, assured the brethren that nothing should be wanting on his part to justify in some measure the good opinion the brethren were kind enough to entertain of him. He promised to maintain the honour and dignity of the Lodge, and to do what lies in his power to promote its prosperity. His actions would always be guided by honesty of purpose. Without fear and without favour, the course he intended to pursue would always be found in the straight and level line, and in strict accordance with the Constitutions of the Order. Bro. Posener then expressed his hearty thanks for all the kindness and indulgence it had been his good fortune to obtain. He then resumed his seat, amid loud applause. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent songs, to which Bros. T. Leonard, A. Oldroyd and G. Brown contributed.

Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction, No. 1288.—This Lodge of Instruction held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, the 26th inst., at Bro. Pigot's, the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters'-road, Holloway, N. Present—W. C. Beaman W.M., J. Walker S.W., H. B. Dunn J.W., Chant S.D., Wood J.D., Simson I.G. and Dickinson Preceptor. The Lodge was opened in due form, when the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Dickinson acting as candidate. The first, second, and third sections of the lecture were then worked by the Preceptor, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Walker was elected W.M. for next meeting, after which the Lodge was closed.

Lebanon Chapter, No. 1326.—A Convocation of this Chapter was held on Saturday, 22nd instant, at the Red Lion, Hampton. Comps. F. Walters P.G. 1st Asst. Middlesex P.Z. as M.E.Z., W. Hammond H., H. A. Dubois J. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The election for M.E.Z. and Principals took place. Comp. W. Smeed P.G.J. P.Z., with his usual ability, installed Comps. W. Hammond M.E.Z., H. A. Dubois H., and E. Hopwood J. The investiture of officers then took place. Comps. L. Wickens P.Z. Treasurer, F. Walters P.Z. 1st Asst. Middlesex S.E. (re-invested, this being for the third time), E. Gilbert S.N., J. Hammond P.S., Rev. P. M. Holden 1st Asst. Soj., W. Mitchell 2nd Asst. Soj., J. B. Schackleton D.C., H. Potter P.Z. W.S., and J. Gilbert Janitor. All the candidates placed on the agenda paper were unanimously elected. A very elegant silver loving cup was presented to Comp. John Thomas Moss P.P.G.R. Middlesex I.P.Z., the Father of the Chapter, for the eminent services rendered by him during his occupation of the chair. A P.Z.'s jewel was also presented to Comp. S. Wickens for his services, and the Chapter, determined not to be outdone in giving in a substantial form where merit and zeal is evinced, voted the sum of £10 10s to the testimonial about to be presented to Comp. F. Walters P.Z., in recognition of the services rendered by him, in every capacity, for the good of Freemasonry, the Charities, and the Craft in general. Comp. W. Smeed P.Z. 946 was elected an honorary member. Comp. B. Sharp P.Z. 84 was elected a joining member. He, in thanking the Companions, stated it was his intention to act as Steward for the Girls' School in 1877, when he should be pleased to represent the Chapter. After closing, the Companions adjourned to an excellent banquet and dessert. The usual toasts were given and responded to. During the evening, songs and recitations were given. After the Janitor's Toast, the Companions returned to town.

United Service Lodge, No. 1428.—The installation of the W.M. of this Lodge for the ensuing year took place on Friday, 14th inst., at the Soldiers' Institute, Portsmouth. Bro. S. G. T. Bourke (Lieutenant, R.N.) was duly installed as W.M., the ceremony being ably conducted by Bro. J. R. Willson P.M. The following were appointed officers:—Bros. McDonagh I.P.M., H. Townsend S.W., Leggett J.W., Willson P.M. Sec., Mares Treas., Williams S.D., Johns J.D., Strick I.G., Haynes Tyler, Vinnicombe Assistant Tyler, and Kempster and May Stewards. A most recherché banquet was afterwards served by Mr. W. Bond, of the Dolphin Hotel, about fifty being present. Among the P.M.'s and W.M.'s who attended were Bros. Col. Owen, Cornelius-Wheeler, Lillywhite, J. R. Willson, Turney, Ubsdell, Maling, Captain Blakey, and McDonagh. This Lodge, although the youngest in Portsmouth, is in a most flourishing position, both numerically and financially.

Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507.—Success having attended the efforts of Bro. Jas. Willing jun., the first Master of this flourishing Lodge, not only in the accession of members, but also from a financial point of view, he steered his barque safely into port, and received the just reward of his labour of love, and then resigned the helm into the hands of a worthy successor, Bro. J. J. Michael, who has proved himself equal to the duties entailed upon him. The brethren of the Lodge, mindful of the many pleasant gatherings they had had during the year, determined that the ladies of their acquaintance should have an opportunity of participating in their enjoyment, and accordingly organised a picnic excursion. By previous arrangement, the brethren met at the Paddington Station of the Great Western Railway, on Wednesday last, under an efficient body of stewards, consisting of the W.M., Bro. J. J. Michael, Jas. Willing jun. I.P.M., T. Williams S.W., R. T. Kingham J.W., R. Rose Treas., G. Time P.M. 177 Secretary, J. Douglass S.D., C. J. Scales J.D., W. Side I.G., W. M. Stiles Asst. Secretary, G. Colls W.S., H. H. Child, W. B. Clarke, and A. T. Rapkin. The brethren and ladies arrived at Taplow, and proceeded to Bro. Lewis's Hotel, Maidenhead Bridge, where the company formed themselves into parties, and proceeded, in boats, up the river to Cookham, while others enjoyed themselves equally well by basking in the sunshine. After these exertions the company adjourned to a tent erected in the grounds, where the party, sixty-one in number, sat down to a banquet and dessert, and to judge by the expressions of merriment they evidently enjoyed themselves. The chair was ably occupied by the W.M., who was supported by Bro. J. Willing jun., the vice chairs being filled by Bros. Williams S.W. and Kingham J.W. The W.M. said he did not intend to make many remarks; he would propose the toast of Her Majesty the Queen. The W.M. then gave the toast of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. Most of those present knew him best in that capacity; there were, however, many non Masons present. The Prince had endeared himself to every British heart, and he would ask all present to drink his health, not only as M.W.G.M. but as our future king. The toast was enthusiastically received. Bro. Jas. Willing I.P.M. then rose: He felt proud of the privilege of proposing the next toast; that was the W.M. (Cheers.) Bro. Michael, during his occupancy of the chair, had given them every satisfaction. He was one to whom the afflicted could pour forth their sorrows; as a proof of this he gave up a day's enjoyment for the purpose of assisting a brother in distressed circumstances, and on the occasion he referred to their W.M. succeeded in getting a good round sum. (Cheers.) Bro. Michael was one only to know to respect; under his protecting wing all present had passed a very happy day, and he would with all sincerity ask them to drink the health of the W.M., and to couple with the toast the name of his esteemed wife. Bro. Michael thanked the brethren for the reception the toast had met with; he then gave a capital idea of the duties of Freemasonry, and the social comforts resulting from it. He hoped he had done his duty, if so, he felt proud of being W.M. of so flourishing a Lodge; before resuming his seat he had to propose the toast of the I.P.M.—(cheers)—his year had been a wonderfully successful one. In whatever capacity Bro. Willing's services were required he was always ready to render them, he was foremost in all that was good and charitable, and he would ask them to let the toast have a hearty reception, the healths of Bro. Jas. Willing and Mrs. Willing. Bro. James Willing responded to the toast; he concurred in some portion of the remarks of the W.M., in respect to his rendering any assistance required of him, for his services in any good cause were always at their command. He was pleased to see so many present, even more than was expected, and it afforded him satisfaction to see they were all happy and comfortable. In the name of Mrs. Willing, he begged most sincerely to thank them. He then proposed the health of the "Visitors," Bros. Scard and Barnett, and Messrs. Humphreys and Jackson. This was duly responded to by the two former brethren. The W.M., in proposing the toast of the Officers of the Lodge, and the Stewards of the day, said great credit was due to them for their exertions in conducing to the success of the proceedings. The Lodge had not yet been two years' in existence. Those brethren with whose names the toast had been associated had done the work required of them to the satisfaction of all, he hoped to see them in due course occupying the position of Worshipful Master, their Masonic knowledge was such that they were able to perform the ceremonies correctly. This it was a gratification to know, more especially as they were so young in the Order. Bros. Williams, Kingham, Time P.M., Douglass, Stiles and Scales responded. Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. 188 returned thanks for the ladies. The shades of evening were approaching, and reminded the company that some miles had to be traversed before they arrived at their homes. On reaching Paddington Station hearty good wishes were given, and hopes expressed that future assemblages might pass as pleasantly as this, which was thus brought to a happy termination.

Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held at the Bridge House Hotel, Borough High-street, on Wednesday, 26th July. The W.M., Bro. Thos. J. Sabine, was supported by Bros. Wilkins S.W., Stidolph J.W., Kemp S.D., and Hudson J.D. The business of the evening consisted in raising Bro. H. Levy and the initiation of Messrs. George Newman and Edward Coleman. This is one of the new Lodges, an offspring of Mount Lebanon, No. 73, and although it was only consecrated last year, it promises to be one of our best and most prosperous Lodges. We had lately the pleasure of visiting it, and it is most gratifying to witness, in a new Lodge, such perfect harmony and good fellowship amongst the brethren assembled. There were present as visitors Bros. Adams 765, Wilkins 141, and Spiegel 188.

ANNUAL EXCURSION OF ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 70, PLYMOUTH.

ONCE in every year it is the practice of the members of this old Lodge to have a quiet re-union a few miles out of town, and some place of interest is visited. Last year the far-famed caverns at Yealmpton were explored, and the dinner was provided at the "Volunteer Inn." On Monday last the locality selected was the neighbourhood of Motheoombe Bay—with its magnificent inland, river, and coast scenery; and thither, in drag, carriage or on horseback, wended the members and their friends. Having enjoyed the healthful and invigorating sea breezes they returned to Holbeton, where dinner was provided by Bro. J. Evens of "The George." Amongst those present were—Bros. H. W. Thomas W.M. 70, W. B. Hambly P.P.G.T., L. D. Westcott P.P.G.S.W., S. Jew P.P.G.T., J. B. Gover P.P.G.A.D.C., F. P. Holmes P.P.G.S.W., John Du Pré P.P.G.D.C., Isaac Watts P.P.G.T., J. Ferris P.M., John Evens P.M., C. Cooper P.M., E. T. Tarratt J.W., R. G. Bird P.M., Jos. Arnold S.D., W. Adams, W. Lister, G. R. Mitchell, S. Ramsdon, S. Roach, E. J. Richardson, G. Thorne, J. Willcocks, W. Wyatt J.D., E. Hart O. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. shortly and efficiently proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. S. Jew returned thanks for the P.G. Lodge, expressing the gratification he felt at seeing so many P.G. officers present to do honour to his old and esteemed Bro. J. Evens. Bro. Gover, the Secretary, proposed the health of the W.M., Bro. H. W. Thomas. It was, he said, always a pleasure to speak of one who so ably presided over them, whether in or out of Lodge, and who was ready to do his duty at all times. During his Mastership the Lodge had been united in accord and concord, and he had proved himself second to no Master who had preceded him. The W.M. thanked the brethren for the hearty reception of his name. It was a high honour and great pleasure to preside over a Lodge so numerous and so unanimous. He was gratified to see so many old P.M.'s around him on the present occasion, when they wished to do especial honour to the Father and oldest Past Master of the Lodge. He should now call upon Bro. J. Watts to perform that pleasant duty.

Bro. J. Watts then proposed the health of the Wor. Bro. Evens. Some thirty years since he had the pleasure of being Bro. Evens' Senior Warden. Bro. J. Ferris, who was present, was at that time Junior Warden. They had worked well together, then, and since, and he hoped, as he was convinced every other brother did, that Bro. Evens might be spared for very many years longer to give them the advice and assistance for which his experience so well qualified him.

Song:—"The fine old English gentleman."

Bro. Evens replied that their applause had taken him a little aback, but he was very happy to see so many of his esteemed brethren around his table, especially his old Wardens, Bros. Watts and Ferris, who succeeded him in the chair. He was not so constant a visitor as formerly, but if wanted at any time his brethren might always rely upon his prompt attention to summons. His Lodge (and if he were the Father she was certainly his Mother) had known many vicissitudes, but he was glad to be able to congratulate them on their present happy condition.

Several other toasts followed, interspersed with vocal and instrumental music, the cornet solos of Bro. E. Hart being especially appreciated. A drive home along the sweetly smelling Devonshire lanes and roads concluded a most enjoyable day.

CLUB HOUSE PLAYING CARDS.—Mogul Quality, picked 1s 3d per pack, 14s per dozen packs. Do. seconds 1s per pack, 11s per dozen packs. If by post 1½d per pack extra. Cards for Piquet, Bésique, Ecarté, &c., Mogul Quality 10d per pack, 9s per dozen packs.—London: W. W. Morgan, 67 Barbican, E.C.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS OF ENGLAND.

A QUARTERLY Convocation of the Supreme Grand Chapter will be held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, 2nd of August, at 7 p.m.

The business is as follows:—The Minutes of the last Quarterly Convocation to be read for confirmation.

The Committee of General Purposes will report that they have examined the accounts from the 19th April to the 18th July 1876, both inclusive, and find them to be as follows:—

Balance Grand Chapter	627	17	0	Purchase of £500 Consols at 95¼ and commission	478	2	6
„ Unappropriated Account	149	12	11	Disbursements during the quarter	178	14	4
Subsequent Receipts	456	16	9	Balance	399	1	11
				„ in unappropriated account	178	7	11
	£1234	6	8		£1234	6	8

The said balances are in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., Bankers of the Grand Treasurer.

The Committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Companions John Chalmers as Z, Edward John Jones as H, Richard M. Blaker as J, and seven others for a Chapter to be attached to the Jumna Lodge, No. 1394, Delhi, to be called the "Chalmers Chapter," and to meet at Delhi, Punjab, in the East Indies.

2nd. From Companions Edward Twizill as Z, George Awburn Allan as H, Addison Potter as J, and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Tyne Lodge, No. 991, Willington Quay, to be called the "Tyne Chapter," and to meet at the Masonic Hall, Willington Quay, in the County of Northumberland.

3rd. From Companions Robert Hamilton as Z, Samuel Rawson as H, Hugh David Sandeman as J, and fifteen others for a Chapter to be attached to the Friends-in-Council Lodge, No. 1383, London, to be called the "Friends-in-Council Chapter," and to meet at No. 33, Golden-square, London.

4th. From Companions Anthony Stewart as Z, Charles Alfred Gorham as H, Henry Studholme Brownrigg as J, and eight others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Charity, No. 563, Umballa, to be called the "Umballa Chapter," and to meet at Umballa, Punjab, in the East Indies.

Which Petitions being in all respects regular, they recommend that the prayers thereof be respectively granted.

The Committee have also received a petition from the Fortescue Chapter, No. 847, Honiton, stating that the Charter having been unfortunately lost, and although diligent search has been made, there appears to be no chance of its recovery, they pray Grand Chapter to grant them a Charter of Confirmation. The Rev. John Huyshe, Grand Superintendent of Devon, supports the prayer of the petition, which the Committee recommend Grand Chapter to grant.

The Committee are sorry to have to report that on the simple ipse dixit of a brother that he had been 12 months a Master Mason, the "Old Globe Chapter, No. 200," Scarborough, exalted him contrary to Article 67, page 22, of the Royal Arch Regulations, which requires that satisfactory proof of a Brother having been 12 Calendar months at least a Master Mason shall be given. The Committee believe that the Chapter did not wilfully err, but in order to mark their displeasure of the carelessness displayed, have inflicted a fine of one guinea on the Chapter, have directed the Grand Scribe E. to admonish it to be more careful in future, and not to issue the certificate without the Companion has been re-obligated at its next meeting.

THE DRAMA.

The Operatic Season—Drury Lane and Covent Garden.

THE Italian Opera season this year can hardly, as a whole, be considered an artistic success. Only two new works have been produced, both at Covent Garden; and the only novelty, or quasi novelty, promised at Drury Lane, Il Talismano, was not performed at all. Of the two new works, Tannhäuser has been given eight times, and Aida five times, and both may be considered to have achieved a fair degree of success. In justice to Mr. Mapleson, it deserves to be stated that he has this year laboured under peculiar disadvantages. In the first place, his attention has of necessity been divided between Drury Lane Theatre and his new National Opera House, in process of completion, on the Thames Embankment. And, in the second place, his arrangements have suffered from the illness of some of his principle artistes. To begin with, Madlle. Tietjens has on several occasions been too unwell to appear, and this has occasioned the non-performance of Cherubini's Medea, and other serious disappointments. Signor Stagno, again, was for a long time prevented singing by a severe cold; and Mdlle. Marguerite Chapuy, from a similar cause, was unable to appear at all during the entire season. Notwithstanding these disadvantages, however, there has been some notable performances at Drury Lane, which relieve from barrenness the season at that house. Amongst these we may mention the admirable performances of Faust, with M. Faure, Mdme. Trebelli and Mdme. Nilsson; Don Giovanni with M. Faure, Herr Rokitansky, Mdme. Trebelli and Mdlle. Tietjens; Lucrezia Borgia with Mdlle. Tietjens and M. Faure; Semiramide, the Huguenots and Lohengrin. The casts have been especially strong in these productions, and fairly good in many others, whilst the orchestra and chorus, under the able direction of Sir Michael Costa, have maintained a high degree of excellence throughout.

Turning to the Covent Garden Theatre, we find that, beyond the productions we have before alluded to, and the ever welcome appearances of Madame Patti, the season has offered but few performances that deserve to be permanently recorded. An unusually large number of works was there produced, but quality in many cases was more than questionable. A smaller number of works, with more thorough rehearsal, would, in our opinion, have given greater satisfaction to the subscribers, and to the public at large. Madame Patti, of course, has maintained her artistic supremacy, and the performances in which she appeared have been the principal successes of the season. Madame Albani may, however, be said to have strengthened her position, by her admirable performances in Lohengrin and Tannhäuser, the music of which seems peculiarly to suit her voice and style of singing. Mdlle. Zare Thalberg has been fairly successful, especially in L'Elisir d'Amore, which was given, we think, five times. We ought not to omit a reference to the excellent ensemble in the performance of Guglielmo Tell, which, apart from the new productions, were amongst the most satisfactory of the season. It is probable that next year, if the new National Opera House is completed, a more than ordinarily brisk competition will be maintained between the rival houses. From such a competition the public will be certain to profit.

Freemason's Chronicle;

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

VOL. IV.—No. 84. SATURDAY, 5th AUGUST 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

BIBLICAL RESEARCH.

WE gladly direct our readers' attention to the letter from a clergyman (to whom we must express our sense of obligation for his interesting disquisition), concerning events recorded in the Exodus, and illustrated in a summary of certain Egyptian researches, given at page 34 of this volume. All are now familiar with the works of Bishop Colenso, and the progress of modern criticism upon the early Scriptures of the school which he may be said to have founded. Scholars applying the imperfect tests of their limited acquirements to an analysis of such time-old records, would do well to avoid all appearance of dogmatism, which can but lay them open in turn to reprisals from men of all opinions. How frequently it is seen that maturer reasoning and deeper researches come to disabuse the too-confident caviller and to overthrow the transparent structures reared by a too-eager infidelity. In the firm conviction that free discussion of all assertions and open review of all discoveries in Eastern exploration will but enhance the value of the sacred record, we shall do our utmost to obtain the latest intelligence upon these subjects to lay before our readers. In the Bible story, Freemasons, of all men, are the most interested, from a point of view at once Masonic and archæological: we earnestly beg for the kind co-operation of those more favoured among our subscribers, whose acquaintance with Hebrew and other Oriental languages, or whose special opportunities for investigation may qualify them to speak with authority. We shall welcome their contributions, which a large circle will peruse with pleasure.

RENEWAL OF HOSTILITIES.

WE had indulged till quite recently the hope that we had seen and heard the last of the Yorkshire relish for squabble. The war waged by West Yorkshire against the management of the Boys' School had, as we imagined, come to a close. We thought it had been fought out honourably, and that we should hear of no more differences. It seems, however, we were reckoning without our host. West Yorkshire, having organised its forces, and dealt its most important blow, has been defeated. It declines, however, to accept its defeat in the manner in vogue among honourable men. It has resolved to pursue the contest. There is, manifestly, not the slightest hope that a prosecution of the struggle will lead to any other result. West Yorkshire may organise and re-organise its forces. It will be defeated again and again, but the decision will not be accepted. We do not care to be always repeating old differences. At the Quarterly Court held in the spring of the year, the leading members of the Province attended, and expressed their strong disapproval of the School management. Others arose who expressed approval, and these latter prevailed by a signal majority. There, under ordinary circumstances, the matter would have been allowed to rest. Unhappily, however, there seems, in this case, to have been imported a certain malignity of spirit. It is not enough that a question should be tried and settled this or that way. It must be tried again and again, no matter how considerable the annoyance or damage that may be caused. In former days it was the practice of civilized nations to slay those who defended untenable places, and very properly. No object is served by resistance under such circumstances. Similarly, in our narrower Masonic world, it were desirable there should be no opposition, when opposition is unlikely to prove serviceable. All this, however, is, it seems, against the grain of West Yorkshire. It has differed. It has pressed its difference, and unavailingly. It may indulge in further objection, but no good will follow. Ordinarily we should have supposed the case settled, but this is not to be. West Yorkshire will not recognise publicly its defeat. Its popular S.G.W., Bro. Gill, of Wakefield, strove lately, at Huddersfield, to secure harmony in the Province. He earnestly adjured Bro. Booth to withdraw an offensive resolution. Past D.G.M. Bentley Shaw followed suit, and the Provincial Grand Master did his utmost to restore friendly relations between the School and the Province. The endeavour succeeded for a time. But this week, it seems, the war has not ended. West Yorkshire has made known its grievance, but no one sees its force. Nearly all the forty other provinces are pleased with the condition of matters, but West Yorkshire is not pleased, and there must be bitter war henceforth as previously. We are fairly entitled to put the very important question, Cui Bono? All who have been invited to give an opinion have done so, and the result is unfavourable to the province over which Sir H. Edwards presides Obviously no benefit will follow from a renewal of the difference, but much harm. The world of Masonry declines to accept the West Yorkshire theory about school management, and no argument whatever will prevail to alter these circumstances. But even so, there is to be no return of peace, it seems. A Provincial Grand Master, a Past Deputy G.M., a Past Grand Warden, and the very considerable body of W. Yorkshire brethren who look at the matter in the same light may be quite willing to bury the remembrance of past differences, but the fiat has been issued—by whom we care not. A few days since and we were all rejoicing over the peace in store for us. Now, it seems, there is to be no peace, and the friend and immediate neighbour of West Yorkshire has resolved to embark in the struggle, so far, at least, as the expression of its sympathy may be taken as an act of war.

It is impossible to prescribe that all brethren shall adopt one uniform set of opinions. We have a right to demand, however, that the opinions of the majority shall not be rudely disturbed, to the detriment of the general community. We are not stopping to consider whether the views of the smaller section are right or wrong. We find they are unacceptable to the greater number, and we know that to press them in the face of such opposition will inevitably inflict damage on the Craft. The Deputy P.G.M., Bro. Tew, was aware of this when he issued his last pamphlet, and now we hear of North and East Yorkshire aiding and abetting him in his unwholesome plans. Surely a firm stand should be made against this renewal of hostilities. We, who have been charged by both sides with a feeling of partiality, call upon all right-minded Craftsmen to give ear unto the voice of common sense. Nothing good will come to anybody if the recent controversy is revived and continued from now till the day of doom. The present generation of patrons and subscribers has emphatically rejected the opinions of Bro. Tew. He may be right, but no one thinks he is; and, as a man of honour, he is bound to fight no longer. After all, the interests of the School are paramount. No one is absurd enough to imagine that wrong has been done wittingly. The views of the Governing Body may be right or they may be wrong. They are, however, arrived at after due consideration. So, too, West Yorkshire. Its policy may be right. The world, however, thinks otherwise. A few days since, we were congratulating everybody that, henceforth, there would be perfect harmony among the Provinces. Now—at the moment of writing—there are those who think harmony a complete mistake. In the profane world, people are all the better when they agree to sink their differences and live on. But the conduct of the outside world, though regulated by the dictates of common sense, seems unworthy for us to follow—at least in the estimation of Bro. Tew's partisans.

Is it a great thing to ask that this miserable opposition be stamped out, once and for ever? Are we not bound to further the interests of the School as far as we can, and always beyond all else? It seems to us the School and others are being called upon to sacrifice everything to the cause of a pamphleteer. We say, emphatically, this must not be. A factious opposition is utterly contemptible. We admire a man who has the courage of his opinions, who has a policy and is eager to have it adopted. When, however, it is settled that such policy is not generally appreciated, we have a right to expect that it shall not be thrust upon us. It is, no doubt, very lamentable that all the world does not hold the same belief as Bro. Tew as to what he considers the folly and extravagance of the Governing Body of the Boys' School. But Bro. Tew and his partisans, as well in North and East as in West Yorkshire, being unable to convince the world of their error, must bow to the inevitable. Their ideas can only be made to prevail at the cost of the School, and this is too costly a price to pay for the privilege. We call upon West Yorkshire to stamp out this opposition. We invite its neighbour of the North and East Ridings to suppress all partiality for disputes. Such partiality is both un-Masonic and unmanly.

RESUMING Eliphas Levi's cabbalistical exposition, we read, "On providing a place for man and a first sanctuary for his alliance with the Divine, Moses mentions a garden, where, from a single source, four rivers divide (the Jod and the Tetragram); then the two trees of life and death. There man and woman, the active and the passive, are placed. The woman is attracted towards death and draws down Adam in her fall, they are then driven from the sanctuary of Truth, a cherub being stationed at its gate to guard the tree of life from profanation. Here we see that a dogma of mystery, with its allegories and horrors, has replaced the simple Truth. An idol has taken the place of God, and fallen humanity is ripe for the worship of the golden calf."

"Thereupon is indicated the necessary and successive reactions of the two principles one upon the other, in the story of Cain and Abel. Force revenges itself by oppression, for the superior charms of weakness, which dies martyred and pleads against the consequences of crime, disgrace and remorse. Thus is revealed the equilibrium of the moral world, thus the basis of all prophecy and the fulcrum of all intelligent policy are laid. To abandon a force to its own excesses is to condemn it to suicide."

"This is what was wanting to enable Dupuis to comprehend the universal religious dogma of the Kabbala: the knowledge of that splendid hypothesis, partly shown, and realised more and more each day by scientific discovery,—universal analogy: deprived of this key of transcendental dogma, he saw only in the Gods—the sun, the seven planets, and the twelve signs; he could not perceive in the sun, the image of Plato's Logos, in the planets the seven notes of the celestial gamma, and in the zodiac the quadrature of the ternary cycle of all initiations."

Levi sums up the metaphysical application of the preceding doctrine in the celebrated axiom: "A thing is not just because God wills it; God wills it because it is just."

He then describes the degeneracy of cabbalistic interpretations into superstition, by a process of reasoning which explains the process of degradation to which many another doctrine has submitted, thus—

1. The symbol expresses the thing.
2. The thing is the virtue of the symbol.
3. There is an analogical correspondence between the symbol and the thing signified: the more perfect the symbol the greater the correspondence.
4. To speak a word is to evoke a thought and to render it present. To name God, for example, is to make God manifest.
5. The word acts on the soul, and the soul reacts upon the body; therefore, one may terrify, console, afflict, heal, even kill and resuscitate by words.
6. To give a name is to create or to call up a being.
7. In the name the verbal or spiritual doctrine of the being itself is contained.
8. When the soul evokes a thought, the symbol of that thought is written in the light (astral light).
9. To invoke is to adjure; i.e. to swear by a name is to do an act of faith in that name, and to commune with the virtue which it represents.
10. Words are therefore good or evil, poisonous or salutary, of themselves.
11. The most dangerous words are words vainly and lightly proffered, because they are voluntary abortions of thoughts.
12. A useless word is a crime against the spirit of intelligence, an intellectual infanticide.
13. Things are for each of us, what we make of them in naming them. The word of each one of us is an habitual prayer or imprecation.
14. To speak well, is to live well.
15. A good style is an aureole of sanctity.

Hence, resulted amongst superstitious cabbalists an absolute faith in enchantments, evocations, conjurations and mystic prayers. And as FAITH (concentrated in will-power) can accomplish prodigies; so apparitions, oracles, marvellous cures and sudden maladies have not been wanting to confirm them in their delusion.

Concerning a personage whose existence has of late been disputed. Cabbalists say that the occult or true name of the devil is that of Jehovah written backwards. This is like a revelation to the initiate in the mysteries of the tetragram. For in fact, the order of the letters in the Grand Name indicates the predominance of the idea over the form, the active over the passive, the cause over th effect. By reversing the order, we obtain the contrary. Jehovah is He who dominates nature like a rider his horse, Chavajoh (the devil) is the unbridled steed, which, like those of the Egyptians in sacred song, overturns its rider and plunges him into the abyss. The devil then really exists for the cabbalist, but neither as a person nor as a force distinct from the forces of nature herself. He is Intellect in delirium or in trance, he is Folly and Falsehood.

A sound recipe for the perpetuation of youth is given by Levi: "Prevent the soul from ageing by sedulously preserving that original freshness of sentiment and thought which a corrupt world calls illusion, and which I should call the primal reflection from eternal truth." Believe in goodness, in friendship, in love, in a Providence which numbers our steps and will recompense our tears. Like an utter dupe, the world would say; not perceiving that the dupe is he who imagines himself strengthened by shearing his soul of its attributes of strength. To believe in moral good is, spiritually speaking, to possess it. The kingdom of heaven has been promised to those who would make themselves like little children. What, then, is childhood? It is the age of Faith; the child knows nothing of life, and rejoices accordingly in confidence of immortality. Can it doubt the love and care of Providence whilst it nestles in its mother's arms? It is a type of happiness that may well be envied.

Abstract happiness, from its nature, can only be conceived of as infinite, Godlike; this leads us to enquire as to the cabbalistic definition of God, which is given thus: Man can only conceive of Him as an infinite or rather indefinite man; for the terms of comparison for any other conception are wanting. It follows that all which tends to personify Him, inevitably leads to anthropomorphism or idolatry. For this reason cabbalists distinguished between the essence-God and man's idea of Him, to the latter only do they give a name, Jehovah or Adonai. Apprehending divine things by their shadow projected in the human soul, they consider that it presents to us all divine notions in an inverse sense, which in order to conceive of the truth in essential harmony we must invert again, and deduce "the analogy of contraries."

This judgment of ordinary things, by antithesis, is represented, as we have said before, by the two triangles, one upright and the other inverted, which form the six-pointed star of the mysterious seal of Solomon, our Royal Arch Jewel. Each triangle, separate, represents an incomplete and consequently radically false idea; in the union of both is the truth.

Eliphas Levi applies this interpretation to the Scriptures, divining that as in the first chapter of Genesis we find the creation in six days, the antithesis gives us the ideal development of Deity in six nights. God, says Genesis, made man in his image, and philosophy proves that man made also God in man's likeness. The philosophic fact has served as basis for the theurgic statement by the analogy of contraries. The progress of the human spirit in seeking to define Deity; revealed to Moses, by antithesis, the successive periods of Creation.

"The first chapter of Genesis, cabbalistically rendered, gives a luminous summary of the progress of universal theogony in the human spirit. Isolated, this summary would represent the Divinity as a fiction of man. The text of Moses, taken by itself, as usually read, would seem a fable. But upon uniting the two opposites, upon forming the double triangle, we shall be astonished at the light which dawns upon us. This is the inversion of Genesis, I."

"For ever, the immensity of Heaven and the extension of the earth inspired man with a conception of God."

"But this idea was indefinite and vague, a mask of shadows over an infinite shade; and man's spirit brooded upon its ideas as on the waters."

"Man then said: There must be a supreme intelligence; and there was a supreme intelligence. And man saw that it was good, and distinguished the Spirit of Light from that of Darkness; he called the former God, and the latter Devil, and there was a Kingdom of Good and one of Evil. This was the first night."

"Man said also—There must be an utter separation between the dreams of heaven and the realities of earth! And it was so; and man divided the things above from those below; he called the imaginary division Heaven. And the evening and the morning made the second night."

"And man said: We must separate in our religion the masses of clouds from the dry vault of heaven. He gave to the dry heaven the name of father, to the firmament the name of mother. And man saw that it was good, and said, let there be bred in heaven all manner of symbols whence dogmas shall issue one from another, as the seed from the herb, and the herb from the seed."

"Let us plant the primeval tree of mysterious and immortal fruits: and the heavens bore symbols like herbs, and the mysterious trees were born. And man saw that it was good. Thus the evening and the morning made the third night."

"Man said also: Let there be mystical planets in my heaven, that they may divide knowledge from ignorance, day from night! And it was so: and man made two splendid Divinities, the great one for initiates, the small one for the people, and lesser Gods numerous as the stars. And he placed them aloft in his heaven to be rulers of the earth, and to make a distinction between knowledge and ignorance, between day and night. And man saw that it was good, and the evening and the morning made a fourth night."

"Man said also: Let the clouds bring forth flying dragons and grotesque shapes. And the clouds bore monsters to frighten children and devils with wings; and man blessed them, and said: Increase and multiply, and fill the heaven and the earth; and man placed all the animals of earth in turn upon his altars. And the evening and the morning made the fifth night."

"Man then adored animals and reptiles of all kinds, and having seen the effect, he said: Let us make a God in our image and likeness, that he may be ruler of the mythologic leviathans, of the monsters of heaven and of hell. And man made a God in his image and likeness, and blessed it and said: Increase and multiply thy images; I give thee the empire of heaven and dominion of earth. And it was thus; and man saw what he had made that it was beautiful. And the evening and the morning made the sixth night."

The foregoing is but one out of the innumerable fancies of the Cabbalists, who, throughout ponderous volumes, whose collection would fill waggons, must have exhausted every refinement of speculation and every subtlety of ratiocination upon the symbolical and cryptic dogmas of the East; preparing the way for those Manichees in Gnostics, of whom the Pope assures us that Freemasons are the more impious representatives.

ODDS AND ENDS.

By Walter Spencer, F.R.G.S., &c.

A CHARACTERISTIC example of early Colonial manners and customs occurred at Port Lyttelton, N.Z., one day when I had ridden over there from Christchurch, on business. I dined in company with various acquaintances at an excellent restaurant which had been started there by a Frenchman. Two of the company had to return earlier than others, and went round to the stables to saddle their beasts. I believe that all of us had been imbibing freely in colonial fashion; and my friends found that some one in playful jest had abstracted the horse of one of them—Jim Woodville. Jim swore he would have somebody's horse, and as we all hastened to secure our property, the only unclaimed animal was found to be a broken-down job-horse, known as "Old Jacob." No saddle or bridle was forthcoming, but Jim, with the recklessness produced by strong potations, hastily fitted on a halter, and mounting bare-back, spurred up the hill. The direct road goes over a mountain as steep and precipitous as Victoria Peak at Hong-kong, zigzagging sinuously to the top. The first railroad in New Zealand was just then being commenced from Lyttelton to Christchurch, by tunnelling through the mountain; a rude refrain, sung everywhere in the colony, ran thus:

"The governor says he will bore a hole through the hill,
For a railway to Christchurch according:
Sixty thousand pounds a year will be circulated here,
Coming from the other side of Jordan."

which sentiment could not be other than gratifying to the generally impecunious public of the place at that time. The iron road, however, was, as yet, only on paper, and over the old tortuous stony one all hurried travellers had to go. The angles of many of the zigzags overhung sheer precipices, which were marked by low rubble walls, to prevent accidents in the dark. Approaching one of these, Jim and his comrade were canvassing the respective merits of certain steeple-chasers, when, inspired by a bright idea, the former asked, "Did you ever see 'Old Jacob' jump?" Receiving a negative reply, and being incapable of seeing more than a yard in advance, Jim put spurs to his beast, with the exclamation, "What! never saw 'Old Jacob' jump!" and, ere his startled companion could stop him, flew over the rubble wall and utterly disappeared from view. His friend dismounted in alarm, and gazed, horror struck, over the parapet. At about forty feet below he distinguished the form of the old white horse among the rocks and boulders; he scrambled down the side to the spot, and found Jim extended prone amid flax-bushes, white and unconscious. All efforts to reanimate him proving unavailing, he had to take him on his back, grasping the arms over his shoulders, and with incredible labour to carry him up again on to the road after a painful and circuitous climb. This operation occupied four hours. He then secured him on his own horse, and took him back to Lyttelton, where a surgeon succeeded in bringing him to.

FREEMASONRY AND THE BANK HOLIDAY.

We understand that there is likely to be a large gathering of Freemasons in the old City of York on Monday next (Bank Holiday), the occasion being the ceremony of constitution of a new Masonic Lodge by the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland. The movement, which has resulted in the establishment of the Eboracum Lodge, which will stand No. 1611 on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England, has, we learn, received very wide and substantial support amongst the brethren of the mystic tie, and every preparation is being made to celebrate the opening ceremony in a befitting manner. The Lodge room is situated in Micklegate, next door to the Queen's Hotel, and is a most suitable apartment, handsomely furnished. The ceremony has been fixed by the Provincial authorities to take place at 2.30 p.m., and at 4.30 p.m. a banquet has been arranged to take place at the De Gray Rooms, York. The day and the occasion will doubtless draw a large muster from both provinces, and many Freemasons will be glad to embrace the opportunity of visiting a city containing so much that is interesting to the archæologist and associated so intimately with the old Masonic Legends.

Holloway's Pills and Ointment.—The close, sultry weather which prevails during the late summer months, is very liable to give rise to various forms of febrile and abdominal complaints, the action of heat on the vegetation causes emanations of a most deleterious character to be given off, and these permeate the air and so are taken into the system by breathing; the products of vegetable decomposition also find their way into our water supply, and hence a other source of danger arises. Whenever any symptoms arise, indicating that incipient fever, or diarrhœa, is developing itself, immediate recourse should be had to these remedies. The Ointment must be used assiduously to the abdominal surface, and the Pills taken inwardly in aperient doses.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Early History and Transactions of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York, 1781—1815. Published by authority of the Grand Lodge. Granted to Kane Lodge, No. 454, June 1874. Parts I., II., III., IV. New York: Masonic and Miscellaneous Publishers, No. 2 Bleecker-street. D. Sickles and Co., Managers. 1876.

Of the Union Lodge of New York it is recorded that it took part in the celebration of St. John the Evangelist's festival on the 28th December 1767, and from the minutes of Solomon's Lodge, No. 1, of Poughkeepsie, it appears that Robert R. Livingston, afterwards R.W.G.M. of Grand Lodge, was the W.M. during 1771.

Masters Lodge No. 2, City of Albany, received its warrant on the 5th March 1768 from P.G.M. George Harison, those named in the document being "William Gamble Master, Samuel Stringer Senior Warden, and Jeremiah Van Rensselaer Junior Warden." Its early minutes, we are told, are very complete and highly interesting, even the minutest details having been most carefully recorded. A number of extracts are quoted in the pages of this history, permission from the guardian of these treasures having previously been accorded to Bro. Barker. Sundry of these we take leave to reproduce. Within a month from the date of warrant we have recorded the making of a Mr. Peter Schuyler. As he is said to have been personally known to the members, his petition was granted, and "he was entered accordingly, and to be charged with the following dues, viz.—

Dues of the Charity Fund	...	...	£8	0	0
„ to the Tyler	...	...	0	8	0
„ of remaining year	...	...	1	10	0
			£10	0	0"

These dues Bro. Schuyler liquidated a few days later, namely, on 13th April, on which occasion Bro. Stringer as Treasurer was ordered to remit to the P.G.M. the sum of £3 5s "for the dues of our warrant." It was further agreed unanimously to hold the ordinary meetings of the body on Wednesdays. At a meeting held on 1st February of the year following, a petition to the R.W. Grand Master, Sir John Johnson, and letter accompanying, with reply thereto, were entered on the minutes. The petition was for a renewal of the warrant by the title St. John the Evangelist's Lodge No. 2, of Albany, constituting Bro. Samuel Stringer Master, with power to appoint his officers. On receipt of this the old warrant to be transmitted for the purpose of being cancelled. This petition is signed by Samuel Stringer, William Gamble, and Jer. Van Rensselaer. The covering letter we give in extenso:—

SIR:

At the request of the body, I take the liberty of enclosing herewith a petition from the Masters Lodge, No. 2. of this place, over which I have the honor of presiding, and as the sense of the whole request that you would be pleased to grant the prayer thereof as speedily as may be consistent with your own convenience. The reasons for renewing our warrant are many and urgent. Our local advantage as well as the completeness of our apparatus, are perhaps superior to those of any other Lodge in the Province; and we will endeavour to render our conduct as Masons inferior to none. I beg leave to refer you to the petition itself, being with the greatest respect, Worshipful Sir,

Your affect. Bro. and most humble obt. servant,

Albany, 21 Jan., 1769. SAMUEL STRINGER.

To Sir John Johnson, Kt.

The reply was a very courteous letter from Sir John Johnson, regretting his inability to comply with the prayer of the petition. He had not been installed as Grand Master, for his Constitution had not been received from England, and, till then, Sir John thinks no warrant can properly be granted. As to the internal regulations of the Lodge, we find that a fine of sixpence was levied on such members as came late. In the minutes of 4th June 1770, we learn that certain of these fines, amounting together to the sum of four shillings, were given to the Tyler, "to purchase a pair of genteel snuffers for the use of the Lodge." A fortnight later, the snuffers, on which there still remained sixpence due, were delivered, and as a Bro. Hogan came late, his fine of sixpence was handed to the Tyler in liquidation of the balance, Bro. Hogan, however, objecting to the levy, and requesting his name to be erased from the list of members because its payment was insisted upon. At this distance of time, and without fuller records, we cannot, of course, venture to say if the acquisition of the snuffers and the loss of Bro. Hogan must be taken as a fair set off one against the other. Evidently Bro. Hogan was an unpunctual attendant, for he is entered more than once as being fined. But the cost of his unpunctuality went a considerable way towards purchasing "a pair of genteel snuffers," and the use of snuffers, we all know, is to trim and readjust the illuminating power of candles. Thus, though he may not himself have been much of a shining light, Bro. Hogan was indirectly, and in a great measure the means whereby the light of "Masters Lodge No. 2," was made to burn more brilliantly. Query; having an eye to the future, and in the belief that a second pair of snuffers might some day be needed, would it not have been wiser, or, at all events, more expedient, to have refused Bro. Hogan's resignation. Leaving our readers to solve, at their leisure, this knotty point, we note, incidentally, that fines were not always insisted upon. A Bro. Smith, "on account of his not being able to leave his work," is allowed half-an-hour's grace at the very meeting which witnessed Bro. Hogan's extinction. Early in the year 1772, the Lodge, for reasons of state, which are not described, but may readily be imagined, resolved to furnish the Tyler with twelve pint bowls, and any person breaking one of them was to pay the sum of eightpence. It was further resolved that Bro. Van Rensselaer should furnish the same officer with two quart bowls, "which, if broke, is to be paid for by the person breaking the same." In later minutes we obtain an insight into the reason for making these investments. On 4th October 1773, a petition from certain members to form a Lodge by the name of the "St. George's Lodge," of Shenectady, is presented, with a request that the Lodge will support it with its recommendation. The petition is thereupon signed by the W.M. and his Wardens, and the seal of the Lodge affixed thereto. In December of the same year, a donation is made to St. Peter's Church towards the purchase of an organ. Several years pass, and then we read that, on 9th Jan. 1778, Brig.-Gen. John Starkie is balloted for and initiated, paying for his initiation £5, to the Tyler 8s, and for Extra Lodge 4s. The year following, certain fees, dues, and fines are raised in amount as follows:—

"Each person for being initiated in this body, shall pay the sum of	£12	0	0
To the Tyler the sum of	2	0	0
For each quarter the dues to be	0	16	0
For Extra Lodge the sum of	1	4	0
Fines for not attending regular Lodge night	0	8	0
„ „ „ Extra „ „	0	4	0."

At an Extra Lodge held on 12th April 1784, the W.M. submits "a letter received from the Secretary of the Grand Lodge at New York, informing the body that the Right Worshipful Brother Robert R. Livingston had been elected Grand Master." "Masters Lodge No. 2," has doubts about "the propriety of such election," and accordingly a committee is appointed to confer with a committee of Union Lodge thereon, and ordered to report the morrow evening at 5 p.m. Bros. Ganswoort, Ten Eyck and Abr'm G. Lansing form the Committee. In the month of May a Constitution is received from Grand Lodge for perusal, and again the subject is referred to a committee, which is ordered to confer with Union Lodge Committee, "to determine respecting the rights of the Grand Lodge in New York." On 25th April 1785 it is resolved, on the motion of Bro. Gerrit Lansing, that the fines for non-attendance and late arrival shall be expended in the purchase of liquor "for the good of the Lodge when called from labour to refreshment." The resolution is then and there carried into effect, for it is recorded "Paid for liquor, 2s." Thus, according to preceding tariffs, either four members arrived late, or the fourth part of a member did not attend. At an extra Lodge on 12th December of the same year, a summons to attend Grand Lodge is brought under notice. This summons it had been found impossible to obey, owing to the absence in the country of the W.M. and a majority of the members, so that a sufficient number did not remain for holding a Lodge. Having in 1772 invested in the purchase of pint and quart bowls, and having subsequently resolved to expend all fines for non-attendance in the purchase of liquor, the Lodge, we presume, after a fair amount of experience, finds either its labours too onerous or its supply of liquor from this source inadequate. On the 21st Nov. 1786, is recorded a resolution: "That the Treasurer take order to procure for the use of the Lodge one quarter caske of Lisbon or sherry wine, five gallons spirits, two loaves sugar, and two dozen glasses." We are unable to learn from the minutes vouchsafed in these pages whether this resolution was acted upon immediately or not. Therefore, we are not in a position to determine if the motion next recorded was the result or in anticipation of any result that might follow the purchase of this wine, spirit, sugar, &c. At all events, on 15th January 1787, on the motion of Bro. J. Lansing it is resolved that "no Brother be allowed to drink more than half-a-pint of wine each Lodge night." It is also further ordered that "the Steward pay strict attention to the above," and then, on the motion of the same Bro. J. Lansing, we read a mysterious instruction to the effect that "the 10th article of the By-Laws be put in force." No doubt the curious reader will wonder, and the flippant reader smile at the juxtaposition of these two minutes. It is by no means out of the way to suggest the resolution of January, restricting the quantity of wine to be drunk by each member, as the conclusion based on certain premisses, of which the order to purchase wine and spirits in the preceding November was either the major or the minor. The year following we read that the election of the Lodge officers was determined in the manner prescribed by the State Grand Lodge, namely, "by ballot for all the officers," instead of in the manner laid down in the Lodge By-Laws. Thus the Masters Lodge was gradually bringing itself within the fold of the State Grand Lodge, and in 1794, after consultation between a Grand Lodge Committee, consisting of Bros. De Witt Clinton and James Ogden Hoffman of the one part and a Lodge Committee, consisting of Bros. Stephen Van Rensselaer and Thomas Ellison," of the other part, a report was delivered, the result being that Masters Lodge No. 2, placed itself under the jurisdiction of the State Grand Lodge, and was awarded the rank to which by virtue of this warrant it was entitled. In 1798 it is reported to Grand Lodge. The old warrant had been surrendered and a new one issued in its stead, and the officers installed under it. Till 1819 this Masters Lodge No. 2, became known as No. 4; since June of that year it has held the place of No. 5 on the Grand Lodge Roll.

King David's Lodge was warranted by the same R. W. George Harison, on the 17th February 1769, being located in the city of New York, and Bro. Moses M. Hays was its first Master. Here it remained till the year 1780, when the then W.M. carried the warrant to Newport, R.I. There a Lodge was opened under it, and continued to work for several years after.

Solomon's Lodge, No. 1, of Poughkeepsie, was warranted by P.G.M. Harison on the 18th April 1771, on the recommendation of Robert R. Livingston W.M. of Union Lodge, New York, and afterwards M.W.G.M. of the State Grand Lodge. The Lodge was constituted, and the officers, namely, Bros. James Livingston W.M., Jonathan Lewis S.W., and John Child J.W., installed by the same W. Bro. R. R. Livingston, on the 22nd May following. The Lodge held its regular monthly meetings uninterruptedly during the war, the feasts of Saint John being duly celebrated. Bro. James Livingston retired from the chair in December 1774, but was re-elected in 1776, and continued in office till 1780, when he was appointed Secretary. The following Bye-laws, adopted at the organisation of the Lodge, is worth while re-quoting:—

"ARTICLE I.

"In open Lodge without order or decency a dissolution must be the consequence.

"Therefore, at the third stroke of the Master's hammer, a profound silence shall be observed, and if any Brother Curses, Swears, or says anything Irreligious, Obscene or Ludicrous, holds private committees, disputes about Religion or Politicks, offers to lay any wagers, Interrupts any brother who is speaking to the Master, or hisses at what he is or has been speaking, is not on his legs when he has anything to say to the Master, sits down uncloathed or with his hat on, or smoakes Tobacco in open Lodge or is Disguised in Liquor during Lodge hours, such offending Brother shall for the first offence be gently reproved and admonished by the Master, for the second offence shall be fined one shilling, for the third offence be fined two shillings, and for the fourth offence to be immediately expelled the Lodge and never be admitted again as a member or a visitor unless he be balloted for and received in like manner with a strange brother, Paying all fines due as per these bye Laws and Eight Shillings as a new admission fee if he chooses to be reinstated as a Member."

Among the visitors present on December 27 1782, occurs the name of no less illustrious a man than "Bro. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Commander-in-Chief." "Solomon's, No. 1," was represented in Grand Lodge June 1784, surrendered its old warrant on 6 Sept. 1796, was placed No. 5 on the roll in 1800, and in 1819 No. 6. It has not been represented in G.L. since 1827.

As already mentioned, the petition for the formation of "St. George's Lodge, No. 1, of Shenectady," was recommended by Masters, No. 2 Lodge, and the dispensation was granted by the M.W. Sir John Johnson P.G.M., on 21st June 1774, Bros. Christopher Yates being appointed W.M., Benjamin Hilton jun. S.W., and John Hengan J.W. A second Dispensation was granted on 13th December of the same year, the preamble reciting "that whereas the former dispensation, according to its own limitation, will expire on the twenty-seventh instant, and whereas the obtaining the same warrant is unavoidably impeded and delayed, and the said brethren, for the benefit and advancement of the Craft, are desirous and solicitous of having the duration of the said dispensation renewed and continued, and the virtue of this last dispensation extended until the next festival of St John the Baptist, succeeding the then approaching festival of St John the Evangelist, providing they could not obtain a warrant, and be installed sooner." The Lodge was accordingly held and continued under this second dispensation, but shortly after, the warrant bearing date the 14th September 1774, signed "John Johnson G.M.," and attested by "William Seton G. Secretary," was received. The Lodge was held once a fortnight, on Saturday evening. Some interruptions, however, occurred during the war. The initiation fee was five pounds ten shillings and sixpence, of which eight shillings was allowed the Tyler, the quarterly dues being half-a-crown. Every visitor, except on the occasion of his first attendance, was required to pay two shillings to the Treasurer. The Lodge was not represented in Grand Lodge till April 1792. It ranked as No. 7 in 1800, as No. 8 in 1819, and has been No. 6 since 1839.

"Military Union Lodge No. 1," was constituted by Dr. Peter Middleton, Deputy G.M. of the P.G. Lodge of New York, in April 1776. The petitioners were the officers and members of "American Union Lodge," warranted by the W. Bro. Richard Gridley P.G.M., Massachusetts, on the 13th February 1776, the warrant empowering Bro. Joel Clark and others to hold a Lodge in the American army, then at Roxbury, Mass. That part of the army with which the Lodge was connected, removed soon afterwards to New York, and hence the petition to Dr. Middleton. Instead, however, of confirming the Massachusetts Warrant, Dr. Middleton granted them a new one, under the style and title of "Military Union No. 1." The minutes relating to these transactions are preserved. On June 20th 1776, at a meeting held at "Bro. Vandanham's," it was voted, firstly, to celebrate St. John's day, and then, "That the utensils, consisting of Aprons, Glasses, Candlesticks, Bible, &c., purchased under the American Union Lodge, be returned to the said American Union Lodge, and considered only as lent to Military Union Lodge." The Lodge met frequently till the 15th August 1776, the record following, which reads thus:—

"The British troops having landed with a large body on Long Island, the attention of the American army was necessary to repel them. On that ever memorable 27th of August, the Right Worshipful Joel Clark, Elisha Hopkins, Ozias Bissell, Joseph Jewett, Nathaniel Gore, being taken prisoners; and on the 13th September, Bros. James Chapman, Micajah Gleason killed; William Cleaveland and John P. Wylly taken prisoners, and Bro. Otho H. Williams taken prisoner at Fort Washington, by which misfortunes the Lodge was deprived of its Master and some most worthy members, and many other brethren were called to act in separate departments, wherefore the Lodge closed without day."

A meeting is recorded in the year following, and then nothing follows till 15th February 1779, when the Lodge is at Reading, Connecticut. W. Bro. Joel Cloake having died in captivity, a new election of officers was held, Samuel Holden Parsons being elected W.M., Jonathan Heart S.W., and Elisha Marshall J.W. The last entry in the Record Book bears date 10th March of this year. From other sources it appears the Lodge was on the Hudson River, near West Point in the summer of 1779, and at Newburg from 1781 to 1783. For a part of this time Colonel John Parke was W.M. of the "Military Union Lodge," and the Lodge remained under the authority of the P.G.M. of New York while located within its jurisdiction. The original warrant, we are told, "was taken to Marietta, Ohio, by its Master, Jonathan Heart, who, together with many of its members who had removed to the then new settlements on the Ohio, reopened the Lodge."

St. John's Regimental Lodge No. 1, was warranted 24th July 1775, being attached to the United States Battalion during the war. No records of it remain. It was located at Clarkstown towards the end of the war, and was known as "St. John's Lodge No. 1, Clarkstown." It was represented in Grand Lodge, New York, 23rd June 1784. Under its warrant a Lodge was held at Warwick, Orange Co. N.Y., and on December 23rd application was made to Grand Lodge for a warrant under the title of "St. John's Lodge." The prayer was granted 26th March 1790.

St. John's Lodge (No. 4), New York, was organised in 1776 by those members of St. John's No. 2 who remained loyal to the English Government. When the provincial troops left the city in September 1776, the officers of No. 2 retired, taking with them the warrant, while the properties were secured by those members who remained and who continued to assemble as a Lodge. On 5th February 1783, application was made to Grand Lodge, and they were admitted and granted a warrant as St. John's, No. 4. On 3rd June 1787 it ranked as No. 6; in 1800 as No. 9; in 1826 the warrant was surrendered to Grand Lodge.

"Zion Lodge" was warranted in 1773, was located in New York during the early part of the war, and is described as an Ancient Lodge. Two extracts from the New York Gazette and Weekly Mercury, dated respectively 30th June and 22nd December 1777, relating to the festivals of St. John the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist, are all the information that has been gathered as to this Lodge.

Lodge 169, A.Y.M.—Registry of England. Warrant dated 13th July 1771—appears to have been held at first in the City of Boston. It was the most prominent of the Lodges held after the commencement of the war, and is said to have been acknowledged as the leading Masonic authority by the various army Lodges. In 1781, the convention for the organization of Grand Lodge was held under its auspices, and the W.M. assumed, pro temp., the authority of G.M. The first P.G.M. was a member, and so, also, was the first Grand Secretary of the State Grand Lodge. Subsequently it took the title of St. Andrew's Lodge. On 3rd June 1789 it ranked as No. 3, but subsequently it became No. 7, and held that rank until 1827, when the warrant was surrendered.

Lodge, No. 210—Registry of England (Ancients), warrant dated 20th February 1779—was one of the Lodges which took a prominent part in the establishment of Grand Lodge in 1781. The warrant was surrendered 3rd June 1789, and a new one granted, as "Temple Lodge, No 4," on 2nd December of same year. In 1794, the name was changed to "Jerusalem Lodge." Subsequently, owing to internal dissensions, the warrant was revoked, and new warrants were granted to "Trinity, No. 10, and Phœnix, No. 11," the old properties being divided between the new Lodges.

"Solomon's Lodge, No. 212."—Registry of England (Ancients), warrant dated 1st November 1780—took part in the organisation of Grand Lodge. On 3rd September 1783, the name was changed to St. Patrick's. In 1789 it ranked as No. 5. No records since 1795.

Zion Lodge, U.D., was attached to H.M. 57th Reg., its dispensation being dated 16th June 1780, and granted at the instance of No. 210, A.Y.M. seconded by Nos. 133 and 134, Registry of Scotland. It took part in the formation of Grand Lodge, which granted a warrant dated 2nd January 1783, James Huston being W.M., William Auld S.W., and Samuel Haggan J.W. Representation in Grand Lodge ceased after 1783.

Of other Lodges in New York, whose connection has since been severed, we read of No. 52, 37th Foot, Moriah, No. 133, 22nd Foot, 213, in the Royal Artillery, Lodge 215, A.Y.M., in 2nd Regiment Brandenburgh Anspach, and Lodge 441, Registry of Ireland, in H.M. 38th Foot.

This closes the chronicle of the early Lodges of the Grand Lodge of New York. We now pass to the transactions of Grand Lodge itself.

As we have said, the warrant of the Grand Lodge (Ancients) of London, to which the present Grand Lodge of New York traces its origin, was granted by G.M. the Duke of Athol on 5th September 1781, and the R.W. the Rev. William Walter, John Studholme Brownrigg (doubtless an ancester of our present highly respected Lieut.-General William Studholme Brownrigg, P.G.M. of Surrey), and the Rev. John Beardsley being therein severally appointed Provincial Grand Master and Grand Senior and Junior Wardens. Under this warrant, the Provincial Grand Lodge held its first meeting on the 5th December 1782, the above mentioned in their several capacities being present, together with representatives from the following Lodges, namely: Nos. 52, 37th Foot, Moriah, 133, 22nd Foot, 169, A.Y.M., 212, 210, A.Y.M., 213, A.Y.M., 215, A.Y.M., 441 (Registry of Ireland), 38th Foot, and Zion, U.D. The warrant, &c. having been read, and the above officers proclaimed with the usual solemnity, Bro. James McCuen P.M. 169, was appointed and invested D.P.G.M., Bro. William Cock W.M. of 212 was then appointed G. Secretary, Bro. James Clarke, Secretary of No. 169, Asst. G. Secretary, Bro. Joshua Watson, W.M. of 210, G. Treasurer, and sundry other brethren, Grand Deacons and Grand Stewards. It was then determined that the Lodge should meet for the dispatch of business the first Wednesday in every month, and some other formal business having been transacted, and the prayer duly recommended of certain brethren for the formation of a new Lodge having been unanimously granted, the Lodge was closed. At the meeting on 2nd January 1783, it was resolved, inter alia, "that a Modern Master Mason, known to be such, may be healed and admitted into the mysteries of the Ancient Craft in the manner determined upon this evening, and that the same be recommended to the several Lodges under this jurisdiction." At the meeting on 5th February 1783, held at Bro. Strachan's, it was resolved that a visiting brother should pay to the Treasurer "one dollar." The petition of St. John's Lodge of New York to become Ancient Masons was granted, and the price to be paid for a warrant was fixed at six guineas, and for a book of bye laws at one guinea. On the 5th August 1783, a Committee of Charity was appointed, and it was further resolved that the Grand Deacons and Grand Stewards, in the event of neglecting to attend on the stated Lodge nights, except from unavoidable causes, should be suspended, and others appointed in their stead. On the 19th September 1783, it was resolved that the Grand Warrant, establishing the Lodge, should be left in charge of the Grand Officers, to be appointed in succession to those about to leave the city, and Grand Master Walter being of this number, he is succeeded by and installs as his successor the R.W. Bro. William Cock, who had become Junior Grand Warden. On the 1st October the thanks of Grand Lodge are unanimously voted to their late G.M. Walter and G.S.W. Brownrigg (who, temporarily, occupies the chair of Deputy Grand Master). On the 5th November a Committee is appointed to consider the state of the Lodge in Connecticut. On the 3rd December it is resolved to hold Grand Lodges the first Wednesday in every alternate month, instead of monthly. On the 4th February 1784, Samuel Kerr, W.M of No. 169, is elected Deputy Grand Master, and R.W. Bro. Cock having announced his intention of resigning the Grand Master's Chair, Bro. Livingston is elected his successor, and installed by proxy. At the same meeting, it was resolved unanimously that a Committee of Charity or Stewards' Lodge be appointed, and meet the third Wednesday in every month, the three oldest Masters of Lodges meeting, however, "as often as possible," to grant relief to petitioners. It was further determined that, henceforth, Grand Lodge should meet quarterly, namely, on the first Wednesday in March, June, September, and December. Thenceforth we have minutes of the meetings of the Grand Stewards' Lodge of Charity. On the 3rd March the newly appointed G.M. Bro. Livingston is in person installed and proclaimed, and a vote of thanks, to be accompanied by a ring, is passed to P.G.M. Cock. At an Emergency Meeting of Grand Stewards' Lodge, on the 27th March, it is resolved unanimously that St. John's Lodge, No. 2, having surrendered its warrant on the 3rd, be admitted to all the rights and privileges of members of Grand Lodge, and take rank of all Lodges constituted after date of the said surrender. It is further agreed that all other Lodges similarly situated to St. John's, No. 2, and who should follow their example, would be similarly received. It is also agreed that the election of Grand Officers be at least fourteen days before the feast of St. John the Baptist. At a Grand Stewards' Lodge on 21st April, Bro. Clark attends and surrenders warrant of Royal Arch No. 8, exhibiting also the proceedings respecting the appointment of Officers and the Lodge Bye-laws. A Committee is appointed to investigate and report, and this report, delivered the 19th May, is confirmed and a recommendation made to Grand Lodge for a renewal of warrant. All which is renewed and confirmed by Grand Lodge on 2nd June. At a Grand Lodge of Emergency on the 23rd of the same month representatives of Solomon's Lodge No. 1, of Poughkeepsie, Union Lodge of Albany, Masters Lodge No. 2, and St. John's Lodge No. 1, of Clarkstown appeared, acknowledged the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge and took their seats accordingly. A resolution to the effect that the officers of the Country Lodges not having produced and surrendered their patents should not be allowed to vote was negatived. The patent of St. Patrick's Lodge, Tryon County, being reported to have been either destroyed or carried off to Canada, it was resolved to grant a new one free of cost. At the Grand Lodge on the 1st September members requiring a Grand Lodge Certificate were to pay for stationery, &c., and to G.S. for filling in and signing same the sum, altogether, of ten shillings, no such certificate to be granted without production of the Master's or presiding officer's certificate. It was further agreed that Lodges should make returns of their members, "noting Admissions, Initiations, and Casualties, in order that a Register may be made." These returns to be delivered to Grand Secretary at every Quarterly Communication. At the meeting of Grand Stewards' Lodge, on 16th February 1785, a Committee was appointed to prepare a code of Bye-laws for the government of Grand Lodge. This report was delivered at a Grand Lodge of Emergency, on the 24th February, and referred to the next regular meeting on the 2nd March, when the report was submitted and accepted, and the Bye-laws ordered to be published.

BIBLICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

Manchester, 26th July 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The author of the article upon the flight of the Israelites from Egypt (in your number of 15th July) may not have perused a little work issued this year by Sir G. B. Airey, on the "earlier Hebrew Scriptures." He would there find corroborative deductions, confirmatory of the interesting discoveries of Dr. Brugsch.

Sir G. Airey, moreover, inclines to the belief that there were volcanic eruptions occurring among the Sinaitic range at the period: he thus accounts for "the burning bush,"—a lambent flame streaming on the wind out of a Volcanic fissure;—and for the pillars of fire and cloud. "So long as the Mokattam hills were between the Israelites and the Sinaitic Peninsula, nothing remarkable was seen. But as soon as they had made the turn which led them to Pi-hahiroth, they saw in front a pillar of cloud by day, and a pillar of fire by night. This continued until they changed the direction of their march to go from Pi-hahiroth to the passage-place, and then the pillar of fire was behind them . . . It will be seen that the march which terminated at Pi-hahiroth was directed exactly towards Horeb, and that there were no intervening hills to interrupt the view of Sinai. We have seen that some months before Horeb exhibited signs of heat; and six weeks after this time it presented all the appearance of Volcanic eruption . . . The pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire were accompaniments of that eruption. Therefore, when the direction of march was changed . . . the pillar of fire was nearly behind the Israelites, not because it had changed place, but because their faces were turned in a direction nearly opposite to that in which they were turned before."

Whilst deprecating the confident tone assumed by the writer of the above, I am not one of those who consider that the received conjectural traditions as to the interpretation and original statements of Holy Writ (especially in the earlier portions of the Pentateuch) bear the stamp of finality. Sir G. Airey, however, continues his hypothesis to account for the subsequent flames and thunders of Sinai at the delivery of the Tables of the Law. Yet it would appear that although the rocks of that region are igneous, there is no Volcanic lava in the neighbourhood. Metamorphic rocks have never been seen as the produce of modern Volcanoes, and it needs, I imagine, some strain upon received geological bases to assume that it was so in this case. As regards the aerial pillar, it has been often remarked by observers of Volcanoes, that what by day appeared like a dense column of cloud issuing from the crater, had at nighttime a highly luminous aspect.

I beg to remain,

Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours sincerely,

A. CLERGYMAN.

LODGE FEES.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

Glasgow, 28th July 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have heard of a case where a candidate for initiation, after payment of the entrance fee and subscription, retracted and declined to proceed. Is he, in such a case, entitled to have the fee returned, or should it be held forfeit?

Yours fraternally,

GLENDEU.

We opine that the fees would be returned. Notwithstanding a case, cited at p. 48 of Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence, where it is stated that, at the Tralee Sessions, a person sued for the return of his fees under somewhat similar circumstances, and the plaint was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had voluntarily handed over the money, and was not entitled to compel its return.

CHARITY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A copy of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE having accidently come into my possession, dated 1st January 1876, I read, with a great amount of pleasure, the poetical effusion of Bro. Walter Spencer.

"As we gaze thro' months to come
Before our eyes the pathless Future reaches;
Expected weal will fructify for some,
And some will learn the moral Sorrow teaches;
To Brethren dear, whose hopes are soaring high,
The year beams, as with Gladness' oil anointed;
Others may think the months too loth to fly
And linger, disappointed.

How good, great and generous are the sentiments here expressed—and yet how true. Yet I fear that, in this money-making age, we do not act in accordance with the author's meaning. How many members of the Craft, overloaded with this world's wealth, fail to see, or pass coldly on the other side, a humble Brother that may perchance be contending against unmerited poverty, sickness and want.

On the day in which Bro. Spencer gave to the world—and to the Craft in particular—the lines previously quoted, after enjoying the festivities of the day, I determined to call upon an old Masonic friend who I had been informed resided in the neighbourhood where I was at that moment a visitor. Intending a little agreeable surprise, I entered his residence, the door of which stood invitingly open. There before me, on a bed of sickness lay one, the remnant of her former self. That wasted form, those sunken eyes, pale and hollow cheeks, with an occasional hectic flush, told me, at a glance, that want, suffering, pain and sorrow were before me; by that couch sat my friend, affectionately trying to soothe the dying form on which I gazed; his words fell on the ear, clear, distinct, loving and affectionate, "Trust in God; cast all your cares upon Him; He is ever ready to help those that call upon and put their trust in Him. He is now our only friend."

In a moment I realised the whole scene, it needed no words to inform me that want and suffering were here. In silence I took the small, thin, transparent hand in my own, and reverently bent my lips towards it. Half an hour afterwards, this unfortunate couple were thanking the Giver of all Good for having sent them a friend when almost every hope had died within them.

Yours fraternally,

ONE OF THE CRAFT.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF MIDDLESEX.

THE Provincial Grand Lodge of Middlesex was held on Saturday, 29th ult., at the Greyhound Hotel, Hampton Court. The minutes having been confirmed, the reports of the Audit Committee and the Charity Committee were read and confirmed. The Secretary then called over the roll of Lodges in the Province. The present position of this Province can best be judged from the following, which was sent out with the summonses:—

It has been deemed desirable, by the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, that a brief review of the progress of Freemasonry in Middlesex, since its formation as a Masonic Province, should be submitted to this Provincial Grand Lodge. On the 1st of December 1869, the late Earl of Zetland, then Most Wor. Grand Master, was pleased to appoint Bro. Lieut.-Colonel Francis Burdett, P.S.G.W. of England and Representative of the Grand Lodge of Ireland, to the high and dignified post of Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, and further to direct that the Province should be constituted at as early a date as possible. It may be well to recall the fact that Colonel Burdett's nomination was the result of the unanimous votes of the delegates of every Lodge in the Province at a meeting specially convened, and that their recommendation was subsequently graciously approved by the then Grand Master. In 1869, there were but 8 Lodges in Middlesex outside the radius of ten miles from Freemasons' Hall—viz., 382 at Uxbridge, 708 at Hampton Court, 788 at Twickenham, 865 at Hounslow, 946 at Strawberry Hill, 1194 at Isleworth, 1237 at Enfield, and 1238 at Southall. The inaugural meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Teddington, on the 22nd January 1870, on which day the "Burdett" Lodge, No. 1293, was also consecrated, Colonel Burdett being the first Master. In the course of the same year, three new Lodges were added to the Provincial roll—viz., "Acacia," 1309, at Potters' Bar (since removed to Southall); "Harrow," 1310, at Harrow; and "Lebanon," 1326, at Hampton. In 1871 the number of Lodges received no addition; but in 1872 two new Lodges, the "Campbell," 1415, and "Era," 1423, both at Hampton Court, were established, and the "Bard of Avon" Lodge, No. 778, was transferred from Stratford-on-Avon, Warwickshire, to a locale in Middlesex. In 1873, the "Thames Valley Lodge," No. 1460, received a warrant for Halliford, Shepperton; and in 1874 no less than three new Lodges were formed—viz., the "Felix," 1494, at Teddington; the "Francis Burdett," 1503, at Hampton Hill; and the "Hemming," 1512, at Hampton. And the list of accessions to our strength closes with the "Abercorn" Lodge, 1549, which was consecrated at Great Stanmore only a few weeks ago. The number of Lodges has thus increased in five years and a half from 8 to 20, and the membership from between 200 and 300 to nearly 1000. But the most gratifying result to the R.W. Provincial Grand Master is the fact that, with comparatively few exceptions, this extraordinary increase in numbers has been attained by the introduction of members who are prepared to fulfil their responsibilities as Freemasons. If it were not so, such a rapid extension in mere numerical strength would become a subject for deprecation and reproof, rather than for congratulation and rejoicing. There are, nevertheless, one or two Lodges in which a greater discrimination in the acceptance of candidates and joining members should be exercised and enforced; and the Provincial Grand Master will hold the Masters of any such Lodges strictly responsible, in future, that the laws of the Craft are obeyed in their entirety, with reference to the status and character of all persons proposed for admission, either as joining members or initiates.

It is, however, very satisfactory to know that the Lodges generally are well and ably worked, that harmony and goodwill prevail amongst the brethren, Masonic complaints being almost unknown in the Province, and, above all, that a steady and liberal support is being extended to the Masonic Charities. Five years ago hardly a Lodge had a vote in its corporate capacity, now, more than half of the existing Lodges are Life Governors of the several Masonic Institutions.

At the last three Festivals the Province was thus represented:—In January 1875, at the "Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution," by five Stewards, producing lists amounting to £186; at the "Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," in May, by fourteen Stewards, with £582; and at the July Festival of the "Royal Masonic Institution for Boys," by ten Stewards, with a total of £400, making in the aggregate the handsome sum of £1,168 as the united donations of the Freemasons associated with the Province, irrespective of large amounts contributed by some of its members, who subscribed through various Metropolitan Lodges, to which they also belong. The Provincial Grand Master especially desires to thank those Stewards, and the brethren who have thus materially assisted them in maintaining so well the prestige of the Province, and he is confident that, as years roll on, the good example which they have set will be followed by their successors in the various Lodges. By a steady adherence to the principles of the Craft, and the laws laid down in the "Constitutions" of the Order, the happiness and prosperity of the brethren will be permanently cemented, and from the experience of the past, which has been so fruitful in true Masonic feeling and good fellowship, the Provincial Grand Master expresses his heartfelt conviction that the Province of Middlesex will ever be conspicuous for the practice of those exalted virtues which at once characterise and adorn our Masonic profession.

An alteration in one of the Bye-laws, referring to the election of Treasurer, having been made, Bro. F. Kelly was proposed for that office by Bro. Dubois, and unanimously elected. The Provincial Grand Master then appointed the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—

Deputy P.G.M.	Sir Geo. Elliott, Bart., M.P.
S.G. Warden	E. B. Grabham.
J.G. Warden	Henry G. Buss.
G. Chaplain	Rev. P. M. Hulden.
G. Chaplain	Rev. W. F. Reynolds.
G. Treasurer	Frederick Kelly.
G. Registrar	David W. Pearse.
G. Secretary	R. Wentworth Little P.P.S.G.W.
S.G. Deacon	H. A. Dubois.
J.G. Deacon	Frederick Walters.
G. Supt. Works	Col. Wigginton.
G. Dir. Cer.	Capt. A. Smith.
Asst. G.D.C.	T. Nash.
G. Sword Bearer	E. H. Thiellay.
G. Organist	Reginald W. Williams.
G. Pursuivant
Asst. G. Pursuivant	Robert Heladon.
G. Tyler	J. Gilbert.

It was then proposed by the Provincial Grand Master that the sums of £10 to the Benevolent Institution, and £10 10s to each of the Schools be voted from the funds of the Provincial Grand Lodge, all of which amounts were voted unanimously. Bro. Little proposed "That a committee be formed for the purpose of commemorating, in an appropriate manner, the completion by the R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett of seven years in his office as Provincial Grand Master, and of testifying to the great advantage which the Province, has received from his rule," and that the committee should consist of all Past and Present P.G. Officers, the W.M., Wardens, Secretary and Past Masters of the various Lodges in the Province, with power to add to their number. Both of these propositions were well received and unanimously carried. Letters of regret from various brethren at being unable to attend the P.G.L. were read, and a petition for a Lodge to be held at West Drayton, under the title of the Unity Lodge, was presented. P.G.L. was then closed.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Durham will be held at South Shields, in the Free Library Buildings, under the banner of St. Hilda's Lodge, No. 240, on Tuesday, 24th October 1876.

ALWAYS TOO LATE.

By B. P. REYNOLDS, M.D.

From the "VOICE OF MASONRY."

HOW many men there are in the world who are always too late, and therefore all through life accomplish nothing worth naming? They are never a success, just because they are always late. If they promise to meet you at such an hour, they are never present until half an hour after. No matter how important the business is, either to yourself or to them, they are just as tardy. If they take passage in a steamboat they arrive just as the boat has left the wharf; if they have to meet the cars, they have started a few minutes before they have arrived. Their dinner has been waiting so long that the cook is out of patience, and half the time is obliged to set the table again.

This trait of character we have described they always pursue. They are never in season at church, the Lodge, at a place of business, at meals, or in bed. Persons of such loose habits we cannot but despise. Much rather would we have a man too early to see us, always ready, even if he should carry out his principle to the extent of the good deacon, who, in following to the tomb the remains of a husband and father, hinted to the bereaved widow that, at the proper time, he should be happy to marry her. The deacon was just in season; for scarcely had the relatives and friends returned to the house, before the minister, who had called to console the widow, made the same proposition to her. "You are too late," said the widow, "the deacon spoke to me at the grave."

Scores have lost opportunities of making fortunes, receiving favours and obtaining even husbands and wives by being a few minutes too late. Always speak and act in season, and be ready at the appointed hour. We would not give a fig for a man who is not punctual to his engagements, and who never makes up his mind to a certain course till the time is lost. Those who hang back, hesitate and tremble—who are never on hand for a journey, a meeting, a trade, a lover, or anything else—are poor sloths, and are ill calculated to get a living in this stirring world of ours.

Our advice is: be in time; be punctual and methodical in business; be always on hand at the right time; be punctual in your engagements; if you make one, keep it. "Punctuality is the soul of business." Never procrastinate; numberless are the evils which proceed from delays in not doing things at the proper time,—from the habit of not being punctual, and of putting off for to-morrow what might be done to-day. They really prevent the accomplishment of half the purposes of life. Just look at the evils! They begat, first, tardiness negligence, by familiarizing with omissions of duty; secondly, falsehood, in order to conceal faults; thirdly, dishonesty, with a view to amend it; and lastly, open crime, as the result of a gradual inducting perhaps began with being a little tardy. One of the first lessons impressed on our mind at school was, "Procrastination is the thief of time." Let us always remember it.

PROSPERITY OF THE "SPECIALITE SHERRY."—The unbounded success of this wine may be judged of by the public through the medium of the following facts:—When Messrs. Feltoe and Sons first announced the "Spécialité Sherry," five years back, they were doing a fair business upon the old fashioned system of long credits and large profits, assisted by four clerks; they adopted the popular cash payment system, and have now nearly 30 clerks, and the magnitude of their business has necessitated removal to their present extensive and commodious premises in Aldermanbury-street. (Their large export business is conducted in the London Docks.)

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

IN a few days the work of Parliament will be over, and Honourable Members will be scattered to the four winds of heaven. But though the prorogation is a matter of days only, there seems to be no relaxation of bitterness in the Education contest. Even on Saturday, which is usually a dies non—the House met for the dispatch of business, and on Thursday a series of divisions took place at one of the latest stages of the Bill. We do not think the Opposition should be pushed to this extremity. There is not the remotest prospect even of a chance victory over the well-marshalled forces of the Government, and the sooner the new Elementary Education Bill becomes law the better. An invitation to the Government by one of the Irish Members, supported by a strong force of his compatriots, to release the Fenian prisoners, met with no sympathy with the House, notwithstanding the support of the Right Honourable John Bright, Member for Birmingham. The Debate on the Turkish Question was finished in both Houses in a single evening. There can hardly, indeed, be said to have been any opposition to the policy pursued by Ministers, who obtained the sympathy of nearly all classes of politicians. There was a certain amount of criticism, but the opinion generally prevails that Mr. Disraeli and the Earl of Derby have upheld the dignity of their country, and that Russia has had a severe snubbing for its pains. The adjourned Debate on the Extradition Treaties has been brought to an end, the Lord Chancellor having recovered sufficiently to be able to resume his speech.

The Court is still at Osborne, and the Prince and Princess of Wales in London. The Duke of Cambridge has inspected the troops at Aldershott, and expressed his satisfaction with their behaviour. In the City the Lord Mayor has been entertaining Ministers at the Mansion House. Neither the Prime Minister nor the Foreign Secretary was present, but the Marquis of Salisbury was a most efficient spokesman, and the remarks of Messrs. Hunt and G. Hardy in responding for the Army and Navy were very well received. The time-honoured Ministerial whitebait dinner, will, we presume, be fixed shortly, and then our legislators, both Her Majesty's Ministers and Her Majesty's Opposition, will betake themselves to the country and enjoy their well-earned holiday. We trust that foreign politics will prove no obstacle to their uninterrupted enjoyment of it.

The inquiry into the cause of the disaster on board of H.M. vessel "Thunderer" proceeds leisurely. It is, of course, gratifying to know that every endeavour is being made to fathom the mystery, but we do not quite understand why the progress is so slow. Inquests have a greater effect on the public mind when they are held instantly.

The Rifle Volunteers have had their annual camp at Wimbledon, and now the Volunteer Artillerists are similarly engaged at Shoeburyness. This being an out of the way place, the general public appear to take but little interest in the proceedings. The skill of an individual marksman can be appreciated, but average mortals are not quite as enthusiastic about the performances of a whole detachment. Nor is it so generally understood what constitutes excellence in gunnery. Thus the Artillery meeting at Shoeburyness, though equally important with that of the N.R.A., attracts far less attention. Good solid work, however, is done, and the camp is a model of discipline during its occupancy by our volunteer gunners. Simultaneously with this, experiments have been made with the eighty-ton-infant. Heavier charges of powder are used at nearly every round, and the more are fired, the more satisfactory appears to be the result. This is highly gratifying, especially now, when there are wars and rumours of war in the East of Europe.

The speech of the American Minister at the Mansion House, on the occasion of the Ministerial Banquet, was a capital specimen of after-dinner eloquence. Mr. Pierrepoint appears to be a thoroughly genial man, and the influence he seems likely to exert will, no doubt, be promotive of still friendlier relations between the country he represents and Great Britain. There is every reason why the two nations should be always on the friendliest terms, but differences between relatives are sometimes of a very bitter character. It is manifest that Mr. Pierrepoint has resolved that, so far as in him lies, the bonds of unity shall be drawn closer. This is the best way we have heard of celebrating the Centennial of American Independence. We are, in fact, one people, though separated by the Atlantic, and should have but one mind.

Yachting is well in season, and, next week, we shall have grand Cricket doings at Canterbury. Gloucestershire has been fighting sundry battles, and in every case the victory has inclined to her side, thanks to the marvellous skill of the Graces. W. G. has been outdoing himself, and having scored four hundred against a North Country team, has since exhibited, in a North v. South match, even better form, and made the large score of 126 out of a total from the latter of 154. The only other player who made a long stand against the Northern bowling was Pooley, who put together 14, the rest of the eleven being responsible for just fourteen. The Eton and Harrow match at Lord's is, par excellence, the public school match of the season, but quite as good Cricket is often seen in other school teams. Uppingham, Cheltenham, Marlborough, Rugby, have latterly been handling the willow, not altogether without success. A Rugbeian carried out his bat for just one hundred against a good representative eleven, and that is no small achievement. Kent, too, has had more than victory to record, thanks to the energy of Lord Harris, and the skill he displays in every match he takes part in. We well remember the old days when in the cricketing world Kent could point with pride to the eloquent motto, nulli secundus. But this month will see the end of the Cricket Season. Later matches are not looked upon as part and parcel of the legitimate proceedings of the year. This month, too, will see the prime of yachting. A short time hence, and we shall have the doings of the Royal Yacht Squadron and the Victoria and Albert Clubs to chronicle.

The news from the seat of war is, of course, conflicting, but there is little doubt the Turks on the one hand, and the Montenegrins on the other, have gained a victory. The former have invaded Servia, and inflicted heavy losses on their opponents, while the latter, owing to the numerical superiority of their force, have driven the Turks back, helter skelter, in the neighbourhood of Bilek, and captured several cannon, as well as two or three superior officers. Meanwhile, rumours are afloat as to the abdication of Sultan Murad. He is said to be in such health that his survival for more than a few days is set down as impossible. His brother will succeed, and, it is said, will take command of the army at once. We do not think a change of rulers will make much difference as regards the present crisis, save, perhaps, that it may hasten the intervention of the other European powers. The only other item of foreign news worth recording is the return to her native country of the ex-Queen of Spain, Isabella, after an exile of several years. It is reported she will hold herself aloof from politics. So much the better. Her reign cannot be said to have been a very fortunate one for her people. Let us hope she will exercise no baneful influence over the conduct of her son, who has acquitted himself thus far most creditably in his difficult position. With the restoration of peace Spain should be able to win back some of Dame Fortune's favours. Her resources are immense, and there is absolutely no reason why, financially and politically, she should not prosper. It is noteworthy that on reaching Santander the ex-Queen paid a visit to the Cathedral. This is an act of gracious condescension, which cannot be too highly extolled. Had Isabella shown as much zeal in governing as in praying, we do not think her reign would have collapsed so ignominiously. We wish we were able to record that such acts of prayer were indicative of greater liberality towards other religions. A sense of charity towards other creeds has never been a distinguishing feature in the sovereigns of Spain.

Petitions are in progress for a new Lodge in Newcastle-on-Tyne, to be named the Hotspur; also for one at Bedlington, both in the Province of Northumberland.

DOLORES.

(Dedicated to A. C. Swinburne.)

The world and all restriction scorning,
To thee I flew,
All counsel and all friendly warning
Aside I threw;
And, while thine arm remained beside me,
My love was bliss,
Forgetting every doubt which tried me,
In thy dear kiss.

They told me that the English idol
Was only gold,
That English love, like iron bridle,
Was stern and cold:
And tho', before their whispers perished,
It cost me tears,
I trusted thee with all I cherished,
And stifled fears.

And when, the cup of love full filling,
Our babe was born;
Its smile with sunshine filled our dwelling,
Radiant as morn.
But when joy comes, is sorrow ever,
Alas! in store;
Thou cam'st to tell me we must sever,
To meet no more!

With cold lips thy last kiss was given,
And ruthless eye;
My love was paralysed and riven,
Condemned to die.
Thro' the gateway, to'ards the river,
Thou wentest forth,
As, crying sad Adios! for ever,
I fell to earth.

Mary of Sorrows! thou uphold me!
Thy name most dear.
'Twas not for nought he always called me
"Dolores mia."
Thou know'st the woe of hope departed,
View my despair!
Look down to soothe the broken hearted:
Teach me to bear!

Now calm, in convent desolation,
Thoughts fixed on high;
Our child remains my consolation,
Earth's only tie.
When, in thy Northern clime's December,
The sunbeams shine,
Remember! oh remember
That I was thine!

* Evidently executed recently.

We were "in wandering mazes lost" after a perusal of the foregoing Warrant of Confirmation of the Neptune Lodge, and so solicited the good offices of our esteemed friend, Brother Hughan, who has kindly sent the following interesting reply, which will prove not only of value to the members of the Lodge in question, but also to the Craft generally.—JOHN CONSTABLE.

Truro, 8th July 1876.

MY DEAR CONSTABLE,—No doubt you are puzzled on reading the Warrant of Confirmation of No. 22, London, and if all were true as recited, the key could not be forthcoming.

The facts are these: The Lodge No. 13 became extinct, and on the 6th December 1758, Lodge No. 63 paid to the Charity Fund of the "Ancients" the sum of Two Guineas, to assume its number and position on the Roll, which was agreed to by the Grand Lodge. Such a traffic was not at all uncommon amongst the seceders, unfortunately, and has given rise to so many complications that in several instances it is quite impossible, at the present time, to decide as to the actual age of certain Lodges which are distinguished by numbers, of themselves indicating considerable antiquity.

The "Warrant of Confirmation" is in error as to No. 73, which did not become 23 at the "Union," but the Neptune did as No. 13 at that period, and before 1758 as No. 63. The Lodge which met at the Black Boy, Wapping, was No. 63, and not No. 73, the truth of which may be confirmed by reference to the lists of the "Ancient" Lodges, printed in 1807 and 1813. No. 73 was held in Suffolk, and became 97 at the "Union." No. 63 was continued by another Lodge, at the "Union" becoming 86, in 1832 No. 76, and again to the original number (63) in 1863; St. Mary's Lodge, London, being its present title. If our able Brother H. G. Buss had been installed in the Grand Secretary's Office A.D. 1835, the errors before noted would not have occurred. With best wishes,

Your friend and brother,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

SKETCH OF BRO. T. S. PARVIN, P.G.M.

AND FOR THIRTY YEARS GRAND SECRETARY OF IOWA.

[Written by himself at the request of his brethren, and included in the Proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Iowa for 1873.]

IN this volume we have presented biographical sketches of the first four Grand Masters, all deceased, whose term of service, with that of their successor, fills the period of the first decade (1844-53) of our history, together with sketches of the last four (13-16), whose services were coeval with the period embraced in the volume—the sixth half decade (1869-73). These eight and those intervening (whose history will be continued during subsequent years), were contemporaries of the one "Grand Secretary," a sketch of whose career is importuned at our hands for this series.

Not having a kind friend, as the others had, to volunteer the preparation of such a paper, and being too modest to ask it at the hands of others, and too inexperienced in the line of autobiography, we are not disposed to devote a summer to fighting it out on either line.

We present, therefore, as a flank movement, a page transcribed from the fly-leaves of an old copy of Cross's Chart, the first Masonic book we ever owned, a statement of the order of our advancement in Masonry, and leave to "future generations" the completion of the work.

My earliest and fondest, because of its being my first recollection of Masonry, is connected with the Lodge of which my father and his father were members before I was born. It was held in the second story of an old mansion occupied by the widowed daughter of an honoured hero of the Revolution. Pleasantly located, and overlooking a beautiful village upon the banks of the Cedar, from which it derived its name, and just at that point where the tide "ebbe and flows twice in twenty-four hours" ere it empties into the Delaware on the Jersey side; all its surroundings were in harmony with the beautiful in nature and all that is good and true in man. In the room underneath, this good woman, whom we fondly remember, taught a class of small children, of whom we were one. We children often speculated upon the sights to be seen in that haunted chamber, and often, too, wondered at the operations performed there during the hours when our little eyes were closed in sleep, but of which we heard more or less in the talk among the villagers. For about that time it was rumoured that a man "duly and truly prepared" to become a Mason, never became one, but fled in hot haste, as though pursued by hobgoblins, to his home and frightened wife.

My father, a sea-faring man, was at home from one of his voyages about that time, and being his first born and only son, he could not refuse my request to visit the secret place, for it must be remembered that in those days a Masonic Lodge was never opened to the inspection of the profane world, old or young. I was of the favoured few, and well do I remember that beautiful autumn morning, when, a little lame boy of seven years, I hobbled along, my father, in whom I trusted, leading the way to the abodes of the mysteries, whose ways I have so often since sought with fear and trembling lest I might not find the truth there concealed. That impression was strong and deep upon a mind well cultivated for its age, and every article of the quaint old furniture I could have assigned to its proper place the evening when, fourteen years later, upon the banks of the Ohio, I first saw the light my eyes had longed for during many a year of silent but thoughtful waiting.

On the January morning, in 1838, when I became a free man, with the consciousness that the teachings of a pure and blessed mother had started her boy "under the tongue of good report" upon the voyage of life, I called upon the Hon. Elam P. Langdon, Past Master of the city, and Worshipful Master of the Lodge, one of the oldest in the West, and originally chartered by the Grand Lodge of my native State, and asked him to recommend me to the Lodge, that I might be made a member. I was initiated in Nova Cesarea Harmony Lodge, No. 2, Cincinnati, 14th March 1838, the Worshipful Master, though present, yielding the gavel to his Senior Warden, John Evans, a master workman, and the late Samuel Reed, then Grand Lecturer of the State, acting as Senior Deacon. I have often wondered, even with childish curiosity, why I was not received in the month of February intervening; but, having been informed that in consequence of my lameness it became necessary to procure a special dispensation in my behalf, I rested under the impression that the delay arose from that cause. Upon my return from the triennial meeting at Baltimore in 1871, I tarried a week among the old landmarks where I was raised and educated, and sought an inspection of the old records, where I found quite a business entry to the effect that I was elected, but that, owing to a great fire raging, and burning the large pork house of Bros. ———, members of the Lodge, the conferring of the degree was postponed that the members might repair to the fire and aid in saving the property of the brothers named, etc.

A severe attack of the rheumatism, resulting from a fall when I was some five years old, had lamed me for life, and, under the crustean law of the "operative" Masons, I was debarred a knowledge of "speculative" Masonry. The Grand Master [Reese] was not, however, one of these doctors "learned in law" who can only find brains and hearts in the heels or stomach of the candidate, but rather regarding the "internal qualifications which render a man fit to be a Mason," consented to my becoming one, and I have the unblushing confidence to believe that I have never disgraced the honour or abused the confidence he and his brethren then reposed in me, a poor candidate for the honours the Order might confer upon one who would seek to learn its precepts and practice what he had learned amid all the varying scenes of a checkered life.

The Lodge was old and wealthy, and composed of aged brethren, with only one under middle age, and he fifteen years my senior; hence I became the pet boy of those "fathers in Israel," and predestined long before I was "raised," on the 9th of May following, to become their Secretary, a life's work upon which the light of that hour has not, I think, been shed in vain.

My petition was before the R.A. Chapter, Cincinnati, No. 2, but withdrawn upon my sudden removal from the city. I also dimitted from the Lodge, but was subsequently elected an honorary member therein. Congress had just, 12th June 1838, detached Iowa from Wisconsin, and created it a territory, and Governor Lucas, of Ohio, appointed by President Van Buren, its first, wisest and best Governor, and I had accepted his unsought invitation to accompany him as his private Secretary. Henceforth Iowa became my home, and in view of subsequent facts, I may, without egotism, quote, as not inappropriate to myself, the well-known lines of Virgil:—

"——— quæque ipse * * * vidi, Et quorum pars magna fui ———,"

in the varied pursuits of her history, education, religion, politics, benevolence and Masonry.

Of my connection with Masonry, I shall only here and now speak, and of that briefly:—

At the third session of the territorial legislature in the fall of 1840, Col. Bennett, who had been an aid of Gen. Harrison, at Tippecanoe, and since deceased in Oregon, and his son-in-law, Evan Evans, still a resident of Burlington, called upon me in the council chamber and asked my aid to organise a Masonic Lodge. From my acquaintance with the Deputy Grand Master and Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Missouri, I was requested to prepare the papers and conduct the correspondence. We received the dispensation, dated the 20th of November 1840, signed by Joseph Foster and Richard B. Dallam, and opened the first Lodge in Iowa at Burlington, on the 30th of the same month, when I was appointed Junior Deacon.

I had communicated these facts to my father, who had recently become located in Bloomington, where I resided; and, counselling with Gen. Ansel Humphreys and others, they determined to organize a Lodge at that place, and I was requested to perform the same offices for them, which I did, signing their petition and withdrawing from Burlington Lodge, afterwards chartered as No. 41, and subsequently changed to Des Moines, No. 1.

The dispensation for Iowa Lodge, afterward No. 42 and 2, was dated 4 Feb. 1841, and the Lodge organized 15 February. Ansel Humphreys was named its first Master; my father, an octogenarian, now residing at St. Louis, and who, some years ago, celebrated his golden wedding, was appointed Treasurer, an office in which he has served the various Masonic bodies of which he was a member a generation or more. I still hold my membership in this Lodge of "blessed memory." In the new Lodge I was first appointed Senior Deacon, then Secretary, in which position I served several years. Was elected Master in 1843, represented it in the Grand Lodge of Missouri in 1842-1843, and the Convention that organized the Grand Lodge of Iowa, January 1844, when I was elected Grand Secretary, which position I still hold. I was elected Grand Master in 1852, Past Grand Master Humphreys being my Secretary, and in 1853 we reversed the order of office; was Grand Orator in 1863, closing the first score years of our existence with an address largely historical and commemorative of the past. Wrote the reports on Foreign Correspondence for ten or more years for the Grand Lodge, and at different times for Grand Chapter and Commandery.

Edited the Western Freemason in 1859—69, at Muscatine, and the Evergreen, at Davenport, in the year 1861, and, 1873, am editing the Iowa department of Gouley's magazine, the Freemason, at St. Louis. Am the Grand Representative of the States of New Jersey, Ohio and Missouri, from which I originally hailed as a citizen and a Mason.

As Grand Secretary I have edited and published the Proceedings of Grand Lodge in five volumes, 1844—73, thirty years, and reprinted the first two volumes, 1844—53, 1854—58, thus furnishing the Masonic public a full and complete history of Masonry in Iowa during the entire period since its introduction within this territory. I have founded and organized its library, and published its catalogue, of 144 pages, and issued three editions of the Ancient Constitution, with that of the Grand Lodge. During these years I have seen the Grand Lodge grow from very small beginnings to become first among its equals in all the essential elements that constitute a sound and healthy body Masonic.—Masonic Review.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge met as usual, on Wednesday, 2nd August, at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C. Bro. Rudderforth in the chair. There were also present, Bros. Abell S.W., Fenner J.W., Stalley S.D., Tollis J.D., Gomm I.G., Christopher Tyler, E. Gottheil P.M. Preceptor, and a number of other Brethren. The ceremony of Initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Turley acting as candidate. The first and second sections of the Lecture were then worked by the W.M., assisted by the brethren. An interesting discussion arose from the following incident: A foreign Brother presented himself at the door of the Lodge and asked for relief. Instead of a certificate, which he alleged he had lost, he handed in a scrap of paper about four inches square, containing some recommendation. Under the circumstances it was thought unadvisable to relieve him, upon which he demanded admission as a Brother Mason. Bro. Gottheil ruled that, inasmuch as the Brother had no certificate, and was not personally known to any one present, he could not be admitted. Thereupon Bro. Amor of the Great City Lodge protested against the ruling, and said he had been taught that Masonry was free and open, and any one seeking admission, provided he was capable of proving himself in a legal manner, should not be refused admission. Bro. Gottheil stated in reply that some time ago the Grand Master issued a command that visitors should not be admitted into any Lodge without the production of a legal certificate, and that moreover it was entirely at the option of the presiding W.M., who, of course, as a matter of courtesy, would consult the wishes of the members, to grant or refuse admission to any one, even though he be a well-known member of the Craft. The Book of Constitutions was very explicit upon the point, it states that "no visitor shall be admitted to a Lodge unless he be personally known, recommended, or well vouched for, after due examination, by one of the brethren present." Bro Colmer said, if that was the law, what occasion was there for the Grand Master to virtually abrogate it by issuing the edict Bro. Gottheil mentioned? Bro. Rudderforth replied, he thought it was done to place additional power in the hands of the W.M. should a contingency arise to render its enforcement advantageous. Bros. Amor and Colmer expressed themselves so far satisfied, but said they would pursue the enquiry further. Bro. Gottheil advised them to seek information upon the subject at the Grand Lodge Office. Bro. John Hervey, the Grand Secretary, would, he had no doubt, enlighten them upon the point, and decide whether he had stated the case correctly. Bro. Amor apologised for having interrupted the usual proceedings, but he thought the question one of importance, and thanked the brethren for the kind and Masonic spirit in which the discussion had been carried on. Bro. West, of 1287, was elected a joining member. Bro. Abell will occupy the chair on Wednesday next; the proceedings each meeting commence at seven p.m.

After the Lodge had been formally opened, the first section of the Lecture was worked by the W.M. Bro. Frost P.M. exhibiting the qualifications he possesses for the post which he holds in this Lodge of Instruction, namely, that of Preceptor. Bros. Busch, Mvehler, Leber and Morgan were elected members. PRESENTATION TO COMP. J. O. PARK, P.Z. 122.

ON Monday, 31st July, the Thetis Chapter was opened; in the absence of the Z., by Comp. J. De Neif H. as Z., Wm. McAllister as H., J. B. McKay J., Joseph Douglas Scribe E. On the dais were Comps. Wheeler Z. 73 and Wm. Dobbie P.Z. 119. After the ordinary business of the meeting, it was announced that Comp. De Neif would present the P.Z. with a letter of respect, which was couched in the following terms:—

Companion James O. Park,—By the will and pleasure of the members of this Chapter, Thetis, No. 122, and several other worthy Companions and brethren, a very pleasant duty devolves upon me this evening, to address to you, M.E. Companion, a few words, thanking you for the valuable services you have rendered to Freemasonry in general, but to our Chapter, Thetis, in particular. All honour and praise are due to you, M.E. Companion, for the very able and willing manner you have helped the Thetis Chapter; you have always been, and are still, a father to us in Royal Arch Masonry, and those Companions who have had the good fortune to receive instruction from you are sure to turn out to be very good Royal Arch Masons indeed. For all the valuable services which you have rendered to the Chapter and its members, we are, and always will be, thankful to you, and the name of James O. Park will always be honoured as a most valuable member of the Craft. Words fail me, Most Excellent Companion, to express to you all I and the rest of the members would like to express, but we pray the Almighty Grand Architect of the Universe that you may yet long be spared to us as a bright ornament to our Chapter, and to Freemasonry in general, that you may long be spared to those dear to you at your own fireside, and that God's blessing may descend upon your now gray but honourable head for the rest of those days which it may please the Almighty to keep you in the land of the living. Allow me, then, Most Excellent friend and Companion, in the name of the members of Chapter Thetis, and all those who have kindly come forward, to ask you to accept this small token of our regard for you. Comp. De Neif then handed to Comp. J. O. Park a locket, chain and P.Z.'s jewel. May you be able to wear them for many years to come. Be proud of wearing them, not for the value of the gift, but for the knowledge you receive therefrom, namely, how highly your services will be recorded in the annals of Royal Arch Masonry, and we, the members, are more proud still to adorn you as a Past Principal Z. of this Chapter, and as our pilot who has, notwithstanding the many storms, always safely guided the Ship Thetis and its sailors through them. May you be our pilot still for many a year; while we have you, the foundation of the Thetis Chapter is sure to stand on a firm rock.

Comp. G. W. Wheeler expressed the pleasure he felt at being allowed to contribute his mite towards this object. There was not a harder working Mason in Scotland, whether it was in the Craft Lodge, where he was always ready either to work a degree or act as Inner Guard; as a Mark Master he had also made his mark, while he was truly a "Most Excellent Master;" in the Royal Arch he had reached the Keystone; a Pilot by profession, he had piloted the Thetis from the time she had been first launched till the last election, steering her for eight years through all the shoals and quicksands of her voyage; but even this large amount of work had not satisfied him, for he was a worker in K.T. and Knight of Malta degrees, and as J.G. of the Red Cross of Rome and Constantine, he, Comp. Wheeler, had found him one of his ablest officers, and he was proud to say that in the Ark Mariners and Knights of Babylon he had the pleasure of serving under Sir Knight J. O. Park. He therefore felt they were honouring themselves when conferring honour upon him. Comp. Park replied at length, stating this presentation would only urge him to increased exertions for the benefit of Masonry.

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE,

THE ADMISSION OF VISITORS.

THE question of the admission of visitors into our Lodges recently attracted some attention, under circumstances which do not often occur. As recorded in these columns, a foreign brother, last week, made application for relief at the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, held at Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall Street. The brother came unprovided with any official evidence of his being a Mason. He had merely, as our reporter describes it, "a scrap of paper, about four inches square, containing some recommendation." Under these circumstances, we are not surprised at learning that it was determined not to afford the relief requested. "Scraps of paper about four inches square," even though they may appear to contain "some recommendation," are not much in the way of trustworthy evidence. It is quite possible the applicant was a member of our Craft. We do not, indeed, for a moment imagine he would have urged any claim which he did not consider just and proper. Equally certain are we, however, that the refusal to recognise his claim was, under the circumstances, as just as it was expedient. But a further question arose. The foreign brother finding his application for relief brought with it no solatium, claimed admission to the Lodge as a brother Mason. This also was refused, on grounds which none, we fancy, will question the wisdom of. In the opinion of competent judges, the foreign brother was not properly vouched. He brought with him no satisfactory evidence—that is, of a character likely to commend itself to men of common sense—that he was what he declared himself to be, a Free and Accepted Mason. His "scrap of paper, about four inches square," had no virtue in the eyes of those whose duty it was to determine its merits. Hence the second rejection to admit him as a Craftsman following upon the first,—to afford him the relief prayed for. We are sorry the incident occurred, and it is just possible, had "due examination by one of the present brethren" been made, the question at issue—Craftsman, or no Craftsman—would have been set at rest, beyond the possibility of doubt. All this, however, it was clearly competent for the responsible officer of the Lodge to determine. He elected in favour of rejecting the visitor, and we know of no authority that can justly question the discretion thus exercised. We are sorry if a worthy brother has been kept outside the precincts of one of our Lodges, but in justice to those who were suddenly required to determine a point of value, we cannot say they exceeded the bounds of prudence or discretion. In fact, what they did was done in strict accordance with the Constitutions, and we think those who acted thus resolutely are entitled to the thanks of the whole Masonic community.

The virtue of discretion in a matter of this kind cannot be too seriously urged upon the attention of the Craft. We cannot be too circumspect as regards strange brethren. We do not believe that English Masons are less prone to help the indigent visitor than Craftsmen of other countries. The brethren in this country are not without virtue as beneficent fellows. But rules are rules, and our Constitutions are sufficiently explicit in this case. As Bro. Gottheil pointed out, the law lays it down absolutely that "no visitor shall be admitted into a Lodge unless he be personally known, recommended, or well vouched for, after due examination by one of the present brethren." The applicant for admission was not personally known to any member of the Lodge then present. He brought with him no sufficient recommendation, nor with his scrap of paper, was he, it seems, held to be properly vouched for. We have said that due examination might have been made, but the antecedent shortcomings appear to have been sufficient. The applicant, therefore, was denied admission as a brother as he had previously been refused relief, on grounds which, considering the facts as reported, fully commend themselves to our judgment. The Ancient Charges, as published in our Book of Constitutions, and quoted in Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence, point strictly to an examination: "you are cautiously to examine him," that is, a foreign brother or stranger, "as prudence shall direct," for the very obvious reason "that you may not be imposed upon by a pretender." Further on, Dr. Oliver says: "No visitor can be admitted unless he be known or vouched for by some member of the Lodge, or (if he be a perfect stranger) produce his Grand Lodge certificate, and submit to the usual examination." Pursuing the same subject, we find the following passage, which shows the custom in the United States, the passage being taken from Bro. Dr. Mackey's Masonic Law:—"But many brethren who are desirous of visiting are strangers and sojourners, without either friends or acquaintances amongst the members to become their vouchers; in which case they may still be admitted by certificate, examination, or the aid of the sacred volume, commonly called the Tyler's obligation, which, in the United States, runs in the following form:—'I, A B., do hereby and hereon solemnly and sincerely swear that I have been regularly initiated, passed and raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason in a just and legally constituted Lodge of such; that I do not stand suspended or expelled, and know of no reason why I should not hold Masonic communication with my brethren.' And this is all that Masonry needs to provide." This, then, inclines us to the belief that it would have been wiser, perhaps, to have instituted the examination prescribed by our Constitutions. At the same time we are averse from questioning the propriety of what was done. A W.M. is bound to exercise discretion in such a case, and no doubt the Grand Master's edict, to which Bro. Gottheil referred, and which provides that visitors shall not be admitted without legal certificate, fortified the W.M. in ruling as he did against the stranger's admission. It were well, perhaps, if the Grand Secretary expounded the law absolutely, for the subject, as we have already pointed out, is of the very greatest importance. We know Bro. Rudderforth, who was the W.M. of the evening on which this incident occurred, as a right skilful Craftsman. We know, too, there are Bro. Gottheil and other Masonic luminaries in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction. But all brethren in office are not as well fitted as those we have enumerated to settle this kind of question. In the exercise of their discretion, their action might prove very indiscreet. They would certainly give their best decision, according to the light that was in them, but that best might turn out, unfortunately, disastrous. A carefully defined law, requiring the production of certain evidence, and the examination of the visitor as well, would probably meet all cases that are ever likely to arise. A visitor who is not admitted cannot, or at least ought not, to feel offended. The absence of the legal voucher, due to no matter what cause, is his fault or misfortune, not that of the officer, who, in the exercise of the authority by law vested in him, rules that without such voucher admission cannot be granted. It is far better our Lodges should be made as secure as human foresight can make them against the intrusion of cowans, even though, as a result of such extreme care, occasionally a true brother may be denied admission, than that for the sake of the careless, imprudent, or unfortunate few, any degree of laxity should prevail in the admission of strangers. And the necessity in this matter grows more apparent the more numerous we become as a body. It may seem illiberal, perhaps, but for ourselves we advise any officer who may entertain the slightest doubt about the propriety of admitting a visitor—to refuse admission, but taking care the grounds of such refusal are carefully recorded in the Minute Book of the Lodge.

THE GENIUS OF FREEMASONRY.

IT has often occurred to us that the spirit of Freemasonry is not as genuinely understood and appreciated as it deserves to be. We are often in doubt whether, in practice, full effect is given to the principles we profess. We know there is a vast amount of beneficence among Craftsmen, but we are not quite sure our good works are always done as retiringly and unostentatiously as they might be. Benevolence, too, is not a quality to which the heart of the Freemason is by any means a stranger, but here, again, we are sometimes disposed to question if the benevolence is invariably pure and simple. It is, we fear, quite as often mere lip-service we render as heart-service. The utterances we breathe are the passing compliments of the moment. It is en régle to say pretty things to each other, and we say them. We observe, strictly, the forms and ceremonies of polite society, but it is merely an observance, and nothing more. We are, indeed, professors of Freemasonry, but we are not adepts at illustrating the sterling value of its principles. To a certain extent, it is our duty not to feel any surprise at this. Masons are merely men, and share, in common with all mankind, the weaknesses of human nature, but at our reception into the Craft we bind ourselves to rise superior to the weaknesses of ordinary beings, and we are not always diligent in the observance of this obligation. We deviate frequently from the hard and fast lines laid down for our guidance. We ought to be perfect exemplars of every human virtue. We are not; we often, indeed too often, deliberately illustrate the strength of human weakness, and through passion cultivate error when it were as easy to cultivate truth. In short, and we say it with a strong sense of humiliation, there is a vast amount of humbug about Freemasonry, and we are tolerably certain that now, when Masons are the observed of all observers, is the time to utter a few home truths.

The principles of Freemasonry are coeval with time itself. They are older than the oldest form of religion of which we read in any history. They rest on the firm basis of love—love of God the Creator and man the created. In common parlance this basis is generally known as religion and virtue. The former is the observance of that duty we all owe to the Supreme Being. There is no uniformity in the observance of this duty. It is enough for a man to observe it becomingly. Masonry, in fact, prescribes no form of religious worship, but simply that men shall worship religiously. The limits of virtue, the twin sister of religion, are defined, as accurately as the imperfections of our nature will permit, but no matter how we regard it, and different peoples form a different estimate of virtue—no matter, we say, how men regard it, virtue is neither more nor less than the love of our fellow-man. This love of God, that is, religion, and love of man, that is, virtue, together form the basis of Freemasonry. One difference between these principles is, that the religious element in Freemasonry obeys no particular law. We must all of us worship the Supreme Being, without prescription, however, as to the form of worship. The virtuous element, equally to be observed of all, may find different forms of expression under different circumstances, but the end in view is always the same, to promote the well-being of our fellows. All this may seem, perhaps, mere grandiloquence, mere meaningless talk. Our purpose, however, is to compare the practice of Craftsmen with the professions they make. Love of God and love of man are the principles we profess, and confining ourselves, for the moment, to a consideration of the latter, we ask, in all sincerity,—Do we practice what we preach? We have said beneficence is one of the virtues on which we pride ourselves. We are, as a body, beneficent, but will our motives always bear analysis? Benevolence, again, is a quality we strive to exhibit both in season and out of season, as the phrase runs, but are we benevolent in very truth or merely as regards mere outward form? Are there not those who say they wish a man well, yet secretly do all they can to thwart him. Are there among us none who steal behind and deal treacherous blows? Are we always free and open towards each other privately as well as in the Lodge room? Are there no quarrels and dissensions among us. No exhibitions of bitter party feeling? Are there not those who think far more of those outward and visible signs of Freemasonry, with which they are bedizened, than of the principles laid down in our book of Constitutions? The question, whether a man shall wear a particular kind of jewel is, in the eyes of many, of far greater importance than the question whether the government of our Lodges may, or may not, be improved in this or that detail. It is, in one sense, perhaps, a matter for thankfulness that our archieves are so few and have been kept so carelessly, or we imagine the history of no Lodge but would show the frequent prevalence of bickerings, squabbles constantly breaking out, a narrow spirit of clicquism, or some similar shortcoming, the very reverse of edifying, and worse still, in direct antagonism to the spirit of our Craft. Some of this is to be expected, for we are men, and humanum est errare; but should this difference between our practice and precept prevail to the extent it does? Would it prevail so largely if more heed were given to instructing the young Craftsmen as to the nature of the obligation he has formed? The end of Freemasonry is not the decoration of the person with jewels and ribbons. Were this the case, we should be on a level with the poor, ignorant aborigines of Africa and the Pacific islands, who will make any sacrifice in order to acquire possession of a few beads or a strip of coloured cloth. We are told to believe the badge of a Freemason is more honourable than the badge of any order of knighthood. Yet not a few think of little else than how and when they may wear a mass of tinsel. We do not mean, of course, that decorations conferred for honourable service are despicable. We are pointing now to the silly ambition of those who care little how a decoration is won, so long as it may be worn. Again, as to our fraternal greetings, we could often wish they had a deeper significance. It is true there is an old saying in vogue among us that charity covers a multitude of sins; but it is certainly not an act of charity—that is, an act which illustrates our love for others—when under cover of a polite fraternal address to Bro. A.B.C., we do all in our power,—it may be merely to weaken his influence, or it may be worse still,—to lower him in the just estimation of his fellows. Herein lies the humbug of Freemasonry—that we allow so much of this sham, this make-believe of a fraternal feeling to exist among us. Simplicity is at the root, is of the very essence of Freemasonry. Principles that cannot be folded up so as to present a different aspect under different conditions, a purpose that is directed to the attainment of one object—these are the principles and the purpose of true Masonry. We believe these prevail among us largely, but they are not as operative as they might be for the shams that crowd them in on every side. Let us rub off these, and the glories of Freemasonry will stand some chance of being loved for its own sake.

BIBLICAL ETHIOPIA, &c.

OUR late Bro. Godfrey Higgins cited Sir W. Jones in support of his opinion that a great nation of Blacks (probably straight-haired as distinguished from the African curly haired) possessed, in pre-historic times, the dominion of Asia, their seat of Empire being Babylon. These, he says, must have been the people called Cushites described in Genesis; and the opinion that they were Blacks is corroborated by the Septuagint translation where the word Cush is constantly rendered "Ethiopia."

On close examination we find two Ethiopias mentioned in Holy Writ—one to the southward of Egypt, the other somewhere to the eastward. The people of the latter were called by the Hebrews Cushim: according to 2 Chronicles xiv. 9, where they are said to have invaded Judah, they cannot have been Ethiopians of Africa. King Asa pursued them unto Gerar; and they were overthrown, and Asa smote all the cities round about Gerar. Consequently it must be inferred that these Cushim inhabited some region of or near the Arabian peninsula adjacent to Gerar. The great number described as being smitten, and the spoiling of the cities round about, render it impossible for the sacred historian to have intended to indicate "Gerar," in the lot of the tribe of Simeon. Again, in 2 Chronicles xxi. 16, "the Arabians that were near the Ethiopians" are spoken of. This could not have indicated Africans, from whom they were divided by the Red Sea and by Egypt, but must have applied to a nation settled to the eastward of Arabia.

Bro. Higgins points out that in Habbakuk iii. 7 the words Midian and Cushan are used as synonyms, and that in Numbers xii. 1 "Miriam and Aaron spake against Moses, because of the Ethiopian woman whom he had married: this woman being the daughter of Jethro, priest of Midian." He quotes also the opinion of Dr. Wells, that when in Ezekiel xxix. 10, God threatens to desolate the land "from the tower of Syene to the borders of Cush," he evidently means from one boundary of Egypt to the other. Syene being its southern boundary (by the African Ethiopia), the other must be the other end of Egypt, bordering on Syria and Arabia. Many other passages of the Old Testament point to the same conclusion.

Herodotus says there were two Ethiopian nations; one in India, the other in Egypt. It is maintained also by modern critics that the African Ethiopia is not anywhere named Cush in Scripture. Bro. Higgins adduced a mass of testimony in favour of the probability of an irruption of Blacks proceeding from farther East in very early times into the region of the Euphrates, Syria, Arabia and Phœnicia, whence a settlement of the same nation obtained footing in Egypt—the Shepherd Kings; to be afterwards expelled by the harassed Egyptians into Idumea or Arabia. These oppressors had made "Shepherds" an abomination to the Egyptians: they were doubtless migratory shepherd sheiks, and came in at or after the Fourteenth Dynasty, about 2500 years after Menes.

The old system of chronology is now exposed to the gravest doubt. It originated in the well-intentioned calculations of learned Rabbis and early Christian Bishops, from Biblical genealogies and vaguely recorded epochas. But who can tell what precious fragments of ancient record have been lost, or what lacunæ piously filled up? From the vicissitudes of Jewish writings and traditions, undergone in the several destructions and captivities which befell them, their sacred books are most unlikely to have survived in their entirety. Where is the Book of the Wars—and the Book of Jasher? Let us be satisfied if the essentials of religion have been mercifully preserved to us, without stultifying our reason and staking our faith in their grand doctrines, upon the mere tenure of an uncertain or misunderstood chronology.

No hardy sceptic, nor insidious infidel, but Professor Owen, the laborious palæontologist, says,—"With our evidence of the antiquity of the human species, 7000 years seems but a brief period to be allotted to the earliest civilised and governed community. That a race should have risen so early to that high state, along the Nile, accords with the unique blessedness of the soil and climate." Still, Bishop Russell, the latest writer of eminence on Sacred Chronology, which is mainly that of Hales and Jackson based on the Septuagint, dates the Flood at 5060 from the present year.

"The Hycksos" (or Shepherd Kings), said Professor Owen, in a recent discourse, "in the course of their 500 years' usurpation, accepted the civilisation and the arts of the higher race which they had partially subdued. When finally driven out—and they were pursued by the victorious Amosis as far as Palestine—they took such accession of ideas as they had acquired in Egypt. One invasion is the parent of another—the subjugated becomes in turn the subduer. The Amenophises, the Thotmes, extended the conquests of Amosis. They overran Palestine, and pushed on through Cœlo-Syria and by Carchemis, to the plains of the Euphrates and Tigris, bringing back such slaves as were required for their mighty works in Egypt. In that hard school were trained teachers of the neighbouring populations. But far above and beyond these glimpses of the stream of Egyptian civilisation stands its native source, flowing through the first twelve Dynasties, 3000 years before Menepthar, the Pharaoh probably of Exodus. The commencement of the twenty-second Dynasty was contemporaneous with the reign of Jeroboam."

OPENING OF A NEW LODGE IN YORK.

ON Monday last (Bank holiday) a ceremony took place in the old City of York, fraught with the greatest interest to all brethren of the Royal Art. This was nothing less than the consecration and constitution of a new Masonic Lodge, a ceremony which had not been witnessed within the walls of York for ninety-nine years previously, the last occasion being the consecration of the York Lodge, No. 236, in the year 1777. York is, in its history and associations, very closely linked with Freemasonry. Traditionally it has been the scene of much that is interesting to the Order. It was, according to the cherished legends, in York that the Athelstane charter was granted, in the year 926; it was in the ancient crypt of York Cathedral that the ancient brethren met for the celebration of their rites and ceremonies, and from that time to the present the history of York has been more or less interwoven with that of Freemasonry. Several years ago the propriety of the promotion of a movement for a second Lodge in York was discussed, but it was not until the commencement of the current year that a number of brethren, all deeply interested in the progress of Masonry and the welfare of the Craft, forwarded a petition to the Grand Lodge of England for a warrant for a second Lodge in York, to be called the Eboracum Lodge. In due course the petition was granted and the warrant issued, the number of the Lodge on the grand roll of England being 1611. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, the Earl of Zetland, appointed Monday, the 7th August, as the day for the consecration ceremony, and accordingly every preparation was made by the brethren for the successful celebration of the event. We are happy to know that their efforts were crowned with success, and that the day passed off without a single drawback, the R.W.P.G. Master and his Deputy both expressing their great satisfaction at everything connected with the ceremonial.

The Lodge Room is attached to the Queen's Hotel, Micklegate, and is a very handsome apartment, eminently suited for the purpose. It is lofty and spacious, and its decorations, which have been executed by Messrs. Hartley and Son, are tasteful in the extreme. The chairs and pedestals, which are remarkably handsome, and executed with minute correctness in the style of three principal orders of architecture, have been made from designs from the studio of Messrs. Knowles, of the Mediæval Art Works, Stonegate. The carpet has been supplied by Mr. T. G. Turner, Parliament-street, and a very handsome pedestal, in the form of a double cube, of old oak, together with the dias, are from the workshops of Messrs. Keswick and Sons.

At 2.30 p.m., the brethren assembled, and the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge having been formed into procession in an adjoining room, the Lodge room was entered, and Provincial Grand Lodge opened in ample form by the Right Worshipful Prov. G.M. In addition to the Earl of Zetland there were present, members of the Prov. Grand Lodge, Bro. J. P. Bell D. Prov. G.M., Bro. the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett Prov. S.G.W., Bros. W. Waller P.G.J.W., M. C. Peck Prov. G. Sec., Rev. W. Valentine P. Prov. G. Chaplain and S.W. 236, Wodall (Scarbro') P.P.S.G.W., R. G. Smyth (Hull) Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, C. H. Hunt Prov. G. Org., J. Todd P. Prov. G.O. and Sec. 236, G. Bamford P. Prov. G.O., T. Sissons P. Prov. G.R., T. Cooper P.P.G.S.W. and D.C. 236, J. Ward Prov. G. Pursuivant, and many others. The ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, the musical portion of the service being most ably performed by a choir of Masonic vocalists from Leeds and Bradford, under the direction of Bro. Thornton Wood, the music being the composition of Bro. Atkinson.

Bro. Thomas Cooper P.M. 236, was then duly installed First Master of the Eboracum Lodge, and he appointed and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. T. B. Whytehead, 1338 and 236 Senior Warden, J. S. Cumberland 178 Junior Warden, Geo. Balmford P.M. 236 Treasurer, James Kay 1010 Secretary, T. Take 236 Senior Deacon, C. G. Padel 236 Organist, Seller 235 Inner Guard, J. Redfare Tyler pro tem.

The Deputy Prov. G.M. then gave a long and elaborate address, in the course of which he traced the history of Freemasonry in its connection with the City of York, and expressed his satisfaction at the very auspicious manner in which the Eboracum Lodge had come into existence, anticipating for it a very prosperous future. The W.M., Bro. Cooper, then proposed a vote of thanks to the R.W.P.G.M., the D.P.G.M., the P.G. Sec., and the P.G. Officers who had attended on the occasion, and announced that R.W.P.G.M. the Earl of Zetland, the D.P.G.M. Dr. Bell, the P.D.P.G.M. Bro. G. Marwood, and the P.G. Sec., Bro. Peck, had been elected Honorary Members of the Lodge.

The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the De Grey Rooms, were a sumptuous banquet had been prepared by Mr. J. Toes, in his well known style. The W.M. presided, and was supported by the Prov. G.M., the Deputy Prov. G.M., the Prov. G.S.W., the Prov. G. Sec., &c., &c.; and the following toasts were duly honoured:—"The Queen and Craft," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. of England, with the other members of the Royal Family," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon M.W. Prov. G.M., with the Grand Officers," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland, R.W. Prov. G.M. of North and East Yorkshire," "The W. Bro. J. P. Bell, Esq. M.D., J.P., Past Senior Grand Deacon of England, Deputy Prov. Grand M. of North and East Yorkshire," "The W.M. of the Eboracum Lodge," "The Visiting Brethren," "The Masonic Charities," "The Tylers' Toast," "The York Lodge, 236," "Prosperity to the City of York," &c.

An object of great attraction to the brethren in the Lodge room was an interesting Masonic relic in the shape of an ancient Bible, bearing on its fly-leaf the following inscription: "This Bible belongs to the Freemasons meeting at Mr. Howards' 1761." This valuable memento of the Craft and of a Lodge now extinct has been generously presented to the Eboracum Lodge by Mr. Carter, of Stonegate, in whose possession it has remained for many years.

It were well if, occasionally, a few notes of explanation were vouchsafed us. In the minutes of 7th September 1785 occurs the following entry: "A letter from Parr Lodge in Nova Scotia, including a warrant which had been granted by this Grand Lodge to Bro. McCurn, together with a letter from Bro McCurn, were presented and read." It may not, of course, at this distance of time, be possible to throw any light on the matter referred to, but a bare record like this seems hardly satisfactory. We judge the McCnen referred to is the same who was chosen the first Provincial Deputy Grand Master under the Atholl Grand Warrant of 1781, and who had presided as Grand Master at the constitution thereunder of Provincial Grand Lodge, and the election of Bros. Walter, Brownrigg, and Beardsley as Grand Master and Wardens respectively. What, again, was the nature of the warrant thus included in Bro. McCnen's letter? Any information on such points would obviously possess some value. At the same meeting, we are told, "a letter from the Grand Master at Boston to Paschal N. Smith, enclosing the proceedings of the Convention at Boston," was read, but nothing is said which enables us to judge of the contents of the letter. It is manifestly desirable that some insight into entries of this kind should, if possible, be afforded. At an emergency communication on 7th December, a resolution was passed, "That it is also the wish of the Grand Lodge that each Lodge harmonise the day"—St. John's Day—"by dining in their separate Lodges, and sending Deputations to each other, and that the different Lodges meet at Capes Tavern, to begin the Procession at 11 o'clock, the Grand Deacons to be a Committee to arrange the Procession." A band of music was also to be provided for the occasion. A memorial from certain brethren at Perth Amboy in New Jersey, for a warrant from the Grand Lodge, was referred to a committee at the meeting of the 21st, who reported that such prayer could not be granted. At the meeting of 7th June 1786, a warrant is issued for the Constitution of "St. Simon and St. Jude's Lodge." It was further resolved that on St. John the Baptist's day, instead of having a procession, the brethren should meet and celebrate the festival "at Brother Corre's in Broadway." At the Grand Stewards' Lodge on the 21st of the month a Bro. Morris "made application that the fraternity would attend his benefit play in their Masonic Clothing," but the Lodge resolved this could not be done, though the members expressed their readiness, "in their private capacity," to give him "their countenance and support." Resolution of Lodge 169, A.Y.M., to be known henceforth by the name of Saint Andrew's Lodge, No. 169, was confirmed unanimously. Differences having, this year, unfortunately, arisen between the Master and members of Lodge No. 8, they having dismissed the former from his chair, complaint was made to Grand Stewards' Lodge, and in September it was announced in Grand Lodge that a Committee had "waited on the officers and members, and brought about a perfect reconciliation, mutual concession being made, satisfactory to the honour and dignity of this Lodge." Later we find Lodge 210 informing Grand Stewards' Lodge it had "voted that no dues should be paid to the Grand Lodge of this State in consequence of receipt of letters from the Grand Lodge of England"—Ancients—"requesting them to pay up their dues." On this being referred to Grand Lodge itself, it was at once voted that "no Lodge can exist in this State but under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge." At an emergency meeting held on 23rd December it was resolved "that next Grand Lodge be appointed for all the Lodges in the State to give in their Respective Warrants or Constitutions, or copies of them properly authenticated, that the Rank and Precedency of the whole may be then determined." This, however, was not done till the summer of 1789. Meanwhile, a Committee of nine was appointed "to consider the propriety of holding the Grand Lodge under the present warrant, and the proper measures to effect a change if it should be thought constitutional and expedient, and report their opinion, with the reasons on which it is founded, to the Grand Lodge at their next Quarterly communication." On the 6th June 1787, this committee delivered their report, which was read, accepted, and confirmed, and was to the following effect:—

"That the Grand Lodge of this State is established, according to the antient and universal usages of Masonry, upon a constitution formed by the representatives of the regular Lodges, convened under a legal warrant from the Grand Lodge of England, dated the fifth day of September, in the year of Masonry five thousand seven hundred and eighty-one, the Most Noble Prince John the Third, Duke of Atholl, being the then Grand Master And your Committee further beg leave to report, that, in their opinion, nothing is necessary or essential in the future proceeding of the Grand Lodge upon the subject matter referred to them but that a Committee be appointed to prepare a draft of the style of Warrant to be hereafter granted by the Grand Lodge, conformable to the said Constitution. All of which is, nevertheless, most respectfully submitted to the wisdom of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge.

For some time hence the proceedings offer no special feature. A petition was granted for the constitution of Holland Lodge on the 5th September 1787, on condition "that their Records be kept in English for the inspection of the Grand Lodge." After a considerable delay Lodge No. 210 acknowledges the supremacy of the State Grand Lodge, sentence of suspension and a threat to strike it from the rolls having, however, been thought necessary before it would bring itself to such acknowledgment. With these exceptions there is little to note of general interest till the beginning of 1789, when a resolution is taken that a Committee of one member from each of the Lodges in the City of New York meet in Holland Lodge Room the first Saturday in April for the purpose of determining their rank and precedency. They met accordingly, and at the Grand Lodge of 3rd June of that year their report was delivered and confirmed with only a single dissentient. The Lodges thus represented were as follow, namely. "No. 212," or, as it was afterwards named, "St. Patrick's 212," warranted by the Grand Lodge of England, on 1st Nov. 1780, and rewarranted by the State Grand Lodge on 21st October 1788; "St. John's No. 4," warranted by the Prov. Grand Lodge of New York on the 5th February 1783; "St. John's 210," by Grand Lodge of England, 20th February 1779; "Ind Royal Arch 8," by Prov. Grand Lodge of New York, on 15th December 1760; "St. Andrew's 169," originally held in the City of Boston, in the Province of Massachusetts, by Grand Lodge of England, 13th July 1771; "St. John's No. 2," by Prov. Grand Lodge of New York, 7th December 1757; "No. 5," by Prov. Grand Lodge of New York, 10th March 1783; and "Holland Lodge," by Grand Lodge of State of New York, 20th September 1787. Their rank was determined in strict accordance with the dates of issue of their respective warrants, the positions assigned them being in the following order (1) "St. John's Lodge No. 2"; (2) "Ind. Royal Arch 8"; (3) "St. Andrew's 169"; (4) "St. John's 210"; (5) "No. 212"; (6) "St. John's No. 4"; (7) "No. 5"; and (8) "Holland Lodge." It was then ordered that the several Lodges surrender their warrants and that new ones be prepared and issued to them by the Grand Secretary, that of No. 210 being, at its own request made out and addressed under the style of "Temple Lodge." Hardly, however, was this important arrangement completed when dissensions arose in No. 210, the result being the dissolution of the Lodge, and the issue of a new warrant to that one of the dissentient parties whose views found the greatest amount of favour in Grand Lodge. Towards the close of this year an attempt was made to compel all members elected to the office of Master or Warden to pass an examination previous to their installation into office. The attempt, however, was a failure, Bro. Vandenbroek's motion, which was to the following effect being rejected:—

"That every Master Mason, being or having been a Master, Past Master or Warden, elected or re-elected, to preside in any Lodge shall hereinafter, previous to his installation, be examined by the Grand Officers, or by some skilful person or persons appointed by them, if he is sufficiently acquainted with Masonry, and if he is possessed of the required abilities to fill the chair, and that on his producing a certificate of his having passed a regular and strict examination, and found to be qualified, he can be installed into his office, and not before."

We think the New York Grand Lodge exercised a sound discretion when it rejected this proposal. It would have been tantamount to an official acknowledgment that incompetent men had been elected to fill these important offices. Moreover, an examination, while securing a certain standard of knowledge as regards ritual, &c., would by no means have secured the other qualifications for office, which, in the opinion of many, are even more essential still. A W.M. or a Warden must not only possess a knowledge of his duties, he must show that he possesses prudence, forbearance, firmness, tact, and similar essentials, and no examinational test would prove this. A discreet Lodge will elect fit men to rule it, though it is within the experience of nearly every Mason that fit rulers are not invariably chosen. We have known a member elected to fill the chair of his Lodge who was incapable of fulfilling a single duty without some one by to prompt him. This, we imagine, was quite an exceptional case, but the fact is thoroughly well established that a great many brethren would never have achieved any official distinction whatever had they been compelled to undergo a previous examination in Masonry. Yet some of them have proved valuable officers in their day.

In June 1790, certain resolutions passed by the Grand Lodge of Georgia were communicated, their object being the constitution of a federal or Supreme Grand Lodge for the whole of the United States, "the frequent innovation in the mode of work, and the authorities set up in some States under warrants from other States," being among the reasons assigned for such a step. The project is referred to a Committee of the Grand Officers, who report favourably, and Grand Lodge of New York expresses its readiness to send delegates whenever time and place have been fixed for holding the necessary Convention. However, as our readers are aware, no such scheme of a Central Grand Lodge met with general favour, and there are now, we suppose, as many Grand Lodges as there are States in the Union. At a Grand Lodge of Emergency, held on 22nd October 1791, an important letter was communicated from brethren residing in the territory west of the River Ohio, whither certain members of the "Military Union Lodge," formerly under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Grand Lodge of New York, had migrated, and where, acting under the original warrant, they had reopened the Lodge under the name of the American Union Lodge No. 1, electing their own officers, and establishing for themselves a regular code of Bye-laws. Copies of the original Warrant and the Bye-laws, together with a list of officers, are forwarded, and a request is made for recognition as an Independent Lodge. The letter was ordered to be entered on the minutes, and instruction issued to the Grand Secretary to draft a reply, and report the same. This, then, is the origin of the Grand Lodge of Ohio, now one of the most flourishing Grand Lodges in the United States.

The records of the year following include mention of a most fraternal act, which is well worth referring to. A number of brethren having been expelled by the Portuguese government from the island of Madeira, and having sought refuge in New York, a Grand Lodge of Emergency was called on the 2nd June, with a view of affording Grand Lodge the opportunity of paying them some mark of attention. A committee was thereupon appointed in order to wait upon the Madeiran brethren, and request the attendance of the latter at the next regular Grand Lodge. They attend, and an address is delivered, copy of which, at their own request, is furnished to the exiles, and they are further invited to dine with the Lodges on the 25th June, on the occasion of the festival of St. John the Baptist being celebrated.

All this time we find Grand Lodge pressing for the return of all warrants, with a view to new ones in lieu thereof being issued; and in 1792 a resolution is passed that no Lodge be entitled to vote a Grand Lodge till it has complied with the law and taken out a new warrant. An attempt is also made to induce Masters' Lodge No. 2, of the City of Albany, to come under the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge, and at length, in 1794, as we have already shown, the attempt proves successful, and terms are arranged by which the Lodge in question is entered on the roll of Grand Lodge, taking the place among the Lodges to which, by date of its original warrant, it is entitled. We note also that a question having been raised in Grand Stewards' Lodge as to the amount of dues to be paid to Grand Lodge for initiations, &c. &c. resolutions are passed in Grand Lodge, on the 5th September 1792, determining the amount. The first of these lays down "that for every Apprentice or Fellow Craft who joins a Lodge under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge, such Lodges shall pay to the Grand Lodge ten shillings, and for every Master Mason eight shillings." The other is to the effect "that no Lodge under the jurisdiction of this Lodge shall receive, for conferring the Second Degree of Masonry, a less sum than one guinea, and that the said sum of one guinea at least be received by every Lodge under this jurisdiction for conferring the Third Degree of Masonry; and that the Grand Secretary furnish all the Lodges with a copy of this resolve." A little later we find mention made of clandestine Masons meeting and working under a travelling warrant of the Grand Lodge of Quebec. A list of these is subsequently obtained, and Lodges are cautioned against admitting such within their precincts. Then the question of Modern Masons crops up, "whether they may or may not be admitted into the Lodge under the jurisdiction of this Grand Lodge, after being hailed, and if they may, to determine the manner in which hailing is to be conducted." The matter is referred to a Committee of the Grand Officers and Masters of the City Lodges. In 1793 it is resolved "that each proxy be entitled to three votes in this Grand Lodge in behalf of the Lodge he represents, but that no brother be admitted as proxy for more than one Lodge." It is only now and again, however, that we note anything out of the way. Payment of dues, petitions for relief or for the issue of new warrants, differences among brethren, and occasionally the suspension or expulsion of a member, these form the bulk of the record. As to funds, we find it stated, at p. 147, that their condition is flourishing, and in consequence it is resolved to invest the sum of seven hundred dollars in the funds of the United States. At the bottom of the same page reference is made to a distressed brother in the poorhouse, who, by reason of his age and infirmities, is unable to eat the food allowed him, and a sum of five dollars is voted for his relief. At p. 149 a communication from "Jerusalem Lodge No 4," is made to Grand Lodge "informing of the expulsion of Michael McDermot, not only from said Lodge, but from all Masonic intercourse for ever, he having committed crimes of the greatest magnitude as a Mason, and heinous as a man," and praying confirmation of the sentence, which is confirmed accordingly. At the beginning of Part IV. we are introduced to some very serious dissensions which had broken out in the Jerusalem Lodge, and resulted in its dissolution, two new Lodges, however,—namely, "Trinity, No. 10," and "Phœnix, No. 11,"—being formed out of it, and the Lodge property equally apportioned between the two. The intervention of Grand Lodge is also about the same time sought by members of St. John's No. 6, with a view to securing a termination to some very violent differences which had arisen. At the last regular communication, held in 1794, Bro. Kerr reports that during the previous summer he had visited several country Lodges, and had found a number of irregular and improper practices had crept into their working. Accordingly he proposed that "Whereas, it is a matter of high importance that a good understanding and friendly intercourse should be preserved between the Grand and the individual Lodges under this jurisdiction; and also that any little deviation from ancient landmarks should be duly rectified; and that a uniform mode of working should take place throughout the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge, and that the unity of the Fraternity should be maintained inviolate.

Therefore,

Resolved: "That the Grand Lodge will once in every year send one or more of their own members, or some other person or persons commissioned under the seal of the Grand Lodge, to every individual Lodge under their jurisdiction, in order to a more complete attainment of the above-mentioned purposes."

This was referred to a committee. Early in the year 1797 a resolution is passed for the appointment of a committee which shall revise the Constitution of Grand Lodge, and render it more perfect, without, however, in any way transgressing the ancient landmarks, or violating the genius and spirit of Masonry.

Another resolution of importance, agreed to in 1796, was to the effect that no charter or dispensation for holding a Lodge of Masons should be granted to any person residing out of the State, and within the jurisdiction of any other Grand Lodge. This was done in consequence of a resolution communicated by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts in the early part of the same year.

After this a difference that had arisen in Lodge L'Unité Americaine forms the chief item of interest, and this dealt with, we find ourselves near the close of the year 1797, and at the end of Part IV. of this history. It only remains for us to add, that no one can read these records without deriving much interesting information. Certain parts are necessarily dry, and there is a plentiful supply of names, but it is impossible to go through these pages without obtaining a tolerably clear insight, not only into Masonry, but also into the habits of New York during this period. We shall look forward with pleasure to the production of future numbers.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

THE fiction in Blackwood is always of a sterling character, more free, perhaps, than any we meet with elsewhere from that display of sensationalism which is the leading trait of the novels of our day. The career of "A Woman-Hater," which is the title of the story now current in these pages, becomes more interesting as the scope of the tale becomes more apparent. The characters of the leading personages are skilfully drawn, and offer some very striking contrasts, while the incidents of the plot are well interwoven. It is, in fact, just the kind of tale to be genuinely appreciated by the lover of the better class of fiction. "Domestic Yachting" is the title of a very pleasant article on this most popular pastime. The sport depicted in it is of a genuine character. The yachtsman who follows the suggestions of this writer must possess a fair knowledge of seamanship, and, instead of being a mere passenger, worse than useless at a pinch, must be able to do his share of work. The mere ornamental sportsman, who is all uniform and buttons, will not perhaps appreciate the picture, but that is only an evidence of its being worthy of appreciation. The other papers are not without interest, and include, of course, an essay on some political matter, but they do not call for any special comment.

Tinsley's has a more formidable programme, as regards mere number, than we usually meet with. There are no less than nineteen contributions, to not one of which do we think the reader will offer any objection. The standard of merit is generally higher, nor is so much prominence given to the serial fiction. Mr. Farjeon's tale is not inferior to previous works of his, and Mr. Grant's "Did she love him?" contains one or two exciting incidents, which will arouse a keener interest than ever in its future progress. "A Real Chateau en Espagne" is amusing, and there are two other short tales, "The Strange Story of Captain Garnons," and "Old Abel's Mill Stone," which should find favour with magazine readers. The second of Mr. W. W. Fenn's "Rambles on the Byways to Health" contains a number of suggestions, which are best described by a favourite word of the late Sir Arthur Helps; they are "Common-Sensible," and that is saying a good deal for them. Mr. Alfred J. H. Crespi is very happy in pleading the cause of "Fruit and Vegetables," as articles of food receiving less than their fair share of attention. Solid food diet we think, is far too exclusively, with many people, the order of the day. A good fruit breakfast is a great luxury, and nutritious enough for most of us, while fresh vegetables are indispensable. Both have the further advantage of being comparatively inexpensive. We are surprised, then, that with the present high prices of meat the consumption of vegetables, &c. is not greater. Among the other contents are a pleasantly written description of "Boulogne in the Eighteenth Century," by Mr. James Hutton, and another of Dr. Davies's pretty "Love Songs of all Nations."

We note in Cornhill Part I. of an essay entitled "When the Sea was Young," which is pretty certain to attract a large class of readers, and R.L.S.'s address, "Virginibus Puerisque," which contains plenty of sound advice on a subject of universal interest. A description of "Yun-nan," and the account of "The Oera Linda Book"—a Frisian work, recently, it seems, translated into English, which, however, we have not yet made acquaintance with—are serviceable contributions, being well written, and full of information not generally known. "Hours in a Library" cannot be better spent than in the company of the Cornhill contributor who, for several months past, has been favouring us with his views on different authors of eminence. This month, he obliges us with a disquisition on "Wordsworth's Ethics," and the result is eminently satisfactory. The story of "Carità" continues to impress us very favourably, and there is some very good writing in the history of "The Rev. Adam Cameron's Visit to London."

The three serials in Temple Bar occupy the greater portion of the number. One of them, however, "Her Dearest Foe," is concluded, and we cannot say we should willingly miss reading either Mr. Anthony Trollope's tale of "The American Senator," or Mr. Wilkie Collins's Romance of "The two Destinies." Each is a favourable specimen of the writer's style, and each, in all probability, will take rank among the best appreciated efforts of the author. So much fiction, of course, curtails the number of other articles, but these are, without exception, capital specimens of magazine literature. "How they bathe at Loèche" is pleasantly described, and there is "The Strange Story of a Diamond," which is worth reading. Then, Mr. Walter Besant contributes a paper on "Piron and Opera Comique," and we have, besides, an essay on "Churchill the Satirist," and the narrative of "A Famous Excommunication," translated from Palma's "Peruvian Traditions." These very nearly complete the roll of articles, and we think the general verdict will be "A very good roll too."

The reader who thinks it his duty to keep himself au courant as regards the sporting intelligence of the month will find no better or more trustworthy oracle to consult than Baily. The résumés of news, both cricket and yachting, are invariably accurate, and the criticisms for the most part just. Then, in articles like the one entitled "Shows considered in their relation to Sport," we usually find the writer's views on the side of common sense, while short tales, such as "How Tom Stretcher lost the Big Pike," mostly exhibit an interest peculiarly their own. It is some months since we have caught a glimpse of "Frank Raleigh of Watercombe." We renew his acquaintance with pleasure. We doubt not, in spite of his Oxford vagaries, that he will prove the thorough young English gentleman we have always taken him to be. "Our Van" is less sparkling, perhaps, than usual: but the record is a good one notwithstanding. There is a portrait of Mr. C. de Murietta, whose deeds in most of the principal polo matches are chronicled from time to time in the daily and sporting journals.

Scribner's Monthly, in our opinion, will compare favourably with the best of our English magazines of the same class and standing. In one respect it is the superior of most of ours—we mean in the matter of illustration. Those who will be at the pains of examining critically the engravings to the earlier articles this month will find them without exception admirable. What we must describe as the frontispiece to "Hide-and-Seek Town," and the views of Niagara, are worth specifying. The literary matter is of the same stamp. The fiction is generally good, and the occasional papers possess merit more or less considerable. The "Topics of the Time," and the notes which follow, are particularly acceptable, being both interesting and instructive. Similarly St. Nicholas, a magazine for children, deserves our warmest praise. It is issued by the same publishers, and is excellent as regards both the letterpress and the engravings. Some of our magazines might profitably take a hint or two from these Transatlantic contemporaries of theirs.

The chief attractions in Cassell's Family Magazine are of the usual character. There is, first of all, a sensible paper on "Ladies' Homes," in which we have described to us a number of those institutions, where ladies of narrow circumstances may find the class of accommodation to which they have been accustomed in better days. The article on "Gardening in August" is another in the series of well-written papers to which it has been our privilege to refer in previous months. Dr. Andrew Wilson is the author of an article on "Sea Anemones, and "A Family Doctor" offers, as usual, some excellent advice to those who are unfortunately in a position to exclaim, "Wanted, an Appetite." Among the other contributions we must mention in particular a vivid description of "A Metropolitan Sunday—Shoreditch," "Art Furniture and Decorations for Home Use," "On Musical Parties, and how to Manage Them," and "A Month in Switzerland for Twenty Pounds." We had almost forgotten to mention a paper headed "The New Cambridge," being an account of Harvard University, and well worth reading it is. Some of the illustrations—that of "Moonlight on the Sea" being among them—are fairly well drawn, and generally superior to those we find in this magazine.

There is in the Leisure Hour the same excellent array of contributions as is invariably to be met with in its pages. Some of them we have noted before. Thus, the scenes in which the "Border Lands of Islam" are described is continued this month, "Albania" being the subject. Then, too, we have a second article on "Snakes." In the way of novelties must be mentioned a paper of Dr. Rimbault's on "Musical Precocity," an account of the recent "Challenger" expedition, and a picturesque account of "A Russian Peasant's Home." The illustrations are to be commended. In Sunday at Home, in addition to the regular class of contributions, we find Dr. Stoughton continuing his series of articles on "Westminster Abbey." The series in which "Welsh Preaching and Welsh Preachers" are described is likewise continued.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

ON Thursday, the 3rd inst., a party from both the Schools, consisting of 3 girls and 12 boys, the few unfortunates who had not gone to a home for their vacation, made a visit to Box Hill, by the kind invitation of Brother Benjamin Head, Vice-patron and member of both House Committees. Little idea of the kind have been given annually for some years past by that brother's munificence—to Windsor, the Crystal Palace, Salisbury and Stonehenge, and perhaps no greater satisfaction is to be derived from the exercise of a spirit of benevolence than from an occasion of the sort, where smiles of pleasure light up childrens' faces, when a few hours of genuine joyous relaxation relieves the monotony of months of "school-time" and the dreariness of childhoods' holidays spent away from home. Happy are they who may be thus prompted to kindness! The happiness conferred, reflects upon themselves, aglow with the freshness and innocence of youth.

The happy party arrived at the hospitable Inn, "The Punchbowl," a little before noon, and sat down to a substantial luncheon, the only drawback to their full enjoyment being the absence of Bro. Head, their entertainer, who being delayed by some misadventure, only arrived late that afternoon. The weather was glorious after the morning's rain, and a ramble of three hours over Box Hill was thoroughly enjoyed. At 4 p.m. all partook of a plain but well-cooked dinner, the service and attendance doing full credit to mine host.

"Our Hercules," revelling in a day's absolute relaxation from his regular round of duties, presided assisted by Mrs. and the Misses Binckes, Mrs. Walkden and Miss Sheppard of the Girls' School. At 7.24 they started to return, all the better for their little outing.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS are the best, the cheapest, and the most popular remedies. At all times, and under all circumstances, they may be used with safety and with the certainty of doing good. In scorbutic, feculous, and all descriptions of skin diseases, sores, ulcerations, and burns, are presently benefited and ultimately cured by these searching, soothing, and purifying medicaments. The Ointment rubbed upon the abdomen, checks all tendency to irritation of the bowels, and averts dysentery and other disorders of the intestines. Pimples, blotches, inflammations of the skin, muscular pains, neuralgic affections and enlarged glands, can be effectively overcome by using Holloway's remedies according to the "instructions" accompanying each packet.

GRAND LODGE OF MUNSTER RECORDS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Our esteemed and valued brother, the R.W. Anderson Cooper, D.P.G.M. of Munster, writes me on the 1st inst., as to these valuable records:—

The earliest G.L. minute states that, "At an assembly and meeting of the Grand Lodge for the province of Munster, at the house of Mr. Herbert Phaire, in Cork, on St. John's day, being the 27th day of December, ano. dom. 1726.

"The Honble. James O'Brien Esq. by unanimous consent elected Grand Master for the ensuing year.

"Springett Penn Esq. appointed by the Grand Master as his Deputy.

Walter Goold, Gent. } Appointed Grand Wardens."
Thomas Biggs, Gent. }

This minute is not signed; but "Springett Penn" signs a minute, on the preceding page to the above, of a meeting held at same place on 8th Dec. 1726, of what was, in my opinion, not a Grand Lodge, but the predecessor of Lodge No. 1.

On the 9th August, 1731, a minute, appointing Mr. Adam Newman Deputy Grand Master, James Morris and Wm. Newenham Esqrs. Grand Wardens, is signed "Kingston G.M.

The date and particulars of the last meeting are as follows:—

"July the 31st, 1733. At a Grand Lodge held by the foregoing adjournment, ad. Lodge was further adjourned to Wednesday the 3rd day of October next.

"Adm. Newman D.G.M."

There is also a minute dated, "Cork, June the 21, 1749," but it is evidently the records of the proceedings of Lodge No. 1. These minutes are signed, Fran Cooke, Master.

Herbert Phaire } Wardens.
Higt. Kieling }

I am aware that our late Bro. Thomas Hewitt had copies of these minutes printed, as he gave me one of the copies; but, unfortunately, having lent it, I cannot now find it, nor do I know where one of these printed copies can now be procured.

Surely the Craft generally will be glad of this information, and to find so worthy a Bro. as D.P.G.M. as Bro. Anderson Cooper, of Cork.

Our esteemed Bro. Hughan (of Truro) has most kindly offered to give every assistance in his power to complete a history of this Grand Lodge.

I sincerely hope this may lead to the publication of a complete history of Irish Masonry. There are ample materials for one.

Yours fraternally,

JAMES H. NEILSON.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—With reference to the questions raised, in your issue of the 22nd ult., I imagine it will depend upon the bye-laws of the Lodge—whether "a brother defaulting in payment of his fees" "ceases to be a member, or is merely suspended." At pp. 104-5 of Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence, in treating of the "Payment of Quarterages," are made certain quotations from "the bye-laws of the Lodge of Light, No. 468, Birmingham." From these it appears, in one case, that a member in arrear of his subscription, after the lapse of a certain time, may "be excluded from the Lodge, and reported to the Grand and Provincial Grand Lodges;" in the other, where members reside twenty miles or more from the Lodge, the defaulter shall forfeit all his privileges and may be excluded from the Lodges. At p. 177, in the course of certain questions quoted from the Freemasons' Magazine, a case is mentioned, in which "a heavy list of members in arrear is handed in by the Treasurer, and, in conformity with the bye-laws, the names of all such defaulters are necessarily struck off the roll." As to the further questions, marked (1), "Can a Mason, after a long cessation of his payments, return back to his Lodge by payment of twelve months' dues." And (2) can such a defaulter claim re-admission, on application to his Mother Lodge, under any circumstances, without again undergoing the ordeal of the ballot? I would remark (1) that Oliver, "speaking under the authority of Bro. W. H. White, the late Grand Secretary," says the laws of Grand Lodge "do not require Lodges to pay the usual contributions for members who are in arrear." He adds, however, that "if, at any future period, such brethren should liquidate their responsibilities, then the usual proportions which are due to the Fund of Benevolence must be made good." I presume that liquidation in full is contemplated, but I imagine it is in the power of a Lodge to accept, if it think proper, a composition or part payment. Whether, by so doing, it would be called upon to pay the Grand Lodge dues in full, is a nice question, on which I should gladly see a little light thrown. (2) If a defaulter's name has not been struck off the rolls, he would still be a member, and would not need, therefore, to seek re-admission. If, however, he has been excluded, I consider he could only be re-admitted after ballot. I was present, a few weeks since, at a Lodge where a brother was balloted for and elected as a "re-joining member." If a Mason, who has temporarily severed his connection with his Lodge, who has, in fact, merely resigned his membership in the ordinary way, and wishing to re ume, is obliged to undergo the ordeal of the ballot, à fortiori, I imagine a defaulter, whose membership has ceased through non-payment of his fees, must be balloted for if he seek to renew his membership.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

LODGE FEES.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I hardly understand the case referred to last week by "GLENDHU." We all know WHEN the initiate is told he will be called upon in the course of the evening for the payment of certain fees. How is retraction possible then? I understand his declining to proceed further, and refusing to become affiliated to any Lodge. In such case no subscription would be payable, but I fancy the initiation fee would be due and payable. Does "GLENDHU" mean that a candidate presented himself for initiation, having the wherewith to pay his initiation fee and Lodge subscription, that he temporarily entrusted these latter to some member, and then declined to submit to the ordeal of initiation? If so, then the candidate, it seems to me, is entitled to the return of his moneys. Most Lodges, I believe, make provision for a contingency of this kind. However, men become Masons of their own free will; they are not invited to become such. If, then, a candidate hesitates, and withdraws, even at the last moment, he clearly assumes none of the responsibilities of membership. Masonry makes it patent to us at every step we take that making a profit is not one of her objects.

Yours fraternally,

"Q."

PAST MASTERS AND INSTALLED MASTERS.

Monte Video, 27th June 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I was installing the W.M. on the 24th instant, and on asking the M.M.'s to retire, a clergyman, who says he was made a Past Master and Most Excellent Master in Delaware, respectfully asked to remain, as he was a P.M., though he had only ruled a Lodge "for one night." We demurred, and he at once, good naturedly, retired. Shall we do right by allowing him to remain and form part of a Board of Installed Masters on a future occasion, his certificate and examination proving satisfactory?

Yours ever,

A. J. TOWERS.

[The Constitutions of England do not recognise the "degree of Past Master," but only the rank of Past Master; to obtain the latter it is indispensable to have previously filled the W.M.'s chair during a year of office. This question will be found succinctly stated and answered at page 141 of Oliver's Masonic Jurisprudence. The Rev. Brother referred to cannot form part of a Board of Installed Masters, according to the Constitutions of England.—Ed.]

WAS ST. PAUL A MASON?

From the "NEW YORK COURIER."

THAT St. Paul was a member of some secret society, whose doctrines were assimilated to Masonry, was asserted by Past Gr. Master Richard Vaux, in his recent oration at Marietta, Ohio, in the following language:

"When St. Paul addressed the Council, perceiving some Sadducees and some Pharisees, 'Men and brethren, I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee, of the hope and resurrection of the dead, I am called in question,' he proclaimed a belief in a truth that was revealed in the oral teachings by which the ancient mythologies or mysteries were known. The knowledge of these mysteries is peculiar to St. Paul. These ancient, oriental, eastern myths, contained the truth of a resurrection and immortality. The Pharisees accepted the traditions, or oral teachings, as part of the tenets of their school or sect. These mythologies, then, become of importance as the primary source of St. Paul's wisdom.

"We are aware that the profoundest esoteric doctrines of the ancients were denominated wisdom, and afterwards philosophy, and also gnosis or knowledge. These profoundest doctrines were taught in the mythologies or mysteries.

"In Persia, Egypt, Greece and Rome they were known. For 4,500 years before Christ these mythologies were said to have been in existence in Egypt. They were secretly imparted to initiates, and were divided into degrees. They were, of course, orally taught, and preparation for initiation and advancement in the acquirement of light or wisdom marked their rituals. To disclose the secret of these mysteries was punished with death. The mythologies of Mithras in Persia, Osiris in Egypt, Eleusis in Greece, Bacchus in Rome, were almost identical in character, and the truth each embodied and communicated was the resurrection from the dead and an immortal life. The allegory or symbolism of Proserpine, Ceres, Bacchus and Isis indicate this beyond a doubt. Therefore these secret mysteries and their oral teachings, and their symbology, confined, as they were, to a select few of prepared initiates only, give to the utterance of St. Paul the highest importance.

"St. Paul was doubtless an initiate in these mysteries, else it seems difficult to account for his special and enigmatical reference to them. That he had, as a Pharisee, faith in oral teachings, is proved by his speech before the Council, by his acknowledgment that for his belief in a resurrection as Pharisee he was called in question. But when, as a christian teacher, he cites these mysteries, it is either because his knowledge found in them the best illustration of his thought, or that the great truth he desired to impress upon his hearers was the truth these mythologies embodied for the instruction of the world. Either view is predicated of St. Paul's initiation. For evidence of this listen to his own words. In his letter to the Romans he says: 'According to the revelations of the mystery which was kept secret since the world began.' To the Corinthians he writes: 'But we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom which God advanced before the world unto our glory.' 'Behold I show you a mystery. And though I have the gift of prophecy and understanding all mysteries and all knowledge.' To the Ephesians, he declares: 'Having made known unto us the mystery of his will, as I before wrote in a few words, now that by revelation he made known to me the mystery whereby, when ye read ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery. * * * And make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery which from the beginning of the world had been hid in God.' To the Colossians: 'Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations.' Surely these establish a most strong presumption that St. Paul was an initiate, that he fully understood that the secret mysteries, the ancient mythologies—hid from ages and from generations embodied the truth of the resurrection of the dead and immortality for which he was called in question, for teaching as a Pharisee and which had been confirmed as revealed to him by divine supernatural interposition when he taught as a Christian. It was from these mythologies St. Paul first learned the truth they held in their secrets of a resurrection from the dead, which was a preparatory preparation for the highest degree of wisdom, eternal life. It should be remarked that the Greek word mystery as used in St. Paul's letters was initiated into mysteries.

"When, therefore, St. Paul was called to teach the Gentiles in Corinth, this great truth which had travelled with time, from the ages and from the generations, he found that by symbolism only he could make it comprehensible to the ordinary mind. Symbolism and allegory were used in the teachings of the initiates in the mysteries, and St. Paul adopted this method of esoteric instruction. It is a most remarkable fact that in writing to the Corinthians on the doctorine of the resurrection, St. Paul takes from the Eleusinian mystery in which Ceres has so important a place the symbol of the seed of grain to explain to them the mystery of rising from the dead, for he writes: "But some man will say how are the dead raised up and with what body do they come—thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die, that which thou sowest thou sowest not that body which shall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or some other grain."

"Can it then be even plausibly asserted that if St. Paul was an initiate in these pre-Christian mysteries, and enlightened mankind either from their wisdoms or by adapting them to this end after he became a divinely ordained teacher, that he taught anti-Christain doctrines?

"And so it came to pass that the great truth of the resurrection and eternal life in the teachings of the cult, or the mythologies or mysteries, hid from ages and from generations, which from the beginning of the world was hid with God, imparted only in secret to initiates in tyled Lodges of the fellowship of the mystery, where it was deposited under the protection of commissioned conservators, was taught by St. Paul to mankind, who thus in the symbolism of the seed of grain, 'brought immortality to light.'"

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

PROBABLY few large assemblies get through more real work than our House of Commons, when, at last, it has a mind to do so. The amount that has been accomplished during the past two or three weeks is marvellous, and especially is this the case since our last issue. The Elementary Education Bill has passed its third reading in the Commons, and possibly when these lines appear will have reached the final stage in the House of Lords. Then a mass of estimates has been submitted and passed. The Suez Canal discussion is over, the Lords' amendments to various Bills have been examined, and the last scene of all this strange eventful history—the passage through Parliament of the Appropriation Act—is well nigh completed. Thus, next week Her Majesty will be expressing her thanks to "My Lords and Gentlemen" for their assiduous attention to the duties of Parliament during a more than usually protracted Session. We are aware that much valuable time was lost in talk over the Royal Titles Bill, but some excellent measures have become law this week, among them being the Merchant Shipping Bill, the Appellate Jurisdiction, and the Elementary Education Bills. These are by themselves enough to make the Session of 1876 a memorable one in the Parliamentary history of this reign. The time-honoured Ministerial Whitebait Dinner was held, as usual, at the Ship, at Greenwich, on Wednesday, several members of the party going by water, while the Premier drove down.

The Court is still at Osborne. Several members of the Royal Family have taken flight from London, the Duke of Cambridge, the Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, with her husband, being of the number.

Chester Cathedral was reopened for divine service on Wednesday, the work of restoration, which had been sedulously carried on for some eight years, having been at length completed. The cost of the alterations exceeds £80,000. Sir Gilbert Scott was the architect, and among those who contributed privately must be mentioned our brethren of the provinces of Cheshire and Lancashire, the former presenting an elaborately carved oak pulpit, and the latter a sedilia for the choir.

Bank holiday on Monday was celebrated with the usual gaiety, the weather being very favourable for out-door recreation. Both at the Alexandra and Crystal Palaces the directors made every effort to attract the public. There were military bands engaged at each, as well as special concerts, grand displays of fireworks, with the other et ceteras proper to such occasions. The attendance in each case was very large, but in each the resources of the management were found equal to the tax made upon them. At Lillie Bridge, too, Leon, the Mustang rider, exhibited his wonderful powers of endurance, and here, likewise, were fireworks and other attractions innumerable for the public. With such glorious weather the railways must have found it a hard task to convey the multitudes which thronged all the metropolitan termini, on pleasure bent, and meaning to have their pleasure at all risks. We are seldom inclined to be over-cynical, but it has more than once struck us that half-a-dozen hours in a stuffy railway carriage, with liquor ad libitum by the way, half-a-dozen hours spent in wandering, it may be, by the sad sea waves, in the classic grounds of Roseberville or North Woolwich, or elsewhere, to say nothing of the preliminary helter-skelter and the weary return home, scarcely realise a good ideal of pleasure. Just, however, as the man of wrath, when engaged in battle, is said to feel no pain from the blows he receives, so we presume the enthusiastic excursionist takes no thought of the pushing, driving, and wrangling he endures. One piece of advice, as old as Horace, he is always ready to follow:—

"Nunc est bibendum, nunc pede libero

especially the imbibing part of the injunction. In fact, so steady, so persistent is he in the consumption of liquor, be it beer and gin and water, or ginger beer and slops, that an excursionist might almost be defined as "an animal that drinks." It has been said that men will never be made sober by Act of Parliament. It is evident, however, that a good many more folk get drunk now than formerly, owing to the Act of Parliament which sanctioned Bank Holidays.

Canterbury has had its annual cricket festival. The first match of the week was between Kent and Gloucestershire combined and England, the result being a draw, rather in favour of the latter, the Counties having two wickets to fall and thirty-one runs to make. There was a large attendance each day, and among the players were Messrs. W. G. and G. F. Grace, Yardley, Gilbert, A. J. and H. R. Webbe, Lord Harris, Shaw, Hill, Lockwood and Ulyett. Several large scores were made.

On Monday the first of the South Coast Regattas was held at Dover, and since then there has been a second held at Worthing. The sport was of the usual character, Dover being specially favoured in the matter of visitors, owing to its falling on the Bank Holiday. Unfortunately, three accidents occurred by the capsizing of pleasure boats, and in the case of one of them a man lost his life.

The yachting season is at its height, and the Isle of Wight is thoroughly enjoying itself. The Royal Victoria Yacht Club has been conducting a long series of contests, and with the usual success. On Monday His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was elected a member by acclamation. By the way, lovers of this sport will find a recently published account of the Cruise of the Widgeon, by Mr. Robinson, a B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, a most agreeable book to read. Mr. Robinson made a journey of seven hundred miles between Swanage and Hamburgh in his 10-ton yawl, the Widgeon, and he narrates the particulars of his cruise in a very pleasant volume, which has been ushered into the world of letters under the auspices of Messrs. Chapman and Hall, of Piccadilly.

To-day another muscular Christian, styling himself Professor Cavill, will undertake the feat of swimming the Channel. Cavill has already shown his powers in the Solent a few days since; but for the turn of the tide at an unlucky moment, he would have completed the task of swimming from Dover to Ramsgate. We wish him success.

There has been another terrible railway accident in the South West of England, no less than sixteen persons having lost their lives. Considering the number of travellers the per centage of loss is comparatively small; but somehow it seems as though, during the last few years, the frequency of these calamities has greatly increased. In Ireland, also, the well known Madame Lulu has had a narrow escape. She missed catching a trapeze, and in falling struck against a gallery, injuring and shaking herself somewhat severely. At first, indeed, it was represented that her injuries were likely to prove fatal; now it seems there is a talk of her resuming her performances. We quite agree with the Daily Telegraph that an end should be put to such exhibitions. No one should be allowed to risk his life in such a manner, and, least of all, a woman, whose performance on the trapeze is simply an act of indecency.

We trust before these lines appear we shall have heard the last of the second Bravo Inquest. All the witnesses had been examined by Wednesday, and yesterday the Coroner was to sum up, and there would then remain only the verdict of the jury to complete the inquiry. A dull season for journalism is approaching, but we are inclined to prefer nothing at all in the daily papers to the objectionable matter which this inquiry has been eliciting for about the last three weeks. The interests of justice should of course be satisfied, but the publication of nasty details is by no means an essential.

Woolwich and its neighbourhood had, it seems, a narrow escape from annihilation on Wednesday. By some means or other the grass on the marshes caught fire, and fears were entertained for the safety of a large powder magazine, known as No. 2, in which an immense quantity of powder, both in barrels and as ammunition was stored. There being plenty of water available, and two fine engines at the magazine, the efforts of the police in extinguishing the fire were successful, but not till five acres of grass had been burnt. It is, of course, idle to speculate what would have been the result had the progress of the flames not been arrested in time. A most terrible catastrophe must have followed, and no doubt Woolwich would have been blown away. It must create, however, a most uncomfortable feeling in the public mind, to know that so terrible an explosive force is only a few miles from London.

It is becoming tolerably clear from the different accounts that reach this country, that Turkey, as we expected, is getting the better of Servia. The troops of the former have gained more than one substantial victory, the result being that the complete overthrow of the latter appears at the moment to be simply a question of days. Already, indeed, there are rumours of mediation on the part of certain of the Great Powers, and Prince Milan, it is said, has announced a desire for intervention, and a willingness to resign his position, if by so doing it will promote in any way the cause of peace. On the other hand, we are told that Turkey resents the idea of intervention altogether. She will not press her rebellious vassal to extremity, but she strongly objects to being meddled with just now, when she is in a fair way to crush out the rebellion. We are very anxious for the restoration of peace, but Servia was manifestly the aggressor. It appears to us that she did her best to promote a general conflagration, and we owe it not to her, but to the action of the British Government and the forbearance of the other Great Powers, that the war has been, thus far, completely localised. As to the Montenegrin successes, we hear now, that the Turks are by no means so hard beset as they were said to be, and if the latter have troops to spare, so as to face the Montenegrins on more equal terms as regards numbers, we do not think this petty principality will be able to inflict very serious damage on its more powerful enemy. The stories of the atrocities committed by the Turkish irregular soldiery, are, to a certain extent, confirmed. However, the Turkish Government is said to be doing its best to prevent them, and, moreover, we have not yet a complete and trustworthy account. We remember, at the time of the Jamaica disturbances, a morning paper, since defunct, spoke freely and unhesitatingly of there being some eight miles of dead bodies, whereas we believe only a very few fell victims to the repressive measures of the Governor. In the present case, we do not doubt that some atrocities have been committed. We think they have been greatly exaggerated, and, moreover, that all the cruelties perpetrated must not be laid at the door of the Turks.

The result of the Belknap impeachment is most unsatisfactory. Only thirty-five senators found a verdict of guilty, while twenty-five returned him as not guilty. But a mere majority of voices is not enough; we believe there must be a two-thirds vote for the decision to be in any way operative. Thus General Belknap escapes any penal consequences, while he is really convicted of the crimes laid to his charge. Morally, the ex-Secretary for War is "done for" as a public man.

A meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held on Saturday, 5th August 1876. Bro. B. Head in the chair. Present:—Bros. Hyde Pullen, Major S. H. Clerke, G. M. Snow, S. B. Ellis, C. F. Matier, Jesse Turner, H. Browse, W. F. C. Moutrie, F. Adlard, J. M. P. Montagu, G. F. Palmer, J. Symons, G. W. Dosell, and others. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Report of Audit Committee received and adopted, and the Chairman was authorised to sign cheques. The recommendation of the Audit Committee, that the sum of £3,000 be invested, was unanimously adopted. One petition was received and accepted, and referred to the House Committee in the usual way. An outfit was granted to a boy who is leaving the Institution. A notice of motion was given by Bro. C. F. Matier: That an increase of £100 per annum be made to the salary of the Secretary. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the Chairman, and the meeting broke up.

The Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday last, at Freemason's Hall. Wor. Bro. Lieut.-Col. J. Creaton P.G.D. presided; there were also present Bros. Benjamin Head, Samuel Rawson, Raynham W. Stewart, Hyde Pullen, J. A. Farnfield, Erasmus Wilson, H. Browse, Thomas W. White, John G. Stevens, R. Hervé Giraud, Wm. Stephens, Louis Stean, Thomas Cubitt, John Bellerby, Frederick Adlard and A. H. Tattershall. Minutes of last meeting were read and verified, cheques were drawn for payment of next quarter's annuities. A petition was read from the widow of Bro. Sumner, for half her late husband's annuity, which was granted. There were also four male and two widows' petitions presented, these were read, approved, and placed on the list of candidates for the ensuing election.

The management of the Oxford Music Hall will still be carried on by Bro. J. H. Jennings, who has been associated with this establishment for several years.

A sad procession passed by our office on Thursday. George Lee, a member of the Fire Brigade, had perished in the discharge of his duty, and the Brigade, headed by Captain Shaw, attended him to his last resting place, accompanied by the band of the G Division of Police and a number of constables. The coffin was mounted on a fire-engine, and the implements which the deceased used or wore in life were placed on the pall, which in this case was a Union Jack. The band played the usual impressive "Dead March in Saul," and the greatest respect was shown towards the procession as it wended its sad way through the streets.

At Brighton, Bro. E. W. Mackney, the original delineator of "the refined negro element," has been performing at the "Dome," in the Royal Pavilion. His humorous songs, combined with his skill as a performer on various instruments, marks the true artist. Miss Rose Raymond, who is also engaged at the same establishment, has a very excellent contralto voice, while Mr. Fritz Rehnard, in his entertainment as a ventriloquist, is clever and highly amusing.

The Brothers Mellison's skating rink forms another attractive resort. It is crowded nightly, by skaters and lookers on. Bro. Devin's band discourses excellently arranged musical pieces.

During the race week, the Theatre Royal, which is now under the sole management of Mrs. H. Nye Chart, has been drawing crowded houses, the Gaiety company, of London, being the attraction. The acting of Miss Nelly Farren needs no comment. Bros. R. Soutar and Maclean, Mrs. H. Leigh and Mr. Royce perform admirably in Bro. R. Soutar's comedietta of "Sold Again." The "Gwilty Governess," and "Young Rip Van Winkle" have also been played.

The Royal Aquarium, which still remains under the management of Bro. George Reeves Smith, has been daily and nightly filled, 2,300 being present on one evening. Bro. Maclagan, in his novel entertainment of "Black and White" is one of the great attractions. To judge by the roars of laughter, his versatility is fully appreciated; his voice retains its freshness, and one of the qualifications of this well known artist is, that whatever he undertakes he is always successful in. The Aquarium itself is worthy the attention of the visitors. Several additions have recently been made, and in all parts great improvements are visible.

MASONIC GARDEN PARTY AT NORTHALLERTON.

On Friday, Bro. J. D. Little, of The Mount, Northallerton, gave a garden party at his residence to the brethren of the Anchor Lodge of Freemasons, of which Lodge Bro. Little is a member. There were present Bros. G. F. Clarkson W.M., J. Fairburn P.M., C. Fairburn S.W., W. Hutchence J.W., H. Rymer S.D., W. Hardy I.G.; Bros. Snowdon and Chapman Stewards; also the Rev. Bro. Jones Chaplain; and Bros. Jefferson, Lumley, Oxendale, Wheldon, Smithson, Milburn, Walker, and Little. The hour of assembling was four o'clock. On the arrival of the guests refreshments were served, Mrs. Little presiding, after which the brethren adjourned to the grounds, where various games were indulged in, such as lawn tennis, quoits, &c. At the conclusion of the out-door amusements, the brethren adjourned to the hall, where a sumptuous repast had been provided. The brethren spent the rest of the evening in the most enjoyable manner. The Worshipful Master, Bro. G. F. Clarkson, proposed the health of the host in suitable terms, which was heartily responded to with musical and Masonic honours. Bro. Little acknowledged the honour done him.

I should here add, that like No. 9, this document is partly printed; the seal is suspended from the top. Bro. J. F. Brennan, who saw the original, told me that it was not a G.L. seal, but a crest, probably of Lord Antrim, and that it was encased in a tin or other metallic box.

Yours, &c.

MASONIC DUTY TO OUR COUNTRY.

THE following, from Pomeroy's Democrat, asks an important question, or perhaps we should say, a series of questions. We should like to see a few more such from those who are anxious as to the character of Freemasonry. We are persuaded that the more is known of our Craft—so far, at least, as regards what it is permissible to divulge—the sooner will many silly notions abroad respecting it be dissipated, and the more thoroughly we shall be appreciated. What Freemasonry is—subject, of course, to the limitation already specified—cannot be too widely disseminated. We shall then the sooner cease to be told that Masons are a dangerous Society.

Sir,—I should like to ask a few questions about Masonry, which I judge from articles in your paper to be a subject quite familiar to you. I am not a Mason, but have some opinions on the subject from the standpoint of "general principles," which information upon the following points may cause me to amend, desiring as I do to be placed right if I am in the wrong.

First: What duty is a Mason obligated by the laws and precepts of Masonry to perform more or other than is obligatory upon all men by the principles of morality, fraternity and justice?

Second: If the Masons are in possession of any truth not known to mankind at large, or any knowledge which is of practical benefit to the race, or even of historical value, is it not their duty, as members of the common brotherhood of man, to impart such knowledge or truth without imposition of conditions and rules unnecessary for the preservation of order and decorum?

Third: Is not Masonry in its practical workings more a promoter of the interests of ill-disposed and selfish men than the protector of the worthy and deserving?

Fourth: Is it not a fact that men as a rule join the institution from motives of selfish gain?

An answer to these questions, if consistent with your duties and privileges as a Mason, would very much oblige,

Yours sincerely, Inquirer.

A Mason is under the most solemn obligations to honour the laws of his country, first and foremost, as a citizen. To honour the laws of God, in whom he must believe, and so proclaim before he can be made a Mason. Then he obligates himself to honour honesty, prudence and humanity. He should see no person wronged. Should contend at all times for justice. Should temper his soul with mercy. Should be as willing to forgive others as to be forgiven. Should recognise all of God's work as God's work, and entitled to respect and preservation, but should do more to assist members of the Masonic Fraternity than those who are not brethren of the Order, but will never do or deal unjustly by any one, nor interfere with any process of law, no matter against whom directed. He will, or should cultivate honour, charity, virtue and benevolence in his heart as a woman cultivates beautiful flowers about her door, to add to the worth and beauty of the place.

Secondly. It is not the duty of men to cast pearls before swine, nor to plant seed till the ground has been agitated, mellowed and prepared for the planting, lest the seed be lost. Masonry is a brotherhood, and, according to its original intentsonal is not for the full benefit of outsiders, or it could not hold itself together as a fraternity of helpers.

Thirdly. Masonry give no advancement to any brother only a he is honest and deserving. It holds more men on the road that it advances, and forbids most positively the using of the Order for selfish purposes or for gain. As a Mason we would no more dare ask the members of our Lodge or Fraternity to vote for us or to patronise us in business, than we would dare enter our church and insult the members there engaged in worship by asking them to hurrah for some favourite political candidate in office.

The Tauranga Masonic Lodge was opened on May 16th, by Bro. J Jenkins, G.D.C., H. C. Hoyte, W.M., T. D. Wrigley S.W., Captain Turner J.W., and Rev. Mulgan Chaplain. After which a grand banquet, provided by host Montgomery, took place at the Masonic Hotel. Twenty-four members were present, and spent a social happy evening.—New Zealand Journal.

DOWN WITH MASONRY.

A LARGE number of Christians, or philanthropists, or Christians and philanthropists, have been in session in Chicago for several days. The object of their gathering is to put down Masonry—not brick and stone masonry, but that dreadful oath-bound association, whose members once killed Morgan. That is to say, killed him till after election.

The world watches the proceedings of this body with intense interest, fully believing that, in the suppression of Masonry, it has a mission, a great work to perform. The association numbers somewhere from 50 to 100 members. Masonry has anywhere from five millions to fifty millions of members. This will oblige every member of the anti-Masonic society to do some heavy work. Each of these has to dispose of from five hundred thousand to one million Masons. It's big odds; but there is no doubt they have the will, the desire, the inclination, to succeed. All they lack now is the ability.

There is no doubt of the fact that Gen. Blanchard, in his crusade against the Masons, is doing God-service—or at least he thinks he is. Masonry is a dubious article, anyhow. Able-bodied men who appear on the streets aproned like pastrycooks or butchers, occupy an equivocal position. What right have they to wear white aprons? What right have they to wear aprons at all? Are not these aprons worn so that deeds of blood can be committed without mussing their clothes with gore? What terrible signification is there in all these stalwart, mysterious men going about with this unfathomable attachment? In truth, any man who will make a spectacle by marching up one street and down another, in broad daylight, with a little white apron strung around him, ought to be suppressed either by Blanchard or the police.

Again, what is meant by other Masons going about in uniform, and wearing pewter swords? What dire project is entertained by these men with plumed hats, gauntlets, and glittering sabres? It may be plunder. It may be rape. It may be something worse than either of these. Whose watch or throat is safe when gloomy looking bands of men in funeral black, and armed to the teeth with a falchion of glittering pewter, are allowed with impunity to drill in secret places, and to march through the streets at any hour of the day or night? Where is Hickey? Where are the police? Call out the 1st regiment, and let us have this menance removed at the point of the bayonet!

Blanchard is right every time. Every few days a dripping body is fished from the river. What proof is there that, in every case, the body is not the victim of Masonic hate and vengeance? Who has been able to satisfactorily prove that Masonry did not set fire to Chicago? And see here, Mr. Blanchard, can't you guess who abducted Charlie Ross? Do you twig? Masonry, my boy, dark, secret, silent, implacable Masonry. And did it never occur to you, Mr. Blanchard, to think of Masonry, when you have revolved that sphinx of problems, that hitherto unanswerable question which has been so long calling vainly for answer, from out the gloomy crypts of the past, Who struck Billy Patterson? For all the mysterious crimes that have escaped detection; for the explanation of bloated corpses far out on the sea, rocking idly on the swell, and coming, no one knows whence, and drifting, no one knows whither; for gashed throats yawning horribly as gay morning first discovers them in the outways of life; for all these let Masonry answer—if it can. Will it? If not, Mr. Blanchard, then abolish its members, and may Hiram Abiff have mercy on their souls!

This Masonic business has gone on long enough, for thousands of years Masonry has existed, and during all that time tempests have swept the earth; volcanoes have inundated us with igneous wrath; wars have prevailed; grasshoppers, the murrain, the itch, measles, drunkenness, divorce, murder, suicide, shipwrecks, and termagant women have abounded and have coursed the earth, like fierce hounds, rending, tearing, afflicting humanity. Who can fail to see the connection between Masonry and all these specified evils? No one. It is as clear as it is that hunger causes nakedness, or that water creates thirst. Down with the acacia! Let it be dug up all throughout the world, and be thrown over the fence. It is a weed which takes up place which might better be occupied by the shamrock, or some other vegetable of a thrifty growth.—Chicago Times.

How to Get Rid of Fruit-destroying Insects.—As our fruit is ripening, the wasps, slugs, and birds are a triple alliance with which we find some difficulty in dealing; but the two first are the most insolent and destructive, for I do not hold with the destruction of small birds. They give us so much music in the spring, and ate so many insects, that in charity let them have a little fruit now. At present, however, they are in alliance with what we cannot but regard as a scourge, just as Adam was of old taught to recognise the thorns and the thistles. Wasps, however, are very greedy, and can be attracted by bottles hung up in which put a little treacle, or sugar and beer; but it is better to lay siege to their strongholds an hour or so after sunset, by burning pitch at the entrance of their nests. Those that come home will safely straight into the flame notwithstanding. Slugs and snails are not so easily trapped. I have often put a lettuce or a cut-up apple at the base of nectarine and peach trees, but they are cunning enough to pass these by, and show their good taste by climbing he walls after the fruit. Do not, however, put salt down; you might ill your trees. Last year, when much annoyed by them, I found the best plan, after all, was to go out at ten or eleven o'clock at night with a lantern, and surprise them at their work. The collection that I made of the enemy in a flower-pot made an instant but horribly delicious supper for my pigs. Persisting in this night or two, I soon reduced their number. Do not, either, allow the little fingers in their anxiety and impatience to pinch the wall fruit in order to see if it is ripe. If you are gifted with a fairly good power of scent, peaches, nectarines, melons, and plums will all give warning of their being fit for table by a delicious fragrance, first of all. Too pinching bruises and spoils the fruit, and it will be quite the end of the month, and perhaps well on into the next, before the bulk of it is fit for use.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Angel Lodge, No. 51.—The annual festival of this old Lodge was held at Colchester on Thursday, when Bro. G. Gard Pye was installed as W.M. for the ensuing year. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C., P.G.J.W., the ceremony was most kindly undertaken by Bro. F. Binckes, Past Grand Steward and Secretary R.M.I.B., and he carried it out in a most able manner. The W.M. appointed and invested his officers as under:—Bros. S. W. Crookes S.W., T. J. Ralling J.W., Rev. C. L. Acland Chaplain, A. Cobb Treasurer, W. S. Sprent Secretary, I. Harris S.D., J. Hanly J.D., G. Mercer and W. Ablitt Stewards, Middleton I.G. After the Lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to the Cups Hotel, and partook of a sumptuous banquet, at which the usual Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Some excellent vocal music was contributed by Bros. S. Chaplin, T. M. Bear, A. R. Staines, and J. J. C. Turner. The piano was presided at alternately by Bros. J. J. C. Turner and C. Winterbon.

St. Andrew's Royal Arch Chapter, No. 69.—This Chapter held its regular meeting on Tuesday, 8th August 1876, at 25 Robertson-street, Glasgow, the M.E.P.Z. Comp. T. M. Campbell presiding, assisted by Comp. McGinnis as H., W. Bisland J., T. Blockwood Treasurer, J. Fash Scribe E., R. Prout S.N., and Wm. Thomas 1st S. There was one gentleman for exaltation, and the degrees of Excellent Master and Royal Arch were worked in Comp. Campbell's well known style. The resolution to raise the Fees of the Chapter was, after discussion, unanimously adopted, and is to take effect at the October meeting.

Robert Burns Chapter, No. 143.—This Chapter held its regular meeting on Saturday, the 5th August, at the Masonic Hall, Holytown, Comp. H. J. Shields 33° Z. presiding, assisted by Comps. Wm. McMurdo P.Z., D. Baker H., J. Lund J., J. McMurdo S.E. and H. Dyer S. A Lodge of Most Excellent Masters was opened, and a Brother advanced to that degree and afterwards exalted into the Holy Royal Arch, both degrees being wrought with that attention to detail that distinguishes Comp. Shield's working.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge met on Wednesday, the 9th inst., at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C., Bro. Abell occupied the chair. There were also present Bros. Fenner S.W., Turquand J.W., J. K. Pitt Hon Sec., Tollis S.D., Gomm J.D., Christopher Tyler, E. Gotthail P.M. Preceptor, Jas. Stevens P.M., Thos. Meggy P.M. P.G.S. and a number of regular attendants. The business of the evening consisted of the rehearsal of the second ceremony, Bro. Meggy acting as candidate. Two sections were worked by Bros. Stevens and Redderforth respectively, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Jas. Stevens then rose, and addressing the W.M., expressed his admiration of the manner in which the business of the Lodge was conducted. He would certainly make it his business as well as his pleasure to induce his friends seeking Masonic instruction to attend this Lodge, as he was sure they would here speedily attain proficiency. He also begged to be allowed to make a suggestion, which he hoped would meet with the approval of the Preceptor, who, after all, is the head of a Lodge of Instruction. In former days it was the custom for members of Lodges of this kind to pay friendly visits to one another, and he thought it was a very useful and wholesome custom. Nothing is more likely to promote genial fellowship and fraternal regard than for brethren to become known to each other under the circumstances of such meetings. He would, therefore, ask whether a certain number of members would be willing to pay a visit, say in two or three months' time, to the United Pilgrims' Lodge, at the Surrey Masonic Hall. He had been Secretary of that Lodge, and although not occupying the position at the present time, thought he had still sufficient influence with the members, as well as with Bro. Larkham, the Preceptor, to succeed in arranging such a gathering, and to ensure a hearty welcome. After a few remarks by some of the brethren, the matter was allowed to stand over for consideration. Bro. Gotthiel, in proposing the W.M. for the coming week, observed that the Lodge was frequented by aspiring brethren eager to practise the duties of the various offices, but they were at the same time generous, unselfish and disinterested, and always willing to give up their own privileges, if necessary, in order to lend a helping hand to any one standing in need of assistance. The officers in their respective positions this evening have acted in the same spirit, and instead of taking their customary progressive step, have permitted me to propose that Bro. D. Posener be W.M. for the ensuing week. This will give him an opportunity to practise the duties of the third ceremony. Bro. Posener being the W.M. elected of the Upton Lodge, and as he will be installed into office in a few days, he is most anxious not to fail in the work he is about to undertake. This proposition was carried unanimously. Bro. Posener briefly returned thanks. Bros. T. Meggy P.M. 21 P.G.S. and Jas. Hill 228 were elected joining members.

Royal Brunswick Lodge, No. 732, Brighton.—This Lodge, whose able working is recognized throughout the province, held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 10th inst., and although it was the day of the Brighton Regatta, a very fair attendance of the members were present at the room devoted to Masonic purposes at the Royal Pavilion. Bro. J. Kidd W.M. occupied the chair, S. Solomon S.W., Reid J.W., Bennett Sec., Willard S.D., Capon I.G., Rose Steward, G. Smith P.P.G.P. Sussex P.M., Freeman P.M., and Bros. Partridge, Hanxwell, &c. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Soper and Histede having answered the necessary questions in a satisfactory manner, retired, and then were separately raised by the W.M. to the 3rd degree, the ceremony being rendered in a perfect manner; he also gave the traditional history, and an excellent delineation of the tracing board. Several matters in connexion with the Lodge were then discussed, which was afterwards closed, and the brethren separated, there being no banquet. The Visitors were Bros. Wood P.P.G.S. Sussex, Royal York Lodge P.M. Owen, Alfred Lodge, Oxford 340, Legg P.M. late 732, W. Knight 757 New York, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

Clones Lodge, No. 881.—This Lodge celebrated the anniversary of St. John's Day, on the 7th ultimo, by a pic-nic excursion to Dartrey Demesne. The brethren and their lady friends, numbering in all between 50 and 60, started from Clones at 9.30, and after a very pleasant drive, arrived, at 11.30, at the scene of their enjoyment. We have rarely seen a more splendid demesne than that possessed by the Earl of Dartrey; nature has richly endowed it with the most charming description of sylvan beauty, and the care bestowed to enhance its natural grandeur, proves that the noble owner fully appreciates the magnificence of his delightful possession. The grounds were thrown open for the enjoyment of the excursionists by E. Richardson Esq., D.L., the respected agent of the Earl of Dartrey's property, who is himself a member of the same Masonic Lodge, and also placed at their disposal the handsome cottage on the island. After having partaken of a sumptuous repast, on the velvet turf, several toasts, including "The Queen and Royal Family," "The W.M., J. H. Montgomery, Esq." were given. The ladies were duly honoured also. After a most enjoyable day, the party arrived in Clones about 9 o'clock p.m., highly gratified with their day's pleasure.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The weekly meeting of this Lodge took place at Bro. Allen's, Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney, on Tuesday, 8th August 1876. Present—Bros Smith W.M., Brown S.W., Worsley J.W., Johnson S.D., Barker, J.D., Deacon I.G., P.M. Wallington Preceptor; also P.M.'s Musto, Horsley, Brown, Dallas, Calverley, Appleby, Irons, &c. The Lodge was opened in the first and second degrees. Bro. Wallington worked the installation ceremony in a very impressive manner, and installed the whole of the officers, after which the ceremony of passing was worked by the W.M., Bro. Musto acting as candidate. Bro. Horsley worked the first section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was opened and closed in the three degrees. Bro. Brown was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. The Lodge was then closed in due form, every one being delighted at having spent so pleasant an evening.

Lewis Chapter, No. 1185.—A Convocation of this Chapter, the first since its consecration in June last, was held at the King's Arms Hotel, Wood Green, on Saturday, 5th inst. Present—Comps. Arthur Leared M.E.Z., George J. Row H., Alfred Durrant J., Geo. Newman N., T. Vesper P.Z., Sam. May P.Z. Treas., J. W. Berrie P.S., E. B. Grabham Scribe E. pro tem. Rev. C. T. Ridgway Chaplain, and others. The Chapter was opened in form with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots were taken for Comp. Grabham (Mount Sinai Chapter No. 19) for joining, and several brethren for exaltation, of whom were present Bros. J. R. Cover and W. H. Postans, these brethren on being introduced were exalted into Royal Arch Masonry by the M.E.Z., ably assisted by Comp. G. Newman, who delivered the lectures in a very able and impressive manner. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions adjourned to a banquet, presided over by Comp. Leared M.E.Z., who after proposing the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, gave the health of Comps. Cover and Postans, who separately acknowledged the toast. The health of the Visitors was then proposed, and acknowledged by Comp. T. Vesper, who, as an old P.Z., took upon himself to offer the Companions some very excellent advice, which was well received, and if acted upon, cannot fail to be of great service to the Chapter. Comp. Grabham responded to the toast of the joining members, and congratulated the M.E.Z. upon the success to which the Chapter had already attained, and predicted great prosperity for the future. Comp. G. Newman (to whom the thanks of the Chapter are specially due, for the exceedingly kind and useful services he has rendered) acknowledged the hearty manner in which his health had been drank, and assured the Chapter that his best services were always at their disposal. Comp. May P.Z. responded to the health of the Treasurer, and Comp. J. W. Berrie P.S. for the officers; (it is only due to this last named Companion to say, how exceedingly well the work of P.S. was performed by him; the Companions generally may look forward to an officer of great promise in Comp. Berrie. The Janitor's toast having been duly honoured, the Companions separated, after the enjoyment of an exceedingly pleasant evening, notwithstanding that many members were absent on account of the holidays.

Marquis of Ripon Lodge, No. 1489.—The regular meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held on the 4th inst., at the Metropolitan Society's Asylum, Balls Pond-road, Bro. Wm. Stephens, Treasurer, in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. W. J. Murlis, occupying the chair, Jessett S.W., E. J. Walford J.W., Jones Secretary, J. High S.D., Dr. Symonds J.D., H. Miller P.G.O. Middlesex I.G., J. Glaskin D.C., W. Grist Steward, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bro. Jones, P.M. No. 445, was requested to take the chair, for the purpose of performing the ceremony of raising. Three of the candidates were his personal friends, and he very impressively raised Bros. Haynes, Brewster, Clayson, and Brandon. The W.M. having now arrived, initiated Mr. B. G. Poulton into the Order. This being the night for the election of W.M. for the ensuing year, the choice of the brethren was unanimous in favour of Bro. Jessett S.W., who is in every way capable of filling that office. Bro. W. Stephens was re-elected Treasurer, as was also the Tyler. A sum of seven guineas and a half was unanimously voted by the Lodge, for the purpose of presenting the retiring W.M., Bro. W. J. Murlis, with a Past Master's jewel, as a recognition of the services rendered by him, and the respect he is held in by the Lodge. The Lodge was then closed until October the 6th. The brethren partook of a cold collation. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and the brethren then separated, after having had a most enjoyable evening. The Visitors were Bros. Easton, of the United States, Bingemann P.M. 55 and W.M. 1559, Stansfield 526, Jones P.M. 445, and Stiles 1507.

Metropolitan Lodge of Instruction, No. 1507.—The regular weekly meeting of this capital working Lodge of Instruction was held on Tuesday, the 8th inst., at the Metropolitan Club, 269 Pentonville-road, Bros. The W.M. rehearsed the ceremonies of raising, passing and initiation very creditably for one so young in the Order. Bro. Kingham was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The meeting was then adjourned.

New Cross Lodge, No. 1559.—The regular meeting of this newly-consecrated Lodge was held on Saturday, 5th, at the New Cross Hall, Upper Lewisham-road. The W.M., Bro. W. B. Middlesex P.M., Treasurer, H. Keeble P.M. Secretary, L. Beck S.D., W. Hardman I.G., E. Smith, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots were then taken for the admission of Messrs. L. W. Hardy and A. Macgillivray, who were duly initiated into the Order by Bro. H. Keeble P.M. and Secretary, who afterwards passed Bros. Lieut. Cole (the well-known ventriloquist), W. Cowley and T. Grammont to the degree of Fellow Crafts. Bro. F. Walters P.G.J.D., by particular desire, raised Bros. Solomon Jewell, R. J. Steers and H. Metham to the third degree. All the ceremonies were excellently worked. Several candidates were proposed for initiation. It was decided that there was no necessity to have a Lodge of Instruction attached to the Lodge, which was then closed, and adjourned until November next.

THE DRAMA.

Benefit Performances.—On dits for the coming season.

TWO benefit performances have been given during the past week, but neither of them was as successful as the respective managers most probably wished and expected them to be. At the HAYMARKET, the play performed was The School for Scandal, in which Miss Neilson sustained the part of Lady Teazle; the performance was for the benefit of Mr. Charles Walter, the acting manager. At the OPERA COMIQUE, the performance was for the benefit of Mr. Charles Hastings, the acting manager of the PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, and comprised a new comedietta, entitled, A Love Test, interpreted by Mr. Lin Rayne and Miss Kathleen Irwin; and the late Lord Lytton's comedy of Money. The house was very poorly attended, and we fear Mr. Hastings would reap but little advantage from the performance.

The air is full of rumours of changes and novelties for the coming dramatic season. DRURY LANE, it appears, is to return to its old love, Shakspeare, and Mr. Barry Sullivan is expected to appear in his favourite character of Richard the Third. The QUEEN'S, under the management of Mr. Coleman, the tragedian, is also to be devoted to legitimate uses, and Henry the Fifth is announced for the opening piece. The LYCEUM will afford Mr. Irving another opportunity for making his mark in Shakspearian tragedy, and we have thus, therefore, three theatres which promise to devote themselves to the works of the immortal bard. Passing to the other theatres, the PRINCE OF WALES's has in rehearsal an English version of Nos Intimes, which it is hoped will prove as successful as A Scrap of Paper, at the ROYAL COURT. The principal parts are to be allotted to Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, Mr. Bancroft, Mr. Sugden, and Miss Lucy Buckstone; and the small part of Raphael is, we hear, to be played by a son of the late Mr. Frederick Younge, the original representative of the Hon. George D'Alroy, in Caste. The HAYMARKET will produce a new comedy, by Mr. W. S. Gilbert, with a company strengthened by the addition of Mr. Hermann Vezin and Miss Kathleen Irwin. The GAIETY has in hand a comedy by Mr. H. J. Byron, in which the author himself, Mr. Toole, from the STRAND, and other favourite actors will appear. But we will continue the programme next week.

THE CROOKED FOOT.

A MASONIC INCIDENT, BY JEFFERSON.

From the "MASONIC ADVOCATE."

"Think not the good,
The gentle deeds of mercy thou hast done,
Shall die forgotten all; the poor, the pris'ner,
The fatherless, the friendless, and the widow,
Who own the bounty of thy kindly hand,
Will cry to heaven and pull down blessings on thee."

A SMILE may make sunlight; a little word uttered in the spirit of humanity, or a ready deed done in kindness, often turns back the tide of darkness from a troubled soul, and gives to the hopeless a fresh hold on the horns of the altar. It may be that the deed of kindness may seem small to the performer, because it is not sinister—it is not done to be seen of men, being the gift-offering of an humble and generous nature. But no matter how they come, or from where, good deeds of blessing to life's unfortunates are always the purest incense ever offered to heaven.

The angels of the world beyond are all "ministering spirits." They find their life, their happiness, their heaven, in their multiplied deeds of good. This is heaven's order, and it is also the law of life here, and, therefore, he that lives for others lives for God, no matter what may be his name, his faith, or his mode of devotion.

We have here a little story in the line of these sentiments, which "may point a moral," and we give it to our readers with this view, because it is also a Masonic incident.

Crissy Weimer, of Maples, is the youngest daughter of a poor widow, and the orphan child of a Master Mason. Since the death of her father her mother has had to struggle hard to raise her large family of children; and to add to her afflictions the youngest, Crissy, was deformed with a terrible crooked or reel foot. Well and beautifully developed every other way, and full of the promising spirit of a noble womanhood, this blight, this deformity, weighed upon the mother's heart with the threatened pressure of a lifelong misfortune.—What to do she knew not. Poverty forbid expenditure, and the only alternative seemed an humble submission to the order nature had forced upon her child.

Some few months over a year ago, Mrs. Weimer and her little daughter were seen by a brother of the Fraternity on the train of the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne Railroad. He noticed the reel foot of the little unfortunate. The sight of such a deformity on the limb of a little girl of nine summers made him feel sad.

"Poor child," said he, "that foot is too badly deformed. It should be straightened."

"How? Where?" queried the mother, with evident feeling, for she loved the child as a mother only loves her latest born. Its future was dead, and she was left on the battle-side of life without means.

"How, and where?" she repeated, with a despairing tone.

"At the Surgical Institute, in Indianapolis," responded the Masonic brother.

"That might be, said the good woman, solemnly, "if I had the means to pay for it."

Alas! how often it is that misfortunes like this befall the poor. Nature seems not to recognize the differences of wealth and poverty, and oftentimes the inmates of the cottage are made to drink of the cup of suffering, while the palaces of luxury are without a single affliction. Philosophers tell us that "time makes all things even," and it may be so; but then, we know that "the mills of the gods grind slowly," and the orders of nature, even then, are not always clearly seen.

"Yes," said the brother of mystic sympathy, "at the Surgical Institute that foot can be made straight, and then that child can grow up to the beauty and strength and life of womanhood without a shadow over her."

"I would give my life, almost, if it could be done," responded the poor woman, "but I have no means—I am poor."

"That's enough," said the mystic stranger; "I'll see that that foot is made straight."

Returning to Indianapolis he called at the Institute, where he saw Doctors Allen, Johnson and Minnick, and told them the story of the poor widow's daughter.

"Tell her to come, and bring her child," said they; "we'll do up the job without the charge of a dollar."

He then called upon that solid railroad philosopher, Superintendent C. C. Gale, of the Bee Line, who without a word wrote out a pass for Mrs. Weimer and daughter from Muncie to Indianapolis and return. He then wrote to W. W. Worthington, superintendent of the Fort Wayne and Muncie Railroad, who gave a like pass over that road. These passes were sent to Mrs. Weimer with directions for her journey to the capital, and the result is now seen in the following note from her own hand:—

Maples, Allen Co., Ind., 30th May 1876.

To the Masonic Advocate:

I wish to give Dr. Allen's Surgical Institute the praise it is worthy of. I went to the Institute the first day of last November with my little daughter, who had a reel foot, and it was very difficult for her to get about. Her foot was operated upon, and a brace was placed upon her limb. I am to-day more than happy to say, she is now with two straight feet, going to school and enjoying herself well. Heaven bless the Institute and the good doctors, for the lame are made to walk and the blind to see.

Respectfully, M. WEIMER.

We may add, in finishing up this little story of humanity, that every man who touched this case is a member of the mystic tie—Gale, Worthington, Allen, Johnson, Minnick, Carey, McHenry and Maple. Besides all these, the Lodge in Ohio, of which her husband was a member, sent Mrs. Weimer a clever sum to bear her expenses. The little girl might now be set down as the Masons' daughter, for insignificant as the deed of service may seem, she feels that it was the life-boat that has carried her over her darkest river, and her little heart, she says, will never cease to pray that God may bless all those good Masons for their kindly services.

TREES OF THE NEW FOREST.—Mark Ash is one of the most favourite spots in the New Forest; and the paths used by the forest charcoal burners leads also to Boldrewood, and the Knyghtwood Oak. In this neighbourhood the high eminences afford magnificent views of woodland distance, with occasional glimpses of the Downs of the Isle of Wight. The Boldrewood oaks are exceptions to the allegation often made against the New Forest trees—namely, that they are not renowned so much for their size as for their harmonious proportions. The oaks at Boldrewood are even finer than the tree at Knyghtwood, which is generally put forward as the "lion," par excellence, of the place; and the curious name of the "Twelve Apostles," given of old to the largest of the Burley oaks, shows that local opinion was divided as to the merits of the respective claimants for notoriety. The beeches around the site of Boldrewood Lodge are admirable specimens of that beautiful tree, and from the high ground which they render conspicuous from afar, the finest views—as many think—of characteristic New Forest scenery may be obtained. The beech groves are the favourite feeding-place of the gaunt and ravenous New Forest hog, droves of which in season roam, under supervision, to fatten upon the mast and acorns. The beech-mast is equally beloved by the deer, and its fattening qualities, according to old writers, gave such repute to the winter venison of Boldrewood Walk, that a stranger would have "difficulty in getting a king's warrant for a doe executed in it."—From Picturesque Europe for August.

VISITS BETWEEN LODGES.

WE note with pleasure that a proposition was made last week in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction that a deputation of its members should, a short time hence, pay a visit of courtesy to the United Pilgrims' Lodge of Instruction at the Surrey Masonic Hall. Bro. Jas. Stevens, with whom the suggestion originated, deserves great credit for endeavouring to bring about so amiable an interchange of good fellowship between two Lodges, each of which is unceasingly engaged in teaching Masonic novices the way they should go. Nothing, indeed, is so likely to secure a complete uniformity of practice in the working of our ritual as for members of different Lodges of Instruction officially to visit each other. The grounds on which Bro. Stevens principally based his proposal was, that it would tend to promote the kindlier feelings of our nature. No doubt this would be a prominent result of visiting. We incline, however, to the belief that this would not be the only result. In a ritual which is not committed to writing, it is inevitable that occasional variations should occur in rendering it. If slight differences are to be found in the different published versions of a service that is printed, à fortiori, will such be met with in one that is delivered orally? This may not, perhaps, be thought, at first sight, of any great moment. It must not, however, be overlooked that our forms of worship—for such they really are—were settled deliberately, after mature reflection, by our earliest doctors, and only when they had taken counsel among themselves repeatedly, with a view to selecting the best and most expressive language. It is incumbent on us, therefore, to use our best endeavours to ensure the observance of a literal accuracy in all our forms and ceremonies. It is not easy to select the best modes of expressing a particular meaning. It may appear to be a small matter whether "a" or "the," "and" or "or" is used in this or that sentence, but even the substitution of one apparently insignificant particle for another will oftentimes convey a meaning other than was intended by the framer of the sentence. When we acquiesce in the ideas which a man expresses, we accept the very words in which he conveys them, and no other. No two different combinations of words or sentences will convey exactly the same signification. They may approximate very closely to each other, so closely, indeed, that the shadow of any difference is hardly perceptible. When, however, we come to submit them to a thoroughly searching test, when we weigh the two combinations against each other critically, we find in the second of the twain a deviation from the first which is more than merely verbal. It is common enough to hear people say—I like A.'s version of the text better than I do B.'s; and there may be sufficient reasons for the preference. Were we now engaged in settling the language of our ritual, such opinions would be of great value; but the ritual is already settled, and has been handed down to us through successive generations for a very long period of time. It is not, then, a question as between A.'s version and B.'s version, which is the better of the twain, but whether either of them is the text as settled originally by the Fathers of Freemasonry. As has already been remarked, these learned men took counsel with each other again and again; in the first instance, what meaning it was they wished to express, and then what words would most accurately convey that meaning to craftsmen throughout all ages. This ritual, then, which has been handed down to us, must be regarded as sacred from any and all verbal changes, lest by sanctioning the slightest departure from the original language we bring about an alteration of the original meaning. Words are but the clothing in which we array our ideas. A being, forsooth, retains always his identity, regardless of any change of apparel, but the idea varies as we vary its dress. We are bound in honour to respect the ideas of the early Fathers, and we shall best exhibit that respect by scrupulously retaining every word of the ritual they compiled for the edification of future Masons. But we have said that slight verbal differences are inevitable in a ritual that is not committed to writing; how, then, shall we secure that literal exactitude we proclaim as so necessary? By the counsel one with the other of our most learned men. They it is who can best determine what was the exact meaning which the founders of our ritual were most desirous of conveying. That once settled, it is then a comparatively easy task to point out the language which expresses that meaning the most accurately. Here, then, is an excellent reason why Lodges of Instruction should meet and take counsel together. In these Lodges are all, or nearly all, of our most brilliant Craftsmen. We all, indeed, at some time during our career, find it necessary to go thither, so that we may acquire the requisite knowledge of our duties. We may be very deeply imbued with the spirit of Freemasonry, acting on all occasions most strictly in accordance with its beautiful principles. But a just appreciation of these principles will be of no assistance in the discharge of our official duties. Nor, for the matter of that, do we think that any brother ever fully comprehends the beauty of Freemasonry, who has not—we will not say a literal, but at all events a good—general knowledge of our ritual. We can learn much at home in our own Lodge and by visiting other Lodges, but after all, it is to the Lodge of Instruction we must go, if we wish to attain to any degree of perfection in the working of our ceremonials. The more, then, these latter cultivate among themselves the relations of friendly intercourse, the more comprehensive will be the benefits they confer on Craftsmen. For these reasons we rejoice most heartily that Bro. Stevens was minded to bring forward his proposition the other evening, to the effect that the Confidence Lodge of Instruction should pay a friendly visit to the United Pilgrims, at the Surrey Masonic Hall. If not as wide asunder as the poles, these two Lodges of Instruction are at some distance from each other. It is not likely that many brethren are members of both. It will be a step in the right direction if the visit is paid. A return visit will, of course, follow, and thus gradually may spring up between the two not only those feelings of good fellowship which Bro. Stevens anticipates, but likewise greater accuracy and uniformity of knowledge.

These are the prospects that may be looked for from the interchange of such courtesies, and against these the most captious brother will experience some difficulty in setting any evil that is at all likely to follow. Brethren living north and south of the Thames, who are now without knowledge of each other, will have the opportunity of becoming acquainted. A feeling of emulation may spring up between the members of the two Lodges, but it will be an honourable feeling, without the slightest taint of jealousy about it. The rival schools of Larlham and of Gottheil will find themselves vieing with each other which shall most distinguish itself in the pursuit after knowledge. As in the battle field, two regiments cheer each other onward in the struggle who shall first reach the post of honour, so will the Confidence and United Pilgrims' Lodges of Instruction encourage such other by every means in their power in the contest who shall display the most consummate knowledge of the Royal Art. There is, then, absolutely no reason, so far as we can see, against the proposal, while there are several of great importance in its favour. The question, we see, has been left for further consideration. It was not contemplated, indeed, that the visit should take place immediately, but two or three months hence. There is, thus, ample time for members of the two Lodges to look at the proposal from every imaginable point of view. When this all-round consideration is completed, we fancy the result will be pretty much what we have described. But suggestions that have escaped us may occur to others, and it is possible, though we cannot say it is probable, the picture we have drawn may require to be somewhat toned down. On the other hand, there is the chance that it may present an even brighter aspect. In either case we are indebted to Bro. Stevens for a very admirable suggestion, which may be promotive of substantial good, and can do no harm. Two or three months hence, too, will be an excellent time for the visit to be arranged, assuming, of course, that the arrangements are perfected to that end. A considerable number of members are away, seeking some rest from their business or professional labours. The warmth of these latter days has not been calculated to arouse in us any great amount of enthusiasm for work. With the temperature in the shade varying at between 80° and 90°, we may be excused if we prefer doing only what is required of us, but in the autumn we shall not experience the same carelessness. We shall have resumed our ordinary business habits, and we shall then enjoy such a visit—if one be arranged—at least with infinite pleasure, on the score both of its novelty and desirability. The Confidence Lodge of Instruction is to be congratulated on the sound sense which marks both its ordinary procedure and the suggestions it occasionally offers for the greater wellbeing of the Craft.

THE IMPORTANCE OF MASONIC STUDY.

OUR last week's issue contained the concluding portion of a review which had been current in these pages for nearly a whole month. It is seldom we find it necessary or desirable to appropriate so much of our space to the consideration of a single work. But there were special reasons in this instance which led us to a departure from our common practice. Just now there is comparative quiet in the world of Masonry. The number of Lodges which are holding meetings at this period of the year is small; there is space, therefore, at our disposal. Then there is the admitted difficulty—which, however, we are not much troubled about—of providing the weekly amount of pabulum for our readers, which ordinarily induces the journalist to make the most of a long yarn when he is fortunate enough to light upon one. These, however, are not the motives which induced us to insert so lengthened a criticism. We were led to extend our remarks to a length so unusual by the anxiety we felt that greater prominence should be given generally to the study of Masonic history. We have repeatedly expressed our regret at the apathy evinced by the Craft in all matters relating to the rise and progress of the Society. The most ordinary subjects are treated with marvellous indifference, but the ignorance that prevails as to the early career of Freemasonry and its development, both at home and abroad, are the reverse of creditable to the brotherhood. The belief when a man enters within the sacred precincts of Masonry is, that he so enters from a desire to increase his store of knowledge. Too many, however, appear to think that when they have learned certain formulæ the sum of their knowledge is complete. Anything above or beyond this very narrow limit is deemed unnecessary—a labour of love, perhaps, in so far as it is undertaken without compulsion, but not a labour which duty prescribes. At all times, indeed, this remarkable ignorance of the rise and spread of the Royal Art has prevailed more or less in all countries, many even exhibiting a persistent objection to the publication of every branch of Masonic literature. When, then, we received a copy of so much of the early records of the Grand Lodge of New York as has appeared thus far, we felt that it would be impossible for us to give too great prominence to so important a work. It was one more proof, in addition to others we have had of late years, that the perverse antagonism to Masonic literature which had been displayed so freely was gradually giving way under the pressure of more liberal views. The publication of these early records, with the sanction of the Grand Lodge itself, by one of the Lodges under its jurisdiction, was an example that could not fail to exercise a large amount of influence for good. The history of our Society is most imperfect, and the contents of these numbers are a most valuable contribution towards one section of any future history of the Craft which may be written. These transactions, indeed, will form the basis of such a history for the State of New York. Therefore, it was, we viewed their appearance with a feeling of so much thankfulness. Again, the contents were so full of interest, shedding light not only on the early struggles of Freemasonry in this region, but oftentimes likewise on the manners and customs that prevailed there, that no one could sit down to read them without feeling a sense of pleasure, all the more genuine, perhaps, if, as a rule, he were no friend of Masonic literature. Here there were a host of reasons for our dwelling at more than ordinary length on this work. In our humble way we were doing yeoman service to the cause of Masonic literature, by praising and, therefore, encouraging the publication of Masonic history. The work was an important one, and its contents most interesting, and worthy, perhaps, of being summarised as well as criticised. Thus our review, as we proceeded, assumed the more imposing proportions of an abridged history, nor does it repent us that we have devoted so much space and labour to such good purpose.

In order to show that our estimate of the value of this work is not exaggerated, we draw attention to one or two facts which came under notice in the progress of our reading. Thus, in different places are mentioned certain Lodges, whose connection with the province of New York was severed at a later period, and by following which we are enabled to note the spread of Masonry in Connecticut, Ohio, Michigan. We find also the same struggle between Ancients and Moderns as in England, but while in the latter country this schism was not healed till the year 1813, a very short time sufficed for the Lodges of the two rival sections to be welded into one body, acknowledging the supremacy of one Grand Lodge, and submitting to one code of laws. The earliest Lodges in the State received their warrants from the so-called Moderns, but the Warrant of Constitution to Grand Lodge itself emanated from the Atholl Grand Lodge, and as there was no central Modern authority in the State towards the close of the War of Independence it was not a difficult task for the younger body to arrogate to itself the chief Masonic power. There does not, indeed, appear to have been any Ancient Lodge in the City of New York anterior to 1776, yet such was the vigour with which they acted when once they had been created, that it was under the auspices of Lodge 169 on the Grand Roll of England (Ancients) that the Provincial Grand Lodge, was organised or, it may be, as suggested in the introductory chapter, reorganized; and one of its members, Bro. the Rev. W. Walter, was appointed the first G.M. under the Atholl warrant. Yet peace having been concluded, and the Provincial Grand Lodge having declared itself independent, when in 1789 the seniority of the several Lodges came to be determined, the validity of the instruments issued by the Modern Grand Lodge of England was fully recognised, and the first and second places on the roll of the State Lodge of New York were assigned to Lodges warranted by Prov. G.M. Harison, while St. Andrew's, No. 169, came third only. There were difficulties in the way of perfect harmony in these earlier days of Freemasonry in New York, but the rivalry of Ancients and Moderns does not appear to have been either very violent or very enduring. No serious trouble appears to have been felt in removing the differences which distinguished the two sets or categories of Masons, and once that was done, the rest appears to have been tolerably plain sailing. The order of precedence was settled in accordance with the dates of warrants, but no account was taken who issued them. We believe the same facility of arrangement has not always marked the progress of Freemasonry in the State of New York. This is the more creditable, therefore, to the Craftsmen of those days, and the more worthy of being noted here.

These are two out of many points that might be mentioned as furnishing evidence of the great value of this particular publication. And the more carefully we study this class of work, the more earnestly we encourage their production, the easier will it be for us to appreciate the growth of Freemasonry. Many wonders have been wrought since the creation of the world, but there are few things more wonderful than the growth of Speculative Freemasonry. From the meeting one day at a London tavern of sundry enthusiasts, members of certain Masons' Lodges, there sprang into existence, almost as if by magic, a number of organisations, modelled pretty closely after the same fashion, and including people of every station in life, those possessing only a small amount of means being, in the order of things, the least numerously represented. A single room of modest dimensions would have held all the Speculative Freemasons throughout the whole world. Now there is hardly a country in the civilised world which does not contain some members of our Craft, while in the more enlightened communities, such as the United States, and the British Empire, the number of our Lodges is Legion. And it must be borne in mind that this progress has been made without any proselytising. There are no Masonic ministers whose duty it is to travel from place to place, expounding the beauties of the Art, and inviting people to join our ranks. We hold out no inducements to people to enrol themselves among us. Men seek us, not we them. We have been denounced again and again as a society that is dangerous, being both immoral and irreligious, and acting in secret, because our acts would not bear the light of day. But though these charges have been frequently made, and, on sundry occasions, been followed by active measures of hostility, we have gone on swelling in numbers and importance till now there are included among us men of the highest rank and intelligence in all civilised countries. And yet there are people who look upon us as a set of empty headed noodles, as well as no inconsiderable number of Craftsmen who think the printing of any matter which may throw light upon our history is contrary to the true principles of Freemasonry!

THE WANDERING FREEMASON.

X.

FROM East to West again, memory leads me back to that charmed city where I first saw the Light—"la Ciudad de los Reyes"—Lima, to dream of its soft patroness Santa Rosa, where the Santa Rositas her little love birds, twitter aloof upon the eaves, as gaunt *gallinazos swoop down and hop along the street in quest of some stray morsel; to quiet saunters under the shade of its balconies, whilst trains of asses, laden with water-kegs and driven by some hideous negro, clatter briskly through the quivering sunlight; to hours of excitement in the carnival and "noche buena," amidst frolic and revel rushing from house to house; to the Margaritas, the Josefinas, the Trinidads, the Marianas, in seductive bevies; to contemplation of the flocks of meek-eyed Llamas driven in from the mountains; to the gay ball-rooms of the Palacio; to General Castilla the old President and his cronies, whiling away Sunday afternoon at Chorillos over cigars and Rocambor.†

There I first really felt the smiles of fortune, in place, in love, in society, in luxury. I had the good fortune, common to many a youngster, to be a general favourite, and one result of the kindly patronage of the fair sex over a wild waif and stray was a seat at the table of our "Chargé d'affaires" every Sunday, by standing invitation. I became an intimate of the family, and met frequently Captains of H.M.'s ships (amongst them Lord Gilford of the "silver hand"), and English financiers' negotiators of Government loans. Under that hospitable roof I became the innocent instrument of introducing an unscrupulous schemer, indirectly countenancing an enterprise, which led to a flagitious and disastrous culmination that sent a thrill of horror through the civilised world.

It is my misfortune in these sketches to have to make so frequent use of the pronoun in the first person singular; it is unavoidable in an autobiography, more especially where action rather than scenery is described, where details rather than generalisations are requisite. I ask therefore to be acquitted of egotism, and, as the stories I relate are true, to be credited with sacrificing modesty at the shrine of sincerity in narrating events

"Quorum pars minima fui."

I fell one evening into conversation with a newly arrived compatriot, over the Times and Illustrated, in the reading room at Morney's Hotel, where I frequently dropped in of evenings for chocolate and dominoes. A 'cute looking Americo-Australian, to whom he alluded as "my secretary," was occupied with the Melbourne Argus; the pair had settled themselves comfortably to read the mail's news or to study human nature through the glass doors, as fancy might dictate. Miles Blake, the former, I found to be a man of vast experience of almost every clime and career, to whom most countries, languages and literatures seemed familiar. He and his companion were but a few hours landed from Australia, but already experience of men and manners had furnished just conclusions upon the current social topics of the place. He was above the usual size, in good proportion but rather high shouldered, his facial outline smooth and lips close set; his hair grizzled and scanty betrayed, however, advanced age which a straggling white moustache did not belie. His ordinary aspect was not prepossessing, though it perplexed my powers of physiognomy to tell why, for its characteristic was a calm impenetrability, much enhanced by the effectual concealment of his eyes under green spectacles. His companion, "Carter," was of a type often met with in the Southern Seas, combining the 'cuteness of the Yankee with the versatility of an Australian; one, moreover, who adhered with tenacity to his purposes, and darted in the nick of time to his ends like the lash of a stockwhip.

Subsequent knowledge of Blake enables me to describe him as an extraordinary man, who did everything by plan and rule. The expression wanting to his immobile countenance was concentrated in his eyes, they lighted up and flashed with every passing emotion like wave crests under the moonlight; so, pursuing in things small and great certain plans calculated to give him advantage over his fellow-men, he hid his tell-tale eyes behind green glasses. He was endowed with remarkable powers of memory; when, for instance, he read the Times he learned it, carefully conning every paragraph and storing it up; in the recesses of his brain he had garnered the information of many years, and from that centre could pour out radiations illustrative of the careers of politicians, the histories of families, the development of national imbroglios and the fluctuations of commerce. From the most trivial volume of historic chit-chat to bilingual inscriptions or the letters of Louis Blanc, he may be said in a double sense to have had his Times by heart.

I gathered from him on various occasions that he had visited almost every country, that he had nine times made the passage of the Red Sea; that he had set on foot the first colonisation of Natal, had settled New Hebrides for Belgium, New Caledonia for France; that he commanded 12,000 Burgher levies during the Caffre war, had been for a month the guest of the King of the Belgians, then of the Duke of Brabant, that he had had frequent interviews with Louis Napoleon, and that one of his sons was an officer in the Sardinian army. How much of all this was true I shall never know; he certainly had files of old newspapers and official documents corroborative of great part. I may, perhaps, be excused, at my age, for taking it all in as Gospel.

Two days after, I met him again, at the house of a leading American merchant, evidently as an honoured guest. It turned out that, three years before, he had been fellow passenger of the lady of the house down the Mississippi at a time when she was much an invalid. His charms of conversation and constant flow of instructive anecdote had beguiled a weary journey; to her gratitude he now owed his first entrée to the rather guarded society of the foreign mercantile community. He was the central figure of the drawing room, and contriving the conversation so that his hostess should seem to bear in it a principal part and to be familiar with all his antecedents, he more than once let drop a word about "my wealth," "my large investments." This produced the desired effect, and expecially interested the Danish Minister, a man of considerable riches and much knowledge of financial matters, who happened to be present. For my own part, I went away deeply impressed with having come into contact with one who was so evidently a master spirit of the age.

On my next visit to the British Legation, I was, of course, full of my new acquaintance, whose card had been duly deposited there: and the American lady opportunely arriving, confirmed, by her manner, the exaggerated impressions I had communicated. She seemed, as it were, their sponsor, and our Charge d'Affaires agreed to gratify his wife's natural curiosity and open spirit of hospitality by adding the lion's name to the invitations she was issuing for a ball. The ball took place; Blake sat until supper time the centre of an admiring group, narrating tiger hunts in India, explorations in Africa, episodes of the revolutionary propaganda in Italy, anecdotes of courts, and projects for gigantic works in America and Europe. He explained the failure of the Nicaraguan Canal, which had sent the O'Gorman home penniless, and boasted of the coming time when the Andes would be crossed by Railways and the steam-whistle resound along the banks of the Amazon and Orinoko.* Old General Miller (comrade of Dundonald), a scarred and war-worn hero, was greatly interested. Ellaby (representative of King Kamehameha II. of the Sandwich Isles) and doyen of the diplomatic corps, eagerly snuffed good speculations in the wind, and M. de Lesseps—Minister of France (with whose cousin of Suez, Blake claimed acquaintance), complimented him in his courtly way, as "a la tête de la civilization de nôtre temps."

He was soon the talk of the town, and a mystery into which all were trying to pry. Some said he had come to oust Gibbs and Sons from the Guano contracts, some—that he had offered to buy the Galapagas Islands and colonise them with Germans—that he was the proprietor of a new patent for concreting sugar—that he had lent five millions to a deposed President to enable him to seize the Chincha Isles and make a descent on the coast. All babbled and wondered, in vain, he remained as erst—a mystery. Only, when I informed him that the chief merchants, on laying their heads together, had found that he had brought no credits on any of them, he rejoined. "Why should I, when I packed 5000 sovereigns in my trunks on leaving Australia, and have unlimited credit upon Rothschild?" This answer did seem rather "strong," I dared not repeat it, in view of the derision it might provoke: dazzled and carried away by his fascination, I felt I had gone too far to retreat, and preferred to wait the upshot of events.

He still resided at Morney's Hotel, where he was frequently visited by a Notary, and where, when I saw him, he pumped me unceasingly upon the reputed position and family life of the leading statesmen of the Republic. At length the "coup" descended, and all was revealed. A decree appeared in the Gazette, conceding to Miles Blake the privilege of importing 5,000 free labourers per annum into the country, for five years, from the South Seas. He then explained to me that he had a concession from the French and Belgian Governments to deport that number of natives from the New Hebrides and New Caledonia, and dropped hints of the thousands of dollars that the decree had cost him in bribery of officials, from the President down.

Foreigners in Spanish America ever lend an open ear to these accusations, which may or not be well founded. The condition of Peru, at the time, certainly favoured the assumption of their truth. The total population was estimated at 8,000,000, and the President of the Republic, by a stroke of his pen on assigning the Guano Contract, drew annually 20,000,000 dollars into the Exchequer, exclusive of Customs dues, licences and other imposts; being an average of two dollars and a half for every man, woman and child. Out of the 8,000,000 of souls, moreover, more than nine-tenths were of the poorer sort and peasantry, who could not hope to participate in the fruits of Government expenditure; which was absorbed by a compact, well equipped Navy, an Army admirably clothed and drilled of some 20,000 men, and lastly, though not in least degree, by Government Officials. As the State was chronically in debt, it is evident that the last class must have benefitted inordinately. Every Government office which seemed to need five clerks employed twenty, and salaries were delightfully high. A natural result was the extreme of luxury and reckless expenditure in the capital. Public amusements were provided on feast days (about once a week) with lavish hand; acrobatic performances, fireworks and illuminations in the "Plaza de Armas" without stint, out of public money; three days of festivity, with all manner of displays, were devoted each year to the celebration of Independence; and the curse of gambling, fostered by State lotteries, preyed remorselessly upon high and low. To this, Sundays at many of my friends' houses were entirely devoted; after delicious champagne breakfasts, not to be matched for gigantic prawn-salads and "chupes," venison-pastys, turtle steaks, vegetable butter, pineapples, cheremoyas and melons, they would gravitate to the Rocamber table, flanked each by his pile of onzas. This, in a city which is no neophyte in startling political revolutions and sudden shocks of disastrous earthquake; almost within sight of those Guano Islands, where despairing slaves of Chinamen sought frequently an end to their wretchedness, by leaping down the foul Guano shoots to be disinterred in all the ghastliness of rigid petrefaction, by astonished seamen months after in European ports.

* These dreams have since been realised.

AN EPISODE IN AMERICAN MASONIC HISTORY.

THE following incident, of which the official statement will be found in Part III. of the recently published "History and Transactions of the Grand Lodge of New York, 1781-1815," deserves to be noticed with a certain degree of particularity. It illustrates so truly the real spirit of the Craft.

At the regular meeting of Grand Stewards' Lodge on 30th May 1792, a Bro. Abrams announced that several Portuguese brethren, having been forced to quit their homes in the island of Madeira, through the persecution directed by their Government against all Freemasons, had arrived in the City of New York. It was then and there resolved, "that a Committee be appointed to wait on the Deputy Grand Master, and request him to call a meeting of the Grand Lodge, on Saturday evening next, in order that some measures may be taken by the Grand Lodge (should they judge it expedient) to pay some mark of attention to their persecuted brethren." The Committee so appointed consisted of Bros. Abrams, Bright and Adams. A Grand Lodge of Emergency was accordingly held on the 2nd June following, when it was explained why the meeting had been called, and it was immediately resolved "that a Committee be appointed to wait upon the said brethren, and in the name of this Grand Lodge to request their attendance at their next regular meeting, on Wednesday evening next." The Committee thus appointed was ordered to consist of W. Bro. Scott, Bro. Abrams, and the Grand Secretary, and they were requested to provide refreshment for that evening. R.W. Bro. Morton was also directed "to prepare an address to be delivered by him to the said brethren." At the meeting of Grand Lodge on the Sixth of the Month, Bro. Morton announced that the Committee appointed by Grand Lodge had waited on the exiled Portuguese brethren, and invited them to attend that Grand Lodge. These brethren had expressed their sense of the attention of the New York Grand Lodge, had promised attendance, and were at the time in waiting. Thereupon the Committee waited upon them, and conducted them into Grand Lodge, where they were received by those present with marks of the highest respect. Bro. Morton then delivered the address he had been directed to prepare, and the exiles having requested that a copy thereof should be furnished, it was resolved that Bro. Morton be invited to present to them a copy. The usual business of Grand Lodge was then transacted, and arrangements having been made for the Lodges to dine together on the 25th June, in celebration of the Festival of St. John the Baptist's Day, the Madeirans were invited to be present at the banquet, and though there is no record of the fact, we presume the banquet came off as arranged.

There is nothing, perhaps, so noticeable in the above resumé of the incident, as recorded in Grand Lodge minutes, as the marked simplicity of the record. There is absolutely no parade of circumstances. A number of exiled Masons arrive in New York, and the Grand Lodge addresses them in terms of fraternal sympathy, and requests the honour of their presence at a regular periodical banquet. The minutes contain no "tall talk," but merely the usual dry chronicle of a fact. It is in the highest degree creditable to our New York brethren of 1792 that they acted so fraternally and so simply.

LODGE OF HARMONY, No. 809, FAREHAM.

VISIT OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER.

THE R.W. the Prov. G.M. (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.), accompanied by several of the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge, paid a visit on the 9th inst. to the Lodge of Harmony, No. 309. The Lodge was held on this occasion in the Institution Hall, Fareham, where there was a good muster of members and visiting brethren. The P.G.M. and the present and Past Provincial Officers entered the Lodge in procession, and the usual Masonic honours were paid to Bro. Beach and the Deputy P.G.M. (Bro. W. Hickman). The P.G.M. was accompanied by the following officers of the P.G. Lodge:—Bros. H. Abraham Senior Grand Warden, F. Pineo Junior Grand Warden, E. G. Holbrook Grand Registrar, M. E. Frost Grand Treasurer, E. Groves Grand Assistant Dir. Cer., J. W. D. Pillow Grand Organist, V. Brown and J. E. Tucker Grand Stewards, J. Exell Grand Tyler; also Bros. H. Ford P.P.G.S.W., H. Cawte P.P.J.G.W., W. Edmonds P.P.G.R., J. Tayler P.P.G.R., W. H. Ford P.P.G.J.W., J. Maltby P.P.G.S.B., &c. All the officers of the Lodge of Harmony were present, viz.:—Bros. J. Whale W.M., E. Downing S.W., T. Robinson J.W., E. G. Holbrook Sec., S. Gamblen S.D., A. Nance jun. J.D., E. Goble I.G., and the following P.M.'s of the Lodge:—Bros. J. Tayler, W. Edmonds, H. Cawte, G. A. Green, W. Johnston, and A. Riddell.

In consequence of the want of time the business of the Lodge was limited to one "raising," after which, on the motion of Bro. Cawte P.M., seconded by Bro. H. Ford I.P.M., a vote of thanks was accorded to the P.G.M. for attending, and ordered to be entered on the Lodge minutes. The P.G.M. briefly acknowledged the compliment, and the Lodge was closed in due Masonic form. Bro. Osborne presided at the harmonium, and at the opening of the Lodge the ode —"Hail, Eternal! by whose aid," and the close—"Now the evening shadows closing," were sung.

At half-past four a banquet was served at the Red Lion Assembly Rooms, the catering of the Misses White being, as usual, of the most satisfactory character, the bill of fare liberal, and the attendance all that could be desired. The W.M. (Bro. J. Whale) presided, having right and left the P.G.M. and D.P.G.M., and past and present Provincial Officers; Bro. E. Downing S.W. filled the vice-chair. After dinner the W.M. gave "The Queen and the Craft," which was received with all the honours.

The W.M., in proposing "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., said he had endeared himself to each member of the Craft, and he was sure they would drink the toast with the warmth it deserved at their hands. (Applause.)

Bro. W. Edmonds submitted "The M.W. Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon." Many of the brethren, he said, had the very great privilege of attending the Festival at the Albert Hall last year, and witnessed the installation of the M.W.G.M. To his mind the sight was one that could not be forgotten, and the manner in which that ceremony was performed by the Earl of Carnarvon, to say nothing of the high esteem in which he was held by the Craft throughout England, and, he might say, throughout the whole world, had endeared him to all Masons. (Applause.) The toast on the present occasion must be very gratifying to them, as the Earl of Carnarvon had on several occasions visited Hampshire, and they knew also that he was a very intimate friend of their R.W.P.G.M. (Applause.) The Earl of Carnarvon installed their R.W.P.G.M., and many of the brethren were present on that occasion, and it would be a long time before they would forget the efficient, and, in fact, splendid manner in which that ceremony was performed. (Applause.)

Bro. Cawte, in proposing "The R.W.D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, and officers of Grand Lodge," said Lord Skelmersdale was well known to all the brethren throughout England as a most zealous Mason. He presided over an extensive province, and had arduous duties to perform, in addition to which he took part in other duties, such as presiding over Masonic festivals, being a stout supporter of their charities. (Applause.)

The W.M. said they were honoured on that occasion with the presence of the P.G.M. and the Provincial Officers. In the name of the Lodge of Harmony he bid them a very hearty welcome, and assured them it had given the Lodge the greatest possible pleasure to see them amongst them on that occasion. (Hear, hear.) In the P.G.M. they had a brother who was devoted to Freemasonry—(applause)—and who was at all times ready to promote the interests of, and prove his attachment to, the Craft. (Applause.) His appreciation of the principles which governed their Order, his amiability of character, the zeal with which he discharged those duties which he was called upon to perform, his readiness at any time to meet those who wished to consult him on Masonic affairs, and to render them every possible assistance, were well known, and to a great extent the flourishing condition of Freemasonry in the province was due to their Provincial Grand Master. (Applause.) It would not flourish in the province in the manner it did, were it not that they had one to preside over them who was so amiable, so good, so loving, and so kind. (Applause.) On their behalf, and on his own, he thanked him for the honour he had done them in coming among them, and he could only say they should at all times rejoice to welcome him in the same cordial manner they had endeavoured to do that afternoon, to listen to his exhortations as the provincial head of their Order, and to testify the affection which they entertained towards him. (Applause.) He had endeared himself to every member of the Craft by the wisdom and affability he had always shown during the time he had had the honour and pleasure of presiding over the province. (Applause.) He expressed a hope that the Great Architect of the Universe would bestow his choicest blessings upon their Provincial Grand Master, and that he might continue to support and adorn their Order was a wish for which he claimed the sympathy of every brother present. (Loud applause.)

The PROVINCIAL GRAND MASTER, who was warmly greeted, begged the brethren to accept his best thanks for the manner in which they had received the toast, which had been so kindly and flatteringly proposed by their W.M. He assured them it gave him very great pleasure to have an opportunity of visiting the Lodge of Harmony that day. He had been asked to do so for some little time, but he had not had the opportunity of making arrangements to do so until this time. As they knew, during the Session it was not always easy for him to meet the wishes of the brethren and attend when one wished to do so, but as they had got to a rather easier part of the year, he was very glad to have been able to meet them. It gave him very great pleasure to attend Lodges in the province, and especially one which ranked under its banner so many efficient brethren as the Lodge of Harmony. When a Provincial Grand Master attended a Lodge he was naturally called upon to speak words of encouragement, or to take cognisance of any proceedings that had occurred. But he could compliment them very much on what had taken place that day, and could say how glad he was of this opportunity of witnessing a ceremony conducted so well as the one that day had been. He was one of those who thought that too much attention could not be paid to the ritual, in important points, of Freemasonry. (Hear, hear.) But there were certain portions of it that he would leave to the discretion of the Presiding Officer as to how it should be conducted, and he attached no importance as to whether the exact words were transmitted, provided that on important occasions the exact terms and purport were delivered. He said this, knowing that he might possibly differ from some other experienced Masons on that point. But it had always been his opinion, and he had the authority of the Pro Grand Master, who used to give the ceremony in the most eloquent and beautiful manner, but on some unimportant points interpolated words which, to say the truth, were equal if not superior to the original. There were, of course, certain portions of the ceremony—matters of small importance—which differed in different Lodges, and he thought it a great benefit to Masons to attend different Lodges and see the small points of difference which exist. (Hear, hear.) But, unless they were really important points, he thought it a great mistake to call any attention, beyond a casual allusion, to any such differences on small matters. They might be conducted quite as well in one Lodge as in another, but yet strike brethren as being a little strange, because they were conducted differently from their own Lodge. He did not see why there should be absolute uniformity in these matters, but they should be left to the discretion of the Presiding Officer and brethren of a Lodge. One matter he thought very creditable to the Lodge—the opportunity afforded of bringing on good Junior Officers, of giving them an opportunity of showing the promise of excellence in Freemasonry which they might attain hereafter, and how, by evincing skill in the duties they were at present performing, they might claim the confidence of the brethren for higher duties hereafter. (Hear, hear.) He thanked them exceedingly for the kind reception they had given him, in common with the other Provincial Officers, and he hoped he should have other opportunities of attending the meetings of this Lodge. (Hear, hear.) He could not too much impress on the brethren the necessity of keeping alive that spirit of Freemasonry which was, he was happy to say, so rife in this province. (Applause.) He must differ entirely from their W.M. on one point, when he said that the state of Freemasonry in that province was owing to his (the speaker's) exertions. ("Yes.") He could not at all admit that, although he had taken great interest in it. (Hear, hear.) The state of prosperity in which it existed was owing to the zealous, efficient, and able officers whom he had the pleasure of seeing around him, and of enlisting under his banner. It was to their tried exertions in the past, and the promise of the future, that he looked for the success of Freemasonry in the province, and so long as they were able to have the services of those who in past years had exerted themselves for the benefit of the Craft, sometimes, perhaps, under trying circumstances; so long as they could look to those who had more recently entered the Craft, and were anxious to rival the exertions of their seniors; so long, he entertained no doubt in the world, Freemasonry would continue to flourish. (Applause.) A long time had not elapsed since they rallied round their Grand Master and gave him a greeting on his landing. That went off well, and they had reason to congratulate themselves that they were the first members of the Craft to greet him on his return to his native land. (Applause.) That occasion demonstrated the universality of Freemasonry, because they not only greeted the Heir to the Throne, but the head of their Order, who had had the opportunity of cementing the bonds of Freemasonry, as well as of loyalty, in one of the most distant and the grandest dependency of the British Empire. (Applause.) Let them keep that spirit of Freemasonry ever in their hearts. Their W.M. had truly said that he (the speaker) was very fond of Freemasonry. He thought he might say that from the hour he was initiated he had always lived in it, and had done his best to promote it. (Applause.) Others had done, and would continue to do, the same. So long as they all kept alive in their hearts those principles of Freemasonry which could not be too strongly instilled into every neophyte of the Order, and every one who was fond and proud of the Order, so long should they have reason to congratulate themselves upon the future of Freemasonry. (Applause.) He thanked them most sincerely for the kind manner in which they had received him, and he hoped on some future occasion, in that Lodge, to have reason to congratulate them upon the progress they had made, as he did now upon the efficient manner in which the ceremonies of that day had been conducted. (Loud applause.)

Bro. A. Nance jun., speaking as a Mason not a year old, could not but feel the distinguished honour paid him in allowing him to propose the next toast—"The V.W.D.P.G.M. Bro. Hickman, and the officers of Provincial G.L." (Applause.) Although he had not the pleasure of knowing the D.P.G.M., he was sure he commanded the respect of the brethren. (Hear, hear.) As to the Provincial Officers, the very fact of their being appointed by the P.G.M. showed that they had obtained distinguished excellence in Masonry,

The little he knew of Freemasonry had caused him to have a great yearning to know more. (Applause.)

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who was cordially received, said it afforded him very great pleasure to be here to-day, to accompany the Provincial Grand Master. He would say two or three words of encouragement to the brother who had so kindly proposed the toast. In that room he first attained provincial office, something like twenty years ago, when he was a very young man, and occupied the position of Provincial Grand Steward. Although mingled with the satisfaction of coming among them to-day was the recollection of several separated brethren, who at that time held high office and were amongst the most genial spirits in Freemasonry, he felt great gratification that the Lodge was flourishing, and that the principles of Freemasonry were not dead but active in operation and underlying, in every sense, this Lodge. He trusted that the Lodge would continue on its onward progress, and to promulgate those beautiful sentiments to which they had listened with so much interest in the Lodge Room, and that at some future time the officers of the province, who were so glad to accompany so estimable a Grand Officer as their chief, might again pay them a visit. The P.G.M. must forgive him for referring to what his modesty had caused him to say as to the remark that it was in consequence of his being at the head of the Craft in the province the success of Masonry was marked. He must be permitted, though his officer, to differ from him, and to say that a good head made good officers, and that having such a head they were proud to serve under him. He trusted that the officers who might from time to time be appointed by him might have the same feeling of respect towards him, and the same feeling for the good of Masonry, which he was sure the present officers possessed, and feel it their duty on every occasion to obey his calls and commands to attend him. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master said it was very gratifying to propose the health of a brother whose presiding over the Lodge was a guarantee for the toast being received well. To assume the office of Worshipful Master was no light responsibility. The W.M. had to rely on the support of the brethren of his Lodge for the discharge of the duties in a proper manner. When a man threw zeal and energy into the performance of the duties he never appealed in vain to brethren. From the manner in which the W.M. had conducted the ceremony, from the interest he had taken in Freemasonry, and the zeal he had shown to promote its interests and that of the Lodge, he entertained no doubt they would receive his health in a most enthusiastic manner. (Applause.) Allow him to congratulate him upon the admirable manner in which everything was carried out, and upon the admirable manner in which the musical arrangements were conducted, which was most gratifying to every one present. (Applause.)

The W.M., in responding, said he entered upon the duties intending to carry them out to the best of his ability. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. H. Ford, after some general remarks on the objects of Freemasonry, proposed "The Visitors," which was duly acknowledged.

The other toasts were "The P.M.'s of the Lodge," and "The Officers."—Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette.

LODGE FEES.

Glasgow, 16th August.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In answer to your correspondent Q., I may state that the case cited by me did not occur under the English Constitution, or, as I am aware, the fees would not be deposited until after the ceremony of initiation. The instance you quote from Dr. Oliver, under the Irish Constitution, must have been very similar to that quoted by me.

Yours fraternally,

GLENDRU.

VISITORS AND LODGES OF INSTRUCTION.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Having read your article on the "Admission of Visitors," I see you invite the opinion of Bro. John Hervey as to what really is the law on that most important question. This is the second occasion on which the Confidence Lodge has been called upon to exercise a wise discretion. In the first case, if I remember rightly, the applicant was a Belgian, and there was some difficulty on the part of the members in making themselves understood. He gave satisfactory evidence, as to the E.A.P. and F.C. degrees, that he was a Craftsman, but owing to the absence of regalia, &c., he declined to submit to any further test, and was accordingly requested to retire. On the second occasion the applicant came unvouched, and to all intents and purposes unrecommended. A refusal under these circumstances was obviously necessary. I am inclined to draw two conclusions from the above:—

(1) The sooner it is officially announced what is the law, clear and simple, which governs the admission of strangers, the better for all true Craftsmen.

(2) It is desirable that some steps should be taken to confer on Lodges of Instruction a more important status than they now possess.

You once, I think, suggested that a Lodge of Instruction, while still continuing to work under some regular Lodge, and receiving from the latter a warrant for so doing, should likewise receive the regular warrant issued by Grand Lodge. Such a suggestion appears to me to be as just as it is feasible.

Yours fraternally,

TENAX PROPOSITI.

MAKING LODGE MEETINGS ATTRACTIVE.

From "THE MASONIC JOURNAL."

MAKE your Lodge meetings attractive and interesting. There are many who think that the only meetings worthy of their attention, and which will afford anything of interest, are those in which there is what is technically called work to be done; or, in other words, degrees to be conferred. You meet a brother on the street and enquire, "Will you be at the Lodge to-night?" "Well," he replies, "I hardly know. Is there any work on hand?" "Yes," you say, "the third degree is to be conferred." "Oh, is it? Well, I think I must try and be there." But if you tell him there is nothing on hand but the regular routine of Lodge business, you will often hear the reply: "Well, I should like much to be with you, but the fact is that I am so very busy that I do not see how I can spare the time." Now, it is possible to revolutionize this whole matter; and, by pursuing the proper course, make our ordinary communications—those in which degrees are not to be conferred—the most interesting and attractive of all. In order to do this, study to introduce variety into the exercises of the Lodge. Cling to your ritual and to your regular routine of business, but do not rest satisfied with these. So arrange as to give plenty of time for other matters. The most beautiful ceremonies, when gone through, night after night, again and again, with nothing introduced or added to give variety, will, in time, become most terribly monotonous, and cease to afford either interest or instruction. Stop ever and anon, and enlarge upon the teachings of our ritual, and thus bring its beauties more prominently to view, and write its truths more indelibly upon the mind and heart. Do not attempt to do much in one evening, and thus unduly prolong your sessions until the brethren are wearied, and the good wife at home loses her patience as she sits until the small hours of the night awaiting your return, and you, by virtue of your late hours, become unfitted for the labours of the following day. Let the most of your degree work be done at special communications, and thus avoid the necessity of prolonged sessions, and obtain more time at your regular meetings for other matters. Nothing will more effectually deplete our ranks, kill all the interest in our meetings, and embitter the folks at home, than by pursuing the course against which we warn you. Again, banish all buckram and starch from your midst. While you guard against frivolity, and strive to maintain among the brethren a true Masonic dignity, aim, at the same time, to draw out and cultivate the spirit of free and easy interchange of opinions, introduce and allow to be introduced any and all topics that can consistently be discussed in a Lodge room. Occasionally bring forward themes, the consideration of which will require Masonic research, and thus put our brethren upon a course of Masonic reading that will eventually cause them to become well instructed in the philosophy, jurisprudence and history of our Order, and make them intelligent, zealous, devoted Masons, and inspire them with an earnest love for the fraternity and the whole family. How many Masons there are who are hardly aware that Masonry has any literature at all beyond the monitor and a few struggling periodicals; whereas it counts volumes by the thousand, and sends forth to the world its periodicals, in which talent and ability are evinced inferior to none.

Masons need these books and periodicals, and no better work can be done for the fraternity than to send them out broadcast. Every organization is liable to abuse by its enemies just in proportion to the ignorance of its members. We need more reading Masons. In these days, when in many places we are bitterly and persistently assailed, it stands us in hand to be well informed with reference to everything pertaining to the Order. We are blessed with vast numbers who are intelligent, reading, thinking men, and yet while conversant with almost every other subject, they are not intelligent in Masonry. When a brother has taken all the degrees, when he has become so thoroughly acquainted with the ritual that every word is at his tongue's end, so far is he from being a well-instructed Mason that he has but simply learned the Masonic alphabet; he is only placed upon good vantage ground for entering upon a course of Masonic research that will amply reward for all the labour he may bestow. Let us keep these facts constantly before the brethren, and thus spur them up to greater diligence in their efforts for more and further Masonic light.—(Grand Master GRISWOLD of Minnesota.)

REVIEWS.

Great Western Railway Panoramic Guide. Bemrose and Sons, 10 Paternoster Buildings.

THE ordinary Railway Guide is useful, but by no means commands general admiration. We consult it when we wish to travel, but it is not the class of book we should think of taking up at odd moments, when we wish for a little light reading. This Panoramic Guide, and others similar to it, which have been published latterly, contain, however, a great amount of really interesting matter. They are, in short, handbooks to the districts traversed by the several lines of railway. This particular guide is quite on a level with others we have seen. The information it contains is not only of service to the travelling public, but includes also much that is of great interest to the reading public. This class of publication deserves to be encouraged. A railway guide has, hitherto, been regarded as a model of dry reading. If the new kind is sufficiently supported, we shall have a railway library of agreeable light literature.

Picturesque Europe.—Part 4. Cassell, Petter and Galpin. "Dover Castle" is the subject of the principal engraving of this number, A. Willmore having executed it, with his usual skill, from a sketch of great merit by D. McKewan. The greater number of the wood engravings are of scenes with which the reader is likely to be familiar—scenes of Rye, Winchelsea, Fairlight, near Hastings, Bodiam Castle, and other well known places on the South coast. They are in the highest degree creditable to the artists who have done them. The earlier are in continuation of the preceding number, and relate to Warwickshire. The number exhibits the same degree of ability, both literary and artistic, which has distinguished its predecessors.

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE Session of 1876 is at an end, having been protracted several days beyond its ordinary limit. Our Legislators are, no doubt, as pleased as a parcel of schoolboys on finding themselves released from their duties at Westminster, especially as it is long since the two Houses, but chiefly the Commons, have had so serious an amount of heavy work thrown upon them during the latter sittings. However, "all's well that ends well." Noble lords and honourable members are now at liberty to go whither they please—footing it over the moors in pursuit of grouse or deer-stalking, yachting in the Mediterranean or other waters, or merely vegetating, in an amiable kind of way, at some fashionable watering-place, at home or abroad, as it consorts with their several humours. And they have fairly earned their holiday, too. At the opening of Parliament, in February, Ministers were wisely reticent on the measures they had in prospect. One or two were mentioned as certain to occupy the time of our Legislature; and these are now law. A great variety of other bills, varying, of course, in importance, were introduced, and certain of these have passed triumphantly the several stages of discussion in both Houses, and received the Royal assent: but a Member of Parliament is one of whom a certain amount of talk is expected; and there are over six hundred and fifty of them. No wonder that, at the Mansion House the other day, the Marquis of Salisbury remarked, in a genial after-dinner speech, that the House of Commons was becoming notorious for its power of discussion, while the Hereditary Chamber was acquiring fame for its business-like proceedings. Much or little in the way of debate, however, in this or that House, the session just closed has not been unfruitful of important measures. Certain we enumerated last week have become law, while others, though left over for another year, have had the advantage of being thoroughly well debated, so that action on them in a future session may readily be taken. As regards formal changes in the composition of the two Houses, there are not many that need be noted. Lord Northbrook has resumed his place in the Lords, being succeeded in the Viceroyship of India by Lord Lytton. The Earl of Malmesbury has resigned the office of Privy Seal; while, in the Commons, the death of Mr. W. Romaine Callender, M.P. for Liverpool, and the retirement from the Office of Works of Lord Henry Lennox, are among the most noteworthy occurrences. One change we have hardly yet had time to realize. The Premier, Mr. Benjamin Disraeli, who has had a seat in the Commons for some forty years, has been raised to the peerage, by the style and title of the Earl of Beaconsfield, and has further accepted the seals of office as Lord Privy Seal. Assuredly this is owing to the increasing age of the right honourable gentleman and the severe strain upon his powers involved in the leadership of the Commons; but the world will be some time in recognising, in the Earl of Beaconsfield, plain Mr. Disraeli, the powerful debater and the leader, in opposition or in power, since 1848, of the great Conservative party. No doubt he will adorn the new sphere to which, by the gracious act of Her Majesty, he has been moved, but the House of Commons will hardly know itself without him. While we congratulate the Peers on this latest brilliant accession to their strength, we cannot let slip this opportunity of sympathizing with the Commons' House on its undoubted loss.

The Queen, accompanied by the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, has ere this reached Balmoral, where she is expected to make a stay of some two months. En route, the Court made a brief stay at Holyrood, for the purpose of unveiling the statue erected to the memory of the late Prince Consort. The reception accorded the Royal travellers was of the most hearty character, and the special ceremony, which interrupted their journey to the Highlands, passed off most satisfactorily, Edinburgh, of course, being en fête for the day.

Saturday was the first day of grouse-shooting, and to judge from the reports we have read in the daily and other papers, there seems every prospect that this particular sport will be productive of heavier bags this year than last. Less than a fortnight hence and we shall be reading of partridges, and yet another interval and the "long-tails" will be seen in our market places. When our own time comes for a stroll, gun-in-hand, over the moors or through the stubble, we shall act on the advice considerately proffered to Mr. Winkle on a certain memorable occasion by the "long gamekeeper." We shall give due notice, or the birds may fight shy of us.

More than once have we felt it our duty to apologise for our comments on the weather, and the irregular conduct of the clerk in charge. The excuse for our present reference we know is a poor one, none other, in fact, than the excuse the venerable Dr. Watts offered for the barking and biting propensities of the canine race—It is our nature to. It is in the nature of every Briton, too, to grumble at all times, and with the very stones at blood-heat—which ought to show, by the way, that blood can be got out of stones—we know of nothing more appropriate or more seasonable than a good outburst of grumbling. We have not the honour of being acquainted with the oldest inhabitant of these islands, or possibly we might a tale unfold to our readers, showing how the heat of the last few weeks has far exceeded the average heat during the same period of the last hundred years. Under these circumstances we content ourselves with announcing that the present temperature, if not favourable to the growth of vegetables, is excellently well calculated to develope all the hot-tempered and hot-blooded propensities of all the hot-headed people in Christendom. One thing we should like to see—Mr. Chas. Matthews play in Cool as a Cucumber. His performance would be cool and refreshing, as well as artistic.

Cavill's attempt to rival the channel swim of Bro. Captain Webb has proved a failure. He started on Tuesday morning, a little before 2 a.m., and after having been in the water about twelve hours was lifted into one of the attendant luggers in a state of insensibility. From the accounts we have read, Cavill, contrary to the advice of his medical attendant, appears to have taken too much stimulant. His condition, according to the Standard reporter, was very queer; but late on Tuesday night he was enjoying a good sound sleep. It seems that he has no recollection of being taken into the boat, Pamplin having dived in just in the nick of time, and held him up. Captain Webb and some of his friends, in a lugger, accompanied the party, our gallant brother being genuinely anxious for the success of Cavill, who has proved himself a swimmer of great power, if not the equal of Webb.

The Canterbury week closed with the most brilliant batting feat on record, Mr. W. G. Grace having scored 344, the greatest total ever achieved in a first-class match. Since then at Clifton, in the return match between Gloucestershire and Notts, he has made 177, so that with his other brilliant scores this season, we see every chance of his maintaining, if not surpassing, his average of previous years. Other important matches have been played during the week just ended, but none of them excite the same degree of interest as those in which the champion takes part. One unusual occurrence deserves mention. The match between Surrey and Middlesex ended in a tie, each having scored as a result of their two innings the respectable total of 460 runs.

The Thames Regatta closed on Friday last, all the preliminary heats having been rowed the day previous. H. Clasper—this name is familiar in the rowing world—won the coat, badge, and freedom; the Thames crew, stroked by T. Green, won the Champion fours; T. Blackman of Dulwich the sculls, open to those only who have never sculled for £100; and T. Green and H. Thomas (Thames) the Champion pairs. A sad accident marred the success of the day's sport, two men fell from one of the accompanying steamers, and only one was saved. Other coast regattas have followed those of Dover and Shoreham, the sport being of the ordinary character and generally attractive.

We generally expect to hear, during the excursion season, of one or more severe railway accidents, but those that have occurred latterly have befallen the regular, not the extraordinary, trains. The other day it was the Flying Dutchman which came to grief. This week the Scotch mail, running over the Midland system, fell into difficulties, and one of the guards was seriously injured, while two of the passengers were hurt. The cause of this accident was the breaking into two sections of a goods train, the second part of which, when the engine driver pulled up, dashed into the first, scattering the waggons right and left. The express came up at the moment, with the result we have already mentioned.

A fire of such magnitude as that which last week destroyed the premises of Messrs. Grant and Co., printers and publishers, of Turnmill Street, happens, fortunately, but seldom. The amount of damage is very great, but Messrs. Grant, we believe, are insured. The misfortune, however, attending these catastrophes is, that so many hands are thrown out of work. In this instance, some 300 or 400 people are suddenly left unemployed. Messrs. Grant were the printers and publishers of the Gentleman's Magazine, and of the School Board Chronicle. Of the large premises they occupied, but little apparently remains beyond the walls. Booth's distillery, which is hard by, had a narrow escape, and passengers from the Farringdon Street Station of the Metropolitan Railway, felt just a wee bit nervous about making the journey.

Cornwall has been selected this year as the scene of its labours by the Archæological Association of Great Britain, and, on Monday, at the invitation of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, our respected P.G.M. of Cornwall, a visit was paid to the house of Cotehele, a very ancient structure, which has been in the possession of the noble Earl's family since the reign of Henry VII., the property, of which it forms part, having belonged to the Edgcumbes from an earlier date still. This house is in admirable preservation, and both itself and its fittings, &c., &c., enable us to form a very capital idea how people lived and fared in the good old times, but few changes having been made by successive owners. The Earl was himself present, and read an account of the builder of the house and its principal inhabitants, while Mr. Loftus Broeck, one of the honorary secretaries of the Association, read a highly interesting paper, in which was described the building itself. Having completed their inspection of the place, the Archæologists returned to Saltash, and went thence by rail to Bodmin.

As a consequence of the verdict at the Bravo inquest, Government has offered a reward of £250 to whoever will divulge the secret of this very mysterious case, and a free pardon, if he has taken any part in the crime short of that of principal. Without annoying our readers with any comments on this very nasty case, we cannot avoid expressing the pleasure we feel, that all the respectable daily and weekly journals we have yet seen condemn in the strongest possible terms the very brutal cross-examination to which Mrs. Bravo was subjected. The Times, indeed, speaks of it as a kind of mental vivisection, and suggests that those who practise this kind of torture should be permitted to do so only under the most stringent regulations. The ends of justice were in no wise promoted by the exposure of Mrs. Bravo's frailties. To again and again force a most unhappy woman to admit that she had sinned was simple cowardice.

Mr. Richard Banner Oakley will be able during the next five years to reflect on the very important question, how a Co-operative Bank should not be managed. Mr. Oakley, after a most patient trial has been found guilty of sundry of the charges brought against him, and the sentence passed by the Recorder is one of five years' penal servitude. He will be a bold man, indeed, who shall essay to follow the convict's example as manager of a co-operative bank. Mr. Oakley had a deep interest in the success of his project, but he started his bank without principal and conducted it without principle, nor in estimating his liabilities had he made any provision for a term of penal servitude at Millbank or in Dartmoor. Thus in more senses than one did he fall into the very vulgar error of preparing a false balance sheet.

Ex-Queen Isabella has not been long in Spain ere we hear of a ministerial crisis being imminent. It is said those members of the ministry who took part against her ex-Majesty in 1869 are to be expelled from office. If Isabella remained in Paris, where she was a few weeks ago, and the ministers in office, Spain, we think, would be the gainer. There was quite enough of intrigue before 1869 for people to wish for its renewal now, when the prospects of the country are brighter than they have been for many a long year. We imagine King Alphonso will find his mother by no means a safe guide—except in the art of misgovernment.

The Bulgarian atrocities are still the common talk. We think nine-tenths of the people who speak of them have but the faintest notion what an atrocity is, or where Bulgaria is situated. We believe, indeed it is admitted, that a vast number of lives have been lost, and we think it most probable that the slaughtering Circassians and Bashi-Bazouks have not shown much refinement in their mode of killing people. We neither deny nor palliate the cruelties these very irregular subjects of Turkey have committed. We do not forget, however, that these people were living quietly and inoffensively enough till their country was over-run by the equally irregular emissaries of Servia and the insurgent provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, who had not even the excuse of provocation for the ruffianly excesses of which they were guilty. It is terrible to think of people slaughtering each other, and burning each other out of house and home, but we have never yet heard of war without bloodshed, or of an insurrection without bloodshed and a greater or less amount of cruelty superadded. We do not wish to speak lightly of the status quo in Eastern Europe. But we ask our readers to bear in mind that in 1853 these same Turks, of whom we cannot now say too many bitter things, were among the finest fellows in the world. The "bono johnnies" were "thorough bricks." Even the Bashi-Bazouks, though it was acknowledged they were not perhaps eligible for admission into Belgravian drawing-rooms, had all their little escapades in the way of "looting"—we believe this word was adopted into our language a few years later—and slaughtering in some measure excused on the score of patriotism. The case is now pretty much what it was then. The Crimean war would never have taken place but for the ambition of Russia; the present war would never have broken out but for Russian intrigue. The difference lies rather in the views of the on-lookers, who are less favourably disposed towards Turkey now than in 1853. Turkey's indifference to treaty obligations—which all the Great Powers exhibit when it suits them—her repudiation, her faults generally, indeed—as if no other country had faults!—have made people fight shy of countenancing her sturdy resistance to attacks against her power, fomented by the Russ, but delivered by the Serb and the vagabond population of her outlying provinces. We are firmly convinced, had Russia chosen to do so in the interests of that peace her Czar affects to prize so highly, she might have prevented the present bloodshed, and any atrocities by which it may have been accompanied. It is late in the day now to swear at Turkey, who only wanted to live on quietly, and call her hard names, because foreign lawless vagabonds have stirred the fiercer passions of her least civilised subjects. We believe the Turk to be a gentleman. We are not ignorant of the first Napoleon's remark; 'Grattez le Russe, et vous trouverez le Tartare." We were pleased to read a few days ago in one of the daily papers a letter from one of its correspondents, in which he gave a sample of Russian atrocities at the storming of Ismail only about eighty years since, and brought to mind the needless slaughter of nearly 4,000 Turks at Sinope by Admiral Nachimoff's fleet in 1853. We must not forget that Turkey is the recipient of nearly all the provocation, and that it took a very long time and a good deal of stirring to excite her to her present angry mood. Referring, however, once again to the Bulgarian atrocities. We have no wish to shock the feelings of dilettante humanitarians, but we think an enterprising showman of the Barnum school would find it profitable to open a "Bulgarian Atrocities Exhibition?" A few of the Arabas which carried the three or four thousand heads, a lock of hair of a slaughtered lady, the toe of a murdered Bulgarian peasant, the skin of a Bashi-bazouk taken red-handed and executed on the spot, a few scimitars used in committing the atrocities, and other similar mementoes; and if to these were added the scissors with which mad Abdul-Aziz terminated his existence, we feel convinced the show would become popular. We commend the suggestion to some Exeter Hall enthusiast. Thousands daily would pay their shilling to see the unexampled collection, and fancy they were so expressing their sympathy with a cause they understand not, and a people of which they know nothing.

CONSECRATION OF THE ECCLESTON LODGE, No. 1624.

IT is seldom our good fortune to be in a position to record anything unusual in connection with the Consecration of a new Lodge. The ceremony, of course, never varies, and the antecedent circumstances generally present a somewhat similar aspect. A number of brethren living in or about the same neighbourhood think the institution of a new Lodge will be for their benefit and convenience. Representations are made in the proper quarter, and in the manner prescribed by law. The prayer of the brethren is acceded to, and in due time we have the honour to wish a hearty welcome and a long career of prosperity to "The Little Stranger" Lodge. This, we repeat, is what usually happens, but on Wednesday a new Lodge was consecrated in that part of London known of all men as Belgravia, and a few words may properly be said as to its origin and the circumstances under which it has been ushered into the Masonic world. Be it known then to whom it may concern, that is, to the whole body of our readers, both regular and occasional, that this Lodge meets at the Grosvenor Club; that its founders are all members of that club; and that the club itself numbers close upon 1,600 members, a formidable array, whether we regard it from the mere point of numbers, or from the social position which club-men usually occupy. It is here, then, that Freemasonry has established for itself a new abiding-place. Here, in quarters, the comfort and propriety of which are beyond all question, will henceforth be held the meetings of a Lodge, composed entirely of men occupying the same position in society, who, outside as well as within the Lodge precincts, have learned to entertain for each other the friendliest possible feelings, and who will necessarily, therefore, be animated by a certain kindred spirit in promoting the cause of Masonry. We must not be understood as even suggesting that, in other Lodges, not, perhaps, so favourably circumstanced as this, the members, when once they are brought together, are not influenced by the same mutual ties of friendship and fraternal respect and love. Our meaning is, that the members of the Eccleston have, as it were, a double claim on our hearty good wishes for their welfare. They are of the same club, where they meet and enjoy the delights of social intercourse at all seasons of the year, and they assemble in the same Lodge room, carrying with them into it the same sentiments of respect and friendship which mark the tenour of their daily life. A Lodge thus constituted, whose members know each other so well, and have already about them all those comforts and conveniences which make club life so enjoyable, such a Lodge, we say, can hardly fail to prove a brilliant success. One other subject for congratulation remains. Masonry sends out no apostles to bring members into its fold, but we should be running directly in the face of common sense if we did not express the pleasure we feel that Freemasonry has established a firm foothold in such favourable quarters. The fame of our Society will be still further extended among a body of men who are better able than others to appreciate its benefits, and whose appreciation on that very account will be doubly welcome. We may have occasion in some future number to refer again, and more particularly, to the quarters of the new Lodge, but it is time we passed to the more important duty of recording the events of Wednesday.

Having assembled in the ante-room, the brethren were marshalled in procession by Bro. Steward, acting as D.C., and entered the Lodge room. Bro. Hyde Pullen then took the chair as Consecrating Officer, and appointed Bros. Coutts P.G.P. and Verity W.M. of the Ebury Lodge as S.W. and J.W. respectively, the Secretary pro tem being Bro. William Vincent. The Lodge was then opened successively in the three degrees, and the ceremony of consecration was carried out with the usual formalities. The musical arrangements were under the management of Bro. E. Coles; Bros. Baxter, G. F. Carter, Thurley Beale and H. Parker P.P.G.O. Midd., fulfilling their parts very effectively. Bro. the Rev. A. W. Hall then rose, and addressed the Lodge in the following terms:—

WORSHIPFUL MASTER AND BRETHREN,—I have been asked to say a few words upon the nature and principles of our Order. It is the custom for the Consecrating Chaplain to do this, so that at the dedication of a new Lodge the brethren who are to form it may be reminded of the important duties and responsibilities that are about to devolve upon them, that they may be the better enabled, when their Masonic barque is fairly launched, to carry out those sacred teachings to the benefit of the cause, the instruction of the brethren, and the glory of the Great Architect of the Universe. We are well aware that the principles of our Order are to be found in every grade of society, in every country, in every clime, amongst men of every creed, and they are beloved by all. And why? Because they are principles of duty that command attention; they teach us the good and the right way; they teach us to take for our support the pillars of Wisdom, Strength, and Beauty, based upon a sure foundation. And I feel quite sure, from what I know, and what I have heard of the brethren who are about to be appointed to this Lodge's offices, that these duties and these principles will be ably and fairly carried out to the best of their ability, and that this Lodge will, in its transit through the world, shine brightly, and emerge in the Grand Lodge above to life eternal. I would now call your minds back to some thousands of years ago, when there might have been seen a young man flying from his country, and seeking, in a far distant land, a shelter and hospitality, flying from a brother's anger; when he, by deceit and fraud, obtained that brother's birthright. That young man's name was Jacob. When he lay down to rest at night, the earth his bed, a stone his pillow, his covering the canopy of heaven, in his sleep a vision appeared to him; he saw a ladder reaching from earth to heaven; on it angels ascending to the Great Architect, and descending, bringing down from Him messages of love and mercy, for the benefit and comfort of man below. That ladder we take as one of the great emblems of our Order, as we shall see, when the Lodge board is uncovered, an emblem of the great principles of our Order. And, brethren of the Eccleston Ledge, who are this day about to take the first step of that ladder, which is based upon the Sacred Writings, you will soon ascend the other two which we in Masonry recognise, and go up, and up, till you reach those ethereal mansions which are higher even than the starry firmament itself. But a few words more: You know in Masonry, as well as in nature, when our Lodge is opened, the badge of innocence and the bond of friendship is shown, and the jewel of equality sparkles in the West; we are then led up to the third degree, and are taught that the time will come when death will have his prey, when sickness enters our chambers, and when the King of Terrors comes, through bolts and bars, and claims his own. Then the sprig of acacia is plucked from the spot where it has grown in love, plucked to decorate a departed brother's grave. These are the principles of our Order, taught in the third degree, leading us by contemplation to the closing hour of our existence, and when they have led us through the intricate windings of this mortal state, finally instruct us how to die. Brethren of the Eccleston Lodge, may you, in whatever situation you are placed, whatever may be your lot in life, carry those duties with you always, and perform them so fairly and so well, that when the Great Architect comes to make up His jewels, you may feel that you have performed your allotted task, so that your last hours may close in peace and love.

As to the important duties which devolved on Bro. Pullen, we say, without the slightest wish to exaggerate, that we seldom have seen them performed with greater accuracy and precision. Bro. Pullen has a singularly happy delivery, is very impressive, and fulfilled the task of Consecrating Officer in a manner befitting the solemnity of the occasion. The ceremony complete, Bro. Pullen installed Bro. H. A. Hunt, No. 1537, as the first W.M. of the Eccleston, and in doing so, took the opportunity of offering Bro. Hunt his hearty congratulations on attaining so high and so well deserved a position in Freemasonry. Having received the customary congratulations of all present, Bro. Hunt proceeded to invest his officers as follow:—Bros. D. H. McLeod S.W., J. C. Flattely J.W., W. Vincent S.D., Sam. Jones J.D., J. G. Fisher I.G., Isaac Isaacs Treasurer, A. W. Beckham Secretary, W. Gould S., E. Coles O., and T. Woodstock Tyler. We congratulate the Eccleston on the foregoing appointments, for such an array of officers is well nigh certain to consummate the work so successfully initiated by Bro. Pullen. The usual addresses having been delivered, Bro. McLeod proposed, and Bro. Flattely seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Pullen for the services he had so kindly and so ably rendered, and that he be elected an honorary member of the Lodge. The motion was adopted with acclamation, and suitably acknowledged by our respected brother. Thanks were then accorded to Bro. the Rev. A. W. Hall, P.G.S.W. Surrey, for the eloquent address he had delivered, and to the other brethren who had rendered service so efficiently, and to this proposition, likewise, appropriate acknowledgments were made. Both these motions were ordered to be recorded on the minutes. Several propositions for initiation and joining followed, after which the Lodge was closed with the usual formalities.

Among those present we noticed, in addition to the brethren already enumerated, Bros. Capt. Philips, Coulton, Pulman, H. Massey, J. Elliott, W. M. Herbert, J. C. Cox, R. J. Steel, C. B. Payne, G. Holland, J. Hunt, J. J. Cantle, Dr. Lavies, T. Cross, J. Herdell, W. W. Morgan.

At the banquet which followed, Bro. H. A. Hunt presided. He was supported on his right and left by Bros. Hyde Pullen, Rev. Ambrose Hall, and almost all of the brethren who had been present in the Lodge Room. Capt. Phillips was prevented, by an important engagement, from being present at the banquet.

On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts, and coupled with that of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers, the name of Bro. Coutts, who briefly replied.

Bro. Hyde Pullen proposed the health of the W.M. of Eccleston Lodge. He referred to the prospects of the Lodge, and expressed the pleasure it had given him to instal Bro. Hunt in the Chair. He was sure the W.M. would do honour to the brethren who had placed him in the position he held; he would do all that was required of him; and he closed his remarks by calling upon the brethren who had been deputed to assist their Master, in carrying out the duties of their respective offices, to render him every assistance in their power.

Bro. Hunt, on rising, said he felt great difficulty in replying to the flattering expressions of Bro. Pullen. Though he was a young Mason, he fully appreciated the responsibilty of what was required of him. He would strive so to conduct the business of the Lodge, that it might be recognized as second to none. Masonry was an institution not to be taken up lightly or without consideration, it might be a secret society, but it was one of those institutions which embraced the whole duty of man. He then referred to those who had honoured them with their presence that evening, and proposed the health of "The Visitors," associating with the toast the name of Bro. Verity, who represented the Lodge who had fathered the Eccleston, and had taken its promoters upon trust.

Bro. Verity, W.M. of the Ebury Lodge, replied. He had felt great pleasure in being present at the consecration. For himself, he had taken but a small part in the proceedings of the day, but that part had afforded him very great gratification. And he expressed what he said on behalf of all the Eburyites who had had an opportunity of being present.

Bro. Hunt next proposed, in brief terms, the health of the Consecrating Officer. Bro. Pullen had initiated him into the Order, and it was on that account he had applied to Bro. Pullen to consecrate the Lodge. Bro. Pullen was always ready to do what was asked of him for the good of Masonry, and he heartily thanked him for being present.

Bro. Hyde Pullen said he would not lose a moment in returning thanks for the kind way in which his health had been drunk. It had been a pleasure and gratification to him to attend and consecrate the Lodge, and instal its Worshipful Master. The W.M. had told the brethren how he (Bro. Pullen) had initiated him into Masonry, and the brethren would understand how much the pleasure of his attending that evening was enhanced. Having brought Bro. Hunt into Masonic existence he hoped he would develope into excellent manhood, and that the brethren would have the pleasure of seeing that manhood come out in a way that all might desire. It was a comfort to see one's children grow in strength and importance day by day, and having himself many friends round that table, many of whom he had introduced into Masonry, it afforded him the greater gratification to meet them, not only on this occasion, but at all times. He wished the Lodge all the success and prosperity its members themselves could wish. It had been launched like a boat on the billows, and he hoped it would prove a good ship, with Charity at the prow, with Hospitality at the helm, with Care and Prudence as pilots, who would guide it through all the shoals and quicksands which were likely to imperil its course, and steer it safely over the ocean of time, and bring it home to its haven, 100 years hence, to celebrate its centenary. He could only hope that every member of the Lodge would do his best, would use his most strenuous efforts to aid and assist the W.M. in the discharge of his duties. The W.M. had told them he was a young Mason, and under these circumstances he claimed their kind help and assistance, more warmly and more earnestly than he would do if he were an old and practised Past Master. They must make all the allowance they could in his favour; excuse him where they saw he might do a little better—he did not think he would do badly—hold out to him forbearance for any little failings that might occur, and do all they could to render his year of office easy to himself and gratifying to them. He should have the greatest desire to know how well and successfuly they steered their barque onwards, and he hoped he would have it in his power to come among them, and, if he could, to assist in piloting their vessel and aiding in every way possible in making the Lodge a success. He hoped they would all remember the old man who had endeavoured to do his duty that day, and that they would remember him for years and years to come.

Bro. Hall then proposed what he said was the most interesting toast of the evening, that was, prosperity to the Eccleston Lodge. In asking the brethren, in a very few words, to drink it, he trusted they would not consider that what he had said proceeded from those feelings which we were too apt to set down as after dinner thoughts. The Eccleston Lodge started in a way which he was quite sure was an earnest of its future success. As he had said to them in the Lodge room, there devolved upon the brethren responsible duties, and by the officers of the Lodge appointed that day he was sure those duties would be ably discharged. An old prophet had told them that a day was coming, which was called a millennium, when the lion should lie down with the lamb, when the child should play with the asp, and the weaned child put his hand in the cockatrice's den, that nothing should hurt or destroy in all the holy mountain of the Great Architect. He mentioned this to show the brethren that they had to do many things, to support many principles, high and sacred, which, if they did not bring this millennium, would certainly extend those principles of the Masonic Order—brotherly love, relief and truth—and carry them through the world, respected by all, loved by the brethren, and, he trusted, rewarded eventually by their God. Bro. Hyde Pullen had said they had launched their Masonic barque on the tide of this world. Let him add that they had to bear in that barque those precious things which it was their duty to uphold and keep from being sunk in the billows they must encounter in passing through their Masonic life. To that barque they must have a banner nailed; "nailed," he said, because they must never take it down; and on that banner must be inscribed the Masonic words, "Excelsior: On and on: Little beginnings: Great ends." Time was short, and he must not go further in proposing this toast, or it might lead him away, and make him dwell longer perhaps than their patience would allow. He would therefore only say that from his heart he wished the Eccleston Lodge—and from the hearts of all the visitors to it that day he was quite sure there proceeded the same wish—a career of success, and the blessing of the Great Architect.

The next toast was that of the Musical Brethren, which was replied to by Bro. Coles. This was followed by that of the Officers, the W.M. stating that to their credit was due the formation of the Lodge, and its being brought to its present hopeful condition.

The usual toast brought the entertainment to a close, and coffee having been served, the brethren separated.

Obituary.

It is with sincere regret we announce the death of Bro. C. E. Francatelli, the well known chef, who presided with such ability, for so many years, at the Freemasons' Tavern. As a member of our Society, Bro. Francatelli had earned for himself the respect of all with whom he came in contact. As one of the foremost representatives of the culinary art, it will be difficult to fill his place. He was a thorough artist; whether it was a banquet he purveyed, or a simple homely meal, his ability and thoroughness were equally conspicuous. The art of cookery is not so sufficiently appreciated in this country that we can venture to let pass this death without expressing, even briefly, the sense of the loss we feel. Bro. Francatelli's death occurred on Thursday of last week, in the 71st year of his age. Peace be with him!

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Caledonian of Unity Chapter, No. 73.—An emergency meeting of this Chapter was held on Tuesday, the 16th inst., to exalt Bro. Dr. W. N. Steinhouse, Mother Kilwinning, No. 0, previous to his embarking for Dunedin, New Zealand. A Lodge of Mark Masters was opened, G. W. Wheeler Z. as W.M., John Kay S.W., T. Tweed J.W., Wm. Hay S.D., E. Jenkinson I.G., when Dr. Steinhouse was duly advanced to that degree, and then to that of the Most Excellent Master. The Chapter was then opened, G. W. Wheeler Z., Jas. Ferguson H., J. Tweed J., Jas. Balfour S.E., W. Shaw S.N., J. Bannerman T., J. Balfour 1st S., J. Kay 2nd S., Wm. Hay 3rd S., when Dr. Steinhouse was duly exalted into that degree, thereafter the Comps. present all tendered their warm wishes for the success of their new companion in the fresh scene of his labours in another hemisphere.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—At the meeting of this Lodge, on Wednesday, the 16th inst., held at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C., Bro. David Posener occupied the chair, ably assisted by Bros. Turquand S.W., Farmer J.W., E. Gotthell P.M. Preceptor, Blinkhorn as Secretary, Walker S.D., Loewenstark J.D., Gomm I.G.; there were also present Bro. Yetton P.M., and an average number of other brethren. The third ceremony was excellently performed by the W.M., Bro. George Corner acting as candidate. Three sections were then worked by Bro. Yetton, assisted by the brethren. Two visitors, namely, Bros. J. E. Walters of 188, and Brown, of an American Lodge, were elected joining members. Bro. Walters heartily thanked the brethren for the honour conferred upon him by the unanimous election. He belonged to three Lodges of Instruction besides this, but he must single out two of them in which the work was done in a slipshod manner, where decorum is scarcely observed, and, indeed, chattering and laughing takes place even during the most solemn parts of the ceremonies. He, therefore, thought the brethren would well understand the pleasure he had enjoyed that evening in witnessing the proceedings; not only was the working, as a whole, perfect, but he thought it would bear comparison with that of the Joppa Lodge, which was, in his opinion, second to none in that respect. He was glad to perceive that strict attention was paid to every detail. He hoped his attendance would be frequent, for he was sure that was the place in which to receive sound instruction, and to obtain the knowledge necessary to the aspirant for the higher offices of the Lodge. Bro. Brown was very much obliged for having been elected a member of the Lodge. He hailed from a far distant country, where the working, although the same in all essentials, nevertheless differed materially in many particulars. He, however, liked to visit different Lodges, and to observe the various modes of working, as by such means an amount of experience was gained which could scarcely be attained in any other way. He was extremely pleased with what he had witnessed that evening. His stay in London would shortly come to an end, but he hoped to be enabled to renew his visit at some future time. Bro. Fenner was elected to preside at the next meeting. Bro. Turquand, in seconding the proposition, stated that the reason why he had changed places with the J.W. was that as there are two off nights in this month, he was desirous to occupy the chair on the last Wednesday, to enable him to rehearse the ceremony of Installation, and hoped that the fact would be made known amongst the brethren generally, as he would like to have a good muster on that occasion.

Dramatic Lodge, No. 571.—Bro. W. J. E. Dobson R.W.M. presiding, assisted by Bros. J. Huston D.M., H. Jackman S.W., R. Smyth J.W., L. Mitchell S.D., G. Brian Secretary, J. Robinson I.G. A proposition from Mr. A. M. Smith having been unanimously sustained, he was initiated in a very careful manner by the R.W.M. The Lodge was then raised to the 2nd degree, and at his request Bro. G. W. Wheeler passed Bros. Alfred Given and Matthew Rose for No. 571, Bros. Wm. Pinkerton for the Clyde 408, and Thos. Tait for the Athol 413. After the ceremony, Bro. Liddel, on behalf of the Athol, and Bro. Irwin, for the Clyde, returned thanks for the favour conferred on their respective Lodges. Bro. Dobson said it was always a pleasure to assist a sister Lodge. Bro. J. Law P.M. 570, and Bro. Huggis of 87 were then affiliated as honorary members, and the Lodge was closed in due form.

Frederick of Unity Lodge, No. 452.—This Lodge held its last regular meeting of the season on Tuesday, the 15th instant, at the "Greyhound" Hotel, Croydon. Present—Bros. John Walter Sugg W.M., H. E. Frances as S.W., — Jefferies J.W., Magnus Ohren P.M., P.P.G.J.W. for Surrey, Secretary, Jas. Robins P.M. Treasurer, Edmands S.D., Manning as J.D., Edwin Sugg I.G., Speight Tyler; Past Master W. S. Masterman, and a good attendance of members; Visitors Bros. Chas. Horsley, Spooner and W. W. Morgan. It must be very gratifying to Bro. Sugg, considering the intense heat, and the early hour appointed for the commencement of the proceedings, that he was supported so well by the members of his Lodge. The business on the paper was exceptionally heavy, and punctually at three o'clock the Lodge was opened. Bros. G. Robins, Cousins and Methven were examined as to their proficiency, and the replies being satisfactory, the W.M. ably worked the ceremony of the third degree in their behalf. Bro. Magnus Ohren, the worthy Secretary, whose business engagements had necessitated his being a little late, here read the minutes of the last meeting, which were confirmed and duly signed. Bro. David W. Sugg then underwent the customary examination previous to his being passed, and the way in which his answers were given showed he had obtained a thorough knowledge of what was required. The ceremony of passing was then proceeded with, and again the W.M. exhibited his qualifications for the post he so ably fills. The ballot was now taken for Messrs. Edward Stuart Pugh and Charles George Scott, and proving unanimous, those gentlemen were initiated into the Order. Some little discussion next ensued upon a notice of motion, which Bro. Magnus Obren, in whose name it stood, explained did not quite meet with the approval of the Provincial Grand Master, the latter, as we understood, regarding such recommendations as irregular. As there appears to be a divided opinion, and a wish was expressed for the question to be ventilated, we append the notice of motion, and should like to have the views of our correspondents thereon:—

"That this Lodge highly approves of the manner in which Bro. John Walter Sugg, the present W.M. of this Lodge, has carried out his various Masonic duties in the chair, and since his initiation in this Lodge, and that he be recommended for the favourable consideration of the R.W. the Provincial Grand Master for Provincial honours."

Under the circumstances detailed above, this notice was withdrawn. The Treasurer, Bro. P.M. James Robins, then in a most exultant manner, announced that the funds of the Lodge were in a flourishing condition, and that he had a goodly balance in hand. (Here a wag on our left pertinently remarked that while Bro. Robins held office he would be likely to keep a goodly balance.) The customary amounts voted by the Lodge, viz., £5 for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, £5 5s for the Girls' School, and £5 5s for the Boys' School, were then agreed to, and the W.M. announced his intention to act as Steward at the next Festival for the Girls. With respect to the difference in the amounts respectively of £5 and five guineas, which it seems it is the custom to vote for these charities, the old question was revived why any distinction should be made, and Bro. Robins proposed an amendment, that five guineas be given instead of five pounds to the Benevolent Institution. (We commend this to Bro. Terry; surely he can find a way by which these odd shillings can be made the nucleus for a fund which might be administered by way of solatium to unsuccessful candidates.) The Lodge was then formally closed, and adjourned till May 1877. The customary banquet followed, which was presided over by Bro. J. W. Sugg, who, in the course of his remarks, introduced a rich vein of originality, which showed that his studies in the cause of Masonry had still left him a few spare hours to cultivate the acquaintance of old authors. Between the toasts some capital songs were given, and it was a late hour when the brethren separated.

Salisbury Lodge of Instruction, No. 435.—A meeting was held at the Union Tavern, Air-street, Regent-street, W., on Thursday, 17th instant. Bros. Farwig W.M., Bentley S.W., Davis J.W., Lee S.D., Pike J.D., Waters I.G.; also Bro. Cull Sec., Watts, Rudderforth, Docker, Willis, Belfrage, Dutton, G. Davis, Knight, Milnow, Swallow, &c. Lodge opened in 1st and 2nd degrees, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Dutton being the candidate. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd sections were worked, and Lodge was closed down. Bros. Waters and Rudderforth were elected joining members, and Bentley S.W. unanimously elected W.M. for ensuing week. The 15 sections will be worked at the above Lodge of Instruction on the 31st inst., at 7 p.m. precisely. Bro. Mander, Preceptor, will preside.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held at Bro. Allen's, "Royal Edward," Triangle, Hackney. The weekly meeting of the above Lodge took place on Tuesday last, Bro. Brown W.M., Worsley S.W., Johnson J.W., Weige S.D., Barker J.D., Perrin I.G., P.M. Wallington Preceptor; also Bros. Dallas, Smith, Williams, Robinson and Allen. The ceremony of Raising was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Brown acting as candidate. Bro. Wallington gave the traditional history. Bro. Allen worked the 1st section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was closed down to the 1st degree. Bro. Worsley was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 10th inst, at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. The recently installed W.M., Bro. E. Gilbert, took the Chair, and was supported by the Wardens, Bros. F. Walters P.G.S.D. Middlesex P.M. and Secretary, J. W. Baldwin P.M. I.G., J. B. Shackleton J.D., B. Sharp P.M., J. J. Marsh, D. Steinhaur, J. R. Croft, J. T. Adams, G. Harrison, &c. The Lodge was opened, and Bros. W. Blakeley and W. T. Trebearn were passed to the degree of Fellow Crafts in a very efficient manner. Ballots were unanimously in favour of all the candidates for initiation. The Lodge was then closed. There was no banquet. Bro. E. Hopwood P.M. 141, and W.M. 1512 was present as a visitor.

Lebanon Chapter, No. 1326. — A Convocation of this Chapter was held on Thursday, the 10th instant, at the Red Lion Inn, Hampton. Comps. B. Sharp P.Z. as M.E.Z., F. Walters P.Z. P.G. 1st Asst. Middlesex as H., and J. W. Baldwin H. No. 73 as J., J. B. Shackleton, Croft, &c. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. A Board of installed Principals was then formed, and Comp. F. Walters P.Z. Installed Comp. E. Hopwood as J. Comp. Walters then proposed that the best thanks of the Chapter be given to Companion Edwin Gilbert S.N. for his extreme kindness and generosity in presenting the Chapter with a very magnificent sword, a set of life lines, a trowel, a scroll, and a handsomely bound bible. This was seconded by Comp. E. Hopwood, and carried unanimously. The Chapter was then closed. Bro. J. W. Baldwin H. 73 was present as a visitor.

Corinthian Lodge, No. 1382.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Wednesday, the 16th of August, at the George Hotel, Cubitt Town, E. Present—Bros. Charles B. Bennett W.M., Charles. Searell S.W., Carnaby P.M. as J.W., Chas. Wycott Smith Secretary, B Carter Treasurer, Geo. Fisher S.D., J. Delves J.D., Stapleton D.C., J. Whalley as I.G.; Past Masters Bros. Carter, Carnaby, Wm. Shayes; Visitor Bro. Finch P.M. 898. Business—The Lodge was opened at 6·30, and after the minutes were confirmed, the Lodge was opened to the third degree, and Bro. Roberts was raised. The Lodge was resumed to the second, and Bro. Shearman was passed. Three gentlemen were proposed for initiation. This concluding the business of the evening the Lodge was formally closed.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, York.—The regular meeting was held at the Lodge-room, Micklegate, on Monday last. Present:—Bros. T. Cooper P.M. W.M., T. B. Whytehead S.W., G. Balenford P.M. as J.W., P. H. Rowland P.M. as I.P.M., J. Kay Sec., T. Tuke S.D., M. Cooper J.D., Seller I.G. After the confirmation of the minutes the ballot was taken for nine candidates, which proved successful, and three of them being in attendance, Messrs. J. Blenkin, M. Millington, and P. Pearson, were severally initiated into Freemasonry. After closing of the Lodge the brethren sat down to a supper, provided by Bro. H. Churchill, of the Queen's Hotel.

THE RESTORATION OF HANDSWORTH PARISH CHURCH.

THE laying of the foundation stone of the Parish Church of Handsworth, which is now undergoing restoration and enlargement, took place on the 9th August, with all the imposing ceremony peculiar to Freemasonry. By devoted archæologists the work of demolition which has been going on during the past few months may have been regarded with a certain amount of regret, for the once picturesque church of St. Mary had many associations which rendered it desirable that its ancient walls should not suffer disestablishment unless there was absolute necessity for it. Such a necessity apparently did exist, for, as the result of careful examination, architects and builders declared that the building was unsafe to the worshippers therein, and alarming reports were given as to some of the walls being almost without foundation, and as to the fragile supports of the galleries. From the condition in which the building was found after the workmen commenced to pull it down, it need certainly have been no matter of surprise had some portion of it fallen down without assistance. Furthermore, the church was not in the best sanitary state, owing to the defective construction of the vaults underneath, and to the clumsy manner in which the warming apparatus had been fixed. Under these circumstances it was evident that something must be done to remedy the state of things. Accordingly, the rector, the Rev. W. Randall, and a number of other gentlemen met, and decreed that the old walls of the edifice must come down; that the church must be restored and enlarged, such portions as it was possible being preserved in their original form. It transpired, however, that it was not practicable to preserve much of the original structure. A committee having been organised to carry out the restoration, and plans prepared, the church was closed some time about April last, and since that time the congregation has met in a temporary iron building on the opposite side of the road. Before describing the alterations and improvements proposed to be effected, it may be interesting to point out that perhaps only few churches have a more interesting history than St. Mary's. From a very entertaining and exhaustive essay, written by Mr. Allen E. Everitt, who has applied himself to special research in connection with the structure, we learn that the earliest portion of the old building was of Norman construction, and was probably erected when the manor of Handsworth was held by the Parles family in the twelfth century. The church differs from the usual style of village churches in having the tower placed at the eastern end of the south aisle, instead of being either central or western. It is most probable that the church at the date mentioned consisted only of this tower, which has walls of great thickness, with a small nave and chancel somewhat similar to the church of Claverly, near Bridgnorth. The next oldest portion of the church was the chancel and the south aisle of the nave, which had the distinguishing features of the "Decorated period," that prevailed during a portion of the fourteenth century. These portions of the church are supposed to have been erected when the manor was held by the Somerys, lords of Dudley Castle, at which period St. Martin's and other neighbouring churches were built. Of the original nave but little can be traced, the arcade separating it from the north aisle having been removed during alterations made in 1820, when the westward end was taken down and rebuilt. The north aisle of the nave, which was partially removed as stated, extended the entire length of the nave and chancel, its eastern end being used as a chantry, known as the Wyrley Chapel, from being chosen as the burying place of that family. This aisle was divided from the nave and chancel by four arches, supported by two hexagonal and one clustered column. The north door was of 17th century work, and the east and north-east windows of this aisle were of 15th century work. The upper part of the tower also belonged to the same period, having belfry windows of two lights each on its north, south, and western faces, and a small square-headed window on the eastern one. The tower is battlemented, and some pinnacles were attached to it when the alterations of 1820 were effected. The bells are six in number, and have the following inscriptions:—(1) "Good will towards men," (2) "Peace on earth," (3) "Glory to God in the highest," (4) "Preserve the Church of England as by law established," (5) "Thomas Okes, rector, John Piddock, Thomas Osborne, churchwardens, 1701;" and on the sixth a Latin motto, which has been rendered, "I was fourth, now sixth, I will ring with a sweet sound." The interior of the church has presented lately only a few of its original features—the east window of the chancel, the south wall, the south aisle arches and windows, and the west windows of the north and south aisles, being the only original portions remaining in situ. The ceiling was of plaster, in imitation of a vaulted roof, supported by slender stone columns, while the Wyrley chapel is supported by a cast-iron column at its south-west angle. The windows of the west end, the new transept, and the transept itself, were of Modern Gothic. Apart, however, from architectural or archæological characteristics, the church is the source of considerable interest from having been the place where many local worthies and several celebrated men have been buried. In this church were buried James Watt and Matthew Boulton. Murdoch also found his last resting-place there, and there many other notabilities of their time, including the Wyrleys and the Whateleys were "gathered to their fathers." A chapel was built to receive a statue of Watt, which was executed by Chantrey; and, amongst many others, are monuments to the Wyrleys, Boultons, Murdochs and Whateleys. Notably there was a fine bust of Matthew Boulton, by Flaxman. In the restoration of the church the portions of the old structure intended to be pulled down are those which were erected in the beginning of this century; the Watt chapel will not be touched, and the east elevation of the chancel and Wyrley Chapel will not be interfered with. The old windows in the south aisle will be restored and the wall taken down and rebuilt, it being considerably out of the perpendicular. The church will be extended 23ft. westward, and the nave will be 23ft. 3in. wide by 89ft. 6in. long; chancel 25ft. long. There will be two north aisles 84ft., with the Wyrley chapel in addition. A south aisle 65ft. long, at the east end of which it is proposed to put an opening into the tower. The old tower arch will be restored, so that the present vestry can be available for seats. It is proposed to place the Stamford monument, now in the south aisle, between the choir seats of the chancel and the Wyrley chapel. The Wyrley chapel monuments will have a moulded canopy over them. The new portions of the church, inside and out, will be faced with Codsall stone. The arcades to the nave and north aisles will have six arches each, and the south aisle arcade four arches. The roof will be of red deal and boarded; the principals arched, and springing from carved corbels, and there will be no plastering of any kind. It is proposed to cover the whole area of the church with a bed of concrete, on which will be laid wood blocks instead of boarding, the passages being laid with tiles. A portion of the north transept will be converted into choir and clergyman's vestries and organ chamber. The church, when finished, will accommodate 1,000 persons, in open seats, without galleries. Several stained glass windows have been promised. Messrs. Wilson and Son, of Soho Hill, are the builders, Mr. J. A. Chatwin is the architect, and Mr. J. Jones is the clerk of the works. The cost of the work has been estimated at between £7,000 and £8,000, and before the proceedings yesterday £4,300 had been promised towards that amount.

The ceremony of laying the foundation stone took place at about half-past two o'clock. Previously the members of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Staffordshire and Freemasons representing other Lodges assembled at the temporary church, where the R.W. Brother the Earl of Shrewsbury, Provincial Grand Master, opened a Lodge. Amongst the Masons present were Bros. F. James D.P.G.M., G. S. Tudor P.D.P.G.M., C. Trigg P.G.S.W., Rev. C. Lee P.G. Chaplain, J. Bodenham P.G. Treasurer, W. Cartwright 460 P.M. and P.G. Secretary, W. Jones P.G. Superintendent of Works, S. Hill P.M. P.G. Director of Ceremonies, J. P. Hall P.G.A.D. of C., J. H. Walker P.P.G.J.D., H. Murray P.D.G.M., J. Baker, J. H. Parkes J.W., C. T. Speight P.M. and P.G.T. (Surrey), J. Seddon W.M., S. Fenn P.M., H. Smith P.M., Joseph Fenn P.M., J. Vaughan S.W. (Lancashire), R. L. Campbell P.M., J. Vaughan P.P.G.D.C., Joseph Rowlands P.M., J. Jacobs P.M. and P.P.G.R., T. Bragg P.M. and P.P.G.S.W. (of Warwickshire), W. G. Parkes S.W., J. R. Welch W.M., F. Swinburn D.C., W. H. Poole Tyler, and H. Baggaley Tyler, J. S. Barber, F. W. Payton, J. Peper &c. After the Lodge meeting a procession was formed, and proceeded from the temporary church to the place where the foundation stone was laid.

Among those who were present at the ceremony, in addition to the members of the Craft, were the Earl of Dartmouth, the Revs. C. B. Snepp, F. A. Macdona, G. B. Stones, J. H. Curling, R. G. Grenside, W. H. Poulton; Captain Bullock, Messrs. J. Barrows jun., A. E. Everitt, W. Williams, E. J. Hayes, W. R. Hughes, T. Aston, J. Williams, W. M. Ellis, T. H. Smith, F. Price, J. A. Chatwin, J. Wilson, J. Jones, W. T. Taylor, G. W. Baldwin, R. Mayo, W. S. Allen, H. Field, T. T. Lawden, and a large number of ladies. Upon arriving at the stone the P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. C. Lee, offered up prayer, and after the usual Masonic ceremonies the Earl of Shrewsbury laid the stone. The mallet used on the occasion was lent by the Lodge of Antiquity, and was the same mallet with which Charles II. "levelled the foundation stone of St. Paul's Cathedral, A.D. 1675." After the ceremony a number of ladies handed purses to the Earl of Shrewsbury, containing money, amounting to £468 7s 7½d. A collection was also made, and the sum of £67 7s 7½d was realised.

After this, R.W. Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury briefly addressed the meeting. He said he was deeply sorry that he had not the assistance of the Rector, who had been called away by a domestic affliction. It was a pleasure for him to be there to take part in that good work himself with his brother Masons. It was not for him to speak upon politics on that occasion; but he might say, without fear of offence, that he was glad that they had settled in the Legislature, or were about to settle, the great principle, that the people should not be educated without religion. Though he did not wish to say anything offensive, he would say that Birmingham did not rule the roost in this particular. They had in both Houses of Parliament arrived at a solution of a very difficult question, allowing those who had different opinions to exercise them as far as possible. They were anxious that most of the population should have proper education, and he believed the party to which he belonged had done their duty by the country, and were prepared to wait for the result of their conduct. He thanked the ladies for the worthy assistance they had given the Church, and concluded by referring to the advantages of Freemasonry as conducive to works of charity.

A luncheon was afterwards partaken of, in a spacious marquee in the rectory grounds. The Earl of Shrewsbury presided, and most of those who attended the ceremony were also present. The usual loyal toasts were honoured, and the chairman next proposed "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon M.W.Pro G.M., the Right Hon. the Earl of Skelmersdale M.W.D.G.M., and the Grand Lodge of England." Bros. Murray and J. T. Collins responded. Rev. Bro. Nicholson proposed, "The Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury P.G.M. of Staffordshire," to which the chairman responded. Bro. Murray then gave "The P.G.L. of Staffordshire," to which Bro. F. James replied. Bro. Lawden gave "The Right Hon. the Earl of Dartmouth and the Subscribers to the Restoration Fund." The Earl of Dartmouth, in responding, said that forty-six years ago he was taken to church for the first time in his life into the church they were about to restore, and for that reason he had made a point of being there. He knew that he was speaking to a mixed company, but he might say to the subscribers that, whether they were Liberals or Conservatives, they were all one in wishing well to the grand old Church of England. He believed the Church of England deserved toleration, and deserved to be let alone to do her own work in her own way. (Applause.) What they had to do was to show that they were consistent Churchmen, and that they were not merely political Churchmen, but Churchmen from conviction, and were prepared to stand by her, in every way, and at every time, with their hands, their hearts, and their pockets. (Applause.) He then proposed "The Health of the Restoration Committee," and expressed a wish that they would be successful in their work. Mr. R. Wright responded. The remaining toasts were "The P.G.M.'s of Warwickshire and Worcestershire, and the Brethren of the Provinces," responded to by Bro. Smith; "The Bishops and the Clergy," proposed by Mr. W. M. Ellis, and responded to by the Rev. Mr. Macdona; "The Visitors," proposed by Mr. E. J. Hayes; "The Ladies," and "The Architect and Builders."—Birmingham Daily Gazette.

A FEW NOTES ON MASONIC JOURNALISM.

WE are greatly amused at times at the outspoken language which many of our American Masonic contemporaries think fit to use towards Craftsmen re the very indifferent support accorded to Masonic literature. They state, and we consider the statement is amply justified by facts, that heavy expenses are incurred, and much time, labour, and anxiety bestowed by the proprietors, publishers, and editors of Masonic journals, solely in order that the interests of the society may be promoted and extended. Pretty well all who are associated with Masonic journalism love the Craft, and they would have it loved. They think the influence of Freemasonry in every country in which it is established cannot be otherwise than of a beneficent character. They are well aware, too, how often the purposes of Freemasonry are deliberately and disingenuously misrepresented, how frequently it is aspersed and how desirable it is, in the interests of truth at least, that such aspersion should be calmly and dispassionately resented. They bear in mind the saying that "if you throw mud enough, some of it will stick." Many unjust people who are entirely without knowledge of the designs of Freemasonry, who hate us because they do not understand us, and who would rejoice in nothing so much as the downfall of our Society—this class of persons is never weary of assailing us. There is no end to the charges they bring against us. The greater the outrage they commit against decency and common sense, the better pleased are they with their dirty work. Naturally, there are plenty of simple-minded people who, on the principle there is no smoke without fire, imagine there must be a certain amount of truth in charges so persistently made under these circumstances. One of two courses is open to us, as to other folk. Either, we may wrap ourselves up in our own virtue and, stifling the indignation we cannot but feel, say nothing. Or, we may meet these groundless assaults of a malignant enemy, by fair and patient argument, with the view of showing how silly as well as how wicked are these persistent attacks upon Freemasonry. The latter is the view which eminent Craftsmen have adopted. They consider, as we have said, that, in the interests of truth, the aspersions so unfairly directed against us should be resented calmly and dispassionately. Hence have sprung into existence in various parts of the United States and elsewhere a number of Masonic periodicals, the raison d'être of which we take to be twofold. They have been established, in the first place, for the purpose of enlightening the world generally as to the true nature and aims of Freemasonry, so that people may not run away with the idea that these latter are in any wise baneful. In the second place, they are designed to promote Craft interests, by encouraging among members a healthy study of our history and laws, by enjoining on them on all occasions a steady adherence to the principles they profess, and by advising, in all cases of doubt and difficulty, what, in the interests of the Craft, is the best policy to pursue. Other minor purposes there may have been in the case of different journals. We think, however, what we have said fairly enough describes the two most important objects of a Masonic press—to enlighten the world generally and Craftsmen in particular, by showing, the former, what we are and what we are not, and the latter, what knowledge they should possess, and what duties they should fulfil. Ordinarily, a press established to perform such useful offices finds liberal encouragement from the body whose interests it is so eager to promote. But though Freemasons are falsely charged with many shortcomings, and the commission of many high crimes and misdemeanours, we fear there is much in the accusation we have more than once heard brought against them—that they are a peculiar people. They have no objection to organs of the press being started with a view to protect and promote their interests. They will read the articles that are written in their behalf, and oftentimes feel highly flattered at the eulogistic terms in which they and their principles are spoken of. They are thankful when they find their favourite magazine or journal well filled with readable historic or biographical sketches, setting forth, in the case of the former, the circumstances under which Freemasonry, in this or that country, achieved some brilliant success, in the latter, the leading events in the life of some distinguished Craftsman of the past or present day. They are pleased when they read a sensible, well-balanced argument in favour of this or that Masonic doctrine, or of the course that must be pursued in certain contingencies. Short Masonic tales, be they evolved from the brain of some Masonic romancist, or based on the occurrences of actual life, delight them. But above and beyond all things are they gratified when they find their own names recorded in black and white, it may be, perhaps, as having rendered some substantial service, or fulfilled with more than usual éclat some difficult Masonic duty, or it may be, perchance, having merely been present on a certain evening in a certain Lodge, and having subsequently partaken of the usual banquet. It comes, likewise, occasionally within the experience of every Masonic journalist that there are many Craftsmen who are by no means indifferent to the services a Masonic journal may render them on sundry occasions. We have not in our mind the promotion of mere personal interests so much as the help which an occasional line or two of editorial support contributes in furtherance of this or that idea, of this or that project. Such brethren are sensible that a kindly utterance in the columns of a Craft organ is no hindrance, but a help rather, to the cause they have at heart. They seek this aid occasionally, and occasionally it is rendered—we may be sure, with no ungrudging spirit, if the cause may legitimately be supported. But while brethren are willing enough to read and express their admiration, while they dwell with infinite relish on all announcements which include mention of their names and achievements, while they are willing enough to seek our aid whenever they think we may be of service; still, when the important question is raised, will they accord us their support in the arduous task we have undertaken, will they enrol themselves in our subscription list, will they "shell-out"—as the slang phrase hath it—the few shillings per quarter or per annum at which we appraise our services, then they fight shy of us. There is some hesitation in the response they make. They see it at their club, or their Lodge takes it. Their list of newspapers and periodicals is full at that particular moment, but when there is a vacancy they will bear us in mind. Or they will see about it, and let us know the next time they meet us. Are we not right in describing a very numerous section of the Brotherhood as peculiar people? They are quite willing to read a Masonic paper, quite willing to speak of it in terms of praise, quite prepared on all occasions to seek its aid, and quite willing to accept such aid if the paper is prepared to render it. There, however, we come to a full stop. We seek their assistance, and it is withheld or denied us on the first flimsy pretence that may occur to them at the moment.

We have more than once expressed our thanks for the support thus far accorded us. We make no secret of our wish that the circle of our readers may become more and more extended, while we strive by every means in our power to make ourselves a worthier and more influential organ of Masonic opinion. More than this we cannot say. Time and the growing kindness of Craftsmen seem favourable to our wishes, and we face the future, as we have faced it from the very beginning, with a confidence perfectly justifiable. But among our American Masonic contemporaries, the custom of pressing for support prevails very generally. Oftentimes, indeed, we see the brethren in this or that State taken roundly to task for the indifference they exhibit to the cause of Masonic literature. Tolerably plain language is used towards Masons who do not support the local Masonic journal, but those who promise to subscribe, yet subscribe not, are the recipients of the severest possible condemnation. We cannot say they are unjustly treated. It is manlier, more straightforward, to refuse point-blank to subscribe than to mislead proprietors and publishers into the belief you are a subscriber. We all have the right to say "No," when invited to buy goods, be they "unmentionables" of a new pattern, or a magazine or journal of light Masonic literature. We have no right to say "Yes," and then withhold payment of our subscription. These, however, are matters of detail which it would never occur to us to discuss in these pages. This kind of grievance in our opinion, must be written down as essentially private. They afford no sort of entertainment or instruction to our readers. In America, a different opinion prevails. There it is considered wise—or at all events not unwise—to mention publicly, not merely the difficulties that occur in the way of obtaining new subscribers, but likewise the unreadiness so many subscribers exhibit in paying up their subscriptions. Indeed one periodical we interchange courtesies with, recently went so far as to let pass the usual period for publication, and issued its next number at an interval of two or three months instead of one, the reason assigned being that it had failed to gather in the subscriptions that were due and promised. We cannot conceive the case of any English journal which did not make its appearance regularly after the lapse of the usual interval of time. The chance of its receiving any further support would be very small. But they manage these things differently in the United States, or at all events in the State of Ohio. The Masonic Review, published monthly at Cincinnati, Ohio, and having almost completed its forty-eighth volume, contains, in its July number, a short editorial note, the first paragraph of which reads thus:—

"Omitted.—Yes, we have omitted to issue the Review for a month or two occasionally; but the loss is ours, not our subscribers. Does the reader know the reason? It was because we could not collect from our subscribers. They have neglected to pay us as they had promised, and we were compelled to wait until we could collect."

We cannot for the life of us restrain a smile at the idea of our contemporary in not issuing the Review regularly, because the payments of his customers were made irregularly. There is in it a sense of retributive justice, which strikes us pleasantly enough, but we should not, nor, indeed, would any other English journal we are acquainted with, dare follow such an example. And who, think our readers, are the delinquent customers? Why, "Grand Masters, Past Grand Masters, and Past Deputy Grand Masters, and private members by the hundred," who, we are told, "pay no more respect to their promises to us than though they had never made any—no more than a Chinese, an atheist, or even an anti-Mason." We do not fully recognise the force of the comparison between, on the one hand, Masons who do not pay, and on the other, Chinese, atheists, and anti-Masons. Doubtless the latter are intended figuratively to represent the most obnoxious kinds of people, and we admit that people who promise, but do not pay, are—very undesirable acquaintances. The Review, however, is in earnest. It means sending out its bills for collection, and fervently hopes it will have no such subscribers in future, for, says our contemporary, "Since we commenced publishing this work, now more than thirty years, we have been cheated, wronged, defrauded, and swindled out of more than thirty thousand dollars by this class of pretended Masons. It will be our fault if we are swindled out of any more." This is stronger language than any we are accustomed to see in English periodicals. The use of such, in our opinion, is a mistake. The Review has a serious grievance to complain of. The omission of its Grand, Past Grand, and other customers, is utterly indefensible. More like a true philosopher would it have been, if the Review had left its private sorrows to take their usual course; better still, if it had "chaffed" these defaulting dignitaries till, for very shame, they had felt compelled to pay up their dues. Morally, and perhaps also materially, this would have been a more profitable way of procedure. Our American contemporaries, however, are too genial to be severe for any length of time. We shall not be all surprised if, in its next issue, the Review resumes its natural flow of spirits, and is only gently, instead of terribly, indignant at the shabby treatment it has experienced. It has our heartiest good wishes for its prosperity, and we hope to see the day when its fiftieth volume is complete. Meanwhile we commend this amusing phase of journalism to the notice of our readers.

COLOURED MASONRY.

WE have hitherto refrained from offering any remarks on this question. We note, however, in the numerous American Masonic journals which reach us periodically a strong conflict of opinion thereon. This, of course, is to be expected, for the question is a vital one, and there is hardly a Masonic jurisdiction in the United States in which it has not been already or may not be hereafter brought prominently under notice. We, however, in the United Kingdom are not likely to be affected by the controversy, or at all events only in a very remote degree, or indirectly. If, for instance, a member of one of these Masonic communities should visit this country, and armed with the usual certificate of his status in the Craft, seek admission into one of our Lodges, in such case it occurs to us it would be the duty of the W.M. or officer presiding at the time to determine the validity of the applicant's certificate. Before such officer could decide upon the applicant's eligibility to be admitted, or rather be it said, in order to form a just opinion as to such eligibility, he must first of all decide whether the body by whom the certificate was granted was or was not legally empowered to grant such instruments. It is not enough that a visitor exhibits the requisite knowledge of Freemasonry, and that he affords satisfactory evidence of his identity with the person described in the certificate he submits for examination; it must further be determined whether or not the certificate in question has due validity. Thus there follows immediately this important query, By whom was the document issued? If it be answered, By Lodge So-and-So, or by the Grand Lodge of So-and-So, we must then discover if Lodge So-and-So is duly warranted, and under what Masonic authority, and likewise if the Grand Lodge of So-and-So be legally constituted. We say it is quite possible for this to happen, that a member of one of these coloured communities should seek admission into a Lodge in this country: in which case the presiding officer must take upon himself to decide off-hand whether or no the applicant is a duly certificated member of some legally constituted Masonic body. It seems to us hardly fair that so important a matter should be left to the discretion of the first chance official who may have to settle it. In the hope, that our opinion, which has been arrived at without prejudice, may be of service to our readers, as a guide to them should any such contingency as we have sketched arise, we offer the following observations. If, moreover, they are of any service to our American brethren, we shall be still better pleased.

We dismiss at once the question of colour. Our Constitutions require that every candidate for admission into Freemasonry must fulfil certain conditions precedent. These are that he shall be twenty-one years of age, a free man, his own master, and in reputable circumstances. According to the "Antient Charges," "the persons made Masons or admitted members of a Lodge must be good and true men, free born and of mature and discreet age and sound judgment, no bond-men, no women, no immoral or scandalous men, but of good report." According to Ahiman Rezon—Seventh Edition, 1807—"The men made Masons must be free-born, no bond-men, of mature and discreet" [N.B.—These two words do not occur in the second edition of 1764] age, of good report; hale and sound, not deformed or dismembered, at the time of their making; no woman, no eunuch." Thus it is a matter of no importance whatever, the colour of a man's skin; be it black, brown, or white, he is equally eligible for admission into our Society, provided only he fulfils the above conditions. Nor does it appear to us to be a matter of very great moment whether we adopt the reading of the old charge or regulation, and require a man to be "free-born," or that of the more modern constitution, and require him to be only "a free man;" unless, indeed, it can be shown that in those countries which still adopt the former, Masonic communities exist, successive members of which, from their first constitution till now, have not been free-born. Such communities would undoubtedly be irregular. We have not, however, heard of the time when, in some parts of the world, there have not been free-born men of colour of African origin. In order, then, to decide on this ground against the legality of these coloured or African communities, it would have to be proved that the original warrant or warrants under which they erect their claim to be Masonic Communities, was or were irregularly issued, that is to say, was or were issued to persons not legally admissible into Freemasonry. We have, however, the right to assume, in the absence of any proof to the contrary, that the said warrant or warrants was or were issued by a competent body to competent persons. So long, too, as the law requires that a Mason must be free-born, that law must be acted upon, and any person who was not free-born, but notwithstanding such defect, had been made a Mason, would not be entitled to any of the rights of Freemasonry. A Lodge thus concerned in making such irregular Masons would become liable to punishment, even to the extent of being struck off the rolls of that constituent body, of which it formed a part. But though the circumstance of a man not being free-born would unquestionably vitiate his "making," and justly exclude him from all participation in the rights and privileges of our Society, the Lodge that made him, if permitted to remain on the Register, would certainly continue to enjoy a perfectly legal constitution, so long, indeed, as it contained a sufficient number of legally-made Masons to satisfy the prescribed condition of "perfection." In order to show that these African or coloured Masonic Communities enjoy no legal status, from a defect in their origin, we must prove that either the body to which they owe their origin was itself illegal, or was vested with no legal power to confer Masonic rights and privileges on other persons. If, however, the contention is that though their origin was legal, there has been a break in what we will describe as the continuity of this legality, we must prove a lapse of warrant or other sufficient cause. Fortunately, the line of argument thus far indicated, being based on the assumption that the burden of proof rests, not with the African Grand Lodges, but with their antagonists, or, in other words, that the latter are under the disagreeable necessity of proving a negative—or shall we say, a series of negatives?—This argument, we say, need not be pursued to any greater length. In the first place, it is the duty of the African Grand Lodges to make out their claims to recognition as legally constituted Masonic communities; in the next, the real issue is much simpler in reality than at first sight it appears to be, being, in fact, neither more nor less than a mere question of jurisdiction. Can two Grand Lodges co-exist in the same State?

We cheerfully abandon the duty of establishing a complete chain of evidence in support of their legality to these coloured or African Grand Lodges themselves. We imagine they will experience much difficulty in producing any that will convince unprejudiced persons of the justice of their claims. Their case is far from being a clear one. We may even go further and say, that in a pretty long course of Masonic study it has not often been our lot to find one which rests more on assertion, less on positive proof. This is saying a great deal, considering the general darkness which prevails in Masonic history. Let us, however, assume, for the sake of argument, that these Lodges trace back clearly, link by link, a chain of evidence establishing their legal origin and the continuity of their legal being. Are there, even in such case, any just reasons why they should now be recognised as separate and distinct Grand Lodges? Hitherto they have not been so recognised and what new aspect has their case assumed that we should be called upon to do now what we have steadfastly declined to do in times gone by? Let us take the case of Ohio as an example. What say the Wardens of American Union Lodge No. 1, writing from "Marietta, Ohio," under date of "May 5, 5791," as to Masonic Jurisdiction in America? "We found that previous to the late Revolution, all Masonic jurisdiction in America was derived from Europe, delegated to Grand Masters in and over certain districts. That since the war the Masonic bodies in the different States have considered themselves independent of Europe; have formed their Grand Lodges by electing a Grand Master and other officers necessary to compose the same; that this system has taken place where there was no Grand Lodge previous to the Revolution, as well as in those States where Grand Masters had been appointed from Europe." They then justify the "opening a Lodge within the Territory North-west of the Ohio," and proceed as follows:—"Accordingly the Master with a due number of the former members being present, the Lodge was opened in ample form and incorporated agreeably to the ancient customs of the Royal Craft, and we have to request that we may be recognised as such in the different Grand Lodges in our Sister States in America." Reasons are then given which "will soon make it necessary for the full enjoyment of the benefits of Masonry that more Lodges be established within the Territory," and these are followed by the important declaration "that in pursuance of the example of some of the Confederate States who had no Grand Master previous to the Revolution, and have since formed a Grand Lodge by electing a Grand Master, we conceive ourselves as being the Masonic Body corporated within the Federal territories and duly invested with every power necessary to constitute, rule, and govern the same agreeably to the constitutions and ancient customs of the Royal Craft throughout the world." Here, then, we have the establishment, in Western Territory, of the first germ of an Independent Grand Lodge, claiming to exercise the powers of right belonging to such a Body. Here, too, we have it announced that the Masonic dependence of America on Europe ceased with the termination of the war of Independence 1783. How much earlier other Provincial Grand Lodges declared their Masonic Independence is not material to the issue. Taking the facts described by Bro. Drummond, P.G.M. Maine, in his article in the Masonic Review for July, on "Coloured Masonry" as the basis of this portion of our argument—and we are not aware they are denied by those who differ with him—taking his facts, we say, we find that application was made by Prince Hall to the Grand Lodge Moderns of England for a charter, in March 1784, the year following the cessation of American Masonic dependence on Europe. The charter was received, or African Lodge organized under it, in 1787. Two other Lodges were chartered subsequently, either by African Lodge or Prince Hall, one in Philadelphia, one in Providence, R.I. In 1808 these three organised a Grand Lodge in Boston. In 1824 a petition was sent to England for a renewal of the charter. In 1827, no answer having been received, African Lodge published a Declaration of Independence. In 1847 a National Grand Lodge was formed. Thus we have, on the one hand, the statement in May 1791 by the Wardens of American Union Lodge No. 1, located at Marietta, Ohio, that the Masonic dependence of America on Europe had ceased eight years previously—that is, in 1783, when the war of Independence terminated; on the other, an application to England in 1784, for a charter for that very Masonic Lodge, from which have sprung the various coloured Masonic organisations now existing in the United States. We are quite aware the Masonic Independence of the United States was not recognised in England at the same time as its political Independence. In the 1807 edition of Ahiman Rezon, we find included in the list of "Foreign Lodges under the Grand Lodge" (Ancients) "of England," two Charleston Lodges, three New York Lodges, and the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. Yet, as was shown in our review of the Early History and Transactions of the Grand Lodge of New York, long before 1807, the Grand Lodge of New York strenuously and successfully insisted on its position of complete and absolute Masonic authority in the State. In the same work, too, we find under date, "New York, September 3rd 1788," the following Note:—"A communication was received from the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, announcing its having become an Independent Grand Lodge." Moreover, Bro. Drummond mentions in his article already referred to, that African Lodge was dropped from the roll of England at the Union of the Ancients and Moderns. The limits of different territorial Masonic jurisdictions were not, in the days we are referring to, very clearly defined, nor, indeed, are they even now as distinctly marked as they might be. England, therefore, might claim to grant charters for the formation of Foreign Lodges, and to retain them on her Register. but against this we should place the emphatic statement made by the Wardens of American Union Lodge, No. 1, in a letter on the 5th May 5791, and now published under authority of the Grand Lodge of New York, to the effect "that since the war, the Masonic bodies in the different States have considered themselves independent of Europe, have formed their Grand Lodges," &c., &c. This, be it remembered, is a statement made by brethren of standing in a most important official document. This, in fact, is an authentic declaration obtained from the records of contemporaneous Masonic History to the effect that when the United States achieved their political independence of Europe, they considered themselves Masonically independent likewise. These said Wardens most probably took part in the political, as they certainly did in the Masonic events of their day. Their statement, made by order of their Lodge to the Grand Lodge of New York, was made under a deep sense of responsibility. It is completely in accordance with common sense, that Masonic independence should have accompanied political independence. England may have claimed to exercise Masonic jurisdiction within the territories of the United States; she may have issued charters for the formation of new Lodges. It was clearly competent, however, for America to deny her any such authority. The contemporary statement we have quoted proves, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that, in the opinion of these Ohian brethren, "the Masonic bodies in the different States" did consider themselves, when the war was over, independent of Europe. Thus it matters not if the Coloured Masonic organisations of to-day can trace back their origin, step by step, from now to the Lodge for which, in 1784, Prince Hall sought a charter of Grand Lodge of England. In the face of the Wardens' declaration we have quoted, the issue of that warrant was clearly ultra vires, and, of course, unrecognisable by the Masonic bodies in the United States, who, "since the war" had "considered themselves independent of Europe." It was further authoritatively announced in the same document that, in the event of other Lodges being established within the said territory, north-west of the Ohio, "we consider ourselves as being the Masonic body, corporated within the Federal territories, duly invested with every power necessary to constitute, rule, and govern the same, agreeably to the Constitutions and ancient customs of the Royal Craft throughout the world." At this time, there were no other Lodges in the Ohian territory. Clearly none subsequently established could possibly be permitted to override this declaration. This, however, concerns Ohio only, and is merely by way of supplement to the main argument, which we state emphatically as follows:—No Masonic organisations in the United States, of foreign origin, have any just claim to recognition by the several State Grand Lodges. African Lodge, the parent of these Coloured Masonic organisations, never had a legal status; for, if the facts are as we have stated, its warrant was obtained from a foreign Grand Lodge,—that of the Moderns, England—in 1784, when already the Masonic bodies in the States considered themselves independent. And as time went on and Freemasonry came to be better organised in the different States and Territories of the Union, as in one after the other of these States, the doctrine of exclusive jurisdiction within the limits of each became generally recognised—under these circumstances, we do not see how it is possible for the different State Grand Lodges to retain their full rights and privileges, while at the same time recognising other Masonic bodies within the limits of their respective jurisdictions.

Upon the question what is the best policy to pursue, we offer no opinion here. Our purpose was to settle, if possible, the status of the so-called coloured Masonic organizations existing in various of the United States. The conclusion we arrive at is dead against their legality. If a member of one of these organisations should present himself as a visitor to one of our Lodges, we should rule that he is not eligible for admission.

The Consecration of the Tredegar Lodge, No. 1625, will take place on Wednesday next, at the Royal Hotel, Mile End Road, E. The ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be performed by the Very Worshipful Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary: Bro. Charles Lacey, P.M. 174, is the W.M. designate. The proceedings will commence at three o'clock.

FREEMASONRY AND PROMOTION IN THE ARMY.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Dublin Freeman's Journal, who signs himself JUSTITIA, writes complainingly of "the working of the Craft," and "in the interest of Catholic Irishmen and others who do not hold with the principles of the Secret Society called Freemasonry, who enter her Majesty's Service," appeals to that journal for its moral and intellectual support against the evil-doings of Craftsmen. The grounds of its appeal are these: "In a certain regiment, at present stationed in India, the commanding officer, and many of the officers under him, being Freemasons, a shameful mode of promoting all those who join the society is at present in vogue." This is a grave charge to make—that gentlemen in high places, and bearing her Majesty's commission, are guilty of malfeasance in the fulfilment of their duties—and we naturally, of course, expect that a reasonable amount of circumstantial evidence would be adduced in support of it. Accordingly, we looked most carefully at the sentences which followed. The first of these began: "In proof of this assertion," and we read on most patiently, and at the same time with rather serious misgivings that some very ugly disclosures were on the point of being made. We know Freemasons are no more immaculate than other men, and, while hoping it was not so, we yet thought it possible that some partiality might have been shown towards fellow Craftsmen. If members of the same family take more kindly to each other than even to the worthiest among strangers, we thought it not altogether surprising that members of a certain society should exhibit a greater degree of interest in the success of their fellow members than in that of outsiders. This, we say, is perfectly natural; but when the feeling is carried beyond this point, to the extent of advancing a fellow member's interests to the detriment of the outsiders, then, of course, it is to be expected that such partiality should be publicly challenged. We read on, therefore, most carefully. We did not conceive it possible that a man would write to a public journal, having, of course, a full sense of the responsibility attaching to such a course, and, above all things, signing himself JUSTITIA, without being able to produce something tangible in the way of evidence. And what found we in support of this serious charge? Nothing more than a counter-statement, unsupported by a single tittle of proof. Lest our readers should think we are exaggerating the case, we transcribe the very words of JUSTITIA himself. "In proof of this assertion," says he, "I beg to state that the late Sergeant-Major, who a short time since had been promoted to the rank of Quartermaster in the regiment, his successor, and the Assistant-Sergeant-Major are all members of the Craft. The bandmaster is a Freemason, and out of eight colour-sergeants, four are members of the same society. There is no Freemason in this regiment under the rank of sergeant, and undoubtedly all those who have become members of the society have done so solely for the purpose of obtaining favour and promotion." A few words in this passage we have italicised for reasons which must be obvious. JUSTITIA's proof is merely a statement that certain members in this regiment are Freemasons, and that all who join our Society do so in order to ensure their own advancement. He does not say, much less does he attempt to prove, that the quartermaster, bandmaster, the colour-sergeants were promoted, to the detriment of other men in the regiment, merely because they were members of our Society. He states that these, and others he enumerates, hold a certain rank in the regiment, and are likewise Freemasons. True, he takes upon himself, in the latter clause of his so-called proof, to affirm that men join our Society solely for the purpose of gaining promotion. What assurance have we of the justice of JUSTITIA's assertion? Has he the power of analysing men's motives? or have these men, of the rank of sergeant and higher still—have they, one and all, taken him into their confidence and plainly announced to him that the sole object they had in view in becoming Freemasons, was to obtain favour and promotion? Will JUSTITIA enumerate the sergeants and others of the regiment, who have not obtained promotion by reason of their not being members of our Society? Until he can show that the men he refers to did obtain a step or steps of promotion solely because they were Freemasons, while others, who were not Freemasons, were passed over or neglected, unless he can prove the animus of the bandmaster, the quartermaster and the others in becoming members of our Society, the whole of his statement is utterly without value. We ask him for the proof of all this, for as yet he has vouchsafed us nothing but assertion. This, however, is far from being the whole of the case, as stated by JUSTITIA. Having given us this delectable illustration of his wisdom, he proceeds to announce his belief that it is "the intention of those who have authority in the corps to establish a Regimental Masonic Lodge." This, of course, is only further evidence of JUSTITIA's lamentable ignorance of what he is writing about. A regiment is not ruled by a Commission or a Board of Guardians, but by its commanding officer, who is the highest in rank present with the corps. Again, it cannot be the intention of those in authority to establish a Regimental Masonic Lodge. Masonic Lodges are not thus established. A certain procedure must be observed. Application must be made in the proper quarter; the reasons for such application must be given, and must be such as will satisfy the Masonic authorities; the petition must be duly recommended, and then it is that, all things being deemed satisfactory, a warrant is issued for the Constitution of the Lodge. Thus JUSTITIA's belief that it is the intention of the regimental authorities to establish a Lodge is simply an absurdity. They may intend petitioning for a Warrant of Constitution, but they cannot intend doing what it is out of their power to do. Thus the whole of JUSTITIA's case falls to the ground. He has come forward publicly, and made a serious accusation against the officers of a certain regiment "at present stationed in India." This charge is, that the Commanding officer, and the officers under him being Freemasons, those in the regiment who belong to the same society are favoured at the expense of those who are not. The proof he adduces of the truth of this is merely a statement of his own, which, being entirely unsupported, has not the slightest degree of value. A further assertion that men join the ranks of Freemasonry solely to gain some advantage is, if possible, more worthless still. We do not believe that a number of respectable men, wearing the uniform of an honourable service, would deliberately commit perjury, and then be such fools as to let a man of the moral and mental calibre of JUSTITIA into the secret of their perjury. As to the announcement "there is no Freemason in the regiment under the rank of sergeant," this ought not to have excited any suspicion in the mind of JUSTITIA had he known anything of the laws affecting Military Lodges. There is only one grade beneath that of sergeant which is eligible for admission to the rights and privileges of Regimental Masonic membership. The Master of a Military Lodge is "prohibited from initiating any person whatever into Masonry under the rank of corporal, except as a serving brother, or by dispensation from the Grand Master, or Provincial Grand Master." It is not stated whether the Masonic officers and non-commissioned officers of this regiment are members of the same or different Lodges. It is not, however, very strange that, with the exception of the corporals—who may number some thirty, more or less—the privates in the regiment, who are not eligible for admission into a military Lodge, should not be Freemasons.

Were the public a little better informed as to the Constitutions of Freemasonry, we should not condescend to notice such paltry attacks as this of "JUSTITIA." Under present circumstances, we consider it our duty to repel any and all charges that may be levelled against us.

ODDS AND ENDS.

BY WALTER SPENCER, F.R.G.S., &c.

MR. FAIRHOLT, in "Tobacco: its History and Associations" (London 1876) says he once knew a man who smoked tea leaves. I remember doing so, in New Zealand, for want of the genuine article, and found it not altogether disagreeable. Many a settler in the interior, when hard-up for the "nigger-head" or "nail-rod" with which his pipe was wont to be replenished, has smoked the leaves of the "Manukan," a shrub which covers whole tracts of the country, and some got quite used to it. This same plant was used not infrequently instead of tea, its flavour is pleasant, but its strong diuretic property embarrassing.

I tried opium smoking in China, by medical advice, as a remedy for dysentery, but it failed to have any effect upon me whatever. I do not know even that it induced any extra sleep; though on board of steamers laden with the drug, I have lived half stupified and sickened as though under a course of morphia. Description of a Chinese opium saloon has been too often given to bear repetition, and is certainly a revolting spectacle. The habit becomes a vice from abuse. I am quite prepared to believe that in some places and for some occupations, it may be only a pleasant sedative for an overworked Chinaman, necessary as ale and other slight stimulants are to our own people in this humid climate. It should not be forgotten that the Chinese work every day Sunday included, and from dawn till night without cessation, except to snatch a hasty and frugal meal. They are by far the most laborious race in the world. For one class, however, opium smoking is without doubt pernicious; for domestic servants. The idle time on their hands gets more and more devoted to the pipe, which becoming more and more necessary to their comfort causes a craving that ends in being insatiable, and in utterly wrecking the health and happiness of the victim.

Chewing tobacco is a means of staying hunger which I have also practically experienced. It probably deadens the lining of the intestines, and though it cannot supply the waste of tissue, lessens the unpleasant cravings of the patient. When in this condition, I used to indulge in delicious reveries of the dishes I would feast upon should I ever be so fortunate as to return to civilisation, and the recollection of it even now often doubles the zest with which I relish a good dinner.

I have a specimen of snuff of which the late Emperor of China was inordinately fond. It was said to be of Russian importation, and cost £5 an ounce in Pekin. I have tried in vain to get it manufactured in this country, with the idea of starting a good speculation. It seems that the peculiar flavours of peculiar snuffs are most difficult to make up to the satisfaction of connoisseurs, who would at once detect an imitation.

Many travellers have remarked upon the strangeness experienced when first domiciled in rooms without windows. The old houses in Spanish America, as in Morocco and Syria, are constructed on this principle, the room doors either opening one into the other or into a central courtyard. The latter, when planted or having trees or fountains, is a pleasant sight to which one soon gets accustomed: but I was once housed in what had formerly been a convent. It had no inner courtyard, and the room doors opened into dark, dreary corridors, lighted only by skylights at each end. The rooms in this case, however, had narrow barred windows or rather apertures, but they were placed high up in the wall, close under a lofty ceiling. They did serve to admit light and air, but their broad sills (in walls four feet thick) harboured scorpions, as I found to my cost. My bed was against the wall under one of these windows, and I found every night two or three small alacranes in the fold of the sheet. I was for some time puzzled to account for their appearance, until I procured a ladder, by which to mount to the window. There, on the sill, I found Papa and Mamma with a numerous brood, which I immediately swept off to the outside. The little ones, in their infant gambols, had previously been used to fall inside on to my bed. Bats used to enter at night by the same aperture and flap round the room, with an unearthly noise. For several nights I awoke at intervals, to throw slippers and other articles at them, but finally got used to their intrusions; after which I generally found one or two in the morning snugly nestled amongst my clothes on a chair.

I have remarked that wherever snakes abounded, it was considered a good omen to have one domiciled in the roof. They exterminate all rats and mice, and resent the intrusion of cats on their preserves. Those thus domesticated, in the East, are a small species of boa, quite harmless to the human inmates. When the ceilings are of canvas, their contortions and adventures can be plainly tracked by the undulations of that material. They probably descend occasionally at night-time, for chickens and puppies are sometimes unaccountably missing.

The Philippine Indians have a disgusting penchant for bad eggs—with the half-formed chick inside. It is well known from the higher price of those comestibles, but I discovered it for myself. Every morning, at early breakfast, my "boy" placed on the table an egg, which invariably was sent away as a bad one, to be replaced, sometimes, by a second and third in the same condition. I marvelled and submitted, until one day when I rose suddenly and perceived the youth complacently sucking a rejected one behind the door. This enlightened my understanding, and I took the precaution to throw all bad eggs, after that, out of window into the river. A regular supply of good eggs was the ultimate result.

THE INSTALLATION PICTURE.

We have been favoured with a view of a proof section of Bro. Harty's engraving of the Installation of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as M.W.G.M. There are no less than four hundred portraits in it, and we had not the slightest difficulty in recognising a number of faces perfectly familiar to us. The exact moment which appears to have been selected for the representation of this grand and solemn occasion, is when the brethren are casting a hasty glance round the hall, for the purpose of obtaining a full impression of the scene. Only by the adoption of some such license could the artist have presented so many hundred faces turned in so many different directions. The finishing touches are, as yet, wanting to perfect this section, but the view we had fully justifies us in expressing our belief that the engraving, when complete, will be one of the finest and most successful ever executed. In the course of another four or five weeks, about three-fourths of the work will have been proved; and as numbers of those present have not yet sent their likenesses to, or been specially photographed by Bro. Harty, we take this opportunity of announcing that the artist has room for close on a hundred more portraits, and will be obliged if brethren will forward him either their "counterfeit presentment," if such has been already taken, or with the needful sitting.

At the Royal Aquarium, Brighton, Opera Recitals have been given, and have been well attended. The Opera selected for the Morning Performance being the Bohemian Girl, Miss Mary Davies, Miss Marion Severn, Bro. George Perren, and Mr. George Fox sustaining the various parts; in the evening, La Sonnambula was given, Miss Arabella Smythe singing the part of Amina, all the artistes were loudly applauded. Owing to the care and attention of Mr. Parnaby, the custodian of the Institution, the whole of the fish are in a thriving condition. The whitebait from Gravesend form an attraction to the frequenters. No expense is spared to introduce new features of interest.

At the Theatre Royal the Gaiety Company have concluded a very successful engagement. Madlle. Corneille d'Anka's London Company followed, and during their stay have had good houses. The production of the Grand Duchess and La Fille de Madame Angot has afforded Madlle. d'Anka an opportunity to display her charming voice. Miss Kathleen Corri has also been well received. Mr. Beverley and Mr. H. Lewens sustain the parts allotted them with commendable care. Miss Gundry is a rising artiste. Bro. R. W. South was the acting manager, and to him great credit is due. He will shortly be again in Brighton, in connection with Miss Jenny Lee's company, when "Jo" will be produced.

THE ADMISSION OF VISITORS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Owing to an accidental oversight I have only just seen the interesting article, in your issue of the 12th inst., on "The Admission of Visitors." Your remarks, though able and instructive, being based upon an imperfect report of what took place at the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, do not bear sufficiently upon the real points at issue, which are—

1. Whether a brother who is properly vouched for, and who produces his G.L. Certificate, can claim the right of admission to any private Lodge he may wish to enter as a visitor.
2. Whether a brother who is either personally known, recommended, or can prove himself, after due examination, to the satisfaction of "one of the present brethren," can be legally excluded because he presents himself minus his certificate.
3. If, in dealing with visitors, a discretionary power is allowed, with whom does it exist—the Lodge or the W.M.?

After stating that "the foreign brother, finding his application for relief brought with it no solatium, claimed admission to the Lodge as a brother Mason," and was rejected, you express regret that the incident occurred, and that our examination was not made by "one of the present brethren," from which I infer that but for the antecedent shortcomings of the applicant you would have had him admitted if his examination proved satisfactory. But surely it would have been acting unconstitutionally and illegally to have adopted such a course if the law is, as stated in Oliver's "Masonic Jurisprudence," that "No visitor can be admitted unless he be known or vouched for by some member of the Lodge, or (if he be a perfect stranger) produce his Grand Lodge Certificate."

Bro. James Stevens is of opinion that the production of a certificate is not necessary, and that it is the J.W.'s duty to examine and admit Masons on proof, but Bro. Gottheil, and many other most distinguished members of the Craft, interpret the Edict of Grand Lodge to place a compulsory obligation on every W.M. to make the production of the certificate a sine qud non.

Dr. Oliver's dictum would seem to sustain the latter view, which, if correct, is, in my humble opinion, totally at variance with the regulations on the subject contained in the Book of Constitutions. Not a word is said therein respecting a visitor's certificate, and the only ground mentioned upon which a visitor may (not shall) be excluded is that he must be "of known bad character."

Yours fraternally,

Aug. 24th, 1876. JOHN W. COLMER.

OLD WARRANTS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—One or two circumstances connected with the second of the "OLD WARRANTS," which appeared last week in your columns may prove of interest to your readers. In the first place, this Warrant, or rather renewed Warrant, must have been very nearly, if not the last, issued by the Ancient Grand Lodge. It is dated 21st December 1813, and the union of Ancients and Moderns took place on the 27th of the month. In the next place, it may be the only Warrant, and must be one of a very limited number issued by this Grand Master. H.R.H. the Duke of Kent, according to Preston, was "elected and installed Grand Master of that body of Masons" (Ancients) "at Willis's Rooms, St. James's Square, on the 1st of December 1813." I presume this date refers to the installation, for the "Articles of Union between the two Grand Lodges of England" were "done at the Palace of Kensington, this 25th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1813, and of Masonry 5813," the Duke of Kent's signature, "Edward G.M.," being one of those at foot. Be this, however, as it may, the Duke of Kent's tenure of the Grand Mastership of the Ancients was certainly a brief one, nor is he likely to have granted many warrants, if, indeed, he granted more than this one particular warrant. Thus, I consider its publication in your columns is attended with circumstances of unusual interest, and well worth describing.

I may add that, the "Thomas Harper, D.G.M.," was one of "the three distinguished brethren," whom Preston tells us each of the Royal Grand Masters took into his council, with a view to arranging the articles of Union. "Thomas Harper D.G.M." is the next "ancient" signature to the said articles, coming immediately after that of "Edward G.M." He was, moreover, Editor of the seventh edition of Ahiman Rezon, "printed by Bro. T. Harper jun., Crane-court, Fleet-street, for the Editor, No. 207 Fleet-street," in 1807.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

LODGE No. 169.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I see from the Keystone for the 12th inst., that our esteemed Bro. Hughan, in an article on "'Ancient and 'Modern' Lodges," refers incidentally to Lodge 169, of which our well known Bro. Jacob Norton had previously made mention, as being "an 'Ancient' Lodge." It has recently come within my province, as your reviewer, to go carefully through the four parts, thus far published, of the Early History and Transactions of the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New York, 1781-1815. I am, therefore, in a position to add a little information respecting this Lodge, "No. 169." The following particulars are furnished at p. xxxvi. of the Introduction, by "John G. Barker, P.G. Librarian," in this valuable history.

"Lodge 169, A.Y.M., Registry of England. Warrant dated 13th July 1771. We have no record of its history prior to its location in the city of New York. It was the most prominent of all the Lodges located therein. Its officers were in frequent correspondence with the Grand Lodge of England (Ancients), and it was no doubt acknowledged the leading Masonic authority among the army Lodges."

The latter statement would seem to indicate that No. 169 was originally an army Lodge, or why should they of all Lodges acknowledge its pre-eminence? Moreover at p. xii. of its introduction it is stated that "the Masonic Lodges in the Province of New York previous to the year 1776, evidently worked the rituals and derived their authority wholly from the Grand Lodge of England (denominated Moderns), the occupation of the City of New York by the English army was the immediate cause of the introduction of Lodges holding warrants emanating from the Grand Lodges in Ireland, Scotland and the ancientest London." At p. xiii. it is distinctly affirmed that No. 169 was an army Lodge as will be seen from the following passage, which, moreover, throws additional light on its history.

"In the beginning of 1781, the Army Lodges in the City of New York took steps to form a Grand Lodge, or, what is more probably, to continue and perfect the organization of one already established by them, as will be seen by the following documents on file in the archives:—

"Minutes of Lodge 169, Ancient York Masons, held at this Lodge room, on Tuesday evening, the 23rd January, 1781, being a Grand Lodge assembled in ample form."

There were present twenty-nine Masters and Past Masters, representatives of five Lodges; namely, 138, 169, 210, Solomon's Lodge, No. 212, Registry of England, 441, Registry of Ireland and Zion's Lodge, U.D.

"The Grand Lodge was opened in 'due form' by the R.W. Bro. McCuen G.M., Brown S.G.W., Taylor J.G.W. It was unanimously agreed that an election of officers be held, and the following brethren were unanimously elected:—

The Rev. William Walker 169, Grand Master; Bro. John Browrigg (? Brownrigg) 441, Senior Grand Warden; and the Rev. Bro. John Beardsley 210, Junior Grand Warden."

These brethren accepted their election, and in the Atholl Grand Warrant, constituting the Provincial Grand Lodge of New York, and dated 5th September, 1781, we find them duly nominated and appointed to the several offices of Provincial Grand Master and Senior and Junior Grand Wardens.

At the meeting of Grand Lodge, 5th December, 1782, at the Assembly Hall at Roubalets, in the City of New York, the Lodge described as "Lodge No. 169, Ancient York Masons, held in the City of New York," is one of the nine Lodges represented. On this occasion, "Bro. JAMES MCCUEN, Past Master of Lodge No. 169," is appointed Provincial Deputy Grand Master, and "Brother JAMES CLARKE, Secretary of Lodge No. 169, Deputy Grand Secretary."

In the minutes of an emergency meeting of Grand Stewards' Lodge, held on 21st June 1786, we read: "Right Worshipful Samuel Auer informed the Grand Stewards' Lodge, that Lodge No. 169, Ancient York Masons, had, by a very great majority, agreed that Lodge No. 169 shall hereafter be called and known by the name SAINT ANDREW'S LODGE, No. 169, and prays that this Grand Stewards' Lodge confirm the same, which was unanimously agreed."

At the meeting of Grand Lodge, held on 3rd June, 1789, when the order and precedence of Lodges were determined, the first step taken was to read the warrants, the Grand Secretary noting down "their several dates, the places where the Lodges were to be held, and under what jurisdiction." These, in the case of No. 169, were as follow: "St. Andrew's, 169, City of Boston, in the Province of Massachusetts, Gr. □ of England, July 13, 1771." In settling the order, St. Andrew's, No. 169, was assigned the third place, a motion by R.W. Bro. Cook, to the effect that "169 be considered as the first in rank" having been first negatived.

Reverting to p. xxxvi. of the Introduction, we are there told "By the acknowledgment of priority of rank to Lodges holding older warrants it became No. 7, which rank it retained until 1827, when the warrant was surrendered to Grand Lodge."

These are interesting details in connection with the early history of this Lodge. The archives of Grand Lodge Massachusetts may possibly contain some further information, and it is possible, perhaps, there may be further particulars ascertainable in the archives of Grand Lodge, England. Perhaps some of our friends may be in a position to amplify the above statement.

Fraternally yours,

"YOUR REVIEWER."

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I would feel greatly obliged if you, or any of your well-informed correspondents, could give me a satisfactory answer to the following enquiries:—

1st. "Has the I.P.M. of a Lodge, when acting in the Chair in the absence of the R.W.M., the same power and prerogative as if the R.W.M. were himself presiding?"

2nd. "Has the I.P.M., when acting as R.W.M., the right to call upon any well-qualified officer or brother to work any of the degrees when he feels indisposed to perform the duty himself?"

My reason for making the latter query is in consequence of an occurrence which took place a few weeks ago at an emergency meeting of our Lodge, convoked for initiation and raising.

Our R.W.M. was absent, and the I.P.M. took the Chair. He performed the ceremony of Initiation, and afterwards requested the J.W. to work the third degree. On his making this request the S.W. rose and protested against the I.P.M. asking the J.W. to work the degree, when he (the S.W.) was present, and able to perform the ceremony. He objected to have his feelings so wounded, and shortly thereafter refused to act in his office, and left the Lodge during the working of the degree.

I have carefully perused the laws of the Grand Lodge of Scotland (to which Constitution our Lodge belongs) and our own bye-laws, and can find no rule which warrants the S.W. in behaving as he did.

I have, all along, been under the impression (so far as the working of the Scotch Lodges is concerned) that the R.W.M., or his substitute in his absence, had the prerogative of asking whom he pleases to work the degrees, and of its being entirely a matter of courtesy whether he asks a P.M., S.W., J.W., or, in fact, any officer or brother to oblige him by performing the ceremony. Our S.W., however, questions the R.W.M.'s right to do so, laying the question of courtesy aside altogether.

It is more than likely that the occurrence which I have just related will form a subject for discussion at our next regular meeting, which takes place on 4th September, and as I am somewhat interested in the matter I would esteem it a favour to have an opinion on the subject before that time. Soliciting an insertion of this in your first issue,

I remain,

Yours fraternally,

PISCATOR.

[The I.P.M., being in the chair, would exercise the same powers and privileges as the R.W.M., in whose absence he presides. The I.P.M. is an Installed Master, and therefore qualified to perform all the duties of a R.W.M. It follows, then, that if the R.W.M. has the right to call upon any, qualified brother to assist him in his duties, the I.P.M. must have the same right. Thus, if through momentary indisposition the latter feels himself unequal to his work, he may invite the assistance of any qualified brother. On the occasion referred to the I.P.M. was quite justified in asking the J.W. to work the degree, though we think, as a matter of courtesy, he should have studied the feelings of the S.W. A somewhat similar question was discussed in these columns—See Nos. 73, 74, 75, 76 of the "FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE"—as to the right of the W.M., under the English Constitutions, to invite a visiting P.M. to temporarily occupy the chair, the I.P.M. and other P.M.'s of his own Lodge being present. In this case also the question of courtesy was mentioned.—Ed. FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.]

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Enfeebled Existence.—This medicine embraces every attribute required in a general and domestic remedy; it overturns the foundations of disease laid by defective food and impure air. In obstructions or congestions of the liver, lungs, bowels, or any other organs, these Pills are especially serviceable and eminently successful. They should be kept in readiness in every family, as they are a medicine without a fault for young persons and those of feeble constitutions. They never cause pain, or irritate the most sensitive nerves, or most tender bowels. Holloway's Pills are the best kind of purifiers of the blood, and the best promoters of absorption and secretion, and remove all poisonous and obnoxious particles from both solids and fluids.

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE public appears hardly as yet to have got over the elevation of Mr. Disraeli to the peerage. The comments on this unlooked for honour conferred upon a worthy subject by a grateful sovereign still continue. Of those who achieve greatness none certainly appear to have done so in a manner more honourable. Mr. Disraeli has forced his way up to the foremost position in this country by dint of sheer hard work, superadded to the most splendid abilities. It redounds infinitely to his credit that all classes and shades of politicians appear to rejoice in this latest addition to his honours. A word of sympathy, however, is due to the House of Commons, which has thus lost one of its brightest ornaments.

The reception of the Queen at Edinburgh has, according to all accounts, afforded Her Majesty the liveliest satisfaction. Everything, as we said last week, passed off most satisfactorily. The worthy burgesses of "the modern Athens" turned out en masse to welcome the Queen. The ceremonial passed off most successfully, and sundry of them who contributed towards its success have since received the honours of knighthood, among them being the artist whose skill in portraiture has been so generally acknowledged. For some time hence the Royal residence in the Highlands will be honoured by Her Majesty's presence.

The Prince of Wales has returned to London, from a flying visit to the Continent. The coast of France has seen him, and the capital of little Belgium has received and honoured him as the guest of its King and Queen. The Brussels exhibition was not overlooked, and the Prince expressed himself as highly gratified with what he saw. The Princess and her children have returned to London from the Isle of Wight. A move, however, to Abergeldie will take place shortly. The Duke of Connaught is on his way to be present at the usual Autumn Manœuvres of the Austrian army.

Earl Russell has written a letter to Earl Granville, in which he expresses an opinion that an autumnal session of Parliament will be necessary, and advocates the intervention of European powers in the present Eastern crisis. We feel due respect for the utterances of so experienced a statesman. An autumn session may be necessary, perhaps; but the noble Earl appears to overlook the important fact that, but for the insidious designs of Russia, the unrighteous onslaught of Servia upon Turkey would never have been made. We hear much of the atrocities of the Turks, but little of what goaded them into their present angry mood. Let us mete out to the Turks the same measure of justice we demand for the Christian, and we shall soon hear little of atrocities committed by the former. Thus far, at least, it seems to us that Turkey is the aggrieved party, while on the score of atrocities, which have occurred before now, even in European warfare, Russia, with the brutal bayonetting of our wounded in the Crimean battles, is one of the last powers in the world that can justly bring forward any such accusation.

The inquest into the cause of the terrible explosion on board H.M.S. Thunderer is still in progress. All diligence is being made in order to ascertain the true cause of the disaster. One gratifying fact is worth recording. Captain Wilson, in the course of his evidence, spoke in the highest terms of the gallant conduct of Mr. Weekes, engineer attached to the Asia for service on board the Thunderer. Mr. Weekes was the first to make his way into the engine-room, and to stop the engines and turn off the steam. Captain Wilson considered this evidenced the greatest courage on the part of Mr. Weekes, and announced his intention of bringing the matter under notice in the proper quarter when the present inquiry was terminated. All honour, say we, to Mr. Weekes.

The annual Police Fête in support of the Metropolitan and City Police Orphanage came off on Wednesday, at the Alexandra Palace, and proved a grand success. The bands of several divisions of the Force were in attendance, and performed their part of the programme very admirably. There were also athletic sports, under the management of some of the leading members, but the greatest novelty in the day's proceedings was the performance of the "Metropolitan Police Minstrels," who were most enthusiastically and deservedly applauded. Mr. Frederick Archer gave several recitals on the grand organ, and there was an excellent concert under the personal direction of Mr. Weist Hill. Other amusements, including a balloon ascent, were given, and the day concluded with a grand display of fireworks. We hope the funds of so admirable an institution will be benefited largely by the fête.

There has been a Home Rule convention at Dublin, and great appears to have been the uproar thereat. Mr. I. Butt, M.P., who presided, had a trying part to play, but he did his best to fulfil it well. He is not to blame if the success attending his efforts was not more pronounced. There seems to have been a fair amount of free scrimmaging in the body of the room where the meeting was held. A Mr. Doran, too, earned for himself a fair share of distinction. We cannot, however, congratulate him on the part he played. He disappeared from the platform, to which he had fought his way, in a somewhat summary manner, while the would-be seconder of the motion he proposed was ejected with great violence. The following evening, at the dinner given to the Council of the Home Rule Confederation, under the presidency of Mr. Butt, a detective was found to be in the room, and his presence gave rise to a little scene, which happily terminated with nothing more than an explosion of wrath on the part of the Home Rulers, the chairman, Mr. Butt, expressing his indignation in very strong terms. We cannot say these meetings of the Home Rulers impress us very favourably. At the same it evinced a great error of judgment on the part of some of the authorities in sending a police officer to watch the proceedings at a private banquet. It is a great pity a little of the energy displayed on these occasions cannot be turned to some better purpose.

Matters have assumed a somewhat threatening aspect in Dahomey. The potentate who presides over the destinies of this unenlightened state seems in no wise terrified by the blockade which our squadron has established off Whydah. On the contrary, we have rumours of a threatened massacre of the Europeans, who, it seems, are being watched night and day, and have already had all communication cut off between themselves and European ships stationed off the coast.

The married life of Mr. Sidney Collins, "artist in colouring black eyes," is not a very happy one, if we may judge from certain disclosures recently made at the Marlborough-street Police Court. Mr. Collins summoned his wife for an assault, and from the evidence he gave, the lady appears to have conducted herself towards him with the greatest violence. She frequently assaulted him, and the poor man went in daily fear of life. A lodger corroborated the husband's statement, and the officer who arrested Mrs. Collins, found her lying on the bed only half dressed, and drunk. The lady, who had already spent the half of her twenty years of married life in the House of Detention, was ordered to find two sureties in the sum of £10 each to keep the peace for the next six months. For so long at all events Mr. Collins will be able to pursue his calling without fear of being beaten by his better half.

Several sad accidents have latterly occurred from drowning, and in more than one case gallant efforts have been made to save the lives of the persons in peril. On Tuesday, a passenger by one of the Citizen steamers fell overboard opposite the old Deer Park, Richmond. A gentleman, living in the neighbourhood, happened to be on the towing-path, and without divesting himself of any of his clothes, gallantly jumped into the water, and held the man up just long enough for a waterman to pull off to their assistance. The two were saved, but in a very exhausted condition.

It is difficult to make out how the war in the East is going on. On the one hand, we hear the Turks are gradually approaching closer and closer to Alexinatz, where the chief Servian force is assembled. On the other, we read of Turkish attacks being everywhere repulsed, and that the Servians have regained possession of places they had previously evacuated. We incline to a belief that the former is the correct version, though it is quite possible the Turks may have withdrawn their troops from certain of the positions they had captured. Meanwhile the war of words as to the atrocities committed by the Turkish irregular soldiery is pursued with unabated vigour, and, as we have already said, the venerable Earl Russell has publicly declared against our friends and allies of the years 1853-1856. Every day, too, we hear more about Russian intervention. Much may be expected of the present Czar, and that he will make every reasonable sacrifice in the interests of peace; but it is urged in more than one quarter that the excitement of his people will not be much longer restrained. Then we read of an angry feeling having sprung up between Russia and Germany; then of a secret Convention between Russia, Austria, and Germany. That the crisis is not past is evident; and "what next?" is the question in everybody's mouth. We see no reason why the general peace of Europe should be disturbed, if the Great Powers are really sincere in their desire to maintain peace; and if Turkey gains any substantial success over Servia in the course of the next few days, we may possibly hear that the beginning of the end is nigh at hand, and that Turkey and her vassals are once again on amicable terms. If, however, the Servians are able to prolong their resistance for any lengthened period of time, it is on the cards that the situation may become very critical indeed. Let us hope for the best, and that a fair way of escaping the difficulties which seem to threaten us may yet be found.

ORDER OF ST. LAWRENCE.

The London Lodge of this Order was held at 2 Red Lion Square, on Saturday, the 19th instant. Bro. Hyde Pullen was elected and installed W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. George Robins was initiated in ancient form. Captain N. G. Philips, Major Barlow, S. Rosenthal, F. Matier were present, together with Bros. F. Binckes, Dibdin and Spencer.

This degree is a relic of our old travelling operative brethren, which has survived in Lancashire and the North of England. Its ritual is uncouth and quaint, and in times when journeymen Masons travelled in search of employment, it must have been of considerable practical value. Relics of ceremonies of similar utility survive to this day in Germany. When the "Handwerksbursch" enters a Bavarian inn room, and, facing the company, strikes his fist upon the table, calling "Topp," proving himself proficient in the Burschen catechism, he is received into equality and fraternity, which make him feel at once at home. The degree of St. Lawrence goes somewhat beyond this. It is a curious remnant of the old operative series, to which belonged the "Ark, Mark, Link and Wrestle," known to Dr. Oliver's father, and heard of by himself in youth. Like the old legend of Charles Martel's instructor having served at the building of King Solomon's Temple, its historical connexion with its patron St. Lawrence is not immediately obvious. There is every probability of its having originated whilst the Order was still under the patronage of Romish Ecclesiastics in the times when the "Four Crowned Martyrs" and "Holy Church" were still catchwords in an Order, ever in this country conspicuous for its loyalty to the powers that be.

The Freemasons of the Apollo University Lodge, Oxford, with the sanction of Prince Leopold, the Provincial Grand Master, are raising a subscription for the widow of the late Mr. Henry Kingsley, who is stated to have been left totally unprovided for. Subscriptions will be received by Mr. J. E. C. Bodley, Danebank House, Congleton, Cheshire.

We extract the following from the Woodbridge Reporter:—

We understand that there is preparing for publication a volume of tales, poems, and Masonic papers, by Emra Holmes, with a memoir of the author, by George Markham Tweddell, Fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquarians, Copenhagen, &c., &c. Bro. Holmes is well known to many of our readers, and we heartily wish him success. Bro. Holmes has long been popular as a lecturer and reader. He has, for several years past, been favourably known as a contributor to the Metropolitan and Provincial press; but his tales, poems, and Masonic papers are so scattered through a variety of magazines and newspapers, that many of his admirers have expressed a wish to see a collection of them published in a neat and handy volume. To meet this desire, a selection of the best of these contributions is now about to be offered to the public.

THE FIRST LODGE IN AMERICA.

BROTHER William James Hughan has dashed the hopes of we hyperborean Masons, in deciding against the New York Square and Bro. Tisdale, who claimed to have made the remarkable discovery that the oldest Lodge in America was Albion Lodge, No. 17, of Quebec. Bro. Macalla had so persistently urged through the columns of the Keystone that Philadelphia had the honour of being the mother city of Masonry, that it was deemed worth while by our New York Brother to set out on a voyage of discovery in hope of finding that the Quaker city was not the Mecca of Masonry after all. To the surprise of Bros. Macalla and Norton, the latter being more likely to support Boston's claim if there were anything in it, the search was productive of something more than they had anticipated, for it was boldly stated through the Square that the Albion Lodge of Quebec had been constituted in 1721. This was nine or ten years farther back than Philadelphia could go, and, as a matter of course, as the Masonic laurel was likely to be ruthlessly torn from her brow, Bros. Macalla and Norton sprang to the rescue, coming down upon Bro. Tisdale with a perfect swoop, and almost annihilating him. As if doubtful, however, of the position they had taken, the aid of Bro. Hughan was invoked all the way from England; and right heartily he entered upon the task.

Bro. Hughan begins by gently flattering Bro. Norton, and supplies the information that was not at hand. Bro. Tisdale claimed, and we have no doubt, rightly too, that he had seen a Masonic Calendar, in which Albion Lodge, No. 17, Quebec, was printed as having been constituted in 1721. Bros. Hughan, Macalla and Norton, admit that there is a possibility of such a list of Lodges as Bro. Tisdale claims to have seen, but they say that, although the year 1721 may be given after the Albion Lodge, it does not follow that it is correct, for the reason that in the genuine Calendars a blank follows the name of the Lodge.

It is somewhat strange that no year should be given, and it is equally strange that any publisher or compiler should have taken upon himself to give the year without authority, for that is the natural inference to be drawn from the denial of Bro. Tisdale's statement. As Bro. Hughan remarks, the Warrant of the Lodge should testify, and it is to be hoped it will be forthcoming. The question is one in which Canadian Masons feel an interest, and it should be set at rest, for no one can have any object in misleading the Craft in reference thereto. As it should be the aim of all true Masons to elicit the truth and expose error, we trust the real facts will be given no matter whether Canada or the United States should have the honour of possessing the premier Masonic Lodge of America.—Craftsman, Canada.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Sport in Abyssinia; or the Mareband Tackasses. By the Earl of MAYO, Lieutenant, Grenadier Guards. London: John Murray, Albemarle-street.

THIS is one of the pleasantest books of its kind we have had the good fortune to read. The author records his adventures, which are often amusing and always interesting, in a simple, genial narrative, which must commend itself to every reader. Not many Englishmen have visited this country for the mere pleasure of pursuing game. There is, then, a freshness about the work, which, were any needed, will prove an additional attraction to the reader. It is in literature as in other things, people very soon tire of sameness. When they have read a small library of sporting works and works of travel, all modelled after the same cold, formal style, they willingly turn from them to the fresher and livelier jottings of the young and inexperienced traveller, who cares only to convey, as truthfully as he can, the impressions he formed by the way. Lord Mayo makes no effort to write methodically, except in this respect, that he notes in order the exploits of each succeeding day, but not as elaborately as though he were engaged in preparing an essay for some public competition. He tells us plainly what he saw and what he did. He as readily notes down his mishaps as his successes. The blundering or bungling—which by the way is reduced almost to a minimum—he commits when the country is yet strange, is not omitted through any absurd fear, which some might experience, of being chaffed. If he loses his quarry, he tells us so as readily as when he secures it. He may lose a capital shot at a boar in the belief the animal is only a stray donkey, or he and H., in pursuit of elephants may badly miss a lion, and so frighten the game they had been so long and patiently stalking. There is no concealment in cases of this kind. Lord Mayo is wise enough to remember that blunders are again and again committed by even the most experienced among us. Even the immortal Winkle would no doubt have developed into a thorough sportsman had he once mastered the difficulty of handling his gun. It is because Lord Mayo records everything so impartially, as though he were recounting his adventures in an after-dinner chat, without exaggeration and without the slightest attempt to conceal his failures or his blunders, that we have so thoroughly enjoyed this account of his trip. There are many who have ample leisure now to enjoy a quiet read. If it accords with their taste, and they are not yet engaged on any other work, we strongly advise them to take up Lord Mayo's narrative of "Sport in Abyssinia." It is capitally written, and we are convinced they will enjoy it thoroughly.

SOME OF THE PECULIARITIES OF ANCIENT CRAFT MASONRY.

From the "VOICE OF MASONRY."

IT has long been conceded that Freemasonry—an institution peculiar, nay, wonderful in many respects—is a subject worthy of the attention of the moralist, the statesman and the philosopher.

Others, too, who are not entitled to these high designations, may study this oldest and strongest of human institutions with advantage.

There are some peculiarities of this Institution which will early attract the attention and awaken the interest of the Masonic student, and which we may briefly consider.

Our attention may be first directed to the universality claimed for the Order. The Monitors say:

From East to West, and between North and South, Freemasonry extends, and in every clime are Masons to be found.

And the learned Dr. MACKEY states that

Over the whole habitable globe are our Lodges disseminated. Wherever the wandering steps of civilized man have left their footprints, there have our temples been established. The lessons of Masonic love have penetrated into the wilderness of the West, and the red man of our soil has shared with his more enlightened brother the mysteries of our science, while the arid sands of the African desert have more than once been the scene of Masonic greeting.

The claim of universality is, indeed, not an idle boast.

Reports of committees on foreign correspondence, foreign publications of the Order, statistics, the narratives of travellers, and other documents too numerous and elaborate to quote here, all bear testimony to the existence of Masonry in all parts of the world. And while the number of Masons in any one community, or district, may be, and usually is, small in proportion to the whole population of such district, yet there are few localities, indeed, of any considerable size where some members of the Order are not to be found.

Freemasonry, in its organization, principles, methods of teaching, and in its objects, has, and from the facts above stated, must have the elements necessary to a cosmopolitan institution. For example, it recognizes no political systems or theories, save only the rights of man by the law of nature; knows nothing of religious creeds or sectarian dogmas as such, save a belief in God, the obligations of the moral law and the immortality of the soul—fundamental truths about which all men may agree. An eloquent writer truthfully says:

It exists in Pagan, Jewish, Moslem and Papal countries. Some of its members worship the sun, and others the shekinah; some fall before the crescent, and others before the cross: but it has taught them all to respect and tolerate each other.

Its universality is a peculiar characteristic of Freemasonry. Every man belongs to some nationality by birth or adoption, and is an alien in all other lands than his own. Other societies, religious or secular, are, in the main, confined to certain localities or countries. But Freemasonry is a universal republican brotherhood, which knows no international boundaries, no race, no country, but has the whole earth for its territory. It is, essentially, the same institution wherever found, providing for certain wants of men, of all races, and in all conditions of life, and possessing a universal language of signs and symbols understood by its members in all countries.

For convenience, there are Lodges, or places of assembly in cities, villages, and other localities and separate general and local jurisdictions, but he who becomes a member in one Lodge or jurisdiction, is a Mason, not only there but everywhere. A Mason in one country is a Mason in all countries, and is recognized as a brother entitled to certain rights and privileges, by the mysterious language he speaks in all lands. Have we not just cause to be proud of this peculiar feature of our Order?

Another peculiarity of Freemasonry is its elaborate and beautiful system of teaching by symbols, allegories, types and emblems, being the oldest method of imparting instruction known to the world. By this system a large class of important truths and principles are brought within the comprehension of even the most illiterate, and are impressed upon the mind in a manner unequalled by any other method of instruction, but now preserved only in Freemasonry, as a complete system, and in the Romish Church partially. It is a system the beauty and value of which becomes more and more apparent the better we study its history and philosophy.

Our attention is called, also, to the system of government of our Order, by a Master and two Wardens, in Grand and subordinate Lodges, and certain fundamental and unchangeable rules, known as landmarks, all forming a system of government, original and peculiar, and found nowhere else, except by adoption. It is a perfect and happy blending of absolute power, with representative democracy and the preservation of individual rights by immutable laws. And right here we meet another, and most valuable peculiarity of Freemasonry,—that is its permanent, unchangeable character. In its system of government, in its landmarks, in its fundamental principles and objects, no changes or innovations are necessary to adapt it to the wants and conditions of men in all countries, and in all times; nor are any changes or innovations permitted. No power exists anywhere within or without the Order to make such changes. Here, indeed, is permanence. No perversion of purposes: no "shifting sands of doctrine." We know what we have. It is, indeed, gratifying to discover that amid the many ever-changing and ephemeral associations instituted by men, from time to time, for various purposes, there is, at least, one which is steadfast. Is it too much to say that Freemasonry is the only permanent conservator amid the chances and changes of time, of those fundamental laws and principles of human rights and those moral obligations which are binding on all men.

A peculiar feature of Freemasonry is its silence and unobtrusiveness. A Lodge may exist in our midst for years, and we hardly recognise the fact. It interferes with no person, sect, party or opinion, and never asks any favours or special privileges from community, church or state. It raises no disputes, argues no questions, and strives to live in quietness and peace with all men. Unlike other societies, it ever maintains its dignity and reserve. It seeks not the popular favour; it does not proselyte; it sends out no propagandists, and pays nothing for recruits; and while the worthy who knock at its doors are seldom denied, they are never urged to seek admission.

The equality of all men before God and in natural right and in the Lodge room, as taught in Masonry, is peculiar to this Institution. Other societies, secular and even religious, grant preferment and favours much according to social, pecuniary and civil distinctions. But Masonic equality is real—not merely theoretical. The Ancient Charges declare that "all preferment among Masons is grounded upon real worth and personal merit only." The Order regards no man for his worldly wealth or honours. Prince and peasant, plebeian and patrician meet upon the same level. The day labourer, the farmer, the mechanic, as has frequently been the fact, may be Master or Grand Master, while the rich man, the professional man, or the highest civil or military functionary may be, and often is but a private member. And this is so because Masons assemble in a higher character, or upon a higher plane than that made by merely conventional distinctions—they meet as men and brethren.

We may add, in conclusion, that while Masonry knows nothing of political parties, yet in all countries and in all times the Order has taught its disciples the fundamental doctrines of Liberty, Fraternity, and Equality, and these principles Masonry taught before modern republics had an existence. Liberty, regulated by law; obedience to established authority; the fatherhood of God; the brotherhood of man, and tolerance of private religious and political opinions, are of the very essence of Freemasonry.

And the thought comes to us here—should it not long since have come to the prejudiced and short-sighted opponents of Masonry—what other institution known among men presents, has always presented, such a powerful, such a successful bulwark to the insidious encroachments of those ecclesiastical and political despotisms, which would reinstate and are labouring to reinstate the intellectual darkness, the intolerance and bigotry and the religous dogmas of the Middle Ages?

Despotic power in Church and State to-day, as for ages past, hates Freemasonry with an undying hate. What does it mean?

May not the friends of civil and religious liberty, of morality, of toleration, of fraternity, in all lands, ponder the question how great and good a work has Freemasonry been, silently, but surely, doing in the centuries gone by? What mission has this Order, so old, so strong, so peculiar in its character, to fulfil in the centuries to come?

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting at Bro. Maidwell's, the "Hercules," Leadenhall-street, on Thursday evening last, 24th August, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Hill W.M., Grammer S.W., Maidwell J.W., Atkins P.M. Treasurer, Webb S.D., Hewlet J.D., Hogarth I.G., Austin P.M. Preceptor, and several other brethren. The W.M. worked the ceremony of the 1st degree, Bro. Baxter acting as candidate. The 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th Sections were worked by Bro. Webb, and the 5th by Bro. Crawley, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Grammer was elected as W.M. for the next meeting. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in ancient form.

St. Mungo Lodge, No. 27.—This old and influential Lodge met in St. Mark's Hall, 17th August, Bro. Dugald Butler R.W.M. presiding, T. Hastie D.M., Dr. J. McInnes S.W., Garrick McComb J.W. There was a large attendance of visitors, amongst whom we noticed on the dais Bros. W. Bell P.M. 31, Wheeler 73, G. Fisher J.W., A. Bain W.M. 103, R. McLeod S.D. 129, Paisley, Angus Nicholson 188, J. Morgan R.W.M. 219, D. Gilchrist R.W.M. 465, and three brethren hailing from American Lodges, viz., Bros. Mathison of 37, Ohio, Jas. F. Shaw No. 70, Connecticut, and the R.W.M. of Mount Zion, Columbia. One brother was passed to the 2nd degree, Bro. Bain, P.M. of 103, performing the work in his usual careful style. The Lodge was then called to refreshment, with Bro. Bain as Junior Warden; after the Master had proposed the Queen and the Craft and the Grand Lodges, he gave the P.G.L., coupling it with Bro. J. Morgan, whom he congratulated as the coming Provincial Grand Secretary. Bro. Morgan, in reply, said he had no ambition to fill the post designated; true, he had acted at the last meeting as interim secretary, and he had been requested to call another meeting, but he thought a better qualified person might be found to fill the office, who was older as well as a better Mason. Bros. Bain, Bell and Wheeler, all urged Bro. Morgan to retain the office, he being well qualified; as, in their opinion, it required a young man possessing energy as well as ability. Bro. Shaw, of Connecticut, returned thanks on behalf of the American brethren, and D. Gilchrist for the Visitors. Bro. Morgan gave "The Press," coupling with it the names of Bros. Nicholson of the Gael, and Wheeler of the "FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE." Both brethren suitably acknowledged the compliment, Bro. Nicholson saying he might have replied to that of the visitors hailing from Stornaway, or to the Americans, as he had long resided in Canada; but perhaps, as editor of the Gael, they would like him to give them a Gaelic speech, but he would defer that till their next meeting. Bro. Wheeler proposed "Prosperity to St. Mungo's, No. 27, and her Master." The R.W.M., in his reply, claimed for his Lodge the honour of being the oldest in Scotland, as well as the most respected. Bro. Bell gave "the Office-bearers," which was acknowledged by the Wardens, Bros. McInnis and McComb. The final toast was given from the Chair, all being well satisfied. The pleasure of the evening was enhanced by the vocal abilities of Bros. Sharp, Stewart, Thompson, Butler, Brodie and Bain.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, Basinghall-street, E.C. An average number of brethren assembled at the meeting on Wednesday, the 23rd inst. Bro. Fenner occupied the Master's chair, Bro. Turquand was S.W., Walker J.W., E. Gottheil P.M. Preceptor, Pelton acting Secretary, Gomm S.D., Sayer J.D., Smith I.G. The first ceremony was rehearsed, Bro. Hill as candidate. The method of examination, entrusting, opening and closing in the second and third degrees, were then rehearsed. Bro. Jas. Stevens P.M. begged permission to make a few observations which, he thought, might prove instructive, or, at any rate, tend to ventilate a few points in Masonic procedure, which to many, especially of the younger brethren, are always more or less obscure. Amongst other matters, he pointed out a method of advancing, easy for the Deacon and intelligible to the candidate. He next gave reasons why the three great lights should be placed different to their position in this and most other Lodges. An interesting discussion then ensued respecting matters highly important, but which we do not deem advisable to publish. Bro. Turquand will preside next Wednesday, when he will work the ceremony of installation. Bro. J. Stevens P.M., the appointed candidate, will afterwards explain the first tracing-board. Bro. Gottheil, in proposing a vote of thanks to Bro. Fenner, whose maiden effort in the Master's chair gave general satisfaction, observed that in this instance the expression of approbation was well deserved. The W.M. is finely enough in his work, which is, however, scarcely in accordance with the mode practised in this Lodge. Bro. Fenner, by his readiness to listen to every correction, showed not only intelligent appreciation but proved that before long he would get rid of the many incongruities which characterise his present method of working. There are some brethren impatient of interruption, and for a reason we can well understand. A first attempt especially is often accompanied by a great amount of nervousness; interruptions, therefore, are apt to confuse, and sometimes produce total failure. Bro. Fenner, however, was able to proceed in spite of the stoppage caused by explanation and corrections. It was also pleasant to observe the somewhat novel plan he laid down for himself in conducting the business of the evening. Altogether, a vote of thanks has seldom had a more deserving recipient. Bro. Fenner then briefly replied, and the meeting came to an end.

Clyde Lodge, No. 408.—An emergency meeting was held on Friday, the 18th inst., at St. Mark's Hall. In the absence from the city of the R.W.M., Bro. John McInnes presided; Bros. W. Bilsland S.W., J. Harley J.W. The work included the initiation of two candidates, and conferring the 2nd and 3rd degrees. Bro. W. E. J. Dobson, R.W.M. of Dramatic Lodge 571, very carefully initiated the two candidates, and Bro. J. M. Oliver S.W. of 360 passed two to the Fellow Craft Degree; after which Bro. T. M. Campbell, P.M. of the Clyde, in a very elaborate manner raised them to the sublime degree, the brethren, including a good many visitors, had thus an opportunity of seeing three good specimens of working in one night.

Royal Oak Lodge, No. 871.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 17th inst., at the White Swan Hotel, 217 High-street, Deptford. Bros. H. J. Tuson W.M., J. J. Pakes S.W., J. Baxter Langley W.M. 1423 J.W., F. Walters P.G.J.D. Middlesex P.M. Sec., H. J. Fisher Org., J. G. Vohmann I.G. and Bros. C. Williams, R. Cox, A. Masers, G. Eve, L. Lemon, F. H. Burr, J. Rennie, J. T. Stringer, W. Simmons, R. Mason, J. Woollett, &c. The Lodge having been opened, ballots were unanimously in favour of Messrs. Walter Abbott, W. White, and L. Michael, who were separately introduced, and duly initiated into the Order, Bro. G. Andrews P.M. D.C. very impressively giving the charge to the newly initiated brethren. In consequence of the number of candidates for the other degrees and initiation, it was agreed to hold another Lodge of Emergency, on Thursday the 28th of September, at 7 o'clock. The Lodge was then closed and the brethren separated. There was no banquet. Among the numerous visitors were Bros. E. A. H. Morley 1178, E. W. Fisher 700, R. Croft 1326, &c.

Upton Lodge, No. 1227.—At the end of a pleasant drive, along a remarkably well kept road, studded on either side with pretty suburban residences, mostly detached, and having forecourts ornamented with the greenest of foliage and brilliantly hued flowers, a retired but very pleasant nook is reached, where is situated the somewhat antiquated looking hostelry which rejoices in the uncommon appellation of the "Spotted Dog," and whose geographical position is in the parish of Upton, in the county of Essex. Though in the immediate vicinity of the noisy and turbulent metropolis, the aspect of the place is in every respect rural. The building presents an aged, and, at first sight, rather decrepid appearance, modern innovations seem to have as yet failed to penetrate this secluded but cosy retreat. Yet, on the very threshold, a consciousness is felt that in this sombre, low ceilinged, somewhat grimy place, innocent of plate glass gilding and glare, real homely comfort and substantial good cheer are no strangers. To compensate for the lack of paint and tinsel, the eye is gladdened by the freshness of the surrounding fields and meadows, and the olfactory nerves gratified by the exquisite perfume exhaled by countless numbers of variously scented flowers from the adjacent gardens. A place better adapted for summer meetings will rarely be found, so easily come-at-able from the capital. The advent of Bro. D. Posener to the Master's chair is considered quite an event in the history of the Upton Lodge. Having, by dint of perseverance, diligence and natural abilities, mastered the duties of every office, he has been enabled for some years past to render valuable services, by his co-operation and assistance, in conducting the work of the Lodge. He was therefore looked upon, and not without good reason, as the coming man, under whose fostering care the reputation and usefulness of the Lodge cannot fail to be increased, and is bound to receive additional vigour and vitality. Under these circumstances it was a matter of course for an unusual number of brethren to assemble, on the 17th inst., at the appointed time. Past Master Bolton ascended the chair, and although having undertaken the onerous duties of installing master, kindly consented to relieve Bro. Holtham, who is in precarious health, of his work, by raising Bros. Laud and Legg to the third degree, and to pass Bro. Mabbitt to the second. The new W.M. having been installed, commenced his duties by investing his officers, each of whom he addressed in appropriate terms, much appreciated by the assembly, who loudly applauded at the end of each speech. The officers are as follow:—Bros. Holtham I.P.M., G. Brown S.W., W. J. Page J.W., J. Wayland Treas., G. Leverk P.M. Sec., B. Lyons S.D., W. Webster J.D., A. Oldroyd I.G., R. W. Goddard P.M. D.C., J. Andrews W.S., Gullock Tyler. After the labours of the Lodge were ended, banquet was served in a room in which the overheated atmosphere was tempered by a cool breeze, wafted across the adjacent meadows. Next in order came the usual toasts. The National Anthem and "God bless the Prince of Wales" were exceedingly well rendered by Bro. Farquharson, who accompanied himself on the piano. Bro. E. Gottheil, responding for the Visitors of "Tranquillity," said: It appears to me, brethren, that my first duty on this occasion is to congratulate the new W.M. on his accession to the dignity of the chair, and you, brethren, on the wisdom of your choice. And I am sure no one can more heartily rejoice at his attaining the honour—which my friend and brother so well deserves. The next duty should be to comment upon the work done in the Lodge, but, unfortunately, the claims of my avocations prevented me from reaching here sufficiently early to witness the performance. The small portion of the work, however, to which I was privileged to listen, proved the possession of considerable ability on the part of Bro. Bolton, the Installing Master. With your hospitality no one can help being pleased and gratified, and for this we tender hearty thanks. First impressions, however, though often conveying truth, are nevertheless frequently misleading. This is my first visit to this Lodge. Therefore, if you care for my opinion or desire to obtain my unbiassed judgment as regards the proceedings of this Lodge, I must ask you to be liberal in your invitations to future meetings, of which I will gladly avail myself. Bro. Adolph Posener observed: Although Bro. Gottheil has been desired to respond on behalf of the visitors from Tranquillity Lodge, I cannot allow the opportunity to pass without saying a few words on this, to me, most interesting occasion. I feel the proudest man in this room in seeing my own brother occupying the high position of W.M. of this Lodge. That he is well deserving of the honour you will all admit. He has worked hard to achieve the pinnacle of his Masonic ambition, to which he has risen from the ranks. In a humble and unpretending way, he might be compared with the statesman—the beginning of whose political career was anything but encouraging—who was lately elevated to a most exalted station, but who certainly cannot receive, but will add lustre to any sphere into which he may be placed. In like manner, brethren, in honouring my brother you have conferred honour upon yourselves. Several other visitors addressed the meeting, and then the W.M. proposed the health of the Past Masters. He said: Without the assistance of Past Masters no Lodge could be worked properly. We must all acknowledge especially the valuable aid this Lodge has received at the hands of Bro. Bolton during the past twelve months. We must also be grateful to all the old P.M.'s for favours received in bygone days. I must not forget to mention my I.P.M., Bro. Holtham, whom I believe to be a thorough Mason, and who, I am sure, would have done his duties during the past year—equally as well as I intend to do them in the coming year—were it not for the severe afflictions he had to suffer, losing successively friends and near relatives, and I am only surprised he was able to survive such severe shocks. It is therefore with sincere pleasure that I place this Past Master's jewel upon his breast, a distinction of which you, Bro. Holtham, are as well deserving as any one whom I know, and may you live many years to wear it, and may affliction be averted from you in the future. Bro. Holtham expressed his hearty thanks for the testimonial. He never willingly shirked his duties, and although during his term of office he had unfortunately to attend no less than six funerals of near relatives, yet he was only twice absent from the Lodge. He assured the brethren that he gave second to none in his attachment to Masonry. He would wear this jewel with pride, not on account of its intrinsic value, but as a memorial of their fraternal regard. He trusted to see many follow in his footsteps, and be invested with similar tokens of friendship and esteem. Bro. Bratton, giving the toast of the W.M., said: I claim your attention for a few moments; you are all quite aware that I am no speaker, and never say much when I attempt to make a speech. I think there can scarcely be a harder working Mason than our W.M. He possesses plenty of useful knowledge, and is full of energy. But, as an old Past Master, I would advise him somewhat to curb his impetuosity, for in an assembly of gentlemen, offence, though not intended, is frequently taken, and the harmony of the Lodge disturbed. I will conclude by wishing him jolly good health, and a prosperous year of office. Bro. Posener W.M. replying, said, I assure you, brethren, I will take the remarks that have fallen from Bro. Bratton seriously to heart. To do what he wishes effectually, however, I shall require all possible assistance from the Past Masters, and also from every individual member, for I mean to be strict in conducting the business of this Lodge. Having been in harness ever since I received the third degree, and never once failed to attend the meetings, you may be sure I am not likely to shirk my duties now. My motto in Masonry, as in business, is, as the Yankees say, "Go-ahead." I trust my officers will perfect themselves in their duties, for there are plenty of opportunities for doing so. There are Lodges of Instruction, and there are quiet moments which might be employed with advantage; as, for instance, the other day I happened to be the only occupant of a railway carriage compartment; so, to pass the time, I rehearsed the third ceremony, which afforded me both amusement and instruction. I will here take the opportunity of publicly thanking Past Master Gottheil, for from him I have learned nearly all I know of Freemasonry. Now, brethren, your merriment of to-night has been of a somewhat noisy character, but as we have visitors here I will leave the reprimand for another time. In your own households, when the children are noisy in the presence of visitors, you reserve the scolding until these have gone. Upon second thoughts, however, I will forgive you this time, it being the most festive occasion of the year. But, in future, I mean to be strict, at the same time kind; and I am sure you will assist me in the well-ruling of the Lodge. I sincerely thank you for the very kind way in which my name has been received. The officers then severally responded, and the brethren separated at an early hour. The Past Masters present were Bros. Bellerby, Pinking, Bolton, English, Bratton, Leverk and Goddard. The visitors were Bros. E. Gottheil P.M. 141, 185, Lattereil P.M. 1053, D. Barnett W.M. 185, A. Posener 185, W. Groener 185, Wotton 933, Groom 861, Perkins 861, H. Isaacs Finsbury, M. Barnett 1017, Read 946, Howard 1328, Crellin 933, Farquharson 99. The proceedings during the evening were enlivened by some very excellent singing, conspicuously by Bros. Farquharson and Lund.

previous to the vacation, was held on Saturday, the 19th inst., at the Red Lion Hotel, Hampton. Bro. Edwin Gilbert W.M., supported by the Wardens. Bros. J. T. Moss P.P.G.R. Middlesex P.M., W. Hammond P.P.G.D. Middlesex P.M., H. A. Dubois P.G.S.D. Middlesex P.M., F. Walters P.G.J.D. Middlesex P.M. Secretary, J. Baldwin P.A.G.P. P.M. I.G., J. Hammond P.M. J.D., B. Sharp P.M., H Gloster J.W. 153, D. Smith, W. J. Trebearn, J. Hermann, G. Loosp W. R. Vassila, S. Page, W. Priddy, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. W. R. Vassila, S. Page and W. Priddy, who were duly initiated into the Order. Bros. D. Smith, and F. F. Beard 1423, by the courtesy of the W.M., were passed to the 2nd degree, each candidate being separately initiated and passed, thus adding to the solemnity of the proceedings. Bro. F. Walters P.G.J.D., in pursuance of a notice of motion, proposed that a sum of ten pounds be voted from the Lodge funds to the Female Annuity Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, to be entered in the name of the W.M. of the Lodge for the time being, and that the amount be placed on the list of Bro. J. B. Shackleton J.D., who will represent the Lodge as Steward at the Festival in 1877. This was carried. Bro. E. Gilbert W.M. was unanimously elected to serve as Steward at the next Anniversary of the Boys' School. Several candidates were proposed, and the Lodge was closed until May 1877—emergencies excepted. The brethren then adjourned to a very excellent banquet, which was well supplied by the worthy host. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, some excellent speeches followed. Among the visitors were Bros. F. F. Beard 1423, W. Simmons J.W. 1559, &c.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting on Wednesday, 23rd inst., at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston. Present—Bros. W. Batchelor W.M., Hill S.W., Brown J.W., Robinson S.D., Spencer J.D., Turrar I.G., Past Master Bro. Fieldwick, and a very strong muster of the brethren. Business—Lodge opened in due form, with solemn prayer. Minutes read and confirmed. Initiation ceremony rehearsed, Bro. Brasted candidate. The whole of the sections of the first lecture were worked by Bro. Fieldwick, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Hill was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Nothing else offering, the Lodge was closed in antient form, and adjourned to Wednesday, 30th August, at 8 p.m.

RED CROSS OF ROME AND CONSTANTINE.

INAUGURATION OF THE GRAND COUNCIL FOR SCOTLAND.

THE Red Cross Order having made considerable progress in Scotland by the formation of six Conclaves, application was made to the Supreme Grand Council of England for its sanction to form a Grand Imperial Council for Scotland, which it at once granted, and also sent an influential deputation to Edinburgh for that purpose, on Monday, 21st August. The Grand Council of England was therefore opened in Freemasons' Hall, George-street, at 1 p.m., the V. Illustrious Sir Knight R. Wentworth Little, Grand Treasurer, presiding as Grand Sovereign, S. Levander Grand Eusebius, Sir Knight R. S. Brown, the Grand Recorder for Scotland, having read the minutes of meeting of 21st June, at which the Grand Officers were elected, a deputation was sent to escort Col. Sir Francis Burdett, Grand Viceroy of England, P.G.M. of Middlesex, and the Soverign elect, who was received under the Arch of Steel, and with the usual ceremonies enthroned as the Grand Sovereign of the Order for Scotland. Major W. Hamilton Ramsay, of Ganien, S.G.W. of Scotland, and Grand Recorder of the K.T., was then installed as the M.E. Viceroy, with the following Sir Knights as the Illustrious Grand Council, R. Beveridge, G.M. of Aberdeen S.G., H. J. Shields 33° J.G., Rev. J. H. Tait Prelate, G. W. Wheeler, of Glasgow, G. Chancellor, R. S. Brown, Edinburgh, G. Recorder, J. Crichton G. Treasurer, A. W. Rennie G. Chamberlain, Capt. Hunter, P.G.M. Aberdeen East, Orator, McPherson G. Architect, and Lieut. Tracey G. Marshal. The following Hon. Sovereigns were then appointed as the Grand Senate: J. Crombie G. Examiner, Dan Baker G. Prefect, T. L. Shaw Vice Chancellor, J. Dalgliesh St. B., A. M. Bruce Sword B., L. Shaw sub-Almoner, J. Tweed G.S., Wm. McMurdo, G. Herald, J. Carmichal sub-Treasurer, J. Mooney Organist, and A. Robinson Sentinel. Col. Burdett having thanked the Knights for the high honour they had conferred on him in placing him on the throne as the first G.S. of the Order in Scotland, said he felt that he would require able assistants as superintenders of district Provinces, and he should therefore appoint as Intendant Generals R. Beveridge for Aberdeen, Captain Hunter for East Aberdeen, D. Murray Lyon, the distinguished Masonic historian, for Ayr.

On the motion of Sir Knights Wheeler and Bruce, the thanks of the Council were given to the deputation from England for their services, and to Sir Knight Little for his service as Enthroning Sovereign. The Council was then closed. About fifty of the Knights adjourned to Sir Knight Thew's, Windsor Hotel, were a most excellent banquet awaited them. Col. Burdett G.S. presided, and the vice chair was ably filled by Major Ramsay G.V. In giving the toast of the Queen, the gallant chairman said, after the enthusiastic reception Her Majesty had met with in that city four days before, it would not be wise of him to say much on behalf of a toast that was always so well received by all Orders of Masonry. In giving that of the Prince of Wales, he said he hoped the day was not far distant when they should see him at the head of the Order. The G.V. gave the "G.S." expressing the pleasure it gave him, who was known as a Scot of the Scots, to welcome across the border so illustrious an Englishman. The name of Burdett was well known. When he was a young man it was said to be "England's Pride, and Westminster's Glory." They all knew and respected Lady Burdett Coutts, and the fame of Sir Francis himself must be known to every one who called himself a Mason; therefore instead of grasping his lance, like his forefathers of old, to resent this invasion of the English, he now grasped the hands of the invaders in Masonic friendship. (Cheers.) The relations of the two countries, thanks in great measure to Masonry, were now completely changed. The Plantagenets tried to cross the border to enslave. The present invading party had come to give perfect liberty by giving them a Grand Council of their own. (Cheers.) He, therefore, as a Scotchman, was proud to call on them to hail their English Chief. (Loud applause.) Col. Burdett G.S. said he had spent many happy days, and met with many Masonic honours, but he considered this the greatest, to be thus hailed by those Knights, to the greater part of whom he was personally unknown. He had previously had some ties to Scotland, having two of his daughters married to Scotchmen, and resident here, but now they had additional claims on him, and he would try to deserve the good opinion they had formed of him from heresay.

The Chairman gave the "Grand Council." From what he had seen of them, he had no doubt they would cordially assist him, and render his task comparatively light. Major Ramsay replied. Each of the Council were personally well known to him. With such a staff, and such a leader, success was certain. The G.V. then gave the Deputation from England. Sir Knight Little, in a very eloquent speech, expressed the pleasure it had given the Grand Council of England to be able to grant their request, and the pleasure he, with the rest of the brethren, felt in witnessing and being allowed to take part in that day's proceedings. They had some Irish Knights now amongst them, and he hoped to have the honour of assisting in forming a Grand Council in Dublin. (Cheers.) The "Grand Senate" was given by the Chairman, and replied to by Dr. Carmichal. Sir Kt. R. W. Little proposed the "M.P.S., past and present, of the Scottish Conclave;" he knew them all, and was satisfied from the energy they had shown in the past while working under him, that they would continue so to work in the future.

Sir Kt. J. B. Mercer, as the 1st Sov. of the Order, and also the first person in Scotland who had received the Order, was proud to see this day. He had done his best during the past five years to spread the Order, but without the assistance of their newly installed Grand Recorder, Sir Knight R. S. Brown, his own efforts would have been of little avail. They had always worked together, and behold the result. (Cheer.) Sir Kt. G. W. Wheeler M.P.S. of No. 3 also replied. The toast of the three new Intendants General was replied to by Capt. Hunter, and that of the Prelate by the Rev. J. Tait, who said he felt, as a parish minister, that Masonry was a good thing for him, it strengthened his hand and lightened his labour. The Mason who was true to his vows—and he thanked God that the majority of them were true—the Freemason, he repeated, must be a Christian, and practise Christian virtues. Whatever he might call himself, he therefore felt highly honoured when asked to become their Prelate, because he felt sure that the Order was formed on correct principles, and, so far as he could see, conducted by good men; that being the case, the blessing of the Great Ruler of Events must rest upon their shoulders. After this Col. Burdett retired, all being highly satisfied with the day's proceedings.

MASONIC TWADDLE.

THE more earnestly we strive to elevate the tone and character of Masonic journalism, the more certain are we to earn for ourselves, not only the respect and gratitude, but likewise the support of the Craft. We have more than once pointed to the ridicule so freely lavished on Freemasonry, by what Masons are pleased to designate as the profane world. We have said this ridicule is in great measure justifiable, or, at all events, explicable, by reason of that damnable iteration of nonsense, in which so many of our Masonic writers have indulged. It has seemed to these latter as though any kind of literary pabulum, served up anyhow or nohow, was good enough to suit the rude, uncultivated tastes of Masonic readers. Our journalists, indeed, till quite recently, have been content with descending to the level, or what they imagined to be the level, of their readers' understanding. Had they been aught but the veriest of scribes of the most inferior class, mere literary pretenders, without the shadow of a title to justify their claim, they must have had the sense to know that, if ever the tone and character of Freemasonry were to be refined and elevated, the tone and character of Craft journalism must be improved. It is only through the medium of journalism that brethren living remote from one another can establish a communion of thought and feeling. A Masonic journal that aspires to hold a decent position in periodical literature must not be satisfied with merely recording the events of the day. It must try and elucidate the knotty problems which have exercised the minds of learned Craftsmen through successive generations. It must seek to inculcate, in language commensurate with the subject, the beautiful principles of our Society. It is its bounden duty to remove, as far as possible, any antipathies that may threaten to arise between members or Lodges, to heal all dissensions that may have broken out, to harmonise, in fact, as far as in it lies, the relations, both external and internal, between individuals and sections of the Craft. In short, a Masonic journal and Freemasonry must stand to each other on exactly the same footing as any other class journal does towards the class whose interests it aspires to represent. Unfortunately, as we have said, the Craft hitherto has been most unfortunate in its representative organs, with some notable exceptions, of course. In America, for years past, the most praiseworthy efforts have been made to raise Masonic periodical literature to its proper level. But even in that blissful home of Masonry the evidences that our journals are not duly sensible of the lofty aims that should rule and govern them are as conspicuous as their complaints about the indifferent support they receive from Craftsmen are constant. Here, however, since the death of Oliver, Masonic literature may be said to have been at a very low ebb indeed. It is owing only to the efforts of Hughan and a few other eminent brethren that any branch of Masonic study has been pursued with success. In periodical literature, however, we have been sadly deficient, owing to a variety of causes, the majority of which we have indicated in previous articles, but not the least momentous of which has been the very inferior quality of the goods supplied. We are aware this is taking rather a low view of the subject, but we have used the expression "goods supplied" advisedly. We feel that, heretofore, the conduct of Masonic Press literature has been regarded chiefly from a commercial standpoint, and we fear the encouragement of the noble purposes of Freemasonry has been the very last element of which any account has been taken. We cannot say the brethren have any right to complain of the treatment they have thus far met with. Their apathy in relation to the press is most astounding, and would hardly be credited by some people, if facts were not forthcoming to verify our statement. Fortunately, the growing interest of the public in all that pertains to Freemasonry has had an excellent effect in arousing among Craftsmen themselves something like an approach to enthusiasm in regard to the history and development of our Society. The outside public are desirous of knowing a little about this Freemasonry which, according to some folk, has existed as a corporate body since the days of Adam; which includes in its ranks so many kings, princes, nobles, as well as peasants; and which, last but not least, is so frequently the recipient of Papal curses. Freemasons feel they must not be behind the outside public in curiosity, and their sympathy with Masonic journalism is gradually assuming to itself a certain amount of activity, if not of energy. Hence it is we feel it more than ever incumbent on this and other organs of the Craft that everything should be done to raise the character of our literary contents. We recognise it is no longer possible to publish any kind of stuff, for the reading section of our community has already had its surfeit of inane twaddle. We see clearly that while accounts of Lodge Meetings are necessarily interesting, a Masonic journal may be something better than a mere record of names, or, we should say, perhaps, than a Masonic directory gone mad, with its names turned upside down, higgledy-piggledy, anyhow. We perceive there is room in them for the discussion of moot points of interest; for the study of Masonic history and jurisprudence, for the inculcation of sound Masonic doctrine. We see now that our first and most important duty is to establish a high tone of thought and feeling, and raise the general body to the level of that tone. In order to attain this end, we strive that our contents shall be, as the reviewers say, "both interesting and instructive." It is not all of us, however, who recognise the necessity for these improvements. There are still those among Masonic journalists who think the contents of a Masonic paper are, comparatively speaking, a matter of indifference so long as its pages have the proper complement of matter. A report is a report, and nothing more—a dry account of business, with a list of names tacked on to it. Notices of approaching meetings admit of any kind of arrangement. Any record, however stale it may be, may be inserted, while for leading articles—Heaven pardon the description!—so long as a given number of columns are filled, the quality of the writing is utterly uncared for. A page or half page is filled with absolutely nothing, or with a single idea, which half-a-dozen lines would suffice to express. The needless interlarding with French and Latin quotations of these silly vapourings of a washed-out brain is considered an evidence of the writer's wisdom, while it merely exemplifies his pedantic stupidity. Let no one be so foolish as to expect in these leaders (!) anything like a concatenation of sense, common or uncommon. They are a mere stringing together of inconsequent, and often contradictory, sentiments. They are absolutely incapable of exciting in a reader, even of ordinary education, any other sense than that of the most profound contempt. To laugh at such outpourings, clad, though they seem to be, in all the apparel of painful respectability, were a degradation—say, rather, an eternal disgrace to men of sense. When, by the rarest accident in the world, something is met with in a journal of this class which is not emphatically to be despised, we may be sure its most respectable features have been in chief measure borrowed from elsewhere. We scorn the bare notion that this kind of

Digitized by Google

Masonic journal could originate anything—even a novel kind of mistake calculated to provoke laughter rather than a sneer. That there are such organs claiming to represent the interests of Freemasonry is, unfortunately, true. It may be said, why call them in question when their aim is good. It is their misfortune, not their fault, that they are incapable of higher things. This plea is inadmissible. People have no business to thrust themselves before the public, and to occupy prominent positions they are wholly unfitted for. When any one undertakes a public office, he renders himself justly liable to public criticism; and if this criticism partake of a hostile character, it is no defence, but rather his severest condemnation, that he is capable of doing no better. Similarly, if a newspaper assumes to represent Freemasonry, and yet contains nothing but lists of names out of order, and leading articles in the shape of the most vapid nonsense ever penned by mortal man, then, we say, it is worthy of utter condemnation; nor is there the shadow of an excuse admissible in its defence, on the ground that it is doing or has done its best. It has committed a grievous, we ought almost to say an irreparable, injury to the Craft, by appearing as a journal. Its sole remaining duty is to appear no more.

OPERATIVE AND SPECULATIVE MASONRY.

IN a History of Freemasonry, by Augustus C. L. Arnold, LL.D., and the Rev. Wm. P. Strickland, D.D., now appearing in the columns of the New York Square, there are one or two statements in the section of Chapter I., published on the 19th ult., which appear to us to be well worthy of notice. We agree with the learned doctors as to the unwisdom of turning to a very remote past for the origin of Speculative Freemasonry—in the sense, at least, in which so many of our Masonic historians have done. It is quite enough for us to know that the principles of our Society have been in force from the very earliest times. To make this a ground for establishing a connected history of our Body, through all ages, with all the paraphernalia of persons, times, and circumstances, to impress into such history the names of the wise and learned of all ages and countries as having belonged to our Craft—the only result of this has been to make us the laughing-stock of the world. Fully recognising, however, as we do, on the part of our readers, the indecency of such a course we are still not quite prepared to accept the theory that Modern, or Speculative Freemasonry dates no further back than the early part of the eighteenth century. The more intently we study, the more painfully aware do we become of the difficulties to be surmounted, in order to arrive at a just appreciation of the origin of Masonry as a science. Yet we think we see our way to a theory of no little value, which many, we believe, hold in common with ourselves, that Speculative Freemasonry gradually, and indeed almost imperceptibly engrafted itself on Operative Masonry. We think we are justified in affirming that while the Society of Free and Accepted Masons was organised at the so-called Revival in 1717, there are evidences that for nearly, if not quite a century before, the mere art or craft of Masonry was slowly, but surely, expanding into a science. We pass by the question whether or not the New Atlantis of Bacon must be taken as foreshadowing the rise of a new philosophy, since known as Speculative Freemasonry. We have it on the authority of early Scottish records, as quoted in Bro. Murray Lyon's valuable work on Freemasonry in Scotland, that in Scotland, in the course of the seventeenth century, many persons of quality became members of the Fraternity of Masons, and were known subsequently by such appellations as "Gentlemen Masons," "Theorical Masons," "Geomatic Masons," "Architect Masons," "Honorary Members," the Operative Members being known as "Domatic Masons." The earliest of the minutes recording the introduction into the Lodge of Edinburgh of such personages is worth transcribing from our learned Brother's interesting narrative. They read as follow:—

"The 3 day off Joulay 1634. The quhilk day the Right honirabell my LORD ALEXANDER is admitet folowe off the craft be Hewe Forest diken, and Alexander Nesbet warden; and the hell rest off the mesteres off masones off Edenbroch; and therto enerie mester heath supscriset with ther handes or set to ther markes. [Deacon and Warden's marks], Jn. Watt, Thomas Patersone, Alexander, John Mylln."

"The 3 day of Joulie 1634. The quhilk day ANTONIE ALEXANDER, Right honirabell Mester of Work to his Majestie be admissione off Hewe Forest deken, and Alexander Nesbet warden, and the hell rest off the Mesteres off mesones of Edenbroch; and therto enerie mester heath supscriset with ther handes or eles pet to ther markes. Thomas Ainslie, Thomas Patersone, Robert Gray [Deacon and Warden's marks], Jn. Watt, Alexander, An. Alexander, Johne Mylln."

"At Edinburgh, the 3rd of July 1634. The quhilk day Sr ALEXANDER STRACHAN of Thorntown is admitted fellow craft be Hew Forrest deakon, and Alexr. Nisbet warden, and the haile rest of the Mester measons of Edinburghe; and in token thereoff the mesters underscryband have sett to their hands and marks to their prents. [Deacon and Warden's marks] Jno. Watt, Robert Gray, Thomas Ainslie, Thomas Paterson, Johne Mylln, Alexander, An. Alexander A. Strachan."

Other similiar minutes are given, among them one recording the admission, on the 20th May 1640, of "the right honerabell ALEXANDER HAMILTONE, generall of the artelerie of thes kingdom," and another of the admission, on the 27th July 1647, of "WILLIAM MAXWELL, doctor off Fisek ordinare to hes Maj'stie hines." The well-known case in England of the admission at Warrington of Elias Ashmole and Colonel Manwaring, in 1646, and the mention by the former of his presence in a Lodge at Masons' Hall, London, on 11th March 1682, when Sir William Wilson, Knt., Captain Richard Borthwick, and others were "admitted into the Fellowship of Freemasons," need only to be mentioned here. We shall have occasion to say later a few words on this case of non-operative Masonry. Neither is there reason for our doing more than refer to the statement of Dr. Plot, who says, in his Natural History of Staffordshire, as quoted by Findel at p. 117 of his history: "I met with persons of the highest rank, who thought it no scorn to belong to this society." Taking these together we consider we are justified in accepting them as fair evidence that, for nearly a century anterior to 1717, the old art or Craft Masonry was gradually losing a portion of its distinctive character by the admission into its fold of persons of rank. It is, of course, impossible to determine the reasons which influenced these persons to seek admission into this Guild. We do not, however, consider we are going very wide of the mark, bearing in mind the influence of Bacon, not only on the age in which he lived, but likewise on the generations that immediately followed, if we include amongst them a desire to penetrate the hidden mysteries of an ancient and honourable society, in the hope that the acquisition of such knowledge might tend to promote the interests of science generally. We do not believe they had any settled conviction that such a result would follow. They were curious as well as eager in their pursuit after knowledge. Some, no doubt, were influenced to join by mere idle motives, some by a simple wish to bring the different classes of society into closer conjunction. But having made due allowance for these two categories of honorary Masons, we think it highly probable that others were impelled to join by their enthusiastic love of science. We have said, in former articles, that we do not believe Speculative Freemasonry sprang into being all of a sudden, at the bidding of Desaguliers, Payne, Anderson, and a few others, learned though these undoubtedly were. It is hardly in reason to suppose that a new philosophy should acquire universal fame at, as it were, a moment's notice. It appears to us there must have been a gradual preparation of men's minds for its reception, and, in our opinion, the fact of there having been so many instances of "theorical Masons" admitted into operative Lodges, in Scotland and in England, during more than eighty years previous to the Revival, is so much evidence in favour of our theory. We may smile at the notion that Speculative Freemasonry has existed through all time, but we do not think it sprang into being suddenly in 1717.

We have said we should refer later to the case of Ashmole. We are impelled to do so by reason of a statement in the article in The New York Square already mentioned. We take exception to the following passage: "Hence, Elias Ashmole never was made a Free Mason, and instead of 'his diary showing incontestibly the existence of Freemasons in 1646,' it proves directly the contrary, unless it can be shown that operative and speculative Masonry are one and the same thing." We see no reason to doubt the accuracy of the excerpt from Ashmole's diary—we do not quote it, for it is so generally known, but our readers will find it in a footnote at pp. 139-140 of Oliver's edition of Preston's Illustrations—or why the explanation ordinarily attached to it should be called in question. When Ashmole states that he was "made a Freemason" on 16th October 1646, and again that he was present, March 11, 1682, when certain gentlemen "were admitted into the Fellowship of Freemasons," we do not understand him to use the word Freemasons in its speculative sense. We consider he means that he was made free of the guild of Masons, just as, even now, we speak of men being made free of the City of London or of Edinburgh. The value of Ashmole's statement lies in the proof it furnishes that in the middle of the seventeenth century there were non-operative members of the guild of Masonry. The still earlier records we have quoted from Murray Lyon's history show this was also the case in Scotland. Here is evidence that cannot be doubted, nor need we, in accepting it, go the length of considering "operative and speculative Masonry are one and the same thing." Gradually, the non-operative element in Masonry, by reason of its increasing numbers, became more powerful than the operative, until, at length, in the beginning of the eighteenth century, Masons' Lodges became wholly speculative.

It may be from our inability to appreciate the merits of the argument as stated in the last two paragraphs in the article of our contemporary, or it may be due to some other cause. We confess, however, we do not quite understand the views laid down in them by our learned brethren. Perhaps, on some future occasion, we may be in a position to deal with it more successfully, having in the interim obtained a clearer understanding of the case. In the hope this may prove to be so, we close these remarks for the present.

THE WANDERING FREEMASON.

XI.

BLAKE now assumed by degrees a new character, which was artfully originated by himself in general conversation. He came out as the large philanthropist—the beneficent Howard who, compassionating the ignorance and unproductiveness of hordes of savages, had cast around for some favoured spot of earth where their condition might be improved, where they might become civilised and instructed, at the same time conferring by their labour an inestimable benefit upon deserving lands which lay fallow, awaiting human industry. What country so worthy of development and so prodigal of a rich return as that of the glorious Republic of Peru? He foresaw a future export of sugar in untold increase, vast tracts under cochineal and indigo, immense development of the saltpetre and mining interests, as the result of his benevolent enterprise. The press magnified the theme and public men dilated with enthusiasm upon the grand prospects in store. I could not, however, help remarking, with surprise, that as the empressement of the Limenians increased, the cordiality of the foreign merchants fell off, until at length they held entirely aloof from him. I learned, afterwards, that at this time he made strenuous efforts to induce some of the large houses to co-operate in equipping an expedition, without effect.

Carnival time came, when all seemed seized with sudden mania for throwing of bon-bons, and for practical joking. It is startling, when paying an evening visit to some tertulia, to be received by the lady of the house who, whilst she tenders her right hand, slyly raises the other behind your back and unexpectedly cracks an egg upon your skull. Though no worse contents than a shower of scent bedew you, still the situation is embarrassing to one not in the secret of the peculiar license of the season. Out of doors worse will befall the unwary; as he crosses the street, from the end of a balcony some sly inmate will empty a basin or watering pot over him: remonstrance would provoke only derision and repeated attack. On the balcony of the office of Gibbs and Sons I was smoking with Crawley Boevey (a good fellow, now no more) when we were spotted by two lively damsels inhabiting a good house opposite, as innocent gringos.* Forthwith ensued to our damage a shower of eggs; and we, sending out for a quantity, eagerly reciprocated the bombardment.

Our clothes were reeking with Eau de Cologne, when the ladies' supply of missiles being exhausted, they commenced besieging us with plain water from a garden syringe. Impudent but imprudent belles, they could not have anticipated the resources of the foreigner! With speed and silence, the house fire-engine was made ready below, a hose led up behind the curtain, a volume of water shot across the street and shrieks of consternation announced the total defeat of the enemy.

In scenes like these, Blake participated with activity that really went beyond a joke. Mere victory would not satisfy him; he would utterly crush all his assailants, and paraded the streets followed by two little negroes loaded with baskets of comfits, scented eggs, and other missiles. I two or three times encountered him, when his flushed face and rapid utterance gave me the impression that he had been drinking freely. I found him once behind a counter, on astoundingly familiar terms with a pretty French milliner. Altogether, my admiration of him received a rude shock; I knew not what to make of a great capitalist and large philanthropist who could so far forget the dignity of his age and assumed importance.

My uneasiness was to be changed into consternation. Carter took me aside one morning, and sounded me with much mystery, so that for some time I could not understand what he was driving at; at length it dawned upon me that he was asking, "Had Mr. Blake been borrowing of me?" Thunderstruck at the supposition, I at once disclaimed it, when Carter apologised, saying that Blake had been borrowing of "the Doctor," and as he was unfit to be trusted with cash, a friendly warning about it would not be thrown away. The doctor alluded to was a medical man from San Francisco, who, with his wife, was staying at the hotel, and whom I had occasionally met in Blake's quarters.

In the capacity of acting secretary to the fund collecting in Peru for the distressed Lancashire operatives, I had applied to Blake for a subscription, anticipating a princely donation (our minister headed the list with £100), but had been, at the time, disappointed by his writing down "twenty dollars," with a flourish, as though he had done something grand. Even this amount he had not paid, and I did not like to ask for it, thinking it beneath the notice of so great a man; but I now applied for it to Carter, who paid begrudgingly, and I soon took an opportunity of discussing this with the Doctor, who confided to me his notion that there was something "very fishy" about our friends; that whatever money there might be in the concern, it was Carter who provided it all; and that to the latter he looked for repayment of the various sums he had from time to time advanced.

I began to regret my precipitation in making grand acquaintances and my fatal enthusiasm for cosmopolitan philanthropists, but made no further confidant and kept my suspicions to myself. In due time it was announced that the "Adelante," a barque of some 400 tons, was being fitted out at Callao by Yriarte and Co., chartered by Miles Blake, the concesionario of the privilege of importing labourers from the South Seas, to proceed to some port unknown, for the purpose of importing a first company of immigrants. As preparations progressed, Blake became ill and weakly. Several times I found him confined to his bed—once in partial delirium, after an overdose of "pain killer." Carter was all bustle to and fro between Lima and Callao, seeing to the fittings of the vessel, laying in suitable stores, buying up cheap blankets and blue shirtings. The Doctor was engaged as medical attendant of the expedition and an agent of the Peruvian Government was appointed to accompany it, with blank contract forms, printed in Spanish, English, and Kanáka, which, upon being signed by each immigrant, were to be attested in due form.

On the morning of the departure, Blake, being very unwell, requested me to fetch Yriarte to the railway station for a few parting words. This I did, and remarked that the latter treated the matter as though he had been induced to risk money in an uncertain venture, and that Blake thanked him exceedingly, assuring him that nothing on his part should be wanting to ensure success. The Doctor begged me not to forget to visit his wife occasionally; and Blake laughingly promised to procure me the post of Peruvian Consul-General in the South Seas.

It was calculated that about four months must elapse 'ere their return; when Yriarte and Co. were to send three more vessels on a second trip. It was rumoured that planters were already in the market making overtures to take charge of a certain number of immigrants at a high premium: the rate of wages and scale of rations being fixed by the Government. Gradually it dawned upon me that if the importation of the Kanàkas cost only the expense of bringing them, the concession would prove uncommonly remunerative to the speculator as well as to the philanthropist.

* Gringos. The slang name for foreigners.

I did not fail to call upon the Doctor's wife, whom I soon began to regard as "touched in the head." She talked of seeing visions in crystals and mirrors (of which she had a supply in regular sets), of holding long conversations with her dear grandmother, and similar eccentricities. She told me, one day, that feeling anxious about her husband, she had sought a vision of him, and had seen him in a small boat, rowing off with Carter from a tropical island fringed with cocoa-nut trees. She had seen them go on board a vessel which lay at anchor, and had wanted to see Blake, but "could not find him anywhere."

In less than two months from the date of the "Adelante's" departure, she was telegraphed as again anchored off Callao. Marvelling greatly over her speedy return, and feeling intensely interested in the expedition, I took the next train and repaired on board. A crowd of dark faces clustered about the bulwarks, hailing every new comer with plandits of unbounded delight. They were both male and female, and eyed their new loose cotton clothes with evident pride and bewilderment. As I passed over the side, I was overwhelmed by their well-meant but obtrusive caresses and handshakings. Carter appeared, and formally presented me to the chief—"King Bungay"—an old savage, on the broad grin. Women and children were littered over the decks. I quite forgot to make enquiry as to the cause of their unexpectedly quick passage, in dismay at the intelligence of Blake's death, which had occurred on the return trip.

At Carter's request, I took away with me to Lima the son and daughter of King Bungay, aged about 10 or 12 years. I narrowly watched the effect made upon them by the succession of novel sights through which they passed. The landing-place, the railway station, the start of the train. Through all these strange scenes they went with absolute stolidity, not a muscle of their countenances moved. Only the sight of a smart Zamba wench, in wide crinoline and bright yellow parasol, evoked an exclamation from the girl. On the railway journey, they noted in the distance (near Bellavista) a solitary palm-tree, and brightened up when I assured them, in the marine lingo which they had begun to pick up, that, "by'm-bye, plenty moar." I first exhibited them as curiosities at our Legation, and then left them at Carter's old quarters at the Hotel.

This was my last personal intercourse with this drama and its actors. Blake's papers and effects were deposited with the Consul at Callao, where it transpired that of late years he had borne an indifferent character, and had been made a bankrupt in Australia. I could not but surmise that he had been only a show puppet in the hands of Carter, who pulled the wires for the promotion of schemes for which he found the capital.

The expedition of the "Adelante" must have paid 800 per cent. profit to the benefit of those concerned. The immigrants were eagerly competed for at from 100 to 500 dollars a head, being drafted off to various plantations, where, if rumour may be credited, their treatment was not always humane. Whence they had been brought, I could not ascertain with certainty, as Carter and his companions maintained profound secrecy on that score. Blake's stories of his concessions at the New Hebrides and New Caledonia must have been mere blinds to throw enquirers off the true scent. I believe, however, the fact was this. Carter, in his trips over the South Seas, had found a place, probably the Island of Penrhyn, one of the Marquesas group, where a failure of the cocoa-nut crop was apprehended and famine imminent. He had conceived the scheme I have detailed, and after gaining the confidence of the natives, had put it into execution with the help of Blake, fetching away the islanders out of the throes of want. Those he brought were probably but a small instalment of the numbers he had similarly in reserve, and the groundplan of the scheme, thus far, cannot be considered reprehensible.

But the tragedy was to come. The concession granted to Miles Blake became void by his death. Carter's and Yriarte's exclusive privileges were consequently abrogated. The profit of the first venture was publicly notorious, and a score of speculators, associated with as many members of Congress, immediately procured permits to import immigrants likewise. These vied with each other in fitting out vessels with despatch. In their frantic haste, some left Callao only partially equipped or seaworthy; the masters of all of them (being ignorant of Carter's happy hunting-grounds) without goal, or with only indefinite ideas of their destination. Their instructions were to procure immigrants, by fair means (doubtless), but not to return without a cargo. The profits of the several ventures being thus entirely dependent upon the celerity with which that object could be accomplished, it is not surprising that the tenour of their instructions was construed by reckless adventurers in the loosest way, conscious that pecuniary success would, in the eyes of their patrons, condone everything. Thus was let loose over the South Pacific a flotilla of filibusters eager for prey. The first and most successful commander adopted a simple expedient; he anchored off a charming island, and attracted by means of barter, a considerable number of the natives on board. Whilst occupied and unsuspecting, they were seized and huddled below, when the vessel setting sail brought them off to Callao in triumph. At another place, a captain, whose vessel apparently did not inspire sufficient confidence, feigned to set sail from a roadstead after planting an ambuscade on shore. When the inhabitants had crowded to the beach to watch the stranger's white wings expand, up started the ambuscade throwing a cordon around them, from which those who tried to escape were mercilessly shot down, the remainder being bound captive.

Such unprincipled and inhuman depredations did not pass unnoticed or unpunished. The French squadron, whose rendezvous is Tahiti, sped after the offenders; some were taken as pirates, others driven ashore. I had left Peru before any of them returned to port, but I know that some came disabled by misadventure and disastrous weather, and believe that those convicted of malpractice were despoiled and punished as they deserved. Their horrible outrages had roused the public feeling of humanity; the ingress of the immigrants was stopped, all who had participated in equipping the expeditions being regarded as branded men; nor will time clear their name of infamy.

The enterprise of Carter was, so far as I know, the first instance of what may be termed the Coolie system in the South Seas, the barbarous abuses of which by wretches whom we are forced to acknowledge to be our countrymen have been frequently instanced of late years, but which, I hope and believe has now been suppressed.* Well founded rumours of the white man's treachery, borne by stray canoes from isle to isle, are in great part answerable for numerous murders and atrocities, those of the late lamented Bishop Patterson and the noble Goodenough amongst the number.

I have veiled certain names in the foregoing narrative, but the particulars may be verified out of public newspapers and the archives of H.M.'s Legation at Lima.

* Even whilst I write, the following appears in the Echo:—"News reaches us from Australia that several vessels engaged in the 'Labour Trade' have lately been taken possession of by natives of the South Seas, and their crews murdered. We are much afraid that 'Black Birding' of an illegal kind still goes on, in spite of cruisers and the Kidnapping Act, and that under other flags, especially the American, it is carried out to an extent little dreamt of in this country. In fact the latest discoveries of science have been brought to bear by some of the smart Yankee captains, in the shape of the use of dynamite for this purpose. They get the native boats well round the ship; a boat's crew is stationed at the falls of the long boat hoisted up astern; the captain is on the bridge. He takes out a cigar, calls to the steward to bring him a light, applies the end of his cigar to a piece of dynamite, throws it into the water, a panic ensues, the native boats are upset, and in the confusion, the long boat, which has in the meantime been lowered, picks up the natives struggling in the water. Considering the treatment the natives have experienced, and are experiencing at the hands of such men, it is not surprising that murders of unoffending Europeans occasionally take place, such as that of Bishop Patterson and Commodore Goodenough, for a native looks upon every white man he comes across as a fair victim for reprisals for any murder committed on the tribes by any of his race. The South Sea will, consequently, for many years to come, remain a dangerous cruising ground, and it will be a long time before such atrocities as those committed by the notorious Carl will fade out of the native mind. The name of one of the vessels, the crew of which have been lately massacred, the Dancing Wave, was identified with the very worst period of the traffic, and is frequently referred to by Consul March in his despatch. Whether some of the returned natives recognised the vessel in which they had been kidnapped, and so exercised retributive justice will remain to be seen."

Madame Louise attracted a large and fashionable audience on Saturday, at the Royal Aquarium, Brighton, by her singing. She was loudly and deservedly applauded.

3. REPORT OF THE BOARD OF GENERAL PURPOSES.

To the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

The Board of General Purposes beg to report that their attention having been directed to an application dated 24th May 1876, from the Lodge of Love and Honour, No. 75, Falmouth, for the usual Grand Lodge Certificate for the Tyler, who was initiated so long ago as the 8th April 1861, and to certain letters in which it was stated that the said Brother was initiated without the necessary Dispensation required by Article 9, page 86, Book of Constitutions. The Board, after due consideration, although none of the Brethren then in office are now members of the Lodge, felt that the Lodge—as a Lodge—must be held responsible for such a grave irregularity on the part of its former officers, but at the same time did not treat the offence with the severity which would under the circumstances have been extended to it. The Board therefore simply ordered that the Lodge should pay a fine of one guinea, and that the Grand Secretary should be empowered to issue the Certificate on payment thereof.

The Board desire to especially direct the notice of the Masters and Secretaries of Lodges to Art. 26, Page 69, of the Book of Constitutions, attention to which would at once prevent annoyance to their successors, and the necessity of an appeal to the Executive of Grand Lodge.

(Signed) PETER DE L. LONG,
Vice President of the Board.

DEATH OF BRO. T. SOLOMON, OF TRURO.

WE record with regret the death of Bro. Thomas Solomon, of Truro, at his residence on Friday night, aged 69 years. Bro. Solomon had not enjoyed good health for some years, but was able to attend to his business until within the last two months, when he was taken ill, and after a change of air, which did not do him any good, was brought back to his home about a fortnight ago. Deceased was the head of the firm of Solomon and Co., decorators, &c., whose principal house of business was at Truro, with several branches in other towns in Cornwall. He possessed a natural, as well as a cultivated taste for his profession, and was endowed with more than ordinary intelligence, common sense and business aptitude—the result being that his assistance was widely sought for, and that he was associated with nearly all the public and charitable societies in the town. For twenty-three years he was a member of the Town Council. In 1863 he was elected an alderman, in which office he continued up to his death, at which time he was the presiding alderman of the Western ward. Bro. Solomon twice occupied the civic chair—in 1866 and 1867—and in May 1868 he was made a justice of the peace. He was one of the founders of the Truro Institution and had been identified with it ever since. He also took a deep interest in the Truro School of Art. For many years he has been one of the overseers for the parish of St. Mary's. He was also one of the trustees of the Truro charities, and director of the new Public Rooms. He was much interested in the Volunteer Fire Brigade, and was chairman of the Fire Engine Committee of the Town Council. As a Mason he was known throughout the province, and had held many high and important offices. He was initiated into the Craft in the Phœnix Lodge of Honour and Prudence, No. 331, Truro, of which Lodge he occupied the chair in 1860, and was appointed Prov. Senior Grand Warden by the late Bro. Augustus Smith P.G.M., in 1867. He was also a member of the Centenary Lodge of Fortitude, No. 131, Truro, and of several other Lodges in the county. He served as Master of the Fortitude Mark Lodge, No. 78, Truro, and was appointed Prov. G.M. Secretary by the Prov. G.M., Sir F. M. Williams Bart. M.P., in 1872, in which year he was P.Z. of the Cornubian Royal Arch Chapter; also P.E.C. of the Royal Cornubian Preceptory of Knight Templars, and an S.P. of the Rouge Croix. Bro. Solomon did not confine his attention alone to the Order of Masons, but recognized the benevolent objects of the Odd Fellows and Foresters, and was an honorary member of both. He was a warm supporter of the philanthropic or religious societies, and ever ready to help by his purse or time. In politics he was a decided Liberal, and for many years took an active and leading part in the elections, but of late years had ceased to do so from a difference of opinion as to the desirability of bringing in Mr. Jenkins as a candidate when the Hon. Captain Vivian resigned in 1871. Bro. Solomon was a regular attendant at the Truro Independant Chapel, and he was the first Mayor in Cornwall who attended a dissenting place of worship with the members of the Council and Magistrates as a Corporate body. The funeral will take place on Tuesday next at ten o'clock.—Western Morning News.

CONSECRATION OF THE TREDEGAR LODGE, No. 1625.

THE Eastern may not be the most fashionable district of London, but undoubtedly, from a Masonic point of view, it stands out prominently as on all occasions leading every encouragement in its power to the promotion of Craft interests. Its success is quite commensurate with its efforts. Our Speculative philosophy finds active and energetic support from all our Eastern brethren. The members work with a hearty good will, which it is a pleasure to witness, and we can only express a hope that the other London districts may be moved to display at all times the same degree of enthusiasm.

The consecration, on Wednesday, of the above new Lodge is an evidence of what we have said, and the attendant arrangements were very satisfactorily carried out, under the able management of the indefatigable Bro. G. W. Verry and others.

Our respected Bro. Hervey officiated as Consecrating Officer, and appointed Bro. H. G. Buss to the Senior Warden's chair and Bro. F. Binckes to that of Junior Warden, Bro. Thos. Mortlock fulfilling the duties of Director of Ceremonies. After the usual preliminary formalities had been got through, Bro. Hervey rose, and delivered himself in a neat little impromptu speech, somewhat to the following effect:—

He said that he had not come prepared to speak an oration, neither had his Rev. Bro. Kingsford. Nevertheless, a few remarks would not be out of place on so solemn an occasion. The ceremony that was about to take place was one that ought to impress itself upon the memory of all those who are present when it is performed, because it inculcates, first, a reverence to the Great Architect of the Universe; secondly, it calls to our attention that kindness and brotherly feeling which ought to pervade the whole Craft; and thirdly, it impresses upon us the necessity of living in charity with all mankind. In explaining these several points, which he did seriatim, and with great point and emphasis, Bro. Hervey laid particular stress on the importance of brethren exercising the utmost care as to whom they introduced into our ranks. It was incumbent upon them that they should not lend themselves to the admission of those who were not fitted for us, and so encumber the Craft generally with men who ought never to have entered Masonry. He also referred at some length to the use of the black-ball, and explained how brethren very often abused, instead of using it becomingly. He pointed out that such abuse was calculated to do much harm to the Craft generally, and particularly to a new Lodge, as likely to excite dissension, instead of that brotherly feeling which ought to animate us all.

The ceremony was then very ably performed, the musical arrangements reflecting the greatest credit on Bro. Seymour Smith and the brethren who assisted him.

Bro. Charles Lacey P.M. 174 was then introduced as the W.M. designate, and the ceremony of installation was performed in Bro. Hervey's best style. The appointment of officers was made as follows:—Bros. G. Huggett S.W., G. Hollington J.W., G. W. Verry Secretary, S. Rawley Treasurer, Hemmings S.D., J. M. Dunstam J.D., Kendal I.G., Wood D.C., Maud W.S., Steadman Tyler.

The addresses having been given, and the several brethren who had been appointed having been congratulated, Bro. Lacey rose, and expressed the thanks of the East End brethren to Bro. Hervey for his kindness in coming that afternoon to consecrate the Lodge. All fully recognised the interest the Grand Secretary took in the welfare of the Craft at all times. He then proposed that Bro. Hervey be made an honorary member of the Tredegar Lodge. This was seconded by the Senior Warden, and carried unanimously. Bro. Hervey briefly acknowledging the compliment.

Bro. Rawley next proposed that Bros. H. G. Buss and Frederick Binckes be made honorary members of the Lodge. This was seconded by Bro. Hollington, and fully endorsed by all present. Bro. Buss acknowledged the compliment paid him, and a suitable reply was also made by Bro. Binckes. After the routine business had been gone through, the Lodge was closed, and a brief adjournment took place previous to the banquet, which was capitally served by the host of the Royal Hotel.

Bro. Lacey presided, and, on the removal of the cloth, gave the customary toasts. Bro. Hervey replied to that of the Grand Officers, and then gave the health of the W.M., whom he had had great pleasure in installing that afternoon. He said that Bro. Lacey was well known and highly respected in the East of London, and he was sure he would merit the approval of those who had chosen him to fill the chair.

The W.M. briefly acknowledged the honour done him, and next proposed the health of the Consecrating Officer. The brethren were fortunate in having one so well distinguished in Freemasonry come down to the east end of London to set them as it were upon their legs. When Bro. Hervey had seen what the brethren intended, he hoped he would come again, as it would afford great gratification to all the members of the Lodge to have such an eminent Mason amongst them. He was sure Bro. Hervey appreciated the compliment paid him by his enrolment. He trusted their worthy brother would be spared to a good old age, and that he might enjoy every blessing in this life.

Bro. Hervey said he knew when he returned thanks for "The Grand Officers" that, unfortunately for himself, he would have to speak again, and this time in a way which would come more home to his feelings than when he replied for the Grand Officers. He felt that the present toast had been given and responded to by the brethren in his favour, as one of themselves; as one who took part in their labours, who was glad to mix with them whenever the opportunity offered of doing any service to the Craft, and as one who hoped and believed that he was well and cordially affected by his fellow Masons. In that position he now found himself, and he thanked the W.M. and the brethren of the Lodge for the kind reception they had given him. An observation had been made about his coming into the east of London, from which it would almost appear that that was his first appearance beyond the Royal Exchange. He assured them such was not the case. Some years ago he consecrated the Beacontree Lodge, of which he had the honour of being an honorary member, and if circumstances would permit he trusted he should see his good friend on his left in a prominent position in that Lodge before many weeks were over. He also had the honour of consecrating the Langthorne Lodge, of which Bro. Lacey was the first Master. He also consecrated the Burdett Coutts Lodge; and, therefore, he did not think they could fairly say that this was his first voyage east. He had come down that day, with great pleasure, to consecrate the Tredegar Lodge, for in that neighbourhood this was the third appearance of Bro. Lacey in the character of first W.M. He was proud to say he was an honorary member of all the Lodges he had named, and whenever the opportunity arose for him to visit them, he was always well received. In conclusion, he could only thank the brethren for the compliment they had paid him; he thanked them also for the kindness with which he was received, and which, whether in the Beacontree, the Burdett Coutts, or the Langthorne Lodges he always experienced.

Bro. G. W. Verry's name was connected with the toast of the Masonic Charities, in consequence of another engagement compelling Bro. Binckes to leave early. Bro. Verry said his name had been associated with the Masonic Institutions for some years, and he hoped it would be so as long as he had life. He was proud to offer himself as a Steward on behalf of the Lodge in February next, and he was convinced if the Worshipful Master and brethren helped him, he should be able to carry up a good list. He had already something to start with, and he knew his list would reach three figures, if it did not reach more. There were some persevering Masonic beggars in the East of London. He had some repute as being one, and he felt well inclined to keep the reputation he had acquired.

At this part of the proceedings, as time was well on the wing, we were compelled to leave, but we understand, however, the remainder of the evening passed most pleasantly. Amongst those present, in addition to those already mentioned, we noticed Bros. J. Newton, E. Gottheil, W. Crutch, J. Ashburner, J. Berry, J. G. Stevens, B. Cundick, H. Williamson, W. Lusty, G. F. Dix, C. Payne, W. R. Marsh, H. Massey, F. Baylis, J. Allen, S. M. Lazarus, M. Joseph, H. W. Chadwick, W. C. Livermore, S. Moss, J. Venters, T. Moore, F. Myerscough, A. Hayward, W. Davies, H. J. Dickson, J. B. Hogarth, T. Baxter, T. Battes, J. Job, G. Jones, G. T. Carter, S. Smith, E. Read, G. Brooks, H. Carter, Taylor, Mugleston, Harrison W. W. Morgan, &c.

BUCKINGHAM GALLERY OF FINE ARTS.

WE have recently had an opportunity of inspecting a small collection of Tapestry Pictures at this Gallery. They are executed by two nieces of the late Baroness Freuller, of Paris, and exhibit, beyond question, a considerable amount of talent. There are five and twenty of them, the majority being taken from pictures by well known artists, with whose fame our readers are undoubtedly familiar. No. 1 is a reproduction of "The Transfiguration of the Saviour," while next in order is a copy of "Christ Blessing Little Children." Both Nos. 8 and 24 represent "St. Paul preaching at Athens," and are highly effective; while of the other larger, and with some people, therefore, the more imposing specimens, must be mentioned "Jeremiah Prophesying over Jerusalem," "Mary Queen of Scots Mourning over the Dying Douglas," and No. 16, executed in floss silk, "The Royal Hawking Party at Haddon Hall," No. 18 "Shoeing the Horse," after Sir Edwin Landseer, is unquestionably one of the most successful in the series. All of them, indeed, are well wrought, and we think those of our readers who have a taste for this class of elaborate fancy work, will be pleased if they pay the Gallery a visit.

As some of our readers are, happily, young enough not to have any recollection of Miss Linwood's tapestry work, on exhibition for so many years in the region of Leicester Square,—the character of her work, however, differed widely from that on view in the Buckingham Gallery—we offer a few words on the tapestries we have so recently seen. It is only within the last three years that the art of thus reproducing well-known pictures, by ancient and modern masters, has been revived, and the first result is the present small, but choice, gallery, the result of infinite labour on the part of the two ladies we have before referred to. These are by no means the whole of their achievements, for many other pictures remain behind at Sheffield, where, till lately, the present gallery was on view. It is in contemplation to establish an art class in connection with the gallery, and no doubt many ladies will avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded them of acquiring a knowledge of this new branch of needlework. It will prove either a pleasant occupation for an occasional leisure hour, or may even be of service if their supply of daily bread is dependent on their own exertions.

A MONUMENTAL WORK.
NOW IN PREPARATION.
HISTORY OF EVERY LODGE UNDER THE GRAND LODGE OF FREE AND ACCEPTED MASONS OF ENGLAND.
Will be Edited by a distinguished Grand Officer.
In a work of this magnitude, the kind co-operation of all Brethren who are in possession of facts not generally known, will be invaluable, and thankfully acknowledged.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Recollections of Four Years in Venezuela. By CHARLES DANIEL DANCE, a Mission Priest in the Diocese of Guiana. With a map and three illustrations. Henry S. King and Co., London. 1876.

VENEZUELA is a country of which little is known, perhaps, except by the naturalist, the geographer, and the small section of the commercial world which has business relations with it. It is one of the smaller South American States. The important river Orinoko is its southern boundary, and between this and the ocean, which forms the northern, a number of other rivers and small streams intersect it. In parts of the country are mountains, while its resources are capable of being largely developed were it only better and more securely governed. But anything in the shape of stability seems unknown to and unappreciated by the various South American republics, and Venezuela is far from being an exception. The climate, however, is healthy in the mountains and on the table-lands, and there is a very fertile soil, so that if it were found safe to employ capital—which would be the case if the affairs of the State were better administered—there appears to be little doubt that Venezuela might look forward to a long unbroken career of prosperity. Whether such good fortune is in store for her or not is a question which time alone can solve. In the meanwhile, the experiences of one who has passed some years in the country must be valuable, as showing what it is capable of, and interesting, as opening out to us a new field for study and observation. Mr. Dance, as announced on his title-page, was a mission priest, one of that numerous and gallant body who are to be found in all parts of the world, proclaiming not only the grand truths of religion, but introducing among barbarous peoples the simpler arts of civilised communities. The missionary is one to whom the world, even from a commercial point of view, is very largely indebted. Wherever he goes, and he continues to penetrate well nigh everywhere, he carries with him an amount of knowledge which very soon suffices to convert the ignorant aboriginal tribes not only into God-fearing, but likewise into handy, enterprising, hard working people, who till the soil, build themselves habitations, and gradually bring themselves more and more on a level with civilised communities. Mr. Dance's book, therefore, as we have already said, is valuable, as conveying to us a good general idea of the resources of this country. Those who read it will, we conscientiously believe, derive much pleasure as well as profit from its contents. The habits of the population, the scenery, the character of the soil and its productive powers, the branch or branches of trade and commerce most likely to take root and flourish, respecting all these a mass of information is vouchsafed us, which, as far as our limited knowledge goes, will not be found, at all events in so agreeable a form, elsewhere. Mr. Dance is a pleasant writer. We seem to be accompanying him in his labours, and certainly he has the knack of making the reader quite at home with him throughout the whole course of his narrative. He is the same companionable writer, whether describing the ludicrous mishaps of Anselmo, a river excursion, or travelling across the Llanos (table-lands). He seems, indeed, to have been on excellent terms with all classes of people; no wonder, then, we predict that the author and his readers will find themselves throughout on the same excellent footing. We like the book. We should have liked it better, perhaps, had it been wholly descriptive, but we have not forgotten that Mr. Dance was a mission priest. The remarks which would probably seem strange and out of place in the simple traveller, come appropriately therefore from him. There are a few illustrations, just enough to whet our appetite for more, and a very excellent map, in which the country, its hills, rivers, towns, coastline, &c., are clearly delineated. Having said thus much, we leave our readers, to whose favourable notice we recommend Mr. Dance's narrative, to judge for themselves whether or not our verdict is in accordance with the evidence.

IS MASONRY DOING ITS DUTY?

WE have not of late seen anything more outspoken or to the point than the following, from the Review, under the head of "Evenings with the Old Chair."

"Do you think, Old Chair, that Freemasonry in this country, at the present time, is properly performing its mission? To go a little further, is it accomplishing any good that could not as well be accomplished if there were no Freemasonry?"

The Old Chair confesses it difficult to reply to the above in a satisfactory manner, without employing more space than it has a right to claim; but the Old Chair does not think Masonry "is properly performing its mission." It is conceded that Freemasonry, with its large membership, is capable of wielding a vast influence, and with the wealth and social standing of its members, it might do immense good. But what is it doing? Has it provided a Home for the aged and infirm who are destitute of home and friends? Has it made provision for the education and support of indigent orphans? Does it furnish aid or assistance to virtuous poverty, by which the unfortunate may be assisted to a better position? In short, is it doing anything worthy of its means and members, to "properly perform its mission?' If so, the Old Chair has not been advised of it.

The Grand Lodge meets, blunders over a little legislation, elects officers, and "closes." Not a word is said about doing anything for the good of society, to befriend the friendless or aid the helpless, nothing about how the great Masonic family can be improved, nor how the mission of the Order may be accomplished.

Lodges are organized "to make Masons," and they never do anything else! That seems to be their mission, and their only mission. No, no, the Old Chair is of opinion that Masonry is not performing its proper work, and a large portion of its members are derelict in their duty to the Order. Is it any wonder that anti-Masonic associations are formed and anti-Masonic papers issued and organizations formed to create public sentiment against it?

The foregoing is more especially addressed to the brethren in Ohio, but it applies with great force in other jurisdictions, and supplements what we have so often said in regard to the latent power residing in the Craft, which it appears to be so difficult, not to say impossible, to arouse. The brethren, apparently, will not consider the value of concerted action, nor the immense power residing in their hands were they disposed to exert it, or if they do, the fact that it will require some exertion and especially some sacrifice, seems to act as a sedative and keeps the hand and the brain idle, while the triumphs we might achieve are suffered to go by default. Just now the Masonic world in Europe appears to be, and in fact is, gathering its forces for the breaking down of the institution in this country, by ignoring and setting at defiance our rights to our own inheritance and our own soil, by recognizing and entering into correspondence with clandestine organizations and spurious Masons, thus inciting them not only to persevere in their course, but to become aggressors in their turn, and so reduce the work of the Fraternity to a mere scramble for precedence, regularity being of no consequence, and previous occupation of territory no consideration.

The evils to grow out of such a state of affairs are plain enough to those who will take the trouble to think; they involve not only a conflict but a general relaxation of authority, for when there are two or more organizations in opposition to the sole legitimate one, their touting for support, their scramble for adherents, their willingness to grant warrants and facilitate initiations will not only act in direct contravention of lawful authority, but will also have a marked and deplorable effect in setting aside the well established laws and principles of the Craft, whenever such laws stand in the way of the schemers. Not only this, but when the laws and regulations of the lawful authority are enforced, as they should and must be, these clandestine associations will prove a ready and welcome refuge for those falling under discipline; while it stands to reason that the presence of such persons will be all the more readily hailed in the camp of the adversaries because of the disciplinary acts of authorities they spit at and condemn. The old Latin maxim, Inter armes silent leges, will be their motto, and the clash of arms will silence the laws so far as they are concerned. This is not a pleasant tableau to contemplate, but events are being daily shaped to bring about this exact state of affairs, and just as surely as effect follows cause, just so certainly we may prepare our minds for the arrival of events to result, not from the casual circumstances of a day or a year, but from calculations long since made and steadily pursued. The Grand Orient of France, which, even while in friendly communication with us, was plotting to destroy our peace, and, if possible, to break up our jurisdiction, has at last emerged from the cloud of equivocation and false pretence with which it has for some years surrounded itself and openly declared itself the ally and patron of clandestine Lodges, and the jurisdiction of American Grand Lodges, and the next step, that of granting warrants to Lodges to be located here, will not be long in following. The German Grand Lodge League, which has just closed its annual session, there is every reason to believe will be found to have adopted a similar course of recognition, which, added to its unwillingness to condemn the usurpations of one of its constituents, will place it side by side with France. Both these organizations are in full communion with the remaining Masonic Powers in Europe, and are therefore by implication, if not in reality, upheld by them in their course, the result of which the Grand Lodges on this side of the Atlantic will not be long in discovering, and yet Lodges seem to regard the making of Masons as their principal mission, while Grand Lodges are so occupied with their local affairs that they have no time to give to the consideration of a danger that promises to give them leisure in one sense at least by depriving them of their jurisdictions. An appeal for concert of action among them is as idle as playing scientific music to a granite statue, and it remains to be seen whether the brethren at large care any more than their leaders on so vital a subject. Seeing this, can we say that Masonry is doing its duty?—N. Y. Dispatch.

"Admirably written, being free from what are too often observed in compositions—inelegant language and prolixity."—Sunday Times.

"'J. G.' writes with a considerable amount of freedom, never hesitating to 'hit off' a weakness when he finds it publicly displayed by a 'distinguished brother;' at the same time he never loses sight of a good trait when it is displayed, either in connexion with the Craft or in the service of the public out of doors. The sketches are lively reading."—City Press.

"Evinces much literary ability, and is a valuable addition to the few works we have in Masonic biography."—Philadelphia Keystone.

"The book ought to be in every well arranged Masonic Library."—New York Courier.

"The portraits consist of a series of what we call 'pen and ink sketches' of brethren prominent in all the noble undertakings of English Masonry. . . . Prominent among his brethren we find Bro. Fred. Binckes, ('Our Hercules,') whose herculean efforts in behalf of those blessed institutions, the charities of English Masons, have a world-wide reputation, which will live long after the zealous Craftsman has been, 'laid away to rest.'"—New York Square.

"There can be no doubt that the writer has produced a series of Portraits which will be a source of amusement and pleasure to Masons throughout the world."—Surrey Comet.

"Will be found very interesting and pleasant reading, especially to the Masonic world."—Barnet Press.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE season is hardly yet ripe enough for the appearance of big gooseberries, and, moreover, the sympathy of the public is being diverted towards Bulgaria and the burning, pillaging, and murdering which are being practised at the expense of its unhappy people. We must content ourselves, therefore, with a bare recital of events, and of these there is, at best, but a sorry programme. London is deserted of all its fashionable and quasi-fashionable inhabitants. The Court is in Scotland, the Prince and Princess of Wales having for several days past been in residence at Abergeldie. There is a lull in the Masonic world, and some weeks must pass ere we enter on a fresh period of activity. So far as we know, there are no murders, no collisions by land or water, no inquests, no scandal to record. We are, or should be, in fact, in the doldrums, but we strive earnestly against these depressing influences, and hope, as we have done throughout the whole of our career, to bear all our trials with equanimity.

The little excitement caused by the elevation of Mr. Disraeli to the peerage has not yet died out. Congratulations attend him on all sides. Now it is his constituents who are offering him their felicitations, now his tenants; now the electors of a borough that once returned him to Parliament. Then we read of committees of this or that body, club, or society, following the general example. In short, men of all classes, and we may add, too, of every shade of politics, appear to regard with favour this crowning honour which the Queen has bestowed on her Prime Minister. The Earl of Beaconsfield must be proud, as well as pleased, at the general popularity in which he is held.

The inquest into the deaths caused by the explosion of a boiler on board H.M.S. Thunderer is closed. The verdict of the jury is to the effect that the accident arose from the sticking of the safety-valves, owing to the contraction of their metal seats, the fact of the stop valve being closed being regarded as contributing in some measure to the accident. A series of recommendations were appended, and as they seem all of them to be practical and more or less valuable, we doubt not the Admiralty will give them due attention. We notice the jury, having expressed their thanks to the coroner personally for his courtesy and impartial conduct of the inquiry, handed in a memorial to the Home Secretary, praying for special remuneration, the actual sum to which they are entitled being only twelve shillings. We hope their prayer will be granted, for the inquiry was a protracted one. We fear, however, there is not much likelihood of any notice being taken of it, if, at least, the conduct of the Treasury in connection with the Balham inquest may be taken as a guide. It seems the coroner's officer advanced the necessary moneys to pay for the disinterment of the body, for telegrams, and for notices to witnesses. There is no fund out of which the coroner can pay him, and the Treasury have declined to entertain his application for reimbursement. It is reported, and we trust the report is true, that the case will be placed in the hands of a solicitor, with a view to ascertain who is liable in a case of this kind. All the unfortunate officer has received thus far, for 28 days' attendance in connection with this case, is the very munificent sum of nine shillings. Nor has the jury fared better. They have had their fee of twelve shillings, or something less than tenpence each, and that is all, and there is said to be no chance whatever of their receiving more. This is most contemptible. It was the Attorney-General and the Treasury-Solicitor, at whose instance the second inquest was held. It was they who expressed an opinion that the first was insufficient, and upon this the Lord Justices ordered further inquiry. It was necessary the jury should view the body, and the cemetery authorities refused to disinter it till the fees were paid. Yet the Treasury decline to reimburse the officer who advanced the money, which enabled the Government to have this further inquiry. This is by no means the first time this Department has been denounced for its contemptible meanness. More than once have the judges publicly rebuked its officials for similar conduct, on the ground that such parsimony had a tendency to defeat the ends of justice. No doubt this coroner's officer has learnt wisdom by experience, and the next time an inquest, under similar circumstances, is held at the instance of the Government, will leave payment of disinterment fees, telegrams, notices, &c., &c. to the Government officials.

We abominate practical jokes, but a more cruel one was never perpetrated than that referred to the Marshland bench of magistrates on Tuesday. Three men, having, one Sunday evening, a few weeks since, dug up a wasp's nest, seized hold of a poor boy, aged thirteen years, who was walking quietly to chapel. They took off his boots, tied his legs together with the laces and a piece of rope, and having also made fast his hands, flung the little fellow into the nest. He was fearfully stung, of course, and so agonising were his cries, that at length the defendants returned to set him free, and the lad in terrible pain was led home and had his wounds dressed. The magistrates characterised the case as a brutal one, and fined each defendant one pound, and twelve shillings and sixpence costs. We consider this a most inadequate punishment. True, one of the defendants was suffering from typhoid fever, and ought not, indeed, to have appeared in court; but a sentence of some months' hard labour would have been a juster penalty to have inflicted. We have seldom read of a more disgraceful case. Certainly, this justices' justice which sends a poor lad or woman to prison for stealing a cabbage, and fines a man £1, with 12s 6d costs, for binding a boy hand and foot, and then throwing him into a wasps' nest, is incomprehensible.

Birmingham has been enjoying its annual musical festival, and, as usual, there have been produced one or two new compositions of merit, which met with the heartiest applause from the audience. These were a cantata, by Mr. F. H. Cohen, entitled the Corsair, and an oratorio, by Professor Macfarren, called the Resurrection. Among the artistes—vocal and instrumental—may be mentioned Mdlle. Albani, Mdlle. Titiens, Signor Foli, Mr. Santley, M. Sainton, Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Patey, and Mr. Edward Lloyd. Bro. Sir Michael Costa was present also, and Mr. Walter Macfarren conducted for his brother during the performance of the latter's oratorio.

The contemplated race for the rowing Championship of the World appears to have collapsed in a very discreditable manner. Trickett having come all the way from Australia to test his powers against Sadler, proved victorious, and thus became Champion of the Thames. A Tynesider, named Lumsden, then challenged Trickett, who was about starting for America to take part in the Centennial Regatta, the terms being arranged for £200 aside, and a staked bet of £200. Lumsden's backers, however, a few days before that fixed for the race, gave in, and have ordered the stakeholder not to pay over to Trickett either the staked bet, on the ground that such bet is illegal, or even the portion of the stakes so far paid up. Thus Trickett has lost his chance of winning a prize at Philadelphia, and will, further, have to remain in England some months, in order to obtain the money he is so justly entitled to. We cannot congratulate the Tynesiders on their notions of honour. So long as our English sports are conducted honourably, so long as everything is done in such a manner as to exclude all chance of foul play, so long will they be well, and even handsomely, supported. The moment, however, a suspicion attaches to any particular sport, that its professors are not acting honestly and straightforwardly, it will get into bad odour, as did the Prize Ring a few years ago.

The cricket season of 1876 is now ended. Many more matches, of course, will be played, but the legitimate season closed with the two great county return matches between Surrey and Gloucester, and Yorkshire and Notts, the former being left drawn, the rain coming down in torrents and stopping the play; while in the latter Notts proved victorious by eight wickets. The result of the season is, that Gloucestershire is at the top of the list among the counties, thanks, of course, to the wonderful powers of the Grace family; while among individual players the highest average, we fancy, must fall to Mr. W. G. Grace. At all events, his performances this year have exceeded anything previously recorded in the annals of cricket. On three different occasions has this leviathan or champion—as he is variously called—exceeded the grandest achievement of former days—the well-known 278 score of Mr. Ward. In one case he made 400 against a twenty-two of Grimsby. At Canterbury he compiled a total of 346 in a match between the M. C. C. and Kent. But the grandest of all was his 318 not out in the return match between Gloucestershire and Yorkshire, against the bowling of Hill, Emmett, Ulyett, Clayton, Myers—among the best bowlers to be found in England. On other occasions Mr. W. G. has made his nineties or his hundreds, or hundred and fifties, but such scores as these will cease to be of any account now that he has taken to scoring over three hundred. Certainly he and his brothers, and his cousin, Mr. Gilbert, have raised Gloucestershire to a height never before attained by any county.

By way of contrast to these brilliant performances of Gloucestershire, we note that in the return match between Surrey and Notts, the whole of the former team were out for 26, of which one was an extra, the highest individual score being seven. At the time of writing, Notts had lost one wicket for 39 runs.

The authorities at Chatham appear to have received warning that an attempt was about to be made to release some of the convicts detained there. Accordingly, all possible precautions have been taken to prevent improper communication with the prisoners. The warders are all armed, and a cordon of troops by night and day is drawn round the prison, no one under any pretence whatever being allowed to approach within a certain distance, so that no preconcerted signal can be given, as was done at the time of the Clerkenwell explosion.

In our early days—we regret to say how long since—we remember to have made the acquaintance, at the Egyptian Hall, of certain Ojibbeway Indians, brought over to this country under the auspices of a Mr. Catlin. A year or two later, we saw another set of the same interesting people, who went through a series of performances at Vauxhall Gardens. And yet a third group of these uncivilised fellows has arrived, and is now on view at the Alexandra Palace, where we presume they will for some time to come be held out as one of the chief attractions. The party are eight in number, four men and four women, with, we believe, a papoose thrown in as a kind of makeweight. A Captain McDonald has brought them over, and he puts them through a number of military exercises, all of which are performed with marvellous skill and dexterity. The rehearsal was applauded, and no doubt the exhibition will prove highly attractive.

Murad V. has been deposed, and Sultan Abdul Hamid reigns in his stead. The event has long been expected, and has created, therefore, no great excitement. In a country like Turkey, where the sovereign plays an important part in the conduct of public affairs, the retention on the throne, for any length of time, of an imbecile was clearly impossible. Whether the new Sultan will be any improvement on Abdul Aziz remains to be seen, as news of his proclamation has only just reached us. As regards news from the seat of war, there is little additional matter to record. If we are to put any faith in Servian advices, the Turks ought, by this time, to have been, if not annihilated, at all events, driven back, pêle-mêle, into their own country. On the other hand, the Turks say they are still in the neighbourhood of Alexinatz, and are gradually pressing closer and closer upon that place. Servian entrenchments and redoubts, almost without number, have been stormed and carried, and if these advices are to be credited, the destruction of the chief Servian army must be nigh at hand. On the Montenegrin frontier, Turkey has been concentrating fresh forces, and is formidable, both as regards men and guns. Meanwhile, an attempt is being made, or said to be in contemplation, to bring about peace. The Great Powers have indeed been invited, by Prince Milan, to use their good offices with Turkey, and there is talk of an armistice having been proposed, but the Turkish Ministry is unwilling to accept it. It is desirous of terminating the struggle—there are obvious reasons, indeed, why this should be the case—but she objects to stay her warlike operations, till a proper basis for negociations has been settled. We think this conduct not unreasonable. Other foreign news is of comparatively little importance. Marshal McMahon is on a tour of military inspection, visiting Chalons and other military centres, while Spain is on the point of dispatching heavy reinforcements to Cuba, with a view to putting down the insurrection in that island. The Austrian military manœuvres are about to commence, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught having left London on Thursday evening for the continent, in order to be present at them.

We announce, on the authority of the Graaf Reinet Herald, that the contemplated division of Cape Colony into three districts for Masonic purposes, finds favour with the majority of the Lodges, and our contemporary is of opinion that the measure cannot fail to promote the efficiency and welfare of the Craft. The brethren in the Eastern provinces have for a long time experienced the greatest inconvenience, owing to the great distance at which they are situated as regards the District Grand Lodge. Representations were accordingly made to the proper authorities, and it has been decided to portion out the colony, as we have stated, in three Masonic districts. Already steps are being taken to procure the election of some eminent brother to preside over the new district of the Eastern Division of South Africa, and we trust, in the interest of the Craft, that the choice will fall on the worthiest member of our Community.

The same journal expresses a certain amount of dissatisfaction at the proposed establishment, in Richmond, of a new Lodge under the English Constitutions, there being already a Dutch Lodge located in the town. Our contemporary regrets that in so small a place the brethren should be divided. It admits there are certain circumstances which have given rise to unpleasant feelings, but it considers it would be far wiser to try and remedy these grievances than to divide a body so inconsiderable in point of numbers. It further announces, on the authority of the Field—a colonial journal, not our contemporary of the same name hailing from the Strand—that a Masonic ball on a grand scale was held at Kimberley, in the month of July. The guests numbered some 450, and included the Administrator of the Diamond fields, and his Secretary, the only two non-Masons present. Bros. Tymms and Graham, the W.M.'s of the two Lodges—Cosmopolitan, No. 1409, and Richard Giddy, No. 1574—received His Excellency very cordially. The ball was a great success, the arrangements being admirably managed, and the scene, what with the gay dresses of the ladies, the regalia of the brethren, and the decorations of the Hall, was very animated.

According to the Keystone, Bro. Rob. Morris, LL.D., has written and published twenty-one volumes on Masonic subjects. The first—Lights and Shadows of Freemasonry—was published in the year 1852, while the most recent—Freemasonry in the Holy Land—made its appearance only four years, since in 1872. From the same source we learn that the first Masonic work published by Bro. Cornelius Moore, Editor-in-Chief of the Masonic Review, appeared in 1846, bearing the title of The Craftsman. Others of the same author's works, such as his Ancient Charges, Outlines of the Temple, and Leaflets of Masonic Biography, have long enjoyed a wide degree of popularity.

We regret to announce the decease of a most estimable Masonic journal—the Canadian Masonic News. Our American advices say the Editor would gladly have given his time and labour for the first year or two without any expectation of reward, but this liberality met with no proper response from Canadian Craftsmen. The news is not very encouraging to Masonic journalists in this, or, indeed, in any country.

The Hebrew Leader says that the Masonic Orphans' House of Kentucky has now one hundred and thirty-one orphans and eight widows as inmates. It likewise announces that a Mason in South Carolina, having recently sold some liquor on Sunday, was indefinitely suspended. On appeal, however, Grand Lodge mitigated the punishment to five years' suspension only. In Indiana no brother is permitted to sell liquor, either wholesale or retail. We consider Freemasonry is not justified in interfering with the private affairs of its members. It is open to a Lodge to reject all candidates who are keepers of liquor stores, but having admitted such into the fellowship of Freemasons, it has no business to say they shall not follow their legitimate calling. Indiana Masons are no more likely to be made sober by Grand Lodge enactment than Englishmen by Act of Parliament.

The New York Square pays a brief but feeling tribute of respect to the memory of our late esteemed Bro. Richard Spencer, so recently described among the Masonic Portraits in our columns under the title of "Father of the Lodge."

The same journal announces that the Royal Arch Chapters, Corinthian, No. 159, and Americus, No. 215—New York jurisdiction—had arranged to make a joint excursion, by steamer Wyoming, to Darlon House, Gregory's Point, Conn., on the 25th ult. Comp. G. H. Wallace's band of music was to be in attendance, and the arrangements were in the hands of a numerous yet select committee, whose efforts, it was anticipated, would make the success of the expedition certain. The price of tickets had been fixed at the comparatively low figure of two dollars, and Companions were invited to apply early, as only a limited number could be issued. We trust our worthy Companions proved themselves, both in a Masonic sense and excursionistically—if there be such a word—"jolly Companions every one."

When the Grand Lodge of New York holds its annual communications in the new Masonic Hall, dedicated to the purposes of Freemasonry in June of last year, the adjacent streets, says our friend the New York Square, are laid with tan bark, so that the noise of passing vehicles may in no wise disturb the deliberations of the assembly. We are likewise informed that 2256 votes were cast for the various Grand Officers, each Lodge being allowed but a single representative. Though the attendance is so great, the utmost order prevails, and though the Hall is of great extent, the Grand Master's voice can be distinctly heard in every part of the room.

We read, in the New York Courier, that great preparations are being made in that city, for the approaching conclave of the Grand Commandery, in the month of October. It is even suggested that the Templar parade on this occasion will surpass that of the 1st June, in Philadelphia. It is also not improbable that the unveiling of the statue of General the Marquis de la Fayette may be held during the session of the Conclave, instead of, as already announced, in this present month. As the Marquis was made a Knight Templar in New York, our contemporary thinks the participation of the Grand Commandery in the ceremonial would be only paying a just tribute of respect to the memory of one who had deserved so well of the United States. In such case, it is hinted that, probably, Commanderies from other States might be induced to visit the city.

VISIT OF H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES TO GLASGOW.

The Prince of Wales having most graciously signified his compliance with the request of the Lord Provost of Glasgow that he would lay the foundation stone of the new Post Office erecting there, Bro. Bain, the Lord Provost, has now requested Sir Michael Shaw Stewart, Grand Master Mason of Scotland, to solicit H.R.H., who is the Grand Patron of the Order in Scotland, to perform the ceremony with full Masonic honours,

From the well known loyalty of the Scottish Craftsmen, as well as their desire to do honour to the Prince, not only as their Patron, but also as G.M. of England, doubtless there will be such Masonic demonstration has as never before been witnessed in Scotland, or perhaps anywhere else in public.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—In all outward complaints a desperate effort should be made to at once remove these annoying infirmities, and of establishing a cure. The remarkable remedies discovered by Professor Holloway will satisfactorily accomplish this desirable result, without any of those dangers or drawbacks which attended the old method of treating ulcerative inflammations, scrofulous affections, and scorbutic annoyances. The most timid invalids may use both the Ointment and Pills with the utmost safety, with certain success, provided a moderate attention be bestowed on their accompanying "Directions." Both the preparations soothe, heal, and purify. The one assists the other most materially in effecting cures and renewing strength by helping exhausted nature just when she needs such succour.

ATHOLL GRAND MASTER.

WATKIN LEWIS S.G.W. JAS. AGAR D.G.M. JOHN BANN J.G.W.

To all whom it may concern

NOTE.—This Warrant is registered in the Grand Lodge, Vol. 8., Letter H.

We have had again to refer to our friend and Bro. Hughan, for an explanation, and, as usual, have been favoured with an explicit answer to our queries. The transcript sent us bore three numbers, viz., 203, 270 and 245, which puzzled us not a little, but the following interesting communication, from Bro. Hughan, will fully unravel all the difficulties:—

MY DEAR CONSTABLE,—The No. 270 on the transcript, duly received from you, should be 276, and is doubtless an error of the copyist, it being extremely difficult, sometimes, to decipher the old caligraphy. The Nos. 245 and 203, have been added of late years, and represent the numerical position of the "Ancient Union Lodge" from 1832 to 1862, and from 1863 to the present time, its location now being the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, and its number 203, as you know. We have, accordingly, altered the number on the copy before us from 270 to 276, and erased the other two numbers, as the latter only tend to mislead.

The series of "Ancient" Warrants, now being published through your exertions, is a valuable one, and, in several instances, the information given has enabled us to add the years of constitution to Lodges, of which, previously, we had no account. Had it not been for the mistake in the number of the Warrant under consideration, and the insertion, by some modern scribe, of two other numbers, the Lodge could easily have been traced by reference to our "List of Lodges," attached to our "Memorials of the Masonic Union of 1813," as the "Ancient Union Lodge," Liverpool, still works by its original Warrant, and never appears to have purchased a higher position on the Roll, as many did prior to 1814.

With best wishes,

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN, P.G.D.

Truro, 23rd August 1876.

There was a good attendance of members. The work consisted of two initiations, two passings, and the raising of four brethren to the sublime degree.

Salisbury Lodge of Instruction, No. 435.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting on Thursday, the 31st August, at the Union Tavern. Present—Bros. J. Mander W.M., W. S. Lee S.W., Farwig J.W., T. Call Secretary, A. C. Burrell Treasurer, G. Saul S.D., Rudderforth J.D., Wright I.G., also Bros. Hames, J. Pogson, G. A. Pillin, Murlis, Irinth, A. Stewart, R. Brandon, Belfrage, Michell, Wheeler, Loewenstark, Spicer, G. Davis, Tolmie, G. Lowe, Bentley, Milmow, Weeks, G. D. Unite 55, Holden, Docker, S. Lloyd, Lowe, J. H. Watts, Sedgwick, Martin. Business—The Lodge was opened and minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The 15 sections were then worked by Bros. G. Saul S.D. 1201, A. Stewart I.G. 1128, D. M. Belfrage J.D. 179, C. A. Woods 145, W. S. Lee 1201, J. Wheeler 574 and 1446, Rudderforth D.C 12, J. W. Wright W.M. 1298, J. H. Watts W.M. 1201, Farwig I.G. 180, T. Call I.G. 1446, W. Sedgwick P.M. 180, G. Davis 167, Bentley P.M. 193, and Tolmie S.D. 861. Several brethren were elected joining members, and after the usual vote of thanks to the Preceptor, Bro. Mander, for his ability in presiding, a most successful evening was brought to a close by the parting address.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The weekly meeting of the above Lodge took place on Tuesday evening, 29th August, at 7.30, at Bro. Allen's, Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney. Bro. Wm. J. Smith of 860 was specially invited to occupy the chair as W.M. and was supported by the following brethren:—Brown, S.W. of Upton Lodge, 1227, S.W., Barker 860, J.W., Wiege 860, S.D., Williams 1056, J.D., Christian 1278, I.G., Worsley 860, Sec. and P.M., Ashburner 1278, Preceptor pro tem; also Bros. Dallas 1524, Johnson 860, Davies 1278, Perrin W.M. of 1056, Brown S W. of 1607, Allen 1278, Pier of Cedar Lodge, Fieldwich, 1524, and several other brethren. The ceremonies of passing and raising were rehearsed in a very impressive manner, Bro. Perrin acted as candidate in the passing and Bro. Davies in the raising. At the conclusion of the 3rd ceremony the Preceptor passed a few remarks on the working, saying he had been in several Lodges in his time, but he was pleased to say he never had heard the ceremony worked better, and congratulated the Lodge on having such a number of good working members. This must be very pleasing to their Preceptor, P.M. Wallington, under whose able tuition these brothers are brought forward. We would recommend young brethren so attend this weekly Lodge; here they will get that instruction so much required by young Masons. Bro. Brown, S W. of Lodge 1227, was unanimously elected W.M. for next Tuesday, 5th September, and appointed his officers in rotation. All business being ended, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

Lewis Lodge of Instruction, No. 1185.—This new and rapidly increasing Lodge of Instruction has been enabled (in spite of removals, and members visiting the sea-side) to hold on its way, and add to its numbers. On each night of meeting there has been a good attendance of brethren. On the 2nd ult. Bro. Turner (Worshipful Master elect of the mother Lodge) presided, and on the 9th ult. Bro. Thomas Goodfellow, of the Domatic, 177, occupied the chair. In each case it was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that a vote of thanks be presented to the Worshipful Master for the very efficient manner in which he had presided, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. Bro. J. W. Berrie occupied the chair on the 16th ult., and worked the 2nd degree, Bro. Samuel Johnson acting as candidate. The last named brother has made great proficiency, under the able preceptorship of Bro. Thomas Vesper P.M., whose energy and zeal in pushing young men forward is worthy of the highest praise. Bro. Thomas Goodfellow having presented the Lewis Lodge of Instruction with a very handsome box of working tools (which were his own workmanship), it was proposed by Bro. J. W. Berrie, seconded by Bro. Samuel Johnson, and carried unanimously, that a vote of thanks be presented to him, and recorded on the minutes, for the handsome present he had made the Lodge; it was also remarked that Bro. Thomas Goodfellow was calculated to make a very useful working member of the Craft. Bros. Sayer and Bone (promising officers of the mother Lodge) were unanimously elected joining members of the Lodge of Instruction, and it was mutually regretted that they lived so far away, it preventing their constant attendance. On the 23rd ult. there was a very small gathering, there being only six present, but Bro. John Walker, of the Egyptian Lodge, No. 27, and Bro. H. B. Dunn, of the Sincerity, 174, and Finsbury Park, 1288, paying this Lodge a casual visit, Bro. J. Walker was unanimously requested to take the chair, which he did, and in a most efficient manner performed the duties which devolved upon him, to the entire satisfaction of the brethren present. This was testified by a vote of thanks, which was recorded on the minutes of the Lodge. A notice was given by Bro. George Newman that on the next assembling he should move that the night of meeting of this Lodge of Instruction be changed from Wednesday to Thursday, so that it should not clash with that of the Finsbury Park Lodge of Instruction. Moreover, by this change, the brethren of the north of London would be enabled to support this Lodge of Instruction, which is the most northernly now held.

Acacia Lodge, No. 1309.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on the 22nd ult., at the Prince Alfred Hotel, Southall. Bros. Charles Horsley P.P.G.R. Middlesex P.M. W.M., G. J. Rushforth S.W., &c. Bro. Horsley impressively raised Rev. J. Fothergill to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, and passed Bros. C. Wareham and C. L. Smiles to the 2nd degree. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, and Bro. C. G. Rushforth W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge, and installed into the chair by Bro. F. Walters P.G.J.D. Middlesex. On the re-admission of the brethren the W.M. received the customary salutes, and then invested his officers:—J. W. George S.W., C. G. S. Staly J.W., F. Walters P.G.J.W. Middlesex P.M. re-invested Treasurer, T. W. Cave LL.D. Secretary, Rev. J. Fothergill Chaplain, R. P. Tebb S.D., J. Scott J.D., J. Davies I.G., J. Sutcliffe D.C., Smiles W.S., W. S. Laing Tyler. The newly installed W.M. showed his qualifications for the office by initiating Messrs. W. J. C. Cave, D. Tremere, and G. White into the Order in a very careful and perfect manner. Bro. C. Horsley I.P.M. was then presented, in the name of the Lodge, with an elegant jewel, of the value of ten guineas, which had been unanimously voted to him for the able manner he had discharged his duties during his year of office. The jewel bears the following inscription: Presented by the brethren of the Acacia Lodge to Bro. C. Horsley, for his exertions and ability in promoting the best interests of the Lodge for four years, and as W.M. 1875-6. Bro. C. Horsley thanked the brethren for their valuable gift. An important notice of motion was unanimously confirmed. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of a sumptuous banquet and dessert. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and after a very agreeable and harmonious evening, the brethren returned to town. The Visitors were Bros. J. Robins P.P.G.D. Surrey, Siegert P.M. 548, &c.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—The usual weekly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday 30th ult. Present—Bros. Robinson W.M., Brasted S.W., Garbett J.W., Piercy S.D., Stock J.D., Ferrar I.G., Fieldwick as P.M., and a numerous attendance of the brethren. Business—Lodge opened in due form with solemn prayer, minutes read and confirmed. Bro. Spencer was entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree and Bro. Spencer was passed. The sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Fieldwick, assisted by the brethren. Lodge resumed. Bro. Brasted was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Bros. Fieldwick, Robinson and Brasted were appointed to audit the Lodge accounts. Next Wednesday is fixed for the election of Preceptor, Treasurer and Secretary.

Chaucer Lodge, No. 1540.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on the 23rd ult., at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, Bro. T. J. Sabine W.M. in the chair. Bros. J. C. Mason S.W., F. Walters P.G.J.W. Middlesex P.M. Secretary, J. H. Wilkins I.P.M., G. H. Wright P.M., W. J. Kemp S.D., C. W. Hudson J.D., H. Faija I.G., A. J. Hawkes D.C., J. Hutt, R. W. Willats, C. Graham, G. A. Mason, H. Levy, W. Klingenstein, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. The W.M. passed Bro. E. Coleman to the degree of a Fellow Craft, and initiated Messrs. T. H. K. Harding, W. M. Phillips and C. Winstanley into the Order. Bro. F. Walters, by the courtesy of the W.M., passed Bro. G. Newman. Bros. G. W. Frodsham, late 256, and T. Wilkinson 141, were unanimously elected joining members. The election for W.M. for the ensuing year then took place, and Bro. J. C. Mason S.W. was unanimously chosen. The W.M., Bro. T. J. Sabine, was elected Treasurer, and W. S. Laing P.M. was re-elected Tyler. The Audit Committee were appointed, and propositions for initiation were handed in to the Secretary. After the Lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to a very excellent supper. The Visitors were Bros. E. H. Thiellay P.G.S.B. Middlesex, W.M. 145, C. J. Rushworth W.M. 1309, T. W. Adams 765, G. Muller 73, Princes Adminateur de l'Univers Paris, &c.

With great regret we announce the death, in his 36th year, of Bro. Albert Cowley, of the Royal York Lodge, Brighton. He was for many years the caterer for the West Pier Restaurant, where he, as also in private life, made many friends. He had been for some time in failing health. A sorrowing widow and a large family are left to mourn his loss.

COOKERY AND DOMESTIC ECONOMY.—We understand that the offer of a hundred guineas made by a lady through the School Board of London, for a Manual on Cookery, is now null and void; no work having been forthcoming fulfilling the conditions which were stipulated at the time the gift was offered.—Morning Post.

PROVINCIAL GRAND MARK MASONS FOR SURREY.

THE annual meeting was held on Friday, the 25th ult., at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. The brethren assembled for the purpose of installing Bro. Dr. Cunningham as Provincial Grand Mark Master for Sussex. The ceremony was performed by the R.W. the Earl of Limerick, M.W.G.M.M. of England, who was accompanied by Bro. F. Binckes G.M. Secretary. The P.G.M. Lodge having been opened, the installation ceremony was performed. The P.G.M. appointed Dr. Trollope, of Hastings, as his Deputy, Bros. Braithwaite S.W. and G. Smith J.W. Various matters having been brought forward, the G.M. Lodge was closed, and the brethren sat down to a banquet, provided by Bro. A. R. Reynard, of North-street. The usual Loyal, Masonic and other toasts were given and responded to, and a very agreeable and harmonious evening was passed. There was a numerous attendance.

NEW ZEALAND.

At the installation of Sir D. McLean, on the 24th June, the Wellington Provincial Hall was crowded, no fewer than three hundred persons being present, including representatives from all parts of the colony. The ceremony was performed in the most impressive manner by D.G.M. Lazar. The musical portion of the ceremony was very effective. At the banquet subsequently 120 sat down. The proceedings passed off with entire success.

In reference to the notices in the Dunedin newspapers of the opening there of a Lodge to work the three craft degrees in New Zealand, of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, the Thames Advertiser says:—"We understand that intimation has been sent to the various Lodges of the Scottish Constitution throughout new Zealand, by order of the R.W.P.G.M. that the charter is spurious, and that an unwarrantable use has been made of the R.W.P.G. Master's name in connection with the application for the same. The R.W.P.G.M. for New Zealand not only discountenances the charter, we understand, but warns the Lodges under his jurisdiction from having anything to do with it."

A Lodge of Freemasons, under the English Constitution, is about to be inaugurated at the Thames, and at a meeting for this purpose (Brother J. E. Macdonald in the chair) it was determined to take the necessary steps for its establishment. Bros. W. Fraser was chosen as W.M., F. Hofsbrugh as S.W., and Hyams as J.W.

The hieroglyphics of the ancient Egyptians formed the subject of a most interesting lecture delivered by the Right Worshipful Master of the Lodge, Sir Walter Scott, of Freemasons (Thames) at the regular monthly meeting of the Lodge held recently. At its close a vote of thanks was tendered to the R.W.M. for his excellent lecture.—New Zealand Gazette.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE BRO. J. H. LEVIEN, OF NELSON.

THE funeral of the late respected Mayor took place on Thursday, 8th June, and in compliance with the expressed wish of the deceased gentleman, was conducted according to the ancient rites of Freemasonry. The brethren of the Southern Star Lodge, opened Lodge at high noon, left their Hall at 2.30, and proceeded to the residence of their deceased brother, where a procession was formed in the following order:—

Artillery Band.
Tyler and Inner Guard.
Marshal. Marshal.
Master Masons, two and two.
Secretary and Treasurer.
Senior and Junior Wardens.
Past Masters.
The Holy Writings on a cushion carried by the Senior Member of the Lodge.
The Worshipful Master, attended by Deacons.
Pall Bearers. Pall Bearers.
Members of City Council. HEARSE Members of City Council.
Chief Mourners.
Citizens.

In this order the cortège passed through Trafalgar and Bridge-streets, and proceeded to the New Cemetery by the Collingwood-street Bridge, where conveyances were provided. Arrived at the grave, P.M. Bro. Dr. Sealy read a short portion of the Church of England burial service and the solemn Masonic service for the dead in a very impressive manner, during which the Masonic apron and sprigs of acacia were deposited upon the coffin. The Masonic service was brought to a conclusion by the assembled brethren singing a hymn, and the procession returned to town in reversed order to that observed in their going forth.

Deceased belonged to the Hebrew persuasion, but at the desire of his wife, a Christian lady, requested to be interred in the Cemetery belonging to the Church of England. The Rev. J. Leighton, incumbent of Christ Church, being present at the grave, pronounced the benediction (at the immediate request of the officiating brother) at the close of the obsequies. No members of the Hebrew faith, excepting the nearest relatives of the deceased, attended the funeral, although our brother departed this life in the faith of his forefathers, only desiring to share the same spot of earth with his amiable and devoted wife, when the time should arrive for her being called hence.

BRO. SIMPSON'S MOTION IN GRAND LODGE.

WE are rejoiced that Grand Lodge has accepted unanimously Bro. Rev. R. J. Simpson's motion for the appointment of a Committee to consider the best means of commemorating our Grand Master's visit to India. The occasion is certainly one that calls for some recognition from the Craft. The visit was essentially one of peace and goodwill towards India. It was undertaken with the view of bringing the Indian and British subjects of Her Majesty into a nearer and more intimate union of feeling towards each other, as well as of loyalty towards their common Sovereign. The visit was one uninterrupted triumph, a triumph, too, obtained, not after desperate conflict with a determined foe, but in the glorious times of peace. We recognise, therefore, the propriety of commemorating an event so auspicious in our annals. Indeed, we have all along been most favourably disposed towards any reasonable proposal that might be made. We are anxious, however, and not unnaturally, that the proposal, whatever form it may assume, shall be worthy both of the occasion which prompts it, and the Craft which makes it. There were strong objections to the earlier propositions that were advanced. They were, to a certain extent, excellent of their kind. They did not, however, command the approbation of the general body. We think it wise, then, that Grand Lodge has now accepted Bro. Simpson's motion. A select committee, with ample time before it, will be able to ascertain the feeling of the Craft. We may be sure those eminent brethren who have been nominated to serve on it will carefully examine the various suggestions that may be offered, and will select the one most likely to command respect. We leave the matter in their hands with the utmost confidence. We think it would have been better, perhaps, had the Committee, as originally proposed by Bro. Simpson, been granted without any addition whatever to its numbers. We do not for one moment imagine that the Grand Officers proposed to be added by Bro. Philbrick, or the Provincial Grand Masters whom Bro. Curteis suggested should still further swell the number, are less competent to deal with this matter than Bro. Simpson's nominees. But in matters of this kind, a small yet compact body of men is likelier to manage well than a more numerous and possibly, therefore, a more unwieldy body. It may be that in the multitude of counsellors there is wisdom, or, as the more correct rendering hath it, in a multitude of counsellors there is safety. The general experience, however, we believe, is in favour of small but carefully selected committees, and the addition of half-a-dozen Grand Officers and some forty Provincial Grand Masters will render the task of deliberation, to say the least, a matter of greater difficulty. But after all this is, comparatively, a minor point. We feel assured the Committee will do its work conscientiously, and with that assurance we are quite satisfied.

As to the form which the memorial may take, we do not think it proper we should make any direct suggestion. The plan of enlarging the benefits of one or other, or all of our Charitable Institutions, seems the likeliest to command universal assent. It may, however, be in the power of clearer-sighted men than ourselves to suggest some better scheme still. Under these circumstances we abstain from offering any opinion now. We have already indicated the direction of our own feelings, but, as we have said, we await the issue of the Committee's labours with perfect confidence. It will be time enough to think of criticising their work when the work has been achieved.

THE INACTIVE MASON.

THE progress of Freemasonry during the last few years is undeniable. In spite of the obstacles it encounters at well nigh every step it takes, the intolerance exhibited by this or that religion, the persecutions, the annoyances, the ridicule, and, we may add, the careless indifference of its own sons, Freemasonry at this moment exercises a most potent influence in all civilised communities. It matters not whither we turn, be it towards the Continent of Europe, or to the new world, we find everywhere indications the most assuring as to the almost daily increasing stability of our Craft. Equally undeniable is it that the influence we exercise everywhere is an influence for good. It is true we are a secret society, and the work we are continually promoting is not generally "understanded of the people." Owing, indeed, to this very secrecy which enshrouds all our operations, we are often accused of serious crimes and misdemeanours as well against all forms of government as against all religious faiths. Happily, however, this secrecy is partial in its character. It keeps hidden from the eyes of the vulgar those sacred rites and ceremonies which have belonged to us through all time, but the results of its mysterious working are known of all men. It is rightly forbidden to divulge our mysteries, but the world knows well enough that one of the principal objects of Freemasonry is to establish a closer bond of union among the different peoples of the earth, and that the chief means we employ is the promotion of good fellowship. We exemplify this mainly through our numerous, and, we may safely venture to add, our spontaneous acts of charity. We are not, or at least we strive not to be, ostentatious in our good works. But the knowledge of our beneficence is spread abroad throughout all lands, until it has come to be a universally received maxim that, whatever his political and religious views may be, a good Mason must be a good man. This is a compliment we cannot too highly value. No one outside the pale of our Society knows what Freemasonry is, but the effect of its unknown teaching is apparent everywhere. We are recognised as a power among men. We are not formally constituted either as a political or a religious body. Our power, therefore, both in religion and politics, is, in one sense, more apparent than real, and yet, in very truth, more real than apparent. Our law is to respect all religious faiths and all forms of government. It follows, then, that in all countries where Freemasonry has established a home for itself, the ruling powers can reckon on the support of all its members, while the religious sect or sects which prevail will obtain, even though they may hardly deserve, the respect of our body. We know well enough, indeed we have already said, we are persecuted of certain religious faiths. But this is invariably of great service to our Craft. It must be that our persecutors are either renegade Masons, or, having always been outside the pale of Masonry, are in utter ignorance of our doctrines and constitution, so far as they are kept hidden from the public. No formal absolution that may be accorded to the perjurer will induce honest men to have faith in his subsequent statements; and no one accepts as Gospel the statements of the ignorant. Thus, the charges that are so pertinaciously brought against us, being easily refutable, serve only to magnify our worth. The harm they inflict is, not on us, but on those who make them. We have, then, little reason to fear the attacks that are made on our Institution. In some countries we are forbidden to assemble, and where this is the case, our fraternity obeys the law; but wherever the right of meeting is accorded, there we set an example of strict obedience to the civil power, and the utmost respect for all forms of religion. As we have said, therefore, in countries where Freemasonry has established a home for itself, both the civil and religious governments may reckon on our loyalty. It is not, then, from outside attacks that we need have any fears, so much as from the laxity and indifference of our own people. The inactive Mason, especially, who is a Mason in little more than name, is a serious detriment to our Society. In many cases, he is of those who enrol themselves in our ranks because his friends before him have done so, or because it happens, for the time being, to be the fashion for people to become Masons. He may, perhaps, be able to assert, most conscientiously, that he has never been improperly solicited to join, that no personal hope of gain has actuated him in his desire to become one of us. He finds the circle in which he moves are mostly brethren of the mystic tie. He hears that men of standing in society are daily entering our ranks. Therefore he seeks and obtains admission, and then his ambition is satisfied. In a very short time attendance in his Lodge becomes a trouble. It never occurred to him, at the time of his candidature, that an occasional sacrifice of time to the duties of Freemasonry would be expected of him. He had, indeed, no other motive than a wish to follow in the groove of fashion. That accomplished, he recognises it as no part of his business to be an active, much less an energetic, member of his Lodge. He attends only when he has no other engagement—we do not mean a business engagement, but an engagement to some dinner party, to the theatre, or the opera. The Lodge of Instruction knows him not. He takes no interest in our ceremonies. He evinces no desire to gain a knowledge of our ritual. He may occasionally contribute his mite towards one or other of our Charities, but he does so because he hears it is "good form," not from any interest he feels in the cause of charity. As for extending his support to Masonic literature or Masonic journalism, is it not enough that he has obeyed the laws of fashion, and enrolled himself a Craftsman? When it becomes fashionable to buy a Masonic Cyclopædia, or a Masonic journal, he will not be behind his fellows in the performance of his duty. We may even venture to think that if a study of our literature become the order of the day, he may muster up courage to read occasionally. All this, however, he will do only when he can no longer help himself. He will buy book or paper, and even go the length of reading it, when society tells him it is the right thing to do. The only part of our Masonic labour which he thinks in any wise endurable, is, funnily enough, our Masonic refreshment. We have said the Lodge room hardly knows the inactive Mason, but in the banqueting hall he is very far from being a stranger. Men, and most assuredly men who are likewise brothers, have at least one important duty in the day's work that cannot be neglected. They must dine, and if, as is often the case, the Lodge subscription covers the cost of banquet, then all the greater reason why attendance at refreshment should punctually be observed. Such as these are of no use to us, but a hindrance rather. They swell our numbers, but they bring to us no commensurate strength. They are, indeed, a source of weakness. As the strength of a chain is in its weakest link, so in Masonry; its strength must be governed by the character of those who join its ranks. If men are admitted who are sincere in their desire to learn our beautiful doctrines, who will think it no hardship to take part in the duties of our Lodges, who will strive, on all suitable occasions, to carry out the principles we profess, then it requires no prescience to foretell that in such case Freemasonry will go on flourishing like a green bay-tree. On the other hand, if men are admitted, as it were, indiscriminately, because it is the fashion for people to become Masons, then we do not hesitate to say the Craft must suffer sooner or later. The fainéant Mason will never do good yeoman service. He may, indeed, do much harm, directly as well as indirectly. The indirect harm he does may be summed up in very few words. He is only nominally a Mason. The direct harm he may inflict is well nigh incalculable. Though ignorant, irregular in his attendence, indifferent to our principles, he may still claim to exercise his rights and privileges on all occasions, provided, of course, he pays up all his dues. To mention one case only in which he may be of disservice to his Lodge, and therefore to the whole Craft. The ballot box gives him great power, as well to inflict harm if he abuse it, as to do good if he use it. Therefore it is that so great care should be exercised in admitting candidates. It will happen, of course, in spite of all precautions, that some indifferent persons will find their way into our Society. But it is our duty to try and keep the number of such at a minimum. It is possible, by learning something of a candidate's antecedents, to judge whether he is likely to prove a serviceable addition to our numbers. In many, let us hope in the majority of cases, the introduction of known brethren is a guarantee of the candidate's fitness, but there is too often a laxity on the part of members in proposing and seconding the election of new men. Thus it is our members are swelled by the inclusion in our ranks of men who, once they are elected, trouble themselves no further about Freemasonry. We are better without such inactive Masons. If we are to fulfil our duties properly, the short time at our disposal leaves no room for indifference and irregularity. We must do our work, as we solemnly engaged to do at our initiation, and to this end we must be as careful as we can to exclude those who are at all likely to become inactive members.

CHESHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

THIS Institution was founded in the year 1863, for the education and advancement in life of the children of distressed and deceased Freemasons, and we take this opportunity of congratulating, as we do most heartily, our brethren of the Province of Chester on the very excellent services they have been rendering, during the past thirteen years, in the cause of Masonic Charity. The report for the year 1875 is now before us, and though the Committee express it as their opinion "that there is much laxity on the part of some Lodges and Chapters in forwarding their annual returns, and in collecting subscriptions from the brethren," the facts and figures recorded in it disclose a very gratifying state of things. The account for the year is very favourable. There was an opening balance of £370 1s. The sum of £268 5s 6d was received in the way of fees, subscriptions and donations from the different Lodges, Chapters, and brethren in the Province. The invested funds of the Institution yielded £101 5s. Bro. Charles Duval was instrumental in augmenting the year's receipts, to the extent of £24, by his entertainments at Birkenhead, &c., and one half the collection at Hyde Church, when the P. G. L. attended, yielded over £12. Prov. Grand Chapter contributed five and twenty guineas, and other smaller donations, from the P.G.M. and Lady de Tabley, and other sources, helped to raise the receipt side of the account to £818 16s 10d. The expenditure included, among other items, an outlay for the education of twenty-one pupils, £128 13s 4d, and the advancement of one Four Guineas; invested in Liverpool Gas Company's Stock £265 17s 10, with a balance at bank of £348 5s, and in treasurer's hands £40 6s 7d. The funds of the Institution which, at the close of 1874, amounted to £2,216 11s 2d are now increased to £2,500 19s 5d, including the two balances already mentioned. Thus there is every prospect that with continued, and even, we may hope, increased support, this Masonic Educational Institution may go on prospering more and more from year to year, and so be enabled to extend the field of its operations, and to assist, to an even greater degree than it does now, in helping the children of distressed or deceased brethren. We notice in the list of patrons and governors the names of nearly all the prominent members of the Province, R.W. Bro. Lord de Tabley P.G.M. heading the list, and being energetically seconded by Bros. Lord Combermere, Lord Richard Grosvenor, Sir G. Greenall, the Hon. W. Graham Egerton, M.P. and others, while not a few ladies, Viscountess Combermere and Lady de Tabley being of the number, lend their encouragement, both moral and material, likewise. We repeat our hearty good wishes to the brethren of Cheshire. We trust the good work they have so long fostered may go on yielding fruit more and more abundantly with each successive year!

The installation meeting of the Addiscombe Lodge, No. 1556, will take place this day (Saturday) at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE Monthly Meeting of the General Committee of this Institution was held on Saturday last, under the presidency of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, Vice-President. Among those present were Bros. Capt. Wordsworth, Lt. Col. Creaton, Henry Browse, Capt. Philips, Major Clerke, Hyde Pullen, J. C. Parkinson, William Roebuck, J. M. W. Dosell, J. Montrie, S. Rosenthal, C. F. Matier, Dr. Ramsay, Jesse Turner, D. M. Dewar, H. Young, T. K. Kent, Robt. Kenyon, &c.

A grant of £20 was made to an ex-pupil for his advancement, the circumstances being deemed sufficient to warrant so exceptional an amount. Bro. Robt. Kenyon proposed, and Bro. H. Browse seconded the motion. A further sum of £3,000, out of the £13,000 collected under Lord Leigh's presidency, at the last Festival, was ordered to be invested, making, with the £2,000 previously invested, a total of £5,000. Bro. C. Matier then rose to bring forward the motion of which he had given notice, that an addition of £100 be made to the salary of Bro. Binckes, as Secretary of this Institution. Bro. Binckes having retired from the room, Bro. Matier spoke somewhat to the following effect:—

Brethren,—In rising to move the resolution of which I gave notice of motion at last meeting of the General Committee I am sure you will need but few comments from me. I will simply content myself with giving you the reasons by which I, individually, am actuated. In the first place, I find that, although the income of the Institution has increased from £2477 9s 2d in 1861, when Bro. Binckes succeeded to the Secretarial duties, to the large and unprecedented sum of £13,346 in 1875, I do not find that the income of the Secretary has made a corresponding increase, and it is my firm conviction, as a commercial man, that increase of remuneration should be co-existent with increase of results. I must confess my pleasure at being permitted by the Chairman of the last General Committee, by the advice of several of the firmest supporters of the best interests of the School, to change the original motion of £50 to £100. There is a further sum (charged yearly), this, you are well aware, is given in lieu of commission, which, by the arrangement with Bro. Binckes on his accepting the office was given to him on all sums subscribed over £2000. Well, brethren, had this arrangement been carried out, Bro. Binckes would, in 1875, have received £550 instead of the £200 which was voted when the Annual Festivals had not attained their present gigantic size. My third, my last, and, to my idea, my most cogent reason is, that by thus giving our Secretary a yearly increase, we also offer him a vote of confidence, and give him some small reparation for the slanders which have alike attacked the best interests of the School, the House Committee, and the Official Representative. To show our regard for these calumnies in the way they deserve, we can give to the Institution our best support, to the House Committee our unreserved confidence, and to the Secretary the only tangible commodity in our power—money. I can only express my great pleasure at being permitted to propose this resolution, not only as a Life Governor and a member of the Province of East Lancashire, but as one who may call himself an intimate personal friend of Bro. Binckes, and who can appreciate, in the highest degree, his sterling worth and his unwearying efforts.

Bro. Kenyon, having regard to the merits of the proposal, most cordially seconded it. He regretted sundry of the observations which had fallen from Bro. Matier as to certain past unpleasant differences, and he doubted not that Bro. Matier, on due consideration, would see fit to withdraw certain expressions, which were not in harmony with Masonry. Bro. Kenyon spoke in the highest terms of the zeal and ability which Bro. Binckes had displayed during his tenure of the Secretaryship, and expressed his belief that the proposed addition to that officer's stipend was a just recognition of his merits.

Bro. Jesse Turner, as one of the oldest members of the Audit Committee, remarked that the recent attacks made on the several Committees and the Secretary had failed utterly, while Bro. Col. Ridgway had shown conclusively that the official statement of accounts was fair, clear, and honest. Bro. Turner, however, pointed out that while these attacks in no way affected the members of the Audit and other Committees personally, they must be felt most seriously by Bro. Binckes, whose character was his daily bread. Bro. Turner therefore supported the proposition with the greatest pleasure, and trusted the Committee would accept it unanimously, as it would prove to the world how unaltered and unalterable was the confidence they reposed in their esteemed and zealous Secretary.

Bro. Matier having, in deference to the wish expressed by Bro. Kenyon, withdrawn the expression which had given offence, the Chairman, in a few words, expressed the gratification it afforded him to be able to endorse all that had been said as to Bro. Binckes's merits. The motion was put and carried with acclamation. Bro. Binckes was then summoned, and, on entering the room, was greeted with hearty cheers.

The chairman then notified to Bro. Binckes the result of Bro. Matier's proposition, on which Bro. Binckes rose for the purpose of expressing his acknowledgments.

Bro. Binckes said the last time his stipend had been raised he had expressed his thanks as warmly as he could, nor had he anticipated any further addition would be made. Kind friends, however, had been pleased to think the further services it had been his duty to render to the Institution deserved some further pecuniary recognition, and the Committee had just confirmed such belief by voting the addition proposed by Bro. Matier. He thanked the brethren present most cordially, assuring them, at the same time, that the pleasure he experienced was increased by the unanimity with which the motion was agreed to. Moreover, the vote amounted to a public expression of sympathy with, and continued confidence in him, and must set at rest for ever the accusations of which he had been the object. It amounted, in fact, to a testimony by them in his behalf, not only that the charges brought against him had been brought unjustly, but that after sixteen years spent in the service of the Boys' School, as Secretary, their confidence in him was unabated.

On the motion of Bro. J. C. Parkinson, seconded by Bro. Captain Wordsworth, it was unanimously agreed that the increase of salary should take place from the 1st of January of this year.

The meeting then separated.

We take this opportunity of appending the expression of our heartiest congratulations to Bro. Binckes on this additional proof, were any needed, that his labours are appreciated by the Governing Body of the School, and we feel assured that the vote of last Saturday will be hailed throughout the Craft as a just tribute to his worth.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

ON Monday, 28th August, the boys of our School, to the number of about 175, were invited by Mr. T. B. Smithies, a well-known philanthropist (of Earlham House, Wood Green), to pay him a visit, on which occasion they were provided with a very substantial tea, to which we need hardly say full justice was done. As the evening, unfortunately, was a wet one, the lads were obliged to be kept under shelter of a large tent, but they were by no means dull on that account. Mr. Smithies, who is a capital story-teller, kept the attention of his juvenile audience completely fixed for more than an hour, while he was narrating stories of a highly instructive and amusing character. Mr. Smithies advised the elder boys to add shorthand writing to their other accomplishments, and as an encouragement he most kindly offered to give two prizes to be competed for annually by all who should take up this important study. In addition to the boys, there were present the mother and sister of Mr. Smithies, Dr. Morris, Mrs. Morris and daughters, Mr. Brockleburst, and Mr. Jenkinson.

Mr. Smithies is not a Mason, yet he very kindly invited Bro. Durrant, the W.M. of the Lewis Lodge, Wood Green, to meet the young Lewises.

The evening's amusement terminated with three hearty cheers for the host—such cheers, he said, as he had not heard before, even from much older lungs.

QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION OF THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF ARMAGH.

PURSUANT to advertisement, the Quarterly Meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Armagh, which embraces the counties of Armagh, Louth and Monaghan, was held on the 30th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Francis-street, Dundalk, the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Maxwell Close, M.P., presiding, supported by Bro. John G. Winder, J.P., Deputy Provincial Grand Master. The various Lodges of the Province were well represented. Bros. Thomas A. Young V.W.S.W., James Whitla V.W.J.W., Robert Turner W.S.D., E. G. Fitzgerald Inner Guard, acted for H. H. Handcock as Treasurer, and F. E. Clarke as Inner Guard, with J. J. Hesse as the Venerable Secretary of Provincial Grand Lodge.

The report of the Committee who were appointed to draw up a new code of rules for the government of the Provincial Lodge of Armagh was read by Bro. G. H. Smith, and the rules submitted, which, with one or two verbal alterations, were carried unanimously.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, the local Board of General Purposes, in several instances, submitted two candidates for each office, but such was the enthusiastic spirit of harmony that prevailed in Grand Lodge, all opposition was withdrawn, and the officers unanimously elected as follow:—Bros. V.W.G.S.W. G. H. Smith, 299, Armagh, V.W.G.J.W. Wm. Shimeld, 384, Louth, W.G.S.D. A. K. Young, 223, Monaghan, W.G.J.D. A. Murchie, 24, Armagh, W.G.I.G. F. E. Clarke, 411, Louth; Very Worshipful Bros. H. H. Handcock, J. J. Hesse, Rev. Augustus Young, and Arthur Nelson, were severally re-elected as Treasurer, Secretary, Chaplain and Organist to the Provincial Grand Lodge.

Bros. Richard Harvey 85, and Hugh Leonard 384, were elected as Representatives of the Province on the Board of General Purposes at the Grand Lodge of Ireland; and Bros. Robert Turner P.M. 39, Armagh, Past Provincial G.S.W., and V.W. J. J. Hesse, Grand Secretary, 384, Louth, as Representatives on the Board of Instruction. Bro. Smith read the report of the late Banquet Committee, at which 175 brethren attended; after which the Lodge was closed, and the brethren retired to the "Queen's Arms Hotel," where they dined, under the presidency of the Worshipful Master, Maxwell Close, M.P., whose health was drank with the customary Masonic honours, which were given with great enthusiasm.

General Turr, Venerable of a Hungarian Lodge and Grand Officer of the Grand Orient of Hungary, and well known, no doubt, to most of our readers, as a former companion-in-arms of General Garibaldi was, according to le Monde Maçonnique, affiliated to the Lode La Clémente Amitié on the 18th August. The address of Bro. Cousin, and the General's reply were welcomed with the most enthusiastic plaudits.

The minutes of the last Quarterly Communication were read by the Grand Secretary.

It was proposed by Bro. Joshua Nunn, and duly seconded, that the following grants be made from the Benevolent Fund:—

A brother of the Crystal Palace Lodge, No. 742, London	£50	0	0
The Five Orphan Children of a late brother of the Lodge of Truth, No. 944, Bombay	£50	0	0
The Widow of a late brother of the Lodge of Perfect Friendship, No. 376, Ipswich	£50	0	0

Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, moved, first, that the Report of the Board of General Purposes be taken as read; and, secondly, that it be received and entered on the minutes, both of which motions, having been seconded, were put and carried unanimously.

Bro. Rev. Robert J. Simpson, P.G. Chaplain, then rose, and addressing the Most Worshipful Grand Master and the brethren, said, that in laying before the Grand Lodge the motion of which he had given notice, he wished to lay down for himself three rules, which he hoped would be adopted and allowed by the brethren, and by the speakers who might follow him. The first was, that he should be brief in his remarks; the second, that he should refrain from allusions to persons or the press; and the third, that he should not touch upon the actions of the last Grand Lodge, save and except so far as it was necessary to do so in relation to the subject in hand. Professor Buckland, he believed, had said that a certain amount of heat and tranquillity were necessary to the cultivation of oysters. He was quite sure that on the last occasion there was too much heat and too little tranquillity. He trusted that the heat to-night would be the heat that evinced brotherly love, and that would lead to a calm and just decision. Referring to the resolution that a committee should be appointed to consider the motion, as a natural sequence to that resolution he now ventured to offer the names to be appointed on that committee for the approval or otherwise of the brethren. He was not sure that one particular member of Grand Lodge should have proposed any definite scheme, but that in the very beginning a committee should have been appointed to carry out this great object. That was not done. He was himself an offender in that respect, and therefore he pleaded guilty to being a party to having thus dealt with this subject. But he could not conceal from himself that as it was drawn up in the heat of discussion, it was intended to ward off a great and imminent danger. That object had been attained, and he understood that it was now the opinion that it might be more convenient not to proceed with the committee (cries of "No, no"), but to proceed with another definite motion. Of course it was within the province of Grand Lodge to reject this motion. He would venture to propose the names of these members of the Committee. He thought that they were all brethren who, if chosen, would carry out earnestly and faithfully the object intended. He thought it would be likely to confer a lasting benefit and true dignity on the Order, and therefore, without further comment, he would submit the motion he had placed upon the paper, viz.:—

That in accordance with the resolution passed at the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge the following brethren constitute a Special Committee, to consider the best mode of perpetuating, in some charitable form, our thankfulness to Almighty God for the preservation and safe return from India of our Most Worshipful Grand Master, His Royal Highness the PRINCE of WALES, and report thereon to Grand Lodge:—

With power to add to their number.

The motion was seconded by Bro. Edward Cox P.M. 657.

Bro. Philbrick said undoubtedly the occasion was one which demanded a commemoration from the Craft. As to the manner in which that commemoration was to be made, was left to the Committee which had now been nominated by Bro. Simpson. There was, however, an oversight, and he should be very much disappointed if its rectification were not assented to by Bro. Simpson. There were certain eminent Grand Officers who, from personal merit and official position, were entitled to be on a committee of this sort. For instance, there was Lord Carnarvon, there was the Grand Treasurer, the President of the Board of General Purposes, the President of the Colonial Board, and the President of the Board of Benevolence. He merely wished to put, in the form of an amendment, that these holders of great offices should be added to this Committee to carry out the object which they all had at heart. He would add also the name of Bro. Sir Albert Woods. The amendment was seconded by Bro. R. Stewart. Bro. Simpson, in explanation, merely wished to say that his great difficulty in nominating a committee was to make a selection from so many worthy brethren. He had, therefore, put down as few names as possible, adding the words "with power to add to their number," in order that Grand Lodge might itself make the additions. He willingly assented to the additional names proposed.

After some conversation as to whether the foregoing was an amendment,

Bro. Dr. Hogg said, that as it was decided that Bro. Philbrick's was not an amendment, he believed that there would be a considerable number of brethren who disapproved of Bro. Simpson's motion; it did appear to him that there was a difference of opinion on the matter, and that he might, by some motion, bring about a harmony of feeling in Grand Lodge on the subject, so that a worthy commemoration might be carried out. Being out of town, and unable to communicate with the Board of Masters, he thought it his duty to place his motion on the paper. It appeared to him that, in appointing a committee of this kind, there would be much difference of opinion as to this, and he might put this Grand Lodge in order by proposing an amendment to a committee.

The Grand Master reminded Bro. Hogg that the question before the Lodge was who the committee was to be composed of.

Bro. Hogg said that if Grand Lodge were of opinion that Bro. Simpson's committee should be appointed, he would with pleasure withdraw his amendment. Bro. Wynne thought that they should inquire what were the opinions of this committee, and what they intend to do—an observation which caused considerable merriment.

The Grand Master rose to put the motion.

Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley said that to some extent he believed the feeling of Grand Lodge was in the main with Bro. Simpson, but there was a feeling that the meeting should have some notion of the direction in which the committee should act ("no, no"); that feeling was defined by the fact that Bro. Simpson added to his motion a motion for retreat, in which he indicated how he intended to propose a certain motion that was placed upon the agenda paper. He thought that the committee should act with equal justice and beneficence to all the Charities. (Cries of "order" and "question.") He proposed that there be an instruction to this committee.

The Grand Registrar pointed out to the speaker that the committee must first be appointed. Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley proposed to add a rider to the motion.

The Grand Registrar reminded the Lodge that the Committee was resolved upon at last Grand Lodge, and the only question before this Grand Lodge to-night was the nomination of the Committee-men. Bro. Capt. J. E. Curteis, Devon, said that there was an important body of officers that had been overlooked, viz.—the Provincial Grand Officers, and he begged to propose that the Provincial Grand Masters be added to the Committee.

This amendment having been seconded, the Grand Registrar observed that the amendment proposed by Bro. Philbrick had been assented to by Bro. Simpson, and the amendment now before Grand Lodge he considered in every way deserving of consideration. He thought that Bro. Capt. Curteis might have gone a step further, and added the Prov. Deputy Grand Masters, but that he had not done. He himself could not second the amendment, as that had already been done, but he declared himself a supporter of the amendment that the Provincial Grand Masters be added to the Committee.

To this amendment Bro. Simpson also declared his assent.

The Grand Master then put the resolution as proposed on the agenda, with the addition of the Grand Officers, proposed by Bro. Philbrick, and the Provincial Grand Masters, as proposed by Capt. Curteis, which was carried unanimously.

Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

Register of the Various Masonic Bodies holding regular meetings, under Warrant, at the Village of Maitland, in the County of Granville, Province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, in the year 1876. Ottawa: Printed by the Citizen Printing and Publishing Company.

The publication of this Register must be taken as evidence of the energy and will with which Masons and Members of the high and side degrees pursue their duties in the Village of Maitland. It contains a list of officers of the several bodies, their places and times of meeting, as well as a table of the fees and annual dues of each. It is highly creditable that such a Register should make its appearance in a place yet small enough to be described as a village. There are many larger places where a guide of this kind would experience a very cold reception indeed, or meet, perhaps, with no encouragement whatever. It is manifest the compilers of this have reason to look for support. We presume so, at least, or we scarcely think they would have incurred the expense of printing and publishing. As to the manner in which the Register has been compiled, it seems to us that no pains have been spared to make it as complete as possible. It is well arranged and free from needless detail, and certainly merits support from the various bodies of which it gives particulars.

MAGAZINES OF THE MONTH.

We cannot say we think very highly of the political article—a "Review of the Session"—which appears this month in Blackwood. It seems to us to lack some of that vigour which generally characterises these papers. But, with this exception, the number is an admirable one. We have reached Part IV. of "A Woman Hater," and the further we advance in the story the more we like it. The personages who stand out most prominently are the Klosking, Harrington and Zoe Vizard, Fanny, and Mr. Severne; the most attractive scene, a gaming salon; the occasion, an evening when the bank is broken, by none other than the Klosking, who quits the room winner of close on £5,000. The tale is well conceived, and we are gradually beginning to obtain a clearer insight into its intricacies. No. II. of "Devious Rambles with a Definite Object," carries us across the German Ocean to the land of dams, and we make acquaintance with many varieties of Dutch life, past and present, an old and little known narrative of a Mrs. Calderwood's tour in Holland supplying the sketches of Dutch life, in the days, long gone by, of hoops, fans, periwigs, &c., &c. Next comes an excellent paper on "Speculative Investments," and then two accounts of the "Loss of the Strathmore," the narrators being Mrs. and Mr. Wordsworth. "Politics and War, Reviewed from the Alps," is the subject of the fourth in the series of "A Wanderer's Letters." Very well written is this series, and the present letter is no exception. Some lines on "The Twelfth of August," and a sketch of "Alfred de Musset," complete the list of contributions. It will be seen from this that only in the political part of the programme is there noticeable any falling off in point of merit.

Just at this moment, when Turkey and its people occupy so prominent, and in some respects unenviable a position before Europe, the article in Cornhill "On Turkish Ways and Turkish Women" is pretty certain to find a host of readers. Though there are many among us whose denunciations of the Turk and his ways are both loud and frequent, we doubt if more than a limited few of these self-sufficient critics know much, if anything, about Turkish domestic life. The paper under notice contains a full account of life in the Harem, and as the writer announces in the opening lines that she spent five years of her life, between 1867 and 1872, in a harem in Constantinople, we have faith in the accuracy of her description. And not only this, but we think the tone of her remarks, and indeed her account generally, are indicative of the Turk not being so black as people just now are striving to paint him. Polygamy and slavery are a grievous sin in the eyes of Englishmen, but Englishmen are not the only moral people who have lived on the face of this earth. We have no sympathy whatever with these two institutions. We are simply desirous of pointing out that the Turks are by no means the utter barbarians they are so often represented to be. At all events, let those who care to learn something trustworthy of the domestic life of a Pasha, devote a spare hour to reading this article. We do not expect they will fall in love with polygamy, but we think they will learn a good deal of which it may be they are now ignorant, and especially that Turkish women-folk are by no means as ill-treated as we imagine them to be. The article on the "First of September" is about the best in the whole collection. The writer, who handles his subject both ably and discreetly, describes sport as it was in the days of our fathers and grandfathers, and sport as it is now. The contrast is not favourable to the latter. A few sensible remarks follow as to the value of sport as a prime element in training men to endure fatigue, and to acquire skill in the use of firearms, as well in habits of perseverance, but, above all, in "promoting the union of the corpus sanum with the mens sana, and of maintaining the healthy balance of all the elements of our nature." One other article describing "A Human Sacrifice" is worth reading, and the serial "Carità" progresses satisfactorily.

The paper in Temple Bar, headed "Morality on a Spanish Wharf," introduces us to the daily life of a homely, but worthy class of people, the Cadiz boatmen. The author is quite enthusiastic in his account of them. He says they are genial, honest folk, poor but hospitable, uneducated, but with a sense of refinement about them we should hardly look for in our English ports. He quotes several of their sayings, proverbial and other, and one or two of them we take leave to re-quote. "The good fare worse than the bad in Spain; but it's best to be good: you are happier." The writer gave one of them some silver for managing the boat skilfully in a rough sea, adding, "I wish it were gold." To which the answer came, "No matter: I receive it as such." Again, "God says all men are brothers; the world says all rich men are brothers;" and "All men are sons of God, and we ought to help one another; but the world does not think so." Our only regret is that the paper is so short. The article on the "Freeing of Servia" gives a brief account of the achievements and death of Czerny George, to whom the Servians are mainly indebted for their freedom. Just now, as illustrating the character of this people, the sketch will find, no doubt, many readers. Mr. A. C. Ewald contributes the first of a series of papers on "Ministers and Maxims," the subject in this instance being "Strafford and his policy of 'Thorough.'" "A Pig Hunt in the Dark" and "The Legend of the Lande of Lanvanz," by Katharine S. Macquoid, are worth mentioning. Mr. Trollope's serial story of "The American Senator" is still in progress, but Mr. Wilkie Collins has concluded his highly interesting romance of "The Two Destinies."

Baily stands high among periodicals, occupying, indeed, a position by itself, there being no other magazine that aspires to represent the whole of the sporting world, though there are some, like Hunt's Yachting Magazine, which watch over the interests of one particular sport. Thus in Baily there is sure to be one or more articles to suit the special tastes of individual readers. For instance, those who care for horse-racing will find an excellent description, by "Amphion," of a training establishment, under the title of "Sheffield Lane." Then there is a survey of "cricket" during the past month, in which the brilliant achievements of Mr. W. G. Grace receive an ample measure of justice. The "Yachting and Rowing" summary is equally meritorious, while "Our Van" is mostly taken up with Brighton during the race-week, reserving, however, for a final paragraph, the strong expressions of its disgust at the shabby conduct of the Tyne men in the late match for the championship. "Our Van" driver has a full sense of the demerits of their case, and we endorse his sentiments fully. The other contributions are a further chapter in the history of "Frank Raleigh of Watercombe," the continuation of "Recollections of Mr. Thomas Coleman," and some "Reminiscences of Mr. Henry Wood's Beagles," together with a short biography of Major General Mark Wood, whose portrait embellishes the number. If the contributions are not many as regards number, they exhibit, all of them, a very high degree of merit, and fully justify a statement we have made before that Baily is always a welcome visitor.

We have noted, among other contributions to the Leisure Hour, a brief biographical sketch by Dr. John Rimbault of Professor John Hullah, an article by Canon Rawlinson on "Early Civilisation," and an account of "The Great Hailstorm in Oxfordshire, on 9th August, 1843." This is one of the most terrible storms on record as having visited this country, the amount of damage done having been very considerable. The story is told very graphically. In another part we find a sixth in the series descriptive of "The Border Lands of Islam," Bulgaria, where so many scenes of violence have recently been enacted, being the subject. Then there are some very characteristic letters of Lord Palmerston's. Some "American Caricatures," relating to the Colonies before and towards the close of the War of Independence, are very curious, and there is a very full description of "The New General Post Office." "Queensland" forms the subject of another article, and in another is given an account of "A Trip to Java." The "Natural History Anecdotes," the "Antiquarian Gossip on the Months," and "Weather Proverbs" will be found as attractive as ever. We give the following, anent the strange old custom at Easter, of "lifting" or "heaving," quoted from vol. i. of the Book of Days. A grave clergyman "happened to be passing through a town in Lancashire, and having to stay an hour or two at an inn, was astonished by three or four lusty women rushing into his room, exclaiming they had 'come to lift him.' 'To lift me?' repeated the amazed divine, 'what can you mean?' 'Why, your reverence, we've come to lift you 'cause it's Easter Tuesday.' 'Lift me because it's Easter Tuesday? I don't understand you! Is there any such custom here?' 'Yes, to be sure; why, don't you know? All us women was lifted yesterday, and us lifts the men to-day in turn; and, in course, it's our rights and duties to lift them.' After a little further parley the reverend traveller compromised with his fair visitors for half-a-crown, and thus escaped the dreaded compliment."

The principal features in the Sunday at Home are again Dr. Stoughton's series of papers on "Westminster Abbey," and a continuation of another series on "Welsh Preaching and Welsh Preachers." Mrs. Finn contributes a third article on "Agriculture in Palestine." We have noticed also some interesting particulars of "The Jewish New Year, or the Feast of Trumpets," and an equally interesting sketch of "Queen Pomare and Tahiti."

We have received Part I. of the Countries of the World, a new serial publication by Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin. The Editor is Dr. Robert Brown, late President of the Royal Physical Society, Edinburgh, and with the memory of his able conduct of the Races of Mankind, we have no doubt whatever that this new illustrated work will prove a great success. The illustrations are of a better class than usual, while the literary matter has been collated from authentic sources, and is well put together, in the form of a highly interesting and very readable narrative. We are fully sensible of the earnest efforts of Messrs. Cassell and Co. to place a high class literature within easy reach of all classes of readers, and we heartily congratulate them on the auspicious commencement of this latest periodical work of theirs. We have every reason to believe that the Countries of the World will prove a highly acceptable addition to our current literature.

The distinguishing features of Cassell's Family Magazine are beyond all praise. "My Holiday Walking Tour, and How I Managed It," is appropriate to the season, especially when there are still many tourists who are anxiously wondering how they shall best employ their holiday. "A Family Doctor" instructs those who need such instruction, "How to Cure Nervousness." Those who need the information are favoured with a few valuable wrinkles, "How to make Jams and Preserves," and there is some sensible advice in the paper on "Art Furniture and Decorations for Home Use." "How to Cook a Hare" is a subject we are not all of us acquainted with. The light thrown upon this important domestic question will prove invaluable to the housewife and the cook. There are many who know well enough "How to become a Solicitor." At least they evince their knowledge of a solicitor's business by asking in season and out of season. The solicitor, however, in this case is known likewise as an attorney, and those who are inclined to study this branch of the law, will no doubt derive immense profit from a study of the paper bearing the title we have quoted. "Chit-chat on Dress" we commend to the notice of our lady readers, and the frontispiece, "My Little Treasure," to all lovers of art.

The Lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous Lodge meeting having been read and confirmed, the Secretary, Bro. Rogers P.P.G.S.W., read the report, which showed that there are 46 Lodges in Devon, with 2,350 members. The report was very favourable, inasmuch as the whole of the Lodges had made their annual returns, and £268 6s 6d had been received.

The Treasurer, Brother Pasmore, read the financial report. This showed the receipts for the year to be £473 14s 1d. Out of the money received, £52 10s had been given to the Devon and Exeter Hospital, £105 5s to the Fortescue Annuity Fund, £26 5s to the Masonic Boys' School, and 10 other gifts to relatives of deserving brethren, £61. These amounts, with sundry expenses in working the Province, left a balance of £170 14s 3d in the hands of the Treasurer. The Fortescue Annuity Fund showed that £256 4s 11d had been received, and £262 2s 5d expended, leaving a balance due to the Treasurer of £5 17s 6d.

Brother Gover read the report of the Committee of Petitions, which presented the most favourable aspect yet shown.

In addition to the £61 voted at their last meeting, they had that day relieved four applicants,—two widows £5 each, one widow £10, one brother £20.

During the year they had succeeded in securing the election of one candidate to the Girls' School, one aged Mason and two widows to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

The Committee feel that their thanks are eminently due to the W. Bro. C. Godtschalk, for his energetic and very successful management, in London, of the various elections on behalf of the Province during the past year.

While thus eulogising a deserving brother, the Committee would be ungrateful if they did not record on their minutes the expression of their deep regret at the loss the Province has experienced by the death of the M.W. H. Dubosc, who had for some time acted zealously and judiciously on behalf of the Province at the various elections in London.

As a proof of his Masonic zeal, it may be mentioned that Bro. Dubosc had no less than fifty votes in his own right. Their thanks were also due to Bro. H. J. Dubosc, who had thoroughly identified himself with the Province; had largely contributed to the London Charities, and had assisted the committee in other ways.

Bro. J. E. Curtois proposed the sum of £100 be given to the R.M.B. Institution. He spoke of the admirable management of that Institution, and alluded to the charges, brought by a section of the brethren of West Yorkshire, against the directorate of the Boys' School. He called on Bro. Chas. Godtschalk to second the proposition, and to give detailed information and figures in reference to what the Institution was doing for the Province.

Bro. Charles Godtschalk, in offering a few remarks in support of the proposed grant of £100 said, Did the available funds of Provincial Grand Lodge warrant it, he should ask and support a grant for a much larger amount. The brethren had heard, from the Report of the Committee of Petitions, what the R.M.B. Institution was doing for the Annuitants of the Province; it was out of all proportion to the support given to the Institution by the Province. It would be well to place before the brethren the actual figures, for which he could vouch. He had obtained them through the courtesy of the able Secretary of the Institution, Bro. James Terry. Bro. Godtschalk then showed, clearly and distinctly, every penny received by the province through its annuitants, male and female, for the last financial year. He contrasted against this the entire sum given by the Province to the Institution during the same period, this showed that the Province had 46 Craft Lodges and 24 R.A. Chapters, independent of the other orders in Masonry. He then proceeded to analyse the Stewards' lists for the same year, these showed a result against the Province to a considerable amount. He was sure that these figures had but to be known to be at once altered. Every brother present would not only feel it his duty, but his pleasure, to assent to this grant, which would be merely an act of justice, considering that the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution existed only from hand to mouth, that it possessed no rich endowments, had no large amounts from funded monies, but owed its very existence to voluntary subscriptions from our provinces, and individual benevolence. He urged that if an important province or section of our Order take largely in excess of what they were giving, the Institution must collapse. The brethren had heard, through the Committee of Petitions, that every vote coming into their hands had been utilised, that this had been their most successful year; in fact, the Province got more than value for their votes; by profitable exchanges and loans, by reserving their strength, by not throwing away more votes than was necessary to carry a candidate. If the brethren would follow the figures of the Committee of Petitions, read by their Secretary Bro. Gover, they would find the highest candidate of some provinces this year had been carried by 500 or 600 more votes than our candidate had received, and yet we had been successful. This result spoke for itself. He was sure the Province would maintain the high character it had always borne, that it would not fall from its high estate. He therefore asked them to unanimously support the proposition which he was proud to second, viz.: That One Hundred Pounds be given by this Provincial Grand Lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. This was put to the vote and carried with acclamation.

This vote exhausted the available funds. Bro. Gover, however, stated that he had pledged a certain sum for the Boys' Institution, and he asked the brethren to draw a little upon their future receipts and grant a sum of £10 10s, whereupon the Venerable Provincial Grand Master said that such a course would be unnecessary, as he would himself give the ten guineas. This announcement was received with great applause.

The following were the appointments:—Bros. L. P. Metham, D. Prov. G.M., P.G.D. England, J. E. Curtois, 189, Prov. Grand S.W., J. Harper, 251, Prov. Grand J.W., H. M. Body, 1332, Prov. Grand S.D., Charles Godtschalk, 1255, Grand J.D., Rev. H. Lansdale, 421, Rev. Noel Plate, Chaplains, J. J. Avery, 1550, Treasurer, F. Day, 421, Registrar, W. G. Rogers, 112, re-elected Secretary, S. B. Colston, 248, Grand Sup. Wks., J. A. Orchard, 164, D.C., J. H. Tonkin, 282, P.G.A.D.C., P. D. Michelmore, 1138, P.G.S.B., W. Quicke, 39, P.G.O., W. Haynes, 106, P.G. Pur. Stewards:—Bros. D. Watson 328, G. Evans 1181, F. J. Pratt 1396, J. T. Goodridge 1358, J. P. Phillips 223, C. Stribling 70, J. May 159.

At the request of the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Metham, delivered a very impressive oration to the brethren, which, we hope, will soon be printed and distributed in all the Lodges of Devon.

At the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge for the Province of North Wales and Shropshire, held at Wrexham, under the presidency of the R.W.P.G.M., Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., the post of R.W.P.G.M. was again conferred upon Sir Watkin: and, in place of the late Lord Harlech, Bro. Bulkeley Hughes M.P., was elected Deputy P.G.M. The members then went in procession to the parish church, where Divine service was held, and a sermon preached by P.G. Chaplain the Rev. A. L. Taylor.

THE ADMISSION OF VISITORS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

29th August 1876.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I see in your impression of 26th August, under the heading of "The Admission of Visitors," three questions propounded. I should like you to insert the following remarks, which, I trust, are consonant with the true spirit of Masonry and common sense:—

Question I. "Whether a brother who is properly vouched for * * * * can claim the right of admission." I hold that if a brother seeking admission to a Lodge "can be vouched for by any brother present as a true Mason," and "no other brother present can urge anything against the character or habits of the applicant," he can claim, as a brother, admission to the Lodge "while at labour."

Question II. Whether a brother who is personally known, recommended, or can prove himself * * * because he presents himself minus his certificate.

I hold that if a brother is known to any members of a Lodge so recommended by any, this is tantamount to vouching for his identity and Masonhood, unless anything is known against him he should be admitted; there would, in this case, be no need of a certificate.

2ndly, If a stranger applies for admission, and duly satisfies his examiner, but comes minus his certificate, the case resolves itself into two issues: 1. Are the W.M. and the examining brother satisfied that the applicant is a bonâ fide Mason, and that he is honestly seeking admission as a true brother? and are they satisfied in their own minds that the reason given for the want of certificate or diploma is honest and true?

I consider this a matter for the W.M. to decide on his own responsibility.

To take the broad view of Masonry, "a brother who can prove himself such," is entitled to the same privileges and good offices as another who is well known to yourself."

Since, however, the constitution of Grand Lodges, and the greater diffusion of the Craft, diplomas or certificates have been issued to all Masons regularly entered on the Grand Lodge books, and should be produced by every brother seeking admission to a Lodge as a visitor. The constitutions of Grand Lodge England seem to bear out my views, so do the constitutions of Grand Lodge Scotland. There is, however, a lex non scripta that diplomas should be produced.

This may seem a paradox, but if I understand it aright, it simply means that the constitutions, or rather the compilers thereof, do not wish to fetter the judgments of W.M.'s and examining brethren, and to relieve stranger brethren from much inconvenience.

Why, then, should diplomas be demanded? and why should discretion be left to the W.M. or the Lodge? Diplomas are necessary to prove that the stranger brother has been initiated, passed, and raised in a duly constituted Lodge, Just, Perfect, and Regular. I regret to have to say so, but there are undoubtedly spurious Lodges irregularly constituted wherein members are enrolled and taught Masonry; therefore diplomas should be demanded. Why should there be any discretion left? simply because many cases might occur of hardship. I heard of an officer in India who in action lost his baggage and with it his regalia and Grand Lodge diploma—a brother might his lose diploma by fire or theft, or he might be wrecked; it is not easy in all cases to get a duplicate diploma.

Question III. If in dealing with visitors a discretionary power * * * * the Lodge or the W.M.? I hold that in all cases of difficulty the discretionary power rests with the W.M., who is responsible to his Lodge. It is always in the power of the W.M. to consult his Wardens, or the Lodge generally, but, as ruler and responsible agent, the W.M. must ever decide all questions of difficulty, guided by the Constitutions and Landmarks of Masonry, and the Bye-laws of his Lodge.

I remain, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

GEO. R. HARRIOTT, of Killiemore,

P.G.M. Wigtown and Kirkcudbright.

COLOURED FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to ask, through the medium of your estimable journal, if, in the course of his varied Masonic studies, Bro. Hughan has lighted on any evidence of value, which may throw further light on the early events connected with the history of this troublesome question. Prince Hall is said to have been initiated, with thirteen other coloured men, in a travelling Lodge attached to one of the Regiments of the British Army, then stationed in Boston, early in 1775. Is he aware of any evidence that will substantiate this, and also the further statement made by Prince Hall, in his letter of application for a Charter to Grand Lodge (Moderns) of England, that the Lodge had been founded some years. If he can throw any light on these and other points, connected with the first so-called Coloured Lodge, he will be doing some service towards the settlement of a vexed question. I do not ask for the purpose of extracting an opinion he may feel it unwise or inexpedient to give. I do so, because I consider he is the likeliest man in England to furnish this information.

My name and Masonic standing are at Bro. Hughan's disposition, in order to satisfy him of my bona fides.

Yours fraternally,

NIMIUM NE CREDE COLORI.

THE LATE BRO. FARNFIELD AND GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have been asked so many questions with respect to Bro. Henry Greene's motion in Grand Lodge to grant an annuity to my mother, that I think it only fair to state through the medium of your paper that the notice of motion was given without any previous communication with my mother, brothers, or myself, and therefore, of course, without our sanction.

At my earnest request the notice was not renewed, as I am both able and willing to supplement the income left by my late father, so as amply to provide for my mother and sisters.

Bro. Greene knows, and it is therefore almost unnecessary to state here, that we are deeply sensible of the good feeling which prompted him to act as he has done in the matter.

By inserting this letter you will greatly oblige,

Yours fraternally,

J. A. FARNFIELD.

A. AND A. SCOTTISH RITE IN NEW ZEALAND.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

VERY DEAR BROTHER,—As an honorary member of the Grand Orient of Egypt, permit me to explain that the Thames Advertiser, of New Zealand, is in error as to a Craft Lodge being chartered by the Egyptian authorities of the "Ancient and Accepted Rite" for Dunedin; and the warning of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, with respect to the same, are quite needless. No such Lodge has been warranted for Dunedin, as your correspondent refers to. It is true that a Warrant has been granted by the Supreme Council of Egypt 33° to New Zealand to constitute a Supreme Council for that country (Egypt being the nearest Body working that rite), and that the Warrant mentions the first, second, and third degrees, as is usual in such cases. The brethren, however, to whom the 33° Warrant is granted, are most intelligent and honourable members of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and the chief officer of the Supreme Council 33° of New Zealand so established is our respected Brother William Caldwell, Grand Superintendent for New Zealand under the Supreme Grand R.A. Chapter of Scotland.

To suppose that these brethren had any intention of illegally working the Craft degrees would be to believe they were capable of violating their obligations! Indeed, so strongly do the brethren feel the imputations cast upon them by the Masonic authorities in Scotland, that Brother Caldwell has resigned his office as Grand Superintendent of R.A. Masons, and the notice of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, unless withdrawn, will only serve to hasten the birth of an Independent Grand Lodge for New Zealand, unless, as it is likely, the more generous rule of the Grand Lodge of England is preferred.

The Supreme Council 33° of Scotland was not, we believe, regularly warranted by any legal 33°, or the officers thereof would know of the custom to include the 33° in such a charter. The Supreme Council 33°, however, never works in the three first degrees in any part where a Grand Lodge has jurisdiction, unless in such a country as France, in which both bodies claim authority, coequally, over the Craft, although we think the Craft Grand Lodge has the best of the argument. I should state that the Supreme Council 33° of Egypt granted the Warrant for 33° of New Zealand, free of any charges whatever. The Grand Orient of Egypt (Craft) has no connection with the Supreme Council 33° of Egypt any more than such bodies are connected in this country. The Grand Lodge of England has lately recognised the Grand Orient of Egypt, and its career is bound to be happy and prosperous.

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN,

Past S.G.W. of Egypt.

"'J. G.' writes with a considerable amount of freedom, never hesitating to 'hit off' a weakness when he finds it publicly displayed by a 'distinguished brother;' at the same time he never loses sight of a good trait when it is displayed, either in connexion with the Craft or in the service of the public out of doors. FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

ON Thursday of last week was held the annual gathering of the Braemer Royal Highland Society. It was expected that the Queen and all the other members of the Royal Family now sojourning in the Highlands would have been present to witness the sports which take place on this occasion. But the weather was unpropitious, and the Queen and Princess Beatrice were absent. The Prince and Princess of Wales and their two boys, as well as Prince Leopold, drove up about two o'clock, the Princes wearing the Royal Stuart tartan, and remained for some three hours, highly interested spectators of the games. The Farquharson and Duff Clansmen and some of the Kincardineshire Volunteers, numbering, in all, about one hundred and fifty, and headed by their pipers, had previously assembled. The sports consisted of throwing the hammer and stone, jumping, running, dancing, and bagpipe-playing. In addition to the Royal Party, there was a large and fashionable attendance, including Colonel Farquharson, the Earl of Fife, Viscount Cardwell, the Marquis of Huntly, and Mr. Goschen, M.P. The Volunteers and Farquharson Highlanders were afterwards entertained at dinner by Colonel Farquharson, and the Duff Highlanders by the Earl of Fife. The usual ball followed. It is announced that the Prince of Wales, with a numerous party, will attend the approaching Doncaster Races, arrangements having already been made, and two private boxes, adjoining the Noblemen's Stands, secured for the reception of the distinguished party. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught reached Vienna on Sunday night, and was received by the Imperial Crown Prince Rudolf and Sir Andrew Buchanan, our ambassador. The object of His Royal Highness's visit is to witness the Austrian Military Manœuvres.

The Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday. There was a numerous attendance, and the motion of Bro. Rev. R. J. Simpson, for a Committee to take into consideration the best way of commemorating the Grand Master's visit to India, was carried unanimously, two amendments, one by Bro. Philbrick, for the inclusion of other high officers of the Order, and the second by Bro. Captain Curteis, of the Province of Devon, that the Provincial Grand Masters be added to the list having previously been accepted and given effect to in the resolution. Full particulars of this and the other business transacted will be found elsewhere.

Sportsmen, these latter days, have not been highly favoured in respect of the weather. Partridge shooting commenced on Friday of last week, except in parts of the country where the ingathering of the harvest is not yet complete. The general tone of the reports from various parts of the country points to a capital season, and on the opening day several good bags were made in Surrey, Kent, Leicestershire, Norfolk, Worcestershire, and other districts.

The excitement about the atrocities committed by the Turks is on the increase. Meetings are being held in various parts of the country, and resolutions expressing the deepest indignation at the cruelties practised by the Turks on the Christian population of their provinces are carried by enormous majorities. Mr. Gladstone has issued a pamphlet, and will meet his constituents to-day at 3 p.m., and, no doubt, in Monday's paper we shall read a spirit-stirring speech by the right honourable gentleman. It seems, beyond all doubt, that the grossest barbarities have been committed, and that a terrible sacrifice of life have accompanied them. It is needless to say we have no sympathy whatever with the ruffians who have been guilty of these atrocious acts. But as the Pall Mall Gazette very properly points out, the people of this country must not allow sentiment to take the place of statesmanship. The task our Government has before it is hard enough in all conscience without people making it even harder still by playing the "little game," which Russia, notably of our great European rivals in Empire, has been pursuing steadily throughout. Righteous indignation is a very glorious thing to witness, but indignation and statesmanship have nothing in common with each other. Seeing what the policy of Russia in regard to the Eastern Question has always been, seeing that had she not encouraged the earlier aggressions on Turkish authority, the crisis might have been, if not avoided, at least determined long since, the people of this country will act wisely if they abstain from doing anything that may hamper the free action of Her Majesty's ministers. Already, as our contemporary points out, since these public meetings have been held, shoals of Russian officers have been pouring into Servia, and fighting against the Turks. Russia only wants an excuse to take the field against her ancient enemy, and the people of England seem likely to afford her the occasion. It is easy enough to talk of kicking the Turk out of Europe, but in our righteous indignation at the cruelties he has practised, we must not entirely overlook the interests of the British Empire.

Great Yarmouth has long been one of our most popular sea-side resorts, and on Tuesday the number of its attractions was increased by the opening of a large Aquarium, erected close by the Britannia Pier, on a site granted by the Town Council to the Aquarium Company Limited, on lease for 999 years at a yearly ground rent of £60. The building includes a restaurant, a skating-rink, and reading and assembly-rooms, in addition to the Aquarium proper, which occupies the basement of what is intended to be a large concert hall. It has an area of 190 feet by 90 feet. There are eighteen tanks arranged on each side, varying in length from 17 feet to 50 feet, and in width from 5 feet to 15 feet. At each end of the Aquarium is a pond, and rockwork covered with ferns, over which falls a cascade. The utmost care has been taken in the internal arrangements, and especially for circulating water, filling and emptying the tanks, and isolating any one or more of them, if necessary. The cost thus far has reached the sum of £35,000. The opening ceremonial was of a very simple character. Lord Suffield, chairman of the board of directors, was met by the contractors, builders, and others, and having traversed the building, formally declared it open. Luncheon followed, Lord Suffield presiding, and being supported by the Mayor of Yarmouth, and Sir E. Lacon, M.P. We wish the Aquarium Company all prosperity.

Native rowing talent appears to have carried nearly all before it at the Centennial Regatta, Philadelphia. We are sorry to learn, however, that a dispute has arisen, originating in an appeal by the London Rowing Club four against the Beaverwyck four on the ground of a foul. The umpire, a Mr. Brown, disallowed the appeal, on which the London men declined to take further part in the regatta, though some among them were entered for the pairs and sculls, unless Mr. Brown withdrew from the umpireship.

A sad accident, by which four lives were lost, occurred on Wednesday, by the fall of a newly-erected railway arch in the city. This arch or tunnel, over a passage known as Cavendish-court, hard by Devonshire-square, was part of the Metropolitan Extension in course of construction between Bishopsgate and Aldgate. The props had been removed, and the roadway laid with gravel, when a man with a horse and cart were about crossing, and the whole structure fell in with a crash. Happily the man and horse sustained no injury, but some ten men, who were engaged in constructing a sewer underneath the tunnel, were immediately buried beneath the débris. Every effort was made to extricate the poor fellows, but with partial success only. Three were found to be so severely injured that they were taken and admitted into the Metropolitan Free Hospital, Commercial-street. Two others had their hurts dressed, and were sent to their homes. After a time the bodies of their four companions were discovered and extricated from the ruins, but life was extinct in every case, and they were removed to the mortuary, pending the usual coroner's inquest. Two of these poor fellows were married, and leave families behind them. Messrs. Lucas and Aird, the contractors, evinced the greatest anxiety for the injured, as did the railway officials, all doing their best to alleviate their sufferings. The extension was to have been ready for opening by December, but this calamity may involve some delay.

The British Association is now in session at Glasgow, the opening meeting having been held on Wednesday. The General Committee met at 1 p.m., under the presidency of Sir John Hawkshaw, when the minutes of last year were confirmed, and the accounts, a statement of which showed a balance of over £900 to the good, passed. The officers for the meeting were then appointed, Dr. Thomas Andrews, of Belfast, being elected President, and the Duke of Argyll, the Lord Provost of Glasgow, Sir W. Stirling Maxwell, Bart., M.P., Professor Sir William Thompson, Professor Allen Thompson, Professor Ramsay, and Mr. J. Young, Vice-Presidents. The new President subsequently delivered his inaugural address, and a vote of thanks to Dr. Andrews, proposed by the Duke of Argyll and seconded by Sir William Thompson, brought the proceedings of the first day to a close. Yesterday the various sections commenced their labours.

The Bicyclists and the St. Albans coach have been at loggerheads. Two of the former, named Gee and Mitchell, recently took out summonses for assault against the driver, F. Parsons, and guard, H. Cracknell, of the latter, and the case was heard on Wednesday, before the Edgware magistrates in petty session, cross-summonses by the defendants to the above having also been taken out. After a careful investigation of all the circumstances, the Bench decided against the driver and guard, and sentenced the latter to pay a fine of £5 and costs and the former £2 and costs. The cross summonses were dismissed. Coaches and bicycles are both popular, nor see we any just cause why the two should not be able to find plenty of room on our highways without squabbling with or incommoding each other. Bicyclists will do well to give horses, especially if they are at all spirited animals, as wide a berth as possible, and stage coach drivers and guards must not fling iron balls at, or lash the shoulders of bicyclists, to whom the Queen's highway is as open as to any other of Her Majesty's lieges.

It seems our Jack-tars have been engaged in a small scrimmage some miles up the Niger. Our present relations with the natives on this part of the West Coast of Africa are the reverse of friendly, and ere long we may have on hand another of those little wars, of which Great Britain has an almost endless succession. The cause of the expedition we are referring to is not apparent, but whatever it was, our ships seem to have destroyed several villages, and greatly frightened the natives. Not without slight loss, however; for in one place three officers and three men were wounded, and in another a marine was killed and eight men wounded. A part of our force under Commander Bruce was landed, and it was among these the above casualties occurred.

Since last week the progress of the struggle between Servia and Turkey has been undoubtedly in favour of the latter. The Turks appear to have experienced some reverses, but the effect must have been hardly worth noticing, for their generals, who are said to have displayed a considerable amount of strategy, slowly but surely brought up their troops and advanced against the Servian stronghold of Alexinatz, where General Tchernaieff held command of the chief army. From the very vivid description, given by the Times' correspondent, of the battle that took place on the 1st instant, it is manifest the Servians were no match for their assailants. A portion of their artillery appears to have done good service, but a regular stampede occurred among the infantry, and with a little more energy upon the part of the Turkish commander there was nothing to have prevented him occupying Alexinatz the evening of the same day. The Turkish approach, as we have said, is slow, and they are said to be under apprehensions that Alexinatz is undermined in all directions. Since then, however, telegrams have been received, to the effect that the Turks have occupied the place, while the main Servian force is at Deligrad. An advance on, and the probable capture of, Belgrade, are also among the rumours that reach this country. Meantime Russian officers, under cover of the Red Cross of Geneva, are pouring into Servia and acting, it is said, as though Servia were a part of the Russian Empire. At Berlin the belief prevails, in well-informed circles, that a Russo-Turkish war is unavoidable. Meanwhile Turkey, who is said to have a force of 350,000 men under arms, is bestirring herself in the direction of Montenegro. There are reports of a severe engagement having been fought, but with what result is not known. However, the main interest of the struggle lies in the direction of Servia, and there, no doubt, the issue of the war will be decided. If Belgrade falls, and with a new Sultan on the throne, who is not a madman, the chances should be favourable to an early restoration of peace. Our Government is said to be untiring in its efforts to bring about this desirable consummation, and we trust, for the sake of all Europe, their efforts may be successful.

The following, which appeared in the Standard of Tuesday, needs no comment whatever. "Madrid, Monday. All the foreign and native Protestant missions, chapels, Bible societies and schools have received to-day an order from the Home Office to take down before sunset all the external signs, placards, inscriptions, and every visible sign of faith. The parties interested have protested to their respective Embassies." We merely ask is there a connection between this latest instance of Spanish religious intolerance and the return of the Ex-Queen Isabella? We have said that Her Ex-Majesty, if not exactly the pattern of domestic and queenly virtue we should select for imitation, has ever been remarkably attached to the religion of her fathers; and we know that in Spain this kind of attachment means hostility to all other faiths.

We are indebted to Le Monde Maçonnique for the following interesting items of news:—

The Grand Orient of Italy has granted Constitutions to ten new Lodges situated in the Orients of Capua, Naples, Viterbo, Castellamare, Mineo, Prato, Bari, Giurgevo, and Bucharest.

On the 15th March, the three Lodges at Rome, the Chapter of Rose Croix, several members of the Grand Consistory and Grand Orient met together for the purpose of celebrating the anniversary of the foundation of the Masonic Temple at Rome. Bro. Joseph Petroni presided, and the duties of Orator were fulfilled by Bro. Ulysse Bacci, who delivered a most excellent and appropriate oration, in which occurred the following admirable passage:—Prudence demands that Freemasonry should close its doors against those who are neither worthy nor capable of fulfilling our difficult mission, who offer no proof whatever of the nobleness of their hearts, of the loftiness of their sentiments, of the manliness of their character. The Lodge is the school in which a man should perfect himself; and inasmuch as that perfection can in no wise be acquired without serious and unceasing care, the most important duty of our Lodge is to render the character of its members as perfect as possible.

The National Grand Orient of Spain has appointed Bro. the Marquis de Seoanne to the dignity of Grand Mater, in succession to Bro. Calatrava deceased.

The bulletin official of the National Grand Orient of Egypt contains a decree of Grand Master Zola, announcing the definitive constitution of the Supreme Council of Egypt and its dependencies, conformably with the patents of Constitution issued (1) on 13th December 1871 by the Supreme Council of Palermo, and Bro. R. Scarrozze, who has foregone the rights accruing to him under that document in favour of the Grand Orient of Egypt, and, (2) on 31st December 1875 by the Grand Orient of Spain. Bro. Beauregard is appointed Lieutenant Grand Commander. The same Grand Orient has just constituted a new Lodge—the first in Upper Egypt—at Manfalud, under the title of Ibraïmia, and ranking No. 15 on the roll of Lodges.

The New York Square announces that the Grand Lodge of Mississippi has in contemplation to establish a Masonic Asylum and Industrial School.

From the same source we learn that the Supreme Council 33°, for the Northern Jurisdiction of the United States, met at the Kane Lodge Rooms on the 15th ult. M. Josiah H. Drummond the P. Sov. Gr. Commander, presided. The attendance was very numerous, and included representatives of the Supreme Councils of New Granada as well as of the Southern jurisdiction of U.S. The President's address was delivered in part on the opening, and part on the following day. On the third day of the session the election of officers for the next three years was held. The day following the session closed.

The Masonic Advocate (Indianopolis) announces that since the last communication of Grand Lodge there have been issued by the Grand Master dispensations for the establishment of four new Lodges, on the 6th June, and 12th, 13th and 18th July respectively.

Old Warrants.

We invite the co-operation of our readers to enable us to complete the series of "Old Warrants" of the "Ancients," and we furnish, for their guidance, a list of Lodges, formerly under that Grand Lodge, whose Warrants we desire to print. The London Lodges are given in one list, and the Country Lodges in another, for facility of reference.

Frequently a transcript of the Warrant prefaces the By-Laws of the Lodge, so that a copy of the latter would answer our purpose as well as a written transcript.

We have already received so many congratulations and testimonies as to the value of this series of "Old Warrants," that we are anxious to prosecute our labours, provided we are kept furnished with the necessary materials, and we therefore urge upon the Craft the desirability of responding to our invite as soon as possible.

The General Assembly of the Grand Orient of France will meet on Monday next, at 9 a.m. Our contemporary le Monde Maçonnique announces that no specially important question will occupy the attention of the assembly. The accounts will be examined, questions standing over from the last session will be determined, and the vacancies in the Order, caused by the retirement of one third of its members, will be filled up.

ADDITION TO THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE.

It will be in the recollection of our readers that, at the Quarterly General Meeting, in the spring of this year, it was resolved, on the motion of Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, to extend the Girls' School, so as to admit of the number of pupils being increased to just over two hundred, the sum to be expended in constructing the necessary additional premises being set down at a little short of £10,000. Accordingly, on Thursday, the ceremony of laying the foundation stone of the new wing was held, the officiating brother being, very appropriately, Lieut.-Colonel Creaton himself, who, not only in this instance, but likewise throughout his Masonic career, has evinced so deep an interest in the welfare of this and our other Institutions. On the whole, the day was propitious, and accordingly the various committees assembled in great strength to do honour to so interesting an event. Everything, indeed, passed off most satisfactorily, and we beg to offer our heartiest felicitations to Bro. Creaton and the other brethren who so ably supported him in the success of the day's proceedings.

The various committees, together with their visitors, and headed by the servants and children of the Institution, having proceeded to the platform, there met the architect and others engaged in the erection of the building. Lieut.-Col. Creaton, at the request of the Senior Trustee, assumed the post of Master Mason for performing the ceremony, and having approved of the position selected for laying the stone, requested the Secretary to read the document to be deposited in the cavity, which he then handed to the Solicitor, who placed it, together with the coins, &c., in its proper place. The inscription on the plate having been read, it was placed in the cavity, and the Master Mason announced his readiness to assist the operative masons in their labour. The trowel was then presented, and the cement having been laid, the Chaplain read a short prayer, which was followed by an anthem, during which the stone was lowered, and the Lewis freed. The architect presented the various tools to the M.M., who tested the stone with each, and declared it properly set. The drawings were afterwards inspected and pronounced satisfactory. Corn, wine and oil were then sprinkled on the stone by members of the Committee, and the Treasurer deposited some money for the workmen. The blessing of Heaven having been invoked on the future operations, the children sang a hymn, which closed the proceedings. The brethren present afterwards sat down to a slight repast, presided over by Lieut.-Col. Creaton, who proposed the "Queen." This having been duly honoured, he gave the "Prince and Princess of Wales," the latter of whom he hoped to see in due time open the new building, when completed, and then, "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls." It was, he said, with great pleasure he met so many who had interested themselves in the charity. He was glad to see the Secretary back among them, and hoped the improvement in his health would be lasting. Bro. Little said it was often he had to respond for the toast of the Girls' School, but it gave him especial pleasure on this occasion; not even ill health would lessen the interest he took in the Institution. Thanks to the liberality of the Craft, it only required energy to get together a very large amount. Bro. Tomkins, Treasurer, proposed the health of the chairman, who he said was always ready to devote his time and attention to the good of the School.

"The Ladies," especially those connected with the Institution, having been honored, some other toasts were given, after which the brethren adjourned to the School-room, where some pianoforte recitals were given, and songs sung by the pupils, who finished up a very pleasant evening with dancing. The appearance of the pupils, and everything connected with the Institution, was in its usual style, and we consider the praise bestowed on Miss Jarwood, Miss Davis, and those who work with these ladies, very well deserved.

The plate bore the following inscription:—

"Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, St. John's-Hill, Battersea-Rise, S.W. This, the foundation stone of the buildings to be erected in extension of the above Institution, was laid by the Chairman of the Building Committee, W. Bro. Lieut.-Colonel John Creaton P.G.D., Vice-Patron and Trustee, on Thursday, the 7th September 1876, in the presence of the Committees of the said School. Bro. Thomas Massa, architect, Bro. C. Fish, builder. Building Committee—The Treasurer and Trustees, Bro. John Boyd P.G.P., Henry Browse P.G.D., Henry A. Dubois, Benjamin Head P.G.D., Peter De Lande Long, Joshua Nunn P.G.S.B., Lieut.-Col. James Peters, John A. Rucker P.G.D., Griffiths Smith P.G. Steward, Alfred H. Tattershall, Rev. Joseph M. Vaughan, Thomas W. White P.G. Steward. R. Wentworth Little Secretary."

Accompanying this was the same inscription rendered into Latin by Bro. H. C. Levander M.A., a member of the Audit Committee, and which Bro. Little also read, as follows:—"Hunc Lapidem fundamentum novum sedificii adjuncti scholæ pro filiabus Latomorum institutæ solemni more posuit coram sodium curatoribus præses Fratrum ad hoc opus conficiendum delectorum Johannes Creaton, præfectus Militaris, hujus Collegii propatronus et Fiduciarius. Die Jovis A.D. VII. Idus Septembris, Anno Salutis MDCCCLXXVI. Præsentibus etiam Thoma Massa, Architecto, Carolo Fish, Redemptore, Roberto Wentworth Little Scribâ, Aliisque Fratribus Delectis."

FOREWARNED, FOREARMED.—In a question of such vital importance as the preservation and restoration of health, every possible means of effecting those objects should (when disease threaten, or when, unfortunately, it has established itself) be known and at hand. Holloway's Pills may safely be relied on for rectifying all disorders of the digestive apparatus, for removing all obstructions, for purifying circulation, and for regulating its distribution through the body. By these effects all febrile attacks are warded off, and all inflammatory disposition quickly subdued. By mending imperfect digestion, and instituting order throughout every organ, Holloway's Medicine has proved itself the best preventative of headache, neuralgia, gout, rheumatism, indigestion, liver complaints, renal disorders, diarrhœa, dysentery, and, consequently, choleraic tendencies.

The West Smithfield Lodge, No. 1623, which will hold its meetings at the Market Hotel, King-street, Snow-hill, Smithfield, will be consecrated on Thursday next, the 14th inst., at half past 2 precisely. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, will perform the ceremony; he will be assisted by brethren eminent in the Order. The following are the officers designate: Bros. J. Smith P.G.P. W.M., T. A. Adams S.W., G. S. Elliott J.W., and Bro. F. Walters is the Secretary pro tem.

We have received copy of the Report of the Crystal Palace District Gas Company for the half-year ended 30th June last. The financial statement it contains is eminently satisfactory, and the shareholders are to be congratulated on having so able and energetic a Board of Directors. We cite, in evidence of this assertion, the proposal that will be submitted to the ordinary General Meeting, which will be held on the 21st inst. The profit and loss account amounts to £10,643 18s 3d. £1000 of this having been carried to the Reserve Fund, the Directors will recommend that £9,088 5s be devoted to paying the following dividends, namely: "at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum on the Preference Capital; at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum on the Ordinary 7 per cent. Capital; at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the Original Capital; at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum on the Converted 7 per cent. Capital; and at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum on the Converted 10 per cent. Capital; all less income-tax." This will leave a sum of £555 13s 3d to be carried forward to the profit and loss account for the next half-year. The further particulars are equally interesting. The contingent fund account shows a balance of £10,000 equivalent to £10,652 9s 3d New Three per Cents.; the reserve fund, a balance of £4,272 12s 4d; the insurance fund, a balance of £1,074 18s 11d. The paid up capital is little short of a quarter of a million sterling—actually £249,632. The total expenditure has reached £219,699 16s 10d, leaving a balance on capital account of £29,932 3s 2d, or, in round figures, just £30,000. The revenue account for the half-year exhibits a total receipt of £44,605 10s 10d, composed of rental £34,586 4s 5d, proceeds of residual products £9,542 1s 6d, and sundries; against a total expenditure amounting to £34,452 12s 3d, of which the principal items are £29,112 16s 11d for the manufacture and distribution of gas, £1,316 18s 2d for rents, rates, and taxes, and £2,401 4s 4d for management, the balance of profit for the half-year being £10,152 18s 7d. The only remark we need offer on such a statement is, that the directors must have fulfilled their duties admirably.

The friends of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will be glad to hear that Dr. Morris, the Head Master, succeeded in getting three boys through at the last Oxford Local Examination as "Associate in Arts," viz.—

W. Beaumont (aged 16 August 26th 1876.)
R. Bryant (aged 16 January 27th 1877.)
W. R. Parker (aged 16 February 4th 1878.)

Dr. Morris began the Oxford subjects after the Christmas holidays, and had less than four months in which to prepare his scholars for the special work required of the senior candidates for this examination. The Cambridge Local, the Science and Art, and the Oxford Local Examinations, all came within the first nine months of Dr. Morris's appointment to the Head Mastership.

In order to convey to our readers some idea of the system of work that prevails in French Lodges, we extract from the "Chronicle" in the latest issue of le Monde Maçonnique, the following particulars:—

Lodge l'Avenir.—Consideration of the relations between Capital and Labour. Essay on Morality. Debate by Bros. David, Collineau, Sineau, and Lopin.

Lodge La Clémente Amitié Cosmopolite.—Newly initiated brother's impressions of Freemasonry.

Lodge Isis Montyon.—Consideration as to what are the conditions of individual and social progress from a material, intellectual, and moral point of view?

Lodge l'Union Maçonnique.—Essay on Franklin, by the Orator of the Lodge.

Lodge La Prévoyance.—Eulogium on Franklin, by Bro. Chemalé. A speech on Commerce, by Bro. Auclair.

Z., J. O. Park P.Z., and J. Gunn T. of 123. Comp. T. M. Campbell Z. presided, and opened a Mark Lodge, with J. O. Park as S.W., W. Harper J.W., J. Fash S.E., R. Prout S.N., John McInnis Deacon, T. Ramsay O.G. At the request of the Principal, Comp. G. W. Wheeler advanced Bros. J. Wallace and W. Pinkerton, both of the Clyde Lodge, to the Mark Degree. A Lodge of Most Excellent Masters was then opened, when the same two brethren, along with Bro. John D. De Guest of 69, and Bro. Angus Nicholson of 73, received that degree at the hands of Comp. Campbell, G. W. Wheeler acting as conductor. The Chapter was then opened, Comp. T. M. Campbell Z., Wm. Harper H., G. W. Wheeler J., J. Balfour Scribe E. of 73 as 1st Sojourner, J. O. Park 2nd Sojourner, J. McInnis 3rd, when the four new Excellent Masters were duly exalted to the Arch. Comp. Wheeler on behalf of 73 thanked the Chapter for exalting their member. Comp. Campbell said the Chapter was much indebted to Comps. Wheeler and Balfour for the excellent service they had rendered, and also to Comp. J. O. Park for officiating in the first part.

Thistle and Rose Lodge, No. 73.—Held its regular meeting on Tuesday, the 5th inst., Bro. G. McDonald, the R.W.M., presiding, Bro. A. McLeod S.W., J. Handbridge J.W. Bro. George McEwan was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft in a very careful manner by Bro. W. B. Pattison. The R.W.M. having brought forward the case of a widow who had formerly been relieved by the Lodge, but was unable to obtain anything from the Grand Lodge, as her late husband, an English Mason, had not been registered in Edinburgh, the Lodge again voted a sum for her relief as her husband had been an Officer of the Lodge.

St. Mungo Encampment of K.T.—The regular meeting was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, Glasgow, on 5th Sept. Sir Knight R. Bell E.C., J. O. Park D.C., G. W. Wheeler Prelate, J. Campbell Master. A petition from Comp. F. Jenkins, of Chapter 73, was presented, and he was duly created and dubbed a Knight of the Temple by the E.C.

St. Mirren's Lodge, No. 129.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, 4th inst., in their own Hall, Mass-street, Paisley. The Lodge was opened by Bro. H. S. Edmonds R.W.M. assisted, by Bros. A. McLeod I.P.M., J. Busterd D.M., Wm. Gemmell S.W., G. Fisher J.W., P. Blar Treas., A. Macpherson P.G.T. Sec. There was a very large attendance of the brethren, and as visitors G. W. Wheeler 73 and G. Mason of 124, Kilmarnock. On the reading of the minutes, a question arose as to the protest of the S.W. against the action of the I.P.M., which on being referred to the R.W.M. he decided that the I.P.M. while presiding in his absence was invested with all the power that he himself possessed. He felt sure of this as soon as he heard of the circumstances, and this opinion had been confirmed by that of the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, who had been written to by a member of the Lodge on this point of Masonic Jurisprudence. The S.W. said he would bow at once to the decision of the Chair, and apologise to the I.P.M., as he had been under a misapprehension at the time he spoke. The J.W., as the party principally aggrieved, hoped the noble and brotherly conduct of the S.W. would be fully appreciated by the Lodge, and the matter be thus settled. Bro. McLeod fully accepted the admission, as it was now stated to be only an error of judgment. Arrangements were then made for sending deputations to Greenock on the 12th, and to Ayr on the 19th inst., when the Grand Master is to lay foundation stones in both those boroughs. The Lodge was then placed under the care of the J.W., and the brethren spent a couple of hours in a social manner. After the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, the R.W.M. gave "English Masonry," coupling with it the name of Bro. Wheeler, who was an English as well as a Scotch Mason. Bro. Wheeler replied. The toast of the "Visiting Brethren" was acknowledged by Bro. Mason, of Kilmarnock. Bro. Wheeler then proposed "Prosperity to St. Mirren's Lodge, No. 129," and paid some well merited compliments to the Master and Officers in general for the excellent style of their work, and for which it was so well known throughout the province. Bro. Edmonds in replying, said he was proud of the Lodge, but he was only reaping the fruit that had been sown by their old Past Masters. All that he hoped for was to maintain it in as good a state as he had received it; he was glad to hear the encomiums bestowed on them by Bro. Wheeler, as from his position in Masonry and his connection with the press praise from him was doubly valuable.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—This Lodge held its regular weekly meeting on Saturday, the 2nd of September, at Bro. Fysh's, Jolly Farmers', Southgate-road, Islington. Present—Bros. Powell W.M., Halford S.W., Killick J.W., Main S.D., Macarthy J.D., Read I.G., Pearcy Preceptor. Business—The Lodge having been opened in the usual manner, the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Huggins candidate. Several sections of the first lecture were worked by the Preceptor, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Halford was elected W.M. for the next meeting. We are pleased to see this Lodge of Instruction again at work.

Union Lodge, No. 332.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 4th inst., at 213 Buchanan-street, Glasgow, Bro. McKirdy R.W.M. presiding, he was well supported by the brethren, with Bros. J. B. MacNair I.P.M. and Balfour P.M., P.G.D. of C. One candidate was initiated by the R.W.M.

Clyde Lodge, No. 408.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on 1st September, in the Masonic Hall, Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Bro. Harper R.W.M. presided, and congratulated the Lodge on the amount of work they had done (they having held two emergency meetings) during his absence from town. With Bro. McInnis, his Deputy, and such P.M.'s as Bros. Gordon and T. M. Campbell, he knew it had been well done. Bro. Campbell acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Prout, R.W.M. of 4, having requested the Lodge to raise a brother for him, the request was at once acceded to, and Bro. Campbell P.M. performed the ceremony in a very effective manner.

Clydesdale Lodge, No. 556.—This Lodge held its regular meeting, the 5th September, in their own hall, Rose-street, Glasgow. The R.W.M., Bro. Phillips, was well supported by his principal office bearers and a large number of the brethren. The work consisted of one raising, which was performed by Bro. Phillips in his usual careful manner.

Dramatic Lodge, No. 571.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Wednesday, the 6th Sept., at 213 Buchanan-street, Glasgow. In the absence of Bro. Dobson, Bro. Wm. Phillips R.W.M. of No. 556 acted as R.W.M.; Bros. L. Mitchell S.W., Wm. Slevewrite J.W., G. Wheeler acting as Secretary, Wm. Barbour Treasurer, Thos. Hay I.G., J. B. Hardie Tyler. Visitors Bros. Addan 333, J. McInnis D.M. 408, Wheeler 73, Horn 512, Oliver 360. Bro. Andrew M. Smith was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by Bro. Oliver, S.W of 360.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The regular weekly meeting of the above Lodge took place at Bro. Allen's, "Royal Edward," Triangle, Hackney, on Tuesday, 5th September. Bros. Brown S.W. of 1227 W.M., Barker 860 S.W., Perrin W.M. of 1056 J.W., Weige 860 S.D., Williams 1056 J.D., King 1056 I.G.; P.M. Crawley Preceptor, and Worsley Secretary; also Bros. Dallas 1254, Smith 860, Johnson 860, Cambridge 15, Hogarth 1107, P.M. Ashburner 1278, Horsley 933, and Webb 174. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Johnson acting as candidate. Bro. W. J. Smith worked the 1st section of the lecture, and Bro. Horsley the 2nd, 3rd and 5th, in his usual excellent style as questioner. Four new members joined the Lodge, viz., Bros. Baxter 1003, Perry 1110, King 1056, Cook 1056. Bro. Barker was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. Bro. Webb, 174, announced that the 15 sections will be worked by Bro. Horsley, 933, at the Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, held at the "Hercules" Tavern, Leadenhall, City, on Thursday, the 28th of September. We doubt not there will be a good muster on that occasion as Bro. Horsley is so excellent a worker of the sections. We are glad to say that the Preceptor of this Lodge, Bro. P. M. Wallington, will be in his place on Tuesday evening next, having returned from the country, where he has been for the benefit of his health. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned till Tuesday, 12th September.

Star Lodge, No. 1275.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. There was a numerous attendance of the brethren. Bro. J. Limebeer W.M. occupied the chair; he was supported by the Wardens and officers. The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted, showing the prosperous state of the finances of the Lodge. The W.M. raised Bros. J. Turnbull and C. Bibra. A Board of Installed Masters was formed, and Bro. H. J. Green S.W. and W.M. elect was presented to the Lodge. He was installed by the retiring W.M., who rendered the ceremony in an excellent manner. Having received the customary salutations Bro. Green invested his officers: Bros. R. W. Williams S.W., C. W. Williams J.W., J. Smith P.G.P. P.M. re-invested as Treasurer, F. Walters P.S.G.W. Middlesex P.M. re-invested as Secretary, Rev. G. R. P. Colls re-invested as Chaplain, W. B. Woodman (W.M. 1559) S.D., W. Kipps J.D., E. W. Chetwynd I.G., A. Tisley D.C., S. Marketis Steward, E. W. Gilbert Tyler. The concluding addresses were given by Bro. J. Smith. The newly installed W.M. then showed the brethren his proficiency by initiating Mr. Leonard Van Boolen. The newly initiated brother proposed his father, Bro. Mark Van Boolen, late of Mount Lebanon Lodge, Massachusetts, U.S.A., as a joining member. His father had been a Mason for forty years, and it was particularly gratifying for him to see his son initiated into Freemasonry. Several propositions were handed in, and the Lodge was closed until the 1st December. The brethren then sat down to a banquet, where the W.M. presided. He proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, including those of the Wardens, P.M.'s, Officers, and Visitors. These were duly responded to. During the evening a very elegant gold Past Master's jewel, with suitable inscription, was presented to the retiring W.M. for the zeal and ability displayed by him during his occupation of the chair. The musical arrangements of the evening were very satisfactory; they being under the superintendence of Bro. W. Kipps. The Tyler's toast was given, and brethren separated. Among those present were Bros. W. Ough P.G.P., C. J. Hogg P.G.S. P.M., H. Keeble P.M., W. E. Williams, J. S. Leaper, T. Gilloch, C. Marr, E. H. Dye, W. P. Tong, E. Searle, L. H. Williams, E. W. S.D., Fowler J.D., Cox I.G. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes confirmed. Bro. Willing rehearsed the ceremonies of initiation, passing and raising. He received the thanks of all present. Bro. Side was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed till the following Tuesday.

Hemming Lodge, No. 1512.—In no district, probably, is Freemasonry, in the strictest sense of the word, in a more flourishing condition than at Hampton. Besides two Lodges in full working order at the mother village, there are also five at Hampton Court, one at New Hampton, while we hear there is a likelihood of yet another being established very shortly at Hampton Wick. The Hemming is not yet two years old, but since the last regular meeting, in March, there have been four Emergencies, and the number of members now exceed forty. On Thursday, the 31st ult., Messrs. Thos. Phillips, Errington, Finch, and Murphy were duly initiated into the Order by the W.M. (Bro. Hopwood), who also raised Bros. C. V. J. De Fernex and Andrews to the sublime degree, vacating the chair meanwhile in favour of Bro. W. Hammond I.P.M., who passed Bro. Dr. Hill to the F.C. Bro. Bernard Sharp P.M. 84 and 168 was unanimously elected a member. At the conclusion of business the brethren adjourned to supper. The cloth being removed, the W.M. gave "the Queen" and "the Initiates," Bro. Murphy responding for the latter. Bro. Geo. Wm. Martin then rendered "Good-bye, Sweetheart, Good-bye," in a manner which deserves more than a passing compliment. Bros. Hurst and Walls also contributed to the harmony of the evening, and Bro. Ockenden delivered the charge of the first degree. Present—Bros. E. Hopwood W.M. and P.M. 141, W. Hammond I.P.M., P.P.G.D. Middx., S. Hill P.M. S.W., J. Hurst J.W. W.M. elect, John Hammond P.M. Secretary, T. C. Walls acting Deacon, J. C. Jessett I.G., T. W. Ockenden D.G., and G. Phillips, Moody, Hunt, Hiscox, Bond, Kent, Chilcott, Knowles, &c. Visitors—Bros. G. W. Martin P.P.G.O. Berks, Geo. Güterbock 173, Robert Martin 201 and C. R. Fitt 205, Brooklyn. The installation of Bro. John Hurst will take place on Thursday, 19th October next.

Lodge of Loyalty, No. 1607.—This Lodge held its first regular meeting on Saturday last, 2nd Sept., at the Alexandra Palace, Muswell-hill. Bro. John Newton W.M. presided, and was ably supported by his officers. There were also present, as visitors, Bros. J. Bellerby P.M. No. 65, Macrae Moir P.M. No. 66, and Bro. Brain J.W. No. 1471. Bros. Wyatt, Beedell and Knill were passed to the second degree. The Lodge was then closed, after which the brethren sat down to an elegant banquet, provided by Messrs. Bertram and Roberts.

THE DRAMA.

The Coming Dramatic Season—Prospects and Announcements.

SIGNS of the commencement of the dramatic season are multiplying daily, and within another week a very considerable number of houses will have opened their doors.

The LYCEUM season commences on Monday next, with English Opera, under the management of Mr. Carl Rosa. A strong company has been engaged, and an attractive programme is announced, the operas promised being The Lily of Killarney (Benedict), Fidelio (Beethoven), Joconde (Isouard), Pauline (F. H. Cowen), Giralda (Adam), The Flying Dutchman (Wagner), and The Water Carrier (Cherubini). The last named work is the one announced for the first evening's performance. The HAYMARKET THEATRE re-opened last Saturday, for a short summer season, the commencement of the regular winter season there being fixed for the 2nd October. During the week Mr. John S. Clark has been delighting his admirers in two of his favourite impersonations, Dr. Pangloss, in the Heir at Law, and Major Wellington de Boots, in The Widow Hunt. On Monday, the long deferred production of Mr. Gilbert's new play, Dan'l Druce, is announced to take place; but it would appear that a long run is not anticipated, or the piece would hardly be produced at the fag-end of a summer season. This evening, the COURT THEATRE re-opens for a short season, under the management of Miss Helen Barry. The pertinacity with which this lady presses forward her pretensions to be considered an actress is worthy of a better cause. In the present instance her appearance will be in a new and original four act drama, entitled, Ethel's Revenge; and she will be supported by a company including Miss Rebecca Isaacs, Miss Hughes, Mr. Edmund Leathes, and Mr. Kelly. The CRITERION THEATRE is also stated to commence its season this evening, but the only change in the programme of the house consists in the return to his old part in The Great Divorce Case of Mr. Charles Wyndham. On Monday, the GLOBE opens for the regular season, under the management of Mr. Edgar Bruce, when Miss Jennie Lee will resume her admirable impersonation of the poor crossing sweeper Jo, in Mr. Burnett's most interesting play. Yet another theatre is announced to re-open next Saturday, and that is the QUEEN'S. This house has passed through numerous vicissitudes, and it is not so very long since an announcement was made that its career as a theatre was ended. It is now, however, about to enter upon a new lease of life, and Shakspeare's Henry the Fifth has been chosen for the re-opening performance. Mr. Coleman, the manager of the theatre, will himself sustain the title rôle, and he will be supported by Messrs. Phelps, Ryder, Mead, Reginald Moore, and Mesdames Leighton and Fowler.

A few of the theatres have had no relâche at all, but have kept open doors during the entire summer, in spite of a continuance of heat almost unprecedentedly severe. Amongst these we may mention the ADELPHI, the STRAND, the VAUDEVILLE, the CRITERION, and the GAIETY. At the last mentioned house, the programme has been frequently changed, the present bill of fare comprising a comedy entitled The Bull by the Horns, and a burlesque of the well-worn type, entitled Little Don Cæsar de Bazan, both from the pen of Mr. Byron. To say that the comedy is at the same time witty and inconsequential, is to say no more than that it is the work of Mr. Byron. The Bull by the Horns, however, must be pronounced less witty and more inconsequential than the majority of this writer's productions. To give the plot of the piece would be to exhibit its weakest part, the characters are absurdly exaggerated, the motives by which they are actuated are ridiculously inadequate, and the entire production savours more of burlesque than comedy. Of Little Don Cæsar it suffices to say that the piece is neither much better nor much worse than Mr. Byron's other burlesques, and that the acting, particularly that of Messrs. Royce and Terry, is exceptionally good.

Of the remaining theatres, DRURY LANE is announced to open on the 26th of this month, with Richard the Third, interpreted by Messrs. Barry Sullivan, Sinclair, and others; the OLYMPIC is expected to revive The Duke's Motto, the PRINCE OF WALES'S will produce a new version of Nos Intimes, and the LYCEUM, on the conclusion of the present English Opera season, will revert to the Bateman-Irving management, and continue the series of Shakspearian revivals.

BRIGHTON DOG SHOW.

AN Exhibition of Sporting and other Dogs will be held at the Polo Grounds, Preston-place, Brighton, under the rules of the Kennel Club, on the 24th, 25th, 26th, and 27th October next. There will be no less than eighty-six classes, thirty-six of which will be appropriated to Sporting, and the remainder to Non-Sporting dogs. The former include Bloodhounds, Deerhounds, Greyhounds, Pointers (large and small), Setters (English, black and tan, and Irish), Retrievers (black curly and black smooth or wavy-coated), Spaniels (Clumber, Golden Liver Sussex, black, and any other colour), and Water Spaniels, Fox Terriers, and Fox Terrier Puppies, Dachshunds (black and tan, and other than black and tan), and Sporting Puppies, with an extra class for any known breed of Foreign Sporting Dogs. The Non-Sporting classes include Mastiffs, and Mastiff Puppies, St. Bernards (rough and smooth coated), and St. Bernard Puppies, Newfoundlands, Collies (rough coated), Sheep Dogs (other than Scotch), Dalmatian, Bull Dogs, Bull Terriers, Bedlington Terriers, English and Scotch Wire-haired Terriers, Irish, Black and Tan (large and small), Smooth-haired White, Skye (drop-eared and prick-eared), Dandie Dinmont, and Yorkshire Terriers, Pomeranians (white and other than white), Pugs, Maltese, Blenheim and King Charles's Spaniels, Italian greyhounds, Fox Terriers, and Non-Sporting Puppies, with an extra class for any known breed of foreign dogs not used in field sports. There is a formidable array of prizes, distributed in twos and threes among the different classes, and the general committee includes the Mayors of Brighton and Hastings, Lord Combermere, Lord. Wm. Lennox, Sir E. Kerrison, Sir Albert Sassoon, Captain C. Raymond Barrell, Rev. J. Camming Macdona, and Messrs. Panmure Gordon, J. H. Salter, and G. Reeves Smith. The manager is Mr. John Douglas, and the Hon. Sec., Mr. G. G. Boyes. The offices are at 34 Ship-street, Brighton, and the entries close on the 3rd October. A show on so large a scale, and under such excellent management, can hardly fail to prove a brilliant success.

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

VOL. IV.—No. 90. SATURDAY, 16th SEPTEMBER 1876. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.]

DESCRIPTION OF WARRANT OF LODGE No. 60.

THE records that remain to us of our early history, especially from the year of the Revival to about 1760, are, unfortunately, few in number. We may be well excused, therefore, if we seem to bestow on them more than a passing interest. When an early document is brought under our notice for the first time, it is almost a matter of course that we should make it serve the purpose of a text, from which to inflict on our readers a kind of sermon, more or less solemn perhaps, not altogether uninstructive. We have recently been shown an early Lodge Warrant, with code of Bye-laws, and inventory of Lodge utensils appended. It is unique of its kind, and but little if any apology is needed for the following remarks. We hope shortly to publish the whole of the documents in full, and our readers will kindly take these presents as a sort of preface.

The Warrant itself is most informal in its character, consisting simply of a petition addressed by certain "Free and Accepted Masons, and so Made in Regular Lodges," to "the Right Honorable and Right Worshipfull, Henry Marquis of Carnarvon Grand Master, the Worshipfull Jn°. Ward, Esq^r., Deputy Grand Master, the Right Honorable Lord George Graham, Senior Grand Warden, the Worshipfull Cap^t. Robinson Junior Grand Warden," asking permission "to Meet at the House of our Brother William Overy, at the Angel and Crown Tavern, in Crispin Street, Spittle Fields," and promising obedience to his Lordship and his Lordship's Grand Officers, "and to Observe all the Laws and Regulations of the Grand Lodge, as becomes Free and Accepted Masons." This Petition bears the endorsement, under date of the 28th April 1738, of his Lordship, granting "the Within Petition," and appointing the 3rd of May, at the hour of seven in the evening, for the brethren to meet him. On the following page it is recorded, under date of "May the 3^d 1738," that his Lordship, his Deputy and Wardens, "did meet at the House of Our Bro^r. William Overy The Signe of the Angel and Crown in Crispin Street, Spittle Fields, and did then and there, Constitute the Before Written Petitioners, into a Regular Lodge in Full Form—— and did appoint Our Bro^r. George Garrett, Esq^r., Master, And Our Bro^r. M^r. Timothy Hooks Senior Warden, And Our Bro^r. William Chomly Junior Warden." The endorsement dated 28th April bears the signature "Carnarvon G.M.," and the record of Constitution of the 3rd May those of "Carnarvon G.M.," "J. Ward D.G.M." "Geo. Graham S.G.W.," "Andr^w. Robinson J.G.W." At the back of the record are the signatures of those present at the Constitution, at the head of the list being those of "Darnley L.G.M.," the immediate predecessor of the Marquis of Carnarvon in the Grand Mastership, "John Revis G.S.," and "Geo. Moody S.B." This is the authority under which the Lodge, thus constituted on the 3rd May 1738, has ever since continued to work, and still works, under the style and Title of the "Lodge of Peace and Harmony," its present number on the roll of the United Grand Lodge of England being "No. 60."

Then come the "Orders, Rules, and Ordinances to be observed and kept by the said Lodge. They are to the following effect:—

1. Provides that the Lodge meet the second Tuesday in the month, at ,6 p.m., between Michaelmas and Lady Day, and at 7 p.m., between Lady Day and Michaelmas; and further lays it down "that no Brother call for wine until the Master of the Lodge, or his Deputy, assume the Chair," but if these do not arrive at the appointed hour, then "the Brothers may call for Wine, &c."

2. Forbids a member or visitor to enter the Lodge Room "disguised in Liquor" or to "behave indecently" towards the Master, Wardens, or any of the Brethren, under pain of being admonished for the first offence, and subsequently, of dismissal, exclusion, and deprivation of all Masonic advantages and privileges.

3. No one is to be made a Mason or member, except he be "of virtuous Principles and Integrity, and not a Bondsman;" and Brethren are enjoined to be careful whom they recommend "that they may not bring any Disreputation on the Craft."

4. A Person to be proposed one regular Lodge and Balloted for the next. If accepted, "he must be registered in this Book." A mere majority of votes in the ballot suffices for the candidate's admission.

5. Fixes a guinea and a half as the fee for making, and a further payment of five shillings for passing "the degree of Master." Every member to obey the Lodge Bye-Laws.

6. Every new member to pay the first Lodge night of the ensuing quarter, and quarterly afterwards while he remains a member, the sum of three and sixpence towards the Lodge expenses.

7. Provides that a master and wardens be chosen half yearly on "the Lodge nights immediately preceding Christmas and Midsummer," care being taken that the brother chosen master "be right worthy, and capable of exercising and discharging that high Office." The master only to nominate and appoint his wardens.

8. The good of the Lodge to take precedence of private interest. A proposition for the good of Masonry in general or of the Lodge in particular to be heard in silence, and if complied with, recorded in the minutes.

9. Presents made to the Lodge to be registered with the donor's name against it, and the latter "to be wrote or engraved" on the most convenient part of the gift, if possible.

10. The master, with the consent of a majority of the brethren, to have power to make new regulations, such new regulations to be read and approved the next Lodge meeting before being entered in the book.

11. A brother proposing a candidate to pay into the hands of the Treasurer the sum of half a guinea: such sum to be returned if the candidate be not approved of.

12. Any dispute in the Lodge to be discussed in an orderly manner, only one member speaking at a time.

13. As in many other Lodges, no one to be admitted to dispose of "any Play House Tickets."

14. Fixes ten p.m. as the hour for closing the Lodge.

15. Provides that the members may read these regulations at any time, and that they be read out to every new member on joining.

After the above regulations we find a record under date of "the 10th January 1748," to the effect that certain brethren agree to meet at Bro. Eedes's the "Three Tuns Tavern without Bishopsgate," and did then and there constitute a regular Lodge. This terminates abruptly, and is followed by no signature whatever. Following this comes another and fuller record of the same date, fixing upon the same place of meeting, and constituting themselves into a regular Lodge. Appended to this is a long list of signatures, among which, however, we do not notice the names of any of the original petitioners to Lord Carnarvon. Lastly, is an inventory of the Lodge utensils, which consist of jewels, mauls, aprons, &c. &c., and for these we have the receipt dated 16th May 1751, for "ten Pounds in full for the above inventory," signed "Fras. Eedes," and a second receipt, dated 8th May 1753, for eighteen Pounds and eighteen shillings, signed by "Jona. Cload R.W.M.," "John Lumbley S.W.," "Thos. Bankes J.W.," and Wm. Rooke Secre." On the same page is an enlarged inventory enumerating the additional utensils, and bearing date the 17th March 1776.

Such, in outline, are the Warrant and appendices of the Lodge of "Peace and Harmony," No. 60. A verbatim et literatim copy of the whole will be given shortly.

SKETCH OF AN OLD LODGE BOOK, No. 6, ANCIENTS.

THERE is no surer or more satisfactory way of learning the inner life of Freemasonry, as the Royal Art was practised in the days of our grandfatbers and great grandfathers, than by consulting those Lodge records which have come down to us. Published histories of the Society contain valuable information as to the progress of Freemasonry, the inter-relations of Grand Lodges, and of Lodges in this or that country, but if we would know the class of men who composed our Order a century or, it may be, a century and a half ago, if we are desirous of some insight into the working of our Lodges—so far, of course, as such working may properly be divulged—we must look to these same records of which we have just spoken. Latterly, we have been publishing a number of warrants of what are known as Ancient Lodges, that is, of that body of Freemasons which, about the middle of the eighteenth century, seceded from the Grand Lodge of England as revived in 1717 and established for itself a separate Grand Lodge. Latterly also, by an unexpected piece of good fortune, we have had brought under our notice, by Bro. Constable, P.M. 185, an old minute and account book and register of one of the highest of these Ancient Lodges, one, be it added, which still remains on the Grand Roll of English Freemasonry, and still, at all times, plays its part to perfection among existing Lodges. This register of members, minutes, and accounts, regarded simply as such, contains nothing, perhaps, of very serious moment. It helps to elucidate no important problem in Freemasonry. But it throws much light on the interior working of an Ancient Lodge a hundred years ago, and this being so, we think a brief sketch of its most interesting features will be not wholly unwelcome to our readers.

This old "Lodge Book" of No. 6, Ancients, now No. 11 on the Roll of Grand Lodge, England, is in three parts. It includes the register of members, the minutes of Lodge meetings, and the Lodge accounts. The Register extends from the very beginning of the year 1771 to the close of the half-year to June 1784. There is, however, a gap in it, there being no register for the latter half of 1774 and the first half of 1775. The first minute is dated 17th December 1770, the last 23rd April 1782; and there is no break in the continuity of the record. The statement of accounts opens on 17th December 1770, and goes on uninterruptedly to the latter half of the year 1798. We shall deal with the minutes first, as being, of necessity, the most interesting.

The first minute under date, as stated, of 17th December 1770, announces that the W.M. occupied the chair; that a lecture "in the first part" was given by Bro. Wm. Bayley, P.M. of No. 93; and that Mr. Robert Irwin proposed to become an "Entiant" Mason, he being a Modern, and Intitled to a certificate, was entered immediately and made a Fellow Craft. Paid ten shillings and sixpence for his dues. On the 7th January 1771, having approved, as joining members, of Bros. W. Bayley P.M. No. 93, John Bexwell W.M. No. 93, William Dagnia of St. Johns, Charles Bearblock P.M. of No. 93, Will. Finch J.W. of the same Lodge, and John McCormick of St. Johns, the Lodge proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing half-year, this important duty having been omitted the Lodge night before St. John's Day, as only three members were present. Bro. W. Bayley was elected W.M., and having appointed his Wardens and Bro. Chas. Bearblock as Secretary, he then nominated Bro. Bexwell as Senior Deacon, while the Senior Warden nominated Bro. John McCormick as Junior Deacon. Then followed the installation, after which the Lodge was closed and adjourned. At the next meeting a brother was summoned to attend and explain his absence during the last half-year, and excused himself on the ground that he had been in the hospital. Bro. Chas. Bearblock paid ten shillings and sixpence proposal money in respect of a candidate, and another "Modern certifyed Mason" proposed to be admitted "an Entient." Then follows a record that a brother was made a Master Mason; that the Lodge moved to the prentice, when a Modern was made an Ancient, who was then Crafted and raised. On the minutes of the first "Emergency" Meeting certain "emendments" were made in the Lodge rules, and the Lodge closed "in Harmony," the record containing the name of a visitor, of "present members," of "absent members not summoned," and of "Ditto summoned from the Chair." At the next regular meeting, a member, who was also W.M. of another Lodge, made a motion, and said that "a great aspersion had been thrown against his character in a Lecturing Lodge in the house where No. 8 is kept." He said it was further proved that a member of the Lodge "had shown a scandelous paper" to the present W.M. of No. 6, greatly against the character of the complainant as a Mason. It was thereupon resolved that the offending brother make due submission to the complainant, and "contradict the aspersion," not only to all who may have heard it, but also "in the Grand Lodge if required." The due submission was made accordingly. We then read of a Mr. Moses Meyers sending up a "furring certificate," and his being proposed, if a Modern, to be made an Ancient Mason. On examination this turns out to be the case, and Mr. Moses Meyers is converted accordingly. On the 1st of April, a letter is read from the Grand Secretary, "in respect of entertaining our R.W. Grand Master," and, at an Emergency Meeting on the 8th of the same month, it is announced that "the four following brothers proposed dining with his Grace"—the four being the W.M. and three other members. The minutes that follow contain simply records that the Lodge was opened and a lecture given. On the 17th June 1771, the half-yearly election took place, and the installation at the meeting on the 1st July, on which latter occasion it was "ordered from the chair, that summonses be issued against next Lodge night, for the purpose of raising a general subscription for the benefit of this Lodge." Subsequently, we read of a motion being accepted, to the effect that every member who does not dine on a St. John's Day with his Lodge, or at the public festival with the Grand Officers, shall forfeit two shillings, while every one dining at this Lodge shall spend five shillings. A motion, however, to raise a subscription for the purpose of buying sundry Lodge necessaries was rejected. At the meeting on the 16th December 1771, we read that a certain brother "proposed to make two Deacons' jewels in order to clear his dues," which was approved of. At the election which took place at the same meeting, it is stated that "the two Wardens proposed to stand candidates for the chair of the W^L M^r," the Senior being elected unanimously. We also have an instance of a brother proposing himself a candidate for the Junior Wardenship, but his proposition did not commend itself, for his competitor was chosen by five ballots against two. On St. John the Evangelist's Day of this year, we have an instance of two brethren being excluded "for non-attendance and non-payment of dues." On the 20th January the Lodge received the visit of the Grand Officers and sundry Lodges as per list Fo. 3, but the list is wanting. On the 3rd February following, a brother discontinues his membership, it having been proposed and seconded and approved of, "that the landlord should not be a member of the Lodge in his own house." On the 6th April a former member proposed to rejoin the Lodge, and his proposition was referred to the next Lodge night, in order to "enquire after his character." This inquiry was found to be satisfactory; for at the Lodge immediately following, it was stated that the character of the brother in question had been so enquired into by the S.W., who "finds him to be a man of honour, and gets his livelyhood in a genteel way. Consequently qualified to rejoin this Lodge." In June of this year, a proposal to move the Lodge from the Admiral Vernon—Bro. Bearblock's house, 114 Bishopsgate-street-without—to the King and Queen, in Distaff-lane, is carried by six ballots to five. The election of officers was held the same evening, their installation, partly at the next Lodge, and partly at an emergency called to complete the "transaction." On the 3rd August no meeting was held, as the W.M. and J.W. were the only ones present. Shortly after we find "the Worshipfull was fined sixpence for offering to lay a wager." Later, the Lodge received "a letter from the Grand Secretary in regard to the R.A. or G$^{d.}$ C$^{r.}$, dated 3rd September 1772, copy of which is the Book of Rules and Orders." In the minute of 21st Dec. 1772, we find it ordered that the Festival of St. John's day shall be held on the 30th, the brethren to be summoned to meet exactly at 1 o'clock, dinner to be on table at 2 o'clock precisely. It was further agreed that the election and installation should take place the same day. On 15th March 1773, a brother desired to be discontinued, and that dues might be mitigated, as he had not attended Lodge for some time. The request, however, was not complied with, the return of his certificate, and the granting of another being made contingent on payment. In June of the same year "Bro. Withers, with his own consent, was unanimously continued as M$^{r.}$ for the ensuing ½ year." During this year but little activity among the officers was exhibited, there being several entries to the effect "No Lodge opened, never an officer being present." At the first meeting in 1774, the Lodge nights were altered from the first and third Monday to the second and fourth Tuesday. At first, however, the change seems hardly to have worked well, as it is not till the month of June we find the meetings follow with anything like regularity. In October, it seems, the W.M. exhibited much patience. We read that he "attended his duty about 7 o'clock, but no other brother coming before nine" the Lodge was not opened. The following month occurs this record: "Not opened the W$^{l.}$ M$^{r.}$ unwell, the Senior confined in business, and the Junior Warden same." In 1775, the conduct of the Senior Warden appears to have given rise to some suspicion, and justly, too. On the 4th September both he and his jewel were absent, and inquiry was ordered. On the 14th of the same month it was resolved he be excluded if he did not appear by St. John's Day next, and on the 24th December effect was given to this resolution, the S.W. being excluded and reported to the G.L. During the interval between the last two dates we gather the brethren met regularly, but no business was transacted, "there being only five members belonging to the Lodge, and having no Tyler, the Lodge could not be opened, the Landlord not being willing to become a Mason." Moreover, in December it was resolved that "the Warrant, Jewels and Furniture" of the Lodge, "should be removed to the house of Bro. Charles Bearblock, till a proper place of meeting be agreed to." Accordingly, we find the Lodge adjourned on this occasion, "till another opportunity, of which every member shall have notice." In April 1776, a move is made to "the house of Mr. John Treakins, the Bricklayers Arms, Bristol-street, Blackfryers," and Mr. John Treakins, in spite of the resolution we have already quoted, is proposed as a member. We learn, also, that notice of removal is sent to Bro. William Dickey, Grand Secretary. The change seems to have benefited the Lodge, for henceforward the meetings are held regularly, outstanding dues are likewise called in, and notice is sent to one brother that he would be excluded in the event of his not forwarding his arrears. In October of the same year, we find Bro. John Treakins makes "a present of a Secretary's desk to the Lodge, so long as it continues at his house." In November, it is mentioned that notice be sent to a member, calling upon him to pay up his dues, under pain of being "summoned before the Stewards' Lodge." On 24th December, Bro. John Treakins becomes W.M., though landlord of the house in which the Lodge meets, and his installation takes place this 27th of the month.

On 28th January 1777 it is minuted that one who had been "made a Modern Mason in the Lodge No. 42 at the 3 Morris Dancers, in the Old Change, Cheapside, in the year 1772" was made an Entered Apprentice, Crafted and raised and "paid 10/6 for his making." The same evening "Cash for the Deficiency of the Supper on St. John's Day last" was collected. At the next Lodge, "John Clementson, at the Crown and Anchor, in Lombard Street, White Fryers," is unanimously chosen Tyler. The next record of any moment is of an agreement between the Lodge and one of its members, to the effect that the latter shall be returned to Grand Lodge as a member on condition that he present the Lodge "with a new Past Masters jewell and repairing the old one," such presentation and repairs to be in acquittance of the arrears due by him to the Lodge. On the 22nd April, "a Modern Mason belonging to the Lodge No. 5, in Totenham Court Road," was proposed and unanimously elected. On the 28th May, it is minuted that "under the Warrant of this Lodge a Royal Arch Lodge opened at 6 o'clock according to Regulation." The following were proposed and approved:—Bro. Simeon A. Bayley P.M. No. 4, Bros. John Errington and Richard Tidcombe P.M.'s No. 6, Bro. John Treakins W.M. No. 6, and Bro. John Clementson P.M. "formerly of No. 93, now of St. John's, in order to qualify him to Tyle this Grand Chapter." The other brethren present were Bros. Chars. Bearblock of No. 4, Moses Choppen of No. 81, George Archer of No. 81, and Thomas Wiston, Chas. Cupid, and William Bayley, all of St. John's. On the 27th of the same month we find it mentioned "that a Lodge of Emergency be called on Sunday next, the 1st June 1777, at 6 o'clock in the evening, on account of several of the members not having complyed with the former By Laws of this Lodge." The "Lodge of Emergency" was accordingly held, when it was unanimously proposed to make the following alterations in the "Hangings belonging to this Lodge," namely: "The linings to be blue and the middle crimson, with three rows of silver lace on two hangings, viz., on the Master and Past Masters' hangings. The same linings and the same middle, with two rows of the same silver lace as above, on three hangings, viz, the Senior and Junior Wardens and Secretary's hangings. And the same linings and same middle, with two rows of silver lace, but narrower, on the two Deacons' hangings." On St. John's Day we note that the installation of officers follows the dinner, and that a brother was installed Senior Deacon "in the room of Bro. Edward Jenkins, who was rejected for his being absent this day." The ceremony over, "Several Loyal toasts were drunk to the praise of Masonery." Shortly after, we read that Bro. John Rule, Senior Deacon of this Lodge, having occasion to leave this place on his own private business, begs leave to depart the Lodge for a time, and that he may be granted a Grand Lodge certificate for such purpose, which was agreed to. In October, another Emergency Meeting is ordered to be held, on a Sunday evening. We cite the following as an instance of the frequency with which members declare off and then rejoin the Lodge. It is recorded on 19th October, that "Bro. John McCormick declared off from being a member of this Lodge, on the 6th October 1777, which was omitted in that night's transaction." On the 25th November following, we read that "Bro. John McCormick was unanimously admitted to join this Lodge on his paying his dues for the last quarter, being 6s 6d, and 1s for his Grand Lodge dues for this quarter, and 3s to the Lodge for three nights expences." This is only one of many cases of a like character. In December, "The General Rules from the Grand Lodge was read, and an alteration was made in the 8th Rule." On 28th April 1778, a case occurs of a brother being advanced to the degree of a Fellow Craft and Master Mason. On 26th May following, the "Worshipful proposed the question for augmenting the Grand Charity, and was unanimously agreed to pay as formerly, or to be at their own free will to pay annually what ever sum they can afford towards the Charity, and it was further agreed that the moneys belonging to the Charity shall not be expended no other ways than to Distressed Brethren, and that no Imolument shall be voted for by the Officers of this Lodge to be paid out of the aforesaid Charity to any person whatsoever." Perhaps, however, the most important announcement in the whole series of minutes is entered under date of 9th June, 1778. We read "the W$^{l.}$ Past Master Bro. John Fakins gave an account of the Proceedings of ye Grand Lodge, No. 2 was propos'd to be dispos'd of by ye grand and the members present of No. 6 Agreed to purchase the said number in Case the upper Numbers do not accept of it." This is very valuable, as showing the practice amongst the "Ancients" which allowed of an inferior Lodge—speaking, of course, as to their numerical sequence only—obtaining by purchase the rank of a superior. No such purchase, however, appears to have been effected, at least prior to the month of September 1798, that being the latest entry in the statement of accounts contained in this "Lodge Book, No. 6." We may infer, therefore, that one of the "upper numbers" did accept of this No. 2, or, perhaps, the disposal of the number never took place after all. Be this as it may, we call the attention of our more curious brethren to the interesting fact we have recorded, in the hope that one of them —Bro. Hughan's name naturally occurs to us at the moment of writing—may be able to throw additional light on the subject. On the 23rd of June the half-yearly election of officers took place, but owing to the number of absent members the feast was postponed till the next stated meeting. At an emergency meeting held on 5th July, an amendment to Rule 14 was proposed and carried, to the effect that every member shall spend the sum of sixpence "to defray the said Lodge of Emergencie when duly summoned and the absent members to pay the same for not attending." The further business related to the absent members, and in the case of one of them, it was proposed that, "being a distance from the Lodge," he "should be dealt with According to our Good Rules and orders of our Antient Constitution, it was Unanimously agreed to shew him Linity for the next Quarter and not to Expend upon him." It was further proposed in the case of two other brethren, that "if they do not Appear to pay their Dues to the Treasurer, on or before the 14th January, shall be Excluded, Accept the Brethren may exite further Linity on their shewing a just cause for their Non-aperence." At the installation banquet, on the following day, it is minuted that the brethren proceeded to dinner "with the Usual happiness of our Antient Constitution as York Masons." In July of this year is mentioned the case of a Mr. John Smith, whom, owing to his being on the point of going abroad, "the Lodge approved to make him, and Finished him" there and then. We also note the case of a candidate being accepted and made a Mason "in Lodge No. 6 by the Recomendation" of a brother "of No. 3." The month following, the W.M. "gave a satisfactory Account of the Proceedings of the Stewards' Lodge." Shortly follows a minute in which the gift of a guinea to a brother, who is "lame and in a bad state of health," is recorded. In October, the Worshipful again "gave an Account of the Transactions of the Stewards' Lodge;" and on the 8th December the same officer "gave the Lodge a just Account of the Transactions of the Grand Lodge, and also agreed to support Bro. John McCormick as a candidate at the election for Grand Secretary on the third of March 1779." At the installation of officers, on the 28th December 1778, we are told the Lodge "concluded with many Harmonious Toasts suitable to the Feastival of St. John's Day." At the meeting on the 26th January 1779, a letter was received "from Bro. Charles as a candidate for Grand Secretary, which was read."

THE MEANING OF CERTAIN MASONIC WORDS.

WE have had communicated to us the following brief, yet interesting, sketch of the early use of certain words, the meaning of which is familiar to our readers. We publish it with pleasure, for though a chosen few may have been curious in their Masonic researches, and may have lighted on the substance of what follows, it is by no means improbable the bulk of Freemasons have but a slight knowledge of the use of the three well-known terms in Masonry which the writer has chosen for illustration.

The first word we select is "HELE." It is not at present in use in our current standard English, but yet it was once found in our best writers, and is yet in vogue in some out of the way districts, both in the west and north.

In the west of England a man who has roofed a building says he has "heled it." A mother in the north of England tells her child to "hele it up;" for the same action a mother in the south would say "tuck well in;" in fact, the meaning is, "to well or closely cover up." It is not synonymous with "conceal," from which it varies somewhat in meaning. It is needless to say that its true signification ought to be pointed out to every E.A. Mason, for the explanation of the word in the First Lecture is very imperfect.

Halliwell, in his Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial Words, gives this word, at page 443, but does not give its northern use. John Wickliffe, in his Translation of the Bible, uses it (in various moods and tenses) no less than sixteen times, and with the meaning of "covering" about four times. Chaucer uses the word three times. Wickliffe's Translation was made about A.D. 1380, and was in the language used by scholars and learned men of the time, or in the current language of the day. Chaucer was a contemporary, but flourished a little earlier. The Bibles printed in Queen Elizabeth's time do not contain the word at all; it had been dropped out of use by writers and general society in those days and become obsolete, and was only used by the so-called unpolite; it is now going out of use even by such as these.

The next word that we propose to examine is "ABIF," and a very curious word it is. It means "Our Father," and is from the Hebrew word "ABI." It is not to be found in most English books. The first mention the writer can find in printed books is in Coverdale's Bible of 1535, in 2 Chronicles ii. 13. "HIRAM ABI." In the so-called Matthew's Bible, which was reprinted more than once, the word is used, but in every translation afterwards made it is, as we have it now, simply "HIRAM." In German Bibles, of Luther's translation, the word is "ABIF," at least, those the writer has seen, but he has not seen many. In an edition of 1716 there is this curious note: "Some books have Huram Abi, others name him simply Hiram." Of course the note is in the German language. It is known that Coverdale translated the Old Testament in Antwerp, and it is curious that a Flemish translation was published in that city in the very same year, 1535, that Coverdale printed his Bible, and in which, in 2 Chronicles ii. 13, occurs "HURAM ABI." The coincidence is worth a further careful inquiry.

There is another word very commonly used by English Freemasons, and only by them, "COWAN." It is not to be found in any English book at present, nor is it in use amongst Englishmen of any grade or station in society. In tracing its history without any access to MSS. there is a great difficulty to contend with. When an old MS. is printed some editors transpose the letters "v" and "w" and some do not, and as they were used in old times interchangeably, some Dictionaries not very old still mix up words beginning with those two letters.

The first use of the word that the writer can find is by Peter Langtoft, who died about the year A.D. 1308. He was a Yorkshire man, and a Monk at Bridlington; in his History, see edition of 1725, vol. ii., page 303, using English type, we find "Thirty of ther couyn." "All these and wele mo atteynt of traytorie."

Gower, in his Confessio Amantis, see Pauli's edition, 1857, vol. i., page 42, uses the word "covine" in the same sense. Gower was a contemporary with Chaucer, and Chaucer used the word "covine" several times, e.g. in Romaunt of the Rose, see edition 1721, page 241.

> Of every lovir can devine."

In the sixteenth century the word was lost to the learned, and was out of use by the polite of that time, as it is not used by Shakspeare or by the Divines and other writers of that period.

Of "covitie" we find that in the next century John Cowell, in his Law Dictionary, edition 1637, gives the word as a new term in law, and from the French word "convenancer" or rather "convenir," and says, "it is deceitfull assent or agreement between two or more to the prejudice or hurt of another." T. Blount in his "Glossographia," edition 1656, professing to give law terms, does not mention the word at all. Bailey, 1736, in his Dictionary, evidently merely copies Cowell. Halliwell gives it as an archaic or obsolete word. Jamieson, in his Scottish Dictionary, edition 1817, gives "Cowan," 1st. One who does the work of a Mason, but has not been regularly bred. 2nd. One who builds dry walls. The word, he signifies, is Scottish only. From these examples Freemasons can have little difficulty in getting at the real meaning. There is another circumstance that should be borne in mind, and that is when anything is written or composed for the use of numbers of men, it must be in the current language, or it will not be able to command any wide or enduring sympathy. If the ritual of Freemasonry was to be made to-day we should not have either "HELE," "ABIF," or "COWAN;" they are dead words now to all Englishmen, except to attentive Freemasons, and we are only drawing a just conclusion when we say that those words were in current use when the respective parts of the ritual were composed or arranged. It is fair also to conclude that they were used in their present meaning not after the fifteenth century, though it is possible the second word may have been interpolated.

RISE AND EARLY PROGRESS OF FREEMASONRY IN THE STATE OF NEW YORK, CHRONOLOGICALLY ARRANGED.

OUR known anxiety to promote, as far as in us lies, the study of Masonic History induces us to lay before our readers the following interesting chronological table of Freemasonry in the State of New York from its earliest known introduction down to 1776, the year when the War of Independence broke out. It is compiled from the prefatory chapter to the Early History of the Grand State of New York, a lengthened review of which has appeared so recently in these columns. The writer or editor of this prefatory chapter is "John G. Barker, P.G. Librarian," and the materials he has collected are derived from authentic sources. We may add, that all the Masonic Lodges existing in this State during this period owed their allegiance to the Grand Lodge (Moderns) of England. Elsewhere, in what were then our North American Colonies, the Grand Lodge "Ancients" established and maintained its footing, and the Masonic History of this State, from 1781, so long as its dependence on England lasted, belongs to the so-called "Ancients." But in New York, anterior to the war, no "Ancient" Masonry existed, so far as we know. With these brief remarks, we submit the Table, as follows:—

A.D.

1730—5 June. Deputation issued by the Duke of Norfolk G.M., appointing R.W. Bro. Daniel Cox of New Jersey to be Provincial Grand Master of the Provinces of "New York, New Jersey, and Pensilvania" for a term of two years, commencing on St. John the Baptist's day (24th June) next ensuing. No records relating to New York.

1733—30 April. Warrant granted by Viscount Montagu G.M., appointing R.W. Bro. Henry Price Provincial Grand Master in North America.

" —30 July. A Grand Lodge opened at Boston, Mass., by R.W. Bro. Henry Price D.G.M., Bro. Andrew Belcher appointed D.G.M., and Bros. Thomas Kenelly and John Quann Grand Wardens. This known as the St. John's Grand Lodge.

1737—15 November. Deputation granted by the Earl of Darnley G.M., to R.W. Bro. Captain Richard Riggs as Provincial Grand Master of New York.

1739—22 January. New York Gazette contains announcement, issued "by order of the Grand Master," and signed, "Charles Wood, Secretary," to the effect that the Lodge for the future will be held at the Montgomerie-Arms Tavern on the first and third Wednesday of every month.

" —24 September. Same journal contains a somewhat similar announcement, that the Lodge will meet on Wednesday, the twenty-sixth inst., at the same place, at 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

1751—Patent issued by Lord Byron G.M., appointing R.W. Francis Goelet Provincial Grand Master of New York.

1753—9 June. Deputation granted by Lord Carysfort, G.M., appointing R.W. Bro. George Harison Provincial Grand Master of New York.

" —2 July. Announcement in New York Mercury that on Monday, the 25th June, was held the celebration of St. John the Baptist's day by regular procession in due form from Spring Garden "to the King's Arms Tavern in Broad Street, near the Long Bridge," where an elegant entertainment was provided.

" —19 November. Notice, in same journal, summoning members to attend a Provincial Grand Lodge to be held at the King's Arms Tavern, on 19th December, on business of importance.

" —26 December. R.W. Bro. George Harison installed and proclaimed Provincial Grand Master of New York by his predecessor, R.W. Bro. Francis Goelet.

" —31 December. Notice, in New York Mercury, of celebration of St. John the Evangelist's day, when the P.G. Lodge attended Trinity Church.

1754—10 June. Summons in New York Mercury for members of Provincial Grand Lodge to meet at the house of Mr. Edward Willett, Broadway, on 19th June "on special business," issued "by order of the Grand Master," and signed, "H. Gaine, Secretary."

" —9 December. Similar summons, in same journal, to meet on 27th December at 9 a.m. "on business of importance."

1758—23 December. Summons in New York Mercury to members of Temple Lodge, City of New York, and also to "all strange brethren who can conveniently," to attend and celebrate St. John's day (27th of the month) at the Fountain Tavern, issued by order of the Master, and signed "John Armstrong, Secretary."

" —28 December. Announcement in same journal that the brethren of the St. John's, Trinity, Union, and King Solomon's Lodges propose to celebrate St. John's day at Mr. John James, Vintner's, at the Masons' Arms. Sojourners, members of the fraternity, invited to join.

1768—2 January. Announcement in the New York Gazette and the Weekly Mercury that several Lodges attended Divine Service in Trinity Church on St. John's day, when a collection, including £100 from Hiram Lodge alone, was made for the poor of the city.

1776—April. Warrant issued to Military Union Lodge.

Most of the above facts were noticed in the Review to which reference has already been made. We present them, however, a second time, in the above form, in the hope they will convey to our readers a clearer and more connected idea of the rise and early progress of Freemasonry in the State of New York.

* Those marked with an * are said to have been "no doubt, established by P.M. G. Harison at, or prior to the dates" written against them.

We gather from the Portsmouth Times and Naval Gazette that the brethren of the Carnarvon Lodge, No. 804, at Havant, will be honoured with another visit from the Provincial Officers next Monday, the R.W.P.G. Master (Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P.) having consented to dedicate the new Lodge Room on that date. It will be remembered that Bro. Beach laid the foundation stone some months since. Notices have been issued to the members of the various Lodges in this district, and it is anticipated there will be a large attendance of members of the Craft.

Bro. H. Wright announces a grand vocal and instrumental concert, to take place on Monday evening, 2nd October, at Exeter Hall, on which occasion Bros. Wilford Morgan and Chaplin Henry will lend their valuable services.

The fifteen sections will be worked at the Israel Lodge of Instruction, on Sunday evening, the 24th inst., at the Rising Sun, Green Street, Bethnal Green. Bro. Webb will conduct the work.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have been for many years, and still am, a frequenter of Lodges of Instruction, favoured by opportunities for learning from skilled professors of our art, and for subsequently endeavouring to impart to others in some degree the information I have gained. "Uniformity of ritual" being a subject the necessity of which I have already advanced, and only wait favourable time and circumstances to be again heard upon, I have, from time to time, taken note of the various discrepancies in the rendering of our lectures which all Freemasons must have more or less observed who attend more than one Lodge of Instruction. Failing a recognized personal authority to whom we can refer for final decision upon moot points, the arguments between brethren upon any difference in the respective teachings of our several Preceptors have no practical result. These arguments more frequently terminate with some such expressions as "Well, that's our way of working;" "So I was taught, and so I shall teach." "That's Bro. So and So's notion, and he is a great authority," &c., &c. This without the slightest consideration being given to the propriety or otherwise of the word or action in question. Our system of teaching being oral, is peculiarly open to the probability of erroneous expression, the misunderstanding of certain words and phrases, and the continued transmission and perpetuation of errors so arising; and in many instances the firmness with which some will hold to the original language of their Preceptor in spite of its unreason is remarkable. It is not that a brother is always bigoted to his own opinion, but that he has derived his information from one whom he has highly respected, and in whose capacity his faith so rested that to set his teaching aside, even in the minutest point, without the most convincing proof of error, would be, in his opinion, almost a sin. But laudable, as such fidelity to his tutor may be, no brother should persist in perpetuating what is antagonistic to common sense, and there can be no doubt that a controversy on the several discrepancies alluded to, if carried on without personality, and in a good Masonic spirit, in the pages of your Journal, might elucidate considerable information, create much interest, and serve to determine many questions which arise in Lodges of Instruction.

With this view, should you see fit to open your pages for the purpose, a series of enquiries may be made, having for their object the exposition of portions of our lecture work, which some amongst us consider erroneous, while others as firmly believe to be right, and which neither may properly understand or appreciate the reason for.

My object will be best understood by a sample of the difference of expression I allude to.

Preceptor No. 1 says: "Benevolence rendered by Heaven born charity is an honour to the nature whence it springs."

Preceptor No. 2 says: "Benevolence, &c., to the nation whence it springs."

Which is correct?

Yours truly and fraternally,

P.M., P.Z.

Clapham, 11th September 1876.

AN OLD MASONIC TERM.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In glancing through an old Lodge Minute Book, I have more than once lighted upon the word "cratched." The meaning of it is pretty obvious, but possibly some of your readers may be in a position to show how it came to be used in Freemasonry, or, in other words, its Masonic origin. Perhaps Bro. Kenneth R. H. Mackenzie, Editor of the Masonic Cyclopædia now publishing, may be able to say something on the subject.

Yours fraternally,

"Q."

COLOURED FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In reply to Nimium ne Crede Colori, I must beg to decline giving any opinion just now as to the question agitating the Grand Lodges in the United States, as I think it preeminently one for them to decide, first of all. The point at issue, I take it, is not as to the regularity of the Lodge of which Bro. Prince Hall was a member, as of that there cannot be a doubt. It was certainly struck off the Roll of Lodges under the Grand Lodge of England, immediately before the list of the United Grand Lodge was compiled, but that of itself would not prove the irregularity of the African Lodge, for more than forty others were served the same way, belonging to the United States!—admitted to be regular. Neither can I admit that a single Lodge had the right to form a Grand Lodge in the jurisdiction previously occupied by a Grand Lodge, unless under very special circumstances; but the fact is, the whole matter involves so many facts and considerations, and, moreover, must be viewed according to the laws then in operation rather than those in existence now, that for the time I must ask leave to be silent, promising, however, when my views are desired by my American brethren, they shall be forthcoming, and will also be given when a solution is offered "across the big pond."

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

Truro, 14th September 1876.

P.S.—The "references" forwarded by your correspondent are most satisfactory, and I hope he will excuse my silence pro tempore.

DISTRICT GRAND CHAPTER OF BRITISH BURMAH.

A CONVOCATION of the District Grand Chapter of British Burmah was held in the Masonic Temple, Rangoon, on Thursday, 8th June. Present—Compe. J. V. Douglas de Wet D.G.H. as Superintendent, Joseph Dawson D.G. Treasurer as D.G.H., W. H. Porter as D.G.J., W. D. Cruickshank, D.G.N. as D.G.E., W. Ford as D.G.N., B. Samuel as D.G.P. Soj., W. A. Nicol as D.G. Assist. Scj., &c. The Chapter was opened with prayer at 8.30. p.m. and the summons convening the District Grand Chapter having been read, the minutes of the District Grand Chapter held on 17th December 1875 were confirmed. M.E. Companion De Wet, District Grand H., said he had been requested by the District Grand Superintendent, M.E. Comp. Col. H. T. Duncan, to express his regret at being unable to attend any Masonic Meetings in Rangoon. Apologies were also tendered for the absence of M.E. Companions H. Krauss and M. M. Friend Pereria, and Ex. Comp. A. Hotson. Comp. De Wet reported that the Committee appointed at the last District Grand Chapter to prepare Bye-Laws had completed their task; that the proposed Bye-Laws had been circulated for the information of all members of the District Grand Chapter and Principals of Private Chapters resident in Rangoon; and that they were now submitted to the District Grand Chapter for consideration. After some discussion it was proposed by M.E. Companion Joseph Dawson that the Bye-Laws be adopted by the District Grand Chapter, and that the District Grand Scribe E. be authorized to have them printed, after approval by the District Grand Superintendent and the Grand Chapter of England. This was seconded by E. Companion Porter and carried unanimously. The District Grand Scribe E. reported the receipt of Returns from Royal Burmah Chapter attached to Lodge Victoria in Burmah No. 832, at Rangoon, up to 31st December 1875. Royal Arakan Chapter attached to Lodge Arakan No. 646, at Akyab, up to 31st December 1875. The District Grand Treasurer submitted the Accounts of the District Grand Chapter, and some other business having been completed, District Grand Chapter was closed in form at 9.15 p.m.

SPECIAL MEETING OF PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

PROVINCIAL Grand Lodge met at St. John's Hall, on 7th Sept., and was opened by Bros. Barrow D.P.G.M., 32°, J. Baird S.P.G.M., with R. Prout R.W.M. of No. 4 as P.G.S.W., D. Murray R.W.M. 103 as P.G.J.W., McFarlane of 427 acting as interim Secretary. On the dais were the whole of the other Provincial Grand Officers, and Bro. H. Inglis of Tarsonce 33°, Past Substitute Grand Master of Scotland. There was a full attendance of Provincial Grand Lodge members, nearly 60 being present. A communication was read from the P.G.M., who was too unwell to attend, containing a proposition for the obtaining of a Hall for the Provincial Grand Lodge, with suitable offices and accommodation for such of the Lodges as might choose to meet there, and offering a very liberal donation towards the object should the plan be adopted. The suggested plan was warmly recommended by the Deputy and Substitute P.G.M.'s. Bro. Inglis recommended that they adopt the suggestion as a whole, but appoint a committee to consider and modify some of the details. In an eloquent speech, he pointed out the advantages to the Province the possession of such a hall would give, and the absolute necessity of their maintaining their standing as the first Province in Scotland. He would gladly do all in his power, both with his purse and influence, to further the cause in Glasgow and the West of Scotland. Bro. Harper R.W.M. 408 seconded the motion, which was supported by Bro. Munro, R.W.M. of Commercial Lodge (of which Lodge Bro. Inglis claimed to be a member), also by Dr. Martin I.P.M. of 360, and R. McDougal of 553. As Master of one of the youngest Lodges in the Province, and the one who met nearest to the proposed hall, he would say, though they had just spent several hundred pounds in getting and decorating a suitable place for themselves, he would give £10 and invest £100 in the place. (Cheers.) The motion was then carried unanimously. The P.G.M., D.P.G.M., S.P.G.M., and the Master of every Lodge in the Province, were then appointed a committee to give effect to the plan. The acting Master then stated the arrangements already made for the reception of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, at the laying of the foundation stone of the New Post Office.

CHINESE CARVING.—For Sale, an elaborately carved set of Ivory Chessmen; The Kings stand 8½ inches high, the other pieces in proportion. THE NEW GREENOCK POORHOUSE.

ON Tuesday, 12th inst., the Earl of Mar, assisted by several of the Grand Officers and a large concourse of Master Masons of Scotland, laid, with Masonic honours, the foundation stone of the new Poorhouse and Lunatic Asylum, at Smithson, near Greenock. The building (the cost of which has been estimated at about £100,000) will be constructed in the baronial style, and will have accommodation for 750 inmates. The north-east corner of the dining hall was the spot where the foundation stone hung ready to be placed, and the enclosure around it was crowded by the various corporate bodies, and as many Freemasons as could obtain admission.

Bro. Fullarton offered up prayer, after which Bro. Laurie, Grand Secretary, read the usual statement regarding the origin and object of the building. The Earl of Mar, in the unavoidable absence, through illness, of Sir Michael R. Shaw-Stewart, then deposited in the cavity of the lowermost stone a bottle containing English coins from a farthing up to a sovereign, copies of the local newspapers, and other documents. The customary ceremony of spreading the lime and placing the stone having been accomplished by his Lordship, assisted by several brother Masons, his Lordship tapped the stone thrice with a mallet, declaring the stone to be laid, and using the words, "May the Almighty Architect of the Universe look down with benignity upon our present undertaking, and crown the edifice of which we have laid the foundation with every success." (Cheers.) A bouquet of flowers, which was surrounded with the first-fruits of the harvest, was afterwards placed on the stone, and his Lordship, from two silver cups poured oil and wine upon it.

The Earl of Mar said that, having laid the foundation stone of this Institution which was about to be erected, it was his duty to say a few words on the occasion. He confessed that he had not undertaken the duty with unmixed pleasure. He was sure that it was perfectly unnecessary for him to say to the Masons of Scotland and the inhabitants of Greenock and that part of the county that nothing but severe illness would have prevented Sir Michael from officiating on this occasion. Referring to the institution and its purposes, his Lordship said that it was a subject which might well be deplored that such institutions are necessary; at the same time we must recognise their necessity, and having recognised it, it was our duty to do our best with those poor persons who are placed in such a state as to require their removal to such a home, and to those persons who are often in a worse position—who have been deprived of that reason which was the greatest benefit we ourselves enjoy.

In the course of some further remarks, his Lordship congratulated Mr. Blackmore and the Parochial Board on the site acquired for the building. He concluded by expressing a wish that prosperity would attend the institution about to be erected, that no accident might occur to the men employed in its erection, and that it might be a blessing to all the community. Mr. Blackmore replied on behalf of the Parochial Board. Having gracefully acknowledged the presence of the ladies in such large numbers, he thanked the inhabitants of Greenock generally for the very splendid turnout which they had made. A splendid silver trowel with an inscription having been handed to the Earl of Mar for presentation to Sir Michael, the band played "Rule Britannia," and the ceremony came to a close. The procession was reformed and marched back to the town. A grand Masonic dinner was held in the afternoon.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION AND FREEMASONRY.

SOME of the Glasgow brethren, thinking that their confrères from other jurisdictions might be glad to see the working in a Scotch Lodge, arranged three special meetings, which were held in the Masonic Hall, 90 Hope-street, Glasgow, on the evenings of the 11th, 12th and 13th September. As stated in the circular, they were intended to be somewhat of a festive character, and not confined to work. That on Monday was held under the auspices of the Union and Crown Lodge, No. 103, and was presided over by its R.W.M., Bro. David Murray, who was well supported by nearly the whole of his office-bearers, and Past Masters Gillies P.G. Treasurer and A. Bain P.G.B.B. There was one gentleman initiated, the ceremony being performed by the Secretary, Bro. J. Gillies, in a very careful manner. The Lodge was then called to refreshment. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were ably given from the chair. In reply to that of the Visiting Brethren, proposed by the S.W., Bro. Bushey of 213, (E.C.), P.P.G.M. Wexford, and Kingston, W.M. of the Whittington Lodge, No. 862, London, replied, thanking the Lodge for the warmth of their reception, and expressing themselves pleased with the style of work. Bro. C. Mackenzie of No. 354 also returned thanks, in a telling speech, and afterwards proposed "Prosperity to the Union and Crown Lodge." Bro. Murray suitably acknowledged the compliment. Bro. Bain P.M. gave the "Press," which was responded to by Bro. J. Stewart, of the Daily Mail.

On Tuesday, the meeting was under the able presidency of Bro. J. Munro, R.W.M. of the Commercial Lodge, No. 360, in whose hall the meeting was held, and was in every sense a success. Letters of apology were read from Bro. G. Bushey, No. 213, and Bro. Semple, F.R.G.S., P.G.S. Organist of P.G.L. of East Yorkshire, who also sent copies of some Masonic music of his own composition for the Master of the three Lodges presiding over this meeting, a present that was duly appreciated, and the songs were rendered in the course of the evening by Bros. Pentland and Peterkin, of Commercial Lodge, whose abilities, both vocal and instrumental, are well known to the Glasgow brethren. Here, too, we may mention the comic recitations of an old professional friend, Bro. Fitzroy. The singing and reading of Bro. Lamb D.M. of 360 were also much appreciated; while in the more solid matter, the speech of Bro. Munro, in proposing the Provincial Grand Lodge, and that of Bro. Nelson R.W.M. St. John's 3 bis, in responding to it, and Bro. Kingston's, in reply to that of "Our Distinguished Visitors," were very noteworthy. Bro. Mackay R.W.M. of Hamilton 7, and S. M. Morrison P.M. of Alloa 69, also replied. Bro. C. Spalding P.G.S.W. of the Middle Ward of Lanarkshire, proposed "Prosperity to 360," highly eulogising the Lodge and its R.W.M. Bro. Munro said a great deal of the prosperity of the Lodge was due to the harmony of its members, and also to the thorough efficiency of all his office-bearers. The S.W., Bro. J. Oliver, gave the "Press," which was responded to by Bros. W. H. Bickerton, and G. W. Wheeler for the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and Bros. Stewart and Innis for the Daily Mail and Glasgow News. Bro. Nelson proposed the S.W. and J.W. Bros. Oliver and Graham suitably acknowledged the compliment, and a pleasant evening's proceedings terminated by making Bro. Kingston of 813 (E.C.) an honorary member.

On Wednesday, the meeting was ably presided over by Bro. Ferguson, of Caledonian Railway 354, ably assisted by Bros. Hurley S.W., and C. McKenzie J.W. Like its predecessors, it was a complete success, the only drawback being that early notice of these meetings had not been given to allow more of the English, Irish and Continental brethren availing themselves of such a happy re-union as these three fraternal meetings have proved.

A Swimming Fête was held on Tuesday afternoon and evening, at the Brill Baths, Brighton, when every available seat was filled. At the afternoon performance the entertainment commenced with amateur races for youths under sixteen. The display of swimming was excellent. A quadrille was gone through in the water, the graceful swimming of Miss Saigeman and Miss Wilson eliciting rounds of applause. M. Olbin gave a trapeze performance. Mr. Giles, the swimming master, went through some extraordinary fetes, while great fun resulted from the Duck Hunt, in which Mr. Dunn, also a swimming master, was the duck. Messrs. Whittle and Robinson exhibited a new life-saving dress, from France, which was introduced by Bro. T. Hadley Prestage, who is well known to our readers as the Hon. Secretary of the Victoria Park Swimming Club. This dress, which has been patented, presents the appearance of an ordinary bathing costume, and consists of inflated tubes running round the body. Both exhibitors showed the invention to perfection, and we think it will answer all the purposes required. Mr. Attwood, the "Man Fish," gave his marvellous tricks in a tank in the afternoon, but was too unwell to appear at the evening performance. Bro. Sir John Bennett, F.R.A.S., came expressly from London to present the prizes, and made some appropriate remarks to each successful candidate. At the conclusion, hearty cheers were given for Sir John. Mr. Dyer was the manager, Mr. Taylor, of the Brighton Gazette and Daily Post, was the judge, while Bro. T. Hadley Prestage acted as starter. Altogether, the gathering was a most successful one.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"We do not remember to have read any similar series of sketches which surpass this in merit."—Land and Water.

"Admirably written, being free from what are too often observed in composition—inelegant language and prolixity."—Sunday Times.

"'J. G.' writes with a considerable amount of freedom, never hesitating to 'hit off' a weakness when he finds it publicly displayed by a 'distinguished brother;' at the same time he never loses sight of a good trait when it is displayed, either in connexion with the Craft or in the service of the public out of doors. The sketches are lively reading."—City Press.

"Evinces much literary ability, and is a valuable addition to the few works we have in Masonic biography."—Philadelphia Keystone.

"The book ought to be in every well arranged Masonic Library."—New York Courier.

"The portraits consist of a series of what we call 'pen and ink sketches' of brethren prominent in all the noble undertakings of English Masonry. . . . Prominent among his brethren we find Bro. Fred. Binckes, ('Our Hercules,') whose herculean efforts in behalf of those blessed institutions, the charities of English Masons, have a world-wide reputation, which will live long after the zealous Craftsman has been, 'laid away to rest.'"—New York Square.

"The style of the author is pleasing, and the quality of his productions highly complimentay to his ability as a writer."—Masonic Advocate.

"There is a piquancy in the ready off-hand dash that lends much zest to the subject, and bars it from studied rhetorical expression."—Hebrew Leader.

"We value the work, and heartily thank Bro. Morgan for our copy."—Masonic Jewel.

"There can be no doubt that the writer has produced a series of Portraits which will be a source of amusement and pleasure to Masons throughout the world."—Surrey Comet.

"Will be found very interesting and pleasant reading, especially to the Masonic world."—Barnet Press.

"Calculated to raise the Order—if that be possible—in the estimation of its members, if not of the outer world."—Trowbridge and North Wilts Advertiser.

"Written in a spirited, racy style, and conveying, in as clear a manner as possible, a 'counterfeit presentment' of some of the rulers of the Craft."—Essex Standard.

"Good sensibly written articles. The writer prefaces each of his sketches with some pithy common sense remarks."—Cashel Gazette.

"Cleverly and agreeably sketched, and the work altogether forms a valuable addition to Masonic literature."—Ryde News.

"Very amusing, and beyond doubt, faithful portraits of the worthies who unconsciously sat for them."—Deal, Walmer and Sandwich Mercury.

"The members of the Craft will take it as an acceptable addition to their biographical literature."—Monmouthshire Chronicle.

"They are written in a fair and genial tone, thoroughly Masonic."—Leigh Chronicle.

"Should have a very large sale."—Kingsbridge Gazette.

"We must sincerely congratulate the author on the success of his endeavour to aim at faithful portraiture, while there is an entire absence of what might give offence to the most sensitive mind."—Folkestone Express.

"A very acceptable contribution to the history of the Order. The volume has our warmest commendation."—Kelso Courier.

THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE week has been an eventful one, at least in respect of the growing excitement over the Bulgarian business. All over the country meetings are being held for the purpose of expressing the indignation of the people at the barbarities practised by the Turks. We sympathize most deeply with the sufferers, but we trust our people will not allow sentiment to over ride common sense.

The Doncaster Meeting was honoured by the presence of royalty, the Prince of Wales having gone there for the express purpose of enjoying the sport. The St. Leger was won by Lord Dupplin's Petrarch, the same which carried off the Two Thousand, the Duke of Hamilton's Wild Tommy being second, and Julius Cæsar third. The race towards the finish was very exciting, a neck only separating the first two horses, but Julius Cæsar was a good half-dozen lengths behind Wild Tommy. Only nine started, and Kisber, the favourite, was nowhere.

The Annual Meeting of the British Association is at an end. A number of valuable papers have been read in the various sections. A large number of grants were also made for scientific researches during the coming year, and at the close of the session a number of pleasant little excursions were organized in the neighbourhood of Glasgow. The Council, moreover, have arranged to take the necessary steps for the foundation of a scientific museum, and will bring the subject under the notice of the Government in due course.

The Annual Conference of the Associated Chambers of Commerce was held this week, at Bristol, under the presidency of Mr. Sampson Lloyd, M.P. One of the subjects brought under discussion was the neutralisation of the Suez Canal. The question of bankruptcy was also taken into consideration, and was referred to the Committee appointed in the month of February, with a request that they will deliver their report to the meeting that will be held in February next.

Mr. Gladstone, having delivered himself of a pamphlet on the Turkish Atrocities in particular, and the aspect of the Eastern Question in general, addressed his constituents on Blackheath on Saturday last. The day was not a brilliant one, but as regards numbers the event must be set down as a great success. The Ex-premier no longer holds the leadership of the Liberal Party; he is free, therefore, to express his views on the subject. But a former minister has certain responsibilities which he cannot wholly shake off, and we question if, at the present moment, it is altogether wise for so eminent a politician to express any views on so delicate a matter. What is needed, especially now, is that the hands of our government should be strengthened. It is hardly possible to foresee from one day, hardly from one hour to another, what direction affairs will take. It behoves, therefore, the British public to be particularly calm and dispassionate just now; for then the chances of meeting even greater calamities than any that have yet taken place will be proportionately greater. The Earl of Derby was clear and certain in his replies to the two deputations which recently waited upon him, and it is a satisfaction to feel, apart from all party feeling, that the helm of the government, as to its foreign policy, is under such able governance. In the whole range of politicians of every shade we do not know a better man for Foreign Minister than the Earl of Derby.

In the International Rifle Match at Philadelphia, our American friends have gained the victory, having scored 3126, the Irish with 3104 being second, the Australians with 3096 third, and then the Scotch with 3061, while the Canadians brought up the rear with 2923. It was at the 900 yards' range the Americans made such headway, the Irish being unable at the last range, of 1000 yards, to make up their lost ground. The contest was conducted admirably throughout, and we offer the winners our hearty congratulations on their well-earned laurels.

The Festival of the Three Choirs was held this year at Hereford, and the result, so far at least as the first two days, is a great success, a sum of £125 having been added to the Charity. Mdlle. Titiens was among the artistes, and Mr. Sims Reeves would have been, but for an attack of hoarseness, which rendered it impossible for him to sing. A comparatively new oratorio, by Mr. J. F. Barnett, and entitled The Raising of Lazarus, was performed on this occasion, and was most favourably received by the audience.

There is little additional news from the seat of war. The Servians still occupy Alexinatz, and the Turks are said to be threatening Deligrad, which, we are told, must be taken before the former can be attacked with a reasonable chance of success. The influx of Russian officers and soldiers into Belgrade still continues, and the Standard Correspondent estimates that by the end of the month General Tchernaieff will have under his command from eight to ten thousand Russians. From the Cape the news is to the effect that the Boers have been completely defeated by the Kafirs, and have lost all their supplies. From Spain we learn that the action of the Spanish Government towards the Protestant Churches is still the subject of discussion. The Geographical Congress at Brussels has been closed. The Marshal-President of the French Republic has been making speeches on several occasions in the course of his present tour of inspection in the provinces. His utterances have been distinguished, as usual, by that judicial calmness for which he is so eminently distinguished.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee of Subscribers to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday afternoon, in the Library, Freemasons' Hall. Lieut.-Col. Creaton was voted to the chair. The other brethren who attended were Bros. S. Rawson, James Brett, A. H. Tattershall, Benj. Head, C. A. Cottebrune, J. M. Stedwell, John G. Stevens, R. W. Little, W. Stephens, Dr. Hogg, W. Hilton, H. G. Warren, Thos. Cubitt, W. Hale, F. Adland, John Constable, Joseph Smith, and Bro. James Terry, Secretary.

The death was reported, by Bro. Terry, of four of the annuitants, one of them after having received in all over £250. The report of the Warden of the Asylum at Croydon, Bro. J. Norris, was also read by the Secretary. From this it appeared that one more annuitant had been received into the asylum; that one had died, and her furniture had been removed by her relatives, in accordance with the rules. The health of the inmates was, considering their age, good, and the attention of Dr. Strong to their wants is unremitting. The inmates expressed their thanks for the entertainment lately given, from which they derived much pleasure.

Two petitions were received from poor country brethren, and authority to sign some cheques was given to the Chairman.

A letter was read by the Secretary from Bro. J. Norris, on behalf of himself and the other inmates of the asylum, thanking the Committee for the increase lately made to the annuities. Bro. Terry also read a letter from W. Walkley, the son of the late Mrs. Walkley, conveying his thanks for the benefits which his late mother had received at the hands of the Craft, of whose beneficence he expressed his high admiration.

The meeting was then brought to a close, with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

Obituary.

It is with sincere regret we announce the sudden death, caused by disease of the heart, on Tuesday evening last, of Bro. William James Page, aged 62, J.W. of the Upton Lodge, No. 1227, and of the Metropolitan Lodge, No. 1507, proprietor of the celebrated cricket ground and hostelrie at Tufnell Park. He was in his usual health, and played a cricket match the previous afternoon. His well known, somewhat burly form, will be sadly missed in the grounds, as well as among his numerous friends and brethren, by whom he was held in the highest estimation, and who will sincerely mourn his death.

THE LEGACY OF THE PAST.

A PRESAGE.

"Oh cease! must hate and death return?
Cease! must man kill and die?
Oh! drain not to it's dregs the urn
Of bitter prophecy!"—SHELLEY.

THE DEAD. Let creed and culture mourn, to-day,
For part of Europe wrench'd away!
Byzantine walls beheld the fray
And could not check the foe.
In savage hate the Turk rushed in,
To beast of prey—not man—akin;
And Crescents flouted, o'er the din,
The trampled Cross below.

THE DYING. Since then—what slaughter, storm and sack,
In teeming towns what waste and rack,
What provinces in ruin black,
What tortures and what woe!
The sons of Orkhan lord o'er all,
Their rule benumbs, their lusts appal,
And where their horses' hoofmarks fall
No blade of grass may grow.

THE DEAD. Of Constantine the last, the name
Will linger long in mournful fame:
Byzantium his throne, became Stamboul—a martyr's grave.
'Twas there he fell, amid the slain,
A brighter diadem to gain;
And died defending, all in vain,
The land he could not save.

THE DYING. A day like that may dawn again
When missiles shower like wintry rain
And valour's arm defends, in vain,
A min'd and tott'ring wall.
But Othman's blood the tide will stain,
And Islam's badge will mark the slain,
And Crescents there will fade and wane
On banner changed to pall.

THE DEAD. It comes! The false must pay to Fate
The compound int'rest bred by hate,
The Cross again shall wave.
"Mené—Tekel—Upharsin" glows
Athwart the Golden Horn. Who knows
How soon hereditary foes
May sink upon our grave?

THE LIVING. Our souls are pierced, with awful cries
Of womanhood that bleeds and dies.
Peace! peace! dread shapes that round us rise,
Ye spectres fierce and red!
Revenge is not—and man is blind:
A brighter day may dawn behind
To heal the woes that scourge our kind.
Let "Peace to all" be said!

CHORUS. No peace is here! We aid the right.
When cries like ours urge on the fight,
Stronger than kings in all their might—
The dying and the dead!

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—These are the most convenient household remedies, for they are aplicable for all purposes in the treatment of disease. In rheumatic and neuralgic complaints the application of the Ointment to the affected part is attended with the best results, and the same may be said if it is used to the surface of the chest, regions of the liver, stomach, kidneys, or bowels, for congestion and inflammation of the lungs, heart, liver, &c. In all ulcerations, scrofulous swelling, and sores, this Ointment is the best remedy that can be used, and for all constitutional blood diseases, nervous weaknesses, loss of vigour and impaired energy, the internal use of the Pills will soon bring about complete restoration.

THE MASON'S DUTY.

THE following Oration was delivered by Bro. L. P. Metham P.G.D., D.P.G.M., at the meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, held at South Molton, on 31st August 1876 :—

DEAR BRETHREN,

To me, who have so often had to perform the grateful task of speaking to you and of your words of praise and encouragement at our annual gatherings, who have made so many and warm friendships, who have received so many marks of fraternal kindness and regard, who have always been so nobly and generously supported in my efforts to relieve the wants of our poorer brethren, to mitigate the sufferings of their widows and orphans, and to exalt and sustain the character of our Order for diffusive and universal benevolence, the duty I am driven to perform to-day is peculiarly painful. I should, however, be unfaithful to the proud position I fill if I forgot that it carries with it responsibilities as well as privileges, the discharge of onerous duty as well as the enjoyment of much honour, and if I left my Chief to stand alone, and was silent while he denounced the practices which in so many Lodges are poisoning the very spring and current of Masonic life, it would be treason for me to cry Peace! Peace! while sentiments are expressed and things are being done before my eyes with which true Masonry can never be at peace. I cannot stand by with folded arms and silent tongue while the standard of our noble Order, which has for so many ages floated proudly in a pure and spotless atmosphere, is hauled down from its pre-eminence and draggled in the dirt by men who make Masonry a cloak for and means of self indulgence, and whose daily life and conversation show they are ignorant of, and care nothing for its elevating lessons and purifying principles. What I am about to say to-day has been submitted to your Chief and mine, and it comes to you stamped with his approbation. You know as well as I do that he would never shift to another's shoulders a burden that ought to be carried by his own, and that he would never shrink from the pain (and none but himself can tell how great the pain is) of blaming and, if need be, reprobating conduct among his brethren which is worthy of blame and condemnation. So many circumstances however, have lately occurred in various Lodges tending to subvert Masonic discipline, to bring the Order into contempt with the outer world, and to make it odious with the family circle, which ought to love and respect Masonry, and which would love and respect it if the principles taught in our ritual were not utterly forgotten in domestic and public life, that longer silence becomes a fault if not a crime. Can a wife, a mother, a sister, or a daughter fail to wonder at and denounce "that peculiar system of morality" which permits its members to return to their homes from their Lodges at one or two o'clock in the morning in a state of semi-intoxication? Can the outer world respect the Order or give it credit for brotherly love when an old Past Master goes from his Lodge to the bar of a public house, and with oath following oath, boasts of having used the black ball, and that he would use it even in the case of the Grand Master himself, if by doing so he could spit his spite against the Master of his Lodge? What shall we say to the members of a Lodge who sit still and, without a protest, allow a candidate to be initiated who was so intoxicated that he could not even walk round the Lodge without support? To what will the Order be reduced if men who cannot sign their own names, and common sailors, in whose favour the tongue of good report has never yet been heard, are admitted without protest, if men who cannot or will not pay their just debts are proposed to fill the chair of King Solomon, or after compounding with their creditors for 2/6 in the £ in the morning take their place at the festive board in the evening without compunction and as a matter of course? If men are admitted who, within a month of taking the third degree, carry round begging letters for funds to enable them to emigrate? If others, on the very day following their initiation, use the Masonic emblem for trade purposes, and resent remonstrances with the most profane and obscene language? I will not multiply instances, which are as numerous as they are outrageous, for I think there is not one brother in this room who could not furnish me from his own knowledge with similar cases, but I will proceed to consider what remedies can be applied to remove evils of so serious a character. But before doing this, I know that the great majority of the Lodges of this Province will be eager to clear themselves of participating in acts or expressions so derogatory to the dignity of the Craft, and I willingly endorse their disclaimer. But not the less do they, individually and collectively, share the odium and some, at least, of the responsibility. As a little leaven leaveneth the whole mass, so do the malpractices of even a few bring odium and public discredit on the entire body, and this would not be possible unless the discipline of certain Lodges, and those not a few, was so bad as to admit of the entrance of improper persons into the Order. And as one evil breeds another, so this very admission of improper characters is the result of the indulgence and dissipation of which I have already spoken. Every initiation fee in such Lodges is an excuse for a late sitting, and furnishes the means of paying for it, and it is in these very Lodges where late hours and self indulgence most prevail, that the most unfit characters are admitted, and consequently the greatest number of complaints occur. It is, therefore, the duty as well as the interest of every Freemason not only to guard his own Lodge against the admission of unfit men, but to scan the list of candidates for initiation into other Lodges within their cognizance, so that such may not obtain admission elsewhere. Too much care cannot be taken in making enquiries into the character of every candidate for initiation, by whomsoever he may be proposed. Independent of this general enquiry, I think it should be the special duty of the Worshipful Master and his Wardens to make these enquiries diligently, and to be able to report the result to the brethren in open Lodge before the ballot box goes round. They should satisfy themselves that the candidate is moral in his daily life, upright in his dealings with others, solvent in circumstances, genial and amiable in manner, sober in habits and in intellect, one who can appreciate the teachings of Masonry, and, in a liberal and charitable spirit, apply his teaching not only to communion with his fellows, but in his dealings with all classes in daily life. How much honour would be reflected on our body, how much comfort, happiness and credit would be saved to our Lodges, if men, whose dispositions, tempers, tastes, and moral characters do not come up to this standard were rigorously denied admission into the Order!

To sustain the character of the Craft, I believe that all brethren should be called upon and be zealous to insist on the adoption and strict enforcement of the following rules, in addition to the all important suggestions implied in my previous remarks :—

2.—That when refreshments are taken on special occasions they should, under no circumstances whatever, be prolonged beyond eleven o'clock.

3.—That no brother should be allowed to sit at table who had not attended the duties of his Lodge during the evening.

4.—That no brother who becomes insolvent should be allowed to continue a member of a Lodge, nor be admitted into any other Lodge until his debts have been paid in full.

5.—That the Worshipful Master elect should be pledged to perform all the duties of his chair, and to instal his successor.

6.—That the provisions of the Emergency clause should be rigidly complied with, and that a notice be duly sent to the Provincial Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master and Provincial Grand Secretary, the Masters of every Lodge in the town in which the candidate resides, and to the W.M. of every Lodge within three miles of the Lodge in which he is proposed as a candidate.

That brethren who receive Provincial honours should consider that they, more than any others, are bound by their presence both at the Provincial and at their private Lodges, and by their conduct in and out of Lodge, to support the authority of the P.G. Master, and to maintain the principles of the Order. Lately I witnessed, with much regret, that on an occasion when moral support ought to have been afforded in the discharge of a very painful duty to the Provincial Grand Master not one brother in this large Province on whom the exalted rank of Warden has been conferred was in his place.

There are many other points which will suggest themselves to the minds of the brethren which I have not time to dwell on in this address, but the observance of which will assist in bringing us back to the straight road from which so many Masons have wandered.

My task is finished, and I, your brother, sensible of my own faults and shortcomings, ask you, my brethren, to sustain me in the path of duty to our noble Craft as I am seeking, by this feeble address, to sustain you. By your own conduct, and by your own influence with your brethren, render unnecessary, nay, render impossible, the recurrence of the painful duty I have, in obedience to your chief, and in accordance with my own convictions of what is required of me, been obliged to perform to-day. If we cannot blot out the memory of the events which have occurred, let the years to come witness for us that they were but spots on the hitherto unclouded sun of Masonry. Resolutely put on one side all that is false, mean and self-indulgent, and as resolutely strive to discover and practise what is true, to love only what is good, and be zealous to accomplish all that is in accordance with the principles you have voluntarily adopted. Make it a point of conscience so to outwardly guide your steps in every day life as to walk uprightly before the world, and that you may inwardly be so conscious of your own rectitude that you may entertain no thought and commit no action incompatible with the strictest honour and morality. Then will the glow of pride and pleasure mantle the cheeks of your fellows when they claim to be members of the same noble Order as yourselves, rather than the blush of shame that they are linked to you by the close ties of brotherhood, which they would see broken, buried and forgotten if they could.

THE DRAMA.

"Dan'l Druce" at the Haymarket.

THE long delayed production of Dan'l Druce took place on Monday last, and was decidedly a success. The author, Mr. W. S. Gilbert, acknowledges his indebtedness to the Silas Marner of George Eliot for the leading incident in the play, but the piece is none the less in all essential features the work of Mr. Gilbert. Dan'l Druce labours under the obvious disadvantage of having no strong female character; it is, in fact, what may be called a one character play, Dan'l Druce, as portrayed by Mr. Hermann Vezin, being the all important personage from beginning to the end. It need hardly be stated that the dialogue is admirable, those who have seen any other of Mr. Gilbert's plays will be prepared to take this for granted. The language is everywhere forcible and suited to the occasion. A greater measure of real pathos is observable here than in Mr. Gilbert's former productions, and to this, perhaps, and the excellent opportunities thus afforded for Mr. Vezin's powers of pathetic expression, the success of this play mainly deserves to be attributed. An exquisite love episode in the second act merits more than a word of commendation, and the manner in which it is rendered by Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Marion Terry, in the characters of Geoffry Wynward and Dorothy Druce, is beyond all praise. For the rest, Messrs. Howe, Odell and Braid fill up the measure of a most excellent cast, and conduce, as far as the author has permitted them the opportunity of doing, to the general effect of the representation.

A new Masonic Journal has been started at Louisville, Kentucky, its name being the same as the journal published at Greensboro, North Carolina, that is to say, The Masonic Journal. We heartily welcome the new member, and we express a hope that its career may be both a long and a prosperous one.

Princes at East Devonport on the 29th ult. The business was to elect and enthrone the M.W.S. for the year ensuing. The Chapter having been opened in form, minutes read and confirmed, Ex.P.P. J. Baxter, Recorder, proposed Ex.P.P. C. Godtschalk, then 2nd General, as fitting in every way for the honour of filling the chair, to be their M.W.S. for the ensuing year. This being seconded by Major Shanks, the M.W.S. of the Chapter, was put to the ballot, and unanimously carried. The Treasurer, S. Chapple, Past M.W.S. being re-elected, the thanks of the Chapter were expressed to him for previous services. The members then proceeded to the enthronement of Bro. C. Godtschalk, the beautiful ceremony being wholly and very ably rendered by Major J. G. Shanks. After a few words of thanks for the honour conferred, Bro. C. Godtschalk M.W.S. appointed his officers for the year. General Doherty C.B. 33°, Inspector-General of the Western Provinces from the Supreme Grand Council of the 33°, being present, offered a few remarks, and suggested the advisability of the Chapters in the western districts holding their regular meetings as near the same date as possible; by so doing they would enable members of the Supreme Grand Council of the 33° to be present, which would at all times afford them pleasure. Binckes and Birch were elected joining members. Bro. Binckes thanked the brethren heartily for the honour. He had intended to make his appearance in the Lodge at a much earlier period of the evening, but circumstances had prevented, and fifty-two years' experience had taught him that but too frequently circumstances cannot be controlled. He was, however, pleased with the cordial reception vouchsafed him, and was surprised and highly gratified to find himself amongst so many who, to judge by their hearty greetings, seem to know all about him. Some of those present, such as Bros. Stevens, Gottheil and two or three others, were perfectly well known to him, but of the rest, the faces were familiar, though the names he could not for the moment recollect. He was a reader of Masonic periodicals, and somewhat of an observer, and was pleased to note the good work this Lodge has been and is doing, not only in the matter of imparting instruction in the various rituals and lectures, but in actively promoting the interest of our great Institutions. It is invidious to single out any particular individual where all are doing their best, but he was sure it would create neither envy nor jealousy when the name of Bro. John Constable was especially mentioned; he, by his exertions and energy, has done much in support of the charities. His first endeavours were directed in favour of the aged, next he worked for the girls, for one year he has lain fallow, and now, for the Festival of 1877, he proposes to work side by side with me, to do what he can for the most important of all the Institutions. If there were a few more workers like him then our institutions would speedily become what they should be, what in time to come he trusted they would be, in fact, what they ought to be. For it must be borne in mind that the continual influx of great numbers of members must naturally result in increased demands upon the Charities. Many a one upon entering the Order, is in the enjoyment of fortune and affluence, but through no fault that could be avoided, is suddenly thrown into difficulties, and who among you would not willingly stretch forth a helping hand? He had always held that the institutions should be supported by the great mass of the brethren, by small contributions, rather than by the few who have hitherto given large donations; and nothing is better calculated to carry out the idea than the system of drawing life governorships, derived by sums collected by means of shilling tickets. Bro. Constable proposes to sell 20,000 tickets, but he (Bro. Binckes) thought five times that number might be sold if every brother were to purchase but one, and this might be done without any considerable amount of self-sacrifice. With concerted action he thought success must be ensured. Like many others, you will say here is the man again, always harping upon the same theme; but he considered it a holy duty, and to shrink from its performance would render him unfit for the position he has the honour to hold. He would point with pride to the results of the Examinations at Cambridge and South Kensington, where, amongst numerous competitors, three of our boys obtained the distinction of Associates of Arts. While health and strength was granted him, his best energies would be directed to promote the welfare of the Boys' Institution. (Bro. Binckes resumed his seat amidst loud and prolonged cheering.) Bro. Birch expressed his thanks to the brethren for his election, and remarked that he had had great difficulty in finding the place of meeting. He had that day arrived from Swindon. He however managed to find his way, and was pleased with what he had witnessed. The brethren might depend upon it that whenever he came to London, which was four or five times in the year, he should make it his business and pleasure to visit them. Bro. Gottheil, adverting to the great services Bro. Binckes had for so many years rendered to the Craft, proposed that he should be enrolled honorary member of the Lodge. This being carried with acclamation, Bro. Binckes again briefly addressed the brethren. It was announced that on next Wednesday, after rehearsal of the third ceremony, Bro. Abbott would give a translation of the ceremonies as they are practised in France. It was announced that the fifteen sections would be worked by Bro. Webb on Sunday evening, the 24th inst., at Bro. Yetton's, the Rising Sun, Green-street, Bethnal-green. A vote of thanks to the W.M. for his efficiency in conducting the work for the first time in this Lodge, was unanimously carried. Bro. D. Posener, W.M. of the Upton Lodge, will preside next Wednesday.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting on Saturday last, at Bro. Fyah's, Jolly Farmers' Tavern, Southgate-road, Islington, Bros. Pearcy W.M., Macarthy S.W., Ross I.G., Killick Secretary, Halford Treasurer. The minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, and several sections of the second degree worked. Bros. Ross, Braisted and Baxter were elected members. Bro. Macarthy was appointed W.M. for the next meeting. This Lodge of Instruction meets every Saturday evening, at 8 p.m., under the Preceptorship of Bro. Pearcy.

Star Lodge, No. 219.—Held a very successful meeting on Monday, 11th inst., at 12 Trongate, Glasgow. All three degrees were ably wrought by Bro. J. Morgan R.W.M., who was well supported by his office bearers.

Salisbury Lodge of Instruction, No. 435.—This Lodge held its usual weekly meeting on Thursday, 14th instant, when there were present Bros. T. Cull W.M., A. Swallow S.W., G. Davis J.D., S. Lloyd S.D., Docker J.D., Hancock I.G., Mander Preceptor, and Bros. Burrell, Wright, Watts, Shand, Gillard, Blundell, &c. The Lodge having been opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of passing, Bro. Gillard being the candidate. The W.M. then worked the 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th sections, after which, Lodge having been closed to the first degree, he worked the 1st and 2nd sections, assisted by Bro. G. Davis. Bro. Swallow having been unanimously elected W.M. for next meeting, the Lodge was closed.

East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463.—This Lodge, which went into recess in April last, held its re-union at the Greyhound, Croydon, on Thursday evening, the 7th inst. There was a goodly muster, considering that the attractions of a regular banquet were wanting. There were present—Bros. T. P. Dickin W.M., W. Sharp S.W., John Close J.W., George Yaxley S.D., Charles Legg J.D. (acting for Bro. H. A. Pocock), Streeter I.G., Price P.M. Treasurer, Woodward P.M. Secretary, and P.M.'s Bros. Docell and Podmore. After the Lodge had been opened, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Dr. James Russell was unanimously elected a joining member. Mr. Alfred Long was initiated. The W.M. then raised Bro. Skerman. On the motion of Bro. J. K. Pitt, it was carried that a jewel be presented to Bro. P.M. Ebbutt. Bro. Price's motion that a sum of money from the Lodge funds be voted for the Provincial Grand Secretary's testimonial was also carried. Several propositions were handed in, and the Lodge was closed. A choice little dinner was served by Bro. Budden, which was "considered" with good effect.

The East Surrey of Concord Lodge of Instruction, No. 463.—This Lodge was re-opened for the season on Tuesday evening last. The officers, as in the Mother Lodge, took their position at this meeting, to work up for Mother Lodge meeting. The W.M. worked the 1st degree, Bro. Gardner acting as candidate; for the 2nd degree Bro. Ridge acted as candidate. Sixteen brethren were present, amongst whom we may mention Bros. H. Reed, Black, Bignell, Sheard, Wisdom, Pitt, Hook, &c.

Maryhill Lodge, No. 510.—At this Lodge an emergency meeting was held on Monday, 11th September, at 116 Main-street, Maryhill. Bros. John McKay R.W.M., J. Lockhart P.M., A. Newey D.M., D. McLachlan S.W., J. Kay J.W., P. F. Cruigie Secretary, and a goodly number of brethren. The work consisted of two passings and a raising. On Wednesday, the 13th; the regular meeting was held, when arrangements were made for the New Hall that this young but prosperous Lodge are about to erect for themselves. Arrangements were also made for the visit to Glasgow on the occasion of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales laying the stone for the New Post Office.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—The meeting of this Lodge on Tuesday last, at Bro. Allen's, Royal Edward, Triangle, Hackney, was well attended. Bros. Barker W.M., Perrin S.W., Weige J.W., Williams S.D., W. J. Smith J.D., Johnson I.G., P.M. Wallington Preceptor; also Bros. Crawley, Ashburner, Brown 1607, Hogarth, Baxter, Cambridge, &c. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of passing was next rehearsed, Bro. Cambridge acting as candidate. Bro. Wallington worked the 1st section of the lecture; Bro. Crawley, assisted by the brethren, the 2nd. Bro. Hogarth gave the Six Periods of Creation in a careful and impressive manner. The Lodge was then opened to the 3rd, and closed down to the 1st. Bro. Crawley worked the 4th section of the lecture in that degree. Bro. Hewlett, of Faith Lodge 174, was unanimously elected a joining member. Bro. W. W. Morgan, of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, with his son, attended this Lodge of Instruction for the first time. The Preceptor, Bro. Wallington, spoke in high terms of Bro. Morgan, of his readiness at all times to assist in promoting the welfare of the Craft. By the insertion of the notices of their meetings the CHRONICLE had done good service to the several Lodges of Instruction. Bro. Wallington urged every one present to support the paper. They would be able to gain knowledge and instruction from the various articles therein, and he finished his remarks by proposing that both Bro. Morgan and his son be elected honorary members of the Lodge of Instruction. This was seconded by Bro. P.M. Crawley, and carried unanimously. Bro. Morgan replied: He was proud of the hearty reception given him by the brethren. He was exceedingly gratified at the kind remarks of Bro. Wallington, and though he did not anticipate being able to attend their meetings frequently, he felt that when his duties would permit his being present he should always meet with a cordial reception. Bro. Morgan jun. also acknowledged the honour conferred, and thanked Bro. Wallington for the eulogistic way in which he had spoken. Bro. Perrin was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. The Preceptor stated that the 15 sections would be worked in this Lodge of Instruction on the fourth Tuesday in October. P.M. Crawley kindly consented to preside on that occasion. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge closed in perfect harmony, and adjourned till Tuesday next, the 19th inst. After the Lodge was closed, Bro. Weige S.D. of 860, sat down to the piano, and delighted those of the brethren who stayed with some capital music and songs, he also accompanied Bros. Wallington, W. J. Smith, Herbert and others, who were induced to favour the company. The meeting broke up before eleven, all being pleased with the impromptu entertainment.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, the 13th of September, at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston. Present—Bros. Weige W.M., Brown S.W., H. Meyer J.W., Robinson S.D. Dignam J.D., Spencer I.G., Fieldwick Preceptor; Hill, Bailey, Cull, Brasted, E. Deitrich, Gilchrist, Hewlett, Young, Brand, B. Meyer, T. Dand, Lee, Chapman, Pool, Philp, J. B. Shackleton, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form. Minutes were then read and confirmed. Bro. Hewlett was interrogated and entrusted. Lodge opened in the second degree, and Bro. Hewlett was passed. The five sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Gilchrist, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was resumed, and the first section of the first lecture was worked by Bro. Hewlett, assisted by the brethren. It was unanimously resolved that Bro. Gilchrist be elected a life member of this Lodge. Bro. Hewlett was elected a joining member. Bro. Chapman proposed that the annual banquet in connection with this Lodge of Instruction be held on the first Wednesday in October; this was seconded by Bro. Lee, and carried unanimously. Bro. Brown was chosen W.M. for the ensuing week. Nothing else offering, the Lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned to Wednesday, 20th inst., at 8 p.m.

Addiscombe Lodge, No. 1556.—The installation meeting of the above was held on Saturday, the 9th inst., at the Greyhound, Croydon. The W.M., Bro. Turquand, took the chair about 3 p.m., and duly opened the Lodge. There were present Bros. Mullett S.W., W.M. elect, Parsons Smith, M.D., J.W., J. W. Gray S.D., Pitt J.D., L. Turquand I.G., Masterman P.M. P.P.G.D. Treasurer, Frances P.M. P.P.G.D. Secretary, T. W. Lambert, A. Lambert, Chumley, Foss, Wheeler, Davis, Firminger, Abbott, Lourie, Godwin, Cooper, &c. Visitors—B. Kempster, M.D., P.M. 890, Myers P.M. Lily Lodge, Dickin P.G.D.C. W.M. East Surrey Lodge of Concord, Podmore P.M. P.G.S.W. of the same Lodge, Pitt, Sugg P.M. 463, Dickson, M.D., P.M. Mount Lebanon. The minutes having been confirmed, the W.M. proceeded to initiate Mr. Jesse, to raise Bros. Firminger and Abbott. Bro. Frances then presented Bro. Mullett for installation, and the W.M., in a most impressive manner, installed him into the chair of K.S., Bro. Turquand thus completing the work of his year of office, and setting an excellent example to his successors. He has, during his year, initiated, passed and raised 18 candidates. It will be long before the Lodge can find one of its members to excel him as a zealous and painstaking brother. He has most conscientiously performed the arduous duties devolving upon him as the first W.M. of the Lodge, and has ably earned the jewel that was presented to him at a later period of the evening. Bro. Mullett being duly installed, proceeded to appoint and invest his officers. Bros. Parsons Smith S.W., J. W. Gray J.W., Pitt S.D., L. Turquand J.D., Carpenter (by proxy) I.G., A. Lambert D.C., S. W. Lambert W.S., Masterman P.M. Treasurer, Frances P.M. Secretary. A portrait of the I.P.M., Bro. Turquand, painted in oil by Bro. Frances, was presented to the Lodge by Bro. Wheeler. A vote of thanks was given for the valuable present. This is a very good feature, as it must be most interesting to have upon the walls of a Lodge room the resemblance of those who have done good suit and service to the brethren, and who have been honoured by their esteem. After the installation ceremony the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, when a most agreeable evening was spent.

We gather from Le Monde Maçonnique that at 8 p.m. on the 28th July was held, at the hotel of the Grand Orient of France, a distribution of prizes to the successful students in the several departments of German, English, and Geographical study, founded, since the close of the war, by the Masonic body in France. There were assembled close on two thousand persons, Bro. President de Saint-Jean occupying the chair, supported by Bros. Armand, Caubet, Moreaux, Adré Rousselle, Members of Council; Bros. Garnier, Venerable of the Lodge Travail et Persévérante Amitié, and Koch, director, and MM. Mac Enery and Scost, professors. Bro. de Saint Jean delivered a most eloquent address on the occasion. Then followed recitations in English and German, and then the distribution of prizes to the successful students.

INDISCRIMINATE CHARITY.

WE have so often offered remarks on the subject of Charity, that it would seem, at first sight, as if nothing remained for us to say in the way of fresh comment. Certain opinions, however, that have been recently expressed in connection with a motion brought forward in Grand Lodge, and still under consideration for report at the next Quarterly Communication, induce us to turn to the matter yet again. We have no intention of discussing now the merits of rival schemes for commemorating our Grand Master's visit to India. As we have said already, it will be time enough for us to assume the rôle of critic when the Committee has presented its plan of operation. We are desirous of drawing attention to a part of the general question of relief, which seems to us to be of no little importance; we mean the indiscriminate use of Charity.

We do not think there is much danger of Freemasonry descending to the level of an ordinary benefit society so long as the funds at the disposal of Grand Lodge and of various of our Lodges are wisely and discreetly administered. True, when a proposal to endow one or other or all of our Charities with a certain sum by way of commemorating the Prince of Wales's successful progress in India was mooted, there were those who somewhat ridiculed the suggestion. They urged that to give to our own Institutions would be to a certain extent an act of selfishness. We should, in fact, be presenting ourselves with a sum more or less considerable, according as our representatives in Grand Lodge were inclined to be more or less liberal. The occasion, it was suggested, allowed of our departing for once from the beaten track of purely Masonic Charity, and showing to the world that we were both able and willing to help others as well as the less fortunate members of our own body. But the arguments on which this view was based did not seem to us to possess any real value. They were calculated, perhaps, to obtain a certain degree of sympathy from those who do not understand the difference between Freemasonry and what are known as Benefit Societies; but they did not and will not commend themselves to such as are thoroughly conversant with the nature and constitution of the Masonic Body. In so far as Masonry administers relief to deserving brethren in distressed circumstances, it is undoubtedly a Benefit Society, but there is material difference between the two. Men join a Benefit Society with the deliberate purpose of securing to themselves certain advantages in certain eventualities. Their object is to secure, in the case of loss of occupation, sickness, or other misfortune, that they and their families shall not be in absolute poverty. Those who join the ranks of Freemasonry do so uninfluenced by any motive of ulterior gain. We do not deny there may be sundry who, having heard of our Masonic Charities and the grants of Grand Lodge, may probably have looked on the expense of joining as a good investment. But we should never dream of taking such as fair representatives of the general body of Freemasons. They and the motives that influence them are the exception, not the rule. We cannot see how a proposal to extend our Charities in honour of a certain event can be regarded as in any wise derogatory to the principles of Freemasonry. Yet see we clearly enough how, if the greatest care is not exercised in dispensing our charity, the Fraternity may gradually descend from its present level and attract within its ranks a host of necessitous adventurers, whose sole object in joining will be to make as much profit as they can out of Freemasonry. We must bear in mind, too, that the danger of this happening will become greater as we increase in numbers.

It cannot, indeed, be too strenuously urged that while charity, in the sense of almsgiving, is a duty we all owe it to society in general as well as to Freemasonry to fulfil, it is a duty that can properly be fulfilled only with the utmost care and circumspection. The bestowal of alms indiscriminately on all who ask it is an abuse of charity. It is, indeed, a very old story, which all of us have heard again and again discussed. But though old, it is none the less true. Ill-regulated almsgiving is a serious evil, the consequences of which are oftentimes most deplorable. And in a system of morality such as is Freemasonry, the consequences are likely to be even more deplorable still. It is the duty of Masons, as far as their means permit, to give to all alms-seekers who may be found worthy. But too many among us, unfortunately, leave out the essential qualification of worth in the alms-seeker. With these it is enough that a brother presents himself as an applicant for assistance, to induce them to loose their purse strings. They are themselves so generous and high minded, they do not understand a brother preying upon their kindness. Their motives in becoming Freemasons were so pure, they refuse to imagine the motives of others can possibly have been less pure and disinterested. So profound is their belief in the beneficent effects of Masonic teaching, they will not believe there are those who, under cover of poverty, are seeking to make capital of their Freemasonry. They have heard occasionally of Masonic impostors; but these fellows are not Masons at all, having picked up or stolen the false colours under which they travel about in search of whom they may obtain the most plunder from. They know that Masons, like other men, are liable to become poverty-stricken, but they are certain none ever pretend to be so, or fall into straitened circumstances through any fault of their own. We necessarily admire the simple-mindedness of these generous fellows, for it is only simple honest men like these who could possibly believe all Masons to be above practising the tricks and deceits of the outside world. We cannot, however, say we attach a high value to their wisdom and discretion. They it is who encourage Masonic vagrancy. Were it not for their ill-regulated generosity, our Brother Vagabond would quickly find his occupation gone. His claims to relief will bear no inspection. He may be found impecunious, but he is so through his own moral shortcomings, or he is so only in appearance; for he finds begging and preying more profitable than working honestly for a livelihood. But the sad consequences of this misplaced charity do not end here. The honest poor brother, whom Fortune has used hardly, finds the wherewith to relieve his necessities has been anticipated by the vagabond brother; or assistance is denied him because previous applicants for relief have turned out to be impostors. Just as there is a class of men who think that all who seek help are equally honest, so is there another and, unfortunately perhaps, a still more numerous class, who having once or twice relieved an impostor, refuse aid ever afterwards in the belief that all applicants for charity must be "tarred with the same brush." Such denials are as much to be condemned as the generosity we have previously described. They proceed, too, from exactly the same cause, a want of discrimination, a refusal to find out the worth or unworthiness of those who seek relief. Were it made a rule absolute to inquire always into the merits of all applicants, we should hear no more of good men going emptyhanded away, or of plausible vagabonds who find our doctrine of charity a source of considerable profit to themselves. So long as it is possible for us to hear, on the one hand, of a brother thinking it almost an insult to inquire into the character of one applying for relief, so long is it likely we shall hear occasionally of the brother who has received relief squandering it at the nearest tavern or devoting it to some equally unworthy purpose. There is little likelihood of our degenerating into a Benefit Society if we richly endow our several Charitable Institutions. The purposes to which they are devoted is the relief of the old and indigent, the widow and the orphan. The claims of the various applicants are all most carefully sifted before their names are placed on the approved lists of candidates. Similarly, in the case of applicants to Grand Lodge, inquiry is first made whether or not they are deserving cases, and only then are they recommended. There is great danger, however, we may become a Benefit Society if relief is administered indiscriminately to all who seek it of private members or in private Lodges. If charity is given wholesale and without previous inquiry, we may reckon that Freemasonry will become a more numerous, but at the same time a less respectable body than it is. Masonry will, in fact, become a profitable occupation to follow, and the needy adventurer who makes a practice of living at other people's expense will, in time, become a conspicuous member of our Society. During the whole of our history the utmost care has been taken to exclude this class of persons, and the same caution is more than ever necessary in these days, when the body of Freemasons is becoming more and more numerous in all countries. One of the best means we know of for keeping these undesirable fellows outside the pale of our Society is to let the world know that the charity we dispense is not dispensed indiscriminately. They are not likely to trouble us when they know we give only to those worthy to receive.

A BALLOT for officers is a matter of frequent occurrence. Thus, when the election for the first half of the year 1779 was held, we infer both the Wardens would have been proposed as candidates for the chair. It is not so stated in actual words, but the record tells us "the W^{ll}. proposed Bro. Richard Frazer"—who was the Senior Warden—"to stand candidate for Master, the Junior Warden having absented several times During his time the Brethren thought propper to elect the Senior Warden Master." We read again at the meeting held on 22nd June 1779 for the next half yearly election that, "W^{ll}. Master propos'd the Senior Warden and Junior to stand candidates for the chair." On the 24th of the same month "the state of the members" who were in arrears was taken into consideration, and certain who had not answered to the summons were then and there excluded. In July occurs a case in which a newly elected member was "made an enter'd prentice and fellow Craft and Raised to the Degree of a Master Mason" all in one evening, the new Brother paying "the sum of three shillings for his Admitence." The same month we read again of the Worshippful giving "an account of the Transactions of the Stewards Lodge," and a brother applies "for a petition to the Stewards Lodge," which was granted. In August, the Secretary has authority given him "to send Bro. Richard Tidcombe a letter to let him know that the insist of having the Canopy Finish'd before the next lodge night, or he showing cause to the contrary to the satisfaction of the lodge." At the next meeting, however, "the Proceedings of the Canopy" are "adjourned to next Lodge night," and then Bro. Tidcombe is given the month of October in which to finish it. At the election in December, Bro. John Fakins "Received orders to provide a dinner for fiveteen on Tuesday the 28th, and to meet at the our of one o'clock." On 22nd February 1780, we are told "the W^{ll}. Master Reported the transactions of the Stewards Lodge," and the same was done again on the 25th April. In June of the same year we again find, as, indeed, on many other occasions, of which we have not thought it necessary to take any notice, the two Wardens proposed as candidates for the Chair. At this election Bro. McCormick was also proposed, and likewise the late Worshipful Master, who, however, declined the honour. On 27th June, the Lodge celebrated the Festival of St. John, and a brother was raised "to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason." We suppose the celebration was of a more than usually "gay and festive" character, as the members thought it too late to instal the officers, and it was agreed to hold an Emergency meeting for that purpose on Sunday, July 2nd. On the 11th of that month "a motion was made to Consider of a Method to Bring the Lodge into its proper State," but it was agreed to defer consideration of the subject till the next meeting. On the 24th October we find mention again of the Canopy, it being arranged to summon the members "to take under Consideration Bro. Tidcombe's Bill" for the same. On the 12th December, the Worshipful Master Elect proposed that the Officers of the Lodge for the future "should be at their Own Expences for attending the Grand Lodge and likewise the Stewards Lodge;" and it was further proposed that "if any Officers should neglect their Duty in attending that the fines shall fall on themselves and not upon the Lodge." On the 27th of the month Bro. McCormick moves that "if any member should be absent the whole day of the feastivel of St. John he shall pay as usual two Shillings and Sixpence, and if he is present at any time of the Feastivel Day he shall pay Equal with ye Rest of the Members," and the motion was agreed to. On 23rd January 1781 it was resolved that "no other Expences should be made on the Canopie without the consent of the Members and presiding Officers." On 11th September the Secretary has instructions "to write out a list of the Members that are indebted to the Lodge, in order to lay said list at the Stewards Lodge or other ways as the Lodge shall think propper." At the following meeting it was agreed that the indebted members should be summoned once more, and in the event of their not appearing then they should be excluded. Accordingly, in October, we read of sundry being excluded in accordance with the foregoing resolution. The Secretary, at the same meeting, is directed to prepare a list of the exclnded, and also "a true list of the members on Book at present to be layd before the Grand next Quarterly Communication." The last minute, as we have said, bears date "April 23: 1782," and announces, in the usual manner, that the Lodge "Clos'd in Agreeable harmony."

So far we have given the more striking features of this interesting Minute Book. A few further observations as to their general character remain to be added. Thus, at nearly every meeting we have it recorded that one or other of the members gives a lecture, sometimes confining his attention to one degree only, at others extending his labours to more than one, according as the time permitted. In fact, hardly a meeting passes without some such good work being done. This is, at all events, a flattering testimony to the studious habits of the Lodge. Again, but a brief time appears to have been devoted to refreshment. In most of the minutes we find the interval devoted to this very worthy purpose is only an hour, often, indeed, only a short half-hour. Occasionally, however, the time is extended to an hour and a half, or even more. Thus, "call'd to refreshment at ½ past 9 call'd on at 10 and cloed with harmony" or "Calld to refreshment at 9 o'clock Calld on 10." Such is the usual tenour of the minutes, except on grand occasions, one of the St. John's Days, or the Election or Installation meetings, when the refreshment was on a larger scale. Another noticeable point is the difficulty of getting in the dues. We have more than once referred to cases of members being excluded for non-payment; and we have remarked at very frequent intervals the issue of summonses to members who have been unmindful of this important obligation.

As regards the list of members, which is contained in the first portion of the "Lodge Book," we gather from it that as regards their social status the members mostly belonged to the trading class. The list, as it stands at the beginning of the year 1771, includes, under the head of "Occupations and Places of Abode," a buckle-maker, three tailors, and a breeches-maker, a weaver, a baker, a locksmith, a goldsmith, two attorneys-at-law, a glass manufacturer, a glass engraver, a peruke-maker, three victuallers and a brandy merchant, and one gentleman. Several of them are also mentioned as being members of other Lodges, our friend the peruke-maker, for instance, being a member of No. 93, while one of the victuallers is set down as Master of No. 81. One member is as "gone to Holland," and, later on, another is set down as "gone to Germany." Among members added to the list at various subsequent dates, we find a silk dyer, a grocer, a carpenter, a warehouseman, a tobacco pipe maker, a lighterman, a coal merchant, a Custom House Officer, a blacksmith, a shoe-maker, a bookbinder. The funniest entry, however, is the case of a member who is entered as at "White Hart Yard, Cathern Street, Gardiner or Flowerest at an old Cloath's Shop." We can scarcely imagine the occupation of this brother can have been on a very large scale, if, at least, his operations were limited to "the old Cloath's Shop." Perhaps the condition of things in 1781 was somewhat different from now, but "an old Cloath's Shop" is not the place at which we, in the year 1876, should look for much in the way of gardening or floriculture.

From the Statements of Account we glean that the financial condition of the Lodge was not particularly flourishing. During the whole of the period over which they extend there are only two or three occasions when the balance was on the right side. Among the items are such as "a fine paid to the Grand Lodge for not attending on St. John's Day," half a guinea; "the Worshipfull Masters attending the Grand Lodge," one shilling; "Wm. Mr. attending the Stewards Lodge in Dec" two shillings; "Expenses on the Installation of Officers," £1.2.11; "Expences and Tiler," three shillings; "Paid Bro Chas. Bearblock for 3 Brass Nossils" for Lodge Candlesticks, £1, while the Candlesticks themselves cost fifteen shillings. Another entry is to the following effect: Septr. 10, 1776 "Cash Paid for the Senr. Wardens Jewel which was Pawnded by Br. James Dunn" nine shillings and sixpence. Another reads thus "Cash Paid in attending the Stewards Lodge to appear against Br. Choppen" one shilling. On 25th November 1777 occurs an amount of thirteen shillings, being "Cash Abated Br. Wm. Bayley for 2 Quarters, the Members knowing it is not in his Power to pay." September 8, 1778 a sum of thirteen shillings was paid to Bro. Fraser for "a Cushon and a Pr. of Drawers," and the same day, twelve shillings to Bro. McCormick for "Guilding a Square." August 22nd 1780 payment of £11 17s 10d is entered as having been made to Bro. Percival "for painting the Canopy." Such are the most noteworthy items of expenditure, the bulk of them of course having been incurred for ordinary expenses of the Lodge and Tyler, though on 24th June 1787 we find the entry of One Guinea "paid to the Grand Lodge on the Warrant June 1786 and June 1787." On the receipt side the entries are mostly sums for making, proposal money, and quarterages, but on 28th August 1787 we find receipt of Three Guineas "M. Edgeley of Ye Coal Exchange for damaging Ye Canopy!" One other record is worth adding. In the list of members constituting this Lodge in January 1771 we find in the column provided for "Feast of St. John June 1771" it is mentioned that the Lodge "Dined with the Grand Officers at Dobners Bowling Green." It is time, however, we brought this lengthy sketch to a close. We may have occasion to refer to this Lodge Book again, for other purposes, but for the present we have done with it. We will merely add that a similar analysis to the foregoing of other old Lodge Books must help to throw considerable light on the conduct of the Craft in former days, and will doubtless greatly assist the Masonic historian in the prosecution of his labours.

BRO. METHAM'S ADDRESS.

WE hear our publication, last week, of the address delivered by Bro. Metham at South Molton, before the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon, in August last, has caused no little excitement. It was not done without a due sense of responsibility. The address contains some very ugly statements, but it is the misfortune of addresses that they do occasionally contain some very bitter truths. Equally unfortunate is it that journals of every kind do now and again receive matter the publication of which must inevitably displease many of their readers. None the less is it incumbent on them to give publicity to the unwelcome tale. We rejoice to say it is but seldom we have such to communicate to our readers. Still, when they do come, it is a duty we owe to our constituency and to our conscience to give them place in these columns. None will have read the statements contained in Bro. Metham's address with deeper feelings of sorrow than we did. Had they emanated from some ordinary personage we should, no doubt, have let them pass. They came, however, from the Deputy Grand Master of the Province. Bro. Metham, moreover, had not hastily or unadvisedly included them in his address. He had previously submitted them to his chief, the Provincial Grand Master, and they were made therefore to our Devonian brethren with the full approbation of that chief. Under these circumstances, we consider it was our duty to publish the address. If there prevailed in the Province of Devon a number of practices hateful enough to call forth the severe condemnation of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master in Provincial Grand Lodge assembled, and if that condemnation were uttered with the sanction of the Provincial Grand Master himself, it was evidently our duty—a most unpleasant one, we admit—in the interests of Freemasonry generally, and of the Province of Devon in particular, to render all the aid in our power in stamping out the malpractices thus publicly reprobated. We are sure our brethren in that Province must feel deeply grieved that such charges should have been made, and still more so that they must rest on a very substantial basis of truth. They must wince when they hear the scandalous behaviour of the black sheep in their midst thus publicly condemned by one of their highest dignitaries. They must be even more sensitive when they hear the outside public and their own families condemning that Freemasonry they love so much for the outrageous misconduct of a few. And when the story of this grievous state of things obtains a further measure of publicity, and finds its way into the columns of a Masonic Journal, we fully understand that the Province of Devon must feel keenly upon the subject. Certain are we, however, that, though a present sense of regret may be felt by the general body when they find the malpractices of a few announced in a public journal, they will some day thank us for the announcement. There are, evidently, at least we have it on the authority of the highest officers in the Province that there are, some black sheep among the Freemasons of Devon, and these black sheep do not enact their hateful deeds in darkness, but in the open day, thus bringing public scandal on our Craft. It is absolutely necessary the Society should be purged of all such disgraceful members. Bro. Metham's address has publicly condemned their misconduct, and we, by publishing his address, have drawn to it the attention of the Craft even more pointedly still. We repeat, Devon may feel sore just now; but supposing next year we publish an address by the same officer, congratulating the brethren of the Province on the change that has come over the spirit of their Masonry since last year; on the tone and lofty character which animates them generally, on the order that prevails in the Lodges, and on the absence of any serious cause of complaint, will not this soreness give place to thankfulness? Will they not feel then, as we do now, that it was the duty of Bro. Metham to condemn this misconduct openly in Provincial Grand Lodge, and our duty to condemn it, as we do condemn it, publicly in these columns? And will they not feel thankful that he and we had the courage to perform our duty, even at the risk of causing them temporary pain? We are much mistaken in our estimate of the Craftsmen in Devon if they do not regard the matter in the same light we do. It is bad enough to be called upon to condemn the conduct of any of our brethren; but it is ten thousand times worse that any brethren should be guilty of conduct so disgraceful as to call forth the condemnation of men in high places and of the Masonic press.

We believe our contributor Bro. Walter Spencer, C.E., F.R.G.S., &c., is at present pursuing the study of social science, having been appointed to accompany the Russian Minister of the Interior, who has come from St. Petersburg, for the purpose of inspecting the latest developments in that connection. On Monday, a visit was paid to Millbank Penitentiary and the Regent's Park Industrial School, on Tuesday to the Reformatory and Model Farm at Red Hill, on Wednesday to the Workmen's Town at Wandsworth and to the Middlesex Industrial School at Feltham. The tour will embrace the Convict prisons at Chatham, Portsmouth and Dartmoor, and may possibly extend to Ireland. Whilst on this topic, we may add that an interesting paper on the repression of crime is expected at the meeting of the Social Science Association next month, from our Rev. Bro. Daniel Ace, D.D., Grand Chaplain of Lincolnshire.

OLD LODGE RECORDS.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—An unfortunate gap of some forty odd years, viz., from 1770 to 1814, occurs in the history of an old Lodge (English Constitution), established about the middle of the last century.

May I ask, through the medium of your journal, whether any documents bearing upon such period are accessible to the Masonic public at the archives of Grand Lodge? and also, whether the researches of any brother, in a similar quest, have resulted in a profitable exploration of the British Museum Library?

Yours fraternally,

G.

18th September 1876.

[The British Museum is of little use for the purpose contemplated, but the Registers in the Grand Lodge might supply the requisite information and complete the missing particulars of the Lodge history. You do not say when or where the Lodge was constituted, or under which Grand Lodge of England, hence we are unable to aid you in any way save to indicate the probable source of reliable facts as to the subject. If memory serves correctly, the Britannic Lodge history was mainly compiled through the particulars afforded in the Grand Secretary's office.—EDITOR.]

COLOURED FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Allow me, in your columns, to thank Bro. Hughan for his courteous letter of the 14th instant. I trust, however, he will pardon me for saying that he has not quite hit the point on which I am anxious to obtain illumination. I do not doubt the legality of the Constitution of African Lodge. I am merely anxious to learn, if possible, from him, whether Prince Hall's statement, made in 1784—when applying to the Modern Grand Lodge, England, for a charter—to the effect that his Lodge had been in working for some eight years or thereabouts, had or had not any foundation in fact. If he cannot answer this question, will he kindly tell me if, and in such case where, I shall be able to obtain the desired information?

I am sorry to be obliged to differ with so learned an authority as Bro. Hughan, and am sensible that so humble an opinion as mine will have but little influence in opposition to his. I cannot, however, admit that this intricate yet important Coloured question is one on which English Freemasons should abstain from offering an opinion, and that we must wait till the American Grand Lodges have given their decision. They are more nearly interested than we in England, but the imaginary case you put in your recent article headed "Coloured Freemasonry," is by no means unlikely to arise. It is very far from being improbable that some fine day one of these so-called Coloured brethren may present himself for admission into one of our Lodges. In such circumstances it would be necessary for the presiding officer of the Lodge to settle off-hand whether or not the applicant was admissible. I will assume the latter presents himself, armed with all the requisite vouchers in the shape of his Coloured Grand Lodge certificate, &c., and is competent to undergo the examination of experienced brethren, should any examination be deemed necessary. There still remains the important question for the W.M.'s decision—Is the applicant a regularly made Mason? that is, has he been made a Mason in a legally constituted Lodge? Is the Grand Lodge certificate with which he is armed an instrument, the validity of which is recognisable by the Grand Lodge of England? It is unfortunate, yet I do not see how it is avoidable, that whichever way the W.M. or his locum tenens decides—whether for or against the validity of the Coloured applicant's certificate—he places the English Grand Lodge, of which he is a member, on the horns of a dilemma. In either case he commits our Grand Lodge, which must endorse or disavow the decision of its subordinate, to a direct expression of opinion on a question of the greatest delicacy. I hold, however, it is far better it should speak out authoritatively than leave the chance of an awkward decision, one way or the other, to a subordinate officer, who may be utterly incompetent to decide. It may, perhaps, be politic for it to ignore the existence of a question not officially brought under its notice; but is it politic to leave the settlement of so delicate a matter to mere chance? Let Grand Lodge say, Until the Americans have settled these differences among themselves, we know nothing of these Coloured organisations: we cannot recognise them in England until they are recognised in the United States: in which case the so-called Coloured Masons would be inadmissible into our Lodges. Or let it give an opinion for or against the legality of their constitution. What I want to know is: If I happen to be in the chair of a Lodge where one of these so-called Masons presents himself for admission, am I to admit or to refuse to admit him?

I said, in a former letter, and I say again here, I have no desire to draw Bro. Hughan on this question. I fully recognise the propriety of an individual not interposing in this, or, indeed, in any controversy. All I want from him I have re-stated in the first paragraph of this letter, and concerns the early history of African Lodge only. As to the far more important question of the legality of these Coloured Grand Lodges, you, Sir, have argued against their recognition. Be you right or wrong, I think we are entitled to ask for some official statement which may serve for the guidance of our Lodges, should the question of recognition or non-recognition be brought before the notice of any of them.

Fraternally yours,

NIHIUM NE CREDE COLORI.

WHICH IS CORRECT?

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I fully agree with the theory broached by your correspondent, who signs himself "P.M., P.Z.," as to the desirability of our having a uniform ritual; but I fear the difficulties in the way of obtaining it are well nigh insuperable. Is there one among our learned doctors of sufficient weight that all the rest will consent to accept his version in each and every disputed point? I think not. Neither do I imagine a congress of preceptors would be of any practical use in bringing about the end your correspondent has in view. We are far more likely, I fancy, to obtain this desirable uniformity if, when questions arise as to which of two versions is correct, the Preceptor will allow himself to be influenced by the dictates of common sense. "P.M., P.Z.'s" case is an illustration. He asks which is correct?

Preceptor No. 1, who says, "Benevolence rendered by Heaven-born charity is an honour to the nature whence it springs," or Preceptor No. 2, who says, "Benevolence, &c., to the nation whence it springs."

I say, Preceptor No. 1, most decidedly. I confess I am not as deeply versed in our ritual as I should like to be, and many, therefore, will say I have no right to offer so decided an opinion. It strikes me a Mason of half an hour's standing could decide between the two versions, assuming him to possess a grain of common sense. We hear and read daily of benevolence springing from this or that nature, but whoever heard of benevolence springing from a nation. It may characterise the nature of an individual; it may also characterise the nature of a people; but no one who was trying to write commonsensibly would dream of saying that benevolence sprang from a nation. Benevolence is present in or absent from the nature of every human being under the sun, wholly irrespective of nationality. We have benevolent Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, Americans, and so on throughout the nations of the earth, as we have malevolent Englishmen, Frenchmen, Germans, Americans, &c., &c. The benevolence of the former is an honour to their nation, as the malevolence of the latter is a dishonour, but neither benevolence nor malevolence comes from any nation—for instance, from the English nation, or the French nation, or the German nation. If our Preceptors, as many I know do, will but concern themselves, not with what Bro. So-and-So taught or teaches, but with the meaning of what it is their business to teach: if they will think less of mere parrot-like repetition, and more of the sense of what they repeat, we shall soon approach as near uniformity as, in the case of oral teaching, we are ever likely to approach.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BRO.,—"P.M. and P.Z.," of Clapham, is anxious to know which word is correct, "Nature whence it springs," or "Nation, &c.?" Professing to have been a regular attendant at Lodges of Instruction, as well as a teacher of the ritual and lectures for some years, he seems, in the end, to have only succeeded in enveloping himself in a cloud of uncertainty, suspended in a hazy atmosphere of doubt and perplexity. It is to be hoped some one, able and willing, will speedily hasten to the rescue and administer relief to a distressed and troubled mind. For my own part, I think "nature" is the proper word, and harmonises with the context. Our brother is welcome to adopt this rendering should it happen to coincide with his own idea or conception. But there is a point in his letter which may be considered of far higher value and importance and worthy of serious attention. Our brother is a strong and persistent advocate for uniformity of working. It would be difficult to conceive what advantages are likely to arise if the working in every Lodge was precisely identical, unless, indeed, it might possibly lead to greater efficiency, which, it must be admitted, would be an immense gain. The question, however, which forcibly presents itself, is not the desirability, which every one would readily acknowledge, but the feasibility of the plan. To me it appears that the only way to render the scheme in any measure practicable, would be for the Grand Lodge to issue an authorised version, and, at the same time, enact some effective pains and penalties to follow any deviation therefrom. It strikes me that even then it is a matter of doubt—nay, I may venture to assert it is a positive certainty—that innovations, misconstructions, misconceptions, and ignorant perversions, will, most assuredly, creep in. In theory, the idea is attractive; but, like many theoretical problems, the solution of which look exceedingly well upon paper, prove entire and unmitigated failures when it is attempted to put them into practice; so I think our brother, whose hopes for the realisation of this pet scheme have, to my knowledge, been kept alive for some years past, will find it excessively difficult to overcome the powerful barriers of prejudice, conceit, obtuseness, obstinacy, and numberless equally impregnable obstacles, tenaciously obstructing his path. His perseverance, however, deserves success, and although sceptical as to the result, he has the best wishes of,

Yours fraternally,

E. GOTTHEIL.

DEDICATION OF THE CARNARVON LODGE, No. 804.

From the PORTSMOUTH TIMES AND NAVAL GAZETTE.

YESTERDAY was appointed for the dedication, by the R.W. the Prov. G.M. of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight (Bro. W. Wither Bramston Beach, M.P.), of the Carnarvon Lodge, No. 804, which has been erected in the vicinity of the railway-station at Havant. The flourishing condition of the Lodge induced the members to provide a building to be set apart for the purpose of Freemasonry, and so recently as the 10th April last the Prov. Grand Master attended at Havant to lay the foundation stone, the ceremony being performed according to the ancient customs of the Craft. The weather was unpropitious, and the result was the attendance of brethren on that occasion was somewhat limited. Since then the work has been pushed on with considerable vigour, under the superintendence of Bro. H. R. Trigg, architect, of Hayling Island, a P.M. of the Carnarvon Lodge, and Past Prov. Grand Superintendent of Works. The building consists of a lofty Lodge-room, with retiring-room for the W.M. adjoining, a committee-room and Tyler's-room at the entrance, and the usual offices. The contract for its construction was entrusted to Bro. G. Barnes, of North End, who has carried on the work in the most satisfactory manner. The building of the Lodge having been completed, nothing remained but to have it properley dedicated, in order that the Freemasons of Havant may regularly assemble within its walls.

Shortly after three o'clock the Lodge was "close tyled," and the Provincial Grand Master, accompanied by the Provincial Officers, entered, and was received with the customary tokens of respect by the brethren. Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., the Provincial Grand Master, was supported by the following officers of Provincial Grand Lodge:—

White and G. L. Green, of the Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487; Joseph Hill 1425, J. Gieve 1069; C. B. Whitcomb P.M., John Liddle, G. Foster, W. Scott, M. Dowd and R. Drover, of Gosport Lodge, No. 903.

The Grand Master intimated that the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. W. Hickman) was absent, in consequence of indisposition, and he asked the Prov. G. Secretary (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre) to act as his substitute. It was then announced that the Grand Master, assisted by his Grand Officers, would dedicate the Lodge to Masonry, Virtue, and Universal Benevolence. The opening solo and chorale, composed by Bro. C. H. Liddell, Organist of the Lodge, were effectively rendered by Bros. Carter, Liddell, Blackmore and Sperring, Bro. Fillow presiding at the harmonium.

The Grand Master then called upon Bro. Henry Ford P.P.G.S.W. to offer some observations upon Freemasonry.

Bro. Ford said that if it were not his duty to obey the Grand Master's command, he should still have felt it a pleasure to take part in the proceedings of the day. It was no ordinary occasion that brought them together. They were met to consecrate for futurity a building in which he hoped the principles of Freemasonry, without any admixture, would never cease to be taught. He believed that upon such an occasion it was usual to enter into a dissertation upon Freemasonry, but upon the present occasion he thought he should ill discharge the duty imposed upon him were he to occupy their time for more than a few moments on the subject that was entrusted to his keeping. He could not say that it was difficult to speak on any Masonic question, or for any one to give a reason for the hope that was within him, for he believed they had, he was about to say, divine principles. But on the present occason he should content himself with very little more than a cursory allusion to the characteristics that ought to mark Freemasonry wherever it was found. It taught loyalty to the throne, it taught them to obey the institutions of the country in which they lived, to reverence the laws, and to respect the obligations imposed upon them, living, as they did, under free institutions and in a free country. Need they wonder at the persecution to which Freemasonry was exposed in other countries which were governed by a constitution very dissimilar from theirs? Freemasonry, besides, taught them, as one of their first obligations, to reverence the Volume of the Sacred Law. Otherwise, why was it that when they assembled on an occasion like the present, or at their ordinary meetings, they had the Sacred Volume open before them, showing them that within its pages they discovered the principles which animated their Order and bound them together? It had struck him that they were not sufficiently careful to look to the pages of that volume for a justification of the practices Masonry enjoined, and the conduct they endeavoured to obtain from every member of their Order. In both books of the Sacred Volume they found many and many a justification. "Let brotherly love continue." "Be kindly affectioned one to another in honour preferring one another." It struck him that in those few words they had a summary which embraced almost every principle of their Order, and these certainly were the principles which they were disposed to present to their neighbours as the leading characteristics of their faith. Oh, if they acted more upon these principles, if they permeated their conduct and lives in every step they took, how different the tone of Masonic society would be, how much better all of them would be as citizens, how much more would they give effect to the principles that governed and guided their Order. Besides a reverence for the Sacred Law they ought to remember that they had a duty to one another as individuals, which ought to be discharged, whether they were Freemasons or not, but which Freemasonry intensified — he referred to the Divine principle of doing unto your neighbour as you would desire him to do unto yourself. This was what Freemasonry taught them to do. Oh, that they acted more and more upon those principles, and so enabled the outer world to say, "Lo, how these Masons love one another." If they could only effect this they would be doing much in the interests of their Order. There was no principle of morality which was not inculcated by Freemasonry. They were taught their duties as citizens and as individuals. But they had other duties to perform amongst themselves, which every Mason would immediately recognise when he alluded to those principles which were inculcated upon them, and which were intended to regulate their private life. They undertook the solemn obligation, when they entered the walls of a Freemasons' Lodge, not to forget that they had obligations, to live sober, steady lives, and to present themselves an example to their fellow creatures and to their fellow Masons. They were to show by their moderation, in every action of their lives, that they were governed by a desire to promote virtue and advance science. Permit him to say how rejoiced they ought to be to find themselves, in a little town like this, assembled on such an interesting and important occasion. Let them hope that those principles to which he had cursorily and imperfectly referred would animate the breast of every member of Lodge Carnarvon and permeate society at Havant, and that the members of the Lodge might never forget that their fellow-townsmen looked up to them to prove that they were Masons and that there was something real and consistent about their Order. He hoped they would never forget the day on which they assembled to dedicate a building which was worthy of their Order, and which reflected the greatest possible credit upon them. He hoped that it would remain for many years a monument of their devotion to the principles of the Craft. He congratulated them upon having arrived at the accomplishment of their object, and he offered an earnest prayer not only that the building might be permanent but that the principles of Freemasonry might be, not merely co-existent, but last far beyond it, and that every member, now and in the future, might be blessed with health, wealth, and prosperity. (Loud applause.)

"The Glorious Majesty of the Lord" having been sung,

Bro. Trigg said, that having been entrusted with the superintendence and management of the workmen in the construction of the edifice, and having now completed his charge, he begged leave humbly to thank the Grand Master for the honour bestowed upon him by the appointment, and also to return to him the implements which were entrusted to him at the laying of the foundation stone, and he expressed a hope that the work so far completed might be crowned with his (the Grand Master's) approval, and that of the brethren. (Applause.)

The Provincial Grand Master said it was very gratifying to him, having so very recently attended to lay the foundation stone of the building, and having entrusted its management to his (Bro. Trigg's) intelligence and skill, to see the result which had attended his labours. He must certainly congratulate him, not only upon the ability he had shown, but upon the management he must have evinced to have caused the building to have been erected in such a speedy and expeditious manner. He thought, as Bro. Ford had said, that every credit was due to the Masons of this Lodge for having carried into execution such a building as this. But they must not forget that it was to him (Bro. Trigg) they were indebted for having given effect to their resolutions and their endeavours, and he was certain that all would join with him in approval of his skill, and in thanking him for this testimony of his ability. (Applause.)

"Hail Masonry Divine" was then sung, after which

The Acting Deputy Grand Master (Bro. Le Feuvre) said it was some months since he had the great gratification of attending with the Grand Master and assisting in laying the foundation stone of the building in which they were now assembled. Since that time the building has made rapid progress, and now approached completion. Complete it was not, for one act yet remained to be accomplished. Addressing the P.G.M., the Acting D.P.G.M. said: In every hope and confidence that on the foundation stone has been erected a superstructure which will receive your approval, perfect in all its parts, honourable to the builder, and worthy of the brethren of this Lodge and neighbourhood, and in the name of the Carnarvon Lodge, I have the extreme gratification of asking you to consecrate it for the purposes of Freemasonry.

The P.G.M. expressed the great pleasure he should have in acceding to the request, and with the assistance of the P.G. Wardens proceeded to perform the ceremony in due Masonic form. (The vessels for the corn, wine and oil used on the occasion had been lent by Bros. H. M. Emanuel and Sons, of Ordnance-row, Portsea.) At the conclusion of the impressive ceremony, Bro. G. R. Johnson (of the Theological Training College, Chichester), who, in the absence of the P.G. Chaplain, officiated as Chaplain, offered the following prayer:—

"Great Architect of the Universe, look down and bless this Hall, which has been this day solemnly dedicated to Masonry, Virtue, and Universal Benevolence, guide those who shall govern and rule here, so that the true principles of Masonry alone may be taught, pure and unsullied, and our labours being now ended, grant that we may separate in unity and brotherly love."

The Provincial Grand Master, addressing the brethren, said it was unnecessary for him to detain them with any lengthened address upon Freemasonry, considering that the time was rather limited, and that Bro. Ford had given them such an able and excellent address upon the subject. But still he could not allow this ceremony to conclude without addressing a few words of congratulation to them. He thought it must be a subject of great satisfaction to the members of the Carnarvon Lodge that they had seen their labours crowned with such success. Certainly, when he and others attended on the occasion of laying the foundation stone the elements were not propitious, and they had great difficulties to contend with. To lay a foundation stone in a pouring rain was by no means an agreeable occupation—(laughter)—but at the same time the brethren were undaunted by that inauspicious commencement, and by the skill of the architect and the energy of the contractor they had been able to carry it to an auspicious end. It was a great gratification to the brethren of any Lodge to have a building in which they could assemble and worthily celebrate their mysteries, because it showed, in the first place, that they must have a high appreciation of the Order into which they had entered, or they would not have thought it worth while to take the trouble to provide such a building. But the purposes of Freemasonry were so high and inspiriting that they might well lead any Freemason to make great exertions in the cause. He addressed many who had been Freemasons for many years; he addressed others who had recently entered into the Order, but he was sure that one and all were imbued with the right principles of their Order, and were resolved to do their best to carry them out. They should remember certain principles on which their ancient brethren proceeded. What were the great principles which directed them in the erection of those stately and superb edifices of old, which did honour to their skill and taste? Wisdom, strength, beauty—skill to design, strength to carry out the work, and beauty to embellish it. These were the principles on which many edifices were in former days erected. It was not possible, in the present day, to emulate those edifices, but they could do their best to emulate the virtues of their ancestors and to try to carry out those principles which actuated them in executing those magnificent works. To erect a building alone would be little, unless the brethren who were assembled therein were resolved to carry on the purposes of Freemasonry to their fullest extent, and certainly, if they did their best, as Bro. Ford had said, in their generation, to show to the outer world that they had entered into Freemasonry for no private gratification of their own, but simply to carry out its grand and magnificent principles, they would do something to show their appreciation of the Order which they had entered. Universal benevolence was one of its leading principles, and they should show it, not only to their brethren within these walls, but to others in the outer world, with whom they might be brought in contact. And as Bro. Ford had said, Freemasonry should have a great influence upon their lives, and prove to others with whom they were brought into connection, that it had an ameliorating influence upon them. He did think there was something in Freemasonry which softened the asperities of the outer world, and had an ameliorating influence upon their minds. He really thought that if they mused awhile upon its principles there was something which had a beneficial effect upon their conduct in life. As Bro. Ford had said, the Volume of the Sacred Law lay open before them, to regulate their actions and to direct their proceedings, and guide their minds in the paths of virtue and peace. What more enobling influence could be exercised on the human mind than was exercised by that Sacred Volume? Let them remember that it was one of the great lights of Freemasonry, and that every Freemason ought to act according to its principles. Let them, then, do their best to act as faithful and true Freemasons, and so long as the brethren in that Lodge choose to emulate the example which had been set them by their predecessors of old, and by the many excellent Freemasons whom they had known in life, so long would Freemasonry flourish in that building, and so long would they have reason to congratulate themselves upon the work which they had inaugurated that day. (Loud applause.)

After the Lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Town Hall, where about 80 sat down to a banquet, which was served by Bro. J. Purnell, of the "Dolphin" Hotel. The P.G.M. having been compelled by another engagement to leave at the close of the banquet, the chair was occupied by Bro. Weeks, W.M. of the Carnarvon Lodge, and under his genial presidency the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to, and an agreeable evening was spent.

GREAT MASONIC GATHERING AT KIRKBY LONSDALE.

THE annual meeting of the Masonic Province of Cumberland and and Westmorland was held on Friday last, at Kirkby Lonsdale, under the banner of Underley Lodge, 1074. There was a very large gathering of brethren from the different Lodges in the province, and in fact the event proved the most important assemblage of the Craft ever held in the Border counties. Masonry has, beyond a doubt, flourished and increased its branches to a great extent during the past few years, not only in Cumberland and Westmorland, but generally throughout England and Wales. It is only twelve years since Skiddaw Lodge, No. 1002, Cockermouth, was opened; and the last Lodge, for which his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales granted a warrant, was No. 1640, whilst no fewer than five new Lodges have been consecrated during that period in this neighbourhood, of which Bective Lodge, Carlisle, is the youngest, Brother Potter being W.M. During the past twelve months over a hundred new Lodges have been opened in England and Wales and the Colonies. Last year it was intended to hold the Provincial meeting at Kirkby Lonsdale, but after the issue of the summonses the Earl of Bective, M.P., R.W. and Provincial Grand Master, suffered a domestic bereavement, and the meeting was altered to Penrith. The bulk of the brethren arrived at Kirkby Lonsdale from the north about half-past eleven, there being strong deputations from the two Whitehaven Lodges, the two Carlisle Lodges, as also from Wigton, Penrith, Maryport, Longtown, Workington, Cockermouth, Keswick, Silloth, Egremont, Millom, and Harrington. The Kendal and Appleby Lodges were also well represented. A number of ladies accompanied the Masons, The Countess of Bective having issued special invitations for their admission to the beautiful park and gardens of Underley, with the addition of tea, provided in the afternoon at the hall, the wet weather, which subsequently set in, upsetting the previous arrangements for the entertainment of the "wives, daughters, and sweethearts" of the Masons, in a marquee close to the hall.

The Grand Lodge was held at the Town Hall, which had been appropriately fitted up by the brethren of Underley Lodge for the occasion. The Charity Committee met at noon, and at one o'clock the Earl of Bective, M.P., Provincial Grand Master, presided, supported on the dais by Col. Whitwell, M.P., Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Past Grand Warden of England, Lord Skelmersdale Deputy Grand Master of England, Provincial Grand Master of West Lancashire, Rev. Dr. Simpson Past Grand Chaplain of England, Worshipful Master of Eden Valley Lodge, Appleby, and many other brethren of eminence, all clothed in the purple and gold of their rank. Lord Skelmersdale, in addition to his superb decorations as Deputy Grand Master of England, also wore the ribbon and jewel of Second Principal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, of which body the Prince of Wales is First Principal. The minutes of the meeting held at Carlisle last May were first read and confirmed, as also the Provincial Grand Treasurer's statement of accounts, after which the Charity Committee's report was presented and adopted. Bro. Lemon P.P.G.S.W. Wigton, was unanimously re-elected Grand Treasurer, with acclamation, and Bro. Anderson, Kirkby Lonsdale, was elected Grand Tyler for the year. The retiring officers having divested themselves of their collars and jewels, the Provincial Grand Master proceeded to invest the new officers as follow:—

Bro. Kirkbride, 339, Penrith, Senior Warden.
" Bowes, 129 (Kendal), Warrington, Junior Warden.
" Lemon, 327, Wigton, Treasurer.
" Gibson, 119, Whitehaven, Secretary.
" Rev. C. H. Gem, 327, Wigton, Chaplain.
" Rev. H. B. Thompson, 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale, Asst. Chaplain.
" Whitehead, 812, Appleby, Registrar.
" Pratchitt, 1532, Carlisle, Senior Deacon.
" Cook, 1532, Carlisle, Junior Deacon.
" Frears, 119, Whitehaven, Organist.
" Beattie, 962, Workington, Superintendent of Works.
" Armstrong, 371, Maryport, Director of Ceremonies.
" Atkinson, 872, Whitehaven, Assistant Director of Ceremonies.
" Walton, 371, Maryport, Sword Bearer.
" Dodgson, 1390, Millom, Pursuivant.
" Anderson, 1074, Kirby Lonsdale, Tyler.

STEWARDS.

Bro. Carruthers, 310 Carlisle.
" Waring, 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale.
" Eilbeck, 1267, Egremont.
" Towerson, 872, Whitehaven.
" Grayson, 129, Kendal.
" Meredith, 1390, Millom.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been closed, the brethren marched to the Parish Church, headed by a mixed band composed of the band of the 1st Royal Lancashire Militia and the Silsden Band, Skipton. The service was full choral, Bro. Freeman, of Keswick, P.P.G. Organist, presiding at the organ. The sermon was preached by Bro. the Rev. William Beeby, Maryport, P.P.G. Chaplain, from Ruth i, 7. At the conclusion of the service a handsome offertory was made, and divided amongst the Masonic Charities and Kirkby Lonsdale National Schools. Subsequently, the Masons wended their way to Underley Park, in a shower of rain, where over three hundred sat down to a sumptuous banquet on the invitation of Lord Bective, for which purpose a large marquee, elegantly decorated with flowers, muslin hangings, and Masonic banners, was erected in front of the hall. The Provincial Grand Master presided, supported right and left by Lord Skelmersdale, Colonel Whitwell, M.P., Rev. Dr. Simpson, and others. The toast list was greatly curtailed, owing to the brethren from West Cumberland having to leave shortly after five o'clock by special train. Lord Bective's, health, however, was received with every honour, and his Lordship's reply evoked round upon round of cheering. Lord Skelmersdale, in replying to the toast with which his name was associated, expressed his gratification at being present amongst the Masons of Cumberland and Westmorland, and said he was surprised at the flourishing state in which he found the Province. Many Provinces important in name and standing had not near so many members, and he confessed himself as being both surprised and pleased at what he had seen that day. Rain falling heavily as the time drew near for departure, a number of covered conveyances were in readiness, including Lord Bective's own four-in-hand (his Lordship being a member of the coaching club), and, with few exceptions, the whole of the large party were landed at Barbon station at half-past five. Only two circumstances tended to mar the enjoyment of the day, namely, the showery weather, and the comparatively late hour at which the proceedings were timed to begin.

Old Warrants.

No. 27.

Warrant of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of all England, transcribed from Bro. Hughan's Masonic Sketches and Reprints, the only one of its kind known.

The Warrant granted to the Companions at Rotherham* to hold a Royal Arch Chapter is thus worded:—

And we trust that they will promote the Worship of God, and be good and useful members. And we do hereby appoint our said Brethren, Josiah Beckwith, John Hassall, and James Simes, to be the Right Worshipful Masters of the said Chapter, with full power for them to Elect other Brothers, of the same Order to succeed to the Offices aforesaid; and so from time to time Annually, for them and their Successors to elect others, to supply these offices. Requiring, nevertheless, that an account in writing of the Proceedings from time to time, with the names of the Brethren by them admitted to the degrees aforesaid, shall be brought or transmitted to us and our Successors Annually on the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, or as soon after as may be. Given under our Seal at the Grand Lodge All England, in York, the sixth Day of July, Anno Domini one Thousand, seven Hundred, and Eighty.

The present No., title, &c. are, The Lodge of Unity, No. 183, Bishopsgate-street, London.

Re No. 6, NOW No. 11.

In answer to the Editor's enquiry, I find, by my notes, that No. 2 Dormant Warrant was purchased from the "Ancient" Grand Lodge, by the then No. 32, for the sum of 6 Guineas.

The present No. 11, formerly No. 6, of which the interesting history appears in "THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE" of 16th September, was revived in 1755. The Warrant, as transcript (No. 6 of the Series) in the "F.C." of the 8th July, was purchased by Lodge No. 37, at the end of 1754, for the sum of a guinea! The Warrant bears two dates, viz., 1751 and 1755. Nos. 32 and 37 were taken by other Lodges, and are both extinct.

MARRIAGE.

HAYDON—WEBSTER.—On the 18th inst., by Special License, at the District Registrar's Office, Leeds, Bro. William Haydon, of the St. John's Lodge, No. 1564, Knaphill, Surrey, to Martha, eldest daughter of the Worshipful Master, Bro. John Webster, P.D.J.G.W. Gibraltar.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—A frequent cause of gout and rheumatism is the inflammatory state of the blood, attended with bad digestion and general debility. A few doses of these Pills, taken in time, are an effectual preventive against gout and rheumatism, but any one who has an attack of either should use Holloway's Ointment also, the powerful properties of which, combined with the effects of the Pills, must infallibly effect a cure. These Pills act directly on the blood, which they purify and improve; they also regulate the secretions, and give tone to the stomach, and thus the whole system is invigorated, and put into a condition which enables it throw off disease or check its approach.

The fifteen sections will be worked by Bro. Webb, at the Israel Lodge of Instruction, held at Bro. Yetton's, the "Rising Sun," Globe-road, Bethnal Green, on Sunday evening next. Bros. Barnes, Cundick, Fowler, Taylor, Hewlett, Musto, Yetton, Ellis, Burr, Williams, Brient, Cohen, Job, Frederick, &c., will assist.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"We do not remember to have read any similar series of sketches which surpass this in merit."—Land and Water.

"Admirably written, being free from what are too often observed in composition—inelegant language and prolixity."—Sunday Times.

"'J. G.' writes with a considerable amount of freedom, never hesitating to 'hit off' a weakness when he finds it publicly displayed by a 'distinguished brother;' at the same time he never loses sight of a good trait when it is displayed, either in connexion with the Craft or in the service of the public out of doors. The sketches are lively reading."—City Press.

"This is a neat book. The Portraits consist of a series of 'word pictures' of eminent English Masons. It styles Bro. W. J. Hughan 'Knight Errant,' and sketches thirty-two others under equally unique titles. We commend the book as worthy of a place in every Masonic library."—Voice of Masonry.

"Evinces much literary ability, and is a valuable addition to the few works we have in Masonic biography."—Philadelphia Keystone.

"The book ought to be in every well arranged Masonic Library."—New York Courier.

"The portraits consist of a series of what we call 'pen and ink sketches' of brethren prominent in all the noble undertakings of English Masonry. . . . Prominent among his brethren we find Bro. Fred. Binckes, ('Our Hercules,') whose herculean efforts in behalf of those blessed institutions, the charities of English Masons, have a world-wide reputation, which will live long after the zealous Craftsman has been, 'laid away to rest.'"—New York Square.

"The style of the author is pleasing, and the quality of his productions highly complimentary to his ability as a writer."—Masonic Advocate.

"There is a piquancy in the ready off-hand dash that lends much zest to the subject, and bars it from studied rhetorical expression."—Hebrew Leader.

"We value the work, and heartily thank Bro. Morgan for our copy."—Masonic Jewel.

"There can be no doubt that the writer has produced a series of Portraits which will be a source of amusement and pleasure to Masons throughout the world."—Surrey Comet.

"Will be found very interesting and pleasant reading, especially to the Masonic world."—Barnet Press.

"Calculated to raise the Order—if that be possible—in the estimation of its members, if not of the outer world."—Trowbridge and North Wilts Advertiser.

"Written in a spirited, racy style, and conveying, in as clear a manner as possible, a 'counterfeit presentment' of some of the rulers of the Craft."—Essex Standard.

"Good sensibly written articles. The writer prefaces each of his sketches with some pithy common sense remarks."—Cashel Gazette.

"Cleverly and agreeably sketched, and the work altogether forms a valuable addition to Masonic literature."—Ryde News.

"Very amusing, and beyond doubt, faithful portraits of the worthies who unconsciously sat for them."—Deal, Walmer and Sandwich Mercury.

"The members of the Craft will take it as an acceptable addition to their biographical literature."—Monmouthshire Chronicle.

"They are written in a fair and genial tone, thoroughly Masonic."—Leigh Chronicle.

"Should have a very large sale."—Kingsbridge Gazette.

"These sketches are drawn with sparkling ability."—Bangfshire Reporter.

"We must sincerely congratulate the author on the success of his endeavour to aim at faithful portraiture, while there is an entire absence of what might give offence to the most sensitive mind."—Folkestone Express.

"A very acceptable contribution to the history of the Order. The volume has our warmest commendation."—Kelso Courier.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE Royal Circle at Balmoral has been increased by the arrival, on Tuesday afternoon, of H.R.H. Princess Alice (Princess Louis of Hesse). The Queen, accompanied by the Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, drove to Ballater to meet her daughter. Preparations are being made for the visit of the Prince of Wales to Glasgow, and the Masonic portion of the ceremonial in connection with laying the foundation stone of the new Post Office will after all be carried out; the Prince, who is Patron of the Craft in Scotland, having with his usual kindness yielded on this point to the expressed wishes of the citizens. There will also be held the proposed review of volunteers, so that the worthy people of Glasgow will have a grand opportunity of enjoying themselves.

Meetings continue to be held all over the country on the subject of the Turkish atrocities in Bulgaria, and several important speeches have been made by the leading members of both political parties. On Saturday, Sir Stafford Northcote, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is generally pointed to as Mr. Disraeli's successor in the House of Commons, was presented with an address by the Conservative Working Men's Association at Edinburgh, and this, of course, afforded him an opportunity, of which he readily availed himself, of delivering a long and effective speech on the present political situation. On Tuesday a great meeting was held at the City Hall, Glasgow, at which the Earl of Shaftesbury and the Duke of Argyll spoke strongly on the Turkish imbroglio. The day previous, there was a grand gathering in Guildhall, under the presidency of Lord Mayor Cotton, and on the evening of the same day there was a grand working men's demonstration at Exeter Hall, of which Professor Fawcett was the presiding genius. On Wednesday, Lord Beaconsfield was present at the annual gathering of the Royal Bucks Agricultural Association. On such occasions, politics, as a rule, are very properly avoided, but in this instance this wise rule was very wisely departed from, and his Lordship, having given a brief account of his elevation by Her Majesty to the peerage, explained at considerable length the action of the government thus far during the present critical juncture. We trust his speech will have a re-assuring effect, and will satisfy the public generally that the Ministry is losing no opportunity of re-establishing peace on a firm and durable basis. Numerous other meetings have been held in other parts of the country, but none of them approach in importance the three or four we have alluded to above. Nor is public attention directed wholly and solely to the discussion of these terrible circumstances. Something more substantial is being done. Subscriptions are being raised in all districts, the object of the promoters being to afford as much relief as possible to those who have suffered by these calamities.

On Friday, Saturday and Monday, visitors to the Alexandra Palace had the opportunity of seeing, not only how the busy bee "employs each shining hour," but also the produce of such employment, as well as the various modes of bee-keeping. The exhibition was held under the auspices of the British Bee-keepers' Association, founded by Sir John Lubbock, in 1874. In the Central Hall was held what was very appropriately called the "Honey Fair," there being quite 500 feet of table space covered with hives and honeycomb. The practical work of bee-keeping was illustrated in the Italian Garden, where the different systems and the operation of swarming were exhibited. Thousands of bees were buzzing about each day, but the number of visitors was considerable, the more timid being provided with veils for their faces. We wish the Association every success. There is no reason why our cottagers should not take to bee-keeping as a profitable occupation. Pure honey of home growth would be certain to find a ready market.

We shall shortly hear of further performances of the 81-ton gun. The barge that was to convey it to Shoeburyness was successfully launched early in the week, and the gun, with its carriage, ammunition, &c., was safely put aboard, and has no doubt been landed all right at its destination. A long range of 6000 yards having been provided for the trial of heavy ordnance, we shall, of course, know very soon more of the capabilities of this Woolwich monster.

There seems to have been some big shooting in the International Rifle Match at Philadelphia, to which we alluded last week. As stated then, the American team proved the winners of the Centennial trophy, the Irish being second, the Scotch third, then the Australians [the earlier advices placed these third and the Scotch next], and lastly the Canadians. The firing was at the three ranges of 800, 900 and 1,000 yards, and extended over two days. Both as regards the aggregate and individual scores the shooting was wonderfully accurate, and appears to have been superior to that in our annual contests for the Elcho shield at Wimbledon, that being the only match in this country with which the Centennial can be compared.

On Monday morning a fire broke out in Mill-street, Hanover-square, which resulted in the loss of three lives. The premises destroyed were those of an eating-house keeper, who resided, however, with his family at St. John's Wood. Four of his servants slept at the house, a lad —who threw himself from one of the windows, and met with very serious injuries, and a woman and her two daughters, aged respectively fourteen and seven years. When the fire was at length subdued, the bodies of these three were found dreadfully charred and burnt. They were removed to the parish mortuary to await the usual inquest.

A match for the Bicycle Championship was held at the Lillie-bridge Grounds, on Monday. The distance to be covered was fifty miles, the competitors being Keen and Stanton, the former of whom is the present holder of the title. When twenty-three miles had been accomplished, Stanton's bicycle received such damage that he was obliged to dismount. This enabled Keen to obtain a clear lead of a mile, and all Stanton's efforts to lessen this formidable gap proved unavailing. Keen was ordered to discontinue after having gone on for more than thirty miles, the first twenty of which were accomplished in nine seconds under one hour and eleven minutes.

The Foresters have already had one fête day this year at the Alexandra Palace, but a section of the order held a second at the Crystal Palace on Tuesday, the metropolitan portion of this society appearing to divide their allegiance between these two popular resorts. Owing to this division the attendance was not, numerically speaking, so imposing as in former years, yet over thirty thousand passed the turnstiles. A special programme of entertainments had been provided, and the day passed off most successfully. The principal object of the fête was the provision of a widow and orphans' fund, and we doubt not, from the accounts we have read, that the meeting was a great success.

On Wednesday, a sham fight came off in the neighbourhood of Portsmouth, all the troops in garrison that could be spared taking part in the operations. H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge witnessed the proceedings, which, as is the practice now-a-days, were governed by a general idea, the details being left to the discretion of the opposing Commanders. When the fight was over, the Duke summoned the mounted officers about him, and passed his criticisms on the manner in which the idea had been carried out. Another sham fight has likewise taken place at Aldershott, so that our army, small as it is in mere numbers, is gradually being initiated into the mysteries of war. We trust, however, the day is yet far distant when these minor engagements will have to be exchanged for the sterner realities of the actual battle field.

The autumn fruit and flower show annually held at the Crystal Palace was opened to the public on Thursday, and will close to-day. It will suffice if we say that the general character of the exhibition was eminently satisfactory, some of the specimens being magnificent. The usual afternoon Concert and a grand display of fireworks will form the other attractions of to-day, and as the sun has kindly condescended to shine very brilliantly during this week, the directors of the Palace will, no doubt, find a goodly attendance of visitors.

Messrs. Gatti's Promenade Concerts, at Covent Garden, are still as popular as ever, the audience each evening being both numerous and appreciative. In the theatrical world, the opening of the season is the cause of considerable activity, and among the latest novelties must be mentioned a very praiseworthy revival of Shakspeare's play of King Henry the Fifth, by Mr. Coleman, the enterprising lessee of the Queen's, the veteran Phelps appearing in the closing scene of the second Part of Henry IV. which is prefixed by way of prologue. A morning performance will be given this day, at 2 p.m., for the benefit of the Royal General Theatrical Fund. To-night Old Drury opens for the autumnal campaign, with the performance of Shakspeare's Richard III., and Mr. Barry Sullivan in the character of Richard.

The news from the Cape, is to the effect that the Dutch Boers in the Transvaal District have encountered a very serious defeat at the hands of the Kafirs. A part of President Burger's force appears to have exhibited "the better part of valour" instead of valour itself. It is rumoured that British intervention may be called in to settle the contest.

From the seat of war the latest intelligence is very reassuring. Already a suspension of hostilities has taken place, not only in Servia, but likewise between the Turks and Montenegrins, and Turkey is said to have placed herself unreservedly in the hands of the six Great Powers, to whom is entrusted the drawing up of the terms of peace. According to Lord Beaconsfield's statement at Aylesbury, on Wednesday, Lord Derby had succeeded in obtaining the consent of the other powers to certain arrangements for the government of the Christians in Turkey, when Servia rushed headlong into war. The present armistice —we are quoting still the same authority—is due, primarily, to the exertions of our Foreign Minister, and he is again hard at work endeavouring to bring about a peaceful solution of the crisis. We trust his Lordship's efforts will prove successful. As to the proclamation by General Tchernaieff of Prince Milan as King of Servia, that will probably have no effect one way or the other. It is said to have caused no little consternation in political circles at Belgrade, and as little notice is being taken of it as possible. The publication of Mr. Baring's report fully confirms the fact of the most terrible atrocities having been committed by the Turks in Bulgaria, though some of the sensational accounts which have appeared in some newspapers are shown to have had no foundation whatever. We trust the subscriptions now being raised in this country will be considerable enough to offer a substantial relief to the unfortunate sufferers. Above all things, however, we trust that no long time will pass ere peace is restored, though to do so will tax the powers of European diplomacy.

The New York Square contains a full and amusing account of the excursion of the R.A. Chapters "Corinthian" and "Americus" to Gregory's Point, Conn.

We gather from the same source that the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Hon. William A. Kerr, was buried on the 25th ult. with Masonic honours by the Jefferson Lodge, No. 104, of New Albany, Indiana.

The Masonic Advocate, Indianapolis, contains in its August issue a history of Rising Sun Lodge No. 6. At the time when the Grand Lodge was organised, in 1817, "the Rising Sun" was only "under dispensation," and, as only chartered Lodges were represented, it took no part in the work of organisation. In 1818 it applied for and obtained its charter, and continued working uninterruptedly till September 1831, when, owing to the "Morgan excitement," its labours were suspended, and it remained in abeyance for eleven years. In 1835 Grand Lodge resolved to strike the Lodge from the Roll if it did not, within a year, apply for a dispensation, and commence again in good faith as a new Lodge. On inquiry in 1836 it was found the Master was dead, the Senior Warden absent, and there was no member who could give account of the Lodge effects. These were entrusted to the care of a Brother Squibbs, but no further action was taken till 1842, when "the Rising Sun" received permission to resume its labours. Since then the Lodge has gone on prosperously, and now comprises about sixty members. It has been presided over by twenty-nine Masters, and has had the honour of furnishing two Grand Masters to the State Grand Lodge, viz.: Bro. Abel C. Pepper, who served the office in 1829, and Bro. A. C. Downey, who was elected in 1851, 1852, 1855, 1856, 1859 and 1860. The latter, who is one of the Supreme Judges of the State, is still alive. Of the original Charter Members, Bro. Daniel Tapley, S.W. in 1819 and W.M. in 1820, 1823, 1824, and again in 1844, survives, at the ripe old age of eighty-five. He took a prominent part in the reorganization in 1842. On quitting the chair of K.S., in May 1844, Bro. Tapley was elected treasurer, and with the exception of four years has been annually re-elected till the present time. Bro. Tapley was born at Danvers, Essex County, Mass., on 14th July 1791, and migrated to Indiana in 1816. He has been a member of our Society for nearly fifty years, and is highly loved and respected by the Craftsmen.

According to the New York Courier Arkansas has 70 Chapters, and 1256 Royal Arch Masons. The same journal likewise announces that a new Masonic Hall is about to be built at Springfield, Illinois, and that Bro. James Lick, the Californian millionaire, is about to erect at a cost of 20,000 dols., a Masonic monument, in Lebanon County, Pennsylvania, to the memory of certain of his Masonic ancestors.

"The Buninyong Masonic Lodge was the scene of a most disgraceful tumult, on Wednesday evening last. It appears that some months since a person was proposed for initiation, who received, on the occasion, a plentiful amount of black balls. Dr. Hallett, who is a member of the Lodge, also an old Mason, was not then present, and consequently could not have voted. He was, on the above-named evening, the subject of a gross assault. Previous to the opening of the Lodge, and after waiting an hour beyond the usual time (seven o'clock), the cause of delay being then unaccountable, he was called out of Lodge by the late Master on a very idle pretext, and was no sooner out than the Lodge was at once opened in form; and on returning, after an absence of a very few minutes, the Doctor was informed that the Master had ordered that he should be refused entrance, although he had already signed the book kept for registering the names of all present at Lodge. He protested against such unprecedented and tyrannical treatment, and while doing so was seized by a member of the Lodge (much taller and stronger than himself), and dragged forcibly from the door of the Lodge, to the serious damage of his right hand. The cause of this outrage was the fear of his black balling the very man whom so many others had previously so treated. The Master of the Lodge is the most intimate friend of the candidate alluded to, and attributing to the Doctor the intention of opposing his admission for initiation, grossly committed himself as described."

[We can only say that such behaviour as is described in the foregoing extract is not only un-Masonic, but ruffianly in its character. We consider it is the duty of the aggrieved member to bring the matter at once under the notice of the District Grand Master. Assuming the description to be correct, we consider the member who is described as "much taller and stronger" than Bro. Dr. Hallett, and who "forcibly dragged" the latter from the door of the Lodge, should be expelled with ignominy.—Ed. Freemason's Chronicle.]

We are pleased to note a review of the reprint of our "Masonic Portraits" in the last issue of our notorious contemporary, the Saturday Review. Its scorn is almost too lofty for words; but as we have long regarded praise from that quarter as fatal to the ultimate success of its unhappy protégés, we rejoice that the struggling throes of criticism have, in this case, found expression.

At a meeting of the Falcon Lodge, No. 1416, on the 14th inst., after the ordinary business had been transacted, some observations were made as to the importance of architectural study, and the special advantages possessed by the brethren of the Falcon Lodge, resident as they were in the midst of a district remarkable for the abundance and richness of its antiquarian objects. It was also suggested, as being worthy of consideration, whether the formation of an Archæological section in connection with the Lodge would not conduce to the edification of its members, and likewise serve a useful purpose in putting on permanent record many interesting facts. In the immediate neighbourhood of Thirsk there are not less than one hundred churches, abbeys, castles, and historic sites worthy of examination, each possessing special features of interest. These might in turn be visited and described, with the additional advantage of having their more remarkable details sketched and indicated by professional gentlemen who are and may be members of the Lodge. We commend this project, and tender its promoters our hearty good wishes.

AN INDEPENDENT LODGE FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

FROM a recent number of the Graaff Reinet Herald we copy the following interesting article:—

Capetown is one of the most charming places in the Colony, and its inhabitants are second to none in their genial and cordial hospitality. Attempt, however, to encroach upon what it calls its "vested interests," to deprive it of the most infinitesimal portion of power or influence, either political, social, or Masonic, and you produce an effect somewhat similar to that produced on a bull by the sight of a bit of scarlet cloth. Lord Carnarvon has been rousing the ire of the Masonic world in the metropolis by his decision to divide the colony into separate Masonic districts, and our articles on the subject have evidently acted as the "bit of scarlet cloth," and aroused the venerable P.M.'s from that dormant state in which they have so long luxuriated. The idea of any portion of that power, which they have failed to employ or appreciate, slipping from their grasp, has excited their frenzy, and remembering the old adage "divide and conquer," they have once more thrown the old apple of discord amongst us, and raised a public cry for "an independent Lodge for South Africa."

When, last year, a proposal was made to sever our connection with the Grand Lodge of England, and form an independent Lodge in the Colony, we, in this column, for many and good reasons, strongly opposed the movement. We shewed, conclusively, that the arguments used in support of it were unsound, because they were not founded on facts. We denied the statements on which they were based, and challenged proof of any of them.

Instead of proof, we were assailed with personalities, we were told that we were "prejudiced," actuated by "flunkeyism," too much given to "sermonise," &c., &c. A very bitter feeling pervaded the effusions of our opponents, and so we retired from the discussion, not however, before knowing that what we had written had produced the desired effect, and that the great majority of our Lodges had decided against the proposed movement.

A year has passed quietly away, and the "small minority" are again at work, as will be seen by an extract taken over from an article "communicated" to the Cape Argus, and taking advantage of the feeling excited in Capetown by the resolve of Grand Lodge to do justice to this part of the Colony, and create a District Grand Lodge in the East, are making another effort to promote their pet scheme, and induce us to throw away a substantial benefit for a very shadowy probability. We will not now discuss anew the question. It would be useless. The Lodges in the East have, we believe, unanimously declared in favour of the new arrangement, and thankfully acknowledged, by resolution and address, the action of Grand Lodge.

If any argument were needed to justify Lord Carnarvon's proceeding, it is furnished by the writer to the Argus himself. He says that "it would be unfair to suppose that the present D.G. Lodge of Capetown would submit to sink into a P.G. Lodge of the Western Province with only four Lodges under its jurisdiction!!" Only "four Lodges in the Western Province," the abode of the venerable founders of Masonry in the Colony, the source "from whence Freemasons have spread themselves through the length and breadth of the land!" Truly, a change was much required.

The following is the extract referred to above:—

"The original foundation of Freemasons in this colony is, without doubt, solely due to the Lodges in Capetown. That noble and venerable institution "De Goede Hoop Lodge," with its splendid buildings and grounds, is a standing monument of the Craft in South Africa, and by this Lodge and the 'British' Freemasons have been initiated, who have spread themselves through the length and breadth of the land. With very natural feelings, the founders of the Order in this part of the world regard any infringment of their dignity or position with jealousy and suspicion. It would be manifestly unfair to suppose for a moment that the present District Grand Lodge in Capetown, which has so justly ruled English Freemasons in South Africa for so long past, would be satisfied with the proposed scheme of Lord Carnarvon, and submit to sink into a Provincial Grand Lodge of the Western Province, with only four Lodges under its jurisdiction, after having held its rank as a District Grand Lodge for so many years, nor would the members of that District Grand Lodge allow even a suggestion that Bro. Southey, ranking as he does, as 'District Grand Master of South Africa and Colonies adjacent thereto,' should hereafter hold the subordinate rank of Provincial Grand Master for the Western Province only, and have no higher position than the creations of to-day in the shape of the Provincial Grand Masters of the Eastern Province and Griqualand West.

"The time, therefore, seems to have arrived for what has long been talked about, namely, the establishment of a United Grand Lodge of South Africa, by which all local differences would be settled, and the tenets and principles of the Craft carried out in their pristine integrity. It has been demonstrated that the Freemasons here are both able and willing to govern themselves without any reference to England, Holland, Scotland, or elsewhere. Numbering, as they do, many thousands of members, they are called upon to subscribe annually a large sum of money in the shape of fees or dues, which are remitted to other countries, and out of which the Order here receives little or no commensurate advantage. Secure to them, say the advocates of a Grand Lodge, the advantages of united self government and the retention of their funds here, with liberty to spend them as they please, and they will prove to the world that great assistance can be rendered by them in advancing the cause of educating, relieving distress, and conferring many other benefits which at present they are precluded from doing. Some short time since, a detailed scheme was submitted to the various Lodges, embodying the foregoing principles, but prejudice prevailed, and the project met with but poor encouragement. Recent events, however, have altered the complexion of affairs, and there are, no doubt, many who formerly opposed the Grand Lodge scheme who would now be only too glad to espouse it. If the objects of the Craft can be served by the establishment of a United Grand Lodge of South Africa, and if the aims and design of Freemasonry are something more than mere professions, we should think, from an outside point of view, that there can be no well-grounded difference of opinion between English, Dutch, Scotch or Irish members as to the desirability of carrying out what is suggested, and if anything is to be done at all in the way of consolidation, unification, and improvement, there could be no more fitting opportunity than the present."

NEW ZEALAND.

THE INSTALLATION OF SIR D. McLEAN.

WE give, from the report in the Wellington Evening Post, some particulars respecting the installation of Sir D. McLean as Right Worshipful District Grand Master for the North Island of New Zealand:—The Right Worshipful District Grand Master elect (Bro. Sir D. McLean) took his seat in front of the W.M., Bro. Lazar (the Right Worshipful District Grand Master of Westland), the installing Officer then entered, with the members of the District Grand Lodge, and took the seat previously occupied by Bro. Mountain. He read the warrant issued by Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Freemasons of England, authorising the opening of a District Grand Lodge for the North Island of New Zealand, and appointing Sir D. McLean to preside over and govern it.

The installing Officer, in the name of the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England, formed the Lodge into a District Grand Lodge, and invoked the blessing of the Great Architect upon it. He then appointed certain officers to officiate during the ceremony, as follows:—Bros. R. Stout D.S.G.W., K. M'Lean D.J.G.W., James Buchanan D.S.G.D., and John Percy D.J.G.D. The District Grand Lodge was next opened in the customary manner, and the Installing Officer read to the Grand Master elect the warrant under which he was to take office. He called the attention of Bro. Sir D. McLean to the qualifications which it was essentially necessary he should possess, in order that he might be enabled properly to fulfil his duties. He then addressed him, pointing out the serious nature of his obligations, and the great duties he had solemnly promised to perform.

Bro. Sir D. McLean was then conducted under a canopy to the seat of the Installing Officer, who formally invested him with the badges of his new office, presented him with the warrant, and placed him in the chair. The usual Installation Lecture having been delivered by the Deputy Grand Master (Bro. Lazar), Bro. White P.M. proclaimed Bro. Sir Donald McLean the Right Worshipful District Grand Master for the North Island of New Zealand. The proclamation was made three times with flourish of trumpets, from the East, the West, and the South. He then delivered an address to the newly elected Grand Master, of whom he spoke in high terms of praise, and concluded by congratulating him very heartily on having attained his present dignified office. The representatives of several other Lodges also congratulated him.

Sir Donald McLean said: Worshipful Master, Past Masters, and Brethren,—I return you my most sincere thanks for the honour you have done me this day. I feel proud to see so many of my brother Freemasons present at this installation, and I thank those who have taken an active part in it. There are many others better qualified than myself, and it was my sincere hope that you might have found a person better suited to fill the office of District Grand Master; but as you have elected me, I hope I shall be able to carry out the true principles of Masonry—at any rate, I shall endeavour to do so. I again express my thanks for the kindness that has been displayed towards me, and I feel sure that the vital principles of our Craft will be well maintained, judging from the assemblage I see here this day. I return you once more my most grateful thanks, and give you the assurance that it will be my endeavour to carry out those obligations and duties which the Right Worshipful Master has so solemnly impressed on our minds. Brethren, I feel deeply the high honour you have done me, and can assure you this is one of the happiest days of my life. I again thank you. (Applause.)

We see, according to the Temps, "That the annual French Masonic Congress has just completed its labours, after five long sittings. The Congress considered Article 1 of the Masonic Constitution relative to philosophic dogmas, and containing a declaration in favour of the Great Architect of the Universe. The discussion was very long and animated. After deliberation it was decided, by 110 to 65, that there was ground for revising it and harmonising it with another Article which recognizes absolute liberty of conscience. All the Lodges in France will, therefore, be invited to consider the question of a revision and to send the result of their deliberations to the next year's Congress." As unqualified belief in the "Great Architect" is absolutely essential to Freemasonry, it should be well understood by outsiders that the above-mentioned revision, notwithstanding its harmonising tendency, must leave that great truth intact, however the expression of it may be modified.

CONSECRATION OF THE BROWNRIGG LODGE.

LIEUT. General Brownrigg, C.B., Provincial Grand Master for Surrey, assisted by the Rev. C. W. Arnold Grand Chaplain of England, Rev. Ambrose W. Hall Provincial Grand Chaplain of Surrey, Colonel Burdett Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, Bro. Greenwood Provincial Grand Secretary of Surrey, and several other brethren, on Thursday, consecrated a new Lodge in Surrey, styled the Brownrigg Lodge, No. 1688, at the Swan Hotel, Thames Ditton. The Rev. C. W. Arnold, Grand Chaplain, delivered an oration on the principles of the Order; and General Brownrigg, after dedicating and constituting the Lodge, installed Bro. W. D. May as Worshipful Master of the Lodge. Bros. F. Buckland was appointed Senior Warden and Edwin Ellis Junior Warden. The brethren afterwards partook of a banquet, and General Brownrigg in responding to the toast of "The Consecrating Master," reminded the brethren that the Craft was widely increasing, and cautioned them as to the admission of members to the Order. It was a thing to be borne in mind that Masonry should not only increase in numbers but in quality. He felt it his duty to say this to a young Lodge, and he had made the same observations at the late Grand Lodge of North Wales and Shropshire, because Masonry was at the present time very popular and very fashionable. The secession of the Marquis of Ripon from the Order and the accession of the Prince of Wales to the traditional throne of King Solomon had given a great fillip to Freemasonry, and for that reason it behoved Masons to be cautious with respect to those who were about to be admitted as members of the Order. General Brownrigg afterwards expressed his gratification at the steady increase which Freemasonry had made in Surrey, and said that the more the Craft increased the more would be expected of it.—Standard.

FUNERAL OF BRO. WM. JAMES PAGE, OF 1507, J.W. 1227.

A LARGE number of relatives, brethren and friends assembled on Thursday, the 14th inst., at Norwood Cemetery, to pay the last sad tribute of respect to the late much lamented Bro. W. J. Page. The love and respect which our late brother had managed to secure for himself was amply evidenced by the numbers who deserted their avocations at the busiest part of the day to follow his remains to their last resting place. While waiting for the arrival of the mournful cortége, the crowds grouped themselves in various parts of the beautiful grounds, and among most the subdued conversation reverted to this latest instance of the uncertainty of human life, and the futility of hopes and aspirations even when entertained by mortals in the very prime of life, pride of strength and conscious assurance that the end, though certain, is still far distant in the hazy future, and requires no present serious contemplation. Bro. Alfred Holtham, the I.P.M. of the Upton Lodge, presented each brother with a spring of acacia, cut from a tree which he had planted in his garden shortly after having attained to the degree of a Master Mason. Eventually the procession made its appearance, and the brethren crowded into the chapel, in which but part of those who attended could be accommodated. The impressive ritual having been read, the coffin was lowered into the grave, each brother throwing the acacia upon its lid, which was decorated with a splendid wreath of suitable white flowers; many a sturdy form was bent with grief, tears coursed down manly cheeks in sincere and heartfelt regret for the loss of one whom all had learnt to regard as a trusty friend and faithful brother. Amongst those present we noticed, from the Upton Lodge, Bros. David Posener W.M., A. Holtham I.P.M., Bolton P.M., A. W. Fenner, R. W. Pearcy, W. Odell, Belsey; and from the Metropolitan Lodge, Bros. Jas. Willing P.M., Williams S.W., E. Page P.M., Douglas S.D., B. Clark; Bro. M. Barnett represented the Montefiore Lodge.

A MARBLE RINK.

IN the immediate neighbourhood of the populous districts of Clapham, Brixton and Stockwell, there has recently been completed what, we believe, is the largest, most beautiful and important Skating Rink in this country. Occupying altogether nearly an acre of ground, an area of no less than 18,000 feet has been floored with marble and elegant material, not only durable in its nature, but specially adapted to the purpose of rinking, affording a smooth yet slightly resisting surface, free from all unevenness or possible departure from a true and perfect level. This magnificent floor, partly open and partly covered, is surrounded by covered promenades, the most important of which is about two hundred yards in length, most appropriately ornamented with statuary and gas fittings, and supplied with lounges and other sitting accommodation. Provision has been made for the entertainment of those who, not being rinkers themselves, may be, and frequently are, the cause of rinking in others, a portion of the covered rink being fitted as a drawing room, with grand piano and other appliances for the comfort and enjoyment of on-lookers. Numerous offices appurtenant to such an undertaking are also attached; a nursery for novices in the art; store and workshops for skates; covered orchestra, buffet, and, indeed, every necessary that careful foresight could think of, has been most liberally provided. The tout ensemble, when the rink is in full use, whether by day or when lit up by the multitude of lamps which surround it, will certainly prove most attractive. We are informed by our spirited brother, A. T. Timewell, whose name is so well known in the south of London, and to whom the creation of this magnificent place of recreation is due, that he will be pleased to allow the Rink to be visited during the ensuing week, and prior to its being formally opened, by any brother who will present his card for that purpose. The Rink is situated almost immediately opposite Albert-square, in the Clapham-road, and is easy of access from any part of the metropolis. The opening ceremony is fixed for Saturday the 30th inst., when it is expected that a large and influential gathering will assist.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Burdett Coutts Lodge, No. 1278.—The Installation meeting of this well known Lodge was held on Thursday evening, the 21st inst., at the Approach Tavern, Approach-road, Victoria Park. An Emergency Meeting had been held on Thursday, the 14th inst., to clear the business paper, so that on the present occasion the work merely comprised the Installation ceremony and the appointment of officers for the ensuing year. The Lodge was opened at five o'clock, under the presidency of Bro. William John Crutch, who was supported by his officers and a strong contingent of the members, as well as a goodly array of visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting and of the emergency meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Jas. Terry, the worthy Treasurer of the Lodge, acting as Director of the Ceremonies, introduced Bro. William Toye S.W. to the Worshipful Master as the duly elected candidate for the Chair. Bro. Crutch, who throughout his year of office has done the work of his Lodge in a most satisfactory and painstaking manner, then completed his round of duties by installing his successor, and that in a manner deserving of the highest praise. The addresses were delivered faultlessly, and the assembled brethren expressed the highest commendation of the Installing Master's ability. Bro. Toye invested his officers as follow: Bros. C. K. Crouch S.W., A. Lazarus J.W., G. Ward Verry P.M. Sec., James Terry P.M. Treasurer, W. T. Christian S.D., Defries J.D., Birchall D.C., T. Hadley Prestage Steward, Sturtevant I.G., A. Jones Asst. W.S., W. Gilchrist Tyler. Some letters of apology referring to the inability of the writers to attend were then read; the resignation of one member was tendered and accepted, with regret. The exclusion of a brother was then decided upon, after which the Lodge was closed. A short adjournment then took place previous to the banquet, which was capitally served by the host of the Approach Tavern. On the removal of the cloth the customary loyal toasts were given. Bro. Toye gave the health of the initiates of the Lodge, Bros. Harris and Making jun., who, he stated, had been introduced into Masonry on an occasion when there was no opportunity of drinking to their prosperity. This toast was briefly acknowledged by both brethren. The I.P.M., Bro. Crutch, next rose to propose the health of their newly installed Master, and called the attention of the brethren to the way in which Bro. Toye had worked his way in the Lodge. He was convinced that all the members would be satisfied with their selection, and that the Lodge would continue to prosper under his government. Bro. Crutch concluded his remarks with the following apt quotation:

"From lowest place where virtuous things proceed,
The place is dignified by the doer's deed."

The W.M. replied: Bro. Past Master Crutch and Brethren,—I return you my sincere thanks for the kind manner in which you have proposed and received this toast. The chair of this Lodge had always had an especial attraction for me, and I have been very anxious to reach it. As you are aware I was not an initiate here, but am only a stepson, and that being the case, I cannot but feel proud of being where I now am. When a stepmother entrusts the government of her household to her stepson, it is an evidence that confidence reigns supreme. I can assure the brethren that I will endeavour to uphold and deserve that confidence, and that the welfare of the Lodge shall at all times have my best consideration. The next toast was the Visitors, which was replied to by Bros. P.M. Roberts, Perceval, and others. An interesting incident next took place, the presentation to Bro. Crutch of a Past Master's jewel, for the able manner in which he had conducted the Lodge during the past year. In doing this, Bro. Toye expressed the pleasure it gave him; he referred to the perseverance exhibited by their worthy brother in the performance of every duty required of him, and concluded his remarks by wishing he might live long, in health and strength, to wear the gift he now had the honour to present on behalf of the Lodge. Bro. Crutch suitably replied, after which the toast of the P.M.'s was given, to which Bro. James Terry replied. He said that all the Past Masters esteemed the addition made to their ranks that night, by the advent of Bro. Crutch, who he was sure would endeavour to do in the future what he had so well done in the past. He then called the attention of the members to the case of a daughter of one of their late members, who was a candidate at the next election, in October, for the Girls' School. This was the first case that had come directly home to them, and he exhorted them to follow the noble example of the estimable lady whose name their Lodge bore, and by their works secure the election of their candidate on the second Saturday in October. Bro. Terry humourously concluded a pertinent speech by reminding the W.M. that he did not consider he (the W.M.) had done justice to the Past Masters in his remarks; he was, however, sure the members appreciated their many qualities. However, he supposed he must realise the fact that their new W.M. was but a Toye in the Lodge, and must therefore be handled gently. At the same time he would give him to understand that the P.M.'s would keep a sharp look out, and if they caught him tripping he should hear from them. The remaining toasts were then fully honoured, and a call for the Tyler brought a most agreeable evening to a close. Some capital songs were given, Bros. Wallington, Berry, Making, Davis, &c., favouring the company.

St. Mungo Lodge, No. 27.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, 7th inst., Bro. D. Butler presiding. Amongst the visitors we recognised Bros. W. G. Gilkes P.M. 64, P.P.G.M. of East Lancashire, J. Ballack of 1586, E.C. The work consisted of four initiations and two raisings, and was performed in the quiet, easy style that distinguishes Bro. A. Bain's working. There was a good attendance of members and visitors.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction, No. 45.—Held its weekly meeting on Monday, 18th September, at Bro. Gay's, Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, E.C. Present—Bros. Pilbeam W.M., Crawley S.W., Knight J.W., Killick Secretary, Fenner S.D., Halford J.D., Powell I.G., Christopher Tyler, Beckett P.M. Preceptor. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting confirmed. Bro. Stock was raised to the degree of M.M. Bro. Beckett worked the first, second and third sections of the third lecture. Bros. C. Baker 201, and Richard W. Pearcy 1227, were elected members. Bro. Crawley was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The ceremony of installation will be worked in this Lodge by Bro. Beckett, on Monday, 2nd October.

Sincerity Lodge of Instruction, No. 174.—This Lodge held its usual meeting at Bro. Seaton's, Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C., on Monday evening, the 18th inst., Bros. Wells W.M., F. Brown S.D., Salmonese S.W., W. Fraser J.D., Brookson J.W., J. S. Fraser I.G., Crawley P.M. Preceptor. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Webb presented the Lodge with two immovable jewels. The W.M. rehearsed the 3rd ceremony, Bro. Webb being the candidate. The 1st, 2nd and 3rd sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Webb, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was resumed to the 1st degree, and Bro. Webb worked the 5th section of that lecture. Bro. Brookson proposed, and Bro. Crawley seconded, that Bros. Bennett 1604, and Hawthorn 205, become joining members. This was carried unanimously. It was carried, on the proposition of Bro. Brown, and seconded by Bro. Moore, that a vote of thanks to Bro. Webb for his useful present be recorded in the Minute Book. The S.W. was elected to preside at the next meeting, and he appointed his officers in rotation. Bros. Baxter, Newlett, Ellis, A. H. Brown, Moore, Smith, Blain, Webb, Hawthorn and Bennett were also present. The Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned until Monday, 25th inst.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—This Lodge held its meeting on Wednesday, the 20th inst., at Masons' Hall Tavern, Masons'-avenue, and was fully attended, Bro. David Posener occupied the chair. Bros. Rudderforth S.W., Sayer J.W., R. Gotthiel P.M. Preceptor, J. K. Pitt Secretary, Groener S.D., G. Corner J.D., Staley I.G., Holland Steward, Christopher Tyler; P.M.'s J. Constable, J. Stevens and T. Meggy. The ceremony of raising was very ably rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Miller acting as candidate. According to the arrangement of the previous week, Bro. Abbott gave a translation of the lectures in the three degrees as practised in the French Lodges. This was novel, interesting, and highly instructive, and will not fail to engender reflections in thoughtful minds and induce comparisons as to the value of the different kinds of work. Bro. Abbott was rewarded with a most enthusiastic vote of thanks, proposed by Bro. Stevens in highly flattering terms, and seconded by Bro. Meggy, who expressed his gratification at the lucid way in which the translation was rendered, he being in a position to testify to its correctness, having witnessed the work in French Lodges. Three Brother Hogarth, and Bros. E. Druid and A. Ellis 933, were elected members. They severally returned thanks, Bro. Hogarth sen. observing that he was only a young Mason, but having entered the Order he meant to do all in his power to become acquainted with with its teachings, and from what he had seen that evening he could not do better than attend this Lodge, which he most certainly would try to do regularly.
