The next business was the election of Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, and this resulted in favour of the S.W., Bro. James Freeman. Bro. Stanway, in a few hearty and cordial remarks, announced the result of the ballot, and offered Bro. Freeman his sincere congratulations on his election to the chair of this important Lodge. Bro. Freeman replied, and assured the members he would do all in his power to uphold the prestige of the Lodge; he should place himself under the wing of their worthy Secretary, Bro. Moody, and he trusted, with the help of the Past Masters and the Officers of the Lodge, that, by the will of the G.A.O.T.U., his year of office would be no less successful than those of the Masters who had preceded him. The choice of Treasurer resulted in the unanimous re-election of Bro. N. B. Headon, and on a show of hands Bro. Steedman was re-appointed Tyler. Bros. Lebissart, Shaw, and Boulton were appointed auditors. A long and exhaustive discussion next ensued in reference to an application for relief that had been made by a distressed brother. Bro. Stuart-Barker, who had been deputed by the Lodge at the last meeting to inquire into the circumstances of the case, delivered his report; Bro. James Stevens P.M. also gave the result of inquiries he had made, and forcibly urged the brethren to carefully consider ere they came to a decision adverse to the applicant. However, after all details had been fully gone into, it was resolved that Bro. Barker's report be received and adopted. Routine business followed, and receipt of several interesting communications was announced. Bro. Moody remarked that he had been requested by Bro. Thomas Ford, P.M. of the Rifle Lodge of Edinburgh, to convey to the members of The Great City Lodge the hearty good wishes of the Edinburgh brethren for their continued prosperity. Bro. Stanway desired Bro. Moody to convey the thanks of the Lodge to Bro. Ford for this act of courtesy. Lodge was then closed. A substantial repast was provided, to which ample justice was done. On the removal of the cloth Bro. Stanway proceeded with the toasts. In giving the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty, he said that Masons were loyal and law-abiding men, and it was always with pleasure that they honoured their Queen. With the toast he would associate, Prosperity to the Craft. After the National Anthem the W.M. called on the brethren to drink to H.R.H. the Grand Master. At all gatherings Englishmen delight to honour the Prince of Wales, who has won the hearts of all with whom he has been associated. This toast, at all times, has an especial charm to we Freemasons, from the Prince's intimate association with us as head of the Order. He was sure all present would cordially drink the toast. In speaking of the Earl of Carnarvon, the W.M. said they were all well aware of the many calls the Pro G.M. had on him. At the same time, they knew how necessary it was that we should have a competent brother to preside in place of the Grand Master at our assemblies. Those who have the privilege of attending the Festivals of Grand Lodge must at all times be struck by the calmness of demeanour displayed by the Earl of Carnarvon, and many would take example and carry to their Lodges the same calm spirit of discrimination they there found so eminently displayed. With the toast of the D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers was associated the name of Bro. John Boyd P.G.P., who remarked that the last toast offered by the W.M. was the first that required responding to. He had hoped it would have fallen into better hands, but as it had devolved on him they must take the will for the deed. Lord Skelmersdale was better known in his own Province than by the metropolitan Masons. As for the other Grand Officers, all of those who had been appointed had in their time done good suit and service for the Craft. He was here as the guest of Bro. Moody, and he felt himself in a peculiar position. He might liken himself to Temple Bar. He, like that venerable relic, was getting in the downhill of life. Temple Bar had for many years divided the Great City from the City of Westminster. Temple Bar would now very shortly be entirely removed; he was supported left and right by the Great City and the City of Westminster. Our worthy brother then completed his happy illustration by saying that it was only for him to step aside and the two cities were in still closer relation. To propose the health of the W.M. fell to the lot of Bro. Senr. who performed his task in a most graceful manner, and Bro. Stanway briefly acknowledged the compliment. The next toast was the health of the Visitors, to which Bros. White, Swallow, Baker, and others replied. The remaining toasts comprised the W.M. elect of The Great City Lodge, the Past Masters, Prosperity to The Great City Lodge, the Officers, the Masonic Charities, &c. The proceedings were enlivened by an excellent selection of music, which was admirably rendered by Bro. Thornton, Messrs. T. Harper, W. A. Frost, and Prestridge. Mr. T. Harper's performances on the trumpet were received with the warmest enthusiasm, and indeed the whole entertainment reflected the utmost credit on Bros. H. Frost 1426 and H. Bertram 1426, under whose direction it was given.

Marquess of Ripon Lodge of Instruction, No. 1489.—At the Pembury Tavern, Amhurst-road, Hackney, 11th March. Present—Bros. Aspinall W.M., E. Bishop S.W., Mann J.W., Goddard S.D., McDowell J.D., Garrod I.G., Stephens P.M. Preceptor, Slaiter Secretary; also Bros. Jacob, F. Badkin, Blunt, Greenwood, Grist, Lockett, &c. After the usual preliminary business, the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Jacob being candidate. The Lodge was then opened to the third degree, and the W.M. rehearsed the ceremony of raising, in a very able manner, Bro. Jacob as candidate. The Lodge was then closed in the third and second degrees. Bro. Past Master Stephens gave the brethren a report of the resolutions of the Grand Lodge of England with regard to the admission as visitors or otherwise of members of the Grand Orient of France. After which the Lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned to Monday, the 18th, at 7.30.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—At the Havelock Tavern, Dalston, on Wednesday evening, 13th inst. Present—Bros. Bonner W.M., H. Meyer S.W., McMillan J.W., Slaiter S.D., A. Ferrar J.D., Poole I.G., G. Ferrar Treas., E. Dietrich Sec., W. Fieldwick Preceptor, and a good muster of brethren. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed. The W.M. passed Bro. R. Olley. Bro. Fieldwick worked the sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge resumed to the first degree, and the third and fourth sections of the Lecture were worked by Bro. Meyer, assisted by the brethren. Bro. H. Meyer will preside at the next meeting.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday last, at York, the W.M. Bro. T. B. Whytehead presiding, supported by Bros. T. Cooper P.M., G. Balmford P.M., Beanland P.M., and W. H. Wyatt P.M. There were several visiting brethren from Selby and other places, and a large attendance of brethren. After a successful ballot had been taken for two candidates, Bros. Walker and Joyce were respectively passed and raised. Several names were proposed as candidates and joining members, and Bro. G. Balmford P.M. Treasurer announced that all liabilities were discharged, and that the Lodge was in a very flourishing condition. The S.W. Bro. J. S. Cumberland said that Bro. A. T. B. Turner had expressed a desire to attend the forthcoming Boys' Festival with him, as second Steward for the Lodge, and that he had accordingly forwarded his name to Bro. Binckes, an announcement which was received with applause. At subsequent refreshment an excellent collection was made for the Lodge Benevolent Fund.

The Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 14th inst., at the Ladbroke Hall, Ladbroke Grove-road, Notting-hill. Present—Bros. George Penn W.M., S. H. Parkhouse S.W., Smout sen. as J.W., W. Stephens P.M. Treas., W. J. Murlis Sec., E. M. Lander J.D., Smout jun. as I.G., F. Delevanté Org., C. D. Reade Chaplain. Visitors—Bros. S. Millis 157, W. W. Morgan 211, J. S. Adkins 733, E. Arrowsmith 733, T. Slaiter 804, R. Harvey 1106, H. Manchester 1201, E. Mitton 1489, W. Grist 1489. On the assembling of the brethren the W.M. lost no time in commencing the business of the evening, which was of an exceptionally heavy nature. The minutes were read, and duly received confirmation. The ceremonial portion comprised the raising of Bro. William Oldrey, the passing of Bros. Roberts, Whittlesea, Rowland and Dewynter, while there were three candidates for initiation. The ballot was taken for three aspirants for our mysteries, Messrs. Frederick Ernest Pocock, proposed by Bro. S. H. Parkhouse S.W., seconded by Bro. W. J. Murlis P.M.; Thomas Heath, proposed by Bro. S. Smout I.G., seconded by Bro. G. Penn W.M., and Caleb Manchester. The result was satisfactory, and the two former gentlemen, with Mr. Eliab G. Rogers, who had been successfully balloted for at a previous meeting, being present, received the benefit of Masonic light. The whole of the ceremonies were performed by Bro. Penn, who acquitted himself in an eminently satisfactory manner. All his duties were fulfilled in a way that evinced he had spared no pains to master every detail pertaining to the position he occupies. Bros. C. E. Woodward P.M. 1637, John Empson 140, R. and Reid 45, were elected joining members. After routine business, the names of two gentlemen were handed in as candidates for initiation at the next meeting, and the Lodge was closed. A capital repast was served by Bro. Linscott, to which justice was done. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. introduced the several toasts, with most commendable brevity. After that of Her Majesty, the National Anthem was sung, the solos being entrusted to Bro. Pashman. In speaking to the toast of the M.W. the G.M. Bro Penn referred to the energy displayed by the Prince of Wales in the many duties that devolved on him; and remarked that His Royal Highness seemed never tired if it was made apparent to him that he could advance the cause of charity. This was evidenced by his taking the chair on Wednesday last at a meeting of the Governors of Wellington College, and on the same evening presiding at the anniversary dinner of the National Orphan Home at Willis's Rooms. The toast was then honoured, and Bro. Adkins favoured the company with "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The next toast was one that had an especial interest to the members—it was the health of the Pro Grand Master, whose honoured name the Lodge had received permission to bear. Bro. Penn said he looked forward to an early day when the Pro G.M. would be present, and he took the opportunity of announcing the fact that the Earl had signified his compliance with the request that had been made for him to take the chair at the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. This announcement was received with great applause, and the brethren then did full justice to the toast. Bro. Arthur Thomas here gave a most forcible rendering of a new patriotic song,—"Victoria," by Smart, which we venture to predict will be heard again and again at our festive gatherings. After the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers had been given, the Rev. Bro. P.M. Holden gave a recitation, illustrating an incident that lately occurred in reference to the Russo-Turkish war, and then on Bro. Murlis devolved the task of proposing the health of the W. Master. Bro. Penn acknowledged the compliment, and proposed the health of the Initiates, to which each responded. Bro. Rogers had for some considerable time wished to join the Order, and the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge in particular, as he had many esteemed friends who were associated with it. He hoped he might be considered a welcome addition to their ranks. Bro. Rogers hoped the time might come when, as the W.M. had suggested, the members admitted that night would fill the position he so ably occupied. To the toast of the Visitors felicitous replies were made by Bro. Millis and others. Bros. Woodward and Empson acknowledged the compliment paid them in being toasted as joining members. In replying for the Past Masters, Bro. Stephens recounted the glorious success that had attended the exertions of the Ball Committee, and announced the substantial amount they had been able to hand over to Bro. Stephens for his list as Steward for the Girls' School; at the same time Bro. Murlis reminded the W.M. he had a "nest egg" towards his list next year. Bro. Stephens replied for the Charities, and urged the claims of the Institutions; he specially, earnestly, and we trust to himself satisfactorily, pleaded the cause of the Girls' School, and met with a spirited response from the members. The remaining toasts comprised the Officers, the P.M.'s of other Lodges, &c., &c., and when the W.M. summoned the Tyler, the brethren agreed it was time they began to study the exigencies of the train service. The evening's entertainment was well sustained by Bros. Pashman, Arthur Thomas, the musical and humorous Delavanté, Henson, Smout, &c. Bro. Morgan gave the Wreck of the Hesperus, and Rev. Bro. Holden, in addition to the reading we have already announced, gave the Charge of the Light Brigade.

Earl of Carnarvon Lodge of Instruction, No. 1642.—At the Mitre Hotel, Goulborne-road, Notting-hill, on Friday, 8th March. Bros. Penn W.M., Parkhouse S.W., Smout sen. J.W., Smout jun. S.D., Lander J.D., Adkins I.G.; Savage P.M., Murlis P.M.; Woodmason, Webster, Oldrey, Crabb, Hutton, Gabb, Newland, H. Dehane, Spiegel, Buckland, Poulter, and Lyons. This being the so-called "Officers' night," all the Officers from the mother Lodge attended. The W.M. rehearsed the ceremonies—of initiation, Bro. Oldrey being the candidate; of passing, and afterwards raising, Bro. Crabb being candidate. All three degrees were worked in the W.M.'s usual style, and it was a pleasure to see how the Officers discharged their duties. Before closing the Lodge, Bro. Murlis rose to announce the result of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge Ball. He informed the brethren that, after paying all expenses, they had handed over to Bro. Stephens, the Steward for the Girls' Institution, the sum of £21, and there was still a balance in hand, to be carried forward to the next year's ball. This announcement was received with cheers.

Wolsey Lodge, No. 1656, Middlesex.—What would have been an installation meeting of this Lodge was held, on the 4th inst., at the White Hart Hotel, Hampton Wick. Owing, however, to the illness of Bro. B. Sharp S.W. and W.M. elect, it was impossible to proceed with the ceremony. The regret at the cause of Bro. Sharp's absence was universal, and great sympathy was manifested towards him. Bro. W. Hammond W.M. presided, and was supported by Bro. J. W. Baldwin P.M. and P.A.G.P. who acted as S.W., Bro. J. Bond J.W., Bro. Rev. F. J. C. de Crespigny Chaplain, Bro. A. Nuthall Treasurer, Bro. T. W. Ockenden Secretary, Bro. B. R. Aston S.D., Bro. J. Hurst J.D., and Bro. T. C. Walls I.G. There were also present Bros. A. Martin, T. A. E. Scott, C. Richer, J. Featherstone, C. R. Fitt, R. W. Forge, R. Masters, G. Malcolm, J. Piller, J. H. Duffell, A. Elphick, A. T. Aylen, C. Worthington, A. Darling, A Humphris, F. L. Chandler, A. Abbett, A. Jobbins, F. Turner, W. Symons White, members; and Bros. F. Buckland, W. W. Morgan, Tinsley, Tagg, and one or two others. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The Lodge accounts showed a favourable result, all liabilities having been satisfied, and a balance of £33 11s 6d remaining in hand. The Report of the Audit Committee was adopted. Bro. Robert Charles Eyres, of Loyalty Lodge, No. 358, Bermuda, was balloted for as a joining member and declared elected. On the proposition, duly seconded, of Bro. W. Hammond, the sum of thirteen guineas was voted from the Lodge funds, namely:—Three guineas towards the "Burdett Testimonial Fund," and ten guineas for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to be placed on the list of the Steward representing the Lodge at the next Festival. Notice of motion was given by Bro. Walls, that in Bye-law 10 the word "ten" be substituted for "five." This bye-law refers to the presentation of a P.M.'s jewel to the retiring W.M. We think this is an unwise proceeding, especially in a young Lodge like this, as it evinces a tendency to cultivate the tinsel rather than the precepts of the Craft. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to a very excellent banquet, which had the further advantage of being admirably served. On the removal of the cloth the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, with a few appropriate remarks in each case. In proposing that of Col. Burdett, the G.M. of the Province, the chairman regretted the absence, and expressed his belief that Col. Burdett was in every way worthy of the position he held in the province, and that he was respected by all the brethren, not only for his ability, but for the courtesy he invariably extended towards them, as well as for the deep interest he took in everything connected with Freemasonry. To the toast of Bro. Little D.P.G.M. and the other P.G. Officers, Bro. Rev. de Crespigny P.P.G.C., Bro. Baldwin P.A.G.P., and Bro. T. C. Walls responded, after which the health of the W.M. was proposed by the reverend brother just named, in highly complimentary terms. The W.M., in acknowledging it, referred to the very flourishing condition of the Lodge, as chiefly evidenced by the fact that there had been during his year of office, which was also the first year since the Constitution of the Lodge, as many as twenty-three gentlemen initiated in it. He also offered a little sound advice to young members as to the principles by which as Masons they should be actuated. To the toast of the Visitors, those present in that capacity returned thanks individually. In the course of the evening several brethren contributed to the pleasure of the meeting, among them being Bro. Walls, who sang, very effectively, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," and other songs, and Bro. Morgan, who recited the Fall of Wolsey, from Shakspeare's Henry VIII., this, we presume, being by way of contrast to the rising fortunes of the Wolsey Lodge.

Metropolitan Chapter of Improvement.—On Tuesday last, there were present, at the Jamaica Coffee House, Change-alley, Cornhill, Comps. J. B. Sorrell Z., Thos. Cull H., P. Wagner J., J. Boyd Treas., Thos. W. White S.E., G. L. Walker S.N., F. Brown P.S., N. Moss, J. Constable, S. H. P. Moore, G. Darcy, R. E. K. Wilkinson, J. Pinder, G. J. Rowe, H. J. Gabb, T. W. Ockenden. Formalities complied with, the ceremony was rehearsed, Comp. Moss candidate. Comps. Wilkinson and Gabb were elected members.

WHY CANNOT WOMEN BE MASONS.

AT the late anniversary celebration of the Masons at Austin, Nev., the orator of the day thus discussed the question, "Why cannot Women be Masons?" It has the merit of novelty, at least. The speaker said:—

Woman sometimes complains that she is not permitted to enter our Lodges and work with the Craft in their labors, and learn all there is to learn in the institution. We learn that before the G.A.O.T.U. had finished his work, he was in some doubt about creating Eve. The creation of every living and creeping thing had been accomplished, and the G.A.O.T.U. had made Adam (who was the first Mason) and erected for him the finest Lodge in the world, and called it Paradise No. 1. He then called all the beasts of the field and all the fowls of the air to pass before Adam for him to name them, which was a piece of work he had to do alone, so that no confusion might thereafter arise from Eve, who he knew would make trouble if she was allowed to participate if he created her beforehand.

Adam being very much fatigued with the labors of his task, fell asleep, and when he awoke he found Eve in the Lodge with him.

Adam, being Senior Warden, placed Eve as the pillar of beauty in the South, and they received their instructions from the Grand Master in the East, which, when finished, she immediately called the Craft from labour to refreshment. Instead of attending to the duties of her office as she ought, she left her station, violating her obligations, and let in an expelled Mason who had no business there, and went round with him, leaving Adam to look after the jewels. The fellow had been expelled from the Grand Lodge, with several others, some time before; but hearing the footsteps of the Grand Master, he suddenly took his leave, telling Eve to make aprons, as she and Adam were not in proper regalia. She went and told Adam, and when the Grand Master returned to the Lodge he found that his gavel had been stolen.

He called for the Senior and Junior Wardens, who had neglected to guard the door, and found them absent. After searching for some time, he came to where they were hid, and demanded of Adam what he was doing there, instead of occupying his official position. Adam replied that he was waiting for Eve to call the Craft from refreshment to labour again, and that the Craft was not properly clothed, which they were making provision for. Turning to Eve, he asked her what she had to offer in excuse for her unofficial and unmasonic conduct. She replied that a fellow, passing himself off as a Grand Lecturer, had been giving her instructions, and she thought it would be no harm to learn them. The Grand Master then asked what had become of his gavel; she said she didn't know, unless the fellow had taken it away.

Finding that Eve was no longer trustworthy, and that she had caused Adam to neglect his duty, and let in one whom he had expelled, the Grand Master had closed the Lodge, and turning them out, set a faithful Tyler to guard the door with a flaming sword. Adam, repenting his folly, went to work like a man and a good Mason, in order to get reinstated again. Not so with Eve; she got angry about it, and commenced raising Cain. Adam, on account of his reformation, was permitted to establish Lodges, and work in the lower degrees, and while Eve was allowed to join him in the works of charity outside, she was never again to be admitted to assist in the regular work of the Craft. Hence the reason why a woman cannot become a Mason.—New Zealand Paper.

HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY IN LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

THE next event of any moment reveals to us his lordship, the Prov. G. Master, in a somewhat awkward position. In September 1833, the Grand Master H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex being on a visit to Colonel Wildman, Prov. G.M. of Notts, graciously visited the Lodges at Nottingham, and to this end a Grand Lodge was convened, which was numerously attended by brethren from the adjoining Provinces, among them being Lord Rancliffe, Sir F. G. Fowke, and several members of St. John's Lodge, Leicester. The Grand Master having intimated a desire that the Officers of the different Prov. G. Lodges in attendance should be presented, Lord Rancliffe found himself in a position of great perplexity. He was G. Master of his Province; but, alas! he had no Prov. G. Lodge, and consequently no Prov. G. Officers to present. The state of things was ludicrous, if not alarming, but the difficulty was overcome. His lordship withdrew to an ante-room, and then and there constituted Sir F. G. Fowke his Deputy, and the other Leicester brethren officers of his Prov. G. Lodge; and as such they were presented to His Royal Highness. It will be difficult to parallel an emergency meeting held under similar circumstances. However, the event served to rouse Lord Rancliffe to a sense of duty. On the 29th October the Prov. G. Lodge met at Leicester, and for the first time, after having held the office of P.G.M. for twenty-one years, did his lordship attend a Masonic Lodge in his Province, being installed in office, as well as Sir F. G. Fowke as D.P.G.M., by Bro. Lawrence Thompson. The Officers, too, were appointed and invested. The same evening his Lordship was present at a meeting of the St. John's Lodge, and was afterwards proposed and elected one of its members. Henceforth there are regular minutes of the proceedings of the Prov. G. Lodge, Bro. William Cooke, County Treasurer, having been appointed to P.G. Secretaryship, an office he continued to fill till 1854. However, the irregularities which had prevailed so long in the Province did not disappear immediately. Lord Rancliffe appears not to have presided as W.M. of a Lodge, yet in 1834 he was, though not without a protest from a minority of the members, elected W.M. of the St. John's Lodge, and without having previously served as a Warden. He was installed in the March following, that being the only occasion on which he attended; but notwithstanding this, at the end of his year of office, he received a vote of thanks "for his condescension in serving the office." At this time there were only two Lodges in the Province, namely—the St. John's Lodge, Leicester, and the Knights of Malta Lodge, Hinckley. But towards the end of 1834 a warrant was granted for the formation of the Rancliffe Lodge, No. 608, at Loughborough. It met for the first time under dispensation on 9th December, and was consecrated on the 13th March 1835, a Prov. G. Lodge, at which Lord Rancliffe presided being convened for the purpose, Bros. Burckhardt and Lawrence Thompson of London taking part in the ceremonies of consecration, and the installation of Bro. James Elverson as first W.M. On the day of installation a number of candidates were initiated. The career of the Rancliffe was not a prosperous one, and in 1848 it passed away. On 30th May 1836 the Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 631, at Ashby de la Zouch, was consecrated, and Bro. Edward Mammatt was installed as first W.M., Bro. Elverson being deputed to fulfil these duties by Lord Rancliffe, and being assisted by Bros. W. M. Thistleton, Treasurer of the Prince of Wales Lodge, and Burke, P.M. No. 37, who attended from London for the purpose. On this occasion, four candidates were balloted for and approved, and regularly initiated under a dispensation granted by Bro. Elverson in the name of the Prov. G. Master. This Lodge, however, enjoyed but a brief career, and expired in 1841. The W.M., of whom it is recorded that "although totally blind from five years of age," he "was an excellent working Mason," was the heart and soul of the Lodge. He, indeed, was W.M. for the first two years, and during the last year of the Lodge's existence, and appears, moreover, to have provided most of the funds towards its establishment. Eighteen gentlemen were initiated in the Ivanhoe, seven brethren joined it, and four were elected honorary members. The fee for initiation was five guineas, as a joining member two guineas, the latter being likewise the amount of the annual subscription, and the fee payable for a visitor introduced with the approbation of the W.M. to the banquet was seven shillings and sixpence. We next note that the P.G.M. gave directions that a Prov. G. Lodge should be held in Leicester on the 12th August 1836, for the purpose of presenting an address of congratulation to His Royal Highness the Grand Master, on the happy circumstance of his being restored to sight. His Lordship, however, being absent through indisposition, and the D.P.G.M. being in Switzerland, no P.G. Lodge was held, to the regret and disappointment of the brethren assembled. On 26th September, 1838 a Prov. G. Lodge was held at Leicester under the presidency of Sir F. G. Fowke Dep. P.G.M., Lord Rancliffe being again absent through indisposition. On this occasion, Bro. Thos. Moxon was installed W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Leicester, and Bro. Thos. Brooke Miller W.M. of the Rancliffe Lodge. At this time we learn from Bro. Kelly that Freemasonry in Leicester was at a very low ebb indeed, owing to disputes and other causes, and the attendance at the Lodge was occasionally so limited that the Tyler had to be in the Lodge in order that it might be opened, while at other times no Lodge could be formed. However, the services of Sir F. G. Fowke were called into requisition, and thenceforward, but by a very gradual process, these difficulties were smoothed away. We may judge of this by the fact, as recorded by the author of this history, that, in the absence of Sir F. G. Fowke, the services of Bro. Lawrence Thompson were engaged by the Lodge to instal a W. Master, there being no resident brother capable of performing the ceremony of installation. At a Prov. G. Lodge held at Leicester on 11th July 1842, at which Sir F. G. Fowke, in the customary absence of the Prov. G. Master, presided, it was unanimously resolved to establish a Charitable Fund for the Province, and the Prov. G. Officers were appointed a Committee to carry out the resolution. On 28th November of the same year Bro. Masson, Governor of the County Gaol, and Prov. G. Treasurer, was buried with Masonic ceremonial at Knighton churchyard, the vicar of Evington, where the deceased had expressed a wish to be interred, having withdrawn his sanction for the ceremony to be performed. Sir F. G. Fowke D.P.G.M. conducted the ceremony, which, by the rarity of its occurrence, attracted a multitude of spectators, including several clergymen. About this time, also, steps were taken to establish a company for the erection of a Masonic Hall in Leicester, but the scheme did not prosper. At a Prov. G. Lodge held on 27th December, a scale of fees of honour for officers in the P.G.L. was for the first time adopted, this being in addition to the payments from Lodges previously agreed to be levied, in order to provide collars and jewels, which up to this period the Province had been without. On the 24th July 1844 a Prov. G. Lodge was held at Loughborough, the time and place having been fixed in order to meet the convenience of Lord Rancliffe, but his Lordship did not arrive till the business of the day was over, though he was in ample time to preside at the banquet. Then, in his absence, and as the D.P.G.M. was compelled to leave immediately after the Lodge had been opened, the chair was taken by Bro. W. Kelly, Prov. J.G. Warden, and by him Bro. W. Grimes Palmer, M.R.C.S., who, we are told, is believed to be its only surviving member, was installed as W. Master of the now defunct Rancliffe Lodge, there being no other member thereof present. At this time, indeed, Freemasonry was virtually confined to the St. John's Lodge. At this very meeting of the P.G.L. a letter from Bro. Edward Mammatt was read, to the effect that the members of the Ivanhoe Lodge were all dispersed, and that there was not the slightest chance of the Lodge being revived. Under these circumstances, it was ordered that the Warrant should be returned if the Lodge was not re-opened in six months. As regards the Rancliffe, since the beginning of 1839 there had been no meeting at which seven members were present, the numbers being usually three, four, or five, while at Hinckley there had been no initiation or joining for four years. Matters, however, improved in a short time. On the 16th March 1846, a Warrant was granted to Bro. Kelly, Earl Howe, and other brethren, to form a second Lodge at Leicester, and on the 11th May 1846, a Prov. G. Lodge was held in the Exchange, for the purpose of consecrating it by the style and title of the John of Gaunt Lodge. This ceremony, as well as that of installing Bro. Kelly as the first W.M., was performed by Sir F. G. Fowke, in the absence of Lord Rancliffe, Bro. Lawrence Thompson and the Rev. T. Burnaby giving him the benefit of their assistance. It is noted as probably a circumstance which is unique in the annals of Freemasonry, that the Warrant which was granted to, among other brethren, Earl Howe, bears the signature of that nobleman in his capacity as D.G. Master. The New Lodge prospered amazingly, there being no less than twenty-six initiations during the first year, and two brethren joined it. The completion of the first year was accordingly celebrated on the 4th February 1847, by a grand Masonic Ball, at which some two hundred ladies and gentlemen were present, the expenses being defrayed by the members of the St. John's and John of Gaunt Lodges. On the 30th August of the same year the Prov. Grand Lodge met at the Bell, Leicester, the chair being occupied by Bro. Lawrence Thompson, of London, P.G.D., in the unavoidable absence of the D.P.G.M., Lord Rancliffe arriving in time to preside at the banquet. In fact, Lord Rancliffe's presidency over the Court appears to us to have been a complete farce. From the day in 1835, when the Rancliffe Lodge was consecrated, to the day of his death in 1851, his Lordship was never once present in P.G. Lodge, and not only this, but his liberality must have been on a par with his regularity, if we may judge from the fact that from 1833 to 1848 he never paid his subscriptions to St. John's Lodge, and then his arrears were wiped off the Lodge books on the ground that he was a member by virtue of his office. The wonder is, that, under these circumstances, Freemasonry got on as well as it did. Happily there were a few choice spirits, such as Sir F. G. Fowke, Earl Howe, and Bro. W. Kelly, who worked under great discouragement with a will, and with a success they well deserved; and now we rejoice to say the Province, though by no means a large one, holds an honoured place in the ranks of our English Craft. One other event which deserves notice happened during the Mastership of Lord Rancliffe. Bro. Henry Harding, Master of the John of Gaunt Lodge, having, after a brief illness, died of typhus fever, caught in the discharge of his duty as house surgeon in the Leicester Infirmary, was, on the 1st December 1848, buried with Masonic ceremonies, a Prov. Grand Lodge, under the presidency of Bro. Pettifor P.G.S.W. as Prov. Grand Master. A resolution of condolence was also passed, but no minutes of the Proceedings were entered in Prov. Grand Lodge Books, and the only record of the event is to be found in the books of the John of Gaunt Lodge.

THE LANDMARKS OF FREEMASONRY.

An Address delivered to the Members of the Eboracum Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1611, York, 27th February 1878, by Bro. T. B. Whytehead, W.M.

Brethren,—There can be few members of our ancient and venerable Order, however young (in a Masonic sense), who have not heard mention made of the Landmarks of Freemasonry. Probably most of us are aware that these so-called "Landmarks" are institutions of some importance, but I shall not be very much in error in supposing that few present this evening could exactly define these same Landmarks, and enumerate them in detail. I hope you will therefore bear with me for a few minutes whilst I endeavour to lay before you in a summarised form the results of the labours of some of our great Masonic Teachers on this point.

It seems scarcely necessary for me to define the meaning of the term "Landmark." In ancient times (as in new or thinly populated countries at the present day) stones or cairns were placed in various prominent positions, and served in lieu of fences to mark the boundaries of lands. In the volume of the Sacred Law mention is repeatedly made of Landmarks of this description, and a curse is invoked on him that removeth his neighbour's landmark. Now, in Freemasonry, one of the first items of instruction that falls upon the ears of the newly enlightened candidate is that the compasses are to keep us within due bounds with all mankind, and especially with our brethren in Freemasonry. But how are we to use the compasses in this metaphorical sense, unless we are in possession of the knowledge of our boundaries and their extent, or, in other words, with our ancient Landmarks?

It is only within the last few years that these Landmarks have been categorically laid down, although they have existed from time immemorial in the Constitutions and practical working of the Order. Several learned Masonic Students set to work a few years since to analyse the Old Charges and Constitutions, and from this process they obtained a very valuable result, which I am now about to place before you. Most investigators seem to be pretty well agreed that the Landmarks of the Order may be all included under the following twenty-five heads:—

1. The methods of recognition. You may easily see how important a point is this, for if we were in the least degree to alter these methods what dire confusion must inevitably ensue. Genuine brethren would fail to make themselves known, whilst the uncertainty prevailing would expose the sanctity of our Lodges to the intrusion of the cowan and the profane.

2. The division of Craft Masonry into Three Degrees, including the Holy Royal Arch. The Royal Arch, though frequently spoken of as a separate degree, is really no such thing, but is the complement of the Master's or Third Degree. As Lord Zetland said, in my hearing, when he was exalted:—No one could fairly call himself a thorough Mason until he had taken the Royal Arch. Originally it doubtless formed part of the Master's Degree, but was separated from it and its ceremonies extended by brethren who desired to multiply degrees. In 1813, the Grand Lodge of England declared it to be part and parcel of the Third Degree, though separately worked. This Landmark is of the last importance in days when there is a great revival of long-forgotten degrees, and when there is a disposition to import them into Craft Masonry.

3. The Legend of the Third Degree—that is to say the death and subsequent restoration of the leader of the Order, represented by the candidate or aspirant. It may be, and is, a matter for dispute, and a most interesting field for investigation it affords, as to the far remote origin of our ceremonies, but wherever we seek them, whether amongst the ancient Egyptians, the Babylonians, the Greeks, the Assyrians, the Romans, the Druids, the Essenes, the Druses, even the early Christians themselves, we still find the germ of the whole thing to be the death and resurrection of the founder. Had I time even to glance at the ceremonies of the various secret societies which existed amongst all nations even in the most remote antiquity, you would be surprised, if you are not already aware of the facts, with the very close resemblance existing between ourselves and all of them; in point of fact, one might almost say that the difference is in little more than nomenclature and detail.

4. The Government of the Fraternity by a G.M. elected from the Body of the Craft. This Landmark represents a very important principle, that of self-government. From time immemorial there have been Grand Masters; in fact, long before there was any Grand Lodge, this being quite a modern institution. Although Masons met both in York and London before the revival, no one ever heard of a Grand Lodge until 1717, and until after one was formed in London there is no authentic record of the existence of one at York; of none, at least, that arrogated to itself any jurisdiction over other Lodges.

5. The G.M.'s prerogative to preside over any assemblage of Masons at any time or place. In other words, the G.M. represents in himself the entire government of the Order, and just as the W.M. of a private Lodge is absolute and is accountable to none save the Grand Master (who is represented in provinces and districts by the P.G.M. or D.G.M.), so the G.M. is absolute in the Craft, and is only accountable to the G.M.O.T.U.

6. The prerogative of the G.M. to grant Dispensations is of the last importance as a Landmark, since it existed long before the Constitutions of the Order in England enacted that a month should elapse between the conferring of the several degrees. The G.M. can, if he chooses, dispense with this law, and allow a candidate to be initiated, passed, and raised, all at the same time if he so pleases.

7. The Seventh Landmark is somewhat of the same nature. It is the prerogative of the G.M. to give dispensations for opening and holding Lodges; in other words, he may grant to a sufficient number of Masons, the right of meeting at a certain place and conferring degrees upon certain individuals. This prerogative, like the next one, has very seldom been exercised,—never, probably, save in the case of the introduction into the Order of a Royal candidate.

Digitized by Google

8. The prerogative of the G.M. to make Masons at sight is, like the last, an undoubted Landmark. The function has scarcely ever been exercised, and never within modern times. The last time was in 1787, when the Prince of Wales was made a Mason by the Duke of Cumberland. By some writers this Landmark has been questioned, but there can be no doubt about its existence, and consequently of its importance.

9. The necessity for Masons to congregate in Lodges. The most Ancient Charges laid it down very distinctly that the brethren should meet from time to time in "Lodges." In old days there were no warranted numbered Lodges, as in these times, and a sufficient number of Masons meeting anywhere held a Lodge and then dispersed. The modern system of Warrants is of course a necessity, and, although not an ancient Landmark, is stringently enforced for the welfare of the Order.

10. The Government of a Lodge by a Master and Wardens is an ancient Landmark, and is frequently referred to in the Old Charges and Regulations.

11. The necessity for the proper tiling of every Lodge is also a very old Landmark. In the old MSS. mention is often made of the necessity for keeping off all "cowans," the punishment for whom when caught listening was to make them stand under the eaves until the droppings from the tiles running down their necks ran into their shoes. We are very careful in guarding the entrances to our modern Lodges, as the first questions at opening and closing clearly prove.

12. The right of every Mason to be represented in Grand Lodge by the Master and Wardens of his Lodge is a most important Landmark. In olden times every Mason was entitled to be present at every G.L. Communication. Since the Craft has become so numerous that has become impossible, and now he is represented by his Master and Wardens; but he has the right to instruct his representatives as to any matter in which he is personally interested.

13. The right of every Mason to appeal to Grand Lodge. This is a very notable Landmark, since it ensures to every brother strict justice. As I have said before, the W.M. of a Lodge is an absolute sovereign, and his decision is final, in all cases, in his Lodge. No member of a Lodge may resist or object to the Master's decision; but if any Brother considers such decision illegal or unjust, or that he himself is aggrieved by it, he has it in his power to appeal against it to Grand Lodge, or in other words to the Grand Master, to whom, or to his representative, the W.M. is alone accountable.

14. The right of every Mason to visit and sit in every regular Lodge is a great Landmark. On this subject you have often heard my expressed opinions. I am quite sure that amongst country Lodges in England there is not half enough visiting, and brethren are apt to get into a selfish groove and forget that they are not a convivial club, but merely a fraction, a tiny segment, of a huge organisation extending itself over the whole world. The working of the ceremonies moreover is apt to deteriorate where brethren have no opportunities of seeing the inside of any Lodge save their own. I have met more than one brother in York who laboured under the delusion that only one visit in the year could legally be paid to a strange Lodge, but this is a great error. So long as a brother is an actual subscribing member of any Lodge of Freemasons he may visit and sit in any other Lodge as often as he pleases and nothing can deprive him of this right save his own misconduct or ceasing to subscribe to any Lodge at all. Lodges are merely convenient divisions of the Fraternity, and only form portions of one great whole, so that if a brother is a member of one Lodge, he is a member of the whole Masonic Body, nor does membership of any particular Lodge really give any brother superiority over a brother of any other Lodge. On this point I feel inclined to enlarge, because I have very frequently noticed a disposition amongst some brethren to assert their superiority as being members of an older or wealthier Lodge. Now this is a complete delusion that could only exist in the mind of a brother who was ignorant of the first principles of Freemasonry. In case of a Masonic procession, &c., the older Lodges have precedence of the younger, but this has no significance, and is merely a convenient arrangement to preserve necessary order.

15. The examination of unknown Visitors is a Landmark which should be very strictly maintained, and unless a visitor can be properly vouched for by some known brother present, he should under no circumstances be admitted into a Lodge without strict examination and inspection of his credentials. In these days this is if possible more important than ever, when we hear of spurious Lodges working in several parts of the country. Young brethren, moreover, cannot be too careful amongst strangers in replying to signs. Unless there be manifest necessity it is "bad form," to say the least of it, to throw out Masonic signs, and to do so at random, and for the sake of amusement, is highly reprehensible.

16. No Lodge can interfere in the business of another Lodge, nor give degrees to brethren belonging to another Lodge. This is manifestly necessary to preserve that harmony which should always characterise Freemasonry. At the same time it is always competent for a Lodge at the courteous request of another Lodge to confer a degree on a brother not a member. We ourselves are making a trial of this in the case of one of our brethren now in the Colonies, who we expect will receive his Third Degree, if he has not already done so, at the hands of my own mother Lodge in New Zealand.

17. Every Freemason is amenable to the laws and regulations of the Masonic jurisdiction in which he resides, and this although he may not be a member of any Lodge. The fact of a Mason not being a member of a Lodge does not free him, because the very circumstance of his not being affiliated is contrary to the whole spirit of Masonry, and indeed is really a Masonic offence. If a brother lives up to the spirit of his obligations he must, if his circumstances enable him, be a subscribing member of some Lodge.

18. The next Landmark is one of great antiquity, but is not now regarded in the same light as formerly. It is this. That a candidate for the Order shall be perfect in all his bodily organisation. In addition to the definition that a man must be free by birth, of mature age, sound judgment, and strict morals, it was provided that he should be unmutilated in any way. No doubt this took its rise from the Levitical Laws, and would seem to point to a Jewish origin. In the days when our brethren were almost all operatives it is easy to see that this was a very necessary provision, but in the case of speculative Masonry it is not at all apparent why such a condition should be imposed, and therefore it is omitted. The crippled man could not, of course, work as an operative Mason, and even now a man might be so mutilated as not to be able to make our signs of recognition. Now, in this last case, I confess to a belief that it would not be right to initiate such a man. If a brother after being made becomes so disabled as to deprive him of the power of standing to order, it is his misfortune; but once a Mason always a Mason; on the other hand, to introduce a candidate who at the outset would be unable to perform the elementary part of our exoteric working would hardly be according to the spirit of our Landmarks.

19. A belief in the existence of a God is a most important Landmark, so important that as you are doubtless aware, the removal of this Landmark by the Grand Orient of France has caused a breach between Irish and French Masons, and will go far, if not replaced, to occasion an entire break up of the Craft in France. French Masonry has ever been in a confused condition. In that country Masonic irregularities have been more frequent and objectionable than in any other; but all the weaknesses and follies of the past have been thrown into the shade by this last mad freak. If the fundamental belief in a Supreme Architect be done away with, what guarantee have we left that a man will carry out his obligations? The entire system of Freemasonry may be briefly comprehended in the saying—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and thy neighbour as thyself." But if we do away with God, we do away with all our responsibilities. Every man will do what he deems right in his own eyes and there will be an end to true charity. For what is charity but the great law of God? And if there be no God there is no charity—no right or wrong—no such thing as morality or the reverse. We revert in short to—chaos.

20. The next Landmark may be said to be nearly linked with the last. It is the belief in a future state. If we believe in God we must believe in immortality. The legend of the Order and all its teachings point to this, and, indeed, our inner consciousness assures us of our responsibilities and of the certainty of a future of rewards or punishments.

21. The Volume of the Sacred Law is the Twenty-first Landmark of the Order. We care not what book so long as it be the Divine Code recognised by us. With us it is the Law and the Prophets as derived from the Jewish nation. In Turkish Lodges it is the Koran. In India it may be the Vedas; in Persia the Book of Shaster, and so on. But the Divine Law as promulgated must be present as part of the furniture of every Lodge, and without it the Lodge cannot be legally opened or worked.

22. The Equality of Masons is one of the most beautiful of our Landmarks. I often think that a well-worked and harmonious Lodge must approach in many respects to the highest ideas of Utopia. Outside we leave our troubles, our trials, our struggles after wealth, our elbowings with the (we may almost say) hostile world, and in our closely tiled Lodge we meet nothing but kind faces, friendly hands, and a mutual desire to aid and assist one another. "We meet on the level and part on the square," is a hackneyed expression, but what a depth of meaning does it convey. And do you not think that these pleasant re-unions, when we meet on the level, do much to smooth away the acerbities of life—that we go forth once more to breast the hill with renewed energy and vigour, revived, if it be only from the knowledge that we each form one of a united band of worthy fellow-labourers, who do indeed prize honour and virtue above the external advantages of rank and fortune.

23. Our Secrecy is another of our great Landmarks, and one on which it is scarcely necessary for me to dilate. Did Freemasonry cease to be secret it would necessarily cease to exist at all. As a secret Fraternity we have flourished through many centuries, and as such we shall continue to flourish until time shall be no more.

24. The Symbolic Teachings of the Order form another Landmark. The Temple of Solomon having been selected by our ancient brethren as the peg whereon to hang the moral lessons inculcated; being indeed, as it were, the symbolic cradle of the Order, it is now a Landmark, and could not be lost sight of without the loss at the same time of our raison d'etre, and consequently of the Order itself.

25. The last and twenty-fifth Landmark is that which teaches that no change can be made in any of them. That it is not in the power of any man or body of men to make alterations in our Landmarks is the creed which must be professed by every ruler in the Craft before he can be entrusted with the government of a Lodge. Our laws are as those of the Medes and Persians, and must be kept sacred and intact.

And now, Brethren, I have tried to give you in a brief form, what appears to be the pith of the researches of some of the ablest of Masonic writers, Preston, Oliver, Hughan, Findel, Fort, Mackay, Mackenzie, and others. I hope that what I have read will convey to the younger brethren something new. I am myself, comparatively speaking, but a young Mason, nevertheless I have never forgotten that the Charges tell us that "each day we are called upon to make some progress in Masonic knowledge." I fear that too often little attention is paid to the intelligent side of Masonry, but I trust such a charge will never be brought against this Lodge. The realities of Masonry are, I assure you, not to be discovered in the mere ritual of the three degrees. The Lodge workings are only the outer shell or elemental part of Masonic study, and although a thorough acquaintance with them at the outset is indispensable to every brother who hopes to do credit to himself and to Masonry, I hope you will never make the tremendous error of imagining that a clever Masonic ritualist is necessarily a good Mason. An old Masonic writer of the last century, William Hutchinson, of Barnard Castle, says: "You are well convinced that there are some amongst us who take the shadow for the substance, who are acquainted with the ceremonies, but catch not the spirit of the profession." Brethren, let us take care that this shall never be said of any of us, but let us, whilst not neglecting our duty as Masons, prove to the world at large and to our brethren that our professed morality and virtue is indeed a reality, and that we are worthy representatives of those of whom King Solomon said, "O! worthy Masons!"

GRAND ORIENT AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am glad to see this subject is being discussed so fully in the columns of your estimable journal, and more especially that one of your correspondents, who signs himself "M. B." hails from Paris, and is, I presume, a French brother. It is very certain there is no Craftsman, who is worthy of the name, but must deeply deplore the possibility of a severance of the mystic tie which has hitherto united the Masons of France and England. The more, therefore, the case is argued in the columns of your and other Masonic journals, the likelier are we to obtain a clear and satisfactory statement of what has happened, and the position in which English and French Masons stand to each other. As "M. B." observes in his last letter, the Paris Lodges are making preparations with a view to giving a hearty welcome to the many brethren who may be expected to visit the French capital during the exhibition, and it is desirable that English brethren should have some idea of the present relations existing between the Grand Orient and our Grand Lodge. This, however, is a matter of detail, and will doubtless receive its proper share of attention. The main point concerns the question, What, if any, change has come over the spirit of French Masonry, and it is to this that, with your permission, I will principally address myself.

I am not at all surprised to find certain differences of opinion on secondary matters among those of your correspondents who justify the recent alteration in the Constitutions of the French Grand Orient, but I confess I am surprised when I find that Bro. Norton writing from Boston U.S.A., Bro. M. B. writing from Paris, and "A Free-Mason and P.M," agree in representing, directly or indirectly, English Freemasonry as having about it an odour of sectarianism. I do not say they all affirm this in so many words; but I think I am justified in imagining that some such idea is present in their minds, seeing that with one accord they land the act of the Grand Orient of France in removing what most English Masons regard as a fundamental principle of the Craft, and reprove our Grand Lodge for denouncing officially such removal. In other words, the former, by setting its face directly in favour of absolute liberty of conscience, and formally protesting against any confusion of religion with Freemasonry, is praiseworthy; and as a corollary of this proposition, the latter, by its denunciation of such conduct, has justly earned for itself the character of being a sectarian body, and is blameworthy. I hardly think this represents the facts of the case. Our English Constitutions are, in their main features, the same as they have ever been; while the French Constitutions have admittedly undergone, at more than one period, sundry important changes. We are now what we were in the days of Anderson and Desaguliers, the founders, with Payne and others, of Speculative Freemasonry. In saying this, I must ask your readers to understand that I do not refer to rituals, degrees, and the like, but to the principles of the Fraternity. Before the days of these worthies, Freemasonry was unquestionably sectarian in its character. In proof of this I need do nothing more than refer your readers to Bro. Hughan's "Old Charges of British Freemasons;" but as this valuable work may not be within reach of all, I will quote, at hazard, the invocation which precedes the Charges as described, say, in the "Lansdowne MS.," bearing date, according to Bro. Hughan, about A.D. 1560. It is as follows:—

"HERE BEGINETH THE TRUE ORDER OF MASONRIE.

"The might of the Father of the Heavens the Wisdome of the Glorious Son and the goodnesse of the Holy Ghost three Persons and one God be with vs now and ever Amen."

A similar invocation will be found at the head of all the old Masonic Charges which Bro. Hughan has so laboriously collated and annotated in the work I have referred to; and the fact of this being so proves indubitably that in the Pre-Speculative period of its history Freemasonry was essentially Christian in its character. When, however, the founders of Speculative Freemasonry framed the charges and regulations for its governance, they still retained the essential principle of religion, as the most important of its bases, but changed its character from sectarian to purely unsectarian. To put the matter simply; whereas, before the foundation of the modern system it was necessary that a Mason should be a Christian; it became henceforth necessary that he should be a religious man, that is, should believe in the existence of God, but it was left to him to settle with his conscience the manner of his religious faith. And this unsectarian religious character, through all the changes which have befallen it since, it has ever retained, and still retains, in England at all events, if not in other countries. Now, I presume that none of your correspondents will venture to affirm that Britain is not the mother-country of Freemasonry, and that wherever else, in Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, it has since spread itself, all other Grand Orients and Grand Lodges derive their origin, in the first instance, from our Grand Lodge, or from the Grand Lodges of Ireland and Scotland, which were established some few years later. Thus our Grand Lodge was established in 1717, and in a few years we find Masonic Lodges in France, Germany, Italy, Russia, the Netherlands, America, Spain, &c. In course of time Deputations were issued for the formation of Provincial Grand Lodges. Then independent Grand Lodges were set up, and took the place of the Prov. Grand Lodges; and so it went on till the system of Speculative Freemasonry, as founded by Desaguliers and his compeers in this country, spread thence over the face of the known world. And whithersoever Freemasonry went, it took with it the principles laid down by its founders. I think there is none who will venture to deny this proposition of mine. That in the progress of time innovations into the system, as originally laid down, have been allowed in various countries, is undeniable. We had a schism of our own in this country, and we must not be surprised that differences should have arisen elsewhere, or that in time there should have been more or less notable departures from the original scope of Freemasonry. But while we in England have followed pretty clearly the original lines of the Masonic system, and, in particular, have retained the fundamental bases of religion and loyalty to constituted authority, other countries have materially altered the Constitutions of the Craft. Are we then to blame for protesting against such changes in the letter as well as the spirit of Freemasonry? Have we not rather a prescriptive right to resent such changes, seeing that the Freemasonry of other countries is deduced from ours? Bro. M. B. admits that the Grand Orient "at all times bore the character of a mere philosophical and benevolent institution," and he adds "never free, however, from political influences, though they were never to be openly avowed;" but this is quite another aspect of Freemasonry than that we have viewed with favour in England. We say it is a morality, and our ancient charges sufficiently describe the basis of that morality when they affirm that a Mason, if he rightly understand the art, will never be a stupid atheist, or an irreligious libertine. Surely there is nothing sectarian, illiberal, or narrow-minded in upholding the Masonic faith as it has been handed down to us through successive generations from its founders, or in our Grand Lodge saying in one fashion what Bro. M. B. has said in another fashion—namely, that French and English Freemasonry are differently constituted, and that we cannot recognise certain members holding under the French Grand Orient as true and genuine brethren. How can we be more bigoted than French Masons, when both limit the admission of candidates to just, upright, and moral men, though their definition of morality is of one kind, and ours is of another kind? In an English Lodge, at a very early stage of the proceedings, the candidate for initiation is told that the Masonic obligation he is about to contract contains nothing incompatible with his social, moral, or religious duties, and this seems to me to be a tolerably near approach to universality. We do not intrude on the man's conscience, and ask him to define the nature of those several duties. We quietly assume that he recognises there are such duties for him, as a member of the great human family, to fulfil, and leave the manner of their fulfilment to him and his conscience. Thus the only people whom we in England regard as ineligible to be received into our Lodges are those who do not recognise that there are social, moral, and religious duties for them to fulfil; for it is only these to whom the Masonic vows could prove a stumbling block.

The question is not whether French Freemasonry is what it was twenty, forty, sixty, or a hundred years ago, but whether in its principles it bears any resemblance to the Freemasonry of the founders of the Speculative system, from which it was in the first instance derived, and which is still retained by us. I have no right, nor should I be so silly as to quarrel with Bro. A. B. C. because he and I think differently, but I am fully justified in protesting against his declaration that his system and mine are the same in principle, when they are vitally distinct; or that mine which, in all its essential features, has remained unchanged ab origine, is wrong, while his, which was in the first instance derived from mine, but has undergone a variety of changes and modifications, is the right one. By all means let the Grand Orient of France retain its character as "a mere philosophical and benevolent institution," with or without political influence. I am satisfied that no true English Mason will wish it aught but success; but it is expecting too much of us when we are called upon to affirm that Masonry is this, and nothing more.

But let me inquire more closely into the statement "that the French records testify to the absence of all dogmatic affirmation whatever, in the Constitutions prior to 1819." On turning to page 210 of Rebold's "Histoire des trois Grand Loges de Franc-Maçons en France, I find that, on the 14th January 1848, the Grand Orient received the Report of the Permanent Commission on the question, 'Comment rendre à la Maçonnerie le caractère religieux qui lui est propre?" and the Reporter, Bro. Planchet, submitted a certain proposition, the first and second clauses of the Preamble of which are as follow:—

"Considérant que le caractère de la Maçonnerie est essentiellement religieux, en ce sens que la charité, commandée par toutes les religions, est le but principal de la Maçonnerie;

"Considérant, que, si depuis quelque temps ce caractère religieux a paru s'affaiblir, cela tient sans doute à l'invasion des passions profanes et par suite à l'oubli des prescriptions réglementaires."

It is important the reader should note how, in the first place, the question which led to the Report is formulated. The words are "Comment RENDRE," &c., that is, "How to RESTORE to Freemasonry the religious character which belongs to it." Now the idea of restoring or giving back such character implies that Freemasonry had already been deprived of it. We cannot give back what has not been taken away; we cannot restore a temple to its original condition which has not lost some of its original features. I imply, therefore, that the wording of this question suggests the idea that Freemasonry had at some period of its career in France lost its religious character, and that a Committee had been charged with the duty of seeing how best this could be restored. Or, if I take "rendre" to mean simply "render," as in the sentence, "Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," the clause "qui lui est propre," is tantamount to a recognition of the fact that Freemasonry ought to have, if it had not at the time, a religious character. I prefer, however, the former interpretation of rendre, and I am strengthened in this preference by the words in the second paragraph of the preamble as quoted above, "si depuis quelque temps ce caractère religieux a paru s'affaiblir,—if for some time past this religious character has seemingly been impaired." What was non-existent previously could not have been impaired; and the conclusion I arrive at is, that though as in the case of our Constitutions there was no absolute statement of a belief in God as the essential principle of Freemasonry, there must have been at some period, more or less remotely anterior to the date of the Report in question, some law in the French Constitutions which implied such a belief on the part of those who sought admission into the French Lodges. The first paragraph of the above preamble defines this religious character, and says, "Considering that the character of Masonry is essentially religious, in the sense that Charity, which is commanded by all religions, is the principal aim of Masonry," and the second paragraph, as I have just shown, recognises its existence previous to the report of 1848—from which sprang the Constitutions of 1849—by asserting that "for some time past" it had been seemingly "impaired." When, therefore, Bro. Thévenot declares that there has been no change in the practice of French Masonry in consequence of the alteration, last September, in the first article of the Constitutions, I accept his statement, of course, as I am fraternally bound to do, but I confess I do not understand him. My difficulty is further increased by the slight knowledge I have of the French Ritual. Of course, I can only indicate my meaning by one or two guarded references to it. In the first degree, the interpretation assigned to the M.·.S.·. implies belief in God. In the second degree, the mysterious G.·. has a second signification assigned as "l'initiale de l'un des noms du G.·. A.·. de l'U.·." Again, one of the ornaments of the Lodge in this degree—l'Etoile Flamboyante—is thus in part described in a Dictionnaire Maçonnique, published in Paris, "Chez. J. Brianchon, Libraire, Rue de la Harpe, No. 30, 5825:" "Elle est le symbole de ce feu sacré, de cette fraction de lumière divine dont le G.·. A.·. a formé nos âmes, et aux rayons de laquelle nous pouvons distinguer et connaître la vertu, la pratiquer et l'aimer. La lettre G.·. que vous voyez au centre, vous présente deux grandes et sublimes idées: l'une est le monogramme de l'un des noms du Très-Haut source de toute lumière et de toute science." Roughly interpreted, this means that the blazing star "is the symbol of that sacred fire, of that fraction of the light divine, of which the G.·. A.·. has fashioned our souls, and by the rays of which we are enabled to distinguish and acquire a knowledge of virtue, to practise and to love it. The letter G. in its centre offers two grand and sublime ideas: one is the monogram of one of the names of the Most High, source of all light and all knowledge." This is part of a passage quoted from some Masonic work, and I judge, therefore, that while prior to 1825 there may have been no mention of God in the Constitutions of the French Grand Orient, He was recognised in the Ritual. Rebold, again, at p. 37 of his history, in contrasting the forms of initiation into Freemasonry with those of initiation into the ancient mysteries, says: "la franc-Maçonnerie symbolique est le résumé de la sagesse divine et humaine, c'est-à-dire de toutes les perfections qui peuvent le plus rapprocher l'homme de la divinité," that is "Symbolical Freemasonry is the summary of human and divine wisdom, that is to say, of all the qualities which are able to bring man in closer proximity to God." Of course, I may be wrong, but I imagine these points I have referred to give a different illustration of French Freemasonry from that which Bros. Thévenot and M. B. have presented to us. They also show that it has not always been "Godless" in the sense in which we use the word.

I am at a loss to understand the grounds on which "A Free-Mason and P.M." impugns the conduct of the Pro Grand Master at the last Communication of Grand Lodge. I think Lord Carnarvon was quite right in assuming that under the circumstances Grand Lodge would support him unanimously. We in England have always gone to the utmost limit of liberty of conscience, but we have never sanctioned anything like the license of view in which some foreign brethren have thought fit to indulge. We believe there is a point beyond which it is not permitted for us to go. We know what this point is, and I hold that Lord Carnarvon was perfectly justified in assuming that Grand Lodge would support the views of the Committee of which he, by virtue of his office, was the leading member. It was a question of well-defined Masonic principle, accepted of all true and genuine Freemasons, without the slightest demur, since the foundation of the Speculative system of Freemasonry, and not of a moot point to which this or that objection might reasonably be raised. The right of assuming that Freemasonry is what it has been defined to be rests with us who retain the old landmarks. The burden of proving that it is something else rests with the assailants. We have always strenuously held by the original definition; they, on the other hand, have varied in their ideas. Moreover, we, in the main, are a united body; they a divided one. We, too, are the founders of the system; they only the borrowers or appropriators. Can there, under these circumstances, be the slightest doubt as to which of the two Masonic bodies speaks with the greater authority? I am not seeking to establish any comparison between the respective virtues of English and French Freemasonry; both, doubtless, are excellent of their kind. I am not pitting the one against the other. I am not seeking to establish any undue rivalry between the two. I merely say to the Grand Orient, Your ideas of Freemasonry involve a complete departure from its original definition as laid down by the founders of the system, and those founders were Englishmen. We are not mistaken in our ideas, for the simple reason that we have the old charges and regulations as determined by them; and we know, moreover, that what of Freemasonry exists amongst you owes its origin in the first instance to the system as initiated in this country. I cannot take upon myself to suggest—indeed, it would be an act of impertinence on my part if I did so—what "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" original ideas of Freemasonry may have been, but if they have turned out differently from what he anticipated, he has only himself to blame. The outside world, if it cares to trouble itself about the matter, knows perfectly well what manner of thing Freemasonry is, though it may have no knowledge whatever of its mysteries; and I cannot picture to myself a person seeking admission into the fraternity till he has first satisfied himself, in general terms, that it is a body worth joining. However, I will not further trespass upon your space at present; and in the hope that you will kindly accord me room for some further observations on this highly important question,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours, "Q."

CONSECRATIONS.

TRINITY LODGE, No. 1734.

ON Tuesday last, a new Freemason's Lodge, to be called the Trinity, and numbered 1734 on the Registry of the Grand Lodge of England, was consecrated in solemn Masonic form at the Golden Lion Hotel, Rayleigh. The Consecrating Officer appointed was the V.W. Bro. the Rev. Charles J. Martyn P.G.C. D.P.G.M. Suffolk and Prov. Grand Superintendent Suffolk, who is well known, not only as a popular Mason, but also as one of the most efficient Consecrating Officers in the Craft. It is needless, therefore, to say that the ceremony was most admirably performed, very valuable assistance being given by the V.W. Bro. Rev. S. R. Wigram P.G.C., P.P.G.C. Essex, P.M. No. 1000 and P.Z. No. 1000, who acted as Chaplain; W. Bro. A. Sucking P.M. Nos. 160 and 1000, M.E.Z. No. 1000, Prov. Grand Director of Ceremonies; and W. Bro. J. A. Wardell P.G.A.D.C. Lodge was opened at 2.30 p.m., the Consecrating Officer appointing as his Wardens W. Bros. Burton P.G. Treas., and Thos. J. Ralling W.M. 51 P.G. Sec. The ceremony was then proceeded with, an interesting and practical oration on the nature and principles of Freemasonry, particularly as regards "The Five Points," being given by V.W. Bro. the Rev. S. R. Wigram. The musical portion was ably carried out by W. Bro. E. E. Phillips P.M. 1000, &c. The installation of the first W.M. followed, and the petitioning brethren having unanimously chosen W. Bro. Wm. Pissy P.M. 160 P.P.G.W. Essex, he was placed in the chair of K.S. in ancient Masonic form, and he subsequently invested the following as his officers for the year:—Bros. J. Allen P.M. No. 160 P.P.G.S.B. Essex S.W., E. Judd P.M. No. 160 P.P.G.R. Essex J.W., W. J. Belcham No. 160 Treas., Fred. Wiseman P.M. No. 160 S.D., F. R. Bernard J.W. Altogether the proceedings were of a very interesting and successful character, and the Trinity Lodge may be said to be launched under very favourable auspices. After the Lodge was closed, the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet provided by host Deadman, of the Golden Lion Hotel, Rayleigh. After dinner the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, between which excellent harmony was rendered by Bros. Martyn, F. Wiseman, J. Allen, E. E. Phillips, F. Bernard, Harper, Dennis, Syer, &c. The following brethren were present during the day:—V.W. Bro. the Rev. Charles J. Martyn P.G.C., &c.; V.W. Bro. the Rev. S. R. Wigram P.G.C., &c.; W. Bros. Joseph Burton P.G. Treas., Thos. J. Ralling P.G. Sec., A. Sucking P.M. 160 and 1000, M.E.Z. 1000, Prov. G.D.C., J. A. Wardell P.M. 160 and 1000, T. F. Bishop No. 276, W. Bell W.M. No. 1024, J. C. Johnstone J.W. No. 1000, W. Bishop No. 160, G. Goodman S.D. No. 160, W. V. Willson No. 160, R. A. Francis No. 1024, H. Harper J.D. No. 160, J. Harrington No. 160, B. Johnston No. 1000 P.G.A.D.C., Wm. Essex, W. J. Belcham, Fred. Wiseman P.M. 160, F. R. Bernard, E. E. Phillips P.M. and P.Z. Nos. 379 and 1000, and No. 1734.

THE LYEGROVE LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS, No. 218.

THERE are few Masonic gatherings throughout the year which prove more thoroughly enjoyable to the brethren of our large cities than that of an auspicious occasion at a neighbouring Lodge, which, whilst within an accessible radius of the big centre, may be characterised as unmistakably rural. For this reason the installation of the W.M. of the Tyndall Lodge of Freemasons, No. 1363, has been an event which has, since the consecration of the Lodge at the Town Hall, Chipping Sodbury, proved a popular outing to the brethren of Bristol, who have done the intervening ten miles by rail or road, and having well filled the Town Hall with their presence, have expressed their hearty good wishes to the Tyndall Lodge, one of the most prosperous young Lodges of the West of England. It is scarcely to be wondered at then that the establishment of a Lodge of Mark Masters in connection with the Tyndall should be popular, and that the new Mark Lodge has met with an equal amount of kindness and favour from the brethren of the Mark degree of the neighbourhood was evident from the number of M.M.M.'s—most of whom, by the way, had aspired to Provincial, and even to Grand Lodge honours—who were present at the consecration of the Lyegrove Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 218, which took place at the Lodge Room, the Town Hall, Chipping Sodbury, Gloucestershire. The Somersetshire Province was unmistakably represented by a considerable number of the members of the Carnarvon Lodge, Keynsham. The ceremony of consecration was most ably performed by Bro. the Rev. C. R. Davy, Past Grand Chaplain of England, assisted by Bros. W. Munro P.P.G.S.W. Somerset, G. F. Tuckey P.M. P.P.G.S.W. and P.G.S., and John B. Halford W.M. P.P.G.R. Somerset; and amongst the other brethren present were Bros. James H. Boyt S.W. 132, A. G. Williams P.P.I.G. Somerset, E. Weare, W. Lowick, A. Jones, Herbert J. Gough P.G. St. Br. Bristol, R. L. Tucker P.G.R.M. Somerset, J. M. Hunt S.W. 119, W. H. Pine, Samuel Davis G.S.W. Mon., J. P. Curtis, George Rennie Powell, R. Montagne Worlock P.G.D.C. Bristol, Henry Fletcher P.G.T. Mon., R. T. Hughes, P. J. Vizard, F. K. Godwin, James Iles, Thomas Tinsley, Algernon Sudlow and Charles Isles. Bro. Geo. Rennie Powell, who first occupied the chair of the Tyndall Lodge, was the selected W.M. for the Lyegrove, and he was installed in an admirable and impressive manner by Bro. Wm. Munroe. The installed brother having been proclaimed, and received with due honour by the assembled Lodge, he proceeded to make the following appointment of Officers to serve during his term of office:—Bros. G. F. Tuckey I.P.M., J. P. Curtis S.W., Samuel Davis J.W., W. M. Lowick M.O., F. J. Vizard S.O., Algernon Sudlow J.O., F. K. Godwin S.D., John Halford J.D., Thomas Brooke Registrar of Marks, Thomas Tinsley Secretary, Rev. C. R. Davy Chaplain, W. Munro D.C., and James Iles Organist. The appointment of Officers having been made, the Lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren spent a very pleasant hour in inspecting the most remarkable features of the quaint old town. Some curious gabled houses, dating from the early part of the sixteenth century, especially commanded attention. The brethren afterwards sat down to a dinner, which was prepared by Bro. F. K. Godwin, of the Portcullis Hotel. The W.M. presided, being supported on either hand by Bros. the Rev. C. R. Davy and W. Munro. The S.W. occupied the vice-chair, and there were some twenty-five brethren present. At the conclusion of the repast the toast of the Queen was given from the chair, and drunk with enthusiasm. The W.M. next proposed "The Grand M.M. the Earl of Limerick and the Grand Lodge of England," which toast was responded to by Bro. G. F. Tuckey P.G.S. The W.M., in proposing "The Provincial Grand Lodges of the Sister Provinces," spoke of the kindness exhibited towards the members of the Lyegrove Lodge, as beginners, by the many brethren who had come forward with great cordiality to support them. Bros. J. Gough P.G.S.B. Bristol, and John B. Halford P.P.G.R. Somerset, both expressed the pleasure it gave them to assist in the start of a new Mark Lodge, and wished every prosperity to the W.M. and its members. "The Consecrating and Installing Masters" was the next toast proposed by the W.M., and in the course of his speech he acknowledged the great kindness he had ever met with from those two distinguished brethren, and also referred with great pleasure and pride to the admirable manner in which the whole of the ceremony had been performed that day. He stated that he had witnessed ceremonies throughout the United Kingdom, and the consecration of the Lyegrove Lodge and the ceremony of his installation would compete with all. The toast was received with enthusiasm by the brethren. Bro. G. F. Tuckey next proposed the health of the W.M. He spoke of many years' acquaintance, both Masonic and social, with Bro. Powell, and congratulated the members of the Lyegrove Lodge upon the fact that the first Master of the Tyndall Lodge should also be the first to occupy the chair of the Lodge of Mark Masters. The toast was drunk with honours. Bro. Geo. Rennie Powell responded, and proposed "The health of the Officers and brethren of the Lyegrove Lodge, No. 218." He mentioned how great was the pleasure he felt in presiding over the Lodge, supported as he was mainly by the brethren who had been his Officers and successors in the chair of the Tyndall Lodge. He was also deeply grateful to Bros. the Rev. C. R. Davy, G. F. Tuckey, John B. Halford, and Wm. Munro for accepting collars in his Lodge, for he felt that their great experience and their position in Mark Masonry could not fail to shed a lustre on the Lyegrove Lodge. Bros. J. P. Curtis S.W., Samuel Davies J.W., and Algernon Sudlow J.O. all spoke of the pleasure it gave them to serve under their W.M., and doubted not the prosperity of the Lodge. The W.M. proposed, as the final toast, "The Visiting Brethren," to whom they all extended their most cordial and fraternal thanks. Bro. James H. Boyt S.W. 132 returned thanks in suitable terms, and the proceedings terminated. We should mention that the dinner was enlivened by the efforts of Bros. R. L. Tucker, H. J. Gough, and others, who sang some songs in excellent style.

NEW ZEALAND.

THE installation of the Worshipful Master of the Union Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 154 E.C., Auckland, New Zealand, took place on Tuesday, 8th January, with more than usual éclat. The solemn and impressive ceremony of the Mark Installation was well attended by a large number of Masons of the higher degrees. Bro. Burns P.M. installed his successor, Bro. Brock, ably assisted by Bros. P.M. S. Niccol and Wade. Bro. Brock W.M. invested the following Officers:—Bros. W. J. Rees S.W., Dr. F. W. E. Dawson J.W., Rev. C. M. Nelson M.O., W. P. Mont J.O., H. G. Wade P.M. Treasurer, J. H. Burns P.M. Registrar, H. Chapman S.D., J. Lewis J.D., Hargreaves I.G., C. Porter Tyler. The Lodge was then closed, and the W.M., Bro. Brock, invited the brethren to a banquet, provided by host Hood in his récherché style, and the following toasts were drunk with Masonic honours:—The Queen and Craft, the Grand Mark Master Mason of England and Wales, the Right Hon. Earl of Limerick; the W.M., responded to in a very able speech by Bro. Brock; the Installing Master, responded to by Bro. Burns P.M.; the newly-invested Officers, responded to by Bros. Rees S.W. and Dawson J.W.; the Visitors, Host and Hostess, the Press, the Ladies, Poor and Distressed Brethren. Some excellent songs were rendered by the brethren between the speeches, to the satisfaction of all present.

NELSON, NEW ZEALAND.

THURSDAY, the 27th December, being the Festival of St. John the Evangelist, and the 26th anniversary of the Southern Star Lodge 735 E.C., the installation and investiture of Master and Office-bearers took place, according to custom. At High Noon Lodge was opened, and two gentlemen were initiated. By one o'clock the spacious Hall was filled with brethren, among whom were Visitors from various Lodges. The retiring Master Bro. Dr. Boor officiated as installing Officer, and Bro. Dr. Squires P.M. presented the W.M. elect, Bro. W. M. Stanton, who was duly obligated and installed. The W.M. having been proclaimed and saluted, proceeded to the investiture of his Officers:—Bros. John Cann S.W., Marmaduke Sedgwick J.W., Dr. Sealy P.M. Treas., Henry M. Moor Sec., Georg Naylor S.D., Douglas J. Browne J.D., H. Clinton Baddeley I.G Henry Hargreaves Tyler. The usual charges were effectively give by the Immediate P.M., a procession was formed, and the Lodge proceeded to Christ Church for divine service. The service was choral, and the combined choirs of Christ Church, All Saints, Trinity, Presbyterian, and Wesleyan, with their respective Masters, were present, and the singing was highly impressive and effective. Bro. W. G. Sealy presided at the organ; the prayers were read by the incumbent Rev. Mr. Leighton, and the lessons by the Venerable Archdeacon Thorpe. The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Nelson delivered an eloquent and masterly discourse from 2 Kings x. 15, "And when he was departed thence, he lighted on Jehonadab the son of Rechab coming to meet him; and he saluted him, and said to him, Is thine heart right, as my heart is with thy heart? And Jehonadab answered, It is. If it be, give me thine hand. And he gave him his hand; and he took him up to him into the chariot." His Lordship being requested by the brethren to permit them to publish this instructive and practical sermon or lecture, ordered it to appear in the Nelson Church Messenger for January. The church was filled from aisle to porch, and numbers who could not obtain admission remained without. After the service, the procession returned in reverse order to the hall, and Lodge was closed. In the evening, the customary banquet took place, a large company of members and visiting brethren being present. After the usual patriotic and Masonic toasts, Bro. Sealy P.M. proposed the health of the newly installed W.M., Bro. W. M. Stanton, conveying some very graceful compliments, and predicting a year of prosperity for the Southern Star Lodge. In responding, Bro. Stanton expressed himself as deeply grateful for the flattering language in which the toast had been given, but hoped that the Lodge would not expect too much at his hands; he felt considerable diffidence in undertaking the responsible position, but would use his best efforts to justify the choice of the brethren, to whom however he looked for that cordial support and unanimity of feeling and action so essential to the welfare of any social institution. The health of the Immediate P.M. was given by the W.M., and responded to in suitable terms by Bro. Boor, who proposed the retiring Officers, responded to by Bro. Cann. Telegrams were exchanged with the Marlborough Lodge of Unanimity then similarly engaged, and precisely at ten o'clock, at which moment it was announced they were toasting the Southern Star Lodge, prosperity to the brethren at Blenheim was drunk with full honours. Prosperity to the Forest Lodge of Wakefield, was then drunk, coupled with the health of Bro. Chattock P.M., who returned thanks. The Bishop and Clergy; the health of Bro. W. G. Sealy, with hearty thanks for his zeal in conducting the music of the day; the newly Initiated Brethren, responded to by Bro. Rawson; and the Visiting Brethren, were all duly given. Bro. Dyson, of Prince of Wales Lodge, Auckland, returned thanks, and Bro. Morton Tavares of Elgin Lodge, Jamaica, gave an interesting account of his thirty years' Masonic experience in various countries. The W.M. proposed prosperity to the newly formed District Grand Lodge of Auckland, and the health of Bro. George Graham the D.G.M. He described the cordial reception and fraternal treatment he received from the Auckland brethren on his visit to the consecration and installation of the Grand Lodge and Grand Master. The proceedings were enlivened from time to time with music, recitation, and song. From high noon to midnight, every incident of the Festival was harmonious and delighting; it was the largest Masonic assemblage ever seen in this city, and will long be agreeably remembered by all who had the pleasure of joining in it.

Since the above was written the W.M. has suffered, we regret to say, a bereavement in the death of his only son, Albert W. R. Stanton. Returning from the Lodge on St. John's Day, he found his boy in considerable pain, and immediately called in Bro. Dr. Squires, who, assisted by Bros. Drs. Sealy and Boor, did all that skill, indefatigable exertion, and fraternal affection could suggest or devise, but in vain; after a painful struggle of six days, with incessant attention, his constitution could no longer support the trial, and the lad died just as the clergyman had commended his spirit to the God who gave it. The brethren of the Lodge followed at the sad funeral, and the body was borne from the Mortuary Chapel and lowered into the earth by the tender hands of Masons. The coffin of the deceased Lewis was strewn with acacia sprigs, deposited by the brethren over the beloved son of their Worshipful Master, with whom and with whose family the deepest fraternal sympathy was manifested. The principal boys' of the Bishop's School followed the remains of their beloved school fellow. Six of his more immediate companions being pall bearers.

A FISH ORDINARY.

OUR readers are, no doubt, aware that Billingsgate Market has recently been rebuilt by the Corporation of London; and though it will never be one of the most savoury localities in the metropolis, still, as we must have a fish market somewhere, and as this market has been located at Billingsgate from time immemorial, we must be content if the building set apart for the sale of fish is commodious and suitable, not troubling ourselves as to whether it smells as sweet, and is as cleanly in its precincts as a fashionable west-end thoroughfare. Those who are afraid of a little dirt and crowding, and whose olfactory powers are unusually sensitive, will do well to stay away from this famous market-place; but those who, like ourselves, take an interest in our food supply, will be amply repaid for their trouble and the momentary inconvenience of visiting it. They will find it a much more commodious building than its predecessor, and more imposing externally. Moreover, as there is no place in London where better and fresher fish can be had, and as the parts of the building which face the river have been selected to serve as taverns, there are several places where the visitor, after studying the architecture of the new market, will find excellent accommodation for satisfying the inner man. We were recently driven hither in, part, by our love of architecture, as becomes true Masons, but chiefly by a wish to test the merits of a new house ope within the last few weeks by our worthy Bro. Smith, who, for f and-twenty years past, has enjoyed the esteem of all Craftsmen the habit of frequenting a certain hotel in Fleet-street, where v many Lodges hold their meetings and refresh themselves when labours of the day are ended. So highly, indeed, were the servi of our worthy brother regarded, that a handsome testimonial v presented to him at the close of his career at Anderton's. knew, therefore, that in visiting the tavern so recently opened him, we should find everything to our satisfaction; and that whet we indulged in the humble chop and glass of bitter, or directed c attentions to the more than ordinary attractions of his Fish Ordin in the Grand Saloon on the second floor of his house, we should ha equal reason to be gratified. Our anticipations were fully realis We tested the merits of his ordinary, and though we do not c much for word-jingling, and especially in connection with so soler a duty as that of dining, we must nevertheless declare that th merits are worthy of extraordinary praise. The bill of fare, or, more polite language, the menu, included every description of fi in season—salmon, turbot, cod, trout, red mullet, eels, whiting, whi bait, smelts, &c., &c., several entrées, and two or three joints. Ever thing that was brought to table was admirably dressed. The servi was excellent, the waiters being well up to their duties, and mo civil and obliging. The saloon certainly deserves the title of "grand for it is capable of accommodating 250 guests. The tables we well laid out, the linen, glass, plate, and cutlery being all that th most fastidious could desire. There was a good wine carte, and goo wines at moderate prices are to be obtained, or a tankard of our nati beer may be had at the usual price. But this is far from being th limit of the accommodation at Bro. Smith's hostelry, if we ma term it so. There is a handsome and well-fitted smoking saloon c the third floor, over which are placed the kitchens, while the firs floor is set apart for grill rooms, where may be had chop, steak, col meats, a plate of fish, &c., &c. On the first floor is the bar, in whic during the small hours of the morning, when the important busines of the day is being transacted, there is, we are told, hardly standin room, so great is the muster of hungry salesmen and fishermo as customers. Indeed, Bro. Smith contemplates an addition to thi part of his establishment, so that he may be in a better position t meet the requirements of his numerous supporters. On the base ment are the scalleries and other offices, so that the tavern is wel appointed in all things, and with a commander-in-chief of the proves excellence of Bro. Smith, there is little doubt that his tavern wil soon be as popular abroad as it is in the immediate neighbourhood and, we may add, deservedly so. One thing we have forgotten t mention, and that is, that the charge for dining at this fish ordinary is the moderate sum of two shillings; beer, wine, and spirits are additional, and attendance at the option of the guest. We strongly advise our friends to give Bro. Smith an opportunity of proving himself as worthy of their support in his new capacity of "mine host" as he was in his former capacity of "head waiter" at Ander ton's. We guarantee they will come away well satisfied he is up to the mark and a little over.

INDIAN TEA.—In this country, at the present day, the popularity of tea has increased to an extent which may fairly entitle it to rank as the national beverage, and so thoroughly have the public become imbued with the conviction of its beneficial properties, that they are wont to overlook, or ignore, the fact that, like most other articles of consumption when of bad quality, it is very often adulterated by the subtle arts of the adept in adulteration. The majority of tea drinkers may not unjustly be characterised as utterly incompetent to detect that which is pure from that which is not, so perfect has the art of adulteration become. This is particularly the case with China teas. Our Celestial friend is pre-eminently proficient in this species of imposition, notwithstanding the apparent innocence which we seem to recognise in his very child-like and bland countenance. It is a very common delusion that tea in order to be good should pour out a dark colour, and knowing this, the Chinese resort to the employment of most dangerous and deleterious agencies to ensure this result. In face of these facts, so detrimental to the health of tea drinkers, we are happy to find that it is not impossible to procure a really genuine article, at a cost, too, even below that charged for the inferior article. This much-needed boon has been conferred upon us by Messrs. Wiltshire and Co., who have opened a depot at 255 Regent-street, Oxford-circus, for the sale of teas of guaranteed purity, a specialité with them being those grown by themselves in their large plantation in India. This firm has enjoyed the advantage of more than twenty years practical experience in the cultivation of the tea-plant in India, and the knowledge thus acquired they have resolved to utilize for the benefit of the public. Among many other advantages which they offer, may be mentioned the fact that by enabling the consumer to purchase direct from the grower, the profit which has in the usual way to be provided for the intermediary agents between the purchaser and the retailer is done away with, thereby securing to the former a saving well worthy the consideration of those who know what the expenses of housekeeping are. It is a fact worthy of note that a large consignment of tea belonging to this firm was recently sold by auction at the Mart in Mincing-lane, and realised higher prices than any others of an ostensibly similar character, a circumstance which, of itself, attests the favour in which Messrs. Wiltshire and Co.'s teas are held by those capable of forming an opinion upon their merits. We may take this opportunity of stating that any prejudice that ever existed against Indian teas is now overcome by reason of their established excellence. They reach this country in a purer state than those imported from China, and their more general adoption by us will do much to stimulate and expand an industry of our Eastern Empire hitherto sorely crippled by the combined powers of ignorance and prejudice.

SOLOMON HIRAM SHURY,

AGED TEN YEARS.

Son of Bro. WILLIAM SHURY, of Myland, Colchester, who died on the 25th of February last, after two years of great suffering, in his 75th year. Bro. SHURY was formerly engaged in the Circulation Department of the Post Office, but, owing to severe attacks of neuralgia in the head, and defective vision, consequent upon cataract, he was compelled to resign his position when at the age of 54 years. His only permanent income since that time had been a pension of £41 a year, to which he was entitled on account of his service, and he had to encroach continually upon his savings, till they were quite exhausted. Consequently he had been unable to provide for the boy's education, as he did for his children by his first marriage, and his declining days were comforted with the thought that the lad would eventually be elected into the Institution.

When in the full possession of health Bro. SHURY was a most active Mason. He was initiated in the Saint John's Lodge, Hampstead, No. 196 (now 167), in 1848, and, after passing through the intermediate offices, eventually became W.M. When, in 1861, the state of his health compelled him to remove from the District, he tendered his resignation, and the brethren at once elected him an honorary member, in recognition of his valuable services to his Mother Lodge. Bro. SHURY afterwards joined the Wellington, 548, as a country member; and became a member of the Angel Lodge, Colchester, No. 51, in 1868. He was exalted in the Donnatic Chapter, No. 177, in 1852, and was elected to the Third Chair, but the continued unsatisfactory state of his health compelled him to resign. He was also one of the Founders of the Mount Lebanon Chapter, No. 73. When the present applicant was a child in arms, Bro. SHURY's position enabled him to make himself, wife, and child, Life Subscribers of the Boy's Institution, not thinking at the time that he should ever be compelled to avail himself of its benefits and he has beside this, done all in his power to excite in others an interest in the Masonic Charities. Altogether he had contributed to the funds of Grand Lodge for the long period of TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THERE has been little done in the House of Lords which appears to call for any comment. In answer to a question of Earl Granville's, the Foreign Secretary announced that the preliminary treaty of peace was expected to reach London this day (Saturday), it having been despatched by special courier after its ratification by the Czar. The subject of continuous railway brakes, and enlistment in and desertion from our army, were also referred to, but in a conversational manner. Two bills have likewise been introduced, one for the erection of four new bishoprics—Liverpool, Newcastle, Wakefield, and Southwell—and the other for the amendment of the Medical Acts now in force. The second reading of the former is fixed for the 26th instant, and of the latter for the 15th April.

In the House of Commons, a great deal of business has been got through, especially in Committee of Supply. The Inflexible debate was closed on Thursday, and then Sir Robert Peel rose and drew the attention of the House to the proposed representation of this country at the Berlin Congress. In Sir Robert's opinion, the Earl of Derby, and not Lord Lyons, should act for England, and he urged that the other powers, as far as was yet known, would be represented by their Chancellors, and that the presence of the Earl of Clarendon as our representative at the Paris Congress in 1856, and of Earl Granville at the London Conference in 1871, were precedents which should be followed in this instance likewise. This led to a long debate, in which Lord R. Montagu, Sir H. D. Wolff, Sir W. Vernon Harcourt, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, took a part; so long, indeed, was the discussion, that when it was over, there was no time to think of going into Committee of Supply, and accordingly the House adjourned at two o'clock. On Friday, however, on the appeal of Ministers, the House almost immediately after meeting, resolved itself into Committee of Supply, when Mr. W. H. Smith, who, on rising, was greeted with cheers from all parts of the House, submitted, in a business-like manner, the Navy Estimates for 1878-79. After the usual amount of criticism, certain votes for the number of men, their wages, &c., were agreed to. On Monday and Tuesday, the House was again in Committee of Supply on the Supplementary Civil Service and Army Estimates. A few divisions took place, but the Government carried the day in every case by overwhelming majorities. On the latter of these days the report of Supply was brought up, and agreed to. This happened at the morning sitting. In the evening, Mr. Anderson moved a resolution, condemnatory of the action of the Postmaster General in reverting to the practice of subsidies for the conveyance of mails to America, but on a division he was beaten by 117 to 92. A motion of Mr. Brown's in relation to Endowed Schools at Leeds was defeated by 101 to 55. On Wednesday, the second reading of the Tenants' Improvements (Ireland) Bill was moved by Mr. R. Martin, but only 17 members supported his motion, while 258 opposed it. After this, the Money Laws (Ireland) Bill was talked out, and the House rose.

On Tuesday, the Queen and the Princess Beatrice left Windsor Castle for London viâ the Great Western, and on reaching Paddington, drove under escort to Buckingham Palace. In the afternoon, Her Majesty held a levée, at which their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and Prince Christian, with Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Prince of Leiningen, and the Duke of Teck attended. In the Diplomatic Circles, the Turkish, Russian, German, and French Ambassadors were present, and the General Circle was numerously represented. A large number of presentations were made, the names having been previously submitted for Her Majesty's approval. On Thursday, there was a Drawing Room, at which were present all the members of the Royal Family in London, while the Diplomatic and General Circles were numerously represented. A number of ladies were presented.

On Wednesday evening the Prince of Wales presided at the annual dinner of the Princess Mary's Village Home for Little Girls. His Royal Highness was supported by the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Teck, the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, and others. The usual speeches were delivered, and in drinking Prosperity to the Institution, the Prince announced that the sum of £5,000, which was required to complete the School House and other buildings, had been promised by an anonymous friend.

The chief event, however, of the week in the fashionable world has been the marriage of the Earl of Rosebery with Miss Hannah de Rothschild. This event took place on Wednesday, and the church in which the religious ceremony was performed was crowded with the élite of fashion. The bride was given away by the Earl of Beaconsfield, and Lord Carington, in the absence through ill health of Captain Tyrwhitt, acted as best man. The Duke of Cambridge was present, and the Prince of Wales arrived just before the completion of the ceremony. Their Royal Highnesses, as well as the Earl of Beaconsfield, Lord Leconsfield, the Duke of Cleveland, and the Hon. E. Primrose signed the register, after which the bridal party returned to the residence of the bride in Piccadilly, where the wedding breakfast was held, the Duke of Cambridge and the Premier being unable, owing to the pressure of official duties, to be present. After the breakfast, the Earl and Countess left for Lord Leconsfield's seat at Petworth, Sussex, where they will spend the honeymoon. The bridal presents were both numerous and valuable.

Several vacancies in the House of Commons have been filled up lately, and others are occurring or have occurred. The contest at Hereford was sharp, resulting in the return of Colonel Arbuthnot, Conservative, by 1,110 votes, the Liberal candidate, Mr. Joseph Pulley, received 1066. Mr. Philip Miles and Mr. W. S. Gore-Langton have been returned unopposed, the former for East, and the latter for Mid Somerset. By the death of the Earl of Ravensworth, and the consequent elevation to the House of Peers of Lord Eslington, a vacancy has occurred in the representation of South Northumberland. There is also to be a contest for the vacant seat at Worcester.

Our naval and military preparations are in no wise slackened by the news that the preliminary peace between Russia and Turkey has been signed. On the contrary, there is an equal, if not a greater, amount of energy shown every day that we get nearer the time for examining the terms which the recent combatant powers have agreed to. At Chatham alone we have a fleet all but ready for sea—consisting of the Monarch, Penelope, Nelson, Northampton, Superb, Belleisle, and Independencia, all ironclads, with the Euryalus and smaller vessels—which is almost as strong as Admiral Hornby's in the sea of Marmara and the Dardanelles; while at our other ports we have as many more ships, which it would not take us long to put in commission. War material still goes on accumulating at the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, and instructions have been issued by the general in command at Aldershot, that during the months of April and May, the troops shall be exercised in the minor operations of active warfare; during April in the simpler work of outpost duty, &c., and in May in combined movements of the three arms—cavalry, infantry, and artillery.

The ill-treatment to which Dr. Armand Leslie, and two other medical men, with Mr. Bell, correspondent of the Illustrated London News, were subjected as prisoners by the Russians have formed the subject of a correspondence between the Russian and English Governments. It is not yet closed, but the Russian authorities have expressed the profound regret of Monseigneur the Commander-in-Chief, the Grand Duke Nicholas, who has promised the matter shall be inquired into. As there is very little doubt these gentlemen received many and great indignities, and that they were made prisoners in violation of the Geneva Convention, we trust the matter will not be allowed to rest where it is, and that these British subjects will receive compensation for their troubles. Colonel Coope, too, has published an account of his treatment as a prisoner of war in the hands of the Russians, and his testimony convicts the Grand Duke Nicholas himself of the greatest ferocity. At present, of course, this is an ex parte statement, but there seems to be no great reason to doubt that any British subjects who were unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of the Tartars were treated most unceremoniously, if not with actual violence—at all events, in a manner not practised among civilised nations, whatever may be the case in Russia.

St. Patrick's Day happened to fall this year on a Sunday, and, consequently, the usual festivities, in the shape of banquets, processions, and broken heads, which occur on the anniversary of the patron saint of Ireland, were celebrated on Monday. In London, a number of Irish members of Parliament dined together at the Westminster Palace Hotel, the chair being taken by Mr. Sullivan, in the absence of Mr. Isaac Butt, who was too unwell to take part in the rejoicing. In Dublin, the day was marked in the usual military fashion, by the trooping of the colours at the Castle, and there was a procession of Nationalists through the leading thoroughfares of the Irish capital. In Belfast there were rival processions, and here, as well as at Londonderry, there was more or less serious disturbance, resulting, as usual, in not a few broken heads.

The whole of this week the Agricultural Hall has been a scene of great excitement, owing to the grand pedestrian contest for a series of prizes given by Sir John D. Astley. The whole of the arrangements are in the hands of the Amateur Athletic Club, the working committee including such well-known amateurs of athleticism as Sir John D. Astley, Lord Carington, and Messrs. J. G. Chambers and Lawes. The contest was begun on Monday shortly after midnight, and will not be over till twelve o'clock p.m. to-day. Whoever covers the longest distance in the six days, whether running or walking, will win the first prize of £500, and a champion belt of £100 value; the second best will receive £100, and the third £50, while every one of the remaining competitors who covers 460 miles and upwards will receive £10 for his trouble. Up to 11 p.m. on Thursday O'Leary, who beat Weston some time since at the same hall, Vaughan, of Chester, Brown, and Ide were at the head of the list, O'Leary having covered 369 miles, Vaughan 356 miles, Brown 333 miles, G. Ide 293 miles, J. Smith 284 miles, W. Corkey 276 miles, W. Lewis 240 miles, and J. M'Leavy 236 miles.

The Canadians have no great fancy for Fenian sedition. On the contrary, where we at home should leave these fellows to themselves, and not condescend to notice their trumpery manifestations of disloyalty, our good friends of Toronto have fiercely attacked a couple of hotels, where it was supposed that O'Donovan Rossa, whose lectures were the cause of all the excitement, was staying. He fortunately managed to escape the clutches of the mob, but revolvers were freely used, and it is feared that in one or two cases fatal consequences will be the result.

The preliminary peace between Turkey and Russia has been ratified by the Czar, conditions will not be officially known to our Government till to-day. Their terms, however, have leaked out already, and there is very little doubt that Europe will not consent to have the will of Czar Alexander forced upon it. Most of them are highly objectionable, and conflict with the interests of this or that Great Power, in a manner which it is very unlikely they will submit to with indifference. But the anxiety of the moment is directed chiefly to the threatening aspect of affairs between this country and Russia. The Earl of Derby has spoken plainly enough, and has demanded categorically of the Czar's Government that the whole of the treaty shall be submitted to the Congress and that none of the questions shall be accepted by it except unanimously. Russia has not decidedly refused these conditions, but she is moving heaven and earth to evade them; and if she decides in persisting there is little doubt that war will break out sooner or later between the two countries. Of course, it is impossible to depend on the news that is received from hour to hour, but the general purport of the intelligence which reaches us from the different foreign capitals is decidedly gloomy. However, the country has made up its mind that it will not allow Russia to dupe her any longer, and the one chance that remains of a peaceful issue from the present crisis is in the chance that the Czar, at the last moment, may recoil from insisting on his treaty, and so avoid a war, which in all probability would cost him the ascendancy in Eastern affairs which he has succeeded in acquiring after sacrificing so many lives and so many millions of money. This is about the only chance, and it is not a very promising one, of avoiding an appeal to arms.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Colds, Coughs, Shortness of Breath.—These corrective remedies are infallible for these pectoral complaints, which, neglected, often end in asthma, bronchitis, or consumption. The Ointment, when rubbed upon the chest and back, penetrating the skin, is carried directly to the lungs, wherein it expels all impurities. All the blood in the body constantly passes through the lungs, and there all noxious particles tending to produce disease, can be quickly, thoroughly, and permanently neutralised, rendered harmless, or ejected from the system. Holloway's Ointment and Pills perfectly accomplish this purification; and through the blood, thus cleansed, the influence of these wonderful medicaments reaches the remotest parts of the human body; and thus cures all diseased action, whether internal or external.

DEATH OF BENTLEY SHAW, ESQ., J.P., D.L.

YESTERDAY morning, Bentley Shaw, Esq., expired at his residence, Woodfield House, Lockwood, from the effects of an apoplectic fit, which seized him three weeks ago last Tuesday. Under the treatment of Dr. Scott (Waverley House), Mr. Shaw rallied sufficiently at intervals to inspire hope, but on Tuesday the relapse was such as to prepare his family for the worst, and he peacefully breathed his last yesterday morning, about half-past eleven o'clock. His demise follows close upon that of the late rector of Lockwood, whom he followed to the grave on the 5th of January last, and it is singular to relate that the only two lay mourners who followed the Rev. T. B. Bensted's remains, Mr. T. Leigh and Mr. Shaw, have also now passed the bourne whence no traveller returns, a solemn commentary, truly, on the uncertainty of human life.

Deceased was born on the 16th January 1816, and was consequently 62 years of age.* His grandfather, on his mother's side, was Mr. T. Bentley, who founded the Lockwood Brewery in 1795, and his father was Mr. Wm. Shaw, of Lockwood. About the year 1841 he became a partner in the brewery with Mr. Robert John Bentley and Mr. Henry Bentley, and for a great number of years he has been the head and resident manager of the firm of Bentley and Shaw, the prosperity of which is known wherever the Lockwood ales find their way. The deceased gentleman leaves behind him five sons and three daughters, who have to mourn the loss of a thoughtful and affectionate father.

Mr. Shaw's public career marks an epoch in the history of Freemasonry, to which he devoted time, substance, and influence, and from which in return he received many and distinguished honours. A member of the Lodge of Harmony for over thirty years, he was for eleven years Deputy Grand Master of the Province of the West Riding. So highly respected was he in this capacity, that the Masons of the Province, a few years ago, presented him with a grand costly vase, and it remained through the remainder of his life the chief testimonial that he prized. Upon the retirement of the Marquis of Ripon from the post of Provincial Grand Master, and the appointment of Sir Henry Edwards in succession, Mr. Shaw was appointed by the Prince of Wales Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masonry—the peerage, so to speak, in Masonic orders. It was about this period of life that Mr. Shaw had the honour of being presented at Court, at a levée held by the Prince of Wales on behalf of Her Majesty, the presentation being made by the Marquis of Ripon. Among other Masonic distinctions, he was at one time Senior Grand Deacon of the Grand Lodge of England. Deceased was a magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant for the West Riding (being appointed to the former position in 1857), and he won the esteem of his brother magistrates at Huddersfield and Holmfirth for his cautious judgment and judicious temper. It was not on the bench, however, that he found his most congenial sphere. For many consecutive years he was churchwarden of Lockwood, and no one appreciated more than the late rector Mr. Shaw's warm interest and valuable assistance in church work. Cognate with church work he was concerned with several charities (notably the Nottleton and the Bentley), and succeeded the late Mr. George Armitage as chairman of the trustees of the Almondbury Grammar School. For several years he was president of the Lockwood Mechanics' Institution, and took an active part in the erection of the building. In politics, Mr. Shaw was a Liberal of the moderate type. It is certain he was not a peace-at-any-price man, as he supported the candidature of Colonel Akroyd against Mr. Cobden, and was at one time captain in the rifle volunteers. Mr. Leatham's views were too advanced to receive his support, but, on the other hand, he never concealed his liking for a great political pace than that at which Messrs. Stanhope and Starkey travel. Nevertheless, Mr. Shaw had the deep respect of both political parties. In proposing the "Houses of Parliament and the County and Borough Members," at a banquet on Whit Monday, 1874, to celebrate the opening of Somerset Bridge, Mr. Shaw said "he had been wondering several times why he had been selected to propose the toast. He was not a very great political man, as they were all aware. He thought he had been selected because he was a sort of intermediate man. He did not go quite in the rapid pace of the hon. member for Huddersfield, nor, perhaps, did he go at the more gentle and steady pace of his hon. friend who represented the county." This extract from Mr. Shaw's speech will illustrate his political character. At the same time, he was not one of those men who erect their trade into politics, and abandon their Liberal principles because their party deal rather harshly with certain vested interests. His mind was too comprehensive and well informed, and his heart too generous, to take such a narrow view of his electorial responsibilities.

We are sure the family and relatives of the deceased have the sympathy of all classes in their bereavement.—Huddersfield Daily Chronicle.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND THE FREEMASONS.—Lieut. General Probyn has sent a letter on behalf of the Prince of Wales to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Dorset, apologising for the delay in its transmission, and acknowledging the reception the Freemasons gave the Prince on his recent visit to Dorset. The letter says:—"I am commanded by the Prince to assure you that the prosperity of the Masonic craft is ever uppermost in his Royal Highness's thoughts, and the position of Grand Master of the Ancient Order of Freemasons is one in which he feels the greatest pride. I am specially desired to express his Royal Highness's thanks for the sentiments of loyalty and devotion contained in your address towards the Queen, the Princess of Wales, and the other members of the Royal Family."—Standard.

Joyce 1611 being in attendance, were advanced to the honourable degree of M.M.M. The W.M. announced that he had received a dispensation for an appendant Lodge of Royal Ark Mariners, but he had been unable to secure the presence of any qualified brethren to open the Lodge, as he had hoped to have done that afternoon, and the matter must, therefore, stand over for the present. It was agreed that the bye-laws, confirmed by the Grand Lodge, should be at once printed and circulated, and a committee was appointed to draw out a design for a lithographed Lodge summons, and submit the same to the next meeting. After the close of the Lodge, a Lodge of the venerable Order of St. Lawrence was opened by Bro. T. B. Whytehead W.M., and the degree conferred upon four approved candidates. The brethren afterwards met at supper and spent a social evening.

Although we commend members for endeavouring to assist in the proceedings, we would respectfully suggest that those who may not be au fait should prefer to listen rather than prolong the ceremony by so much dictation. St. James's Union Lodge, No. 180.—The brethren of this Lodge met on Tuesday, 12th inst., at Freemasons' Hall. Bros. L. B. Pillin W.M., Farwig S.W., Stollard J.W., H. A. Stacey P.M. Sec., Wade S.D., Baker as J.D., Wood I.G., L. Herf P.M. W.S., Parsons P.M. D.C.; P.M.'s A. L. Annett, Robinson, Stonor, Cameron, and Hamilton; Bros. Staden, J. Huy, Levitt, A. Wertheimer, E. Joseph, Orger, Beer, Papprill, Richards, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. Eugene S. Benjamin 104, Chas. Wertheimer 1017, and Max Neustadt 1017, were unanimously elected joining members. Bro. E. Joseph was raised, and Bro. White was passed. Messrs. F. H. Hall, D. J. Chester, and G. Russell were balloted for and duly initiated into the Order. The working of the ceremonies by the W.M. deserves special commendation. The widow of a brother was relieved with the sum of two guineas. Bro. Parsons P.M. informed the brethren of the serious illness of their worthy and esteemed P.M. and Treasurer, who had endeared himself to every brother of the Lodge by his zeal in the cause of charity. He would not like the Lodge to close without some record being made of the affection he was held in, and he was sure every brother would offer a prayer for Bro. Bubb's speedy restoration to health. Bro. Robinson P.M. then proposed, and Bro. Levitt seconded, that it be recorded on the minutes the regret the Lodge felt at the serious illness of Bro. Bubb, and their heartfelt wishes for his speedy recovery. This was carried unanimously. The W.M. Bro. Pillin announced his intention to act as Steward at the forthcoming Festival of the Girls' School; he hoped the brethren would liberally support him. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. A. Best, and superintended by Bro. E. Dawkins. The W.M. genially presided, and proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts. These were interspersed by songs from Bros. Sarti, Stollard, Ropell, &c. Bro. Walter Joyce favoured the company with a capital recitation. The visitors were Bros. R. Baker I.G. 188, M. Benjamin, Durlacher, W. Joyce, Docker J.W. 1687, &c.

The Francis Burdett Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 181.—Held their meeting at Mr. Baylis's, Albany Hotel, Twickenham, on Wednesday, the 20th inst., at 6 p.m. Owing to the unavoidable absence of Bro. W. Hammond, Bro. Tomlinson I.P.M. took the chair. Bros. Knaggs S.W., Court sen. J.W., W. Taylor M.O., C. Palmer S.O., H. W. Vaughan J.O., J. Tomlinson I.P.M., W. Taylor Treasurer, H. Court jun. Secretary, E. Hopwood S.D., H. Kyezor J.D., J. W. Rogers Registrar, J. N. Sanders D.C., T. W. Walls W.S., H. Taylor I.G., George Harrison Tyler, T. W. Briggs, Wm. R. Ricknell, and other brethren. Lodge was duly opened and the minutes read and confirmed. Bye-laws were read, and an alteration suggested by Bro. Court sen. met the approbation of the brethren. The candidates for advancement not being in attendance, the brethren proceeded to ballot for Bro. J. M. Steven as an honorary member. This was unanimous in his favour. It was then proposed by Bro. Tomlinson, and seconded by Bro. Palmer, that Bro. J. M. Stedwell P.M. of the Crescent, and also of the Hiram, be advanced to the degree of a M.M.M. Bro. Dr. Knaggs then rose and spoke upon matters of interest to the Lodge, the members endorsing all he said. Lodge was then closed, the brethren adjourning to the dining-room to a récherché repast. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to in the manner observed amongst Masons, and the brethren separated in peace and goodwill.

Lodge of Tranquillity, No. 185.—The brethren met on Monday, the 18th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, Bro. David Posener W.M. in the chair. There were present Bros. Geo. Pare S.W., W. D. Bayley J.W., John Peartree I.P.M. and Treas., P. Levy Sec., F. Croaker S.D., John B. Barber J.D., T. W. C. Bush I.G., Geo. Bilby Org., Potter Tyler. P.M.'s M. Harris, R. Z. Bloomfield, J. Constable, J. H. Ross, J. D. Barnett, N. Gluckstein, E. Gottheil. The visitors were Bros. W. Thompson 72, F. Fowler 72, Dr. G. Mickley P.M. 449, L. Maas 901, C. W. Kent P.M 879, J. L. Lewis 1670, Egbert D. Roquis 907, T. Godwin 1556, Geo. P. Hawkes 101, Cunningham 22. The non-official brethren where comparatively few in number. A candidate for initiation was announced on the agenda, but through unforeseen circumstances the gentleman was unable to attend. This was the first time during the past four years that the Lodge had to adjourn without doing any kind of work. Supper was served, and the members gave themselves up to sober enjoyment, for what are termed the off-nights in this Lodge deserve to be regarded as some of the most truly pleasant of any in the year. The usual routine and etiquette are dispensed with. There are no stiff and uncomfortable observances necessary. The brethren dine, as it were, en famille. The food is plain and wholesome, and not calculated to derange the digestive organs. The beverages are of native product, and foreign vintages are not permitted to play their dastardly pranks upon British brains. Hence the assembly is less inclined to be boisterous, and great good humour prevails. The toasts were circumscribed to two, deemed most necessary; which in itself is an advantage, for that fact precludes the infliction of stereotyped phrases which are heard over and over again in every Lodge, almost without exception, and by this abstention boredom is banished for the time. The W.M. deserves to be commended for his considerate conduct in resisting the temptation of airing his eloquence at the expense, as is usually the case, of some amount of good natured patience, and contented himself by giving the loyal toasts in the manner lately introduced and more or less adopted, namely, "Loyalty to Throne, and devotion to the best interests of the Craft." The next and last toast was that of the "Visitors," for which Bro. Mikley was called upon for a reply. That brother, however, respectfully declined to take upon himself the duty of responding for the other visitors, and simply expressed his hearty thanks for the fraternal kindness of his reception, and trusted to have future opportunities of enjoying the hospitality of the Lodge. Bro. Leopold Maas begged to be allowed to say a few words. He was extremely pleased to find his friend and brother occupy the distinguished position of Worshipful Master of so important a Lodge. He had been a Mason many years, but about ten years ago he found it necessary to suspend his Masonic duties, and for the last seven years he had not visited any Lodge. He could not have come to a better place, after so long an interval, calculated to revive his former love of Freemasonry. He would conclude with a sentiment in which he was sure the rest of the visitors would chime in, and that was "Prosperity to the Lodge of Tranquillity, happiness to its Master, and may all the members continue to enjoy the privilege of fraternal love." The proceedings that followed might not unreasonably be termed an amateur concert, in which the following brethren displayed considerable ability:—Child, "Death of Nelson;" W. D. Bayley, "Mother he is going away;" J. D. Barrett, "Jack Brown;" J. Constable, "Let Brotherley love continue;" W. Thompson, "Old Familiar Faces;" J. H. Ross, "Father Molloy;" Child, "The three ages of love;" Mikley, "The Twins;" Bayley, "Tom Bowling;" Thompson, "Lovely Mountain Maid;" B. D. Barnett, "Tom Brown's Schlemasel;" Geo. Pare, "Hurrah for the life of a soldier;" Constable, "The parting glass." The meeting concluded about ten o'clock.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Met on Wednesday, the 20th instant, at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C. There were present—Bros. Hyam Aarons W.M., T. W. C. Bush S.W., Biddle J.W., E. Gottheil P.M. Preceptor, J. K. Pitt Sec., Staley S.D., W. Lipscombe J.D., Bone I.G., also Bros. Walker, Ellis, Sayer, Maidwell, and Smithers. The visitor, who subsequently became a member, was Bro. J. L. Anderson, of 554. The third ceremony and its sections were rehearsed. A vote of thanks to the W.M. was unanimously agreed to, in recognition of the truly excellent manner in which he for the first time performed so difficult a ceremony. Bro. Aarons is a Masonic infant, aged nine months. It is to be hoped that such rare precocity may not be dwarfed by too close application to study. Bro. Bush was elected W.M. for next Wednesday.

Royal Union Lodge, No. 382.—The installation meeting of this, the oldest Lodge in the Province of Middlesex, took place on Monday last, at the Belmont Hall, Uxbridge. Bro. T. C. Swallow, the retiring Master, presided, and he was strongly supported by the Past Masters, Officers, and brethren of the Lodge, and by a large number of Visitors, amongst whom we noticed Bros. J. W. Cooper 538, A. Hendriks 1637, William Iron 1357, Chas. Horsley P.G. Reg. Middlesex, E. Gibson 3, J. B. Lea 1328, G. W. Chapman 1328, G. W. Lay 569, R. Pierpoint 1365, E. Schiemann W.M. 209, F. G. Baker P.M. 753, Millis P.M. 157, John Syer 1017, T. H. Russ 382, William Clarke 141, W. W. Morgan 211, J. Terry Sec. R.M.B.I., D. P. Gillion W.M. elect 1425, Thomas Morrison 141, Watson 834, F. H. Varley 1637. On the assembling of the brethren, the W.M. opened the Lodge, and called on Bro. Coombes, the Secretary, to read the minutes; these were duly confirmed, and Bro. T. C. Swallow then proceeded with the business of the day. Bro. Smith underwent the necessary examination, and was passed to the second degree. Bro. S. Holliday, the Junior Warden, was then presented to Bro. Swallow to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. P.M.'s C. Davis and E. C. Woodward were requested to take the Wardens' chair, and Bro. Holliday was obligated. A Board of Installed Masters opened, and the ceremony was completed. On the re-admission of the brethren, and the salutations formally carried out, Bro. Holliday appointed his Officers:—Bros. T. C. Swallow I.P.M., William Webb S.W., G. E. Cook J.W., William Coombes P.M. Sec., J. L. Coulton P.M. Treas., Charles Rues S.D., Lousdale J.D., Rowles D.C., Cooper and Garrod Stewards, Cobley I.G., Longstaff Tyler, Stacey P.M. P.G.O. Organist. A notice of motion, by Bro. J. L. Coulton P.M., "That £5 be paid annually to each of the Funds of the Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows until this Lodge becomes Vice-President to each of those Charities" was then brought forward and thoroughly discussed. Our worthy brother Coulton urged the claims of the Charities, and of the R.M.B.I. in particular, on the brethren most forcibly, and pointed out the advantages the Lodge would derive if the members passed his proposition. He was ably supported by several others, and on the motion being put it received unanimous confirmation. Routine work followed, and the Lodge was closed. The brethren then adjourned to the Grapes Hotel, where the banquet was held. After they had partaken of the substantial repast provided, which Bro. Drinkwater placed on the table in admirable style, Bro. Holliday proceeded with the toasts. The first four on the list—the Queen and the Craft; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M.; the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.M.; Lord Skelmersdale D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers—were speedily dismissed. With the fifth toast—the Provincial Grand Master of Middlesex, Bro. Colonel Burdett; the Deputy P.G.M. and the rest of the Provincial G. Officers—was coupled the name of Bro. Coombes, but Bro. Chas. Horsley, in his usual irrepressible manner, wished to say a few words, and Bro. Coombes most courteously gave way. Bro. Horsley referred to the kind invitation he had received, and the pleasure he felt at meeting so many old friends. He regretted his duties that day had prevented his being present in the Lodge so soon as he could have desired, but he was much satisfied with the way the work which he had witnessed had been performed. Bro. Coombes thanked the brethren sincerely for the hearty way in which they had received his name in connection with the toast. Col. Burdett most strenuously exerted himself at all times to promote the welfare of the Province. He was sorry that the Colonel's engagements did not permit his being present, as he felt convinced it would have afforded the Prov. G.M. pleasure to take part in the successful meeting they had had. Bro. Coombes concluded his remarks by gracefully acknowledging the kindness and support the brethren always accorded him. The health of the W.M. was proposed in felicitous terms by Bro. Swallow, and Bro. Holliday thanked the brethren. It was a great honour they had conferred on him in electing him to the chair, and he trusted he might be able to give them satisfaction. He was sure he should receive every assistance from the Past Masters and Officers. Before resuming his seat he had a pleasing duty to perform; to present Bro. T. C. Swallow with the P.M.'s jewel which had been subscribed by the Lodge. He trusted he might live long to wear it, and have health and strength to attend the gatherings of the brethren. The remaining toasts comprised the Visitors, the P.M.'s of the Royal Union Lodge, the Officers, &c., and able replies were made by Bros. Lucy, Morgan, Fehrenbach, Coulton, Davis, Coombes, &c. The proceedings were enlivened by songs and recitations, Bros. Lucy, Davis, and others rendering good service. The summons for the Tyler just enabled the brethren who had to return to town to catch the last train.

Portsmouth Lodge, No. 487.—There was a large attendance at this Lodge on Thursday, the 14th inst., when Bro. H. Threadingham who had been elected as W.M. for the ensuing year, was installed by Bro. M. E. Frost P.M. and Prov. Grand Treas. There was an exceptionally good muster of installed Masters, among those present being Bros. G. Rake P.J.G. Warden, T. Batchelor P.P.G. Supt. Works, A. Cudlipp, G. Bond, G. S. Lancaster P.P.G.W., J. Maltby, Ubedell, E. Groves, T. Moore, E. Bunting, P. J. Hyams P.M. 487, Dr. O'Connor W.M. 257, G. H. De Fraine P.M. 257, W. Payne W.M. 342, H. J. Gay P.M. 342, S. S. Pearce P.P.G.D. Southampton, H. Polish National Lodge, No. 534.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 14th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C. Present—Bros. J. H. Cumming W.M., J. F. Ebner S.W., W. Paas P.M. Sec., John Boyd P.M. P.G.P. Treas., J. Taylor S.D., Dr. A. V. Jagielski J.D., J. Lancaster D.C., Dr. Corrie Jackson I.G., Beckett Tyler; Past Masters Bros. W. G. Moore, Nowakouski, F. Rath, &c., &c. Visitors—Bros. Snegart, Moore, J. G. Marsh, Morgan jun., &c. The chief business of the evening was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year. The choice of the brethren was unanimous in favour of the S.W. Bro. Ebner. Bro. J. Boyd was re-elected Treasurer, and Bros. Croucher, Bieling, and Haselden Auditors. Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to banquet, after which the W.M. gave the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. With that of the Grand Officers he coupled the name of Bro. John Boyd, who, in replying, thanked the brethren for the kind sentiments expressed. Bro. Rath next assumed the gavel, and hoped the brethren would forgive him if, in his remarks, he appeared more solemn than usual; they must attribute it to the circumstance of its being the last time that the duty would devolve on him. He considered that to-night he was, so to speak, singing "The Song of the Swan." This song is an allegorical and highly poetical expression of the departure of the soul into higher and purer regions. It is life fading away into eternity after it has worked out its destiny here below. If you happen to walk on the quiet shores of a still lake on a summer's evening, and listen with attention, you may hear, rising among the whispering willow trees, the flapping of the wings, and the waning breath of the spirit in a song, the sweetness of which surpasses all the sensations ever felt on earth. That is the felicity of the soul, conscious of having performed its task whilst in the body, and taking its rapt ascent to that abode where eternal reward is waiting. But to return. Many of the members thought their present Master, when he was approaching the chair, might not feel equal to its burdens, or so much of them as they could wish; therefore, a doubt passed over their minds as to what the year might turn out to be. But, so sure as the laws of nature cannot err, so sure is it that a generous and genuine mind never fails to be elevated to the high duties which it may be called upon to fulfil, and thus it is they were able to look back on the past year with pleasure, when they considered the way in which their Master had performed his duties. Bro. Rath trusted that when their present Master surrendered the government of the Lodge, that they would hear "The Song of the Swan," as a token of the felicity which is the true reward of those who have zealously and conscientiously fulfilled their duties towards their fellow workers. The W.M. suitably acknowledged the toast; if his exertions had proved successful, he should be able to retire with satisfaction. He had used every effort to make them comfortable. Before sitting down, he would propose the health of the I.P.M., which toast having been honoured, Bro. Rath rose to reply. It was but in accordance with the well-known kindness of the W.M. that he should speak favourably. The W.M. had said that he (Bro. Rath) had rendered some service to the Lodge. He could but remember with what slender means he began his duties, and how everything was wanting to enable him to preside with advantage over the Lodge; he was now astonished how he had got through his duties. To begin with, he was a stranger in the land, but that fact is not a serious one in connection with Masonry, particularly in the Polish National Lodge. His very speech had seemed a freezing impediment, but he set to work with a will, first to master the duties of the Lodge, and he thought that no one could say that he, as a Hungarian, had not performed that part of his work. When he had satisfied himself, he felt that he could swim, and counting on the indulgence of the brethren he had struck out boldly, hoping that zeal, honesty of purpose and purity of intention might carry him through, however arduous the task might prove to be. He had ever aimed at the elevation of their work from the humdrum of routine into the real meaning of our Masonic principle. How far he had succeeded he would leave to the members. He could point with pride to the present Officers of the Lodge, whom he felt were individually able to perform their duties creditably. Who could look on such a progeny and not feel proud? Each, he was sure, would be able to give a good account of himself when his day for action came. It was to this he wished to draw their attention; he was sure that if they continued with such workers the glory of the Polish National Lodge would continue to shine to the end of time. The W.M. next called upon the brethren to drink the health of the Past Masters; it was a toast always honoured in their Lodge, and one he felt sure the brethren would never neglect. They were favoured that evening with the presence of several of their Past Masters; he gave them, on his own behalf as well as on that of the members, a most cordial welcome. Bro. Nowakouski responded. The Past Masters were pleased to see so influential an assembly of brethren. Their present Master had proved himself an able leader, and shown himself worthy of the confidence reposed in him. He (Bro. Nowakouski) could look back with pleasure to the time when the Lodge was formed; it was then thought that it would be better to work the ceremonies in the mother language of the Poles, but as the founders were so ably supported by English brethren, they decided to work in the English language. Since that time they had been indebted to English brethren for much of their prosperity. He was pleased to know that many of the Hungarians who lived in London were members of their Lodge, and regretted that, from causes beyond their control, many others were prevented from joining them. Whenever he came to the Lodge he was gratified at its ever increasing prosperity, and he felt this was the feeling of all the Past Masters; in whose name he thanked the Lodge. The toast of the Visitors, proposed from the chair, was acknowledged by each, after which the W.M. gave that of the W.M. elect, Bro. Ebner. This toast he felt might almost be considered the principal one of the evening, and he felt sure that members would join him in wishing their present S.W. a happy and prosperous year in the chair to which he had that night been elected. Bro. Ebner thanked the brethren most heartily. He feared the duties were much more than he had anticipated, but the fact of his having been elected unanimously had shown him that he might reckon on the support of the members, and with their assistance he hoped to be able satisfactorily to perform his duties. The next toast, that of the Officers, was duly honoured. The W.M. thanked each for their assistance during his presidency. Bro. Taylor the S.D. trusted the Officers would continue to merit the eulogiums which had that evening been bestowed on them; he was in ill health, and hoped the brethren would excuse him making further remarks. Bro. Dr. Jagielski regretted to lose their present Master; he had always spoken in a kind manner to the Officers. He then referred to the steps taken by Grand Lodge with reference to the action of the Grand Orient, and hoped that the matter would be thoroughly and properly settled. Bros. Corrie Jackson and Lancaster also replied; after which the Tyler was called, and he concluded the proceedings. Some excellent glees and songs were sung during the evening, greatly adding to the enjoyment of the brethren.

[The following address was delivered at a recent meeting of the Polish National Lodge by Bro. Dr. Jagielski, and in the belief that it will be read with great interest by our constituents, we have determined to reproduce it in full:—"Worshipful Master, Past Masters and Brethren,—We have to-night heard so many beautiful speeches and ideas advanced within this festive circle that it would seem almost right, as some of the preceding speakers have said, to abstain from further remarks because nothing else was really left to be added. However, I cannot hide from you that in this I differ with those who have preceded me, because, on the contrary, I see a vast field for observation before my view. My right hand neighbour, Dr. Thomas, has ventured to compare two of our most distinguished brethren with Cicero and the First Napoleon. The reason assigned for this compliment confirms the correct and able choice of the comparison. Now, could I realise a wish, it would be to have the ability of a Demosthenes, who, I think, would be a fit companion for the geniuses my brother has selected. I might then be able to clearly express in your difficult English tongue, with his resistless eloquence and mastery of utterance, all that just now crosses my mind. First of all, and in contrast with the confession of a tabula rasa before us, I feel somewhat surprised that no mention has been made at our banquet of the circumstance that we have unquestionably been impressed by what has occurred within the walls of our Lodge room. In the first place we have been witnesses of the ceremony of raising, which terminated with the able address of our I.P.M., and when he produced the special distinction granted to the members of the Polish National Lodge by warrant of the M.W.G.M. in 1846, which is designated the "Polish White Eagle," and which he placed in the button-hole of our new brother-"in-law," we were gratified at seeing him the recipient of the special emblem which every member of the Polish National Lodge has a right to wear in any Masonic assembly. The next solemn ceremony performed, a ceremony for the first time in our Lodge since its formation in 1846, was the presentation to Bro. Rath, by unanimous vote of the Lodge, of the still more distinctive jewel known as the "Commander's White Eagle;" this was given to our brother by our Worshipful Master to-night in the name, and on behalf of our Lodge, and we are gratified in seeing it now irradiating its brilliant light in all directions from his breast. Well was this eagle won by our dear brother; the inscription on the back shows that it has been conferred on him in acknowledgment of special, indefatigable exertions, within and on behalf of our Lodge, and as a stimulus for the members to emulate his noble example. Brethren, almost all of you have witnessed the deep emotion of our brother, and you have heard him express words of surprise, of thanks, and of joy, on receiving this exceptional favour; ay, you have heard how warmly he has expressed how his own feelings and dignity are identified with those of the Polish National Lodge. Brethren, I think we have held this night a grand Festival, as we shall remember it with pleasure, hoping that we may have repetitions of the presentation of the Commander's White Eagle within our Lodge. Every W.M. of the Polish National Lodge, it is true, wears a similar decoration for the time being; every I.P.M. of our Lodge has a right to wear the same jewel, but the presentation of the Commander's White Eagle, by the unanimous vote of the Lodge, has virtually given to this evening an exceptionally solemn expression of ceremonial festivity. So far we have followed with a gay heart the joyful impressions of the Polish White Eagle; but, brethren, there is to every bright side in this world its shadow, and it would be unbecoming and unmanly for us not to face the sad feelings which depress our hearts, when we remember the very origin of this Eagle, the symbol of virtue, innocence, and brotherly love, worn by each of us nearest to his heart. Brethren, we all love Freemasonry, and we also love our birth-place, our fatherland, and it would appear unnatural to deny the feeling of love for home. Still, although Freemasonry is said to be spread over the whole world, although it represents a Cosmopolic union, it only occupies, considered geographically, a very small expanse of our earthly surface. To weigh the truth of my statement rightly, let us follow our Eagle in his brilliant flight over land and seas; let him cross the Baltic, and he will soon be in those regions where the hearts of men know nothing of Masonic bonds. Beyond the confines of Germany, towards the East, you will realise the same fact; try to travel with your White Polish Eagle in your box into that very country, and you will find, if you are in the birthplace of the White Eagle, that its discovery in your possession may bring you into prison; or, if a Pole, place you perhaps far beyond the confines of Europe into Siberian icefields and mines, so sadly renowned for their horrors and certain miseries, and—death. Ay, brethren, there are no Freemasons to be found now in that enormous geographical expression called "Russia"; all there is cold and strange to the sympathies of our brotherhood, from the Throne which calls itself divine, down to the humblest peasant. The same in the just discovered wilds of Africa, Australia, &c. However, brethren, pardon me, I will not disclose any more sad pictures before you, but will remind you, whenever you hear of "Masonry being spread over all the world," to recollect where the countries and nations are that are shut to our brotherhood, and will remain inaccessible and unapproachable by law of blinded force for many, many years to come. Let us, however, hope that the time may come when all the nations of the world will be brethren in Masonry, and that a universal happiness may be realised by the expression that our Craft is spread over the whole world. I thank you, brethren, for your attention, and may the Almighty give us all long life to look for years to come at the "Commander's White Eagle" on our brethren's breast, and may the ornament they wear reflect honour and glory upon the Polish National Lodge.]

MILITARY LODGES.

ELSEWHERE in our columns will be found an interesting report of the Installation Meeting of the Meridian Lodge, No. 743, attached to the 31st Regiment. Reference was made on that occasion, by Bro. R. F. Gould, to the List of Lodges on the Roll of the United Grand Lodge of England A.D. 1814, as compiled by Bro. W. J. Hughan, of which nearly one in twelve was working under a Military Warrant. The following extract from the list alluded to, showing the fifty Military Lodges then existing, may be found interesting by our readers:—

The dates of constitution in Bro. Hughan's list are only given in the case of the "Moderns," the dates therefore assigned to the "Ancient" Lodges have been kindly approximately fixed by him, in response to our request. It is a curious circumstance that up to the year 1813, though fifty English Military Lodges were in existence, with few exceptions these were working under "Ancient" warrants, the first Military Lodge in the above list constituted by the "Moderns" being St. George, in the East York Militia, A.D. 1782. It will be seen that only six of the above Lodges are now in existence, also that all of these are working under Civil Warrants.* The following are the Military Lodges now on the Roll:—

| No. | | Date |
|---|---|---|
| 316 | 1st Royal (originally a Civil Warrant) | 1798 |
| 352 | 6th Regiment ... ... ... ... | 1817 |
| 497 | 89th Regiment ... ... ... | 1844 |
| 528 | 14th Regiment ... ... ... | 1846 |
| 743 | 31st Regiment ... ... ... | 1858 |
| 824 | 12th Regiment ... ... ... | 1860 |

And of these, No. 316, though dating from 1798, was not attached to the 1st (Royal Regiment) until after 1814, in which year it was located at Madras, working, presumably, under a Civil Warrant.

* Nos. 117, 131 and 212 Warrants have been published in our columns.

At first sight, the decadence of Military Masonry would seem to be due to the operation of very natural causes, the reduction of the army from a war to a peace footing after the Battle of Waterloo in 1815, leading, not only to the disembodiment of the entire force of Militia, which had been employed in garrison duties in Great Britain, during the absence on foreign service of the bulk of our regular army, but also resulting in the disbandment of many regiments of Infantry and Cavalry, and the reduction of all that were retained on the fixed establishment, to a much lower strength than had hitherto prevailed. A closer examination, however, reveals a very different cause for such decay; the prosperity of Military Lodges, as a body, culminated in 1813, when fifty were in existence, which, with only six exceptions, were all working under "Ancient" Warrants.

It would therefore appear that the progress of Military Masonry was arrested in 1814, after the Grand Lodge of "Ancients" ceased to exist as an independent institution, as at no time during our history as a nation did our Military establishments swell to larger proportions than between 1782 and 1815.

The decay of Military Masonry in its class aspect, as evidenced by the proportion of Military to Civil Lodges falling off from one in twelve in 1814 to one in three hundred in 1878, has, we think, scarcely been noticed before in any Masonic journal.

Lodge "Fort George," under the Scotch Constitution, referred to by Bro. Gould as having been at work in the 31st Regiment in 1816, was chartered in 1760, and struck off the Roll in 1852.

HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY IN LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

On the death of Lord Rancliffe in 1851, the office of Prov. Grand Master was conferred on Sir F. G. Fowke, who had performed the duties of Deputy for eighteen years; and on the 23rd April of that year, Sir Frederick was duly installed in office, Bro. W. Dobie, Grand Registrar and Prov. G. Master of Surrey, presiding as Prov. G. Master, Bro. W. H. White Grand Secretary as Deputy G.M., and Bros. Pettifor and Kelly as Prov. Grand Wardens, about fifty brethren being present. One of the earliest acts of the new chief was the appointment of a commission, consisting of Bros. Wheeler, Kelly, and the P.G. Secretary, to inquire into the irregular proceedings of the Knights of Malta Lodge at Hinckley, which is now, we rejoice to hear, one of the best ordered Lodges in the country, instead of, as it was then, a small but ill-conducted Lodge, consisting mostly of operatives, who were constantly applying for relief to the Grand Lodge of Benevolence. Indeed, from a list which appears in this sketch, —the names, however, being very properly suppressed, and only initials given—it appears that between 1828 and 1851, the members had obtained relief to the extent of £100, their annual contributions to the funds of Grand Lodge varying from a pound to thirty shillings. Indeed, we are told that but for the services of the late Bro. Needham, an old P.M. of the Lodge, it would have been extinct long before. It must be borne in mind that the Knights of Malta Lodge was originally an Athole Lodge. Its Warrant is dated 1764, but it was originally held at Macclesfield, and it was not till 1803 that the Warrant was transferred to Hinckley. Yet, in spite of the articles of the Union, which declared that Masonry consisted only of the three degrees, including the Royal Arch, the Lodge, acting on the sole authority of its Warrant, had gone on granting the Ark, Mark, Arch, and Templar degrees. Specimens of the Lodge certificates for the Craft, Arch, and Templar degrees are given, that of the last-mentioned being as follows:—

"In the name of the Most Holy, Glorious, and Undivided Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

"We, the Capt. General, &c., &c., &c. of the General Assembley of Knight Templers, held under the Sanction of Lodge 66 of the English Regestry, Do Hereby certify that the Bearer, our faithful true, and well-beloved Brother, Sir William Lee, was by us, Dub'd a Knight of the Most Holy and Magnanimous Order of Knight Templers, the true and faithful Soldier in Jesus Christ, he having with due honour and fortitude, supported the Amaising Tryals attending his admission, and as such we recommend him to all true Knight Templers on the face of the Globe.

"Given under our own hands and seal of our general assembly at Hinckley, this 8th day of May 1822, and of the Order of Malta.

L. S. Henry Granger, Capt. General,
James Goode, Dept. Grand Warden."

On the 28th April 1852 the statue erected in Leicester to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Lord Lieutenancy of the "Good" Duke of Rutland, was formally inaugurated with Masonic ceremony by the Prov. G. Master and his Grand Officers, the brethren present numbering some eighty, the mallet used on the occasion being afterwards presented to the John of Gaunt Lodge. The Duke conveyed his thanks for the honour thus done by the brethren in a letter to the Prov. G. Master. On this occasion Bro. Kelly was appointed Dep. G.M., though it was not till 1856 that he received his regular patent of appointment. On 15th November 1854, Bro. W. Cooke, who had held the office of Prov. G. Secretary since 1833, and who in 1850 had been presented by the St. John's Lodge with a full dress suit of P.G. Secretary's clothing and P.M.'s jewel, as a mark of their affection, resigned his office, and Bro. Kelly was appointed in his stead. In 1855 the Prov. G. Master's health was such that he was unable to preside in P.G. Lodge, and early in 1856 he issued, as we have said, a regular patent of appointment, by virtue of which Bro. Kelly ruled the Province as Dep. P.G. Master, and on the 19th May of the same year it was announced in P.G. Lodge that two days previously Sir F. G. Fowke had died, being then in the 74th year of his age. A resolution of regret and sympathy with the family of the deceased was adopted unanimously, and it was further determined that the brethren of the Province should wear Masonic mourning for twelve months as a mark of respect for their late chief. On the 18th June of this year Earl Howe was appointed Prov. G. Master, and in October he appointed Bro. Kelly his Deputy. In November his Lordship was installed in office by Bro. Kelly, in the presence of over a hundred brethren, among whom were Bro. Sir A. G. Hazlerigg, Bro. C. R. Colvile M.P. D.P.G.M. for Derbyshire, and other distinguished brethren from the adjoining Provinces. On this occasion the brethren went in procession to church, and here a collection, amounting to £50, was made, for the joint benefit of the St. John's District Schools and the Leicester Infirmary. On leaving church, the P. G. Master, assisted by his Officers, laid the foundation stone of the adjoining schools. On reaching the P.G. Lodge, an illuminated address of congratulation was presented to his Lordship, who gratefully acknowledged it, and then, after the appointment of a Committee to prepare a code of bye laws, the P.G. Lodge was closed, and the brethren met again at banquet, a few non-Masons, including Lord Curzon, now Lord Howe, the Mayor and Town Clerk of Leicester, and the Vicar of St. Margaret's, being present. The year 1857 was marked by two events —Lord Howe's presentation to the P.G. Lodge of four jewels of office, those of the D.P.G.M., the P.G. Secretary, and the two P.G. Stewards, together with his banner as P.G.M., and the adoption of the Provincial bye laws. This year is further distinguished by the revived fortunes of the Knights of Malta Lodge at Hinckley, and in 1858 a Prov. G. Lodge was held in that town, and Lord Howe was installed as W.M. of the Lodge. In 1859 the Ferrers and Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 1081—now No. 779—was constituted, Earl Ferrers being its first W. Master, who also was appointed Prov. G. Junior Warden, vice Bro. W. Beaumont Smith resigned. His Lordship, however, died during his year, and was succeeded in both his offices by Bro. Edward Mammatt. In this year a third and successful attempt was made to raise funds for the erection of a Masonic Hall in Leicester, the first stone being laid, by the P.G.M., on the 15th February, and the building consecrated and dedicated to Masonry on the 15th September. On the 6th October, the Ferrers and Ivanhoe, which had been opened without consecration, and had continued to work under dispensation, was duly consecrated on the 6th October, and, by a strange coincidence, the death of Earl Ferrers, who had not lived to be installed its first W.M., was followed by that of Bro. Edward Mammatt, when he had only completed six months of his term of office. In 1860, in accordance with a unanimous resolution of Prov. G. Lodge, the portrait of Earl Howe as Prov. G. Master was painted, the artist being Bro. T. James Barker, and on 9th October of that year it was formally presented, and hung in the Masonic Hall, an illuminated address being, at the same, handed to his Lordship. In 1864, two Lodges were added to the roll of the P.G. Lodge, namely: the Howe and Charnwood Lodge, No. 1007, at Loughborough, and the Rutland Lodge, No. 1130, at Melton Mowbray. The former was consecrated, and Lord Howe installed first W.M., on 2nd August; the latter was consecrated by Bro. Kelly, and Bro. George Bowman installed W.M., on 19th October. About this time the P.G.M. expressed a wish to resign his office, but at the unanimously expressed wish of the brethren, he consented to remain at his post, and on 30th August 1867 he presided, though, unfortunately for the last time, over the P.G. Lodge held at the Town Hall, Ashby de la Zouch. On the 30th September 1869, the Province was enlarged, a new Lodge, the "Vale of Catmos Lodge," No. 1265, being consecrated at Oakham, and the County of Rutland was conjoined with that of Leicester as a Masonic Province. At their meeting of P.G. Lodge, a letter from Earl Howe was read, again pressing the brethren to accept his resignation. This was done with great regret, and his lordship having sent in his resignation as Master on the 6th December 1869, Bro. Kelly received his patent of appointment as his successor on the 3rd January following. The installation of the new P.G. Master took place on the 18th February, the event being celebrated by a banquet, followed by a Masonic ball. On the 12th May Earl Howe died, and on the 18th of the month the foundation stones of two new churches were laid with Masonic ceremonies, that of St. Mark being laid by Sir F. G. Fowke, Bart., who officiated for Lord Curzon, absent by reason of his father's death. At this meeting of P.G. Lodge, an address of condolence with Lord Howe's family was unanimously adopted, and it was resolved to wear Masonic mourning for six months, as a tribute of respect to his memory. On the 18th July, a new Lodge, the St. Peter's, No. 133, was consecrated at Market Harborough. In 1872, a third Leicester Lodge, the Commercial, No. 1391, was consecrated. In 1873, Bro. Kelly resigned the P.G. Mastership, and was succeeded by Earl Ferrers, who still holds the appointment, Bro. Sir Henry St. J. Halford, Bart., being his Deputy. Since then, in 1875, a fourth Leicester Lodge, the Albert Edward, No. 1560, has been added to the roll, so that the Province now boasts ten Lodges, while before 1846 it had only three, of which two, the Knights of Malta and the Rancliffe (since defunct) were in a very unsatisfactory condition. If we add that a Prov. G. Chapter of Royal Arch Masonry was constituted in 1858, with Earl Howe as P.G. Superintendent, and that there are now four R.A. Chapters; and that on the 23rd June of the same year Bro. Kelly was appointed, by Lord Leigh, Prov. G. Master of Mark Masons, who are also in a flourishing state, we shall have said enough to show how well the Craft is prospering in the Province which has occupied our attention for some time past.

In our report of the Francis Burdett Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 181, last week, we announced that "Bro. J. M. Steven" was unanimously elected an honorary member: this should have read "Bro. James Stevens." We are pleased to make this correction, as our worthy brother (of Clapham) well deserves such an honour as this the members of the Burdett Lodge of M.M.M. have conferred upon him.

A NEW LODGE.

FROM THE "KEYSTONE."

HOW full of meaning are those three little words—a New Lodge! A volume might be written upon them, without unnecessarily multiplying words. The subject is again and again brought to our notice, by every constitution of a new body of the Craft.

In the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania we have witnessed, during the present week, the consecration and constitution of another member of the great Masonic family—Spring City Lodge No. 553, F. and A.M. We may, therefore, appropriately refer at this time to some thoughts germane to the occasion.

A New Lodge! What a host of possibilities and probabilities it suggests. "To us a child is born, to us a son is given." To-day it may be small and weak, but it possesses within itself, and through its mystic and magnetic force of attraction, a power to double, triple and quadruple its size and strength. It is a giant in embryo. If founded in wisdom, it will surely develop in strength and beauty. It possesses the Solomonic virility, and will unfailingly reproduce its like. Like father, like son, is the law of Masonry as it is of humanity.

A new Lodge! Another beacon light of Faith, Hope and Charity of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth. There is the same Altar, the same Great Lights, the same symbolism, and the same impressive ceremonies, that have always characterized the Craft. It is a new Lodge, and yet there is really nothing new about it, except its name. Its members are old, its principles are old, and its ceremonials are old. It affords another demonstration of the truth that there is nothing new under the sun.

A new Lodge! Another quarry, whence shall be taken, and where shall be fashioned, rough stones into perfect ashlars. Masons are first to be "made," and then continuously instructed. The work is a life-work. Living stones are to be built into a spiritual Temple. The cement of Brotherly Love is to be spread, to unite the building into a common mass. The Ancient Abbeys and Cathedrals of Europe, the work of our forefathers in the Craft—that were so honestly built that they have defied the crumbling hands of time, are, in their way, no apt types of the Temple that is to be—"not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

A new Lodge! Another fountain of Charity opened. Another bourne for the weary, unfortunate Brother. Another refuge for the widow and the orphan. Can you estimate its value, measure its usefulness, or determine its expectation of life? it might take an angel's eye to see to the end of its existence. Its life-principle is Freemasonry, which is an elixir vitæ.

A new Lodge! Another almost magical power for developing men of every nation, tongue, kindred and religion, into Brethren—a power more valuable than that of the long sought philosopher's stone for turning whatever it touched into gold. A good man and true is invaluable. He cannot be bought or sold.

A new Lodge! Another champion of the Truth—the truth of God—His existence, unity and omnipotence; the truth of man, his possession of an immortal soul. The representatives of these two truths shall one day be brought face to face, and both shall exist somewhere, for ever.

A new Lodge! Another microcosm, a world in miniature, with the starry canopy over head, and the chequered floor under foot. Another oblong square—a figure only known to Masonry. We still perpetuate, in figure, the world as it was supposed to be at the Solomonic era. Then the inhabited portions of the globe were contained within boundary lines that on a chart of Mercator's projection would have come within an oblong square—that is a parallelogram. The Lodge to this day is a symbol of the world as it was, or was generally supposed to be, in the days of King Solomon.

A new Lodge! but practically of what character? Shall the members be only represented at its meetings, say but one out of ten regularly present? Shall it open and close in the same breath, with no work, no interest, no funds? Is it living or dead at the outset? Stillborn, or alive for evermore? We should like to know, for this is an all-important inquiry.

A new Lodge! How many sides has it—individually we mean? Is there unity or diversity among its members? Do they naturally "take sides" as soon as any new measure is proposed? Do they love to debate, dispute, wrangle? Are they nothing unless they are argumentative? Another important inquiry.

A new Lodge! Are the members sociable or distant in their intercourse with each other? When they meet do they simply nod, or speak, or shake hands? Are they friends or strangers among themselves? Do they know each other outside of the Lodge? Do they leave all of their Masonry in the Lodge Room with their aprons, or do they carry it home with them, and charm the domestic circle and the world with its happy influence?

A new Lodge? Shall it go up or down? That depends upon itself, and itself is its members. The officers alone cannot make or mar it—there must be a following, that is, mutual aid and support. Every Brother who has cast his lot within its mystic boundaries must identify himself with its life and prosperity if he would see it reflect honor upon the Craft. There must be identity of interest and unity of plan. Bear and forbear. Labour for it in and out of season. Think of the welfare of your Lodge as you think of your own welfare. Introduce to it no improper or discordant elements. Recommend ignorantly or carelessly no applicant. Be persuaded that a grave responsibility ever rests upon you. You are your Brother's keeper. You are your Lodge's keeper. You are a scion of the royal lineage of Freemasons. You have learned a royal art, and right royally should you think, speak and act whenever Masonic interests are at stake. Be true to your Lodge and yourself, and then your Lodge, if new, will be destined to be old, and if old, will be for ever renewing the vigour of its youth.

GRAND ORIENT AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The controversy upon this subject, intensely interesting as it undoubtedly is, appears to me somewhat out of date to serve any useful or practical purpose. The proper time would have been during the deliberations of the Committee, and before the last meeting of Grand Lodge. Not that I for a moment suppose any amount of correspondence, either pro or con, would have exercised the slightest influence as regards the result. The most eloquent advocacy in favour of the delinquent would have been of no effect, or had any chance of success in the slightest degree to alter the foregone conclusion. It was from the beginning the intention to proclaim that members of the Grand Orient have forfeited all claim to participate in English Masonic privileges. By the unanimous voice of the representatives of numerous English Lodges that intention has been carried into effect. Right or wrong, prudent or injudicious, in whichever light it is taken, the decree has gone forth, and loyalty demands due, unhesitating, and unqualified submission. The past cannot be recalled, and if this discussion is to have any value it should be directed towards the elucidation of such points as might tend towards re-union, and the re-establishment of what cannot now be justly termed a Universal Brotherhood. The subject has already been dealt with in a variety of ways, and the social, moral and historical bearings thereof, have received ample consideration. But there is a view of which, hitherto, no notice has been taken, meriting, as it appears to me, some amount of attention. I allude to what I must claim permission to call its psychological aspect. The Grand Orient is accused of a crime which, to my humble apprehension, it would be difficult to substantiate. It is charged with the offence of removing the barrier erected to exclude those who are opposed to the popular conception of a deity, and are supposed to cherish atheistic opinion. Now, I start with the axiom that atheism is a moral impossibility, and consequently that what is intended to be conveyed by the term atheist does not in reality exist. The mere assertion of disbelief does in no way militate against this proposition, for it may arise from an abnormal peculiarity of mental condition. The religious faculty eminently belongs to men, and is the most powerful and abiding. It is not to be suppressed, however much it might for a time be disregarded, its influence will ever predominate, and there is no process capable of bringing about its annihilation. The negationist no doubt fancies himself the votary of truth, while in reality he prostrates his intellect before vain imaginings and offers incense upon the altar of falsehood and deceit. But that condition of mind is fleeting and unsubstantial. The natural instinct of men is prone to self examination during the progress of which it is speedily made clear, that what seemed conscientious conviction, is but a phantom offspring of a vain conceit, and that in the innermost recesses of our being, there lurks the consciousness of weakness and dependence, and a yearning towards a higher power on whom to rely for strength, support and safety. To simply say men believe in God is not a correct expression. It is absolute and perfect knowledge, more or less clear to every understanding. If, therefore, all men know God, the term atheist is meaningless in the sense in which it is generally understood. The question therefore narrows itself to this. Ought we, having due regard to that "charity which thinketh no evil," to refuse friendship and fraternal intercourse to one who, while refusing verbal professions, acts in conformity with laws of God, or would it not be wiser to judge principle by conduct. One, at the mention of whose name millions bare the head and bend the knee, has taught, ages ago, "Ye shall know them by their fruits," and has assured his disciples that "Not every one that sayeth unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that doeth the will of the Father which is in Heaven." High authority this for accepting conduct as the true test. But in our days hypocrisy enjoys immense advantage over conscientiousness. Undoubted integrity, unremitting benevolence, and blameless life, avail nought against ostentatious declarations of faith, and the conscious prattle of canting theological verbiage, the standard by which, now-a-days, man's character is gauged. If a man doeth the will of the Father, though he might assert unbelief, and object to pronounce the most sacred of all formulas, I hold him to be truly religious in the very best sense of the word. From this point of view the offence, if so it is to be called, of the Grand Orient will, I think, appear in a somewhat softer light. For if it can be shown that the irreproachable only are accepted, whose virtues indicate harmony with the divine law; then the crime about which such an outcry has been raised, and for which the barbarous penalty of excommunication has been hurled with more or less precipitancy upon that unfortunate body is, after all, reduced to the elimination of a formulated set of words, the spirit of which still guides its labours as of yore.

Yours fraternally,

E. GOTTHEIL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In my letter of last week, my remarks were directed chiefly to a consideration of the change introduced into French Masonry by the recent alteration in the Constitutions of the Grand Orient. I endeavoured to show that this change was a very real as well as a very important one. I strove to the best of my ability to meet the assertion of Bro. Thévenot, apparently endorsed by Bro. "M. B.," to the effect that nothing whatever is changed in the practices of French Masonry, and to this end I used arguments based on statements contained in a well known history of French Masonry, and on words and illustrations derived from, or explanatory of, the French ritual. I also said a few words in justification of Lord Carnarvon's assumption that Grand Lodge would unanimously accept the Report of the Grand Committee, of which he was the leading member. I will now, with your kind permission, touch on sundry points raised by "A Free-Mason and P.M." in his letter of the 12th inst.

Premising, of course, that I willingly accord him that "credit for sincerity and good faith" which I claim for myself, I must in the first place point out that his letter would have had greater weight with me had he employed more argument and less assertion, and if, in the one or two cases in which he has descended into the arena of argument, he had started on just premises. For instance, he justifies the conduct of the Grand Orient in its alteration of the first article of its Constitutions on the ground that "every one believes in God in some form or other." Bro. Thévenot had previously affirmed that the Grand Orient did not believe there were atheists in the absolute sense of the word—whatever that may be; while Bro. Norton allows that there are atheists, but considers the number of such persons is very small. I must leave Bro. Thévenot to interpret his own statements. Bro. Norton, I think, is very probably right in his belief, and supposing "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" assumption were correct, there would probably be no great harm in omitting the words which indicate a belief in the existence of God. But while Bro. Norton expresses an opinion on this matter, "A Free-Mason and P.M." dogmatically asserts that there is no such person as an atheist, and that, too, in contradiction of Bro. Thévenot's statement "that G.O. formerly counted among its illustrious members the eminent astronomer Lalande, and the great philosopher Helvétius, and others, who openly professed atheistic principles." (N.B.—The italics are mine.) I repeat, I do not pretend to explain the statements of Bro. Thévenot, who apparently draws a distinction between "atheists in the absolute sense of the word," and persons "who openly profess atheistic principles." But here, at all events, we have three brethren who justify the recent conduct of the Grand Orient widely differing amongst themselves at the very threshold of the case. Bro. Norton allows that there are atheists; Bro. Thévenot denies there are "atheists in the absolute sense of the word," though he admits there have been persons "who openly professed atheistic principles;" and "A Free-Mason and P.M." affirms that "every one believes in God in some form or other." But if Bro. Norton is right, then it seems to me the whole of "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" case falls to the ground, for he starts on the assumption that all men are theists. If, however, the latter is right, then Bro. Thévenot's statement, that there have been members of the Grand Orient "who openly professed atheistic principles," must be erroneous. One thing is very certain, these three brethren, differing as they do so radically, cannot all be in the right.

In the next place, I think Bro. Thévenot is a more trustworthy exponent of the principles which actuated the Grand Orient in its recent change than my English brother. The latter says all men believe in God, "but a man who believes in Buddha would doubtless hesitate in an English or French Lodge to declare such belief," and "upon this principle the Grand Orient has resolved to 'eliminate the name of the G.A.O.T.U. from its Ritual.'" On the other hand, Bro. Thévenot, writing under a due sense of official responsibility, tells us that the Grand Orient has resolved not to require from a candidate any declaration "whether he believes or not in God," since it would have been "necessary to make some sort of definition in reference to the matter (a thing which has always led to some very regrettable discussions)." "A Free-Mason and P.M." affirms that all men believe in God, while Bro. Thévenot when he says the G. Orient does not require a candidate to declare "whether he believes or not in God," virtually allows that there are persons who do not so believe. The former says that Grand Orient has adopted the recent change on the principle that a religionist of this or that persuasion might hesitate to express his belief in God in a French or English Lodge; the latter assigns as the reason that if such a declaration were required it would be necessary "to make some sort of definition in reference to the matter." It is impossible to reconcile such statements as these, except it be on the ground that "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" principle and Bro. Thévenot's definition must necessarily be of a sectarian character. In such case, however, our Grand Lodge, which is strongly opposed to sectarianism, would have had no ground of action against the G. Orient. The truth is, there has been a real difficulty in defining God, because there are many men anxious to become, or who have already become members of the Grand Orient, who deny His existence. So this belief or unbelief is left an open question, as is the case with the question of the admission of women to the franchise among our Liberal and Conservative politicians.

Whether "the enemies of Freemasonry will hail with delight" what "A Free-Mason and P.M." is pleased to designate as an "act of dictatorial harshness, as well as weakness, emanating from a body whose charity and freedom ought to be paramount," is a question which has yet to be decided. The principal enemy of Freemasonry has always been the Roman Catholic Church, and the reason of its hostility the fancied irreligious tendencies of Freemasonry. I incline to think our friends, the Romish bigots of the Dupanloup school, will be delighted to find their asseverations as to the godless character of French Masonry are proved, while the conduct of our Grand Lodge in affirming there is no Freemasonry which does not include a sense of religion, will command their respect, if not their unqualified approval. This, however, is only the expression of an opinion, and, as I have said already, has yet to be decided. As regards the objection of our Grand Lodge to "absolute liberty of conscience," it is justifiable on the ground that this grandisonant phrase means nothing but "absolute license" in the matter of religion. But if this absolute liberty is so very precious in this particular respect, why may we not take exception to the limits imposed on it in respect of morals. Our Grand Lodge is, at all events, consistent. It excludes irreligious as well as immoral men. The Grand Orient admits the former, but excludes the latter, yet both are the disciples of "license" as contradistinguished from "liberty." Let us remember one important particular, in which the Emperor Augustus's conduct as a ruler extorted praise from the poet Horace,—

"Ordinem
Injecit."

I am almost ashamed to quote so trite a passage, but its appositeness in connection with the distinction I have raised must be my justification.

I demur to the statement that Grand Lodge has "broken through that estimable rule" which forbids religious discussions in our Lodges. What we hold to be a fundamental principle of Freemasonry was broken last autumn by the French Grand Orient. A Committee of Inquiry was appointed in December. That Committee reported, in March, that it was true this fundamental principle had been broken. It reiterated that principle as emphatically as possible, and in order to vindicate the purity of English Freemasonry it recommended that French brethren visiting our Lodges should, among other proofs of their being true and genuine Masons, declare their belief, not in the God of the Christians, or in the God of the Jews, or in the God of the Mahommedans, but in the Great Architect of the Universe. There was no discussion about forms of religious worship. It was simply laid down, and Grand Lodge unanimously endorsed it, that the essential principle of Freemasonry is belief in the existence of God and the immortality of the soul. No attempt was made to express any ideas or opinions respecting the "G.A.O.T.U.," and therefore "A Free-Mason and P.M." need be under no alarm about the terrible consequences he has pictured to him as likely to result from the action of our Grand Lodge. It has simply but emphatically re-enunciated a fundamental principle, which is entirely different from discussing a form.

The works of the late John Stuart Mill are the last I should dream of consulting on a question of religion. The phrase "whose God is their belly," is a mere figure of speech. "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" letter would have been better and stronger had he left Mill and the belly-God out.

I am afraid there are none so blind as those who will not see, and though "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" letter is evidently that of an able and experienced Craftsman, I imagine it will be of little use arguing this question with him till he recognises the important distinction that exists between requiring a foreign brother to declare his belief in the G.A.O.T.U., and asking what are "his ideas and opinions of the G.A.O.T.U." In the former case we are acting in obedience to our Grand Lodge, and for the maintenance of the essential principle of Freemasonry. In the latter case, we should be acting in direct opposition to the laws of Grand Lodge, and be guilty of a most un-Masonic act of impertinence.

Having said thus much, which I fear is much too much, having regard to the limited space at your disposal,

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It has occurred to me that as H.R.H. the Prince of Wales our M.W.G.M., is about to open the new wing of the Girls' School, and eighteen girls are to be elected out of twenty-four candidates at the next election in April, it would be well to commemorate the great event in a graceful and appropriate way. This could be done by the Committee of the Girls' School sanctioning the election of all the twenty-four girls, without a poll, and with that view I have taken the liberty to write you, that the matter may be brought before the consideration of the Governors.

If you have room for this in your next issue I shall be obliged, and am, Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

SHREWSBURY FREEMASONS AND A MASONIC CHART SELLER, FROM BRISTOL.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Recently there arrived in this town a "Traveller" from "Bristol," who offered for sale among the members of the Craft a Masonic Chart. The advent of this unfortunate individual in the flourishing town of Salop has caused a lively time among some of the "Salopians," who have not been edified or gratified by his visit. The trouble may be explained briefly thus. The vendor of the Chart, in his rounds, called upon a good-natured brother, who indiscreetly gave him a circular on which was the names of three candidates. Without loss of time the "Bristolian" called upon each of the aspirants for our glorious Order, making sure of effecting a sale of his wares. Not finding them eager to entertain his application, and they declaring they had not received Masonic light, or any signification that they ever would, the circular was produced, backed up by the assertion that all was right, and that they had been balloted for and accepted. It is needless to add each of the candidates purchased a Chart, the price being 10*s* 6*d*. Now the facts are, that only one candidate was balloted for, and he was under a cloud; consequently, the other two candidates were withdrawn. The indignation of the worthy brethren of Shrewsbury has been aroused, and it must be apparent to every Mason that such conduct is very reprehensible, to use a mild term, especially if the party alluded to can claim the honour of being a Mason. This somewhat unpleasant occurrence somewhat affects you, inasmuch as your Mr. S. M. Davies has arrived in this town on a Masonic tour, to give the brethren a complete idea of your able journal, and the name of the Chart vendor being Davies there has been a fixed impression that the two individuals are in some way connected, or that the Bristolian has re-appeared as a Londoner, and your representative. Of course, those who have seen both individuals do not labour under such a mistake, but there may be a "feeling" on your Mr. Davies presenting his card, and there is a conviction that this matter ought to be made public, through the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and by this means give you a chance to protect a member of your staff.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, Yours truly and fraternally,

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Shrewsbury, 28th March 1878.

[We have no knowledge whatever of the Mr. Davies, of Bristol, who sells Masonic Charts, but we know that Bro. S. M. Davies is in Shrewsbury, on business connected with the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and we sincerely trust that our esteemed brethren in that town, and indeed throughout the Province, will extend to him a fraternal greeting, and facilitate his object, as far as in them lies.]—ED. ## LODGE VICTORIA IN BURMAH.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—You will not fail to recollect that on the 5th December 1877 the Grand Lodge was, on the appeal of Bros. A. L. Vaillant, T. N. Seymour, E. Dover, J. C. Jordan and W. Marsh, against a sentence of exclusion passed by Lodge Victoria in Burmah, No. 832, Rangoon, for having opposed the election of Bro. the Rev. J. E. Marks, and for daring to appeal to the then Deputy District Grand Master of British Burmah, as is known to you to no purpose, pleased to annul the sentence of exclusion.

On the 10th of January last, Bro. A. Vaillant received a copy of the two resolutions of the Grand Lodge, of the 5th December, which decided that Bro. Marks's election was invalid, and that these brethren should be restored; and on the 11th idem. they presented themselves at the Lodge, in a becoming manner, there being the usual monthly regular meeting on that evening, when they were refused admission (though it was admitted that orders had been received from the Grand Secretary to admit them), and all the excluded had to go back very disconsolate at the pronounced hostility with which they were met.

An appeal was made to the D.G.M., and though the result is known to the brethren, their appeal has not been acknowledged, or the decision thereon communicated to them; yet it is fair to state that the District Grand Master has given the Worshipful Master distinct orders to receive these brethren into the Lodge, and restore them to their privileges as members. To evade opening the Lodge, and to frustrate as long as possible the orders of the Grand Lodge, plain and unmistakable as they are, the Worshipful Master, Bro. C. T. Baxendale, now professes to have qualms of conscience as to the validity of his election, and his right to sit in the chair, and has declined to open his Lodge till the validity of his election and installation has been decided, though be it known that not a soul has challenged it (but with this question I have nought to do), and so has closed his Lodge. But this is not all; a Circular, headed "Confidential," has issued from the Lodge, of which the following is a copy: I enclose also one of the printed copies circulated.

CONFIDENTIAL.

Lodge Victoria in Burma, No. 832, E.C.,

Bro. C. T. BAXENDALE W.M.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,

Several brethren having expressed that they have conscientious scruples, and cannot, in conformity with their obligation, sit in Lodge with Bros. Vaillant, Seymour, Dover, Jordan and Marsh, in the event of their re-admission; the W. Master, in order to ascertain the feelings of the brethren, requests that you will be good enough to inform him, under sealed cover, without delay, your decision on the subject.

I am,

Masonic Temple, Rangoon, 1st February 1878.

Dear Sir and Bro.,
Yours fraternally,
ANDREW BALD,
Secretary No. 832.
Address Loco. Supts. Office.

The circular was not sent to all the members of the Lodge, but to those only who were presumed to belong to the party of aggression against the excluded, and in opposition to the edict of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of England. Sir and Brother, I feel too indignant and sad to proceed to dilate upon the treatment these brethren have received, and now seek again the aid of your valuable paper and pen.

Yours fraternally,

A LOOKER-ON.

CONSECRATION OF THE WANDERERS CHAPTER, No. 1604.

SOME time since an application was made by the members of the Wanderers' Lodge for a warrant for a Chapter. The application was, however, deferred, as the Lodge had not been established long enough to accord with the regulations of Grand Chapter. At the same time it was clearly shown that the majority of the members of the Lodge were anxious for the formation of the Chapter. The members were mostly military men, and non-commissioned officers, who might at any time be required to go on foreign service. Under these exceptional circumstances Grand Chapter reconsidered the matter, and the warrant was granted. The M.E. Comp. Lieut.-Gen. J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., G.S. Surrey, was appointed as Consecrating Officer, and he was assisted by Ex. Comp. Rev. R. J. Simpson P.A.S. S.G. Chapter. The Principals designate were Comps. T. H. Meredith M.E.Z., W. J. Parish H., and T. R. Mellwham J. The Comps. assembled on Tuesday, the 19th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street. Comp. Lieut.-Gen. J. S. Brownrigg, C.B., occupied the chair of M.E.Z., H. Reed H., and Rev. R. J. Simpson J., while Comp. C. A. Cottebrune P.Z. acted as D.C. The Chapter was then formally consecrated, and Comp. Brownrigg proceeded to instal the Principals. Comps. T. H. Meredith M.E.Z., W. J. Parish H., and T. R. Mellwham J. On the re-admission of the Comps., the appointment of Officers took place:—W. H. Bird S.E., G. Boulton S.N., F. J. Wray P.S., Barton 1st Asst., Leslie 2nd Asst., Fuller Treas., Lachlan Janitor. The M.E.Z. said he was pleased to see Comp. John Hervey G.S.E. They were now a constituted chapter, and he would be pleased to propose that M.E. Comp. Lieut.-General Brownrigg be elected an honorary member, and that the best thanks of the Chapter be accorded to him; the same to be recorded on the minutes. This proposition was seconded by Comp. Parish, who personally thanked Comp. Brownrigg for the assistance given by him at Grand Chapter in procuring the warrant for their Chapter. Comp. Brownrigg warmly thanked the Companions for their kindness; he had had 46 years of soldiering, and his association with this Chapter would be to him a source of gratification. It was then proposed by the M.E.Z. and seconded by Comp. Parish that the Rev. R. J. Simpson be elected an honorary member. The beautiful words uttered by that Rev. Companion had been a source of pleasure to every one present, and would never be effaced from their memories. Rev. R. J. Simpson thanked the Companions for the compliment. Comp. C. A. Cottebrune and John Hervey G.S.E. were also elected honorary members. Ten propositions for exaltation and two for joining were announced, and the Chapter was closed. An excellent banquet was provided by Bro. A. Best, ably superintended by Bro. E. Dawkins. The M.E.Z. presided, and proposed the customary toasts. Whatever may be our rank or station we owe a debt of gratitude to our Order and to our Queen, and this we should ever be mindful of. In giving the health of the Grand Officers the M.E.Z. said they had a distinguished member of Grand Chapter present, whose name would be prominently and deservedly brought forward as the Consecrating Officer; they had also present, Comp. Hervey G.S.E., who it was always a pleasure to meet. Comp. Hervey thanked the M.E.Z. He regretted not having been present at the ceremony. Two years since he consecrated the Wanderers' Lodge; it had been well conducted, and the work had been efficiently carried out. If the Chapter would follow in the footsteps of the Lodge, he was sure it also would be a success. The health of the Consecrating Officer and his Assistants was next most happily given by the M.E.Z. Lieut.-Gen. Brownrigg held a distinguished position in Her Majesty's Service; he had had the valuable assistance of Comps. Simpson and Cottebrune. Each had rendered help in procuring the Warrant, which he trusted would never be sullied while in the possession of those to whom it had been entrusted. He then referred to the exceptional circumstances under which the Warrant had been granted, and concluded by calling on those present to do full honour to the toast. Comp. Lieut.-Gen. Brownrigg responded; he explained the rule of Grand Chapter, which required that a Lodge should be in existence three years before an application for a Chapter in connection with it could be entertained. He considered this a wise rule, and had not the members shown him substantial reasons he could not have supported their application. As military men, they know the advantages of discipline, and he trusted they would carry out the duties of the Chapter as well as they had done those of the Lodge. Before taking his seat he would propose the health of the M.E.Z., Comp. T. H. Meredith, and Prosperity to the Wanderers' Chapter. Comp. Meredith said the kind remarks of Lieut.-General Brownrigg had been a source of sincere pleasure to him. With the assistance of those who were associated with him in the Chapter, he had endeavoured to make the occasion of their Consecration Meeting a success and personally he was much gratified at the result. The next toast given was that of the H. and J., Comps. Parish and Mellwham; and both acknowledged the compliment. The health of the Visitors was responded to by Comps. Lindus and E. P. Albert. After several other compliments had been paid and acknowledged, the Companions separated. The following is a list of the Visitors:—Comps. Hacker Z. 722, Reed P.Z. 733, L. Beck, H. Massey P.Z. 619, H. Wood H. 538, E. P. Albert P.Z. 188, C. B. Payne P.Z., Carter 771, C. Barmeister Z 538, C. W. Parsons Z. elect 180, Lindus P.Z. 538, Dr. Kempster, J. 706, H. M. Levy P.Z. 188, &c.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, was held on Thursday, at Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bros. S. Rawson, Col. James Peters, J. M. P. Montagu, S. H. Tattershall, Griffiths Smith, John Boyd, Thos. W. White, Major E. H. Finney, R. B. Webster, H. T. Thompson, H. Massey, and F. R. Hedges, in the absence, through illness, of Bro. Little, the Sec. Bro. T. W. White presided. Four candidates were placed on the list for election, and after Bro. Hedges had read the letter from Lawrance and Co., announcing the stoppage of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., it was resolved that the account of the Institution, which had been temporarily opened at the Holborn Branch of the London and Westminster Bank, should remain there at present. Cheques for salaries, &c., were then authorised to be signed by the chairman, and the chairman announced that through age and infirmity Bro. Henry Browse had resigned his post on the House Committee. Notice of motion was given by Col. Creaton for transferring the funded property of the Institution into the names of the present trustees; for authority for the necessary expenditure in laying out the grounds of the Institution; and that nineteen girls instead of eighteen (making up the number in the Institution to 200) be elected in April. The chairman gave notice of motion to authorise and request Bro. J. Bond Cabbell to execute the necessary documents for vesting the property of the Institution in the present trustees, Lords Carnarvon, Leigh, and Skelmersdale, and Col. Creaton. The Committee then adjourned.

THE OWL CLUB.

THIS Club, to quote the words of the prospectus now before us, "was established to afford to its members two hours of social and agreeable intercourse on alternate Monday evenings, from seven to nine o'clock, throughout the winter, while listening to the performance, in the best manner, by the following gentlemen, of glees, madrigals, &c., of the highest class:—Messrs. Burgess Perry, Edward Collins, Edwin Moss, Albert James, A. J. Thompson, George Musgrave, Albert Hubbard; Pianists, Messrs. Fountain Meen and W. H. Harper." The meetings hitherto have been held at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, and it has been our pleasure during the season to record some very happy and successful gatherings. The last assembly of the season 1877-78 was held on Monday last, at the Cannon-street Hotel, and was what the members are pleased to term a "Ladies' Night," and we need scarcely add that a very inviting programme was put forth. The first part of the entertainment was entirely devoted to the works of the late Sir Henry Bishop, and comprised the Quartette and Chorus, "Hart and Hind;" Sestett, "Give me a Cup;" Recitative and Air, "The Pilgrim of Love;" Round, "When the Wind Blows;" Serenade, "Sleep, gentle Lady;" Song, "Oh, Firm as Oak;" Trio and Chorus, "Push the Red Wine About;" and Chorus, "The Tiger Couches." Each of these pieces was admirably rendered, and it would almost appear invidious for us to select any one for special praise. Mr. Albert James sang the "Pilgrim of Love" so well on the evening that was specially devoted to the works of Sir H. Bishop, that we were not at all surprised to find it here for repetition, and we can justly reiterate the praise we gave him on that occasion. Mr. Albert Hubbard was effective in "Oh, Firm as Oak," while the Chorus, "The Tiger Couches" successfully concluded the First Part.

The Second Part opened with the Madrigal, "All ye who Music Love;" this was followed by "The Horn of Chase," which scored a success to Mr. Edwin Moss; the Part Song, "The Image of the Rose," with humming accompaniment and solo for Tenor—Mr. Albert James—was, to our mind, the gem of the evening. Mr. George Musgrave was forcible in "Sigh no more, Ladies," and then came the Glee, "Oh! the Summer Night." Mr. Fountain Meen next played a Pianoforte Solo, which was re-demanded, as also was the Song, "Thinking of Home," by Mr. Edward Collins. Then came a Part Song, "The Dance," which seemed to take the fancy of the fairer portion of the audience. Mr. Arthur Thompson was very happy in the Serenade, "I arise from Dreams of Thee;" and the Glees, "Lo, on yon long Resounding Shore," and "King Canute," concluded the entertainment; in the latter Mr. Hubbard sang the solo. One special feature we must not forget to mention; that is, the strict attention paid by the large audience—nearly 800 being present. Every word was distinctly heard all over the Hall, and the whole arrangements reflected credit on the Committee. The Club will re-assemble on Monday, 14th October.

We are pleased to announce the inauguration of the Second Tottenham and Enfield Masonic Charitable Association. The first meeting was announced to take place on Thursday last. The efforts of the founders of the first Association have proved eminently successful, and we hope that the second attempt will be the means of adding a still larger sum to the funds of our Charities. Bro. J. H. Thompson P.M. 1237 P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, &c., who so ably performed the duties of Secretary for the previous Association, acts as Treasurer for this. Bros. David Roberts and John Maller, P.M.'s of 754, are President and Vice President respectively, and the Committee consists of twelve brethren whose position in the Craft would ensure their part of the work being well done. Bro. James Garrod, of Holly Cottage, Bruce Grove, Tottenham, is Secretary, and will be pleased to receive the names of any brethren wishing to join.

Bro. Jas. Francis, of the Mohawk Minstrels, announces his annual benefit for Tuesday, the 9th of April. On that occasion special performances will take place at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, at three and eight o'clock.

PROV. GRAND LODGE OF KENT.—On Tuesday last Bros. the Rev. W. A. Hill, Vicar of Throwley Prov. Grand Chaplain, the Rev. P. J. Syrée P.A.P.G.C., J. Plant W.M. 31, Dr. Longhurst S.D. 31, and J. R. Hall P.M., the Hon. Sec. to the P.G.L. Reception Committee, waited upon the Very Rev. the Dean, as a deputation from the Canterbury Lodges, with the view of obtaining the use of the Chapter House for the purposes of the forthcoming Annual Meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge, and also for arranging for a special service in the Cathedral. The Dean received the deputation very courteously, and informed them that he would willingly accord the use of the Chapter House and would, moreover, be happy to render them any assistance. Bro. the Rev. C. J. Hort, one of the deputation, was unavoidably absent, in consequence of his suffering from an attack of bronchitis.

The Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall will probably be held either in July or August at Redruth. There will be no lack of business, for, in addition to the ordinary work, there will be the dedication of the Masonic Hall in that town, one of the most handsome and commodious buildings of the kind in the West, and a credit to the members of the Druids' Lodge of "Love and Liberality," No. 589. There are now twenty-seven Lodges in the Province. Under the genial rule of the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, Prov. G.M. the Craft is in a prosperous state, there being about 1,570 members on the Roll, or fully 100 members in excess of the last returns. There are also ten Royal Arch Chapters, with about 240 members, and a new Chapter to consecrate at Bodmin, No. 330. Nearly all the Lodges and Chapters meet in halls of their own, and, doubtless, ere long the twenty-seven Lodges will assemble only in Masonic rooms dedicated exclusively to the uses of the Craft.—Western Morning News.

The Eighth Annual Ball of the City and Metropolitan Police Orphanage, under the patronage of the Rt. Hon. the Lord Mayor, the Sheriffs, under-Sheriffs, and an influential body of stewards, will take place at Cannon-street Hotel, on Thursday, the 25th of April. Dancing will be under the direction of Bro. T. Butler, and the general arrangements will be carried out by Major H. S. Bowman, Bro. C. Borlase Childs F.R.C.S., and Mr. Supt. Foster.

According to the Masonic Jewel, the Grand Lodge of Mississippi held its Annual Communication, at Grenada, on the 6th February, and two following days. The following are the principal Grand Officers for the ensuing year, namely: Bros. Dr. Chas. T. Murphy G. Master, Oliver Clifton Dep. G. Master, Frank Burkitt S.G. Warden, H. Denis J.G. Warden, A. P. Barry G. Treasurer, J. L. Power G. Secretary. At the same time and place the Grand Chapter of R.A. Masonry in the same State met in annual Convocation, and the Grand Officers were appointed for the new year, among them being Comps. John S. Jones G.H.P., R. B. Brennin D.G.H.P., Frederic Speed G.H., Frank Burkitt G.S., A. P. Barry G. Treasurer, and J. L. Power G. Secretary.

We read in the Keystone that the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania held its Quarterly Communication at the Masonic Temple, Philadelphia, on Wednesday, the 6th inst., the chair being occupied by D.G. Master Bro. Michael Nisbet, in the absence, through illness, of G. Master Bro. Porter. There was a numerous gathering of brethren, and the reports of the several Committees, on Finance, Appeals, &c., were satisfactory. We are glad to hear that Bro. Nisbet announced that Bro. Porter's health was gradually improving, and that it was hoped and expected he would soon be among them once again.

SOLOMON HIRAM SHURY,

AGED TEN YEARS.

Son of Bro. WILLIAM SHURY, of Myland, Colchester, who died on the 28th of February last, after two years of great suffering, in his 75th year. Bro. SHURY was formerly engaged in the Circulation Department of the Post Office, but, owing to severe attacks of neuralgia in the head, and defective vision, consequent upon cataract, he was compelled to resign his position when at the age of 54 years. His only permanent income since that time had been a pension of £41 a year, to which he was entitled on account of his service, and he had to encroach continually upon his savings, till they were quite exhausted. Consequently he had been unable to provide for the boy's education, as he did for his children by his first marriage, and his declining days were comforted with the thought that the lad would eventually be elected into the Institution.

When in the full possession of health Bro. SHURY was a most active Mason. He was initiated in the Saint John's Lodge, Hampstead, No. 186 (now 167), in 1848, and, after passing through the intermediate offices, eventually became W.M. When, in 1861, the state of his health compelled him to remove from the District, he tendered his resignation, and the brethren at once elected him an honorary member, in recognition of his valuable services to his Mother Lodge. Bro. SHURY afterwards joined the Wellington, 548, as a country member; and became a member of the Angel Lodge, Colchester, No. 51, in 1868. He was exalted in the Domatic Chapter, No. 177, in 1852, and was elected to the Third Chair, but the continued unsatisfactory state of his health compelled him to resign. He was also one of the Founders of the Mount Lebanon Chapter, No. 73. When the present applicant was a child in arms, Bro. SHURY's position enabled him to make himself, wife, and child, Life Subscribers of the Boy's Institution, not thinking at the time that he should ever be compelled to avail himself of its benefits and he has besides this, done all in his power to excite in others an interest in the Masonic Charities. Altogether he had contributed to the funds of Grand Lodge for the long period of TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE Conference and the terms of peace formed the subject of a debate in the House of Lords on Thursday, 21st inst. It was initiated by Lord Stratbeden and Campbell, and Earl Granville, Lord Hammond, the Duke of Argyll, and the Earl of Derby, took part in it, and, in consequence, their Lordships did not adjourn till half-past seven o'clock. On Friday, the Duke of Richmond and Gordon presented a bill for the amendment of the Scotch Education Act, and, in doing so, His Grace sketched the character of the measure which the Government had resolved upon submitting. After this, the Earl of Galloway drew attention to the Mutiny Act, and several noble Lords took part in the conversation which followed. On Monday, Lord Elphinstone made a statement respecting the loss of the Eurydice on Sunday, and then Earl Granville asked a question relative to the enlargement of Dover Harbour, and moved for certain papers bearing on the subject. After some remarks from the Duke of Cambridge, which bore on the Naval and Military aspect of the question, the Earl of Beaconsfield consented to the papers, &c. being laid on the table of the House, but declined to commit the country to heavy expenditure in respect of the harbour, though he fully admitted the importance of the question. On Tuesday, after a further statement from Lord Elphinstone respecting the loss of the Eurydice, the second reading of the Bishoprics Bill was agreed to, among those who took part in the debate being Lord Houghton, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Bishop of Durham.

On Thursday, in the House of Commons, after a variety of questions had been disposed of, the House went into Committee on the Roads and Bridges (Scotland) Bill. When clause 12 was reached, progress was reported, and the House resumed, and shortly afterwards adjourned. On Friday, there was a long debate on a motion by Sir John Lubbock, on the subject of Maritime Belligerent Rights, which occupied the greater part of the sitting. The motion was negatived. The Mutiny Bill and Marine Mutiny Bill were read a second time, and the Ecclesiastical Buildings (Fire Insurance) Bill, after receiving a second reading, was referred to a Select Committee. On Monday, after sundry questions relating to Turkey, the Dardanelles, and the Congress, and a statement by Mr. Smith as to the loss of the Eurydice, the House went into Committee on the Mutiny Bill, in spite of an attempt to prevent so desirable a consummation. And when this stage had been reached, clause after clause was opposed, so that only a small portion of this important measure was dealt with. In consequence of this, there was a morning sitting on Tuesday, but the same kind of resistance was offered, and the twenty-sixth clause was reached only after the greatest obstruction. On resuming at nine o'clock, there was a count out. Wednesday afternoon was occupied with Irish business relating to municipal elections.

The Queen returned to Windsor Castle on Friday afternoon, after a sojourn of three days at Buckingham Palace, for the purpose of holding a Levée and a Drawing Room. Previous to her return, the Earl of Beaconsfield had an audience of Her Majesty. On Monday, the Christ's Hospital Boys on the Royal Foundation of King Charles II. travelled from London to Windsor. After luncheon, at the Castle, the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Christian, and attended by the ladies and gentlemen of the Court, entered the corridor, and there inspected the charts and drawings of the Boys. The Duke of Cambridge, President of the Institution, was in attendance, and presented to Her Majesty Mr. John Derby Allcroft, Treasurer; Messrs. Gassiot and Thompson, Governors; the Rev. E. S. Carlos, Head Mathematical Master; Mr. Mason, Head Drawing Master; and Mr. M. L. S. Dipnall, Clerk of the Hospital. On Tuesday, the Queen held a Council at Windsor, at which were present the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, President, the Duke of Northumberland, the Marquis of Hertford, and the Earl of Derby. The Duke of Devonshire and the Lord Advocate were introduced and sworn in members of the Council. Mr. Charles Lennox Peel, Clerk of the Council, was in attendance. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon and the Lord Chamberlain had audiences of Her Majesty. General Camargo, the Columbian Minister, was introduced by the Earl of Derby, and presented his credentials.

On Monday, the Prince and Princess of Wales paid a visit to the Empress Eugenie and the Prince Imperial, at Camden House, Chislehurst. In the afternoon the Prince left London on a visit to Mr. and Lady Florence Chaplin, at Blankney Hall, Sleaford. His Royal Highness was present on Wednesday at the Lincoln meeting, and saw the race for the Lincoln Handicap, won by Kaleidoscope, with Rosy Cross and Cradle second and third respectively The Duchess of Edinburgh, after visiting Palermo on board H.M.'s ironclad Minotaur, has returned to Malta, where she has been joined by His Royal Highness the Duke.

On Sunday, a most terrible disaster occurred to our navy. H.M.S. Eurydice, returning home from a cruise to the West Indies, was overtaken by a fearful squall, and in five minutes sunk with all on board. Out of a crew, numbering all told, over three hundred officers and men, only two have been saved—an able seaman, named Cuddiford, and a first class boy, of the name of Fletcher. These, with First Lieutenant Tabor, Captain Ferrier, R.E., who was a passenger, and one other, were picked up by the coal brig Emma, but the last three were so exhausted that it was found impossible to restore them to animation. The inquest has been held, and the jury have returned a verdict of accidental death, at the same time absolving all the officers and men on board from any blame in respect of the catastrophe. Nothing so calamitous has happened since the loss of the Captain in the summer of 1870, in the Bay of Biscay, when only between forty and fifty were saved out of a crew of five hundred. Indeed, the circumstances under which the Eurydice was lost, are, if possible, more lamentable. The vessel was returning home, after a successful voyage, and in another half hour would have been brought safely to anchor. We may imagine the joy that was present in the breast of every one at the idea of returning home again to their families. But a mighty wind laid the ill-fated ship on her beam ends, and in five minutes all but two of three hundred souls had gone to their last rest. It is needless to say the occurrence has caused the most profound grief throughout the country, and the first to express her sympathy with the parents and relatives of the lost seamen is Her Majesty the Queen, a message from whom was at once despatched to the Admiral Superintendent at Portsmouth, and was subsequently read in the House of Commons by Mr. Smith, at Her Majesty's special request. It should be added that the majority of the crew were young lads, who had been placed on board and sent to the West Indies, in order that they might acquire a practical knowledge of seamanship.

The Walking Match terminated at an earlier hour than was expected on Saturday. The prize of £500 and the Champion Belt fell to O'Leary, of Chicago, who covered 520¼ miles in the six days, Vaughan, of Chester, who did exactly 500 miles being second, and Brown, with over 477 miles, third. Vaughan accordingly received the second prize of £100, and Brown the third, value £50. Only one other of the competitors succeeded in walking over 400 miles in the appointed time. It is said that Weston has challenged O'Leary to walk for £500 aside.

The Cambridge Crew have already arrived at Putney for the inter-University race, and have been practising under the careful supervision of their experienced coach, Mr. Close. The weather, however, has been anything but favourable. The Oxford Crew may be expected to take up their quarters at Putney early next week, and the race will be rowed this day fortnight.

According to the Standard, this country has at the present moment, ready or almost ready for immediate commission, no less than eighteen armour-clad vessels, having an aggregate tonnage of 135,800 tons, mounting 229 guns, and carrying 8,600 officers and men, and twelve unarmoured vessels, with a gross tonnage of 30,000 tons, carrying 128 guns, and manned by 3,200 officers and men; or, in other words, a fleet of thirty vessels, of 165,800 gross tonnage, and carrying 357 guns and nearly 12,000 men. Among these are the Inflexible, with its four eighty-one ton guns, which on an emergency might be commissioned in the summer, the Dreadnought, the Thunderer, the Invincible, the Monarch, the Neptune (lately the Independencia), the Belleisle, the Superb, the Nelson, the Northampton, and the Hercules. In addition, there are available for home defence seven heavily armed turret ships, and thirty-two gun-boats.

There is little to be said as to the Eastern Question. The terms of the Treaty of Peace between Russia and Turkey are now known, and the more we read them, the less do we and the other powers appear to like them. The prospect of a Congress being held appears to be further removed than ever, in fact, Russia has categorically refused to meet the demands of our Government, and the project may be regarded as having fallen through. Consequently, we say this, the outlook is far from encouraging. However, there is this satisfaction, that all Continental political organs of repute most vigorously approve the policy which our Government is pursuing, and if there are further difficulties and dangers, the blame will rest with Russia and not with England.

The Annual General Meeting of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution was held, on Tuesday, 19th inst., at Willis's Rooms, St. James's. In the unavoidable absence of the Duke of Northumberland, President of the Institution, the chair was taken by Mr. Thomas Chapman, who was supported by Admirals Sir E. Phillimore, Sir W. Tarleton, Ryder, Sir R. Collinson, Capt. Hozier, Col. Fitzroy Clayton, Major Iredell, Col. Sir C. Rowley, and many other gentlemen. After a short address from the chair, the Secretary read the Report, from which it appeared there were 268 lifeboats under the Society's management. During the year 1877 these boats had saved the lives of 841 persons, and had helped to rescue 35 vessels from destruction. For these services, and for saving 200 lives, by fishing boats and other means, ten silver medals, seventeen votes of thanks on vellum, and £4,069 in money had been granted. The amount received in the way of subscriptions, donations, &c., during this period amounted to £42,442, of which £10,295 was in the form of special gifts to defray the cost of thirteen lifeboats. The expenditure, including liabilities, had been £47,309. The Report was adopted unanimously. Other resolutions were agreed to, and the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

According to the latest statement in the Masonic Record of Western India, the subscription for the widows and orphans of the late Bro. Bease, editor of that journal at the time of his death, has reached the sum of 2,615 rupees 14 annas.

We learn from the same contemporary that a meeting of the General Committee of Management of the Greenlaw Masonic Orphan Fund, Burmah, had been held at the Masonic Temple, Rangoon, on the 5th December. The Treasurer's statement of accounts showed receipts, including a balance brought forward from previous meeting of over 1,246 rupees, amounting to over 3,816 rupees. The disbursements, including over 1,007 rupees, amounted to over 2,314 rupees, so there remained a balance in hand of over 1,501 rupees. The capital account shows 15,091 rupees invested in Government paper. Three children of a late brother of the Star of Burmah Lodge, No. 614, were admitted to the benefits of the Fund, and it was recommended they should receive 20 rupees per month from the 1st January 1878. One application from Monlmein was not entertained, on the ground that the orphan in question had no claims on the fund. A proposal to invest the funds in other than Government Securities was negatived, and a new bye law on the subject was formulated, recommending that moneys be invested in the names of the Trustees in Government Securities. This and other alterations in the bye laws were to be submitted at the next meeting of the Committee, for confirmation.

The Voice of Masonry for the current month contains an interesting article by the veteran Bro. Cornelius Moore, entitled "Freemasonry Should and Will Live." The article is worth reading, as is an historical paper by Bro. W. J. Hughan on "Grand Lodges in England and Bro. Hyneman," in which that learned brother refutes a number of errors into which Bro. Hyneman has fallen in regard to Freemasonry in this country.

Newington S.D., W. Franklin J.D., J. Magillagan I.G.; P.M.'s W. Deverell, F. Fisher, W. Woodward; and Bros. H. Rowe and W. Foss. Visitors—Bros. R. Eve P. Prov. S.G.W. Hants, H. N. C. Smith P. Prov. G.W. Oxford, H. Hacken P.P.G.J.D., A. E. Richardson P.P.G.S.D., Robt. F. Gould P.M. 92; Captain H. Burton W.M. 1724 Kaisar-i-Hind, W. Sheldrake P.M. 723 Panmure, F. Adnett 723, J. Wisham 1331 Camp Lodge, W. Hill late 743, J. Pomeroy P.M. 723, T. Benham W.M. 723, G. Godfrey S.W. 723, J. Ingfield St. John 434 Madras, T. Chesterton 1331, G. W. Hyatt 1331, T. Adams 1331, G. Douglas P.M. 395, J. Williams P.M. 215, W. Burns 723, H. Whale P.M. 723, D. Phillips S.D. 723, A. Paterson W.M. 322, R. Featherstone 723, W. Douglas 322, H. Asute W.M. 434 St. John, W. Sellwood 723. The Lodge presented a very animated appearance, the scarlet uniforms of the Military contrasting vividly with the sombre dress of the Civilian brethren, many of whom were the insignia of Provincial Officers. The Lodge having been opened in ancient and solemn form by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Wilkinson, the installation ceremony was impressively performed by Past Master Bro. R. F. Gould, the "Founder of the Lodge," who kindly attended at the express invitation of the members of Meridian Lodge. It has been our happy lot to have witnessed many such ceremonies, but never have we seen such fervour displayed, nor can we sufficiently describe the fire and enthusiasm engendered in the bosoms of the hearers at the eloquence of the skilled Master who indelibly impressed that reverence which should always be felt by the performance of this truly religious ceremony. We venture to predict that many years will elapse ere the solemn thoughts experienced on this occasion will be effaced from the memory of those who listened to the inspired words. The newly installed Master having appointed his officers for the year, the Lodge was closed in ancient and solemn form, with prayer, and the brethren adjourned to the Wellington Hotel, where a recherché repast awaited them, to which ample justice was done, the catering of Bro. Sellwood being highly satisfactory. The health of the Installing Master was proposed by Bro. Deverell P.M., and was received in the warmest manner. Bro. Gould, in an able speech, commented on the great falling off in the number of Military Lodges which had occurred since 1814. In that year, as appeared from a list of Lodges at the Union, which had been presented to him by the compiler, Bro. W. J. Hughan, out of a total of about 600 Lodges on the Roll of the Grand Lodge of England, 50, or one in twelve, were Military Lodges; whereas, at the present time, though the aggregate of Lodges had increased to nearly 1,800, instead of 150 of these being worked under Military warrants, as would have been the case had the progress of Military Masonry kept pace with the general prosperity of the Craft, the number of Military Lodges altogether in existence only amounted to six, or one in three hundred, amongst which, moreover, none of the fifty existing in 1814 were now to be found, these being all defunct, except six, each of which was now working under a Civil warrant. No Military Lodges whatever were now in existence under the registry of Scotland, although in 1816 Lodge St. George was at work in the 31st Regiment. Under the Irish registry there were now ten Military Lodges, but one very distinguished Lodge under this Constitution, No. 227, in the 46th Regiment, seemed to have died out. It was during the service of this corps in America that the celebrated General Washington was initiated into Masonry, in No. 227. The 46th Regiment twice had the misfortune to lose its Masonic chest. On the first occasion it was captured by the Americans, when General Washington sent it back, escorted by a guard of honour. Secondly, in Dominica, in 1805, it fell into the hands of a French force, and three years afterwards the French Government, at the earnest request of the Officers who had commanded the Expedition, returned the chest, with several complimentary presents. Bro. Gould deeply regretted the gradual decay of Military Masonry, as he thought its continuance went a great way in cementing the good understanding which should exist between the Military and Civil population either in England or the Colonies, and he was quite at a loss to attribute it to any cause except the prohibition of Military Lodges to initiate Civilians. The speech of Bro. Gould was replete with edifying matter regarding Freemasonry, and was intently listened to by the brethren. The Worshipful Brother took occasion to enlarge on the excellent manner in which the duties were conducted by the Officers of the Meridian Lodge, but expressed his regret at being able to recognise only one face amongst those present of the old members with whom he had been associated, and this was Bro. Woodward, concerning whom he related an anecdote of having ridden with him and Bro. Swettenham a distance of 40 miles, in a terrific snowstorm, to attend a meeting of the Meridian Lodge at Tien Tsin, during the campaign in the North of China. Bro. Gould concluded by warmly praising the young members, and wishing prosperity and happiness to all present. Bro. Eve replied to the toast of the Visiting Brethren. He also offered some able remarks on Military Lodges, and surprised all present when he stated that the Bible on which General Washington was obligated in the 46th Regimental Lodge, was now in the possession of the Colonel of that regiment, who recently lent it to the Panmure Lodge to obligate three officers of the 46th, and that duty was performed by Bro. Eve in his capacity of W.M. The brethren having once more thanked Bro. Gould for his kindness in coming so far to attend the meeting, expressed a desire that they might have the pleasure of seeing him at future installations. Several of the brethren enlivened the proceedings by singing some excellent songs. We must not omit to mention the sweet voice of Bro. Barron, in "Kitty of Coleraine;" and the superb voice of Bro. Eve, in the "Miller of the Dee." Altogether, one of the most pleasant evenings we have ever passed in Freemasonry was the result of our visit to the Meridian Lodge.

William Preston Lodge, No. 766.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Thursday, the 28th inst., at Cannon-street Hotel. Present—Bros. S. D. Ewins W.M., C. R. Cutmore S.W., E. Kidman J.W., W. After which the Committee appointed at the last meeting, for the purpose of revising the Bye Laws, handed in their report, which was freely discussed by the brethren. The members of the Lodge appeared in mourning, in token of respect to the memory of Bro. George John Paull. On the motion of Bro. P.M. G. Newman, a vote of condolence with the family was passed, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes of the Lodge. After other business the W.M. closed the Lodge, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. On its conclusion, the usual toasts were given and responded to. The W.M. specially referred to the Past Masters, complimenting the Lodge on having such good Masons among them. Bro. Capt. Kain responded, on behalf of himself and the other Past Masters, thanking the W.M. and brethren for the cordial way in which they were received. Several songs were sung during the evening, and all present appeared to thoroughly enjoy the meeting.

Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 780.—The regular meeting was held on Friday, 22nd inst., at the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge. Present—Bros. Walter Goss W.M., Charles May S.W., W. Gomm J.W., W. Hilton P.M. Secretary, J. Smith P.M. P.G.P. Treas., Tarling D.C., Costelow I.G., Gilbert Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. J. Chambers Roe, Gardiner, Beasley, Hale, Brown, Potter, &c. Visitors—Bros. H. Stephens 73, J. Whiffin 147, N. W. Hammond 163, G. Phillips 186, W. W. Morgan 211, Rev. T. W. Morris 300, G. W. Lay 569, Thomas Butt 907, R. E. Clarke P.M. 1158, Neville Parker 1428, H. Day, Acworth, and W. Nye 1612, and McC. Butt 1623, &c. It has become proverbial that, at the regular meetings of this prosperous Lodge, those who attend should be prepared for a heavy's day's work, and on this occasion the rule was fully observed. The brethren assembled at Two o'clock, when Bro. Goss proceeded to open his Lodge. The minutes of the last regular meeting, and those of the emergency held in February, were read and confirmed. There were present two candidates for raising, and one for passing. The two former, Bros. Thomas Talbot and Charles Coombes, passed a satisfactory examination, and duly received their third step in Freemasonry. Previous to this ceremony being performed the ballot was taken for Bro. Arnold, of the Royal Union Lodge, No. 382, who was proposed as a joining member by Bro. Woodward P.M., and who had for a seconder Bro. Tarling. Bro. Arnold was unanimously accepted. Bro. William Eydmann was the candidate for the second degree, and this brother, by the way in which he answered the questions, evidenced that he had lost no time in making himself conversant with the preliminary knowledge required of brethren ere they seek advancement. Bro. Eydmann informed us that he was indebted to Bro. Clarke P.M. for the knowledge he was enabled to display, and we must congratulate the master on having so apt a pupil. The ceremony of the second degree was then carefully and correctly performed by Bro. Goss. The ballot was taken for three candidates for initiation, Messrs. A. T. Secker, Frederick Botley, and E. H. Collett; the result was favourable, and Mr. Botley took his first step in the Order. There were three notices of motion on the paper, and these were now brought on for discussion; the first, by Bro. Tarling, "That no moneys be voted from the funds of the Lodge without notice being previously inserted in the summons calling the meeting," was calmly and fairly argued by the proposer, who stated that he did not wish for a vexatious application of the rule, should it be carried. He knew they had a careful Treasurer, who would not let the moneys of the Lodge be squandered; still, they had members who were more lax in their attendance than he thought desirable, and this would not give such as he referred to an opportunity for complaining about what might be done in their absence. He assured the members he did not bring the motion forward in a spirit of hostility, but solely for the best interests of the Lodge. Bro. Smith addressed the brethren; he suggested that circumstances might arise where immediate relief was necessary, and then the delay that must occur would be most regrettable. He, at the same time, held with the spirit of the proposition, and would ask Bro. Tarling to add to his motion the rider, "Except moneys for charitable purposes, or for providing the customary P.M.'s jewel." After a few words from Bro. Atlee, Bro. Tarling adopted the suggestion of Bro. Smith, and the motion in its amended form was put and carried. The next question for discussion was in reference to the future quarters of the Lodge. Bro. Hale P.M. explained his reasons for having placed his notice on the paper, but as it seemed to be the almost universal wish of the members, he would withdraw it. The third motion referred to the increase of the fees for initiation and joining, and this was fully discussed pro and con. It, however, resulted in an advance being made in both cases. Routine business was then proceeded with. Bro. Tarling announced the death of an old and respected member of the Lodge, Bro. Barnes, and on his suggestion the Secretary was requested to send a letter of condolence to the widow. The Lodge was then closed, and after a short interval the brethren sat down to a capital banquet, provided and personally superintended by Host Stanbury. The good things provided were ably discussed, and thoroughly enjoyed. The toast list was fully honoured, but brevity with the several speakers was the rule of the evening. The proceedings were enlivened by some capital songs, &c., and when the hour for parting came, felicitations were expressed as to the success of the meeting.

Cumberland S.W., C. G. Padel J.W., G. Balmford P.M. Treas., J. Kay Sec., M. Cooper S.D., J. T. Seller J.D., M. Millington I.G., T. D. Smith Steward, A. T. B. Turner as Organist, P. Pearson Tyler. There were also a number of Visitors, including Bros. S. Maltby P.M. 236, Haffner P.M., W. H. Wyatt P.M., T. Camidge P.P.G.O., and several brethren from Hull and other places. A special invitation had been forwarded to the brethren of the York Lodge 236, to be present, and the W.M. read a note from the W.M. of that Lodge, stating that severe illness prevented his attendance. Other letters were read from brethren, including Bros. S. B. Ellis P.M., Sheffield, Bro. Varey (Lord Mayor of York), and others, regretting inability to attend. Soon after the opening of the Lodge, the W.D.P.G. Master for North and East Yorkshire (Bro. J. P. Bell) was announced, and on his admission to the Lodge, he was saluted by the brethren with the honours due to his rank. The business of the meeting was the initiation of the Rev. R. P. T. Tennent, which was worked by the W.M., ably assisted by his Officers. The Communication from Grand Lodge respecting the decision arrived at about the French Orient was read, and it was resolved that the substance of the same should be printed in the next Lodge circular. The D.P.G.M. then gave a most interesting address on the subject of the explorations in Palestine under the superintendence of Bro. Lieut. Warren, and their bearing on the History of Masonry, and illustrated his remarks by a collection of photographs. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by the I.P.M., a vote of thanks to the P.G.M., was carried by acclamation. After the close of the Lodge, the brethren entertained their Visitors at an excellent supper, provided in Bro. Churchill's well-known and reliable style. After which a short toast list was gone through. In proposing the Earl of Zetland and the Prov. Grand Lodge, the W.M. expressed the pleasure it gave the Lodge to see amongst them their excellent and worthy Bro. Dr. Bell, to whose interesting and lucid remarks they had listened with such pleasure that evening, and he could only express a wish that they could see him oftener in York. In reply, the D.P.G.M. said it had given him great pleasure to be present that evening, and to see the excellent manner in which the Lodge was conducted and worked. He knew of no Lodge in his Province which was better managed, and which showed more plainly the discretion and high aims of its rulers. In proposing the health of the W.M., the D.P.G.M. spoke in the highest terms of Bro. T. B. Whytehead, who he was sure would be an honour to the Lodge and to Masonry at large. He was glad to see that he was making such efforts to extend an intelligent study of Masonry, and from what he had seen that evening he felt certain that great good was resulting from those efforts. The Dep. Prov. G.M. also expressed a hope that the time was not far distant when arrangements might be made for the Lodge to meet at the Masonic Hall, York, though as far as accommodation and convenience were concerned, nothing could be more comfortable than the rooms in which they were then assembled; at the same time, it was universally admitted that it was preferable for Lodges to meet on premises specially set apart for the purpose. Replying to the toast of the Visitors, Bro. S. Maltby P.M. 236 endorsed the remarks of the D.P.G.M. regarding the place of meeting, and hoped that it might be possible to come to some arrangement by which the two Lodges in York might occupy the same premises. The evening was enlivened by songs and recitations, given by Bros. J. S. Cumberland, T. Humphries, W. H. Wyatt, and others, Bro. C. G. Padel acting as accompanyist on the piano. During the evening, a set of very curious old Masonic plates, published in 1812, and portraying various ceremonies in Lodges, and which had lately been discovered in an old house in York, and rescued from destruction, were exhibited, and excited much admiration and curiosity. The meeting was of a most pleasant and social character, and will long be remembered as such by the brethren.

Lodge having been regularly opened and the minutes confirmed, it was advanced to the second degree, when the W.M. placed the gavel in the hands of Bro. Tucker, who rehearsed the ceremony of passing, Bro. Edmeston candidate. Bro. Tucker then delivered, in an able manner, the lecture on the Tracing Board, and opened in the 3rd degree. Bro. Clark was then raised to the sublime degree. The Lodge closed down, and formal business was transacted. Lodge was adjourned until the 28th inst., at 7.30 p.m.

A WEEKLY RECORD OF MASONIC INTELLIGENCE.

LODGE VICTORIA IN BURMAH.

THE letter we published last week from "A Looker-on," indicates a state of things in Lodge "Victoria in Burmah" which is the reverse of creditable. We are aware our correspondent's statement is an ex parte one, and it is our duty, therefore, to wait and hear what the other side can urge in its behalf before passing judgment on the whole of the merits. Unfortunately, there is enough to show that the Lodge in question has been guilty of a flagrant dereliction of duty in not yielding unqualified obedience to the edict of Grand Lodge. We need not go over the circumstances again; they must be fresh in the memory of our readers. It is enough that at the December Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge, the appeal of Bro. Vaillant and others against the sentence of exclusion from Lodge "Victoria in Burmah," passed upon them some time previously, was sustained, and, in consequence, directions were sent to the W.M. of the Lodge to the effect that the excluded brethren should be re-instated in all their Masonic privileges. The regular meeting of the Lodge, as luck would have it, fell on the day immediately following that on which the instructions were received. Bro. Vaillant and his fellows in misfortune accordingly attended, in high glee at the prospect of being again in the enjoyment of their rights; but, alas! for the vanity of human wishes. They were doomed to sore disappointment. The directions of our Grand Lodge were set at nought, and the five brethren returned to their several homes in a disconsolate state, the Lodge authorities having declined to re-admit them. Since then we are given to understand that the District Grand Master has given orders that they should be received, but these orders have not yet been complied with. The Worshipful Master is reported to have been seized with certain conscientious scruples about the validity of his election, and has closed his Lodge. No one, it seems, has challenged his election, but so the case stands. Lodge Victoria in Burmah is in abeyance by reason of its Master's conduct, and the brethren who should have been restored to their Masonic privileges nearly four months ago are, we presume, still out in the cold. We imagine it will be the duty of the Board of General Purposes to take cognisance of these proceedings, unless, in the meantime, the District Grand Master has insisted on his orders, as well as the edict of our Grand Lodge, being obeyed, and has succeeded in vindicating the dignity of his office, as well as that of the Grand Master, whose representative he is in Burmah. Obedience to the Masonic laws is one of the first duties of a Freemason. Bro. Baxendale, who is the present W.M. of this Lodge, cannot thus early in his career have forgotten that among the "Antient Charges and Regulations" which, prior to his installation, he agreed to submit to and support, is the following, "You promise to pay homage to the grand Master for the time being, and to his officers when duly installed, and strictly to conform to every Edict of Grand Lodge." It strikes us as more than passing strange that a brother of so conscientious a mind as Bro. Baxendale appears to possess, should, as it were, strain at the gnat of perplexity as to the validity of his election, while he swallows the camel of authority by exercising the functions of Master, and in doing so declines to obey an edict of Grand Lodge, and orders the issue of a circular letter with the title of W.M. appended to his name. Bro. Baxendale will have no one but himself to blame if, sooner or later, he should find he is in a somewhat serious difficulty. Bro. Baxendale must bear in mind that he cannot be Master and not Master at one and the same time. It is a flagrantly inconsistent act for him, on the one hand, as Master, to exercise on this occasion the functions of that office, as he has unquestionably done by refusing to obey the orders of Grand Lodge to reinstate certain brethren, by closing his Lodge, and by directing the issue of a circular letter; and, on the other, to pretend that his election is invalid, and therefore that he is not in a position to exercise those functions. If Lodge "Victoria in Burmah" is at the present time, by reason of previous irregularities, without a head, then, in our opinion, its case is provided for at page 78 of the Constitutions, the first part of clause six on which is as follows:—"If the master shall die, be removed, or be incapable of discharging the duties of his office, the senior warden, and in the absence of the senior warden, the junior warden, and in the absence of both wardens then the immediate past master, or in his absence the senior past master, shall act as master in summoning the lodge, until the next election of officers." If, then, Bro. Baxendale is not legitimately the Master of his Lodge, then it becomes the duty of the Senior Warden to call it together, or in his absence that of the Junior Warden, and so forth. Then, as to working the Lodge in the Master's absence, or, as it would be in this case, in the absence of any Master, the second part of this same clause 6 reads thus:—"In the master's absence, the immediate past master, or, if he be absent, the senior past master of the lodge present shall take the chair. And if no past master of the lodge be present, then the senior warden, or in his absence the junior warden shall rule the Lodge." Here, then, is ample provision for carrying on the duties of the Lodge without a Master, and it will be the duty of Lodge Victoria in Burmah to see that these regulations are observed. There is another point to be considered. In clause 5, p 63, of the Constitutions, it is laid down that "The by-laws of the lodge shall be fairly written in a book, which shall be delivered to the master on his installation, when he shall solemnly pledge himself to observe and enforce them." Now, we presume the by-laws of Victoria in Burmah, like the by-laws of other Lodges, fix the days for the regular meetings to be held. How can so scrupulous a Mason as Bro. Baxendale have the hardihood to set at nought the laws of his Lodge, when "he has solemnly pledged himself to observe and enforce them?" He is, indeed, in this predicament. If he is W.M., he is violating the by-laws he has sworn to uphold. If he is not W.M., he has no locus standi, and his order suspending the meetings of the Lodge is void and of no effect. In the latter case, therefore, we revert to the position as indicated in the aforementioned clause 6, p 78, of the Constitutions, and the Senior Warden must summon the Lodge. We know that a W. Master has great power, and if he is disposed to behave arbitrarily can do much mischief, but we do not think he is in a position above the laws, which he has pledged himself to "observe and enforce." Perhaps Bro. Baxendale will enlighten us, and show us the way out of some of these difficulties. Our columns will be open to him for any explanation he may desire to offer, and if we find we have stated anything which is not warranted by the circumstances, we shall willingly retract it, and make him and any others it may concern the amende honorable.

We conclude these remarks by a reference to the invalidity of Rev. Bro. Marks's election and installation as W.M. of this Lodge, and what, in our opinion, are the simple consequences of that invalidity. His position is affected to this extent. He cannot be deprived of his status of a Past Master, but he cannot exercise any of the privileges of that position. Just as a person who has been irregularly initiated is called upon to undergo the ceremony again, in order that he may be freed from the taint of irregular initiation, so in the case of Bro. Marks it seems to us that in order to enjoy the privileges as well as the rank of Past Master he must first qualify for the chair of his Lodge by serving the office of Warden for a full year, and then, having occupied the chair for the prescribed term, he will, to employ the distinction mentioned in Oliver's Jurisprudence, be an actual, instead of as now only a virtual P.M. But the work that he did in the chair of his Lodge cannot be undone any more than he can be deprived of the further knowledge and experience he has acquired of Freemasonry. As regards Bro. Baxendale, supposing him to have qualified, and to have been duly elected, we do not see what impeachment there could be of his position as Master. At all events, the very worst that could happen to him would be that he might, perhaps, be called upon to undergo the ceremony of installation a second time. This, indeed, is a point we should like to see discussed. Supposing Bro. Baxendale to have been installed by his predecessor in the chair, Rev. Bro. Marks, whose election and installation have since been declared invalid, the question arises, Ought a Master to be installed a second time in order to free his first installation from the taint of irregularity? There should be some close argument over a matter of such delicacy.

A JOKE AT OUR EXPENSE.

IN commenting on a former article of ours, in which we pointed out the real nature of the objections which English Freemasons raise to the alteration in the first paragraph of the Constitutions of the French Grand Orient, Le Monde Maçonnique is pleased to be funny. We said that English Masons admit men of all religions, but exclude those which have no religion whatever; that is to say, remarks our worthy French contemporary, English Masons excommunicate and treat as pariahs those who worship not a god of some kind or other—ce dieu fût-il un éléphant blanc ou un manitou quelconque—be it a white elephant or ——. Well, we frankly admit that "un manitou quelconque" is beyond our powers of translation, and we can only suggest that it means "A Manitto," which, as readers of Fennimore Cooper's novels—"The Last of the Mohicans," for example—will remember, is the name given to the god of the North American Indians. We dismiss the elephantine worship at once, as being far too unwieldy for a plain unsophisticated English Deist to appreciate; but if our suggestion as to "un Manitou quelconque" is right, then say we, there is no objection whatever to recognising the worship of Manitto as a legitimate form of Deism. The North-American Indian, in his rude, uncultured fashion, believes in a Great Being, to whom he is indebted for the blessings of life. He also has some idea of a future state, if we are to trust Cooper and other writers, who represent him as looking forward to the enjoyment of the pleasures of the chase in the happy hunting grounds he will visit after death. We are inclined to think this is a very respectable kind of religion for what we are wont to call an "untutored savage." There is something of the spiritual in it, something far different from the fetish worship of the negro, or the adoration of a white elephant, or a block of wood. We infinitely prefer it to the belief which regards man as a superior kind of monkey, whose instinct has developed into an intelligence; or that which imagines we are grown much in the same way as cabbages, and for no higher purpose; or which places the creation of the Universe and the erection of a block of houses on about the same level. We have, we repeat, no objection to the Manitto religion if our idea of "Manitou" is right, but we dismiss the elephant and the other materialist notions of a God.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY IN VIRGINIA.

THE Annual Convocation of the Grand Chapter of Virginia was held at St. Albans Hall, Richmond, on the 13th and 14th December 1877. M.E. Comp. Wm. H. Lambert G.H.P. presided, and among the G. Officers present were Comps. A. S. Lee G.K., Sam H. Bowman G.S., O. M. Marshall G. Treasurer, and W. B. Isaacs G. Secretary. The G.H.P. delivered his annual address, in the course of which reference was made to the loss R.A. Masonry in the State had sustained by the death of Comp. John Dove, Grand Secretary. He also referred to the General Grand Chapter of the United States, and explained the grounds on which the G. Chapter of Virginia had held aloof from that body, and why it did not see fit at this time to depart from the policy of abstention. Allusion was then made to the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons of England and Wales, which had forwarded to the G. Chapter a complete but concise history of its formation, and asked for recognition on the part of the Grand Chapter. Comp. Lambert, without entering into the causes which had led to the erection of our Mark Grand Lodge, expressed his belief that, as it has been recognised by the Grand Chapters of Ireland, Canada, Pennsylvania and Iowa, and likewise by the General Grand Chapter of the United States, there was no reason why the Grand Chapter Virginia should not in like manner extend the right hand of fellowship towards our Mark Grand Lodge, and he recommended it should be done accordingly. He further announced that official notification of the establishment of a Grand Chapter, Quebec, had been made, and he recommended that it should be recognised. The address was referred to a Committee, and other business having been transacted, the Convocation was closed, and met again on the following day, under the same presidency. The Grand Officers for the ensuing year were elected. The Reports of the several Committees were submitted, the only noteworthy matter in these being the recommendation of the Committee on the G. H. P.'s address, that the recognition of the Mark Grand Lodge of England and Wales should be postponed till the next Grand Annual Convocation. The following are the principal Officers for the ensuing year, namely, Comps. A. Stith Lee G.H.P., S. M. Bowman G.K., P. S. Coles G.S., O. M. Marshall G. Treasurer, and W. D. Isaacs G. Secretary.

The District Grand Lodge having been opened in ample form at 6.15 p.m., the summons convening the Communication was read. W. Bro. J. Dawson then proposed, and W. Bro. A. M. Buchanan seconded, "That the minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 11th September 1877, having been printed and circulated, be taken as read." Carried unanimously. R.W. Bro. H. Sec. reported receipt of apologies for their unavoidable absence from several brethren, and read the report of the proceedings of a meeting of the District Grand Lodge Committee, which comprised, among other matters, the D.G. Treasurer's accounts, since the date of last audit; these had been examined and found correct, and showed a balance in favour of the District Grand Lodge Fund of Rs. 88 12 8, and District Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence of Rs. 66 10 0. The Provisional Warrant was therefore cancelled. Also that Lodge Greenlaw, No. 1095, Toungoo, had submitted a case where a Tyler of that Lodge, who had been admitted a serving brother in the said Lodge, but had not, in consequence of removal from the station, served the period of four years as required by the Book of Constitutions, page 87, though he had paid his dues to the Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence, and enquiring whether he could be relieved in case

Chaplain, be requested to perform Divine Service, and invite the co-operation of the Rev. J. H. The D.G. Lodge of Madras had not extended its courtesy to this D.G. Lodge for some time past.

W. Bro. B. Samuel, No. 832, was unanimously re-elected D.G. Treas. Bro. J. H. Clarkson, No. 832, was unanimously re-elected D.G. Tyler. The D.G. Sec. reported that since the meeting of the D.G. Lodge Committee on the 3rd December, the Worshipful Master of Lodge Greenlaw, No. 1095, Toongoo, had applied for a dispensation to instal the Master elect on the 10th December, in advance of the usual period, on the ground that on the usual date a Board of Installed Masters would not be available. A dispensation was granted, and a report of the same was ordered to be forwarded to the Grand Secretary, London. The R.W. the D.G.M. then briefly addressed the D.G. Lodge, with a commentary on the report of the D.G.L. Committee, and the other business submitted to the District Grand Lodge, and then proceeded to make the following appointments for the year 1878:—W. Bros. Jos. Dawson 832 D.D.G.M., E. G. ## COMPLIMENTARY DINNER AND PRESENTATION TO J. D. MOORE, ESQ., M.D., F.L.S.

ON Tuesday, 26th March, nearly thirty members of the Rowley Lodge of Freemasons assembled at the Kings Arms Hotel, in response to an invitation from the W.M., to attend a complimentary dinner given to Bro. J. D. Moore, M.D., P.M. 1051, P.G.S.B. of E. &c., who for the last eleven years has filled the office of Hon. Sec. of the Rowley Lodge, but which he resigned at Christmas last. The dinner was served in capital style, under the personal supervision of the manager, Mr. Piper. Another pleasing feature in the evening's programe was the presentation of a handsome epergne, value £40, to Bro. Moore, which had been subscribed for by the members of the Lodge, as a slight acknowledgment of the many and varied services he has rendered to the Lodge. The epergne, which is of frosted silver, stands about sixteen inches high, and has a very elegant and chaste appearance, the stem being formed of vine branches, the foliage and fruit of fruit of which is so arranged at the top as to form a receptacle for holding a cut-glass dish in which fruit, flowers, &c., may be placed. On the base are three medallions, on one of which is the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. J. Daniel Moore, M.D., P.M. 1051, P.G.S.B. of E., &c., by the members of the Rowley Lodge, in appreciation of his long and valued Masonic services to them as Masons. 26th March 1878." In the two remaining medallions Dr. Moore's coat of arms and the jewel of a Past Master are respectively engraved. Bro. A. Sheriff, the W.M. of the Lodge, presided. After the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts had been given and responded to,

The Chairman rose to propose the toast of the evening—the health of Bro. Dr. Moore—which was received with great cordiality. The honourable position which he occupied as Worshipful Master of the Rowley Lodge had imposed on him the performance of a most pleasing duty, which was to convey to their guest that evening—Bro. Moore—the thanks of the members of that Lodge, and to express to him their esteem and admiration for the invaluable assistance he had rendered, not only to the Lodge, but the members individually. There might be a few members of the Lodge who were acquainted with the services rendered by Bro. Moore, but there were many who had no conception of them. He (the Chairman) would, therefore, claim their indulgence for a short time and also that of their guest, which he was sure he would require, whilst he gave expression to the feelings entertained by the members of the Lodge towards Bro. Moore. Fortunately for himself, the members had wisely determined that those feelings should be recorded in an address, to be hereafter presented to Bro. Moore. They had, however, given a more tangible expression to their feelings by providing the handsome epergne before him, and which it would be his pleasing duty to present. Before doing so, he might not be deemed irregular if he related a few of the many services Bro. Moore had rendered to the Lodge during his connection with it. If he mistook not, the Lodge was formed in 1865—the consecration taking place on the 3rd March in that year, since which time his relations with it had been of a most intimate character. Although Bro. Moore was not a member of the Lodge when it was founded; yet, at the Lodge of emergency held on the same day, he was initiated into Masonry. A very short time elapsed before he distinguished himself, and that fact was recorded in the minute book. Five or six meetings afterwards they found Bro. Moore occupying the seat of Senior Warden in the Lodge. In December 1866, he was elected to the office of Worshipful Master of the Lodge, a most unparalleled advancement in Masonry. About this time, also, Bro. Moore, not finding sufficient to engage his zeal and energy in the Master's chair, took upon himself also the duties of Secretary of the Lodge, and from that time down to the end of last year the minutes would be found recorded in his well-known characteristic handwriting, and to which office he was formally appointed at the end of 1868, having filled the duties two years previous to that date. From the time that Bro. Moore took charge of the Secretaryship, they would find a marked increase in the attendance of members at the Lodge meetings. In 1867 he was re-elected W.M. of the Lodge, and on his attendance at Grand Lodge shortly afterwards, he formed one of a deputation who waited on the R.W.G.M., the late Earl of Zetland, to ask him to lay the foundation stone of the Royal Albert Asylum. They all, doubtless, knew that the Grand Master did attend, and knew also in what an efficient manner the ceremony was performed, and how everything passed off satisfactorily, but he (the chairman believed they did not know that the success of that meeting depended greatly on the skill, energy, zeal, and tact of Bro. Moore. (Hear, hear.) They found also that when there was no business of special interest before the Lodge, Bro. Moore was always ready to turn it into one of Instruction, and himself occupying the chair, was willing to impart the light of Masonry to those not so well up in matters as himself, and with an ability which few were so well able to impart. At one of the meetings of the Grand Lodge, the year following Bro. Moore's re-election to the office of Worshipful Master, the Grand Master was pleased to bestow on him the office of Grand Sword Bearer of England which was not only an honour to the brother on whom it was conferred, but to the advantage of the Craft in the town generally. (Hear, hear). How many times he had represented the various Charities, he (the chairman) was at a loss to say, but he thought he was within the mark if he put them down at sixteen or seventeen, but the amount of time devoted by Bro. Moore to those and kindred matters connected with the Craft, was more than they could have any idea of. During the existence of the Lodge Bro. Moore had given them lectures on many occasions, and on various subjects connected with Masonry. Those were a few of the services rendered by Bro. Moore to the Lodge, and which could not be done except at the sacrifice of much personal comfort, of which no one but their worthy brother himself knew, and for which he had only the approbation of his own conscience. The chairman, in addressing Bro. Moore, said: I have great pleasure in giving to you the sincere thanks of the brethren of the Rowley Lodge, for the many valuable services which from time to time you have rendered them, and at their wish, and in their behalf, to present you with this epergne, which I hope you and yours may long enjoy, and I hope also that you may have a long, prosperous and happy life.

Bro. Moore, who was received on rising with great cordiality, said he really knew so little what to say in reply to the kind speech and the handsome present which had been made to him that he thought the wisest course would be to simply say, "thank you," and sit down. He felt, however, that that would not convey the degree of thanks he was desirous of doing. Such a present was entirely unexpected on his part, and although Bro. Garnett had once surprised him in the same manner in another Lodge—and he must confess it was a very pleasant surprise indeed—yet he had not the slightest idea in the world that he was coming here that evening to do more than take his place and partake of the capital dinner which they had provided, and which he considered amply recompensed him for any humble services he might have rendered to the Lodge (Applause). Bro. Moore then detailed the circumstances under which he joined the Craft, remarking that when he undertook the duties of Secretary during the time he was W.M. it was on account of the illness of the late Bro. Hunsbrow. He next went on to say that with regard to his career in Masonry, with regard to his duty to the Craft, and to the Lodge, he was amply repaid. He was indeed proud, and he hoped pardonably so, of the position in which he had been placed both in the Grand Lodge and also in the Rowley Lodge, but he was much more proud to receive at their hands that gratifying acknowledgement of any humble services which he might have rendered to them. (Hear, hear.) During his Masonic career it had been his earnest endeavour, as far as possible, not only to improve the Lodge as a body, but to give instruction to those who were junior members of the Craft. It had been said with regard to many Masons, that they wished to get all the knowledge they could, and keep it to themselves. That, however, was not in the true spirit of Masonry, as Masons should always be ready both to give and receive instruction from their brethren in the craft. (Hear, hear). In conclusion, Bro. Moore begged to thank the chairman for the very complimentary terms in which he had addressed him, and also the brethren for the kindness he had always met with at their hands. (Applause).

Other toasts followed, and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent.

Our readers will learn with great regret of the death of Bro. George Bubb, P.M. and Treasurer 180, J.W. of the Londesborough Lodge, and W.M. of St. John's Lodge, Maidenhead. Bro. Bubb's death will be lamented by his sorrowing family and a numerous circle of Masonic and private friends.

GRAND ORIENT AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—"Q." is quite right in objecting to "A Free-Mason and P.M.'s" assertion that "a man who believes in Buddha would doubtless hesitate in an English or French Lodge to declare such belief," namely, in a "God." A true Buddhist would tell you that Buddha was the saviour of the world, the exact counterpart of our Jesus Christ, honoured in their triune worship under the name of "San Pao Fuh." He was but a priest of the rites of Vishnu, and it is pretended that, for his zeal, he received Parinibanan honours, or final emancipation after death. The belief in Buddha does not destroy the belief in "Kal and Parrati," the "God of Gods;" for Vishnu, to whom Buddha was the priest, is said to bow, with Brahma and all the gods, to "Kal and Parrati." Buddha never pretended to be the "Supreme God," he merely obeyed the divine command. It is said that he received a "divine command" to shave his head, and then formed a number of disciples with shaved heads like himself. There seems but little doubt that Buddha had in his day come in contact with some Chaldean priests; and he wished it to be understood that he was the "seed" of the great divinity. In the same way, our own god Thor was represented with a blazing circle on his breast, denoting he was the "seed" of Odin. Jesus Christ is represented with a circle round his head, typifying the "seed" of God; yet we are none the less called on to swear by that Christian name in our Lodges. We swear by the G.A.O.T.U., the "Father" of Christ, of which he was the representative; the same as Buddha was the "seed" or representative of a Greater God.

Yours fraternally,

MILITARY LODGES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The following extract, from "History of Freemasonry and the Grand Lodge of Scotland," by W. A. Laurie, 1859, p. 407, will appropriately fit in with the list of English Military Lodges published in your last impression.

MILITARY LODGES NOT STATIONARY.

| No. | Name of Lodge. | Year of Institution and Date of Charter. |
|---|---|---|
| 328 | George William, 94th Regiment (dormant) ... ... | 1830 |
| 373 | Star-in-the-East Turkish Contingent, Kertch (dormant) | 1856 |

LODGES FORMERLY EXISTING.

| Original No. | | Original No. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 53 | Duke of Norfolk's | 158-2 | St. Andrew, Royal Arch, Scotch Greys |
| 63 | Welsh Fusiliers | 168 | Unity, 17th Regiment |
| 73 | White's, 32nd Regiment | 188 | Queen's, 7th Dragoons |
| 97 | Hooker St. John, 17th Reg. | 211-60 | Union Royal Arch, 3rd Regiment Dragoons |
| 100 | Fort George, 31st Regiment | 258 | St. John Military, Argyle |
| 101 | King George III., 56th Reg. | 278 | Aboyne, North British Militia |
| 106 | Duke of York | 289 | Royal Thistle, 1st Regiment |
| 108 | St. George, 31st Regiment | 310 | St. Andrew, 42nd Regiment |
| 121 | Union, Genl. Majoribank's Regiment | 311 | Fifeshire Militia |
| 132 | Moriah, 22nd Regiment | 320 | St. Cuthbert, Durham Militia |
| 137 | Royal Welsh Fusiliers | | |
| 147 | United, 4th Regiment | | |
| 156 | St. Patrick Royal Arch, 42rd Regiment | | |

It thus appears that two Warrants of Constitution were granted to the 31st Regiment, empowering the brethren of that corps to meet as Lodge "Fort George" and "St. George" respectively, plainly evidencing that a separate and distinct Lodge, under the Scotch Constitution, was existent in each of the two battalions, which, until the termination of the Peninsula war, constituted the fixed establishment of the 31st Regiment.

Two Military Warrants were also granted to the (23rd) Royal Welsh Fusiliers, though from their respective numbers (63 and 137) they were separated by a greater interval of time than occurred in the parallel case of the 31st Regiment.

Yours fraternally,

R. F. GOULD.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

SIR AND BROTHER,—Adverting to the contrast drawn in your article on the above in your last issue between the Masonic element in the British army in the year 1814 and that existing at the present time, you will permit me to call the attention of your readers to the fact that, in addition to the six regimental Lodges working under warrant from the Grand Lodge of England, there are nine of a similar character hailing from the Grand Lodge of Ireland, viz.:—

| | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| No. 26 | ... | 25th Cameronians | No. 322 | ... | 29th Regiment |
| „ 128 | ... | 39th Regiment | „ 354 | ... | 49th Regiment |
| „ 179 | ... | 12th Lancers | „ 441 | ... | 38th Regiment |
| „ 218 | ... | 17th Lancers | „ 570 | ... | 5th Dragoon Guards. |
| „ 263 | ... | 20th Regt. (2nd Bat.) | | | |

And in addition to these, No. 730, Dublin Garrison, which though essentially a Military Lodge is not of a peripatetic nature like the others.

Thus the number of Military Lodges in the British Army becomes sixteen instead of six, and reviewing the number of Lodges working at Victoria, New Zealand, Tasmania, Malta, Constantinople, Ceylon, Canada, the West Indies, and other places, frequented largely by our troops, I think the "decadence of Military Masonry" is more manifest on paper than in reality, and that the defenders of British interests fail not to commingle their loyalty to their Queen and country with a reverence for the ancient landmarks of the square and compasses.

I have the honour to be, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

FRANCIS E. CLARKE LL.D. P.M. P.K. &c., 411.

Drogheda, 1st April 1878.

HELP FOR THE FORLORN.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Right or wrong, Freemasonry, it is said, is not to be regarded in its entirety, but in its results.

It is charity that adorns it.

We have Schools for Boys and Girls, an Asylum also for the Aged of both sexes. From these institutions we would not subtract ought, but would, if possible, increase their revenues, and secure more magnificent results.

The pecuniary resources of such institutions must be indemnified from the possible contingency of any failure of Treasurers for the future, and there is no reason why the same precaution should not be taken as is adopted by the Charity and Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

The education of our Masonic children must take a higher standard, if we look, as we ought to do, for results.

But there is a class to be looked after, which has been overlooked—the unfortunate rejected candidates. It is not always that brethren can be found to get a candidate into one of our institutions after being doomed to the cold shade of the unfortunate. We, in Lincolnshire, think that something must be done in our Province even for those who cannot help themselves; for those who merit, but who cannot command, the adventitious help of patronage.

Out of seventy-eight candidates for the Boys' School on the 15th of April 1878, only thirty can be admitted. We cannot, as our Great Master did, multiply the five barley loaves and the two small fishes.

We are aware that something is being attempted to be done in Lincolnshire for some of the unfortunate forty-eight, whose characteristic is to be forsaken and forlorn. The two f's are to be exchanged, we hope, for fathers and friends. Let the project be set on foot in Lincolnshire under the form of a Sutcliffe Memorial, and the county will act liberally.

The late and ever lamented Brother Sutcliffe ran to the rescue of the forlorn and helpless, to the deserving and the forsaken. He had nothing of the insiduous selfishness of the age. With him, the only inquiry was, Is the case deserving? and at once he ran to the rescue. So the blessing of Him that was ready to perish embalms and ennobles his memory. We enjoin each and every Lincolnshire Mason to imitate his noble example. We say to each, go thou and do likewise. Bro. W. H. Radley, M.D., of Boston, will gladly receive your donations and subscriptions.

Believe me, yours very truly,

DANIEL ACE, D.D.

Langhton Vicarage, Gainsborough, 3rd April 1878.

A FISH ORDINARY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Having read your article under the above heading I was anxious to prove the truth of the several statements therein made, and consequently repaired to Billingsgate and partook of the two shilling ordinary supplied by Bro. Smith, and I think the following bill of fare, as put before before my friends and self, should satisfy the greatest epicure:—

Salmon, cod boiled and fried, scallops, eels stewed and fried, mackarel, whitebait plain and devilled, mutton cutlets, haunch of mutton, roast beef, with salad, cheese, &c. How such a fare can remunerate at two shillings is best known to the caterer. I suppose the tale of the old woman and her apples will apply here, i.e. "quantity pays."

The attendance was all that could be desired, and the cleanliness of the establishment in every feature was perfect. I can only add that Billingsgate will often claim my visit when in want of a dinner.

I am, yours fraternally,

A DINER OUT.

BOMBAY.

A FUNERAL Lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Nesbitt-lane, Byculla, Bombay, on the 20th February 1878, in memory of the late Right Worshipful Bros. Rustomjee Cowasjee Bhadherjee, and Rustomjee Jamsetjee Nadershaw, by Lodge Rising Star of Western India, S.C. This mournful tribute to the deceased brethren, who were eminent and highly respected members of the Masonic fraternity, was a deserved, although sorrowful recognition of their genuine worth. Each of them had laboured zealously and successfully to promote the interests of the Lodge over which they had presided with distinguished ability and untiring perseverance and assiduity. They were held in the highest esteem, not only by the members of their own Lodge, but had won the respect of all the brethren of the Craft throughout the Bombay Presidency. They were both members of the medical profession, and had risen to high eminence, whilst each enjoyed a most extensive practice, and was recognised by the professors of the Grant Medical College, as also by confrères, as gentlemen thoroughly qualified in all branches of their profession. Consequently their services were eagerly sought, and, in cases of poverty and distress, were at all times freely and gratuitously extended to sufferers in humble life. The poor of their own community, more especially, had cause to bless them, for the disinterested and skilful manner in which they tended them was highly appreciated; and in many a sick chamber their loss will be as deeply deplored as it is amongst the brethren of the Craft in Bombay.

The brethren present included representatives from the Grand Lodge of all Asia, and the sister Lodges of the Presidency. After the Lodge had been duly opened, and the minutes read and confirmed, the members and visitors adjourned to the ground floor of the hall, where a procession was formed, and the brethren marched to the Lodge room, a funeral dirge being played by the Grand Organist. The Lodge was then passed to the second, and raised to the third degrees. The Right Worshipful Master said that at the last meeting of the Lodge two of their Past Masters were unavoidably absent, and they little knew at the time that they were both lying on their death-beds. The hand of death had since then snatched them from our midst. The late R.W. Bro. Nadershaw, the W.M. observed, was closely connected with him by ties of friendship, and he was, therefore, in a position to state that all who knew him loved and admired his qualities of head and heart. Similar remarks were applicable to R.W. Bro. Rustomjee Bhadherjee, who was equally respected and revered by his large circle of friends. He (the R.W.M.) had one consolation, namely, to see before him so large and influential a gathering to do honour to the memory of their departed friends and deeply-loved brethren. R.W. Bro. K. R. Kama opened the proceedings with prayer. The R.W. Master, assisted by his Wardens, then read the funeral service most impressively, after which the Lodge was lowered to the first degree, and the following propositions were unanimously carried and ordered to be recorded.

That, by the untimely death of our Rt. Worshipful Bro. Rustomjee Jamshedjee Nadershaw, Lodge Rising Star of Western India is deprived of one of its warmest friends, his associates of a cheerful and open-hearted companion, his family of a kind supporter, and the community of an exemplary citizen.

That while this melancholy event saddens our hearts, we have still the pleasing reflection that the conscientious and upright life of our brother, his devotedness as a friend, his honesty and integrity in all his dealings, his faithfulness to the principles of our Order, have won for him a good name, which is above all price, and the highest respect and esteem of all who knew him.

That he died at the untimely age of thirty-five years, too young for one to die, so gifted with talents, and so capable of serving the community as a rational and intelligent medical practitioner of rare attainments, and a student of science, that his memory will be long endeared to us. He was mild, affable, and generous.

That the brethren respectfully tender to the afflicted widow their deep and cordial sympathy for her irreparable loss.

That as a token of our heartfelt sorrow for the sad event, and as a mark of our esteem and high appreciation of the worth of our deceased brother, who was greatly endeared to us by the strong fraternalties of our Order, as well as by those rich shining social qualities by which he was eminently distinguished as a man, that the Lodge of which he was a member meet in mourning on the next regular meeting in March.

That a copy of the above resolutions be sent to the widow of the deceased.

That while this Lodge bows with humble submission to the will of the Supreme Grand Master in calling away our esteemed Right Worshipful Bro. Rustomjee Cowasjee Bhaderjee, we cannot withhold the expression of our profound sorrow for the heavy loss sustained by the bereaved family by his untimely death.

The Lodge loses in him one of its most distinguished members, ever ready in promoting its welfare and prosperity, and Bombay one of its highly esteemed citizens, his name being associated with many charitable institutions as a donor and a supporter.

That while we cherish the memory of our departed brother, we will strive to imitate those virtues which he assiduously practised, and which shone so conspicuously in his brief but memorable life as a medical practitioner, and cultivate those Masonic virtues and amiable disposition which adorned his public and private career, and gladdened the hearts of those with whom he came in contact.

That to the afflicted widow and children of the deceased this Lodge tenders the assurance of their sincere and heartfelt condolence.

That the Lodge meet in mourning on the next regular meeting in March in testimony of his worth.

That a copy of the above resolutions be sent to the widow of the deceased.

A telegram received in Bombay on the 4th March, from Madras, announces the death there, on the 2nd instant, of R.W. Bro. John Miller, Administrator General, from typhoid fever. He was a leading member of the Bar there, and District Grand Master of Freemasons in that Presidency.

JAMAICA.

Bro. G. Sargeant, son of the Rev. G. Sargeant, Superintendent of the Wesleyan Methodists in the Island of Jamaica, has been elected Master of the Royal Lodge.

The Right Wor. Altamont De Cordova has been appointed Grand Senior Warden. The Right Wor. J. J. G. Innis has been appointed Grand Junior Warden. The Right Wor. G. C. H. Innis has been appointed Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of East Jamaica.

At the ordinary meeting of the Phœnix Lodge, Port Royal, Jamaica, held on 7th March, Wor. L. C. Hollar, Master, presided. The Right Worshipful Hon. Dr. Hamilton, Provincial Grand Master of East Jamaica, accompanied by his Grand Senior and Junior Wardens and Grand Secretary, paid an official visit, and inspected the books. A candidate was raised. The Grand Master praised the Wor. Master for his working, and the manner in which the books had been kept.

---

We have great pleasure in announcing that Bro. Falkner Lee, of the Watford Lodge, No. 404, Herts, will give a Grand Concert at St. James's Hall, on the 23rd May, the proceeds of which will be equally apportioned between the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, with a view to recouping them a portion of the losses they have respectively sustained by the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co. Bro. Falkner Lee is making strenuous efforts to ensure a brilliant success. He has already obtained the patronage of Lord Skelmersdale our Deputy Grand Master, and other influential Craftsmen, and he will have a grand array of musical talent, both vocal and instrumental, on this occasion. It is needless to say that Bro. Lee has our heartiest good wishes, and we trust the result may be worthy of so spirited and so laudable an effort.

REVIEWS.

All Books intended for Review should be addressed to the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle, 67 Barbican, E.C.

—:o:—

Practical Guide to English Versification. With a Compendious Dictionary of Rhymes, an Examination of Classical Measures, and Comments upon Burlesque and Comic Verse, Vers de Société, and Song Writing. By Tom Hood. A New and Enlarged Edition. To which are added Byashe's "Rules for Making English Verse," &c. London: John Hogg, Paternoster-row. 1877.

The English student who may have any taste for versification, or who is in the habit of cultivating the Muses, will find this Guide of much assistance. As the late lamented author remarks in his preface, it is not intended as "a handbook for poets or a guide to poetry;" its aim is "to teach the art of versification." It is written with the object of enumerating, explaining, and defining the laws of this art, and this it does very clearly, concisely, and correctly. After a chapter devoted to "Verse Generally," the work passes on to treat of "Classic Versification," its character, its measures, its structure, and the points worthy of observation in the composition of such measures. The Hexameter, Pentameter, Alcaic, and Sapphic measures necessarily claim the first and principal share of attention, but none are overlooked. We are then treated to an account of the various Guides and Handbooks which had been published previously, and then in Chapters IV. to VII., both inclusive, "The Rules of Rhyme" are laid down for us, under the separate and distinct heads of "Feet and Cæsura," "Metre and Rhythm," and "Rhyme." These chapters contain the pith of the work, and are greatly to be commended for the careful manner in which they have been written. After a few remarks on Burlesque and Comic Verse and Song-Writing, which may be followed unhesitatingly, knowing, as we do, the author's practical experience in these branches of versification, there comes a very useful Dictionary of Rhymes, which may be described as invaluable to those who are much given to poetic effusions. There is an Appendix, containing a reprint of part of the introductory portion of "The Young Poet's Guide," and Byashe's "Rules for Making English Verse," both of which will be found to greatly enhance the value of this little Guide. Bro. Hogg, we think, has done well in publishing this new edition, and it will be found of particular service in those of our public and private schools where any attention is paid to the art of writing English verse. Speaking with a full recollection of the carelessness with which our own schoolfellows treated the occasional exercises in English verse which were set them, we should say that this Guide would be of great assistance, and would probably create an interest in this class of work. It would also help, as the author suggests, to improve the pronunciation of English among our youth, if it did not contribute to swell materially the ranks of English versifiers. It will do even more than this, for a knowledge of rhythm will enable people to read correctly the works of our poets, and our readers will admit there is ample room for improvement in this respect. In fine, the book is deserving of great praise, and we thank Bro. Hogg for his courtesy in enabling us to give expression to this opinion.

Cull S.D. 1446 W.M., S. J. Byng W.M. 902 S.W., P. Dickinson P.M. 1298 J.W. First Lecture—Bros. S. Boaz 185, J. M. Lockwood S.D. 198, H. B. D. Dunn S.D. 1698, C. G. Sparrow 192, J. W. Wright P.M. 1298, W. J. Hall I.G. 193, J. A. Powell J.W. 186. Second Lecture—Bros. J. Eldridge P.M. 167, P. Dickinson P.M. 1298, G. W. Saul S.W. 1201, S. J. Byng W.M. 992, F. G. Chant 193. Third Lecture—Bros. J. Shackell P.M. 193, G. H. Hunter J.W. 1298, J. Yeomans S.W. 167.

Doric Lodge of Instuction, No. 933.—The Lodge meeting was held as usual at the Duke's Head Whitechapel-road, on Friday, the 29th March, when the Fifteen Sections were worked by Bro. Barnes P.M. 933 and 554, assisted by the brethren of William Preston Lodge of Instruction; Bro. Rudderforth S.W., Goddin J.W., Job S.D., Harris J.D., Mac Donald I.G., Turquand P.M. 1556 I.P.M. The Lodge was opened in the three degrees, and the sections worked by the following brethren:—First Lecture—Bros. March 27, Nicholl 1287, Goddin S.D. 862, West S.W. 1287, Harris 1586, Clegborn 1287, Hill 862. Second Lecture—Bros. Hall I.G. 193, Harris 1586, Evans 862, Rudderforth J.D. 12, Adair 19. Third Lecture—Bros. Braun P.M. 766, Passingham 193, Hayes 619. The Lodge was closed in the third and second degrees. Bros. Turquand 1556, Kidman 766, Francis 1085, Nash 79, Kinnard 145, Matthias 1586, and Tribble 1287, were unanimously elected members. Bro. Musto then addressed the Lodge; he said that he was not an eloquent man, and therefore would not detain the brethren by making a long speech, but he was quite sure the members of the Doric Lodge would agree with him when he said that the Sections had been rendered as perfectly as he had ever heard them. He understood that nearly all of the members of the William Preston Lodge of Instruction were young Masons, some never having worked a section before; this reflected great credit upon the worthy Preceptor (Bro. Rudderforth) of William Preston Lodge, for the care, time, and attention he must have given to enable them to perform their task in the efficient manner they had. Where the work was done so well it would be invidious to single out a single Bro., but the palm must be awarded to Bro. Harris, whose working of the fifth was most eloquent. He then said he was not surprised at the perfect rendering of the Sections, seeing the advantage they possessed in having such an excellent teacher, knowing as he did that Bro. Rudderforth is one of the most energetic and hardest workers in the Craft. He would not detain the members any longer, but would propose that the brethren of the William Preston Lodge of Instruction who have assisted the W.M. in the Sections be elected honorary members of this Lodge. Bro. Webb seconded the proposition, and it was carried unanimously. The W.M. then addressed the workers. He said that though Bro. Musto was not an eloquent man, he had completely taken the wind out of his (the W.M.'s) sails, by saying all that he could have said; however, he had great pleasure in informing them that they had been elected honorary members of the Doric Lodge of Instruction, and he hoped that the ball he had set rolling they would keep going. Bro. Rudderforth, in reply, thanked the W.M. and brethren for the honour conferred upon those under his tuition, and for the kind expressions in regard to himself, but he said the task had not been such a difficult one as many would imagine, for he had been blessed with good material to work upon, and that each of the brethren had taken as much interest in trying to perfect himself as he had to teach them. Again thanking the W.M., he would conclude his remarks by expressing a hope that the brethren of the Doric would accept an invitation to work the Sections at the William Preston Lodge of Instruction, where he was sure they would meet with a hearty reception. Bro. Musto then rose to propose a vote of thanks to the W.M. for having presided. He was already an honorary member, and would have been over and over again, if such a thing were possible; this was seconded and carried. The Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned until the 5th April.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday evening, 29th March, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew-bridge. Present—Bros. Blasby W.M., Gunner S.W. and Sec., Acworth J.W., Goss (W.M. of 780) S.D., Erwin J.D., Talbot I.G., Roe P.M. and Preceptor, Parker, &c. Business—Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, the W.M. ably and carefully rehearsed the ceremony of initiation. Lodge was then opened up, and Bro. Parker was duly passed to second degree, after having first answered the questions. Lodge was opened up to the third degree, closed down, and called off for refreshment. After a short interval, labour was resumed, and a vote of thanks unanimously accorded to Bro. Acworth for the very handsome square and compasses presented by him. It may here be remarked, that upon this evening the officers were provided with the remainder of their regalia, at the expense of the Lodge Fund. A high compliment was paid to the worthy Preceptor for his exertions, which had resulted so successfully. The Lodge of Instruction is now provided with working tools, furniture and officers' regalia complete. The W.M. for ensuing meeting having been elected, and his officers appointed, Lodge was closed in brotherly love and harmony, and adjourned until Friday evening, 5th April, at half-past 7.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—On Tuesday, the 2nd inst., at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Bros. Williams W.M., Young S.W., Slaiter J.W., Wardell S.D., Christian J.D., Carr I.G., Dallas Sec., Smyth Treas., P.M.

The W.M., in a short but happy speech, gave the Visitors, to which they severally replied. The toast of the evening was then proposed, —Success to the Upton Lodge of Instruction—which was drunk with great cordiality, and Bro. Fenner briefly replied; he referred to the continued progress of the Lodge of Instruction, which he hoped would in time become one of the best attended in London. The health of the Officers was proposed, and fully honoured. Bro. Fenner proposed the health of the W.M. of the Mother Lodge, remarking he was glad to have his services as Chairman for the evening. He felt that Lodges of Instruction ought to receive the co-operation of their Mother Lodges to ensure their success; to this the W.M. replied. The following brethren sang some excellent songs:—Bros. R.W. Pearcy, Watton, Townsend, Cleverly, Smith, and Isaacs. Bro. Campbell gave a recitation. The brethren separated about 11.30, well pleased with the evening's enjoyment.

McMillan for the efficient manner in which he had performed the duties of the chair for the first time. Bro. Slaiter will preside next week.

On the resumption of the Lodge to the first degree, Bro. A. W. Smith, of the City of London Lodge, No. 901, was unanimously elected a joining member. The next business on the rota was the election of W.M. for the ensuing twelvemonths. This proved unanimous in favour of Bro. A. Trewinnard, and we congratulate the Lodge in selecting so able an exponent of the tenets of the Craft for its Master. The election of Treasurer proved in favour of Bro. Crosbie. Bro. Steedman P.M. 754 was re-elected Tyler. The proposition that a P.M.'s jewel should be voted to the retiring W.M. met with universal approval. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to supper, which was served by Bro. Fysh in a very excellent manner. The viands were done ample justice to. Grace having been said, the cloth was removed, and the usual loyal toasts were proposed and responded to. The W.M. gave the health of the joining member, Bro. A. W. Smith, who he complimented on the excellent recommendation he had brought with him. Bro. Smith returned thanks in a neat speech. Bro. P.M. Killick senior proposed the health of the W.M., observing that no brother present had known him so long as he, yet he believed they had known him long enough to appreciate the services he had rendered; the toast was drunk with all the honours. The W.M. in returning thanks observed he would ever bear in mind the good feeling he had experienced at the hands of the Officers and brethren of the Lodge, and thanked them very heartily for their expressions of kindly feeling towards him. The health of the Visitors being drunk, Bro. C. Hill Drury replied; he thanked the brethren for the welcome all had received, and paid a high compliment to the W.M. in having such an efficient staff of Officers. The W.M. next proposed the health of the W.M. elect; by his assiduity he had fully qualified himself to fulfil the duties of the high office which had been conferred upon him. The toast was drunk with all Masonic honours. Bro. Trewinnard said he hoped his conduct in the chair would meet with the approbation of the brethren; nothing, he trusted, would be found wanting on his part to perform the duties which he would so shortly be called on to fulfil. The Officers' health was proposed and duly responded to, as also was Bro. Fysh's; this was his natal day, and the toast was drunk with cordiality. The Tyler brought a very pleasant evening's proceedings to an end. The following brethren contributed to the harmony of the evening,' Bros. Opperman, Fysh, and H. Hall; an excellent recitation was given by Bro. Hawkins.

SIXTH APPLICATION.

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

APRIL ELECTION, 1878.

The favour of the Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers is earnestly solicited on behalf of

SOLOMON HIRAM SHURY,

AGED TEN YEARS.

Son of Bro. WILLIAM SHURY, of Myland, Colchester, who died on the 25th of February last, after two years of great suffering, in his 75th year. Bro. SHURY was formerly engaged in the Circulation Department of the Post Office, but, owing to severe attacks of neuralgia in the head, and defective vision, consequent upon cataract, he was compelled to resign his position when at the age of 54 years. His only permanent income since that time had been a pension of £61 a year, to which he was entitled on account of his service, and he had to encroach continually upon his savings, till they were quite exhausted. Consequently he had been unable to provide for the boy's education, as he did for his children by his first marriage, and his declining days were comforted with the thought that the lad would eventually be elected into the Institution.

When in the full possession of health Bro. SHURY was a most active Mason. He was initiated in the Saint John's Lodge, Hampstead, No. 196 (now 167), in 1848, and, after passing through the intermediate offices, eventually became W.M. When, in 1861, the state of his health compelled him to remove from the District, he tendered his resignation, and the brethren at once elected him an honorary member, in recognition of his valuable services to his Mother Lodge. Bro. SHURY afterwards joined the Wellington, 548, as a country member; and became a member of the Angel Lodge, Colchester, No. 51, in 1868. He was exalted in the Donnatic Chapter, No. 177, in 1852, and was elected to the Third Chair, but the continued unsatisfactory state of his health compelled him to resign. He was also one of the Founders of the Mount Lebanon Chapter, No. 73. When the present applicant was a child in arms, Bro. SHURY's position enabled him to make himself, wife, and child, Life Subscribers of the Boy's Institution, not thinking at the time that he should ever be compelled to avail himself of its benefits and he has, besides this, done all in his power to excite in others an interest in the Masonic Charities. Altogether he had contributed to the funds of Grand Lodge for the long period of TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE last few days have been among the most eventful of the Session. Indeed, one or two of the sittings will be of historical interest, while the proposals brought forward may be fraught with the most tremendous consequences, not only to the British Empire, but likewise to Europe and, indeed, the whole world. On Thursday, on the Peers meeting for the despatch of business, the House was taken by surprise on finding that the Earl of Derby did not take his seat on the ministerial bench, but below the gangway. The matter was soon explained, for the noble Earl rose almost immediately, and announced that, owing to the differences that existed between himself and his colleagues he had ceased to be Foreign Minister, or rather that he only continued to hold the seals of office till his successor had been appointed. Lord Derby, though full liberty of explanation had been given him, did not avail himself of the opportunity of doing so, but merely stated that while he was in accord with the other ministers of the Crown as to the end to be obtained, he differed with them as to the means. The Earl of Beaconsfield, however, who rose immediately for the purpose of expressing his sorrow that his political connection with the noble Earl, which had extended over a quarter of a century, was thus abruptly determined, thought it would serve to allay apprehensions if he explained the reason for his late colleague's retirement from office, and he then stated that it had been resolved in the present critical state of the Eastern Question to call out the Reserve forces, and that it was this step to which Lord Derby took exception. A few remarks from Lord Cardwell, and then this memorable meeting was brought to a close. On Friday, the Premier, in reply to Earl Granville, stated the nature of the correspondence that would be laid on the table of the House, and likewise that the Queen's message, announcing her intention of calling out the Reserves would be delivered on Monday, on which day he should be in a position to fix a date for the discussion of the Message. Accordingly, the Message was read on Monday. A discussion followed, in which Earl Grey, the Earl of Redesdale, and Earl Granville took part. A second reading was then accorded to the Education (Scotland) Bill, and to the Mutiny Bill, and the other business having been despatched, the House adjourned. On Tuesday, there was a short debate on the propriety of opening Museums and Picture Galleries on Sundays; among the speakers were Lord Thurlow, the Lord Chancellor, the Bishop of London, and the Dukes of Westminster and Somerset. The Mutiny Bill was passed through Committee, and the Marine Mutiny Bill was read a first time.

The sittings of the House of Commons have been equally exciting. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Lord Hartington, described the character of the latter portion of the correspondence among the Powers relative to the Berlin Congress, after which the House went into Committee on the Mutiny Bill, and after a long and wearisome debate over sundry of the clauses, with some half dozen divisions, in which, with one exception, the minority consisted of less than twenty, the Bill was ordered to be reported without amendment. It was also announced that the Queen had resolved on calling out the Reserve Forces, and subsequently the House adjourned at an advanced hour of the night. On Friday there were further questions as to the Eastern crisis, and sums on account of the Civil Service Estimates and Revenue Departments were voted. On Monday, Mr. Hardy presented the Queen's Message at the bar of the House, and it was at once read by the Speaker, all members present being uncovered. A discussion as to the day on which the policy advocated by the Message should be debated, resulted in Monday, the 8th instant, being named, as Thursday had already been fixed by Sir Stafford Northcote for the delivery of his Budget speech. Mr. J. Derby Allcroft, the newly-elected member for Worcester, having taken the oaths and his seat, the House went into Committee on the Intoxicating Liquors' Sunday (Ireland) Bill, but though the House sat till twenty minutes past six on Tuesday morning, the result was nil, the whole of the sitting being occupied in debating the alternate motions that the Chairman leave the chair, and that progress be reported. Tuesday evening was principally taken up with the discussion of a series of three resolutions, proposed by Mr. Fawcett, on Indian Finance. He was defeated, however, on the first by 163 to 87, and on the second by 159 to 96. The third resolution was withdrawn. The House was counted out just before half-past twelve o'clock. On Wednesday afternoon the motion for the second reading of the Vaccination Law (Penalties) Bill was defeated by 271 to 82. The vacancies for Worcester and Belfast have been filled by the election of Messrs. Allcroft and Ewart, both Conservatives, vice Sherriff (Liberal) and Johnston (Conservative). There are also vacant seats in North Lancashire and South Northumberland, the former by the acceptance by Colonel Stanley of the Secretaryship of State for War, and the latter by the elevation of Lord Eslington to the peerage.

The Queen held a Council at Windsor, on Tuesday, at which there were present the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, the Marquis of Salisbury, and the Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy. The Earl of Derby, the Marquis of Salisbury, and Mr. Hardy previously had audiences, and delivered up their respective seals of office. Colonel Stanley was then introduced and sworn in a member of the Privy Council, after which he was sworn in as one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State. The Marquis of Salisbury then received the seals of office as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Hardy those as Secretary for India, and Col. Stanley those as War Secretary. Mr. C. Lennox Peel was in attendance as Clerk of the Council. On Wednesday, the Prince and Princess of Wales visited Her Majesty at Windsor Castle, and remained to lunch. It is announced that Her Majesty will hold Drawing Rooms at Buckingham Palace on the 7th and 9th May, and that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will, by the Queen's command, hold a Levée at St. James's Palace on the 17th May. It is Her Majesty's pleasure that presentations to the Prince shall be deemed equivalent to presentations to Her Majesty.

A numerous deputation of Liberals had an interview with Earl Granville and the Marquis of Hartington, at the Westminster Palace Hotel, on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Bright introduced it, and having stated its object in waiting on the Liberal leaders, and various members of it having expressed their views, the Earl and the Marquis severally addressed the meeting at great length, but very guardedly, and without committing themselves to any particular policy at the present juncture. This is exactly what might have been expected from two statesmen of such experience and bearing such serious responsibilities.

There has been a terrible outrage in the North West of Ireland, surpassing in atrocity any previous outrage of a similar character. On Tuesday evening, the Earl of Leitrim, with his clerk and car-driver, was driving from his residence, Manor Vaughan, Milford, Co. Donegal, to keep an appointment with his solicitor, when the whole party were shot at and killed. The car-driver's death was instantaneous; the clerk's wound was mortal, and he died almost immediately afterwards; but the Earl was not injured at first, and was only beaten to death after a brief but terrible resistance, his arms being broken and his head battered in. The late Earl was born in 1806, and though kind and charitable to the poor, was a strict and even exacting landlord, so that the general belief appears to be that the outrage was of an agrarian nature. The valet was following in another cart, and, according to the evidence he has given at the inquest, he saw his master resisting the onslaught of two men. Some evidences were left behind by the murderers, and two persons have been arrested on suspicion. The deceased nobleman had formerly been in the army, but retired in 1855, on succeeding to the title and estate. His life had been attempted on a previous occasion, when he himself arrested the would-be murderer, and since then he has been threatened, so that he invariably went about armed.

The preparations for war continue on a large scale, and the Queen's Proclamation calling out the Reserves was issued on Tuesday. In accordance with this important instrument, the Reserves of the first Army Corps are to join their several depôts by the 19th instant, so that shortly after that date there will be ready for service in the field a force of some 30,000 men and 90 guns, a second corps of equal strength being likewise in course of organisation. We have, too, an enormous fleet ready for any emergency, and every preparation is being made for the transport of troops by sea. Measures also are being taken for enabling our merchant navy to carry guns and protect themselves in the event of war breaking out. It is satisfactory to note further that militia officers in the dominion of Canada are coming forward in great numbers, and offering their services to the British Government. Indeed, there is little doubt if we should be forced into war that a strong Canadian contingent of from 10,000 to 20,000 men could be added to our regular army.

Lord Salisbury inaugurated his rule at the Foreign Office by the issue of one of the most important manifestoes ever despatched to our representatives at foreign courts. In this document his lordship gives first of all a concise summary of the correspondence with other governments as to the proposed Congress, and then he shows how the treaty of San Stefano, taken in its entirety, must necessarily be a danger to the interests of Europe. It is not for us to enter into the merits of our new Foreign Secretary's arguments; it is enough that we note them, with the mere additional remark that the leading journals in Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and Pesth, recognise as well the clearness and force of this manifesto as its importance. Many even regard it as more likely than anything else that has lately been issued to secure a peaceful issue out of the present difficulties.

This day week the great amateur aquatic event of the year will take place, and we shall then know whether what is called the Blue Riband of the Thames has fallen for 1878 to Oxford or Cambridge, to Dark Blue or Light Blue. Both crews are now in full practice over the London course, and, as usual their doings are eagerly watched and keenly criticised both by those who do not know how to row as

We content ourselves, therefore, with the simple "tip" that, if Dark Blue is successful there will be rejoicings among the Oxonians, while if Light Blue wins the race, there will be rejoicing on the banks of the Cam.

As regards the political world, the state of things could hardly be more serious than it is just now, and yet, as the darkest cloud has a silver lining, so there is just a slight chance that the present gloom may after all be dispelled. In the first place, Russia's losses of men by sickness are on the increase, and it is said that as many as ten per cent. are being incapacitated daily in Bulgaria alone. Not much more than a third of the artillery are properly horsed, and the cavalry have great difficulty in getting fodder. Then it must be remembered that Russia is weak financially, though strong as a military power, if we look only at the numerical strength of her army. Turkey, too, though reduced to the agonies of despair, has still a respectable force at Constantinople, and she might prefer to fight against, rather than on the side of, her hereditary foe. Austria-Hungary likewise takes pretty nearly the same view as England respecting the treaty of San Stefano, and she has an army almost as numerous as Russia. Roumania and Servia are dissatisfied with the terms of peace, and the former is resolved not to part with her portion of Bessarabia, if she can help it, and only on compulsion. Altogether the perils which seem to await Russia, if she insists on the treaty of San Stefano being forced down the throats of the other European powers, are such, that now General Ignatieff has gained nothing by his visit to Vienna the Czar may well pause before setting England at defiance, and not England only, but the moral force of the whole of Europe as well. Even Prince Bismarck seems to think there is something in Lord Salisbury's despatch, and the present attitude of this country. So there is a chance, albeit only a slight one, that peace may be preserved.

THE LOSS OF THE EURYDICE.

By Rev. Dr. Stevens.

(Raphael Asa.)

'Tis service morn, that peaceful time
When hearts are tuned and thoughts are raised
To Him the Lord of every clime;
The Crew unite in "God be praised!"

But as the day proceeds, so fair,
And all seems tranquil and serene,
A sudden darkness fills the air—
A sudden fall of snow is seen.

At that dread moment, within sight
Of Shanklin's pleasant beach, and hail!
A Frigate hove, grand in her might
Of seamen brave, and full in sail.

But, lo! a moment, and she reels;
The wind in fury turns her o'er,
And down she goes. Oh! heart that feels,
Present a prayer; thou 'rt on the shore.

She's gone, and only two remain
Of those Three Hundred seamen, bold;
Their lives are o'er; they're free from pain;
They never more will tread the hold!

But why this dreadful work? we ask;
Was care, precaution, and the like Bestowed? if so, to whom the task
Of ballasting? Were men on strike?

Alas! too late 'twill be found out;
The sorrowing hearts, the left and lorn,
Can ne'er again lift hand and shout,—
Brave Jack's returned! We with them mourn.

This loss of life, may 't move the hearts
Of those whose duty it may be
To fit with weight, and sound the parts
Of stately vessels, conscience free.

Oh, God! oh, God! in mercy hear
Our prayer for all who brave the sea.
May they, and we, have help to bear
The lot, the part, whate'er it be!

The Poplars, Walthamstow.

On Sunday, 24th March 1878, this magnificent vessel, the Eurydice, one of the finest sailing frigates in the British Navy, after rounding Dunnose headland, near Shanklin, in the Isle of Wight, on her return from the West Indies, was turned over by the force of the elements, after which she sank. She had 300 seamen on board, of whom only two survived.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Duke of Connaught Lodge, No. 1524.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Havelock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston, on the 28th ult. Present—Bros. B. Meyer W.M., N. Green S.W., H. Meyer J.W., J. B. Shackleton P.M., E. Dignam S.D., E. Dietrich J.D., J. Payne I.G., J. Varney, C. Lorkin, F. Brastol, G. Ferrar, O. Dietrich, R. Polak, G. Davies, H. G. Moon, A. Leoffler, S. Blow, C. T. Brame, E. George, G. M. Stevenson, C. J. Olley, A. R. Olley, W. Beasley, J. Bonner, T. Bigg, W. J. Ford, and J. Hill. Lodge was opened in due form; minutes of installation meeting were read and confirmed. Lodge was opened in the second degree. Bros. Leoffler and Ford were interrogated, entrusted, and withdrew. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and Bros. Leoffler and Ford were raised to the degree of M.M. Bro. Brand proposed Bro. Smyth as Treasurer, seconded by Bro. Shackleton, and on the ballot being taken Bro. Smyth was unanimously elected to the office. There being no further business, Lodge was closed and adjourned. Refreshment followed labour. The Queen and the Craft, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Pro and Deputy Grand Masters, were ably proposed and heartily responded to. The I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., congratulating him on the very excellent manner he had worked the ceremony, and the pleasure the Lodge felt in having at the head of affairs a brother so well qualified to govern and rule. The W.M. thanked the brethren for the hearty way they had responded to the toast. During his year of office he would endeavour to discharge his duties to their satisfaction. He had come two hundred miles to be present at the Lodge meeting. Their cordial reception was very gratifying to him, and he would always, either at labour or refreshment, try to promote the best interests of the Lodge and its members. In proposing the Officers, the W.M. complimented each one on his excellence of working. He had no doubt when they were called on to assist in the other degrees, they would do so to the satisfaction of the members. The W.M. next proposed the Masonic Charities, adding that Bro. E. Dietrich was Steward for the Boys' School. He would call on Bros. Shackleton and Dietrich to respond. Bro. Shackleton explained the objects of the Institutions, especially the Boys' School, reminding the brethren the Lodge had sent Stewards to the Benevolent and Girls' Institutions, Bro. P.M. Lee having served one and he (Bro. Shackleton) the other. The W.M. had also served the Boys' School, and was a Life Governor. He concluded by urging the brethren to support Bro. Dietrich in his endeavour to take up as large an amount as possible. Bro. Dietrich hoped to have three figures on his list; but if he could not reach three, he hoped they would help him to come very near it. He was very glad Bro. Shackleton had been called on to reply; he would submit his list at once. The result was that though there was only a small attendance of members, the sum of £35 was promised. The W.M. regretted he was unable to propose anything from the Lodge funds, but as they would have another meeting before the Festival, he hoped the Lodge would be able to add £10 10s. Some capital songs and recitations were given by several members of the Lodge. At near midnight the Tyler's toast concluded a very pleasant evening.

Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360.—At the Prince's Head, York-road, Battersea, on Tuesday last, there was a very large attendance. It had been arranged that the Fifteen Sections should be worked, and accordingly Bro. Collings 511 took the chair, and was supported by Bro. Pulsford 1158 as S.W., while the Junior Warden's chair was filled by Bro. Ratcliffe J.W. 211. The Lodge was opened up to the third, and resumed, when the first lecture was worked by Bros. Fane, Carter, Josey, Oliver, Alais, Davy, and Pulsford; the second lecture by Bros. Smith, Wise, Leaper, Davis, and Collings; and the third lecture by Bro. Ratcliffe, Holloway, and Colegrave. On the conclusion, the customary vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. for presiding, and was duly acknowledged by Bro. Collings, who referred to the great assistance rendered by the brethren who had so ably filled the Wardens' chairs. The following brethren were elected members:—Bros. Alais, Lawrence, Webb, Boulton, Holland, Lane, Bird, and W. W. Morgan, and after those who had worked the sections had been thanked for the service rendered, the members dispersed, after having spent a most agreeable evening.

Upton Lodge of Instruction. No. 1227.—At Bros. Bolton and Lane's, the King and Queen, Norton Folgate, on Friday, the 29th March. Present—Bros. Smith W.M., Cleverly S.W., Lane J.W., Fenner Preceptor, Townsend Secretary, Hine J.D., Bolton I.G.; also Bro. Geruschein visitor. Lodge opened, minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M. in a manner that reflected great credit on him, Bro. Geruschein acting as candidate. Lodge was advanced to the second degree. Bro. Geruschein answered the usual questions leading to the third degree. On the resumption of the Lodge to the first degree, Bro. Fenner worked the second and fourth sections of the lecture. Bro. Cleverly was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Egyptian Lodge, No. 27.—The members of this Lodge met on Thursday, the 4th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. The W.M. Bro. T. J. Maidwell was assisted by his Officers:—Wm. Richards S.W., H. G. Buss P.M. G.A.S. Treas., J. B. Poole Sec., J. H. Conlson S.D., J. H. Kemp J.D., C. Cuthbertson I.G., Grammer D.C.; P.M.'s Bros. J. Walker, C. Atkins, Heare, Green, Sillis, C. B. Payne; also Visitors Bros. W. H. G. Rudderforth J.D. 12, Wharman P.M. 15. W. W. Morgan 211, H. F. Browne 731, Ginder 1499, J. Smeaton 1598. On the assembly of the brethren, Bro. Maidwell opened his Lodge, and minutes of last meeting were read and received due confirmation. The W.M. then opened up his Lodge, and proceeded with the ceremonial part of his duties. This consisted of the passing of Bro. James Jones, and the raising of Bro. J. Ulmann. The ballot box was then passed round, and the W.M. announced that Mr. Comyns William Lateward Berkeley had successfully passed the ordeal. This gentleman was then introduced, and the ceremony of initiation was performed; Bro. Maidwell doing his work, as he had also done in the two previous instances, in a manner eminently satisfactory, and creating a deep impression on the candidate. The election for Brother Henry Frederick Browne, of Arboretum Lodge, No. 731, resulted in his being admitted a joining member. The W.M. announced that Bro. Walker P.M. had signified his intention to serve as a Steward for the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. It was proposed that the sum of ten guineas be placed on his list from the funds of the Lodge. This was ably discussed, many of the members expressing a desire that the amount should be increased to twenty guineas. Eventually, however, a compromise was effected, and fifteen guineas was ordered to be placed on the list of Bro. Walker. The Committee of the Benevolent Fund then presented their Report. This showed most satisfactory results, and a substantial balance on the credit side. Some proposed alterations in the by-laws governing this Fund were considered and adopted. The Lodge was then closed. At the banquet which followed, and which was capitally served, under the personal superintendence of Bros. Robert and Frank Clemow, the W.M. presided. On the removal of the cloth, the toasts were briefly introduced and full honour was paid. In responding for the Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Bro. Buss Grand Assistant Secretary, after acknowledging the compliment, remarked that we never yet had, at the head of affairs, more energetic brethren than those who held office as the rulers of the Order. No labour was too arduous for Lord Carnarvon, and he spared neither time nor influence to advance the interests of Freemasonry. He was ably seconded by Lord Skelmersdale, who was perhaps better known in his own province; at the same time, no one could be more appreciated wherever he was known. He thanked the brethren for having associated his name with the toast. The W.M. next gave the health of the Visitors, and called on Bros. W. W. Morgan and W. H. G. Rudderforth to respond. After these brethren had acknowledged the compliment paid them, Bro. Maidwell proposed the health of the Initiate, and Bro. Berkeley rose to reply. He sincerely thanked the members for having admitted him into their ranks. He had been induced to join Freemasonry from an intimate knowledge of men who were distinguished in the Order, whom he respected and esteemed for their sterling qualities. He would exert himself to be a good Mason, and trusted he might never have cause to regret the step he had that night taken. On Bro. Walker devolved the task of proposing the health of the W.M.; this he did in most felicitous terms, paying a just tribute to the capabilities displayed by Bro. Maidwell. After a very humourous song, Bro. Maidwell rose. He could not agree with all Bro. Walker had said; he certainly could not endorse the remark that that brother as I.P.M. had not been missed; individually, he knew better; he had felt the absence of Bro. Walker. He was gratified by the many kind words expressed. Before resuming his seat, however, he would propose the health of the Past Masters of the Lodge. They were a numerous body—fifteen he thought they could muster—and there were very few Lodges who could boast more. He called attention to the satisfactory condition of their Benevolent Fund, which would stand as an evidence of what the P.M.'s of the Egyptian Lodge had achieved. Bro. Walker replied to the toast. He regretted the W.M. had not associated other names with his. However, he could say this, the P.M.'s of the Egyptian Lodge were full of loyalty to their Lodge. Each and every one was ready and willing at all times to help the W.M. Bro. Walker then referred to his Stewardship. The members of his Lodge had subscribed liberally, but he should not be content with what he had already been promised. They would have another meeting previous to the Festival, and then he intended to tax them further. The other toasts comprised the health of the Treasurer and the Secretary; the Joining Member; the Officers; and the several replies were concise and well to the point. The W.M. then called the Tyler, who brought the proceedings to a close. Some capital songs and recitations were given during the evening, and all strove to make the meeting a pleasant one.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction, No. 45.—At the Old Rodney's Head, 12 Old-street, Goswell-road, on Monday, the 1st instant. Present—Bros. Pearcy W.M., Hallam S.W., Dyblahl J.W., Talmie Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, Hunter S.D., W. Rawley J.D., Elleston I.G., Christopher Tyler; also Bros. Cuthbert, Millington, Millward, &c. Lodge was opened, minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was performed by the W.M. in his usual unexceptionable manner, Bro. Cuthbert being the candidate. The W.M. worked the first and second, Bro. Fenner the third, and the W.M. the fourth sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Walter Rawley, of the Cosmopolitan Lodge, No. 917, was elected a member. Bro. Hallam was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed, and adjourned until Monday next, at 8 o'clock.

Prosperity Lodge, No. 65.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 28th March, at the Guildhall Tavern. There was a numerous attendance of members and visitors. Bro. Charles Daniel occupied the chair. Bros. H. Burge S.W., G. T. Brown J.W. and W.M. elect, Goodwin P.M. Treasurer, C. E. Ferry Secretary, E. W. Braine S.D., Matthews J.D., Sim I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. A. L. Leins, Cornwall, J. Carruthers, Chivers, Forbes, Arnold, Davey, R. Hetterly. The Lodge was opened at 3 o'clock. Bros. Jarvis, Bright, Mitchell, and Chivers were raised to the third degree, and Mr. Wiseman was initiated into the Order. A Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. G. T. Brown was presented to the Lodge as W.M. elect, and duly installed into the chair by Bro. A. L. Leins, who well deserved the encomiums passed on him at the conclusion of the ceremony. There were thirty W.M.'s and P.M.'s present. The newly installed W.M. appointed and invested his officers, who each received a cordial recognition. Bros. C. Daniel I.P.M., Burge S.W., E. W. Braine J.W., Goodwin P.M. Treasurer, Ferry Secretary, Matthews S.D., Sim J.D., Wright I.G., L. A. Leins P.M. Director of Ceremonies, Roberts Wine Steward, Speight P.M. Tyler. The Secretary read the report and resolution of the Grand Lodge with reference to the proceedings of the Grand Orient of France, and Bro. Daniel proposed, and Bro. Leins seconded a motion, that it be entered on the minutes. The death of Bro. Lynch, a member of the Lodge, only 32 years of age, was announced, and it was agreed that a letter of condolence be sent to his sorrowing family. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the summer banquet. The Lodge was then closed until the fourth Tuesday in June, and the brethren, 101 in number, sat down to banquet and dessert provided by Bros. Ritter and Clifford. Grace having been said, the W.M. briefly and in appropriate terms proposed the routine toasts. After the health of Her Majesty, the National Anthem was sung. Bro. C. Daniel I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M., which was received with loud and prolonged cheering, evidently showing the brethren had made an excellent selection. The manner in which Bro. Brown had conducted the duties of the chair testified they had the right man in the right place. He (Bro. Daniel) had placed him in office, and felt proud of him. The W.M. thanked the brethren for their kind expressions. He hoped at the expiration of his year of office the same words would be as kindly spoken, and that he should realise the anticipations formed of him. The W.M. next gave the toast of the initiate. The members were pleased to have him among them, and trusted he would never regret his entrance into Freemasonry. Bro. Matthews responded; he spoke of the impressive ceremony, which he hoped would never be effaced from his memory. He trusted in future to be a good Mason, and to deserve the kind words spoken of him by the W.M. The health of the Visitors came next. They were so distinguished in the Craft and so numerous that he could not particularise their several qualifications. Bro. West and Bro. H. M. Levy, Past Master 188, responded, each referred to the excellent presidency of the Worshipful Master, and the admirable manner in which the ceremony had been rendered by Bro. Daniel, and the perfect working of the installation ceremony by Bro. Leins. In proposing the health of the Immediate P.M., Bro. Daniel, who had so well performed the duties of the chair during the past year, the W.M. said the brethren did not only thank him in words, but showed their appreciation and respect by presenting him with a jewel; also a special illuminated address on vellum, a clock, two tazzas, and a gold watch, which they asked him to accept for Mrs. Daniel, in token of his eminent services—in which she had shown so lively an interest—during his year of office. This was a just tribute, and he trusted the worthy lady might look with pride on this recognition that her husband's services were so appreciated, not only by his Lodge, but by his private friends. Bro. Daniel rose, and was loudly cheered; when silence was restored, he said he felt unequal adequately to return his thanks; he owed them a debt of gratitude for their kindness, and he felt at a loss for words. He trusted he had gained their esteem. He would be pleased to wear the jewel as a mark of their regard. The address would be appreciated by his family, who would look on it with pride. The presentation to his wife, of a watch, was most gratifying to him. She had been present at several of their Festivals, and was with him, heart and soul to advance the cause of Freemasonry, and aid its Charities. Bro. Daniel then referred to the several gifts with which he had been presented, and expressed his gratification at receiving such tangible marks of their regard. Before resuming his seat he would call on them to drink to the health and prosperity of the Installing Master, Bro. Leins, whose services were always at their request, and were at all times thoroughly appreciated and valued by the brethren. Bro. Leins had performed the Installation ceremony in an admirable manner, and to the satisfaction of all present, and he trusted he might be spared, and have health to be with them for many years to come. Bro. Leins returned thanks; the I.P.M. was in every way competent to perform the ceremony; at the same time he was gratified that the task had devolved on him; his heart and sympathies are, and always were, with the Lodge of Prosperity. The toast of the Past Masters was next given, and Bro. Arnold responded. This was followed by prosperity to the Masonic Charities. The W.M. felt great pleasure in seeing Bro. James Terry, Sec. R.M.B.I., also Bro. C. Daniel, who is a Steward for the Girls' School. Bro. Daniel said he had great pleasure in serving as Steward; up to the present time he had £72 on his list, which he hoped would be increased. He fully realised the claims of the R.M.B.I.; as we grow older, we see many of the aged who require assistance. He had supported the various Charities, and would do so again. Bro. Terry followed; he could not refrain from thanking the Lodge for all they had done for the Masonic Charities. Sixteen years ago things were very different from what they now were; to-night they had had a sumptuous banquet; as the Lodge had progressed, so had the members given to the Charities. The Girls' School had at times been in debt; the Boys' School had always been in debt; while the Benevolent Institution had just sustained a heavy loss. If he might be allowed to make a suggestion, it would be that every brother throughout the Craft should subscribe a sum of 2s 6d. The Charities would then sustain no loss. Bro. Barber served as Steward for the R.M.B.I., and he handed in £82; Bro. Barber is now a Steward for the Girls' School, and at that meeting had given a donation that was acknowledged with thankfulness. The Lodge had a good balance. He hoped that no member would ever be compelled to apply for the benefits of the Institutions. The W.M. was, by virtue of his office, a Vice-President of the Institution; of this he might be justly proud; he hoped he would be among them frequently. The health of the Treasurer, Secretary, and other Officers was given, and the Tyler concluded a very agreeable and harmonious evening. Bros. Miller, James, Drew, Hawkins, and Knightsbridge contributed to the harmony. Among the Visitors were Bros. C. M. Major 63, S. Baker P.M. 1632, A. Drew P.M. 890, A. McDowell 94, G. Clements P.M. 1297, Smith 217, Rush 1201, Garrett P.M. 869, W. H. Main P.M. 813, J. Chinnery 145, Goodall P.M. 784, Strutt 831, A. W. Comrie 795, J. Marfleet P.M. 217, Magnus 63, W. Kendal Castle Chapter, No. 129.—The regular Quarterly Convocation of this Chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Stramongate, on Thursday, 28th March, at 2.30 prompt time. The M.E.Z., E. Comp. Joseph Bintley, was supported by E. Comps. John Talbot H., G. J. McKay Prov. G.S.E. J., John Bowes P.Z. Prov. G.S.N., and Titus Wilson P.Z. The Chapter having been opened in ample form, the rest of the Companions were admitted, and the minutes of the Annual Convocation read and declared to be correctly recorded. The ballot was then taken for the following candidates for exaltation, viz., Bros. J. Sisson S.D. 129, G. Taylor J.W. 1051, and F. W. Watson J.W. 129; in each case the ballot proved unanimously in favour, and the brethren being present were exalted in ample form by E. Comp. Bowes, the historic lecture being given by E. Comp. McKay from the third chair. The duties of P.S. were well performed by that Officer, Comp. Banks. Comp. R. Godfrey S.E. presented a draft copy of bye laws for the government of the Chapter, which, after due consideration, were adopted, and ordered to be sent to the Prov. G. Superintendent, Lord Bective, for his approval. The annual banquet was fixed for 4th July, at the Hotel, Grange-over-Sands, and a Committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements. After the consideration of some routine business, the Chapter was closed, with the usual solemnities, and the Companions separated in perfect harmony, to meet again on the last Thursday in June, when the report of the Banquet Committee will be made.

Holmesdale Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 129.—The installation meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held at the Royal Hotel, Ramsgate, on Thursday, the 28th ult., and was well attended by members and Provincial Grand Officers. The Lodge was honoured on this occasion by the presence of the R.W. Prov. Grand Mark Master the Rev. G. W. Sicklemore, the W. Bro. W. Snowden Deputy Prov. G.M.M., the W. Bro. Jas. S. Eastes, Deputy Prov. G.M. (Craft) for Kent, the V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O., and by several other important Prov. Grand Officers members of the Lodge. Previous meetings having cleared the agenda paper, the business of installation of the W.M. elect was, immediately after the opening of the Lodge by Bro. T. C. Harrison, and the confirmation of the minutes, proceeded with. The V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O. having taken the chair of A., the outgoing Master presented Bro. R. J. Emmerson the W.M. elect, and that worthy and distinguished brother was duly installed as W.M., with full ceremonial, musical service and addresses. The Officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested in the following order, viz.:—The Rev. —Robinson S.W., W. Searles J.W., Jas. S. Eastes M.O., F. W. Hallett S.O., C. J. Ayton J.O., H. Friend Reg. of M. and Sec., Lewis Finch Treas., A. W. Conquest S.D., G. W. Greenhill J.D., A. Aubrey Org., I. J. Tulman I.G., James S. Harris and Chancellor Stewards, and Rolfe Tyler. Bro. George Page P.M. officiated as D.C. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. Finch Past Master and Bro. Elleron Past Master seconded a vote of thanks to Bro. Stevens for his services as Installing Master; services which he had annually rendered since the formation of the Lodge, and which the members hoped might be continued for many years to come. The vote was unanimously carried, and cordially acknowledged. Bro. Stevens expressed his great gratification as to the progress of the Lodge, and the support afforded by its several Past Masters, all of whom, except Bro. J. W. Smith, now in India, and with whom he had frequent correspondence, never failed to be present on these occasions. Having had the honour to instal all previous W.M.'s in this Lodge, he looked forward to fulfil the like duty on future occasions. Propositions having been taken, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a liberal banquet provided in the well-known satisfactory style associated with Bro. Hiscock's management of the "Royal." The usual toasts were admirably proposed by the W.M., and each received able response. The entire proceedings were greatly appreciated by all present, and universal regret at parting was expressed when the hour for separation arrived.

Industry Lodge of Instruction, No. 186.—This old Lodge of Instruction, which has ceased to meet for many years, has been resuscitated, and will in future assemble every Monday evening, between 1st September and the 31st May, at half-past six o'clock p.m., at the Bell Tavern, Carter-lane, Doctor's Commons, E.C. Our readers will remember, we stated, in our report of the January meeting of the Industry Lodge, that permission was granted to Bro. John G. Horsey, one of its members, to renew the Lodge of Instruction as above mentioned, of which he has been appointed Secretary. Bro. John Noke, P.M. Vitruvian No. 87, is Preceptor, and Bro. Chas. Sawyer, S.W. Sackville No. 1619, is Treasurer. It has been arranged to formally re-open this Instruction Lodge at 6 p.m. on Monday, the 15th instant, when Bro. C. W. Nochmer, P.M. of the Mother Lodge, will rehearse the ceremony of installation.

Lodge of Joppa, No. 188.—The regular meeting was held on Monday, the 1st inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, City. Bros. Miller W.M., M. Spiegel S.W., Hymans J.W., L. M. Auerhaan Treas. S.D., E. P. Albert P.G.P. Sec. J.D., J. Benjamin I.G., Blanks Steward. P.M.'s L. Lazarus, L. Alexander, J. Abrahams, S. Hickman, A. Dodson, M. Alexander, and H. M. Levy; Bros. J. E. Walters, J. Wynman, Dowsang, Van Boden, Martin, Rosier, I. Botibol, Pearce, C. W. Botibol, J. Langley. The Lodge was formally opened and the minutes confirmed. There was a notice of motion on the agenda paper; also several candidates for the 3rd degree, but they were not present. After the Lodge had been closed, the brethren adjourned to slight refreshment. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. These were duly responded to, and the proceedings were enlivened by harmony.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Met on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C., Bro. Biddle in the chair. There were also present Bros. Staley S.W., W. Lipscombe J.W., E. Gottheil P.M., J. Constable Treas., J. K. Pitt Sec., Bone S.D., James J.D., Sawyer I.G.; Bros. Bush, Harris, Millhouse, A. Posener, Wharman, Walker, &c. Bro. Arthur W. Masters, of Leinster Lodge, No. 18, St. John's, New Brunswick, was a visitor. The first ceremony and four of the sections were rehearsed. Bro. Biddle's working of the ceremony was distinguished by a quiet fluency which promises to develop—as soon as greater confidence is acquired—into a gentle eloquence, usually so strikingly impressive upon the candidate. Bro. Constable was re-elected Hon. Treas., and Bro. J. K. Pitt Hon. Sec. for the ensuing year. Bro. Staley was elected W.M. for next Wednesday.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—Held its regular weekly meeting on Saturday, the 30th March, at the Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, Islington, N. Present—Bros. Garrod W.M., Hallam S.W., Hallam jun. J.W., Killick Sec., Halford Treas., Bemrd S.D., Stock J.D., H. Hall I.G., Pearey Preceptor. Visitors—Bros. J. Millington 861, C. Hall 1623. The Lodge was opened in regular order and the minutes confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed Bro. Slaiter candidate. Several sections of the first lecture wer worked. Bros. Millington and Hall were elected members. A wo deserved vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to the W.M., it being his first appearance in the chair. Bro. Hallam will preside next week.

Old Globe Lodge, No. 200.—The members held their monthly meeting on Wednesday night, in their Lodge room, Old Globe Hotel. After the transaction of ordinary business a very pleasing ceremony took place, viz., the presentation of a testimonial to Bro. G. H. Walshaw P.M., P.P.G.D.C., subscribed for and given by the members of the Lodge on the occasion of that gentleman's marriage. The testimonial consisted of a very handsome bronze and marble timepiece, with a pair of vases to match, and was presented on behalf of the subscribers by the W.M., Bro. A. W. Tomlinson. After a few appropriate remarks from Bro. J. Woodall P.M. P.P.G.J.W., the Senior Past Master present, Bro. Walshaw feelingly acknowledged the compliment, of which he may well feel proud, evincing as it does the high estimation in which he is held by his Masonic brethren, and the fraternal goodwill they bear towards him.

Salopian Chapter, No. 262.—The regular convocation was held at the Lion Hotel, Shrewsbury, on Monday, the 1st inst. In the unavoidable absence of M.E.Z. Comp. R. Cresswell Peele, Comp. E. Andrew P.Z. acted as first Principal, assisted by Comps. J. H. Boucher H., E. M. Wakeman J., H. Charles Clarke E., W. L. C. Crump Treas., H. O. Wakeman (pro tem) P.S., J. S. Davies 1st A.S., W. E. Stuart 2nd A.S., J. Bodenham (pro tem) D.C., J. B. Hide Janitor. After the usual routine business had been disposed of, it was resolved to take advantage of the occasion to convert the Chapter into one of Instruction, and Comp. P. H. Evans volunteered as a candidate for exaltation. Comps. J. B. Boucher H. and E. M. Wakeman J. acquitted themselves very well, and Comp. J. L. Warren gave the charges, &c. in his usual eloquent and impressive style. Bro. J. O. Smith, surgeon, was then balloted for, and unanimously elected. The Chapter was then closed, and the Companions adjourned to banquet. The M.E.Z. (pro tem) gave the customary loyal and R.A. toasts, which were duly honoured. Comp. J. L. Warren referred to the pleasure he should feel in proposing the next toast,—the Prov. Grand Chapter, but, unfortunately, there was no Prov. Grand Chapter; he thought, and the idea appeared feasible to a M.E. Companion present, that we ought and could succeed in procuring this desirable result. After some remarks from Comps. Boucher and Wakeman, it was proposed by Comp. Warren, and seconded by Comp. Wakeman, that there be an Enquiry Committee formed to ascertain the opinions of Companions of Sister Chapters on the subject, and that Comps. Wight, Spaull, Redman, and the M.E.Z. (pro tem) compose that Committee, with power to add to their number. The proposition was unanimously approved. Comp. Wakeman then gave the health of the Principals, when he expressed the thanks of the Companions present for the kindness shown by Comp. Andrew in coming to preside at so short a notice, and at great inconvenience; to Comp. Boucher for his energy and zeal in coming from London expressly to be at his post that evening, and to Comp. Warren for the able manner in which he did the difficult part entrusted to him. The toast was cordially received, and responded to by each in appropriate terms. Comp. J. L. Warren then gave the Visitors, in his usual happy, genial manner, and Companion Gumbleton responded, followed by Comp. S.M. Davies (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE). After the toast of the Officers had been proposed and warmly received, Comp. Wakeman replied, and after spending a very pleasant evening, which was enhanced by the vocal powers of several of the members, the Companions dispersed at a seasonable hour. Past 1st Principals present—E. Comps. J. L. Warren, T. Onions, and W. H. Spaull. Visiting Companions G. Gumbleton 357 Oxford, S. M. Davies G.R.C.

Rothesay Lodge, No. 1687.—The regular meeting was held on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at the Inns of Court Hotel, Lincoln's Inn Fields. Bro. Louis Beck W.M., F. Kirk S.W., Hancock J.W., B. Swallow I.P.M. Treas., W. C. Parsons P.M. 180 Sec., Docker S.D., Crosland J.D., Outhwaite I.G., Forscutt D.C., F. C. Jones A.D.C. All formalities observed, Bros. Valeriani, Nathan and Lintott were raised to the third degree. Bros. Dunton, Green, and Newell were passed to the second degree, and Mr. John Carter was balloted for and duly initiated into the Order. The W.M. acquitted himself in an excellent manner for so young a Mason. The election for W.M. then took place, and Bro. F. Kirk was unanimously chosen. Bro. L. Beck W.M. was elected Treas., and Bro. Potter P.M. Tyler. Bros. Lucas, Livermore, and McGillivray, were elected auditors. The Secretary read the report of the Committee of Grand Lodge in reference to the Grand Orient of France. Bro. B. Swallow proposed, and Bro. Forscutt seconded, that the letter be entered on the minutes. The Lodge was then closed until October, and the brethren sat down to a very excellent banquet and dessert, a la Russe, provided by Bro. Walter Greden. The W.M. proposed the usual toasts; when giving the health of the M.W. the Grand M., Bro. Beck alluded to the fact of His Royal Highness allowing them to use his arms and also his name as Duke of Rothesay. The health of the Pro G.M., the D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers was given, and with the toast was associated the name of Bro. E. P. Albert, who acknowledged the compliment. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the newly made brethren, there were three present, two had been previously initiated; Bro. Carter was the youngest member among them; he had just attained the age of 21. Each of those enumerated severally responded. Bro. B. Swallow I.P.M. and Treasurer congratulated the brethren on their selection for W.M. The working of Bro. Beck was known and appreciated; he regretted that in the hurry of leaving the Lodge a jewel had not been proposed for him. However, at the audit meeting that could be remedied; he was sure that Bro. Beck's services were appreciated in the Lodge, and he believed they would give him his just reward. The W.M. thanked the brethren for the kind manner he had been received. As he was now the newly-elected Treasurer, he hoped to do all he could for their interests. He had felt it a great honour to be the first W.M., and he trusted he might be among them many years. Before resuming his seat, he would remark there were fourteen visitors present; the members were pleased to see them. Perhaps it was rather out of place, but he would take this opportunity to say he was a Steward for the Girls' School; the Lodge had voted the sum of £10 10s on his list, and he felt gratified at having that amount from so young a Lodge; he hoped the brethren would assist him. But to return; he would now call on the brethren to drink the health of the Visitors. Bro. H. M. Levy P.M. 188 and H. Gulliford responded. Each complimented the W.M. on the success that had attended his year of office. The W.M. then had great pleasure, in this new Lodge, to propose the toast of the W.M. elect. Those who had seen that brother's working, must appreciate with what pleasurable feelings he offered the toast for their acceptance. As Bro. Kirk had performed the duties of S.W., so would he fulfil those of W.M., and all wished him success. Bro. F. Kirk thanked the W.M. and the brethren for his election; he was pleased to say it had been unanimous. He could not say much in words, but hoped in the future his deeds would merit their approval. The health of the Treasurer and Secretary followed; no Lodge could get on without the services rendered by these Officers. The W.M. could not have deserved the praise given him had he not had their assistance. Both Bros. Swallow and Parsons were well-known and respected. Bro. Hancock in due course will be the next S.W., and would be a credit to the Lodge. Bros. Swallow, Parsons, Hancock, and the Junior Officers severally responded, and then the Tyler's toast was given. The Visitors were:—Bros. E. P. Albert P.G.P., H. Gulliford W.M. 1017, S. Rowley 1602, Lakin 180, Hornsea 890, Milford, F. H. Atkins W.M. 890, H. Hughes 869, A. Martin 1539, A. Mount 1328, E. Crickney 1426, Deaton 25, Anshuson, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The chiefest wonder of modern times.—This incomparable medicine increases the appetite, strengthens the stomach, cleanses the liver, corrects biliousness, and prevents flatulency; purifies the system, invigorates the nerves, and re-instates sound health. The enormous demand for these Pills throughout the globe astonishes everybody, and a single trial convinces the most sceptical that no medicine equals Holloway's Pills in its ability to remove all complaints incidental to the human race. They are a blessing to the afflicted, and a boon to all who labour under internal or external disease. The purification of the blood, removal of all restraints from the secretive organs, and gentle aperient action, are the prolific sources of the extensive curative range of Holloway's Pills.

THE SCHOOL ELECTIONS.

TO-DAY and Monday next will be held the Quarterly General Courts of our two Schools, and at the conclusion of the ordinary business there will take place the regular half-yearly elections by ballot to fill up the vacancies which have occurred in the ranks of the pupils during the past six months, and likewise those additional appointments which have received the sanction of the two governing bodies. It is the election to the Girls' School which comes off first, and, therefore, we give priority of attention to those points in connection with the candidates and their claims which we customarily take note of. In respect of numbers there are twenty-four candidates and eighteen vacancies, which latter, in the not improbable event of Lieut.-Col. Creaton's motion being carried, will be increased to nineteen. The smallness of the number of candidates, which is remarkable if we can compare it with the number of applicants for admission into the Boys' School, is easily accounted for. It will be in the recollection of our readers that last year it was determined to enlarge the premises so as to provide accommodation for an addition of fifty pupils or thereabouts to those already authorised. At the last October election there were fifty candidates and thirty-five of these were admitted. Consequently only fifteen of the applicants were left out to carry the votes they had received and the claims they might possess for further support to future elections. These fifteen have been since reduced to fourteen by the operation of the law which requires all applicants to be under eleven years of age at the time of the election. Ten fresh candidates have been added to the list, and the candidates, therefore, muster, as we said, twenty-four. Of these, 21 has both parents living, while No. 18 has lost both, and No. 9 has a stepmother. In all the other cases the fathers of the girls are dead. No. 1 on the list has been a candidate at four previous elections, has two sisters in the Institution, and has standing to her credit 215 votes. The three next have tried three times already, and in the case of Nos. 2 and 4 we remark that the present is their last chance of success, as both will have attained the maximum limit of age before another election can be held. No. 2, moreover, has a sister in the Institution already. There stand to the credit of these girls 141, 396, and 283 respectively. The eight following have made two previous attempts to obtain admission into the School. No. 6 has one sister, and No. 8. two sisters at present on the roll of pupils, and No. 7 has a brother in the Boys' School. Two of these, Nos. 9 and 12, have 419 votes to their credit; No. 7 has 418; No. 5, 317; No. 11, 217; No. 6, 187; No. 8, 116; and No. 10, only 11 votes; Nos. 13 and 14 were candidates for the first time last October, and the former obtained 187, the latter 405, which are to the good at this, and in the event of non-success, at future trials. No. 14, it should be noted, has a brother in the Boys' School. Of the ten new candidates, Nos. 15, 20, and 22 have each a sister in the School and in the case of Nos. 18 and 22 this will be their last, as it is their first chance of success. The parents of three of the children have been contributors to, or acted as Stewards in raising funds for, the Institution. Eight, or exactly one-third of the candidates, belong to London; two hail from Lincolnshire East, and two from the Province of Hants and the Isle of Wight; the remaining twelve are from Lancashire West, Bristol, Devonshire, Lincolnshire, Leicestershire, Essex, Warwickshire, Notts, Somerset, Yorkshire W., Durham, and Singapore (District of Eastern Archipelago). We wish it were possible that the whole of the children could be elected, but it is a satisfaction to know that there is room for at least three-fourths of the number.

Passing now to the Boys' School election, which will be held on Monday, the appearance of things is not satisfactory, to this extent at least, that, though there is the large number of vacancies and additional appointments amounting together to thirty, there is the still more formidable array of seventy-eight candidates. Thus, while only six or it may be five of the little girls will be left out, forty-eight boys must be unsuccessful; in other words, three out of every four girl candidates must succeed, and eight out of every thirteen boy candidates must fail. This is partly to be accounted for by the fact we have already noticed, namely, that last October thirty-five girls were taken into the School, so that only three out of every ten failed. On the other hand, there were only ten boys elected out of sixty-six, so that fifty-six were disappointed, and of these fifty-six, no less than ten have been removed from the list for this ballot, owing to their being over eleven years of age. Thus of the seventy-eight candidates now about to compete for admission, forty-six remain from last October, while the remaining thirty-two have been placed on the list in the course of the last six months. Eight of the Boys—Numbers 3, 13, 15, 18, 22, 43, 51, 53—have both parents living, but in the case of No. 15 the father is paralysed, and in the case of No. 18 the mother has been deserted since 1871. Seven, namely, Nos. 9, 28, 37, 44, 55, 60, and 75, have lost both parents, and No. 73, seeing that his father is a lunatic, may be looked upon as in the same unfortunate position. Of the rest, three—Nos. 11, 26, and 64—are motherless, and the other sixty are fatherless. In the case of No. 22 there are no less than ten children dependent for support on their parents, both of whom are living; No. 36 is one of nine dependent on their mother, and there are many belonging to families of eight, seven, six, and five children all dependent on their parent or parents. In thirteen cases the fathers have contributed to the funds of, or acted as Stewards for, one or more of our Institutions, and one of the thirteen is also a Life Governor of a local Masonic Educational Institution. No. 26 has had a brother in the School, and Nos. 31, 33, 34, and 56 have each a brother there now, while Nos. 32, 59, and 67 have each a sister in the Girls' School. Ten, as enumerated at the head of the list of candidates, have this one chance only of getting into the Institution, and one of these is a new candidate. Twenty-four of the boys hail from London, and one owes allegiance to London and the Province of Essex. The other fifty-three are thus distributed among Provinces at home and Districts abroad. Lincolnshire sends up five, and East Lancashire four candidates. Devonshire, North and East Yorkshire, North Wales and Salop, Kent, and Somersetshire have three candidates each, while Hants and Isle of Wight, Essex, Bengal, Warwickshire, Bristol, Suffolk, South Wales East Division, and West Yorkshire, acknowledge each two. The remaining thirteen hail from the thirteen Provinces or Districts of South Africa, East Cumberland, and Westmoreland, West Indies, Northampton, Norfolk, Malta, Staffordshire, Dorsetshire, Monmouthshire, South Wales West Division, New Zealand, Durham, and Cheshire. One candidate, No. 1, has been an applicant on six previous occasions; but he has only 35 votes to his credit. Nos. 2, 3, and 4 have made five previous attempts, and No. 3 has 1655 votes to his credit. The two that follow have already stood four contests, and No. 5 has 1448 votes, No. 6 only 27 votes brought forward. Nos. 7 to 15, both inclusive, have each had three trials, and the votes already recorded for them range from 850 in the case of No. 8 to 3 in that of No. 9. Nos. 16 to 24, both inclusive, are competing for the third time, and No. 16 has 1687 votes to his credit, No. 17 1207 votes, No. 20 1,301 votes, while Nos. 18, 21, and 23 have 10, 4, and 11 votes respectively. From No. 25 to No. 46, both inclusive, the boys were candidates for the first time last October, and No. 25 has 994 votes, No. 32 1023 votes, and No. 35 677 votes to the good. Nos. 27, 28, 29, 30, and 44 polled 2, 7, 5, 3, and 5 votes respectively, and Nos. 41 and 42 polled none. It is worthy of note that the father of No. 3 has been a subscribing member 27 years, the father of No. 22, 22¼ years, and the father of No. 41 for twenty years. In the case of Nos. 29 and 77, the fathers died when they had been subscribing members only about fourteen months. This point, by the way, has passed unnoticed in the case of the first candidates. We add, therefore, that the term of subscribing membership ranges in the case of the Girls' fathers, from 18 years in the case of No. 19, 15½ in that of No. 23, and 15 in that of No. 15, down to ¾ year in the case of No. 3, who lost her father within less than a year from the date of his intitiation. We can only say, in conclusion, that we trust the most deserving cases will be successful. All are worthy, for all have been approved; but as all cannot be taken on on this occasion, we can but express the hope that, wherever there may be specially painful or emergent circumstances, those who have votes unpromised will give them to these. This is the extent of our partiality for any over their fellow competitors.

YORKSHIRE COLLEGE.

"FREEMASONRY IN YORK."

A Paper Read before the Members of the College, at their Meeting, in York, on the 26th January 1878, by W. Frater T. B. Whytehead, V., Celebrant.

R. W. Cr. Adept and Fratres,—

It has always appeared to me that the study of Freemasonry is so intimately connected with that of Archæology that the two may be fairly regarded as kindred or sister sciences. Not that every Archæologist must necessarily be a Freemason, although I quite think that such a condition of enlightenment would materially aid the student of the beautiful and the antique in architecture; but the converse certainly holds good; I mean, that every intelligent Freemason, and more especially a Rosicrucian, must be to a great extent an Archæologist. I do not, of course, suggest that he must be possessed of a vast quantity of technical knowledge, and have at his tongue's end all the patois of the arcitect or the builder. He need not qualify himself to talk learnedly of crockets and corbels, of foils and finials, of mullions and transoms, of spandrils and soffits, but he should certainly possess a general, what I may call a dilettanti, sort of knowledge of the general principles of that great science, and its history, which we are bound to regard as synonymous throughout all past time, with the science and practise of that Royal Art, with which we pride ourselves on being connected.

We are often reminded, Fratres, that we are "the heirs of all the ages," but so far from a consciousness of this fact adding to our self complacency, I, for one, think that our responsibilities are thereby so enormously increased that, in common self respect, we can do no less than qualify ourselves to be no unworthy possessors of the glorious inheritance which has been handed down to us by our ancient brethren, some of whose marvellous handiwork we have glanced at this afternoon.

The old capital city of the north of England within whose ancient ramparts we are gathered to-day is so associated with both the legendary and the recorded history of Freemasonry that over the whole globe, wherever that wondrous organisation flourishes, the name of York is sufficient to warm into activity in the breast of every brother thoughts of our great unwritten history of the past. I say advisedly, "unwritten," for although many able writers, prominent amongst whom are Bro. Hughan, Bro. Findel, and Bro. Fort, have recorded everything that their researches have enabled them to authenticate regarding the history of Freemasonry in this city, and in this country, the whole of their facts amount to very little as compared with the lapse of centuries since York first became a city of note, since the Sixth Legion of the conquering army of Rome was stationed within its walls, and the Emperors Severus and Constantius held imperial state on the banks of the Ouse, or since the Danish fleet, under Tosta, anchored almost under the shadow of the ancient Saxon earthworks.

The story of the Athelstane Charter will, of course, occur to your minds as one of the oldest of Masonic legends connected with York. Perhaps I ought not to use the term "legend" in reference to this document, since our worthy Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Dr. J. P. Bell, who, you know, is not only an earnest Masonic student, but an author of mark, is firmly convinced that the "charter" in question is still in existence, or at any rate that it did exist up to within a very recent period. I must admit that in the course of a number of inquiries made by me into this subject, I have been more than once startled by coming upon what seemed to be a real clue to the whereabouts of some very ancient Masonic document, formerly in the possession of the old Grand Lodge of All England at York, and which, at the dissolution of that body at the close of last century, fell into the hands of a legal firm representing the last Grand Master (Bro. E. Woolley), by whom several of the ancient properties of the Grand Lodge were presented to the Union Lodge (now the York Lodge, No. 236). This document has been described to me by a brother who once had it in his hands, but who was not able to decypher it, as being in shape about four inches square, of parchment, closely covered over with elaborate characters. Those acquainted with the common aspect of very ancient Charters will at once recognise the possibility of this parchment having been, as it undoubtedly was, of great antiquity, and not improbably a copy of a still more ancient document. It almost would seem strange that such uncertainty should exist on any point so important, but you must remember that it has only been within the last fifteen or twenty years that anything like close attention has been given to the subject of Masonic investigation. The mania (I can call it nothing else), for the indiscriminate destruction of old papers, which existed unhappily some forty or fifty years ago, and more especially the holocaust of Masonic documents, which took place just prior to the publication of the first book of Constitutions, have, no doubt, deprived the world of many priceless treasures, and it may be that the old relic in question has ere this been consigned to the dust bin.

But even before the days of Athelstane it seems likely that Freemasonry in some form found a rallying point in York, for in the days when the Collegium Artificum at Rome sent out its little bands of highly skilled and educated graduates to the various chief Colonies of the mighty Roman Empire, we may be sure that the important military station of Eburacum or Eboracum, the key of the North of England, would not be forgotten. And, indeed, in the remains of the ancient structures of that era, in the elegant designs of the tesselated pavements of their baths, in the sarcophagi and votive altars and tablets, specimens of which are preserved in the Museum of the Yorkshire Philosophical Society, we have evidence in abundance of the existence of a class of workmen far removed above uneducated and unskilled ignorance.

We may be very sure too that such a point as the site of the present city, a spot which always seems to have possessed a name ever since the first occupation of the country by the earliest inhabitants, one of whose evidences of antiquity is to be found in the fact that no certain root of that name has been discovered, I say, we may be quite sure that at Urewic or Eburwic, in the centre of the vast Forest of Galtres, the ancient Fraternity of the Druids, many of whose rites so closely resembled ours, often gathered in solemn conclave, and here, on this very ground where we are now met, an oasis in the midst of a wild expanse of tangled thicket, rank swamp vegetation, and forest undergrowth, formed their M.C. and initiated, beneath the shade of stately oaks, trembling aspirants into their awful mysteries.

Those who are members of the Order of the Red Cross of Constantine well know the connection between the history of this City and that of their founder, who is said to have been crowned here, and that of the pious St. Helena, whose memory is still preserved as the patron saint of the little church of St. Helen's, in Stonegate, one of the gems of our many specimens of Church architecture, the last remaining one of four churches dedicated to the memory of the mother of Constantine the Great.

Passing onward we come to the Middle or Dark Ages, the days of mediæval church building, when the glorious Abbey of St. Mary, the remains of which you have seen to-day, rose in stately grandeur under the hands of those wondrous builders, the relics of whose art are still amongst the marvels of Europe, and stand as monuments of the grandeur of the past. Now, during this long period, Fratres, I do not find anything surprising in the circumstance of the absence of documentary evidence of the existence of any esoteric teachings under the garb of Freemasonry. Indeed to my mind the marvel would have been seen in an exactly opposite condition of things. If for one moment we reflect upon the very meagre condition of our national history, how many of its long received narrations have been proved by modern historians to have been apocryphal, and what large and unaccountably unbridged gulphs are to be found in its records during that long series of years, when so crude and sparse was education, that the worst criminal found refuge behind the "Benefit of Clergy"—in such days and under such circumstances was it probable, or even possible, that any records could be preserved of the proceedings of a branch of a Society whose very organisation and existence depended largely upon its secrecy? Oral tradition was the only possible channel by means of which any account of esoteric Freemasonry could have reached us. Of the operative section we have certain relics, notably the fabric rolls of that glorious old Cathedral we have visited to-day, and in whose crypt the Masons are said to have held their secret assemblies. To Frater Hughan we are largely indebted for reproductions of some of these relics of bygone ages in a form accessible to every Masonic student.

Contemporaneously with the existence of the Lodges of travelling Masons, the Abbey and Cathedral building Brotherhood, we have the rise, progress, and fall of the Templar Order, an organisation for many reasons possessing great interest for us, particularly in view of so many of their teachings and practices closely resembling our own. What the connection really was, if, indeed, there was any connecting link, between the Templars and the Masons, which is denied by many of our best men, is a mere matter for conjecture, but is well worth the close investigation of every Masonic student. Of course a knightly and monastic order must very frequently have been brought into close and intimate relation with the builders of their religious houses, and it requires no very great stretch of the imagination to suppose that, at the time of the destruction, or rather suppression, of the Order of the Temple and the distribution of the penitents amongst the monasteries, they may have mingled with the Masons in their esoteric assemblies, and that the ceremonies may have become intermingled and the orders linked together by mutual sympathies.

Still descending the ladder of time we arrive at what I will call the Elizabethian legend, relating to Sir Thomas Sackville, having been sent down to York by Her Majesty to suppress the Masonic meetings in the city, and to his having been himself initiated here and reported so favourably to his liege of the loyalty of the brethren as to produce a revulsion of feeling in their favour. A York brother has, I know, been at very considerable pains to wade through the old minute books of the Corporation of York, in order to discover if any entry relating to this alleged visit of Sir Thomas Sackville to York is in existence, but he has discovered no allusion to anything of the kind, and I fear that we must admit that, so far, there is not a scrap of evidence as to any visit having been paid by the knight in question.

Perhaps I may be pardoned for a moment if I here diverge in order to urge upon every Rosicrucian the great importance in these days of the careful investigation of all ancient available records, letters, minute books, &c., not only in the interests of Masonry, but of history generally. We all know what literary treasures have, of late years, from time to time been unearthed, and we must all lament the carelessness and ignorance which have consigned, and even yet consign, to the flames or the waste paper basket, manuscripts and records of the deepest interest. We know that in many an old chest and cupboard must lie hid curious papers which would throw light upon the history of the past, and I would urge upon you the importance of always assuring yourselves of the contents of all old papers before despatching them to the dust cart, on those occasions which occur at intervals in all our lives when removals or deaths bring to light the accumulations of the lumber room.

It was not until the commencement of the eighteenth century that we have any actually existing records of the existence of Speculative Freemasonry in York, and it is in 1705 that Dr. Bell's list of Grand Masters, of whom there are data, begins with Sir George Tempest. Amongst the archives of the York Lodge, are preserved most of the minute books of the Grand Lodge of All England, and they are, of course, of immense value and interest. When the Grand Lodge of England was formed in London, the Grand Lodge of All England, which appears at that time to have been nearly dormant, appears to have put on a kind of spurt, and to have issued a few warrants for Lodges, but of course the Metropolitan body soon overshadowed everything, and in York itself Lodges were soon working with London warrants under the very nose of the Grand Lodge at York.

The present York Lodge, No. 236, was warranted in 1777, the year of the Union, from London, under the name of the Union Lodge, No. 287. When the Grand Lodge of York became defunct, just before the close of the century, its properties seem to have been divided among the few remaining members. Some of the furniture you have seen to-day in the handsome hall belonging to the York Lodge. The Eboracum Lodge, in whose room we are met, possesses the Bible, which very curiously turned up in the possession of a gentleman who is not a Mason, but who presented it to that Lodge, then just warranted. The old silver loving cup is, I believe, now in the possession of a lady residing in York, whose father was a member of the Grand Lodge of York.

Thenceforward the progress of the Order in York seems to have been slow and wavering. The Union Lodge survived its contemporaries, and after some sharp vicissitudes, and a change of name in 1870, is now in a very flourishing condition. It seems strange, however, that in a city which has such a great legendary Masonic history, and in which remnants of the past and historical institutions are so esteemed and cherished, there should for so many years have existed only one Lodge, but it was not until the autumn of 1876 that our R.W. Bro. the Earl of Zetland consecrated in this room the Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611, of which I have the honour to be the present Worshipful Master. At this moment I consider Freemasonry to be in a remarkably flourishing condition in our ancient northern capital. Much new blood has been infused into the old stock, and many good and worthy men are constantly ranging themselves under our banners.

I feel that I owe you an apology for inflicting upon you so discursive and aimless a paper, but it is next to impossible to discuss so complicated a subject as the progress of Freemasonry in York in a worthy or even intelligent manner, in such a brief space of time as has been necessarily allotted to me. To treat the question duly it would be necessary to go closely into comparisons of old records and minute books, and to investigate minutiæ in a manner that would on such an occasion as the present be both impossible and out of place.

You have seen and heard sufficient to-day to prove to you how large and interesting a field we have in York for all kinds of archæological study. I speak cautiously and subject to correction, as a very young member of our Rosicrucian Order; but if I do not greatly err, I imagine that these matters peculiarly come within the scope of our investigations, and I venture to think that our meeting here to-day has been in every respect as consonant with the teachings of the Order, as it has been, to me at least, one of very great pleasure.

Fratres, I thank you for your courteous attention.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall. The brethren present were—Bros. S. Rawson, G. J. Row, the Rev. Richard Morris, John Boyd, D. M. Dewar, W. Paas, W. Mann, Raynham W. Stewart, C. F. Matier, L. Ruf, J. G. Chancellor, Collard Montrie, A. Durrant, Joyce Murray, J. Winter, Benjamin Head, S. Rosenthal, C. J. Rushworth, Clarence Harcourt, H. Massey, W. Hyde Pullen, R. B. Webster, and F. Binckes. After reading the minutes, Bro. Binckes read the letter announcing the stoppage of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., and stated that the indebtedness of the firm to this Institution amounted to £1,720 6s 10d. Bro. Binckes also read the list of 24 boys belonging to this Institution, who came out successful from the Cambridge Local Examination. For the information of the Committee, he stated that, out of a list of 230 candidates from different establishments who went in, in the course of the year at the London main centre for first class honours, 18 only were successful, and of these 18, no less than 6 were from the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Four candidates for election were then put on the October list. With regard to Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co.'s failure, Bro. Binckes said that, although Bro. Terry had received official notice that 9s in the pound would be paid by the Hants and North Wilts Banking Co., no such notice had come to him. A letter from Miss Hall, Matron, was read, thanking the Committee for the increase they made in her salary at last meeting. Four outfits were granted to boys who have left the School. On the application of the mother of one of the boys, who has not been able to return to the School on account of ill-health, the Committee made the grant for educating him near his home. A grant of £20 was also made to another lad, who is studying for the medical profession. Bro. Binckes informed the Committee that a proposition had been made that the Benevolent Institution and the Boys' School should appeal to the Craft to make up the sum expected to be lost by them in the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., and read a draft letter suggested to be sent round. Bro. Raynham Stewart thought it was premature. It was not yet known what the loss would be, or whether there would be a loss. He did not think it right until the the result was known to profit by, or trade upon, the failure of Bro. S. Tomkins. He moved that all action on the matter be at present deferred. Bro. Clarence Harcourt seconded the motion. He had heard that it was the intention of Bro. S. Tomkins that the Institutions should not suffer. The motion was carried. Bro. Raynham Stewart gave notice that he would move at the Quarterly Court of next Monday that Lord Leigh be elected a Trustee of the Institution in place of the late Bro. Bentley Shaw. The Committee then adjourned.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

ON Wednesday afternoon the usual meeting of the brethren who form the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, was held at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creaton in the chair. There were present also Bros. S. Rawson, Hyde Pullen, Joseph Smith, Griffiths Smith, Henry Smith, A. H. Tattershall, Edward Cox, John Bellerby, James Case, L. Stean, Raynham W. Stewart, W. Hilton, S. G. Gordon Robbins, and James Terry. Bro. Terry read a letter from the Duke of Manchester, acknowledging Bro. Terry's letter to his Grace conveying the vote of thanks which was passed to him for presiding at the Festival of last February. His Grace expressed his pleasure at being of any service to the Institution. Bro. Terry afterwards read the Finance Committee's report, which showed a balance of £2,386 16s 10d in favour of the Male Fund, £3,299 5s 6d in favour of the Female Fund, and £46 15s 6d in favour of the Sustentation Fund, or a total in favour of the Institution of £5,732 17s 10d. After the report had been ordered to be entered on the minutes, £2,000 was ordered to be placed on deposit with the London and Westminster Bank at a month's notice. Bros. Colonel Creaton, Farnfield and Griffiths Smith were appointed the Committee for drawing up the annual report. In regard to the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., Bro. Terry said he had received the usual notices from the Bankruptcy Court to prove debts, and a letter from the Hants, &c., Bank, informing him of the arrangement to pay the creditors of Willis, Percival and Co. 9s in the £. Bro. Terry said the debts due to this Institution was £990 19s 10d, and Bro. Barron, whom he had consulted, thought that proof should be given against the private estate of Bro. S. Tomkins, as he was the Treasurer. At all events, there was no necessity to prove against the estate of the firm on the 11th. The Committee then heard with great satisfaction from the Chairman, that Bro. Tomkins had told him his impression was that the Institutions would be paid in full out of his private estate. Bro. Raynham Stewart gave notice of motion for presenting Dr. Strong, the honorary Surgeon of the Institution, with one hundred guineas as a mark of the appreciation of the brethren of his great attention and services to the inmates of the Asylum at Croydon. The Committee then adjourned. The election of annuitants will be held in the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern on the 17th of May.

ANNUAL MEETING OF P.G. PRIORY OF DEVON.

THE Annual Meeting of the Provincial Grand Priory of the United Religious and Military Order of the Temple was held on Wednesday afternoon, 3rd April, at the commodious Lodge Room in Gandy-street, Exeter. The P.G.P. was opened in ancient form, under the banner of the Rougemont Encampment, by the Very High and Eminent Sir Knight Rev. J. Huyshe M.A., G.C.T. Past Grand Master, P.P.G. Com. Amongst those present were:—V.H. and Eminent Sir Knight L. P. Metham, and Eminent Sir Knights Vincent Bird P.E.C. P.P.B.B., E. A. Davies P.E.C. P.P.G.V. Chancellor, Samuel Jew E.C.P.G. Treasurer L.D., Westcott P.E.C. P.P.G. Reg., J. P. Gover P.E.C. P.P.G.T., Colonel Fitzgerald P.E.C. Past Second Grand Captain of England, Josiah Austin P.P.C. P.P.G.E., Samuel Jones Past Standard Bearer of England, H. W. Townsend E.C. elect Royal Sussex, T. W. Lemon P.G. Chaplain, H. Woodgate Vice-Chancellor, T. Dand P.E.P. First Equerry Devon, H. B. Stark P.P.G.O., Sidney Templar P.P.B.B., Sir Knights J. Stroud Short, R. T. Thornton, Elphington Stone, J. J. Daw, Lillywhite, Hants, H. Bartlett, W. Vicary, W. Bennett Maye, and G. Evans.

The proceedings commenced by the reading of the patent from the Grand Master of England appointing the Very High and Eminent Sir Knight L. P. Metham as the Grand Prior of Devon. The V.H. and E. Sir Knight Rev. J. Huyshe then installed G.P. elect in due form. The ceremony was performed by the venerable and venerated Sir Knight in his usual impressive and dignified manner. He accompanied the installation with a masterly and feeling exhortation on the duties of the distinguished office his esteemed brother was about to assume, and expressed the pleasure, pride, and gratification he felt to see one for whom he had so high a regard exalted to a position for which he was so eminently qualified.

The Eminent Prior Sir Knight Metham, having taken the chair, delivered with characteristic eloquence the following oration:—

Sir Knights,—I am sure you will all sympathise with my first expression in taking this chair, which is one of gratitude to our esteemed chief, Bro. Huyshe, for having volunteered to instal me, and for the manner in which he has performed that duty, spite of all the drawbacks caused by his failing health. For the third of a century I have enjoyed his steadfast friendship, and during that long time not a cloud even so small as a man's hand has obscured its serenity, and he has never wearied in showering on me personal kindness and Masonic distinction. For all these I am bankrupt in thanks, and can only trust, dear Bro. Huyshe, to repay you in the manner in which you would most wish to be repaid, by trying to live a life approaching nearer and nearer every day to your ideal of what a good Knight Templar ought to be. You know better than any one that I more than once declined this most honourable post, not from fear of the additional labour it might entail upon me, but from a conscientious scruple as to my fitness to undertake its onerous responsibilities. But, having accepted it, I will strive to perform its duties to the best of my ability. There was one prominent feeling which more than any other decided my acceptance, which was that there never was a time when it was more necessary for every true Mason, and especially every true Knight Templar, to come to the front and contend for the sacred truths which are embodied in Masonry. Freemasonry has shown, and will, I trust—continue to show a wise toleration to her sons' varied worship of the Great Jehovah so long as under every sky that sacred name, the symbol of the eternal, unknown, truth, is represented, and acknowledged. Ages ago Masonry may have existed without religion, simply as a bond uniting the weak to resist the aggression of the strong, and, as time went on, as a means of preserving the secrets of science and art from the attack of the cowan and barbarian. But for hundreds of years religious belief has entered largely into our ceremonies, and has been the basis of our ritual, and therefore, if we, in the present day, voluntarily extinguish that tried hereditary lamp of religious belief, which has so long illuminated our Lodges, to run after the delusive wills-of-the-wisp and restless phantoms of fancied progress and discursive philosophy, we shall be aiding not in a forward, but in a retrograde movement, by which Masonry will be lowered, and humanity will, of necessity, suffer. We have lately witnessed with astonishment and sorrow that the seething volcano of revolution and infidelity has poured forth burning lava that will, if not checked, destroy, and ashes that will bury in one lamentable ruin the fundamental and most vital principle of our Order—a recognition of the Supreme Being, and a belief in the immortality of the soul. On that belief we take our stand; let French Masons, if they will, discuss the date at which religion was introduced into our ritual, let them persist in excluding it if they can, and will, from their own Lodges. Be it enough for us that we found it in ours at our initiation, and that we are resolved to preserve it there in its fullest integrity. Of this most precious jewel in the crown which our devout and older brethren have placed on the brow of Masonry, and which they have bequeathed to us, let us with one voice exclaim, as our noble English Prince exclaimed, in relation to his father's earthly crown:—

> They won it, wore it, kept it, gave it me,
> Then plain and right must our possession be,
> Which we, with more than with a common pain,
> 'Gainst all the world will righteously maintain!

At our initiation, which was symbolical of our helpless infancy, the volume of the Sacred Law was placed open before us, and we were taught to look to it for comfort and support to our tottering steps. As we advanced in the science into that stage which represented the vigour of manhood, we learned to implore the aid of God on all our lawful undertakings, and to dedicate the intellectual and physical powers with which He has endowed us to His glory, our own advancement, and the benefit of our fellow creatures. And, then, when our day is ended, and, with wearied brain and feeble limbs, we prepare for rest, like labourers who, at the close of their toil, seek their couch and its calm and grateful slumber, the same Sacred Volume whispers to us that, if we have been true and faithful stewards of the talents committed to us, we shall awake to a brighter morrow, in which there shall be no more toil, nor pain, nor night. That glimmering light in the East, so often indicated to us in our Masonic journey as the beacon to direct our steps, and which so often varied, now brighter, now fainter, now nearly extinguished, as faith, reason or doubt has ruled the hour, will expand into that bright morning star, also indicated to us in our Masonic progress, whose rising shall bring peace and salvation to the faithful and obedient of the human race. That symbolical star will guide us until it is itself

> Lost, dissolved in Thy superior rays,
> One tide of glory, one unclouded blaze
> Shall flood Thy courts! The light Himself shall shine > Revealed, and God's eternal day be thine!

That star, that light, is Christ our Priest, Christ our Prophet, Christ our King! We in the present day are not required to emulate the noble example and self-denying zeal of our older brethren, the Military Knights of the Temple, who patiently endured hunger, thirst, and privation, who voluntarily encounter hardship, danger, and death, who sacrificed wordly ambition, and renounced the endearing ties of family love and friendship, to do unceasing battle with the enemies of the Cross who sought to defile the Holy Sanctuary. But not the less have we self-imposed, self-denying duties to perform. In becoming Knight Templars we have voluntarily adopted a special and sectarian belief in the Blessed Trinity, in addition to that general recognition in the Supreme Ruler of the Universe which is common to the fraternity throughout the world. If, therefore, we are Knight Templars in spirit and reality, as well as in name and ritual, we are bound by the most solemn ties and obligations to imitate ourselves, and to teach others to do the same, at however long a distance, the example of Him on whose Sacred Name this solemn degree is founded. We, too, like our antient brethren, must wage incessant warfare, but it must be against more insidious foes than they had to contend with. Our foes lurk within as well as without the Citadel; we must wage hourly conflict with ignorance, bigotry, and superstition, with intolerance on one side, and infidelity on the other, with arrogance and self-assertion, with tyranny, inhumanity, and selfishness. We must strive to imitate Him who, while He dwelt on earth, was Charity itself in thought, word, and deed; who bid him, who is without sin, cast the first stone at the sinner; who on earth went about doing good; who visited the widow and orphan in their affliction; who clothed the naked, fed the hungry, and cured the blind, the dumb, the sick, the leper, and the lame; and who, on quitting the earth, bid his disciples "Feed My Sheep." When we have done this as well as our imperfect nature and limited opportunities will permit, then shall we be indeed Knight Templars; then, with a safe conscience and trusting confidence, may we lay our armour at the foot of the Cross, and look to enjoy

> The peace that follows battle,
> The night that ends in day.

Then shall we be privileged to enter that Living Temple not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens, of which He who is the embodiment of pure, universal, Catholic charity—that emblem of our Order—is the sure foundation, the tried corner stone, the solid buttress, and the topmost pinnacle. Then shall we come face to face with those Christian graces, shining in full meridian splendour, of which, on earth, we have had but glimpses, dull and intermittent at the best. Until that day let us, as Masons, and especially as Knight Templars, find in them our motto and our watchword:—

> Remember Faith, Hope, Charity, these three,
> But the greatest of these is Charity.
> These were the words our Great Redeemer taught,
> These were the deeds our Heavenly Master wrought.
> Peace upon earth, joy, goodwill to man,
> Form the bright columns of His Godlike plan!
> 'Tis mercy, bounteous mercy, warm and wide,
> That brings the creature to his Maker's side!

The minutes of the last Preceptory having been read and confirmed, a committee, consisting of Sir Knights Jones, Bird and Dand, was appointed to audit the Treasurer's accounts, which were received and adopted.

The V.H. and E. Prior then invested the following Sir Knights as his officers:—Admiral Glasse C.B. Sub-Prior, K. T. Thornton Prelate, Capt. E. Stone Chancellor, Colonel Fitzgerald Constable, the Hon. W. H. Joliffe Marshall, V. Bird Treasurer, K. Worth Reg., Major C. W. Troyte Vice-Chancellor, Templar Sub-Marshal, Rev. Thornton Almoner and Chaplain, H. W. Townsend Warden of Regalia, J. R. Keats Herald, J. Horswell Second Standard Bearer, J. Evens M.D. Banner Bearer, J. J. Short 1st D.C., T. L. Heath 2nd D.C., W. Vicary Chamberlain, W. B. Maye Captain of Guard, W. Browning Sword Bearer, H. B. Stork Organist, and P. Blanchard Guard.

A Committee of the following Sir Knights were chosen as a Board of General Purposes:—F. B. Gover, S. Jew, L. D. Westcott, E. A. Davies, J. Austin.

This brought to a close the business for which the Priory had been summoned, and it was closed in ancient form.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

—:o:—

Merchant Navy Lodge, No. 781.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on Wednesday last, at the Silver Tavern, Burdett-road, E. Bro. W. Hallett the W.M. duly opened the Lodge, with Bros. J. J. Gavin S.W., C. Breden J.W., J. Wright P.M. P.G.P. Treas., E. T. Read P.M. Sec., A. Scheerboom S.D., B. Rawe J.D., Jas. Everett D.C., R. F. Ould I.G., G. Palmer Org., W. Steedman Tyler. P.M.'s C. K. Killick, J. Kinnard, T. B. Daniel, W. J. Helps, J. Armstrong, E. L. Branbridge, W. Medland, T. Neville, J. W. Reeves, &c. Bro. James Terry Sec. R.M.B.I. acted as Installing Officer, and was assisted by Bro. Wright the Treasurer, who acted as Director of Ceremonies. The choice of the members having fallen on Bro. C. Breden to fill the chair for the ensuing year, that brother was formally presented and received the benefit of installation. After the usual ceremony he proceeded with the investment of officers, conferring the collars on the following brethren:—J. Gavin S.W., Scheerboom J.W., J. Wright P.M. P.G.P. Treas., E. T. Read P.M. Sec., B. Rawe S.D., Ould J.D., Everett I.G., G. Palmer Org., J. Ives D.C., J. Lax W.S., Steedman Tyler. No other business offering, the Worshipful Master, after receiving the good wishes of his numerous visitors, closed the Lodge, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. At its conclusion the W.M. briefly introduced the toasts. After those of the Queen and the Grand Master, the National Anthem and "God Bless the Prince of Wales" were respectively sung. With that of the Grand Officers, the W.M. coupled the name of Bro. Wright P.G.P., who in reply acknowledged the compliment paid him. The Pro G.M. well and worthily filled his position in Grand Lodge, where he usually had to preside in the absence of the Grand Master. The Deputy G.M. was one of those kind, genial gentlemen, whose main object is to please; his aim ever had been to be present at any meeting where his attendance might be of service. Bro. Hallett, the I.P.M., next proposed the health of the W.M., to whom he and the other Past Masters, as well as the members, tendered their best wishes. If the Past Masters could in any way assist Bro. Breden during his year of presidency, he felt it was only necessary it should be mentioned, and their services would be secured. The W.M. tendered his hearty thanks for the way in which he had been received. His efforts would ever be directed towards making the brethren under his rule comfortable and happy. If at the end of his term he could look back with satisfaction at the result, he should be content; he was sure if he satisfied himself, he should satisfy the members. The next toast, that of the Past Masters, the W.M. considered was one of the most important he had to propose; it was to them the prosperous condition of the Lodge was due, and he hoped that he should have the benefit of their experience should any emergency arise. Before asking the brethren to drink the toast, he had the pleasure to present to their I.P.M. a jewel, which had been voted by the Lodge, and which all considered was fully deserved. Bro. Hallett acknowledged the gift. He assured the brethren that the meetings of the Merchant Navy Lodge were among the most enjoyable he ever attended; he should be very sorry to forego any of them. He tendered his personal thanks to the P.M.'s of the Lodge, to whom he was greatly indebted for their assistance during his year of office. The health of the Visitors was next given, the W.M. assuring them that the members of the Merchant Navy Lodge were always pleased to see them. Bro. Hilliard responded. He felt sure his fellow visitors would agree with him that a more hearty reception was seldom accorded visiting brethren than they had received that evening. He hoped the Lodge would continue its prosperous career, and that its present Master would have a happy and successful year. The Secretary and Treasurer was next proposed, by the Worshipful Master. He was pleased to be Master of a Lodge which could boast such good Officers. He felt sure the duties of their respective positions would always be properly performed while they filled the posts they now occupied. Each responded, after which the W.M. proposed the Masonic Charities, coupling with the toast the name of Bro. Terry, who he personally thanked for having performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. Terry made his acknowledgments to the W.M. for having so kindly referred to his services in the Lodge, and wished both the W.M. and the Lodge success. The Merchant Navy was ever to the front in the cause of Masonic Charity, and he had to thank the members for so handsomely supporting the Steward who represented them at the recent Festival. The Charities had done a great deal of good in days gone by, and he hoped, with the assistance of the Craft, that they would be able to do still more in the future. The fact of the Craft having contributed over £42,000 last year was most creditable. He looked upon the Craft as in reality only a small body; the number of active Lodges really being only about 1,100. Taking this number, and comparing it with the amounts contributed to the London Charities, no one could say but that the Masons of this country acted up to the true principles of the Order. He had asked in various Lodges he had visited that the contents of the Charity Box might on one night be devoted towards making good the loss which might arise through the failure of the bankers of the Institutions; he hoped the W.M. of the Merchant Navy Lodge would grant him this request; and when he told the brethren that a donation at the rate of 2s or 2s 6d from each brother would more than cover the deficiency, he felt sure the Merchant Navy Lodge would be ready to assist them. The toast of the Officers was acknowledged by the Senior Warden, after which the Tyler was summoned, and concluded the proceedings. The Visitors were Bros. W. B. Salisbury 9, P. Muller 73, G. J. Hilliard P.M., R. Deering, and J. Keable 178, E. Jones P.M., and C. Arbell 192, W. O. Gilland 212, J. J. Aubin P.M. 281, G. Lewis 879, R. C. Gording 898, G. Brooke P.M. 902, L. Potts 907, C. S. Dixon 1003, J. Staley 1216, J. Orme and E. H. Rolfe 1259, E. Deacon 1382, W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, S. J. Turquand P.M. 1556, A. C. Gibby 1658, &c.

Hervey Lodge, No. 1260.—The installation meeting was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, Lincoln's Inn-fields. Bros. J. H. Southwood W.M., J. Sandilands Ward S.W., Goodacre J.W., Foot as Sec., Dr. Jabez Hogg P.M. P.G.D. Treas., Spalding S.D., H. J. Dean Organist, T. C. Speight Tyler. Visitors—Bros. John Hervey Grand Secretary, H. G. Buss Assist. G. Secretary, Libbis, J. Green, Lamble, P. Harrison, Walker, W. Richards, Rev. T. W. Morris, H. Massey, Col. Peters, Defricz, Davis, R. B. Singer, T. Bolton, James Barth, J. J. Wortwick, H. J. Turner, A. S. Waters, E. A. Baber, Treemeer, Nicholson, H. Hollis, S. Crawford, J. B. Green, L. G. Langdon, Fred. Binckes, E. Stimson, G. Singer, F. G. Longley, D. Nicholson, F. Ough, L. R. Rogers, H. Miller, C. Body, Col. Peters, E. A. Wells, E. Collins, J. W. Legge, H. Upstone, T. J. Maidwell, W. W. Morgan, &c. On the assembling of the brethren, Bro. Southwood opened his Lodge, and called on Bro. Foot, who acted as Secretary, to read the minutes of last regular meeting, also those of an emergency meeting held on the 14th March. These were of exceptional interest to the Lodge, and were very voluminous, partaking more of the character of a report than is usually the case; but this, as explained by the W.M., was necessitated by the unpleasant events which had transpired. In due course, the minutes of both meetings were confirmed. The ballot was then taken for the admission, as joining member, of Bro. Charles Atkins, P.M. of the Egyptian Lodge. This resulted in his unanimous election, and that worthy brother took his seat as a member of the Hervey Lodge. Mr. Max Wunderlich was balloted for as a candidate for initiation; this also proved satisfactory, and Bro. Southwood performed the ceremony of the First Degree in his accustomed masterly way. The arrival of Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was accompanied by Bros. Col. Peters and H. G. Buss, Assistant G. Sec., was then announced, and the worthy brother whose name the Lodge bears proceeded with the installation ceremony. It will be in the recollection of our readers that at the meeting on 13th February Bro. Southwood was almost unanimously re-elected to fill the chair of the Lodge. On the completion of the ceremony by Bro. Hervey, the following Officers were appointed for the ensuing year:—Bros. Goodacre S.W., Spalding J.W., Jabez Hogg P.M. Treas., Chas. Atkins P.M. Sec., C. W. Robins S.D., Foot J.D., Latreille I.G., A. Rosenthall D.C., J. R. Cox W.S., Henry Evans A.W.S., T. C. Speight P.M. Tyler. Bro. Hervey then gave the addresses to the Wardens and Brethren, and on resuming his seat, the thanks of the members were tendered to him and to Bro. Buss for their kindness in officiating. After routine business, the Lodge was closed. A capital banquet was served in the Crown Room, and the good things provided were done ample justice to. Bro. Southwood presided in his most genial fashion, and gave the several toasts. Her Most Gracious Majesty, throughout her reign, had endeared herself to all her subjects, whether Englishmen, Irishmen, or Scotchmen, and Masons never assembled together without drinking to her honour. Her sons also, in their Masonic capacity were ever greeted with enthusiasm. No further remarks were required from him to induce them to do justice to the toast. After the National Anthem had been sung, the W.M. gave the health of the M.W. the Grand Master, and Bro. Upstone favoured the company with "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The next toast comprised the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present. Bro. Southwood remarked that the Grand Officers did not wear their collars without previously acquiring a vast experience. He then referred to the eminent qualifications of the Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale, and called on Bro. Hervey to respond. The Grand Secretary, on rising, was received with cheers; he said that had Lord Skelmersdale or Lord Carnarvon been here this evening, the brethren would have had a speech worthy of the occasion. However, as the duty of returning thanks for those distinguished noblemen devolved upon him, he would endeavour to comply. If he had rendered any service to the Lodge he had been amply repaid by the cordial manner they had received him that evening. It had frequently been remarked that a prophet did not get much honour in his own country; the rule did not apply to him, as he had received great honour at the hands of the members of this Lodge. He trusted, however, that he might always be received there as John Hervey, not as Grand Secretary. He felt proud of the compliment paid him by having the Lodge named after him, and he hoped that in years to come, when the question arose as to how the Lodge obtained its name, the reply might be made that it was from the Grand Secretary of 1869, the year the Lodge was constituted. Bro. Hervey then paid Bro. Buss a graceful compliment, he designated him as his "right hand man;" at all times and in all seasons Bro. Buss was a great help to him, and his countenance alone had a tendency to cheer and enliven. In short, Bro. Buss was one on whom he personally, and the brethren generally, could rely. Bro. Hervey next addressed a few words to Bro. Dr. Hogg, who he complimented on being surrounded by so many friends, and on having a Master in the chair in whom he could place the most implicit reliance. Moreover, the Lodge had a staff of Officers capable of performing their duties, and with all these advantages he sincerely trusted the Hervey Lodge would be looked up to as a pattern for the Craft, and as a standard for the emulation of other Lodges. Bro. Hervey concluded by thanking the brethren for the way they had received the toast. Bro. Dr. Hogg, in giving the health of the W.M., eulogised Bro. Southwood for the energy displayed under the exceptionally trying circumstances of the past two months. Bro. Southwood acknowledged the kindness he had received at the hands of the brethren since his introduction to the Lodge, and thanked them for the reception they had given him. He then proposed the health of the initiate, and Bro. Wunderlich (after the E.A. Song had been given) replied. Bro. Fiddew also addressed a few words to the members. The other toasts comprised "The Visitors," replied to by Bros. D. Nicholson, Singer, Maidwell, Waters, &c.; "The Masonic Charities," whose claims found an able exponent in Bro. Binckes, whose appeal resulted in securing the services of Bro. Charles Atkins as a Steward for the Festival of the Boys' School. "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Masonic Press," and then "The Officers." During the evening Bro. H. J. Dean, with the "British Quartett," rendered goodly service; their programme comprised the Part Songs, "The Happiest Land," and "Soldier's Life;" Glee, "Haste, ye Soft Gales;" Duet, "The Fisher's Even Song." Bro. Tremeer sang "Firm as Oak," while Bros. W. Wells and Edward Collins gave severally, "Saved from the Storm," and "Thinking of Home." It was very late ere the W.M. summoned the Tyler, who speedily dismissed the brethren.

Hyde Park Lodge, No. 1425.—The installation meeting was held on Thursday last, at the Westbourne Restaurant, Craven-road, Bayswater. Bro. S. Sones opened the Lodge, assisted by Bro. D. F. Gellion S.W., H. J. Alexander J.W., W. Langridge Treasurer, George Read Secretary, John Headon S.D., W. Craig J.D., J. M. Bard D.C., H. F. Lewis I.G.; P.M.'s Bros. A. H. Longhurst, John Cruttenden, &c. The first business of the evening was the passing of Bro. Kent, this ceremony concluded, Bro. D. F. Gellion was presented and duly installed as Master for the ensuing year. That part of the ceremony completed, he proceeded to invest his Officers as follow:—Bros. H. J. Alexander S.W., John Headon J.W., W. Langridge Treas., G. Read Sec., W. Craig S.D., H. F. Lewis J.D., J. F. Mickelburgh I.G., W. Mason D.C. The W.M. had the pleasure of presenting, on behalf of the Lodge, a Past Master's jewel to the retiring Master, which gift he hoped Bro. Sones would wear for many years. Bro. Sones briefly replied, thanking the members for the kind way in which he had always been received. The report of the auditors was presented, adopted, and ordered to be recorded on the minutes, after which the newly-installed W.M. closed his Lodge. The banquet which followed was well served, and thoroughly enjoyed. After grace, the W.M. gave "Loyalty to the Throne and devotion to the best interests of the Craft," which combined toast met with a hearty reception. Bro. Sones the I.P.M. now assumed the gavel. The present was the first time he had had the pleasure of addressing them as a Past Master; he felt it somewhat a novel position, but one which he fully appreciated. He called upon the brethren to drink the health of their new Master, who was the first one of the Hyde Park Lodge who had received the benefit of Masonic light in their own Lodge; he was thereby entitled to special honour. The toast having met a most enthusiastic reception, was acknowledged by the W.M., who thanked the brethren for the confidence they had reposed in him; he hoped to pass through his year of office in a creditable manner. To the toast of the Visitors Bros. Unite, Penn, Murlis, Flood, Bryett, &c. responded. The toasts of the Past Masters, the Treas. and Sec., and the Officers were each given and acknowledged. The lateness of the hour prevented the W.M. devoting as much time as he wished to the various toasts, but the way in which they were proposed, and the reception which was accorded to each, showed that the members were sincere so far as they did go. Among the Visitors were Bros. T. Grammer 172, W. Harris 177, W. H. Bracher 179, J. Flood 201, L. Bryett P.M. 209 834 P.G.S. of W. Berks and Bucks, G. D. P. Thomas 329, J. Campfield 364, John Cruttenden P.M. 503 P.P.G.R. Kent, T. Fisher 733, W. Gilbert 834, W. Butlin 942, W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, W. Hughes 1612, W. J. Murlis P.M. 1642, Geo. Penn W.M. 1642, N. L. Rustam 1670.

Confidence Lodge, No. 193.—The members met on Monday, the 8th inst. at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Bro. Henry Leah W.M., Biddell S.W., Footett J.W., Warne P.M. Treas., J. Shackell P.M. Sec., James S.D., Lemaire J.D., Hale I.G.; P.M.'s Reed, L. Webb, H. Webb, &c. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Bros. W. Ground and A. Stearn being in attendance, and having shown their proficiency, were raised to the third degree. Bro. E. Symons was balloted for, and duly initiated into the Order. The initiation fee now stands at £8 8s, joining fee £4 4s, and annual subscription £2 12s. The Lodge was closed and the brethren partook of a very excellent banquet provided by Bro. Clemow. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. E. P. Albert P.G.P. returned thanks for the Grand Officers. Bro. Reed I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M. in a very happy and felicitious manner. The W.M. having replied, the toasts of the P.M.'s, Candidates, Wardens, Officers, and Visitors were given, and each toast was responded to. The brethren separated, after passing a very enjoyable evening. The Visitors were Bros. E.P. Albert P.G.P., Staton 1267, Dyer P.M. 45, Widen 1673, Buff 907, Squirell 206, McPherson 141, Halle 45, Thompson 1693, and Western 1693.

MILITARY LODGES.

To the Editor of The Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—If I rightly understand the subject of Military Lodges, their raison d'être appears to be this. In time of peace, a body of troops is often quartered where, from local circumstances, it is next to impossible for those among them who may be members of our Fraternity to meet together as Masons. There is no reason why they should be deprived of the enjoyment of the privilege of meeting in Lodge because they are fulfilling their military duties in a place, it may be, many hundred miles away from the nearest Lodge. If then the authorities have no objection, it is in the course of things that a Grand Master should issue his Warrant to those members of the regiment, or other body of troops, who are brethren, under which they may lawfully meet together as a Lodge, and fulfil the duties as well as exercise the privileges of Masons. Again, in war time, when large bodies of troops are sent on foreign service, there is no reason why Military brethren should be deprived of the consolations of Freemasonry, the beneficent nature of which must tend to alleviate in some slight measure the troubles and anxieties of campaigning, to say nothing of the dangers and even horrors of warfare. Thus, and always assuming that the Military authorities give their sanction, there is excellent reason for the issue of Military Warrants. Even in peace time, the frequent removal of the Military from one station to another is a justification for the issue of the warrants. But in England our troops are mostly quartered in large cities and towns, where there are very certain to be Masonic Lodges already established, so that Military Craftsmen would have every facility for attending or joining a Lodge. As a consequence, the issue of Military Warrants would be restricted, and this will probably explain the paucity of Military Lodges now as compared with the early part of this century.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

A Civilian.

GRAND ORIENT AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the Freemason's Chronicle.

Dear Sir and Brother,—I am glad to find that "T.B.R., No. 972," approves of my objection "to 'A Free-Mason and P.M.'s' assertion that 'a man who believes in Buddha would doubtless hesitate in an English or French Lodge to declare such belief, namely, in a 'God.'" But if I understand his letter aright, we differ on different grounds, and what is more to the purpose, our difference is of great importance. My point is this—that I see no objection to a Buddhist proclaiming his belief in God in an English, French, or other Lodge, any more than I do to a Jew or Christian doing precisely the same thing, and for this reason, that under no circumstances is any one ever likely to be called upon to define the nature or attributes of the God he believes in. It is enough for it to be known that he is a Deist—that is, that he recognises the existence of a Supreme Being. In other words, he assents to the doctrine of belief in God generally—or, if I may be permitted to say so without running the risk of being misunderstood, in God in the abstract; but by so doing he does not recognise the God of this or that, or, indeed, of any particular form of religion. Thus my objection is based on the principle of Deism, pure and simple, which I believe to be the essential principle of pure and ancient Freemasonry. If I am to gather from the earlier remarks in his letter that "T. B. R., No. 972," means simply that a Buddhist is no more likely to withhold his assent to this principle than a Brahmin or a Christian, and has no greater reason for withholding it, then I agree with him. But, towards the end of his letter he says, "We swear by the G.A.O.T.U., the 'Father' of Christ, of which he was the representative, the same as Buddha was the 'seed' or 'representative' of a greater God." If by "we" he refers to the Masonic body, I must demur to the first clause of his sentence. Our "G.A.O.T.U." is not "the 'Father' of Christ." He would only be so if all Masons were Christians, which is not the case. A Jew would not define him in this sense, neither would a Mahommedan. This, indeed, is of the very essence of the objection which French Masons raise against Deistic Masons, that so many of them will insist that Deism is the same thing as Christianity. I as strenuously object to any definition of the G.A.O.T.U. as Bro. Thévenot or any other French Mason, but I do not on that account see why the principle of a belief in the existence of a Supreme Being should be eliminated from the Masonic system.

Fraternally yours,

"Q."

Royal Masonic Institution for Boys.

APRIL ELECTION, 1878.

The favour of the Votes and Interest of the Governors and Subscribers is earnestly solicited on behalf of

SOLOMON HIRAM SHURY,

AGED TEN YEARS.

Son of Bro. WILLIAM SHURY, of Myland, Colchester, who died on the 25th of February last, after two years of great suffering, in his 75th year. Bro. SHURY was formerly engaged in the Circulation Department of the Post Office, but, owing to severe attacks of neuralgia in the head, and defective vision, consequent upon cataract, he was compelled to resign his position when at the age of 54 years. His only permanent income since that time had been a pension of £41 a year, to which he was entitled on account of his service, and he had to encroach continually upon his savings, till they were quite exhausted. Consequently he had been unable to provide for the boy's education, as he did for his children by his first marriage, and his declining days were comforted with the thought that the lad would eventually be elected into the Institution.

When in the full possession of health Bro. SHURY was a most active Mason. He was initiated in the Saint John's Lodge, Hampstead, No. 186 (now 167), in 1848, and, after passing through the intermediate offices, eventually became W.M. When, in 1861, the state of his health compelled him to remove from the District, he tendered his resignation, and the brethren at once elected him an honorary member, in recognition of his valuable services to his Mother Lodge. Bro. SHURY afterwards joined the Wellington, 548, as a country member; and became a member of the Angel Lodge, Colchester, No. 51, in 1868. He was exalted in the Domatic Chapter, No. 177, in 1852, and was elected to the Third Chair, but the continued unsatisfactory state of his health compelled him to resign. He was also one of the Founders of the Mount Lebanon Chapter, No. 73. When the present applicant was a child in arms, Bro. SHURY's position enabled him to make himself, wife, and child, Life Subscribers of the Boys Institution, not thinking at the time that he should ever be compelled to avail himself of its benefits and he has besides this, done all in his power to excite in others an interest in the Masonic Charities. Altogether he had contributed to the funds of Grand Lodge for the long period of TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THIS week, like its predecessor, has been a very eventful one, and the doings in Parliament have proved a great centre of attraction. In the House of Lords, on Thursday and Friday last, the sittings were not very protracted on either occasion. The Bishoprics Bill passed through Committee, and stands for third reading on Monday. The Mutiny Bill was read and passed, and the Marine Mutiny Bill has since then reached its final stage. On Friday, too, the Endowed Schools and Hospitals (Scotland) Bill was read a second time. But it was the debate of Monday which aroused so much interest among the public, for it was on that occasion the Premier had arranged to move an address of thanks to Her Majesty for Her gracious Message in relation to the Reserve Forces. The House, therefore, was crowded. The galleries were filled with ladies, the Princess of Wales, and the Princess Mary Duchess of Teck, with her husband, being seated near the throne, and there was a strong muster in the gallery set apart for ambassadors, Count Schouvaloff being present. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge were likewise in the House, and occupied seats on the cross benches. The Premier's speech was a great success. It was firm, but moderate in tone, and while the greater portion was argumentative, the latter part was dignified and resolute, and indicated that the speaker was fully alive to the serious responsibilities with which he was charged, and that without bluster, and with every desire to avoid offence to other powers, he was resolved to fulfil those responsibilities. Earl Granville followed, and did his best in performing the thankless task of criticising the conduct of a Government whose position is unassailable. He was also very moderate in his criticisms, and disclaimed any idea of hampering Ministers in the discharge of their onerous duties. The Earl of Derby was the next speaker, but his remarks chiefly had reference to himself, and the causes which had led to his retirement from the Cabinet. Then followed the Lord Chancellor, Lord Selborne, the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord Houghton, who, though a Liberal, gave his support to the Government, and the Duke of Argyll, who made a ferocious attack on the Turks. The Marquis of Salisbury's speech virtually closed the debate, for though a few other noble Lords addressed the House, when he had spoken the interest ceased, and, in due course, the address of thanks was unanimously agreed to. On Tuesday evening, the House rose shortly after seven o'clock, after giving the Factories and Workshops Bill a second reading, and there was a debate on the Bishopries Bill, on the order for the consideration of the Report, but nothing resulted, and the third reading was fixed, as we have stated, for Monday.

The House of Commons has been equally busy. On Thursday the Chancellor of the Exchequer brought forward his Budget, and if we state that the income tax is to be fivepence instead of threepence, and that the duty on tobacco is fourpence more than it was in the last financial year, we have said all our readers are likely to concern themselves about. On Friday a motion by Sir A. Kay-Shuttleworth, for placing the whole of London under one central administrative authority, occupied a considerable portion of the sitting, among those who took part in the debate being Sir J. B. Hogg, Lord Elcho, Mr. Cross, Mr. Lowe, and Lord John Manners. On a division, the motion was negatived by 116 to 73. After this, Mr. Gladstone catechised the Chancellor of the Exchequer as to the Congress, and the latter replied in due course. After agreeing to the Budget resolutions and transacting other business, the House adjourned. The debate on the Message extended over Monday and Tuesday, but though it was twice the length of the debate in the House of Lords, it was certainly not so interesting. The only speakers of note were the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Hardy, and the Marquis of Hartington, and the speeches of these four were worthy of the occasion. The Chancellor of the Exchequer was very moderate in tone; Mr. Gladstone was vehement in his denunciation of the Ministerial policy; but though, as a specimen of oratory his speech must be looked upon as one of his finest efforts, it was a failure as regards the attempt to damage the Government. Mr. Hardy was more under control than usual, and therefore his speech, which is invariably telling, was on this occasion more than usually so. The Marquis of Hartington was calm and dignified, as became his position as leader of the Opposition. Unlike the companion debate in the Lords, this one terminated with a division, Sir W. Lawson having insisted on dividing the House on his amendment. He might, however, have saved himself the trouble, for the numbers were—for Government 319, for Sir W. Lawson 64, or majority for the former 255. Wednesday afternoon was occupied in discussing the second reading of the Employers' Liability for Injuries Bill, which was moved by Mr. Macdonald, but the debate was suspended in accordance with the rules of the House.

The Queen left Windsor Castle for Osborne on Friday last, and here her stay is expected to extend over three or four weeks. On Tuesday Her Majesty, accompanied by the Princess Beatrice, made a point of witnessing the passage of the funeral cortège of Mr. Land, who had filled the office of head gamekeeper to Her Majesty for a period of seven years. The Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark are on a visit to London, and are the guests of the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. On Monday there was a dinner party to celebrate the King of Denmark's birthday. There were present to meet the Danish Prince and Princess, the Duke of Cambridge, the Princess Mary Duchess, and the Duke of Teck, the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow, the Swedish Minister, the Greek Chargé d'affaires, and several of the nobility and gentry. After dinner there was an addition to the guests, the Princess Louise and the Prince Imperial among the number.

There have been several political meetings during the week, the two of Wednesday, held at the Memorial Hall and the Freemasons' Tavern respectively, being the most important. The former was composed of some 400 or 500 delegates, admitted specially by ticket, and presumably representing certain towns in the kingdom. Mr. Burt, M.P., occupied the chair, and the principal speaker was Mr. Gladstone. The object was to make a demonstration against war, and in favour of arbitration. At the other meeting, the Lord Mayor presided, and there were present to support his Lordship, Lord Ellenborough, Captain Pim, M.P., Colonel Coope, and other gentlemen. This was intended as a demonstration in support of the sacredness of treaties, and the principal speakers were Lord Stratheden and Campbell and Mr. Gibson Bowles. All the resolutions were carried unanimously.

There have been two considerable fires, one in London on the evening of Tuesday, and the other in Edinburgh on Wednesday morning. The former broke out at a floor-cloth store in Aldersgate-street, and the roof and part of the platform of the Aldgersgate-street Station of the Metropolitan Railway were burnt, as well as the building in which the fire originated. The firemen, however, were able to keep the flames from extending to nearly all the other buildings in the neighbourhood.

There has been the usual amount of excitement in connection with the boat race, which takes place to-day, and it certainly is not the fault of the morning and evening, as well as of the sporting papers, if the public are not well informed as to the respective merits in sliding, gripping the water, feathering, &c., of the rival crews. Everywhere, likewise, are to be seen the light and dark blue favours, and a great many people are already wearing the colours of the crew whose chances they are backing. As regards the race, to judge from the work which each crew has done, the contest should be a close one. The crews are as nearly as possible level in the matter of weight, and though we believe that Oxford has gone the whole course in a shorter time than Cambridge, there are always differences in tide and wind, as the crews do not practise at the same time. The weather has been anything but satisfactory, but we trust that to-day, at all events, the Clerk in charge will be considerate, and allow us the benefit of some genial spring weather. The necessary arrangements have been made for keeping the course clear, and we trust all will go well.

The action brought by Mr. Levy, one of the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, against the proprietor, printer, and publisher of the Sporting Times came off on Tuesday. The defendants pleaded guilty, and as they had since their committal written the plaintiff a letter in which they amply apologised for what they had done, and promised not to repeat the offence, Mr. Levy's counsel did not press the case further as regards the infliction of any punishment, and the learned Recorder who was thus influenced to take a lenient view of the case, released the prisoners on their own recognizances to be of good behaviour for the future. The trial of Madame Rachel for extorting money by fraudulent means from Mrs. Pearse was commenced on Wednesday. The examination of Mrs. Pearse was the chief feature of the proceedings. Her husband, too, was examined, and thus the trial was adjourned; it was, however, concluded on Thursday, when Madame Rachel was convicted, and sentenced to five years penal servitude.

It is greatly to be regretted that Mr. J. B. Buckstone, after so long and honourable a career as comedian, should find himself in the evening of his days compelled to seek the protection of the Bankruptcy Court. Every one must feel sympathy for a gentleman of such distinguished ability, who has devoted the greater part of his long life to amuse the public, and we sincerely trust that Mr. Buckstone will find a way out of his difficulties which will be beneficial to his creditors as well as honourable to himself.

The Judge of the Admiralty Court was recently called upon to appraise the value of the Cleopatra, and the obelisk known as Cleopatra's Needle, which had been abandoned in the Bay of Biscay, and was rescued by the Fitzmaurice, and he fixed the value at £25,000. He has since declared the amount which, in his judgment, should be awarded to the salvors, and this amount is £2,000. So Mr. Dixon now knows the extent of his liability, and no doubt in a short time we shall see this well-known obelisk erect on the Thames Embankment.

Perhaps the chief event of the week is the publication in a late edition of the Times of Tuesday of what is described as an Annex to a reply by Prince Gortschakoff to the despatch of the Marquis of Salisbury. The general feeling which this important document has inspired is that Russia is by no means unwilling to re-open the negociations for a Congress, and that she would possibly yield at the last moment, and accept the terms laid down by Government. In such case, a step toward the settlement of the crisis would have been taken, though there must still remain the possibility of a rupture between her and our Government, if she insists on the principal terms of the treaty of San Stefano being retained. On the other hand, it is argued that the Russian Chancellor makes no sign of his desire to abate the terms. He argues in their favour, and justifies some of the most important. He in particular regards the cession of Armenia as a necessary consequence of the war, and holds that Russia, in spite of the Czar's declaration made before the war had begun, is acting within her right in taking this territory in order to secure her interests for the future. After combating to the best of his ability the objections raised by the Foreign Secretary, the Prince closes his case by calling upon Lord Salisbury to declare his views of the arrangements that should be made to settle the Eastern Question. One matter in connection with the terms has brought upon Russia a rare storm of abuse from all quarters, and that is the brutal determination evinced by the Chancellor to have Moldavian Bessarabia, whether Roumania will consent or not, and by force if necessary. This conduct towards an ally which last summer did much valuable service for the Czar's army has opened the eyes of the whole world as to the fate in store for Bulgaria if its policy should ever clash with the will of his Russian Majesty, and has done more than anything else to rouse Europe to a determined resistance to the imperious will of the Russian Emperor.

Meanwhile we hear of a vast amount of intrigue at Constantinople. The poor unfortunate Sultan must have a hard time of it, between the Grand Duke Nicholas, who is urging him to an alliance with Russia, and Mr. Layard, who is moving heaven and earth to maintain British influence in the ascendant. The Turks have refused to allow their late enemy to embark his troops at Buyukdere, and have arrayed a very respectable force in the rear of the forts of the Bosphorus. They are doing their best likewise to put down the insurrection in Thessaly and have gained one or more successes in that province. Unfortunately, there seems to be a great deal of cruelty practised, and a Mr. Ogle, a correspondent of the Times, has been brutally murdered, or as another account gives it, was killed in the fight at Makrinitza, and afterwards decapitated. The other news from the East is equally unsatisfactory, and we do not see that the gloom which has prevailed so long is lessened. There is great enthusiasm in Hungary for England, and a great desire is manifested for an alliance between the two countries. In such case, probably, Russia would hesitate about holding out against our demands. Let us hope it may be so.

The Installation Meeting of the Polish National Lodge was held on Thursday evening. Bro. J. F. Ebner was installed Master for the year by Bro. P.M. Moore. There was a large attendance of members and Visitors, and the proceedings were of a most agreeable and interesting character. Pressure on our space prevents us giving a further account this week, but full report shall appear in our next.

Our readers have, doubtless, noticed, on the list of candidates at the forthcoming election to the Boys' School, the name and particulars of the candidature of one Richard Howell Nicholls, the son of the late Bro. Richard Nicholls, hay and corn merchant, of Grays, Essex, who died on 25th May last year, leaving behind him a widow and six children. We have been favoured with a copy of the circular letter bringing the case under the notice of brethren, and though it is very far from being our duty to make any appeal in respect of a particular candidate, there is no objection to our stating the circumstances where they are more than usually distressing. The late Bro. Nicholls had been an active member of the Craft from the date of his initiation in the Vitruvian Lodge No. 87, on 14th February 1866, to the day of his death. He was one of the founders of the St. John's Lodge, Grays, No. 1343, and was its W. Master in 1874. He had endeared himself to all the brethren by his uniform courtesy and kindness, and his memory is held in the greatest respect by all who knew him. His death was exceptionally sudden. He was attacked with inflammation of the lungs, and in a few days passed away, leaving a widow and six children unprovided for. The boy Richard Howell Nicholls is now a candidate for the first time. His case is influentially supported by local, Provincial, and other brethren, and where brethren have any votes not already promised we feel sure they will be doing a kind service to the widow and orphan son of a worthy and respected brother by placing them at her disposal. Bro. Alfred Sturgeon W.M. St. John's 1343, Grays Hall, Essex; Bro. Rea Corbett S.W. St. John's 1343, Orsett, Essex; Bro. James Godwin J.W. St. John's 1343, Halfmoon-passage, Gracechurch-street, E.C.; and Bro. Edwin Sturgeon Treasurer, St. John's, Grays, Essex, will thankfully receive and acknowledge all proxies sent.

On the 5th inst., Bro. Murlis P.M. 1642 was appointed by the magistrates one of the overseers of the parish of Kensington. At the election for guardians of the same parish, which took place on Thursday last, Bro. Murlis was again elected; he polled on this occasion close on 6,000 votes.

In Memoriam.

IT is with feelings of deep regret that we announce to our readers the death of the able and well known Preceptor Bro. Thomas Austin, a Past Master of the Doric Lodge No. 933, and M.E.Z. of the Doric Chapter. The sad event occurred on Monday, and the funeral of the deceased will take place this day at the Tower Hamlets Cemetery, Bow-road, at the hour of noon precisely, when there will, no doubt, be gathered together a considerable number of his Masonic friends and admirers, all anxious to testify by their presence to the respect and affection with which our deceased brother was regarded. The late Bro. Austin was initiated in the Crystal Palace Lodge No. 742, in October 1865. He joined the Doric in January 1867, and was elected to fill the chair of Master in 1873. He was likewise, as we have stated above, M.E.Z. of the Doric Chapter. But his chief claims to the regard of Craftsmen rested on his tried ability as a Preceptor, and his labours in the Egyptian Lodge of Instruction, No. 27, and elsewhere, will long be remembered to his honour. Our readers cannot, of course, have forgotten the occasion on which, not quite two years since, Bro. Austin was presented with a gold watch and chain and vellum testimonial in token of the esteem and appreciation in which, both by reason of his private qualities and Masonic services, he was held. On that occasion he was associated with his friend and co-worker, Bro. T. J. Barnes, to whom likewise a testimonial was presented. It was on the 10th May 1876 that the interesting ceremony of presentation took place, and there were present representatives from no less than thirty-three Lodges. Such an episode as this in the career of any Craftsman is the best testimony to his worth that could be offered. To the relatives who are now mourning his loss, to his brethren who will no longer enjoy the benefit of his instruction, and to his numerous circle of friends and acquaintances we offer our sincere and respectful sympathy.

It is also our melancholy duty to record the death, which occurred on Tuesday last, of Mrs. Reed, wife of Bro. Nelson Reed, W.M. of the Mizpah Lodge. We tender Bro. Reed our sincere condolence.

---

The interment of the late Bro. Bubb, P.M. and Treasurer of the St. James's Union Lodge, No. 180, the well-known librarian of New Bond Street, took place at Finchley Cemetery, on Monday last, in presence of a number of friends and members of the Craft. Amongst the latter we noticed Bros. Stoner P.M., Cameron P.M., W. C. Parsons P.M., Pillin W.M., Farwig S.W., Lakin, Field, Beer, Organ, Unwin, Rossiter, Harrow, Levitt, and Shelley, of Lodge 180. The Londesborough Lodge, of which Bro. Bubb was the J.W., was represented by Bros. Barfield Treasurer, Honeyball D.C., Wetherill W.S., Dawson, Elwin, Nelson, and Williams. Bro. Bubb was also W.M. of the St. John's, at Maidenhead, and this Lodge was represented by Bro. Hodges Sec. P.G.S.W. Berks and Bucks, and Bro. Deacon. Bro. Bubb will be greatly missed in the circle in which he moved; both in Lodge and at the festive board there was not a better Mason or more genial companion. We trust that his memory may remain green with us for many a year to come.

Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, No. 55.—On Tuesday, the 9th of April, at the Bedford Hotel, Southampton-buildings. Present—Bros. Bramham W.M., J. Soper S.W., Dwarber J.W., Dickins Sec., Clennell S.D., Abell J.D., Hallam I.G.; Past Master Bro. Bingemann Preceptor. Visitors—Bros. Tate, Brown, J. H. Dodson, J. B. Dodson, Cornu, Sanders, H. C. Soper, and several others. Lodge opened in due form, minutes read and confirmed. Bro. Baker, a candidate for passing, proved his efficiency, and was passed. The first, second, third, and fourth sections were worked by Bro. J. S. Brown. Bro. J. Soper was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and appointed his officers in rotation. A vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to Bro. Bramham for his able working.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Met on Wednesday, the 10th inst., at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C. There were present Bros. Staley W.M., Bone S.W., W. Lipscombe J.W., E. Gottheil P.M., J. Constable Treas., J. K. Pitt Sec., James S.D., Biddle J.D., Tollis I.G.; also Bros. Bush, Walker, Sayer, Holloway, &c. The ceremony of the second degree, and three of the sections were rehearsed. Bro. Staley's efforts in the Master's chair were characterised by want of deliberation, arising from insufficient practice. His own intelligence and good sense will, no doubt, make it clear to him that before his work can become effective, it will have to be done less mechanically, and with greater attention to the spirit of the lessons it might hereafter become his duty to convey to aspirants for Masonic instruction. We must, however, commend the evident earnestness with which Bro. Staley strives to obtain proficiency, and there is little doubt of his ultimate success. Bro. Bone was elected Master for next Wednesday.

Royal Sussex Chapter, No. 342.—At the meeting of this Chapter on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at Freemasons' Hall, St. George's-square, Portsea, there was a numerous attendance of R.A. Masons, the occasion being the installation of Principals for the ensuing year. The ceremony of installation was ably performed by P.Z. Main, the officers being Comps. A. Riddell Z., G. A. Green H., R. Turney J., W. Payne E., Arnold N., Willmott P.S., J. T. Craven P.Z. Treas., Parkhouse, and C. G. Adames A.S., and Copus Janitor. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to E. Comp. Main P.Z., for the able and efficient manner in which he had performed the duty of installing the Principals; and also a vote of thanks to P.Z. Craven, for the manner in which he had carried out the duties of his office during the past year. A vote of thanks was also accorded to P.Z. Ellis, who had acted as Treasurer. An excellent banquet was supplied by Comp. Sherman (of the Hard, Portsea), in his usual efficient manner. Twenty-five Companions sat down, among those present being Comps. Riddell Z., Green H., Turney J., P.Z.'s Redward, Cawte, Friedeberg, Wilkins, Main, Craven, G. S. Lancaster 487, H. Sleeman Z. 903, G. Felton Lancaster, H. 903, most of the Officers of 342, H. J. Guy, G. F. Sherman 487, T. Page, R. Barnes, Buck, &c. The usual toasts were given, interspersed with songs.

Northern Counties Lodge, No. 406.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on the 3rd April, at the Masonic Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Bro. T. Halliday Prov. G.P. W.M. in the chair. Bros. T. Armstrong W.M. 1626 S.W., R. L. Armstrong J.W., J. Page Sec., R. G. Salmon S.D., G. W. Lax J.D., S. M. Harris I.G., G. Dumford and J. S. B. Bell Stewards, G. S. Simms Tyler; Past Masters Bros. J. Cook P.P.S.G.W., H. S. Huges P.P.G.S.D., Rev. S. H. Harris P.P.G.S.D., and G. S. Dean; also a very large attendance of brethren. The Lodge being opened, and all formalities gone through, the Lodge was advanced to the third degree, and one brother was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. by the Worshipful Master. The Lodge was then closed down to the first degree, when the resolutions of Grand Lodge were read. The election of W.M. was then proceeded with, which proved unanimous in favour of Bro. R. L. Armstrong J.W., the S.W. being Master of another Lodge in the town. Bro. Ryedale P.M. was elected Treasurer, and Bro. G. S. Simms Tyler. The Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts met with a cordial response. The visitors were Bros. J. Cook P.M. 481, G. S. Dean W.M. 541, Grist 481, &c. The installation festival is fixed for 29th April.

East Surrey Lodge of Concord, No. 463.—A large gathering of members of this, one of the oldest and most important Lodges in the province of Surrey, celebrated the annual meeting for Installation of the W.M., at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Thursday, the 4th inst. In the absence of the W.M. Bro. W. Sharp, which to the great regret of the brethren was occasioned by illness, the Lodge was opened, at four o'clock, by Bro. T. P. Dickin P.M. P. Prov. G.R. Amongst those present during the evening were the following Past Masters, viz.:—Bros. C. H. Woodward P.P.G.J.W., H. J. Close P.P.G.S.B., W. West P.P.G.R., H. R. B. Polmore P.P.G. Supt. Works, R. Price P.P.G. Supt. Works, A. C. Ebbutt P.P.G. Purst., and — Dosell. The Officers were Bros. John Close P.P.G.D.C. S.W. and Master Elect, George Yaxley J.W., G. Price Treas., C. H. Woodward Sec., H. A. Pocock S.D., J. S. Streeter J.D., and J. Hooke I.G. Members—Bros. Ridge, Harland, Silverton, Price, West, Margetson, Hall, Lamb, J. K. Pitt, Bonner Rogers, Burton, Gillingham, Frost, Watkinson, Nicholls, A. Pocock, Wagner, Ainsworth, Goodwin, Witheram, W. H. Smith, Baddin, and several others. Visitors—Bros. James Stevens P.M. 720, 1216, 1426, &c., E. Peacock 1360, G. Woodbridge, B. W. Sewell, W. R. Sheadd 720, Barlow, Jolliffe 559, and L. A. Hart P.P.G.J.D. Kent. The minutes of the preceding meeting having been confirmed, and a ballot taken in favour of Bro. H. F. Margetts 212, as joining member, Bro. C. H. Woodward took the chair, and proceeded to instal Bro. John Close. Bro. Woodward who rendered the ceremony most perfectly, elicited hearty applause from the many Past Masters and able Masons present, and the remarks which fell from the newly installed W.M., in praise of and thanks for the services rendered, were unanimously endorsed by the brethren. The officers appointed and invested were Bros. George Yaxley S.W., H. A. Pocock J.W., G. Price P.M. Treas., C. H. Woodward P.M. Secretary, J. S. Streeter S.D., J. Hooke J.D. The addresses to Master, Wardens, and Brethren were delivered in admirable style, and the entire ceremony gave practical evidence of the efficient working which characterises this Lodge. The W.M. having announced his intention to serve as Steward at the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, a vote from the Lodge funds was carried in support of his list of donations. Propositions for initiation were then taken, and there being no further business, Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the large Assembly Room for banquet. On the cloth being cleared, Bro. Close gave evidence of his ability by proposing, in brief but effective terms, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. To such as required no personal response he gave great effect, by a departure from the ordinary stereotyped form of introduction. A careful allusion to current outdoor events was made in each of the toasts of "the Queen," "the M.W.G.M.," "the Pro G.M.," and "the Deputy G.M.," and "Officers of Grand Lodge," and the necessity for increased loyalty to both Crown and Craft, under present circumstances, was admirably enforced. For "Provincial Grand Lodge" Bro. Woodward ably responded, and then proposed the health of the W.M., expressing the great pleasure he had experienced in installing that W. Brother who he had assisted to initiate, and whose progress in Freemasonry had been such as to reflect credit equally upon those with whom he had been associated and upon himself. He called the attention of the brethren to the fact that the Father of the Lodge, and parent of the W.M., was that evening amongst them, naturally induced to break the long spell of absence enforced by his great age that he might see his son placed in the proud position he had so many years ago occupied, and to celebrate the transactions of the auspicious solemnity with joy and rejoicing; he (Bro. Woodward) trusted that an equally long and happy life might be vouchsafed to the present W.M., in which he might be enabled to maintain the great respect and Masonic regard in which both father and son were held by the members of the East Surrey Lodge of Concord. Bro. Woodward's remarks were received with considerable enthusiasm, which increased on the W.M.'s rising to respond, which he did in brief but earnest terms of thanks, and concluded by proposing the health of the Past Masters, naming each in order of precedence, and calling upon his father for response. The venerable Father of the Lodge at once complied with the request, expressing his great pleasure that he had been spared to witness his son's advancement in the Craft his regret that his age had precluded his frequent attendance, and his fears that this might be his last opportunity for association with the members in Lodge. The greatest attention was paid to the veteran speaker, and if the wishes of those present could prolong a valuable and highly respected life, there would yet be many years in store for Bro. H. J. Close. The P.M. jewel of the Lodge was to have been presented to the I.P.M. Bro. Sharp, and his absence and its cause were much regretted. The health of the Installing Master having been duly honoured, the Visitors had their share of recognition. Bro. James Stevens P.M. The Great City 1426, and Bro L. A. Hart P.P.G.J.D. for Kent, were called upon, and acknowledged on behalf of themselves and others their gratification with both labour and refreshment. The Officers' and Tyler's toasts brought to its conclusion a most agreeable evening, which had been enlivened by the admirable singing of Bros. Barlow, Ridge, and others; recitations were given by Bro. Harland.

Independence Lodge, No. 721.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 8th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Eastgate-street, Row, Chester. Present—Bros. R. C. Edwards W.M., H. P. Swindells S.W., Evan Jones J.W., Geo. Halliday S.D., H. J. Lloyd J.D., J. Dennis P.M. Treas., J. H. Lyon P.M. Secretary, J. Humphreys Organist, T. Nabb I.G., E. Jones Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. Cunnah, Dennis and Johnson. There was a strong muster of brethren present, including Bros. A. J. Brereton, F. Thomas, R. T. Morcom, E. J. Davies, W. Wildig, T. Coxhead, W. M. Richmond, J. Humphreys, T. Kirk, J. Brandrith, W. Jones, D. Williams, J. Hughes, T. M. Jones, H. Ellis, Wm. Hughes, J. Williams, E. Ladmore, M. Johnson, T. J. Mason, H. Williams, J. Edwards, E. Seller, Chas. Seal, R. B. Ferguson, E. Smith, &c. Visitors—A. Potts P.M. 1477, R. J. Morris 425, S. M. Davies (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE). After the usual routine business had been disposed of, Mr. Alfred Orrett was initiated, and Bros. Brandrith and Morcom were raised to the third degree. The W.M., taking upon himself the whole of this heavy business, discharged his duties remarkably well. The Secretary read the Circular forwarded by the Grand Secretary, which contained the report of the Grand Lodge Committee and the action of Grand Lodge with regard to the Grand Orient of France. It was moved and seconded that the same be entered on the minutes. The Lodge was closed in harmony at 7.10, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. The W.M. on rising, in his usual happy strain, gave the first toast, the Queen and the Craft, which was duly honoured, the brethren singing the National Anthem, after which the toast of the M.W. the G. Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales was given, and was heartily received, the brethren singing "God bless the Prince of Wales." In quick succession followed the toasts of Grand Lodge, and Prov. Grand Lodge, which were loyally honoured. W. Bro. Johnson then, with the consent of the W.M., assumed the control of the gavel, and in doing so said that it gave him great pleasure to propose the next toast. He felt sure that the brethren would endorse what he said in reference to the attention and zeal with which the duties of this Lodge were carried out under their excellent and efficient W.M. The welfare of the Lodge, and the efficiency of its working were the constant care of Bro. R. C. Edwards. He asked the brethren to charge their glasses and drink with due honours to the health of the Worshipful Master. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. The W.M., in the first place, thanked the W. Brother for the kind manner in which he had proposed his health, and the brethren for the cordial manner in which they had received it. In reverting to his position as Master of the Lodge, he need not tell them that he had the interest of the Craft at heart, and the unalloyed prosperity of his Lodge as his constant care. He believed that the success and efficiency of the occupant of the chair depended greatly on the assistance given him by the I.P.M. and Past Masters, and while thanking all for the support extended him in the past, he trusted that the same might be accorded him in the future. The W.M. then gave the health of the newly initiated brother, suitably prefaced, which was followed by the E.A. song, and a very touching response from Bro. Orrett. W. Bro. Cunnah was entrusted with the toast of the Visitors, which he handled in a very pleasing and courteous manner, and alluded to the real pleasure experienced by the brethren of Independence Lodge in seeing visitors at their festive board. He alluded to the extra pleasure given him that evening in proposing this toast, as he had near him on his right and left brethren he was sure they all rejoiced to see. With reference to the brother from Mold, he had pleasing recollections of being the guest of that brother's Lodge, and could testify to the talent their worthy visitor had displayed in his ruling and working. Then we have a brother who represents the Masonic Press, who has come from London to visit this Province, and to inform the brethren as to the position his journal, THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, occupies in relation to the Craft. He (the speaker) had seen the paper, and thought it a good one, and as such must be of great value to all who desire to acquire a knowledge of what transpires in our Order. He was sure they were all glad to see Bro. Davies, and hoped he would visit them again. And so did they extend a hearty greeting to all visiting brothers. He was sure the members would join him in a bumper to the health of the visiting brethren. The toast was enthusiastically received. W. Bro. Potts responded in very appropriate terms, and was followed by Bro. Davies, on behalf of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. Bro. Johnson next gave the Masonic Charities. He pointed to our noble Institutions, as appendages to our Order that we might feel proud of. London was the centre of our Charities, but Cheshire had done well in making provision for those who might require our help. In proposing the Masonic Charities he would add prosperity to the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution, coupling with it the name of their energetic and indefatigable W. Bro. Cunnah. The toast was received with great warmth, and Bro. Cunnah responded in a very happy strain. He experienced great pleasure in being able to announce to the brethren the great prosperity of our Masonic Charities, and especially so the Cheshire Masonic Educational Institution, in which he took so deep an interest. It must be gratifying to the brethren of the Lodge to know—as he had heard and felt—the tender thanks of those who were so timely, and so kindly provided for through the generosity of the members of the Order. It is needless to say that Bro. Cunnah's remarks were listened to with great attention. The brethren must feel greatly indebted to him for the zeal he ever evinces in all matters pertaining to the Masonic Charities. Other toasts were given, duly honoured, and responded to, and after spending an evening replete with comfort and fraternal feeling, the brethren dispersed at a reasonable hour. The pleasures of the evening were greatly enhanced by the excellent vocal capabilities of Bros. Ellis, Knowles, and Humphreys; the accompaniment of Bro. Humphreys was greatly appreciated.

Lodge having been opened up, the brethren were called to refreshment. After resuming labour Bro. Parker answered the questions leading to third degree. Bro. Botley, who had retired, was now re-admitted. A resolution was passed directing Bro. Sec. to send a circular to the brethren of this Lodge of Instruction, informing them that Bro. Franckel had presented a handsome and valuable oil painting to the Lodge, to be disposed of among the members; proceeds to be applied to Masonic purposes, after deducting some slight expenses; and that such disposal take place upon 17th May next. The W.M. for next meeting was elected, Bro. Botley admitted a member of this Lodge of Instruction, and the meeting then adjourned till Friday, 12th April.

Cosmopolitan Lodge, No. 917.—This Lodge met on Tuesday, the 9th inst., under the able presidency of the W.M., Bro. G. R. Taylor, at the Cannon-street Hotel. He was supported by Bros. A. Lamarque S.W., Keayes P.M. J.W., L. Stean P.M. Secretary, Ellis S.D., S. L. Corke, I.G., W. Pitt D.C.; P.M.'s Bros. A. Rowley, Keayes, W. Haines, Walker; and Bros. Kearsey, W. Rowley, Warner, Friedlander, Fald, Taff, Reddin. After the observance of all formalities, ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. R. Prime and M. E. Goldstein. These being unanimously in their favour, the gentlemen were duly initiated into the Order. The Secretary read the letter from Grand Lodge, respecting the Grand Orient of France, which was duly entered on the minutes. The resignation of two brethren was announced. Hearty good wishes were given, and the Lodge was closed until October. The brethren then sat down to a banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. E. H. Rand. Grace having been said, the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. A. Rowley I.P.M. had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. The rapid progress he had made in Freemasonry, and the excellent manner in which he had performed the ceremony must have gratified all present. He (Bro. Rowley) hoped they would have many candidates, that the W.M. might show his proficiency in performing the various ceremonies. Bro. Taylor thanked the brethren for the enthusiastic manner they had received the toast, so ably proposed by Bro. Rowley; his aim was to promote the comfort of the Lodge; he hoped he had performed the duties of the chair to their satisfaction. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the newly initiated brethren, who they were proud to see among them; he was sure they would eventually be a credit to the Order. Bro. Prime briefly responded, and Bro. Goldstein followed; he felt it a great honour to be admitted a member of the Lodge. It had been his ambition for many years to be a member of the Order; he saw many friends around him; he would do all that might be required of him as a Mason. The W.M. then proposed Prosperity to the Masonic Charities, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. L. Stean P.M. and Sec., who in eloquent terms responded. Bro. Rowley was a good contributor, and he (Bro. Stean) was one who would never shut his eyes to the cause of charity. Bro. Rowley had done his duty to the Masonic Charities, and if the Lodge went on as it had done they would soon be Vice-Presidents of all the Charities. The health of the P.M.'s was next given. The W.M. regretted the absence of many, but those who were present were worthy of their regard and esteem. Bro. A. Rowley I.P.M. responded; he thanked the brethren, not only for supporting him in the chair, but also for the support they had given the Charities. Bro. Haines followed; for twenty years he had been a Mason, and since he had been in this Lodge (now five years) he had not missed an attendance. To the toast of the Officers, Bros. Lamarque, Ellis, W. Rowley, S. Corke, and others responded. The health of the Visitors was given; Bros. Pogson 1314, and H. M. Levy P.M. 188, returned thanks. Bros. Reddin, Pogson, Goldstein and Prime contributed some very excellent harmony.

Lewis Lodge of Instruction, No. 1185.—Held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, the 10th of April, in the Lodge-room, at the Kings Arms Hotel, Wood Green, at 7.30 p.m. Present—Bros. Durrant P.M. W.M., Geo. Newman P.M. P.Z. S.W., James W. Berrie P.M. J.W., S. Johnson Sec., W. F. Neave S.D., T. Bailey I.G. The ceremony of passing was rehearsed in a most able manner by Bro. Durrant, assisted by Bros. Newman and Berrie, after which Bro. Durrant was unanimously requested to preside again next Wednesday; this he kindly promised to do. The work will be the rehearsal of the third degree, and the Lodge will open punctually at 7.30. Much regret was expressed by the brethren at the unavoidable absence of Bro. Turner P.M., the Preceptor, to whose unwearying assiduity so much of the present success of the Lodge is attributable.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—Held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday. Bros. E. Dignam W.M., J. Lorkin S.W., M'Millan J.W., E. Dietrich S.D. and Secretary, R. Olley J.D., O. Dietrich I.G., and many other brethren, amongst whom were Bros. C. Lorkin, G. Ferrar, Slaiter, Maples, C. Olley, Martin. After the usual preliminaries, Bro. G. Ferrar was interrogated, entrusted, and passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bros. C. Lorkin and Fieldwick, assisted by the brethren, worked the sections of the lecture in a most creditable and efficient manner. Bro. C. Lorkin worked the first and second sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. J. Lorkin was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1557.—At the regular meeting of this Lodge, held on 4th April, at the Bush Hotel, Hexham, in the absence of the W.M., the Lodge was opened and ruled by Bro. Bell S.W. After the usual formalities had been gone through, Bro. J. Turner Treasurer rose to present the Lodge with a finely-executed portrait of the late Bro. White P.M. and first Worshipful Master of this Lodge. In the course of some well-chosen remarks, he said it would be remembered that the brethren felt some recognition of Bro. White's services were due to him, and determined to have his portrait painted, and to present it to him. Bro. White would only agree to this on the condition that he should be allowed afterwards to present it to the Lodge. In the meantime it had pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to remove our esteemed brother, and his widow, knowing his feelings in the matter, now presented the portrait to the Lodge, and hoped that a convenient place would be found for it. He therefore moved that a letter of acceptance and thanks be sent to Mrs. White, which was seconded by Bro. Bell S.W., and carried unanimously. The brethren then sat down to a capital dinner, presided over by Bro. Bell S.W. After the removal of the cloth, and the Loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, Bro. Bell rose to propose the Visitors, and said they had been specially honoured that day by visitors from several Lodges in Newcastle, and hoped they would frequently come and see them. He coupled the name of Bro. E. D. Davis P.M. P.P.G.S.W. with the toast. Bro. Davis, in reply, thanked the brethren heartily for the reception accorded to them, and felt he could not set down without calling on the visitors to join him in drinking prosperity to the Albert Edward Lodge and its members. He paid some well-deserved eulogiums to Bro. Bell for his untiring energy in connection with the Lodge. Bro. Bell suitably replied. The Tyler's toast was then given, and the visitors who left by the 8.50 train were accompanied to the station by most of the brethren. Amongst the visitors were Bros. E. D. Davis P.M. 659 P.P.G.S.W., T. Halliday W.M. 406 P.G.P., G. S. Dean W.M. 541, T. J. Armstrong W.M. 1626, Grist S.D. 1626, Reed 1626, S. M. Harris I.G. 406, &c., &c.

Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge, No. 1602.—Held its weekly meeting at Bro. C. J. G. Woods, Crown and Woolpack, 162 St. John-street-road, Clerkenwell, on Tuesday, the 9th instant, at 8 p.m. Present—Bros. Dyblahl W.M., Rimell S.W., Hallam jun. J.W., Stock acting Preceptor, Osborn Sec., A. W. Fenner S.D., Coombs J.D., W. Cook I.G.; also Bros. Gibbs, Norris, Wood, Green, Powell, &c. The Lodge being opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Gibbs answered the questions, and was entrusted. The ceremony of raising was rehearsed by the W.M., in a perfect manner. The Lodge was closed down to the first degree, when Bro. Stock gave the lecture on the tracing board. Bro. W. Cook, of the Domatic Lodge, No. 177, and Bro. Green, of the Finsbury Lodge, No. 861, were elected members. Bro. Rimell was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A well deserved vote of thanks was awarded to Bro. Stock for the excellent manner in which he had given the lecture on the tracing board. Lodge was closed, and adjourned until Tuesday next, at 8 o'clock.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday. The business consisted of a ballot for two joining members and one candidate for the Order, all of which proved successful. An initiation and a raising followed, and before the Lodge was closed the names of three candidates were proposed and seconded. Several books and objects of Masonic interest were presented to the Lodge by two of the members, and the W.M., Bro. T. B. Whytehead, announced that he had received a communication from the Deputy Prov. Grand Master, stating that no meeting of the Prov. Grand Lodge for North and East Yorkshire would be held until the usual time in autumn, when Beverley would be the place of meeting. An unusual number of visitors were present, including several Past Masters, and a pleasant and social evening was spent, enlivened by songs and recitations by Bros. J. S. Cumberland, W. H. Wyatt, J. Craven, and A. T. B. Turner.

Earl of Carnarvon Lodge of Instruction, No. 1642.—Held at the Mitre Hotel, Goulborne-road, Notting-hill, on Friday, 5th April. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. The usual questions for passing were answered, and that ceremony duly rehearsed. Before closing, the 1st, 2nd and 3rd sections of the lecture were worked.

THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE Quarterly General Court of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Saturday, at noon. Lieut.-Colonel Creaton, Vice-Patron and Trustee, occupied the chair, and in opening the proceedings announced the event to which we allude more fully in another column, namely the death of the Secretary, Bro. R. Wentworth Little. The formal business having been disposed of, and authority having been given to the chairman alone to sign cheques, Lieut.-Col. Creaton's motion that nineteen Girls be elected instead of eighteen, so as to bring the number of pupils up to 200, was agreed to. In due course the poll was opened and remained so till three o'clock. About an hour afterwards the result was announced, and it was known who were the unfortunate five who could not be received into the School at this election. It must, however, be satisfactory for them in the hour of their defeat to know that other opportunities will be granted them, and consequently that ultimate success is by no means beyond their reach. These five are G. Alice Jay, who being first on the list came out last on the poll, with 508 votes, of which 215 were the result of four previous applications; M. S. Cooper, who with 419 votes from two previous attempts, polled but 304 votes additional, or together 723 votes; E. M. Hill, also a candidate for the third time, who increased her score of 11 votes to 742 votes; and E. M. Garnett and M. J. Sampson, both candidates for the first time, who polled 622 and 577 respectively. So much for the unsuccessful, with whom, as the smaller number, we have dealt first. The nineteen successful, whom we heartily congratulate on the result of the ballot, include all those who would have had no further chance of getting into the School. Indeed the girl at the head of the poll, G. Simmonds, would have been ineligible in October, and this being her first as well as her last chance, her friends made a supreme effort, and she came out first, with 1664 votes, or nearly 500 more than the number polled by the second successful candidate. London thus secured the first place, but the second was taken by the one Leicester candidate, D. Bolton, who polled 1171 votes at this her first application. No. 3, a London candidate, would have failed altogether had she not scored a sufficient number of votes, as she would have been over age in October. To her previous credit of 141 votes were added 933 votes, making a total of 1,074. No. 4 was an applicant for the first time last October, and obtained 405 votes. This was increased to 1,041 on Saturday, and the fourth place fell to one of the three candidates from Lancashire East. M. Whyatt, the one Lancashire W. candidate, was only a single vote behind her Eastern rival. There already stood to her credit 418 votes, and a further 622 raised the total to 1,040. Bessie Reed, hailing from London, stood 6th, with a total of 1,022, of which 317 were the result of two previous attempts. Nos. 7 and 8 were applicants for the first time, the former, from Notts, polling 1,016 votes, and the latter from West Yorkshire, who had this solitary chance allowed, 1,004 votes. A second East Lancashire lass stood next, with 974, of which 419 were the result of two previous efforts. London was close at her heels, however, as E. E. Spurging obtained 974 votes, of which 396 votes were brought forward from three previous ballots. A Devonshire girl, S. M. Norrish, who scored 178 in October last, increased the number to 963. The 12th on the list, a London girl, by name G. A. Daly, increased her credit of 116 to 947 votes. No. 1 E. R. Bellamy, was a candidate for the first time, a obtained 941 votes from her Lincolnshire friends and su porters. F. E. Wilton, of Singapore, for whom at h two previous attempts 187 votes had been cast, had 7 given her on Saturday, so that she stood 14th, with 91 votes, and not far behind her a London rival, H. E. Hoo who had this last chance only of success, and succeeded i raising her score from 283 to 896. Nos. 16, 17 and 1 were all candidates for the first time, R. A. Symon, fro the Province of Hants and the Isle of Wight, obtainin 872 votes; A. M. Brunskill, from Durham, 853 votes, an E. C. Thomas, from Warwickshire, 852 votes. The last c the successful was Clarissa E. Wright, of London, wh had 217 votes to her credit from two previous applications and was fortunately able to increase this number to 81 Thus London carried seven out of her eight candidates E. Lancashire two, Hants and Isle of Wight one out o two, while the Bristol, Essex, and Somersetshire candidate —one from each Province—failed to obtain a place. W append, as usual, the results of election:—

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

THE Quarterly General Court of the Boys' School was held at Freemasons' Hall, at the hour of noon on Monday, Lieut.-Col. Creaton occupying the chair. When the ordinary business had been disposed of, the poll was opened for the election of thirty-one, instead of thirty, as originally proposed, out of an approved list of seventy-eight candidates. The poll closed at three p.m., and as soon afterwards as possible the result was announced, full particulars of which are appended. The contest was comments by no features of special interest, and the few remarks we feel it our duty to offer are of the ordinary character. We note in the first place that eight out of the thirty-one were applicants for the first time, while with the exception of a few, the remaining twenty-two all had obtained a high place at the election last October. Indeed, of the eleven who stand highest on the list, ten need not have polled a single additional vote on Monday in order to secure places—on the assumption, of course, that the votes they did poll, were not cast for any of their rivals, but had been thrown away. The first five candidates were all from London. No. 1, R. P. F. Deeley, added 124 to his previous credit of 1687, and headed the list with 1811 votes. Shury, with 1655 already to the good, came next with 1753 votes, F. Dyer being third, with 1658, of which 1301 were brought forward; H. B. Searle fourth, with 1654, of which 1448 were brought forward; and Garstin fifth, his previous 994 being increased to 1424. A Kent candidate was sixth in order, with 301 votes from his previous attempt, and 1083 new votes, making a total of 1384. The seventh, H. Bingham, of London, increased his former total of 1023 votes to 1379; and Ceely, another London candidate, was well up with 1347 votes. The ninth in order, E. G. W. J. Taylor, hailed from the East Division of South Africa, and totalled up 1235 votes, 879 of which were brought forward. Colin Bell Sharp, the tenth in order, increased his credit of 850 by 348, making his total 1198, and thus secured a place for one of the Bengal candidates. Another colonial candidate, hailing from New Zealand, stood eleventh, with 1118 votes, composed of 428 standing already to his credit, and 690 votes polled on Monday. Nos. 12, 13, 14, and 15 were all candidates for the first time, No. 12 (London) obtaining 1115 votes, No. 13 (Somersetshire) 1113 votes, No. 14 (South Wales, Western Division) 1104, and No. 15 (Dorsetshire) 1028 votes. No. 16, from Northamptonshire, had seven to his credit, and received further support to the extent of 1015 votes. No. 17 (Warwickshire) had been a candidate at three previous elections, and gained 574 votes. There were cast for him on Monday 433 additional votes, making his total 1007. Nos. 18 and 19, from Cumberland and Westmoreland, and West Yorkshire respectively, polled the same number exactly, 1,002 votes; but the former had been a candidate twice previously, and had 650 votes to the good, while the latter was an applicant for the first time. R. T. Taylor, standing twentieth on the list, is from Malta. He had a credit of 612 votes, and 387 more were obtained for him on this occasion, raising his total to 999 votes. No. 21, from South Wales East, was only a few votes behind, the 600 to his credit being increased to 996. Shapland, of London, stood 22nd, having previously obtained 344 votes, and on Monday 625 votes, or a total of 969. Jepson, who was a candidate last October, but gained no votes, had 961 cast for him at this election, and so scored a success for East Lancashire. Woon, who had 977 votes to the good, obtained 261 more, and this, with a total of 938 votes, gave a second success to the Province of Kent. The two next, one from Somersetshire and the other from London, were candidates for the first time. The former obtained 927, and the latter 925 votes. Hutton, of London, tried in October, but only obtained 227 votes. A further 693, making his total 920, sufficed to give him the twenty-seventh place. Riley, also a London candidate, came next, with 905, of which 253 were brought forward from his previous attempt in October. Allen, of Staffordshire, with 5 to the good, obtained a total of 903 votes. J. Montague H. Mackay, of Devon, with 586 votes from three attempts, obtained further support to the extent of 290, giving a total of 876, while King, of West Yorkshire, an applicant for the first time, brought up the rear of the successful candidates, with 861 votes. Rossiter, of Cheshire, was only a few behind, and Fairman and Simmonds, both of London, made each a good fight, the former scoring 822, and the latter 799 votes. Thenceforward the numbers diminish rapidly, the sixtieth on the list having only twenty votes; No. 61, fourteen; Nos. 62 and 63, eleven each; Nos. 64 and 65, ten each; Nos. 66 and 67, nine each; Nos. 68 and 69, four each; Nos. 70 and 71, three each; No. 72, one vote; and Nos. 73 to 77 none whatever. Of the ten candidates who had this one and only chance of success, Gover, No. 1, though a candidate at six previous elections, only raised his total to 82; Edmonds, No. 9, had four votes; Perrin, No. 34, had 162 votes; Atkin, No. 41, obtained one vote; and Elders, No. 58, had 20 votes. All these, therefore, will have their names removed from the list, as they will be over age before the October election comes off. We think it a pity that people should have their cases placed on the list if they are not better prepared with support. Where, for instance, can have been the friends of Gover? What can they have been doing, when they can only secure for him 82 votes at seven applications? The hopes of the boy and his mother must have been raised to a certain extent, and now, after the lapse of three years and a half, he is nowhere in the contest, while others who work wisely and well carry their candidates at once. As between London and the Provinces and Districts, we find that the former carried twelve, or one-half of her candidates, while the latter carried nineteen, or rather more than one-third—four of these being from abroad and fifteen at home. We append the list of candidates:—

MASONIC PORTRAITS. (No. 54.)

A DEVON CRAFTSMAN.

The virtues of a private life,
Exceed the glorious noise and strife
Of battles won: in those we find
The solid int'rest of mankind.

THERE are few English counties so happily circumstanced as that of Devon. Its fertility is beyond question. It is rich in historical associations. Its "sea-dogs" take a foremost rank among our ablest and most brilliant naval heroes. Its principal port is the second naval station in the kingdom, and we may therefore add, with every feeling of confidence, that there is but one other in the whole world which surpasses it. It can boast of a long army of worthies, whose names are "household words" in the country they have adorned. It is, consequently, no matter for wonder that Devon should occupy a high place among our Masonic Provinces. Whatever there is of good and noble and worthy in the United Kingdom is sure of a position in this favoured district, nor is it surprising, therefore, that at a very early date Freemasonry, at its so-called "revival," in 1717, should at a very early date have succeeded in establishing a firm foothold here, or that in the long list of eminent Craftsmen, Devon should be able to boast of many among the more conspicuous. The subject of our present sketch is one of those who will be remembered with pleasure by all his fellows as a worthy Mason, as much for his practical application of the three virtues which it is the duty of Freemasonry to inculcate as for the deep scientific knowledge he possesses of its hidden truths and mysteries. He is one who, in every degree and in every office, has made it his chief aim to be as nearly perfect as possible in whatever was required of him. He has laboured hard, and his labours have been attended with more than the usual amount of success. He is not an old member of the Craft. Indeed, if we note only the number of years he has belonged to it, we must candidly admit that he is yet a long way off from the attainment of what we will venture to describe as his Masonic majority. But though his years as a Mason are few, he has served long enough to attain a very high degree of distinction, and our "Devon Craftsman" is not only well known and respected within the narrower limits of the Province to which he owes allegiance, but he is likewise known and respected in the far wider and more extended limits of the Craft throughout England. This is, indeed, a satisfactory achievement for one whose career as a brother has endured for less than twelve years, and if all our brethren were minded to work as he has done, there would be no branch of the Craft universal so firmly and so happily placed as that which acknowledges the rule of the Grand Master of England. There is this, perhaps, to be said as accounting for the success of our brother. He is a man of understanding and of culture. Moreover, by his very profession he is compelled almost daily to examine most minutely the nicest and most obscure points of the law. He must be prepared to give an opinion offhand on questions of gravity and delicacy, and it is easily comprehensible how one inured to such habits of mind would in a very short time accustom himself to deal with the abstruse studies of Masonic science. However, it is no business of ours to dwell at any considerable length on a brother's private career—using the word "private" in contradistinction from the word "Masonic." Our duty is to chronicle the deeds he has done in the cause of Freemasonry, and to this agreeable duty we forthwith betake ourselves.

The career of our "Devon Craftsman" as a Mason is anterior to his connection with this particular Province. In fact, his Masonic infancy and the earliest distinction he gained as a brother are associated with the Province of Kent, a Province much nearer the head-quarters of the Craft. He was, in short, initiated in the Holmesdale Lodge, No. 874, Tunbridge Wells, in the month of October 1866, and he attained to the second and third degrees in the months of November and December. In March of the following year, he was appointed to the office of Inner Guard, a subordinate office, yet one which even more eminent Masons still have again and again been pleased to hold—it is needless to say with what advantage to the Lodges of which they happened to be members. In March 1871, he joined the Sincerity Lodge, No. 189, East Stonehouse, and in doing so was under the necessity of severing his connection with his Mother Lodge. The propriety of such a step will be unhesitatingly recognised. It was impossible he could justly fulfil his Masonic duties in the Provinces of Kent and Devon, considering the distance at which they are situated from one another. It was incumbent, therefore, on him, when transferring his residence from the former to the latter county, to transfer his allegiance from a Kent to a Devon Lodge. On the 24th June of the same year, he was appointed Junior Deacon in the Sincerity, and on the same day in the year following he had the honour of being re-appointed to that office. In this latter year, he became a joining member of the St. John's Lodge, No. 1247, Plymouth, a comparatively young Lodge, having been constituted only in 1868, and requiring, therefore, it may be supposed, more support from young and energetic brethren than one which already boasted an existence of upwards of a century. On the 27th December of the same year he was appointed Junior Deacon of the St. John's; on 14th July 1873 he had conferred upon him the still more responsible office of Junior Warden of the Sincerity, and ultimately on the 24th June 1874, he attained what is regarded as the goal of every true and worthy Mason's ambition—the Mastership of his Lodge. On that day he was formally installed into the highest office it was in the power of his brethren of the Sincerity to bestow, and there were upwards of forty Past Past Masters present to witness the interesting ceremony. This fact alone will serve to show the high esteem in which he was held by his fellows. On the 24th June of the following year he was further honoured by being elected to represent the Lodge of Sincerity on the Committee of Petitions for the Province of Devon, and it must be obvious to our readers that such an election could only have fallen on one who was deemed worthy as well as in every way capable of discussing and adjudicating upon matters requiring the most serious and attentive consideration. On the 24th June of the following year he was re-elected on a similar Committee, and in two months' time, that is, on the 31st August, his valuable services were accorded a still more conspicuous honour, as on that day he was appointed to be Senior Grand Warden of his Province. That his services as a member of the Committee on Petitions were of a highly meritorious character, may be gathered from his election for the third time in June of last year, and as we are justified in anticipating his future conduct of affairs from what has gone before, we should say there is every probability that his Province will call upon him to continue on this Committee, so long as he has time and health to spare for the fulfilment of its duties. If we add that on the 25th June of last year, his connection with the St. John's Lodge ceased, we shall have noted all the leading points in his career as a Craft Mason.

As a R. A. Mason his career has necessarily been shorter, but we do not think we are over-stating the case if we declare it as our opinion that in this recognised branch of the Masonic science, he has achieved almost as great distinction as in the Craft pure and simple. He was exalted as a Companion in the Sincerity Chapter No. 189, East Stonehouse, on the 24th April 1871, or, in fact, only a few weeks after becoming a joining member of the Sincerity Lodge. In September of the same year, he was appointed First Grand Standard Bearer in the Provincial Grand Chapter. In January of the year following, he became Pr. Soj. in his Chapter, and in 1874, by a special dispensation of the Provincial Grand Superintendent, was installed as J. and H.; while in 1875, his honours as a Royal Arch Mason culminated in his installation as Z. or First Principal of the Chapter he had so regularly attended, and so ably served.

But it is not alone in Craft and Arch Masonry that our worthy brother has achieved distinction far above and beyond what ordinarily falls to the lot of Masons. On 2nd January 1872, he was advanced to the degree of Mark Master in Lodge Sincerity No. 35 East Stonehouse, and in the November following was appointed M.O. In 1873 he rose to the position of Senior Warden, and a week or two afterwards had the honour of the Junior Wardenship of the Provincial Grand Lodge of M.M.M. Devon conferred upon him, while on the very same day he joined the Elliott Mark Lodge, East Stonehouse. On 4th November 1874 he was installed as Master of the Sincerity, and in February of the current year he has achieved similar distinction in the Elliott Lodge. To complete the list of his Mark honours, we must add that in June 1876 he attained the rank of Junior Grand Deacon of the Mark Grand Lodge of England and Wales. As our readers are aware, the degree of Royal Ark Mariner is worked in association with, or, we should say rather, under the auspices of the Mark degree. It is not surprising, therefore, that one so attached to the latter should be desirous of fathoming the mysteries of the former, or that his desire should be abundantly gratified. Thus, we find that on the 23rd July 1873, he received the Ark degree in the Kent Lodge of M.M.M. in London; and in January 1875 he was installed the first W.C.N. of the Sincerity Lodge at East Stonehouse of Royal Ark Mariners, a post he was again elected to fill in January of the following year. He has further distinguished himself in the 18° A. and A. Rite, having been perfected in, and being foundation member of, the Huyshe Chapter, Plymouth, in April 1872, since when he has filled the several offices of Recorder, Second General and First General; and in 1876 was at length installed as M.W.S. of the same Chapter. He is now its Treasurer, having been elected as such in 1876, and re-elected last year. In 1875 he became G.E.K. K.H. 30°.

If we turn next to Templar Masonry, we shall find his achievements equally brilliant. In 1871 he was installed Knight in the Loyal Brunswick Encampment, East Stonehouse, and in 1873, as a Knight of Malta in the Royal Sussex Priory, Devonport. In 1875 he was installed as E. Preceptor of the Royal Sussex Preceptory, which he had joined in 1873, and E. Prior of the Royal Sussex Priory of Malta. He has held the office of Registrar of the Loyal Brunswick Preceptory since March 1873, and till quite recently was Provincial Chancellor of Devon, to which he was appointed in November 1873. He is also a member of the Council of the Great Prior of England, and Arch Treasurer of the Order. In the Order of Rome and Constantine, he has served with distinction in the capacity of M.P.S. of Sincerity Conclave, East Stonehouse, and he has been received as Royal, Select, and Super Excellent Master, in the Constantine Council, No. 2. He has been advanced to the degree of Zelator in the Rosicrucian Society, and is a member of the Royal Order of Scotland. Thus in every branch of Freemasonry and its offshoots "A Devon Craftsman," has sought and found illumination to his own great credit, and to the benefit of the Societies of which he is so brilliant an ornament.

But while we recognise fully the praise which belongs to him for his indefatigable efforts to acquire Masonic knowledge of every kind, there is one portion of his labours for which he deserves a still higher degree of praise. Freemasonry, as is well-known, is a Society for the cultivation of science of the more abstract kind, but this is not the only purpose for which it is intended. There are certain doctrines of a simple character, having relation solely to the duties of man towards his fellows, and it is the first duty of all true and genuine Masons not only to inculcate, but likewise to practise these duties. Charity is, of course, the foremost amongst them, and in the field of Charity the subject of this sketch has already laboured hard, and we rejoice to say, most successfully. In 1875, he attended as Steward of the Sincerity Lodge, No. 189, at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, when besides taking up other contributions, he himself qualified as a Life Governor. In July of the same year, he was Steward at the Festival of the Boys' School, for the same Lodge, qualifying as a Life Governor. In February 1876, he a second time represented his Lodge at the Benevolent Festival, again qualified as a Life Governor, and handed in a list of over £100 to the funds of the Institution. In June of that year he acted as Steward for the Province of Devon at the Boys' Festival, became a Vice President of the School, and took up a list of over £170. In February of last year he for the third time attended the Benevolent Festival, but as Steward for the whole Province, the amount of his list, £360 5s, being the largest collected by an individual Steward. On this occasion he became Vice-President of the Institution. At the last Festival of the Boys', he again represented his Province. Thus in the brief space of three years he has been the means of raising considerably over £800 towards the funds of the Boys' and the Benevolent, and has placed himself on the list of subscribers as a Vice President to both Charities. These are worthy achievements, which honourably match with those he can point to in Lodge, Chapter, Conclave, Council. We will merely add mecte virtute. Some years hence it is probable the Masonic chronicler will find these six Stewardships have been multiplied considerably.

We have now completed our sketch of as worthy a Craftsman as the Metropolis or any of our Provinces can boast of. Those who know him intimately are aware that he is what he seems to be. His duties are many, and they are practised in private from a scrupulous sense of duty, just as they are in public from the same feeling, and without ostentation. To meet him, is to admire him; to know, is to love and respect him; and in taking leave, we bid him God Speed in all his undertakings. May the career that is before him be of long continuance, and fruitful of all good to him and to his!

MILITARY LODGES.*

HAVING in a former article drawn the attention of our readers to the list of Military Lodges existing at the period of the Union of the two Grand Lodges in 1814, nearly all of which were originally warranted by the Grand Lodge of England "according to the old Constitutions," or governing body of the seceding brethren (Ancients), we are now able to exhibit lists of Military and Naval Lodges in work under the Grand Lodge of England, or Constitutional Grand Lodge, (Moderns) in 1765, 1788, and 1797 respectively.

It will be seen that Naval Lodges had, in 1797, ceased to exist, though so late as 1810 the Grand Lodge of Scotland received a petition from Lieut. Crawford and other Naval Officers for a charter to hold a Lodge on board H M. Ship Ardent, which, after due consideration and consultation with the Sister Grand Lodges of England and Ireland, "The Grand Lodge felt herself constrained to refuse."¶

In reply to several correspondents who have addressed us on the subject of "Military Masonry," we hope to be able to pursue this inquiry in further articles, and shall endeavour, at the same time, to place before those interested in the subject some Masonic anecdotes connected with the two Services.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The finest remedies in the world for bad legs, old wounds, sores, and ulcers. If used according to directions given with them, there is no wound, bad leg, or ulcerous sore, however obstinate or long standing, but will yield to their healing and curative properties. Numbers of persons who have been patients in several of the large hospitals and under the care of eminent surgeons without deriving the slightest benefit, have been thoroughly cured by Holloway's Ointment and Pills. For glandular swellings, tumours, scurvy, and diseases of the skin there is no medicine that can be used with so good an effect. In fact, in the worst forms of disease, dependent upon the condition of the blood, these medicines, if used constantly, are irresistible.

GRAND ORIENT AND ENGLISH FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In the few lines I addressed to you on the 2nd instant, I was anxious to show to those of your Masonic readers why the passage objected to by "Q." in a "Free-Mason and P.M.'s" letter was erroneous in a Masonic point of view. It is true when we enter the portals of the Lodge we leave our creed behind us; we cast it off as a garment to be put on again, and clothe ourselves with the lambskin of purity, and that in all our obligations we swear by "one God," hence we are deists whilst in the Lodge. But this does not destroy our faith, whatever sect we belong to in the outer world; sufficient for us that we refrain from all religious and political discussions whilst in the Lodge, that peace and harmony may reign amongst us. My aim was to draw the line parallel, and show the Christian who is a Mason and swears by the G.A.O.T.U. that in so doing he is swearing by that God who Christ called His Father, and of whom he described himself as the "seed," and Saviour of Mankind; so the Buddhist, in a Masonic Lodge, swearing by the God or Father of Buddha, of which the latter represented himself as the "seed" and saviour of mankind, in so doing would not cast aside in the outer world his belief in Buddha.

Yours fraternally, T. B. R.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Now that the post of Secretary to this Institution is vacant through the lamented death of Bro. R. W. Little, allow me to suggest, through the medium of your columns, that on the election of a successor the system of proxy instead of personal voting be adopted (especially as there is no immediate necessity to proceed to the election of Secretary). To this end let voting papers with the names of the several candidates be issued to the electors, clear instructions being at the same time furnished as to the manner in which they are to indicate the particular candidate they are desirous to support.

Let these papers, duly filled up and signed, be delivered to the Court by a particular hour, on the day appointed, and then let a body of scrutineers be told off to count the votes accorded to each candidate, and, this done, let the chairman announce the result.

My object in offering this suggestion is obviously to spare our Provincial brethren the trouble and expense of paying a special visit to London, which they must do if the system of personal voting is persevered in.

This plan will in nowise be injurious to any one candidate, while the provinces and the metropolis will be as nearly as possible on the same footing; on the other hand, in the case of personal voting, it will cost brethren in our remoter provinces, who are determined to exercise their right, as many pounds, to say nothing of their trouble, as it will cost pence to metropolitan brethren for railway, cab, or omnibus fare.

There is a second point which seems to me well worthy of consideration. A Special Court must be convened for the purpose of the Election, after the Committee appointed by the House Committee have sent in their report, and as the Election for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution will take place on the 17th May, I think it would be an act of grace on the part of the Committee of the Girls' School if they appointed the same day for the contest for the Secretaryship.

In such case, and in the event of personal voting being insisted on, many provincial brethren who are already bound to visit London for the Benevolent Election, would be enabled to record their votes at the election of a successor to our late Bro. Little.

I am, Dear Sir and Bro.,

Yours fraternally,

JOHN CONSTABLE,

Vice-Patron.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I shall feel obliged if you will kindly allow me to announce in your columns that Bro. A. Best, of the Freemasons' Tavern, has generously offered me the use of a room, with every facility for carrying out the ballot for my allotment of Life Governorships and Life Subscriberships of the Girls' School, on an evening previous to the forthcoming Festival. The brethren who have subscribed for my tickets will be informed of the day and hour by advertisement in the next number of your paper.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

ARTHUR E. GLADWELL, Steward.

P.M.'S AND THEIR PRIVILEGES.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—Kindly answer the following queries:—

1. Does a P.M. lose his right of assisting at a Board of Installed Masters, or of wearing his P.M.'s jewel if he does not subscribe to any English Lodge; and can he be admitted to a Board of Installed Masters under the English Constitutions?

2. The Immediate Past Master has resigned, likewise the Senior P.M.; what is the duty of the Master of the Lodge under the circumstances.

A YOUNG W.M.

[In our opinion, the answer to the first question is governed by the Constitutions, page 18. A Past Master, who ceases for twelve months to be a subscribing member to any Lodge, we are told, "shall no longer continue a member of the Grand Lodge; nor can he regain that privilege until again installed Master of a Lodge." If, then, the case contemplated by "A Young W.M." is one of a Past Master's severing his connection with the Fraternity, we should say he would not be admissible to a Board of Installed Masters under our Constitutions, nor could he wear a P.M.'s jewel. If, however, the case is that of a Past Master of an English Lodge ceasing to subscribe thereto, yet retaining his connection with the Craft by joining a Lodge under a Foreign jurisdiction recognised by our Grand Lodge, then we think he would still retain all his privileges as an English Past Master. Let us take the case of a Past Master of (say) our Antiquity Lodge, who changes his residence from London to New York. If he withdraws from the Fraternity entirely, he loses his status, and cannot recover it till he has again passed the chair of a Lodge; but if he becomes a subscribing member of some New York Lodge, it seems to us that he retains his privileges.

As regards Question 2.—If the I.P.M. and the senior P.M. are the only P.M.'s of the Lodge, it will be in the position of a newly-constituted Lodge of less than one year's standing, and the W.M. should try to induce some qualified brother to join, with a view to his acting as I.P.M.; or if there be already a P.M. among the members, let him be invited to act. But if there are more than two P.M.'s, there will still be a senior P.M. who will become such by the resignation of his elder brother. "A Young W.M." may even imagine that, though the I.P.M. has resigned, he still has an I.P.M. in his Lodge; for the junior P.M. but one would certainly, out of the P.M.'s subscribing to the Lodge, be the Past Master who had immediately preceded the W.M. in the chair, there being no other subscribing member of the Lodge who had intervened between them.—ED. F.C.]

THE LATE BRO. THOMAS AUSTIN.

ON Saturday, the 13th instant, the remains of Bro. Thomas Austin were interred in the Tower Hamlets Cemetery, Bow-road. The funeral cortège, which was conducted by Bro. R. Ayton P.M. 933, consisted of a hearse drawn by four horses, and four mourning carriages. The first carriage contained Bro. Stedman (a nephew of the deceased), Bro. E. Williams (the executor), and Mr. Weybret (an old friend). In the second carriage were Bros. J. G. Stevens, T. J. Barnes, Wainwright, and Myers. In the third carriage were Bros. Brown, Jonathan Taylor, Tucker, and W. Yetton. In the fourth carriage were Bros. Candlek, T. Yetton, and Eastwood. On the arrival at the Cemetery, the Rev. Bro. David Shaboe joined the procession to the church; he was accompanied by a numerous assemblage of brethren, amongst whom were Bros. Lacey, Barnes jun., Mole, Adams, Dudley, Gilchrist, Webb, J. J. Marsh, Lazarus, Job, Houghton, I. P. Cohen, Abrahams, Cotter, Jones, Edney, Battran, Waterer, McDonald, Holliday, McCarthy, Hogarth, Gaskell, Johnson, Lindus, Pinnell, John Taylor, Hewlett, and others, representing the following Lodges:—viz., 933, 554, 174, 1421, 186, 1306, 1178, 1326, 188, 1607, 1076, 205, 1579, 1445, 1107, &c., &c.

After the impressive ceremony of the service for burial of the dead had been read in the church, the procession was formed and followed the remains of the deceased to the grave, each brother being supplied with a sprig of acacia. On the arrival at the grave, and after the coffin had been lowered to its resting place, the concluding portion of the service was read; during which the coffin was bestrewed with acacia sprigs, and a bunch of white camelias was gracefully added by a lady, the daughter of a respected P.M. of the Doric Lodge.

Many expressions of regret and fraternal regard were uttered as to the genial temper and urbanity of Bro. Austin, and the universal opinion of the brethren testified to his worth, and ability as a Masonic Preceptor, his love for Freemasonry, and earnest desire to "look with an eye of charity on the failings of a brother."

THE LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

LODGE of Benevolence met on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. There was a large attendance of brethren. Bro. J. M. Clabon presided; Bro. Joshua Nunn was in the Senior Vice-President's chair, and Bro. James Brett in the chair of Junior Vice-President. Bros. Rawson, Levander, Cubitt, Hegard, Joseph Smith, Coutts, Dr. Woodman, Case, C. P. Cobham, John Constable, Rev. Dr. Brette, John Hervey, H. G. Buss, J. M. Klenck, D. R. Still, Nelson Reed, and C. B. Payne Grand Tyler, were among the other brethren who attended. There were twenty-five candidates for relief, and of these assistance was given to twenty-one, to the extent of £135. Three cases were incomplete, and the consideration of them was deferred. In one case the petitioner had died since his application was sent in,

In Memoriam.

ROBERT WENTWORTH LITTLE,

BORN 10th AUGUST 1838,

DIED 12th APRIL 1878.

IT is not surprising that, in a numerous Fraternity like ours, the painful duty of recording the death of some distinguished brother should occasionally devolve upon us. Last week, it was an able Preceptor whose obituary appeared in these columns. This week our task is to chronicle the virtues of a still more prominent member of the Craft, whose death, unfortunately, albeit he was in the prime of life, has been for months past expected by all who knew him. For a long time our deceased brother had suffered from that insidious disease whose ravages in our variable climate are so terrible, and it was long ago apparent that sooner or later, as his physical strength was capable of bearing a more or less prolonged strain, the end must come. But though so long foreseen, his death appears to have come upon us at the last as a surprise. We had been so accustomed to hear of his illness one day, and the next of his partial restoration to health, that many brethren can hardly for the moment realise that one whose name has been so familiar to them, is gone at last to that country, "from whose bourn no traveller returns." But let us pass without further consideration to the sad duty of the moment. Bro. R. Wentworth Little, the able and energetic Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, died on Friday last, and on Wednesday his remains were committed to the earth, in the presence of a numerous gathering of Freemasons, who had known him intimately in life, and were resolved on paying him this last tribute of their love and respect. That he was in every way worthy of such tribute may be gathered from a brief sketch of his career. We need not go much into detail, for in the year 1876 there appeared in these columns a pen and ink portrait of him as a brother well versed in the abstruse branches of Masonic science.* He was initiated in the Royal Union Lodge, Uxbridge, in the year 1861. In 1862, he was appointed to a junior post in the Grand Secretary's office, and in 1866, he rose to be second clerk and cashier. In 1872, he became a candidate for the Secretaryship now rendered vacant by his death, and in the beginning of 1873 he entered on his important duties. How well he performed them it is needless to point out. In the year of his election the income of the Girls' School was only £5,200. Last year, but little short of £10,000 was obtained at the Festival, while the income from all sources was in round figures £11,854. This is enough to show how ably, how energetically, and how conscientiously he must have laboured in behalf of the Institution, and if for no other reason than this his memory will always be held sacred among English Masons. He will be held up as an example to others, and whenever it may be judged wise to encourage a young brother to strive earnestly and laboriously to fulfil his duties, we can readily imagine that the successful labours of Bro. Little will be cited, and that he will receive the simple injunction, "Go thou, and do likewise." At all events, whether we do or do not imagine this may happen, there is every reason why such an injunction should be given to the Masonic novice, more especially as Bro. Little was not only an able official, but was likewise a brilliant Mason, who had achieved distinction of no ordinary character in every branch of Freemasonry. Thus, in Craft he had held the honourable post of Prov. Grand Secretary of Middlesex from its erection into a Province till a little less than a year since, when he received the still higher honour of being appointed Dep. Prov. G. Master. He had been Prov. G. H. of his Prov. Grand Chapter; while in the Mark Degree, in the A. and A. Rite, and in the several Orders of Masonic Knighthood, the honours he had had conferred on him were as numerous as they were considerable. He was, moreover, an able exponent of Masonic science. He had written much and well, and though it is probable that his health had latterly prevented him from using his pen as freely as of yore, he was a safe adviser in matters of Masonic practice and a learned teacher of Masonic doctrine. Moreover, he enjoyed what may certainly be described as the unique honour of having consecrated all the Lodges in the Province of Middlesex, while he was an honorary member of upwards of eighty Lodges and Chapters. Again, in the practice of that particular virtue which is so strictly enjoined on all Masons, Bro. Little had played his part worthily. He was a liberal supporter of all our Institutions, and had served many Stewardships, but especially was this the case with that Institution with which, for nearly six years past, his name had been associated. But need we say more in praise of him who is gone for ever from among us? The mournful procession of his brethren moving slowly round the place of his burial, and casting their sprigs of acacia into his grave, is testimony sufficient to the love and esteem in which he was held. He was, indeed, a worthy brother. As an officer of one of our Schools, he was distinguished by energy and ability; as a Mason, he was a wise ruler and a trustworthy counsellor; as an exponent of our mysteries in various Masonic periodicals, he had the pen of a learned as well as of a fluent writer. To her who is left behind to mourn his loss, who knew him most intimately, and must therefore feel the burden of her sorrow almost too heavy for her to bear, we offer our humble tribute of respect. We dare not intrude further on the privacy of her grief, but we take leave to say that at this supreme moment of her agony, she must derive her chief consolation from the knowledge that every Mason who has heard the name of Little associated it, as a matter of course, with the successful administration of our oldest Charitable Institution; while those who knew him, loved and respected him the more deeply the more intimate was their knowledge of his many and amiable claims on their regard.

As a matter of course there are already several candidates in the field for the vacant Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The names which have reached us thus far are those of Bro. Hedges, Bro. C. FitzGerald Matier our genial and energetic "Peripatetic Brother," Bro. H. A. Dubois, and Bro. Crick. The address of Bro. Matier will be found in our advertisement columns.

The Installation Meeting of the Langton Lodge, No. 1673, was held on Wednesday evening at the Masonic Club, Queen Victoria-street. Bro. H. D. Stead W.M. presided, and in due course installed, in a manner to be greatly commended, Bro. Jos. Langton as his successor. The Officers were then appointed, and later in the evening the brethren adjourned to a banquet, which was in every way worthy of the Club cuisine and its excellent chef. A most pleasant evening was spent; but owing to pressure on our space, a full report of the proceedings is held over till next week.

We have received copies of some catalogues of Bro. Dick Radclyffe and Co., the well known horticulturists and floral decorators, of 129 High Holborn. To most of our readers the name of this firm must be familiar, for at many of our Lodge meetings—the Etonian of Windsor is a case which occurs to us at the moment of writing—we have had opportunities of judging of their taste in floral decoration. A Masonic banquet room, well furnished with rare plants and flowers, presents a very effective picture. It is certainly "a thing of beauty," if not exactly "a joy for ever." Indeed, our readers may easily picture to themselves the prettiness of such a scene, and there are many and valid reasons why, at our festive gatherings, we should endeavour to minister to the pleasures of the eye as well as to those of the palate. As regards the catalogues to which we have referred, it will suffice if we say that they contain lists of every kind of kitchen-garden and floral-garden seeds, of choice plants and of all things requisite for effective floral decoration, whether for conservatories, for window-gardening, for rooms and halls, or for the garden, arbours, &c.; and we commend them to the notice of those of our readers who have a taste for this particular form of pleasure.

QUARTERLY COURT OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THIS Court was held last Saturday, in the large Hall of Freemasons' Tavern, under the chairmanship of Colonel Creaton. The attendance of the brethren was very large. At the commencement of the business Colonel Creaton announced the death of Bro. R. Wentworth Little, the Secretary, which occurred the previous evening. On the motion of Bro. John Boyd, Colonel Creaton was authorised to sign cheques, and a letter of condolence with the widow of Bro. Little was ordered to be written and sent to her. The chairman then informed the brethren, that although the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the Institution had fallen through for the present, he believed it would take place in the ensuing June or July. On the motion of Bro. Joseph Smith, seconded by Bro. Sabine, Colonel Creaton was elected Treasurer of the Institution. The General Committee of last year was re-elected, and resolutions were come to to elect nineteen girls; to transfer the funded property of the Institution into the names of the present trustees; and to authorise the Building Committee to incur an expense of £900 in laying out the grounds of the Institution. Colonel Creaton said that the Institution had bought a new piece of ground, which required to be laid out; and the old ground had been so much cut up with the works in connection with the new buildings, that it also required entire relaying out. He then suggested that as the works would not be complete by the time the new House Committee was elected, that the present House Committee, who had been appointed the Building Committee, should remain the Building Committee till the works were finished, as he thought it would be unfair that the existing Building Committee, who had had all the trouble, should have the completion of the work executed under the supervision of any new body. The meeting concurred in the chairman's view, and unanimously decided to let the present Building Committee continue to discharge their function still the works were finished. Bro. Thomas W. White's motion—

"That John Bond Cabbell, Esq., the Devisee of Trust Estates under the will of the late Bro. Benjamin Bond Cabbell, the survivor of the Trustees in whom the property of the Institution is vested, be requested and authorised to execute the necessary documents to vest the said property in the present trustees," viz.:—

The Right Hon. the Lord Leigh, Lieut.-Col. J. Creaton, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, and the Right Hon. the Lord Skelmersdale, was then brought on and carried, and after the chairman had stated that the condition of the grave of Miss Crooke, for thirty-four years matron to the School, should be attended to (the matter had been drawn to his notice by Bro. Sabine), the election of the nineteen girls was taken.

QUARTERLY COURT OF THE BOY'S SCHOOL.

THE Quarterly Court of Subscribers to the Masonic Boys' School was held on Monday, in the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of Col. Creaton. On the motion of Bro. Raynham Stewart, seconded by Bro. H. A. Dubois, Lord Leigh, who had expressed his willingness to act as trustee in the room of the late Bro. Bentley Shaw, was elected as a trustee of the Institution. A letter of condolence was directed to be written and sent to the widow and family of Bro. Bentley Shaw, and Bro. George Plucknett was afterwards re-elected Treasurer of the School. The General Committee was re-elected, and after scrutineers of votes had been appointed, the election of thirty-one boys to the School took place.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

Polish National Lodge, No. 534.—The annual meeting, for Installation of Worshipful Master and appointment of Officers took place on Thursday evening, the 11th April, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, W.C. The W.M. Bro. J. H. Cumming presided, supported by his Officers, and there were present the following Past Masters: Bros. John Boyd, W. Paas, Sculczewsky, Nowakowsky, Moore, &c., while amongst the Visitors were Bros. A. A. Davis P.M. 90, J. B. Sorrell P.M. 176, George Hunt (Revere, Boston), John Webber P.M., W. G. Atkins J.W. 857, G. R. Shervill W.M. 25, H. W. Alford 228, F. H. Atkins W.M. 890, S. B. Lipscombe J.D. 15, F. Romano 101, C. Phillips 185, Saegert P.M. 548, Gibson 3, F. Binckes G.S., Capt. J. Wordsworth G.S., Hubbard 813, Kift 749, E. Collins 25, W. W. Morgan 211, &c.. The Lodge having been formally opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. Jacomo Niedzielski, who had for proposer and seconder Bros. Dr. Jagielski and J. W. Ebner; the result was unanimous in that gentleman's favour. Bro. P.M. Moore, at the request of Bro. Cumming, now assumed the collar of W.M., and the worthy Secretary, Bro. Paas, presented Bro. Ebner for the benefit of installation. Bro. Moore then proceeded with the ceremony, which he completed in an eminently satisfactory manner, at the same time we must not forget to mention he had had no intimation previously that his services for this important duty would be in request. On the re-admission of those who have to content themselves with wearing the rosettes, the W.M. was saluted, and he appointed his Officers:—Bros. Aspinall S.W., Taylor J.W., J. Boyd P.M. Treasurer, W. Paas P.M. Secretary, Dr. Jagielski S.D., Dr. Corrie Jackson J.D., Lancaster I.G., Smith D.C., Becket Tyler. Bro. Moore then delivered the addresses and resumed his seat, after receiving the thanks of the brethren for the way he had conducted the installation. The new Master then proceeded with the ceremony of initiation in favour of his friend, Mr. Niedzielski, and evidenced that his attendance at the meetings for instruction which are periodically held by the members of this Lodge, had borne good fruit. The ceremony was faultlessly and impressively performed. After the report of the audit committee had been presented, and routine business transacted, the Lodge was closed. A capital banquet was then served in the Crown Room, and the viands were ably discussed. Bro. Ebner presided, and intimated, on rising to propose the several toasts, that as there were present several talented brethren, who were competent and willing to entertain the guests, he would not occupy much time in introducing the toasts. The health of Her Majesty and that of the M.W. the Grand Master were each offered, and fully honoured, the musical party effectively singing the National Anthem and "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The toast of His Royal Highness the Grand Master was followed by a selection on the violin, by Bro. Niedzielski, who was accompanied on the pianoforte by Bro. Giuseppe Romano. The performance was admirable, and well deserved the hearty applause with which it was greeted. With the toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers past and present were associated the names of Bros. Captain Wordsworth and John Boyd, and these having acknowledged the compliment paid them, Bro. W. W. Morgan gave selections from Knowles's William Tell. Bro. J. H. Cummings I.P.M. in brief, but felicitous terms, proposed the health of the W.M., and Bro. Ebner as briefly and felicitously responded. On proposing the health of the initiate, Bro. Niedzielski, the W.M. remarked that not only was he a Pole, but likewise an artist of a very high order of merit, as had already been shown by the performance with which he had favoured them. After a song by Bro. Dr. Jagielski, Bro. Niedzielski rose, and expressed his thanks for the kind reception they had accorded him. He was much gratified to know that he had been able to add to the pleasure of those present, and he trusted it would not be the last occasion on which he should have it in his power to contribute his modest quota of entertainment at their festive gatherings. With the toast of the Visitors were associated the names of Bros. Shervill, Binckes, and Hunt, each of whom replied, and Bro. Binckes in doing so mentioned incidentally that twenty years since he had had the pleasure of visiting the Polish National Lodge. After a Duett, by Bros. Hubbard and Kift, the toast of the P.M.'s,—the name of the I.P.M. Bro. Cummings being connected with it. Bro. Cummings responded, as also did Bro. Sculczewsky, who said that Bro. Binckes's reference to bygone days had brought a flood of recollections before his mind. As he gazed around him, he could not fail to miss many dear friends, who had been with them in the past. Still, it was a source of great gratification to him to see the present flourishing condition of his Lodge, and he trusted he might yet live many days to watch the continuance of the Polish National in its career of prosperity. He regretted the absence of Bro. Rath, and hoped that it was not in consequence of illness they had been deprived of the pleasure of his society that evening. Bro. Sculczewsky concluded this brief but effective speech by thanking the brethren present for the kind and cordial manner in which they had received the toast. Of the other toasts, we need only mention that of the Charities, to which Bro. Binckes replied with his accustomed eloquence. A conspicuous feature of the evening was the shortness of the speeches and the unusual strength and excellence of the musical part of the entertainment. Not only were the initiate, Brother Niedzielski with his violin, and Brother Romano on the pianoforte to the fore in this portion of the proceedings, but Bros. Kift, Hubbard, Dr. Jagielski, Dr. Corrie Jackson, and E. Collins contributed among them several songs and glees, a list of which we append for the benefit of our readers. Glee—"Strike the Lyre," Cooke. Part song—"The Soldier's Love," Kucken. Duett—"Twenty large domains," Balfe. Part song "Tar's song." Hatton. Song—"He was a careful Man." Song—"Kitty," admirably rendered by Bro. Collins, and Song—"The Leather Bottell," to which Bro. Hubbard did full justice.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

WHATEVER may be the opinion of the half score or dozen members of the House of Commons who voted the other evening for a shorter holiday than was proposed by the Government, we believe that members generally will be only too glad to obtain some relaxation from their arduous duties. They met three weeks earlier than usual, the Session has been a most exciting one, and if there has not been an overwhelming amount of business despatched, we need not go very far to discover the reason. We believe, too, that under all the circumstances, Parliament is quite content to leave the hands of Government unfettered. All the world knows what the ministerial policy is, and there is no doubt that the Cabinet will continue to observe, in the main, the lines which have been hitherto followed. As for imagining that the Government are more likely to advise Her Majesty to declare war during the Easter holidays than a few days before or a few days after, the bare suggestion of such an idea betokens a considerable amount of fatuity in those who make it. The situation is the same as it was on the 2nd instant, when Lord Salisbury's despatch had been written, and his Lordship went down to Windsor to receive the seals of office as Foreign Secretary. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has told the House distinctly that there is no change for the worse, and that he still indulged the hope that a satisfactory issue to the present crisis would be found. There was then no reason whatever for Mr. Fawcett to move, as he did on Tuesday afternoon, that the House should adjourn for a fortnight instead of three weeks, and the common sense of the House may be gathered from the insignificant minority which supported the honourable gentleman. However, let us give in outline the Parliamentary events of the last few days. In the House of Lords, on Thursday, the Endowed Schools and Hospitals (Scotland) Bill passed through Committee, and the report of Amendments on the Education (Scotland) Bill was received. A few questions respecting Continuous Brakes, City Churches, and other matters occupied the rest of the sitting. The greater part of Friday was devoted to discussing a resolution of Lord Oranmore and Browne on the subject of Agrarian Crime in Ireland. Among the speakers were the Earl of Dunraven, the Lord Chancellor, and Lords Lifford, Carlingford, and O'Hagan. The first part of the motion, which called upon the Government to take further precautions against these outrages was withdrawn, but the latter part, in which a return of the number of such outrages against person and property reported to the police between 1st January 1875 and 28th February 1878 was asked for, was conceded by the Government. On Monday, Earl Beauchamp, the Lord Steward, read a reply from Her Majesty to the address voted the previous week on her gracious message respecting the Reserve Forces. The Medical Act (1858) Amendment Bill was read a second time. A question by the Duke of Somerset as to the shell and plate experiments now being conducted at Shoeburyness, was answered by Viscount Bury. On Tuesday, the Marquis of Salisbury offered a few remarks on some recent comments of Lord Derby's as to the Austrian Army, which had given offence in Vienna. The Foreign Secretary pointed out that these comments had been made by the noble Earl on his individual responsibility; that there was nothing in the Foreign Office on which, in his (Lord Salisbury's) opinion, they were based, and that the noble Earl's views were not shared by the Government. The House, on the motion of the Earl of Beaconsfield, shortly afterwards adjourned.

In the House of Commons on Thursday, the greater part of the evening was occupied in discussing the financial measures of the Government. For this purpose, of course, the House resolved itself into a Committee of Ways and Means, and then a course of criticism was begun, the principal critics being Mr. C. Lewis, Mr. Holmes, Mr. Childers, and Mr. Goschen. The Chancellor of the Exchequer replied, the resolution of the Government was agreed to, and the House resumed. The rest of the time was devoted to the second reading of the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill, which was passed by a majority of 164 to 31. On Friday afternoon the Budget resolutions were reported to the House, and that on the Dog Tax was ordered to be referred to the Committee on the Customs and Inland Revenue. The adjourned debate on the second reading of the Public Works Loans Bill was resumed, and the bill passed this stage without a division. At nine o'clock the House resumed, but it would have been better had there been a count out, for hour after hour was wasted in discussing a motion by Mr. O'Donnell respecting the action of the Government in relation to the recent murder of Lord Leitrim. The honourable member had not proceeded far in his remarks, when he was interrupted by Dr. Kenealy. He went on, however, to state his views, but in a very short time there was a "scene" such as has not been witnessed for many a long year. The exact nature of this will never be known, for a motion that strangers withdraw was carried, and the House sat with closed doors till half-past twelve, when strangers were re-admitted, and the House shortly afterwards adjourned. On Monday, the Customs and Inland Revenue passed through Committee, all the Ministerial proposals being carried by immense majorities. The Public Works Loans Bill also passed through Committee. On Tuesday afternoon, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in reply to Mr. Forster explained the present position of affairs, and afterwards moved that the House on rising should adjourn till the 6th May. A long discussion ensued, in which Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Mr. Fawcett, Mr. Courtney, and Mr. E. Jenkins took part, but on a division the Government were supported by 168, while the Opposition mustered ten only. Then followed a long and unsatisfactory debate about a question of privilege, which Mr. O'Donnell brought forward. However, the Chancellor of the Exchequer's motion that the House proceed to the other Orders of the day was agreed to, but not till Mr. Parnell had been more than once rebuked by the Speaker for his conduct. In the evening the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill as amended was agreed to, and the third reading fixed for the 6th May, when the House will meet again after the Easter holidays.

The Court are at Osborne. On Sunday the Princess Beatrice, the youngest of the Queen's children, completed her twenty-first year, and the occasion was celebrated quietly and without parade, the band of the Royal Marines playing a selection of sacred music under Her Royal Highness's widow at an early hour in the morning, and a second selection during and after dinner. The Duke of Connaught and the Princess Louise with her husband the Marquis of Lorne arrived at Osborne on Saturday, and were therefore of the Royal Party. On Thursday the Queen held a Council at which the Chancellor of the Exchequer and other Ministers were present. As regards the movements of the Prince and Princess of Wales and their guests the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark, the latter are making the best use of their time, and are going everywhere and seeing everything. On Friday the English and Danish Princes and Princesses dined with the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, at their residence in Arlington-street. On Saturday the two Princes were present at the University Boat Race, and in the evening were entertained at dinner by the Duke of Cambridge. On Monday the Crown Prince visited Millbank Prison. On Tuesday the Royal party went down by special train to Sandringham, where they will spend Easter. The Princesses Louise Victoria and Maud of Wales also arrived at Sandringham the same afternoon.

In the athletic world the week has been an eventful one. We will say nothing as to the Inter-University Boat-race, as our readers know well already which of the rival Blues secured the victory, and with what consummate ease they did so. However, on Friday in magnificent weather and in the presence therefore of a great assemblage, the fortunes of the Light Blue had the upper hand at the Inter-University sports. The programme included nine events—the hundred yards, the quarter mile, the hurdles, high jump, long jump, throwing the hammer, putting the weight, the mile, and the three miles; and in five of these, the hurdles, the quarter-mile, the high jump, throwing the hammer, and putting the weight, Cambridge came off victorious, while Oxford won the remaining four. On Saturday at the same grounds, but in miserable weather, there was a repetition of last year's experiment as to trials of strength between men and animals, and everything passed off as well as was expected. On Monday was held the Champion Amateur Athletic Meeting, and unlike last year and the year before, the weather was all that could be desired. The programme included, besides the ordinary events, a seven miles walking match, and a four miles running match, Venn being the winner of the former, and Gibbs of the latter. This must be regarded as the principal athletic event of the year. As to long distance walking there has been another race at the Agricultural Hall, but only one thing of moment happened and that was the shocking death of a man who madly climbed to a girder under the roof and stood on his head, and in attempting to recover his position he lost his balance and fell to the ground. It is needless to say that he was picked up dead.

Madame Rachel has probably but few, if any, who sympathise with her in her present strait. Only a few years ago she was tried and convicted of obtaining a sum of three thousand pounds from a Mrs. Borrodaile, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude; but this does not appear to have exercised a sufficiently deterrent effect. She had resumed her odious practices, and had got hold of another silly dupe, whom she induced to part with her jewels in order to be made beautiful by means of the enamelling process. Her trial was concluded last week, and she is again undergoing a sentence of penal servitude for an equal term of years. Judge Huddlestone, in passing sentence, expressed his intention of not reducing, even by a single day, the full amount of punishment which the law permitted him to award, and the public have fully endorsed his action. The Mrs. Borrodailes and Mrs. Pearses may congratulate themselves that for five years they will have one chance the less of foolishly squandering their money.

Little need be said as to our naval and military preparations. We have a magnificent fleet ready for any service, and to-day (Saturday) the Reserves of the First Army Corps will join their depots, and in the course of a short time be under arms with the colours. There is, however, one item of news worth mentioning. The Indian Government have received orders from home to despatch a small part of our native Indian army to Malta. The force is not a large one, and consists only of two Light Cavalry regiments, six regiments of Infantry, two batteries of Artillery, and four companies of Sappers and Miners; but it is not so much the numerical strength of this force which will attract the notice of the public, both in England and on the Continent, as the Government's determination, of which it is the evidence, to utilize the vast military resources of our Indian Empire in case of necessity. Englishmen are perfectly well aware that it would take but a little time to raise 100,000, or even a quarter of a million of men in India, and they are not to be despised as troops when commanded by English or even Native officers. We know what the Sikhs did against us in the Punjab, and what they did for us during the mutiny. They are a warlike race, capable of giving a good account even of the disciplined Tartar hordes of the Czar of Russia. The Ghoorkas, too, are immensely partial to fighting, and will have no objection to fight the Russians. Our old Sepoy troops are excellent raw material, and have many a victory to boast of; so that, though the force may be small which will shortly be on its way to Malta, the act of despatching them will have a significance, and may exercise an effect for good on the political agents of the Emperor Alexander.

As regards the Eastern Question, we have but little to say. England holds firmly by the position delineated in Lord Salisbury's despatch, and she will not deviate from it. The world for the most part applauds her for the decision she has arrived at. Russia, however, seems equally determined to insist on the treaty of San Stefano, and has shown as yet no intention of modifying her tone, and until she does so, until she is willing to place the whole of the treaty before a Congress of the Powers, it seems clear that no Congress will be held, and the difference as between Russia and this country will have to be settled by an appeal to arms. We trust this may not happen, but it is idle to ignore the possibility of its happening. As to the position at Constantinople, the rival diplomatists are striving to influence the Sultan and his Government, the Russians to make alliance with the Czar, and Mr. Layard to incline them toward England. So far the Sultan has managed to keep neutral, to the great chagrin of the Grand Duke Nicholas and M. Nelidoff; but his case is a hard one, and he needs all the nerve he possesses, and if report be true, a great deal more than he possesses, to keep himself disentangled. As to the Roumanian question, Prince Charles and his gallant army decline to be disarmed, and will make a fight of it. They will also refuse to restore their portion of Bessarabia, and are appealing to the Powers to support them in their refusal. Austria-Hungary has succeeded in raising a loan of fifty-five million florins, but her mind does not yet seem made up as to the course she shall pursue. The revolt in Thessaly continues, and fresh troops are being despatched to the scene of action by the Porte. Servia is about disarming, and Greece is looking on, anxiously awaiting her opportunity. In short, the position is one of expectancy, and we rejoice to say that so long as this remains, so long is there a hope that a second and more terrible war may not succeed the one just concluded.

We beg to remind our readers of the announcement which appeared in our columns last week that the Grand Festival will be held on Wednesday next, at Freemasons' Hall. Tickets may be had of any of the Grand Stewards, but none will be issued after four o'clock on the day preceding the Festival. Dinner will be served precisely at 6.30 p.m., and the chair will be occupied by the Pro Grand Master, the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon. The musical arrangements will be under the direction of Bro. C. E. Willing, Grand Organist. Brethren must appear in full Craft clothing.

Bro. John Constable, our excellent friend and "Man of Energy," is about to visit Cape Town, and will be absent from this country for some five months. Under these circumstances, and as he is in the habit of receiving a great many letters from his Masonic acquaintances, he has requested us to make this announcement in our columns, so that, in the event of brethren writing to him, and, as would necessarily happen, receiving no reply, they may know the reason of what otherwise might be deemed a neglect on his part. We take this opportunity of wishing our worthy brother a prosperous voyage out and home, and we trust he may be successful in achieving the purpose of his journey.

Matier, assisted by Bro. Boggett Prov. G.S.O. Lincoln; Preston, Kemp, &c. The Lodge was then consecrated and dedicated, and Bro. Boggett was installed as first W.C.S. Besides the before mentioned brethren, we perceived Bros. Marshall, Roberts and Barker, Prov. Grand Officers of Lincoln; Bros. Dr. Hay, Haberland, &c., &c.

Cusworth, Clennell, Cogham, Yeates, Glover, J. Radkin, M'Dowell, and several other brethren. The Lodge was opened in due form, the preliminary business transacted, the ceremony of the first degree was ably performed, Bro. Soper being the candidate. Bro. Finch then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. P.M. Cusworth, who opened up to the third, and performed the ceremony of that degree in a most impressive manner. The Lodge was then closed in perfect harmony. Bro. McMillan will occupy the chair at the next meeting.

Hallam jun. was elected W.M. for the first week in May. The votes of the Lodge (four in number) for the R.M.B.I. were voted to Bro. Millward. In calling upon the brethren to drink the health of the Queen, the W.M. felt sure he should be supported by every brother present. Her Majesty is a noble lady, worthy of our respect. She is ever ready to support any charitable Institution, and generally to exert herself for the welfare of the country. After the National Anthem had been sung, the W.M. gave the toast of the Most Worshipful Grand Master. As Masons we could but be gratified at having so worthy a brother to preside over us. He hoped at the installation meeting, to be held next week, the Prince would be received, as he ever had been in Freemasonry, with enthusiasm. The Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers were next honoured. They are ever ready to do their duty, and to render assistance to the Craft. Bro. Usher had great pleasure in responding. At Masonic meetings it was only necessary to mention the names of those at the head of affairs to ensure a hearty reception. All who came in contact with the rulers of the Craft could bear testimony to the excellent way in which all the duties were performed. Bro. Harrison, the Chaplain, had now the pleasure of proposing the Prov. Grand Master, Lord Holmesdale; he was sure the brethren would be only too anxious to drink to that esteemed brother's health. The Masons of Kent felt especially favoured in having so worthy a Mason at their head. This toast having been honoured, was followed by that of the Deputy Prov. G.M. and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers past and present, coupled with the name of Bro. Bird. In replying, that brother thanked the members for the kind sentiments expressed. He considered that their D.P.G.M. was really the right man in the right place. Any of the members of Provincial Grand Lodge who attend the preliminary meetings must know how well he carries out the duties of his office. Great tact was required to govern so large a Province. Bro. Eastes personally visits the various Lodges, and finds out for himself who are worthy of Provincial honours. Bro. Des Barres, the I.P.M., rose: Although he could not call the next toast a royal one, he felt he could really term it a vice-regal one, as it was the health of a real good representative of King Solomon. Their present Master might be relied on, and during his year of office the work of the Lodge would be well and faithfully performed. Bro. Des Barres announced that the balance sheet of the Lodge showed that the receipts from all sources were £90 2s 6d, and the expenditure £75 18s 7d, the balance, together with the amount brought forward, now amounted to £38 9s 6d; he considered this a most satisfactory statement, and had pleasure in handing over the Lodge in so prosperous a condition to his successor. The W.M., in replying, said that he was afraid the brethren had expressed too good an opinion of him, but he was certain if it was in his power he would, during his term, merit their good wishes. Bro. Ayling gave the next toast, that of the Masonic Charities. There might be a few among them who hardly knew what the Masonic Charities really were. In their own district they had special reason to be proud of them. Last year, the widow of a late member of their Lodge had been elected to the benefits of the Benevolent Institution, and was now receiving £32 a year from that source. They had also been successful in obtaining a pension of £10 a year for a brother from the town, and only yesterday two boys from the Province of Kent were successful in obtaining entrance into the Boys' School. The case of one of the lads, the son of the late Bro. Woon, was well known to most of those present, and he felt sure that the thanks of Mrs. Woon to the Masons of Deal and Walmer would more than repay any little trouble they had taken in the matter. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Emmerson, who is well known for the interest he takes in the Charities, he being never tired of advocating their claims, and always ready to give them his support. Bro. Emmerson in reply said he had been called upon to fulfil a duty which he felt every Mason would be glad to perform. On behalf of the Charities he thanked the Lord Warden Lodge for their regular support. All must be pleased to see the Craft so prosperous as it is just now; however, we must not forget that the mere fact of being prosperous behoves us to provide for the many deserving applications that are made. The W.M. announced that the contents of the Charity-box amounted to the sum of £1 10s, and then proceeded to give the health of the Installing Master. He considered it one of the most important toasts of the evening. Bro. Ayling was so well known to most of them that it was hardly necessary for the Worshipful Master to refer to his good qualities. He practises outside the Lodge, in their fullest sense, those virtues we are taught in it, and truly demonstrates what Freemasonry really is. Bro. Ayling thanked the members; he considered he had only done his duty, and trusted he would always be able to act as he had done. The I.P.M. and the other Past Masters of the Lodge was next given. The I.P.M. had carried out his duties with zeal. Unfortunately, his military duties had on more than one occasion kept him from attendance at Lodge; however, he had always taken care to have a qualified Bro. to act in his absence. Being a young Lodge, they had not many Past Masters, but what they lost in number they made up for in quality. Bro. Des Barres replied. Being so young a P.M. he could hardly define what were the duties of the Past Masters, but he knew one duty was to assist the W.M. and Officers. Anything in his power he should be happy and willing to do for the Lodge, and he felt sure he could say the same on behalf of each of the P.M.'s. He could not sit down without again thanking the brethren for the kind support they had accorded him during his year of office; without their co-operation he would not have been able to carry out the duties of the chair. He must also once more acknowledge the handsome jewel they had presented him with; it had come most unexpectedly, and would be worn by him with pride. He considered that day the happiest he had ever spent in Freemasonry. Bro. Harrison again assumed the gavel. A few words would express the pleasure they felt in seeing so many Visitors present. He frequently visited Lodges, and was always well received. Their endeavour should be to accord as hearty a welcome to those who came to them as is given to the members of the Lord Warden Lodge when they visit other Lodges. He considered these social meetings were a feature of our Institution, promoting harmony and good feeling. Bro. Terry, W.M. of the Cinque Ports Lodge, having replied on behalf of the Visitors, the W.M. gave the "Masonic Press," which was acknowledged by Bro. W. W. Morgan jun. Bro. Bird was then entrusted with the gavel, and proposed the Officers of the Lodge. All Masons must know that if we intend to rule we must first learn to submit. From what he had seen of the Officers, he considered that no Master could hope for more support from that body than they were likely to accord to Bro. Kirby. It is only after a great deal of perseverance that any one can hope to attain to the position of W.M., and only by unanimity in working that success can be secured. The S.W., Bro. A. Laggett replied, and, after a song, the Tyler was called, and he closed the proceedings of the evening. The various toasts were interspersed by some excellent songs, many of which were deservedly encored, and generally the brethren had a most enjoyable meeting. Among the Visitors were Bros. T. Bent S.D., J. F. Solly I.G., and G. W. Moon W.M. 784; H. Harrison S.W. 1206, John Lees, R. J. Emmerson P.M. 1206, W. H. Herring Pentangle 1174, E. Terry W.M. 1206, W. W. Morgan jun. 1385, A. F. S. Cinque Ports Lodge, No. 1206.—At the regular meeting of this Lodge, held on Wednesday last, at the Bell Hotel, Sandwich. The Lodge was opened by Bro. E. Terry the W.M., assisted by Bros. R. Harrison S.W., W. W. Woodruff P.M. as J.W., C. Baker Sec., W. Denne as S.D., Woodward as J.D., T. Denne as I.G., Norris Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. R. J. Emmerson, H. S. Watts, Bird, &c. After confirmation of the minutes, the ballot was brought into requisition, and it proved unanimous in favour of a brother who wished to join the Lodge. The W.M. advanced the Lodge to the third degree, and then closed down to the first. Bro. R. J. Emmerson read a letter he had received from Bro. Langley, in which he asked the Lodge to accept an old engraving representing King Solomon's Temple. The W.M., on behalf of the Lodge, had pleasure in receiving this curious print, and proposed that the thanks of the Lodge be voted to Bro. Langley. This was seconded by the S.W., and carried unanimously. No further business offering, the Lodge was closed. The members afterwards spent a very pleasant social hour. The toasts of the Queen, the Grand Master, the Masonic Press, and the Visitors were given and duly honoured. Bro. Morgan jun. replied on behalf of the Press, and Bro. Usher for the Visitors.

Blunt W.M., Greenwood S.W., McDowell J.W., Mann S.D., Lockett I.G., P.M. Stephens Preceptor and Treas.; also Bros. Glaskin, E. Bishop, Giles, Jacob, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. After which Bro. Giles offered himself as candidate for initiation. Bro. Bishop answered the questions leading to the degree of M.M. Bro. P.M. Stephens then assumed the chair, and ably rehearsed the ceremony of raising; giving the traditional history and lecture, and an instructive charge. Lodge was resumed in the first degree. It was unanimously resolved that the sum of ten guineas should be given to Masonic Charity, and further agreed that such sum should be placed on Bro. P.M. Stephen's list in aid of the Girls' School Fund. Bro. Greenwood was unanimously elected W.M. for the next two meetings. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was duly closed with prayer, and adjourned till Monday, 29th April, at the hour of 7.30.

West Middlesex Lodge, No. 1612.—During the last two years it has been our duty to record from time to time the doings of the brethren of Ealing. Here our work has been of a most pleasant nature; we have been enabled to declare that the star of prosperity which shines so brilliantly over the destinies of this flourishing Lodge was in the ascendant. The meeting of Saturday last was the final one of the second session, and the business on the agenda paper was comprehensive, and as extensive as the most devoted Masonic student could desire. The brethren assembled at two o'clock precisely, when the Worshipful Master, Bro. A. Beasley, lost no time in opening his Lodge. The Officers were all at their posts, and took their seats as follow:—Thomas Kingston P.M., H. Kasner S.W., A. J. Burr J.W., T. Brown P.M. Treas., J. Chambers Roe P.M. Sec., J. Green S.D., W. J. Compton J.D., F. Delevanté Organist, H. E. Tucker I.G., Harrison Tyler. The list of visitors comprised Bros. J. C. Dwarber P.M. 55, W. W. Morgan 211, J. Owen 671, J. J. Gunner and Wills 780, T. Allen 784, J. Beasley 897, Charles Fogarty and J. T. Hatcher 1319. The minutes of the last regular meeting and those of an emergency were read and confirmed, and Bro. Beasley commenced the ceremonial portion of his work by raising Bros. W. Brown and E. T. Brown. There were two candidates for the second degree, Bros. Webb and Wills, and both were passed, the latter by Bro. J. Chambers Roe. The ballot was taken for two candidates for initiation, and the result was satisfactory. One of these gentlemen was present, Mr. Edward Thomas Bonner Allen, and Bro. Beasley gave him his introduction into our Masonic ranks. We have frequently spoken of the ability Bro. Beasley displays in rendering the ceremonies, and we will content ourselves here by remarking that on this occasion he did not give the members any reason to believe that his zeal or energy had become weakened by the heavy labour they had entailed on him during the two years he has filled the chair of the Lodge. The W. Master then reminded the brethren that the next business before the Lodge was the election of a Master for the ensuing year. He recited the names of those of the members who were eligible for election, and explained the circumstances under which Bro. Kingston, who had filled the S.W.'s chair during the first session had foregone his claim for preferment at the period of election last year. He spoke highly of Bro. Kingston's capabilities as a Mason, and of his eminent qualities as a man of business. When he had resumed his seat Bro. Kasner rose, and most gracefully requested the brethren to waive any claim he might have to their suffrages, as he was desirous of seeing the election result in favour of Bro. Kingston. Bro. Burr also spoke in the same generous manner, and under the circumstances we were not surprised that the votes of the brethren were almost unanimous in favour of Bro. Kingston, who in feeling terms acknowledged the kindness, and thanked the brethren for the confidence they had displayed, assuring them his study should be to promote the welfare of the Lodge and ensure the comfort of the members. The election of Treasurer resulted in the appointment of Bro. H. E. Tucker, and Bro. Harrison, on a show of hands, was re-elected Tyler. Bros. Allen, Fisher and Nye were appointed auditors; the resignation of a member was tendered and accepted with regret; and the name of a brother was handed in as desirous to join the Lodge. Prior to this, on notice of motion previously given, the sum of £10 10s was voted from the funds of the Lodge, to present the outgoing Master with a jewel, and some souvenir in recognition of his services during the past two years. Lodge was then closed, and the brethren repaired to the Railway Hotel, where a plain but substantial repast was provided. Bro. Beasley presided, and on the removal of the cloth proceeded with the toasts. The health of Her Majesty; the Most Worshipful the Grand Master; the Pro G.M. and the D.G.M., with the rest of the Grand Officers, were given in rapid succession, and with the latter was associated the name of Bro. Tyrrell, to whom Bro. Beasley was very complimentary. Bro. Tyrrell, in reply, remarked that he quite agreed with what Bro. Beasley had said when he stated that he was somewhat straining a point in associating his (Bro. Tyrrell's) name with the Grand Officers. He regretted his inability to reply so eloquently as he might have desired. His only pretension for association with the Grand Officers was his having filled the post of Assistant Director of Ceremonies of the Prov. Grand Lodge of Wiltshire. However, he would none the less sincerely thank the brethren for the way in which they had received the toast, and he trusted he might have many future opportunities of meeting them. Bro. Kingston proposed the health of the W.M.; he had had that pleasing duty to perform at several of their recent meetings, and hoped he might have the honour of doing so when the relative positions they occupied that evening were reversed. Bro. Beasley, on rising, acknowledged the kind way in which the toast had been given and received. This was not the first time they had accorded him a hearty reception. On this, however, the last occasion when he should have the opportunity of being with them in his present capacity, he felt he should like to say a few words. For two years he had, with the assistance of his Officers, had the pleasure of conducting the proceedings of the Lodge. He considered their progress had been eminently satisfactory, and they were now at what might be considered the end of their first chapter. Before, however, they finished with that chapter he would, with their kind permission, revert to what they had accomplished. He thought they might with gratification look back on what they had done; what they ought to have done; and what remained to be done. In the first year they not only started a new Lodge, but they made that Lodge successful, and had brought their financial year to a close with a balance—small it is true—but still a balance in their favour. The attendance of the members had always been all that could be desired, and the efficiency of the Officers had earned the approbation and the commendation of those competent to judge. At the end of the second year we find the Lodge free from debt, and having a prestige for good Officers second to none in the Craft, and not to be excelled either in desire or ability. He thought, under these circumstances, they had much to congratulate themselves upon. Individually, he felt he had cause to be grateful for the assistance he had received. And now as to the way in which this prosperity had been brought about. He was indebted to Bro. Morgan, who was a most welcome guest there at all times, for an idea, which he would endeavour to apply. Bro. Morgan had happily remarked, in reference to the Officers of the West Middlesex, that they seemed to realise the true spirit of Masonic association, and while this spirit continued, they had nothing to fear from comparison with other Lodges. He (Bro. Beasley) was the Father of the Lodge, and as one of its founders, had watched its progress with some amount of affection. After what had fallen from the brethren, he felt that he had been of some service to the Lodge, and the acknowledgment of the members would act as an incentive for him to still further exert himself. Any souvenir from the brethren—whatever they might decide on—would always be prized by him. Bro. Beasley then apologised for the length of his remarks, and wound up by proposing in very eulogistic terms the health of the W.M. elect. Bro. Kingston acknowledged the complimentary manner in which his health had been proposed from the chair and received by the brethren, and said it would be his most anxious desire to fulfil the onerous duties of the Mastership with credit to himself and advantage to the Lodge. Bro. Brown, Treasurer, and Bro. J. C. Roe, Secretary, severally acknowledged the toast of their healths, each of them expressing the pleasure they had experienced in the discharge of their duties, and the hope that the Lodge might continue as prosperously as heretofore. The Initiate, Bro. E. T. B. Allen, briefly but gracefully responded to his health, and trusted he should be found worthy of the honour they had conferred upon him by admitting him into the ranks of Freemasonry. Bros. Webb and Wells also expressed the pleasure they felt at having been received into the membership of West Middlesex Lodge, and having acquired in it their first insight into the mysteries of Freemasonry. Bro. Beasley then proposed the toast of the Visitors, with which he associated the name of Bro. Morgan, and if a postscript were needed, he would call upon Bro. Gunner to supply it. The compliment was duly acknowledged, not only by the brethren named, but likewise by all the Visitors, and Bro. Dwarber P.M. 55 and 1589 was eloquent to an extent beyond the average of ordinary speakers. The toast of the Officers was acknowledged by Bros. Kasner, Green, and others. Several songs and recitations were given, by Bros. Gunner, who was very amusing, Morgan, Delevanté, and others; and in the course of the evening the last mentioned brother introduced his daughter, who very kindly sang a couple of songs with great taste and ability.

Fenner worked the first section of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Lane vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Campbell, who rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Lane candidate. Bro. Crouch was duly elected W.M. for the ensuing week, after which Lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned until Friday, the 26th inst.

MILITARY LODGES.

MINDEN LODGE, No. 63, I.C.

SO little has been written on this subject that we need offer no excuse for returning to it. Hitherto our remarks have been confined to English Military Lodges, while two of our correspondents have been kind enough to draw attention to the existence of Scotch and Irish Lodges of a like character. Of the former, but little, we fancy, is known, but of the latter, we offer a few particulars which, we doubt not, will prove interesting. In January of last year there appeared in a Masonic monthly contemporary, a list, No. 3, of Old Lodges, republished by Bro. W. J. Hughan, from a Dublin "Pocket Companion for Freemasons," of the year 1735. This list contained 163 Lodges, Irish and English, Nos. 1 to 37 inclusive being Irish, the rest English. Among the former are no less than five Military Lodges, namely, No. 12, "In the first Battalion Royal;" No. 13, "In Major General Dalzeel's Regiment of Foot;" No. 25, "In Colonel Hamilton's Regiment;" No. 34, "In the Royal Regiment of North British Fusiliers;" and No. 36, "In Major General Price's Regiment of Foot." As far as we have been able to trace, none of these Lodges are now in existence. Of the ten existing Lodges, including "No. 730, Dublin Garrison," on the roll of Grand Lodge Ireland, several can boast of a tolerably long existence. Thus, according to the Irish Freemasons' "Calendar and Pocket Companion" for the current year, No. 26, in the 26th Cameronians, dates from the year 1810; "No. 128, 39th Regiment," from 1742; "No. 322, 29th Regiment," from 1759; "No. 354, 49th Regiment," from 1760; "No. 441, 38th Regiment," from 1795; "No. 570, 5th Dragoon Guards," from 1780. It is impossible for us, without further inquiry, to say whether the Warrants, bearing the above dates, have always resided in the Lodges which now hold them; or whether, during the whole period of their existence, they have been Military Warrants. Still, the inclusion of Military Lodges in the list of 1735, to which we have referred above, and the dates of the Warrants of existing Irish Military Lodges, show that this class of Lodge at an early date found favour with the Grand Lodge of Ireland. On these and any other points connected with these Lodges we shall gladly receive information. We now turn to the history of an Irish Lodge, not now in the list of Irish Lodges, which was published in 1849 by Bro. John Clarke, Sergeant Major 1st Battalion 20th Regiment, and at the time Senior Warden of his Lodge, remarking, en passant, that No. 263 (Irish) is attached to the 2nd Battalion of the same Regiment.

The Warrant, which was granted to Lord George Sackville, Colonel of the Regiment, and first Worshipful Master, Colonel Edward Cornwallis, and Captain Millburne, bears date December 1748, the day itself being illegible, the Regiment at the time being engaged in the pacification of the Highlands, which had been rendered necessary by the expedition of the Young Pretender, Prince Charles Edward. As regards the records of the Lodge from its foundation to the year 1802, they have been lost, a circumstance which is not to be wondered at, considering that during that period the 20th Regiment was repeatedly, if not continuously, engaged on Foreign Service. Thus, it was constantly on the move from 1748 to 1755, when it was stationed on the coast of Kent, to resist a threatened invasion. In 1756, we find it en route for Germany, where, in 1759, it took part in the memorable victory of Minden, and to the glorious achievements on this occupation is due the circumstance of its being known in future as the "Minden" Lodge. It continued fighting till the end of the war in 1762, when it returned home, and remained there till 1775. That during this period it resumed its labours, Bro. Clarke considers there is satisfactory evidence in the following, "written memorandum, and appended to a printed copy of By-laws, now" (that is, in 1849) "in the archives of the Lodge."

"The foregoing 26 Resolutions are recommended by the Grand Lodge to all Warranted, as most useful and necessary at this time.

"As given under my hand this sixth day of July, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventy Two, and in the year of Masonry 5772.

(Signed) WILLIAM DICKEY, G.S."

In 1775, the Regiment was ordered to North America, and landed at Quebec in the latter part of the year. It took part in the earlier portion of the war of American Independence, but though it maintained its former reputation for gallantry, it had the misfortune to form part of the force under General Burgoyne which, after the unfortunate battle at Saratoga, in 1777, was forced to capitulate to the American General Gates. The Colours of the Regiment had previously been destroyed, and Bro. Clarke thinks it not improbable that all the records of the Lodge shared a similar fate. The regiment were kept prisoners at Prospect Hill, near Boston, Mass., nor were they released till after the conclusion of peace in 1783. It will be interesting to know if, in the history of Masonry in Massachusetts, there is any mention at this epoch of members of the Minden Lodge mixing with their Boston brethren. From 1783 to 1789 the Regiment was employed in England. On 1st June of the latter year it sailed for Halifax, Nova Scotia, where it remained till June 1792, when it proceeded to St. Domingo, and thence to Jamaica, where it took part in suppressing insurrections among negroes and brigands. It returned home from the latter station in 1796, a mere skeleton of its former self, mustering only 6 officers and 70 non-commissioned officers, drummers and privates. However, it soon recruited itself, and was divided into two battalions, amounting to upwards of 2,000 men, exclusive of officers. In 1799, they embarked for Holland, and displayed their usual gallantry at Crabendom, under Sir Ralph Abercrombie, and at Egmont-op-Zee. They returned to England at the end of October the same year, and in the beginning of 1800 were sent to Ireland. In June, it made an unsuccessful attempt to land at the fortress of Belleisle, off the coast of Brittany, after which it was sent to Minorca, where it remained till, in 1801, the whole of the two battalions volunteered for service in Egypt, and having landed in Aboukir Bay, it again distinguished itself in the actions of the 17th, 25th, and 28th August, and 2nd September, and was thanked for its gallantry. It landed in Malta, in December 1801, and thenceforward we have some glimpse of Masonic work, not, it is true, continuously, but still with comparatively short breaks.

All this time, though everything in the shape of record had disappeared, the Warrant had been religiously preserved, but to what brother or brethren the Lodge was indebted for this piece of good fortune there is nothing to show. At all events, the Lodge, mustering eighteen members, met at Victoriosa, Malta, on the 29th March 1802, for the purpose of installation, and the record of this meeting is the oldest in existence. The particulars or minutes are, it seems, somewhat meagre, but we learn that Bro.

Charles Whitton, rank in Regiment unknown, was installed W.M., and that the Lodge increased so rapidly that, in June 1803, or fifteen months after its revival, the number of members had reached forty. Bros. Long and Kyme, of unknown rank in the Regiment, were W.M.'s in 1803 and 1804 respectively. From 1805 to 1811, the Regiment was engaged on Foreign Service, and the Lodge consequently did not meet. In 1806, the gallant 20th was present, and highly spoken of in the Commander-in-Chief's despatches for its conduct at the battle of Maida. In July 1808, it embarked for Portugal, and shared in the glories of Vimiero, under Sir Arthur Wellesley. In 1809, it served under Sir John Moore, and suffered greatly in the disastrous retreat to Corunna, as it formed the rear-guard of the army. It fought in the battle in which the illustrious Moore, himself a Mason, was killed. It embarked for England, and on landing at Portsmouth was greatly reduced in strength. When quartered at Mallow, Ireland, the Lodge resumed work under the old Warrant, the following being the letter authorising such resumption.

Dublin, 7th February 1812.

Sir and Brother,—Your memorial for the revival of Warrant No. 63 was received in course, and surprised me much, not having any trace whatever of it on the Books for above forty years, only a memorandum that it had been issued to your Regiment; neither can I give you any account why it was placed on the list as cancelled, it being before my time, but I suppose it was from the circumstance of its officers not making the regular communications for so long a time; there was a very strenuous application made for a second duplicate of it about two years since, but refused by the Committee of the Grand Lodge.

Yester even was monthly meeting of the R.W. Grand Lodge, before whom I laid your Memorial, with the Lieut.-Colonel's signature, and they have been pleased to order the Warrant to be revived without the fees as usual on such occasions. You will therefore instal the officers, and resume your Masonic labours, transmitting me their names, and that of each of the members for registry, according to rule. On receiving your return, I shall make the necessary returns, and am,

Sir and Brother,

(Signed) Wm. Graham, D.G.S.

P.S.—Your making the return and payment to Bro. Miles Edwards will be the same as to me, only by requesting he will advise me by the following post.

Serjt.-Major John Storey.
(63) 20th Regiment, Mallow.

Bro. Harrell, of unknown regimental rank, was W.M., but the time allowed the Lodge for its peaceful Masonic meetings was of the briefest. It sailed for Corunna in October, and thence it embarked for Lisbon. In 1813 it took part in the glorious victories of Vittoria and the Pyrenees, in the latter of which it was one of four regiments which charged the enemy four times with the bayonet. In 1814 it bore its share of fighting at Orthes and Toulouse, and afterwards landed in Ireland, when the meetings of the Lodge were resumed, Bro. Sergt. Winterbottom being W.M. in 1814, Bro. Sergt.-Major Hollinsworth in 1815 and 1816, Bro. Sergt. Porter in 1817, Bro. Sergt.-Major Hollinsworth again in 1818 and 1819. In the last mentioned year the regiment was ordered to St. Helena, where it had charge of Napoleon, but there was no place suitable for holding a Lodge. In 1821 it embarked for Bombay, but here again fortune was unfavourable to the resumption of the Lodge meetings; but on 19th August, at Cannanore in the Madras Presidency, it met again, thanks to the energy of Bro. Hollinsworth, one of four members yet remaining to the Lodge. Sergt. Johnston Wade is set down as W.M. for the year, and in 1825 we find Bro. Hollinsworth again occupying the chair. So energetically did the brethren work that from 19th August to 27th December 1824 there were no less than eighteen meetings, and the members increased to twenty-seven. On 24th October 1825 the Lodge assisted in laying the foundation stone of a Masonic Temple at Poonah whither it had removed that year. Bro. Lieut.-General Sir Charles Coville, the Commander-in-Chief, assisting the Grand Master. In 1826 Bros. Quarter-Master-Sergt. John Dorrington, and Lieut. Henry Clinton were successively Masters of the Lodge, and the latter held the same office in 1827. At the beginning of this year a medal was presented to Lieut. and Adjt. Hollinsworth for his eminent services in connection with the Lodge, and this and the following years are likewise memorable for the reception into Freemasonry of four distinguished members of the Lodge, namely, Captains Charles South, Charles C. Taylor, and Charles J. Deshon, and Assist. Surgeon Jas. W. Moffatt. At this time the funds of the Lodge had increased to such an extent that the widows and orphans of deceased brethren were entirely supported by them, and "magnificent grants to the Masonic Orphan Asylum in Dublin were frequently made." In 1828 when Bros. John Dorrington (2nd time), and Lieut. T. Burke were successively Masters, a silver cup was presented to the Lodge by a member who had received all his degrees, but had been subsequently removed on duty to Tabreez in Persia. In 1829 the Lodge, mustering at the time sixty members, removed to Colabah, where it continued its labours with Captain J. Deshon as W.M., this brother being re-elected the following year. In 1831 Bro. Lieut. Burke was again Master, the regiment having changed its quarters to Belgaum. During this, the one instance which involves any discredit to the Lodge occurred, a member being expelled for defrauding a brother. In the years 1832-3, Captain South held the Mastership; in 1834-5, Captain Cyril Taylor; in 1836-7, Assist. Surgeon Moffatt; and in 1838, Captain South for the third time. In 1837 it returned to England, and as evidence of the success which had attended the Lodge during the interval between its embarkation for St. Helena and its return, we append the following account of the members, who, to the number of 150, irrespective of the four who resuscitated the Lodge, became such during its Indian career:—

| Members belonging to the XXth and other Regts. in H.M. Service. | Members in the Honourable E.I.C. Service. |
|---|---|
| 1 Lieut.-Colonel. | 1 Judge. |
| 6 Captains. | 2 Military Chaplains. |
| 12 Lieutenants. | 9 Lieutenants. |
| 1 Surgeon. | 2 Assistant Surgeons. |
| 3 Assistant Surgeons. | 1 Ensign. |
| 3 Sergeant Majors. | 15 Sergeants. |
| 1 Quarter Master Sergeant. | 12 Conductors. |
| 68 Sergeants. | 12 Gentlemen of the Civil Department of the Service. |
| 1 Private. | |
| 96 | 54 |

During the time the regiment was stationed in England the Lodge only met twice, owing to a combination of difficulties. The year 1838, however, was marked by two events of interest, the presentation of a Gold Past Master's Jewel to Asst. Surgeon Moffatt on his retirement from the regiment, and the issue of a separate warrant for granting the R.A. degree, which had hitherto been conferred under the old warrant. The following are the names of the Companions to whom it was granted, namely, Lieut.-Col. C. C. Taylor; Captains C. South and W. H. Campbell; Lieutenants P. Hennessy, T. Burke, T. M. Creagh, and H. Hollinsworth; Asst. Sur. J. W. Moffatt, and Q.M. Serg. John Dorrington.

In 1840 the regiment arrived in Ireland. In 1841 it arrived in Bermuda. Then from 1839 till the latter end of 1844 no meetings were held. It then reassembled under its Master Captain South, who filled the chair in 1845-6, was succeeded in 1847-8 by Bandmaster F. Oliver, who was re-elected in 1849. In 1845 orders were given for the purchase of a Masonic Library for the use of the Lodge. In October of the same year it held its meeting at Hamilton, Bermuda, and was on terms of the most fraternal intercourse with Atlantic Phœnix Lodge, then No. 271, now No. 224, on the English roll. In the month following a splendid "Keystone" for the Mark degree was presented to the Lodge by the brethren of the Royal Sappers and Miners, Bro. Ross being the artist. On St. John the Evangelist's day, 27th December, there was a grand meeting, in which the Atlantic Phœnix and the Sussex Lodges joined the Minden. The brethren marched to church to hear Divine Service, and there was a grand banquet held afterwards, at which Bro. Captain South W.M. presided, and everything passed off most successfully. In 1846 Bro. Captain South was presented in open Lodge with a magnificent P.M.'s jewel, surmounted by a R.A. jewel in miniature. In 1847, the Regiment sailed for Halifax, where it remained only a short time, being removed to Kingston, Canada West. At the meeting on the 28th July 1848, it was resolved to have a medal struck, for the purpose of commemorating the centenary of the Warrant, and the old Warrant itself was to be suitably framed. On the 27th December of the same year, after having met in the afternoon for the purpose of installing Bro. Captain South as W.M., the Lodge re-assembled for the purpose of celebrating the centenary of the Warrant, the Minden brethren being joined by members of the St. John's, No. 491 (English), and No. 283 (Irish), there being present altogether 150. Service was held in St. George's Church, and then came the banquet, at which about ninety sat down, under the presidency of Captain South. This completes the account published by Bro. Clarke. What has been the fate of the Lodge since will be doubtless described by some equally competent historian.

"TOLERANCE" AND THE FRENCH QUESTION ONCE MORE.

By Bro. Jacob Norton.

I THANK "Tolerance" for his fraternal expressions in his letter of 9th March. But his arguments may be briefly summed up thus: "They are my opinions, and I am supported by Aristotle, Cicero, the Masonic Ritual, and the Bible." The last named authority seems to him unanswerable. "I proclaim, in fact," says he, "that God himself is a liar when by the mouth of His own inspired servant He declared, the fool has said in his heart there is no God."

If every Mason believed in the inspiration of the Bible, his argument would have been cogent and proper. But some Masons may doubt the inspiration of King David. David himself never claimed inspiration, either for the Psalms, or for any other sacred book of the Hebrews. There is no word in the Hebrew language to correspond with the word inspire or inspiration, and even in the English version of the Old Testament, the word inspiration cannot be found. If the Jews had believed in the dogma of Bible inspiration, they would at least have had a word to express it. The truth is, the word inspiration, like some other theological phrases, is undefined, and of doubtful meaning.* Keep, therefore, these biblical assumptions out of Masonic discussions. The pious zealot can prove from the Bible the sinfulness for a Christian to associate with Jews, Deists, &c., just as clearly as "Tolerance" proves about atheists; and last, and not least, it will only tend to involve us in an endless theological discussion, which we as Masons should try to avoid.

The questions to be decided are simply these:—1st. Are atheists necessarily stupid and immoral? and if not, is it not the duty of Grand Lodges to expunge that phrase from Masonic Constitutions? And 2nd. As moral and honest men can be found among atheists, what harm can it do to Masonry to admit them, and to alter the formula in accordance with the further extension of Masonic universality? or, in other words, eliminate all theology from the Masonic ritual.

"I can see," says "Tolerance," "there is a serious difference between Bro. Norton and myself as to the sense in which we severally use the word 'morality.' He, it is evident, uses it in the ordinary and accepted meaning. His notion of a moral man is the ordinary one, namely, one that is honest. . . Who will not appropriate to his own uses another person's goods, who will pay every debt he may contract. . . Who does not hanker after his neighbour's wife or daughter; who will not assault his neighbour, who will not conceal his enmity under a mask of friendship; who, in short, will not do any of those things which are commonly accounted of men as in the narrowest meaning of the word, immoral."

To this he might have added, the man who lives up to the golden rule, is in Bro. Norton's opinion sufficiently moral for Masonry.

These evidences of morality are with "Tolerance," the ordinary and narrowest meaning of the word morality, it is not enough for his standard. "I take it," says he, "to include the whole duty of man, in the sense in which such duty is described at length by Aristotle in his Ethics, and by Cicero in his treatise De Officiis;" or, in other words, the whole duty of man includes belief in a Deity.

I am not acquainted with the works of either Aristotle or Cicero. They certainly were not inspired writers; their opinions may therefore have been fallacious. One thing I venture to assert, viz., if belief, even in a Deity, was regarded by them as a duty, they must have been ignorant of the fact that belief is entirely independent of a man's will. But with this fact before us, I think that when man is good and true, and has done his best to investigate the various theological theories or beliefs, he has performed his duty, and when his opinion is settled he ought to refrain from promulgating it in private circles where it might offend some one present; but he has a perfect right to publish his opinions, whether they may agree or disagree with the prevailing religious belief.

"The atheist," says "Tolerance," "rejects all the ordinary forms of obligation by which men bind themselves to speak the truth. Therefore it would be an act of gross injustice to condemn or acquit a prisoner on the testimony of such a person."

The same arguments were formerly used to exclude the testimony of Jews, Universalists, and Unitarians. Thus, between 1823 and 1843 the Grand Lodge of Tennessee required candidates to avow a belief in future reward and punishment, which excluded Universalists (who disbelieve in devil, hell, &c.) from Masonry in Tennessee; and I am informed that, about sixty years ago, the testimony of Universalists was rejected in Massachusetts courts of law. But it has since then been discovered that disbelief in future punishment will not necessarily induce a man to swear falsely, and hence Tennessee admits Universalists into Masonry, and the law courts in Massachusetts receive their testimony, and, strange to say, Canon Farrar of England, and Mr. Beecher and other evangelical divines in America, are now defending the doctrines of the Universalists' Church.

"And other creeds will rise with other years."

* See Article "Inspiration" in Chambers's Encyclopædia, for the various notions of theologians concerning its meaning.

Mr. Lecky, in his most recent work, viz., "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," after narrating the persecuting laws enacted against Dissenters, goes on to say,—

"The other class excluded from the benefits of the Toleration Act, and existing only in violation of the law, consisted of all those who impugned either the orthodox doctrine of the Trinity, or the supernatural character of Christianity, or the divine authority of the scriptures. All such persons, by a law of William III., were disabled, upon the first conviction, from holding any ecclesiastical, civil, or military office, and were deprived upon a second conviction of the power of suing or prosecuting in any law court, of being guardians or executors, and of receiving any legacy or deed of gift; they were also made liable to imprisonment for three years." (Vol. I. p 337.)

These laws were in full force in 1717, 1723 and 1738; but yet the exclusion of Unitarians', &c. evidence in courts of law did not prevent the founders of modern Masonry from voting for Unitarians into the Masonic brotherhood. The fact is, in 1717 the founders of Masonry took up an advanced position of the age, as well as of the laws and law makers; they knew the laws against Dissenters, &c., were unjust, and they therefore formed the Masonic fraternity with the design of breaking up religious prejudices and religious persecutions. Against atheists, however, the founders of the Grand Lodge shared the common prejudices of the vulgar; hence they excluded atheists from Masonry. But we have now a class of Masons who cannot see that the world has moved, and that Masonry must move with it. These brethren are horrified at the idea of any one making an effort to advance liberal opinions, and to leave the world a little wiser than he found it; their highest philosophy is, "as we received it so we must impart it." If these declaimers against the French Grand Orient had lived in 1717, they would as bitterly have opposed the admission of Jews, Unitarians, Deists, &c., as they now oppose atheists; and the arguments they use are of the same stripe as those used both in Church and State, by Tories and Conservatives, against all kind of reform.

The French Masons of the last century have been guilty of saddling the Craft with the tomfoolery of Masonic Knighthood, and other high degrees, and, I am sorry to say, they are still silly enough to cling to them. But, nevertheless, to their credit be it said, that, in this century, the Grand Orient of France has taken the lead of the Grand Lodge of England in endeavouring to extend Masonic universality. It protested, before the Grand Lodge of England did, against the anti-Masonic conduct of the Berlin Grand Lodges. It acknowledged the coloured Masons in America; and its last action is simply another right step in another direction; it will banish sectarian jealousy and strife from Masonic Lodges.

The thief, says "Tolerance" "only sins against man, but the atheist sins against God; the former is preferable as a candidate for Masonry to the latter."

Now, how does "Tolerance" know which is the greater sin? And as to his preference for the company of an orthodox thief to that of an honest atheist, I think very few will share in his opinion.

"Hitherto we have been in a position to refute the oft-repeated statement, that there is no antagonism (he meant that there is an antagonism), between religion and Masonry."

Now, with due respect to "Tolerance," I maintain that these oft-repeated charges of antagonism have never been refuted. When he talks about religion, he ought to define the religion, because there are so many religions. Thus, in the fifteenth century, Lodge prayers were addressed to the Virgin, the Trinity and the Four Holy Martyrs; in the seventeenth century the Trinity was retained, but the Virgin and Holy Saints Martyrs were discarded. The Roman Catholic, therefore, charges Masonry with antagonism to religion, because, in his opinion, there can be no true religion where the Virgin and Saints are ignored. After 1717, the Trinity was also expunged from the Lodge prayers, hence, the Trinitarian charges Masonry with antagonism to religion. The symbolising of the Bible in the Lodge, conflicts with the Deist's religion, and the mongrel American Masonry is antagonistic to the Jew's religion. In short, as soon as religion was introduced into the Lodge work, that religion must necessarily have been offensive to those who believed a little more, as well as to those who believed a little less than the Lodge regulations prescribed. The measure meted out in the Lodge, satisfied but one class of religionists, and was more or less offensive to all the other classes of religionists. While on the other hand, if theology as well as anti-theology were excluded from the Lodge; if no one's religious prejudices, or preferences if you please, were either flattered or offended in a Masonic Lodge, the hue and cry about antagonism between religion and Masonry (except among ultramontanes and extreme bigots) would necessarily cease.

I shall conclude in nearly the same words as my opponent. I have now touched on most, if not all, of the points in Bro. "Tolerance's" replies to my communications, and having done this, I fraternally salute him, and all others who have taken part in the discussion whether pro or con. I thank the Editor for his liberality in allowing free discussion on matters antagonistic to his own expressed opinion, and it is certainly a source of gratification that questions of this nature can be discussed among Masons with perfect freedom, and without fear of provoking either anger or ill feeling among the combatants or spectators.

Boston, United States, 29th March 1878.

On Tuesday evening next, at the Prosperity Lodge of Instruction, No. 65, at the Hercules Tavern, Leadenhall Street, a ballot will take place for two or three Life Subscriberships for the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The amount so realised will be placed on the list of Bro. Charles Daniel P.M., who acts as Steward for the Mother Lodge at the Festival on the 10th proximo.

CONSECRATION OF A NEW MASONIC LODGE AT HALIFAX.

ON Thursday, 18th April, a new Masonic Lodge was consecrated by W. Bro. T. W. Tew J.P. P.M. 910 P.P.G.W. and Deputy Prov. G. Master for the Province of West Yorkshire, in place of the R.W. Prov. G.M. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart. This is the fourth Lodge now in existence in Halifax, and its rooms are the St. John's Rooms, King Cross-street, where the ceremony took place. There was an influential assembly of brethren, including Bros. Henry Smith P.G. Sec., Isaac Booth P.S.G.W., Austin Roberts P.M. 307, acting as P.G. Reg., C. T. Rhodes P.M. 448, acting as P.G.S.D., the Rev. I. Parkinson, acting as P.G.C., H. C. Scratcherd as P.G.J.D., F. Whitaker P.P.G.J.D., W. Schofield P.G.P., E. Walshaw P.G.S.B., John Simpson P.G.S.W., Thomas Ruddock P.G.S., and Joshua Lee P.G.T.; also Bros. W. Gaukroger W.M. 61, H. R. Wagborn S.W. 61, G. Scarborough J.W. 61, Thos. Whitaker W.M. 448, Charles E. Walshaw P.M. 448, Richard Jessop P.M. 448, J. Leed P.M. 1302, H. S. Roberts W.M. 408, C. W. Eastwood Sec. 1231, and others.

A Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened, the elaborate and imposing ceremony of consecration was gone through by the Deputy P.G.M. and his Officers, Bro. Tew duly dedicating and constituting the Lodge as "St. John's Lodge, 1736." After closing as a Provincial Grand Lodge, it was re-opened as a Craft Lodge, for the purpose of installing the W.M. and investing the other Officers. Bro. Isaac Booth performed this portion of the ceremony, and installed Bro. W. Beanland Spencer P.M. 408 and 448 as W.M. of St. John's, 1736, after which the following Officers were invested with their collars of office:—Bros. Edward Taylor P.M. 408 as S.W., H. S. Holdsworth J.W., Ely Dyson Treasurer, E. Taylor Secretary, John Green S.D., Alfred Gomersall J.D., W. Nicholl I.G., John Naylor Steward, C. E. Law M.C., and R. Riley I.P.M. After the transaction of ordinary business, the Lodge closed with prayer.

The brethren afterwards assembled at the White Swan Hotel, where a splendid banquet was served by Bro. Crocker. Bro. Tew presided, and was supported by Bro. W. B. Spencer W.M., and other officers already enumerated. Before the toast list was proceeded with, Bro. Tew, having to leave early, addressed a few remarks to those present. He should be glad to drink the health of the W.M. and Officers of the new Lodge, whom he warmly thanked for the kind reception accorded to himself and the Provincial Grand Officers that day. It had given them great pleasure to come to Halifax to consecrate the St. John's Lodge, which he believed was the 64th on the list in the Province of West Yorkshire. (Applause). He believed it was the fifth he had had the honour of consecrating since Sir Hy. Edwards was placed at the head of the craft four years ago, and that was a fact which he could not help thinking testified to the great popularity of the Provincial Grand Master. (Loud applause). Bro. Tew, concluding, called the attention of the brethren to matters which would come before the next meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge at Leeds, on Wednesday, especially referring to the proposal to be submitted in respect of the Benevolent Fund.

Bro. W. B. Spencer, in taking the chair vacated by the Dep. Prov. G.M., gave the usual loyal and patriotic toasts, which were cordially honoured.

The next toast was the M.W.G.M. of England, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; M.W. Pro Grand Master the Right Hon. Earl of Carnarvon; the R.W. Dep. G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present, which was also proposed in appropriate terms by Bro. Spencer, and heartily drunk, with honours.

"The R.W. Prov. G.M. Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., and the rest of the Prov. Officers, past and present," was proposed from the chair, and after being enthusiastically honoured, Bro. E. Walshaw responded, expressing his pride at being numbered among the Prov. Grand Officers on that occasion. Bro. F. Whittaker also replied, after which Bro. W. Gankroger gave the toast of the evening, "The St. John's Lodge, No. 1736," and in doing so expressed a hope that the Lodge consecrated that day would prosper, and that the W.M. and Officers might have reason to look back with pride to the occasion when the fourth Halifax Lodge was founded. "Prosper the Art" was then sung, after which Bro. Spencer responded. He remarked that at the foundation of all institutions of that kind some one must take the helm, and although he did not seek the office of being the first W.M., yet he felt the honour conferred upon him was very great, and one which he should always remember with pleasure. It was a gratifying thing that the W.M.'s and Officers of all the other Lodges in the town were amongst them that day, for it was an evidence of that perfect harmony which it was his desire should, and it would be his endeavour to make it—continue.

Other toasts followed, and the final one, to all poor and distressed Masons, concluded a very successful gathering, rendered more enjoyable by the vocal selections of the quartette party, composed of Bros. F. C. Atkinson W.M. 1648, W. Turner W.M. 1545, Thornton Wood I.G. 302, and Chas. Blagborough 439, whose names are a sufficient guarantee of the excellency of their services.

Stewards, Curry Janitor. The P.G. Chapter was then closed in ample form, and the Companions adjourned to the Queen's Head Hotel, and sat down to a capital banquet. Bros. Chancellor, Dicketts, Kingston, Levander, Nunn, Pass, Roebuck, Webster, Bailey, Jardine, H. M. Levy, and Marsh were nominated for the Audit Committee. Two notices of motion were given, and when the matter of the vacant Secretaryship was brought forward, Bro. H. A. Dubois informed the Committee that the statement which had found its way into the press that he was a candidate was entirely incorrect, as he had not, and never had, any intention of offering himself. A sub-Committee, comprised of Bros. Head, Rucker, Long, Nunn, Farnfield, Griffiths Smith, and Lt.-Col. Creaton, was then appointed to consider and report upon the duties and emoluments of the office of Secretary and the proceedings were brought to a close in the usual manner.

MEETING OF STEWARDS FOR THE GIRLS' SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

A MEETING of the Stewards for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls on the 10th May, was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall, for the purpose of electing an Honorary Secretary to supply the place of the late Bro. R. W. Little. The chair was occupied by Bro. Æneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar. Bros. G. Ward Verry, Griffiths Smith, R. E. Gladwell, F. A. White, C. Daniel, Alfred Layton, Thomas Massa, G. Bolton, H. Bartlett, E. Letchworth, J. Wordsworth, Dr. Brette, and E. Kidman were also present. Bro. Hedges attended in place of the late Secretary, Bro. Little. After a few observations from the Chairman, Bro. F. R. W. Hedges was unanimously elected Honorary Secretary of the Board. A letter of condolence was ordered to be sent to Bro. Little's widow, and the Chairman then informed the brethren that in consequence of the outbreak of whooping cough in the School, the customary visit of the Stewards before the Festival would have to be postponed sine die. Information as to when it would be safe to pay such visit would be given in due time.

A MASONIC WEDDING.

SOMETHING rare, if not altogether new, in connubial alliances has taken place in Fort Chalmers, New Zealand. The Otago Daily Times describes it as a "very interesting marriage." It took place at Holy Trinity Church, in the presence of a very large number of spectators, when Bro. Henry F. Dench J.W. of the Port Chalmers Marine Lodge, No. 946 E.C., was united to Miss Gibson, a daughter of a well-known member of the Lodge. A dispensation from the R.W.D.G.M., permitting the brethren to appear in Masonic clothing, had been obtained, and the W.M., with the officers and brethren of the Lodge, were present. On the arrival of the bridal party, a wedding march was played by Bro. Bott, Organist of the Church, and the bride, attended by ten bridesmaids (daughters of the W.M. and several P.M.'s of the Lodge), including three of the bridegroom's sisters, moved up the aisle to the front of the altar, where the ceremony was very impressively performed by the Rev. Lorenzo Moore, Incumbent of the Church. After the marriage, the W.M., Bro. C. de L. Graham, presented the bride, in the name of the Lodge, with a very eloquent bouquet of white and blue flowers, the centre forming a square and compass, together with a silver holder appropriately engraved.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Good Spirits.—Every one has frequently experienced sudden personal changes from gaiety to gloom. The wind and weather oftentimes receive the blame when a faulty digestion is alone the cause of the depression. Holloway's Pills can be honestly recommended for regulating a disordered stomach and improving digestion. They entirely remove the sense of fullness and oppression after eating. They clear the furred tongue, and act as a wholesome stimulant to the liver, and as a gentle aperient to the bowels. They healthfully rouse both body and mind. Holloway's Pills are the best known antidotes for want of appetite, nausea, flatulency, heartburn, languor, depression, and that apathy so characteristic of chronic derangement of the digestion.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I consider Bro. Constable's proposition, that at the election of a new Secretary to the Girls' School, proxy voting should be substituted for personal voting, not only reasonable but just. The latter system places the election virtually in the hands of the metropolitan voters and of the voters in the circumjacent Provinces. This, to use a familiar phrase, is very hard lines on the brethren in the remoter Provinces, who if the personal system is retained have the choice between sacrificing their votes or incurring a heavy amount of trouble and expense in order to record them. Where is the equality in the case of a London voter whose place of business is in the City, and whom a shilling cabfare will suffice to convey to Freemasons' Hall, there to support his favourite candidate, and the voter (say) in Newcastle-on-Tyne, who must travel to and fro some six hundred miles, at a cost of some pounds? Or take our Cornish and Devon voters, those in North and South Wales, those in Lancashire, Cumberland and Westmoreland, and the Yorkshire Provinces. In short, if we except parts of Middlesex, Herts, Surrey, and one or two other Provinces, all who wish to vote must do so under unequal conditions as compared with London brethren. I, therefore, urge upon you, Sir, to advocate, the plan proposed by Bro. Constable, so that all those entitled to vote may stand on the same footing. It will be said, perhaps that the expense of voting papers will fall on the School. This objection may easily be met. Let the candidates deposit each £5, or such sum as may be necessary towards defraying the cost of the voting papers, and the difficulty is overcome. No doubt the candidates will readily do this, as the number of Provincial voters is very considerable, and all will reap the benefit of the proxy system. At all events all will have the chance of doing so.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

FAIR PLAY.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In your obituary of our dear departed brother R. W. Little, you state that "he enjoyed what may certainly be described as the unique honour of having consecrated all the Lodges in the Province of Middlesex," of course this refers to those consecrated after his initiation; but even in this you are mistaken, as there are the following Lodges which, so far as my knowledge serves me, were consecrated by those yet in our midst whom we still hold dear:—Enfield, Acacia, Villiers, Strawberry Hill, and Crescent Lodges.

My only apology for this correction must be "Honour to whom honour is due."

I am, Dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

SPES BONA.

22nd April 1878.

PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

Cassell's Family Magazine displays the same features which invariably characterise its contents; that is, they are fairly apportioned between what is interesting and what is instructive. In neither of the serial stories, "Time shall Try," or "Suspense," does the interest flag for a single moment. Indeed, in the former we are favoured with a vast amount of information as to Edward Hallam's antecedents which enhances greatly the merit of the tale. In addition to these are two short stories, entitled "The Sphinx; a Mystery," in the one case, and "The Silver Lock" in the other. There are several poetical contributions, one of which, by J. F. Innes Pocock, called "Tears," is set to music by Dr. J. F. Bridge. Nor must the pretty effusion, "In a Meadow," by Guy Roslyn, be omitted in noting this portion of the contents. If we now turn to the useful we shall find, among other papers, one on "April Showers," by Mr. R. A. Proctor, a Family Doctor's "Plain Advice to the Neuralgic," a domestic article on the interesting subject of "High Tea," and what to provide for it, an answer by Lieut. F. I. Palmer R.N. to the question propounded by himself as to "What is a Torpedo?" and a second of the series of "Popular Papers on English Law," the County Court and the mode of procedure which any one who cannot obtain money due to him should adopt in order to recover the amount of the debt in question. There is also a short account of "The Cape and the Caffres," which comes appropriately enough just now, when another of England's "little wars" is raging in this colony. "Tell Burglen; the Home of the William Tell Legend," is also readable; the writer is the Rev. J. B. Head. If we add that the "Gatherer's" Notes are highly instructive, we shall have pretty well completed our survey of the number, and accordingly we leave it to our readers, in the belief they will be well pleased with it.

Part 20 of the Countries of the World serves to complete the second volume of this admirable work. Thus far we have got only as far as Mexico and the West Indies, but considering the immensity of the subject, we consider very good progress has been made. Moreover, as what has been done in these two volumes is so meritorious, we prefer it should be extended rather than curtailed, so that Dr. Robert Brown may have greater opportunity for describing, as he knows so well how to do, the wonders and resources of different lands. The principal illustrations in this part are "Negro Huts, Jamaica;" "A Cypress Grove of Chapultepec, near the City of Mexico;" "A Rural Kitchen in the Tierras Calientes (making Frijoles, or Maize Cakes);" "View of Newcastle, in the Blue Mountains, Jamaica;" and "View of the City of San Domingo, Hayti (from the Harbour)."

There appears to be no limit to the serial publications of an essentially useful character which Messrs. Cassell and Co. bring out for the instruction of the British. We have been favoured with a copy of No. I. of "Great Industries of Great Britain," and to judge from the excellence of the illustrations with which it abounds, as well as from the valuable information which is contained in the accompanying letterpress, we anticipate the work will be as popular as it deserves to be. A special feature in connection with this number is the Presentation Plate, which is, so far as we know, an admirable portrait taken from a photograph of one "Titus Salt," whose name is a household word in one of our great centres of industry. The contents include a series of papers on various branches of British Industries; such, for instance, as "Iron and steel—I.," by W. D. Scott Moncrieff C.E.; "Eminent Manufacturers—I. Sir Thomas Bazley, M.P.," by Robert Smiles; "Cotton—I. The Raw Material: Early History of the Manufacture;" "Industrial Legislation—I.;" "Ship Building—I.;" "Health and Disease in Industrial Occupations—I.;" "Hemp, Flax, and Jute—I." This will serve to show how the work is treated, and will be conducted.

Obituary.

It is our duty this week to record the death of an old but much respected inhabitant of Cowes,—Bro. John Luter,—who was for many years in trade in that town, but through losses and declining life he was compelled to give up business. He was the oldest Mason on the roll of Medina Lodge, having been initiated as far back as 23rd January 1834, and passed several degrees in Masonry. Of late years he was the Tyler of the Lodge, where he was universally respected by all the brethren. His circumstances latterly required assistance, and the brethren appealed to the Benevolent Fund and obtained a grant of £40 per annum for him. Latterly he often expressed, if it was not for his health, the present time was the happiest he had enjoyed for many years. He was of an amiable disposition, and made, we believe, not a single enemy. Only on Good Friday he was on his accustomed lounge, the promenade of the pontoon, and on leaving, we saw him, when he appeared in his usual health, going towards his home, which he reached, and almost instantly expired. An inquest was held on the body on Saturday evening, when a verdict of death from natural causes was returned.

The Advocate of New York contains a short account of the regular meeting of Holland Lodge, No. 8 on the 12th ult., on which occasion Bro. Joseph N. Balestier, a P.M. of the Lodge and P.D.D. Grand Master of the State, gave a very interesting historical lecture on the progress of the Lodge, and its vicissitudes of fortune during the last sixteen years. Bro. Balestier had at previous meetings, sketched the history of this Lodge, which is one of the oldest and most influential in the jurisdiction. He noted those prominent members who had been removed by death, and bestowed great praise not only on their services, but likewise on those rendered by other brethren. From the concluding remarks of the lecturer we gather, that the Lodge numbers 220 members, the majority of whom are life members, and he expressed a hope that all would become such, as in his opinion it was the safest and best plan both for the Lodge and the brethren. He also referred to the Grand Lodge debt of 800,000 dollars, and said he thought the only way to reduce it was to stop all mileage and per diem allowance to representatives to the Grand Lodge. A vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer, with a request that he would furnish a copy for publication with his former lecture.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—The Annual Dinner of the members took place on Thursday, at the Feathers Hotel, Ealing. The chair was taken by Bro. A. Beasley, W.M. of the parent Lodge, who was supported by Bros. H. Kasner and A. J. Burr, who filled the chairs of S.W. and J.W. respectively. There were present between forty and fifty guests, members of the Lodge of Instruction and the following Visitors:—Bros. Botley 780, Butlin 73, Hopgood 916, and Morgan 211. The dinner was served in capital style by host Bro. Stephens, and the efforts of the Stewards to make all comfortable were thoroughly appreciated. After grace, Bro. Beasley introduced a most comprehensive toast list; he advocated, and practised brevity in his remarks, and in this he was followed by the several speakers. The evening passed off most agreeably, and the efforts of several of the brethren to entertain, by songs and recitations, received full recognition. Bro. Delevanté, as accompanyist, was as genial and sparkling as ever.

UNITED GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

THE Installation Meeting of Grand Lodge was held on Wednesday last, at Freemasons' Hall, W.C. For the first time since his installation at the Albert Hall, the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales occupied the chair, and was supported by Lord Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale Deputy Grand Master. Their Royal Highnesses the Grand Wardens not being present, their positions were filled by Bro. Captain Platt, who acted as S.G.W., and Bro. Rev. Dr. J. E. Cox as J.G.W. Grand Lodge being formally opened, the Most Worshipful the Grand Master rose and informed the brethren that he had the pleasure of announcing that H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark, Grand Master of that country, was in attendance as a visitor. He therefore called upon the Grand Director of Ceremonies to see that he was received in regular form. A deputation was immediately formed, and shortly returned, introducing His Royal Highness, who was most warmly received by the brethren assembled. After formally saluting the Grand Master of England, the Crown Prince of Denmark took the seat at the left of the throne, which Lord Carnarvon vacated for the purpose. The Grand Master now rose and said: We are assembled in Grand Lodge this evening, Brethren, for the purpose of investing the Grand Officers of the year with the insignia of their positions. But, besides the performance of that duty, we are here assembled to give welcome to the distinguished guest who has to-night honoured us with his presence—my near relative, his Royal Highness the Crown Prince of Denmark, who is the Grand Master of the Danish Freemasons. I feel sure that you will give his Royal Highness the most hearty welcome. For my own part, I can assure you that it gives me the greatest satisfaction to see you on this occasion. The Brethren present having saluted their visitor in due form, he replied as follows:—Brethren, receive my warmest thanks for the kind manner in which you have received me as a visitor to your famous Grand Lodge of England. I feel indeed proud of being received so well and welcomed so warmly by my brother Freemasons of England. I trust that the bonds of friendship and brotherhood between England and Denmark, bonds which have been for generations of the strongest and kindest, will draw closer and closer, and that our friendship will increase more and more. I wish you collectively and individually health, happiness, and prosperity. On the proposition of the Pro G.M. the minutes of last Grand Lodge were put for, and unanimously received confirmation. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales having been proclaimed by the Grand Director of Ceremonies as Grand Master for the ensuing year, received the regular salute of the brethren, and then said:—Brethren, I am glad to have this opportunity of expressing to you, however inadequately, the great gratification I feel at your having again elected me as your Grand Master. I can assure you that it has been a source of the deepest regret to me that I have been unable to attend in Grand Lodge at your gatherings for some years. That this long time has elapsed since I last had the pleasure of being in Grand Lodge is owing to circumstances over which I had no control, and I sincerely trust that so long a time will not elapse before I again occupy this throne. Let me assure you, however, that though I have not had the opportunity of being with you for so long a time, though I have not had the time to work so actively in it as I should have wished, yet you may be assured I have done my best to uphold your interests, which are near to my heart. I thank you again, Brethren, for your kind and cordial reception to-day, and for my re-election as your Grand Master. The Earl of Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale having been re-invested as Pro G.M. and Deputy G.M. respectively, the Grand Master proceeded to nominate the following as Grand Officers for the year:—

Foxall received authority to assume the rank of Past Grand Pursuivant, and Grand Lodge was then closed.

The usual banquet followed in the large hall of Freemasons' Tavern; at its conclusion the Grand Master, who occupied the chair, proposed the health of the Queen. It required but few words of his to introduce the toast, as he knew it was always received with enthusiasm by every Englishman, and by none more enthusiastically than Freemasons. The toast was followed by the National Anthem. The Grand Master next proposed the Crown Prince of Denmark and the Foreign Grand Lodges in the following words,—The toast which it is now my pleasure to give you is one which is not usually given at our annual festivals, but it is one which I feel convinced will always be received by the English members of the Craft with the utmost honour—it is that of the Foreign Grand Lodges. That the greatest good feeling exists between the Foreign Grand Lodges and our own is well known, and I think it is most desirable that that good feeling should continue and be cemented in every way. The interchange of goodwill and courtesies between ourselves and foreign countries should, I think, be encouraged, and it affords me the deepest gratification to-night to be enabled to couple this toast with the name of my esteemed relative, His Royal Highness the Grand Master of Denmark. Besides the pleasure which this gives me, I know that it gives you, Brethren, pleasure to welcome the Grand Master of Denmark, for you know that it must be peculiarly agreeable to me to propose his health and to receive him at our gatherings. It was under the auspices of his father-in-law, the late King of Sweden, that I was initiated into the Craft, and it is now about ten years ago that I was received by the Grand Lodge of Denmark. My illustrious relative was not then a Freemason, and I told him then that I hoped the day would not be long before he became one, and would preside over the destinies of the Craft in his country. He has fulfilled my then hopes, and thus we are able to greet him here to-night as the Grand Master of our Danish brethren. There is much I should like to say of him, but in his presence I must refrain from the full expression of my sentiments; but I am sure, from the cordial manner in which you have greeted him in Grand Lodge, and here—with outbursts of the greatest good feeling—he will feel welcomed to the Craft in this country, and I can assure him that this reception of him would be followed by all the other Masonic Lodges of England. H.R.H. the Crown Prince of Denmark replied as follows:—Most W. Grand Master and Brethren,—I have to thank you for the kind way in which this toast has been proposed and received. I have been very much touched indeed by the way in which you have received the mention of my beloved and lamented father-in-law, whose pleasure it was to initiate the Grand Master of England, who, on his part, as my beloved brother has said, expressed the hope that I should enter the Craft. I acted upon his example, and I have had many reasons to be glad that I did so. I have always been happy among my brother Freemasons, and I feel especially proud to-day at being associated with the English Grand Lodge, and with the brothers holding allegiance to the Grand Lodge of England. You will, I know, brethren, excuse me if, as a foreigner speaking a tongue now which is not my mother tongue, I am unable to express all I feel in my heart; but I assure you that the remembrance of to-day—the ceremonies of your Grand Lodge, and your reception of me—will never be forgotten by me. I cannot sit down without expressing an earnest wish that the relations between our Danish and English Freemasons will always be as cordial and as hearty as are the relations between my brother-in-law and myself. Brethren, permit me to propose the toast of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and the Princess of Wales. The toast having been heartily responded to, the Most Wor. Grand Master, said,—I thank my illustrious relative most sincerely for the excessively kind manner in which he has been good enough to propose my health, and you, Brethren, for thus receiving it. This is not the first by many times that I have had the pleasure of meeting my Brethren in the Craft, and it is an additional pleasure to meet them in the company of my brother, as I do on this occasion. I have had frequent opportunities of expressing the great interest I take in everything connected with the Craft, and I have now only to reiterate those expressions. I have said before—speaking in Grand Lodge—that I have not been able to be among you so frequently as I could wish; but my interest in the work of Grand Lodge is never lacking. I have now the pleasure to propose the toast of the Grand Officers Past and Present. The Pro Grand Master and the Deputy Grand Master I have especially to thank for the manner in which they have discharged my duties in my enforced absence, and I could not leave those duties in better hands. The Earl of Carnarvon, in acknowledging the toast, said: Looking around at the blaze of purple and the multitude of insignia which distinguished those for whom he had to respond, he could not but think that they spoke for themselves the work they had done for the Craft. They represent two classes at least. First, with those who had that day been appointed to office, he was sure that the positions would be the more highly valued from the fact that His Royal Highness the Grand Master had himself conferred the dignities. Second, the Past Grand Officers, and to them Grand Lodge was often deeply indebted for their experience, knowledge, and judgment brought to bear upon any occasion of difficulty. His lordship took occasion to say that all the brethren felt highly honoured by the presence that day of their illustrious Grand Master, and of the guest whom it had been their privilege to welcome. His Royal Highness the Grand Master of Denmark had known full well how to take advantage of the opportunity he had had of addressing the assemblage, and just as his ancestors, centuries and centuries ago conquered England by force of arms, he now, by his graces of address, charms of manner, and mastery of our own language, had conquered and stolen away the affections of his English brother Freemasons. Lord Henniker S.G.W. proposed the Provincial Grand Masters. He wished the duty had fallen to some brother better known than himself. It was a toast that was always well received, both in Grand Lodge and at Provincial gatherings. Although the Grand Master was really the ruler of the Craft, and this the Provincial Masons were pleased to acknowledge, and ready to obey the dictates of Grand Lodge, they would not place themselves second in enthusiasm for the benefit of Masonry to those who rule the Craft in honour. His life as a Mason had been that of a Provincial one, and he returned his hearty thanks to the Grand Master for placing him in the position he now occupied. He considered it a great compliment, and it would be his aim to show that he fully appreciated it. He was gratified to know that another member of his Province (Bro. Lucia) had been selected by His Royal Highness for Grand Office, and he felt sure that the Masons of the Province would fully appreciate the favour thus shown them by Grand Lodge. General Brownrigg, Prov. G.M. Surrey, acknowledged the toast. He considered it a very high privilege to respond for so distinguished a body. The Grand Master was best able to judge of the way in which the office of Provincial Grand Master was filled. It was extremely gratifying to see the way in which the health of the Provincial Grand Officers was always received at Masonic meetings, it is a greater incentive than anything else for Provincial Grand Masters to do their work fearlessly and conscientiously. Lord Skelmersdale next gave the health of the Stewards of the day. Without them we should not have had much of a Festival. He had never seen a fete or Festival bettercarried out than it had been that day. It was not till a late hour that the Stewards received intimation that it was likely the Grand Master would be present: it, therefore, reflected the greater credit on them for the excellent way in which the arrangements had been carried out. Bro. Gooding, President of the Board, responded, after which, this part of the proceedings being ended, the brethren adjourned to the Grand Lodge Hall, where a concert was given, under the direction of Bros. C. E. Willing Grand Organist, assisted by Bro. W. Kuhe P.G.O. The artistes engaged were Miss Josè Sherrington, Madame Osborne Williams, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. J. L. Hodges, and Mr. Wadmore, Herr Schuberth (solo violoncello), and Bro. Howard Reynolds (solo cornet-a-piston). The arrangements throughout were most admirably conducted, and we think the Board of Stewards were fortunate in possessing among their number such brethren as Bros. Dr. R. Gooding, B.A., the President of the Board, Charles Martin the Treasurer, and Thomas Adair Macey Hon. Sec.

We have great pleasure in giving the following description of the invitation card for the Grand Festival this year. We understand it was designed by the Honorary Secretary of the Board of Stewards, Bro. Thomas Adair Macey P.M. 21. The invitation card is an admirable example of mediæval achitecture and mystic Masonic emblems, and carries the mind back to the period when the Guild of Masons was not speculative but operative, and when every Master Mason affixed his Masonic mark to his work—good and true. Foremost in the centre is the Book of Books, from whence is derived truth and light; above it is represented the all-seeing eye of the Great Architect of the Universe in the centre of a blazing star. The initiated will also recognise three other symbols of the Deity. This is somewhat significant at this moment when the Grand Orient of France has, by a late decree, expunged all reference to the Great and Supreme Architect of Heaven and Earth from its system of Masonry. On the left hand are the traditional pillars at the porch of King Solomon's Temple, and the winding stairs which led to that Inner Chamber, known to the initiated, surmounted by the arms of Grand Lodge. On the right hand are the arms and monogram of H.R.H. the Most Worshipful Grand Master, with a list of the Stewards of the year, and the badge of their office, overladen cornucopiæ, emblematical of the good things which they provided at the banquet. At the bottom, as the base of Masonry, in five scrolls, are the words Charity, Prudence, Fortitude, Temperance, Justice.

We beg to draw the attention of our readers to an announcement in our advertisement columns to the effect that on Wednesday next, the 1st May, a Grand Concert will be given in the Royal Albert Hall, in aid of the orphan children of our late respected Bro. Superintendent Mott of the Metropolitan Police. The Council of the Hall have kindly granted the use of the building for the occasion free of all charge, and the proprietors of the Whitehall Review have generously presented to the Fund 6,000 crayon portraits of the deceased brother, which may be purchased wherever tickets are on sale, as well as at the Hall itself on the night of the Concert, at the price of 1s each. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has graciously consented to patronise the Concert, and the following artistes have volunteered their services, namely, Madame Lemmens Sherrington, Madame Antoinette Sterling, Miss Anna Williams, Miss Julia Elton, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Walter Clifford, Signor Foli, and the London Vocal Union under the direction of Mr. F. Walker. Four military bands, by the kind permission of the several commanding officers, will lend their aid in furtherance of the good cause, namely, those of the Second Life Guards, and the Grenadier, Coldstream, and Scots Guards, under the direction respectively of Messrs. R. Winterbottom, D. Godfrey, C. Godfrey, and J. P. Clarke. The conductors will be Messrs. F. H. Cowen and Sidney Naylor and Herr Ganz. Mrs. Stirling will likewise recite "The Whaler Fleet." For the prices of the different seats, we refer our readers to the advertisement itself, and it only remains for us to say that we trust an amply sufficient fund for the maintenance of these orphans may be obtained. Bro. Mott's services in the Police Force extended over many years, were of a very arduous nature, and were performed thoroughly and most conscientiously. He died prematurely, after a very brief illness, and had had little chance, therefore, of making a suitable provision for those most dear to him. He was, moreover, a most worthy brother, full of kindly feeling towards his fellows, and ready at all times to extend towards them a helping hand in case of need. We trust, under these circumstances, that the hope to which we have given expression will be realised, and that the Concert will prove a grand success.

We have been favoured with an indignant and somewhat contradictory letter, from our worthy Bro. H. A. Dubois. The offence we have been unwittingly guilty of towards him is, that we announced last week that he, among others, was a candidate for the vacant Secretaryship. Of course we retract the statement without a moment's hesitation. We have Bro. Dubois' authority for announcing most emphatically that he is NOT a candidate for the post. We do more than this! We humbly apologise to him for the error into which we have been betrayed. We must at the same time state, in justice to ourselves, that his name was not "unwarrantably introduced," into the objectionable paragraph. On the contrary, the name with the others was given us, on what we had a right to consider as very sufficient authority, though, as it appears, the information turns out to be erroneous. However, we do not regard the error as one of sufficient gravity to have evoked so indignant a remonstrance from Bro. Dubois. He candidly confesses he is not the man to follow in the footsteps of the late Bro. Little. We are of a different opinion, but at the same time we defer to his superior judgment, and state that not only is Bro. Dubois not a candidate for the vacant Secretaryship, but, in his opinion, he (Bro. Dubois) is not the man to succeed Bro. Little. Moreover, Bro. Dubois has, we are given to understand, successfully followed his profession of an accountant for nineteen years, and, as a matter of common sense, he would not be justified in throwing that up for a post "which, though of great importance, does not favourably recommend itself" to him. Thus it happens that Bro. Dubois is not suited for the post, and the post is not suited for Bro. Dubois. Can we say more than that we apologise for having over-estimated Bro Dubois' qualifications and the value of the vacant office?

ELECTION OF SECRETARY.

BRETHREN desirious of securing the Election of Bro. CHARLES FITZGERALD MATIER, are respectfully requested to forward their names to—

BRO. STEPHEN BARTON WILSON,
27 Walbrook, London E.C. Hon. Secretary.

To the Patron, Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

YOUR ROYAL HIGHNESSES, MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

In consequence of the lamented decease of the late Bro. R. Wentworth Little, a vacancy has occurred in the Secretaryship of this Institution, and I beg most respectfully to state that it is my intention to offer myself as a Candidate for the Office.

The experience I have gained during my five years connexion in the office as Clerk, will, I trust, be of service to me should I be successful in obtaining the appointment.

I may mention that during Bro. Little's illness nearly the whole of the Secretarial duties have devolved upon me, and I venture to hope, from the manner in which they have been discharged, it will induce you to honor me with your support should the Committee think fit to accept me as a Candidate.

I have the honour to be,
Your Royal Highnesses, my Lords and Gentlemen,
Your obedient humble servant,

28th April 1878. F. R. W. HEDGES.

5 Freemasons' Hall,
Great Queen Street, London, W.C.

Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

BRETHREN,—The Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls having become vacant by the lamented death of Bro. R. W. Little, I aspire to become his successor.

It would be presumptuous in me to suppose that I possess the many qualifications which distinguished the late Secretary, qualifications so eminent as to have raised the Institution to a position higher than even the expectations of its most sanguine supporters could have anticipated; I nevertheless possess two qualifications which justify me in offering my services—viz., primeness of manhood and energetic willingness.

My Masonic career has been comparatively short, but I have seen and done some service in the Craft. I was initiated in the Canonbury Lodge, 657, in 1867, and became its W.M. in 1871. I attended for some time the sittings of the Board of Benevolence as one of the elected Members, and have served Stewardships to the Royal Benevolent Institution and the Boys' School. I am likewise Secretary to the Sunbury Lodge, No. 1733, holding its meetings at Sunbury, Middlesex.

I was born in 1841, of English parents residing in Paris, and was educated at the then Lycée Bonaparte. I distinguished myself as a prizeman at my Lycée, which I on several occasions represented with honour at the competitions of the Sorbonne. Before leaving the University I graduated Bachelor of Sciences.

Meanwhile, and for some time after, I assisted my father in the preparation of a French and English Dictionary, and in revising for the press several class books and translations of English and French works. In the year 1865 I came to England, and have since that time been engaged in the business of a law stationer. My scholastic attainments are a thorough knowledge of French, English, Latin, and Mathematics.

I have an intimate acquaintance with the Institution. Having been privileged on many occasions to visit the School, I have made the acquaintance of the educational executive, and highly appreciate the system adopted, and the anxious endeavours of the House Committee to render the establishment a success.

Should I obtain the position I seek, my best exertions shall be devoted to promoting the prosperity of the Institution, and my whole time given to increase, and render permanent, the advantages now offered to the pupils.

I have the honour to be, Brethren,
Yours faithfully and fraternally,
WILLIAM CLIFTON CRICK.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE Queen and the Princess Beatrice, who have been staying for some few weeks at Osborne, returned to Windsor Castle on Thursday afternoon. The Prince and Princess of Wales with their children and their guests the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark and the Duke of Cambridge have been spending the Easter holidays at Sandringham, but they returned to town on Wednesday afternoon. In the evening the Prince of Wales and the Crown Prince honoured Grand Lodge with their presence, the latter being received by direction of his Royal brother-in-law with the usual ceremonial, and meeting with a hearty welcome from his English brethren. After this pleasing episode, the Prince of Wales was re-installed as Grand Master, and then appointed his Officers for the year. The customary banquet followed, at which the Prince, the Crown Prince, the Earl of Carnarvon, Lord

Skelmersdale, and about 250 brethren sat down; for the account of the gathering we refer our readers to another portion of our columns. On Thursday evening His Royal Highness left London for Paris, where he will prolong his stay into the second week in May. As our readers are aware, the Prince is President of the Royal British Commission for the Paris Exhibition, which will be opened on Wednesday, the 1st prox., and his Royal Highness has taken a deep and active interest in the duties of his position.

Parliament is enjoying a well-earned respite from its onerous duties, and even ministers have been enabled to seek refuge in the country from the weariness of their official labours. The Foreign Secretary and the Marchioness of Salisbury have been staying at Hatfield, and the Prime Minister has been on a visit there. But the political situation is such as to engross by far the largest share of public attention, and any bye-elections, of which there have been several lately, are watched with interest. It does not often happen, especially in a large county constituency like that of South Northumberland, that the election results in a double return, but such was the case last week, when Messrs. Ridley (Conservative) and Grey (Liberal) both polled 2912 votes. The first time of counting them the former had 2914, but two of them were invalid by reason of the name of Grey being written on them, and Mr. Ridley generously refused to be returned by the casting vote of the High Sheriff who it was known would, as a Conservative, have given it in his favour. So the question which of the two gentlemen shall sit as representative for the Constituency must be settled by the House of Commons. At the election for the vacant seat at Tamworth Mr. Hamar Bass (Liberal) was on Wednesday returned by 1186 votes over Colonel Bridgman who polled 667. There is also a vacancy for the Denbigh Boroughs caused by the resignation of Mr. W. Williams, who differed from his constituents on some essential points.

The strike in the cotton trade in Lancashire is a matter for deep regret. These occurrences always cause a serious amount of harm to the trade of the whole country, besides inflicting the most terrible losses on the working classes, but especially on their wives and children. It is well known that in this branch of our industries there has been for some time past great stagnation. Over-production, the greater cost of production, and other causes have combined together and exercised a most depressing effect on cotton manufacture, and it is believed that, as regards the masters, a struggle of this character could not have come at a better time, and that the goods on hand will suffice to meet all demands while the men are on strike, and spending their hard-earned savings. In Blackburn alone over 22,000 are on strike, and this is not the only district to which it is confined. Endeavours are being made to effect a compromise between masters and men, while at Preston many of the men have acceded to the masters' terms, and have resumed work. Let us hope the attempt at reconciliation will be successful.

On Saturday last, Mr. Bandmann was committed for trial by Mr. Flowers, on a charge of having assaulted Mrs. Rousby, the evidence being deemed sufficient to warrant such a step. Mr. Bandmann, who it should be added, indignantly denied the charge, gave bail, himself in £100, and Mr. Chatterton in £100, to appear for trial. The same evening both appellant and plaintiff appeared, the former at the Queen's, in a new piece entitled Madelaine Morel, adapted from the German by the latter, and Mr. Bandmann at the Adelphi, in an adaptation from Une Cause Célèbre, recently produced at the Ambigu Theatre in Paris. The title of the English version is Proof, and the adapter is Mr. Burnand.

The holiday folk were unexpectedly favoured with nice genial weather, the forenoon of Saturday being the only portion of the Easter holidays in which pleasure was impossible. Good Friday was a pleasant day, and the number of visitors to the parks, Hampstead Heath, &c., &c., was quite equal to that of former years. On Saturday evening most of the theatres were crowded, and in addition to the two we have named must be mentioned the Haymarket, where Miss Neilson charmed a numerous and appreciative audience by her able impersonation of Juliet, in Shakspeare's well known play of Romeo and Juliet. On Easter Monday, all the holiday resorts were thronged with people. The Alexandra Palace, where a special programme was prepared, was visited by, at the very lowest estimate, some 50,000. The Crystal Palace, whereto the Grecian Pantomime of Roley Poley was transferred, was equally fortunate. Over 30,000 people visited the Zoological Gardens. The British Museum had its complement of visitors, and South Kensington, the Aquarium, Westminster, and our other resorts, were all crowded by people who had come for the purpose and with the resolution of being amused. All the lines of railway took out of town their hordes of excursionists to Brighton, Margate, Hastings, and other prominent watering places, and the Volunteers, though they failed in having a field day on a large scale, had a number of small meetings at Wimbledon, Southgate, Harrow, Staines, and elsewhere. Indeed, it is many years since the public has been as fortunate in respect of the weather and the entertainments provided, but then Easter is rather later than usual.

On Monday the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs went in state to Christ Church, Newgate-street, for the purpose of hearing the Spital Sermon, which was preached this year by Dr. Atlay, Bishop of Hereford. In the evening his lordship entertained a numerous body of guests at a banquet in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House. On Tuesday, the pupils of Christ's Hospital visited the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, when his lordship, according to annual custom, presented the boys with money—the Grecians with a guinea, the probationers with half-a-guinea, the monitors with half-a-crown, and the lower boys with a shilling. The Blues, before leaving, were regaled with buns and a glass of wine each.

A most mysterious robbery at the bank of Mona, Douglas, Isle of Man, has recently occurred, by which no less a sum than £8,873 in gold was carried off. Three persons are in custody on the charge—a Mr. Gray, one of the bank officials, Thomas Roberts, and Adam Nix. The inquiry is still proceeding, and is exciting the greatest interest. A reward of £500 for the discovery of the robbers has been offered by the bank.

For some days past an inquiry into the circumstances attending the death of Charles A. Cooper, an apprentice on board the Maggie Dixon, of Shields, has been conducted at the Police Court, Falmouth, the master, the mate, and the boatswain being implicated. After a protracted hearing, the prisoners were committed for trial, and so strong was the feeling of the people against the accused, that the police had great difficulty in conveying them to the police station.

A very important step taken by our Government last week in ordering a portion of our Indian troops to Malta has caused great excitement in the different Presidencies, and the greatest enthusiasm prevails among the natives, there being not the slightest difficulty in getting up the regiments chosen for service to their full war strength. This ought to have some influence on the Russian Ministers, who are urging the Czar to engage in war with this country. Such an element in our military strength has been overlooked, and when it is remembered that the small force about to be sent to Malta can be increased, if necessary, to almost any extent, and that among them is some of the most magnificent fighting material in the world, let us hope the Russians may pull up in time, and that we may be spared the horrors of a dreadful war.

In Paris, though the political situation is watched with great anxiety, the public attention is directed chiefly to the approaching opening of the International Exhibition, when a series of Fêtes will take place, the Marshal-President being the central figure in a peaceful picture, and circled around him will be our Prince of Wales, the Crown Prince of Austria, and other distinguished personages from abroad. Let us hope the Exhibition will have the effect of strengthening the bonds of friendship already existing between France and the other Powers. There is something infinitely more Christianising in these shows than in the process adopted by Russia.

As regards the crisis, there is a feeling everywhere that the situation is as gloomy as it can be, short of the actual outbreak of war. Prince Bismarck has been trying his hand at mediating, but he does not seem to have succeeded. His idea was to induce Russia and England to agree to a simultaneous withdrawal of their forces from the neighbourhood of Constantinople. Both Powers have agreed to it in principle, but the difficulties in carrying it out, and in assuring a return to the same positions if further negociations should fail, are considered unsatisfactory. Russia declines to submit the treaty to a Congress, and England will have nothing to do with a Congress if Russia insists.

So the deadlock remains. Elsewhere the news is the reverse of encouraging. Russia, it is believed, has sent an ultimatum to Roumania, demanding an offensive and defensive alliance, or threatening to occupy the country and disarm her troops. There is a Mussulman outbreak in Roumalia, and 20,000 Russians have been despatched to the scene of the outbreak. The Turkish irregulars at Batoum refuse to lay down their arms, and the Sultan's government delays the surrender of Shumla and Varna, though pressed to do so by the Grand Duke Nicholas. There is, too, a new Turkish Ministry, with Sadyk Pasha as President, and it is believed, in the event of war breaking out between Russia and England, that Turkey will try to remain neutral. At the same time, Mr. Layard is daily receiving offers from Turks to enter the English Service should war come.

We have great pleasure in announcing that the City Press, which for years past has been a recognised organ of the CITY proper, and which during the whole of its career has been admirably conducted, so that now it enjoys a reputation second to no other journal of a like character, will after the 1st of May be issued twice instead of once a week. This speaks well for the enterprise of the proprietors, Messrs. W. H. and L. Collingridge, and we trust the venture will meet with the success it deserves so richly.

We have received a communication from Bro. William Worrell P.M. and Sec. No. 766, P.Z. and S.E. Chapter No. 766, and P.M. and Sec. of the Macdonald Mark Lodge No. 104, and P.G. Organist (Mark), in which he announces his intention of becoming a candidate for the post of Secretary to the Girls' School, rendered vacant by the death of Bro. Little.

We regret to state that in our account last week of the West Middlesex Lodge, No. 1612, we inadvertently omitted to mention that Bro. G. Coop was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. We cannot account for the omission, and we take this early opportunity of repairing it.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—At the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday evening, 24th inst. Present—Bros. McMillan W.M., Slaiter S.W., Dignam J.W., H. Meyer S.D., Maples J.D., R. Olley I.G., G. Ferrar Treas., E. Dietrich Sec., W. Fieldwick Preceptor, and Bros. Shackleton, Poole, Wallington P.M. 860, J. Lorkin, C. Lorkin, C. Olley. After the usual preliminaries had been observed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Shackleton being candidate. Bro. Wallington worked the first, second, and third sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. A most cordial vote of thanks was unanimously voted to Bro. Wallington for his kindness in working the sections. Bro. Slaiter was appointed W.M. for the next meeting. The Fifteen Sections will be worked in this Lodge on Wednesday, 15th May.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Macdonald Lodge of Mark Masters, No. 104.—This Lodge met at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, E.C., on Wednesday the 17th inst. The regular meeting falling on Good Friday necessitated this alteration of date, and consequently the meeting, though well attended, was not so full a one as usual. In the absence of the W.M., Bro. Alfred Williams P.G.S., and at his request, the chair of A. was occupied by the V.W. Bro. James Stevens P.G.J.O. P.M., who was supported by Bros. North Ritherdon S.W., Edward Moody J.W., and other Officers and Past Masters, amongst whom were the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy P.G.S.O. P.M. and Treasurer, the W. Bro. William Worrell P.G. Org. P.M. and Sec., the W. Bro. A. Berridge G.D.C. P.P.J.W. P.M., the W. Bro. Arthur Walton P.P.M.O. P.M., Bros. W. C. Hale D.C., N. Bassett R.M., W. Johnston, Theodore Distin, Theodore De Leliva, Louis Hirsch, T. Wild, W. Grant, &c., &c. Visitors—W. Bro. J. Tomlinson No. 181 G.S. P.G.M.O., and Bro. Henry Venn, Old Kent Lodge M.M.M. The Lodge having been opened and minutes read, Bro. R. P. Spice, of the Keystone Mark Lodge, was unanimously elected a joining member. Several candidates for advancement were approved of, and Bro. T. S. Wibl, of the Anchor Lodge, No. 1704, being in attendance was introduced, and advanced to the honourable degree with full ceremony. Bro. North Ritherdon was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. T. Meggy was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. W. Grant Tyler. Bros. Distin and De Leliva were appointed to the audit committee, the whole of the members of which were then invited by Bro. Wolton P.M. to meet for audit at his private residence prior to next meeting of the Lodge. A P.M.'s jewel was voted to the retiring W.M. Bro. Williams, and there being no further business the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to dinner. Subsequently the customary toasts were proposed by the acting W.M. Bro. Stevens, and were ably responded to by the brethren selected for that purpose, and, after a pleasant hour or two, enlivened by the vocal and recitative efforts of Bros. Distin, Moody, and others, the brethren separated.

St. Luke's Lodge of Instruction.—The Fifteen Sections were worked at the White Hart Tavern, King's-road, Chelsea, on Good Friday evening, the 19th instant. Business commenced at 6.30 p.m., agreeably to summons. Bro. Ardin P.M. Zetland 511 occupied the chair, and was ably supported as follows:—Bros. Blay P.M. S.W., Sedgwick P.M. J.W., Markland S.D., Williams J.D., and Pollard I.G. The Lodge was opened, when the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The working of the Sections then commenced, and the seven of the first lecture were got through at about 7.45 p.m., when the brethren were called from labour to refreshment. After an interval of ten minutes, work was again resumed. Those who had the pleasure of knowing Bro. Ardin, whether as a Mason or in his public capacity, felt assured that under his able Preceptorship the working would be as near perfection as possible, nor were they disappointed, for everything progressed from beginning to end without a single hitch. The workers also deserve the greatest credit for the manner which they got through their several sections. Where all did so well, it would be invidious to particularise. The gathering was extremely satisfactory, there being a good many visitors, four of whom were proposed and elected members, and who expressed, in returning thanks, their warm appreciation of the very creditable way in which the work had been performed; in fact, that they had never had the pleasure of hearing it done better. A vote of thanks was proposed, and carried unanimously, to be recorded on the minutes; Bro. P.M. Pulsford followed this proposition by well-merited eulogiums on the very able and efficient manner in which Bro. P.M. Ardin had discharged the duties of the chair. The W.M., in replying, made a very happy speech. This brought the proceedings to a close, the universal dicta being that it had been a most enjoyable evening. There being no further business, the Lodge was closed in perfect harmony at ten p.m. The following is the list of the brethren, and the Sections they worked:—First lecture: 1st, Bros. Greig 1694; 2nd, Docker 1687; 3rd, Markland 144; 4th, Pulsford P.M. 1158; 5th, Cameron P.M. 180; 6th, Blay P.M. 144; 7th, Woods 145. Second lecture: 1st, Bros. Hill 858; 2nd, Hancock 511; 3rd, Cater P.M. 9; 4th, Coulton P.M. 382; 5th, Sedgwick P.M. 180. Third lecture: 1st, Bros. Egan P.M. 858; 2nd, Pollard 858; 3rd, Carlstrom 733.

Tranquillity Lodge, No. 185.—The last meeting of the session was held on Monday, the 15th inst., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, E.C. Bros. David Posener W.M. in the chair; there were also present Bro. G. S. Pare S.W., W. D. Bayley J.W., John Peartree I.P.M. and Treas., Phil Levy Sec., F. Cronker J.D., T. W. C. Bush I.G., Potter Tyler. Past Masters J. Constable, J. H. Ross, N. Moss, J. D. Barnett, N. Gluckstein, E. Gottheil; and some sixty members and visitors. After preliminaries, Mr. R. S. Woolf, of Cheapside, who had been regularly proposed and favourably balloted for, presented himself according to ancient form, and received the initiatory lessons of the noble Craft, the ceremony being most impressively performed by the W.M. Two stranger brethren applied for temporary assistance, and were immediately relieved with the sum of £3 3s each. A supper, which greatly partook of the nature of a banquet, was served under the superintendence of Bro. Silver, assisted by the managers of the Hotel. The enjoyments of the table being over, the W.M. rose and proposed the Loyal and Masonic toasts combined in one, namely "Loyalty to the Throne, and devotion to the best interests of the Order," which was heartily responded to. Bro. John Peartree I.P.M. next proposed the health of the W.M. He was at a loss to convey the pleasure it gave him to propose this toast, or to enumerate the good qualities of the brother now at the head of the Lodge. They all knew him as an able Mason and excellent worker, but in the present session but little opportunity had been afforded for the display of his abilities. He trusted to meet him in health and prosperity at the coming session. Bro. Posener expressed his hearty thanks for the kind way in which the toast was proposed and received. It was always his study to try his utmost in order to give satisfaction. He had lately been suffering from ill-health, but trusted, when restored to his normal condition, to give every attention conducive to the interests of the Lodge. He would now bid them all farewell, and hoped that during the recess, and in their summer outings, they would thoroughly enjoy themselves, and return with renewed health and vigour to their Lodge duties in the autumn. He would next propose the toast of the evening, namely—that of the Initiate. He was sure that from the attention he had paid, and the intelligence with which he followed the ritual, Bro. Woolf would become an honour to the Craft, of which he had that evening been enrolled a member. (Cheers.) Bro. Woolf replying said, it was quite an unexpected pleasure to have the honour to sit at the right of the Worshipful Master. An honour not likely to occur again for many years. He was, however, fully determined to work his way up, until he succeeded in reaching the high position now so worthily occupied by Bro. Posener. (Applause). In proposing a welcome to the visitors, the W.M. declared that the Tranquillity Lodge was always delighted to see a great number of visitors among them, and tried to entertain them to the best of their power. On the present occasion they had Bros. A. W. Masters of No. 18 Lodge of St. John, New Brunswick, J. Rexworthy 1728, J. K. Pitt 463, J. Mellhuse 72, Kennett Harris J.D. 1728, John Muddison 177, Lionel Cohen 25, F. Plummer 177, F. Rothchild J.W. 1288, Geo. Mickley P.M. 449, E. W. Silk 1524, Geo. P. Hawkes 101, Alf. Hubbard 813, and L. London of the Robert Burns. Each of the names were received with Masonic cheers. Bro. A. W. Masters, responding on behalf of the visitors, expressed the pleasure he felt in having been permitted, by the kindness of Bro. Constable, to visit the Lodge, as it enabled him to compare the working of an English Lodge with those of the other side of the Atlantic. His brother was at the present time W.M. of a Lodge, and when he heard of the kind welcome and hearty reception the brethren had accorded him, he was sure were all present to visit New Brunswick, which unfortunately was not at all likely, they would receive as cordial and fraternal a welcome at his hands. He was only a seafaring man, and quite unaccustomed to address a numerous gathering, but would assure them that the pleasure of that meeting would constitute one of his happiest memories, and the delightful evening spent at the Guildhall Tavern would never be effaced from his recollection. The W.M. then proposed the Past Masters; there was not the usual number here, but those who were present were the cream,—men who are ever ready to support the Master in his duties. Bro. Constable thanked the W.M. on behalf of the P.M.'s, who, he said, heartily appreciated the kindness with which that toast was invariably received, and which had been exemplified on the present occasion. Their good will was particularly gratifying to him personally at this juncture, as in about ten days he was leaving these shores for the Cape, from whence he would not return for some months; but wherever he might travel, and in whatever country he might be, their kindness could never be effaced from his memory. From his very entrance into the Lodge he had been fortunate enough to make a large number of really true friends, for whose generous goodness and the unvarying kindness exhibited towards him he could never become ungrateful. The Worshipful Master then proposed Prosperity to the Benevolent Fund, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Peartree, the Treasurer, who said the W.M. had mentioned the utility of the Fund, and the substantial help arising therefrom; it had more than once assisted a sinking brother, and placed him upon his legs again. This Fund was established some twenty-eight years ago, and during that period had effected a vast amount of good. At the commencement every member contributed according to his means, and especially on installation nights strong appeals used to be made, which were always most generously responded to. The Fund consisted now of £700 invested in Indian Stock, besides a balance in hand in case of immediate and sudden necessity. No such appeals were therefore now necessary, the only exception being that newly initiated brethren generally contributed. Our new brother this evening gives a donation of £1 1s, and he trusted that he, as well as all present, might always be in a condition to give and never be in a position to require to receive. This being the last meeting of the session, he would pray that all may meet again in health and in vigour. He would conclude with wishing Bro. Constable a prosperous voyage, and may he, in health and happiness, return to his family and to them all. (Loud Cheers). For the Treasurer and Secretary, Bro. Phil. Levy responded, he would prefer, that that particular toast might be honoured more in the breach than the observance. He could only reiterate what he had often said before, that the thanks of the brethren was ample reward for any duties the Treasurer and himself might be called upon to perform. In proposing the health of the Officers, the W.M. remarked that no general could well direct an army without the aid of able Officers. In like manner a Master would be lost without the assistance of efficient Officers. He considered himself most fortunate in having the aid of a staff who, one and all, were well up in their respective duties. It was the first time in his experience that an I.G. was singled out for special praise; such, however, was the case on the present occasion; one of the visitors had observed that that Officer did the work exceedingly well; he could only say, that when they came to hold the highest office they might be blessed with an equally efficient staff of Officers. Bro. Pare S.W. responding, thanked the W.M. for the high praise he was good enough to bestow upon the Officers for their humble efforts; he had no doubt that they would continue to emulate the good example set them by the W.M. Bro. Bayley J.W. said he responded with a great amount of diffidence, but promised that his conduct in the future would, if not surpass, at all events be equal to that of the past. The Tyler's toast ended the proceedings. Some truly excellent singing, by Bros. Bayley, Constable, Hubbard, Rexworthy and Child, gave pleasing variety to the entertainment.

Union Lodge, No. 414, Reading.—On Tuesday, the 16th inst. Bros. E. Baker W.M., C. Oades S.W., S. Bradley J.W., J. Leaver Secretary, C. Stephens S.D., S. Wheeler D.C., Ferguson acting as I.G., Sprent Steward; P.M.'s Bros. S. A. Pocock I.P.M., J. Long 603, J. Morris, R. Bradley, Weightman, J. A. Strachan, A. M. Yett, S. S. Stallwood 558; Bros. G. W. Webb, D. H. Witherington, C. G. Butler, W. C. Moffatt, H. Higgs, F. Blackwell, J. W. Martin, H. Ayres, J. E. Sydenham, C. G. Hawkes, W. Donaldson, F. W. Albury, M. J. Withers, A. W. Perry. Visitor—Bro. J. Fairclough, member of 832, P.M. 542. The Lodge was opened and the minutes of last regular meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was taken for Mr. William Hart, who was elected and initiated. The W.M. announced that the Committees of the two Reading Lodges had met to discuss the terms upon which the tenancy of the Grey Friars Lodge was to be continued. Bro. R. Bradley P.M. moved "that a notice to quit be served on the W.M. of 1101, according to the original agreement." This was seconded by Bro. J. Morris P.M., and after a long discussion was declared to be carried. A circular from Grand Lodge was read, announcing the resolution taken on the matter of the Grand Orient of France, and the same was ordered to be entered on the minutes. A letter from a brother, resigning membership, was also read. All business being ended, the Lodge was closed.

Cestrian Lodge, No. 425.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Tuesday, the 18th inst., at the Grosvenor Hotel, Chester. Present — Bros. F. A. Dickson W.M., John McHattie P.M. as S.W., James Knox J.W., W. C. Hunt P.M. Sec., E. Minshell Treas., E. Cuzner P.M. Organist, A. Smith S.D., J. Pye J.D., Samuel Spencer I.G., David Baynes Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. J. Taylor, J. Salmon, L. Gilbert, J. C. Robinson, T. M. Wilcock, R. Banks, Wm. Masters; also Bros. Stanhope Bull, John Mills, Jas. I. Stevenson, S. W. Ramsden, W. M. Lightfoot, G. W. Marple. Visitors—J. W. Arrowsmith 321, H. J. Lloyd 721, S. M. Davies, FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. The usual routine business having been disposed of, the Lodge was advanced to the third degree. Bro. Jas. I. Stevenson having answered the preliminary questions properly, was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. Although W. Bro. Dickson has all the talent and feeling requisite to make a competent and successful Master of a Lodge, it was a very painful ordeal to witness the strain put upon his nervous system on this occasion. Considering that Bro. Dickson had been confined to his room for more than a week, through severe indisposition, and taking into account the difficult ritual he had to perform, in a cramped and badly ventilated room, which from its proximity to the street reverberated the rattle of passing vehicles, the clatter of horses' hoofs, and the din and tramp of pedestrians, it is strange that he undertook, and astonishing that he succeeded in discharging his duties so well. To any brother accustomed to visit many Lodges in various Provinces, it would appear inexplicable that the brethren of No. 425 should, under any circumstances, allow the Lodge to be held where exist so many disadvantages, especially in a city where there is, no doubt, far better accommodation, and if not, should be provided by the brethren of Chester unitedly, as they muster two Blue Lodges, two Chapters, one Mark Lodge, and a Preceptory. It is to be hoped that a move will be made in the right direction, as it is evident to all intelligent Masons that anything which has a tendency to mar the harmony of a Lodge, or interfere with the proper working of our sublime ritual, does discredit to our glorious Order. Doubtless we shall see erected in Chester a Masonic Hall worthy of our beloved Craft, and in keeping with a Cathedral city, particularly as Bro. Gilbert advocates (if the policy be not too narrow-minded) the principle of "Provincialising and Localising" Freemasonry. It is sincerely and fraternally suggested to Bro. Gilbert to consider deeply whether it is advisable or consistent to advocate building a Chinese Wall round the province of Cheshire. The following notices were brought before the Lodge:—By Bro. Taylor I.P.M., That at the next Lodge meeting he should propose, as the W.M. and Bro. Salmon P.M. and P.P.S.G.D. had undertaken to represent the Lodge as Stewards at the next Anniversary of the R.M.I. for Boys, the sum of ten guineas each be presented by them, in the name and from the funds of the Lodge. By Bro. Salmon P.M., that he should at the next Lodge meeting propose, as Bro. Taylor I.P.M. had undertaken to represent the Lodge as Steward at the next Anniversary of the R.M.I. for Girls, the sum of ten guineas be presented by him, in the name and from the funds of the Lodge. These notices provoked a rather lengthy discussion, which detained the brethren, the Lodge not being closed till 7.30, after which the members adjourned to refreshment.

La Tolerance Lodge of Instruction, No. 538.—Nearly forty members of this Lodge attended on Wednesday evening to hear the Fifteen Sections worked under the able presidency of the veteran Bro. T. A. Adams P.G.P. Bros. F. G. Baker S.W., W. J. Ferguson J.W., Pratt S.D., T. James J.D., E. Child I.G., Smallpeice P.M., C. Davis Treas., J. Hurdell Sec. The sections were worked as follows:—FIRST LECTURE.—1st, S. A. Cooper D.C. 382; 2nd, E. Child S.D. 538; 3rd, S. A. Cooper D.C. 382; 4th, J. Hurdell D.C. 1318; 5th, Docker S.D. 1687; 6th, E. Farwig S.W. 180; 7th, F. G. Baker P.M. 753. SECOND LECTURE.—1st, A. Ginger J.W. 901; 2nd, W. J. Ferguson P.M. 177; 3rd, J. Hurdell D.C. 1318; 4th, J. L. Coulton P.M. 382; J. Long P.M. 733. THIRD LECTURE.—1st, C. J. W. Davis P.M. 382; 2nd, D. M. Belfrage S.W. 179; 3rd, Koester P.M. 435. The sections were all well worked, and a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Adams.

United Lodge, No. 697.—The annual installation meeting of this Lodge was held at the Town Hall, Colchester, on Wednesday afternoon, when there was a large attendance of members of the Lodge and visitors. The ceremony of installing the W.M. elect—Bro. George Harvey—was impressively performed by the V.W. Bro. Fred. A. Philbrick, Q.C., Recorder of Colchester, Past Grand Deacon, and at its close the new W.M. appointed and invested his Officers as follow:—W. Bros. the Rev. Eustace H. Crate P.M. I.P.M., the Rev. T. C. Brettingham Chaplain, the Rev. J. P. Britton S.W., Henry J. Everitt J.W., Thomas Eustace P.M. Treasurer, Thomas Rix P.M. Secretary, F. Evelyn Morris S.D., John W. Smith J.D., William Harlow D.C., George Guiver Organist, W. Chapman I.G., S. Munson Tyler, G. Eustace and W. Jelley Stewards. At the close of the Lodge business a cordial vote of thanks was passed to V.W. Bro. F. A. Philbrick for his kind attendance, at some personal inconvenience. A banquet took place at the George Hotel in the evening, served in sumptuous style by Bro. Guiver. The W.M. presided, and was supported, amongst others, by V.W. Bro. F. A. Philbrick, the Mayor of Colchester (Bro. Thos. Moy), W. Bros. Joseph Barton P.G. Treas., Thos. J. Ralling P.G. Sec., S. Chaplin P.M. 51 P.P.S.G.W., Fred. A. Cole P.M. 51 P.P.G.R., Chas. Cobb P.M. 51 P.P.S.G.D., Alfred Welch P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.D., &c.

Panmure Lodge, No. 720.—A regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Balham Hotel, Balham, S.W., on Monday, the 15th inst., when were present, Bros. D. Trusler W.M., C. P. McKay S.W., W. Shendd J.W., W. Smith S.D., E. Mitchell I.G., M. Spiegel D.C., Lambert Steward, James Stevens P.M., Thomas Poore P.M. and Sec., W. Payne P.M., C. Pulman P.M., W. Steedman Tyler, and Bros. G. Lilley, Brenner, Ash, Gunner, Pascall, Mulloy, Syer, Treves, Huntley, Glenister, Sanders, Lavers, and others. Apologies from several P.M.'s and members were read. Lodge was opened in the three degrees and worked down. Bro. Lavers was passed to the degree of F.C. Candidates for initiation not being present the ballot for approval was deferred. The election of W.M. for the ensuing year resulted in an unanimous vote in favour of the S.W. Bro. McKay. Bro. Thomas Poore Past Master was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. W. Steedman Tyler. It was resolved that to mark the appreciation of the Lodge for a second year's service as W.M. by Bro. Trusler, the P.M. jewel voted to him at the expiration of his first year of office should be provided with a suitable bar and inscription, and that a further recognition should be made by the presentation of an article of value to be selected by himself. Bros. Gunner and Syer were elected on the audit committee. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and spent the remainder of a very agreeable evening in harmonious intercourse.

William Preston Lodge of Instruction, No. 766.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Friday, the 19th of April, at the Feathers Tavern, Upper George-street, Edgware-road. Present—Bros. S. Golden W.M., Tribbel S.W., Hill J.W., Braun Secretary, Rudderforth Preceptor, Hayes S.D., Cleghorn J.D., Evans Tyler; and Bros. Kinnard, Murch, Webster, Wallis, Harris, West, Reid, Moore, &c. Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. Cleghorn answered the questions, and the ceremony of passing was rehearsed. The same candidate then answered the questions for raising, and that ceremony was likewise rehearsed by the W.M. Bro. Golden. After the working of several sections the Lodge was closed down. Bro. Rudderforth was elected W.M. for the ensuing Friday, on which occasion fifteen brethren of the Doric Lodge of Instruction have kindly consented to work the sections in this Lodge. The Secretary also announced to the brethren that an invitation had been received for brethren of the William Preston Lodge to work the Fifteen Sections at the Upper Norwood Lodge of Instruction, on Monday, the 6th of May next, Bro. H. E. Frances to preside. This invitation was unanimously accepted.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—Held its weekly meeting on Tuesday last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Bros. M. Christian W.M., J. Lorkin S.W., Wardell J.W., Slaiter S.D., Carr J.D., Brown I.G., Wallington P.M. Preceptor, Dallas Sec., Smyth Treas.; and Bros. Polak, Smith, Wyman, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Weige candidate. Lodge was called off, and on resuming opened in the second and third degrees, and regularly closed down to the first. Bro. Dallas worked the first, and Bro. Smith the second sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. J. Lorkin was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Wandsworth Lodge, No. 1044.—On Wednesday evening, 17th inst., the last meeting for the session was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel, Wandsworth. Bro. H. R. Jones W.M. presided. There were also present the following Officers and members:—Bros. W. A. Morgan S.W., A. N. Newens J.W., H. Wilson Treasurer, J. Frost Secretary, A. B. Walker S.D., W. J. Huntley J.D., J. J. Holland I.G., J. Wardroper Steward, S. Steed Tyler; P.M.'s E. H. Boddy, P. Cooke, F. H. Newens, J. G. Carter; F. Reed, J. Stirk, R. Walker, H. J. Newens, G. W. Smith, G. Fortescue, W. Springett, Percy Denham, and A. A. Denham. The following visitors honoured the Lodge with their presence:—Bros. Wildey Wright (the well-known barrister), R. H. Smith, A. B. Morgan, M. Halford, and E. Carter. A good feature in Freemasonry—as showing its liberty and universality—was the presence of Bro. Halford (a coloured brother from a New York Lodge), who is now studying in England for one of the learned professions. The chief business of the evening was to initiate Mr. T. J. Tucker, pass Bro. Percy Denham, and raise Bro. J. Newens, which was faultlessly done by the W.M. Bro. H. R. Jones, assisted by his Officers. The Treasurer and Tyler were re-elected, and Bro. W. A. Morgan was chosen as W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Jones, the retiring W.M., was unanimously voted a jewel for the ability he had shown as president of the Lodge. A banquet followed, which was served in the best style by Bro. Dougherty. The customary toasts were given, together with those of the W.M. Elect and the Retiring W.M., both of which were enthusiastically drunk and replied to. The Visitors was eloquently replied to by Bros. Wildey Wright, Halford and others. The proceedings soon after terminated.

Grey Friars Lodge, No. 1101, Reading.—On Wednesday, 10th April. Present—Bros. A. Welch W.M., J. E. Danks J.W., Honey Chaplain, Stransom Treas., Ferguson S.D., Blackwell J.D., Newman D.C. acting Sec., R. Dowsett I.G.; P.M.'s. Bros. Hurley, Margrett, Brown acting S.W.; Bros. Bailey, Palley, Creed, Hunt, Herbert, Hickie, &c. The Lodge was opened, and all preliminaries being duly observed, the candidate for the second degree answered the usual questions and was passed. The W.M. read the communication from the Grand Secretary containing the resolutions of Grand Lodge, with regard to the action of the Grand Orient of France in ignoring the name of T.G.A.O.T.U. in their ceremonies. The W.M. announced that the Committees of the two Reading Lodges had met to consider the subject of rental to be paid for the use of the Hall; that of 41*l* suggested an increase. A discussion ensued, in which Bros. Bailey, Brown, Danks, Hurley, Honey and the W.M. took part. Bro. Margrett P.M. moved, "That this Lodge having taken into consideration the question of an increased rent of the Lodge room, &c., is of opinion that the sum now paid is an adequate rent." Bro. Bailey seconded the motion. Bro. Brown P.M., moved and Bro. Hurley seconded "that the increased rent be paid," as an amendment this was put to the Lodge, and declared to be lost. The original motion was now put, and declared to be carried. A letter from the Prov. G. Sec. was read, enquiring as to which of the Masonic Charities the vote of Prov. G. Lodge from the sum of ten guineas should be applied. It was resolved that the R.M.I.G. be selected. A letter of resignation of membership was read, and this ended the business.

St. Marylebone Lodge, No. 1305.—This Lodge held its installation meeting on Wednesday, the 10th of April, at the Eyre Arms, St. John's Wood. Present—Bros. J. L. Baker W.M., George Fowler S.W., W. W. Tyler J.W., E. White Sec., W. Botting Treas., C. A. Smith S.D., E. Timewell J.D., Daly Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Draper and T. Smith. Visitors—Bros. John Marson P.P.G.S.W. Norths and Hants, Long P.M. 73, Twemlow 818, Thurdell 1348, Beret P.M. 179, Austen P.M. 753, Briggs and Hutchinson 25, Belgrave 443, Compton P.P.G. Asst. D.C. Kent, Stevens P.M. 9, Buscall W.M. 177, Sams and Pringle 45, Clark 788. Lodge opened at 3.30, Bros. Durrant, Smith, and Twemlow of 818 were raised, and Bro. McMillan was passed. The W.M. then announced that he had much pleasure in calling upon Bro. White, their esteemed Secretary, to take the chair and perform the ceremony of installation. Bro. White, who is the W.M. of the City of Westminster 1563, then installed Bro. G. Fowler, in a manner that reflected credit on himself and gave great satisfaction to those who had the pleasure of hearing him. The W.M. appointed his Officers as follow:—Tyler S.W., C. A. Smith J.W., Timewell S.D., Phillips J.D., Marflit I.G., Young D.C., White Sec. A ballot was taken for Messrs. Ford and Harvey, and being unanimous, those gentlemen were initiated by the W.M., who must be complimented on his working the first time of his being in the chair. It was resolved that the Lodge hold a Summer Festival, in place of the usual June banquet, and that ladies be invited. The auditors' report was then presented; it disclosed a highly satisfactory state of affairs; the Lodge has £250 invested in Consols to the credit of its Benevolent Fund, besides a balance of £57 in the hands of the Treasurer. At the close of the business, which had been admirably conducted throughout, the brethren adjourned to the assembly room, where a magnificent banquet was served by Bro. Marflit. The cloth cleared, the Worshipful Master gave the usual loyal toasts, with a few appropriate remarks to each. Bro. Barker I.P.M. proposed the health of the W.M.; he was very pleased to see Bro. Fowler in his exalted position. There had been a very wholesome rule observed in their Lodge from the commencement, that when a brother had served the various offices in rotation he should be elected to the chair. He wished Bro. Fowler every prosperity during his year of office. The toast was drunk with much heartiness. The W.M. in reply said, Brethren, if I make but few remarks while thanking you on this occasion, I am sure you will give me credit for being none the less grateful for the honour you have just done me. If I was to speak for an hour I should fail to express all I feel on being installed into the chair, the very topmost pinnacle of a Mason's ambition, as well as the highest honour the Lodge can bestow on any of its members. I assure you, brethren, my anxiety for the welfare of the Marylebone Lodge is second to none, and I shall spare no effort to promote its best interests during my year of office. I trust that neither its reputation nor usefulness will suffer while under my care; and, brethren, I hope we shall all unite in the Grand Masonic design of being happy and communicating happiness. The W.M. then proposed the health of the initiates, which was replied to. Both expressed the pleasure and satisfaction they felt at being admitted members of the Order. The toast of the Visitors came next. The W.M. felt great pleasure at seeing so many present, the St. Marylebone Lodge was always pleased to welcome visitors. Bro. Buscall W.M. 177 thanked the W.M. and brethren for the hospitality and cordial welcome he had received; it afforded him much pleasure to be present, and especially to see the installation done in such an admirable manner by Bro. White. The Lodge was exceedingly fortunate in possessing such an accomplished member, who was able to do anything that might be required in Masonry; he (Bro. Buscall) felt very proud to have Bro. White for his S.W. in the Domatic Lodge. It was his first visit to the St. Marylebone, and he had enjoyed himself very much, both in Lodge and at the banquet. Bro. Austen and several other visitors also responded. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Installing Master; the ceremony of Installation had been worked in a manner that was simply perfection; he was sure the Lodge was deeply indebted to Bro. White, who was ever ready to do anything in his power to serve the Lodge; he had never heard the imposing ceremony of installation performed in a more able manner, and he asked the brethren to drink the toast with the utmost cordiality. This was done, and Bro. White responded; he felt very pleased to be of service to the Lodge; he felt it a great honour to be the Secretary of the Lodge; also S.W. of a Lodge; and likewise W.M., all of which capacities he filled at the present time; but the greatest pleasure of all was having had the honour to instal the W.M. of the St. Marylebone Lodge. When he undertook this duty he was sensible of the great responsibility of the task, but he now felt that he had given the brethren satisfaction, and he was amply repaid. The P.M.'s was next given, and the toast was responded to by Bros. Baker, Draper, and J. Smith. Bro. Baker thanked the Lodge for the very handsome jewel that had been presented him, and again expressed the great pleasure he had felt throughout his year of office. He sincerely hanked the brethren for the kindness and support he had received. he health of the Treasurer and Secretary was next offered, and Bro. Botting replied. In proposing the Lodge Officers, the W.M. was confident the Officers appointed that night had the interest of the Lodge at heart, and that the year thus happily inaugurated would be continued satisfactorily, and that the Lodge would go on and prosper in the future as it had in the past. The several Officers replied in brief but suitable terms, and the Tyler's toast brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

Langton Lodge, No. 1673.—The installation meeting of this young and prosperous Lodge, to which we had only time and space to refer last week, was held on the 17th instant, at the Masonic Club, Queen Victoria-street. Indeed, there is an intimate association between the Langton and the Club, and we may be pardoned if we defer our account of the meeting for a few moments while we note some of the points connected with this association. Our readers are aware that the Masonic Club was opened by Lord Skelmersdale in July 1876. It had long been felt, by many, that such an Institution was most desirable, and, indeed, there was a very strong feeling of surprise expressed in most quarters that so "clubbable" a body of men as the Freemasons should be almost the only society of any moment which could not boast its club. The idea of establishing one was received with great favour. A site was found, a suitable building erected, and, in due course, opened for the accommodation of members, of whom by the day on which Lord Skelmersdale presided at the inaugural banquet there were already several hundreds. Among the arrangements of this Club, which have given most satisfaction, was one for holding Lodges, and in this important particular the Club is most favourably circumstanced. Moreover, there is an admirable cuisine, ruled by a skilful chef, so that when the Masonic labours of the day are ended it is possible to enjoy a good dinner. All this has been achieved by a company, and to its directors must be ascribed the honours of having succeeded so well. But it is to Bro. Joseph Langton, the managing director,—we may almost say the genius of the directorate,—that the thanks of the Masonic community are due in an especial manner for having a Club so well conducted and so admirably appointed, and, therefore, when it was proposed in the course of last year to establish a new Lodge at the club quarters, we are not surprised that it should have been named after him. We do not as a rule admire the custom of naming Lodges after individual Masons, unless they are very exalted in station, or very distinguished by their ability; but in this instance, in the case of a Lodge established for the convenience of the members of the club, it was in harmony with all the circumstances that it should be named after the managing director, whose endeavours in the interests of the Fraternity had been so assiduous, and we rejoice to add, successful. With the expression of a hope that these labours may long continue, that they may be as successful henceforward as heretofore, and that our worthy brother may reap the reward of successful labour, and long enjoy the respect and esteem of all his brethren, we pass on to record the events of his installation. The Lodge met, as we have said, on the 17th instant. The chair was occupied by Bro. H. D. Stead W.M., who was supported by Bro. Joseph Langton S.W. and W.M. elect., Bro. F. Dobbing J.W., and Bros. J. A. Reid S.D., A. Rosenthall J.D., W. L. Rosenthall Chap., J. K. Stead P.M. Treas., and R. E. Barnes Tyler, together with a strong muster of members and visitors. The minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, Bro. John Morrell P.M. No. 111, and Joseph Morrell P.M. No. 111, were both balloted for as joining members and elected. The Rev. W. Barnard Banyard and H. Hill Banyard were balloted for, and the ballot being clear, Bro. Stead initiated them, in a very impressive manner, into the mysteries of the first degree. Bros. Faber and Hackworth having been found worthy, were then passed. After the election of Bro. R. E. Barnes as Tyler, the ceremony of installing Bro. Langton as W.M. was proceeded with, there being a numerous board of installed Masters present to witness it. After having received the salutations and congratulations of his brethren, Bro. Langton proceeded to appoint and invest as his officers for the ensuing year the following brethren, namely, Bros. F. Dobbing S.W., J. A. Reid J.W., A. Rosenthall S.D., J. D. Langton J.D., A. C. Barnett I.G., W. F. Taunton Sec., Rev. W. Rosenthall Chaplain, J. K. Stead P.M. Treas., T. A. Rumpff and J. R. Crossley Stewards, and J. Morrell D.C., with R. E. Barnes as Tyler. A motion for increasing the initiation fee from ten to twenty-five guineas, and the joining fee from five to twenty guineas was then discussed at some length, and in the end a compromise was effected, the former being increased to fifteen guineas, and the latter to ten guineas. After having voted ten guineas for the purchase of a Past Master's jewel to be presented to the retiring Master, Bro. H. D. Stead, and a further sum of ten guineas to be placed on Bro. Dobbing's list as Steward at the approaching Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the brethren adjourned to banquet, and on the removal of the cloth, the customary round of toasts was proposed and duly honoured. In proposing that of the Pro Grand Master, Bro. Langton referred to the circular which had been read in Lodge that day as evidence of the deep interest his lordship took in Freemasonry. In connection with the toast of Lord Skelmersdale, and the other Grand Officers Present and Past, the Master mentioned incidentally that Lord Skelmersdale had been present at their Lodge, and had expressed his satisfaction with the manner in which the work was done. Bro. Stead, I.P.M., proposed the health of Bro. Langton, and congratulated the Lodge on having in him so excellent a Master, and one who would exert himself to do his duty to promote the success of the Lodge. Bro. Langton, in reply, expressed a hope that he might be able to fulfil the expectations raised by his predecessor's remarks, and declared that at all events he should endeavour to do so. He concluded by proposing the health of the I.P.M., which was duly acknowledged. The health of the Initiates was responded to by each in turn, and each promised to do his best to make himself a worthy Mason. Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden replied to the toast of the Visitors, and Bro. F. Dobbing S.W. for that of the Officers. The musical arrangements were far above the average, and gave the greatest satisfaction, the artists including Miss Mary Davies and Messrs. E. Collins, Sidney Tower, Forington, and James Matthews; among the songs they gave were "The Anchor's Weighed," by Mr. Tower; "When the Heart is Young," Miss Mary Davies; "Nancy Lee," Mr. Forington; and "Good Night, Dear Love," Bro. Edward Collins. The Visitors included Bros. the Rev. P. M. Holden, Thomas Greener 111, Walter Beard 101, H. Massey 619, W. W. Morgan 211, John G. Horsey 186, Fountain Meen 1185, W. Pawley, W. W. Cooke P.M., A. E. Stead 1622, and T. F. Smith 1, &c.

SIR RHADAMANTH.

You are right, justice, and you weigh this well;
Therefore, still bear the balance, and the sword:
And I do wish your honours may increase.

The friend of man;
Who scanned his nature with a brother's eye,
His weakness prompt to shade, to raise his arm,
To touch the finer movements of his mind,
And with the moral beauty charm the heart.

IN our last sketch we delineated the excellences of a Devon Craftsman. This week we move to a neighbouring county, a stage nearer this huge metropolis of ours, that we may chronicle the virtues of one who, in his time, has played many parts, and played them well; who has endeared himself to all Masons, by his urbanity, his sense of justice, and his generosity; and who, in every branch of Freemasonry, has won for himself many and great distinctions; so that in speaking of him as a brother, we may say truthfully, what was said of a distinguished writer of last century, "Nihil tetigit quod non ornavit." This praise may by some, perhaps, be considered as approaching too nearly to the verge of adulation. But let the reader note carefully the career of their judicious and judicial brother, as we record it, and the charge of flattery will at once be rejected. The subject of our present sketch is the son of a brother and the father of a brother. We are treating, therefore, of one of whom it may be declared with accuracy, that the love and pursuit of Freemasonry are hereditary virtues. There are many such who belong to our Craft. The Shirleys of Leicestershire, the Montagus of Hunts, the Dundasses of Yorkshire, have been again and again, and be it added, in all cases, most worthily represented in the ranks of our Fraternity, and he whom we have designated Sir Rhadamanth, by reason of his known impartiality on the judgment seat, albeit he has not attained, and is not likely to attain such eminence as some members of the Masonic families we have enumerated, is nevertheless the occupant of many high Offices which few among us may hope to fill, and which even fewer still may look to fill so worthily. Our respected brother was in early life a soldier, and it was when on service with his regiment in the East that the idea occurred to him, that he, a Lewis already, should follow the example of his father before him, and become a Mason. On his retirement from the army, he settled down on his patrimonial estate, but not, as many do, with the intention of leading a comparatively inactive life. On the contrary, as one of the county magistracy, and as a Deputy Lieutenant, our brother has had many opportunities afforded him of doing excellent service in both capacities, and especially in the former has he earned for himself a firm place in the affection and respect of his friends and neighbours. However, it is no part of our duty to dwell at length on the non-Masonic portion of his career. Let it suffice that as an officer and in his civil capacity he has done good service to the state; and then pass we at once to that which will interest our readers in an especial degree.

We have said that Sir Rhadamanth conceived the idea of becoming a Mason when, as yet only a Lewis, he was with his regiment in India. However, it was not in the East, but in a British possession in the great western hemisphere, that he obtained his first glimmering of Masonic light. It was on the 23rd December 1845, and in St. Paul's Lodge in Montreal in 1874, one of the few Canadian Lodges which still acknowledge the jurisdiction of our Grand Lodge, that our brother had an opportunity of giving effect to his resolution, and was initiated into the Masonic mysteries. However, owing no doubt to the exigencies of military service, we find but little to record during the earlier part of his connection with the Craft. He took his degrees and filled various offices, in all cases meritoriously, and to the satisfaction of his brethren. It is not till the year 1856 that we find him taking that active part in the doings of our Society by which he has been ever since distinguished. In that year he took the leading rôle in the foundation of Lodge No. 665, Lyme Regis, which was accordingly named after him, and in the following year he was again to the fore in founding St. Mary's Lodge, No. 707, Bridport. Fourteen years later we find him among the founders of that eminently popular Lodge, No. 1383, of Golden-square, which, though young in respect of years, has already made its mark in the annals of our Craft. He has likewise been a petitioner for other Lodges. Of both the Dorsetshire Lodges we have mentioned he is a Past Master, and he is likewise a Past Senior Grand Warden of his Province. In 1863 he was appointed Dep. Prov. Grand Master by the late R.W. Prov. Grand Master Bro. Joseph Gundry, and this appointment he continued to hold till the lamented death of his chief in 1877. A reference to the Grand Lodge Calendar shows, that during the period of his association with this Province, the number of its Lodges increased from six to thirteen, or was more than doubled; and though we cannot in fairness to others ascribe to him the sole glory of this success, we shall certainly not be exceeding the limits of justice if we affirm that he took a leading part in bringing it about. And as his labours in subordinate Lodges have been duly recognised in his Province, so it is only in the natural order of things that the ability and tact he has shown in his Provincial offices should in their turn be rewarded by the Grand Master, and we have great pleasure in announcing that on Wednesday, 24th April, he was appointed by His Royal Highness one of the Grand Junior Deacons of England, an honour most worthily bestowed, and on which we beg to offer him our heartiest congratulations.

As regards Royal Arch Masonry, it was not till the year 1856 that he was exalted to the R.A. degree, in the Virtue Chapter, No. 494, of Axminster, Devon. Having, in due time, filled the several minor and principal offices, and having founded the St. Mary's Chapter, No. 707, Bridport, and taken part in the foundation of other Chapters—among which may be mentioned that attached to the Friends in Council Lodge, No. 1383, of Golden Square—he at length received, last year, at the hands of His Royal Highness the Grand Z., the supreme honour of Provincial Grand Superintendent of the Provincial Grand Chapter of his County. In 1869, he was advanced to the Mark degree, and is founder of the St. Mary's Mark Lodge, No. 121, Bridport, and the Ark Mariners Lodge working thereunder. In 1856, he was made a Knight Templar in the Holy Cross Encampment, Coryton, Devon, and on the 20th June of last year was appointed Provincial Prior of the Order in Dorset, having in the interval founded the Hyde Preceptory, No. 98, Bridport. He is likewise a Past Grand Captain, and at the present time is one of the five members of the Council of the Great Prior elected by the Great Priory. In the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters he holds the office of R.P. Grand Illustrious Master, and is Ill. Pr. Cond. of Work in the Grand Masters' Council, No. 1. But it is, perhaps, in the A. and A. Rite that he has achieved his highest honours. In 1856, he received the 18° Rose Croix, and the 30° K.H.; in 1869 reached the 33° S.G.I.G; and he now holds the position of Grand Chancellor in the Supreme Council. We have now completed this portion of our task. We have enumerated the most important among the many distinctions he has obtained in Craft, Arch, Templar, and High Grade Masonry. We have shown that our statement at the outset, as to his conspicuous merit, had nothing about it which in any way approached to flattery. We pass, therefore, to another part of his career, and as this is of an essentially practical character, it will, doubtless, receive from our readers its just measure of appreciation. We allude, of course, to the services he has rendered to our different Charitable Institutions, and when we record that up to the present time he has served as Steward to one or other of them on eleven different occasions, and has been the means of adding to their funds to the extent of over £2,000; and that at the approaching festivals of the two Schools his name is entered on the list for each Institution, it will be obvious that in this portion of his duties he has been equally zealous and quite as successful as in his study of the different branches of Freemasonry. But he has been something more than the simple medium for conveying funds into the coffers of our Charities. He is himself a liberal supporter of them, being a Vice-Patron of the Boys' School, a Vice-President of the Girls' School, and a Governor of both the Male and Female Funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Moreover, he has made one of his daughters a Vice-Patron of the Boys', and a Governor of the Girls' and Benevolent Institutions; his other daughter a Vice-President of the Boys', and a Governor of the Girls' and the Benevolent, and his son, who will, in all probability, be this year W. Master of the Lodge attached to his regiment, a Governor of all three Charities. By thus bringing the daughters of his house into immediate relation with our noble Institutions, our worthy brother gives the most convincing proof in his power of the regard in which he holds our Society. He cannot make them Masons, for the members of the fair sex are not eligible to be received into our Lodges; but he has placed them in positions in which they must inevitably take an interest in the better part of Freemasonry, namely, in helping to alleviate such distresses as have arisen from death or indigence. However, we must not dwell too particularly on this part of our subject. It is not in the power of all Masons to follow in the footsteps of our brother, who has been blessed with more favourable opportunities for doing good than the majority of us. Still, in these days when people are apt to scramble through their duties, doing them oftentimes perfunctorily and with indifference—we say, in these days it is well worth our while to note those who fulfil them scrupulously and conscientiously; and we are justified in classing in this particular category the man who need not concern himself about matters beyond the immediate sphere of the society in which he moves, and yet does so concern himself most loyally and invariably.

We are now on the eve of closing our somewhat hasty and imperfect sketch. We are aware that in tracing his career we might have gone more into detail, and noted step by step the different positions he has held in Craft, Arch, Mark, and High Grade Masonry. Instead of doing this, we have preferred laying the greatest stress on his greatest achievements, which include a G. Deaconship of England, the post of G. Superintendent of the G. R.A. Chapter of his Province, a Past Grand Captaincy in the Temple, and the Grand Chancellorship in the Supreme Council of the A. and A. Rite. These are positions of great dignity and trust, which are attainable only by brethren of great merit. We have likewise shown how active he has been in the diffusion of Masonry—how he has been, now a leader, now a simple participator, in the foundation of Lodges and Chapters. Moreover, we have striven to give due prominence to the many and great services he has rendered to our Charitable Institutions, and in doing this we have shown that "Sir Rhadamanth" has been as successful in the practical as in the scientific duties of a Freemason. This, then, is our portrait of one who, in his more immediate circle, is regarded with the deepest affection; who is justly esteemed in society, not only for the qualities of mind he possesses, but also for the ability he displays in the duties of an office, which is always a responsible and oftentimes a thankless one; and who, in a Masonic career extending over upwards of thirty years, has grandly carried out the obligations he contracted as a simple E.A.P. Other honours may await him, but though they will confirm, they cannot enhance his reputation. He has done his duty, not from motives of self-interest, but from a sense of duty. As was sung by an English poet of last century:—

"A long descent, and noble blood,
Is but a vain fantastic good,
Unless with imbred virtues join'd,
An honest, brave, and generous mind.
All that our ancestors have done,
Nations reliev'd, and battles won;
The trophies of each bloody field,
Can only then true honour yield,
When, like Argyll, we scorn to owe,
And pay that lustre they bestow."

This has evidently been the motive power of his actions through life. He has realised fully that whatever advantages he possessed over others, entailed on him heavier responsibilities, and for this reason is he so generously regarded by his brethren. May he live to enjoy for many years to come the esteem and respect he is so justly entitled to!

GRAND CHAPTER.

THE Quarterly Meeting of Grand Chapter was held on Wednesday, at Freemasons' Hall. The three chairs were occupied by Comps. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, S. Rawson, and Hugh D. Sandeman. The other Grand Officers' posts were filled by Comps. John Hervey S.E., Capt. N. G. Philips S.N., Peter de Lande Long P.S., William Hickman 1st Asst., Robert Grey 2nd Asst., A. J. Duff Filer S.B., Francis Robinson D.C., and C. B. Payne Janitor. Comps. Snell, Head, Muggeridge, Joseph Smith, H. Dumas, T. Fenn, Glaisher, H. Murray, Joshua Nunn, were among the past Grand Officers who attended. This being the evening for the installation of the new Grand Officers, the Rev. C. J. Martyn said the Principals would remain the same as before, viz., the Prince of Wales M.E.Z., the Earl of Carnarvon Pro G.Z., Lord Skelmersdale H., and Lord De Tabley J. The other Grand Officers were nominated and invested:—Comps. Hervey E., Erasmus Wilson N., Colonel Shadwell Clerke P.S., the Rev. C. W. Arnold 1st Assistant S., H. C. Tombs 2nd Assistant S., Æ. J. McIntyre Q.C. Registrar, James Lewis Thomas S.B., H. G. Buss Standard Bearer, W. H. Lucia D.C., and C. B. Payne Janitor. Grand Chapter then granted the petitions for charters to be attached to Lodges 997 New Zealand, 681 Chesterfield, 369 Clitheroe, 1507 London, 1540 London, 1381 Kennington, 1381 Chorlton-cum-Hardy, 1283 Sowerby Bridge, 1145 Accrington, 1489 London, 1328 London, 153 Gibraltar, and 1717 Tunis. A slight discussion arose with respect to the Tunis Chapter. The Lodge has been established only six months, but it was stated by Col. Creaton that the Lodge numbered forty-two members, and there was no working Masonic body within two hundred miles of this Lodge, and the prayer of the petition was then granted. Col. Creaton, and Comps. Benjamin Head, R. Grey, Joseph Smith, H. C. Levander, John Boyd, D. Betts, Captain Philips, and James L. Thomas were appointed the Committee of General Purposes, and this closed the business of Grand Chapter.

FREEMASONRY IN MASSACHUSETTS.

THE Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts was held at the Masonic Temple in Boston, on the 13th March. In the absence through indisposition of Bro. C. A. Welch Grand Master, the chair was occupied by Bro. A. H. Howland jun. Dep. Grand Master, who was supported by Bros. W. H. Chessman Senior G. Warden, Irving B. Sayles Junior G. Warden, Rev. Charles H. Titus Recording G. Sec., many other Grand Officers Present and Past, and the representatives of a considerable number of Lodges. The Grand Lodge having been opened in the usual manner, and the records of the Annual and Stated Communications in December last, as well as those of the 2nd and 21st January, and of the 15th February, when the new Masonic Hall of Orient Lodge was dedicated and its Officers installed, were taken as read or read and confirmed. Several new Codes of Bye-laws and amendments of Bye-laws were submitted and referred to the standing Committee. Petitions for Charters for Mountford River Lodge, East Douglas, and Saint George Lodge, Brockton, were presented, and together with their Records, Bye-laws, and Returns referred to the Committee for Charters, which recommended they should be granted. The proceedings of a convention of Lodges in New South Wales, in the formation of a Grand Lodge, and an application to be recognised as the regularly organised Grand Lodge of New South Wales, were presented and referred to a Committee, consisting of Bros. Sereno D. Nickerson, Henry Endicott, and Sam. P. Oliver. A Report by the Trial Commissioners, by which a member of the William Parkman Lodge of Winchester, was expelled from all the rights and privileges of Freemasonry, was approved by vote of Grand Lodge. The Committee on the Grand Master's annual address, submitted their report, and so likewise did the Committees on Healing and on Bye-laws, after which an interesting communication from Past Grand Master Heard on the Seal of Grand Lodge and the propriety of restoring the old motto it bore, was read by Bro. Titus, and referred to a Committee consisting of Bros. W. S. Gardner, Sereno D. Nickerson, Charles L. Woodbury, Charles R. Train, and Tracy P. Cheever. A proposed amendment to the Miscellaneous Regulations of the Grand Constitutions, to the effect that persons who have received only the E.A.P., or E.A.P. and F.C. Degrees, on seeking admittance into a Lodge, should furnish the Tyler with a card, stating their name, the degree in Masonry they have attained, and the Lodge by which conferred, which card must be submitted to the W. Master for his approval before such visitor could be admitted, was also referred for consideration to a Committee. A sum of five hundred dollars was voted for charitable purposes, to be disbursed by the Committee on Charity. After an announcement by the Recording Grand Secretary that the Grand Master, the Grand Treasurer, and the Grand Marshal were absent through illness, Grand Lodge was closed in due form, with the customary formalities.

THE TIMES AND FREEMASONRY.

FROM THE TIMES OF 25TH APRIL.

THE Prince of Wales entered yesterday on his fourth year of office as Most Worshipful Grand Master of the English Grand Lodge of Freemasons. The ceremonies of the occasion, which we describe in another column, were, of course, most impressive. It is by its external splendours that Freemasonry is best known to the world outside its ranks. Its gorgeous dresses, its mysterious tokens of rank and office, and its dignified method of procedure, are well calculated to impress the mind with due reverence for those awful secrets of the craft which they at once veil and symbolize. Nothing was wanting yesterday to the full effect of the day. There was a large and distinguished company, including among the guests the Crown Prince of Denmark, Grand Master of the Danish Freemasons. There was a profuse display of the well-known insignia of the Freemasons' order. The sun and the moon, the compasses, the squares, and the triangles were resplendent amid the gold and silver and blue of the aprons, or shone upon the breasts of the assembled brethren as marks of a nobility at once the highest and the most venerable of any. Freemasonry has had its dark days. It has met with suspicion and persecution from Church and State. Its practice, even in this country, has been forbidden by express statute. Elsewhere it has been under the ban of the Inquisition, and its members have suffered accordingly. It has had its martyrs and confessors, its false and weak-hearted brethren, its schisms and discords from within, its relentless enemies who have ever been on the watch to surprise it and put it down. It has passed safely through all these dangers. It has survived with unbroken front, guarding its secrets meanwhile from an intrusive and hostile world. In this country it has been its good fortune for some time past to enjoy the favour of royalty. The ceremonial of yesterday is not the first of the kind that the English world has seen. From the days of King Henry VI., who passed suddenly from a persecutor to an admitted member of the Order, the connexion of the English Royal Family with Freemasonry has been close and frequent. At the present day, with its sixteen hundred Lodges, its innumerable band of brothers, and with the Heir-Apparent as its Grand Master, English Freemasonry stands more firmly than ever. Its enemies, if such it has, must be looked for among the sex which is debarred for ever from its privileges. Women, it is well-known, unhappily for themselves and for Freemasonry, have an evil reputation for not keeping secrets. The great ceremonial of yesterday was, therefore, less perfect than it might have been made if the sex had been less frail.

The Freemasons are, beyond all dispute, a very ancient body indeed. Their descent has been variously traced down from the patriarchs of old days. Solomon, Noah, and Adam have all been claimed as founders or prominent members of the Order. Probable evidence in all its degrees must be taken for what it is worth in a case of this kind, where strict proof has now ceased to be possible. The finisher of the great Temple must, in all reason, be thought to have been conversant with the builder's art. His workmen, if not himself, were certainly masons; and, as the presumption is that a man is free in the absence of proof to the contrary, we may venture to speak of them as Freemasons. From these early members of the Masonic Order, through Pythagoras, and with a process of filiation not very strictly made out, we come next to the masons of the early middle ages, to the constructors of the magnificent Gothic churches, which in this country and on the Continent are among the most precious monuments of antiquity. The men who erected these buildings were certainly possessed of secrets which have not yet been divulged. Their unapproached supremacy as artists is sufficient proof of this. Nor need we have any difficulty in believing that they were frequently united in a kind of brotherhood of the craft, known to one another in their necessary wanderings from place to place by signs of their own, and possessed of professional knowledge which they guarded jealously from outsiders. All this is so likely that it would need proof that the old builders were not something of this kind rather than that they were; whereas, in point of fact, the evidence, such as it is, is almost wholly confirmatory. But between these men and the modern Freemasons there is only one more chasm to be bridged over, and it is not nearly as broad and difficult as the previous one which we have already passed. As time went on, and as the constitution of society changed, the early trade companies of Europe lost, together with their uses, a good deal of their original meaning. There has been a process of transformation in a good many of them. The guild has survived, but it has been less and less closely connected with the craft or business from which it took its name. Modern Freemasonry has no very close connexion with the building trade. It scarcely, indeed, affects to have any in the ordinary sense of the words. Its buildings are of a kind not made with hands. Virtue and brotherhood and good-fellowship are the intangible results at which it is contented to aim. But we may still, in spite of the wide difference between old and new Masonry, trace some, at least, of the steps by which the process of development has been carried on. Before the time of modern Freemasonry there had already been something of mystification introduced into the Masonic Order. When the obvious uses of that Order were at an end, it was thought wise to devise something or other by way of justifying its continued existence. Curiosity was piqued by half glances which the world was suffered to have into the inner secrets of the Order. This was the state of things which went on apparently until the seventeenth century and the genius of Elias Ashmole gave Freemasonry a fresh start. Ashmole, in his various characters as herald, astrologer, and antiquary, was well fitted for the work; and Freemasonry ripened into a perfection which could scarcely have been expected.

It is of the symbolism of Freemasonry that we must be understood as speaking. Of its real secrets we can, of course, say nothing. They have been made public a dozen times since Ashmole's day. Scotchmen and Americans, with an imperfect sense of humour, or with a want of love for the mysterious, have come forward to divulge them. Weak members have been forced into betraying them, sometimes by downright violence. The Grand Inquisitor of Portugal—so the record runs—joined the order of the Freemasons for the express purpose of betraying them to their enemies. But, from whatever cause it has happened, the secret of the order—if secret indeed there be—has never been made known. The world sees it as a society which unites practical benevolence with good-fellowship, and is contented to honour it for its more obvious as well as for its more occult excellencies. The patronage of the Prince of Wales, however honourable, is not needed for keeping it in popular favour. Its great charity alone suffices to give it real merit, by which the outer world may be satisfied to judge of it. Its secrets are its own affair, and we are not bold enough to indulge even the wish of prying into them.

The Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons have invited the brethren who acted as Stewards at the late Festival to visit the Institution at Addiscombe Road, Croydon, on Tuesday next, between the hours of 12 a.m. and 4 p.m.

ACCIDENTS.—The business of accident insurance ought to be considerably extending itself through the exertions that are being made by the several offices. Where there were only three or four ten years ago, there are now something like fifteen. Yet there are very many thousands who are ignorant of the advantages a solid well-founded Company offers to those who avail themselves of an Accident Policy. The best illustration we have seen is the Annual Claim List published by the Accident Insurance Company, of 7 Bank-buildings, Lothbury. By the one for 1877, recently issued, we make out that over 1,200 cases of compensation were settled during the year; the chief number being paid for horse accidents—388. Business and professional risks brought 333; street accidents numbered 130. We are reminded, too, of the terrible bridge accident during the Bath Agricultural Meeting, in which the Company had three cases. Carriage accidents numbered 17, and railway casualties produced 28. Accidents at home seem rather numerous, as there were so many as 126. The innumerable other claims are spread over sports and pastimes, such as hunting, fishing, shooting, athletics, bicycling, bathing, boating, cricketing, football, tennis, croquet, rinking, dancing, &c. Fires and storms, attacks of cattle, and animal and insect bites, are all detailed in a way to show how varied are the injuries we are all liable to sustain. It is clear everybody should have an accident policy by him.

A new edition, revised, enlarged and illustrated with coloured plates and wood engravings.

THE above form a compact series of guide books, which will be of the greatest possible service to those for whom they have been written. They are the books of one of our most competent authorities. They are admirably and most methodically arranged, the illustrations are extremely well done, and there is not a single chapter which is not replete with the most valuable instruction. Let us take the Amateur's Flower Garden first, as we have placed it first in the series, and give just a brief outline of its contents. By so doing we shall demonstrate how fully and exhaustively Mr. Hibberd has treated the subject. After a brief introductory chapter, the author, following out the plan of the well known Mrs. Grundy, of first catching the hare before you cook it, shows how a garden should be formed before proceeding to lay down instructions for planting it. Chapter II. is devoted to "the Parterre," and the following consecutive chapters on the "Bedding System, and the Plants required for it," the "Cultivation of Bedding Plants," "A Selection of Bedding Plants," "Hardy Border Flowers," "A Selection of Hardy Herbaceous Plants," "Tender Border Flowers," and "Hardy Annuals and Biennials." Chapters X. to XIV., both inclusive, are set apart for the description of various kinds of gardens, namely, "the Rose Garden," "the American Garden," "the Subtropical Garden," "the Perpetual Flower Garden," and "the Rockery and the Alpine Garden." "Flowers for Winter Bouquet," in which the advice of a competent authority is always acceptable, is dealt with. This is followed by two most important subjects, one of which, the "Making and the Managing of the Lawn," is treated at some length in Chapter XVI., and the other, "Garden Vermin," in Chapter XVII. The last two sections of the volume include Additional Selections to those already given," and "Reminders of Monthly Work." These form a fitting, and indeed, a necessary conclusion to a most excellent treatise. The above sketch will not suffice to show the value of the instructions that are given, but they are enough to give some idea of its general character, and this is all it is in our power to do in a notice of this kind.

The Amateur's Kitchen Garden is treated much on the same principle. First we have its formation, then follows a chapter, which is specially intended for the amateur and him only. "Pits and Frames" are then treated, and then the subject of "Selecting from the Kitchen Garden." In the remainder of the work the treatment of the several kinds of vegetables is described, and among the chapters in which this is done will be found one (Chapter XXIII.) on "the Storage of Roots," another (Chapter XXIV.) on "Exhibiting," and a third (Chapter XXVII.) on "Forcing;" the last two being devoted to "the Fruit Garden," and "Reminders of Monthly Work." This has the advantage of a carefully-prepared Index. The Amateur's Greenhouse and the Amateur's Rose Book are equally meritorious works, and like the "Kitchen Garden," are both of them furnished with indexes, an advantage which is the one shortcoming that is noteworthy in the "Flower Garden." As the season is now approaching when all who can boast of gardens and take pride in them will be doing their utmost to set them in order, we have no hesitation in commending these works of Mr. Shirley Hibberd's to the favourable notice of the public. As we said at the commencement, they are very methodically arranged; there is in each a mass of useful information, the result of years of study and experience; and the more practical of the directions, such as those which relate to the formation and arrangement of gardens, the construction of frames and green or hot houses and conservatories, &c., &c., have the further advantage of being planned or illustrated. This is a real advantage to the reader, particularly if he is only a tyro in the arts of horticulture and floriculture, for illustrations frequently enable a person to grasp a subject more thoroughly than written directions, however concise and lucid they may be. However, we have said enough to convince our readers that we place great value on these four treatises, which form indeed a miniature library on Gardening, and we can only add that we hope the public will reward Mr. Hibberd's efforts on its behalf by exhausting the present, and calling for new editions of his works.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF WEST YORKSHIRE.

FROM THE LEEDS MERCURY.

THE Annual Meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire Freemasons was held on Thursday, 25th April, in the Large Room of the Church Institute, Leeds, under the auspices of the united banners of the seven Leeds Lodges. The preliminary Lodge was opened in the three degrees by the W.M.'s of the various Lodges, the position of each officer being allotted by ballot as follows:—Bros. Thos. Winn, Goderich, 1211, as W.M., Fleming, Goderich, 1211, as I.P.M., D. R. Glover, Fidelity, 289, as S.W., T. C. Taylor, Philanthropic, 304, as J.W., John Bell, Alfred, 306, as S.D., A. Whitehead, Zetland, 1311, as J.D., George Wilson, Excelsior, 1042, as I.G., J. Britton, Defence, 1221, as Tyler. Immediately on Provincial Grand Lodge entering and taking their respective chairs, Bro. Winn, addressing Sir H. Edwards, Bart. (Provincial Grand Master), on behalf of the seven Leeds Lodges, said he heartily welcomed the R.W. Provincial Grand Master, and trusted the gathering that day would tend to increase the happiness and pleasure he felt in occupying the high and honourable position he did in the Craft. (Applause).

After the Provincial Grand Lodge had been duly opened with prayer and the reading of a passage of Scripture, the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master (Sir H. Edwards) and the Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. T. W. Tew J.P.) were saluted in ancient style and in the heartiest manner. In response,

Sir Henry Edwards said—Officers and Brethren of this Provincial Grand Lodge,—Accept from me the assurance that I am gratified for the manifestation of cordiality which you have exhibited towards your Provincial Grand Master, and which I interpret as faithfully reflecting the fraternal sentiments of the Craft in this province towards me, and in which the Leeds brethren also have displayed so much good will and enthusiasm. The trouble the Committee, as the representative of the seven Lodges, has taken to hold our annual meeting in this town has been great; a meeting which uninitiated persons, outside the Masonic circle, would criticise perhaps as a gathering of a peculiar community merely to exchange a few complimentary remarks of fraternal greeting, but which is of itself to us assembled a well understood symbolism of the doctrines and charitable principles represented by our Masonic costume, and which I interpret as the expression of your deep attachment to our ancient and time-honoured Order. I thank the seven Lodges for their reception of Provincial Grand Lodge; and I thank you all, brethren, for your individual salutation, under circumstances of eventful interest to the brotherhood in West Yorkshire. The pleasure of greeting you all here to-day is, I am bound to say, tinged with melancholy. What was intended by the Committee of the seven Lodges to have resulted in one of the most brilliant and joyous of our annual assemblies, and upon an extended scale of hospitality, has been curtailed to a simple reception of Provincial Grand Lodge, from respect to the memory of a distinguished brother, lately amongst us as a bright and shining light in Freemasonry. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Jefferey, the Secretary to the Committee of the seven Lodges, has therefore postponed to a more fitting occasion the entertainment to this Provincial Grand Lodge, which formed the original programme. But I heartily acknowledge the obligations to this Committee on the union of the seven Lodges, and thank them all again for their invitation to meet at Leeds for the third time during my occupation of this chair of the Province. At this moment we have not recovered from the shock the Craft has sustained by the death, last month, of the late Deputy of this Province, and Grand Superintendent of Royal Arch Masons. Those ties of friendship which commenced between himself and the Masonic body on the 15th January 1846, when he was initiated a member of the Lodge of Harmony, at Huddersfield, have been snapped asunder by the death of Bro. Bentley Shaw. This Province has been deprived of the services and experience of one of the ablest of her counsellors. Those amongst us who have been since 1846 associated with the late Deputy in an official capacity must now again acknowledge and appreciate his qualifications for administering the affairs of this Province, the brightness of his intelligence, and the judicial impartiality of his conduct when fulfilling the duties of this chair. I trust, brethren, you will reciprocate in the desire of your Prov. Grand Master that our united sympathies, by a resolution of condolence, should be passed by this Lodge and conveyed to Bro. Shaw's family. The expression of sentiments of regret by this resolution, which stands in my name, is a Masonic principle hallowed by all our traditions and ancient customs, "to weep with them that weep, and to mourn with them that mourn." We beseech the Great Architect of the Universe to give to the family of our departed brother His richest consolation under the domestic bereavement with which it is visited, and may we all be as we verily believe he was, when our span of life is ending, ready to enter the Grand Lodge above, eternal in the heavens. (Applause.) I again congratulate the Craft on the re-election of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales as Grand Master of England. Freemasonry is spreading in all directions under his administration. Last year 63 Warrants for new Lodges were granted, and 8,465 Grand Lodge certificates issued to new members in the Order of the Grand Lodge of England. The foundation of every new Lodge is a stone added to the edifice of Masonic civilisation, and each new member a link to that fraternal chain of brotherly love, charity and mercy, which binds together peaceful, loving communities of the earth. I mention with pleasure the sum of £604, contributed by the Lodges and brethren of this Province, to the Royal Masonic Fund on the 13th February, at which my deputy was present. The circumstances of the times are not more settled than when I addressed you in January last, rather the political anxieties of the moment are intensified, and there is that consequent depression of trade which prevents the Craft from contributing more liberally at present; nevertheless, the total sum announced amounted to upwards of £11,000. Our Charity Committee reports five candidates for our votes at the elections, and may I hope that you will all, without delay, send in your voting papers to the Committee, so that they may not be hampered in the conduct of the elections and give disappointment to expectant applicants, when success ought to crown united exertions, and the more as by Bro. Shaw's death we lose 114 votes, which be always placed at the disposal of the Charity Committee. Since preparing my address, I have been informed of the election of three out of the five candidates. (Loud applause.) It is with delicacy I refer, as does the charity report, to the failure of a London bank in which the voluntary contributions of the craft, to the extent of £2,689 had been intrusted. The late Grand Treasurer, it appears, was connected with this banking firm. A committee has been appointed to consider and report upon the finance arrangements generally, and those relating to the late Grand Treasurer. The pecuniary loss to the craft is more than was at first anticipated. A proposal has been placed on the agenda paper by the Provincial Grand Registrar and his successor for augmenting the charitable resources at the disposal of this Provincial Grand Lodge. My deputy thinks the time has arrived, and that this is a fitting opportunity, for the consideration of a fund of benevolence for West Yorkshire. Should you be pleased to entertain the Registrar's moderate proposal, the paragraph would, when confirmed, become incorporated by attachment to that particular bye-law, and be construed as a part of it by affiliation. These brethren think by this proposal, a foundation would be laid on which hereafter might be consolidated a "fund of Masonic benevolence," solely devoted to charity, worthy of the liberal and munificient traditions of this generous province. The proposal has for one of its objects the separation of the annual current expenditure of the adminstration of this province from the receipts, to be exclusively devoted to charitable purposes, such as are petitions for relief, &c. By placing the financial receipts of this proposal for the establishment of a charitable fund under the control of the Charity Committee, the pecuniary influence and usefulness of this most representative body would be greatly and permanently consolidated, and its voting power at the elections year by year could be cumulatively increased and strengthened. Should there be anything in bye-law No. 42 which may on constitutional precedent hinder the promoter and seconder introducing this proposal for discussion, I and my deputy ask your permission for its temporary suspension, so as to enable this meeting of the craft to take cognisance of and deal with this proposal to the extent contained within itself. Only one more topic must I touch upon, which ought not to be passed over; I refer to the resolutions of Grand Lodge on the French question. These resolutions I received from London, and requested my deputy to transmit them to the Worshipful Masters of all Lodges under my jurisdiction, with directions to have them read in open Lodge, at its next meeting after their receipt, and afterwards permanently fixed in the minute-book. With us a candidate cannot be admitted who is without belief in the G.A.O.T.U. The first article of our incomparable Book of Constitution says, "A Freemason of all men should best understand that Jehovah seeth not as man seeth, for man looketh at the outward appearance, but Jehovah looketh at the heart." Therefore there is no place in our Lodges for one who has no belief in a Supreme Being. We are dependent on Him for life and health and all things. He demands the entire consecration of the intellect, the heart, the physical powers to His work and glory here, and that we may be fitted for the resurrection and the Grand Lodge above. (Applause.) In conclusion, permit me to say that, having examined the annual returns of the Lodges, I find an increase of 88 new members admitted over the numbers of the previous year. With 840 Worshipful Masters and Past Masters on our rolls, the difficulty of choosing names for the entering year is one of anxiety and delicacy; because out of so large a list of meritorious brethren I am utterly unable, to my great regret, to provide them with Provincial Grand Lodge recognition; therefore those Lodges from whom members are about to receive the appointment of office must accept and consider it in these brethren as equivalent to the highest honour in my power to bestow. Again I heartily thank the outgoing Provincial Grand Officers for the work they have accomplished and assistance rendered to me and to my deputy during their year of office. (Applause.)

Bro. Tew having briefly replied, the roll of Lodges was called over, showing that 61 out of 64 Lodges in the province were represented, there being about 400 brethren present, one of the largest gatherings for some time.

The next business was the investing of Provincial Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—

A proposition of Bro. J. G. Hutchinson, P. Prov. G. Regis., seconded by Bro. Malcolm, Prov. G. Regis., to alter the 53rd bye-law, for the purpose of establishing a local fund for charitable purposes, caused considerable discussion; and an amendment to defer the further consideration of the matter for three months was ultimately carried by a large majority.

A vote of condolence to the widow and family of the late Bro. Bentley Shaw, P.D. Prov. G. M., expressing the heartfelt sympathy of the Provincial Grand Lodge, was then unanimously carried.

It was stated that for the purpose of perpetuating the memory of the late Bentley Shaw, Sir H. Edwards offered to subscribe £50 towards £1,050 to obtain a presentation to the Girls' School to be called the Bentley Shaw presentation.

The Provincial Grand Lodge was then closed, after which many of the brethren repaired to the Queen's Hotel and partook of a sumptuous banquet, following which the usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given and heartily received.

WAS POPE PIUS IX. A MASON?

WHAT AN EXAMINATION OF THE RECORDS REVEALS.

It has frequently been asserted with a degree of confidence that the late Pope Pius IX., known as Mastai Ferretti, before his election to the Papal throne was a member of the Masonic fraternity under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. Many believed, and still believe, that the late Pope united with the craft, but subsequently withdrew from it, and became one of its most relentless opponents. It is not a difficult matter to discover the truth or falsity of any statement relative to this or that man who claims to be, or of whom it is asserted, is a Mason; for so complete are the records of the Grand Lodge of this or any other Masonic jurisdiction, that an examination will always establish the fact one way or the other. So much has been said of the late Pope's Masonic connection, that a representative of the PRESS yesterday made an investigation of the matter, with the result as given below, which will be found of interest not only to the membership of the Masonic order, but to every reader who has never crossed the threshold of a Lodge-room. Upon visiting the new Masonic Temple, the reporter was directed to the office of the Keystone, a Masonic weekly, whose editor, Clifford P. McCalla, Esq., Past Master of Concordia Lodge, No. 67, of this city, some time ago published a full and exhaustive article upon the subject. On visiting Mr. McCalla, at his office, that gentleman stated that he did not think that Mastai Ferrotti was ever a Mason so far as the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania had any jurisdiction. He had carefully examined the records at the new Masonic Temple, at Broad and Filbert Streets, and had given to the readers of his paper the results of his research. He then courteously handed the PRESS representative a copy of the Keystone, which contained quite a lengthy and exhaustive article upon this subject, from which the following extracts have been taken: "So far as Philadelphia is concerned, Mastai Ferretti was never made a Mason in any Lodge of this city, and we are prepared to say that he was never made a Mason in any Lodge working under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, or in any foreign country included in the Masonic jurisdiction thereunto belonging. There is a shadow of proof that he was a Mason in Havana, in a Lodge which at the time was working under the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania. An examination of the books and records at the Temple shows that on March 2, 1818, the Grand Lodge warranted Los Delicias de la Havana, No. 157, working in Havana, Cuba. The Lodge surrendered its warrant June 4, 1821, at which time it came under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of Havana. On November 17, 1819, Martin Ferrety was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. in this Lodge. On December 17, 1804, the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania warranted Lodge La Temple des Vertus Theologias, No. 103. The Lodge surrendered its warrant at the same time as the above named Lodge. In Lodge La Temple, Juan Augustus Ferrety was made a Mason January 15, 1815. He resigned March 21, 1817, and affiliated with Lodge Los Delicias de la Havana, No. 157, in which he was crafted and raised. Martin Ferrety and Juan Augustus Ferrety are the only Ferretys on the records of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania." It will be seen that these names are spelled Ferrety and not Ferretti, which latter was the Pope's name. Whether Pius IX. joined a Lodge in Havana under an assumed name is a question that cannot be answered. The shadow of proof is in that direction, for one of the Ferretys may have been the late Sovereign Pontiff. At any rate, the only record of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania is as above given.

It cannot be said, however, with any degree of authority, that Pio Nono was not a Mason. The fact that he was a Catholic, devotedly attached to a church whose feelings and prejudices are strongly against all secret societies, especially the Masonic fraternity, might have induced him to adopt one of the names above given, in order to conceal the fact of his connection with the Order. As Mastai Ferretti, he never was affiliated with any Lodge under the jurisdition of the Grand Lodge of the State of Pennsylvania, and in truth he might say so. His admirers and co-religionists could also with considerable force deny any of the assertions that he was ever raised to the sublime degree of a M.M. in any Masonic Lodge. In so far as the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania is concerned, the statements that he never was a Mason would seem to be entirely borne out; but this fact as already stated must be kept in mind—he may have been one of the two Ferrety's. It should be said, however, that the Masons of this city have been just as anxious to discover the truth as the faithful of the Church have been zealous in denying all the statements that he ever had anything to do with ancient Masonry.—The "Press" of Philadelphia.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—A report having been circulated that I have withdrawn my candidature for the Secretaryship, will you kindly contradict this, as such a statement is entirely void of foundation.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

F. R. W. HEDGES.

PROXY VOTING.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have been spoken to by several Yorkshire brethren on the subject of Proxy Voting at the coming election for Secretary of the Girls' School, and I certainly think that it would be only an act of common justice to Provincial Masons to permit them to record their votes in the manner suggested. It would be utterly unreasonable to expect us to attend the ordinary elections of pupils in order to record our votes, and why should we be expected to do so in the case of the election of Secretary?

I am, yours fraternally,

A YORKSHIRE W.M.

2nd May 1878.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have read with considerable attention the letters on this subject which have appeared in your valuable journal, and fully recognising, as all must, the great injustice done to the Provinces by the system of personal voting, I do not see how the law can be altered for this election. There is a third course open, and one which will recommend itself to every one who has the good of our Institutions at heart.

It is this. If the voting must be personal, the votes can be recorded at various centres in England, on the same principle as at a parliamentary election for a county. The Provincial Grand Secretaries of each Province can act as deputy Chairmen, and receive the balloting papers, which they can transmit to the Chairman in London, protected of course by various seals. The Chairman will, after the scrutiny and counting of voting papers, declare the result of the poll. This gives the Provincial brethren a chance of recording their votes, and does not practically disenfranchise them, as the present system does. We would all think it a great hardship if in a County Election a voter living in Barrow-in-Furness had to go to Manchester to vote, but here is something still more monstrous. A Life Governor living in Berwick-on-Tweed or Cornwall is obliged to go to London to record his vote, or else is debarred from exercising his right of choice.

As our Institutions mainly depend on voluntary donations for their maintenance and support, it is above all things necessary to conciliate those from whom we hope to receive subscriptions and donations, and the success of the Institution mainly depends upon the energy and tact which is brought to bear upon the ever increasing body of the newly-initiated by those who advocate the claims of Masonic charity, the chief of whom are the Secretaries of the various Institutions.

I must submit to you the extreme importance of the vital question—Who is to be the next Secretary? and my earnest wish that every brother, Metropolitan and Provincial, will look carefully into a matter which may for many years to come affect the best interests of the Girls' School.

Many of our Provincial brethren take the deepest interest in the well-being of the Schools, but cannot afford time or expense to go to London to vote on this question, which is all important to them, and I certainly think the privilege might be accorded to them of being able to vote for their own choice, in their own Province.

I am, yours fraternally,

A CHAIRMAN OF A PROVINCIAL CHARITY COMMITTEE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—There are many of us who feel with "Fair Play" and Bro. Constable regarding proxy voting at the coming election of Secretary, nor do we think that there need be any difficulty in the matter.

I am, yours fraternally,

ONE OF MANY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your correspondents, Bro. Constable and "Fair Play," have called attention to the disabilities of country voters in regard to the approaching election of a Secretary to the Girls' School. If such exist, and I admit that your correspondents have fully made out their case, our country brethren who desire to vote "must do so under unequal conditions as compared with London brethren."

It seems to me, however, that, to be consistent, your two correspondents, who cry out against our country brethren being hindered from the exercise of a privilege, should go a step further, and claim for them equality with Londoners in the performance of a duty. Such as is now cast alike upon Masters of Town and Country Lodges under the existing constitution of the Lodge of Benevolence.

Yours fraternally,

29th April 1878. R. F. GOULD.

"TOLERANCE" AND THE FRENCH QUESTION ONCE MORE.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I do not propose to comment at any length on Bro. Jacob Norton's latest courteous communication to your columns. I do not think it would be very profitable; that is, I do not imagine, if the controversy be further prolonged, there is the slightest probability we shall come nearer to an agreement, or that either of us will succeed in convincing the other; and for this reason. There is, to start with, an essential difference in the nature of the basis on which each of us rest our arguments. To give one instance only. His definition of morality differs materially from mine It is impossible, therefore, to argue until a common understanding has first of all been arrived at, as to what we are arguing about. Thus brother Norton asks, If atheists are necessarily stupid and immoral? To which I answer, By no means, if by "stupid" is meant "meant wanting in sense," and by "immoral," not prone to lying, stealing, adultery, and other sins of a like character. But I do not take Anderson's expression "stupid atheist," in its ordinary sense, but as conveying the same meaning as the passage I quoted from the Psalms. "The fool hath said in his heart there is no God." Here "fool," I take it, does not mean a person without sense, but an arrogant, self-sufficient, and dogmatic kind of person, who lays down his opinions tyrannically, and will brook no sort of argument in contradiction. Again, by "the word immoral" I mean to express, and I argue that Anderson did mean to express, not simply one who is not a liar or a thief, but one who fails in some essential particulars in the duties he owes towards his Creator and his fellow-creatures; who—to be more precise—refuses to pay that respectful homage to the Creator which He has a right to expect, and who declines to be governed by the ordinary obligations which suffice to bind all other men. I can quite conceive of such a person that he is a truth-telling man, that he recognises the distinction between meum and tuum, but I cannot regard him as a "moral" man for all that. Thus, until Bro. Norton and I can agree to lay down one common acceptation for the terms "stupid" and "immoral," it is impossible we can argue profitably.

As to Bro. Norton's other question, What harm to Masonry will there be in admitting a "moral atheist?" who, I take it, must in the nature of things be an impossible kind of being. Well, the harm is, that by doing so we are destroying the fundamental principles of the Craft, as laid down by the founders of our Speculative system. It is very well for Bro. Norton to say, these founders "shared the common prejudices of the vulgar" against atheists, but let us at least give Anderson, Desaguliers, and their compeers, the credit of knowing what they were about, when they formulated the new sytem. They saw the injustice of excluding men from Freemasonry on the score of religion. Anderson himself was a Scotch Presbyterian, while Desaguliers was an Anglican; but they took no heed of the atheist except to denounce him, for, as far as I can imagine, this reason, that they did not understand how it was possible for a truly moral man to be such. They enlarged the scope of Freemasonry which, in the operative period, was purely Christian, but they shuddered at the bare idea of destroying the religious character of the Craft. We in England who have had our charges, &c., &c., handed down to us through successive generations, are of the same mind, and what is of the greatest importance, we have, in accord with us, the whole of mankind through all ages from the creation till now, with the exception of an infinitesimally small number, who deny and have always denied, the possibility of there being no God. Bro. Norton has admitted that the numbers of atheists is very small. Why, then, I ask, should we be required to alter our Constitutions and stultify the Masonic teaching of all ages at the dictation of a few? Why are we to be denied our undoubted privilege of defining the principles on which our Society is based? Why, if it is conceded that we have the right of excluding "immoral" men, should we be denied the still further and higher privilege we in this country have always exercised, that of excluding irreligious men. We have never required candidates to state the nature of their religious belief. We strictly forbid the discussion of religious questions in our Lodges. But we do not admit those who deny God. This is not bigotry. By excluding them we are acting in obedience to the principles of Masonry.

In his remarks on my statement, that, there is no antagonism between religion and Masonry, I am afraid Bro. Norton will have to pardon me for saying that he has weakened his case very considerably. He has confounded together "Religion in the Abstract" with "Religion in the Concrete." The former means simply the worship of God, and will include all forms of religious worship, while the latter is confined to one specific form, as when Bro. Norton may speak of his religion or I of mine. So with virtue and vice, as the case may be, there is virtue (or vice) in the abstract, and virtue (or vice) in the concrete; the former general, the latter particular. I cannot help saying that, logically, it is absurd to lay it down that because the Roman Catholics or the Trinitarians and others have denied there is any religious principle in Freemasonry, therefore the religious principle has been wanting. The averment that Freemasonry is a non-religious body, because it is not Roman Catholic or Trinitarian is a fallacy, and I am surprised Bro. Norton should have taken it as showing that the charge against Freemasonry of being without a sense of religion has not been refuted. So long as we admit only men who have a religion, we, ipso facto, refute this charge. When we admit those who have not, we eliminate from our principles the religious element or basis, and the charge becomes true.

I need not write further. I am not ashamed of finding myself serving under the same banner as Aristotle and Cicero, who were both religious men, nor do I think it detracts from the merit of David, that though I described him as an inspired writer, there is no such word as "inspired" in the Hebrew language. I used the word as it is commonly used, for I am no Hebrew scholar, and therefore could not have known whether there was or was not such a word in that language.

I remain, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

TOLERANCE.

"URIM" AND "THUMMIM."

THESE words, which signify lights and perfections, have never been satisfactorily explained, they have nowhere been describe, perhaps a few opinions respecting them will not be unacceptable.

In Brown's Dictionary of the Bible I find the following:—"Urim and Thummim signify lights and perfections, and are mentioned as in the High Priest's breast plate, but what they were we cannot determine."

Some think they were two precious stones, added to the other twelve, by the extraordinary lustre of which God marked his approbation of a design, and by their dimness his disallowance of it; others think these two words were written on a precious stone, or plate of gold, fixed in the breast plate, others will have the name JEHOVAH incribed on a plate of gold and therein fixed; others think the letters of the names of the tribes were the Urim and Thummim; and that the letters by standing out, or by an extraordinary illumination, marked such words as contained the answer of God to him who consulted this oracle.

Le Clere will have them to be the names of two precious stones, set in a golden collar, and coming down to his breast, as the magistrates of Egypt wore a golden chain, at the end of which hung the figures of justice and truth engraven on precious stones.

Weems thinks they were some ornament formed by God himself, and given to Moses.

Hottinger thinks they might mean no more but that Moses was to choose the most shining and perfect stones of the various kinds to be put into the breast plate.

Prigeaux thinks the words chiefly denote the clearness of the oracles dictated to the High Priest, though perhaps the lustre of the stones in his breast plate might represent this clearness.

When this oracle of Urim and Thummim was to be consulted it is said the high priest put on his golden vestments, and in ordinary cases went into the sanctuary, and stood with his face to the Holy of Holies, and the consulter stood as near him as the law allowed; but how the answer was given, whether by an articulate voice from the mercy seat, or by the outstanding or lustre of the letters in the breast plate, we know not.

This oracle was never consulted in matters of faith, as in these the Jews had the written law for their rule; nor was it consulted in matters of small moment; and it is even said—I suppose without ground—that none but sovereign judges, kings, and generals consulted it. It is certain David consulted the Lord in this manner before he came to the throne.

While Moses lived there was no occasion to consult this oracle, as the Lord spake to him face to face. After his death, it was consulted till the age of the temple and prophets, the latter of which seem to have supplied its room; for we read not of one single instance of the people then consulting it. Nor did Josiah when terrified with the threatenings of God, consult it, but Huldah the prophetess, in order to know the mind of God. Josephus will have the stones of the Urim and Thummim to have retained their lustre till about A.M. 3890; but it is certain the oracle was wanting some ages before, in the days of Ezra and Nehemiah. Nor do I know of the least ground to believe that it existed under the second temple. The Jews pretend that the Bathcol (or the daughter of a voice) supplied its place, whose oracles, they say, were often attended with a clap of thunder; and it seems from Luke xii. 29, "the people, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered; others said, an angel spake unto him."

Bonar, on Leviticus, says, "It has been suggested by one who is already a scribe in the law of his God, that the stones of the breastplate were arranged in the manner in which the tents were pitched round the ark"—(this, I believe, was a brother Mason). It is followed by a sketch, showing the glory in the centre (supposed to be the Urim and Thummim) surrounded by three stones on each of the four sides of the breast plate, the effect of which is very beautiful.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

I beg most respectfully to offer myself as a candidate for the post of Secretary to your valuable Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of our esteemed Brother R. WENTWORTH LITTLE.

I have been a Freemason upwards of Nine years, during which time I have taken a very active interest in the Order. I am a P.M., and have been for some time past, Secretary of my Lodge, and Scribe E. of my Chapter.

I am now the Secretary of an Orphan Asylum, a position which I have held nearly four years, and am therefore thoroughly acquainted with the practical working of a Public Institution.

I am thirty-three years of age, and in good health, and previous to receiving my present appointment, I was engaged in business with a Marine Insurance Broker at Lloyds'.

Soliciting the favour of your kind interest and support,

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

To the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

In pursuance of my intimation a week since, of my intention to present myself as a candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of Bro. LITTLE, I now beg to state my qualifications for that office.

I am 33 years of age; for 14 years I had the entire official management of a large manufacturing business, the annual returns of which exceeded £100,000, and for the past two years I have been in business as an Accountant and Auditor.

The Testimonials I possess are such that I am hopeful of obtaining your unqualified support.

Since my entry into the Craft I have been an Annual Subscriber to the three Masonic Charities; I have served a Stewardship to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, of which I am a Life Governor; and am at the present time a Steward at the approaching Festival of this Institution, qualifying myself also as a Life Governor.

Should you do me the favour of electing me to the Secretaryship of the Institution, you may rely that I shall exert my whole energy and ability for the continued prosperity, and to further extend the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE Queen and Court are now at Windsor Castle, and will remain there for some time. On Monday, Her Majesty held an Investiture of the Imperial Order of the Crown of India, when the following ladies were ushered into the presence separately by Viscount Torrington, preceded by Sir Albert Woods, Garter King at Arms, and invested with the insignia of the order by the Queen, assisted by the Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Princess Helena of Great Britain, and Princess Beatrice, viz., the Marchioness of Salisbury, the Marchioness of Ripon, the Countess Dowager of Elgin, the Countess of Mayo, Lady Jane E. Baring, Lady Hobart, Baroness Napier of Ettrick, Baroness Lawrence, Lady Northcote, Lady Temple, Lady Denison, and Mrs. Gathorne Hardy. Each lady kissed hands on being presented. On Tuesday, the Crown Princess of Germany, Princess Royal of Great Britain, arrived at Dover on a visit to the Queen. Her Imperial Highness on landing was received by Colonel Duplat as representing Her Majesty, Count Munster the German Ambassador, and the Countess Marie Munster, Viscount Sydney, Lord Lieutenant of the County of Kent, and the Naval and Military authorities of the port. After luncheon at the Lord Warden Hotel, Her Imperial Highness travelled by the London, Chatham and Dover line to Clapham Junction, where the train was changed to the London and South Western line, and proceeded on its way to Windsor. Next week the Queen will make a short stay at Buckingham Palace, and will hold two drawing-rooms, one on Tuesday, the 7th instant, and the other on Thursday, the 9th instant.

The Prince of Wales arrived in Paris on Friday, and up to Wednesday was engaged in his duties as President of the Royal Commission of the Paris Exhibition. Thanks to the energy displayed by His Royal Highness in this capacity, the part of the building allotted for the display of British Home, Colonial, and Indian products was ready by the opening day, and presented a picture of neatness and order which must be intensely gratifying to all classes of our countrymen. It is not very often we outdo the French whose powers of organization are supposed to be greater than ours. But whatever else they may manage better in France than in this country, they certainly have not managed the arrangements of their part of the Exhibition as well as we have ours. Moreover, our Catalogues were the first to be issued, so that we have to thank the Prince of Wales for his successful exertions, whereby both Commissioners and Exhibitors have been stimulated to get through them in order in good time. On Tuesday, the Prince was joined by the Crown Prince of Denmark, and on Wednesday both their Royal Highnesses took part in the opening ceremonial. The Princess of Wales and the Crown Princess of Denmark are at Marlborough House. They pay frequent visits to the theatre and opera, and on Monday, accompanied by the Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales they visited, and were conducted over the Tower of London.

It is announced that His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught will be betrothed on Thursday next to the Princess Louise, third daughter of Prince Frederick Charles, who so greatly distinguished himself in the Franco-German War, and the Princess Marie of Prussia. The betrothal will take place at Darmstadt, whither the Princess Marie, who is at present in Italy, will set out for the purpose of being present at the ceremony. The Duke completed his twenty-eighth year on Wednesday, and the Princess is about eighteen years of age.

The House of Commons will assemble, after the Easter holidays, on Monday next, while the House of Peers will meet again a week later. Several changes have lately taken place in the personnel of the House. Mr. H. Bass, a Liberal, will take his seat for Tamworth, and the House will have to determine whether Mr. Ridley or Mr. Grey, or either of them, shall sit for South Northumberland, as both these gentlemen have been returned for the vacant seat in the representation of that constituency. A new writ will have to be moved for County Down, owing to the death of Mr. Sharman Crawford, while a contest is already in full progress for the purpose of deciding who shall succeed Mr. W. Watkins. At one time, also, there seemed a prospect of a vacancy for Southwark, as Colonel Beresford, owing to ill-health, found it impossible to give due attention to his Parliamentary duties, and had no alternative between resignation on the one hand, and prolonged leave of absence on the other. His constituents, however, prefer he should continue to be their representative, and have urged upon him to ask for leave, so that he may obtain the necessary rest.

There have been several speeches during the week in which the policy of the Government has had a conspicuous share of criticism and defence. On Monday Mr. Gathorne Hardy, the Secretary of State for India, visited Bradford (Yorkshire) for the purpose of opening a new Conservative Club, and at the dinner which followed, the right hon. gentleman justified the policy of the Ministry in which he holds so prominent a place. As a matter of course, his justification was received with the most unbounded applause by his audience. On Tuesday, Mr. Bright, at a meeting of Liberal delegates in the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, was as vehement in denouncing, as Mr. Hardy had been in defending, the Ministerial policy. Moreover, Mr. Bright lavished a considerable amount of abuse on the Earl of Beaconsfield, just as he did at the time of the Crimean war on the late Lord Palmerston. Abuse, however, is not argument, and will not help forward the designs of the Peace-at-any-price party. People respect Mr. Bright when he boldly urges or defends the opinions he holds, but they will have no sympathy with him if he descends to abuse his political opponents. A third political meeting was held the same day at Brierley Hill. Mr. C. Cochrane presided, and Mr. Chamberlain, M.P., one of the Birmingham representatives, was the principal speaker. His views were those of Mr. Bright, but they were not enunciated with the ability of that right honourable gentleman. Next week, when the House meets, no doubt we shall have more exciting times.

It is very significant of the temper and determination of the nation at this moment that the Volunteers, whose duties are of a purely defensive nature, are offering their services to the Government in very considerable numbers. Quite recently a movement was set on foot by Captain Bedford Pim, M.P., and a few other gentlemen, for organising an "Active Service Volunteer" force, the members composing it to join for a year, and to be ready to serve as part of any army that might be sent into the field. Already 2,800 men have joined, and letters from Lancashire, Yorkshire, and many other parts of England, have been received to the effect that numbers of others were prepared to follow their example, and would do their best to induce their comrades to aid the movement. Thus it is reckoned that Lancashire would furnish quite 4,000 men, and Yorkshire an even greater number, and it must not be forgotten that these thousands will be composed of trained and intelligent men who have a stake in the country, and are therefore of a class above that from which we usually recruit our armies. In fact, they are of the kind of men who, in the American Civil War, fought so desperately under Grant, McClellan and Sherman for the North, and under Lee, Jackson, Beauregard, and Johnstone, for the South. They are men in the prime of life, full of vigour, accustomed to athletic exercises, and for the most part good marksmen. With men like these, and well officered, we are likely to fare well if war should come.

Taking advantage of the Easter recess the Lords of the Admiralty have been busily inspecting our dockyards and carefully noting the progress that is being made in bringing forward new ships of war for commission. This week the First Lord and the First Naval Lord visited Portsmouth, it being the second visit paid in the brief period of a fortnight. The Penelope, the Triumph, and other ironclads have been commissioned, the Triumph for service as flagship in the Pacific in place of the Shah, announced as ordered home for repairs, while the others will assemble at an early date off Portland and form the fleet for service in the Channel and North Sea. Some seventeen or eighteen gun-boats, having twin screws, and each mounting an 18 ton-gun are also ready for the pennant. Measures have likewise been taken for calling out the Naval Reserve men, and so well has this been done that it is stated that the whole of this force can, if necessary, be drafted to the different ships of our fleet in forty-eight hours. The Coastguard are being called out for training, and the government have arranged with the owners of one hundred of our finest and swiftest merchantmen, so that they and their crews may be placed at the service of the government. But little alteration will be necessary in arming them, and then we shall have in commission a magnificent fleet which will be quite capable of accounting for any enemy's ships—iron-clads excepted—which may feel inclined to prey upon our commerce. As for the Army and Militia Reserves, the number of absentees is utterly insignificant, and so promptly have they joined, that the Queen has commanded His Royal Highness to issue a general order thanking them for their loyalty and patriotism. Drill is going on actively at Aldershot, Chatham, and in other camps or garrisons, and this week Sir Thomas Steele reviewed nine regiments of infantry, mustering together 8,000 men. The march passed drew encomiums from the gallant officer, for a large number of the men were from the Reserves, and had only joined a few days previously. The seven battalions of the Guards are to be made up to their complete war strength of 1,000 men each, and it is said that the troopers of the 1st and 2nd Life Guards and the Horse Guards Blue will be formed into one strong regiment, the strongest and stoutest men being taken, and the others left behind. In short all that is being done for the Navy and the Army is eminently satisfactory.

The first detachment of the Indian Force left Bombay for Malta on Monday. Great enthusiasm was shown, the regiments ordered for duty being made up to their complete strength without the slightest difficulty. Indeed, whole regiments volunteered where only a few sections were needed. The force will be provisioned for five months, and will sail viâ the Red Sea, and the Suez Canal for its destination. Other detachments were to follow on Wednesday, the force already told off mustering some 6000 strong. Other regiments, it is said, have received orders to hold themselves in readiness, and the Begum of Bhopal has placed all her troops at the disposal of the Government.

The event to which all France, and especially Paris, has been so long looking forward, namely, the opening of the Paris International Exhibition, came off on Wednesday. Unfortunately, the weather appears to have been very unfavourable, heavy showers falling during the time the Marshal-President and his distinguished foreign guests with the procession, as arranged, of the great dignitaries of the Republic, were traversing the immense building. But though the rain spoiled what would otherwise have been a most effective spectacle, it did not damp the ardour of the Parisians and their country cousins, who thronged the streets and boulevards. In close proximity to the building itself, the crowds were so dense, that locomotion was well nigh impossible. However, the enthusiasm was intense, especially when the great guns of Fort Valerien, &c., &c., thundered out the announcement that the Exhibition was opened. Among the august personages present were the Prince of Wales, Don Francisco d'Assisi, ex-King Consort of Spain, the Archduke Leopold of Austria, the Prince of Orange, the Crown Prince of Denmark, the Grand Duke of Leuchtenberg, Prince Henry of the Netherlands, &c., &c. There were likewise present Lord Lyons, the German and Russian Ambassadors, the Papal Nuncio, Marshal Canrobert, &c., &c., &c. In the evening all Paris was illuminated, and indeed the whole day was spent as a holiday.

The Grand Duke Nicholas has handed over the command of the Russian armies to General Todleben. Previous to this, a review on a comparatively small scale was held at San Stefano, and the Grand Duke was loudly cheered by those he had so recently commanded. After an interview with the Sultan, his Imperial Highness left for Odessa, and is by this time well on his way to St. Petersburgh, if indeed he has not already arrived there. As to what this change of commanders may mean, people have not yet made up their minds whether it has a peaceful or warlike tendency. As to the situation itself, there is little to record. Negotiations for the withdrawal from the neighbourhood of Constantinople of the Russian Army and the British Fleet are said to be in progress, and it is thought not unlikely they may prove successful. Meantime, the guerilla war which has broken out in Roumania is causing the Russians great anxiety. Indeed, the outlook, whichever way we turn, is most unsatisfactory.

We take this, the last opportunity we shall have, to remind our readers that the Ninetieth Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls is fixed for Friday next, and will be held at Freemasons' Tavern. The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon the Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master will preside, and he will be supported by an influential body of Stewards. We are sure the claims of the Institution will not be overlooked by the Craft in general.

ANECDOTES IN RELATION TO MILITARY MASONRY.

General Sir Edward Blakeney and the 38th Regiment.—An important question was mooted in the present year (1811), which still remains undecided, viz., whether the practice of Freemasonry in the army be consistent with the observance of such a state of military discipline as is required among soldiers in the active service of their country? The question is now, because many regiments have had Lodges attached to them from time immemorial, but while equal surprise and regret have been expressed that such an objection should be raised in the nineteenth century, while Masonry is in its most palmy state, we partly confess that we are rather inclined to brave the discussion of any general argument which may be urged against the Craft, because an impartial investigation of its principles cannot fail to end triumphantly. The case was this: The 38th regiment, stationed in Limerick, having had a Masonic Warrant, No. 441, of the Registry of Ireland, in the regiment for the last fifty years, although it being some time since the brethren met in a Lodge, through the exertions of their Colonel (Piper), who was W.M., while in India, they revived the Lodge; and having got the brethren of the Ancient Limerick Lodge to assist, the Master and Officers were installed on 23rd June. The circumstances having been inserted in a Limerick paper, came under the notice of Sir Edward Blakeney, who immediately wrote to know if such a transaction occurred amongst the officers and men of 38th, and being answered, that they considered, while the 42nd, 79th, 4th Dragoons, and several other regiments had Masonic Lodges attached to them, and particularly as they were under the special protection of the law, inasmuch as when all other secret societies were prohibited a special exception was made to Masonry, they could not see any breach of military discipline; but notwithstanding all these and other arguments being used, Sir Edward ordered them to return the warrant at once, and cease to meet as Masons.—Oliver's History of Freemasonry, from 1829 to 1841, p 131.

Field Marshal Viscount Combermere on Military Masonry.—His Lordship stated that he did not say what his character might have been had he not become a member of the Masonic body. In so large and universal a society there may be some bad members, but he had never met with any; and having served his country in many parts of the globe, he could say that he never knew a Mason a bad soldier; in fact, Freemasons made the best soldiers. There were good and bad in all communities, but he never knew a bad Mason. His son was a Mason, and he hoped that Masonry would make him a better man.—Speech delivered at Liverpool, 1839, by Viscount Combermere, Prov. G.M. for Cheshire.

Deathbed of General Sir C. Napier, G.C.B.—Bro. Dr. Scott, of Southsea, stated that, a short time before his death, Sir Charles Napier took his hand as a Master Mason, and thus died giving a filial proof of his appreciation of Freemasonry by dying with his hand thus laid in that of a Brother.—Preston. Ed. 1861, p 464.

Battle of Dettingen.—In the battle of Dettingen, in 1743, one of the King's Guards, having his horse killed under him, got so entangled as to be unable to extricate himself. While in this condition, an English Dragoon galloped up to him, and, with his uplifted sabre, was about to deprive him of life. The French soldier, with much difficulty, made the signs of Masonry, which the Dragoon recognizing, not only saved his life, but freed him from his perilous situation, making him, of course, a prisoner, as the Fraternities cannot dissolve those of patriotism.—Laurie's History of Freemasonry and the Grand Lodge of Scotland. Ed. 1859, p 66.

Initiation in the King's Bench Prison.—19th November 1783, information was given to Grand Lodge that two brethren, under sanction of the Royal Military Lodge at Woolwich, which claimed the privilege of an itinerant Lodge, had lately held an irregular meeting in the King's Bench Prison; i.e., had there unwarrantably initiated sundry persons into Masonry. The Grand Lodge, conceiving this to be an infringement on the privileges of every regular constituted Lodge, ordered the said Lodge to be erased from the list, and determined that it was inconsistent with the principles of Masonry to hold any Lodge, for the purposes of making, passing, or raising Masons, in any prison, or place of confinement.—Preston, 11th edition, p 294.

Lodge was opened with the usual solemnities, when the minutes of the previous meeting were read, and declared to be correctly recorded. The ballot was then taken for Bro. W. Kinsey as a joining member, and afterwards for Dr. Alexander Mackie, a candidate for the mysteries and privileges of the Order. In both cases the ballot was unanimously in favour, and Dr. Mackie being present, was impressively initiated by the W.M. The charge was delivered by Bro. P.M. Bowes. After some routine business, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, which was served in an excellent manner by Mrs. Pennington, of the Nag's Head Hotel. After supper, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were well cared for. Alderman Hepherd proposed the health of the Initiate, and expressed the great pleasure the Lodge had to number amongst them a gentleman of Dr. Mackie's position and talents. Bro. Dr. Mackie, in a long and interesting speech, acknowledged the toast; in the course of which he said he had for many years had a strong desire to become a Mason, and now that he had been initiated he felt he had discharged an important duty to himself. After the other toasts, which were interspersed by some excellent songs, by Bro. Petty, the Tyler, brought the proceedings to a close.

William Preston Lodge of Instruction, No. 766.—Held its weekly meeting on Friday, the 26th of April, at the Feathers Tavern, Upper George-street, Edgware-road. Present—Bros. W. H. G. According to announcement, the Fifteen Sections were worked by the undermentioned brethren of the Doric Lodge of Instruction, in the presence of a numerous attendance of the brethren of the William Preston. This was a return visit, made by the brethren of the former Lodge, and we do not know anything that is more likely to conduce to that spirit of brotherhood and uniformity of working, which is so much to be desired, than these visits of reciprocity. The Lodge was opened, and the sections were worked as follow:—First Lecture—Bros. Moss, McDonald, Shepherd, Cundick, Musto, Williams, Webb. Second Lecture—Bros. Ellis, Musto, Howlett, Barnes, Stephens. Third Lecture—Bros. Coben, Job, Burr. It was proposed by Bro. P.M. Braun, and seconded by the W.M., that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes in favour of the above named brethren, for their excellent working, and that they be elected honorary members. This was carried unanimously. Bro. Barnes then proposed, and Bro. Musto seconded, a vote of thanks to Bro. Rudderforth for his services in the chair, in response to which the W.M. replied that the obligation was conferred upon him and the William Preston Lodge of Instruction by the visiting brethren, as it was certainly an honour for a Lodge with so great a reputation for its working to visit so young a Lodge as the William Preston; he trusted that this would not be the last meeting between the East and West. A vote of thanks to Bros. Barnes, Musto and Cundick, for their kindness in presiding in their various capacities, was then recorded, and after some remarks from Bro. Barnes, warmly advocating the principle upon which this meeting was convened, and which he first instituted in connection with the Doric Lodge many years ago, the Lodge was closed in due form. Besides the brethren mentioned above, there were present as Visitors—Bros. West, Jones, Smith, Rawley, and Veal.

The W.T. were given by the I.G., and the charge by the J.D. The feature of the refreshment table was a massive pewter tankard of a capacity of about a gallon and a half, adorned with Masonic emblems and inscribed with the names of the Master, Wardens, and brethren of a Dutch Operative Building Guild, of which it had evidently been the property. A very general desire was expressed by the brethren present to contribute towards the purchase of this interesting relic, and at the suggestion of the W.M. a list was opened in order that all members of the Lodge who desired it should subscribe equally towards the purchase fund, and it was agreed that the subscribers names should be engraved on the tankard, and that it should then be presented to the Lodge.

Earl of Carnarvon Lodge of Instruction, No. 1642.—A meeting of this Lodge was held on 26th April, at the Mitre Hotel, Golborne-road, North Kensington, when the following brethren were present:—Bros. The Lodge having been opened in due form, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Woodmason being candidate. The first, second and third sections of the first Lecture were then worked by the brethren, under the guidance of Bro. P.M. Savage. The next meeting being devoted to the Officers of the Mother Lodge, Bro. Parkhouse was unanimously elected W.M. for the following meeting. The Lodge was then closed, at half-past 9 o'clock.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 1643.—An emergency meeting, for the purpose of raising Bro. the Rev. Wm. Hedley, Vicar of Hebburn, to the sublime degree of M.M., was held on the 30th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hebburn-on-Tyne. Present—Bros. Jas McCulloch W.M., Geo. Hardy S.W., James Mitchell J.W., A. Campbell Sec., P. J. Jackson Treas. and W.M. 424, Wm. Eckford S.D., A. Brodie J.D., J. Marchant D.C. and P.M., W. J. Gowans Steward, G. Stark I.G., R. Connell Tyler; Past Master Bro. T. S. Wraith. Visitors—Bros. J. Ridsdale P.M. P.P.G.J.W. Northumb., R. L. Armstrong W.M. 481, &c., &c., &c. The ceremony was performed in a most impressive and able manner by the W.M., after which he appointed the newly raised Brother Chaplain to the Lodge, which, although not eighteen months established, has a large roll of members, and is in a highly flourishing condition. The building is beautifully decorated and elaborately furnished, possessing handsome Lodge, banqueting rooms, private rooms, &c., &c. Stables are also provided for the use of those members driving to the meetings. Taken altogether, perhaps we may say no Lodge in the kingdom has better premises than have been provided for this, by one of its members, Bro. Bewick, at his sole expense; he leases it to the Lodge at a nominal rent. Labour being over, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting hall, and spent a most enjoyable evening. Bros. E. J. Gibbon Organist, Campbell, Mathieson, Jackson, &c. rendered some capital harmony, while P.M. Bro. Wraith, as usual, made some rich fun with his curious but instructive recitations. After calling for the Tyler's toast, the W.M. dispersed the brethren; the visitors promised to make a speedy return to Perseverance Lodge.

We regret to announce the death of Bro. Hull, Master Carpenter of H.M. Dockyard, Port Royal, a member of the Phœnix Lodge, Port Royal, which took place in the month of March, from an attack of "Yellow Jack." The deceased was well beloved by all the brethren.

The Sussex New Lodge Room is now completed, and will shortly be consecrated.

It is rumoured that a new Lodge, under the English Constitution, will shortly be opened in this city. It is stated that Bro. Allen (Chief Medical Officer of the Lunatic Asylum) will be the first Master. A better choice could not have been made, as this brother is greatly beloved by all Masons.

We have much pleasure in giving insertion to the following address presented to Bro. Benjamin Mortimer Dias, by the members of the Glenlyon Lodge, particularly as we can endorse the sentiments contained therein. A very handsome silver cup accompanied the address:—

To the Right Wor. Benjamin Mortimer Dias, Past Master of the Glenlyon Lodge, Kingston, Jamaica.

Right Wor. Sir and Bro.—We, the undersigned members of the Glenlyon Lodge, No. 246, Prov. No. 2, Scotch Constitution, feel very great pleasure in presenting to you, on your retiring from the chair, for the second time, another token of our regard and appreciation of your Masonic integrity and skill. We therefore ask your acceptance of the accompanying Loving Cup, as a very slender expression of the esteem and regard in which you are held by your subscribing Masonic friends and admirers.

We are, Right Worshipful Sir,

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF EAST JAMAICA.

At a Special Meeting of the District Grand Lodge, held at Friendly Rooms, Hanover-street, Jamaica, presided over by the Right Worshipful Hon. Dr. Hamilton, District Grand Master of East Jamaica, the Right Wor. J. W. Whitbourne, Deputy District Grand Master, having tendered his resignation from ill-health, the following address, accompanied by a testimonial, was presented to him:—

District Grand Lodge, East Jamaica,
6th March 1878.

To the Right Worshipful J. W. Whitbourne, Past Deputy District Grand Master of East Jamaica.

Right Worshipful Sir and Brother,—Having heard, at the last meeting of the District Grand Lodge, of your resignation as Deputy District Grand Master, an office which, for many years, you have so worthily and satisfactorily filled, the District Grand Lodge feels that it would not be performing its duty did it not convey to you its sentiments of regret, more especially when that retirement has been brought about by ill health.

The District Grand Lodge feels that this is the most opportune time for recording its appreciation of your valuable services, extending over a lengthened period, and which were freely rendered while acting during the absence of the Right Worshipful District Grand Master as head of English Masonry in East Jamaica, and it must be a source of much pride to you as it is of satisfaction to this District Grand Lodge to be able to refer with pleasurable recollections to the able, courteous, yet dignified manner in which those duties were performed.

We tender for your acceptance the accompanying token in testimony of the high regard and esteem in which, as a Mason, you are so highly held, and we would ask you not to value this tribute for its intrinsic worth, but to receive it as a mark of our brotherly love and respect for you.

We cannot conclude this expression of our sentiments without the prayer that ere long you will be restored to good health, and that T.G.A.O.T.U. will grant you long life, accompanied with all earthly blessings, as a reward for that unostentatiousness and usefulness which have characterised your past career.

On behalf of the officers and members of the District Grand Lodge of East Jamaica.

ROBERT HAMILTON, District Grand Master.

G. C. H. LEWIS, District Grand Secretary.

District Grand Lodge of East Jamaica,

Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren,—I crave your acceptance of my sincere thanks for the very kind and fraternal address you have been pleased to present me, expressive of your regret at my resignation of the office of Deputy District Grand Master, an office I have had the honour to hold for many years, and which, during the absence of our highly esteemed and talented Grand Master (who has been doing the Craft and us honour elsewhere), you so kindly say has been satisfactorily filled.

It is, indeed, a source of pride and gratification to me to learn that, in administering the very onerous duties of my office, I have been so fortunate as to give satisfaction; and, as you further kindly intimate, I have gained the esteem and regard of the members of the District Grand Lodge.

Words can hardly express how consolatory this acknowledgment is to me, for the duties of my office were not at all times of a pleasant nature, nor were my intentions for the good of the Craft always rightly understood, in my desire to uphold one of the grand principles of our brotherhood, without which Masonry would be nothing more than a huge sham and a snare; nay, as bad as a system of Masonry devoid of the grandest of all our grand principles, "our belief in and reverence for God." The purity of those intentions, and your approbation, which I truly appreciate, is, however, my solace.

But, in all this, I should be selfish and ungrateful if I took all the credit to myself, and failed to recognise how much my success was dependent on your kind co-operation; nor can I refrain from bearing willing testimony to the zeal of our late District Grand Secretary, the Very Worshipful J. J. G. Lewis, to whom I am grateful for past services; and I have no hesitation in stating that the present satisfactory state of the District Grand Lodge is the result of the members working together in harmony, which I hope will always be characteristic of our Masonic labours.

The testimonial which accompanies the address which you have so generously presented to me, I accept with grateful thanks. Permit me to express my gratitude for this token of your brotherly love and esteem, and let me assure you that it will be treasured up in my household as a souvenir of your kindness, and keep alive the recollection of the many happy occasions we have met together for Masonic work.

Allow me to thank you sincerely for your prayers and good wishes for the restoration of my health, the imperfect state of which (being the primary cause of my resignation) has often prevented my visits to the Lodges on occasions when it was my duty to be in my place. Even in this your kindness has been evinced, in making allowances for my shortcomings.

I shall ever remember your kindness, and sincerely trust that T.G.A.O.T.U. may have you in His keeping, and that every blessing may attend your families, will ever be the earnest prayer of

Yours sincerely and fraternally,

J. W. WHITBOURNE,

Past Deputy D.G. Master East Jamaica.

Every Mason in the Island of Jamaica, whether English or Scotch, has deeply felt the resignation of so kind, courteous and impartial a brother. One who has performed the duties during the absence of his Chief for so many years, and has given every satisfaction. His decisions have been firm, but in all in a brotherly manner. ## PROXY v. PERSONAL VOTING.

DURING the past three weeks a number of letters have appeared in these columns, the writers of which unanimously agree it is desirable—and, indeed, not only desirable, but a simple act of justice—that the voting at the election of a successor to the late Bro. Little should be conducted much in the same manner as the half-yearly elections of candidates for admission into our Schools. In other words, they propose that voting papers should be issued to all entitled to vote. These papers would contain the names of the several candidates for the post, and instructions would be inserted for the purpose of enabling the voter to indicate the particular candidate he was desirous of recording his vote for. The reason set forth by Bro. Constable, who first drew attention to the matter, is that, as the law now stands, those of our provincial brethren who now enjoy the privilege of voting, will find themselves at a very serious disadvantage as compared with those London brethren who enjoy the same privilege. In the case of the latter, the exercise of this privilege is accompanied by little or no trouble or expense, while the former have, in many instances, the choice between sacrificing their votes or incurring the outlay of several pounds, and undergoing the fatigues of a journey of several hundreds of miles in order to record their votes. As one of our correspondents has pointed out, this kind of arrangement virtually places the election in the hands of the Metropolitan voters; and that it should ever have been incorporated in the rules of the Institution will surprise most people who are in the habit of exercising anything which can in any way approximate to common sense. Why should not the voter, resident at Berwick-on-Tweed, at Penzance, or in North or South Wales, who has a right to claim the exercise of an undoubted privilege, and he who lives within a stone's-throw of Freemasons' Hall, be in every respect on a footing of equality? What more has the latter done for the Institution that he should enjoy such great privileges, while his unfortunate colleague must either lose his vote or his money? What, indeed, becomes of that sacred equality we Masons profess to one another, when the London brother expends an inappreciable sum in shoe-leather, or in omnibus or cab fare, in order to record his vote, while the Provincial has, it may be, but little change out of a five-pound note, and has to endure, into the bargain, the fatigue of several hours' travelling? Surely there must be something wrong when such a state of things is even dreamt of; and if so, how utterly wrong must it be when we find that this monstrously unequal arrangement is deliberately permitted. How long do our readers suppose a law would be permitted to remain on our Statute Book, which required that the voters at a Parliamentary election in a county should all be required to record their votes at one and the same polling place? Our House of Commons is not remarkable for wisdom in its statutory enactments; at all events, there is the old saying, to the effect that a coach and four may be driven through any Act of Parliament; but unwise as it occasionally may be, we do not think it would be guilty of the folly of granting the same rights and privileges to certain classes of the community on such manifestly unjust terms, as that one person, in order to record his vote, should have only a few yards to go, while another must travel many miles; and if so grievous an error were committed, no long time would elapse ere it was remedied. Well, in the case of our Schools this kind of mistake has been made, and if the Governors will bestir themselves, there is ample time to rectify it. Less than five minutes will suffice for preparing the necessary resolution to substitute proxy for personal voting. As it is impossible to advance anything approaching to an argument against the propriety of such a resolution, its adoption will be a merely formal matter, and if the regularly appointed meetings of the governing body or bodies are found to be insufficient for the passing of such resolution, then the law which permits a special meeting to be called may be put in operation. Thus the present exigency may be met forthwith, and in such case the successor of the late Bro. Little, whoever he may be, will have the satisfaction of knowing, and there is no doubt it will be a source of satisfaction for him to know, that he has been elected by a majority of the whole constituency, instead of by a majority of the Metropolitan voters, supplemented by a few stray Provincials. As for the manner in which the proxy system may be carried out, the simplest plan would be for voters to send their voting papers, duly filled up and signed, to the Chairman of the governing body which conducts the election, but there is another plan, which was proposed last week by "A Chairman of a Provincial Charity Committee," by which the Provincial Grand Secretaries of each Province should be empowered to act as Deputy Chairmen, receive the balloting papers, and transmitting them, under seal, to the Chairman in London. The scrutineers would then examine the papers and report the result. The voting would take place simultaneously throughout the country, and in twenty-four, or forty-eight, hours after the close of the poll the result might be known everywhere. If there is an objection to the former of these two plans, on the ground of its extreme simplicity, the latter will commend itself to those who prefer a little complexity in the arrangements. Either plan, however, will suffice to this extent, that it will place all who are entitled to vote on the same footing. Surely there is something of value in the very pertinent question submitted by "A Chairman of a Provincial Charity Committee"—namely, "Who is to be the next Secretary?" and we entirely and most cordially agree with him in the expression of a hope that "every brother, Metropolitan and Provincial, will look carefully into a matter which may for many years to come affect the best interests of the Girls' School." This, after all, is the matter which claims our first consideration, that out of the candidates who present themselves, one shall be chosen to fill the office to whom the general voice of the electors shall point as being the most eligible, and this is the end we have in view in offering these few remarks.

Herts, is the officer appointed to perform the ceremony of Consecration, and he will be assisted on this occasion by Bro. H. G. Buss, Assist G. Secretary, and Bro. Clarke Provincial G. D. of Ceremonies, Suffolk.

HIPPOCRATES.

" A head, where wisdom mysteries did frame;
Whose hammers beat still in that lively brain,
As on a stithe, where that some work of fame
Was daily wrought, to turn to Britain's gain.
A visage, stern and mild; where both did grow
Vice to contemn, in virtue to rejoice:
. . . . . .
A tongue, . . . . . .
Whose courteous talk to virtue did inflame
Each noble heart; a worthy guide to bring
Our English youth, by travail, unto fame.
An eye, whose judgment none affect could blind,
Friends to allure, and foes to reconcile;
Whose piercing look did represent a mind
With virtue fraught, reposed, void of guile.
A heart, where dread was never so impreat
To hide the thought that might the truth advance;
In neither fortune loft, nor yet repreat,
To swell in wealth, or yield unto mischance.

THERE is no section of the community which is capable of effecting, and which does indeed effect, so much good, as that which devotes its whole time, energy, and ability to the study and practice of the healing art. A medical man, be he surgeon or physician, who is thoroughly versed in his art, and whose opportunities for exercising it are many and ample, can never rest, even momentarily, from his labours, but he must be sensible that his skill and knowledge have been employed in the honourable endeavour to alleviate pain, to counteract the insidious workings of fell disease, or to repair those injuries more or less severe or terrible, which men, in their everyday pursuits, are liable to sustain. There are few who see so much of the pain and anguish of this world, and to the infinite credit of the profession be it added, there are few who exhibit more abundantly that grandest of all the virtues, the virtue of Charity. Much has been said about the emoluments they receive, and the rapidity with which some among them amass very considerable fortunes, but small account is taken of the constant wear and tear of energy, both of mind and body, to which they are subjected, of the anxieties by which, in the conscientious fulfilment of their duties, it is inevitable they must be surrounded, or even of the innumerable petty cares which await them in their daily course. The non-professional reader will have some difficulty in realising the sense of pain which a physician must feel in visiting the bedside of some fever-stricken patient who he knows is, humanly speaking, beyond all hope of recovery. It is not merely the picture of a fellow-creature in the very crisis of his malady which he has to confront; there is also the anguish of the sick one's family, with their mute appeals for even the faintest glimmering of a hope which he feels it would be unwarrantable to offer; or it may be he knows the death of his patient means the entire break up and dispersion of a home, or that a numerous and tender family will be left motherless. These and similar scenes come within his daily experience, yet he must witness them unmoved, and go his wonted rounds as though there were no such things in this world as suffering and grief. In times of danger, as when the cholera, or an epidemic of typhoid or small-pox, attacks the people, our principal reliance is in the zeal and ability of the profession, nor has this sense of reliance ever been disappointed. Wherever the peril of contagion or infection has been greatest, thither have they always hastened with alacrity, in order to cope, as far as possible, with the ravages of disease. In short, there are none who do their duty more readily or with greater ability, and but very few who experience so much pain and worry in the discharge of such duty.

The subject of our present notice is a member of that honourable calling whose virtues we have faintly endeavoured to enumerate in the foregoing remarks, and taking a local sketch of his career as the basis of our statement, we venture to say, without fear of contradiction, that few medical men have laboured more diligently and more successfully, and, consequently, that few enjoy a wider range of professional experience than our worthy and highly respected brother. Even in early youth he was intended for the profession he adorns, to which several of his ancestors had belonged, and in which they had achieved distinction; and having received the usual scholastic training in his native Hull, under the auspices of a master of considerable reputation at the time, he was, in accordance with the then conditions prescribed by Apothecaries' Hall, apprenticed for five years to a qualified surgeon. At the end of that period he matriculated at the University of Glasgow, and had the opportunity of attending its famous anatomical and surgical classes. Here for three years he pursued his course assiduously, and then removed to London, where for two years he attended the Medical School and practice at St. Thomas's Hospital. In 1832 he obtained the diplomas necessary to enable him to practise his profession, and from the first he showed the stuff that was in him. In that year Asiatic cholera first visited Hull, and one of the earliest cases occurred among our brother's patients. He at once placed himself in communication with the local authorities with a view to urging upon them the necessity for improved sanitary arrangements. But local authorities are moved but slowly, and it was not till fifteen years later, when another attack of the same scourge was impending, that the work of improvement was taken seriously in hand. The Medical Society of Hull set bravely to work. They mapped out the town into districts, appointed a Sanitary Committee, and assigned a district to each member of the Committee for him to report upon and offer recommendations. According to all accounts, our brother's report was a most elaborate one, and though others may have worked with the same energy, and though it were unjust to withhold a measure of praise from the authorities for the hearty goodwill with which they co-operated with the Sanitary Committee, still it appears that his earnest representations had a most salutary effect, and that the sanitary improvements which have been since introduced, owe their origin to his efforts and those of his coadjutors. He is also a Trustee and Deputy Chairman of the Directors of the Hull General Cemetery Company, which owes its establishment to his earnest advocacy, supported as it was by the present Town Clerk and other of his friends. In the many educational and charitable organisations which are certain to be promoted in so thriving and populous a seaport as Hull, our brother has played a most active part, the praise due for the success of such organisations being, in some cases, principally accorded to him, while in other cases he has shared it with other of his fellow-townsmen. In the year 1875 he was appointed a magistrate for the borough, and he is one of the visiting justices of the Hull Borough Prison and Hull Borough Asylum. He is Senior Honorary Surgeon to the Hull Lying-in Hospital and the Hull and East Yorkshire Penitentiary, one of the Managers of the Hull Model Dwellings, a member of the Council of the Hull Literary and Philosophical Society, the local Honorary Secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund, and a member of other local bodies. His name, indeed, is a tower of strength to every institution with which he is connected, and it is needless to say that in the course of the five or six and forty years he has been labouring so earnestly and so assiduously, he has earned for himself the enduring respect of his fellow-townsmen. That in private life he should be loved as well as respected is a matter of course. Men who do so much for the common weal are not in the habit of overlooking the claims of those who are nearest and dearest to them. As a proof of the intense earnestness by which he has through life been actuated, and the determined love he has had for sheer hard work, it should be mentioned that when he had been in practice only some three years, it was in his power to have succeeded a relative in a well established and lucrative country practice. However, he declined the offer, and in preference remained where the duties were far more onerous and exacting. Such, in outline, is the professional career of our able and distinguished brother,—a career to which he and his may point with every feeling of pride.

His career as a Mason is only a few years shorter, and is certainly not less distinguished. It is well nigh forty years since he was initiated into Freemasonry in the Humber Lodge, No. 57, then No. 65. This happened on the 16th October 1838, in the days when H.R.H. the Duke of Sussex was Grand Master. In those days there were but few members of the Society in Hull, which then had two, while now it can boast of four Lodges. Indeed, in the whole Province there were but seven Lodges and six Chapters as against the twenty-five Lodges and thirteen Chapters which it now comprises. In June 1840 he was appointed the Junior Warden of his Lodge, and in 1841, at the meeting, at which was present His Royal Highness the Grand Master, of the Provincial Grand Lodge, the minor office of Provincial Grand Steward was conferred upon him. In June 1842, or within four years of his initiation, he was elected to fill the chair of his Lodge; and this being the highest honour which his brethren could confer upon him, it must be evident he had displayed far above the ordinary zeal and capacity for Masonic study. In 1843 he was appointed Provincial G. Sword Bearer. In 1849, when the Provincial Grand Lodge was held at Richmond, under the presidency of the late Earl of Zetland, who was Grand Master of the Province as well as Grand Master of England, he was the guest of his lordship at Aske, and was appointed Provincial Grand Junior Warden; and such were his undoubted abilities, that he was reappointed the year following. In 1858 he took a leading part in the reconstitution of the Minerva Lodge, No. 250, then No. 311, and so highly did the members appreciate his services that they unanimously elected him an honorary member. On the death, in 1860, of the late Bro. Jer. Stark, who had filled the office of Prov. Grand Secretary for thirteen years, he was specially invited by his lordship the Grand Master of the Province to undertake the duties. He did so, and continued to occupy the post for some time, though at a considerable sacrifice of time and labour. In 1866, Bro. George Marwood, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, retired from the Province, and our able brother was appointed to the post, the duties of which he discharged with signal ability and success till 1873, when the late Earl of Zetland died. On the reconstitution, the year following, of the Provincial Grand Lodge, with the late Earl's nephew, the present Earl of Zetland, as Prov. Grand Master, he was reinstated in his office as Deputy, and that office he still continues to hold. This rank he has now held for close on twelve years, while his earliest Provincial laurels were gained some thirty-seven years ago. So worthy a career as this would almost of necessity receive some higher recognition still; and therefore it is with pleasure, but with no feeling of surprise, that we record his appointment to be Grand Senior Deacon of England in 1872 by the then Grand Master, the Marquis of Ripon.

In R.A. Masonry he has been as successful as in Craft. In 1851, and again the year following, he filled the First Principal's chair in the Humber Chapter. He was solicited in 1858 to accept, and he accepted, the same office in the Minerva Chapter, and was, as in the former case, re-elected the year ensuing. Indeed his lectures and addresses on Royal Arch Masonry have been generally appreciated, and especially as they evinced so much learning and archæological research. In 1859 he was appointed Third Principal in the Provincial Grand Royal Arch Chapter, and in 1866 he attained the highest Provincial honours in the Arch, being in that year appointed to the post of Provincial Grand Superintendent. He retains this position still, and under his auspices Arch Masonry has flourished abundantly. This, in all essential particulars, completes the list of his official achievements, for Hippocrates, like his late distinguished chief, and unlike many other foremost Craftsmen, has confined himself entirely to constitutional Masonry. Thus his name is missing from the roll of worthies in Mark, Templar, and High Grade Masonry respectively, though had he chosen, and had he found the time, to interest himself in their mysteries, there is little doubt he would have carved out for himself as great a reputation as he has done in the legitimate branches of the Craft.

We have said that, in 1860, he was appointed Provincial Grand Secretary, and during his tenure of that important office he compiled a Code of Bye-Laws, which after having been submitted to a Sub-Committee of Prov. G. Officers was approved by Prov. G. Lodge, which accorded him a special vote of thanks for his valuable services. There is one other work, likewise, with which his name will always be associated, and that is the establishment of a Provincial Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund. He had long felt there was a need for the erection of such a fund, from which grants might be made to deserving cases of distress in the Province, independent of those made from the Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund. Some of the Lodges, he found, had funds of their own, while others were not in a position to relieve adequately any cases that might be brought under their notice. Accordingly, he set himself to the task, and so favourably did the Prov. G. Lodge regard his proposal, and so vigorously and successfully did he labour, that in two years the Fund was established and in working order, with a code of Bye-Laws which he himself had compiled. A handsome sum is now invested, and not only has the Fund enjoyed the satisfaction of relieving many deserving cases, but it has also voted sums of money to our Central Charities. Being thus wrapt up in the success of his own Provincial scheme, it would be too much to expect he should have been in a position to devote much attention to the principal Masonic Charities, but we must not omit to mention that he is a subscriber to all three of them, and we believe he has on the carpet a scheme for contributing annually to their funds without pressing too severely on the members in the Province. That all these services should have passed without substantial recognition from his brethren is not to be expected, and on the occasion of his appointment to the Grand Junior Deaconship the opportunity was taken of presenting to him a silver epergne and salver worth 250 guineas, together with a handsomely bound volume containing an address and a list of the subscribers. The presentation was made at the Masonic Hall in Hull, and was followed by a banquet, at which a large and distinguished company were present. He has moreover taken part Masonically in laying the foundation-stone of sundry buildings, and on two occasions, when he laid the stone of the Falcon Lodge, Thirsk, in 1873, and in 1875, when he performed a similar office for the Londesborough Lodge, Bridlington Quay, the handsome trowels, each bearing a suitable inscription, were presented to him.

We have now but one other aspect in which to regard him. We have noted him in his professional career; we have followed him as a Mason in his Lodge, as a ruler in his Province, as the recipient of Grand Lodge honours most worthily bestowed, and as one who in all his different capacities has exerted himself as well to uphold the best and truest interests, as to advance one of the chief purposes, of the Craft. As the promoter of Lodges and Chapters, he has done much to extend its influence in the Province; as the promoter of its Provincial Benevolent Fund, he has been equally fortunate in confirming that influence, and in strengthening the bonds of good fellowship, which it is so desirable should unite all members of the Fraternity. There is one other claim he has upon our respect, and that is, as a Fellow of the Masonic Authors Society. We have incidentally alluded to his lectures and addresses on Royal Arch Masonry as having drawn forth high eulogiums from those who heard them. But when he compiled a code of bye-laws for his Province, he also compiled and appended thereto a history of Freemasonry in that portion of the county which was comprised within its limits, and this history contained much interesting and valuable information never before made public. In 1866, or a few years later, he published his Masonic Chart, devised in the form of a stream, and entitled "The Stream of English Freemasonry," in which were shown at one glance the rise and progress of the Craft in England, including the origin of the Royal Arch. Simple as such a publication may seem to the average Mason, there is no question it must have involved a vast amount of patient research. The author, at all events, had the satisfaction of receiving many and just encomiums from his brethren, not only from those in his own province, but likewise throughout the whole of England, and a reprint of the Chart would seem to be very desirable, now that greater interest is being taken in the history of the Society.

Our task is now ended. We have traced the career of an eminent Mason, without exaggeration or detraction. We have felt that such a one will be judged best if he is presented to our readers in his proper character. He needs no additional lustre in the shape of flowery language or high colouring. Men of inferior culture and less intellectual capacity stand in need of these adjuncts, but not he whose virtues are all his own, and who has achieved his high position by the exercise of those virtues. We trust he may live yet many years—an ornament alike of the profession he has followed so successfully, and of the Society he has served so loyally and with such fervour.

INSTALLATION MEETINGS, &c.

Lodge of Harmony, No. 133, Faversham.—On Monday last the annual meeting for the installation of Worshipful Master and appointment of Officers was held at the Volunteer Drill Hall, Faversham, and the Lodge must be congratulated on the great success of the meeting. A large muster of influential brethren were present to do honour to the occasion, and the ceremony of installation was worked by the retiring P.M., Bro. Penton. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bro. Newsom, as a Mason of forty years standing, said he could not allow the present opportunity to pass without congratulating the Lodge in general, and I.P.M. Bro. Penton in particular, on the admirable way in which he had conducted the proceedings. He. Bro. Newsom, had installed as many as ten Masters, and he had never heard the ceremony more ably performed than he had that day. Bro. Spears, of Sheerness, also spoke in complimentary terms, and Bro. Binckes said he had been an installing Master many years, and during that time he had never heard the ceremony more ably performed. As this was Bro. Penton's first attempt, it reflected most highly to his credit. Afterwards a vote of thanks was proposed by Bro. Girand, and seconded by Bro. Griggs, and carried unanimously. Bro. Penton, in reply, said he had always endeavoured to do all in his power for the Masonic cause, and thanked the brethren sincerely for the vote of thanks accorded him, and the visiting brethren for their generous remarks. The W.M. then appointed his Officers for the present year, as follow:—Bros. W. A. Hill G.C. P.G.C. Chaplain, F. Whiting S.W., W. H. Drake J.W., F. W. Underdown S.D., S. Payne J.D., E. K. Mitting I.G., J. G. Cook Tyler. Lodge was then closed in the usual manner. Amongst the brethren present were the following:—Bros. Rev. W. A. Hill G. Chaplain P.G.C., F. Binckes Grand Steward, P.M., Secretary of the Royal Masonic Boys' School. Brethren from Lodge 1273, Sittingbourne—F. F. Seale W.M., H. Tuff S.W., H. G. Sutton J.W., T. Newman Sec., G. Payne P.M., B. P.P.G.J.D., E. K. Mitting, E. Hogben, S. Payne, F. W. Underdown, G. Trench and T. E. Cooke represented the entertainers, Lodge of Harmony 133. The brethren then adjourned to the Ship Hotel, where a capital banquet had been prepared. The Chaplain having said grace, the W.M. remarked that before he commenced the toast list it would be necessary to state that as several of the visiting brethren would, from railway necessity, be compelled to leave at an early hour, and as the toast list was a very long one, and as he was anxious to reach the Visitors' toast before their leaving, some of the speeches would, of necessity, have to be short; he proposed that his own speeches should be terse so far as it was possible, an arrangement that would suit him admirably. He then proceeded to give the Queen and the Craft, saying that of all the loyal subjects whom Her Majesty possessed none were more loyal than Freemasons. He spoke of her not only as a great queen, whom we ought to honour, but as a good woman, whom we ought to respect. He reminded the brethren that allegiance to their queen was one of their first duties, and after a few allusions to the past and present of the Craft, concluded by saying that he believed a great and glorious future was in store for it; it could not be otherwise if Masons were true to its principles—principles which could not fail to win their way in the world. After the National Anthem had been sung, the W.M. proceeded to give the M.W. Grand Master of England. He said it was a toast he was sure would be responded to with enthusiasm. We owed more than our allegiance to our Grand Master, we owed him our gratitude for having, by his name, his position, and his influence, raised us high in the estimation of the world. He (the W.M.) regretted that he was not present at the re-installation at Grand Lodge, but, like many others, had he known that the Prince and his illustrious guest were to have been there he certainly should have attended. He was about to follow a precedent that was set on that occasion, and to add to the toast the name of the Princess. He paid the Princess many graceful compliments, and remarked that he supposed never before in the annals of history had a foreign princess so quickly and so thoroughly gained the hearts of a nation. Englishmen were noted for their strong insular prejudices, but these had all melted like ice before the sun in the genial presence of this amiable lady. He then made an allusion to an article which appeared in the Times with reference to the late installation, quoting what the writer had said with respect to the ladies. Reverting to our Royal Master, the speaker said that such patronage raised our Grand Lodge to the first rank among the Grand Lodges of the world. He would also presume to say that among the many titles of distinction held by His Royal Highness, that of Grand Master of the Freemasons of England was not the least honourable, although every one must acknowledge that the Prince reflected equal lustre on the Craft. Although the brethren were unable to reflect so much honour on the Craft by their position in life, yet each could do so in a degree by strict integrity and uprightness of life, and by not giving any occasion to its enemies to scoff. The toast was most enthusiastically received, with musical honours. The W.M. then gave the R.W. Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, and in doing so said he was not proposing the health of a Minister or an ex-Minister, but that of the Pro Grand Master of England, and as such he would call upon the brethren present to respond heartily to it. The next toast was that of the R.W. Deputy Grand Master Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present. In proposing this toast the W.M. said it was one which on that occasion had an especial interest, since there was present around that festive board a member and an officer of the Lodge who was one of the Grand Officers. He congratulated Bro. Hill on the distinction conferred on him, and said it was the opinion of all the brethren that he richly deserved the honour of being Chaplain to Grand Lodge. He assured Bro. Hill that he had gained the respect and affection of every member of the Lodge by his kind geniality and heartiness of manner. Alluding to the other Grand Officers, the W.M. congratulated the Craft upon its affairs being in such good hands, remarking that although he did not know the other Grand Officers personally, yet he was sure if Bro. Hill was a fair sample of them they must indeed be a good set of men. Bro. Hill, in responding, said he had been a Mason for upwards of thirty years, during which time he had gone through the various departments connected with the Craft, but never, until the present year, had he been called upon to accept office at Grand Lodge, and even when he first heard that he was about to be appointed to office, it came upon him so suddenly that he considered it to be a joke. However, he felt he had had conferred upon him a very great honour, and one he thoroughly appreciated. From what he saw at Grand Lodge he could but be impressed with one idea, and that was, he considered everything was done there to make the brethren as happy and comfortable as possible. Bro. Spears then proposed the R.W. Prov. Grand Master of Kent, Viscount Holmesdale, and in doing so alluded to that distinguished brother in a most flattering manner. He said he had been for a number of years the Provincial Grand Master for Kent, and it must be apparent to every Mason how well the Order had progressed in that county since he had held the office. Bro. Spears felt sure that all he could say in praise of the Prov. Grand Master of Kent would fall short of his due, he being ready at all times to further the progress of Masonry. It only remained for him to state, as a Past Provincial Grand Officer, the pleasure it gave him in proposing the toast, which it is needless to say was very heartily received. Bro. Penton then proposed the Very Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Eastes) and the rest of the Provincial Grand Officers Past and Present. After alluding in eulogistic terms to the merits of Bro. Eastes, he said this toast deserved special distinction from the fact of their having amongst them an old and distinguished friend and brother—Bro. Payne of Sittingbourne—who had recently been appointed one of the Stewards of the Province, a reward he richly deserved; and he begged to couple this name with the toast. Bro. Payne, in acknowledging the kindness of Bro. Penton's remarks, said he had no idea he should have been selected to respond to such a toast. All he could say had already been said by many brethren that evening; it was in the province of all to rise and receive the same amount of privilege as he had, and he regretted extremely he was not so perfect as he ought to be in his duties. He then briefly exhorted all young Masons to cultivate a love for the Craft. Bro. Hill then proposed the health of the W.M. After making some passing allusions to the good old Lodge of Harmony, he said that the time had again arrived when the members had chosen another Master to preside over them for a year; and in doing so they had selected a brother, who was sitting before them in early blown beauty; and when he considered who that brother was, he could come to but one opinion respecting him, and that was, he had proved himself singularly worthy of the honour the Lodge had conferred upon him. The talents he had displayed that evening fully convinced the brethren that, besides being able to speak, he possessed other great qualifications necessary in a Master of a Lodge. Bro. Hill concluded his very suitable and impressive remarks by asking the brethren present to respond heartily to the toast. This having been done, the W.M. said he had to thank the brethren for the unanimous vote which had placed him in his present position. He could not be otherwise than proud and gratified when he glanced at their centenary jewel, and found himself Master of such an ancient Lodge; nor when he glanced around him, and saw so many distinguished brethren assembled to do him honour. After a short retrospect of the pleasant time he had spent since he was first initiated in that Lodge, Bro. Longhurst remarked he felt sure the Lodge would be true to its old traditions, that the brethren would rally round and support him, and thus add a happier year to its Masonic experiences. He was afraid he had not deserved all that had been said about him by Bro. Hill, but it should be his watchword to earn and deserve such a high opinion. The Masonic Charities was then proposed by Bro. Girand, in a very suitable manner, and Bro. Binckes in responding said he did not want to lose a moment in expressing his thanks for the honour the Lodge had done him in inviting him there; he was delighted to think he was able to attend and renew his visit to them. In this province, during the past twenty years, he had found a large number of friends, but nowhere more than in the Lodge he was visiting that day. He passed a well deserved compliment upon the last W.M., and in doing so said how delighted he was to see the ceremony of installation so admirably worked as it had been that day. Afterwards he made an earnest appeal for those with whom his duties associated him, viz., the poor and distressed Sons of Masons, remarking that it was a duty which, if he might associate a phrase, was done "behind the curtain;" nevertheless, it was desirable that those who could lend a helping hand towards their poorer brethren should feel it incumbent upon them to do so. The Visitors was then proposed by Bro. Penton, who alluded to the fact that as so many of the brethren would be compelled to leave early, in consequence of the trains, the toast he was about to propose was a little out of its order. He felt it a great honour to have this important toast placed in his hands. During his year of office he had greatly availed himself of the hospitality of the Lodges in the Province, and he should ever remember with joy the many friends he had made, and the pleasant evenings passed. The brother he had intended to call on to respond had been obliged to leave; in his absence he would couple with the toast the name of a young and indefatigable Mason, one of whom they had heard much; Bro. Sutton. The W.M. then gave the Past Masters. He made allusion to Past Masters being the bulwarks and props of a Lodge, and congratulated the brethren upon possessing such able men as Bros.

Griggs, Giraud and the Secretary, Bro. Jackson. He complimented and thanked them all for their services, and coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Bathurst the Father of the Lodge; each of these brethren responded in a suitable manner; Bro. Giraud making some eulogistic remarks on the successful efforts made by Bro. Bathurst to resuscitate the Lodge some years back. Bro. Griggs then proposed the Installing Master, remarking what a pleasure it was for every one that day to see their late master go through the installation ceremony so perfectly. Bro. Penton in response said, he had laboured hard to do what he had done, and it was pleasing for him to hear that his efforts had been so successful. In proposing the Wardens, the W.M. made especial mention of the working of Bro. Whiting, who always entered upon his duties with a true Masonic spirit, and he was proud of having such a Senior Warden. Bros. Whiting and Drake suitably responded. The Junior Officers, was the next toast, and Bro. Penton called upon Bro. Dean to acknowledge the same. Bro. Acworth said he had the pleasure of proposing a toast, which he felt sure would be heartily received by the brethren, inasmuch as it was one that alluded to their worthy host, Bro. Hogben. He had catered for them in such a manner as to leave hardly any room for improvement; and he (Bro. Acworth) was sure the brethren would be glad of the opportunity of showing their appreciation of Bro. Hogben's efforts. This brother then responded in felicitous terms, remarking what a pleasure it always was for him to do anything to make the brethren happy and comfortable. The Tyler's toast was then given, and this closed the toast list. During the evening Bro. A. Ambrey presided in a very excellent manner at the pianoforte, he also introduced a Mr. Hunter, who sang some capital songs, which it is needless to say added greatly to the enjoyment of the guests.

Samson Lodge, No. 1668.—Twelve months ago this Lodge was ushered into existence, with no wonderful amount of éclat, but with unostentatious quietness. The great ones of the Order had no share in the advent, and there was but the slightest sprinkling of purple, crimson, and elegant decorations which are usually a conspicuous feature upon similar occasions. But the men who had taken upon themselves the responsibility of Founders, needed no adventitious aid to promote the determination to rear the bantling, and the first anniversary, which occurred on Tuesday, the 7th inst., proved the care with which the process has been conducted. The youngling manifests undoubted vitality and vigour, and there were indications of future health and robust constitution. At the appointed hour the brethren assembled at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and Bro. M. D. Loewenstark, the originator of the Lodge and its first W.M., ascended the chair. There were a number of items on the agenda, but the following only received attention:—Bro. G. J. Wainwright, of the Perfect Ashlar, No. 1178, received the degree of a Master Master; Bro. Lark was passed to the second degree; Mr. Alfred Edward Parker was initiated. Bro. J. D. Barnett S.W. and P.M. of 185 having been duly elected W.M. at the previous meeting, was then presented and inducted by Bro. Loewenstark in a manner which, to judge by the applause at the end of the addresses, must have given entire satisfaction. Bro. Barnett, with brief but appropriate words, next invested his Officers, as follow:—Bros. W. H. G. Rudderforth S.W., Barron Barnett J.W. and Sec., A. D. Loewenstark P.M. Treas., W. T. Lover P.M. S.D., Wasserberg J.D., Aarons I.G., G. Bilby P.M. Org., Quincey W.S., Elkan D.C., Rogers Tyler. A Life Governorship Association has already been established in connection with this Lodge. Two ballots were taken, the successful drawers being Bro. Aarons and his wife, who each possess a share. The W.M. then rose and said: A most pleasant duty devolved upon him, and that was to place upon the breast of the retiring W.M. and founder of the Lodge a handsome gold P.M.'s jewel, unanimously voted in recognition of his important services, and that duty was made doubly pleasant by the fact of Bro. Loewenstark being so fully entitled to the esteem of every one of the brethren, who thereby wish to convey their feelings of appreciation of his uniform kindness and courtesy, and all the qualities calculated to make a Master popular in his Lodge. Bro. Loewenstark expressed his sincere thanks, and briefly referred to his work in the formation of the Lodge, which, he having fully made up his mind to start, never rested from until success was attained. The Lodge having been closed, the brethren proceeded to the Holborn Restaurant to partake of a banquet, provided under the kind and courteous superintendence of Bro. Hamp, and the guardianship of a member of the ancient race, whose duty consisted in seeing that the viands were prepared in conformity with the principles and usages deemed essential among the votaries of the Mosaic faith. Grace having been said, the toasts were proceeded with. The name of Her Majesty was received with customary loyal enthusiasm, Bro. Brighton singing the National Anthem. Every face brightened, and every heart joined in the wish for the health of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M. The Pro G.M. Lord Carnarvon, the Deputy Lord Skelmersdale, came in for their share of expressions of good will, and the rest of the Grand Officers Past and Present were not forgotten. In proposing the health of the Initiate, the W.M. observed that it was desirable to add strength to the Samson Lodge, by increasing the number of members, but care must be taken whom they admitted. Personally he knew nothing of Bro. Parker, but he had been recommended by Bro. Quincey, and from what he had observed of his conduct during his initiation, there was no doubt their brother would be all that could be desired in a useful member of the Craft. The Initiate briefly thanked the brethren for permitting him to become one of their number. The I.P.M. submitted the name of the W.M. He was sure the prestige of the Lodge would be vastly increased by having such a Master to guide its affairs, and that the brethren would never regret having elected him to the position. He would ask all to be upstanding, and drink the health of the W.M., and salute him heartily, with vigorous Masonic fire. The W.M., in response, said the toast had been given in such flattering terms, and received with so much heartiness, that he could find no words that would sufficiently express his feelings of gratitude. They might be sure of his exertions for the benefit of the Samson Lodge. But a W.M. can do but comparatively little without the assistance of the brethren, and as far as work is concerned without the assistance of his officers. He trusted that at the end of his year of office he might still be worthy of the same amount of good feeling which was now exhibited towards him, and he would do all in his power to deserve it. He would now propose the health of the Visitors. The Samson was as yet only a small Lodge, but he was sure that not in the largest and most influential Lodge could they be more heartily and sincerely welcomed. Bro. Gulliford, W.M. Montefiore, who was called upon to respond, expressed thanks on behalf of the Visitors. Twelve months ago, at the consecration of the Lodge, when he was permitted to be present, he expressed a wish, which the balance-sheet of to-night showed they had followed, namely, that the Samson might not be ensnared by the blandishments of Delilah, and enter upon a course of lavish expenditure. He was about engaging in the formation of a new Lodge, and meant to act upon similar principles of economy. After some general remarks, Bro. Gulliford concluded by saying he would be wanting in his duties were he to fail to express most hearty and sincere thanks for the manner in which the names of the visitors were proposed and received. Bro. David Posener P.M., and W.M. of the Tranquillity Lodge No. 185, who was loudly called for, observed that in the Samson Lodge his feelings were not those of a visitor. Being surrounded by so many personal friends, he felt as one who had a right to be among them. He had followed the W.M. in the various offices in Tranquillity Lodge, and the same was the case between them in the Royal Arch. Having been present at the consecration, he was pleased at the progress the Lodge had made. He would beg to be allowed heartily and sincerely to thank them for their courtesy and hospitality. The W.M. then gave the toast of the P.M.'s. At present there were but two, the one honorary, occupying the post of Treasurer, and the other the first of the Lodge, who has shown himself in such bright colours during his year of office, and who has just reason to be proud of his position; for whoever may occupy the Master's chair, Bro. Loewenstark was now, and must henceforward, be regarded as the head of the Lodge. The I.P.M., replying, said it was exceedingly gratifying to him to be the first Past Master, and though a young man, to be called the Father of the Lodge. He would never have been able to carry out his duties with anything like satisfaction were it not for the efficient support of the officers. He thought the Lodge had been able to give a tolerably good account of itself at the end of its first year of existence. They had, among other things, established a Benevolent Fund, towards which a small subscription is demanded from the members, so that should any crushing misfortune arrive assistance might be extended to them, not as a matter of humiliation and charity, but as a matter of right, and so that the outside world need know nothing about a recipient's poverty and distress. In proposing the health of the Officers, the W.M. took occasion to point out the distinguished Masonic attainments of Bro. Rudderforth, the newly appointed S.W., whom he designated an ornament of the Craft, and as one who not only was an excellent worker himself, but possessed the capability to impart instruction to others. As regards Bro. B. D. Barnett, the J.W., who performed at the same time the duties of Secretary, they were well aware of his sterling qualities, and the satisfactory way in which everything he undertook was done. The minor offices were occupied by young brethren, and Bro. Aarons I.G., though not twelve months a Mason, was able to perform not only the duties of his office, but those of a higher position, were it necessary to call upon him for such a purpose. Bro. Rudderforth briefly replied on behalf of the Officers; he was sure every one of them was desirous to follow in the footsteps of his predecessor. The Tyler's toast next followed. During the business of the Lodge, Bro. Geo. Bilby P.M. presided at the harmonium, and in the banquet room Bro. J. D. Barnett W.M. accompanied upon the piano. The brethren, who distinguished themselves by their vocal powers were Brighten, Rosenstein, Cohen, Elkan, Rudderforth, Magee, &c. The Visitors were Bros. C. Willard 1319, G. J. Wainwright 1178, J. J. Bell S.D. 1178, J. Stock J.W. 1178, J. Gamack W.M. 1178, John Miller W.M. 188, P. Magee S.W. 548, S. Botibol 188, W. H. Gulliford W.M. 1017, David Posener W.M. 185, Rev. Victor Rosenstein, Memphis 17, E. Gottheil P.M. 185, &c.

E. Nabb S.E., Thomas Coxhead S.N., W. Hughes P.S., John Humphreys Org., David Baynes Janitor. Past M.E.Z.'s and Comps. John McEvoy P.Z., David Thomas P.Z., J. C. Robinson P.Z. 425, J. J. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, and the annual statement of accounts (which showed the Chapter to be in a very good financial position) having been approved and passed, the M.E.Z. conferred the benefit of exaltation upon Bro. Francis Robbins 721, and invested him as a Comp. of the Order. Then followed the installation of the Principals, and investiture of the Officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—W. Johnson M.E.Z., John Dennis H., J. J. Cunnah J., T. E. Nabb S.E., Algernon Potts S.N., R. C. Edwards P.S. (his assistants being Comps. Benson and Robbins), John Dennis Treas., John Humphreys Org., and David Baynes Janitor. The ceremony was performed by E. Comp. David Thomas P.Z., who could not help expressing the satisfaction it afforded him of installing as the three Principals of the Chapter three Companions who, when he occupied the chair of 721, were then the two Wardens and the Senior Deacon of the Lodge under his rule. The business of the evening being over, the Chapter was closed in ancient form and adjourned, and the Companions proceeded to refreshment. Afterwards the usual Loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given, and most heartily responded to.

MORE ATTEMPTED DISFRANCHISEMENT.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The last Committee Meeting of the Boys' School affords another instance of the centralising policy now in vogue in certain quarters.

Upon the question of nominating a House Committee for the next twelve months, one Brother (only too evidently with the sanction of those who should have known better) handed in a list of the full number of twelve candidates as his individual proposal, and so attempted to exclude any other candidate from the chance of election.

Under these circumstances it will not be thought unreasonable that some of the well-wishers of the School should have resolved to oppose such an attempt to monopolise the privileges of the Subscribers, and have determined to assert the rights of the General Committee to elect their own House Committee. With this view Bro. A. Durrant P.M. No. 1185 has been nominated to be balloted for on the 1st June, when the Subscribers will have an opportunity of deciding for themselves whether a policy which has been already repudiated by Grand Lodge, is to be tolerated in the management of our Charities.

Yours fraternally,

H. T. THOMPSON,

Lower Clapton, 8th May 1878. P.M., Life Gov.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Will you allow me, through your columns, to suggest to the Committee of the Girls' School that the approaching election of Secretary should be decided by show of hands, continued until one of the canidates have a majority of those present; otherwise the successful candidate might be elected by a very small proportion of the Committee.

Yours fraternally

ONE OF THE CANDIDATES.

PROXY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I cannot say that I see the force of Bro. Gould's argument, that if it is just and expedient for the system of proxy voting to be adopted at the election of Secretary to one of our Institutions, it is desirable, for the sake of consistency, that it should be adopted in the case of members of the Lodge of Benevolence. The election of a Secretary happens, to use a familiar expression, but "once in a blue moon;" the Lodge of Benevolence meets once a month. The election of a Secretary is conducted publicly. The names of the candidates are openly announced, and no one interested in the election could by any possibility experience the slightest difficulty in ascertaining the various qualifications, if any, which the rival candidates possess. The applications which are made to the Lodge of Benevolence are necessarily private. It would be intolerable that the merits and grounds of the various applications should be set forth in black and white, and circulated among the Masters of our Lodges. Yet some such course must perforce be adopted in order that the Country Masters may know what are the nature and deserts of the cases they are about to support or oppose by their votes. Cases which come before the Lodge of Benevolence are carefully sifted, so that no Mason unworthy of assistance may be relieved. But in order that the Country Members may be guided to vote aright, the result of such preliminary inquiries would have to be circulated, and what is essentially private as well as essentially painful and personal would thus be made public to the whole Masonic world. Moreover, the recommendations of the Lodge of Benevolence in all cases of £50 and upwards are not final, but are made subject to the confirmation of Grand Lodge, and I think we may safely rely on the discretion of those members of the Lodge who habitually or occasionally attend, not to abuse the trust confided to them. If relief were administered too lavishly or on unworthy brethren, it would not be very long before such abuse was brought under the cognizance of Grand Lodge, and a remedy would speedily be applied; but the general feeling is that the Fund of Benevolence is, under existing arrangements, both wisely and discreetly administered. Such at least is the inference I feel justified in educing from the late discussion in Grand Lodge on a motion for the reconstruction of the Lodge of Benevolence. Grand Lodge then virtually decided to "let well alone," being quite satisfied the Lodge of Benevolence conducted its affairs "well," not "ill." Again, everybody who is entitled to vote at the election of a Secretary to one of our Institutions, is deeply interested in the result, because it will affect the well-being of the Institution, beneficially or otherwise, for years and years to come. But it will require a very long stretch of the imagination to establish any connection between the relief of Bro. A, B, or C, and the welfare of Freemasonry during the next ten, twenty, or thirty years, even if it could be shown that in relieving him the Lodge had acted unwisely or extravagantly.

But to carry Bro. Gould's argument to its logical conclusion, he must go still further. If the proxy system is good for the election of Secretaries as well as candidates to our Institutions, and if it is good in order that the Country members of the Lodge of Benevolence may exercise their rights in administering relief to indigent brethren, as well as for the election of Secretaries, then, I say, it will be quite as desirable in the case of Country Members of Grand Lodge. Then will follow, of course, the adoption of that most absurd of all practices, namely, of a brother declaring his vote for or against a question, even before the merits of such question have been discussed. I need hardly point out to Bro. Gould that it is impossible in all cases to formulate a just opinion as to the merits of a question, after having merely read the sentence or sentences in which it is couched. However, I do not think it will be well to carry the argument further. I have every confidence that when Bro. Gould comes to examine more closely into the question he has raised, he will, with his usual perspicacity, discover that the analogy he has sought to establish between the two cases of the election of a Secretary, and the exercise of its functions by the Lodge of Benevolence, is more apparent than real.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

FAIR PLAY.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE May meeting of the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held on Wednesday afternoon, at Freemason's Hall. Bro. Colonel Creaton presided. The other brethren of the Committee who attended were Bros. S. Rawson, L. Stean, Griffiths Smith, Raynham W. Stewart, Thomas Cubitt, C. A. Cottebrune, A. H. Tattershall, J. A. Farnfield, John G. Stevens, James Brett, Edward Cox, Charles John Perceval, George Bolton, and Bro. James Terry Secretary. Bro. Terry read to the Committee the report to be presented to the annual meeting, to be held on the 17th instant, and after the nomination of the Committee to be elected, Bro. Raynham Stewart drew the attention of the brethren to the great services rendered gratuitously by Dr. Strong to the Institution for the last seventeen years, and concluded by moving that a testimonial of the value of one hundred guineas be presented to Dr. Strong in recognition and appreciation of his services. The motion was carried unanimously, after having been seconded by Bro. Griffiths Smith. Bros. Col. Creaton, Rawson, Head, Stewart, Farnfield, and Terry were appointed as a Committee to decide upon the testimonial and its presentation. A gardener, who had been recommended by Bro. Cutbush, was appointed to fill the vacancy therein for the office of gardener at the Institution, and after a slight discussion, as to providing a residence for this officer, Colonel Creaton and Bro. Terry were authorised to inquire into the subject, and the brethren then separated.

We beg to acknowledge, with fraternal thanks, the receipt of copy of the "Official Directory for the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cornwall," originated and edited by Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.S. Deacon England, &c., &c., &c. This is the eighth year of the publication of this valuable and interesting Guide to Cornish Freemasonry. We have noticed previous editions, and fully described the nature of their contents. Let it suffice, if we say in this case, that the Directory for 1878 is as carefully compiled and well arranged as, and will be found to be, if possible, even more complete than, its predecessors. We have, however, thought it well to extract the following particulars, which show the strength of Craft and Arch Masonry in the Province. There were, at the close of the year 1877, twenty-seven Lodges, with a total membership of 1,567 brethren. This gives an average of 58 members per Lodge. There were, at the same date, 277 Past Masters among them, giving an average of 10 P.M.'s per Lodge. The number of initiates during the year was 148, or less by seven than in 1876, but the number of subscribing members had increased by exactly 100, from 1,467 to 1,567. Since 1873, the increase has been about thirty-three per cent., or to give the precise figures, from 1141 to 1567. In Royal Arch Masonry, there are twelve Chapters, with an aggregate membership of 238 Companions, or as nearly as possible 20 members per Chapter. In other words, there is one Royal Arch Mason out of every 6.5 Craft Masons.

FESTIVAL OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

The Ninetieth Anniversary Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held yesterday evening at Freemasons' Tavern. The Right Honourable the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro. Grand Master and Prov. G.M. Somersetshire, had kindly undertaken the duties of chairman, a position for which, even if we could not call to mind our experience of 1875 when he presided at the Boy's School Festival, we know his Lordship is eminently well fitted. There was, as usual, a numerous Board of Stewards, all of whom had evidently exerted themselves to the best of their ability and most successfully. In Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, this Board had a most excellent President, in Bro. John Boyd a most worthy Treasurer, and in Bro. Hedges a very indefatigable Hon. Secretary. We must necessarily reserve our account of the gathering till next week.

The ballot for allotting a Life Governorship and ten Life Subscriberships of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, consequent on the sale of tickets by Bro. A. E. Gladwell, No. 172, on the plan inaugurated by Bro. John Constable, took place at Freemasons' Tavern, on Monday last. Amongst the brethren present were Bros. Dottridge W.M. 172, Ray 1624, J. Blyth 813, G. H. Hunter 1298, C. J. Armstrong 857, W. H. Barber 65, W. W. Morgan 211, A. E. Gladwell 172, Thomas Milbourn 1196, &c. Bro. A. Dottridge was voted to the chair, and the ballot was proceeded with. The list of successful numbers will be found in another column. The arrangements seemed to give every satisfaction, and votes of thanks were passed to those brethren who had conducted the proceedings.

We beg to announce, as a reference to our advertisement columns will show, that the name of Bro. Thomas Cull has been added to the list of candidates for the vacant Secretaryship of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Cull is Preceptor to the Royal Standard and Salisbury Lodges of Instruction. Thus the candidates, so far as we can speak with certainty, are now as as follow :—Bros. F. R. W. Hedges, C. Fitz Gerald Matier, W. Smallpeice, Wm. Worrell, F. A. White, W. Clifton Crick, Paul Storr, and Thomas Cull. We are aware that some other brethren have declared their intention of contesting the vacancy, but we prefer mentioning only the names which have been officially communicated to us.

Le Monde Maçonnique contains some very interesting accounts of Festivals held by different Lodges, among them being that of Lodge Les Admirateurs de l'Univers, which took place on the 16th March, under the presidency of its Venerable (W.M.) Bro. Dr. Barré, who delivered a most eloquent address on the beauties of Freemasonry. This "fete d'hiver" included a banquet en famille, a Concert, and a Ball. The Concert, which was arranged by Bro. Landowski and the eminent violinist Bro. Vieuxtemps, was most brilliant.

We gather from the same journal that Wednesday, the 8th inst., was the day fixed for a convention of all the Coloured Grand Lodges of the United States, the place of meeting being Wilmington, State of Delaware.

The Freemasons' Repository announces the death, at Syracuse, N.Y., on the 21st March, of Bro. Orrin Welch, who had held the offices of County Treasurer and Alderman, and, at the time of his death, was Police Commissioner. Among the high Masonic positions he held were those of G. Commander of K.T., and Ill. Deputy of the Supreme Grand Council, 33°, Northern Jurisdiction, for New York; he was also S.G.C. of Syracuse Consistory.

RED CROSS OF CONSTANTINE.

The Imperial Grand Council of Illinois have appointed Bro. Charles Fitz Gerald Matier as their Grand Representative at the Imperial Grand Council of England.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Multitudes suffering under a complication of disorders might obtain relief through these healing and purifying remedies, which should be employed without a day's delay. When the weather is variable, and colds and influenzas are prevalent, this Ointment, well rubbed upon the throat and chest, gives the greatest ease, and checks all tendency to inflammation in the lungs and other organs. The Pills assist the curative action of the Ointment, inasmuch as they purify the blood, and so quicken its circulation that congestion is rendered almost impossible. Holloway's treatment deals most successfully, too, with that very troublesome and often tedious ailment, indigestion, which is the bane of thousands, from overwork and fast living, in the present day.

ANECDOTES IN RELATION TO MILITARY MASONRY.

Battle of Lutzen.—A Scotch gentleman in the Prussian service was taken prisoner at the Battle of Lutzen, and with 400 of his companion-in-arms was conveyed to Prague. As soon as it was known that he was a Mason, he was released from confinement, invited to the tables of the most distinguished citizens, and requested to consider himself more in the character of a brother than as a prisoner of war. About three months after the engagement, an exchange of prisoners took place, and the Scotch officer was presented by the Fraternity with a purse of sixty ducats to defray the expenses of his journey.—Laurie, p 67.

Lodge of Social and Military Virtues, No. 227, late in the 46th Regiment.—An anecdote in reference to this Lodge, appears in a former number (p. 220), but having recently met with a copy of its bye-laws (1816), the prefatory address is now given. "The antiquity of our Charter renders it Masonically dear to each true brother. Among many incidents of her various history as handed down from olden record, we have always recognised with feelings of pride the honourable distinction and Masonic mark conferred by that eminent soldier and virtuous brother, the late General George Washington, who, with a sentiment worthy of so great a man, in a style of compliment flattering to the brethren of that day, restored the property (and especially the Sacred Volume, which we even now possess) with a peculiar Masonic greeting to their Masonic proprietors, it having previously, by the chance of warfare, fallen into the possession of his army." Let this record be transmitted to our successors.—By-Laws of Lodge of Social and Military Virtues, numbered 227 on the Registry of Ireland, held in the 46th Regiment of Foot. Sydney, 1816.

Masonic Naval and Military Commanders.—The M.W. Grand Master Master Mason of Scotland, (1842,) Lord Frederick Fitz-Clarence, has been appointed Commander of the Forces in North Britain vice Lord Greenock, also a Freemason. What would the recent military authorities in Ireland have said to behold the Head of the Staff in Scotland, also acting as the Head of the Craft, personally presiding over its Lodges and anxious to promote its prosperity? Among the distinguished military men who are members of the Masonic Fraternity is Sir Thomas Graham, Lord Lynedoch, the hero of many a hard fought fight. This gallant veteran, now in his ninety-fourth year, if we mistake not, was initiated when a young man in the Canongate Kilwinning Lodge of Edinburgh. He is probably the oldest member living. The present Admiral Ommaney was likewise initiated in the same Lodge; as was also Sir D. L. Gilmour K.C.B., an officer who distinguished himself in the Spanish campaign. In truth, most of the chief commanders who served under the illustrious Brother the Duke of Wellington were comrades of the Craft; videlecit, the late General the Earl Dalhousie, the present Marquis of Tweedale, Lord Combermere, Lord Lynedoch, &c. Sir John Moore was also a Scottish Mason. The immortal Nelson was a member of the English Craft.—F.Q.R., Vol. IX. p 41.

St. Andrew's Royal Arch Lodge in the Scots Greys.—William Lord Napier, initiated December 1769, while the Hon. Col. Napier, soon afterwards, himself and several other officers of his regiment, the Scots Greys, presented a petition to Grand Lodge for a charter of erection of a Military Lodge, and which was granted accordingly. On the 12th March 1770 the formal constitution of the Lodge took place in the Hall of St. John's Chapel, at which ceremony his excellency General Adolphus Oughton presided, in his capacity of Grand Master of Scotland. After a suitable address from that Military and Masonic chief, the charter was delivered into the hands of Colonel Napier as Worshipful Master thereof, Captain Basil Heron being installed Depute Master, Sir John Nesbit of Dean as Senior Warden, John Nesbit, Esq., as Junior Warden, John Christie, Esq., as Treasurer, and Captain James Colquhoun as Secretary of the new Lodge, which was duly formed and consecrated under the name and title of "the St. Andrew Royal Arch Lodge in the Scots Greys or Royal North British Dragoons." Bro. Napier succeeded his father as Baron Napier in 1773, but died about two years after, leaving his title to his eldest son Francis, who became a Mason in the Canongate Kilwinning Lodge, and was afterwards Grand Master of Scotland.—F.Q.R., Vol. IX. p 35.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

I beg most respectfully to offer myself as a candidate for the post of Secretary to your valuable Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of our esteemed Brother R. WENTWORTH LITTLE.

I have been a Freemason upwards of Nine years, during which time I have taken a very active interest in the Order. I am a P.M., and have been for some time past, Secretary of my Lodge, and Scribe E. of my Chapter.

I am now the Secretary of an Orphan Asylum, a position which I have held nearly four years, and am therefore thoroughly acquainted with the practical working of a Public Institution.

I am thirty-three years of age, and in good health, and previous to receiving my present appointment, I was engaged in business with a Marine Insurance Broker at Lloyds'.

Soliciting the favour of your kind interest and support,

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

To the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

In pursuance of my intimation a week since, of my intention to present myself as a candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of Bro. LITTLE, I now beg to state my qualifications for that office.

I am 33 years of age and for 14 years had the entire official management of a large manufacturing business, the annual return of which exceeded £100,000, and for the past two years I have been in business as an Accountant and Auditor.

The Testimonials I possess are such that I am hopeful of obtaining your unqualified support.

Since my entry into the Craft I have been an Annual Subscriber to the three Masonic Charities; have served a Stewardship to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, of which I am a Life Governor; and am at the present time a Steward at the approaching Festival of this Institution, and qualifying myself as a Life Governor.

Should you do me the favour of electing me to the Secretaryship of the Institution, you may rely upon my exerting my whole energy and ability for the continued prosperity, and the further extension of the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

BRETHREN,—I beg to offer myself as a Candidate for the office of Secretary, rendered vacant by the death of Bro. Little. Should you do me the honour to elect me, I can only say that I will endeavour to fill the office efficiently, and I hope that the manner in which I have discharged my various duties in Masonry will be considered a sufficient qualification.

I shall shortly be able to forward a circular, containing a list of my supporters, together with the qualifications I possess for the appointment.

To the Patron, Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents and Life Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

YOUR ROYAL HIGHNESSES, MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

In consequence of the lamented decease of the late Bro. R. Wentworth Little, a vacancy has occurred in the Secretaryship of this Institution, and I beg most respectfully to state that it is my intention to offer myself as a Candidate for the Office.

The experience I have gained during my five years connexion in the office as Clerk, will, I trust, be of service to me should I be successful in obtaining the appointment.

I may mention that during Bro. Little's illness nearly the whole of the Secretarial duties have devolved upon me, and I venture to hope, from the manner in which they have been discharged, it will induce you to honor me with your support should the Committee think fit to accept me as a Candidate.

I have the honour to be,

Your Royal Highnesses, my Lords and Gentlemen,

Your obedient humble servant,

TO THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

BRETHREN,—When I announced my determination of becoming a Candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, it was my intention to wait upon the Electors whose addresses were sufficiently contiguous to my own residence, for the purpose of personally requesting their Votes and Interest.

Daily endeavours have been used by me to put my desire into execution, but the task is of such magnitude that I find myself compelled to solicit by letter, advertisement, or the influence of personal friends the support on the day of election of such as I may not be able to interview, earnestly entreating them to accept my apology for the seeming inattention.

It is with pleasure I continue to receive assurances of support from many influential subscribers, and hope to prove, at the election, that in coming forward as a Candidate I have not been guilty of presumption.

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

ON Tuesday, the Queen, with the Crown Princess of Germany (Princess Royal), Princess Beatrice, with the ladies and gentlemen of the Court, reached Buckingham Palace at noon from Windsor Castle. In the afternoon Her Majesty held a court which was numerously attended by the Diplomatic and General Circles, and at which were present very many ladies whose names had been previously left at the Lord Chamberlain's office, and submitted for the Queen's approval. There were also present Her Imperial Highness the Crown Princess of Germany, the Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and Her Royal Highness the Duchess and the Duke of Teck. The Royal Body Guard of the Hon. Corps of the Gentlemen-at-Arms were on duty in the state apartments under the command of their Captain, the Earl of Coventry, and the Royal Body Guard of the Yeomen of the Guard in the Palace, under their Captain, Lord Skelmersdale. A second Drawing-room was held on Thursday. A State Ball will be held at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday, the 22nd instant, and the first state concert of the season on Wednesday, the 29th instant. It has also been announced that the Queen will visit Aldershot on Monday for the purpose of reviewing the troops quartered there. Under the circumstances greater interest than usual will attach to the visit, as no inconsiderable portion of the troops is composed of the Army and Militia Reserves, who have only joined the colours during the past three weeks. As they are all seasoned soldiers, however, they will have had time to renew their acquaintance with the exigencies of military duty.

The Prince of Wales with the Princess and the Crown Prince and Princess of Denmark are still in Paris, making the most of their necessarily brief visit, and seeing as much as possible of the Exhibition, which as day after day passes is gradually assuming a grander as well as a more business-like appearance. Among other distinguished visitors to the French capital must be mentioned Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, and the Marquis of Lorne. By the way, the banquet given by the Royal Commission in honour of its indefatigable President was a conspicuous success, but what has rendered the occasion more noticeable than it would have been under ordinary circumstances was the exceedingly friendly terms in which His Royal Highness, in proposing the toast of Prosperity to France and its Exhibition, spoke of the country. He said he trusted that the two nations might be drawn together more closely than ever, and that the prosperity of France might go on more prosperously than heretofore. The speech has attracted general notice on the part of the French newspapers, and with one or two exceptions they have all spoken in the warmest terms of the Prince's kindliness of manner. Next week we shall see His Royal Highness back again in London, as on Friday, the 17th instant, he will, by command of the Queen, hold a Levée at St. James's Palace, when presentations to the Prince will, by the express desire of Her Majesty, be deemed equivalent to presentations to the Sovereign.

One of the two Houses of Parliament, to wit, the House of Commons, has resumed its meetings after the Easter holidays. The Speaker once again presided as usual at four o'clock on Monday, and after the regular formal business had been disposed of, the Marquis of Hartington, as leader of the Opposition rose, and asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer for any information he might be in a position to furnish on the subject of the Eastern Imbroglio. The Chancellor's reply did not contain much that was new—that, of course, was out of the question, seeing that the negotiations are still in progress—but the little that he did say was of a very hopeful character; more hopeful, indeed, than the short statement he made at the last sitting before Easter. This, however, did not content the extreme Radical section of the House, and Mr. Fawcett rose at once for the purpose of challenging the conduct of the Government in connection with the despatch of Indian troops to Malta. Sir G. Campbell and Sir W. Harcourt also offered some remarks on the same subject, after which the Chancellor of the Exchequer rose and defended the conduct of the Government. The discussion, however, was continued, among the other speakers being Mr. E. Jenkins and Mr. Rylands, who both condemned the step, and Sir Robert Peel, who upheld it. The House then went into Committee of Supply. On Tuesday, Mr. Chamberlain gave notice of his intention to move a resolution condemnatory of the Government, and said that on Thursday he should ask Sir Stafford Northcote to arrange for some day to be set apart for the discussion of his resolution. The other business calls for no particular comment. The afternoon sitting of Wednesday was occupied in discussing the question whether the County Courts Bill should be read or not a second time. A motion to that effect was made by Mr. Cowen, but it was opposed by Mr. O. Morgan, who proposed that it be read a second time that day six months. In the end the motion and amendment were withdrawn. A new writ for Oxford University, owing to the elevation to the peerage of Mr. Gathorne Hardy, by the title of Viscount Cranbrook, has been issued, and the nomination is fixed for Monday. The polling will last five days.

It is to be hoped that the fatal accident which recently occurred to Sir F. Goldsmid, M.P. for Reading, will induce railway directors to have continuous platforms for their carriages, and so constructed that they will run as nearly level and as close as possible to the station platforms, so that the chance of any person falling between the two, as did poor Sir F. Goldsmid may be reduced to a minimum. The sad event happened last week. Sir Francis was coming into town as usual, and the train had entered Waterloo Station, when, according to one version, one of the porters opened the carriage door, and Sir Francis at once left the carriage, but, in stepping out, he fell, and was drawn between the carriage and the platform, and received such terrible injuries that only forty minutes after he had been taken to St. Thomas's Hospital the poor gentleman expired. The usual inquest was held, and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death. The funeral took place on Wednesday, in the cemetery of the West London Synagogue, Ball's Pond. About forty mourning coaches followed the remains, and there were also many private carriages sent by Julian Goldsmid M.P., who has succeeded to his uncle's title, Messrs. A. and G. Goldsmid, Baron de Stern, Viscount Sidney de Stern, Mr. E. Mocatta, Mr. N. Montefiore, Mr. Serjeant Simon, M.P., &c., &c. The late baronet was greatly loved and respected for his many virtues, and, not least, for his great munificence. He was the first member of the Jewish faith who was admitted to the Bar, and received the rank of a Q.C. in 1858. The mournful day was observed with every mark of respect in Reading, and a vote of condolence to his widow, Lady Goldsmid, was voted by the Mayor and Corporation of the town.

On Wednesday Sir Stafford Northcote paid a hurried visit to Oxford, for the purpose of laying the foundation stone of a new debating hall in connection with the Oxford Union Society. Though there was no political character attached to the ceremony, opportunity was taken by the Working Men's Association to present an address to the Right Honourable Baronet, and on the arrival of the train, Mr. Hall, the Conservative Member for the city, introduced the deputation, and a convenient position having been found, the address was presented and acknowledged in a suitable speech. Having then been conducted from the station to the site of the new building, the stone was declared by Sir Stafford to have been well and truly laid, and the Right Hon. Baronet delivered a lengthy and pertinent speech on the value of the building about to be erected, and the purposes to which it would be devoted. Lunch followed in the Corn Exchange, the principal toast, that of "the Union," being given by Sir Stafford Northcote.

Our warlike preparations are still continued with the same vigour as ever. The troops are being rapidly drilled, and officers at Aldershot have received orders to consider themselves as under orders for foreign service, so that leave cannot be had. Twelve thousand Martini-Henry Rifles have been ordered to be taken from the stores, it is believed, for despatch to the Indian force now on its way to Malta. Telegrams have been recived from Aden to the effect that some of the vessels conveying the expeditionary force from Bombay have already passed Aden. The ironclad Defence has arrived at Port Said.

The annual dinner of the Royal Literary Fund was held at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, on Wednesday evening, under the presidency of the Dean of Westminster. Among the guests and well-wishers of the Fund were the Bishop of Bath and Wells, Lord O'Hagan, Mr. Justice Fry, the Dean of Lichfield, General Sir W. Codrington, the Rev. Canon Farrar, Mr. E. Dicey, Mr. Henry M. Stanley, &c., &c. In proposing the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Royal Literary Fund," the Chairman spoke very eloquently on the beneficent influence of literature, and the advantage of having such a society to support literary men who had fallen into difficulties. The evening passed off most admirably.

The political news is a little less gloomy than it was last week. Count Schouvaloff the Russian Ambassador here has left London for St. Petersburgh, and previous to his departure, His Excellency had an interview with the Prime Minister, so that he might be thoroughly well informed as to the views of Her Majesty's Government. The Count is expected to arrive in St. Petersburg to-morrow (Sunday), so that we shall not have long to wait ere we get something more definite in the way of news. Meanwhile, the Turks are drilling their armies, and becoming stronger and stronger every day. An urgent demand has been made by the Russians for the surrender of Varna, Schumla, and Batoum, but the Porte hesitates, and the reason it gives it will be difficult for the Russians to controvert. The Mussulman insurrection still goes on, and is extending over a still wider area. The Roumanian difficulty is still as prominent as ever, but hopes are entertained that the troubles in Thessaly may be brought to a speedy, and perhaps a satisfactory conclusion. Prince Labanoff, who has already occupied the post before, is the new Russian Ambassador at Constantinople, and Chakir Pasha will go to St. Petersburg in the same capacity for Turkey. In fine, matters look decidedly more hopeful.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Lily Lodge of Richmond, No. 820.—The installation meeting was held on Wednesday last, at the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond. In the absence of the W.M. Brother Thomas Weaver, the Lodge was opened by Bro. W. H. Myers P.M., who called on Bro. Wm. Foster Reynolds, the Secretary, to read the minutes of last meeting, which duly received confirmation. The Audit Committee's Report was then submitted, and a very long discussion ensued; it was thought advisable that certain matters therein referred to should be still further considered, and to effect this a committee was appointed, and requested to further report at the next meeting of the Lodge. Bro. T. Weaver having now arrived, the chair was vacated in his favour by Bro. Myers, and Bro. Wright, a candidate for the second degree, was examined. He showed that his knowledge of the first degree warranted the step he now took in asking for advancement, and Bro. Weaver passed him to the degree of Fellow Craft. Bro. Chesswas was then raised to the sublime degree by Bro. P.M. Myers, who gave a careful and impressive rendering of the ceremony, the solemnity of which was greatly enhanced by the musical accompaniment of Bro. Young, who acted as Organist. Bro. Charles Hubbard, the W.M. elect, was then presented to Bro. Myers, to receive at his hands the benefit of installation, and the obligation was formally taken. The brethren not entitled to remain in Lodge were then requested to retire, a Board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. Hubbard regularly placed in the chair of King Solomon. The brethren were then re-admitted, the customary salutations were given, and the appointment of officers made, as follows:—Bros. Wells S.W., Lamb J.W., Giles P.M. Treas., Reynolds Sec., Kyezor S.D., Young J.D., Phillips I.G., Cook S. Steward, Page Deane J. Steward, Myers P.M. D.C., Gilbert Tyler. Bro. Myers then delivered the addresses, and completed his labours, amidst the applause of all present. A motion by Bro. Koch P.M. to the effect that the visiting fee at ordinary meetings be raised from 10s 6d to 12s 6d, and at installation meetings from 15s to 21s, after some discussion was withdrawn. A P.M.'s jewel was then presented to the retiring W. Master, Bro. Weaver, and having been gracefully acknowledged by that worthy Brother, the Lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren sat down to an excellent and well-served banquet. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured,—Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., replying for that of "The Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present"—the W.M., in proposing that of the Masonic Institutions, referred to the enormous benefits they conferred, and concluded a neat and effective speech by associating with the toast the name of Bro. Charles Lacey. Bro. Lacey, in reply, fully confirmed the W. Master's statement, and pointed out that there were, in the three together, not very far short of 700 persons who were either educated and maintained for a term of years, in order that they might be fitted for the battle of life, or, having fallen into a state of penury, received substantial assistance in their declining years. He spoke also with pride of the large amount—about £40,000—which was now annually subscribed towards their support. Our worthy brother concluded as follows:—

> "Let it not be said when we are gone,
> We lived but for ourselves alone;
> But let our wives and children find
> Some blessings we have left behind."

The toast of the Visitors was acknowledged by Bros. Phillips, Lacey, Lay, and Walters. The health of the W.M. was proposed by the I.P.M., and the former, in acknowledging the compliment, took the opportunity of passing a well merited eulogy on Bro. Myers P.M., to whom he said he was indebted for the knowledge he had acquired of the Royal Art. Bro. Myers was always ready to impart the knowledge he possessed, and was as well known for his courtesy as for his ability as a Mason. In his further remarks the W.M. said he should rely with confidence on his Officers to assist him in the fulfilment of his duties, and he trusted his year of office would furnish evidence that in electing him to fill it, the brethren had not misplaced their confidence. With the toast of the Past Masters was associated the name of Bro. Wearer I.P.M., who accordingly acknowledged it in a suitable manner, and the list of toasts was closed by that of the Tyler. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. J. Stedman, and gave unqualified satisfaction; but we deprecate the system, which we have noticed is adopted by other Lodges also, of including among the artists gentlemen who are not Masons. There is always the risk that the old alarm, "It rains!" may have to be sounded. We wish, also, we could say that the "Lily of Richmond," which we sincerely trust may have a long and prosperous career before it, is at the present moment in as flourishing a condition, financially, as its many friends could desire. However, by the exercise of a little economy, by courageously lopping off all expenditure which is not absolutely necessary, there is no doubt whatever that the balance between the receipts and disbursements may be redressed, and that where there is now a deficiency, there will very shortly be an excess. We have gone slightly out of the beaten track in making these remarks, because we take the liberty of placing ourselves in the category of the Lily's sincere friends and well wishers.

Kent Lodge, No. 15.—A regular meeting of this ancient, and of late years very prosperous Lodge, was held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Wednesday, the 8th inst. Bro. J. H. Cambridge W.M. was in the chair, C. Ginman S.W., C. E. Ball J.W., W. P. Dukes P.M. Hon. Sec., E. P. Barlow P.M. Steward, W. Levy S.D., S. B. Lipscombe J.D., E. A. Wells I.G., A. Posener D.C., Beckett P.M. Tyler. There were also present Past Masters S. Wharman, Jas. Pinder, Sennett, a number of brethren, and the following visitors:—W. T. Christian W.M. 1662, H. L. Goodall P.M. 784, W. T. Howe P.M. G.P., W. W. Phillips 471, E. Cocks 1339, C. Coleman 186, and E. Gottheil P.M. 185. The work, which consisted in raising Bro. Hurst and initiating Mr. Henry Andrews Elms, was conducted with remarkable efficiency. The W.M. has evidently been under the tuition of those who strive to free the ritual from its incongruities. The minor Officers, although some not so well up as could be desired, on the whole performed their duties creditably, but special mention should justly be made of Bro. A. Posener, the D.C., who acted as Deacon with masterly proficiency, eliciting universal approbation. Banquet was served at the "Holborn," where the indefatigable Bro. Hamp, the popular manager, exerted himself to the utmost in securing comfort and enjoyment. We must not forget Bro. Barlow, the Steward, who took good care, not only that everybody should be well, but plentifully served. After banquet grace was said, and the W.M. at once proceeded with the toasts; he observed that, as the hour was late, he would combine the Loyal and Masonic toasts into one, by giving them "Loyalty to the Throne and Devotion to the Best Interests of the Craft," coupling therewith the name of Bro. Howe, Grand Pursuivant, who, in his response, said his name was so frequently coupled with this toast that he wished he could respond to it more ably. He had the honour on this occasion of representing the Grand Officers, and to respond on behalf of highly distinguished brethren who had the welfare of the Craft at heart. Even H.R.H. the Grand Master, when presiding at the last Grand Lodge, as he had no doubt all had heard or read, expressed his regret that other duties prevented him from attending Grand Lodge as frequently as he could desire, but hoped in future to be able to be present at lesser intervals. The Pro Grand Master Lord Carnarvon, and the D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, are at the head of affairs, than whom more worthy brethren it would be impossible to find. As to the rest of the Grand Officers, their value was well appreciated throughout the Craft. He was unable to be present on the last occasion, when his old friend Bro. Cambridge was installed, but was proud and delighted to see him in his high position, and, moreover, with the excellent manner in which he performed his duties. He could not refrain from giving due meed of praise to the Officers, and especially to the brother who acted as Deacon, in a manner that could not possibly be excelled. He would conclude by thanking the W.M. for his kindness, and the Lodge for its generous hospitality. To the toast of the Initiate Bro. Elms replied, and expressed a hope that, having been permitted to become one among them, he might prove worthy of their esteem. He appreciated the objects of the Institution, and although in a general way it was a sound principle that "Charity begins at home," still at times that should not be taken in too literal a sense. He would be very happy at once to subscribe the sum of £10 10s in order to become a Life Governor of one of the Institutions. (Applause). Bro. Wharman I.P.M. then proposed the health of the W.M., whom he thought the brethren would never regret having placed in the chair, not only because of his general worth, but because his work was satisfactory in every sense of the word. Bro. Cambridge expressing his thanks said, It was just six years ago when, on the night of his initiation, he stood there at the right of the then W.M.; he then resolved he would make it his aim to reach the position of Master. He had succeeded, and was proud of the position, and considered his efforts amply repaid. Besides his ambition, he had not forgotten other duties. He was already Life Governor of two of the Institutions, and ready to serve Steward for the third, and represent the Kent Lodge. Before concluding, he would thank Bro. Howe for his kind words, and would just mention that their acquaintance dated from the time of his entering the first Lodge of Instruction he ever visited. He would now propose the health of the Visitors; unfortunately they had only seven this time, on the last occasion there were nineteen. Kent Lodge was always very pleased to receive visitors; the more the better. Bro. Christian on behalf of the visitors expressed hearty thanks, and Bros. Cocks, Phillips, and Gottheil followed suit. Bro. Sennett responded for the Past Masters. Prosperity to the Charities was the next toast, for which Bro. Howe responded, and in the course of his remarks feelingly referred to the late loss the Girls' Institution had sustained by the death of Bro. Little. The W.M. again referred to his intention of representing Kent Lodge. The following brethren announced a wish to subscribe £1 1s each upon his list, namely—C. A. Sennett, B. Goldberg, Dr. Dukes, Joseph Bonn, Barlow, Wharman, Stinnson, C. A. Ball, John Ball, W. Levy. To the toast of the Officers each severally replied. After the Tyler's toast the brethren separated. The evening's proceedings were enlivened by the vocal efforts of Bros. Wells, Godfrey, Green, Pinder, Elms, &c.

As this was the last assembly until September, there was a larger attendance than usual. Bros. Edward Smith W.M., J. Oswell Bury I.P.M., J. Eyton Jones S.W., J. C. Owen J.W., John Williams Sec., J. F. Edisbury Treas., Howell Davies S.D., J. W. M. Smith J.D., R. J. Williams, W. Garrett Jones Stewards, C. K. Benson I.G., Thos. Lee Tyler; Past Masters Bros. J. Oswell Bury, Wm. Low; and Bros. Wm. Sherratt, J. W. A. Cooper, E. T. Fitch, Thos. Heywood, J. B. Shirley, T. Jackson, Geo. Manly, R. M. V. Low, Geo. Bradley, Jno. Abbott Harris, Edward Lovatt, Owen Price, Evan Morris, J. Edgar. Visitors—Bros. Jas. Salmon P.M. 425, E. Bremner Smith P.M. 1432, Chas. Condlin 1477, S. Davies (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE). The usual routine business having been disposed of, the ballot was taken for Messrs. R. W. Evans and G. E. Woodford, and their election being unanimous, both were initiated into the mysteries of our ancient and honourable Order. The Lodge was then advanced for the purpose of raising Bro. Manly to the sublime degree. The ritual was performed throughout by the Worshipful Master, who acquitted himself admirably, considering that he has been in the chair only two months. There is an earnestness of purpose and desire to succeed on the part of W. Bro. Smith, which we, unfortunately, too seldom see displayed by those who aspire to the exalted position he occupies. Such excellent traits as he possesses must ensure satisfaction to himself and the Lodge over which he presides, as well as enhance the welfare of the Craft. We could not do better than refer Lodges, especially those in this Province, to the zeal shown by the Officers of the Square and Compass in all branches of the Craft. The lethargy visible at too many Lodges in this district is a disgrace to our noble Order, and has a tendency to make Freemasonry nothing more than a meaningless word. The evils from which the Province suffers may arise from the indifference or incompetency of some of the Provincial G. Officers whose duty it should be to look after the wellbeing of the Craft in their jurisdiction. We have yet to learn that the Deputy Prov. Grand Master of this Province has visited the Lodges under his care and guidance once since his appointment to office. How can we expect regularity of procedure, uniformity of ritual, or harmonious working under indifference or incompetence in Prov. Grand Lodge? Those who do know their duty in their Lodges, and Prov. Grand Lodge, are the very life and soul of the Craft in Shropshire and North Wales, and without such good Masons our glorious Order would suffer to the core. The existing state of things requires the brethren to deal promptly with, and is a subject for the serious consideration of the authorities in Grand Lodge. The W.M. having worked the Lodge down, ordered the same to be closed until September. The brethren were invited to refreshment, and adjourned accordingly to the Wynnstay Arms Hotel, where a plain but substantial spread was prepared by Bro. Marless. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the Queen and the Craft, which was drunk with great warmth. The brethren singing the National Anthem. The toast following was the M.W. the G. Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales. Brother Smith in a very appropriate manner referred to the deep interest our Grand Master took in the Craft, as evinced by his recent speech on being re-installed as Grand Master. The toast was enthusiastically received by the brethren, and drunk with musical and Masonic honours. The next toast Bro. Smith had to propose would, he was sure, be heartily received, as the Craft was so much indebted for the very able manner in whom the Grand Lodge Officers carried on the affairs of the Order, therefore he devoted the next toast to the Pro Grand Master, the Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Lodge Officers Past and Present. This the brethren responded to most heartily, with musical honours. The Worshipful Master, on rising for the fourth time, said: The toast I have now the honour of proposing brings us nearer home; it is that of Sir W. W. Wynn, our highly esteemed Prov. Grand Master. He is so well known that it requires nothing to exalt him higher in our esteem. In the conduct of the affairs of this Province, the able Officers who surround him are of great value to him, and with this toast be coupled the names of Bros. Bury and Salmon. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Bury returned thanks on behalf of Prov. Grand Lodge, and expressed his conviction that the name of Sir Watkin W. Wynn could not be too highly spoken of. Bro. Salmon, who is one of the most highly esteemed and popular Officers in his Province, thanked the brethren of the Square and Compass for the kind manner in which his name had been associated with the toast, and for the very cordial reception he at all times received. He expressed great pleasure in visiting the brethren of this Lodge. He trusted, through their further generous example, the fund they were so anxious to realize to do honour to the name of one they so highly regarded, who had been of such inestimable value to this Lodge and Province, would speedily become an accomplished fact. Bro. Bury explained with regard to this fund that the Square and Compass had done so much that he felt other Lodges ought to do something before their Lodge did more. Bro. Owen expressed a desire for some sort of report, showing what each Lodge had done. Bro. Smith announced that the Annual Provincial Picnic would be held, by the kind permission of their Prov. Grand Master, at Nant-y-bellan, Wynnstay Park, under the management of the members of the Square and Compass. The brethren would be pleased to hear that the fair sex, and any of their friends, would be heartily welcome to join. Bro. Bury, on taking the gavel said: He had permission of the W. Master to propose the next toast. It was a very pleasing duty which devolved on him to propose the health of the W. Master. Bro. Smith had so favourably progressed in the Craft as to occupy the high position he does amongst us. During his short term he had initiated three candidates, and we have this evening seen him confer the third degree in a manner which sufficiently indicates his ability; his many good qualities as a Brother ensure his being an excellent Master. This must have been a very pleasing night for our Worshipful Master;—the absence of every indication of discord. There was plenty of work to be done, and he was sure Bro. Smith would be equal to all occasions. He hoped after his year of office expired, that he would stand by them and render to the Lodge that assistance which, from his talent and goodness, would be of great value and be highly appreciated. He now gave the health of the Worshipful Master. The toast was most heartily received, with musical honours. The Worshipful Master in responding said: As a Mason he had always conscientiously endeavoured to do his duty, and the knowledge of the important office he filled would be an additional incentive to him to do so to the end. He hoped when his term of office expired, he should be proved worthy of the post and the confidence of the brethren. The hard work he had gone through was amply compensated for by the approval and indulgence of the Lodge; it was his earnest wish that all difficulties and unpleasantness should pass away. He trusted his efforts for the promotion of the good of the Lodge, and the welfare of the Order, would have the support and co-operation of the Lodge unitedly. He was greatly obliged to the I.P.M. for proposing, and to the brethren for receiving so cordially, the toast just given. The Worshipful Master rose to propose the next toast; he said: We now come to a toast which he was sure would receive a warm response. A good Past Master is a pillar of strength to us; his services are invaluable to the Master, and of great value to the Lodge. Our Immediate Past Master has been and is a great working power among us, and through his exertions in promoting the interests of the Craft and our Charities, and from his other good traits, he has endeared himself to us. This toast was also drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Barr, in responding said; Although he was a double Past Master of theirs, he could never feel that he had done too much for the Craft, or become too tired to render all the assistance in his power for the welfare of Freemasonry. In the execution of his duties as a Mason, he felt, as every one should feel who loved the Order; he recognised the necessity of having everything done properly and regularly. It is needless to add that Bro. Bury's remarks were listened to with great attention; he has the correct Masonic idea and tone in everything he does. Bro. Bury, in proposing the health of the newly Initiated Bros., and our newly raised Brother, expressed the pleasure he had experienced in making their acquaintance outside the Craft, and the great pleasure he had in greeting them Masonically. The toast was appropriately replied to by Bros. Manly, Evans, and Woodford. The Worshipful Master, said he came now to the last toast, but although the last on the list it was not by any means the least honoured by the brethren of the Square and Compass. It was a matter of regret that so many visiting brethren had to leave at an early hour, but time and trains wait for no man. They were always glad to see visiting brethren among them; to-night we are pleased to see Bro. Davies, from London, who had come to visit us as the reprepresentative of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, a journal devoted to Masonic literature and events. With the toast of our visiting brethren, he would couple the name of Bro. Davies. The toast was enthusiastically drunk, and Bro. Davies returned thanks. The Tyler then brought the proceedings to a close, and the brethren dispersed.

Lorkin, worked the first section of the lecture. The Lodge was resumed, and the first and second sections of the first lecture were worked by Bro. Meyer, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Meyer assisted Bro. Fieldwick to work the third section of the lecture. Bro. J. Lorkin was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. Bros. Truman (184) and Crane (975) were elected members. Auerbaan Treas., E. P. Albert P.G.P. Sec., Blanks as S.D., J. Wynman J.D., Baker I.G.; P.M.'s L. Lazarus, A. G. Dodson, S. Hickman, H. M. Levy, L. Alexander; Bros. Benjamin, Bean, Langley, Martin, Benjamin, Verden, Dewsnap, &c. Visitors—Bros. Littell P.M. 860, H. Reed P.M. 193, 1287, Capt. Perrott 349. The Lodge was opened and the minutes were confirmed. Names of candidates were on the agenda paper, but the gentlemen were not present. The 1st and 2nd sections of the first lecture were worked by Bro. M. Spiegel S.W., assisted by the members. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren partook of slight refreshment. The W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts. Bro. E. P. Albert P.G.P. responded for the Grand Officers. Bro. L. Alexander P.M. V.P. responded to the toast of the Benevolent Fund, and informed the brethren that it had now reached £1400; he was pleased to say that for eighteen months no application had been made; and hoped it would be long before any application should be received. Bro. A. G. Dodson P.M. proposed the toast of the W.M.; he was the right man in the right place, and he hoped they would, before he left the chair, see his capability for working. The W.M. thanked Bro. Dodson for his kind expressions; he hoped on future occasions the candidates might be present. The W.M. in proposing the toast of the Visitors, said they were honoured by the presence of Bros. H. Reed P.M. 193 and 1287, J. Littell P.M. 860, and Capt. Perrott 349; they were pleased to see these brethren. After replies from each of the Visitors, Bro. E. P. Albert, in returning thanks for the health of the Treasurer and Secretary, regretted the former brother had been obliged to leave, but he assured the members that their Treasurer's heart and soul was with them. The W.M., in proposing the Wardens, said the working of Bro. Spiegel was well known in Lodges of Instruction, and he was sure he would in due course occupy the chair. The same remarks might with equal justice be made of the J.W., who was equally capable. Bros. Spiegel and H. Hyams severally responded, Bros. Benjamin and Blanks returned thanks for the Junior Officers. The Tyler's toast was then given. Some excellent harmony emanated from Bros. Martin, Littell, Dodson, L. Alexander, Benjamin, Blanks, and Captain Perrott. The brethren separated early.

Freemason's Chronicle;

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

VOL. VII.—No. 177. SATURDAY, 18th MAY 1878. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

A FRENCH VIEW OF THE RECENT RESOLUTIONS OF OUR GRAND LODGE.

IT was to be expected that the French Masonic Journals would lose no time in considering the recent action of our Grand Lodge, condemnatory of the radical change made last autumn by the Grand Orient of France in the first article of its Constitutions. Accordingly, our contemporary le Monde Maçonnique, for the month of April, contains an article from the pen of Bro. Caubet, editor of that journal, and one of the Vice-Presidents of the Council of the Grand Orient, in which, after noting the resolutions passed at our Quarterly Communication in March, and the most important portion of the speech in which our Pro Grand Master submitted them to Grand Lodge, our worthy brother proceeds as follows: "The proposals of the Committee were adopted unanimously, and without discussion, but while they will cause no feeling of surprise among French Masons, they will excite no little astonishment in the minds of those who labour under the belief that the Reformation has set free the minds of men from the trammels of bigotry and has developed a just spirit of liberalism. A while since, and the Romish Church launched its anathemas against Freemasonry, and the Anglican Church has now followed its example. But what is still more extraordinary is the fact, that French Masonry is now denounced by the Freemasons of England. True, the latter, devoted as it is to the throne and the altar, has, owing to the force of circumstances, seen developing itself within its bosom a sectarian and exclusive spirit, which to-day is far less liberal than it was in the eighteenth century, and that absolute liberty of conscience is directly opposed to its principles. The following remarks will abundantly prove this. Meanwhile, it is necessary to bear in mind that these decisions of the Grand Lodge of England bear the impress of the greatest irresolution, and consequently that they are entirely wanting in frankness and perspicuity. For instance, what necessity is there for proclaiming that they are applicable to all foreign visitors, when the sole motive for passing them is the resolution adopted by the Grand Orient of France, and it is clear they are aimed only at French Masons. Let us note further, that the Grand Lodge of England has never officially recognised French Freemasonry, and that at no period has one of its representatives ever been accredited to our Grand Orient. Consequently, it had no business to meddle with our affairs; and, to say the least, it was a most ungraceful act to meddle with them, and recognise our Grand Orient only for the purpose of denouncing us.

The Grand Lodge delares that it has no intention of interfering with the jurisdiction of a foreign Grand Lodge. But what value can attach to such a declaration, when it intervenes at the very moment it announces it is not intervening, and when the sole inducement to interfere is, the modification of an article in the French Constitutions, and the suppression of a formula which is not contained in its own.

We shall say nothing as to the singular measures which the English Lodges are invited to adopt in respect of French visiting brethren. We imagine the number of those who will submit to the ordeal of such proposed inquisition—if we except those whom personal interests may induce to disregard all considerations—will be very restricted. Nor will we say anything as to that respect for tradition which is so often and so carelessly invoked by English Masons, for the simple reason that we have again and again had occasion to express our views on the subject. The traditions of Masonry are essentially liberal. English Masons would assuredly not have denied this in the eighteenth century. The predecessors of those who to-day rule and direct the destinies of English Masonry never had the slightest idea of protesting against the initiation of Helvetius, of Holbach, of Laland, and of thousands of other freethinkers who have been an honour to the Society. Never would they have condescended, before admitting them into their Lodges, to demand of them a confession of their faith in God and the immortality of the soul. So far, indeed, from the Grand Lodge of England having been faithful to tradition, it has just now been guilty of a grave dereliction of duty in this respect. It has proved itself intolerant and sectarian; it has entered on a career of retrogression, and has gravely compromised the interests and dignity of Freemasonry. We do not profess a blind and absolute respect for tradition. Determined partisans of the cause of progress, we have no difficulty in adapting the ideas and usages of tradition to notions which are more enlightened and customs which are more rational; but for our own satisfaction, and that of all true Masons, it is necessary that these changes should indicate, in a manner which is unmistakable, a real landmark in the road to progress. Every change which throws us backward, instead of advancing our cause, is to be detested, and will prove fatal to our Institution.

In short, the Grand Lodge of England has just inflicted the severest blow on the cosmopolitan and universal character of Freemasonry. It has divided our body into two camps. In one are those who accept entire liberty of conscience, in the other those who subordinate liberty to religion. We are in favour of absolute liberty of conscience, and such is the excellence of our cause that sooner rather than later we shall overcome all obstacles, and unite all Masons under our banner. Meanwhile we say to those who attack us, to the Grand Lodge of England as well as to the Grand Lodge of Ireland,—Launch your anathemas against us, close your Lodges against us, excommunicate us, our Lodges will none the less be open to all English and Irish Masons; in fact, to Masons from every part of the world, and to whatever rite they may belong. To the best of our ability we will endeavour to repair the wrong your intolerance has inflicted on our beloved Institution. But if you imagine for one moment that your menaces will induce us to renounce our trust in liberty of conscience, undeceive yourselves at once, acquit yourselves of so grievous an error. Nothing can possibly weaken our confidence in the value of the principles which actuate us, nothing can possibly destroy the certainty of our near and approaching triumph, nothing will serve to quench our hope of seeing Freemasonry emerge from the present crisis stronger, grander, more worthy of men's respect, and above all better adapted to promote the true interests of justice and humanity. We have the unshaken faith which animated our fathers when on the ruins of the old society of France they proclaimed the rights of man and of the citizen. Our task, however, is easier. Masonry has been diverted from its legitimate scope, and our object is to recall it. Like our fathers we deplore the blindness of those who mistrust our labours, but like our fathers also, we are determined on considering only the justice of our cause, and will be deterred from pursuing our task by no obstacle and no opposition.

A meeting of the Committee for securing the election of Bro. F. R. W. Hedges to fill the office of Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Wednesday last, when further arrangements were made.

THE ANALYSIS OF THE SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

BEFORE entering on our usual task of noting in detail the result of the Festival of the Girls' School, we will first offer to all interested in the welfare of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls—and the "all" in this case includes the whole Craft throughout England—our hearty congratulations on what, under existing circumstances, must be considered a most satisfactory result. True, the amount subscribed last year was exceptionally great, and amounted to, in round figures, £9,757, with twenty-three lists still outstanding, while this year it is only £8,392 2s 9d, with sixteen lists yet to come in; but the political and commercial anxieties of the moment have had in this, as in other cases, the most depressing effect, and, as we dare say a total of close on £9,000 will be reached, we consider so excellent a result is in the highest degree creditable. And so pass we to our analysis, which, as is customary, we consider under the three heads of Metropolitan, Provincial, and Miscellaneous. In the first of these there were ninety-four Stewards, representing eighty-eight Lodges and three Chapters. The amounts handed in by these up to the present time represent a sum of £4,266 2s. The 110 Provincial Stewards have raised amongst them thus far a total of £3,996 17s 9d; while the balance is due to the exertions of seven Stewards, who are entered on the list under the head of Miscellaneous. The highest individual list in the metropolis is that of Bro. W. Stephens, of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, Notting Hill, who collected the very handsome total of £276 5s. Following this, we find another young Lodge, the Kilburn, No. 1608, contributing, by the hands of Bro. George Everett, the sum of £176 8s, and besides these there are two other three-figure amounts, that of the Hon. R. W. H. Giddy, as the representative of the Friends in Council, No. 1383, whose amount reached the sum of one hundred and ten guineas, and that of Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, who, as Steward for the Royal Somerset House and Inverness Lodge, No. 4, handed in the sum of one hundred guineas. Last year, our worthy Friends in Council gave, by the hands of Lieut.-Colonel Shadwell Clerke, over £282, and as recently as the Festival this year of the Benevolent, we find it contributed through the same representative £202. Thus the honour of heading the Metropolitan Lodges lies wholly west on this occasion, either directly west, or north-western or west central. Among the Lodges contributing to this Festival Nos. 2, 5, 8, 18, 21, 22, 23, 28, 33, 256, and 657 have figured in the last eleven lists, while others, like Nos. 10 and 179, have done their duty admirably on ten occasions, and others on nine, eight, seven, &c. It is worthy of note that of the Lodges who sent representatives, no less than eight have been warranted since the commencement of 1877, and one of these does not even figure in the Calendar for the current year.

Turning to the Provinces we find that twenty-nine out of the forty-four Provinces or districts in which there is no Provincial Grand Lodge were represented, the fifteen absent being Bedfordshire, Bristol, Cornwall, Cumberland and Westmoreland, Durham, Lincolnshire, Norfolk, Northamptonshire and Hunts, Northumberland, Notts, Staffordshire, Worcestershire, the Channel Islands, Jersey, and the Isle of Man. Out of these Beds (five Lodges), Worcestershire (ten Lodges), and Isle of Man (three Lodges) have been unrepresented at the eleven Festivals we have been privileged to record. As regards the others, all have figured more or less frequently since we entered on our career as a journal. The majority indeed, have done their duty liberally—Lincolnshire, Northumberland, &c. being cases in point, but one—Cambridgeshire (four Lodges)—appears now for the first time in the past four years, and though the amount is only small, still we trust it may be taken as indicating a revived interest in our glorious Institutions. Dismissing thus briefly the absentee Lodges, we now turn to those who have been represented in the present instance. First in Order comes Berks and Bucks. It boasts sixteen Lodges, six of which were represented, the aggregate of their contributions amounting to £217 5s. The contributing Lodges hailed from Reading, Newbury, Windsor, Wolverton, Abingdon, and Stony Stratford. This Province gave over £157 to the Benevolent in February, to all three Festivals in 1877, to the Schools in 1876, and to all three Institutions in 1875. Cambridgeshire, as we have said, figures for the first time since January 1875 in the list of Stewards, and though the amount is small, we take it as an omen of good for the future. Cheshire, which our readers know full well has an Educational Institution of its own, is nevertheless represented by six of its thirty-nine Lodges, one Crewe, one Chester, one Birkenhead (with two Stewards), and the Sale, the Lymm, and the Parkgate Lodges. The total contributed is £134 8s. In February it gave over £172, and has only been absent once out of the last eleven Festivals. Derbyshire (eighteen Lodges) has one representative, in the case of one of the Derby Lodges. The list is small, but at the Benevolent Festival in February it was represented by the Marquis of Hartington, its Provincial Grand Master, and one other brother, who together contributed a sum of £170, while in 1875, 1876, and 1877 it was duly represented at, at least, one of the three Festivals. Devonshire, with its forty-six Lodges, was represented by the St. George's, No. 112, the amount being a little under £30. It figured in the Benevolent List, in February, for £110, and in 1877 it gave very little short of £600 to the same Institution; and, indeed, has only been absent once since January 1875. Dorsetshire is comparatively a small Province, with only thirteen Lodges, but its energy in connection with the Charities is in the highest degree creditable. On this occasion its Provincial Grand Superintendent, Bro. J. M. P. Montagu, acting as Steward for the Royal Arch Masons—so, at least, we feel justified in inferring from the statement in the list—has placed £116 11s to the credit of the Girls. In February, as Steward for the Benevolent, he took up £150. He will represent his Province again at the Boys' School. In 1877 the Province contributed over £560 to the three Institutions together, and its liberality was as conspicuous the two previous years. The Southend Lodge No. 1000—the Priory—does duty for Essex (sixteen Lodges), and subscribed to the extent of over £40. The same was one of the three Lodges represented at the last Benevolent Festival, and has been in nine out of the last eleven Festivals. Gloucester (fourteen Lodges) sends Stewards from three, who together figure for £229 16s 6d, the three being No. 82 of Cheltenham, No. 855 of Wotton-on-Edge, and No. 1067 of Newnham-on-Severn. It gave £118 to the Benevolent this year, and over £500 to the three Institutions last year, while it supported the Boys' in 1875 and 1876. Four of the thirty Lodges in Hants and the Isle of Wight sent Stewards, who, among them, totalled up £117 12s. In February last, its contribution of £70 helped to swell Bro. Terry's total, and last summer, when its Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Beach, M.P., presided at the Festival of the Boys' School, it supported him to the extent of over £220. Indeed, it has been represented at ten out of the last eleven gatherings. Hertfordshire, a small Province with only ten Lodges, is represented by two of them, the Cecil, No. 449 of Hitchin, and the ever ready Gladsmuir, No. 1385 of Barnet, which together gave £68 5s. This is to its credit, as in February its contribution of £645 and odd shillings placed it at the head of the contributing Provinces. The honour of Herefordshire (four Lodges) is sustained by the Palladian, No. 120, of Hereford. This Province has not been represented in any list since the Benevolent Festival of 1876, when the same Lodge sent up a list of over £65. Kent (forty-three Lodges) sent three Stewards, each representing a Lodge—the Sandwich, the Sevenoaks, and the Chislehurst, but the return for the last only has been made, and represents a total of £77 7s. Its total contributions at the last ten Festivals is upwards of £3,431, so that its average since January 1875 is considerably over £300 per Festival. East Lancashire (eighty-six Lodges), like Cheshire, has an educational Institution of its own, and at the present time its trade is lamentably depressed, so that if it had been wholly absent, we could not have been surprised. Yet the three Stewards of the Humphrey Cheetham, No. 645, of Manchester, and Bro. Brockbank, are together down for over seventy guineas. West Lancashire (seventy-seven Lodges) is in the same predicament as its neighbour, the Eastern Division, in respect of trade, but four Lodges contribute among them £90 13s 6d. In February the aggregate of its lists to the Benevolent was over £330, while in 1877 and 1876 its contributions to the three Institutions greatly exceeded £2000. Leicester and Rutland, with its ten Lodges, has handed in the very handsome total of £233 16s. It was absent last February, but its contributions in 1877 exceeded £400. Middlesex (twenty-seven Lodges) has always been strongly represented at this particular Festival. This is not to be wondered at when we bear in mind that the late Dep. P.G.M., Bro. Little, was likewise the respected Secretary of the Girls' School. This time, one Chapter and six Lodges, represented by eight Stewards, together contribute £177 3s 6d. Over £200 was the total of its contributions in February last, and taking the whole of its lists at the last eleven Festivals, we find it has averaged on each occasion not very far short of £360. Monmouthshire (eight Lodges) was an absentee at the last Benevolent Festival, but one Lodge did duty on Friday last, to the extent of fifteen guineas, while in 1877 it contributed two hundred guineas to the Benevolent. The fact that the late Watkin Testimonial, in the form of a perpetual presentation to the Boys' School, is being raised, will account for the absence of the Province of North Wales and Shropshire (twenty-five Lodges) from the Benevolent in February, and its being only represented by one Steward for a small amount on the present occasion. Oxfordshire, with only eight Lodges, sends up eight Stewards, but only five of its Lodges are represented by seven of these, and the other one appears to have been acting independently. Five lists have been returned, with totals amounting to £144 6s 6d, so that we may anticipate the general total will be considerably swelled when the others have been sent in. It has been represented at all the last eleven Festivals. Somersetshire has, of course, loyally supported its Prov. G. Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, who presided at the Festival. The Province is down for £275 2s, a very handsome sum, from its nineteen Lodges; No. 53 of Bath sends twenty-one guineas; while the Prov. Grand Master is himself the contributor of a further twenty guineas, thus, the total for Somersetshire is £318 3s. It was represented at the Benevolent, and last year figured at the Festival of the same Institution, to the extent of over £250. One Steward for the comfortable amount of £117 12s, is the representative of the Eastern Division of South Wales (eleven Lodges), while one Steward for the Western Division (eight Lodges) has sent up a list of £236 5s, and as the two are sometimes joined together, we may put down the result as very creditable to S. Wales, which has figured in one or more lists in 1875, 1876, and 1877. Suffolk, which raised over £94 in February, is again to the fore, with sixty guineas, the work of one Steward. It has nineteen Lodges, and is constant in its attention to this and its Sister Institutions, and what is likewise to be commended, it is impartial in the distribution of its favours. Surrey (eighteen Lodges), is represented by two, the Frederick of Unity No. 452, for whom Bro. J. W. Sugg as Steward, has handed in a list of £21 10s, and the St. Andrews, No. 1046, Farnham, whose contribution by the hands of Bro. H. T. Taylor amounts to twenty guineas, making a total for the Province of £42 10s. This is a small amount, but it was represented at the Benevolent in February, while in 1877 it raised over £240 for the three Institutions together, and in 1876, over 200 guineas for the Boys. A Brighton Lodge sustains the honour of Sussex, with its nineteen Lodges. The amount is small, but it was represented in February last, and at the Festival of the Boys' and Girls' Schools last year to very considerable amounts. There are sixteen Stewards for Warwickshire, all hailing from a Birmingham Lodge, the Athol, No. 74, of Birmingham, and these, among them, have sent up £207 18s. It was not represented in February at the Benevolent, but in 1877 it contributed to that Institution over £400, and at the Boys' Festival in 1876 it supported Lord Leigh, who presided on that occasion, most munificently. Wilts, with only ten Lodges, figures for £267 5s. In February, it contributed over £164, and has only been once an absentee, thus far, during the last four years. Of the twenty-five N. and E. Yorkshire Lodges, the Humber, No. 57, of Hull, alone sent up a Steward, and the amount of his list is not yet returned. We repeat what we said in February, that we think this Province might bestir itself, and be more active in its support of the central Charities. A scheme to this end, we believe, is in contemplation, and it has a Benevolent Fund of its own, so that, after all, perhaps, it may work none the less energetically because the evidence of its labours is not so conspicuous. Twenty-four Stewards representing fourteen out of its sixty-three Lodges, do duty for West Yorkshire, and the result of their united efforts is a total of £900, being the highest contribution from the Provinces. This, added to its £5,287, the product of its contributions at the last ten Festivals, gives an average for each Festival of over £562. It only remains for us to add that of the seven Miscellaneous Stewards' Lists, four, amounting together to £129 3s, have been returned, and there are three yet outstanding. We have now completed our task. We have, as usual, done our best to avoid giving offence, and we trust our efforts have not been unsuccessful.

CONSECRATION OF THE ROYAL SAVOY LODGE, No. 1744.

THERE are few places in London which are richer in historical associations than the district bordering on Savoy-street, now known of all men by reason of the celebrated perfumery of Eugene Rimmel. Hard by, stood once upon a time the palace assigned as a residence by Edward the Third to John the Good of France, who was taken prisoner by Edward the Black Prince, at the battle of Poictiers. Here the French monarch resided during his captivity. Hither, after his visit to France for the purpose of inducing his Government to execute the terms of the arrangement between him and his conqueror, he returned voluntarily into captivity, and here in 1363 he died. In this same palace lived also "Old John of Gaunt, time-honoured Lancaster," and by virtue of her descent from that famous son of our third Edward, our present gracious Sovereign holds her duchy of Lancaster. But little is left of the ancient building, for the chapel which contained the tombs of Gaunt and his consort, and other interesting relics of past days, was almost entirely destroyed by fire only a few years since; and though by the liberality of the present Duchess and others, the sacred building has been re-built, it may be said that of an old historical landmark which is intimately connected with the history of London, but little or nothing now remains beyond the name. It is in this district, however, which, though completely modernised in appearance, is still respectable by reason of its old associations, that on Tuesday, the 14th instant, a new Masonic Landmark was erected, and the Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744 on the Roll of Grand Lodge, was duly consecrated by our worthy Bro. James Terry, the zealous Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The hour of 4 p.m. was the time appointed for the ceremony to begin, and in due course there assembled at that hour, at Ashley's Hotel, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden, a strong muster of brethren, including the Consecrating Officer, and Bros. H. G. Buss G. Assist. Secretary, and Clarke Prov. G.D.C. Suffolk, who had kindly undertaken to assist Bro. Terry; Bros. J. Willing jun. I.P.M. 177, J. Douglass W.M. elect 1507, and F. H. Clemow 193, 1507, W.M., S.W., and J.W. Designate respectively; Bros. Treadwell, Stiles, Jones, Hyland, &c., &c.; and several visitors. A procession having been formed, and Bro. Terry having occupied the chair, Bros. Buss and C. Crick were temporarily appointed to the offices of Senior and Junior Wardens, and the Lodge having been opened in the three degrees, the presiding Officer addressed those present, and the ceremony of consecration was most impressively carried out with the customary formalities. This over, Bro. James Willing jun. W.M. Designate was presented to Bro. Terry, and installed in due course, after which he appointed the following brethren as his Officers for the year, namely, Bros. J. Douglass and F. H. Clemow, whose names were designated for the offices in the Warrant, as Senior Warden and Junior Warden respectively; Bros. Treadwell Treas., Stiles Sec., Jones S.D., F. J. Hyland J.D., and W. Cook I.G. A vote of thanks having been proposed by the W.M. to Bro. Terry and the brethren who had so kindly assisted him, for the admirable manner in which he and they had fulfilled their duties, the compliment was acknowledged most heartily by Bro. Terry, while the unanimously-adopted motion conferring honorary membership on the same brethren was acknowledged by Bro. Buss in his wonted genial manner. This compliment was also paid to Bro. C. K. Killick, who acted during the consecration as Inner Guard. About a dozen propositions of brethren as joining members were handed in; after which, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Bro. J. Douglass S.W. for his handsome present to the Lodge of a Velvet Cushion, and to Bro. Cook, who had given a Bible. These brethren having expressed the pleasure they derived from so kindly a recognition of their trifling (as they described them) contributions, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. On the removal of the cloth, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were given, and Bro. Buss responded for that of Lord Skelmersdale and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. The health of the W. Master Bro. Willing jun. was proposed by Bro. Terry in his usual hearty manner, and Bro. Willing having acknowledged the compliment, concluded a neat little speech by offering the toast of the Consecrating Officers and his able coadjutors at the impressive ceremony of the afternoon. To the toast of the Visitors, Bros. Buscall and Dwarber replied, the latter, who is one of the best speakers we have heard—and we may venture to say the number of those we have heard is legion—speaking, as is his wont, excellently well. The rest of the toasts were given in due order, and the Tyler's toast completed the list; after which the brethren separated, well satisfied with so auspicious an inauguration of the Royal Savoy Lodge. The musical arrangements were all that could be desired, and the professional brethren who contributed to the enjoyment of the evening were the veteran Bro. Lawler, and Bros. Cozens and Carter. The following were among the Visitors, namely, Bros. H. G. Buss Assist. G. Sec., C. B. Payne P.M. G. Tyler, J. C. Dwarber P.M. 55, C. S. Pierce 65, H. J. Webb W.M. 72, Thos. # ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

THE Ninetieth Anniversary Festival of this Institution was held on Friday, the 10th inst., at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, London, under the presidency of the M.W. the Pro Grand Master the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Prov. G.M. for Somersetshire. At the conclusion of the banquet, the noble chairman proceeded to propose the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen. He was gratified at seeing so many ladies present, and pleased they took such interest in the proceedings. In works of charity we could wish for no better auxiliary. Their presence necessitated doing away with all those Masonic ceremonies we might indulge in if in a closely tyled Lodge, he therefore asked the brethren to drink the health of the Queen. The toast being heartily recognised, was followed by the National Anthem. The chairman next rose to give the toast of the Grand Master. There were, doubtless, many among them who, only a fortnight since, were assembled in that Hall, and they would remember they then had the pleasure of dining under the presidency of our Grand Master. It was an unfeigned pleasure for the Craft to see him occupy the chair. He asked the brethren to drink his health, in two capacities; first, as Grand Master, second, as Patron of this Charity; and, in doing so, to join the name of one who, by her grace and kindness, has endeared herself to every man of this country. He would, therefore, give them H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, Patron, H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, Patroness, and the other members of the Royal Family. The toast was most enthusiastically received. The next toast was that of the Deputy Grand Master and the rest of the Grand Officers Present and Past. The Chairman was sorry his noble friend Lord Skelmersdale was not present to answer for himself, but he was pleased to see so many members of Grand Lodge around him. Among them were some who also held high positions in the Provinces; these he was particularly pleased to see, as our Charities are as much indebted to the Provinces as to London for their support, the contributions being about equally divided. He coupled the name of a brother who, like himself, had had a long experience in Masonry, Bro. Pickard, Grand Chaplain. That brother in replying thanked the brethren on behalf of Lord Skelmersdale and the other Grand Officers. He could never forget that he had the privilege of initiating Lord Skelmersdale, and that he became the following year his (Bro. Pickard's) I.G., and that during his second year of office the Lodge over which he presided had the pleasure of receiving Lord Carnarvon as a joining member. Bro. Beach Prov. G.M. for Hants and the Isle of Man next rose. He was sure the brethren would be right glad to drink the toast he now had the honour of proposing. It was with peculiar satisfaction he offered the toast of the Chairman of the Day, because he was the means, many years ago, of initiating that brother into the Craft, and he had had the pleasure since that time of introducing him to nearly every grade in Freemasonry to which he has attained. We may indeed congratulate ourselves on the good work he has performed. He has always taken the greatest interest in every branch of Freemasonry. In acknowledging the toast, the Earl of Carnarvon said:—If there were any discomforts attendant upon the high office which it was his privilege to hold in the great, ancient, and illustrious body of Freemasons, he should on all occasions be more than compensated by the kindness which was shewn him. He had frequently to meet the brethren in Grand Lodge and elsewhere, and he could safely say that he had never found his Masonic brethren anything but gentlemen, and he hoped never to be thrown among any with whom it is a greater pleasure to transact business. His friendship with Bro. Beach had dated back many years, but nothing had ever occurred to disturb that friendship. He was indebted to him for many good offices, but the best was when he initiated him into the first three degrees of Freemasonry. He (Bro. Beach) had spoken of the advocacy which is expected of a Chairman on these occasions, but he knew from a long experience of the liberality of the Craft that very few words were necessary from him, he would ask the brethren to drink, "Prosperity to the Girls' School." In doing so, he could but refer to the great loss they had sustained by the death of Bro. Little. During the five years he was connected with the Institution he believed they were much indebted to him for the singular attention he gave to its business. When he had presided on behalf of the great charities of this city, he had often wondered how they managed to get on. Many of them do a large work, they spend large amounts, and frequently, when their accounts are balanced, have to report a large deficit. Although it is quite true this is the case with many charities that are doing useful work, he was gratified to say it was not the case with their Institution. If they referred to the last accounts they would see a rather awkward statement of a deficit of close on £3,000, but he ventured to say that this was only a seeming deficit; the finances really were in a most satisfactory condition. The Institution had no less than £39,000 funded property; in fact, he believed this amount had been increased to £40,000. It has from Grand Lodge £150 a year, and this, with the proceeds of its funded property, gave a fixed income of over £1,300 a year; last year the total receipts, including subscriptions and donations, amounted to £11,850, still they had spent £14,690; this would give £2,849 to be made good. But how had this come to pass? The Institution had added a new wing to the building, and had also bought a piece of land. The cost of each had been defrayed out of its current income of the year. It had never been his fortune to announce an Institution as being in so prosperous a condition. He would urge them to remember that this was the 90th year of its existence, that it had steadily increased, and that at the present time they were clothing and educating 200 daughters of Freemasons. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Colonel Creaton, the Treas., to whom the Institution owes much of its prosperity. Bro. Creaton said he felt very proud to be called upon to answer for the Girls' School, of which he had just had the honour of being elected Treasurer. He was happy to be able to report that the sanitary condition of the School was much improved, and that they might now look forward to the contemplated visit of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. The amounts collected by the various Stewards were then announced by Bro. Hedges (a complete list, corrected up to the time of going to press is subjoined). The toast of the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Trustees, various Committees and Medical Officers was next honoured, coupled with the name of Bro. Rucker. That Brother in replying referred to the duties the Medical Officers had lately had to perform, they, as well as the various Committees to whom reference had been made, were ever ready to do all in their power for the Institution. The Earl of Carnarvon next proposed Success to the other Masonic Charities. Freemasonry combines two things, profession and practice. They had that evening been toasting and praising the Girls' School, but they must not forget that it is only one of three, the other two being second to the Girls' only because it was the annual festival of the latter. He coupled with the toast the name of Bro. Binckes. Bro. Binckes said that the march of events had brought them to the second of our great Festivals. He congratulated the brethren on the success of the evening. He hoped at the Festival of the Boys' School, to be held in June or July next, to be able to submit to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught as grand a list of subscriptions. The health of the Stewards was next given, and acknowledged by Bro. Æ. McIntyre, and the Ladies having been toasted, the brethren adjourned to the Concert, which was given in the Temple of Grand Lodge. The whole of the proceedings of the evening passed off most successfully. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. S. Lehmeyer, who was assisted by Bro. Wilhelm Ganz P.G.O., Mesdames Tellefsen, Thaddeus Wells, and Marie Belval; Misses Elene Webster, and Adele Vernon, Mdlle. Victoria Bunsen, Bros. Faulkner Leigh and Frederic Penna, Messrs. William Shakespeare, Stanislaus, and Monari Rocca.

CONSECRATION OF THE MONTGOMERIE LODGE, AT DISS.

From the EASTERN DAILY PRESS.

SINCE the Walpole Lodge No. 1500 was consecrated in September 1874, great progress has been made in Freemasonry throughout the country, upwards of 240 new Lodges having been added to the Roll of the Grand Lodge of England in the course of the past three years. The 1741st Lodge, named the "Montgomerie," was consecrated at the King's Head Hotel, Diss, yesterday, by the Worshipful Major Penrice, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Norfolk, assisted by Bros. W. A. Tyssen-Amherst Prov. G.S.W., E. Orams Prov. G.J.W., Rev. Charles J. Martyn P.G.C. of England and D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, G. Page P.G.S., C. Howes acting Prov. G.C., H. Barwell Prov. G.S., J. Dunsford acting Prov. G.D.C., George Brittain Prov. G.O., and F. Mills acting Prov. I.G. There was a numerous attendance of visiting brethren from both Norfolk and Suffolk. Among those present were Bros. E. J. Alvis P.P.G.C., R. Martins P.G.R., G. Boileau W.M. 52, H. Riches W.M. 940, G. W. Pretty P.P.G.S.B., C. S. Pedgrip 388, P.P.G.R., H. Thouless P.P.G.S.D., J. G. Churchyard W.M. 576, J. A. Gooch W.M. 213, J. G. Fardell P.P.G.S.W., J. F. Hills P.G.J.W. Suffolk, C. Havers P.M. 93, Robert Thorne P.M. 93, F. Long P.P.G.D.C. Suffolk, E. B. Adams P.M. 929, Paynton Pigott, C. H. Druery 85, J. H. Ladyman, H. W. Hacey, H. J. Martin, H. Burgess, S. B. Smith, A. J. Lacey, F. Linging, A. Berry, A. C. Swann, J. B. Botwright, J. Gaze, F. W. Doubleday, W. Haylett, F. Taylor, G. J. Berry, W. N. Smith, E. Brigden, B. Read, C. Barfoot, G. W. G. Barnard, G. F. Westmaidth, W. J. B. Johnson, J. T. Hansall 1008, H. Green 107, &c. The Lodge was opened between one and two o'clock, and the presiding officer, D.P.G.M. Major Penrice, on taking the chair, expressed the great pleasure with which, in obedience to the commands of the Prov. Grand Master, he was about to consecrate a Lodge for this important district. The Lodge was then consecrated in accordance with ancient custom, and will in future meet the first Thursday in every month. Bro. the Rev. C. Howes acted as Chaplain, and an eloquent oration on the nature and principles of the Institution was delivered by the Worshipful the D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, P.G.C., Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn. At the conclusion of the Consecration ceremony, Bro. J. C. Chittock P.P.G.S.D. P.M. 943 was duly installed the first W.M. of the Lodge, and the other Officers designate received their appointments as follow:—Bros. Cecil Molyneux Montgomerie S.W., Henry O. Lyus J.W., J. Reeve Treas., J. Evans jun. S.D., J. Hatman J.D., H. Bond I.G., J. H. M. Vyall Secretary. The musical arrangements, which were carried out under the direction of Bro. Brittain, assisted by Bros. Thouless, Smith, Alvis, and Reeve, gave general and deserved satisfaction.

The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet, supplied by Mr. Burrage in a manner that reflected great credit upon the establishment. The newly-installed W.M. Bro. J. C. Chittock ably presided, supported by the more distinguished members of the Craft present. Bros. Montgomerie and Lyus occupied the Wardens' chairs. After "The Queen and the Craft," and "The M.W. the Grand Master of all England" had been honoured, The Worshipful Master proposed "The Pro Grand Master Lord Carnarvon, the D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge Past and Present," which was responded to by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, D.P.G.M. of Suffolk, in an eloquent and humorous speech, conveying the best of wishes for the future of the new Lodge. "The Prov. G.M. Lord Suffield, the D.P.G.M. Major Penrice, and the new Grand Officers Past and Present," was the next toast proposed by the W.M., who complimented the Deputy Provincial Grand Master on the manner in which the Consecration ceremony had been performed. Bro. Penrice responded.

The W.M. next proposed "The Brethren who assisted in the Consecration," specially acknowledging the services of Bro. the Rev. C. Howes and Bro. J. Dunsford the acting Chaplain and D.C., whose health he coupled with the toast. Bros. Howes and Dunsford responded, expressing their satisfaction at the establishment of a Lodge in this district, and wishing it every prosperity. "The Visitors" was associated with the names of Bro. W. A. Tyssen-Amhurst Prov. G.S.W., Bro. E. Orams Prov. G.J.W., and Bro. Fardell P.P.G.S.W. who severally responded. The health of the newly-installed W.M. was proposed by the D.P.G.M. Bro. Major Penrice, and was drunk with the accustomed honors. In responding, the W.M. stated that he had accepted the position of the First Master of the Lodge from a desire to advance Freemasonry, and because he believed that there was every probability of the Lodge being a prosperous and happy one. —The W.M., in proposing "The Lodge Officers," with which he coupled the health of Bro. Montgomerie the S.W., stated that 110 years ago there was a Masonic Lodge at Diss called the "Royal Alfred" Lodge, that they possessed the old warrant and the minute-book of the Lodge, and also a copy of the sermon preached on the occasion. There were some curious entries in the minute-book. On the 8th of April 1771, it was resolved, "That the celebration of the anniversary on Thursday next be conducted with proper spirit and decorum." A guinea was to be given to a gamekeeper for a buck provided for the Lodge, the host was to provide a good dinner at 1s each—[laughter]—and the Secretary was to charge half-a-guinea for the day's celebration. There were fines for the Officers not attending the Lodge in proper time, and among them the Secretary was fined a good turkey, the said turkey to be applied for the benefit of the Lodge. [Laughter.] It appeared from the minute book that one of the early Masters of that old Lodge was the owner of the estate now the property of Bro. Montgomerie, under whose auspices this new Lodge had been established; and an ancestor of the Secretary, Bro. Vyall, was Deputy-Master. [Applause.]—The toast was responded to by Bros. Montgomerie S.W., Lyus J.W., and Vyall Secretary. With the toast of "The Masters of Lodges," the W.M. coupled the health of Bro. Colonel Boileau W.M. 52, who returned thanks in well-chosen terms. "The Prov. J.S." and other toasts followed in the course of a very pleasant evening.

We may add that the Lodge has made a very promising commencement, sixteen subscribing members and fifteen initiates being proposed At the instance of Bro. Orams, Prov. G.J.W., a collection was made to secure for the new Lodge a Governorship in one of the three great Masonic Charities (10 guineas), and amounted to £12 12s 9d.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE annual meeting of this Institution was held yesterday, at Freemasons' Tavern, Bro. Colonel Creaton in the chair. Bro. Terry, Secretary, read the following ### REPORT.

In presenting to the Governors and Subscribers a report of the proceedings, the Committee of Management desire to express their thanks for the support which has been extended to the Institution during the past year, resulting in the largest sum having been contributed to it since its formation.

The Annual Festival was held on the 13th February last, under the presidency of his Grace the Duke of Manchester, K.P., R.W. Prov. G. Master for Northa and Hunts, supported by a Board of Stewards 225 in number. The amount announced was £11,136 13s 6d, with a few lists to come in, the total sum brought in being £11,333 1s. The Committee earnestly appreciate the kindness of his Grace in presiding, and the services so willingly rendered by the Stewards, and tender them their sincere thanks.

As candidates for election to-day, there are thirty men and forty-one widows, two candidates (one male and one female) having died since the voting papers were issued.

The deaths during the past year have been fifteen men and eleven widows. The Committee, considering the large increase made last year in the number placed as annuitants, did not feel themselves justified in materially augmenting the number this year, more especially as there was a diminution in the amount announced at the Festival. They have, therefore, determined to fill up the vacancies thus created, and make an addition to the number of widows already on the Fund by electing five extra. There will then be on the Fund 145 men receiving £40 each, amounting to £5,800, and 135 widows receiving £32 each, amounting to £4,322. There are also 11 widows receiving half their late husbands' annuities, amounting to £220: so that the Institution will, after this Election, stand committed to an annual payment of £10,342 to annuitants. The working expenses will be slightly over £2,000. There will therefore have to be raised nearly £12,500 to maintain the Institution in its present state of usefulness.

The Committee are confident that this has but to be made known, and the Craft will in the future, as it has in the past, render to the Institution their kind and generous support.

They regret that during the past year they have to report that, through the failure of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., the bankers

To the General Committee.

My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—

By the lamented death of Brother R. Wentworth Little, a vacancy has arisen in the Secretaryship of your valuable Institution, and in pursuance of a pledge I some little time since made, I beg to offer myself as a candidate for the office.

I am a Mason, 35 years of age, and married; and I trust that the Testimonials that have been given me, coupled with the names of the many eminent Freemasons who have favoured me with promises of support, will be looked on as warranting me in hoping and believing that my candidature will be successful.

The names of my supporters may now be counted by hundreds, but I am this week, by reasons of space, only able to append those of the Provincial and District Grand Masters (Present and Past) from whom I have heard in approval, and with promise of their votes.

I am,

My Lords, Ladies, and Gentlemen,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

PAUL STORR,

Late J.W. and Secretary 811, 1466, and 18.

Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,—

I desire to tender my sincere thanks to the numerous brethren who have so kindly assisted me in my canvass for the personal support that will necessarily be required at the forthcoming election of Secretary to the above Institution.

The qualifications below enumerated will enable those desirous of assisting me to form some idea as to my fitness for the appointment so recently held by our lamented Bro. R. W. Little.

Firstly.—I am 37 years of age, and have occupied the position of Accountant to the Thames Steam Tug and Lighterage Company Limited for the past 13 years, during which period I have acquired large and varied experience, together with a personal knowledge of many of the leading men in our commercial houses.

Secondly.—Holding, as I at present do, the office of Preceptor in two Lodges of Instruction, as well as a position both in Chapter and Lodge, will, I trust, be considered some evidence of my zeal and interest in the cause of Freemasonry.

Thirdly.—The duties I formerly carried out, for nine years, as Honorary Secretary to the St. Cecilia Choral Society, will no doubt be also a recommendation with many brethren. And Lastly.—The training I received at Highbury College, under the Rev. C. R. Alford, late Bishop of Victoria, and the important fact of a close association with many workers in the Scholastic World must be advantageous when the special nature of the vacant appointment is considered.

May I, therefore, beg of those Life Governors whose votes and interest are yet unpledged to give me their personal support at the election; a communication to this effect will be thankfully received.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies, and Brethren,

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

TO THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

Brethren,—When I announced my determination of becoming a Candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, it was my intention to wait upon the Electors whose addresses were sufficiently contiguous to my own residence, for the purpose of personally requesting their Votes and Interest.

Daily endeavours have been used by me to put my desire into execution, but the task is of such magnitude that I find myself compelled to solicit by letter, advertisement, or the influence of personal friends the support on the day of election of such as I may not be able to interview, earnestly entreating them to accept my apology for the seeming inattention.

It is with pleasure I continue to receive assurances of support from many influential subscribers, and hope to prove, at the election, that in coming forward as a Candidate I have not been guilty of presumption.

To the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors.

My Lords, Ladies, and Brethren,—

In pursuance of my intimation a week since, of my intention to present myself as a candidate for the Secretaryship of this Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of Bro. Little, I now beg to state my qualifications for that office.

I am 33 years of age and for 14 years had the entire official management of a large manufacturing business, the annual return of which exceeded £100,000, and for the past two years I have been in business as an Accountant and Auditor.

The Testimonials I possess are such that I am hopeful of obtaining your unqualified support.

Since my entry into the Craft I have been an Annual Subscriber to the three Masonic Charities; have served a Stewardship to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, of which I am a Life Governor; and am at the present time a Steward at the approaching Festival of this Institution, and qualifying myself as a Life Governor.

Should you do me the favour of electing me to the Secretaryship of the Institution, you may rely upon my exerting my whole energy and ability for the continued prosperity, and the further extension of the benefits of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

Should you do me the honour to elect me, I can only say that I will endeavour to fill the office efficiently, and I hope that the manner in which I have discharged my various duties in Masonry will be considered a sufficient qualification.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE House of Lords met again on Monday, for the first time after the Easter holidays. During the few minutes it sat, Earl Granville, on behalf of Lord Selborne, gave notice that the latter would, at an early date, call the attention of the House to the Constitutional question connected with the despatch by the Government of Native Indian troops to Malta, and on Tuesday it was arranged that the discussion should be held on Monday next, the 20th inst. In answer to an inquiry of the Premier's, it was stated there would be no division. The same evening the Bishoprics Bill was read a third time, after a division.

There has been considerable excitement in the House of Commons, and one all-night sitting, on Monday, when the House met at 4 p.m., and did not adjourn till after half-past nine a.m. on Tuesday morning. On Friday, after several questions had been asked, chiefly in relation to the Eastern crisis, an attempt was made to get into Committee of Supply, but at a few minutes after seven there was a count-out. On Monday, the Eastern question again gave rise to some angry squabbling, and the Marquis of Hartington intimated his intention of moving a resolution on the despatch of Indian troops to Malta on the first evening the Government could place at his disposal, but his Lordship plainly gave the House to understand that he in no wise sympathised with the motion of which Mr. Chamberlain had given notice, and which we may look upon as being postponed indefinitely. The adjourned debate on the third reading of the Customs and Inland Revenue was then resumed by Mr. Vivian, who was very angry with the Government, and he was followed by the Chancellor of the Exchequer who was equal to the occasion, but suave in his speech as usual. The Bill was read a third time, and, after a verbal amendment in one of the clauses, was passed. The House then went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Service Estimates. There was much wrangling, and several divisions took place. On the House resuming it went into Committee on the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors Sunday (Ireland) Bill, and as we have said the House did not rise till after half-past nine on Tuesday morning. It met again at four o'clock, and it was then arranged that the debate on the Marquis of Hartington's resolution should come off on Monday, the day appointed for a similar debate in the Lords. A motion by Sir H. James as to election of the City Recorder, the Common Serjeant, and the Judge of the Sheriffs' Court, and suggesting that the present mode of electing them was unsatisfactory, was defeated by 102 votes to 57 votes. Leave was next given to the Attorney-General to introduce a Bill, subsequently read a first time the same evening, on the Criminal Code, the learned gentleman occupying the rest of the evening in explaining its provisions. On Wednesday afternoon, the second reading of the Borough Franchise (Ireland) Bill was thrown out, by the comparatively small majority of 31, in a House of 425, exclusive of Tellers and the Speaker. The result was received with cheers by the Opposition.

Thursday was fixed for Her Majesty to hold a Council at Windsor Castle, and yesterday (Friday) evening, there was to be a State Banquet at the Castle, on the occasion of the visit of the Imperial Crown Prince to England. Next week the Queen will reach Balmoral, but there will be a State Ball at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday, and the Queen's Birthday will be celebrated on Saturday, when there will be the usual illuminations at the West End, the usual military display on the Horse Guards Parade, and ministers will give full-dress banquets in honour of the event. We must not, however, overlook the visit on Monday of Her Majesty to Aldershot for the purpose of reviewing the troops stationed there. Over 13,000, men with upwards of 2,500 horses and 42 guns (two Horse Artillery and five Field Batteries), were under arms and marched past Her Majesty in grand style. The weather was not as favourable as could be wished, and consequently the brilliancy of the scene was somewhat marred; but there was a business-like air about the whole of the work, and the Queen, who was accompanied by the Princess Royal and the Princess Beatrice, the Commander-in-Chief and the Horse Guards' Staff, and the spectators were delighted with what they saw. Her Majesty has since expressed, through H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge, her satisfaction to the General in command and the force under him.

The Prince and Princess of Wales will have returned to London from Paris before we go to press, yesterday (Friday) having been set apart for a levée at St. James's Palace to be held, by the Queen's command, by His Royal Highness, presentations to him, by special directions of the Queen, being deemed equivalent to presentations to Her Majesty. During their stay in Paris, their Royal Highnesses have been apparently making the most of their time, and this week the chief event in their honour has been the Grand Ball given by the British Ambassador Lord Lyons. Invitations were issued to 1500 guests, and the Embassy was magnificently arranged for the reception of the Royal personages in whose honour it was given. The Prince, with the Princess and her brother the Crown Prince of Denmark, have also assisted at the uncovering of the case of jewels in the Indian Collection of His Royal Highness, the case having been damaged and therefore having till the occasion referred to been hidden from the public. He also presided at the appointment of Jurors before leaving for England.

It gives us great pleasure to be able to announce that the ceremony of betrothing His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught to the Princess Louise Margaret, third daughter of Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia, was publicly held at Darmstadt this week. We trust the marriage now in contemplation will be a source of happiness both to the Duke and his fair betrothed. There are now only two of the Queen's children unmarried, namely, Prince Leopold and the Princess Beatrice.

It is with regret we announce the sudden death from apoplexy of Mrs. Bright the second wife of the Right Honourable John Bright, M.P. With her usual considerate kindness the Queen on hearing of the event at once telegraphed to the right honourable gentleman, expressing Her Majesty's deep sympathy with him in his bereavement.

There has been some very serious rioting in Lancashire, arising out of the great Cotton Strike. On Monday the Masters' Association held a special Meeting, for the purpose of receiving a deputation from the men, who attended for the purpose of submitting certain proposals for a termination of the struggle. The terms, however, were short of what the Masters had fixed, and the several arrangements proposed were rejected. As soon as this was known, the greatest excitement prevailed, and especially at Blackburn,

Large and infuriated mobs paraded the streets, hooting and hustling the police, smashing the windows of most of the mills, while in two cases they picked out two of the masters to serve as special objects on which to wreak their vengeance, namely, Mr. Alderman W. H. Hornby and Colonel Jackson. The former's house was attacked, and the whole of the front was wrecked, while that of the latter was burnt to the ground, the Colonel having previously made his escape, and the servants being allowed a few minutes to quit the premises. An attempt to fire the mills of the latter, who is Chairman of the Masters' local Association, was fortunately frustrated by the police. The disturbances have been continued since, and the services of the military from Preston have been called in to aid in putting down the riot.

We cannot offer too hearty congratulations on the providential escape of the Emperor William of Germany from the dastardly attempt made to assassinate him on Saturday last. His Majesty, accompanied by his daughter the Grand Duchess of Baden, was returning along the Unter den Linden, from a drive, when a man named Hödel fired two shots at him, but happily neither of them took effect. The would-be murderer was arrested on the spot, while the grand old monarch, retaining all his calmness and presence of mind, returned to his Palace, and examined some important documents. When the news was spread abroad, the enthusiasm was immense. All the evening and till late at night the Palace was surrounded by crowds of people, who cheered continuously, and waited eagerly to catch a glimpse of their beloved monarch, who now and again showed himself at the window, and bowed his acknowledgments. Inside the Palace, the scene was exciting, as the Princes, the Ministers, and the Nobility all hastened to offer His Majesty their congratulations on his escape. Addresses have since been pouring in from all parts of Europe, and among them one from Queen Victoria, one from the President of the French Republic, and a third from the Lord Mayor and Corporation of London. It should be added that Kaiser William is a member of the Masonic Brotherhood, having been initiated in Berlin in the year 1840. He is Protector of all three Berlin Grand Lodges, and his eldest son, the Crown Prince, is also, like his great ancestor Frederick the Great, an active member of our Order. For these further reasons we feel sure our readers will rejoice all the more at the good old monarch's escape.

Nothing can or will be known of the result of Count Schouvaloff's visit to St. Petersburg, and people variously interpret the momentary quietness which prevails in the discussion of the Eastern difficulty. In Vienna opinions differ, inclining one moment towards peace, and the next in the direction of war. There are not wanting signs either that Austria-Hungary is resolved, at length, on adopting the same policy as England, and that she will recognise no settlement which is not sanctioned by a European Congress. Meanwhile, we hear little else than the sound of naval and military preparations, both by England and Russia; and as between the latter power and Turkey, the one is pressing for the evacuation of the remaining forts, while the other makes all the excuses she possibly can for not complying with the request. Next week, we presume, we shall know more about the way events will move.

It is the intention of the members of the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360, to present their esteemed Preceptor, Bro. George King P.M., with a testimonial, as a souvenir, in recognition of his services; and for the able and courteous manner in which he has fulfilled the duties of Preceptor. The presentation will be made on Tuesday evening next, at Bro. J. Wright's, the Prince's Head, York-road, Battersea, where this Lodge of Instruction holds its meetings.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Self Help.—In sickness it was a momentous matter to find an easy, ready, and reliable remedy for outward disfigurations and inward disorders before the inestimable discovery of these preparations. No invalid need now be at a loss for successfully managing ulcers, sores, tumours, boils, bruises, sprains, &c. Enveloping Holloway's medicines are very intelligibly printed directions for using them, which should be attentively studied and immediately followed by the application of his treatment. Sooner or later the sufferer will assuredly triumph over the worst diseases. This searching Ointment disperses all those malignant humours which aggravate many diseases of the skin, often prevent the cicatrisation of ulcers, and ever kindle inflammatory tendencies in the system.

Do you sanction the use of such language in the Freemason? I cannot think that your Editor meant to apply such epithets to me, as I am personally unknown to you both; nevertheless, I care not for whom he meant them, while it is clear that he meant them for certain brethren whom he would stigmatise as rascally dupes of greater rascals. And this is the fraternal language of the Editor of the great English Masonic newspaper par excellence! I had no idea that English Freemasonry possessed so choice a vocabulary. *O tempora! ## GROSVENOR HALL, BUCKINGHAM PALACE ROAD.

ON Monday evening last, an entertainment, entitled "Humour and Pathos," was given at the above Hall by Bro J. A. Keable, who was assisted by Miss Blanche Grosvenor, and Mr. St. Clair Feather. The programme, a very lengthy one, was gone through in a most spirited and painstaking manner, and gave unqualified satisfaction to all assembled. Bro. Keable was most effective in "The Story of Jane Conquest," and his dramatic selection from King John. The recital, "A Tale of the Stage," is full of improbabilities, and, moreover, should be considerably curtailed ere it will run so smoothly as we could desire; this, however, by the way. Bro. Keable's relation of the objectionable practices daily resorted to by the blustering Major Namby seemed to be highly relished by his audience. Miss Blanche Grosvenor has a fine voice, and with a little more practice, will be heard to great advantage. Her singing of the Minstrel Boy was much applauded. Mr. Feather is an accomplished pianiste, and possesses a good voice, which he knows well how to command. His selection of buffo songs smacked rather too much of the "antique." We regret there was not so large an attendance as could be desired, as, taken altogether, a capital entertainment was provided by Bro. Keable.

Angel Lodge, No. 51.—This Lodge held its monthly meeting on Tuesday, the 14th of May, at the Lodge Room, Three Cups Hotel, Colchester. Present—Bros. Thos. J. Ralling W.M., E. Hennemeyer S.W., Isaac Harris J.W., John J. C. Turner Sec., J. Hanley S.D., C. E. Denton J.D., W. P. Lewis D.C.; P.M.'s Bros. A. E. Church, A. Welch, A. R. Clench, G. Gard Pye, W. Richey, and several other members of the Lodge. Visitors—Bros. C. Osmond St. John's 328, W. I. Spicer I.P.M. 569, and H. H. Costobadie, Oakley 694. The principal business of the evening was the election of W.M., and the choice of the brethren unanimously fell upon Bro. E. Hennemeyer, the S.W., who in a few well chosen words thanked the brethren for the confidence they had reposed in him. W. Bro. A. Cobb was then re-elected Treasurer, and the Tyler (Bro. Munson) was also re-elected. Two candidates for initiation were proposed, and the brethren adjourned to the festive board, when a most harmonious social hour was passed. At the April meeting of the Lodge, on the reading of the Report of the Committee of Grand Lodge with reference to the recent action of the French Grand Orient, the following resolution was unanimously passed, on the motion of the W. Bro. the Rev. C. L. Ackland, seconded by the W.M.:—"That this Lodge begs humbly and heartily to express its thanks to the Grand Lodge of England, for the action it has taken with reference to the French Grand Orient."

The Lodge was opened; the minutes were read and confirmed; the candidate for raising did not put in an appearance, therefore the Lodge was not opened in either of the higher degrees. Bro. Stransom was nominated for the Treasurership. The matter of rent of the Hall was discussed, and resulted in a notice of motion by Bro. Newman D.C.—"That a moiety of the difference between that now paid and that proposed by the Lodge of Union, be offered to the members of 414,"—which, he hoped, would cause an amicable settlement of the question. P.M.'s Egginton and Margrett, suggested moderation. All business being ended, the Lodge was closed.

Prince Bismarck, Friend or Foe?—By the Author of "German Home Life," London: William Ridgway, 169 Piccadilly, W., comes opportunely at the moment when the whole of Europe is disturbed, and its political future must be regarded with anxiety. That Germany and England have invariably been found espousing the same side is well-known, and there is great force in the argument that the influence of the two Empires, when firmly allied together, would be beneficial, as it is almost certain it would be exercised for the benefit of Europe. But we are not quite sure there is that deep sympathy between the two Powers which would ensure such alliance. However, Prince Bismarck has said there can be no rivalry between them except in commerce and the arts of peace, and that is the kind of rivalry which England is always prepared to enter into.

Merchants Lodge, No. 241.—This Lodge held its regular meeting at the Freemasons' Hall, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 14th inst. Present—Bros. George Peet W.M., Jas. Winsor P.M. S.W., J. Pendleton as J.W., J. McGeorge P.M. Prov. Grand Registrar Treas., Thomas Salter Secretary, John Latta S.D., S. Jacobs J.D., George Broadbridge P.M. D.C., A. B. Ewart Organist, T. Whitehead I.G., P. Shaw, Hawes and Whitford were questioned as to their proficiency, previous to being raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The examination proved satisfactory. The Lodge was then worked up to the third degree, and the W.M., in a very impressive manner, performed the ceremony. W. Bro. Peet has the excellent gift, which is so valuable in his high office, of delivering every word with that weight and influence which has such telling effect in our beautiful Ritual. The wealth, prosperity, and influence of this celebrated Lodge has been acquired, undoubtedly, by the appointment of such good Masters in the past as we see in its present popular and gifted W.M. The whole tone and management of this Lodge are in harmony with its past history, and all the brethren work with one object in view—i.e., Freemasonry. On the Lodge being reduced to the first degree, the Secretary read a letter from Bro. Williams, to the effect that he was in a fair way of recovery to health, and hoped to be with them soon again and at his post. The message was received by the W.M. and brethren with great satisfaction, as Bro. Williams had been in a very precarious condition. The Secretary then read the circular from Grand Lodge with regard to the action taken in reference to the Grand Orient of France, and the same was copied into the minutes. Bro. Broadbridge proposed that the sum of five pounds be devoted to a benevolent object, which was seconded by Bro. Secretary, and carried unanimously. There being no further business, the Lodge was closed in harmony at 8.30, and the brethren adjourned to supper. After each brother had done justice to the repast, the W.M. rose to propose the first and customary toast of the Queen, which was duly honoured, the brethren singing the National Anthem. The interval between the first and second toasts—which is the last on such occasions—was occupied with good music from Bros. Cooke and Winsor. These gatherings round the festive board are productive of much fraternal intercourse among the brethren, as there is an absence of stiff formality, and many a pleasant recollection of the past and anticipation of the future is gone into which otherwise would never be observed. During a chat with Bro. Broadbridge, the names of Bros. Constable and Binckes came up, and Bro. George Broadbridge requested that a fraternal greeting be conveyed them through the representative of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. The W.M. proposed the health of the Visitors in a very cordial manner, and expressed his conviction that the brethren of the Merchants would to-night, as they at all times have done, accord their Visitors a hearty welcome. He was always pleased to see brethren pay the Lodge a visit, and the great kindness shown him whenever he visited a Lodge made him doubly anxious that their guests should fully enjoy themselves. He spoke of the pleasure he felt at seeing a distinguished brother among them to-night, who, from his connection with the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and his experience as a Mason, acquired by seeing so many Lodges work, must be great; he could assure Bro. Davies that the Merchants stood very high in the Charities, and the Lodge was in a very happy condition. He alluded to the presence of Bro. P.M. Newman in a happy manner, also to Bro. Kisch, whose presence put him in recollection of his early Masonic days, and informed the brethren, in a very genial manner, that Bro. Wright, who had visited them that evening, would soon occupy the chair of another Lodge. In conclusion, he mentioned that there were other visiting brethren present, whose names he did not know, but offered each and all a hearty welcome, and hoped they would come again. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. Bro. Davies briefly responded to the toast for the Visitors, and expressed thanks for the kind manner in which the toast had been proposed by the W.M. and received by the brethren. With reference to the experience procured by visiting, his had been considerable. He exhorted the brethren to visit Lodges as much as possible. He assured the brethren that he had heard of the good deeds done by the Merchants' Lodge, and knew the beneficial effect their noble example produced in the Province, and far beyond it. He congratulated the Lodge on its great prosperity, and the W.M. and Officers on their capital working. With reference to the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, with which he was connected, the brethren had full opportunities of judging of its value to the Craft, and the highly important duties such a journal discharged. Bro. Newman followed, with a few well-chosen remarks, and Bros. Wright, Kisch, and Keet also made appropriate replies to the toast. Bro. Cooke turned his speech into a melody, for which task he is highly capable. Bros. Cooke, Kisch, Winsor, Jacobs, and Woolrick enhanced the pleasures of the evening with sweet harmony, and Bro. Salter gave a very touching recitation; Bro. Lotta was very humourous in a sketch from life. The brethren dispersed at a reasonable hour.

Fermor Hesketh Lodge, No. 1350.—This Lodge held its monthly meeting at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on Monday, the 13th inst. Present—Bros. W. H. Cooper W.M., T. A. Collinson P.M. as S.W., W. P. Evans J.W., T. F. Cooper Secretary, T. A. Collinson P.M. Treasurer, C. P. Titherly S.D., T. H. Johnson D.C., J. H. Cooke Steward, R. Montgomery as I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Collinson and Johnstone; also Bros. M. Jones, W. Gallop, J. Hodson, J. R. Storey, E. A. Sankay, T. H. Allbut, John Fraser, T. Volk, Geo. Gordon, E. C. Grundy, &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the circular from Grand Lodge with reference to the Grand Orient of France was read by the Secretary, and by command of the W.M. the same was entered in the minute book. The Lodge was then advanced to the second degree. Bro. T. H. Allbut having answered the necessary questions was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft, the ceremony being very ably performed by the W.M. The Lodge was further advanced for the purpose of raising Bros. W. O. Blott and Wm. Halsall to the degree of Master Mason, which ceremony was undertaken by Bro. J. A. Collinson P.M. P. Prov. Grand D.C. It is very pleasing to record the energy and efficiency with which the affairs of this Lodge are carried on. No. 1350 has undergone in its brief career of existence a strange and eventful history, and to-day it lives, is prosperous, and happy. These pleasing symptoms are due to the efficiency of its Officers, Past and Present, and it is no exaggeration to say that a more thoroughly genial Master cannot preside over any Lodge than the justly esteemed Brother who holds the exalted position of present W.M. The working of Bro. Collinson was done remarkably well when we consider he has been out of office for a long time. The W. Brother, although a young man, and a young Mason, has made great progress in Masonry, and has held more than one position in Prov. G. Lodge. With such talent as Fermor Hesketh Lodge possesses in its present and past Officers, and, what is of paramount importance, such vitality and earnestness among all its members, it must become a Lodge of great power and influence. It is to be hoped that no cloud will ever for a moment darken the prosperity which Fermor Hesketh so deservedly enjoys. The Lodge being worked down to the first degree, the W.M. gave notice of motion that on the next meeting he would propose that the sum of £10 be devoted from the funds of the Lodge towards forming a Benevolent Fund in connection with the Lodge. The Lodge was afterwards closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Northern Counties Lodge, No. 406.—The installation meeting of this old and flourishing Lodge, took place on the 29th April, at the Masonic Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The Lodge was opened at 3 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. T. Halliday, assisted by the following Officers:—Bros. T. J. Armstrong W.M. 1626 S.W., R. L. Armstrong W.M. elect J.W., J. Ridsdale P.M. Treas., J. Page Sec., R. G. Salmon S.D., G. W. Lax J.D., S. M. Harris I.G., and G. S. Sims Tyler. After the usual formalities had been gone through, Bro. E. D. Davis P.M. Prov. G.D.C. took the chair, and Bro. Robert Lamb Armstrong was presented to him to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. The W.M. elect having conformed to the Ancient Charges, all below the rank of P.M. left the Lodge. A Board of Installed Masters was then formed, numbering nineteen, and the ceremony was most beautifully performed by Bro. Davis. Upon the brethren returning to the Lodge, they were informed that during their absence Bro. Armstrong had been regularly installed into the chair of King Solomon. The new Master was then duly proclaimed and saluted. He appointed and invested his Officers as follow:—Bros. T. Halliday I.P.M., J. Page S.W., R. G. Salmon J.W., J. Ridsdale P.M. Treasurer, G. W. Lax Secretary, Rev. S. H. Harris P.M. Chaplain, W. Munday P.M. D.C., S. M. Harris S.D., G. Dumford J.D., J. S. B. Bell I.G., Macdonald and E. Clark Stewards, G. S. Sims Tyler, no other business offering itself, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren, numbering over seventy, adjourned to the Crown Hotel, Clayton-street, were they sat down to a banquet provided by Bros. Bell and Bolom. The Chaplain having said grace, the W.M. rose to give the first toast, and said that he never had greater anxiety than at the present moment, and he hoped he might have a speedy relief; he therefore called on the brethren to drink to Her Majesty the Queen. The next toast was that of the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., in submitting which the W.M. said he was one who not only knows Freemasonry in theory, but also in practice. The W.M. then gave the Earl of Carnarvon and Officers of Grand Lodge, which was duly honoured. The W.M. then rose to propose the health of the Right Honourable the Earl of Percy Prov. G.M. and Officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge, coupling the name of Bro. Challener P.M. Past Provincial G.S.W. with the toast, and expressed his pleasure at seeing him amongst them. Brother Challener in reply said he was startled at having to reply to the toast, but nevertheless thanked all the brethren for the compliment done the P. G. Lodge. The toast of the Prov. G. Lodge of Durham was then submitted, and acknowledged by Bro. John Hopper P.P.G.S.W., and W. E. Franklin P.P.G. Superintendent of Works. Bro. Halliday I.P.M. then rose to propose the health of the W.M. It was with feelings of pleasure and regret that he rose to propose this toast; pleasure in having the opportunity of paying a tribute of respect to the W.M., but regret that he was not endued with more eloquence to do justice to it. He was sure all the brethren were aware of his excellent working in the Lodge, he would therefore simply give his health, wishing him long life and every prosperity. The toast was received most enthusiastically. The W.M., in answering, thanked Bro. Halliday and the brethren for their kind expression of feeling towards him; it was only five years since he was initiated, and he then thought, on looking at the Master in the chair, how long it would be before he could do as he did. He should at present only thank them for placing him in that proud position, and hoped to merit a continuance of their good opinion. Before sitting down he would give them the health of the I.P.M., and hoped he might follow in Bro. Halliday's footsteps; he would be hard to beat, but if he only came up to him he would be satisfied. Bro. Halliday expressed his thanks to the brethren for the kind way they had received the toast; it was the greatest delight to him to be of use in Masonry, and he should continue to try to be so if his life should be spared. The W.M., on rising, said he never approached a toast with greater difficulty than he did the one he now had the pleasure to submit, namely, that of the Installing Master. He had only known Bro. Davis, he was sorry to say, a short time, but since he had had the advantage of his advice, he had endeavoured to profit by it; he prayed that he might be long spared, his name was so dear to every Mason in the Province. He could only once more thank him most heartily for installing him. Bro. E. D. Davis, in most feeling terms, thanked the Master and brethren for all the kindness shown to him, and heartily prayed for their prosperity. The W.M. in submitting the toast of the P.M.'s, spoke in high terms of the services rendered by Bro. W. S. Hughes in the Lodge of Instruction, and also of the regret he felt at losing the services of Bro. P.M. Harris, who at all times gave them much instruction, whether in or out of Lodge. The toast was acknowledged by P.M. Hughes. The Officers received similar compliments, and each responded. The Visitors was given by Bro. Rev. S. H. Harris P.M., and replied to by Bro. Bolom W.M. 24. The Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close. Some splendid harmony was rendered by Bros. Natal (of Durham Cathedral), Keeney, and Gibbings, as well as by other brethren. The Visitors were Bros. E. D. Davis P.P.G.S.W. 695, J. Hopper P.P.G.S.W. 481, Challener P.P.G.S.W. Durham, G. Thomson P.P.G.S.W. 481, W. E. Franklin P.M. P.P.G.S.W. Durham 481, J. Bolom W.M. 24, R. Each brother had a beautiful button hole bouquet, supplied by Bro. Chorlton, of South View Nursery.

The Lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of the previous meeting confirmed, Bros. C. J. Sievers, John Stroud, and W. Mason Paxton were raised to the sublime degree, and the Lodge having resumed, Messrs. M. F. Collins, Robert Hamed Durie, W. Sergeant and Charles Gieseke were initiated; the ceremonies in each instance being most admirably worked by the W.M. and his Officers. Some slight discussion arose as to the place where the Summer Banquet should be held, and eventually the brethren decided that it should be held in the month of July, at Broxbourne or elsewhere, as the W.M. and the two Stewards appointed might decide and report to the next Lodge. The business over, the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where ample justice was done to an excellent repast, and the brethren separated at an early hour, after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

Lebanon Lodge, No. 1326.—An emergency meeting of the members of this Lodge was held on Thursday, the 9th inst., at the usual place of meeting, viz., the Lion Hotel, Hampton, and despite the last line on the summons intimating to the brethren that there would be "no banquet," there was a large muster. Bro. Cox the W.M., opened the Lodge in due form, and there were present Bros. Williams S.W., J. Hammond J.W., Baldwin S.D., and J. Marsh I.G. The work, which was admirably done throughout, consisted of initiating three gentlemen, namely, Messrs. S. Allen, McDowell, and Patrick Brown, the chair being ably assisted by P.M.'s Hammond and Gilbert. Bro. Williams was raised; and, by request, the W.M. courteously vacated the chair, that Bro. P.M. Walker might have the pleasure of initiating two old and valued personal friends.

The three ceremonies were worked by the W.M. in a most able and impressive manner. At the close of the business the brethren sat down to a magnificent banquet, admirably served by Bro. Linscott. The W.M. gave the usual Loyal toasts, with a few brief remarks to each. Bro. Murlis the I.P.M. gave the health of the W.M. who he complimented as a good and true Mason, who was fulfilling his duties faithfully and zealously. The W.M. replied, stating how earnest his wish and desire was that the Lodge should go on and prosper, and not only think of themselves but of our noble Charities which were the brightest ornaments in Freemasonry. Bro William Stephens, in responding to the toast of the Charities, thanked the brethren for the support given to him as their Steward. He once thought if he got £100 he should be satisfied; he reached that very quickly, then he thought he would raise £200, now he was pleased to say he had over £250, one member of the Lodge had that evening given him £25 to make up that sum. (Cheers.) The W.M. then gave the Visitors, and said he was pleased to see so many present, although he expected a larger number, he called upon Bros. Locock Webb Q.C. P.G.D., Sir Charles Dilke M.P., J. Jordan P.G.S., and Cunningham Glen to respond. Bro. Locock Webb congratulated the W.M. on his work, and the prosperity of the Lodge. Bro. ## A MODEL MASONIC SCRIBE.

OUR readers will doubtless have seen a letter, which appeared in our columns last week, from a Jamaica Brother. It had originally been addressed to our Masonic contemporary, but being declined by that journal, was forwarded to us for publication. We, of course, readily accorded the wished-for space, as it seemed to us a bare act of justice that a Brother who considered he had been needlessly attacked should have an opportunity allowed him to resent the onslaught. As regards the letter or note which elicited the reply in question, we have not been at the pains of referring to it. Our object in making these few remarks is simply to discuss the meaning of the language used in a certain passage which was quoted by Bro. H. J. Burger. Masons are presumed to pride themselves on the scrupulous care they take not to give offence orally or verbally to their brethren. They avoid saying and writing what is objectionable, as they would have others do the same by them. However, the language used in this letter, which—rightly or wrongly we neither know nor care—is attributed to the Editor of our contemporary, is not quite in accordance with the original design of Freemasonry. The passage quoted by Bro. Burger relates to one of three classes of persons, namely, the class which comprises "those who wish honestly to improve," and of these Bro. Burger complains that any remark to the effect "that, honest themselves, they are often made the unconscious dupes of longer heads, of greater rascals than themselves," should have been made. We quite agree with him. Indeed, we go a little further, and lay it down as a rule absolute that those who cannot write sense, even to the extent of one poor sentence, should be forced to observe silence for (say) the same number of years as the disciples of Pythagoras were on joining his school, or, at all events, till they have acquired the art of writing becomingly. We shall not pause to question the writer's taste, because it is impossible the passage could have been more offensively worded. Our only desire is to convey to his mind—presuming, at least, that it is capable of appreciating good homely common-sensible advice—that, if he must write letters, he should avoid contradicting himself in the same sentence. The class of persons to whom he was referring is described briefly as "those who wish honestly to improve," and of these he says that, "honest themselves," they are often made the dupes of still greater rascals. There is, in fact, a conflict of propositions in this remarkable statement. In the first place, these people are honest; then they are the dupes of greater rascals than themselves; and consequently, the honest people are also rascals, only not such tremendous rascals as those by whom they are duped. Bro. Burger very naturally exclaims against the use of such un-Masonic language as is contained in the objectionable passage, and questions the propriety of one brother describing a class of his fellows as "rascally dupes." This is just and proper, Bro. Burger, but when you have had the same experience as ourselves, you will cease to be surprised, or rather, you will wonder how it is that more abusive letters are not written by Masonic scribes. We, therefore, do not trouble ourselves so much about the propriety or violence of the language used. We look to the sense, and our advice to brethren who cannot write one miserable sentence which has any meaning has been stated already with sufficient clearness. When a writer calls a brother an honest man and a rascal almost in the same breath, we feel inclined to describe him as—well, we leave our readers to fill up the description for themse We might, in our logical anger, say something unfrate and commit the error we complain of in the writer of quoted passage. Moreover, there is so strong a feelin sympathy between our readers and ourselves, that we we can trust them to supply the blank.

CHESHIRE is a province which must always commc itself to the earnest regard of all true Freemaso The part it has played in the annals of Britain is of c siderable historic interest. In the days when this isla of ours was a Province of the Roman empire, wh now stands the quaint old capital of the coun was stationed the camp (Castra, unde deriva Chester) of a Roman legion, and the presence of t Imperial conquerors of the ancient Britons is s further indicated in the final syllable of sundry towns Cheshire, to wit, Nantwich, Northwich, Middlewich, & the final wich being commonly set down à vicus. It w moreover, an important part of the Roman Province, t Cheshire borders on Wales, into the mountain fastnesses which retired the remnant of the British people who refus to live under the yoke of Rome. On this ground the p sence of a Roman castra is explicable. Then in the Ang Saxon days, when Britain was a Heptarchy, we read o great King of Mercia making a triumphant progress on t river Dee, his galley being rowed by six tributary king whom, in the successful wars he had waged, he brought acknowledge his supremacy. In the name of Knutsfo we can trace a reference to the days when Anglo-Sax royalty had been temporarily displaced by the terril Dane. Then there are the numerous monumental remai of the operative Masons of the olden time, with whom moderns are delighted to establish, as we can establish a have established, a direct association. Of these one on need be mentioned—the Cathedral of Chester, for the tw fold reason that it was the work of our operative pred cessors, and that the Speculative Masons of to-day ha contributed their mite in the work of restoring it to som what of its pristine beauty. Moreover, but a short tir had elapsed from the establishment of the Speculati system of Masonry, when Masons' Lodges were establish in its capital city. Our Grand Lodge was constituted 1717, and a reference to the recently-reprinted Pine's Li of Lodges in 1734, for which we are indebted to the ener of Bro. Hughan, will show that in the course of only sev years—that is, by the year 1724—two Lodges had be founded, of which one (No. 32, according to the List ju mentioned) met at the Bull, in Northgate-street, Cheste and the other, No. 33, at the Castle, Watergate-street, the same city. In addition to these we find that No. 36 Pine's List met at the Red Lion, Congleton, and must lik wise have been constituted in 1724, and that anoth

(No. 80) was held at the Angel, Macclesfield, having been constituted in the year 1731. This county then was in the short period of fourteen years in a position to boast of no less than four Lodges, and though the oldest existing Lodge dates from the year 1754, there can be no question that Freemasonry, albeit its earliest Lodges have disappeared from the roll of Grand Lodge, was soon firmly established in this county. It is only indeed since the year 1832 that a fifth Lodge, of whose establishment we have a record, has ceased to meet, namely, the Royal Chester Lodge, Chester, founded in the year 1738, and No. 58 at the Union, No. 80 after the Union, and No. 71 in 1832. We may go further, and, without any wild stretch of the imagination, picture to ourselves some Masons from Cheshire being present in the Lodge at Warrington in Lancashire on that memorable 16th October 1646, when the antiquarian, Elias Ashmole, was made a Freemason by Mr. Richard Penket, the Warden, and the Fellow Crafts of the Lodge. At all events, the Colonel Henry Mainwaring, who was "made" at the same time with Ashmole, is described as of "Kerthingham in Cheshire;" therefore, even in those days the fame of Freemasonry had already made its way into Cheshire.

All these points we have referred to are so many reasons why the present province of Cheshire should be entitled to our regard. Yet are there other reasons equally valid. As regards the number of its Lodges, it is especially well provided, having, according to Grand Lodge Calendar for this year, no less than thirty-nine of them, to eighteen of which are attached an equal number of R. A. Chapters. It has also been unusually fortunate in the rulers who have been placed over it by our Grand Masters. The predecessor of him who is now the representative of the Grand Master in this province, was one whose name will live in history, as long as there is a history of Great Britain. He it was who, as Sir Stapleton Cotton, covered himself with glory as the Cavalry general of Wellington in the Peninsular campaigns; and he it was who, in 1826, reduced the previously impregnable fortress of Bhurtpore, and afterwards was rewarded with a peerage, by the style and title of Viscount Combermere. The memory of the late Field Marshal Viscount Combermere, is, and ever will be, dear to all Englishmen, and the memory of Viscount Combermere, Prov. G. Master of Cheshire, is, and ever will be, equally dear to all English Freemasons, and especially to his Cestrian fellows, by whom he was beloved as a brother, and respected as their ruler. In his successor, who is the subject of our present sketch, and who has held his exalted position during some thirteen years, we see one of whom the Province has every reason to be proud. He is a Mason of long standing, and during the period of his Provincial Grand Mastership no less than eleven Lodges have been added to the roll of Prov. G. Lodge But the strength of Cheshire Freemasonry must not be judged solely from a numerical point of view. The support it extends towards our great Central Charities is liberal and frequent, as a reference to the official lists of the several Institutions will show; and what is equally, or in the eyes of many brethren even more to its credit, it has an educational Masonic Institute of its own, for the maintenance and education of the children of its own indigent brethren. Thus, while in the minds of those who have given the matter any thought there never can have been any doubt that Cheshire holds a foremost rank among our Provinces, we have given the less informed brethren a sufficient batch of reasons for the proposition with which we started, namely, that the Masonic Province of Chester is dear to the whole English Brotherhood.

But it is time we began to trace the portrait of our respected brother. A few of the details of his career will suffice. When yet a student at Christ Church, Oxford, he was initiated into the mysteries of the first degree in Freemasonry. This was in the year 1831, and the Lodge in which the auspicious event took place, we need hardly say, was the Apollo University, No. 357. That he had a love for the Royal Art, and took the deepest interest in its working, may be well imagined, and though we do not find any record of his official career in connection with his Mother Lodge, yet Cestrian Masons will tell us with justifiable pride of the admirable manner in which he has fulfilled the duties of every office he has held, whether subordinate or that of W. Master. That at an early period he received Provincial honours is likewise well known, while his name will be handed down to future generations in connection with the Province he has governed so well, seeing that one of its thirty-nine Lodges, held in the neighbourhood of his country seat, is named after him. But not only has he had bestowed upon him Provincial honours; he has likewise been honoured by the G. Master himself, and rewards of this description are only bestowed on those whose prominence in the Craft will justify their bestowal. In 1859 he was appointed by the late Grand Master the Earl of Zetland to be Grand Senior Warden of England. In 1865, on the death of Prov. G. Master the late Viscount Combermere, he was appointed by the same G. Master to be his representative for the Province of Cheshire. Since then he has taken an active interest in everything that could concern the welfare of the Province. It was no light task to succeed a Provincial Grand Master who had won such splendid popularity as the late Lord Combermere; but, as years passed on, the brethren found they had a ruler who was in every respect fit for the exalted post. Among the qualities which the occupant of such an office stands most in need of, are firmness combined with tact, and energy tempered by discretion. He should likewise be one who will command respect, as much by the moderation of his counsels as by his general capacity as a counsellor. In all these respects, our brother has shown himself worthy of the great honour conferred upon him.

Nor have his labours been confined to simple Craft Freemasonry. He is, indeed, what has been described by another member of our Society, a Constitutional Mason, and we search in vain for any trace of his connection with Templar, High Grade and other Masonic bodies, but in Royal Arch Masonry he has attained as high distinction as in Craft. We need not speak of his work in subordinate Chapters, for of its merits we may judge from the high rank he holds in his Province and in the Supreme Grand Chapter; being in the former the Superintendent of the Provincial Grand Chapter —to which Office he was appointed in 1868; while in the latter he is Grand J., having been nominated to that position in 1875, when His Royal Highness was installed Grand Z., and having been annually reappointed since.

Having now mentioned the several official claims he possesses to the respect of all Craft and Arch Masons, we will notice him in connection with our several Charitable Institutions. Of each and every of these he is a firm and liberal supporter, and has filled the office of Steward for each of them. He is, moreover, President of the Prov. Educational Masonic Institution, to which allusion has already been made. Nor is he President in name only. He is one of its most liberal supporters, and takes an active and most energetic part in promoting its welfare, while his lady is one of the two lady Patronesses. But why say more? The mere enumeration of our brother's titles in Craft and Arch Masonry, and the part he has played in connection with our Masonic Charities, both central and local, are evidence of his sterling qualities, and though his career as a Mason will, at no great distance of time, extend over half a century, we trust he may yet be spared to us for many a year to adorn that society of which he has been so long a worthy and an honoured member. As a member of the hereditary House of Parliament, in his County, and as a Mason, he is loved and respected by all who are brought in contact with him. More than this can be said of no man; or rather to attempt to say more than this would be to descend from the praise which is just, to the adulation which is fulsome.

THE SOCIETY OF FRENCH COOKS.

THE Twenty-third Annual Ball of the Cuisiniers Français was held on Thursday, the 16th inst., at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and was numerously attended. The object of this annual gathering is—Charity; any surplus monies accruing are handed to the French Hospital and the Société Français. The assembly was a brilliant one, and the Crown and Sussex rooms were filled. A sumptuous and récherché supper was provided by Bro. A. Best, under the superintendence of Bro. Barlet. The tables were artistically decorated, and blocks of ice were provided by Bro. Shingleton, in the shape of Cleopatra's Needle, surrounded by ferns; imparting a delicious coolness, and, moreover, presenting a novelty. M. Vallet occupied the chair, and Bro. C. W. Parsons, in felicitous terms, proposed the health of that gentlemen. Bro. H. M. Levy proposed the health of the Stewards, coupling with the toast the names of Bros. Penet, Francois, Le Gendre, and Barlet, whose exertions had contributed to the comfort of the Visitors and to the success of the ball. M. Pierre Calkin's band discoursed most eloquent music, and the efficiency of the M.C.'s, Bros. Tripp and Harris, received full recognition. Among those present were Bros. Lakin, C. W. Parsons, Gianelli, De Bouf, Forge, Penet, Francois, Le Gendre, Bonyard, Thoumire, Borderen, Gon, Fournier, Beaver, Daton, H. M. Levy, &c.

The Provincial Grand Lodge having been opened, shortly before one o'clock, Bro. Cartwright P.G.S. read the minutes of the last meeting held at Stafford in October 1876, and of the Lodge of Emergency held at Newcastle in January 1877, which were confirmed.

The W.D.P.G.M. observed that about twelve months ago, as they were aware, a quarterly meeting of the P.G. Lodge was to have been held at Burton-on-Trent, but the unfortunate death of the R.W.P.G.M. a few days before necessitated the abandonment of that meeting, the P.G. Lodge, in point of fact ceasing to exist when their lamented P.G.M. died. It would be remembered that in the end of the month of May a meeting of the brethren of the Province was held at Stafford, and a resolution was passed that a letter should be addressed to the Countess of Shrewsbury expressing their condolence with her ladyship on her sad bereavement. That not having been a meeting as a Provincial Grand Lodge, no entry had been made on the minutes; but he thought some record should be made of their expression of feeling on the subject, and he therefore proposed that the letter forwarded last May to the Countess and the reply thereto be entered on the minutes of the present proceedings. Freemasonry in Staffordshire had before now passed under clouds which had been dissipated, but as time passed on the cloud in this instance seemed to get darker. The memory of their late P.G.M. would for a long time be vividly before them, and they would long feel the severe loss which they had sustained—Bro. Tudor seconded the resolution, which was passed unanimously.

Bro. Bodenham read the Auditors' report and the Treasurer's statement of accounts, showing that at the end of 1877 the available funds amounted to £129 11s 8d. The subject of the purchase of the right to send a scholar to the Masonic School for Boys was introduced. It was stated that the sum required (£525) had been raised within a few pounds, and the life of the Duke of Connaught had been insured as a means of rendering the right permanent. It was proposed by the W.D.P.G.M. that the Shrewsbury fund should be closed, and the balance (£31 3s 9d) handed over to the general fund of the P.G. Lodge, and this was seconded by Bro. Bodenham. Bro. Jacobs suggested that it should be allowed to remain as the nucleus of a fund which would probably be raised for providing some permanent memorial of the late Earl of Shrewsbury. After a short conversation the further consideration of the subject was deferred.

The D.P.G.M. rose and expressed a hope that the motion he was about to make would meet with the unanimous consent of the P.G. Lodge, inasmuch as the appointment was one which rested entirely with the brethren. He hoped that not only would it be accepted unanimously but that it might take the form of a vote of thanks to their esteemed P.G. Treasurer Bro. Bodenham. This was seconded by Bro. Tudor P.P.D.G.M., and carried with applause. Bro. Bodenham briefly expressed his thanks, after which the P.G. Sec. was called upon to read the warrant from the Acting P.G.M., Bro. McIntyre (Grand Registrar of England) appointing the W. Bro. G. Singleton Tudor D.P.G.M. for the province. The seat of the D.P.G.M. was then occupied by Bro. Tudor, who expressed the hope that he might meet with the hearty support accorded to him when he was first appointed ten years ago. The following appointments were then made:—S.G.W. Bro. C. Graham Barton, J.G.W. Bro. George H. Hawley 546 Longton, P.G. Chaplains Bros. the Revs. W. Randall and H. Von Straubenzee 526, Registrar Bro. G. S. Guy 696 Wednesbury, Treasurer Bro. J. Bodenham 726 Stafford, Secretary, Bro. W. Cartwright 460 Newcastle, S.D. Bro. T. Standford 347 Tipton, J.D. Bro. J. Ingammels 460 Newcastle, Sup. of Works Bro. W. Needham 966 Leek, D.C. Bro. A. Ellis 451 Burslem, A.D.C. Bro. J. Smith, S.B. Bro. W. Vernon 1,587 Cheadle, Organist, Bro. Bedsmore 1,039 Lichfield, G.P. Bro. F. Huet 418 Hanley, Standard Bearer Bro. J. L. Gibbons 1,520 Cannock, Stewards Bros. Fowke, Wood, Scott, Livingstone, Mottram, and Grylls, all of 726.

The brethren adjourned from Grand Lodge to attend Divine service at St. Mary's Church, walking in procession and wearing the craft clothing and the insignia of the respective offices held by the members. The sermon was full choral, the rector intoning the prayers, and the Rev. C. Lee, P.P.G. Chaplain, the Rev. A. J. V. Straubenzee and the Rev. W. Randall, P.G. Chaplains, taking part. Bro. the Rev. C. Lee, vicar of St. Leonard's, Bilston, preached a most able, learned, and eloquent sermon from Matthew xxiii. 8, "For one is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren." The preacher sketched in a masterly manner the early history of Freemasonry, and showed strong reasons for believing that its principles were derived from Egypt, by Pythagoras, and by him introduced into Italy when he retired to Cretona, and thence was conveyed by the Romans to this country. He eloquently recalled its leading principles, and enforced on the brethren the duties which those principles involve, strengthening the appeal by a touching reference to the late Provincial Grand Master the Earl of Shrewsbury, whose devotion to Masonry, and especially to its charitable institutions, he invited all the brethren to emulate. At the close of the sermon £16 2s 8d was collected.

When business was resumed in the P.G. Lodge, Bro. James proposed a vote of thanks to the P.G. Chaplain (Bro. Lee) for his eloquent, historical, and Masonic sermon. This was seconded by Bro. Rowlands, who added to the resolution that the sermon be printed; and a suggestion was made by one of the brethren that the sermon should be published by subscription, and sold at a reasonable price, and the profits devoted to the funds of one of the Masonic Charities. The proposition of Bro. James was carried unanimously; and Bro. Lee, in acknowledging the compliment, intimated that he should be glad to add, in the form of notes, facts which would be instructive and might be interesting to many of the brethren. Of the amount which had been collected at the church, £3 3s was voted to the rector of St. Mary's towards the funds of his schools, £5 5s to the Chaplain for his schools at Bilston, and the remainder to the sum required for making up the £525 for the purchase of a right to send a boy to the Masonic School for Boys. The discussion on the subject of the disposal of the balance in hand on account of the Shrewsbury fund was resumed, and eventually it was decided to add it to the Benevolent Fund of the Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Institution. A committe was appointed to consider and report as to the best means of providing a memorial of the late Earl of Shrewsbury.

Lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Assembly-Room, where a sumptous banquet was provided by the Misses Pontin of the Vine Hotel. The gallery at either end of the room was occupied by ladies. During and after dinner the band of the 2nd Regiment of the Staffordshire Militia played merrily. At the conclusion of the repast the W.D.P.G.M. (Bro. Tudor) gave the toasts of "The Queen," "The M.W. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales Grand Master of England, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "The M.W. the Pro Grand Master the Earl of Carnarvon, the V.W. the D.G.M. the Earl of Skelsmerdale, and the Officers of Grand Lodge present and past."

Bro. Lee, in an eloquent speech, which was heartily applauded, proposed the health of the R.W. Æneas J. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, P.G.M. Staffordshire, and the W.D.P.G.M. Bro. Tudor. The W.D.P.G.M., in responding, alluded to his long absence from office in the province, the kindness he received from the brethren when he formerly held the position he again occupied, and said now that he had undertaken important duties at the urgent request of many brethren he should strive to perform those duties without fear or favour, relying upon receiving in the future as he had done in the past the support and assistance of Officers of the P.G. Lodge and the brethren generally. (Applause.)

Bro. Randall, P.P.G.C., proposed "The W.P.P.D.G.M. and the Officers of P.G. Lodge past and present." He was especially complimentary to Bro. James, who, he said, was really master of the duties which he discharged as deputy, and always manifested a kindly feeling and the courtesy of a gentleman. Bro. James made a long speech in response to the toast. He observed that there was no one present who had occasion to regret the death of their late P.G.M. more than he (Bro. James.) He had for years enjoyed the confidence of the late Earl, and he could honestly say that a more honest-minded, generous man never existed in Staffordshire than his lordship. (Applause.) By his death the P.G. Lodge also ceased to exist as a Lodge, and it was a long time before the authorities in high places resuscitated it and placed the Grand Registrar in the position of Acting Grand Master of the Province. The reason P.G. Lodge had not been convened earlier was that it was necessary to apply to the Quarter Sessions (which they were unable to do till April) for permission to meet in that hall. He hoped Bro. Tudor would make up for lost time by calling another P.G. Lodge in the autumn of this year. He went on to explain why he had retired from the position of D.P.G.M., and said that although he had not done all that he intended while in that office, he hoped to visit the three Lodges in the Province which he had not yet attended. Though he was no longer an Officer of the P.G. Lodge, he should retain a fraternal feeling towards all the brethren, and should continue to render to the craft such support as he was able to give. (Hear, hear.) Freemasonry was no doubt progressive, and he supposed there never was a period in the history of Freemasonry in this country when it progressed so rapidly as during the last quarter of a century. Though he was not an old man, he was old enough to remember the consecration of more than one-half of the Lodges in the province. But it was not only numerically that they were increasing. There was an increasing manifestation in that truly Masonic life and spirit which was abundantly brought to their attention in their Masonic ceremonies. If charity was the landmark of Freemasonry, he would venture to say it had two aspects. It did not consist in almsgiving alone,though if they were as Masons to be judged by that test, they could say that last year Masons contributed £42,000 to support their four great central Charities. (Applause.) In supporting these Charities no one was more hearty than the late P.G.M. whose loss they all so much lamented. (Hear, hear.) The late Earl of Shrewsbury presided at the anniversary of each of the Masonic Charities in its turn, and on one occasion he presided in the absence of Prince Leopold. There was then a larger amount of contributions than at any previous Festival. (Hear.) But that was not the side of Freemasonry by which they should alone wish to be judged. They would rather be judged by the grand principle which they endeavoured to inculate in their Lodges, of doing to others as they would be done by, and which taught them to guide their actions so that when any one was said to be a Freemason the world might know that he was "one to whom the burthened heart may pour forth its sorrows, to whom the distressed may prefer their suit, whose hand is guided by justice, and whose heart is expanded by benevolence." (Applause.) That was what they taught each other to exhibit to the world, and when that principle was acted on they need not care for the scoffs of those outside their boundaries, and who, if they were upright, free, and true men, they would gladly embrace within their ranks. The longer he lived the more heartily did he approve the principles of Freemasonry, and the more strenuous should be his endeavours to promote the interests of the craft. (Applause.) He then pointed out the difficulty of selecting the Provincial Grand Officers when there were 21 Lodges and only 11 appointments to be made every year, and there were thus so many Past Masters not only qualified but ambitious to take provincial honours. He expressed a hope that the appointments which had been made that day would give satisfaction to the brethren.

Bro. James, after a brief interval, proposed in a neat speech "The W. Masters of the Lodges in the Province;" for whom Bro. Turner, W.M. 460, responded in suitable terms.

Bro. Rodgers, P.P.G.J.D., gave the toast of "The Visitors," on whose behalf Bro. T. Hall, 250, P.G.J.W. (Derbyshire), responded. He observed that Masonry was flourishing in the province to which he belonged, as well as in Staffordshire and other provinces. Though Staffordshire possessed 21 Lodges, the population of Staffordshire was much greater than that of Derby, and it would take two Derbyshires to make one Staffordshire. Yet he had the pleasure of taking part a fortnight ago in the consecration of the nineteenth Craft Lodge in the province of Derby, and in that province there were nearly eight hundred members. (Hear, hear.) Masonry was progressing in numbers, wealth, and generosity, and he thought the time appeared to be coming when they should consider the question of decentralizing their charitable institutions; and if they established such institutions in different centres they would create a new interest and a new incentive to the generosity of the Craft. And, he asked, why should they not have a Boy's School in Staffordshire and a Girls' School in Derbyshire? If that could be accomplished a great amount of additional zeal and liberality would be evoked. (Applause.)

Bro. Derry P.P.G.W. proposed the toast of "The Masonic Charities." Bro. Bodenham P.G. Treasurer, in responding, expressed his unabated interest in those Charities. He alluded to the fact that they had secured the right to have one boy in the Masonic School, and he thought that if they could establish such a right to send a scholar to the Girls' School it would be a fitting tribute to the memory of the late Earl of Shrewsbury. He also pointed out that great benefits were conferred upon the children of Masons by the Staffordshire Charitable Masonic Institution.

The remaining toasts were "The Ladies," proposed by Bro. Bodenham, and responded to by Bro. Owens, of Wolverhampton; "The P.G. Stewards," proposed by Bro. Cartwright, and acknowledged by Bro. Fowke, and the Tyler's toast.

MEETING OF LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

THE Lodge of Benevolence met at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday evening, and was numerously attended. Bros. Clabon President, Joshua Nunn S.V.P., and James Brett J.V.P. were in the three chairs. Bros. Lord Henneker, Capt. Philips, Col. H. S. Burnley, Col. Shadwell Clerke, S. Rawson, James Glaisher, James Lewis Thomas, J. A. Rucker, Griffiths Smith, J. M. Case, Rev. W. Alfred Hill, A. L. Cole, H. Bartlett. C. P. Cobham, W. T. Howe, C. A. Cottebrune, T. J. Maidwell, Ralph Gooding, James Mason, Charles Atkins, John Hervey Grand Secretary, H. G. Buss Asst. Grand Secretary, A. A. Pendlebury, W. Stephens, and A. M. Cohen, were among the other brethren who attended. The total amount of pecuniary relief afforded to nineteen cases was £440. There were twenty-four cases on the list, but five of these were not ready.

VICTORIA (PHILOSOPHICAL) INSTITUTE.—A meeting of this Society was held on Monday last at its house, 7 Adelphi-terrace. Among the members elected several were resident in the United States and in the Colonies. A paper on "Physical Geography" was read by Mr. J. Thornhill Harrison, M. Inst., C.E., in which he gave a description of the various changes which had taken place in the position of the earth which had tended to produce its present state. A discussion ensued, in which several took part.

PROXY VOTING.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am sorry I should have misapprehended the tenor of Bro. Gould's remarks in his former letter, but I think he will hold me excused for having done so, under the circumstances. Bro. Constable and I had recommended "Proxy Voting" in the approaching election of a Secretary to the Girls' School, on the ground that personal voting placed the country voters at a disadvantage with the London voters. Thereupon, he suggested that, in order to be consistent, we should claim for our country brethren perfect equality with Londoners as well "in the performance of a duty" as "in the exercise of a privilege." As he said nothing about the manner in which the former should be done, and we had proposed a plan in the case of the latter, I imagined that Bro. Gould would apply the same means in both cases. However, his letter of last week has disabused my mind of that opinion, and I regret I should have formed it; though, as I have said before, I think there was some justification for it, however slight.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Fraternally yours,

FAIR PLAY.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Pray pity the sorrows of an unfortunate brother, who has made bold to suggest an alteration in the manner of voting at the election of an officer of one of our Institutions as now prescribed by law. I am one of several brethren, among whom are Bro. J. Constable who suggested the idea, and Bro. Gould who admits that Bro. J. C. and I have made out our case, who think that proxy voting might with advantage be adopted in lieu of personal voting at the approaching election of a Secretary for the Girls' School. I see, likewise, that you have been at the pains to advocate such a change, while, to the best of my knowledge and belief, no notice whatever has been taken of the matter in any other Masonic Journal. You may imagine, then, my surprise last Saturday morning when, on turning over the pages of a contemporary of yours, I found that "A Life Governor of all the Charities" had hurled at me and my companions in the suggested reform a most terrible rebuke, in the course of which he denounced the proposal, on the ground that proxy-voting was illegal, and that whether it might be wise or not "to concede such a privilege in the future under proper safeguards, and after due legislation," "its use at present" was "simply impossible." Then followed a sentence which could only have been penned by one who, to a lofty opinion of his own marvellous abilities added a supreme contempt for the suggestions of others. But perhaps I had better quote his very words. "I always think," writes this Life Governor of all the Charities, "it is a great pity that redressers of grievances and proposers of reform will not, in the first place, study the laws of the Institution which they propose to alter or set aside." I need hardly say I felt most unwell for several days after receiving this tremendous scrub. I did not, it is true, go so far as Artemus Ward, and "drown my sorrers in the flowin bole," I was wiser than he, for I thought them over, and the result of such excogitation is my present plaintive statement to you who so kindly inserted my former letters.

I have studied the laws of the Institution in question. Had I not done so, I should, in all probability, have been ignorant of the fact that proxy voting at present is illegal. It was because I knew the law that I suggested the substitution of proxy for personal voting, and I derive some comfort from the fact that one worthy brother by name, and others under various nomes de plume, have either endorsed or approved of the suggestion. I do not, therefore, regard the proposal as being a "wild" one, or staid members of the Craft would not have received it favourably. Then, as to the approaching election—when Bro. J. Constable first started the idea there was time to have given the requisite notice at a General Committee of the proposed alteration of the existing law, and for the remaining steps to be taken in their regular sequence, so that in the event of the amendment being carried, the successor to Bro. Little might have been elected by the system of proxy voting. At least there is nothing, as far as I can see and understand, in Laws XXX., XXXI., and XXXIV., at page 7 of the Laws of the Royal Masonic Institutions for Boys and Girls, &c., &c., Edition 1878, to prevent the requisite steps being taken to amend the law. Even now, indeed, there is time, seeing that Bro. Hedges who, during the whole of the protracted illness of the late Bro. Little efficiently discharged the duties of Secretary is still fulfilling them, so that the necessity for permanently filling up the office is not immediate. What is most important in connection with the matter is, that the most capable of the brethren who have offered themselves as candidates to succeed the late Bro. Little should be elected; and I need hardly point out that he who has the most interest in London or in the country is not necessarily the fittest. All the greater reason, say I, why all who have the privilege of voting should have the same facilities allowed them for exercising it. As matters stand now, the advantage will be, not with the candidate whose qualifications commend themselves to a majority of all the voters, but with him who finds most favour with the majority of the London voters only; and I argue that, in the interests of the School, this ought not to be—not, be it added, because I doubt the loyalty and good sense of the London voters, but because, in an election to this office, the Provincials are quite as much interested as the Londoners, and ought not to be put to trouble and expense in the exercise of their undoubted privilege.

This then is the head and front of my offence, which has excited the wrath and indignation of "A Life Governor of all three Charities," that I, with others, have endorsed an admittedly reasonable suggestion of Bro. Constable's. Ah! well. Parvis componere magna solebam. I always like to rub up my Latin, when I think of your contemporary, especially if I can express myself as well in plain honest English. A little Latin or a little French looks fine, and gives the world the idea that I must be a scholarly writer. Well. I was going to say that every one who has advocated a reform has had a good deal of abuse and indignation levelled at them, so that the case of myself and those who have expressed the same opinion is not singular. But I must not trespass further on your space. So I end as I began, by asking your sympathy with a deeply afflicted Craftsman, who subscribes himself—in sorrow, not in anger—

Your Humble Servant and Brother,

NORTH WALES.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The report of the meeting of Lodge 1336, on your page 317, says, "We have yet to learn that the Deputy P.G. Master of this Province (North Wales and Shropshire) has visited the Lodges under his care once since his appointment." Certain expressions which precede this sentence—indifference, incompetency, to wit—may indicate an animus which is not charitable, even if the writer's supposition were well founded.

However, during the few months that the D.P.G.M. has held the appointment, he has, to my knowledge, visited, with lively interest, the Madoc, the St. Eleth, the St. Tudno, the St. David's, the Segontium, the Anglesea, and other Lodges, besides discharging numerous Masonic duties.

I was sorry to see an aspersion, even implied, against one who, in Masonry and out of it, is so esteemed and respected, not less in the Principality than in the Kingdom, as Bro. W. Bulkeley Hughes.

I remain, Sir, as ever,

Above you all,

THE WREKIN.

20th May 1878.

A "NOTE" FROM A "PRO."

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I am glad you have called attention to a practice with some Lodges of calling in the services of non-Masonic artists at their banquets. It is objectionable, not only for the reason you gave last week, but also because if the services of artists are held to be imperatively necessary there are numbers of artistic brethren who would be only too glad of the opportunity of contributing to the evening's entertainment. Or, if the services of professional brethren are not to be had, and the alternative lies between no music at all or the music contributed by non-Masonic artists, then let the Lodge dispense on those occasions with the Masonic form of toast, following in this respect the plan adopted at the Festivals of the Benevolent Institution and the Girls' School, when the toasts are given as at ordinary dinners. However, as there is no dearth of brethren who belong to the musical profession, I, for one, see no just cause or impediment why we may not have, on one and the same occasion, the services of Masonic minstrels and the geniality and fervour of our Masonic toasts.

I am, fraternally yours,

"TAMBOURINE."

LODGE VICTORIA IN BURMAH.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR,—The election of Bro. the Rev. J. E. Marks to the chair of Lodge Victoria in Burmah, No. 832, has been declared void by the Grand Lodge. Well, Brother Marks was installed as W.M., without waiting for the orders of the District Grand Master, and subsequently elected and installed as Third Principal in the "Royal Burmah" Chapter attached to Lodge "Victoria in Burmah," No. 832, though all the members of the Chapter, from the District Grand Superintendent downwards, were aware that an appeal against Bro. Marks' election and installation was then before the Most Worshipful the Grand Master, and this because they were so self-confident that it did not occur to them that it was possible that the Grand Lodge might think differently from the D.G.M. or the W.M. of Lodge No. 832. Fortunately, I am not concerned in the result of the disputes in "Victoria in Burmah," but as a Past Master, and as a Principal of a Chapter, I wish to know how I am to act if Bro. Marks presents himself at my Lodge as a Past Master, or in the Chapter to which I belong as a Past Third Principal? Can I admit Bro. Marks in a Board of Installing Masters, or in a Board of Installing Principals? I find the District Grand Secretary indiscriminately refers to Bro. Marks as Worshipful, and sometimes as brother only; but this inexact language may be attributed to that delicacy which one Brother entertains for an

Has Brother Marks a right to sit in District Grand Lodge as a Past Master, and in the District Grand Chapter as Past Third Principal? When Brethren and Lodges will not exercise due caution, and will disobey or assist in disobeying lawful authority, with their eyes open, one can hardly sympathise with them. Yet the action of the Grand Lodge has put Bro. Marks and his following in a hole. How is all this difficulty to be cured and got over? Must Bro Marks serve as a Warden of a Lodge for a year, and then be elected and installed as a Master of a Lodge de novo, as if he had never been installed before? and, in the same manner, also as Third Principal of a Chapter?

I have advised submission, penitence, and a prayer for a special dispensation from the Most Worshipful the Grand Master; a general absolution, and a fiat declaring that the crooked things, events and occurrences be made straight, but this advice is of too tame a nature to be heeded; the advocates of disobedience, disorder, and rebellion have the ear of the wise ones of "Victoria in Burmah."

Yours fraternally,

Rangoon, 13th April 1878. A BURMAH MASON.

[We cannot do better than refer our correspondent to the article which appeared in these columns in No. 171, of the 6th April. In the last paragraph, and speaking of the consequences to our Rev. Bro. Marks of his election as W.M. of Victoria in Burmah having been declared invalid, we remarked that, though he could not be deprived of his status as a Past Master, he would not, in our opinion, be allowed to exercise any of his rights and privileges as such. In order to qualify himself to exercise the latter, we laid it down that he must serve the office of Warden for a full year, such being a conditio sine qua non of his eligibility to the chair of his Lodge. He must then serve as W. Master for the prescribed term, and then only will he be entitled to the rights and privileges of a Past Master. This governs the whole of the case. It follows that Bro. Marks is not entitled to be received as a Past Master in any Lodge, or as a Past Third Principal in any Chapter he may visit; that he cannot be admitted to a Board of Installing Masters or to a Board of Installing Principals; nor has he the shadow of a claim to sit in District Grand Lodge as a Past Master, or in the District Grand Chapter as a Past Third Principal. In fact, Bro. Marks is purely and simply a Master Mason who has been exalted to the R.A. degree, with this difference, however, from other M. Masons who have been exalted, that by reason of circumstances which, so far as they relate to Craft Masonry, have been declared irregular by the supreme authority, Grand Lodge, he has acquired a knowledge of certain mysteries not known to Master Masons, of which, in the nature of things, it is impossible he can be deprived. He is in the same predicament as a brother who has been irregularly initiated, passed, or raised, and to acquit himself of the taint of irregularity he must go through the ordeal again.

As regards "A BURMAH MASON'S" proposal for settling matters, we should in ordinary cases have endorsed his views, and have suggested that whatever might legally be done or dispensed with, should be done or dispensed with in order to set matters straight. This, however, is not an ordinary case, and we consider it would be in the highest degree unwise and inexpedient to grant to Bro. Marks, Lodge Victoria in Burmah, or Chapter Victoria in Burmah, any dispensation of any degree or kind whatsoever which would in any way release any of them from any of the pains or penalties to which they have made themselves liable. Speaking of the Lodge only, we do not hesitate to say that it has been guilty of the grossest contumacy in not having at once and unhesitatingly obeyed the orders of the Grand Master, and restored the unjustly excluded brethren to their full Masonic rights and privileges; and it is only from what we have gathered from the various statements we have received, that we fall short of suggesting that the Lodge should be erased from the List of Lodges in the jurisdiction of Grand Lodge, England. So signal an instance of disobedience and contempt for the authority of the Grand Master has not occurred for many years. Yet we believe the Lodge has done loyal service in the past, and there are those among its members who are capable of rendering similar service in the future. If, then, any attempt is made still further to resist the decree of Grand Lodge, we should recommend that the conduct of those members, who advocate such a course, be brought under the notice of Grand Lodge in the usual manner, with a view to their expulsion from the Craft, and this done, that the Lodge be reconstituted, under its present warrant, so that those who are not aiders and abettors in these disloyal contrivances may not be punished for the sins of those who are.—ED. F.C.]

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF AUCKLAND.

The first Quarterly Communication of the District G. Lodge of Auckland, English Constitution, was held in the Lodge-room, Masonic Hotel, on the 26th March. Bro. G. S. Graham, the Right Worshipful District Grand Master, presided, and the whole of the Officers of the District Grand Lodge, except Bro. E. T. Wildman, Deputy Grand Master, were present, and nearly every Lodge under the Constitution was represented, those of Auckland and vicinity having especially large representation. There were many visitors, including Bro. G. P. Pierce R.W.P.G.M. of the Irish Constitution. The principal business transacted was the adoption of the by-laws and standing orders for the conduct of the business of the District Grand Lodge, which were read seriatim, as prepared by the committee, and adopted with some slight amendments. Bro. M. S. Leers was appointed President of the Board of General Purposes. We may add that the Grand Lodge Officers were decorated with the new and very handsome regalia which has been imported.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE FOR THE NORTH ISLAND (S.C.)

The first Quarterly Communication of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Scotland for the North Island of New Zealand was held at the Masonic Hotel, Princes-street, on March 31st. Mr. Hood had decorated the entrances and hall with evergreens, &c., in honour of the occasion, and the effect was very pretty. Bro. Whitaker R.W.P.G.M. presided, and amongst the visitors was Bro. G. P. Pierce R.W.P.G.M. of the Irish Constitution. There was a large attendance of brethren, the various Lodges holding under the Scottish Constitution of Freemasonry being well represented, and there were numerous representatives from the other Lodges. Apologies for unavoidable absence were received from Bro. G. S. Graham R.W.D.G.M. English Constitution, Bro. T. L. Murray P.G. Treasurer, and Bro. A. Brodie P.G.S.W. A committee consisting of the five principal Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge was appointed to draft by-laws and to prepare and adopt a design for the seal of the P.G. Lodge. A considerable amount of routine business was transacted, after which the proceedings were brought to a close in accordance with Masonic ritual.

FREEMASONRY IN NORTH AFRICA.

Ancient Carthage Lodge, No. 1717, Tunis (E.C.)—A regular meeting of this Lodge was held on the 21st April 1878, under the presidency of Bro. A. M. Broadley, Barrister-at-Law, who is its first Worshipful Master and chief founder. The Ancient Carthage Lodge was dedicated on the 3rd day of October, A.L. 5877, on the petition of nine worthy resident brethren belonging to various Lodges under English jurisdiction. The original founders were Bros. A. M. Broadley, Dr. N. Lenghi, Rev. E. B. Frankel, J. E. L. Barker, Dr. A. Perrini, M.D., George Pentecost, E. Souillier, Henry Haylock, and P.M. Paleologo. Although so recently formed, the Lodge of Ancient Carthage already musters more than fifty members, of which number twenty-eight have been actually initiated, passed, and raised by the able and learned Worshipful Master Bro. Broadley since the dedication of the Lodge six months ago. The Rules and Regulations and Bye-Laws of this Lodge appear to have been carefully framed. The fees for the three degrees are £5 5s. The annual subscription (payable in advance) is 15s for each resident member, and 5s for each non-resident brother; no member shall be entitled to be considered non-resident who shall not, bona fide, have been continuously absent from the Regency for a period of six months. Brethren visiting Tunis may be balloted for as honorary members (without the right of voting) for a period not exceeding three months, at the usual rate of subscription, and after the expiration of three months they can become regular members by the payment of the usual entrance fee of 12s 6d. The ceremonies are worked by the Worshipful Master, Bro. Broadley, either in Arabic or English, French or Italian, as the case may be—according to the nationality of the candidate, the Lodge being usually opened, raised, and closed in English. Amongst its members are brethren of almost every creed, and of many nationalities: Moor and Maltese, Frenchman and German, Italian, Spaniard, and Greek are here found working together in Masonic unity with the English brethren; whilst Hebrew and Mussulman, Roman Catholic, Protestant and Greek, sink all differences of creed, and try (let us hope) to square and regulate their every action by the implements of the Craft, guided by the shining lights of our Order, in accordance with the all-embracing attributes of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. The Lodge of Ancient Carthage has its own hall, situated in the Street SIDI-ALI-AZUZ (which, being interpreted, means the Street of the Son of God). The funds of the Lodge are entirely devoted to good works, and, we believe, it is already a Life Governor of more than one Masonic Charity. Amongst the Officers of the Lodge may be noticed Bros. Rev. E. B. Frankel S.W. (Chaplain to H.B.M.'s Consulate General, Tunis), Barker J.W. (Chief Engineer to Muhammad Es-Sadak, the reigning Bey of Tunis), Stevens' Sec. (Her Majesty's Vice Consul), Perrini, M.D., and George Pentecost Deacons, and Haylock Steward. Amongst active members not yet in office are Bros. Tulin de la Tunisie (Consul General of the German Empire), Eugene Cassas (Vice Consul of France), Gardener (Agent of the Tunisian Railway Company), Legali (Station Master at Tunis), Dr. Lenghi LL.D., Angelo Blanch, and Paleogo, &c. The business transacted on the evening of 21st April was of an interesting character; a Maltese gentleman, resident in Tunis, was duly initiated into our mysteries in a very impressive manner by the W.M., the ceremony being conducted in French. One candidate was afterwards balloted for and accepted, and another candidate was balloted for, with an adverse result. The brethren subsequently adjourned to the supper room of the Lodge, where a frugal little repast awaited them. Supper being finished, the usual toasts were given from the chair and duly honoured. The toast of the Visiting Brethren was coupled with the name of Bro. Ecroyd P.M. of the Royal Brunswick, No. 296, who in reply complimented the W.M. on his selection of Officers, who knew their work, and who go through it as if they had been in Masonic harness for a number of years instead of only for six months. May the Great Architect of the Universe prosper our Tunisian brethren, and keep them all from petty rivalries, so that they may individually and collectively continue to work for the good of Freemasonry in general, and their own Lodge of Ancient Carthage in particular.

The Provincial Grand Officers, on entering the Lodge, were received and saluted in ancient form. Prov. Grand Lodge was opened in due form at 2.30, V.W. Bro. J. P. Platt, Past G.J.D. Eng., acting as Deputy Prov. G.M. On the call of the roll, each Lodge was responded to, and letters of regret for non-attendance were read from absentees. The minutes of previous Grand Lodge having been read, the Prov. Grand Master appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year, viz.:—Bros. Rev. Spencer Stanhope D.P.G.M., G. Higgins P.G.S.W., F. K. Stephenson P.G.J.W., R. Banks P.G.M.O., S. Mattison P.G.S.O., R. W. Townsend P.G.J.O., C. H. Coates P.G. Treas., R. Newhouse P.G. Sec., D. Fraser P.G. Reg., F. Stewards, G. Warren P.G.I.G., J. Worthington P.G. Tyler. There was a sum of ten guineas voted from the fund of Prov. G. Lodge towards the Mark Fund of Benevolence. Sundry business being disposed of, the R.W.P.G.M. Master heartily congratulated the brethren present on the progress of the order in the county and Wales. He expressed a wish that his services might be brought into requisition during the ensuing year to consecrate a few more Lodges, and although in the past his time had been greatly trenched upon by private and public demands, he hoped that upon all occasions when his services were required for the furtherance of the Order, he might be present, and he trusted he would be able to visit the various Lodges in the Province as often as possible. In concluding his address the R.W. Brother exhorted the brethren to still greater zeal and liberality in their various spheres, as the great feature of the Order was Charity. The Provincial and Mark Lodges having been closed in harmony, the brethren adjourned to banquet, the Hon. W. Egerton Prov. G.M. presiding. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed from the chair, and heartily responded to. The pleasures of the evening were greatly added to by the good singing of a number of the brethren. The catering of Bro. Fairhurst, of Liverpool, which was of the most récherché character, gave unanimous satisfaction to the brethren. The next Prov. G.L. will be held at Llandudno in May next, under the banner of St. David's Lodge.

PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

TWO prettily-told stories, "Ivy," and "A River Story," grace the pages of Cassell's Family Magazine, in addition to the serials, which continue to be as interesting as ever; and there are two or three sets of tuneful verses, such as the lines on "The Lily," by W. C. Bennett, and the two sonnets entitled "Perfection," while the song, "Sweet Spring Time," the words and music of which are by Humphrey J. Stark, is very pleasing. As being especially appropriate to the season must be mentioned a short, yet interesting, essay by Mr. J. E. Taylor, F.L.S., on "May Flowers," directions as to "Soups for Spring," by Mr. A. G. Payne, one of our best known and safest guides in the culinary art, and what is no doubt intended as a short introductory chapter to a series of descriptive notes by "Our Special Correspondent" on the Paris Exhibition. There is an excellent notice of Parker Gillmore's ride through Natal, the Orange State, &c., as recorded by him in his latest work, "The Great Thirst Land." We are afraid the sensible advice of "A Family Doctor" on "Keeping Late Hours," will be accepted in theory, but rejected in practice—at least by those to whom it is especially addressed, namely, the votaries of pleasure and men of letters. We all have a firm belief in the truth of the old proverb, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise," but all have not the courage to act upon its precepts. But if the well-meant, as well as sensible advice, of this medical instructor is not always treated as respectfully as it deserves to be, no doubt he will be lenient in his censure. When we have acquired the wisdom which mature age alone can bring us, we shall be penitent enough and obey his precepts most loyally. There is also another useful article of domestic interest, in which "Love and Order in the House" are treated in a business-like way. "A Conversazione of Telegraph Engineers," by J. Munro, C.E., a description of "The Civic Robes of London," a paper on "Home Contrivances," and a sketch of "St. Helena in 1877," with the "Gatherer's" Notes, and the "Chit-Chat on Dress," &c., &c., complete the number.

We have received Part I. of a new serial publication by Messrs. Cassell, Petter and Galpin, to be entitled The Magazine of Art. The frontispiece is an illustration of "The General's Head Quarters," from the picture by J. F. Pettie, &c. The other illustrations include "It Might Have Been," full page, from the picture of Louise Jopping, in the Dudley Gallery; "The Queen of Prussia and Napoleon Bonaparte," from Mr. Ward's Academy picture last year, and the "Last Sleep of Argyle," a fresco by the same artist in the House of Commons corridor; two views of the Paris Exhibition, namely, "The Trocadero Building," and "The Prince of Wales's Position." All are worthily executed. The articles are varied in character, and contain information which is both valuable and interesting. It is quite natural that "the Paris Universal Exhibition," which will necessarily exercise a most beneficial effect on everything connected with art, should claim the first attention, the article being, moreover, the first of a series which will appear in the pages of this magazine. Then follows a paper on "Artists' Haunts," Cornwall, being the first which is treated. This likewise will be continued as a series, and we are promised in the next number a description of "Prague." A notice of the Dudley Gallery, a Biographical Sketch of Mr. E. M. Ward, R.A., the first of a series of sketches of "Our Living Artists," a very interesting paper by Mr. R. H. Soden-Smith on "Vicissitudes of Art Treasures," "Half Hours in the Studios," with Art Notes, Art Sales, &c., complete the present number. Next month we are promised for a frontispiece, "Two Fair Maidens," an original drawing on wood by J. E. Millais, R.A., a biography of Sir Francis Grant, with portrait, and copies of two of his most characteristic works, articles on "Art in Metal," and "Colour in Precious Stone," by J. Hungerford Pollen and Professor Church respectively, with much else that will be highly attractive in the way of reading and illustration. The Magazine of Art deserves to be, and no doubt will be, duly appreciated by the public, with whom these several publications are invariably popular, for the sufficient reason that so much care is taken to ensure that good work and good work alone is submitted to public criticism.

Of the Countries of the World, by Dr. Brown, we have spoken already in terms of praise. Let it suffice to note that in the present number is commenced a description of "Central America," at first, generally as to its geography and climate, and then particularly and serially, Guatemala, Belsize, &c., coming first in order, while of Honduras we shall read next month. The chief illustrations, "A thicket of Cactus (Cereus Dickii), in Guatemala" for the Frontispiece, of which we will simply remark that we do not envy those who have to penetrate such uncomfortable looking places; two views in Guatemala, on the "Rio Dulce," and "Rio Polochic," respectively; and one of "Gatun Village, Chagres River, Panama;" a full page engraving of a party "Exploring a Tropical Forest," "Ancient Idol and Altar at Copan, Guatemala," "A view on the Spanish Main," "View of the Village of Pansos, Guatemala," "British Barracks at Orange Walk, Belsize," and "View of Bay Islands, Honduras."

Masons' Vows.—Words by Bro. James Stevens, P.M. P.Z. Music by Bro. J. Randle Fletcher, Prov. Grand Organist, East Lancashire, and P.P. Gr. Org. R. Arch, East Lancashire. Bury: J. Randle Fletcher, Music Repository, 29 Fleet-street.

THIS song, which is dedicated by permission to Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. G. Master, East Lancashire, is very far above the average of Masonic songs. That is not, perhaps, saying much, when we call to mind the twaddle which passes for such, but it is. James Stevens has, in truth, written a song which has in it both sense and poetic feeling, and the lines of which read tunefully. Bro. Fletcher is evidently a sound musician, and Bro. Stevens has every reason to congratulate himself on the music to which his words are set, as they match each other admirably. Bro. Fletcher, indeed, has accurately expressed the meaning of Bro. Stevens's verses, and his rendering is quite as tuneful as they are. Masons' Vows deserves to be popular, and we doubt not it will become so, wherever it is sung with becoming spirit. We are happy to have had this opportunity of bearing testimony to its merits.

A pamphet on the Origin of Freemasonry. By C . . . . M . . . ., London: George Kenning, 198 Fleet-street, &c., &c., is evidently the result of close and careful reading, and will deeply interest those of our readers who delight in the more abstruse points of Freemasonry. Appended is a summary of the Evidence on "the Great Pyramid," as to its measures and purpose, to which, in the writer's opinion, must ultimately be traced the origin of the Masonic Rite and tradition. Here, likewise, is much that cannot fail to attract the attention of the reader.

The recent election to the Benevolent Institution presents no feature of novelty or special interest. As regards the Male List, we notice that, of the applicants last year, all three failed on this occasion, while between the last of the successful and the first of the unsuccessful candidates, there was a difference of nearly 170 votes. In the case of the Female List, four out of the eight unsuccessful applicants last year succeeded in obtaining places at this election. Here, likewise, we find much closer voting, the difference between the votes polled for Nos. 3 and 16 respectively being slightly over 200, while as between No. 18, the last successful, and No. 19, the first unsuccessful, the former scraped in by a bare majority of nine. From No. 19 to No. 20 there is a drop of 277 votes, and then there is a gradual diminution till we reach the last of all, No. 41, who was honoured with one vote. In the case of the Males, the misfortune of being last was shared by two applicants, for each of whom four votes were recorded. Beyond these few points there is, as we have said, little that is noteworthy.

P.G.S.W. had fixed the 8th July, for the Festival, and approved of the meeting being held at the Alexandra Palace, and that ladies should be present. There were already 229 Stewards on the list.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—There is a common complaint which afflicts the whole civilized world, and that is Indigestion. Its symptoms are too well known to require description, and few are the individuals who have not suffered from its distressing influence. These Pills are admirably adapted for and will be found effective purifiers of the blood, the most certain regulators of disordered organs, and the most innocent aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all alike—young and old, robust or delicate. It increases the appetite, and corrects the secretions. After the disorder is subdued, occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and, moreover, secure, promote, and intensify the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

I beg most respectfully to offer myself as a candidate for the post of Secretary to your valuable Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of our esteemed Brother R. WENTWORTH LITTLE.

I have been a Freemason upwards of Nine years, during which time I have taken a very active interest in the Order. I am a P.M., and have been for some time past, Secretary of my Lodge, and Scribe E. of my Chapter.

I am now the Secretary of an Orphan Asylum, a position which I have held nearly four years, and am therefore thoroughly acquainted with the practical working of a Public Institution.

I am thirty-three years of age, and in good health, and previous to receiving my present appointment, I was engaged in business with a Marine Insurance Broker at Lloyds'.

Soliciting the favour of your kind interest and support,

I have the honour to be,
My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,
Yours obediently and fraternally,

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

IN the House of Lords, last Thursday, the Factories and Workshops' Act was read a third time and passed, and the opportunity was taken of referring to the Lancashire riots. The case of the wives and families of the Army and Militia Reserve men was then brought under the notice of the House by the Earl of De la Warr. On Friday, the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill passed through Committee. On Monday their Lordships sat late discussing the great Constitutional question, whether in time of peace the Crown can move the native Indian troops out of India to other parts of the British possessions without the consent of Parliament. Lord Selborne argued that this could not be done, and Lord Chancellor Cairns that it could. Among the other peers who took part in the discussion were the Earl Granville and the Earl of Beaconsfield, and when the latter resumed his seat the discussion closed. The House was crowded, and the attendance in the galleries set apart for ladies was considerable, among those present being the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the Imperial Crown Prince and Princess of Germany. On Tuesday there were brief conversations over the Eurydice, and Competitive Examinations in the Army.

The House of Commons has been very busy with the Civil Service Estimates in Committee, and further progress was made on Thursday, after which the House went into Committee on the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors (Ireland) Bill, and passed Clause 1. On Friday there was an afternoon sitting, at which Sir M. H. Beach gave notice of the amendment he intended to move to the Marquis of Hartington's motion about the movement of Indian troops to Malta. The riots in Lancashire and the appointment of Colonel Wellesley as Military attaché at Vienna were also noticed, a motion by Mr. Benett-Stanford, objecting to the latter, being defeated by 250 votes to 83. On re-assembling in the evening, there was found to be present an insufficiency of members to form a quorum, and the House therefore adjourned. On Monday the great debate on the Marquis of Hartington's motion re the Crown and its Indian forces being employed outside India without the consent of Parliament was commenced, and at the time of going to press is not yet brought to a conclusion. Among the speakers on Monday were the Leader of the Opposition, Sir H. M. Hicks-Beach, Bart., Sir C. Dilke, Sir W. Vernon Harcourt, and Mr. G. Stanhope. On Tuesday Mr. Fawcett, the Attorney-General, and Mr. Gladstone spoke, and the debate was adjourned on the motion of Mr. Cross. On Wednesday, the motion for the second reading of the Rating of Towns (Ireland) Bill was defeated by 224 votes to 117 votes.

The Queen gave a state banquet at Windsor Castle, on Friday, on the occasion of the visit of the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany. Covers were laid in the Waterloo Gallery for seventy, and among the guests present were the Princess Beatrice, the Duke of Connaught, the Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig Holstein, the German Ambassador and the Countess Münster, the Marquis of Hertford, the Duchess of Wellington, the Lord Chancellor and Lady Cairns, the Earl of Beaconsfield, the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, Viscount and Viscountess Cranbrook, the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk, &c., &c. Three toasts were given, those of the Duke of Connaught and Princess Louise Margaret of Prussa, the Emperor of Germany, and the Queen. On Monday, the Queen, with the Princess Beatrice, and the Princesses of Wales, left Windsor for Balmoral, arriving there the following evening. Her Majesty's reception at the several places the train stopped was very gratifying. Previous to her departure, the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany took leave of Her Majesty, and then left for Buckingham Palace, where they will stay during their visit. On Friday last, the Prince held a levée at St. James's Palace, which was very numerously attended. In the evening, His Royal Highness dined with the Hon. Corps. of Gentlemen-at-Arms, the chair being taken by Captain the Earl of Coventry. On Wednesday, there was a State Ball at Buckingham Palace, whither the Prince and Princess drove under escort of a detachment of 2nd Life Guards. The Royal circle included, in addition to their Royal Highnesses, the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany, the Duke of Connaught, the Prince and Princess Christian, Princess Louise (Marchioness) and the Marquis of Lorne, the Duke of Cambridge, and Princess Mary (Duchess) and the Duke of Teck. The Diplomatic and General Circles were well represented. Next Wednesday there will be a State Concert, and on Monday, the 3rd June, the Prince of Wales will hold another levée by command of Her Majesty. Previous to leaving Paris His Royal Highness gave a thousand francs towards the relief of the sufferers by the Grenoble firework explosion in that city.'

We rejoice to state that the riots in Lancashire, which are the outcome of the present dispute in the cotton trade, are very nearly at an end, though the disturbed centres are becoming quieter, thanks to the energetic measures which the Home Secretary directed should be taken. We trust that peace will be entirely restored at an early date, and that the strike may likewise be brought to a speedy conclusion. The damage done during the recent scenes of violence is very considerable, and the sum to be paid as compensation, therefore, will be proportionately great. If the men are wise they will accept the terms offered by the masters as just under the existing depression of the trade.

The fifteenth anniversary festival of the Newspaper Press Fund was held at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, on Saturday. The Marquis of Salisbury occupied the chair, and there were present to support his lordship among other distinguished guests, the Prince Imperial, Lord Houghton, the President of the Fund, Count Beust, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, Lord Napier of Magdala, the Earl of Dunraven, Lord Colchester, Sir W. Codrington, Lord Ventry, Lord Clarence Paget, Lord Gerald, Mr. Henry M. Stanley, and Mr. Alexander Forbes. After the usual loyal and patriotic toasts had been given, the noble chairman gave that of Prosperity to the Fund, and in doing so spoke very eloquently on its behalf, urging its many claims to the public esteem and support, and lauding most justly the energy and abilities of those connected with it. Among the other toasts were those of the Foreign Ministers, which was acknowledged by Count Beust; of the Visitors, to which the Prince Imperial responded; and of the Chairman, to which a brief but suitable reply was given. In the course of the evening the Treasurer announced a list of subscriptions amounting to about £1200, including one of £25 from the Marquis of Salisbury.

The Bagot will case has at length terminated, the jury after a prolonged consideration returning what amounted to a verdict for the plaintiff. Notice of appeal was at once given. We hope if the appeal is granted the trial will not be heard for some time to come. The public has had enough to read in the papers of such nasty cases. On Monday, the defendant in the case of the Queen v. Tanfield came up for judgment in the Queen's Bench. Mr. Tanfield is publisher of the Whitehall Review, and as our readers doubtless remember was convicted some months since of libelling a Mrs. Thornton, housekeeper to a late Mr. Wood, who had committed suicide. After reviewing all the circumstances, and giving due weight to the several affidavits which had been submitted to him, the Lord Chief Justice sentenced the defendant to pay a fine of £250.

Several Parliamentary elections have taken place. Lord Lewisham has been returned without opposition for West Kent, in the place of Mr. Talbot. Mr. Talbot was on Saturday declared by an overwhelming majority to be the successor in the representation of the University of Oxford of Mr. Gathorne Hardy, now Viscount Cranbrook, and by a majority of nearly 1,400 the Conservative Viscount Castlereagh has won the seat for County Down, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Sharman Crawford.

The vacant seat in the Court of Aldermen, caused by the death Mr. Alderman Carter, has been this week filled by the election of Mr. R. F. Fowler, a prominent member of a well-known firm of London bankers.

Lord Salisbury has declined to received a deputation, consisting of the Dukes of Westminster, Rutland, and Bedford, the Marquis of Bath, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Earl Cowper, and other gentlemen, who were desirous of waiting upon his Lordship for the purpose of directing his attention to a petition to Parliament against war, bearing nearly a quarter of a million signatures.

Count Schouvaloff has reached London on his return from St. Petersburgh, and from several Continental capitals we hear that the supposed result of his different interviews with the Czar is regarded as most favourable in the interests of peace. Both on his way out and home, His Excellency had interviews with the Emperor of Germany and Prince Bismarck, and on his return journey he held a conference of an hour's duration with Lord Odo Russell, the British Ambassador at Berlin. Thus at the moment of writing, the prospects would appear to be brighter than they have been, and the general belief is that the Conference will now be held. This is satisfactory. Yet, there are still serious difficulties to be overcome, and at Constantinople the situation is reported to be highly critical, the difficulties being greater in the Turkish capital as they look brighter elsewhere. General Todleben is said to be bringing the greatest pressure to bear on the Porte, with a view to have the fortresses of Shumla, Varna, and Batoum surrendered forthwith. He has likewise moved his troops nearer to the Turkish lines, and this has caused great excitement, orders having been given to the more advanced of the Turkish troops to hold their ground. Then there has been an émeute at Constantinople, and a supposed attempt to carry off the ex-Sultan Murad. The rising in the Rhodope Mountains is extending. The difficulties with Roumania have not been settled. The Lazis are becoming more and more troublesome about Batoum, and resist all the Russian attempts to obtain possession of that port, and there is fighting in Crete. Meanwhile, our native Indian Troops are passing the Suez Canal, and soon, no doubt, will have already arrived at Malta before these lines meet the eye of our readers. But though the clouds are still heavy, there is a wee bit of sunshine to relieve it. Let us hope the latter will in the end be strong enough to dissipate the former.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Strong Man Lodge of Instruction, No. 45.—At No. 12 Old-street, Goswell-road, on Monday the 20th inst. Present—Bros. W. Rowley W.M., Hallam S.W., Symons J.W., Pearcy Acting Preceptor, Fenner Secretary, J. Millington S.D., Gibbs J.D., Willison I.G., Christopher Tyler; also Bros. Wing, Stock, W. Cook, &c. After all formalities had been recognised, Bro. Fenner answered the questions leading to the third degree. Bro. Rowley vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Wing, who rehearsed the ceremony of raising in a very excellent manner, including the traditional history, Bro. W. Rowley as candidate. Bro. Rowley resumed the chair. Bro. Pearcy worked the second and third sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Lodge being resumed to the first degree, Bro. Pearcy worked the first section of that Lecture, assisted by Bro. Gibbs. Bro. Willison, of the Finsbury Lodge No. 861, was unanimously elected a member. Bro. Hallam was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. Lodge was then closed and adjourned.

Constitutional Lodge of Instruction, No. 55.—At the Bedford Hotel, Southampton-buildings, this Lodge held its weekly meeting on Tuesday, 21st May. Bros. Soper W.M., Baker S.W., May J.W., Sandle S.D., Panter J.D., Tranter I.G., Bingemann P.M. Preceptor, Dickins Sec.; Bros. Coren, J. H. Dodson, J. B. Dodson, J. S. Brown. All formalities complied with, Bro. Bull was raised to the degree of M.M. The first, second, and third sections of the lecture were worked by Bro. Dickins. The Lodge was resumed to the first degree, and Bro. Baker was unanimously elected W.M. for ensuing week, and appointed his Officers in rotation. The Lodge was then closed and adjourned to Tuesday, 28th May, at the hour of seven.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Through inadvertence a report of the meeting of this Lodge which was held on Wednesday, the 15th instant, at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C., did not reach us. On that occasion, Bro. Walker presided, and worked the ceremony of the third degree. Bro. Walker is an old and experienced hand, and as a matter of course his duties were most creditably performed. At the meeting on Wednesday, the 22nd instant, Bro. T. W. C. Bush was W.M., Biddle S.W., Walker J.W., A. Moss S.D., Fells I.G., Gottheil P.M., J. K. Pitt Sec., Anderson candidate. This being what is termed an optional night, Bro. Bush announced his intention to rehearse the first and second ceremonies. In a former report, when remarking upon the proceedings of this Lodge under the presidency of the same brother, we pointed to the excellent qualities that he then displayed, and stated that if properly directed, they could not fail to develop into efficiency; at the same time, continual and close practice was recommended. This advice must surely have been followed; for although to be strictly truthful, it must be said, that his work still lacks the smoothness and polish of the masterly hand, still the improvement was very marked and perceptible. An apt pupil of this kind must be most encouraging to the instructor under whose tuition Bro. Bush is progressing so favourably, and calculated to stimulate him to continue his laudable exertions. The Lodge intends to continue its regular meetings throughout the summer months. On the next occasion Bro. Biddle will preside, and he intends again to rehearse the ceremonies of the first and second degrees.

Royal Union Lodge, No. 382.—This Lodge held its regular meeting on Monday, the 20th of May, at the Belmont Hall, Uxbridge. Present—Bros. Samuel Holliday W.M., Wells S.W., Cook J.W., William Coombes P.M. Secretary, Nicholson as S.D., Lonsdale J.D., Cobley I.G., Longstaff Tyler; P.M.'s Bros. T. C. Swallow, C. Davis, Woodward, Weedon, Fehrenbach, Coulton; and several visitors. In conformity with the request of the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Col. Francis Burdett, the brethren appeared in Masonic mourning, for the late D.P.G.M. Bro. R. W. Little. According to the agenda paper there was a goodly amount of work to be done, but from various causes, several of the candidates were unable to attend. The Lodge was opened, and Bro. Coombes read the minutes of the last meeting, which duly received confirmation. Bro. Smith, a candidate for the third degree, was then examined, and this resulting satisfactorily, he was raised in a most impressive manner by the W.M., Bro. Holliday. Matters in connection with the Lodge were then discussed, and it was proposed, seconded and carried, that a vote of condolence be sent to the widow of the late Bro. Little. The banquet was served at the Ram Inn, and a capital repast was done ample justice to. The W.M. gave the routine Loyal and Masonic toasts. In replying to the health of the Prov. G.M. and Prov. G. Officers, the Secretary, Bro. Coombes P.P.G.S.B., informed the brethren he had just received the appointment of Quartermaster of the 50th Brigade Depôt. We congratulate Bro Coombes on this appointment, which carries with it Her Majesty's commission, and enables our worthy brother to rank with officers in the regular army; we trust he may yet find time to fulfil the duties he has hitherto so ably carried out with such advantage to the Royal Union Lodge, and in so eminently satisfactory a way to the brethren. The I.P.M., Bro. Swallow, was most happy in proposing the health of the W.M., and the compliment was briefly acknowledged by Bro. Holliday. After some other toasts the brethren separated. Bros. Davis, Nicholson, and others helped to enliven the proceedings with songs and recitations.

Royal Union Chapter, No. 382, Uxbridge.—The Companions met on Saturday last, at the Chequers Hotel, Uxbridge. There were present the following:—Sir C. Palmer M.E.Z., Sherwell H., J. R. Stacey J., Matthew Cook Scribe E., E. C. Woodward S.N., J. Cook P.S., Riley Janitor. The Chapter was opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The election of Principals for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—Sherwell M.E.Z., Stacey H., Woodward J., J. Cook was appointed S.N., Richards A.S., M. Cook S.E. The Chapter was closed, and the Companions repaired to banquet, at the Chequers Hotel, where Comp. Sherwell presided, and was supported by his Principals. E. Comp. Sir Charles Palmer was presented with a jewel. The banquet was capitally served by Bro. Moore, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Panmure Chapter, No. 720.—The fourteenth installation meeting of this Chapter was held at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, on Monday, the 13th inst. The Officers present were the M.E.Z. Comp. G. H. N. Bridges, Ex-Comps. George Waterall H., Mark S. Larlham J., James Stevens P.Z. and Scribe E., H. C. Levander P.Z. and Treas., and Comps. T. Poore N., R. N. Field P.S., A. C. Burrell 1st A.S., S. Poynter 2nd A.S., F. W. Levander D.C., and Thos. Meggy Steward. Ex. Comps. Henry Smith P.Z., and R. H. Harvey P.Z., Comps. Gibbs, Harrison, and other members; and Visitors Comps. James Stevens P.Z., and were severally installed: Ex. Comp. George Waterall M.E.Z., Mark S. Larlham H., and Thomas Poore J. The thanks of the Chapter were voted to Comp. Stevens for his services as Installing Principal, and he was invested for the tenth occasion as Scribe E. Comp. Field was invested Scribe N., and Comp. Burrell P.S., who appointed Comps. Poynter and F. W. Levander his Assistants. In consequence of the severe, and, it is feared, serious illness of Comp. the Rev. W. B. Church, his election as Treasurer was, at his earnest request, set aside, and Ex. Comp. Henry Smith P.Z. having been nominated was duly balloted for, declared unanimously elected, and invested as Treasurer accordingly. Comp. Thos. Meggy was invested D.C., and Comp. Edward Mitchell was appointed Steward. A letter of regret and sympathy was ordered to be addressed to Ex-Comp. Church P.Z. The sanction of the Chapter was given to Comps. Stevens and Poore for the formation of a Chapter of Instruction at Brixton, to work under the title of "Panmure 720." A P.Z. jewel was presented to the retiring M.E.Z. Ex-Comp. Bridges. The audit report and balance sheet was read, and disclosed a satisfactory result. After notice of motion for alteration of one of the bye-laws the Chapter was closed in ancient form, and the Companions dined together. During a most agreeable evening, the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts were honoured. The Visitors expressed their great gratification with the proceedings generally, and all present vied with each other in promoting social harmony and good fellowship. This Chapter may certainly add one more to its undisturbed score of successful installation meetings.

The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. M. Christian answered the questions leading to the second degree, and the ceremony was rehearsed. Bro. McLean answered the questions leading to the third degree, and that ceremony was also rehearsed. The Lodge was resumed, and Bro. Dallas worked the first, and Bro. Allen the third sections of the first lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Forss was elected W.M. for Tuesday, 4th June. The Fifteen Sections will be worked in this Lodge of Instruction on Tuesday evening next.

mony of initiation was very ably performed by the W.M., Bro. Brown being the candidate, after which the sections of the first lecture were worked by the brethren. Bro. Thomson was elected W.M. for the ensuing week, and two new members were enrolled, after which the Lodge was closed.

Lord Warden Lodge 1096.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Friday, the 17th inst., at Walmer. Bros. E. Kirby W.M., A. H. Des Barres I.P.M., T. Ayling P.M. P.G.S., J. Leggett S.W., H. R. Botting J.W., S. Hinds Treas., T. J. Usher P.M. P.P.G.R. Sec., Rev. J. B. Harrison P.M. Chaplain, J. Carpenter S.D., W. Carterfield J.D., J. Westaway Organist, S. Willey I.G., G. Chandler and F. R. Lodge advanced to the third degree and closed down. Bro. J.W., in accordance with the notice he gave at the previous Lodge meeting, proposed that the Lodge of Instruction property be made Lodge property, and the expense be defrayed out of the Lodge funds; the amount would be about £21. This was carried unanimously. The W.M. announced that the Preceptor, Treasurer, and Secretary had been appointed, and the Bye-Laws were printed; they would be in the hands of members in a day or two. It is intended to carry on the Lodge on the same principle as the London brethren conduct their business, work first and pleasure afterwards. The Lodge was closed according to custom, and the brethren spent a most pleasant and social hour together.

Macdonald Lodge, No. 1216.—Installation meeting. This most successful Lodge, established in April 1868, at the Head Quarters of the First Surrey Rifles, in Camberwell, has, during the past ten years, had a career of almost unexampled prosperity, and has taken high rank in the Craft, as well for its admirable working as for its liberality to the Institutions of the Order. From its formation to the present time, its presiding and subordinate Officers have all been found equal to their duties, and it would appear to be useless on the part of any member of the Lodge to aspire to Office unless he gave assurance that he would in due time not only discharge his duties in each respective appointment, but also fit himself for the position of W.M., and leave that dignified situation as Installing Master. This being generally acknowleged in the Masonic world, it was no surprise to us to find a large gathering at the Lodge rooms on the 9th inst., to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Lodge, and welcome the incoming W.M. Amongst those present were Bros. Henry Hammond W.M., T. Woodbridge Carnell S.W., Charles Fountain J.W., the Rev. C. C. Dunville Chap., Arthur Styan Treas., D. A. Ross S.D., T. A. Harper D.C., F. J. Cozens Org., W. C. Hall I.G., E. Eldridge Steward; and Past Masters A. L. Irvine (Major First Surrey Rifles), James Stevens (originator of the Lodge), S. H. Wagstaff, George Waterall, G. H. Newington Bridges, W. J. Messenger Secretary, and Mark S. Larlham; also Bros. Capt. Wire, Clay, Rossignol, Cranch, Bradley, Fitzer, Woodcock, Goggs, Rugg, Turner, Harvey, Hutchins, Price, Goldring, Henry Bridges, Foster, J. J. Curtis late secretary, Yonge, Carpenter, Style, Henton, Youngman, Bewley, Stacey, Jarman, Mann, Dunford, Hildreth, and many others. Visitors—G. Potter 177, Dr. Brunton W.M. 1060, Fisher 1185, Dunbar 1538, Taylor 586, Strachan, Middlemass W.M. 1641, Herbert Puckle 176, Eastwood Past Master 317, Simons 1185, Theodore Distin, Cowan Worshipful Master 1572, Jarvis 14, &c. The Lodge was opened promptly at the hour appointed, and the minutes of the previous meeting having been confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Rossignol to the degree of F.C. He then proceeded to the installation of his successor, and in a most able manner completed the duties of his year of office by inducting Bro. T. Woodbridge Carnell into the chair of K.S. The first act of the newly-installed W.M. was a graceful acknowledgment of the excellent working of his predecessor, in all the ceremonies of the Craft degrees, whilst in office, and this was cordially received by the entire Lodge. The Officers for the ensuing year were appointed and invested in the following order, viz.:—Bros. C. Fountain S.W., D. A. Ross J.W., Rev. C. C. Dunville Chaplain, A. Styan Treas., W. J. Messenger P.M. Sec., T. A. Harper S.D., W. C. Hale J.D., E. Eldridge I.G., Bradley Steward, Steed Tyler. A ballot was taken for Mr. Herbert Cuff, as a candidate for initiation, and Bro. Carnell at once gave evidence of his ability by initiating that gentleman into the Order in a most perfect manner. The report of the Audit Committee was received, and told a flattering tale, exhibiting moderate expenditure in house bills, large charitable donations, honourable testimonial gifts, and a balance in hand of above one hundred pounds, with furniture and good subscriptions due, to swell the sum total of general prosperity. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Major A. L. Irvine P.M. called the late Secretary Bro. J. J. Curtis to the front, and in a most brilliant speech recited the many invaluable services rendered by that brother to the Lodge during ten years' Secretaryship, a post which he had surrendered only to enable him to attend to the numerous duties connected with his late appointment as Quartermaster to the corps. Referring incidentally to a former presentation after the first three years of Lodge working, Bro. Major Irvine now asked the acceptance by Bro. Curtis of a Life Governorship of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and of an illuminated address, setting forth the acknowledgments of the members of the Lodge, and an expression of their high esteem and great regard for him. The address of Bro. Irvine was listened to with marked attention, and, at its conclusion, prolonged applause testified the appreciation of the members therewith, and the popularity of the recipient of the address, whose familiar cognomen is a household word as well in the Lodge as in the corps. Bro. Curtis briefly, but very effectively acknowledged the honourable testimony of brotherly feeling and reward, honourable alike to givers and receiver. Propositions for initiation having been received, and some further detail business disposed of, the brethren adjourned to the spacious mess room of the corps for banquet. A large number of members and visitors, principally in uniform, and more or less decorated with Masonic Orders, graced the elegantly furnished tables, which glittered with massive silver trophies from Wimbledon and elsewhere, won by the "shooting members." Amongst these were conspicuous the "Macdonald Challenge Cup," a handsome shield presented by Major Irvine, lofty candelabra, and numerous smaller but valuable prizes, the whole giving the banquet table a most attractive appearance. On the cloth being cleared, grace was sung by Bros. T. W. Simons, F. H. Cozens, H. Taylor, and Theodore Distin, and these brethren, with Bros. Cranch and Hildreth, under the direction of Bro. Cozens, admirably entertained the company throughout the evening. The W.M. gave the loyal toasts in well chosen terms, and these were, as usual in "Macdonald," honoured with even more than customary enthusiasm. The toasts connected with Grand Lodge were of course as well received. The health of the W.M. was cordially drank, and in response, Bro. Carnell expressed the hope that his intentions to equal his predecessors in office might be successful. He had a high standard of work to follow, but having kept well "in school" as a pupil, he now trusted he would be able to hold his own as a Master. He concluded by proposing the health of the Past Masters, extolling their several performances, and decorating the I.P.M., Bro. Hammond, with the handsome P.M.'s jewel of the Lodge. Bro. Major Irvine responded on behalf of the numerous P.M.'s, the whole of whom, with but one regretted exception, were present. Bro. Middlemass W.M. 1641 responded for the visitors in very complimentary terms. The newly initiated brother was received with "Macdonald" fire, and by his response thereto proved that the Lodge had enlisted a good recruit. The Officers of the Lodge was the penultimate toast, and after much excellent harmony, which included admirable glees and solos by the professional brethren, a most successful and enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the Tyler's toast.

Upton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1227.—At Bros. Bolton and Lane's, King and Queen, Norton Folgate, on Friday, the 17th inst. Present—Bros. Hine W.M., Townsend S.W., A. W. Smith J.W., Fenner Preceptor, Crouch S.D., Bolton J.D., Lane I.G.; also Bros. Peall, Simmonds, Gieseke, Pearcy, &c. Lodge opened, the minutes were read and confirmed. Lodge advanced to the third degree, and resumed to the second. Bro. Peall having given proof of his proficiency, was entrusted, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. Bro. Fenner worked the second and third sections of the first lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Gieseke, of the Mother Lodge, was elected a member, and Bro. Townsend was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week.

Hervey Lodge of Instruction, No. 1260.—The members of this Lodge of Instruction spent a very pleasant and convivial evening on Friday, the 17th instant, at the Punch's Tavern, Fleet-street. A capital supper was served by Bro. Beeton, who personally superintended, and the assembled guests did ample justice to the repast. Bro. J. H. Southwood, the respected W.M. of the Mother Lodge, presided, and the Senior Warden's chair was filled by Bro. Goodacre. On the removal of the cloth, the toasts customary on these occasions were fully honoured, and the brethren did not separate till a late hour.

Pembroke Lodge, No. 1299.—This Lodge held its monthly meeting on Thursday, the 16th inst., at the West Derby Hotel, West Derby, Liverpool. Present—Bros. John Capell W.M., F. B. Bramham S.W., Thos. Fisher J.W., J. P. Bradford Secretary, Peter Macmuldrow P.M. Prov. Grand Senior Deacon Treas., W. S. Bennett S.D., Wm. Hiles J.D., Wm. S. Vines P.M. Prov. G.D.C. D.C., Wm. Avis I.G., J. Robinson Tyler; Past Master Wm. Jones, and Bros. Bradford, Bloomer, Lonsdale, Brown, Crosby, &c. Visitors—S. M. Davies, J. Handford 823, H. Tunston, &c. After the usual formal business, the ballot was taken for Mr. Thomas Lewis for initiation, and he was unanimously elected. Bros. Clegg and Vines were balloted for as joining members, and declared elected. Mr. T. Lewis was duly initiated by the W.M. There was a vote of one guinea towards the Hamer Ben Fund from the funds of the Lodge, which was then closed in harmony. The brethren adjourned to partake of supper. After the usual Loyal and Patriotic toasts the W.M. gave the toast of Our Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate, coupling the name of Bro. Macmuldrow P.S.G.D., who in response to the toast expressed the satisfaction he felt in the state of the Province, and the high appreciation of the services of their esteemed Prov. Grand Master. The W.M., in proposing the health of the Past Masters of the Lodge, alluded to the fact of the oldest Past Master of 1299 being with them that evening; he knew his presence would be very highly appreciated every Lodge night. He proposed the health of Bro. Crane, which was most cordially received. Bro. Crane responded, and in a very fraternal manner thanked the brethren for the reception given his name, and informed them that it was not lack of interest in the welfare of the Lodge or love for the Order that kept him away, as he had both deeply at heart. Bro. Jones, as a P.M., recollected with many feelings of pleasure his position as a very Junior Officer, when Bro. Crane as Master ruled the Lodge. He hoped to be a regular attendant for the future, and predicted prosperity for the Lodge. The W.M. proposed the health of the I.P.M. Bro. Vines, who in response said he had risen so often to that toast that he was at a loss to know what to say, but as he was on his legs he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. The brethren had every chance of seeing how ably Bro. Capell filled the chair, and how very capable he was of discharging his duties. The toast was very warmly received, and the W.M. replied in a manner which conveyed to the brethren how deeply he felt the responsible position he occupied. On rising to propose the health of the visitors, the W.M. expressed the pleasure he felt in according a hearty welcome to all who visited them, and with the toast joined the name of Bro. Davies of London. Bro. Davies thanked the W.M. and brethren, and expressed his belief that there was ample vitality in the Lodge to ensure its success. He exhorted the Past Masters to stand to their posts and render the valuable assistance which, from their great experience, they were so capable of imparting to all, especially young Masons. The pleasures of the evening were much augmented by the capital singing of Bros. Handford, Tunston, Avis, Bennett, and Jones. The brethren dispersed at an early hour.

Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360.—Held at Bro. J. Wright's, Prince's Head, York-road, Battersea, on Tuesday evening, 21st inst. Bros. Collins W.M., Carter S.W., Westmore J.W. Ratcliffe S.D., Maddox J.D., Fane I.G., G. King P.M. Preceptor A. Withers Hon. Sec.; Lee, Jones, Forss, Featherstone, and several others were present. The Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting were confirmed. The W.M. having worked the second and third degrees, the Lodge was resumed to the first degree, when Bro. Collings, in a very impressive speech, thanked the worthy Preceptor, Bro. King, for his great kindness, and eulogised the ability he had always shown in instructing the members; he knew, in saying this, he was echoing the thoughts of all brethren, present and absent, who belonged to the Lodge. Individually he had received instruction from him, and he was sure they all concurred in hoping to see him among them for years to come. He then presented Bro. King with a testimonial, subscribed to by the brethren of the Lodge, consisting of a beautifully illuminated address, together with a purse of money. The arrangements for the testimonial had been ably conducted by Bro. A. Withers, and the Illuminated Address, which was mounted and handsomely framed, was much admired by all present. The inscription was as follows:—

"Presented, on the 21st May 1878, to Bro. George King P.M., by the Members of the Royal Arthur Lodge of Instruction, No. 1360, together with a purse of money; as a souvenir, in recognition of his services; and for the able and courteous manner in which he had fulfilled the duties of Preceptor.

"Bro. A. WITHERS (No. 211), Hon. Sec."

Bro. King, in acknowledging the gift of the members, was quite overcome; from his heart he thanked the brethren for their great kindness. The Lodge was then closed in due form.

Marquis of Ripon Lodge of Instruction.—Held at the Pembury Tavern, Amhurst-road, Hackney, Monday 20th May. Present—Bros. McDowall W.M., Blunt S.W., E. Bishop J.W., Jacob S.D., Giles I.G., Slaiter Secretary; also Bros. Aspinall, Lockett, &c. Lodge was opened in ancient form with solemn prayer, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. McDowall carefully rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, and Bro. Aspinall, being candidate, was made an entered apprentice in due form. Bro. Aspinall then assumed the chair, and worked the ceremony of passing, Bro. McDowall being candidate. Lodge was opened in the third degree, and afterwards closed in the third and second degrees. It was unanimously resolved that a vote of thanks be recorded to Bro. McDowall for the able manner in which he had occupied the chair in the earlier part of the evening, being his first attempt. It was also resolved that the votes of the Lodge be given to Bro. T. Call, of Lodge No. 1446, who is a candidate for the office of Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. Bro. Blunt was appointed W.M. for the ensuing two weeks. All Masonic business being ended, the Lodge was closed in peace and harmony, and adjourned to Monday the 27th inst. at 7.30.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—Held at the Havelock Hotel, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday evening, 22nd instant. Present—Bros. W. Fieldwick Preceptor W.M., J. Pinder S.W., Slaiter J.W., W. H. Lee I.P.M., G. Ferrar Treasurer, E Dietrich Secretary, H. Meyer S.D., Maples J.D., Truman I.G., Hogard, Bristowe, Musto, Borer, Dignam, Stokes, Taylor, McDowell, J. Cohen 205, Stephens 1623, Bristowe 1364. Votes of thanks were recorded to the W.M. and the brethren who assisted.

Crusaders Lodge of Instruction, No. 1677.—The usual weekly meeting was held at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's Gate, on Thursday evening, 16th May. Bros. Holliday W.M., A. Goode S.W., W. Rowley J.W., Simmons S.D., Cummings J.D., Upton I.G., Hunter Preceptor, Calderwood Treasurer, T. Goode Secretary, and several others. The minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Moorhouse being the candidate. Bro. F. Goode answered the usual questions leading to the third degree, was entrusted, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed. The Lodge was then resumed to the first degree. Bro. W. Rowley was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. The Lodge was then closed with solemn prayer. This Lodge of Instruction, which has only been formed six months, numbers already nearly a hundred members, amongst whom are many whose names are well and honourably known throughout the Craft. One of the most pleasing features in connection with this Lodge is the evident desire amongst the members practically to carry out the principles of true Freemasonry, not only by consistent working of the ceremonies, but by a strong and active support of the several Charities in connection with the Craft. In addition to the balance of the receipts at the end of the year being given to the Charities, the brethren have formed a fund amongst themselves, which is balloted for as often as it reaches the amount of five pounds, and is then paid over to whichever of the three Institutions the brother who is successful may request. Already forty-five pounds have been thus balloted for, and before the year expires no less a sum than a hundred and twenty pounds will be dealt with in this manner. It is seldom we have the privilege of noting a more pleasing fact in connection with the Craft, and we venture to suggest that the example of this young Lodge of Instruction might be advantageously followed by others.

Everton Lodge, No. 823.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Present—Bros. J. Houlding W.M., Wm. Wilson I.P.M., H. (FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE). The usual preliminary business having been disposed of, the W.M. initiated Capt. William Sumner into Freemasonry. The Lodge was then advanced to the second degree for the purpose of passing Bro. Sinclair. This ceremony was likewise performed by W. Bro. Houlding. The working of the W.M. is certainly carried out with care and ease. Bro. Houlding has a method which gives confidence to the candidate, and a delivery which makes a firm impression on the memory of his hearers. The Everton Lodge is undoubtedly a popular one among the brethren of Liverpool. Its meetings are always well attended by its own members, and a crush of visitors. Probably there is nothing in the career of a Lodge which stimulates its members, and particularly its officers, to good government and Masonic zeal as a goodly muster of visitors on the benches. In the Craft generally there is not half enough visiting. All the officers of 823 work remarkably well. During the business of the evening, Bro. Lunt P.M. proposed, and Bro. Holland seconded, that a sum of £5 5s be given to the Masonic Hall Relief Committee out of the funds of the Lodge. This proposition met with the hearty approval of the W.M., and was carried unanimously, and in connection with this fund it was proposed, seconded, and carried, that the W.M., S.W., and the J.W. for the time being, act as the representatives of the Lodge on the Committee. Bro. Callow gave notice that he should make a proposition next regular meeting that a sum of money be devoted by the Lodge to the annual picnic. Bro. Cottrell P.M. also gave notice that he should make a proposition that twelve guineas be given from the funds of the Lodge for a P.M.'s jewel. The Lodge was closed in harmony at 8.30, and the brethren, by command of the W.M., adjourned to the large hall to partake of a substantial supper. After the cloth had been removed, the W.M., on rising, gave the first toast—the Queen—which was duly honoured, the brethren singing the National Anthem. On rising to propose the toast of H.R.H. the Grand Master, Bro. Houlding referred to the exalted position of the Prince of Wales in the realm, and expressed his conviction that to the deep interest taken by His Royal Highness in the Craft, its prosperity was greatly due. The toast was drunk with musical honours. The next toast proposed was our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate. The W.M., in allusion to the Prov. G. Master, bore testimony to the devotion which characterised Lord Skelmersdale in all Masonic matters in the Province; the services of so able a Mason must be invaluable, occupying, as he does, the exalted position of Dep. Grand Master of England. He expressed the pleasure he felt in having two representatives of Prov. Grand Lodge among them that night. With the toast the W.M. coupled the names of Bros. Vines and Jackson. Bro. Vines responded on behalf of Prov. Grand Lodge, and expressed his pleasure in being present to witness the excellent manner in which the Officers of the Lodge did their duty. He felt grateful for the honour of having his name associated with a toast in which the health of their justly esteemed Prov. Grand Master was proposed. The genial disposition of Lord Skelmersdale, which endeared him to the Craft, was characteristic of his lordship in everyday life, and the regard they evinced for his name in drinking his health with such enthusiasm was truly due him; he trusted that his time might be long among them, and that for many years he might enjoy his deservedly exalted position in the Craft. Bro. Jackson also responded, and expressed his pleasure and satisfaction in visiting the Everton. He was pleased to say the working of the Officers, collectively and severally, was good. Bro. Holland, on taking the gavel, said: The important office held by the W.M. of the Lodge has been held by many illustrious brethren, but in their progress they had not had a Master who had taken a deeper interest in the Craft or his Lodge than Bro. Houlding. He had now the pleasure to propose the health of the W.M. The W.M., in responding, said:—Brethren, Bro. Holland has proposed my health in a very feeling manner, and you have responded to the toast with your accustomed cordiality. This night, which brings us nearer the close of my year of office, recals many happy and pleasant evenings spent within these walls. During the past twelve months, we have tried to do our duty in Lodge, after which we have adjourned to refresh ourselves. The greatest enjoyment I have experienced in my Masonic life has been during the year 1877-78. I feel almost a regret that my term of office will expire shortly. I have heard some brethren in a similaposition express themselves in quite a different way. It has been a source of gratification to me that from the time you elected me to the chair I have known nothing but hearty co-operation and unanimity on the part of the Lodge. The cordial assistance rendered by the brethren has greatly lightened my duties, and the success of the Lodge is owing to the harmonious feeling prevailing. Allow me to return you my heartfelt thanks for such kindnesses in the past and on the present occasion. The W.M. rose, and gave the toast of the Visitors, and in doing so said that the brethren of Everton Lodge always accorded a hearty welcome to their visiting brethren. That night they were greatly honoured, as they had among them some of the most distinguished brethren of the Province, many P.M.'s of eminence, and a few Presiding Masters of Sister Lodges. They were also honoured with the presence of brethren from America, and many others, all of whom he need not say, were truly and fraternally welcome. He would connect with the toast the names of Bros. Peel, Sammons, Leslie and Bennett. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, and with musical honours. Each of the brethren named responded, and expressed the true sentiments of the Visitors in their pleasure at being present to see the excellent manner in which the brethren of Everton managed things in and out of Lodge. The W.M. rose and informed the brethr n that they had present a brother from Canada, who, from his great experience and connexion with the Masonic press, would please and instruct them with a few remarks. Bro. Davies was making a tour of the Province, and had come amongst them to see the working of Liverpool. In the name of the brethren of the Everton Lodge he accorded him a cordial and fraternal greeting. Bro. Davies returned thanks for the mark of respect shown him as the representative of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and freely accorded the commendation the W. Master, Officers, and Brethren of No. 823 so justly deserve. The W.M. after giving the toast of the newly initiated Brother, who briefly replied, rose to give the next toast, namely, the Officers of the Lodge, and in doing so spoke in the highest praise of the punctuality, efficiency, zeal, and co-operation of each. With such a staff he said it was a pleasure to work. The toast was duly responded to by the S.W. and J.W. in a very appropriate manner, after which the brethren retired. All present were much indebted to Bros. Handford, Hiles, Twist, Cattrell, and Wilson, for enlivening the evening's proceedings with some capital songs.

Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017.—This Lodge held its last meeting of the present Session on Wednesday, the 22nd inst., at the Regent Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, London, W. Present—Bros. W. H. Gulliford W.M., J. Lazarus S.W., Solomons J.W., E. P. Albert P.M. P.G.P. Hon. Sec., Jacobs Treas., E. Ellis J.D., Goldberger Steward, Levy I.G., Smith Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Victor Myer, Eskell, De Solla, Abrahams, Grunebaum, Pollitzer. Visitors—Bros. Lott P. Prov. G.S.W. Jersey, Prov. G. Org. Middlesex, A. Brattlebank 72, F. Damoireau, Bedford Tidmarsh 1671, J. Stedman Old Concord 172, T. E. Miles 180, W. W. Morgan 211, Bigley 1298. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting duly received confirmation. The candidate for passing was unable to be present, consequently no ceremonial work was undertaken. An appeal from a distressed brother, lately a member of Lodge No 30, was entertained, and he was relieved with a small amount. The Lodge was then closed till October. The banquet was served by Bro. Nicols, the proprietor of the Grand Café Restaurant Royal, and the repast was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. On rising to give the toasts, Bro. Gulliford intimated that he should not occupy the time of the brethren in introducing them by long speeches, as they had some talented singers present, who were able and willing to entertain the company. He then briefly gave the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen, with which he coupled "Prosperity to the Craft." The National Anthem was sung, the solos being admirably given by Miss Julia Sidney. The health of the M.W. the Grand Master followed, and then came that of the Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, coupled with the name of Bro. E. P. Albert, Past Grand Pursuivant, who acknowledged the compliment in his usual happy manner. Bro. Victor Myers now took the gavel, and in a few pithy and well chosen sentences proposed the health of the W.M., whose sterling qualities and capacity for business were well appreciated by the members of the Lodge. It needed no eulogy from him to commend the toast; the W.M. was always considerate for their comfort, and ample testimony of this was before them in the brilliant entertainment he had provided. Bro. Gulliford acknowledged the kind remarks of Bro. Myers. He trusted, in the future, he might have a little more work to do in the Lodge than had fallen to his lot that night. He was proud to be in his present position, as Master of a Lodge which had ever been foremost in advocating the true spirit of our Institution, and assured the brethren he would spare no pains to maintain the reputation of the Montefiore Lodge. Before resuming his seat he would give the health of the Visitors, whom he severally named, and called upon Bros. Morgan and Lott to reply. However, before these brethren did so he would request Bro. Morgan to favour them with a recitation. This request having been complied with, Bro. Morgan was called on for his response, but he pointed out that the task he had just accomplished had been somewhat fatiguing, and suggested that Bro. Lott should precede him, after which he would add a few words. Bro. Lott thereupon thanked the members for the way they had received the toast, and expressed his gratification at having been able to add to their entertainment; he trusted this might not be the last occasion he should have the pleasure of being a guest at the Lodge. Bro. Morgan referred to the estimation the Lodge was held in, not only amongst the Masons of this country, but on the Continent, and indeed all over the world. He trusted it would continue its career of usefulness, and be as prosperous in the future as it had been in the Past. With the toast of the Past Masters was associated the name of Brother Eskell, who remarked that while they had the services of such Masters as the one who at present held sway in the Lodge, there was no fear they would lose their élan. No worthier Mason had ever occupied that chair. However, should their present, or any other Master, ever get into trouble he doubted not the Past Masters would be ready to help him out. Bro. Eskell then paid a graceful compliment to the brethren for the kindness evinced by them in the manner in which they had received the toast. The W.M. then gave the health of the Senior and Junior Wardens. He congratulated each of those brethren on the way in which they performed their duties. He called on all to honour this toast, and personally he thanked the brethren for the way they supported him on every occasion. Bro. S.W. replied: All he could do to gain the esteem and regard of his brethren would be to him a labour of love. These sentiments were fully endorsed by Bro. J.W. In giving the Junior Officers, the W.M. said that Bro. Levy the I.G. had exerted himself most energetically to further the interests of the Lodge. Bro. Goldberger, in reply, said he never before had had occasion to speak in public; however, he could assure them he appreciated the honour they had paid him. This, with the exception of the Tyler's toast, closed the list. The musical party provided by the W.M. comprised Miss Julia Sidney and Miss Viall, and Bro. J. Stedman, Bro. Lott, throughout the evening, acted as accompanyist, and the ability displayed by the fair artistes gained the applause of all assembled. Miss Sidney was artistic and happy in the songs she selected, while Miss Viall's, "The Birds were telling one another," was most charmingly rendered.

Cooper P.M., and the charge by Bro. J. Hollins M.O. The W.M. appointed Bro. Rev. W. C. Lukis Chaplain of the Lodge, and Bros. I. F. Taylor and T. Humphries Stewards. Letters were read from Bros. the Earl of Limerick, Lord Skelmersdale, the Rev. G. R. Portal, and F. Binckes, thanging the Lodge for the honour done them in being elected honorary members, and the letters were ordered to be entered on the minutes. The brethren afterwards met at supper, and a very pleasant evening was passed. ## THE APPROACHING FESTIVAL OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

NOT many weeks hence and the last of the Festivals of our Charitable Institutions will have been held. True we are only this day entering on the month of June, and the Festival in question will not take place till the 8th of next month. But the announcement that the first meeting of the Board of Stewards was held on Thursday, the 23rd ult., and the statement that H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, who will occupy the chair this year, had fixed the day for this annual gathering must have reminded our readers, if they needed any such reminder, that the time for considering the preliminary arrangements, as well as for forming some estimate of the degree of success which may result from the Festival is at hand. It is possible to put off the preparations till what should be the completest regularity and order becomes inevitably a perfect chaos; but, on the other hand, it is well-nigh impossible to make too early a beginning. We have every confidence that the Stewards who have already signified their intention of acting in that important capacity, and their indefatigable Honorary Secretary, will exert themselves with the same energy and zeal as at previous Festivals of this Institution; but we are likewise anxious that the brethren should have the earliest opportunity afforded them, so that they may bring their valuable assistance to bear in supporting the Boys' School. There are several reasons, indeed, why we think it desirable that attention should be called to the anniversary of this Institution even at an earlier date than usual. In the first place, H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught has graciously signified his intention of presiding, and it is well known that the many claims on his Royal Highness's time prevent him from taking so active a part in the business of Freemasonry as he could wish. Therefore the Craft owe it as a duty to His Royal Highness, and to themselves, that they should exhibit more than their usual energy, in order the more worthily to second his efforts on behalf of the School. Again, the occasion will possess an unusual degree of interest in one particular respect. The day selected happens to be the thirteenth anniversary of the opening of the present School building. Brethren, therefore, may glance with just pride at the magnificent success which has been achieved in that brief term of years, and regarding this as ominous of good for the future, they will doubtless resolve upon making still more determined efforts in support of a School which has fulfilled its important duties so admirably. There is, however, a third, and, if possible, a still greater reason why a supreme effort should be made this year for the Boys' School. The Governors have greatly extended its sphere of usefulness, and in a very short space of time there will be 211 boys borne on the strength of the School. Its funded property, however, is limited, and must be of little or no account in the event of any great emergency. Before the new buiding was constructed, the invested Funds of the Institution amounted to £13,100 stock, which was sold towards defraying its erection. The successes of the last two or three Festivals have enabled the Governors to invest £8,000. It follows, then, that a further sum of over £5,000 is necessary in order to raise the amount of the investments to what they were somewhat over thirteen years since, and if the Craft work well, there is, in spite of the general commercial depression, and the weighty political anxieties of the moment, no reason why the amount should not be forthcoming, especially when we bear in mind the unusually favourable circumstances under which the Festival will this year take place. Nor must we leave out of the reckoning one other and most important consideration. Last year, owing to the almost overwhelming number of candidates who presented themselves for election at each of the half-yearly ballots, and the very limited number of vacancies for which they competed, it was resolved on building additional premises, with a view to raising the number of pupils to about 215 or 216. For this purpose it was determined to expend a sum of £3,200, such being the estimated cost of the additions proposed. This of itself constitutes an important reason why, if we had been unable to enumerate those we have already mentioned, the assistance of Craftsmen should be forthcoming more abundantly at this year's Festival than in ordinary years. We trust all these circumstances will be taken into account and weighed seriously as they deserve to be; and if the Craft will but bestir itself, as it can do when the emergency is great, we shall have no fear as to the measure of success which it will be our duty to announce some time during the first half of July.

It remains for us to say a few words as to the arrangements made, or in contemplation, for the auspicious day. As at the later Festivals of this Institution, ladies will dine with the brethren, and the place chosen is the Alexandra Palace. Bros. Bertram and Roberts, with the liberality which distinguishes them, have kindly consented to place at the disposal of the Stewards the Concert Room, in which the dinner will be served, and which is capable of accommodating a thousand persons; the Italian Garden, which will be opened for the recreation of the visitors; the Conservatory, in which tea and coffee will be served; and the Picture Gallery, in which the guests will assemble. In the evening the Garden and Conservatory will be brilliantly illuminated, and there will be both vocal and instrumental music on the occasion, to enliven those gathered together. There will, in fact, be a garden fête to supplement the Festival proper, while, though primarily and essentially a Masonic assembly, there will be no display of Masonic paraphernalia. The gentlemen will be in ordinary morning dress, and the ladies are to wear bonnets. That, as far as possible up to the present time, all the preliminary steps have been taken in order to make the Anniversary Festival of 1878 a grand success cannot for one moment be doubted. Further details will, of course, be given as the day approaches, but the arrangements, even as they are now defined, will, in their general aspect, remain unaltered. That is, the scheme will remain, though the details here and there may undergo some slight modifications.

We trust we have said enough to excite in the minds of our readers, a just amount of enthusiasm for the approaching event. The Institution is one which, of course, like its two sister Institutions, must commend itself to the friendly offices of all worthy Craftsmen, and at all times. But since the memorable year in which the Prince of Wales presided, there has been no such conspicuous piece of good fortune awaiting the Boys' School as, it may be anticipated, will result from the kindly presidency of the Duke of Connaught. Hence it is we speak somewhat earlier than usual, so that brethren who think it possible they may be able to find an opportunity for contributing their assistence directly or indirectly, may, at all events, have sufficient time allowed them for making one. There are now 222 Stewards, and if this number is increased, as it can and should be, to 300, then the Eightieth Anniversary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys will stand a magnificent chance of eclipsing all previous efforts on these occasions. We will content ourselves with adding, that an average of five shillings per Craftsman, if we set down the number in England at 80,000, means £20,000, which will just suffice to replace the stock, pay for the additional premises, and clear the year's expenses.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

THE practical working of the Lodge of Benevolence having lately undergone discussion, a summarised account of the various regulations adopted from time to time by the Committees of Charity of the rival (English) Grand Lodges, prior to the "Union," which we are enabled to place before our readers this week, may be found interesting.

GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND (Regular Grand Lodge).

COMMITTEE OF CHARITY.*

1725. 21st November.—Three years' membership of the Craft required of a petitioner; £3 only to be disbursed without consent of Grand Lodge; a standing committee of five—viz., Grand Master, D.G.M., S.G.W., for the time being, and two other members of Grand Lodge, to be named by the Grand Master; contributions to be paid quarterly and voluntarily.

1727. 24th June.—A Committee of seven.

1729. 27th December.—Every new Lodge for their Constitution shall pay two guineas towards the general Charity of Masons.

1728. 28th August.—Twelve Masters of contributing Lodges to be added to the Committee; that the first twelve on the printed list shall be succeeded by the next twelve, and so on.

1731. 14th May.—The Committee empowered to give £5.

1732. 21st November.—All former and present Grand Officers, with twenty Masters, added to the Committee.

1733. 13th December.—All Masters of regular Lodges to be members.

1741. 3rd December.—A petitioning brother must, at the time, be a member of some regular Lodge. (This restriction was evidently levelled at the seceding brethren, who afterwards assumed the appellation of "ancient" Masons.)

GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND, According to the old Institutions (Seceders.)

REGULATIONS FOR CHARITY.†

1795. York Regulations.—All present Grand Officers—Treasurer and Secretary, with the Masters of eight regular Lodges—who are summoned and obliged to attend in their turn. The method is, four of the oldest and four of the youngest Masters are summoned monthly to hear all the petitions, &c., and to order such relief to be given to distressed brethren as their necessity may appear, and prudence may direct.

1807. Regulations same as above, except that five oldest and youngest Masters summoned, instead of four.‡

The following regulations were adopted at the Union, viz.:—

THE FUND OF MASONIC BENEVOLENCE.§

The fund appropriated to the object of Masonic Benevolence shall nor be infringed on for any purpose, but shall be kept strictly and solely devoted to Charity.

The distribution and application of this charitable fund shall be made monthly, for which purpose a Committee or Lodge of Benevolence shall be holden on the third Wednesday of every month, which Lodge shall consist of thirty-six Masters of Lodges—within the London district—three members of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, and nine Grand Officers, one of whom shall act as President; the said Masters of Lodges, Grand Stewards, and Grand Officers to be summoned by the choice and direction of the Grand Master, or his Deputy, one week at least prior to the day of meeting—not by rotation, but by discretion—so that the members shall not be subject to canvass or to previous application, but shall have their minds free from prejudice, to decide on the merits of each case with the impartiality and purity of Masonic feeling. No member, therefore, shall vote upon the petition of any person to whom he is related, or who is a member of the Lodge to which he himself belongs, though such brother may be heard on the merits of the petition. No Master of a Lodge shall be summoned a second time until all the Masters of the Lodges in the London district shall have been once summoned.

Since the Union, many alterations have taken place in the administration of the funds of the Lodge (or Board) of Benevolence, whilst still more have been proposed and negatived in the "United Grand Lodge of England."

The following is a sample of the latter, and occurred in 1844:—

"Proposed alteration in the constitution of the Board of Benevolence. ||

"That it should consist of twenty-five members, the President and ten thereof to be nominated by the Grand Master, and the remaining fourteen by the Grand Lodge."

[History sometimes repeats itself.—ED.]

In the Constitution of 1867, p 97, the following appears:—

"Three Grand Officers shall be specially summoned to each meeting, by direction of the Grand Master, and the brethren so summoned shall act as the Master and Wardens. If either be absent, the brother senior in rank then present shall supply his place."

This gave way in 1869 to the existing usage, viz., a President appointed by the Grand Master, and two Vice Presidents elected by Grand Lodge at the Quarterly Communication in each December.

THE FREEMASONS' LIFE-BOATS.

SERVICES OF THE "ALBERT EDWARD."

IT will be remembered that at a special meeting of Grand Lodge held more than a year ago it was decided that the sum of £4000 should be voted to the Royal National Life-boat Institution, for the purpose of founding two Life-boat stations to commemorate the thankfulness of the Freemasons of England for the safe return from India of the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

On this decision being communicated to the Life-boat Institution it at once submitted to the Officers of Grand Lodge two places needing Life-boats, namely—Clacton-on-Sea, on the Essex coast, and Hope Cove, near Salcombe, on the Devonshire coast. The Earl of Carnarvon, the Earl of Donoughmore, Lord Skelmersdale, and other members of the Craft fully approved of the selection of these two places for the memorial Life-boats.

Three or four months ago both stations were reported officially by the Institution to be in working order, and ready to be publicly inaugurated, but, considering the season of the year, it was suggested that that ceremony might advantageously be postponed till the first or second week in July next. Meanwhile, both Life-boats being on their stations, were ready to render at a moment's notice any service that might be required of them by a ship-wrecked crew. Thus the Clacton Life-boat, the "Albert Edward," has had an early opportunity of saving nine persons from a watery grave. The event clearly shows the wisdom of placing her on that important station previous to the public demonstration in July; and, we may add, the wisdom also of selecting such appropriate and active memorials to commemorate an event that will ever be dear to H.R.H. the Grand Master and the Craft at large.

Through the courtesy of Bro. Richard Lewis, Barrister, the well-known Secretary of the National Life-boat Institution, we are enabled to place the following particulars of the service before our readers—particulars which show in this way alone how admirably and systematically the work of our great and National Life-boat Institution is carried on.

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.

LIFE-BOAT "ALBERT EDWARD," STATIONED AT CLACTON-ON-SEA.

RETURN OF SERVICE ON THE 23rd DAY OF MAY 1878.

DATES AND CIRCUMSTANCES OF THE CASE.

The brig "Garland," laden with 500 tons of coal, bound from South Shields to London, went ashore on the Gunfleet Sands, about S.S.W. of Clacton-on-Sea Pier, in the early part of the morning of 23rd May. The wind was blowing hard, and although no signals of distress were hoisted by the brig (owing to her having none on board), the representatives of the Local Committee considered it necessary for the Life-boat to put off to her, feeling almost sure that she would not come off the sands again, and that the crew must leave her. The "Albert Edward" was launched about 10 a.m., and reached the brig about 1 p.m., and found her fast filling with water and breaking up. About 3 p.m. the crew, six men and three boys, abandoned her, and were safely landed at Clacton-on-Sea Pier at 5 p.m. A large number of persons were on the pier to welcome the return of the Life-boat.

Lodge in the year (excepting in cases of emergency), and increasing the grant from the Prov. G. Lodge fund towards the expenses of such meeting to such sum not exceeding fifty pounds as the R.W. Prov. G. Master might consider reasonable.

Bro. Chas. Heywood Hon. Sec. to the Callender Memorial Fund reported that up to the present time about £160 had been subscribed to that fund. The names of several brethren from various parts of the Province were added to the Memorial Committee, with the object of obtaining subscriptions from their various districts.

All business being concluded, the Prov. G. Lodge was closed in due form and with prayer at 3.15 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, at the Athenæum, which was attended by upwards of 200 brethren, under the presidency of the R.W. Prov. G. Master supported by the Prov. G. Officers. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to by the brethren. An efficient glee party, consisting of Miss Topliffe, Mrs. Murray, and Bros. Kershaw, Stafford, Dumville, Bailey Wroe, W. H. Bailey and Peers, enlivened the proceedings, the accompanyist being Bro. J. Randle Fletcher Prov. G. Organist.

The Treasurer's Statement of Account for the Province of East Lancashire, for the year ended 31st March 1878, shows a very satisfactory state of things. The opening balance on 1st April 1877 was £750 7s 3d, and the receipts from all sources—chiefly from Lodges for dues, fees, &c., and from the P.G. Officers in the shape of fees of honour—raise the total Charge to £1,420 1s. The Expenditure amounted to £1,052 5s 9d, of which sums of £200 and £100 were voted to the Male and Female Funds of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution respectively, and £300 to the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution, while small grants of benevolence were made, amounting in the aggregate to £42 10s. Thus three-fifths of the year's expenditure was devoted to Charity. The account is certified as correct by the Auditors, and was adopted at the recent meeting of Provincial Grand Lodge. The following, as showing the strength and distribution of Masonry in this Province, will, no doubt, be of considerable interest to our readers. This, as regards the number of its Lodges, is the strongest of all our Provinces, there being no less than eighty-six Lodges, of eighty-four of which returns of the number of members are given in this statement of account. The other two Lodges, Nos. 1697 and 1723, are new, and as yet no returns are possible. The total of the subscribing Masons in East Lancashire for the eighty-four Lodges is 4,221, which gives an average of 50 per Lodge. Integrity, No. 163, Manchester, musters 113 members, while Merit, No. 934, Shaw, has only eighteen. The Lodges and members are as follow:—Manchester, seventeen Lodges, 907 members; Bury, five Lodges, 256 members; Bolton, four Lodges, 190 members—Lodge No. 1723, one of the two new Lodges, is located in this town; Salford, five Lodges, 188 members; Ashton-under-Lyne, four Lodges, 177 members; Rochdale, four Lodges, 158 members; Oldham, two Lodges, 154 members; Blackburn, two Lodges, 147 members; Burnley, two Lodges, 110 members; Accrington, two Lodges, 99 members; Haslingden, two Lodges, 94 members; Todmorden, two Lodges, 82 members; and one Lodge at each of the following—Denton, 98 members; Cheetham, 88 members; Blackley, 77 members; Newchurch, 74 members; Ardwick, 72 members; Levenshulme, 71 members; Bacup, 68 members; Radcliffe, 65 members; Kersley, 63 members; Hulme, 59 members; Middleton, 58 members; Openshaw and Lower Broughton, each 53 members; Heaton Norris, Over Darwen and West Gorton, each 50 members; Stoneclough, 49 members; Whitworth, 46 members; Newton Heath, 43 members; Beswick, 41 members; Colne, 40 members; Clitheroe and Heywood, each 38 members; Clayton-le-Moors and Littleborough, each 37 members; Mossley, 33 members; Prestwich, 31 members; Clayton-le-Dale, 27 members; Padiham, 26 members; Whitefield, 25 members; Wardle, 21 members; Ramsbottom, 19 members; and Shaw, 18 members.

We learn from the last election of Officers of the Grand Lodge of West Virginia, that the following brethren were chosen:—Bros. G. Baird G. Master, J. W. Arbuckle Dep. G. Master, C. J. Faulkner S.G. ## DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BRITISH BURMAH.

A T a Quarterly Communication holden at the Masonic Temple, Cantonment, Rangoon, on Tuesday, the 12th March 1878. Present —R.W. Bros. S. H. Krauss D.G.M., J. Dawson D.D.G.M., E. G. Man D.G.S.W., Major G. Knox P.D.G.P. as D.G.J.W., B. Samuel D.G. Treas., W. A. Nicol D.G. Reg., W. H. Porter D. G. Sec., W. Ford D.G.S.D., Capt. G. O. Smith D.G.S.B., W. H. Wootton D.G. Org., C. T. Baxendale D.G. Purs., C. Preston, J. H. White, R. H. Pilcher and W. G. Jackson D.G. Stewards, J. W. Clarkson D.G. Tyler. Representatives of Lodges :—Social Friendship, No. 497, Star of Burmah, No. 614, Victoria in Burmah, No. 832, Rangoon, No. 1269, &c.

The District Grand Lodge was opened in ample form at 6.15 p.m., and the summons convening the Communication, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The District Grand Secretary reported receipt of apologies for absence from several brethren, and then read the report of the proceedings of the meeting of the District Grand Lodge Committee, held at the office of R.W. Bro. H. Krauss D.G.M., on the 5th March 1878, containing amongst other matters—

The D.G. Treasurer's accounts since the date of last audit (3rd December 1877), showing a balance in favour of the District Grand Lodge Fund of Rs. 343 7 0, and of District Grand Lodge Fund of Benevolence Rs. 232 14 0.

Report by D. Grand Sec. :—(1). That a reply to the reference made to the Grand Secretary, relating to the reception by Lodge Greenlaw, No. 1095, Toungoo, of a serving brother as a subscribing member, to which allusion had been made in the Proceedings of the Quarterly Communication of 27th December 1877, page 4, had been received in the following terms :—"The question has been mooted here again and again, but it has always been ruled, that although a serving brother was willing to pay up the fees to which he would have been subjected, had he been initiated in the ordinary way, that the law was too decided to be overruled."

(2). That a communication had been forwarded to the G. Sec., London, to obtain the sanction of the M.W.G.M. to the alteration in the D.G. Lodge Bye-Laws, at page 19, increasing the number of the members of the D.G.L. Committee from five to seven, proposed at the Quarterly Communication of the 26th June 1877, and adopted at the Quarterly Communication of the 11th September 1877.

(3). That the G.S., London, had forwarded copies of the Resolutions of the United Grand Lodge of England, dated the 5th December 1877, on the appeal of Bros. A. L. Vaillant, T. N. Seymour, J. C. Jordan, E. T. Dover, and J. Marsh, against the W.M. of Lodge Victoria in Burmah, No. 832, excluding them from the said Lodge, and against the orders of the D.D.G.M. rejecting their appeals, also that on the 14th January 1878, Bros. A. L. Vaillant, T. N. Seymour, and J. Marsh, complained that they had been refused admission to their Lodge. The R.W. the D.G.M. had called upon the W.M. of Lodge Victoria in Burmah, No. 832, for an explanation, which had been submitted and accepted. The R.W. the D.G.M. had directed the brethren to be summoned to the next regular meeting of the Lodge, and if they presented themselves, be received therein. W. Bro. C. T. Baxendale had since raised the question whether, as Bro. the Rev. J. E. Marks's election as W.M. of No. 832 had been declared illegal, and as he was appointed to the office of S.W. by Bro. the Rev. J. E. Marks, his, W. Bro. Baxendale's, appointment was not illegal also, and his election illegal, intimating that till this was decided by the G.L. of England he would not open his Lodge. The R.W. the D.G.M. had ruled that W. Bro. Baxendale had legitimately been elected to the Mastership of his Lodge, and that W. Bro. Baxendale being a Past Warden of Lodge Astræa, No. 1376, Thayetmyo, was also eligible for election in that capacity.

The R.W.D.G.M. having addressed the Lodge, commenting briefly on the various matters referred to in the report of the D.G. Lodge Committee, it was proposed and carried that the report be adopted. On motion duly seconded, the D.G. Sec. was directed to place himself in communication with the G. Sec., London, and to intimate that in the recent appeal of Bros. A. L. Vaillant, T. N. Seymour, J. C. Jordan, E. T. Dover, and J. Marsh to the M.W.G.M. of England, that the G. Sec. had omitted to give notice to the D.D.G.M., whose decision was called into question, as required by the article headed 'of Appeal,' page 95, of the Book of Constitutions.

W. Bro. J. Dawson proposed, and W. Bro. E.G. Man seconded the proposition,—"That the D.G. Lodge subscribe for three Life Governorships in the Greenlaw Masonic Orphan Fund, at rupees 64 each, and that the District Grand Treasurer be authorised to disburse the same," this was carried unanimously. Worshipful Bro. B. Samuel then made a few remarks deprecating the depletion of the D. Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund, it was uncertain when a demand would be made on that fund, which was a fund for distressed Masons and their widows. In this Bro. Samuel was supported by Bro. W. H. Porter, and to a large extent by the R.W. the D.G.M. Bro. Samuel did not wish to be misunderstood, he was not antagonistic to the Greenlaw Masonic Orphan Fund; he had given that Fund his sympathy and support on all suitable occasions, but he did not wish to see the D.G. Lodge Fund of Benevolence, brought to a low ebb.

W. Bro. W. H. Porter proposed, and W. Bro. Samuel seconded the proposition, "That when a vacancy occurred in the D.G. Lodge Committee, whether by retirement from the Committee, from Membership of any Lodge in the district, or leaving Rangoon permanently, it shall be competent for the R.W. the D.G.M. or his Deputy, on the vacancy being ascertained and declared, to elect a new member thereto."

Bro. Porter shortly explained the intent of this proposed addition to the bye-laws, which was necessitated by the ever changing conditions generally of Indian society, and yet more strongly in Burmah. If such an addition were not made to the bye-laws, the D.G.L. Committee might before the end of the Masonic year find its members too few in number to form a quorum. The R.W. the D.G.M. directed the proposition to be laid before the D.G.L. Committee for consideration and report. Other business having been transacted, the D.G. Lodge was closed in ample form.

LODGE VICTORIA IN BURMAH.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—The Order of the Grand Lodge of England to the Worshipful Master of Lodge "Victoria in Burmah," No. 832, Rangoon, to receive or re-admit Bros. A. L. Vaillant, T. N. Seymour, J. C. Jordan, E. T. Dover, and J. Marsh, to their Masonic privileges, was received by the W.M. on the 10th January 1878. A meeting was held on the 11th idem., when these Brethren presented themselves at the Lodge and were refused admittance. It is now stated that the Brethren were not refused admittance in open Lodge. The evasiveness of such a plea needs no further notice. Well, the W.M. decided on not opening his Lodge till he had told Grand Lodge or the Grand Secretary what he thought of both.

A Lodge was called for the 29th March, I send you the summons, and would call your attention to the agenda :—"To consider a communication from the Grand Lodge regarding the re-admission of Bros. Vaillant, Dover, Seymour, Marsh and Jordan."

Now the Grand Lodge made an Order on the 5th December 1877 that these brethren should be admitted ; there was no room for consideration, but obedience was simply required.

The five excluded Brethren were summoned to attend this meeting but they did not go, because the Lodge was going to consider a communication from the Grand Lodge regarding their re-admission, and because the brethren had knowledge of the confidential circular of the 1st February, of which you have a copy, wherein some of the brethren were invited to say that they had conscientious scruples, and could not in conformity with their obligation sit in Lodge with these brethren. I say some of the brethren were to give their decision on the subject, under sealed cover and without delay. I earnestly believe that another Masonic community could not be found who would act as the officers and members of Lodge "Victoria in Burmah" have done, nor have submitted to all this wrongdoing. The cry has been, Perish Lodge "Victoria in Burmah" rather than that we shall obey the edict of the Grand Lodge and receive these brethren who have not committed an offence, moral or otherwise.

At the meeting of the 29th March one brother enquired why the Confidential Circular was not sent to him? and was told by the W.M. that he was not a fit person to receive it. Brethren who had shown these circulars to others were called Traitors. A cut and dried letter to be sent to the Grand Secretary was produced for approval, and hurried through. This letter is couched in offensive language, and will be treated by the Grand Secretary as it deserves to be. It will more than confirm all I have stated regarding the insane resistance made to the Grand Lodge.

It has been proposed, not in open Lodge, that if a majority of signatories be obtained the Warrant should be surrendered to the Most Worshipful the Grand Master. I mention this to show that you have not without reason charged the officers of "Victoria in Burmah" with ignorance, and that they have not studied the Book of Constitutions, or that if they have done so they have not received any advantage in increased knowledge in doing so. Of course there is a minority in the Lodge which will work it, notwithstanding the desire of some 18 brethren to destroy the Lodge; that is, if the Lodge is not, for its contumacious disobedience to the G.L., erased from the Roll of Lodges. I am compelled to address you, because no sooner is one wrongful act pointed out, than, like a bird hopping from branch to branch, a new offence is discovered, and other acts of wrong doing perpetrated. It is contemplated now that as soon as the five brethren shall present themselves at the Lodge that the W.M. shall either close his Lodge or the Masonic phalanx under him shall walk out and leave the five brethren, or any one or more of them, in possession to do their own wicked will. What new folly may be perpetrated, to provoke erasure, I am not prepared to state or even surmise, but I sincerely trust that the Most Worshipful the Grand Master will not fail to remember that there are brethren in "Victoria in Burmah" who do not approve of the doings of the Lodge for the last two years, and who are unwilling that a Lodge which has heretofore done good Masonic work, and has so large a voice in our Masonic Charities should become a wreck through the ignorance and obstinacy of the Master and mutiny of some of the crew.

Yours faithfully,

Rangoon, 13th April 1878. A LOOKER ON.

PROXY VOTING.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Permit me to add to what I said in my letter of last week, that, if my memory serves me rightly, there was, at the last revision of the laws of the two Masonic Schools, a great diversity of opinion as to the manner in which the votes at the election of officers should be recorded. I may mention further that I have consulted two or three brethren of undoubted experience as to the statements I made in the letter in question, to the effect that it was possible to have substituted proxy for personal voting at the election of a successor to the late Bro. Little, and they fully agree with me. Now that the date of election has been fixed, of course any change will be impossible.

Fraternally yours,

FAIR PLAY.

At the close of the ceremony, the brethren retired to a banquet, were the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded too. The brethren retired at a very late hour.

Royal Lodge, No. 207, Kingston.—The installation meeting was held on 8th May, at the Friendly Hall, Hanover-street, presided over by W. Bro. Andrews W.M.; Bros. G. Sargeant S.W., Duff J.W., &c., &c., when the Worshipful Master handed over the Oriental chair to the Right Worshipful Bro. Dr. Hamilton, District Grand Master of East Jamaica, as the Installing Officer, when he was assisted by the following Past Masters :—Wor. Bros. C. H. Davis, R. Langley, and Andrews, of the Royal Lodge; Bros. Tait and Francis, of the Sussex Lodge; Bros. Barnes, Hollar, and Fenn, of the Phœnix Lodge; Bros. Burke, Dias, Knox, and Watson, of the Glenlyon Lodge; A. J. J. Lyon, of the Hamilton Lodge. The following Officers were duly installed :—Wor. Bros. G. J. Sargeant W.M., J. Thirlwell S.W., G. A. Campbell J.W., M. T. Lawrence Secretary, Stelfox Treasurer, W. Duff S.D., F. G. Garsia J.D., T. M. Simpson I.G., Pewter and Ryder Stewards, G. Magnus Tyler. An address was read and presented to the District Grand Master, complimenting him on his safe return to this island, and wishing him long life; signed by all the members of the Royal Lodge. The District Grand Master made a suitable reply. An address was reported by the Worshipful Master, prepared to be presented to the R.W. Bro. J. W. Whitebourne, Past Deputy District Grand Master for East Jamaica, expressing the regret of the members of the Royal Lodge on their having heard of his resignation as Deputy District Grand Master; but, on account of ill health, the W. Bro. could not attend. A Committee of five P.M.'s of the Royal Lodge, and the Wardens, were appointed to present the address. The Right Worshipful District Grand Master then read an address at the request of the members of the Royal Lodge to Wor. Bro. Andrews, on his retirement from the chair, which he had occupied for two years, regretting that in a few days they will have to separate from him, as he will have to leave for the Mother Country. He also decorated the Wor. Bro. W. Andrews with a Past Master's Jewel, presented by the members of the Royal Lodge. Bro. Andrews made a very touching reply. A letter from the G. Secretary Bro. John Hervey, with regard to the resolutions passed in the Grand Lodge of England in reference to the matter of the G. Orient of France, were read and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The usual Masonic silence was observed on account of the death of two brethren of the Lodge, and letters of condolence were directed to be written to the nearest relatives. After the routine business, the Lodge was closed. A capital banquet was served, and the good things provided were done ample justice to. The several Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to, especially the toast, "To the District Grand Master of East Jamaica, and the Wor. Master installed." The applause was repeated several times. A band was present, and played several lively airs, and the brethren retired at the small hours of the morning. About 150 to 200 brethren sat at the banquet table. This is the oldest Lodge in the province, and will shortly get the Centennial Jewel.

Phœnix Lodge, Port Royal. — We reported that in the month of April Bro. G. P. Myers was elected Master, and on a protest being entered and forwarded to the District Grand Master, informing him that that brother had not served twelve months, according to constitution, he cancelled the election, and a fresh election will take place in June. At the ordinary meeting held in May, a few minutes silence was observed by the members in memento of the sudden death of Bro. Hull. Bro. Hull belonged to the navy, and was chief carpenter of H.M. Dockyard, and had only been out here a few months. Bro. Hull was a very young Mason, but in so short a time had won the esteem of the brethren. His illness lasted only forty-eight hours; he died from yellow fever. His brother officers and the members of the Lodge have agreed to raise a tablet to his memory.

Royal Alfred Lodge, No. 780.—We have frequently had to record successful gatherings of the members of the Royal Alfred, and to-day it is our pleasure to give particulars of one of the most successful meetings held since the Lodge was consecrated. For some time past the requirements of the brethren have taxed, to the uttermost, the capabilities of the "Star and Garter" to find sufficient accommodation to enable them to transact the business of the Lodge, and yet to provide for the necessary requirements of the inner man. Kew, where the brethren of this Lodge hold their meetings, is described in an old Gazetteer we occasionally look into as "a pretty little village near unto Old Brentford; famed for its pure atmosphere, and possessing a seat which belonged to the late Prince of Wales." The little village of Kew may now almost be said to have merged itself into the great village of London, as there is scarcely a break in the continuity of houses that have been erected in the main road. Bro. Stanbury, fully conscious of the disadvantages he labours under, and, moreover, ever desirous to study the comfort of those who patronise him, intimated to the members of the Lodge, at their meeting in March last, that it was his intention to erect a new Banquetting Hall, and that it was his further intention to have it ready for their May meeting. On questioning our worthy brother, he declined going into particulars; but remarked, it should be a room worthy for a prince to dine in, and, moreover, that it should be completed and furnished in the short period that yet remained for him to get the work done. Some of the more sceptical of his supporters put inquiries,—Was he about to erect an Aladdin's Palace? Had builders' strikes for ever ceased? and other pertinent questions. All of these received the one reply,—Wait till your May meeting. Well, the day at length arrived, and on Friday, 24th ult., at the "Star and Garter," Kew Bridge, the Lodge was opened by the W.M. Bro. Walter Goss, who was supported by Bros. Charles May S.W., W. Gomm J.W., W. Hilton P.M. Sec., J. Smith P.G.P. Treas., B. Blasby S.D., Erwin J.D., C. Costelow I.G., and Gilbert Tyler. There were also present Past Masters J. Chambers Roe, Lloyd, Littlewood, Brown, Gardiner, Potter, &c, a goodly array of the members, and the following Visitors, besides several others whose names we were not able to procure :—Bros. Delevanté, Jacobs, S. Page 1326, W. Vassila 1326, A. H. Smith 56, A. Collins late 780, J. J. Michael P.M. 1107, 1507, and W.M. 1732, E. J. Acworth 1612, C. D. Hume, W. Nye, E. Woodbridge 1612, Attlee, E. Mathews, Robertson, G. S. Wright, J. Hodges, H. Norton, M. Levenston, Walter Joyce, W. Game P.M. 511, Thomas Bryett J.D. 834, R. Clarke P.M. 1158, C. Phillips 820, John Humming P.M. 534, A. G. Dodson P.M. Joppa, D. Betts S.W. 1563, J. H. Cummings P.M. 534, J. H. Shand S.D. 1563, S. R. Lamble P.M. 27, G. H. Tipper, Seymour Lucas, H. E. Tucker 1612, J. O. Carter, W. Hamilton, Hill P.M. 209, G. W. Lay 569, W. W. Morgan, &c. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Goss proceeded with the ceremonial portion of his duties. This comprised the raising of Bro. William Eydmann, who, thanks to the efficient coaching of Bro. P.M. Clarke, again passed a most satisfactory examination; the passing of Bro. Botley; and the initiation of Messrs. Robert Crawford, A. T. Secker, and John Edward Sharp. In each of the ceremonies Bro. Goss evinced the care he had bestowed in acquiring a perfect knowledge of his duties, and impressed the candidates with the importance of the obligations they were entailing on themselves. On the completion of the ceremonies the W.M. invested Bro. Tarling P.M. with the collar of Wine Steward, this office being at his disposal in consequence of the resignation of Bro. Hale P.M. Bros. Akhurst and Franckel were also invested with the collars of D.C. and A.D.C. respectively. After the discussion of home affairs, the Lodge was closed. The brethren now repaired to the New Banquetting Hall, which is indeed a handsome and substantial building. It measures thirty-six feet by thirty-four, is fifteen feet high, and is decorated by eleven handsome mirrors in elaborate but chaste frames. It is lighted by gas pendants all round the room, with elegant chandeliers for gas at extreme ends, while a substantial glass chandelier for candles adds a brilliant lustre to the general effect. The Hall, moreover, is furnished with a splendid carpet, which has been specially fitted for the occasion. All the guests were unanimous in their expression of approval, and Bro. Stanbury, the proprietor, and Bro. Lamble, the builder, could not but feel gratified at the hearty congratulations that were tendered them. The repast was admirably served, under Bro. Stanbury's personal superintendence, and although the new building had entailed entire re-arrangement of the cuisine department, not a complaint was to be heard. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Goss proceeded with the toasts. After the health of Her Majesty had been given, with which the W.M. associated Prosperity to the Craft, the National Anthem was sung by Bro. Morgan, Bro. Delevanté playing the accompaniment. The toasts of the M.W.G.M., and the Earl of Carnarvon next received due honour. With that of the D. Grand Master and the Grand Officers was associated the name of the Worthy Treasurer, Bro. J. Smith, Past Grand Pursuivant. After a song—"The Friar of Orders Grey"—by Bro. Hamilton, Bro. Roe I.P.M. in felicitous terms proposed the health of the W.M. Bro. Walter Joyce here recited a descriptive account of the historical Balaclava Charge, imparting to his delineation a vigour that was much appreciated. Then came the reply of the W.M., who expressed his satisfaction at the brilliant assembly. Bro. Goss remarked that Bro. Stanbury had worthily fulfilled the promise he had made on the occasion when last they met. The foundation stone of the building they were at present assembled in had been laid only seven weeks ago, and they now had a structure perfect in all its parts. He the speaker, had only been a Mason but a few years, but he was proud to know that the Lodge over which he had the honour to preside was so prosperous as to need the erection of such a building in which to hold its meetings. He then thanked Bro. Roe for the kindness he had displayed in proposing the toast, and the brethren for the way they had honoured it. Before resuming his seat he would ask them to drink to the health of the Initiates. This toast then received due honour, and a song from Bro. Eydmann is the next feature of the evening we are called on to notice. Next came the replies of the new members, which were brief, and uttered with a due regard to the importance of the responsibilities each had undertaken. With the toast of the Visitors were associated the names of Bros. Carter P.G.D. Berks and Bucks, Betts P.M. St. Clements Danes Lodge, and S. R. Lamble P.M. 27; each of these brethren replied. After a song—"The Bay of Dublin"—which Bro. Goss sang most artistically, the health of the P.M.'s was given, and briefly acknowledged by Bros. Roe, Littlewood, Lloyd, Gardiner, and Brown. Then came the toast of the Treasurer and Secretary, which gave Bro. W. Hilton an opportunity to make some happy remarks in reference to the prefix Royal which was attached to the name of the Lodge. The W.M. then rose to give what he suggested might be accepted as the toast of the evening—the health of their host, Bro. Stanbury, who had exerted himself so successfully to promote their comfort that evening. After a song from Bro. Botley, Bro. Stanbury rose: He felt he stood in a very peculiar position. The way in which the toast had been given and received was to him extremely gratifying. He was pleased to notice that on this occasion his name had been placed before the toast of the Charities, and before the builder who had so worthily worked out what he contracted to do. As a business man, he (Bro. Stanbury) had only done what any business man should have done under the circumstances. He appreciated the support of those who were around him, and he made them certain promises, which he had striven might and main—he hoped he might say successfully—to fulfil. He thanked the W.M. and members of the Royal Alfred for their kind expressions of approval, and personally he took the opportunity of publicly acknowledging the obligations he felt under to Bro. Lamble for the energy he had displayed in carrying out the work. He then assured all present that if they felt he had done well in the past, they might take it as an earnest of his desire to exert himself in the future, and to do all in his power to make them comfortable. In response to a special call, Bro. Lamble remarked he hardly knew how to add anything to what Bro. Stanbury had said. However, he could look with feelings of pride on what they had jointly accomplished. He would merely add, that he trusted it would not be long ere the new Hall would have to be enlarged, and that he might be favoured with the contract. The remaining toasts were then fully honoured, and in due course the final one—To all Distressed Masons—was given, and the brethren separated. In addition to those already named, several other brethren favoured the company with songs, and Bro. Delevanté was, as usual, most courteous in tendering his services as accompanyist.

William Preston Chapter, No. 706.—The Convocation for installation of Principals was held on Thursday last, at the Cannon-street Hotel. The Chapter was opened by Comp. George Newman M.E.Z., Aug. Braun H., and H. E. Frances as J., Wm. Worrell P.Z. S.E., B. H. Garrod P.Z. Treas., W. F. Newton S.N., John Gibson P.S.; there were also present Comps. Pilditch, Hiscox, Joseph, Sinclair, Barker, Miller, Rüssmann, Steinmann, Williams, Partridge, Rickwood, Barns, &c. Visitors—Jonathan Taylor Z. 933, S. D. Ewins W.M. 766 and Chap. 192, H. E. Frances 857, P.G.D.C. Surrey, H. F. Thompson 185, W. W. Morgan 141, James Stevens P.Z. 720, and M. Klenck 1339. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, Bro. W. Walter Young, of the Earl Spencer Lodge, No. 1420, was balloted for, and being approved, was in due course exalted to the R.A. degree. The ceremony of installing Comps. Aug. Braun, Dr. W. H. Kempster, and J. T. Gibson, as M.E.Z., H., and J. respectively, was then proceeded with, Comp. Garrod P.Z. officiating as installing officer. The following, with one exception, were then invested as the Officers for the ensuing year, namely, Comps. Garrod P.Z. Treasurer, Worrell P.Z. Scribe E., Dr. Cutmore (unavoidably absent, but who will fill the office of) Scribe N., Hiscox Pr. Soj., and Joseph and Pilditch as 1st and 2nd Assist. Sojourners respectively. The report of the Audit Committee, which was then submitted, showed that the finances of the Chapter were in a most satisfactory state. A P.Z.'s jewel was then unanimously voted, and presented to Comp. G. Newman on his retirement from the chair of first Principal. Sundry communications having been read, the Chapter was closed with the usual formalities, and the Companions adjourned to the banquet, which, considering that Comp. Rand had a voice in the arrangements, our readers will judge was of unusual excellence. In the course of the evening the customary toasts were given, and among them may be mentioned that of the Installing Officer, Comp. Garrod, who expressed the pleasure he always felt in undertaking the duties of that office. The toast of the M.E.Z. was most cordially received and heartily acknowledged by Companion Braun. Companion Worrell, whose name was associated with the toast of the P.Z.'s, and of whom many kind things were said in the course of the evening, replied in a very manly speech, and in allusion to his candidature for the vacant Secretaryship of the Girls' School, he mentioned incidentally, that the day fixed for the contest happened to be the anniversary of his birth-day, and he regarded this as a very favourable augury. He said also that he had had the pleasure of meeting several of his competitors; he had found them, one and all, most companionable fellows. The toast of the Press was acknowledged by Comps. Massey and Morgan. At intervals during the evening several songs were sung, and Comp. James Stevens delivered himself with much emphasis of his latest contribution to Masonic literature, in the shape of the song we had so much pleasure in noticing last week, namely, Masons' Vows, set to music by that able musician, Comp. J. Randle Fletcher, of East Lancashire. In fact, the gathering was one of the most enjoyable it has been our good fortune to be present at. We have omitted to mention that the members of the Craft appeared in mourning, out of respect to the late Comp. Dr. W. Alban Attwood, and that a vote of condolence with his widow was unanimously agreed to, Scribe E. being directed to communicate the resolution to her officially.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS—Bro. THOMAS'S BENEFIT.

THE Annual Benefit of Bro. R. G. Thomas, the courteous manager of the Mohawk Minstrels, was held on Wednesday evening, and proved a brilliant success. A special programme was provided, every portion of which went excellently well. The first part, which was of the usual character, included three ballads by the bénéficiaire himself, namely, "Don't Forget the Little Ones," sung by Mr. H. Florence; "Down where the Rippling Waters Flow," sung by Mr. C. Temple; and "Sweet Cuckoo, sing again," by Mr. G. Eustace. These formed a very pleasing feature in this portion of the entertainment, being, as they were, admirably rendered by the artists to whom they were severally entrusted. The comic songs, "She danced the Grey Cachuca," "That's what makes me Grin," and "Taffy was a Welshman," by Messrs. F. Duriah, Ted Snow, and W. Freeman respectively, were received with well-merited applause, and Mr. F Dolby in his National Song "The Call to Arms," was as usual most effective. Mr. James Francis's new whimsicality, entitled "Branigan's Band," created quite a furore, the Mohawks being on this occasion reinforced by thirty of the 1st Life Guards Minstrel troupe and band, who appeared by special permission of Colonel Keith Fraser. Their great stature and the extraordinarily grotesque costumes they appeared in caused shouts of laughter, and as the curtain fell on the whimsicality the audience expressed their approval most rapturously. Part II. opened with the wonderful entertainment of Prof. Peterson, specially engaged for the occasion, and his celebrated Dogs. Then followed a Glee by the Mohawk Minstrels choir, and the entertainment of Mr. Sidney Franks, vocalist and mimic. A trio by Messrs. Styles (clarionet), Wotton (bassoon), and Lawson (horn) of the 1st Life Guards, on a theme from Robert le Diable, was a great performance, and gave immense satisfaction. Bro. James Francis followed with his amusing Temperance Lecture. The Rawlings Family, the well-known campanologists, who were specially engaged, appeared in their admirable entertainment, and the whole concluded with Julius's Promenade Concerts, in the last item of which—the British Army Quadrilles—the war songs of all nations were introduced, that of Russia being most cordially hissed, and those of France and Turkey being as cordially applauded. In this, the combined bands of the Mohawks and Life Guards played together most effectively, and the audience, or at least the greater part of it, departed in every way delighted with their entertainment. The Hall was then cleared, as rapidly as circumstances would permit, for the ball which was to follow, and this, with the Life Guards Band to furnish the music, and Mr. Jarvis to render his valuable services as Master of the Ceremonies, was a most agreeable conclusion to a very brilliant evening. The floral decoration of the Hall showed great taste on the part of those charged with it, the supper was well served, and the guests, who numbered about 170, would have been very hard indeed to please had they not been able to enjoy themselves most thoroughly.

A brother has asked us if a Lodge of Instruction working under the warrant of the Mother Lodge can change its place of meeting with the consent of the W.M. of the latter, or if the proposed change must be referred to the Mother Lodge for its approval. The question is not one as to which any direct information can be gathered from the Constitutions, nor does Oliver, in his Masonic Jurisprudence, take notice of such a contingency. All we can say in reply is, that, in our opinion, the sanction of the W.M. for the removal is sufficient.

We have been asked by several of our readers as to the qualifications of voters for the Secretary of the Girls' School, and also as to the mode of voting. In reply, we refer our readers to the recently-issued edition of the Laws of the Masonic Schools, where they will find the needful information. We may, however, state that the election rests with the General Committee of the Institution, and, as our readers are aware, this Committee is composed of the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, and Life Governors, together with twelve brethren annually elected from the Life and Annual Subscribers. This, then, is the constituency with which rests the choice of the new Secretary. As to the method of voting, brethren who are anxious to record their votes will have to attend the General Committee, a special meeting of which has been fixed for Thursday, the 11th July, and vote in person.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

I beg most respectfully to offer myself as a candidate for the post of Secretary to your valuable Institution, rendered vacant by the lamented death of our esteemed Brother R. WENTWORTH LITTLE.

I have been a Freemason upwards of Nine years, during which time I have taken a very active interest in the Order. I am a P.M., and have been for some time past, Secretary of my Lodge, and Scribe E. of my Chapter.

I am now the Secretary of an Orphan Asylum, a position which I have held nearly four years, and am therefore thoroughly acquainted with the practical working of a Public Institution.

I am thirty-three years of age, and in good health, and previous to receiving my present appointment, I was engaged in business with a Marine Insurance Broker at Lloyds'.

Soliciting the favour of your kind interest and support,

I have the honour to be,
My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,
Yours obediently and fraternally,

FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE

67 BARBICAN, E.C.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THERE has been only one sitting of any length in the House of Lords since we wrote last. On Friday, the Duke of Richmond and Gordon announced that it was his intention to introduce several important amendments into the Medical Act (1858) Amendment Bill. Consequently he only moved that the Bill should be committed pro forma, so that it might be reprinted with the amendments, and their Lordships have an opportunity of judging of their value. This course was agreed to. On Monday, in reply to Lord Cardwell, the Marquis of Salisbury was able to announce that the prospects of the Congress meeting had increased during the previous two or three days. The House then went into Committee on the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Bill. More than one division took place in the course of the consideration of the different clauses, but ultimately the Bill passed through Committee. After a brief sitting on Tuesday, the House adjourned till yesterday (Friday), Thursday being Ascension Day.

On Thursday, the great debate on the Indian troops question was brought to a conclusion, and, on the division, the Government secured a majority of 121, the numbers being, for Ministers 347, and for the Opposition 226. There were also eleven pairs, so that, with the Tellers and Speaker, we can account for 600 out of the 658 members of which the House is composed. Only one Conservative member, Mr. Newdegate, voted away from his party, while twenty Liberals and Home Rulers helped to swell the ministerial majority. On Friday, Mr. Fawcett put a series of questions to the Chancellor of the Exchequer as to the movements of Indian troops, and declared his intention of moving a resolution on Monday, the day fixed for Committee of Supply on the Supplementary Naval and Military Estimates for the pay and transport of these troops. Mr. J. Barclay then moved a resolution, to the effect that the present system of taxing the succession to property is partial and unjust, and, in the opinion of the House, ought to be readjusted. Mr. Barclay found 107 to support him, but the opponents of the resolution mustered 150, and therefore he was defeated by 43 votes. Soon afterwards the House went into Committee of Supply on the Civil Service Estimates, and sat till a very late hour. On Monday, the House went into Committee on the Supplementary Estimates, Military (£350,000) and Naval (£398,000), in connection with the despatch of Indian troops to Malta. There was a long and desultory debate, and the money was not voted without a division, though the Marquis of Hartington refused to countenance the Opposition that was offered. In the end the Ministry carried the day by 214 to 40, or a majority of 174. The House went into Committee, and the moneys were voted. On Tuesday, nothing worth recording was done, and the House was counted out shortly after half-past seven. On Wednesday afternoon, the greater part of the sitting was occupied in Committee on the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday (Ireland) Bill, considerable progress being made with it.

On Saturday the Queen's fifty-ninth birthday was publicly celebrated in the usual manner. The ceremony of trooping the colours on the Horse Guards Parade was witnessed by a more than usually numerous gathering of spectators, and had it been possible, four battalions of the Guards would have taken part in it; but this would have curtailed the space available for the public, and therefore only some half-dozen strong companies, with a squadron of Life Guards were present—together with the several bands of the foot regiments. The Princess of Wales, the Crown Princess of Germany, the Duchess of Teck, and the Prince Imperial witnessed the ceremony from the Horse Guards, and among those present with the Duke of Cambridge at the inspection were His Imperial Highness the Crown Prince of Germany, the Duke of Teck, Lord Napier of Magdala, and other officers of distinction. The Prince of Wales was unable to be present, being confined to the house by a severe cold. In the evening Ministers gave full dress Parliamentary banquets in honour of the occasion, and the event was celebrated at the West End with the customary illuminations, which drew crowds of sight-seers, being more numerous and likewise more effective than usual. There was a parade of troops at Aldershot. At Woolwich there was a field-day, two battalions of the Rifle Brigade under H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, and about twelve batteries of horse and field artillery being on the ground. At Plymouth, Portsmouth, Dover, and in the Phœnix Park, Dublin, there were also the usual military displays, and the numbers of troops which were reviewed was very considerable. The Volunteers likewise turned out in considerable numbers, while at the headquarters of the Honourable Artillery Company there was a muster of 320 (horse, foot and artillery), and the royal salute and feu de joie were fired as usual. Indeed, we do not remember for many, many years to have witnessed so much enthusiasm.

The Prince of Wales has, as we have already mentioned, been confined to his house by a severe cold. However, the Princess of Wales has been moving freely about, going to the theatre and opera, and riding, driving, and taking an interest in passing events. On Wednesday, she had a narrow escape from an accident when riding in Rotten Row, owing to her horse slipping. However, the animal quickly recovered itself, and the Princess's habit was not even soiled. The State Concert which was to have taken place on Wednesday, has been postponed, owing to the sudden death, at an early hour on Saturday morning, of the Duchess of Argyle. This, of course, has cast a shadow over the festivities of Court circles, as the deceased lady was the mother-in-law of the Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne). On Wednesday, the Crown Prince of Germany, the Duke of Cambridge, Lord Napier of Magdala, and General Lysons visited Aldershot, for the purpose of witnessing a sham fight of the troops quartered there. The weather was most unpropitious, and at one time there seemed to be a question of postponing the review, but his Imperial Highness's engagements were such that he could not have arranged for a visit any other day, and, therefore, the party set out as arranged, and the fight took place, after which the troops marched past, and the Royal party returned to town, after having partaken of luncheon. During the day an accident occurred to the charger which Lord Napier of Magdala was riding, Colonel Dillon's horse kicking it so severely that it had to be killed on the field.

On Wednesday afternoon, Lord Justice Thesiger presided at the forty-sixth Anniversary Festival of the United Law Clerks' Society. The guests numbered about three hundred, and included the Attorney-General and a strong array of other Queen's Counsel. In response to the toast of the evening, it was stated that the amount of the subscriptions to the festival was a fraction over £612. The health of the Chairman, proposed by the Attorney-General, was drunk with enthusiasm.

Though the event must have been anticipated for some time past, the death of the venerable Earl Russell has caused deep regret in all circles, and among all classes of politicians, Tories as well as Whigs, Conservatives as well as Liberals. Though for some years past, indeed we may say since his retirement from the office of Premier in the Summer of 1866, his Lordship has ceased to take any active part in politics, but though the influence he had possessed has long since ceased to be felt, to any appreciable extent, still he has lived so long among us, and, in his time, has taken so active a part in the politics of the country, that his death, even at the almost patriarchal age of 86, will be felt by all classes. Lord John Russell, the third son of the fifth Duke of Bedford, was born in August 1792, and after the usual scholastic training, he was sent to Edinburgh, where he was placed under the care of Professor Dugald Stewart. In 1813, he was returned to the House of Commons, as member for the family borough of Tavistock. In 1819 he proposed his first scheme of Reform. In 1828 he brought forward his bill to repeal the Test and Corporation Acts, and though the minister opposed it, his lordship was, to the surprise of every one, successful. In Earl Grey's ministry of 1830 Lord John Russell had to put up with the minor office of Paymaster of the Forces, though he was entrusted with the charge of the Reform Bill; indeed, it is with this measure that his name will be chiefly associated. In Lord Melbourne's Ministry, 1837-41, Lord John held the seals of office as Home Secretary. On the defeat of Sir R. Peel's second Administration in 1846, he became Prime Minister, and continued in office till February 1852, when the late Earl of Derby succeeded him. In the Coalition Ministry which was formed on the defeat of the Conservative Ministry, Lord John held a seat in the Cabinet without a portfolio, having, however, the leadership of the House of Commons placed in his charge. On Mr. Roebuck's motion in the beginning of the Session of 1855, Lord John anticipated matters by resigning office. When the debate came on, he spoke of the mismanagement of the campaign, but his attempt to exonerate himself at the expense of his colleagues was unsuccessful, and in the ministerial arrangements which followed the break-up of the Aberdeen ministry, he was left out. Then came the Vienna negotiations, which brought upon him so much odium. In 1858, Lord Derby held office a second time, but only till the summer of the following year, when Lord Palmerston became Prime Minister, with Lord John Russell at the Foreign Office, and shortly afterwards he was raised to the peerage as Earl Russell. On the death of Lord Palmerston, in the autumn of 1865, Lord Russell became a second time Prime Minister, but his tenure of office was brief, the Reform Bill of the Government being defeated on Lord Dunkellin's motion, and for the third time the late Earl of Derby became Prime Minister. Since then the appearance of his Lordship in the House has been of rare occurrence, and latterly his enfeebled state kept him for the most part confined to his house, Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park, where he expired on Tuesday night.

The Horse Show at the Alexandra Palace was opened last Friday, and remained open till Wednesday. The number of entries was under the average, but in respect of quality the animals were admirable specimens. Both the Coaching and the Four-in-Hand Clubs visited the grounds. the latter turning out in very considerable strength on the closing day, among the teams being those of the Marquis of Worcester, the Duke of Beaufort (President), and the Marquis of Waterford, Mr. Eaton's, Lord Tredegar's, Count Munster's, &c., &c., &c. The ladies mustered in considerable force, and having lunched the party witnessed the jumping, and then returned by the same route homewards. An accident to a valuable horse belonging to a Mr. Taylor, of Yorkshire, occurred during the period of the visit. The animal, in opposition to the rules, was ridden at the water jump from the opposite direction and broke its leg. It had consequently to be destroyed there and then.

As regards the political situation, the answers given on Monday evening by the Marquis of Salisbury in the House of Peers, and by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons, have been regarded most hopefully by the public, and there are rumours that invitations to the Congress have already been issued from Berlin. This may or may not be premature, but there can be no question, if the various reports from Berlin, St. Petersburg, Paris, and Vienna have even a shadow of foundation in fact, that we are on the road to establish a means whereby a peaceful settlement may be arrived at. It by no means follows that peace is assured because the Congress meets, nor will it be possible for us to relax in the slightest degree in our naval and military preparations. Still the Congress will bring the Powers together, and it is something even for that to happen, especially after the gloomy aspect which affairs had assumed before Count Schouvaloff visited St. Petersburg. Of other news bearing on the question there is little to note. A strong fleet will rendezvous off Portland next week, and the native Indian Contingent is rapidly landing at Malta. The Russians are making a great fuss about fitting up their Corsair Fleet, and troops are still being marched into Turkey. As to the Turks, the force around Constantinople becomes stronger every day, but what the recent change of Ministers may portend, no one has yet had an opportunity of forming an opinion. Let us hope that next week we may have an even more hopeful account to render. Our only advice to people is, that they must not be too sanguine.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls was held on Thursday, at Freemasons' Hall, and was presided over by Bro. Colonel Creaton. The meeting was the largest one that has yet been held, there being about 250 brethren present. The cause of the large assemblage was the election of the House and Audit Committee, and the presentation of the Report of the Sub-Committee on the qualifications, duties, and emoluments of the Secretary, whose post is now vacant. This report, which was read by Bro. Hedges, was in the following terms:—

That all Candidates for the office of Secretary be Master Masons of three years standing.

That no brother shall be eligible to become a Candidate whose age exceeds forty (40) years.

That the office hours be from 10 o'clock a.m. to 5 o'clock p.m. daily, except Saturday, and on that day, from 10 o'clock a.m. to 2 o'clock p.m.

That the Secretary shall give the whole of his time and attention to the duties of his office, and hold no other appointment, with or without pecuniary consideration.

That he shall keep the accounts of the Institution in a methodical manner, and file all bills, receipts, certificates, and other papers in regular order at the Office, that the same may be inspected at any time by the respective Committees.

That he shall in all respects conform to the rules, laws, and regulations of the Institution, and follow the instructions of the House Committee.

That he shall prepare the quarterly accounts, and lay the same before the House Committee at their meeting immediately preceding the quarterly Audit Committee.

That he shall strictly conform to the laws of the Institution.

That the salary be £350 per annum.

The Committee then adopted the report, and referred the matter to the House Committee, to advertise the vacancy, receive, and examine testimonials, and to report to the General Committee of 27th June; that Committee to be then adjourned to the 11th July, on which day, at two o'clock, the election of Secretary shall take place. On the motion of Bro. Tattershall, seconded by Bro. W. Stephens, it was resolved that the salary of the late Secretary be paid to his widow up to Michaelmas next. After the consideration of the petitions, of which there were nine, Bro. Benjamin Head informed the Committee of the presentation to Mrs. Mouckton of her portrait. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Let the Sick take Heed.—The stomach is the commissariat of the physical system. It furnishes the material sustenance of every organ. If disordered, the whole body languishes; but however severely it may be affected, its tone and vigour may always be restored by a course of these irresistible Pills; biliousness, indigestion, liver complaints, and other disorders of the stomach can easily be cured by the use of Holloway's Pills. Thousands attest this assertion, and no sufferer who has ever tried them will deny their supreme efficacy. In every case of stomach disease, from the mildest case of dyspepsia to the disorder of both liver and stomach, from the nausea of the free liver to the vomiting accompanying ulcerated stomachs, these Pills immediately relieve, and by perseverance effectually cure.

The evening's proceedings were admirably conducted by Bro. Turquand, who though but a young Mason, has, by his perseverance and energy, obtained a foremost place amongst our Masonic instructors. He was rewarded on this occasion by the hearty congratulations of the members, who conferred on him the honorary membership of the Lodge, in addition to a vote of thanks; the latter compliment was also paid Bros. Ives and Pinder, with those brethren who had assisted in the work. There were several additions made to the roll of members, and after a pertinent reply from Bro. Turquand the Lodge was closed. The members of this Lodge of Instruction meet every Tuesday evening; we advise those of our readers who desire instruction to pay the Lodge a visit.

Lodge of Israel, No. 1502.—The regular meeting of this Lodge took place at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Monday, the 20th ult. Present—Bros. Alex. Jones W.M., L. Courtney as S.W., Rev. H. Marks J.W., Maurice Hart I.P.M. Secretary, J. De Freece Treasurer, S. J. Wareing S.D., S. J. Henochsberg J.D., Rev. J. Prag Chaplain, W. G. Veale Organist, R. Robinson P.M. After reading the minutes of the previous meeting, and passing to other routine business, Bro. M. Hart, the energetic I.P.M. and courteous Hon. Secretary, gave the lecture on the Tracing Board in the second degree in capital style. There had been anticipation of working in the third degree, but the candidate was unavoidably prevented from attending. This was a matter of great regret on the part of Bro. Davies, who had visited expressly for the purpose of witnessing the ceremony. The working of Israelitish Lodges generally is admirably carried out. Intelligent Masons will perceive that our beautiful ritual, properly rendered by our Israelitish brethren, brings the ancient past into close sympathy and identity with the present. Lodge No. 1502 has a very excellent roll of members, amongst whom there is great ability, energy, and fraternity. That it is and will be prosperous cannot be questioned. A very pleasing feature in the business of the evening was the announcement of Bro. A. Lyons, Treasurer of Ball Committee, that the net proceeds of the recent ball amounted to over £33, and the same would be applied to Fund of Benevolence of the Lodge. Cordial votes of thanks were tendered the Treasurer, Hon. Secretary, and Committee, for the able and satisfactory manner in which everything connected with the recent ball had been carried out. By command of the W.M., the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and the good things provided were approached according to ancient rite, and enjoyed by the brethren. The W.M., on rising to propose the first toast, said the brethren of the Craft in every clime responded to the toast of the Queen most heartily, and he need not add another word to ensure its loyal reception by all present. It was drunk with enthusiasm, the brethren singing the National Anthem. The next toast, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and all the Royal Family, adding thereto our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate, was most heartily drunk, the brethren singing God Bless the Prince of Wales. Bro. Hart, by permission, took the gavel, and said he had the great pleasure to propose the health of the Worshipful Master. On occasions like the present, when they met round the festive board, they endeavoured to show their esteem to one who was so thoroughly deserving. The arduous duties of a W.M. were tolerably well known to all present, and the members of the Lodge knew well W. Bro. Jones had discharged those duties, by his ability, kindness, and zeal, to the satisfaction of all. He now gave them the toast of their Worshipful Master, which was most cordially drunk, with musical honours. Bro. Henochsberg, in the interval, gave a capital recitation, after which the W.M. rose to respond to the toast. He said: it is a very great honour for the W.M. to have his health proposed in such a truly fraternal spirit, and greater still to witness the cordial manner in which the brethren received the toast. He regretted not having had any work to do, especially as they all felt equal to the occasion. He thanked the officers for their promptitude in attending to their duties, and expressed himself anxious to do his duty at all times, and trusted to be able to do so for some time to come. Bro. Klinkowstain favoured the brethren with a classical selection, accompanied on the piano by Bro. Veale. The Worshipful Master next proposed the health of the visitors, and, in doing so, informed his guests that they were exceedingly welcome, and he trusted to have the pleasure of their company whenever they could make it convenient to visit No. 1502. He called on the brethren to drink to their visiting brethren, with their usual enthusiasm, which was eminently done. Bro. Isaacs kindly gave the next song, after which Bro. Davies, Reader, and Morris responded on behalf of the visitors, and thanked the W.M. and brethren for the very hearty manner in which Bro. Jones gave the toast, and the truly Masonic way in which the brethren had drank their healths. Bro. Courtney delighted his hearers with a recitation, in his usual splendid style. The W.M. rose to propose the health of the Past Masters of the Lodge, and in doing so paid a high tribute of praise to the abilities of Bros. Robinson and Hart, the former brother was ever present to render his valuable assistance to the W.M., and in his capacity of D. of Cer., kept the Lodge in perfect order. Then Bro. Hart, acting likewise in a double capacity, as Secretary and as I.P.M., rendered invaluable assistance by his indefatigable exertions. They both work so effectively and silently, in and out of the Lodge, for the welfare of the Craft in general, and particularly the Israel Lodge, that the heartiest thanks are due them. Bro. Hart, at the request of the W.M., sang one of his capital melodies. Bro. Robinson in responding to the toast of the Past Masters, thanked the W. Master and the brethren for the kind manner in which his name had been given and received. He assured them that he was more than compensated for the duties he performed in being able to come amongst them to enjoy their pleasant society. Bro. Hart sincerely thanked the W.M. and brethren for the mark of esteem shown him, and stated that in all his proceedings he was actuated by the sole desire to promote the welfare of the Lodge and the general interest of the Craft. Bro. Smage favoured the brethren with a song. The W.M. rose with great pleasure to propose the health of the Officers of the Lodge; he regretted the absence of the S.W., but nothing except very urgent business could have kept him from his post. He alluded to the satisfaction he had in the constant attendance of his talented J.W., who came to his Lodge at great inconvenience. He paid a tribute of just commendation to the worthy Treas., who had acted in that capacity ever since the Lodge was established; he had done his duty faithfully. He next referred in the same kind manner to the other Officers; before he concluded, he must inform all that with such talented and energetic Officers his duties were made really light and pleasing. Bro. Robinson greatly amused the brethren with a song. Bros. Marks, Frece, and Courtney severally expressed their high appreciation of the kindness of the W.M. in proposing their health, and thanked the brethren for the reception of the toast. Bro. Jacobs responded to the wish of the W.M. for the last song, after which the Lodge was called to resume labour, and was closed in harmony in due and antient form.

Sir Hugh Middelton Lodge, No. 1602.—This Lodge has only been two years in existence, it has, however, paid its liabilities and has a benevolent fund, and has already sent up six stewards to the Charities. The installation meeting was held on Friday, the 24th May, at the Agricultural Hall, Islington. Bros. E. G. Sim W.M., T. J. Coombs S.W., A. F. Rowley P.M. J.W., J. Osborn Secretary, J. Weston Senior Deacon, W. Norris Junior Deacon, W. F. Poulton Inner Guard, R. G. Thomas Org., Somers I.P.M., and Bros. Field, Dawson, Oppenheim, S. Rowley, H. Lund, Furlong, Parslow, E. Abrams, Tallant, Gibbs, Allison, Greenfield, Payne, Pearcy, J. Francis, Rimell, W. Francis, &c. The Lodge opened and the minutes were read and confirmed. The report of the audit committee was adopted, it showed the funds were in a flourishing state, and Bro. Furlong, as one of the auditors, testified to the able manner in which the accounts were kept by the Secretary. Ballots were taken for the admission of Messrs. G. Henri and Jas. Brewer, who were initiated into the Order by the W.M. The W.M. in the name of the Lodge then presented a very elegant and artistically designed jewel to the worthy Secretary Bro. J. Osborn, and in addition an inscription on vellum, in testimony of the esteem and regard in which he is held. For this Bro. Osborn returned thanks; he hoped the valuable gift would be handed down to his children. A board of Installed Masters was opened, and Bro. T. J. Coombs S.W. and W.M. Elect was installed into the chair by the retiring Master, whose perfect rendering of the ceremony was much admired. On the readmission of the brethren, the W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom, and he appointed his Officers: Bros. E. G. Sim I.P.M., A. Rowley S.W., J. Weston J.W.; the Treasurer, Bro. Payne, was unable to attend on account of illness; J. Osborn Sec., W. Norris S.D., W. F. Poulton J.D., Field I.G., Rimell W.S., Parslow Asst.

W.S., J. H. Oppenheim D.C., R. G. Thomas Org., Steedman P.M. Tyler The resignation of two brethren was accepted, with regret, particularly so in the case of Bro. Knight, whose ill-health precluded his attending. The W.M. remarked that he now had a very pleasing duty to perform; to present the retiring P.M. with the Jewel he so well merited, and he hoped Bro. Sims would be spared many years to wear it; and ever be blessed with health and prosperity. Bro. Sim thanked the W.M. and the brethren for the valuable gift, which was too great a recompense for such slight services as he had been able to render; however, he would do all in his power for the comfort of the Lodge, and his best exertions would always be at their disposal. The Lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a banquet and dessert, provided by Bro. Grist, whose catering gave great satisfaction. Grace having been said, the W.M. proposed the toast of H. M. the Queen, who had endeared herself to all her subjects. To-day was her birthday,—and it was an eventful day for him (the W.M.) to be installed into the chair. He was sure all Her Majesty's subjects, wish her long life. Individually, he hoped he might live among them for many years to celebrate this eventful day. The toasts of the M.W.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; the Pro G.M., and the D.G.M., were enthusiastically received. Bro. Sims I.P.M. then rose; he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M. Bro. Coombs; he was sure he was expressing their feelings when he hoped he might have this toast to propose at the expiration of his year of office; and that he might have the satisfaction of knowing that Bro. Coombs had done his duty. The W.M. thanked Bro. Sims for proposing, and the brethren for so cordially responding to the toast; he was sure the members would assist him to carry out the duties of the chair faithfully and zealously. As one of the founders he would, with the guidance of the Past Masters, do all required of him. He hoped to carry out the duties of the chair as successfully as had been done during the two years the Lodge had been in existence. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Initiates, Bros. Henri and Brewer; they were pleased to see them among them. The Lodge was proud to receive them as members. Bro. Parslow here sang a very excellent song; he was accompanied on the pianoforte by Bro. Thomas. Bro. Brewer returned thanks, and Bro. Henri also responded. The W.M. then proposed the toast of the Visitors. There were nineteen present, and he, the W.M., as well as every member of the Lodge was proud to see them; he would couple with the toast the names of Bros. H. Massey, H. M. Levy, and W. B. Kidder. The brethren named expressed their satisfaction at the admirable manner the various ceremonies had been performed, and the hospitality afforded them. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Past Masters. At present there were but two, still he hoped they would live long to see the Lodge flourish. Bro. Somers responded; and was followed by Bro. Sim, who thanked the W.M. and brethren for their kind reception of his name. The members had recognised his services as W.M. kindly and considerately, and he hoped for many years to be among them. By the permission of the W.M., he would now propose the toast of the Masonic Charities. Bro. Sims spoke of the benefits conferred by the three Institutions, and he hoped their funds would increase. He regretted the absence of Bro. Terry, who was in Manchester. Bro. Rimell had represented the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and Bro. Norris had consented to act as Steward for the Anniversary Festival of the Boys; he hoped on every occasion they would send a Steward from the Lodge. Bro. Rimell, who replied, said: As a young Mason he was pleased to represent the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution; he hoped on a future occasion again to serve as Steward, and hoped to get large contributions. Bro. Norris was pleased to represent the Lodge at the next Festival of the Boys; he hoped the brethren would liberally subscribe. He had attended the meeting of the Stewards; H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught would take the chair on the 8th July, at the Alexandra Palace, where ladies would be present. He called attention to the excellent arrangements that had been made by Bros. Bertram and Roberts, who offered every accommodation to the brethren, and he trusted every member of the Lodge would support him. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Treasurer and Secretary. The former brother was unavoidably absent from illness. The Secretary, Bro. Osmond, had had his services appreciated by the presentation made him; no man was more worthy. Bro. Osmond said for two years he had acted as Secretary, and he hoped he had given them satisfaction. He never expected to receive so elegant and valuable a testimonial; his duties had been a labour of love, and what he did was for the comfort of the brethren. He again thanked them for their elegant gift. He regretted the absence of the Treasurer, but he trusted that brother would be present on future occasions. The W.M. said he thought he had made a good selection of the officers he had appointed; in time he hoped to see them successively occupy the chair of the Lodge. Bro. A. Rowley S.W. returned thanks; and then the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings. Amongst the visitors were—Bros. Kew W.M. 179, Clare 1507, W. B. Kidder P.M. 12, H. Massey P.M. 619, W. Rowley 917, Carter 1687, Bateman P.M. 820, Wood 1288, Weaver P.M. 820, W. Wilcs P.M. 173, G. Edwards 907, Pearcy 228, Reason 1260, Gibson P.M. 1420, Purkis 946, H. M. Levy P.M. 188, &c.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—An emergency meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, at York. Present—Bros. T. B. Whytehead W.M., T. Cooper I.P.M., J. S. Cumberland S.W., C. G. Padel J.W., G. Balmford P.M. Treas., J. Kay Sec., J. T. Seller J.D., T. Humphries Asst. Sec., M. Millington I.G., T. D. Smith and A. T. B. Turner Stewards, P. Pearson Tyler; and Bros. Beanland P.M., G. Walker, W. P. Husband, Ware, Wilkinson, &c. The chief business consisted of an initiation and a passing, after which the W.M. said he had a pleasing duty to perform, which was to present to the Lodge, on behalf of Bro. R. W. Hollon, an old engraving of Sir Christopher Wren, one of the traditional Grand Masters of the Craft. This was the second gift of the kind that had come from Bro. Hollon, and he thought it very gratifying that the oldest Past Master of the York Lodge, No. 236, and one who had attained the dignity of Grand Lodge honours, should show such a keen interest in the well-being of the younger Lodge. The gift was received with hearty applause, and the Secretary was instructed to write to Bro. Hollon, conveying the best thanks of the Lodge. Pursuant to notice, the W.M. brought forward the subject of the contemplated visit to York, in July, of a party of Masons from Philadelphia. He said that Bro. Meyer, Grand Recorder of Pennsylvania, had written to him on the matter some time ago, and had requested him to make arrangements for their viewing any objects of interest in the city, and he thought that it would be a good opportunity of extending to the visitors the hand of fraternal fellowship. It was proposed to hold a meeting of the Ancient Ebor Preceptory 101 (K.T.) on the day of the visit of the Americans, who had expressed a wish to see that degree worked, and probably a luncheon would be given them under the banner of the Preceptory. If the brethren of the Eboracum Lodge chose to take any steps, either in conjunction with the Preceptory or alone, to welcome their Transatlantic friends he should be glad of it. As the Americans were bringing ladies with them, he thought it would be both appropriate and pleasant to seize the opportunity of admitting ladies to the entertainment whatever form it might take. Several brethren spoke in terms of approval of the ideas thrown out, and eventually a committee was appointed to consider the matter and report to the next regular Lodge. Subsequently the brethren met at refreshment, and a social and pleasant evening was spent, enlivened by solo and part singing. A quartette, consisting of members of the Lodge, comprising Bros. J. S. Cumberland, J. E. Wilkinson, T. Humphries, and G. C. Lee performed several glees in masterly style.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—Met at the Feathers' Hotel, on Thursday, the 23rd ult. A. Jones W.M., H. E. Tucker Treas., W. Seward jun. S.W., E. C. Porter J.W., Le Grys S.D., Coop J.D., Clarke I.G., J. Johnson Steward, Alais P.M. 834 acting as P.M. for the evening; also Bros. Josey 834, H. Stephens, Ackworth, Botley, Owen, &c. Lodge opened, and minutes of the last meeting were read, confirmed, and signed. At the request of the W.M., who was unwell, Bro. H. E. Tucker took the chair, and rehearsed the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Botley being candidate. The Lodge was then opened up to the third degree, and Bro. Tucker rehearsed the ceremony of raising, Bro. E. T. Brown being candidate. The Traditional History and Lecture on the Tracing Board in this degree were given by Bro. Alais, and the ceremony having been finished by the W.M., the Lodge was resumed to the second. The W. Master gave the Lecture on the Tracing Board in that degree. A special vote of thanks was accorded Bro. Alais for the assistance and instruction he had rendered the Lodge. On returning thanks, Bro. Alais congratulated the W.M. on the manner he had worked the ceremonies, and said he had enjoyed the evening so much it would not be long before he repeated his visit. Bro. W. Seward jun. was elected W.M. for 6th June. The Lodge used their own working tools and tracing boards on this occasion for the first time. These have been purchased out of the funds of the Lodge.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Met on Wednesday, the 29th inst., at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C. There were present—Bros. Biddle W.M., Walker S.W., Bush J.W., Gottheil P.M., J. K. Pitt Secretary, Sayer S.D., R. Harris J.D., Metcalf I.G.; Anderson, A. Posener, G. Harris, Webb, Woodward. As had been announced at the last meeting, the first and second ceremonies were rehearsed. Bro. Biddle's work was scarcely up to his usual mark. We would advise more sustained application, and greater attention to what may appear unimportant detail, but which, nevertheless, is essential to make up what is understood to be efficient work. Bro. Harris's Deaconship requires improvement, but Bro. Sayer as Senior Deacon did his work with care. Several of the brethren were lax (a not unusual occurence) in their mode of standing to order. This indifference, even in a Lodge of Instruction, is most reprehensible, as laxity begets slovenliness, and, consequently inferior workmanship. Bro. Metcalf of the Mizpah Lodge, who was elected a member, in thanking the brethren for having accepted him, said, that unfortunately his time was circumscribed by his avocations, and he therefore was unable to attend to Masonic duty as frequently as was desirable, but holding the position of S.W. in his Lodge, he would strive to visit this Lodge as often as possible, as from its reputation he was convinced that it was the place to receive the instruction he was in search of. Bro. Walker was elected W.M., but expressed his willingness to give way to any other Brother who on next Wednesday might express a wish to preside in his stead.

Royal Savoy Lodge, No. 1744.—The first regular meeting of this Lodge was held at Ashley's Hotel, Covent Garden, on Tuesday, the 28th May. Bros. J. Willing jun. W.M., Douglass S.W., Clemow J.W., Treadwell Treas., Stiles Sec., Jones S.D., Hyland J.D., Smith I.G., Barham, Tomkins, Jaques, Sillis, Deller, Holt, and many others. The Lodge was opened in due form, and the W.M., by permission of the W.M.'s of 45 and 177, raised Bros. Lowe and Baldrey. Messrs. Arthur Douglass, Mabey, Philpott, Hixon and Lloyd were impressively initiated into Freemasonry, and seventeen brethren were balloted for and admitted as joining members. The Bye-Laws were proposed, discussed, and agreed to, so as to be submitted to Grand Lodge for approval, and arrangements for a summer festival were discussed. The brethren then adjourned to banquet, which Bro. Mitchell ably served. The only hitch that occurred arose from the waiters being foreigners, and this occasioned some little delay between the courses. The Lodge will meet again on the fourth Tuesday in June.

Freemason's Chronicle;

SANCTIONED BY THE GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

VOL. VII.—No. 180. SATURDAY, 8th JUNE 1878. [PRICE THREEPENCE. Registered at the G.P.O. as a Newspaper.

THE CHESHIRE EDUCATIONAL MASONIC INSTITUTION.

THE Fifteenth Report of this Institution, which was founded in the year 1863, is in every respect satisfactory. Its object is to educate and advance in life the children of distressed and deceased Masons of the Province, and the benefits it confers annually in the fulfilment of this purpose are considerable. Moreover, our Cheshire brethren have contributed so liberally towards its support that the Institution has already about £3,000 invested in different kinds of stock, and a further sum of £300 ready to be invested when a favourable opportunity shall present itself. Thus the Charity is not only doing its appointed work satisfactorily, but it has accumulated funds, the interest of which will in time suffice to defray its annual expenditure. The pith of the Report for 1877 is as follows:—The Funds have increased from £2,858 to £3,202. Sixteen children have been educated, and five advanced. Only one application was made during the year for assistance, and the Committee rightly consider this a proof that greater care has been exercised by the Lodges in the admission of candidates. At the same time it is pointed out that this may be a very exceptional circumstance, and therefore brethren are urged to continue, and, if possible, increase their contributions. The Committee further express their thanks to the Prov. G. Master for having placed his nomination to the Boys' School at the service of the Institution, by which act of kind consideration a son of the late Bro. Meacock, P.M. of the Mersey Lodge, is being educated at the School at Wood Green. They likewise note with extreme pleasure that Bro. McIntyre, Grand Registrar, and Grand Senior Warden of the Province, has, by a contribution of Twenty Guineas, constituted himself a Vice-President; that a sum of Five Guineas, being the proceeds of an entertainment in the Parkgate district, has been received from the brethren of the Dee Lodge; that a further sum of £10 has been received from the Committee of management of the amateur performance at Birkenhead; and that the Stockport brethren have given ten guineas, being the proceeds of their annual ball. They note, lastly, the loss the Institution has sustained by the death of Bro. Robert Anderson, P.M. of the Zetland Lodge, who had given his valuable services as Solicitor gratuitously from its foundation. As to the Treasurer's statement of account, we note with pleasure the following particulars:—The opening balance of the year was £476 6s, and the receipts from all sources, including in addition to the sums already mentioned above, £328 11s 6d, as fees, donations, and subscriptions from Lodges and Chapters, and £117 5s 3d, as interest on invested property, amount to £499 13s 9d, making a total on the charge side of the account of £975 17s 9d. The discharge includes, besides minor expenses for printing reports and circulars, stationery, postage, &c., &c., £97 5s 5d for the education of sixteen children, £24 9s 7d for the advancement of five, £350 for the purchase of Mersey Dock Bonds, and five guineas for one share Great Western of Canada, making together a sum of £511 17 1d. Thus the balance at the close of the year amounted to £464 0s 8d, of which £306 6s 8d was in the North and South Wales Bank awaiting investment, and £157 14s in the Treasurer's hands. The funds of the Institution, including the aforesaid balances at bankers, and in hand, now represent a total of £3,202 2s 6d. We take leave to congratulate our Cheshire brethren on the very flourishing condition of their Masonic Institution, which we doubt not, under the auspices of such brethren as the respected Prov. Grand Master in the capacity of President, and Viscount Combermere Past Dep. Prov. Grand Master, Sir Watkin W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., Prov. Grand Master of North Wales and Salop, the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, M.D., Dep. Prov. G.M., Captain Cope, P. Prov. S.G. Warden, Bro. Æ. McIntyre, Prov. G.S. Warden, and Bro. J. P. Platt Past Prov. J.G.W. as Vice Presidents, will go on increasing in prosperity. It should be added that an annual subscription constitutes the donor a Life Governor with one vote, and an additional vote for every additional five shillings; a donation of five guineas constitutes the donor a Life Governor, with a vote for each guinea subscribed, while one of twenty guineas makes him a Vice-President. Every Lodge and Chapter contributing twenty guineas at one time, or in the course of three years, is entitled to twenty votes during its existence. A subscribing Lodge or Chapter has the same privileges as a subscribing member. A minister of religion, who is a Freemason and advocates the cause of the charity from his pulpit, and has a collection on its behalf, becomes a Life Governor with five votes. Children for admission must be over seven and under 15 years of age, except in the case of a child whose parents are both dead, when the minimum age is reduced to six years; nor can they receive the benefits of education after sixteen years of age. The father of a candidate must have been a subscribing member to his Lodge for at least three years. Candidates for advancement must be over twelve and under eighteen.

MASONIC PORTRAITS. (No. 58.)

A HARBINGER OF PEACE.

A mind in wisdom old, in lenience young,
From fervent truth where every virtue sprang;
Where all was real, modest, plain, sincere,
Worth above show, and goodness unsevere:
Viewed round and round, as lucid diamonds throw,
Still as you turn them, a revolving glow,
So did his mind reflect, with secret ray,
In various virtues, Heaven's internal day.

WE have more than once remarked, in former articles or sketches, that one of the greatest and most acknowledged beauties of Freemasonry is its comprehensiveness, not only with reference to its cosmopolitan character or the universality of its system in regard to religious faiths, but likewise from its inclusion of men of all ranks in society. The days have long since departed when, except in the most bigoted countries, it was impossible for men of different creeds to meet together on terms of amity. Men of different nationalities have always found a way of mixing freely together, though there can be no question that Freemasonry has established among them a mystic bond previously unknown of men. But though religious and national animosities have been growing continually less and less embittered, so that except in the most emergent times men of the most diverse faith and origin now recognise they are of the same great human family, and have a common interest, how opposed soever to each other may be their several views, that kind of jealousy which has almost invariably existed in the relations towards one another of the different grades of society still, we regret to say, survives to a very considerable extent, and it is one of the chiefest boasts of the Freemason that the Society of which he is so proud to be a member includes within its scope the commingling together, in one body, of men of every social grade. All men who are Masons, be they persons of rank and station, of great influence by reason of their abilities or wealth, or be they simply private individuals or of the great middle class of hard working men who live by the sweat of their brow, all these, within the precincts of our Order, meet together on a perfect footing of equality. We do not withhold the respect that is due to princely rank or fortune. We are perfectly well aware that social distinctions, in some shape or form, will continue to exist as long as there is a world to live in, and that the idea of a perfect equality among men is the mere dream of a visionary. Yet none the less is it true that all Masons are, ipso facto, equal, in the sense that all are bound by the same obligations to carry out, as far as in them lies, the beneficent design of Freemasonry. A fuller explanation of what constitutes Masonic equality will not be necessary among Craftsmen, while the non-Mason has no right to expect that we should go out of our way to be more explanatory. For them the story we are about to narrate must be a sufficient illustration of our meaning. Thus, in the series of Portraits which have appeared from time to time in these columns, we have sketched noteworthy men of every rank in the social scale, and this fact alone should, to our minds, be conclusive that Masonic equality is the reality we have proclaimed it to be, not the fiction which many who regard us with jealousy are anxious the world should consider it. In our last sketch we portrayed a peer of the realm who is the Masonic ruler of his Province. This week, our portrait is of one who belongs to the English middle class, who, in all the relations of life, has played his part well, and who, in his Masonic career, has filled a position of honour or of trust in every section of the society with which he is connected. There is, moreover, a most important characteristic by which this respected Brother of ours is distinguished. He is essentially a man of peace, that is to say, he is not only peacefully inclined himself, but he is also the promoter of peace among others. Whenever he hears that discord has arisen or is likely to arise among neighbours or among brethren, he exerts all his influence in the restoration of peace. The apple of discord is not a fruit which finds any favour with him, and with him for its guide a Lodge should always close in "peace and harmony." If it were any part of our duty to describe the profession or calling he follows, we should, perhaps, experience some difficulty in doing so. He simply belongs to that fortunate class of men who not only have enough and to spare of the goods of this world, but are prepared likewise to employ it to good purposes. However, we believe he is in some way connected with the management of those places of healthy recreation for the public which, in an over-populated metropolis like ours, are indispensable. This, however, is a matter which concerns us not. Our task is to record his labours in the field of Masonry, and we think our readers, when they have read the following particulars, will agree with us that those labours reflect upon him the highest possible degree of credit.

The details of his Masonic career are certainly interesting, and will serve as well "to point a moral" for other brethren to mark and carefully consider its significance as to adorn the story of a worthy Craftsman. The features by which our brother's connection with Freemasonry has been principally distinguished are, in the first place, an utter absence from his work of all ostentation. What he has done has been done from sheer love of the Craft, not from love of self-exaltation. There has been no parade of his abilities, no undue eagerness to win the praise of his fellows. On the contrary, he has gone about his duties in a quiet and businesslike, yet thoroughly effective, manner. It is now nearly sixteen years since he was admitted to the benefits of Masonic light, and in that time he has made more than one mark with which his name will be associated long after he has been gathered to his fathers. Then he has been a studious Mason, and one who has ever made it a point to be regular in his attendance at Lodge and Chapter; and what is still more to the point, he is a practical Mason, by which designation, of course, we mean that he carries out in practice the obligations he has contracted. There may, in short, be nothing brilliant about his achievements, but he has laboured earnestly and with a large heart, and he has long since found his reward in the esteem and respect with which his brethren regard him, including even those who are but slightly acquainted with him. But to our task of relating his Masonic history. He was initiated in the Lodge of Sincerity, No. 174, on the 15th October 1862. Having passed through the minor offices, he at length became one of the rulers of the Lodge, and in January 1869, was rewarded by being elected to fill the Master's chair. In this capacity he did good service, and his presidency over the Lodge was so warmly appreciated, that on retiring, in due course, from his post, the members voted him a Past Master's Jewel. In October 1871, he joined the King Harold Lodge, No. 1327, of Waltham New Town, in the Province of Herts, and in three years' time he filled the chair of his Lodge, receiving, as in the case of his Mother Lodge, a similar recognition of his merits on retirement from the cares of office. In December 1872, he was installed the first W.M. of the Langthorne Lodge, No. 1421, Stratford, of which he has the honour of having been the founder; and in 1876 he founded, and in the month of August was installed the first Worshipful Master of the Tredegar Lodge, No. 1625, Bow. A Past Master's Jewel was in each of these cases deemed only a just recognition of his valuable services by those whom he had presided over during the first year, and therefore, in many respects, the most critical period of the Lodge's existence. We have already mentioned his affiliation in 1871 to the King Harold Lodge, of Waltham New Town, in the Province of Herts, and that in October 1874, he was elected its Worshipful Master. But even before the latter office had been conferred upon him, his worth as a brother had received recognition at the hands of the Provincial authorities, for at the installation in August 1874, of the present Provincial Grand Master of Herts, our respected brother was appointed and invested a Provincial Grand Deacon.

So much for his achievements in Craft Masonry. As regards the Royal Arch, he was exalted in the Sincerity Chapter, No. 174, in October 1867, and was installed M.E.Z. in the same month of the year 1875. When his term of office was completed, he received a P.Z.'s jewel, as a slight token of the appreciation in which he was held by his Companions. He was advanced to the Mark Degree in the Thistle Lodge, No. 8, in October 1869, and was duly installed its W. Master in December 1876. On vacating the chair at the expiration of his year of office, the Thistle Mark brethren presented him with a handsome Past Master's jewel. His zeal in connection with this branch of Masonry may be judged from the fact that even before he had been chosen to fill the chair of his mother Mark Lodge, he had won for himself the honour of being one of the founders, and was the first S.W. of the Temple Mark Lodge, No. 173, which was consecrated at Stepney in 1873. In 1874, our worthy brother was unanimously elected as W.M., and on laying aside the insignia of his office when his term had expired, he was presented with a P.M.'s jewel. If further evidence of his worth as a M.M. is needed, it will be found in the fact that he is a P.G. Officer of the Mark G. Lodge. These then are the details of his Masonic career so far as they relate to his membership of various Masonic bodies, and the various important offices he has filled. If, as we have said before, there is nothing dazzling about what he has done, there is no doubt he has rendered good service. Not the least gratifying circumstance in connection with this portion of his career is the fact that in all the seven bodies—the four Craft and the two Mark Lodges—as well as in his R.A. Chapter, he has in each case attained to the highest honours it was in the power of his fellow members to confer upon him. He has the further satisfaction of knowing that his name will always be associated with two Craft Lodges and one Mark—so long, of course, as they continue in existence—in the case of the former as the founder and first Master, and in the case of the latter as a founder and the first Sen. Warden. A further source of gratification must be the knowledge that by reason of his admirable work in the one Provincial Lodge of which he is a member, he has been rewarded with Provincial honours. It is quite possible for him to make still further progress in Freemasonry. He, indeed, would himself be the last to affirm that he had reached the topmost rung of the ladder. In such case, however, he will simply have the honour of surpassing himself. He has done what in him lies to merit the distinctions conferred upon him, and the respect which is entertained towards him. Other titular honours he may receive in the days to come, but these will confirm, though they cannot enhance, his fame.

We have said that he is a practical Mason, and gives effect indeed to the principles which were enjoined upon him at his Masonic birth. Well, he is Life Governor, and has served two Stewardships in the case both of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. He is a Vice-President of, and has served four Stewardships for, the R. M. B. Institution. Moreover, his wife and son are enrolled among the Governors of the Girls' and Boys' Schools, while the former is a Life Governor of the Female, and the latter of the Male Fund of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. But this is far from representing the full extent of his labours in the cause of Charity. He has played a conspicuous part in connection with those Charity Associations which we have mentioned repeatedly in these columns, and which in a quiet substantial way are the means of raising very considerable amounts in aid of the funds of our several Charities. It would be difficult to reckon the number of Life Governorships to one or other of our Institutions which our respected brother has had his full share in creating, nor, indeed, is it necessary we should make the attempt. He is not one of those who would lay any stress on a duty adequately performed because it proved somewhat more productive of good in his own case than in that of some other Craftsman. He has played his part in these Associations, and the knowledge he has done so, is the most suitable reward he can possibly have.

Such, in outline, but here and there with greater or less fulness of detail, is the story of our brother's Masonic life. It reflects the greatest credit on him, as our ever-generous readers will probably be the first to admit. We have noted likewise, but necessarily briefly, the qualities by which he is professionally distinguished; to speak of them at length would be an impertinence. As to his social qualities, they lie on the surface of his character, and possess this further recommendation, that they are deeply rooted in his heart of heart, so that what is noticeable by his fellows is, if we may be permitted so to speak, the rich product of goodly seed which has been carefully sown in a well-tilled soil, and as carefully tended in the various stages of its growth. In short, our brother is a man of sterling worth, albeit—or it would be more accurate to say, because—in disposition he is quiet, reserved, and unostentatious. Thoughtful for others, conscientious in the performance of his duties, and zealous in the cause of Charity, he has earned for himself the love and respect of his associates in private life, in his calling, and in Freemasonry. He is the good exemplar whom the old and the young Mason alike may follow with advantage, and we hope and trust that his many and great virtues will long continue to exercise their just influence among Craftsmen.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BENGAL.

ACCORDING to the Masonic Record of Western India, the regular Quarterly Communication of this District Grand Lodge was held on the 19th January, at Freemasons' Hall, Bentinck Street, Calcutta. The R.W. the Hon. J. Pitt Kennedy District Grand Master presided, and was supported by Bros. J. B. Knight Dep. District Grand Master, T. Jones District G. S.W., H. H. Locke Past Dep. Farr District Grand Secretary, and other District Grand Officers, together with the representatives of several Lodges, and a number of visitors and Past Masters. The minutes of the previous Quarterly and a Special Communication having been confirmed, the District Grand Master briefly addressed the brethren, the only matter worthy of note to which he referred being the fact that "Lodge Energy and Fidelity," No. 1484, Dehri-on-Sone, owing to the insufficiency of members in the station, had been compelled to return its warrant. Bro. Kennedy, however, expressed a hope that the Lodge would not long remain in abeyance. The Report of the Committee of General Purposes was then read, when the following statements of account by the Grand Treasurer for the quarter to 30th November were submitted, namely: General Fund—Receipts, 541 Rs., Disbursements, including debit balance of 633 Rs., 1,912 Rs. leaving a debit balance of 1371 Rs. As regards the last two Funds they possess 500 Rs. and 7,500 Rs. respectively in government paper. As to the repairs of the punkahs and renewal of the mats throughout the Hall, after some discussion a resolution that the repairs be proceeded with, the amount expended not to exceed 500 Rs., was carried. In respect of the portrait and testimonial to Past D. G. Master Hugh D. Sandeman, it was announced that the frame, which Bro. D. J. Zemin had promised to present D. G. Lodge was ready, and that the portrait would be placed in it by the next meeting of D. G. Lodge. A Committee was then appointed consisting of Bros. H. T. Prinsep, W. B. Mactavish, W. C. Bonnerjee, D. J. Zemin, and H. H. Locke, with a view to seeing that so much of the proposed testimonial to Bro. Sandeman as was still unfulfilled, namely, the purchase and presentation of a service of plate was carried out. The report of the Committee of the Bengal Masonic Fund of Benevolence having been read, the officers for the ensuing year were invested so that the roll of Dist. Grand Officers is now as follows:—Bros. Hon. J. Pitt-Kennedy Dist. G. Master, Hon. H. T. Prinsep Dep. Dist. G.M., Hon. C. A. Turner Dist. S.G. Warden, W. C. Bonnerjee Dist. G.J. Warden, Rev. A. H. Beatts, J. R. Angus, E. H. Mulleny Dist. G. Stewards. The Committee of General Purposes for 1878 having been announced, and the sum of 84 Rs. collected for the Fund of Benevolence having been handed to the Dist. G. Treasurer, the Dist. G. Lodge was closed.

We have gleaned the following particulars as to the Report of the Punjab Masonic Institution for 1877 from the columns of the Masonic Record of Western India. The annual general meeting was held on the 14th January at Freemasons' Hall, Lahore, R.W. Bro. Major M. Ramsay, Dist. G. Master and President, occupying the chair. The balance at the commencement of the year was 422 Rs., and the receipts, including subscriptions, donations, and interest on capital being 5,472 Rs., the total charge amounted to 5,894 Rs. The expenditure, including 1,958 Rs. for School fees in respect of the eight children on the Fund, and 3,508 Rs. for the purchase of Government paper, reached 5,726 Rs., so that there remained a balance in hand on 31st December 1877 of 168 Rs. The invested capital, consisting of 18,500 Rs. Government Paper, 1,600 Rs. Dalhousie Hall share, and 150 Rs. Meean Meer do., amounts to 20,250 Rs. For the year 1878 it was proposed to raise the number of pupils on the Fund to ten, and the budget estimate was as follows, namely—Receipts: estimated subscriptions, 1,378 Rs.; donations, 2,000 Rs.; interest, 909 Rs., and grant from Pratt Fund, 720 Rs., giving a total of 5,007 Rs. Expenditure: Bishop Cotton School, six boys, boarders, 2,160 Rs.; Lahore High School, one boy, day scholar, 100 Rs.; Young Ladies' Seminary, Simla, day scholar, 144 Rs.; Mrs. Oertel's Seminary, Murree, one boarder, 300 Rs.; and Young Ladies' High School, Lahore, one boarder, 240 Rs., making together 2,944 Rs. The son of Bro. Griffiths and the son of the late Bro. Hill having been elected to the Fund, and it having been announced that the boy J. Asquith, apprenticed to the Railway Workshops last year, was doing well, and that Herbert and Wood, two of the boys at Bishop Cotton School, had passed the entrance examination to the Calcutta University in the first division, the meeting was brought to a close. The Report is in every way satisfactory. There are eighteen Lodges in the District, and the subscriptions and donations for 1877 exceeded 5,700 Rs., or an average of upwards of £20 per Lodge, while the invested funds exceed £2,000. Well done, Punjab!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Diseases of the skin.—No case of disease of the skin, be its nature what it may, has failed to be benefited when these potent remedies have been properly applied. In scrofulous and scorbutic affections they are especially serviceable. Scurvy and eruptions, which had resisted all other modes of treatment and gradually become worse from year to year, have been completely cured by Holloway's cooling Ointment, and purifying Pills, which root out the disease from the blood itself and leave the constitution free from every morbid taint. In the nursery Holloway's Ointment should be ever at hand; it will give ease in sprains, contusions, burns, scalds, and infantile eruptions, and may always safely be applied by any ordinary attendant.

THE UNITED GRAND LODGE OF ENGLAND.

THE Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday evening, the Earl of Carnarvon Pro Grand Master, in the absence of the Prince of Wales, occupying the chair. There were present R.W. Bro. John Fawcett Prov. Grand Master, Durham, who occupied the chair of Deputy Grand Master, Lord Henniker Grand Senior Warden, Sir Harcourt Johnstone Bart., M.P., G.J.W., Lieut.-General J. S. Brownrigg Prov. Grand Master Surrey, Colonel Burdett Prov. G.M. Middlesex, Montagu J. Guest Prov. G.M. Dorset, S. Rawson P.D.G.M. of China, Æ. McIntyre Grand Registrar, John Hervey Grand Sec., Sir Albert Woods Grand Director of Ceremonies, Rev. Bros. H. A. Pickard and H. A. Hill Grand Chaplains, Bros. Erasmus Wilson Grand Senior Deacon, Captain Philips P. Grand Deacon, J. C. Parkinson Past G. Deacon, H. A. Buss G. Assist. Secretary, Rev. R. J. Simpson P.G. Chaplain, Alderman Hadley, Dr. Jabez Hogg, John Wordsworth P.G. Steward, Col. Shadwell H. Clerke G.S.D., T. Cubitt, Joshua Nunn, Raphael Costa G.J.D., P. de Lande Long P.G D., John A. Rucker President Colonial Board, H. C. Levander, Brackstone Baker, W. E. Gumbleton, S. Rosenthal, Rev. C. M. Arnold P.G.C., Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes, W. Hyde Pullen, B. Head, &c., &c., &c. The minutes of the last Quarterly Communication and of the Grand Festival having been confirmed, the Pro Grand Master rose for the purpose of moving the resolution of which he had given notice, and which stood originally as follows, namely: "That this Grand Lodge agree in a vote of congratulation to His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons, on his happy and providential escape from the recent attempt on his life." His Lordship, however, pointed out that since his notice had been placed on the agenda paper, a second attempt, and with far graver results, had been made on the Emperor's life. He was, as on the former occasion, driving through the streets of his capital when shots were fired at him, and he was seriously wounded, at a time moreover, when his life was of the greatest value in the councils of Europe. Generally, in these cases, the bullet or the dagger of the assassin had been providentially turned aside, and in this instance all must fervently pray that the life of the august Emperor would be spared. His great age, the signal services he had rendered to his country, his anxiety for the welfare of his people, his love of German unity, all ought to have pleaded in his behalf and saved him from such attacks. Throughout Germany there prevailed a feeling of horror and indignation at the crime, the same feeling was experienced throughout Europe, and last but not least in this country. It was not the habit of English Freemasons to mix themselves up with political affairs, but an event of this character was above the ordinary political level. Moreover, unlike many other sovereigns, his Imperial Majesty had not only not been afraid of Freemasonry, but he had identified himself with it, and was Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons. Having stated thus much his Lordship announced that under the circumstances he should submit his motion in an altered form so as to express the abhorrence of the Grand Lodge of England at the foul attempts made upon the life of His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of Germany, Grand Protector of Prussian Freemasons, and the hope that the Great Architect of the Universe would be pleased to spare the life of one so valuable in the Councils of Europe. R.W. Bro. J. Fawcett P.G.M. Durham, having seconded the motion, it was carried with acclamation, on which Lord Carnarvon stated that His Royal Highness the Grand Master would have the record of the vote submitted to him for signature, and that it would then be forwarded.

A grant of £100 out of the Fund of General Purposes was then made towards assisting the members of the Igualdad Lodge, No. 653, Curaçoa, West Indies, who suffered from the hurricane on the 23rd September last. The report of the Committee appointed at the last Communication, to enquire into the financial and banking arrangements of Grand Lodge was then submitted, and the Pro Grand Master stated that, by reason of a technical error, it would be impossible for the Grand Lodge to entertain the report. He might state however, that the Committee, of which he had acted as the Chairman, had come unanimously to the conclusion that the current account of Grand Lodge be kept at the Bank of England in the names of the Grand or Pro Grand Master, the Dep. Grand Master, and Grand Treasurer, who should give an authority to pay cheques, signed as heretofore, and countersigned by the Grand Secretaryship. It would be necessary for the reason he had stated that the consideration of the Report should be postponed till the next Communication of Grand Lodge, but, under the circumstances, it was his Lordship's duty to submit a resolution embodying the above recommendation of the Committee of enquiry with the omission, however, of "Grand Treasurer," as for the present, no one had been appointed to fill that office. This resolution which, be it remarked, will necessitate an alteration in the Constitutions was seconded by Bro. John Fawcett and carried. The Earl of Carnarvon then stated that owing to an engagement he was under the necessity of vacating the chair, and his Lordship having invited Bro. John Fawcett to preside in his place, quitted Grand Lodge in company with Sir Harcourt Johnstone G.J.W. Col. Burdett then took the chair of Dep. G. Master, and Captain Platt that of Grand J. Warden.

Grand Lodge next proceeded to the election of members of the Board of General Purposes, the Colonial Board, and the Committee of Management of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. The following were appointed Scrutineers:—Bros. C. A. Cottebrune, Jas. Terry, H. Bartlett, H. Garrod, W. H. Lee, Jos. Smith, John Newton, Edwin Bare, W. J. Murlis, W. Hilton, James Willing jun., and Walter Hopekirk, and the result of the scrutiny will be found appended to this report. The Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter was submitted, and the several grants, as enumerated in these columns last week, were confirmed. The Report of the Board of General Purposes, to which was subjoined a Statement of Grand Lodge Accounts, and the Annual Report, dated 17th May 1878, of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution were then submitted; and Bro. B. Head's motion, to the effect that the sum of £70 be given from the Fund of General Purposes for the purpose of supplying coals during the winter season to the residents of the Institution at Croydon having been agreed to, and Bro. Fawcett having announced that the G. Master had nominated Bro. J. B. Monckton as President of the Board of General Purposes, and Bro. John A. Rucker as President of the Colonial Board, Grand Lodge was closed in the usual manner.

GRAND LODGE OF MARK MASTER MASONS.

BY far the largest and most important gathering of Grand Mark Lodge since the establishment of the Order of Mark Masonry took place on Tuesday, the 4th inst., for the purpose of installing the Rt. Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, the Deputy Grand Master of English Freemasonry, into the exalted position of Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Order. The Present and Past Grand Officers, and Worshipful Masters and members of the several Lodges entitled to attend, assembled in considerable numbers at Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, W.C., at the appointed hour, and Grand Lodge was opened at five o'clock in the afternoon by the M.W. Grand Mark Master, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick. Amongst those present were the M.W.P.G.M. the Rev. George Raymond Portal, R.W.D.G.M. Lord Skelmersdale; the R.W. Bros. the Rev. W. K. R. Bedford, P.G.M.M. Stafford and Warwickshire, W. H. Giddy, P.G.M.M. South Africa; the V.W. Bros. Lord Henniker, D. M. Dewar G.S.O., the Rev. P. M. Holden, and F. W. Thoyts G. Chaplains, F. Davison G. Spencer P.G.I.G., Alfred Williams, H. Massey, J. H. Piggott, and C. Pulman P.G. Stewards. There were also present a large number of Provincial Grand Officers and private members of Lodges, whose names we were unable to obtain; and the list of apologies for absence was lengthy, and still further testified to the great interest taken in the meeting. The proceedings were opened by the confirmation of the minutes of the previous Grand Mark Lodge meeting, and the report of the General Board was then read and the several recommendations therein contained discussed. Amongst the most important of these was a proposal to increase the number of nominations for the office of Stewards, the application of a portion of the Benevolent Fund towards the education of orphans and children of Mark Master Masons, and the investment of a sum of money in bonds on account of the General Fund. The installation of the M.W.G.M. elect was then proceeded with, and the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale was presented by the M.W.P.G.M. the Rev. G. R. Portal, who took occasion to refer to the fact, that the appointment of the noble Lord formed one more link in the chain of unity between the Mark degree and the Grand Lodge of England, of which his Lordship is the Deputy Grand Master. The M.W.G.M.M. the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Limerick then ably inducted his successor, addressing him in most appropriate terms in respect of the duties of his office, and congratulating him on the position which the Order has attained in the ranks of Freemasonry. The M.W.G.M.M. having been saluted in ancient form acknowledged the honour conferred upon him, stating it to be the highest he could hope to obtain of the many dignities in connection with Freemasonry, and expressing his devotion to the Order and his intention to endeavour to promote its interests in every respect. He concluded by extolling the labours of the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick during his three years of Grand Mastership, and in the name of Grand Lodge presented that noble Lord a very handsome and substantial jewel in recognition thereof. The Earl of Limerick in thanking Grand Lodge, in most cordial terms acknowledged the assistance rendered to him by his Grand Officers, and gracefully complimented them. Notice was given of the intention to hold a moveable Grand Lodge under the auspices of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmoreland, at the Court House, Keswick, on Friday, the 14th June, when the Fletcher Lodge, No. 213, and the Henry Lodge, No. 216, will be respectively consecrated. Grand Mark Lodge was then closed in solemn form, and the members adjourned to banquet, which was, in the unavoidable absence of the M.W.G.M.M., presided over by the Earl of Limerick.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

THE monthly meeting of the General Committee of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys was held at the Freemasons' Hall last Saturday afternoon. Bro. Henry Browse, P.G.D., presided. The meeting was very largely attended, the election of the House Committee being on the day's paper of business. After the minutes of the last meeting had been confirmed, Bros. Webster, H. Cox, Willing, Cubitt and Jardine were appointed Scrutineers of votes for the election. The petitions of the friends of five candidates were then considered, and the five children were placed on the list for October. The salary of the Assistant Matron was raised from £40 to £50 a year, and Bro. Binckes reported that Bro. Pluckuett, the Treasurer, had received from Mr. Turquand, as representing the estate of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co., £730 0s 3d, paid by the Hants and North Wilts Bank as a composition at the rate of 9s in the £1 on the balance of this Institution in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival and Co. at the date of their failure. Bro. Binckes said there was an amount of £75 4s 4d to the credit of the Institution on the Sustentation Fund, but this would probably be paid in full out of the private estate of Bro. Samuel Tomkins. Bro. Binckes read a resolution of the Lodge of Harmony, 298, Rochdale, congratulating the Institution on its success at the last Cambridge Local Examination. Outfits were granted to four late pupils, who had obtained situations, and were conducting themselves with satisfaction to their employers. £100 was voted from the General to the Sustentation Fund, and Bro. Benjamin Head reported the presentation of Mrs. Monckton's portrait. Dr. Jabez Hogg having suggested the desirability of providing workshops at the Institution, for the cultivation of a knowledge of Mechanical Arts among the pupils, the subject was referred to the House Committee, to consider and report upon to the next Quarterly Court. The following brethren were elected the House Committee:—

PRESENTATION OF A TESTIMONIAL TO DR. STRONG.

THE usual Quarterly Visit of the House Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was paid at the Asylum at Croydon on the 31st ult., and after the business of the day was over, a few friends were invited to meet Dr. Strong, the Honorary Surgeon to the Institution, and Mrs. Strong at dinner, whereat Col. Creaton, Vice-patron and Trustee, presided as Chairman. Bro. Terry, Secretary to the Institution, took the Vice-chair, and the other ladies and gentlemen present were Bro. Samuel Rawson, Bro. Raynham Stewart, Bro. J. A. Farnfield, Bro. Morgan, Bro. George Forster, Bro. H. Massey, Bro. James Adams, Mr. Hunt, Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Hunt, and Bro. Norris, Warden. The occasion of the party was to witness the presentation of a handsome silver service of plate, of the value of 100 guineas, which, on the motion of Bro. Raynham Stewart, the Committee of Management—as reported in the columns of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE—voted to Dr. Strong, as Honorary Surgeon of the Institution. After dinner, Col. Creaton first proposed "The Institution," which Bro. Terry acknowledged, and said he hoped it would maintain its present proud position of being at the head of the three Institutions in the amount of its annual receipts. It was now paying to 280 aged brethren and widows £10,300 a year; and last year its receipts amounted to the grand total of over £16,000. When Dr. Strong first became Honorary Surgeon to the Institution its income was only £2000 or £3000 a year. The Chairman, in presenting Dr. Strong with the testimonial, said Dr. Strong had done good suit and service to the Institution for many years, and his services had not been forgotten by the Committee. At the last meeting of the Committee a hundred guineas were voted for the purpose of providing a testimonial to him, and though this was but a small recognition of his eminent services, Dr. Strong would take it in the spirit in which it was meant. It was not only the Committee, but all the inmates of the Institution, who were fully alive to the care and attention he paid to them. The inscription on the salver, which was a portion of the testimonial, was:—"Presented, together with a service of plate of the value of one hundred guineas, by the Committee of Management, on behalf of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, to HENRY JOHN STRONG, Esq., M.D., Past Prov. Grand Warden Surrey, in recognition of the great attention and valuable services rendered by him to the residents of the Institution at Croydon during a period of 17 years as the Honorary Surgeon. 31st May 1878." He trusted that Dr. Strong would live many years to pursue his life of usefulness, and, together with Mrs. Strong, look upon this testimonial with feelings of satisfaction. Dr. Strong, who was visibly affected, in reply—after apologising for his inability to return thanks adequately—said, that it was true he had been connected with the Institution for more than seventeen years, but still he trusted that it might be many years before his connection with it was severed. It was also his hope that the connection between the Chairman and the Committee might long continue, and that the brethren might long see an extended course of the career of usefulness which had resulted to the Institution from that connection. What he had done for the Institution was a labour of love. The Institution was a hobby of his, and he always endeavoured, both in the building and abroad, to do the best he could for it. The other Masonic Institutions had no doubt great claims on the Craft, but he held that to solace the aged and afflicted was the primary duty of Freemasons. That was the object he had in view, and he had always tried to give effect to it. Time had wrought great changes in the Institution. The number of its annuitants had greatly increased since he was first its Honorary Surgeon. Bro. Terry had said that they were now spending £10,000 where they, seventeen years ago, spent £3,000; and as this was the case, it was a proof that even greater exertions on behalf of the Institution were required than heretofore. The handsome present just made to him would be an encouragement to him to go on in the future as he had gone on in the past. He looked upon it as an exceedingly kind and considerate thing that the testimonial should have been presented to him in the very building where his labours had been carried on, where he was surrounded by those brethren and widows to whom he had endeavoured to be of service. He tendered his best thanks to Bro. Raynham Stewart for proposing to the Committee of Management that this testimonial should be voted. This was not the first time his services had been recognised, for in January 1877 the inmates of the Institution presented him with the handsome watch he was now wearing, a cabinet of microscopical instruments, and the elegant locket which his wife now wore. He concluded by thanking the brethren, and hoping that if he had not said sufficient the company would ascribe it to his inability to say all he felt. "The health of the Chairman" was proposed by Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, and Col. Creaton, in reply, expressed what great pleasure it had given him to present the testimonial to Dr. Strong. "The health of Dr. and Mrs. Strong, with many happy returns of the day," was proposed by Bro. Terry, the following day being the anniversary of their wedding day. Mr Hunt returned thanks for the toast of "The Visitors," and testified, as an old resident in Croydon, to the usefulness of Dr. Strong as a public man. Some other toasts were afterwards honoured, and the brethren returned to town after spending a delightful evening.

Hilda Chapter, Rose Croix.—The regular Meeting of this Chapter was held at the Queen's Hotel, York, on Monday last, at 3 p.m. Present, Bros. T. Cooper M.W.S., C. J. Banister 33°, S. G. ### AN OLD DOGGREL.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In turning over the leaves of an old Bible (date 1611) the other day, I discovered the enclosed M.S. doggrel verses, which in spite of their rude construction may possibly be considered worthy of a corner in your pages. There are one or two curious allusions bearing apparently on Masonic legends. The verses, judging from the style of the writing and faded condition of the ink, were probably penned about the end of the last century, and the watermark of the paper has the date 1791. Probably they are the effort of an operative Mason inspired by thirst.

I am, yours fraternally,

T. B. WHITEHEAD.

York, 5th June, 1878.

Most noble Master, glad we are to see you come this day,
In health, to view your lofty Tower, and Workmen to survey,
The garden walls goe on apace, but still we pine and fret,
For fear the ale from Rushyford be spoiled by the heat.
While many people fear the same, in vain their lungs they waste,
For how should we their doubts resolve unless we should it taste.
If you this joke accept but well, and grant us this small favour,
Great Sir, you would revive the Heart of the old Mason Labourer.
A cup of this right Stingo, Sir, would make us quite alert,
And to get forward with the work we'll all ourselves exert.
I'll my Three Masters mild commands do without hesitation,
May all their plans attract your Eye, and meet your approbation.
When your fair Consort by your side accompanys you here,
She'll stand surpriz'd for to behold how quick the Walls we rear:
But Gratitude claims our best wish, so for donations past
May God protect you through this Life and crown you at the last.
Your most obedient, noble Sir, adhere unto this Wonder,
Adam has spoke from of the Tower, with voice as loud as Thunder.
I am afraid my feet will slip and I again shall fall,
Because there is no soldering ale put in the lead at all:
When reinstated on my stand happy I thought my fate,
And understood the Masons would my joys congratulate;
These souls would quaff from hand to hand, had they but your donation;
And sing and wish I firm may stand in former situation.
Have statues sence? have stones got ears? some censuring critick cries;
Sure Joshua's Stone* heard Israel's God, or else the Scripture lyes.
Whether or no, it matters not, we'll thank you for the favour,
Hope you'll accept this as a joke from your poor Mason Labourer.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Among the number of candidates all equally eager to secure the vacant post of Secretary to the Girls' School, there is scarcely one who is in any way conspicuously known in the Craft. I well remember when the late Bro. Little sought the suffrages of the Life Governors under similar circumstances, although at the time only holding an inferior position on the staff of Grand Lodge Officials, he had already made his mark, and was well known for urbanity, learning, gift of thought, and general Masonic abilities, not only in London, but equally so in the provinces. Again, genial Bro. Terry, when he aspired to succeed the late Bro. Farnfield, had long secured for himself a wide-spread reputation for possessing the qualities necessary for the efficient discharge of the important duties of such an office. I have no recollection of the election of Bro. Binckes, but for many years past he has afforded ample opportunities for judging that he must have possessed all the power and energy which has enabled him to ensure the undeniable success of the Institution of which he is the guiding spirit. But who are the men who now stand forward? I have no desire, and far be it from my very thoughts to say one single disparaging word against any of them. Yet it seems to me the Craft is more than justified in demanding to know something of him to whom the guidance of one of its cherished institutions is about to be entrusted. In every kind of important election, candidates make it a point to meet constituents, and frequently not only principles, but manner and matter of speech go far to influence a decision. Even an aspirant to a civil service clerkship, the emolument for which probably does not reach far above the magnificent sum of one hundred pounds per annum, has to submit to harassing and often laborious competitive examinations. Why, in this instance, where such high interests are at stake, should success depend not upon capacity, but upon the good fortune of being able to secure the greatest number of friends among those entitled to vote, and whose leisure or avocations will enable them to be present personally on the day of the poll. For proxy voting seems entirely out of the question, and consequently vast numbers will be debarred from recording their vote altogether. Many ways might be suggested to bring about a meeting of candidates and voters, but there is one which possesses the rare merit of efficacy combined with economy Most regular Lodges are closed this time in the year, but Lodges of Instruction are open every evening in the week. An announcement that one or more of the candidates inten to be present at a given place and date for the purpose of advocating their claims for support, would infallibly result in a large gathering of voters whose judgment may be relied upon, and, therefore, the fittest man would have the best chance of success. This mode of testing the merits of candidates is suggested by the W.M. of the Tranquillity Lodge, and many Past Masters and influential brethren have spoken to me to the same effect. As the matter stands at present considerable dissatisfaction is expressed, which it might be wise for the authorities to take note of. I am sure no one will dispute that, at this juncture, the greatest precaution is necessary that no step be taken which might in any way prove disadvantageous to the Institution.

Fraternally yours,

E. GOTTHEIL.

SUMMER BANQUET OF THE FORTITUDE AND OLD CUMBERLAND LODGE, No. 12.

MANY Lodges have now closed their doors for regular meetings until October, but of late years it has become popular to hold summer banquets; this enables the brethren to enjoy a day's outing, and acts as a connecting link to remind them of the social hours passed in Lodge. The members of the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, No. 12, look forward to these Summer gatherings; last year they dined at the Ship, at Greenwich, on which occasion H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master was the guest, at the same establishment, of the Officers of the Prince of Wales's own Norfolk Regiment of Militia, and the ringing cheers given him on his departure testified the loyalty of the members. Under the presidency of the W.M. Bro. Nicols, and through the exertions of Bro. L. Ruf P.M. and Treas., it was arranged that the meeting this year should take place at the Star and Garter, Richmond, and a prettier spot could not have been selected. On this occasion, however, nearly every house in Richmond shewed a symbol of mourning as a mark of respect to the late Earl Russell, whose funeral had been fixed for the same day. Luncheon was served at the residence of the W.M., at Surbiton. The brethren then repaired to the Star and Garter, Richmond. The dinner was served in the Old Coffee Room of this establishment, the only room that escaped the ravages of the fire which occurred some few years ago. It overlooks the river, and a splendid view of the magnificent scenery which surrounds the house can be obtained here. The dinner, dessert and wines were all that could be desired, and were supplied by the Company, under the able direction of the Secretary and Manager, Bro. G. Rudolph Hunt. The W.M. Bro. D. Nicols occupied the chair, while the Wardens' chairs were filled by Bros. J. W. Mower and Coombs. The Chairman proposed the health of the Queen and the rest of the Royal Family. Bro. W. B. Kidder I.P.M. then rose: he had great pleasure in proposing the health of the W.M., whose good qualities were well known to all. He was ever mindful of the calls of charity, and his liberal contributions to the Institutions evidenced his interest in their welfare. Bro. Nicols, in reply, said it was a great privilege to occupy the chair of so distinguished and ancient a Lodge; he was proud that day to be honoured by the presence of the R.W. the Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex. He thanked the brethren for their expressions, and hoped that his efforts to please them had given satisfaction. Bro. W. B. Kidder I.P.M., with the permission of the W.M., proposed the health of their distinguished guest,—the R.W. Bro. Col. Burdett, Prov. G.M. Middlesex; we all know his great qualifications and his zeal in the cause of Masonry; we know him also in connection with his distinguished relative, the Baroness Burdett Coutts, whose name is a household word in every charity; he would ask them to give a hearty reception to the toast. Bro. Col. Burdett thanked Bro. Kidder for his kind expressions, and for the hearty reception his name had been received with. The Prov. Grand Officers he had appointed during the ten years he had been Prov. G.M. of Middlesex had always done their duty; he was proud of them. In speaking of his illustrious relative, Col. Burdett said she had done good service for Masonry, and she was proud of the Lodge named after her. Whenever she was asked to contribute to the Three Charities, she was always ready and willing. For himself, ever since he had occupied the chair as Prov. G.M. for Middlesex, he had received every kindness, and it was to him a great amount of pleasure to see how the Province had prospered. He thanked them for their hearty recognition of the toast. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the Visitors, and called on Bro. Curlier, No. 11, to respond. This brother thanked the W.M. for the hospitality he had shown, not only on this, but on many other occasions; he knew the Visitors appreciated his kindness; he had provided them a most enjoyable day. Bro. W. B. Kidder replied for the Past Masters. It was an honour to respond to this toast; the P.M.'s were always anxious to do service and exert themselves for the benefit of the Lodge. The W.M. said there was one toast that ought not to be omitted, and that was the health of Bro. Leopold Ruf; he was the Treasurer of the Lodge, and to him was due the success of the day. He always looked after their creature comforts in the Lodge, and was ever a good and kind Brother; he would ask all present to give him a hearty greeting. Bro. Ruf thanked the W.M. and the brethren for their reception of the toast. This was the thirteenth year he had served the office of Treasurer. He had been twenty-one years a P.M., and whatever he had done for the Lodge was for its benefit. He was Father of the Lodge, and had been connected with it for twenty-eight years. In replying for the Officers, Bros. Mower, Coombs, and E. E. Kidder made excellent speeches, and the brethren then separated, after passing a most enjoyable day. Among those present were Bros. A. Snelgrove P.M. Sec., W. B. Kidder, Sidney Rolls, Dudley Rolls, Angold, R. W. Stewart, G. Snelgrove, Lilley, Matthews, H. Mower, A. Porter, E. E. B. Kidder, T. W. Elliott, G. Hudson, Walker, Crouch, Krehl, Buttenbach, &c.; while among the Visitors were Bros. Col. Burdett Prov. G.M. Middlesex, Dr. Barringer, Dr. Carpenter, Dr. Ramsay, Dr. Saunders Green, Paul Storr, Winn, Fountain Meen, Ward, Curlier, Randley, A. Glaser, H. M. Levy, &c.

THE PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF LEICESTERSHIRE.

THE half-yearly meeting was held on Wednesday, at the Assembly Rooms, Three Swans Hotel, Market Harborough, the Right Hon. the Earl Ferrers, Prov. Grand Master, in the chair. A very good attendance of brethren was present, amongst others being Brothers G. Toller jun., Past G.S.B. of England, Rev. W. Langley, P.P.S.G.W., S. S. Partridge, P.P.S.G.W. and P.G. Sec., T. Macaulay, P.P.J.G.D., Dr. Grant, W.M. of the Harborough Lodge, J. H. Douglass, Rev. J. Halford, Beaumont Smith, P.S.G.W., Rev. F. H. Richardson, Prov. G. Chaplain, Dr. Hunt, of Thurnby, W.M. of the Albert Edward Lodge, No. 1560, S. Cleaver, Prov. G. Director of Ceremonies, and many members of the local lodges, and from the Leicester and Melton lodges. The Grand Lodge was opened at three o'clock and the business transacted included the adoption of a lengthened report presented by the Charity Committee. A vote of thanks for his services as Steward of the Masonic Girls' School Festival, was unanimously given to Brother Partridge, and a sum of money to a brother, who, from losses and illness, was recommended by the Charity Committee. At the conclusion of the business the dinner was served under the presidency of the popular Prov. Grand Master. The D.P.G.M., Sir H. St. John Halford, Bart., was prevented being present through illness.

We learn from le Monde Maçonnique, that the Lodge Les Sages d'Héliopolis of the Orient of Bucharest, has just contributed the handsome sum of 6,450 francs (£258), one moiety for the relief of the soldiers wounded during the war, and the other for the benefit of the widows and orphans of those who have fallen victims to its ravages. It has also remitted to the Grand Orient of France 100 francs, as a subscription towards the celebration of the Centenary of Voltaire, and 150 francs as its contribution for the years 1878, 1879, and 1880, to the Masonic General Orphanage at Paris.

It will be seen from our advertisement columns, that in order to give every facility to Mark Masons to be present at the Moveable Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons which will be held at Keswick on Friday next, the 14th inst., the following arrangements have been made with the London and North Western Railway Company, by which brethren will be conveyed from London to Keswick and back in first Class Saloon Carriages on the following terms:—for fifty and upwards, at the rate of 53s 4d each; for twenty-five and under fifty, at the rate of 64s. The train will leave Euston Station at 10 a.m., on Thursday the 13th June, and return from Keswick on Tuesday, the 18th June. Brethren who propose to avail themselves of these terms, are requested to inform the Grand Secretary at his offices, 2 Red Lion-square W.C., not later than Tuesday next, the 11th inst., in order that the necessary arrangements may be made.

The installation meeting of the Crystal Palace Lodge, No. 742, was held at the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge, on Thursday last. Bro. Charles D. Hume, P.M. Etonian Lodge, was duly installed by the outgoing Master, Bro. R. Roberts. Full report in our next.

The new and commodious Head Quarters of the Metropolitan Fire Brigade, in Southwark Bridge Road, were opened on Saturday last by Sir Jas. M'Garel Hogg, M.P., Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works. The building, which was formerly known as Winchester House, forms the largest Fire Brigade Station in the world. The freehold has cost £38,000, and the establishment £32,000, but the Board of Works will be recouped to the extent of close upon £20,000. The premises include a spacious engine station, stables, smithy, several fine outbuildings, a courtyard, and apartments for Captain Shaw in the front portion of the old House. Watling Street Station, the old head quarters of the Brigade, will not be closed, and, indeed, it was said by Mr. Edwards, Chairman of the Fire Brigade of the Board of Works, that the city will be better protected than ever under the new arrangements. At present twenty-eight married, and twenty-six single men are accommodated in the station. Both Sir J. Hogg, and Mr. Edwards bore testimony to the ability and energy of Captain Shaw, and it is only just to add that Bros. Hook and Oldrey, builders, of Westbourne Park, who were entrusted with the arrangement of the premises, have done their work admirably.

We read in the Masonic Jewel for last month that the Sixteenth Annual Conclave of the Grand Commandery of Tennessee was held at the Masonic Hall, Nashville, on the 3rd and 4th May, under the auspices of Nashville Commandery, No. 1, the members of which had made the most extensive preparations for the reception of the visiting Commanderies. The following are the principal Grand Officers elected for the ensuing year, namely, Sir Knights Wilbur F. Foster Grand Commander, G. C. Connor Dep. Grand Commander, Joseph H. Fussell Grand Generalissimo, Rev. T. J. Duncan Grand Prelate, Will. D. Robinson Grand Capt. General, Benjamin F. Haller Grand Senior Warden, Will. P. Robertson Grand Junior Warden, N. S. Woodward Grand Treasurer, Morton B. Howell Grand Recorder, Geo. W. Albers Grand Std. Bearer, and Harry Wilcox, Grand Sword Bearer. The prize for competitive drill, offered by Nashville Commandery, No. 1, was awarded to St. Elmo Commandery, No. 15, Memphis. It consisted of a beautiful gold medallion, with appropriate emblems embossed on it, and the presentation took place in the dining-room of Maxwell House, in the presence of a large concourse of ladies and Knights Templar. The next Annual Conclave is fixed for the second Thursday in May 1879, at Pulaski.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE House of Lords did not sit on Thursday last, nor did its session the day following occupy half an hour, as a question about the loss of the German ironclad Grosser Kurfurst, which was answered by Lord Elphinstone, and one by Lord Granville, whether the Government had taken any steps towards recognising the political services of the late Earl Russell, to which the Premier gave a reply in the affirmative, together with the second reading of the Telegraphs Bill, were the only matters which deserve notice. On Monday, the Marquis of Salisbury had the satisfaction of being able to announce that the Government had that day received an invitation from Count Munster, the German Ambassador, in which, in the name of the Emperor William, he invited England to a Congress at Berlin for the purpose of discussing with the other signatory Powers to the treaties of 1856 and 1871, the stipulations of the preliminary Treaty of San Stefano between Russia and Turkey. His Lordship stated, that in reply he had accepted the invitation on the part of the Cabinet on the understanding that the invitation to the other signatories had been couched in the same terms, and that in accepting it they were prepared to assent to the terms stated in his Excellency's note. This announcement was received with cheers, and Earl Granville congratulated the Government on the success thus far of their policy; but on the question whether the Prime Minister and the Foreign Minister were to be Her Majesty's representatives to the Congress being answered in the affirmative, the noble Earl expressed some dissatisfaction with the appointments which, he said, were without precedent, and because it was unnecessary and likewise very undesirable that the two principal members of the Ministry should be absent together, especially if questions should arise on which it might be found expedient to consult the rest of the Cabinet. The Earl of Beaconsfield fully admitted that the case was unprecedented, but he said it was necessary at times to create precedents, and he further argued that so far from the absence of the two ministers named lessening the importance of the other members of the Cabinet, it would give them greater prominence than ever. The noble Earl concluded by saying that the appointments had been deemed the best that could be made, and pointed out that the Government were fully sensible of the responsibility they incurred and were prepared to meet it. The conversation was continued a little longer, after which, in reply to Earl Granville, the Marquis of Salisbury said that the condition of the Emperor William, whose life had been attempted the day previous was satisfactory, and he expressed a hope that His Imperial Majesty would speedily be restored to perfect health. A question about the raising of the Eurydice having been answered their Lordships shortly afterwards adjourned. On Tuesday, the Eurydice was the subject of a further question, after which the House went into Committee on the Public Health Act (1875) Amendment Bill, the several clauses of which were, after some discussion, agreed to, and the Bill was ordered to be reported.

The House of Commons had a very protracted sitting on Thursday, and an unseemly squabble for some time prevented the House from resolving itself into Committee of Supply on the Civil Service Estimates, but when it did so a considerable number of votes was agreed to, but in some cases not without a division. On resuming, the Consolidated Fund (No. 3) and the Exchequer Bonds (No. 2) Bill passed through Committee, and the House went into Committee on the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors on Sunday (Ireland) Bill, and after a long and desultory and sometimes heated conversation, its opponents agreed to its passing through Committee on the understanding that the discussion on the remaining new clauses should be taken on the report. On Friday, after the usual questions had been disposed of, the O'Conor Don rose to call attention to the subject of Irish University Education, and to move a resolution declaring its condition to be unsatisfactory and in need of the immediate attention of Parliament. Mr. Lowe followed with a speech, and then the discussion was interrupted by Sir G. Bowyer rising to order, and having stated that Mr. Wykeham Martin was at the moment lying dead in the library of the House, he moved that they should at once adjourn. Other members, including the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Marquis of Hartington, having expressed their deep regret at the death of the hon. member, and also their acquiescence in the motion, the House rose at ten minutes to six. On Monday, Mr. Hanbury gave notice of his intention to bring under the notice of the House certain language contained in an article in the Nineteenth Century on the employment of Indian troops, which purports to have been written by a Privy Councillor of Her Majesty and a former First Lord of the Treasury (Mr. Gladstone), and to move a resolution declaring such language is to be condemned as inopportune and calculated to promote sedition in Her Majesty's Indian Empire. After the Chancellor of the Exchequer had made a similar announcement about the Congress to that made in the House of Lords by the Marquis of Salisbury, and when the telegrams as to the condition of the Emperor of Germany's health had been read by Mr. Bourke, and when the Chancellor of the Exchequer had explained what the Government had done in order to show due respect to the late Earl Russell, the adjourned debate on the O'Conor Don's motion on Irish University education was resumed, but, on a division, it was lost by 200 to 67. The Report on Supply was then brought up and agreed to, and the rest of the business having been disposed of, the House rose. At the morning sitting on Tuesday Mr. Chaplin's motion, that the House at its rising should stand adjourned over Wednesday, the Derby day, till Thursday, was agreed to by 225 to 95. The House then went into Committee on the Roads and Bridges (Scotland) Bill, resuming at Clause 12 and agreeing to clauses up to 23 inclusive, when, by the rules of the House, the debate on Clause 24 was adjourned. On resuming at nine o'clock, a motion by Lord R. Churchill on the Endowed Schools of Ireland was discussed, and in the end withdrawn on the understanding that the Government would give the subject their consideration. Shortly after this the House was counted out.

The Queen received with the profoundest grief the sad intelligence of a second and almost successful attempt to assassinate the Emperor of Germany. On the arrival of the news their Imperial Highnesses the Crown Prince and Princess of Germany, who were on a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, at Hatfield, left immediately for London, and started from the Charing Cross Station en route for Berlin. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Prince and Princess Christian, the Princess Louise, and the Duke of Connaught were at the station to take leave of their Imperial Highnesses. Their Imperial Highnesses' children left on Saturday afternoon for Eastbourne, where it is expected they will remain for some time, in order to enjoy the benefit of the sea air. On Monday, by Her Majesty's command, the Prince of Wales held a Levée at St. James's Palace, at which the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian, the Duke of Teck, Prince Edward of Saxe Weimar, &c., were present. The Hon. Corps of Gentlemen-at-Arms, under Captain the Earl of Coventry, and the Yeomen of the Guards, under Captain Lord Skelmersdale, were on duty. A large number of presentations was made, these by the Queen's pleasure being deemed equivalent to presentations to Her Majesty. The Duke of Cambridge, the Princess Mary, Duchess and the Duke of Teck dined with the Earl of Beaconsfield on Tuesday evening.

Death has been playing havoc among our public men within the last few days. We have already stated that on Friday last Mr. Wykeham Martin who for the last twenty years had sat in the House of Commons as one of the members for Rochester died suddenly within the precincts of the House of Commons. Mr. Martin was only in his forty-sixth year, and his death is very greatly lamented by his fellow members. The Right Honourable Russell Gurney, who not very long since resigned the Recordership of the City of London, has also died after an illness of only a few days. Mr. Gurney was born in 1804 and had played a distinguished part in connection with the settlement of the Alabama difference between this country and the United States. The remains of the Duchess of Argyll have been removed from Westminster Abbey, where they had lain temporarily, for the north, where they were buried in the family vault on Wednesday, while on Tuesday all that was mortal of the late Earl Russell K.G. and twice Prime Minister of Great Britain, was buried in the family vault of the Russell family at Chenies, the principal mourners being the grandson of the deceased Earl, a youth of twelve who succeeds to the title, and the Hon. Rollo Russell, the surviving son of the Earl. The Duke of Bedford and other members of the family were also present.

We had scarcely had time to congratulate ourselves on the escape of the Emperor of Germany from the assassin's hand, when the news was flashed along the telegraph wires that, on Sunday afternoon, when taking his usual drive, his Imperial Majesty's life was again attempted, and, on this occasion, the would-be murderer almost succeeded in his purpose, as the aged and respected Emperor was wounded by some thirty pellets in the cheek, and on the arm, wrist, back, and breast. The chasseur in attendance at once sprang down, and entered the carriage for the purpose of supporting His Majesty, while the passers-by quickly forced an entrance into the house whence the shots had been fired, and succeeded in capturing the murderer, who proved to be a Dr. Nobiling, though not without resistance, and not till he had wounded himself, it is believed, fatally. The wounded sovereign was driven back to the palace and conveyed to bed, when the physicians having examined and tended his wounds, declared that there were at the time no dangerous symptoms, and favourable reports have been received since of His Majesty's progress towards recovery. The Crown Prince and Princess have returned to Berlin and are in attendance on His Majesty. There seems to be little doubt that the foul deed is the result of a Socialist conspiracy, and equally beyond doubt is it that the attempt has caused almost universal consternation throughout Europe, while the telegrams from other capitals, and from all parts of Germany, testify to the great respect in which the monarch is held. Let us hope that the G.A.O.T.U. may, in His wisdom, see fit to restore the Emperor to health.

The political news in connection with the Eastern Question is of a most hopeful character. It is now settled that the Congress shall meet on Thursday, the 13th inst., at Berlin, and to-day (Saturday) we understand the Earl of Beaconsfield, who will be one of the British Plenipotentiaries, will leave London on his way to the German capital. Prince Bismarck will be one of the German, and Count Schouvaloff one of the Russian representatives, while France, Italy, and Austria will be represented in part by M. Waddington, Count Costi, and Count Andrassy respectively. In the meantime, there is no relaxation on the part of our Government, whose efforts to be prepared for war are continued, and among those matters which are worthy of note must be mentioned the safe arrival of the Indian Contingent at Malta, where, at an early date, they will be reviewed by the Duke of Cambridge, accompanied, it is said, by the Prince of Wales.

We have to thank Bro. E. M. Haigh for a copy of his very beautiful photograph of the picture by Mr. C. G. Rosenberg, of New York, entitled "Freemasonry and Civilization." The original, which may be seen at Freemasons' Tavern, is described as "An Allegorical Illustration of the Rise of the Orders of Architecture," and those who are sufficiently acquainted with our lectures will be able, all the more on that account, to appreciate its beauties. The idea which connects Freemasonry with Civilization in the progress of mankind from the darkness of chaos and ignorance to the light begotten of knowledge and well-ordered institutions, is not only a wise but a just conception, and the artist's success in the execution of the idea is worthy of all praise. A pamphlet which has been published, with a view to explaining the design of the picture in all its details, fully illustrates the plan, and should be read by all who wish to interpret it aright. Here it will suffice if we note the leading points in this description. The general idea is that the progress of man is due to the joint and beneficent influence of Freemasonry and Civilization, and the Chaplain's jewel which the former carries in her right hand is typical of the religious basis on which this influence rests. These two figures, which occupy the centre of the picture, and are very beautifully drawn, are preceded and followed by other figures, arranged in two groups. That in front, and, as it were, upholding Freemasonry and her companion, consists of the Virtues, Charity, Hope, Faith, Justice, Mercy, Fortitude, &c., each of which may be distinguished by its special emblem, or in some special manner. Thus Charity is carrying a cruse of oil, some ears of corn, and some grapes. Faith is looking upwards, duplices tendens ad sidera palmas, in firm reliance on the wisdom and goodness of the Great Architect, while Hope has linked herself to Faith. Following Freemasonry is a group of three, which are intended to represent the Masonic principles of Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. These two explain and are illustrative of the basis on which Freemasonry and Civilization rely for the influence they exercise over the human race. But as to the Rise of the Orders of Architecture, our readers will be naturally anxious to learn how this idea is carried out, and how it is associated with the progress we owe to Civilization. A glance at the picture will show this; a closer examination of its details will make it most apparent, even to the outside world. We will remark in the first place that we modern Freemasons claim with reason to be connected with the Architects of old, who were the repositories of artistic and scientific knowlege. The development of architectural beauty through the ages may be taken as illustrating very fully the development of human progress, and, as a consequence, our Freemasonry—which is legitimately descended from Architecture—and Civilization—which is merely another term for the progress in science and art of the human race—are here regarded as co-existent and co-ordinate. Thus the progress in the art of building, from the rude hut and the Cyclopean cave of primitive man to the less rude gabled building, the building into which the Arch is for the first time introduced, the more ambitious Stonehenge, and then through the better known forms or orders of architecture—such as the Tuscan, the Doric indicated by the Acropolis at Athens, and the Ionic by the celebrated Temple of Diana at Ephesus, the Corinthian, which is represented in the foreground, where Callimachus is engaged in sketching the Acanthus overshadowing the box of toys, and the Composite to the left—this progress is contemporary with, and indeed, emblematic of the advancement man has made from ignorance to knowledge; and thus it is, we repeat, that the association of Freemasonry and Civilisation is fully justified. Other details there are, such as the quiet English homestead, with the fields of corn fronting it, which are emblematic of Peace and Prosperity, the line of railway showing our progress in the Practical Arts, the shipping in the distance and behind St. Paul's, representing Trade and Commerce, and St. Paul's itself which, as the work of Wren, forms the link which unites modern Freemasonry and ancient Architecture. All these are part and parcel of the general scope of the picture, while as to the Masonic emblems which are introduced in various places, there is no necessity in addressing a Masonic constituency for us to state more than that, wherever they appear, they will be found most appropriate. We will add that Mr. Rosenberg and Bro. Haigh are both entitled to the thanks of the Craft, the former for the ability with which he has carried out the design of the picture, and the latter for the great beauty and finish of his photographic reproductions.

Joppa Lodge, No. 188.—A regular meeting was held on Monday, the 3rd inst., at the Albion Hotel, Aldersgate-street. Present—Bros. Miller W.M., M. Spiegel S.W., Hyman J.W., Baker S.D., Benjamin J.D., Wymann as I.G., L. Auerbaan Treasurer, Albert P.M. Secretary, L. Lazarus I.P.M., Abraham P.M., Dodson P.M.; Bean, Martin, Rybold, Botibol, &c. After the usual formal business, Bro. Burrows was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. At the request of the W.M. of 917, and at the recommendation of Bro. H. M. Levy P.M., Bro. Goldstein, of 917, was passed to the second degree. At the close of the ceremonies several petitioners were handsomely relieved by the Lodge, after which the brethren partook of light refreshment. The usual Masonic toasts were proposed. Bro. E. P. Albert P.G.P., as usual, responded for the Grand Officers. Bro. Bean acknowledged the good wishes expressed for the Joppa Benevolent Fund, which he stated was in a most prosperous condition. Bro. Albert proposed the health of the W.M., who briefly responded. For the Visitors, Bro. Batchelor of 153, Gibraltar, and Bro. Goldstein replied. The health of the Wardens and Officers was not omitted, and then the final toast was given. The Visitors were Bros. Hunt 1611, I. Botibol 1231, S. Rowley 1602, H. E. Batchelor 153, Gibraltar, M. E. Goldstein 917, and Bro. Hamilton, a late member of this Lodge.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Met on Wednesday, the 5th instant, at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C. Bro. Walker having opened the Lodge, vacated the chair in favour of Bro. David Posener, who had expressed a wish to practise one of the degrees. There were also present Bros. Bush S.W., Harris J.W., Gottheil P.M., J. K. Pitt Sec., Alex. Posener S.D., Biddle J.D., Moss I.G., Wharman, &c. Bro. Posener's rehearsal of the first ceremony was characterised by an evidently strong desire to render it impressive, in which he succeeded to some extent. It requires intelligence and some amount of elocutionary power to give due prominence to the various interesting and important points of the beautiful Ritual, and he who does not possess the natural gift, may still accomplish a great deal by industry and perseverance. We would, therefore, advise Bro. Posener not to slacken his efforts, but to continue his endeavours; for he being a Past Master, his example is sure to be followed by the younger brethren. The rest of the Officers did their work well, Bro. Moss I.G. deserving especial mention. That brother has not yet attained the rank of M.M., yet he is able to do his duties in a manner rarely seen in a regular Lodge, and has already acquired a knowledge of some of the sectional responses, which he gives with care and intelligence. After the ceremony three of the sections were worked. Bro. Bush was elected W.M. for next Wednesday.

Percy Lodge of Instruction, No. 198.—At Bro. Fysh's, Jolly Farmers, Southgate-road, N., on Saturday last. Present—Bros. Gibbs W.M., Brasted S.W., J. Millington J.W., Pearcy Preceptor, Fenner acting Sec., Hallam sen. S.D., Western J.D., C. Lorkin I.G.; also Bros. Moss, Crosbie, Brand, Cuthbert, Elliston, J. Lorkin, Hallam jun., Willison, McDowell, Slaiter, Roberts, Mowbray, Hyland, Fysh, &c. Lodge being opened, the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was very ably rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Brand acting as candidate. Bro. Pearcy worked the first four sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Brasted was duly elected W.M. for the ensuing week; after which Lodge was closed and adjourned.

Chapter of Friendship, No. 241.—The Companions of this Chapter assembled at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on the 27th ultimo. Present—Comps. T. K. Hughes P.Z. as M.E.Z., Jas. Winsor H., A. Samuels as J., J. W. Turley P.Z. as S.E., Chapman as P.S., Thos. Salter as A.S., Davies as A.S., Peter Ball Janitor; and Comps. Henochsberg, Salter, Buchanan, Pugmire, Williams, Whitehead, Johnson, Stoddart, Rotherton, and S. M. Davies as Visitor. The Companions anticipated some work, but from some unforeseen circumstance they were disappointed. It is to be sincerely hoped that the absence of the officers from their posts on this occasion is the exception and not the rule in this Chapter. It may be taken for granted that those Companions who are anxious to improve their time and talents, and who deem punctuality to the duties of our supreme degree a striking illustration of an adherence to an important principle, will seek those rights where they can be found. The Chapter was closed until October, and the Companions were invited to supper by M.E. Comp. Turley. The usual toasts customary on such occasions were given from the chair, and responded to. The Companions spent a couple of hours agreeably, Comps. Henochsberg and Pugmire conducing greatly to their enjoyment.

Philanthropic Lodge, No. 304.—At the regular meeting of the above Lodge, on Wednesday the 29th May, an interesting presentation took place. It had been the pleasure and privilege of the brethren of the Philanthropic Lodge to contribute to the happiness of their brethren of the 17th Lancers (which regiment is now staying in Leeds) Lodge, by granting them the use of their rooms for the purposes of their meetings. In recognition of this favour, the brethren of the Military Lodge have testified their regard by presenting to the Philanthropic Lodge three handsome ebony mauls, for the use of the W.M., S.W. and J.W. Each maul or gavel is inlaid on the front with a silver plate, which bears the following inscription:—"From the 17th Lancers Lodge, 218, Irish Constitution, to the Philanthropic Lodge, 304, English Constitution, in token of their appreciation of the fraternal reception accorded to them in Leeds. May 1878." In handing the present to the W.M. of the Philanthropic Lodge, Bro. Williams, W.M. of the 17th Lancers Lodge (who was accompanied by Bro. Brown I.P.M. and Bro. Abbot P.M.), said he begged to express the sentiments of the brethren of his Lodge, and say how highly they valued the many kindnesses that had been shown them by their brethren in Leeds. The reception accorded them was far greater than they as strangers could have expected; still, it proved that in the Philanthropic Lodge, and in Leeds generally, the true spirit of Freemasonry flourished in a great degree. (Applause.) In concluding, in the name of his brethren he begged the acceptance by the Philanthropic Lodge of that small token of their esteem, and he hoped that as the mauls passed into other hands, from year to year, they might carry with them pleasant memories of their meetings together. One thing was certain, that in the 17th Lancers Lodge, the Philanthropic, 304, would long live in their memories. Bro. Taylor, W.M. 304, suitably acknowledged the unexpected present, and in the name of his Lodge accepted it, at the same time remarking that the brethren of the 17th Lancers Lodge had endeared themselves to the Craft in Leeds by their ability in working the ceremonies (which had been done in a most efficient manner), and by their geniality and courtesy. He bade them a hearty welcome on all occasions of their meeting, and if when they left Leeds (which he hoped would be some time first) they ever came near the town, he hoped they would endeavour to give them a visit. In concluding, he hoped the brethren of the Philanthropic Lodge would ever be ready to extend the right hand of fellowship to all Military brethren who might be staying in or passing through Leeds. He heartily tendered the 17th Lancers Lodge his hearty good wishes.

Northern Counties Lodge, No. 406.—The regular meeting of this Lodge took place on the 5th instant, at the Masonic Hall, Maple-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. The W.M. Bro. R. L. Armstrong was supported by the following Officers:—Bros. J. Page S.W., R. G. Salmon J.W., G. W. Lax Sec., S. M. Harris S.D., G. Dumford J.D., J. S. B. Bell I.G., E. Clark and Macdonell Stewards, G. Simms Tyler. The Past Masters present were—Bros. W. Munday, W. S. Hughes, T. J. Armstrong, &c. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last meeting confirmed. One candidate was initiated by the W.M. in a most impressive manner, and as this was the first work the new Master had the opportunity of doing, it bids fair for the ensuing year. No other business offering, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Some capital harmony enlivened the evening. The Visitors were Bros. Jos. Cook P.M. P.P.S.G.W., G. I. Dean W.M. 541, W. M. Bell S.W. 1557, J. H. Bernstone 1118, S. Falk, Cape of Good Hope, &c.

Trevitt J.W., Chesworth P.M. Treas., M. Hart P.M. Sec., P. Armstrong S.D., Gadd as J.D., Ellis Org., Gordon I.G., Pendleton Steward. Past Masters Bros. Ballard and Vaughan. There was a good attendance of members and visitors. After the customary routine business, the W.M. passed Bro. Croudace to the second degree, and raised Bros. Walls and Noble to the third, in a manner which clearly proves that he has studied his work thoroughly during his short term of office. It is pleasing to note that 724 is progressing favourably, and from all accounts, will become a powerful aid to the province and the Craft generally. It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that the sum of £10 10s be voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, from the funds of the Lodge, for the purpose of endowing the Lodge as Life Subscriber. The Lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when they spent a pleasant hour.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on 31st May, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew-bridge, at half-past 7 p.m. Present:—Bros. Costelow W.M., Gunner Hon. Sec. S.W., Blasby J.W., Acworth S.D., Goss J.D., Talbot I.G.; J. C. Roe P.M. Preceptor; Bros. Kyezor, White, &c. Upon the resumption of labour, Bro. White was admitted a member. Bros. Blasby (late Hon. Sec.), and Gunner (Hon. Sec.) were elected honorary members, a high compliment being paid those brethren, for which they respectfully tendered their thanks. The resignation of a member tendered last meeting was withdrawn, and Lodge having been opened up to the sublime degree, and closed down, the meeting was adjourned.

The Lodge was opened, and the minutes read, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Polak as candidate. Bro. Dallas worked the first, second and third sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren, the Preceptor worked the fourth section. Bro. Brasted giving the answers in a masterly style. A vote of thanks was passed to the W.M., for his able working. Bro. Carr will preside at the next meeting.

Whittington Lodge of Instruction, No. 862.—At the weekly meeting held on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at Bro. Hyde's, Red Lion, Poppins-court, Fleet-street, Bro. Bull in the chair, Bros. Abell S.W., J. S. Brown J.W., Marston S.D., Kidder J.D., Thompson I.G., Long Preceptor, and many others. After the opening of the Lodge and the confirmation of the minutes, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed in a very able manner, and four sections of the first degree were worked by the brethren. As the Fifteen Sections are worked here next Wednesday by Bro. Tate, the S.W. Bro. Abell, was elected W.M. for the Wednesday following. It being the first time Bro. Bull had presided in this Lodge, an unanimous vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes for the great ability he had evinced, and the Lodge was closed. The following are the names of those who will work the Sections on Wednesday next. Bro. R. P. Tate J.D. 862, in the chair, Stacey P.M. 180, S.W., Marston P.M. 1599, J.W. First Lecture—Bros. Doric Lodge of Instruction, No. 933.—This renowned and prosperous Lodge held its usual meeting at Bro. Clayton's, the Duke's Head, Whitechapel-road, at 8 o'clock on Friday evening, the 31st ult. Bro. I. P. Cohen P.M. of the Israel Lodge, occupied the chair. Bros. Francis S.W., McDonald J.W. and a large number of brethren being present. The ceremony of initiation was worked in the most impressive manner by the W.M., and the sections of the degree by Bro. Webb, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Musto, Secretary rose and called the attention of the brethren to the fact of the Lodge being without a Preceptor in consequence of the death of the late lamented Thomas Austin, and that it was necessary for its welfare that it should have some one to look up to as an authority, he therefore had much pleasure in proposing that Bro. Cundick should be Preceptor of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Ellis seconded the motion, and said he hoped Bro. Cundick would accept the office, as he (Bro. Ellis) was sure, that from the kind and temperate manner in which Bro. Cundick communicated Masonic instruction, they would find him a fitting successor to the late Thomas Austin. The motion was unanimously carried with truly Masonic acclamation. Bro. Cundick, in returning thanks, expressed his deep regret at the loss of Bro. Austin, and said that he considered himself flattered by the honour conferred upon him; he would endeavour to the best of his ability to fill the late brother's place with the same amount of care and attention as he had done. He always felt it his duty to impart Masonic knowledge to those who were in search of the same, and hoped the G.A.O.T.U. would spare them for many years to benefit by each other's teachings. Bro. Francis was elected as W.M. for the ensuing week, and the Lodge was closed in due form and adjourned until Friday, the 7th inst.

Alfred W. Wells, J.D. Lodge 299, Dartford, for whom the ballot was successfully taken at this meeting, were then exalted into Royal Arch Masonry, the M.E.Z. and his Principals performing their work in a most impressive manner. The Chapter was then closed, and the members repaired to Comp. Stanbury's new Banqueting Hall, where a capital repast was served. At its conclusion, the M.E.Z. briefly introduced the toasts. To Comp. J. Newton was entrusted that of the health of the M.E.Z., which he offered to the assembled guests in most felicitous terms, complimenting Comp. Martin on the excellent way in which he had conducted the proceedings of the day. This toast was gracefully replied to, and the M.E.Z. next gave the health of the Visitors, Comps. Howe and C. Atkins acknowledging the compliment. The toast of the P.Z.'s followed, and full honour was paid this august body; then the M.E.Z. summoned the Janitor, who gave the final toast.

Walker was elected W.M. for the ensuing week.

Hamer Lodge, No. 1393.—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge took place at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Friday, the 24th ult. Present—Bros. Thomas Sammons W.M., J. McCarthy I.P.M., Thos. Large S.W., Robert Leason J.W., W. C. Irwin Sec., J. Pilling J.D., R. H. Evans P.M. D.C., W. H. Jewitt as I.G., G. B. Tenison and M. Callaghan Stewards, Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. H. Jackson Prov. G.A.D.C., Jones, Houlding. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and declared correct, after which the W.M. worked the Lodge to the second, and passed Bro. Atherton to the F.C. degree. There was some discussion with reference to changing the night of meeting, but from all appearance, the Lodge cannot do better than meet on the fourth Friday. The Hamer Lodge should certainly take a foremost rank with the Lodges of Liverpool; should be as popular, strong in numbers and talent, and progressive and harmonious as any Lodge in existence. This conclusion is adduced from an acquaintance with the Masonic virtues of W. Bro. Sammons, the present W.M., whose zeal for the welfare of the Lodge, and love for the Craft, would preclude every idea of his supporting or even tolerating any thing contrary to the principles of the glorious Order he has learnt to love, and which in him has so worthy a representative. It was regretted that so few members were present on such an important occasion as the election of W. Master for the ensuing year. After the ballot was taken, the W.M. declared that Bro. Thos. Large S.W. was elected W. Master of the Hamer Lodge for the next year. It was proposed, seconded and carried, that Bro. R. H. Evans P.M. be the Treasurer of the Lodge for the same term. It was proposed by Bro. J. McCarthy, and seconded by Bro. Jones, and supported by Bro. Large, that a sum of £10 10s be devoted from the funds of the Lodge for the purchase of a Past Master's jewel, carried unanimously. There being no father business before the Lodge, the brethren proceeded to refreshment. On the W.M. rising to propose the first toast, he said, the toast he had the honour of giving was always drunk most loyally by Englishmen in every clime, and especially among Freemasons, but to-day being the birthday of our gracious Queen, the toast would be received with more than ordinary enthusiasm. The brethren responded to the remarks of the W.M. in a right loyal manner, all singing God save the Queen. After the toast of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and our Masonic rulers, supreme and subordinate, had been given and heartily drunk, Bro. Evans rose to propose the health of the Master; in doing so he eulogised the virtues of the W.M., virtues which were so justly esteemed among good Masons. He referred to the devotion of Bro. Sammons for the Craft, and the good he had done for the Lodge, and the Lodge of Instruction. In the name of the Lodge he tendered him his sincere thanks for his invaluable services, and expressed the hope that Bro. Sammons might long be spared to come among them. The toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiasm, and musical honours. Bro. Irwin favoured the brethren with a song. The W.M. on rising to respond said:—Brethren, I can only return you my sincere thanks for the very complimentary manner in which my health has been proposed, and the cordial way in which it has been received, on my retiring from the chair. When you did me the honour of electing me your W.M., I resolved to endeavour to follow in the footsteps of those who had occupied the chair so satisfactorily. By your expressions to-night, I am glad to know that I have succeeded in doing so. It was at one time stated by some, without proper consideration, that the Past Masters of this Lodge would drop off; such a statement has proved to be an unfounded rumour. No Lodge has ever been better supported by its Past Masters; I have received every aid during my term of office from the P.M.'s, who from their experience are so capable of rendering valuable assistance in the conduct of the Lodge. I cannot sit down without giving you the toast of the Past Masters of the Lodge, and I am sure I need not add a word of commendation to ensure its hearty reception. Bro. Large kindly responded to the call for a song. Bro. Jones, as the Senior P.M., availed himself of the pleasure of responding to the toast just given by the worthy W.M. He expressed his conviction that the P.M.'s had done their duty well, and he expressed himself as ready to render the same aid in the future. He felt sure he was uttering the sentiments of his Brother Past Masters that such was their feeling. He had no hesitation in believing that the W.M. elect would follow in the footsteps of his worthy predecessor, and he augured prosperity for the Lodge. He thanked the W.M. for proposing the toast, and the brethren for warmly receiving the same. Bros. Evans and Jackson followed, to the same purport. Bro. Leason gave the next toast, and proposed the health of the W.M. elect. No one rejoiced more than he did at the accession of Bro. Large to the exalted position of W.M.; he assured all present that his efforts should not fag to render every assistance to further the interests of the Lodge in future as he had done in the past. The W.M. elect responded, thanking the brethren for their mark of esteem in electing him to the chair, and expressed the hope that the Lodge during his term of Office might be as prosperous as in the preceding year. The toasts of the Visitors and the Officers of the Lodge were given and appropriately replied to, after which the Tyler was summoned, and the brethren dispersed.

Marquess of Ripon Lodge of Instruction, No. 1489.—At the Pembury Tavern, Amherst-road, Hackney, on Monday, 3rd June, at 7.30. Present—Bros. Grist W.M., McDowall S.W., Jacob J.W., Aspinall S.D., Glaskin J.D., Slaiter I.G.; also Bros. Hunt, E. Bishop, Fieldwick, Stanton, Lockett, &c. After preliminary business, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Slaiter candidate; the ceremony of passing was rehearsed, Bro. Glaskin candidate; Bro. Fieldwick answered the questions leading to the third degree, and Bro. Grist carefully worked the ceremony, giving the Traditional History and Lecture. Bro. McDowall was elected W.M. for the next two Lodge meetings. It was further resolved that the meeting be adjourned for two weeks, next Monday being Bank holiday. All Masonic business being over, the Lodge was closed until Monday, 17th June.

Lodge of Emulation, No. 1505.—This Lodge held its regular meeting at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on the 23rd ult. Present—Bros. W. E. Quayle W.M., H. Morris I.P.M., J. T. Callow P.M. as S.W., J. Capell J.W., H. G. Vernon P.P.G.C. Chaplain., H. Coulson Sec., R. Foote S.D., H. H. Smith J.D., R. Lythan I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler. After reading the minutes of the previous meeting, Mr. Wm. Foulkes was elected and initiated into the order. There were five brethren raised to the degree of M.M. It is to be regretted that so many brethren should be advanced to the third degree in a room which is obviously too small for such an event The manner in which these brethren were raised savoured considerably of rush and business, and our sublime ritual will and must fall short of its object under such disadvantages. The brethren were invited to refreshment by Bro. Quayle, and on the the removal of the cloth the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily drunk. During the interval between the toasts Bros. Chapman, Reily, Childs, McGanly Worthy, Foulkes, Leah, favoured the brethren with some good music. The evening's pleasures were bought to a close with the Tyler's toast.

Duke of Connaught Lodge of Instruction, No. 1524.—At the Havelock Hotel, on Wednesday evening. Bros. H. Meyer W.M., C. Lorkin S.W., J. Lorkin J.W., R. Olley S.D., Slaiter J.D., McDowell I.G., Fieldwick Preceptor, G. Ferrar Treas., E. Dietrich Sec. After the usual preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was ably rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. Ferrar candidate. The W.M. then worked the first, second, third and fourth sections of the Lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. C. Lorkin was appointed W.M. for next meeting. The Secretary gave notice that he would make a proposal that £5 5s be voted from the funds to the R.M.I. for Boys.

St. Nicholas Lodge, No. 1676.—A meeting was held on the 3rd instant at the Masonic Hall, Grainger-street, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Present—Bros. T. Cochrane P.P.G.A.D.C. W.M., John Thomas Taylor S.W., Arthur T. Taylor J.W., M. Catcheside Sec., J. R. Pringle Treas. Visitors—Bros. E. D. Davis P.M. 541 &c. P.G.D.C., Thos. Cranston P.M. 636, J. Cook P.P.G.S.W., P.M. 481, &c.,— Scott P.M. 1132, P. J. Jackson W.M. 424 and Treas. 1613. B. P. Ord S.W. 1427, J. Braithwaite Sec. 1427, W. M. Taylor 24, Thos. Walton 24 and 1661, W. Harbutt 910, R. H. Walters 1094, G. F. Charlton 1664, Henry Wilson 24 and 1664, W. Guthrie 240, W. J. Haggeston 240, J. M. Marr 1636, — Robins 101, &c., &c. The Lodge having been opened in due form, was raised to the F.C. degree, when the Installing Master, Bro. E. D. Davis P.M. and P.G.D.C. Northumberland, assumed the chair, and Bro. J. T. Taylor was presented to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. After the obligation had been subscribed to, the Lodge was raised, and those below the rank of P.M. were requested to withdraw. The Board of Installing Masters was then opened, and in a most impressive manner the new Master was placed in the chair of K.S. The brethren being re-admitted, were informed that during their absence, their new Master had been regularly installed, and they were requested to salute him. The charge was then given, and the tools of the degree presented. The saluting charges and presentation of the other degrees was gone through, and the appointment of officers followed :—Bros T. Cochrane P.P.G.A.D.C. I.P.M., J. Cook P.M. P.P.G.S.W. D. of C., A. T. Taylor S.W., M. Catcheside J.W., F. Blencowe Sec., J. R. Pringle Treas., John Mackay S.D., W. Cummings J.D., E. Marston I.G., R. Ferry Organist, J. Curry Tyler, R. Veitch S. Steward, J. P. Clark J.S. The Treasurer's report was read and confirmed. It showed a very satisfactory result. The Lodge having been opened one year only, all liabilities were discharged, and a balance of £36 remained in hand. Some other routine business was disposed of, and the Lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to the Douglas Hotel, where a splendid banquet was served, to which about fifty sat down. The toasts were given and responded to in a very genial manner. The health of the I.P.M., proposed by the W.M., was very heartily received; it was due to his great exertions that the Lodge was inaugurated, and is now in so flourishing a condition. The toast of the W.M. was then cordially received by all present; he, in returning thanks, assured the brethren that he would do his best to sustain the good feeling and harmony, and trusted the Lodge might not lose its lustre while in his charge. The Installing Master was proposed by Bro. P. J. Jackson W.M. 424, who, as a visitor, was proud to find the toast of so well known and loved a Mason as esteemed Bro. E. D. Davis, who to know was to admire, was given to him to propose; he regretted it was in not more able hands, so that a tithe of the praises of so noble a Mason might be sounded; but he was sure every member present would endorse the sentiment expressed, when he wished that the G.A.O.T.U. would spare for long years to come so eminent a brother who had done so much for Masonry, and preserve him with health and happiness. He trusted that Bro. Davis might soon regain his health, and was sure it was a matter of deep regret to all, that, owing to indisposition, he had not been able to join them at the banquet, where his presence would have added so great a charm. The other toasts were given and responded to; that of the present Officers most humorously by Bro. Catcheside, while Bro. J. Cook gave, in his happy way, "The Ladies." The harmony of the evening was good indeed, and was subscribed to by Bros. Probert, Ord, Cook, Goss, Ferry, Grant, McKay, Jackson, &c. The W.M. then gave the Tyler's toast, and the brethren departed, well satisfied with the first annual meeting of their Lodge.

Crusaders Lodge of Instruction, No. 1677.—The usual weekly meeting was held at the Old Jerusalem Tavern, St. John's-gate, E.C., on Thursday evening, 30th May. Bros. Cook W.M., T. H. Simmons S.W., Garrard J.W., Rothschild S.D., W. Rowley J.D., Cummings I.G., Hunter Preceptor, Calderwood Treas., T. Goode Hon. Sec. After preliminaries, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed by the W.M., Bro. J. Woodman being the candidate. The W.M. then vacated the chair in favour of Bro. Rothschild, and the ceremony of raising was rehearsed, Bro. Cook being the candidate. The Lodge was then closed down. Bro. Millward proposed and Bro. Kidder seconded, that Bro. Churchyard, W.M. of No. 376, become a member of this Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Churchyard acknowledged the compliment in an appropriate manner, and expressed his intention of availing himself of the instruction he should here be able to receive as often as his presence in town would permit. Bro. T. H. Simmons having been elected W.M. for the ensuing week, the Lodge was closed in the usual manner.

Merchant Navy Lodge of Instruction, No. 781.—This Lodge held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at the Silver Tavern, Burdett-road, E. Present—Bros. Pringle W.M., Clegg S.W., Ould J.W., Breden W.M. 781 Secretary, Robinson S.D., Andrews J.D., Maxwell jun. I.G., Turquand Preceptor; Bros. Morton, Day, Robertson, Williams, Warner, Keable, Westcott. The ceremony of initiation was worked by the W.M., Bro. Morton being the candidate. Third section of the lecture worked by Bro. Ould, fifth by Bro. Andrews, assisted by the brethren, sixth by Bro. Turquand, assisted by Bro. Andrews, and seventh by Bro. Turquand, assisted by Bro. Clegg. Proposed and seconded that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes for the able manner the ceremony was worked, this being the first time the W.M. had acted in that capacity in this Lodge. Bro. Clegg will take the chair at the next meeting.

THE QUALIFICATIONS FOR A SECRETARY.

AS the time is appproaching when the election of a successor to the late Bro. Little will take place, it is desirable that we should have a look round, with a view to appreciating the better the importance of this necessarily unusual event. Of course, in the remarks we are about to offer, we shall avoid all reference to the merits of the different candidates. In the first place, they are sufficiently before our readers, who can judge for themselves as well as we can. In the next place, it would be manifestly unjust to compare their several qualifications, even if it were possible so do so. What we are concerned with, and what indeed concerns every member of the Craft is, that the best man shall win, and we are not so foolish as to undertake the responsibility of even hinting at the likelihood of one being in any way superior to another, and if so, in what particular respect that superiority is noticeable. We are thinking of the Secretaryship only, and all we are about to consider now is the character and extent of the qualifications which, in our humble judgment, a candidate should possess. These qualifications may be regarded under various heads, but we shall note only the most important.

In the first place then it is absolutely necessary that a Secretary should possess habits of business. He must be a model of punctuality, a man of method, and one in every way qualified to discharge the onerous duties of an office. A man who has no order or method in his composition will generally find the official work in a state the reverse of orderly and methodical. Each day, and it may almost be said each hour of the day, has its appointed task, and unless these are disposed of regularly, there is every chance of their being done perfunctorily and imperfectly. The performance of official duties is not difficult. They are not of an exacting character as a rule, but there should be a certain amount of routine observed without of course going to the length of that circumlocution and red-tapeism which were so sharply, and in some cases, so justly ridiculed by the late Charles Dickens. Given then this quality of method, and the new Secretary will speedily find himself at home in his duties. But method alone, valuable and indeed essential as it is, must be supplemented by sundry other qualities, which are partly personal and partly business in their character. Thus a Secretary of one of our Institutions must be blessed with an unusual share of energy. He must spare no pains to make his administration a success. He must be ready to initiate any movement he may think desirable in the interests of the School. He should be the opposite of Mr. Micawber, who was always waiting for something to turn up. There is, of course, such a thing as excess of zeal, which is trying, and often attended with disadvantages more or less serious. What we are desirous of indicating is simply that the man should have his wits well about him, and be ready at the right moment with the right suggestion, instead of waiting while others are be-thinking themselves of what is needed. But in addition to energy, he must have a rare amount of tact. In the course of his duties, he will be brought into almost daily contact with all classes and conditions of men, men of different tempers and dispositions, who will require a good deal of delicate handling, as different circumstances may arise. The suaviter in modo will generally be found enough for most purposes, but a Secretary's bed is by no means a bed of roses, and it may occasionally happen that the suaviter in modo will happen to give place to the fortiter in re. Even in the management of Freemasons, genial as they mostly are, the suasive force of officialism is not always successful, and the quality of firmness will be of very considerable value. Then, as it has grown to be the custom for our Secretaries to range throughout the Metropolis and the Provinces for the purpose of making known more generally the claims of the Institutions to the support of the Craft, it will be desirable that the new Secretary should possess something of the vis dicendi, something in the way of eloquence, which will excite the enthusiasm of his audience and induce them, as occasion may require, to open wide their pursestrings and support liberally the cause he advocates. The late Bro. Little's health was such, for some months previous to his death, that he was unable to appeal in person to the liberality of brethren, and not the least gratifying evidence of the estimation in which the Girls' School is held will be found in the amount of money which was subscribed at the Festival last month. Many there are who think it undesirable that so much labour and responsibility should be cast on the Secretary. This is a matter of opinion, and it may or may not have weight, but the custom we have alluded to exists, and, therefore, it seems to us at the least desirable that the new Secretary should be able to take an active part in canvassing the support and assistance of Lodges and Provinces, and to do this well he should be a tolerably fluent and impressive speaker. He need not be a Demosthenes or a Cicero, a Gladstone or a Beaconsfield, but he should be capable of unfolding a plain unvarnished tale in a manner which will commend itself to his hearers. Thus far we have spoken of his business and personal qualifications, and it only remains for us to add a few words as to his Masonic qualifications. These have been fixed by the General Committee, and any one within the prescribed age who has been a Master Mason for three years is eligible. But though not the slightest objection can be raised to this proposal, seeing that it affords an opportunity for every young brother who considers he has the requisite capacity, and has been a member sufficiently long to have acquired a fair knowledge of the Craft and the working of its Institutions, to compete for the post, still there can be no doubt that, other things being equal, the candidate who has the rank and privileges of a Past Master should be preferred to one who has not—not because of his superior rank, but because of the greater influence such rank confers upon him. Indeed, a man who holds several positions of eminence in the Craft will—in the case of that perfect equality in other respects which we have assumed, will be preferable to the one who holds only the rank of a Master Mason. He comes into contact with so many more people. He has access to so many other sources where his appeals will be listened to, and be productive of good to the Institution. A glance at the list of subscriptions will show that a great deal of support is freely accorded by Arch, Mark and other Masons, and one who can canvass these as well as Craft Masons, has so many more opportunities, and consequently so many more chances of being successful in his advocacy. These then are the qualifications which we think it desirable a Secretary should possess, and as they regard the office and not those who are seeking to fill it, we cannot possibly be charged with exhibiting preference for any of the candidates. Indeed, we believe them to be one and all good men and true, and were it possible, we should like to see the whole nine of them at the head of the poll. That, of course, is out of the question, and we shall close our remarks, by wishing success to him who, on examination of the testimonials of the different candidates shall be deemed the most worthy.

BRO. JOHN H. YOUNGHUSBAND, P.M., P.Z. P.P.G.J.W. WEST LANCASHIRE.

ON Tuesday evening, the 28th ult., Bro. Younghusband delivered a lecture in the Masonic Temple, under the auspices of the Merchants' Lodge 241, on the subject of "Memory," to a large and appreciative gathering of brethren. Our esteemed Brother has recently made London his residence, and the announcement that he was about to visit Liverpool Masonically created quite a stir among the Lodges. The worthy Brother has been so intimately connected with every Masonic movement in the town that he has the honourable distinction of being called one of the Fathers of the Order. To speak here of his indefatigable zeal for the Craft in Liverpool, of his intense love for the Order, would be a pleasure which would lead us back into a volume of work extending over a period of twenty years; what good changes were effected by him, what benefits Freemasonry has derived from the excellent virtues of our esteemed Brother and his associates, Craftsmen of the present day in Liverpool have little or no idea. Indeed, Bro. Younghusband's Masonic career is full of the deepest interest, and illustrates clearly what has been enunciated through this journal so often—what good one true Mason can accomplish for the welfare of his fellow men, and the furtherance of the interests of the Craft.

As we shall some future day revert to Masonry in West Lancashire, and particularly in Liverpool, we shall then more particularly bring periods and circumstances before our readers with which the name and Masonic career of Bro. Younghusband is closely identified.

With reference to the Lecture of our worthy Brother, on the 28th ult., the peculiar method by which he asserts the memory may be made never-failing in a person of sound health is, by means of the science called Mnemonics, practically developed. In order to demonstrate the actual utility and practicability of the science a black board was brought into requisition, and by chalking out the various problems Brother Younghusband clearly illustrated the several degrees, to the astonishment of the majority and the edification of the few, in a masterly manner. It would be impossible here to enter into a full detail of Bro. Younghusband's teaching, but Mnemonics, as a practical system, by which we learn how to remember, must be invaluable to our brethren who desire an infallible rule to follow, by which they may with safety guide their distracted thoughts to the desired end through the many intricate and lofty researches of Masonic art. On the conclusion of the lecture W. Bro. Peet, in a very pleasing manner, tendered the thanks of the brethren present for the very able lecture given by Bro. Younghusband. It was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously, that a vote of thanks be tendered the Worshipful Brother for his able lecture, the same to be entered on the minutes of the Lodge. The Lodge being closed, with solemn prayer, the brethren were invited by the Worshipful Master to adjourn for refreshment. On the removal of the cloth the W.M. gave the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were received by the brethren with the utmost cordiality.

On rising to propose the toast of the evening, W. Bro. Peet said—I feel very delighted to-night in having the honour of proposing a toast which all present must anticipate, and which, I am sure, all present are eager to respond to in the heartiest manner, as a testimony of their appreciation of the esteemed and worthy Brother whose zeal for the Craft, and whose enduring talents are so constantly brought into practice. As a Brother of this Lodge he stands senior on the list of Past Masters, and as a Mason he has no superior. The high position of 241 is mainly due to the solid foundation, the strict principles, laid down and carried into effect by Bro. Younghusband and his worthy brother coadjutors, and to them belong the praise for the prosperity of the Merchants. We, as succeeding Masters of the Lodge, have had little difficulty in managing its internal welfare; it is a pleasure as well as a duty to follow as near to the letter and spirit as possible the ritual and landmarks so ably and forcibly laid down by Bro. Younghusband. To-night we have had additional proof of the talent of our Worshipful Brother, and I am pleased to see so many brethren present to testify their regard to the worthy lecturer, as well as to reap an amount of useful knowledge which all will agree is most valuable. Brethren, without detaining you with any further remarks, I give you the health of Bro. Younghusband.

The toast was drunk with the greatest enthusiam. Bro. Hatton favoured the brethren with a song, which he rendered beautifully.

Bro. Younghusband rose, amid the applause of the brethren, and said—I have come expressly among you again to deliver the lecture you have done me the honour of listening to with such marked attention. I do not suppose that I should pass out of your remembrance while in this mortal state, but should any brother be troubled with a bad memory I have endeavoured to-night to show him a system by which I may be remembered. The very kind remarks made by the W. Master in reference to me, and the complimentary manner in which you have endorsed those remarks, touches me greatly. My past services performed for this Lodge and the Craft generally, and the ability I have for doing any future good, are amply repaid in the gratitude I find emanating from you to-night. Your reception, brethren, I highly esteem, and I assure you I shall be able to remember it without the aid of Mnemonics (cheers).

Bro. Wilson, P.M., by request of the W.M., proposed the toast of the visitors, in a very able manner, coupling with it the names of Bro. Laidlaw, and Bro. Bulley, P.G. Sword Bearer of England. Bro. Bailey kindly responded to the call for a recitation. Bro. Bulley replied in a very happy and eloquent manner for the visitors. Bro. Bulley, with the permission of the W.M., assumed the gavel, and in a very hearty manner proposed the health of the W. Master. He trusted that No. 241 would prosper in the future, as it did at the present under the able brother who now filled the chair. W. Bro. Peet, in responding, said—He was taken by surprise in being called upon to respond to the toast so kindly proposed and cordially received by the brethren. He spoke in his usual genial manner of the pleasure it gave him in occupying the chair, of the profound and cordial feelings he should always entertain for the Lodge, and the Brotherhood. He could not sit down without speaking of the pleasure he had in the presence of Bro. Hormer, P.P.G.S.W., a brother all felt delighted to welcome.

Bro. Hormer said—He was taken by surprise to be called upon to reply to any toast. He expressed himself as very pleased with the cordial reception given him by the brethren of the Merchants, and regretted (as most P.G.L. officers unfortunately too frequently do now-a-days) that he had not visited their Lodge before. He paid a warm tribute to Bro. Younghusband, to whom he was greatly indebted for the true insight into Masonry, and declared his love for the Order. Brother Younghusband rose to propose the health of Bro. Broadbridge, to whose indefatigable exertions they were mainly indebted for the success of the evening. Bro. Broadbridge, P.M., &c., &c., thanked the W. Brother for the kind manner he had mentioned his name in connection with the evening's programme. He felt proud of being the means of bringing Bro. Younghusband to Liverpool upon such a pleasing and instructive mission. It afforded him great pleasure to know that the visit had been one of enjoyment and satisfaction to that worthy brother, and his lecture highly appreciated by such a crowded meeting. Bro. Broadbridge spoke of the excellent qualities of Bro. Younghusband; showed what a debt of gratitude the brethren of Liverpool, and particularly the Merchants' Lodge, owed him. He, in concluding his remarks, again thanked the brethren for the token of respect and confidence shown him. A very pleasant evening was spent, and Bro. Younghusband received an ovation of sincere regard from all the brethren,—which is his undoubted right,—and such an ovation as may truly make any brother proud of the distinguished position he holds in the Craft, and in the hearts of the brethren. Let all who read emulate him.

COMMITTEE MEETING OF THE BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

THE Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution met on Wednesday last, at the Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Colonel Creaton presided. The other brethren who attended were Bros. Jabez Hogg, John G. Stevens, J. Newton, Charles G. Hill, Jas. Willing jun., S. Rawson, Erasmus Wilson, Geo. Bolton, Thos. Cubitt, Charles John Perceval, Charles F. Hogard, L. Stean, and James Terry. Bro. Terry read the House Committee's Report, that the Stewards of the late Festival visited the Institution on the 7th May, when they were pleased to express their high gratification with what was done for the comfort of the residents, and with the admirable order of the building and grounds. On the 31st May the House Committee visited the Institution with the Secretary, and paid the annuitants, after which they presented to Dr. Strong the testimonial voted at the last meeting of the Committee of the Institution. The report stated that the presentation was made by Col. Creaton, and that it was graciously acknowledged by Dr. Strong. The residents are all in good health, considering their advanced age. The Institution is in a thorough state of repair, and as far as can be foreseen, will not require for some time any considerable outlay to keep it so. Bros. John Hervey, Benjamin Head, John Creaton, W. Hale, and H. G. Warren were elected the Finance Committee, and Bros. Head, Creaton, Stewart, J. A. Farnfield, and C. J. Perceval the House Committee. The Committee granted to a widow half her late husband's annuity; also the use of the large Hall of the Institution for a summer entertainment to the old people. Bro. W. Stephens gave notice of motion for giving to Bro. Cubush a Life Governorship of the Institution in acknowledgment of the large gifts of flowers and shrubs made by him for the ornamentation of the grounds at Croydon. Bro. Terry stated, in answer to Bro. Stephens, that during the last three years these gifts were of the value of £100. Bro. Erasmus Wilson suggested that the donations to the Institution should be altered from pounds to guineas, it was arranged, as he gave notice of a motion to that effect, that it should be considered at a Special Meeting to be called for that purpose.

The Consecration of the Excelsior Mark Lodge will take place at the Masonic Hall, Anglesea Hill, Plumstead, Kent, on Tuesday next. The ceremony will be performed at one o'clock precisely, by Bro. C. Fitz Gerald Matier, Past Grand Warden of England, the Officer appointed by the Grand Mark Master of England. We are informed there are forty-eight candidates for advancement. We tender our congratulations to Bro. Capt. Ritchie, the W.M. designate, on so happy an inauguration of his new Lodge.

The Installation Meeting of the Frederick Lodge of Unity, No. 452, will be held at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Tuesday next. Bro. C. E. Edmunds is the W.M. elect.

THE FOUR OLD LODGES.

Bro. R. F. Gould.

§ 1.—It is the design of the following remarks, primarily, to elucidate the history and status of the survivors of the Four Old Lodges who, on the Festival of St. John the Baptist A.D., 1717, met and instituted the premier Grand Lodge of the World*—and, incidentally, to trace back to their earliest periods and places of assembly in the last century, various Lodges now existing, which were called into being during the half century immediately following such Masonic revival.

We all, as Masons, enter into the original inheritance of tradition, but there is no brother who has a larger share in that noble inheritance, than he who has had the good fortune to be received into the Craft, under the auspices of either of those old Lodges, whose vigorous offspring, the United Grand Lodge of England, has now attained such a meridian splendour.

An interest, however, in the Time Immemorial Lodges, is not restricted to their own members, since every brother holding under the English Constitution, is directly concerned in the history, privileges, and status, of the Masonic parents of all English Lodges now existing. But our "Old Lodges" have, in truth, been too much neglected and forgotten, to the lasting reproach of the English Craft; not so, however, under the Masonic government of a sister kingdom—the old Lodges of Scotland are encircled by a halo of prestige, enjoy an honourable precedency over all Lodges of later date, and in Bros. R. D. Lyon and Laurie† have found able chroniclers, with whom it has indeed been a labour of love, to dilate upon their unrivalled antiquity. The oldest Lodge records in the world, those of the Lodge of Edinburgh, St. Mary's Chapel, No. 1; the archives of the Grand Lodge of Scotland; the store of manuscripts preserved in Mother Kilwinning, and other pre-eighteenth century Lodges, having each in turn been laid under contribution by these indefatigable brethren.

With us, however, a history of Freemasonry and the Grand Lodge of England, remains to be written; our premier Lodges yet await an adequate and enduring memorial, of their exertions as the pioneers of Masonic progress; neither have they been compensated for this neglect of the Craft, by any especial favours from Grand Lodge, which has not judged it unreasonable that the equanimity of its "Masonic parents" should be periodically disturbed, by having passed over their heads Lodges of later date, to higher positions of rank and precedency.

The following slight sketch of the history and privileges of the Four Old Lodges, is, in the main, based on materials accessible to the entire Craft, viz., the Constitutions, published from time to time by order of Grand Lodge; the various lists of Lodges, and the "Illustrations of Masonry" (Editions 1775, 1796 and 1804) by the late W. Preston.

It is a curious coincidence, that the establishment of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, on 30th Nov. 1736, was also due to the exertions of Four Metropolitan Lodges (Edinburgh), who convened a meeting "at St. Mary's Chapell," "in order to concur in the election of a Grand Master." Thirty-three Lodges are recorded to have been represented on this occasion, and at the first Quarterly Communication, almost all the Lodges applied for new Constitutions, and by a ready and voluntary renunciation of their former rights, evinced the steadiness of their attachment to the Grand Lodge of Scotland, and their unfeigned acknowledgment of her jurisdiction and power.‡

It will be convenient to proceed, firstly, with a chronological record of the Four Old Lodges; secondly, with a consideration of the especial privileges (if any) stipulated for by, and accorded to them; and, thirdly, with some concluding observations on their status at the present day.

§ 2.—"And after the Rebellion was over, A.D. 1716,‖ the few lodges at London, finding themselves neglected by Sir Christopher Wren, thought fit to cement under a Grand Master, as the Centre of Union and Harmony, viz., the Lodges that met—

1. At the Goose and Gridiron Ale-house in St. Paul's Churchyard.

2. At the Crown Ale-house in Parker's Lane near Drury Lane.

3. At the Apple Tree Tavern in Charles Street, Covent Garden.

4. At the Rummer and Grapes Tavern in Channel Row Westminster.

"They and some old Brothers met at the said Apple Tree, and having put into the chair the oldest Master Mason (now the Master of a Lodge), they constituted a Grand Lodge pro tempore in due form, and forthwith revived the Quarterly Communications of the Officers of Lodges (call'd the Grand Lodge), resolved to hold the annual Assembly and Feast, and then to chuse a Grand Master from among themselves till they should have the Honour of a noble Brother at their Head.

Accordingly

On St. John Baptist day, in the 3rd year of King George the 1st, A.D. 1717, THE ASSEMBLY and Feast of the Free and Accepted Masons was held at the foresaid Goose and Gridiron Alehouse.

"Before Dinner, the oldest Master Mason (now the Master of a Lodge) in the chair, proposed a list of proper candidates: and the Brethren by a majority of hands elected who being forthwith invested with the Badges of Office and Power by the said Oldest Master and install'd was duly congratulated by the Assembly who pay'd him the Homage."

Anthony Sayer, the premier Grand Master of Freemasons, was a member of original No. 3, and Bro. George Payne, his successor in the Grand Mastership, a member of original No. 4. Indeed, to the close connection between Bro. Payne and this latter Lodge is entirely due its present continuance on the roll.

* For access to Pine's lists, in the archives of Grand Lodge, I am indebted to the courtesy of the Grand Secretary and his obliging assistant, Bro. Buss.—R.F.G.

This is the earliest of the engraved lists, and gives neither Numbers or dates of Constitution. The above numbers are, therefore, only appended for purposes of reference, or to facilitate a comparison with other lists. Dates are also added in a few instances, where identification is complete.

The list for 1725 is an exact reprint of that of 1723, as far as the above extract extends, except that Nos. 4, 8, 13, 16, and 17, have dropped out, in the interval between the two publications.

The entire absence of dates and numbers, renders these lists of little or no value at present, though they might still prove of great service, as connecting links in the chain of Masonic history, could copies of the missing lists for 1726-27-28 be recovered. In the above list, the Horn, Westminster, one of the Time Immemorial Lodges, stands fifth in order, with four senior Lodges preceding it, which we know could not be the case. The conclusion, therefore, is forced upon us that in these very early lists, the seniority and precedency of Lodges were very little attended to by the engraver.

† The first 23 Lodges in the 1723 list are shown in above extract, for purposes of comparison with List No. 3 (1729-30); the last Lodge in either list (No. 23 on list 2; No. 13 on list 3) being the same, viz., that meeting at the sign of the Anchor, in Dutchy-lane, now the Lodge of Antiquity, Chatham. For full list of 1723, see List No. 6, post.

‡ Vide footnote to List No. 2. It is singular that whilst 10 Lodges drop out between 1723 and 1729, none lapse between 1729 and 1736.

In these lists we for the first time touch firm ground, and an examination of the numbers and dates of constitution given therein, tend to the inference that all four of the old Lodges were then in existence, this inference being strengthened and confirmed by the lists of later date, especially that appended to the Constitutions 1738 (List 4). In 1729-30 the old Lodges would seem to have been thus described, viz.:—

Original No. 1, as No. 1, King's Arm's, St. Paul's Churchyard, now No. 2, Antiquity.

Original No. 2, as No. 2, Rose and Buffler, Furnival's Inn, died out circa 1737.

Original No. 3, as No. 11, Queen's Head, Knave's Acre, now No. 12, Fortitude and Old Cumberland.

Original No. 4, as No. 3, Horn, Westminster, now No. 4, Royal Somerset House and Inverness.

A LIST OF LODGES IN AND ABOUT LONDON AND WESTMINSTER.

Many Lodges have by accidents broken up, or are partitioned, or else removed to new places for their conveniency, and so, if subsisting, they are called and known by those new places or their signs.

But the subsisting Lodges, whose Officers have attended the Grand Lodge or Quarterly Communication, and brought their Benevolence to the Grand Charity within twelve months past, are here set down according to their Seniority of Constitution, as in the Grand Lodge Books and the Engraven List.

Nos. Signs of the Houses.

This is the Senior Lodge, whose Constitution is immemorial.

2 Horn Tavern In New Palace-yard, Westminster
The Old Lodge removed from the Rummer and Grapes, Channel Row, whose Constitution is also immemorial, it being one of the Four Lodges mentioned p 109.—(See § 2.)

4 Bell Nicholas-lane 17th July 1721

5 Braund's Head New Bond-street 19th Jan. 172[illegible]

6 Rummer Tavern Queen's-street, Cheapside 28th Jan. 172[illegible]

7 Daniel's Coffee House Temple Bar 25th April 1722

9 King's Arms Tavern New Bond-street 25th Nov. 1722

This was one of the four Lodges mentioned p 109, viz., the Apple Tree Tavern, in Charles Street, Covent Garden, whose Constitution is immemorial. But after they removed to the Queen's Head, upon some difference, the Members that met there came under a New Constitution, though they wanted it not, and it is therefore placed at this number. N.B.—The Crown, in Parker's-lane, the other of the four old Lodges, is now extinct.

THE VACANT SECRETARYSHIP.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—I have a very great respect for Bro. Gottheil's opinion, but I am afraid the suggestion in his letter last week is not of a sufficiently practical character, and smacks rather of the idea of trotting out the candidates, as if they were so many horses at a sale, and it was desirable to see "their paces." It strikes me that on an occasion like this, the best, and indeed the only way, is to read carefully the testimonials of the different competitors. It would be an undoubted advantage if the electors could make the acquaintance of the candidates first, but where can they be interviewed, and when? and even if they are, how can any one form a just estimate of a man's qualifications merely by having five minutes speech with him. I think we must leave matters as they stand, and trust that the electors will exercise a proper judgment in the selection of the fittest candidate.

Fraternally yours,

T. P. C.

CONFLICTING ACCOUNTS ABOUT THOMAS DUNCKERLEY.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In the Cyclopædia of Freemasonry just issued, article "Dunckerley," the editor, or compiler, says:—

"It is well here to observe that all later biographers have taken their accounts from three sources—the notice in the Freemasons' Magazine, vol. I., 1793; the account in the Freemasons' Quarterly Review for 1842, page 155; and Bro. Dr. Oliver's Revelations of a Square. Bro. Jacob Norton tells us that there is, in the Gentleman's Magazine for 1795, another obituary, very much opposed to our commonly received versions of Dunckerley's life. But we see no good reason in re-opening a question difficult in itself and so long buried; and so prefer to follow our Masonic writers in this respect."

Dr. Johnson used to say: "The fact may be useless, but if it is a fact, I want to know it." I agree with Dr. Johnson's opinion, and presume that intelligent Freemasons of the present age would rather know both sides of a question than only one. Be it remembered that the first narrative, viz., of 1793, was written during the lifetime of Dunckerley, and was intended by the writer as a compliment to the said Bro. Dunckerley. The account in the Quarterly Review of 1842 is too far removed from the time of Dunckerley to expect from it any original information. The writer of that article merely repeated the story from the 1793 Magazine, and was equally partisan in his narrative; for instance, he says, "But were we to enumerate his [Dunckerley's] general virtues, we should extend this article to an inconvenient length." The fact is, there is very little known about Dunckerley's virtues, save and except what may be found in the said Magazine of the last century. Again, says this veracious writer: "His [Dunckerley's] chronological sketch of the Order of Knights Templar is deserving attention." The said sketch was printed in 1795, page 119, of the same Magazine, and if any one would take the trouble to read it, he would agree with me that it is the most contemptible trash he ever read; a school girl of 14 would be ashamed of such utter ignorance of history and chronology. And as to Oliver's authority, and most especially his Revelations of a Square, the less we rely upon it the better. I really can see no good reason for smothering information for the purpose of perpetuating a one-sided account about a man who died over eighty years ago. Under these circumstances, I propose to reproduce both accounts about Dunckerley, and though it is impossible to demonstrate which account is true, the reader will have a chance of judging for himself. Here is the first.

"In the year 1760, upon Mr. Dunckerley's return from the Siege of Quebec, an event happened which could not but fill him with astonishment, as it placed him in a new and most extraordinary point of view. A lady, receiving the sacrament on her death bed, made a declaration in all the awful solemnity of the occasion, by which it appeared that Mr. Dunckerley owed his birth to the first personage in the kingdom, and Nature was determined that it never should be questioned; for those who recollect the high personage alluded to, will require no further proof when they see the subject of these memoirs. . . . Notwithstanding this discovery of Mr. Dunckerley's descent, he determined not to quit the service of his country until the end of the war, but unfortunately for him, in the meantime, the sudden dissolution of the great personage we have alluded to, deprived him of a friend, who died without knowing that such a person existed.

"In 1764 he applied for and obtained a superannuation, but it was not until 1767 that his case was laid before a great personage, who was graciously pleased to make a provision for him."—Freemasons' Magazine, 1793, page 378.

The above story indicates that Dunckerley's mother (for who else could make such a revelation?) on her death bed, in 1760, made known to her son that King George II. was his real father, and he applied in 1767 for a pension, which George III. granted to him. In fact, Dunckerley actually did receive a pension of £800 per annum, and had apartments assigned him in Hampton Court. And now for the other story.

"Mr. Dunckerley was the son of a servant maid in the family of Sir Robert Walpole at Houghton, whence his father married her, and got a place of porter at the Somerset House. His mother died when he was very young, and his grandmother took care of him till he was put apprentice to a barber. From this place he ran away, and got aboard the ship of Sir John Norris, who was then going abroad. Sir Edward Walpole, informed of this circumstance, wrote to Sir John . . . requesting that the boy might have such instruction given to him as the ship would afford. He seems to have continued in the service, as the next thing we hear of him was his being at the siege of Quebec by Wolfe, where he behaved so well as to have had a recommendation to fill some employment in the Royal Academy at Portsmouth, which he did with credit. About twenty years ago he availed himself of the remarkable likeness he bore to the Royal family to get it represented to his Majesty that the late King was in truth his father, and that he owed his existence to a visit which that King, when Prince, had paid to Houghton, and he ventured to refer to Sir Edward Walpole for his knowledge of the circumstance. His Majesty, ever attentive to charitable applications, directed inquiry to be made of Sir Edward. Mr. D. has apprised this gentleman of what he had done. Sir Edward expressed his astonishment that he should refer to him to support such a tale,—then for the first time suggested to him,—who had known him all his life, and then brought forward when his father, mother, and grandmother were all dead. Sir Edward added, that he had at all times been his friend, that he believed him meritorious in the capacity in which he had served, but he could never be made an instrument of imposing this story as true. He, however, got a pension and apartments at Hampton Court, and was afterwards entered at some Inn of Court, and was called to the Bar, but not succeeding, soon quitted the profession."—Gentleman's Magazine, 1765, 2nd part, page 1052.

It is said that Dunckerley published "a remarkable and able address in 1757," viz., "The Light and Truth of Masonry Explained, being the substance of a Charge delivered at Plymouth in April 1757." I have read an address by Dunckerley in Dr. Oliver's works. I could see nothing remarkable in it; the very same explanation may be heard in every English Lodge of Instruction, and I doubt very much whether Dunckerley made any address at all at Portsmouth in 1757. Be it known that, owing to his want of patronage from any one connected with Parliament (so says his biographer in 1842), Dunckerley, on board of a man-of-war, never rose higher than gunner, and he seems to have remained in that position until 1764. It seems, therefore, improbable that a mere gunner could either have spared time to acquire the ritual, or that he could have had influence and means to lecture and to print his lecture in 1757. After Dunckerley's appointment in the Royal Academy at Portsmouth in 1764, with a prospect of being acknowledged uncle to His Majesty, then, indeed, it became the easiest possible thing for Brother Dunckerley to rise in the Masonic profession, to be applauded as a great orator, profound lecturer, a man of science, and what not; and the said "remarkable address" was, therefore, probably not delivered at Portsmouth before 1767.

I am, Dear Sir and Brother,

Yours fraternally,

JACOB NORTON.

UNWORTHY CONDUCT.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—It is a pleasure to read the accounts given in your interesting paper of the meetings of the various Lodges where harmony exists, and I have at times been envious of Masonic brethren in my own Province; at the same there are Lodges even in this country that are worked on bad principles, and nothing short of vigorous measures from the "powers that be" will set many of these right.

I unfortunately belong to a Lodge (and it being my mother Lodge I hope not to be compelled to leave it) where the whole of the proceedings are conducted by two or three, or, perhaps I should speak more correctly if I stated, by one member, who has assumed a dictatorship that has driven many a good brother to speak but little and think less of Freemasonry. This Lodge possesses about a hundred subscribing members, but the amount disbursed in charity does not average £20 per annum, the funds being invested in the trading banking account of the Treasurer, and no member seems to be able to get office, or to keep it, unless he trades with that individual, whose success in life no doubt has depended in a great measure upon his connection with Masonry, and this Lodge in particular; and although he is now, or is supposed to be, in affluent circumstances, this brother has not contributed a single penny in the shape of quarterage during, I believe, the past twelve years, certainly not since my connection with the Lodge—say about five years. He has, however, attended nearly every banquet at the expense of the Lodge, and duly pays his Grand Lodge fees out of its funds. He is always talking of resigning his "duties," but this he never does, as he would have to pay over the balance in hand (over £100), and if he does not have his own way in everything, he threatens to resign the Lodge, while if he is spoken to in reference to the matter, he falls into a violent passion, and if raving does not take effect, pleads indisposition, and retires in a hysterical sort of way. It is amusing to watch his tactics at an initiation. When he announces the candidate has "paid the customary fees," he walks up the south side of the Lodge, packs up his case and departs, fearing, I suppose, some more generous brother might propose a sum of money to some indigent brother or widow. He seems to look upon all distressed Masons as tramps, and even when obliged, he doles out charity like a relieving officer. Dear brother Editor, did you ever meet such a person? You may have done so at Grand Lodge, or at some great ceremony, for although not a subscribing member to any Craft Lodge, our friend has held office lately in Grand Lodge, and is very proud of the purple, he exhibits a bland smile for every one, and some confiding Brother will pour the Masonic oil over his character and position, and he retires to rest with an extraordinary idea of his own importance, and rises in the morning ready to take a stray order from any initiate Brother who has been carried away by his grandiloquence the previous evening, and who may have been told, as I was, that it was policy to give the W. Treasurer an order as soon as possible after joining the Lodge.

This is no fiction, but is the well-known pantomime monthly enacted at a Provincial Lodge. I trust this is an isolated case, but I am afraid it is not so; however, every true Mason should denounce such unworthy conduct, and I think Grand Lodge should recommend that all Masonic monies be paid into a separate banking account in the names of the Master and Treasurer of Lodge, and that the bank pass book should be forthcoming whenever required by the Finance Committee.

I enclose you my name, address, and Lodge, but not for present publication, as I prefer giving the Brother I have referred to a warning ere I ask his sanction to the publication of our names.

Yours fraternally,

M. F. C.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Crystal Palace Lodge, No. 742.—As briefly announced by us last week, the installation meeting was held at the Star and Garter, Kew Bridge, on Thursday, 6th June. The Lodge was opened at 3 o'clock, when the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The auditors' report was presented; it showed that the funds were in an eminently satisfactory condition, and there was a good balance in hand. The report was unanimously adopted. Bro. Hilbert, a candidate for the third degree, passed his examination, and after being regularly prepared was advanced to the sublime degree. Bro. Charles D. Hume, P.M. Etonian Lodge, No. 209, was then introduced to the outgoing Master to receive at his hands the benefit of installation. Bro. Roberts administered the customary obligation, and requested all brethren below the rank of Installed Master to retire. A Board of Installed Masters was then formally opened and the ceremony performed. On the re-admission of the brethren the salutes were given, and Bro. Hume appointed the following brethren his Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Henry Speedy S.W., D. Radclyffe J.W., Thos. Foxall P.M. Treas., Wm. Land P.M. Sec., J. Blundell S.D., Fredk. Orme J.D., S. Eyre I.G., G. Cole D.C., Seymour Smith Org., Lassam W.S., Woodstock Tyler. The address to the Master was given by Bro. Roberts, those to the Wardens and Brethren by Bro. P.M. Foxall, and the Installing Master then resumed his seat, amid the congratulations of all present. The new Master was at once called on to exhibit his ability as a worker, as the ballot was taken for Messrs. George William Meacock, Thomas Woodward Bloot, and James Graddon. It proved successful in each case, and these three gentlemen being present, were initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry. The W.M. then rose, and with a few happy remarks, presented a Past Master's jewel to the worthy brother who had preceded him. Bro. Roberts in acknowledging the gift remarked he was greatly pleased at being the recipient of so handsome a jewel. It would ever be highly prized by him, and he trusted he might have many opportunities of wearing it in the Lodge. Several communications in reference to home matters were then read and discussed, after which Lodge was closed. The banquet was served in the New Hall, and was produced in the customary excellent style of Bro. Stanbury's establishment. The hall was handsomely decorated, with choice flowers, and several Masonic devices and emblems had been tastefully arranged about the tables. When we inform our readers that this was the artistic work of Bro. Dick Radclyffe, the well known horticultural decorator, who is the J.W. of the Lodge, they will be able to form an idea of the effect produced. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. Hume stated that he intended during his year of office to be as brief as possible in introducing the toasts. He then offered for the acceptance of the brethren the health of Her Most Gracious Majesty and Prosperity to the Craft. After the National Anthem by Bro. Seymour Smith, the W.M. rose to propose H.R.H. the M.W. the Grand Master, which received full recognition, and "God Bless the Prince of Wales" was sung. After the toast of the Pro Grand Master, the Dep. Grand Master, and Grand Officers Past and Present, the W.M. proposed the health of the Initiates. The brethren of the Crystal Palace Lodge might on this occasion congratulate themselves, inasmuch as it was, he thought, the first time in the history of the Lodge that they had had three initiates on one evening. From the way the new brethren had conducted themselves during the ceremony he believed they had the true metallic ring, and he trusted they would add lustre to the Lodge. The Entered Apprentice Song having been given, the initiates severally responded. Bro. Roberts I.P.M. then took the gavel, and proposed the health of the W.M. He had known Bro. Hume for some time and in him they would find they had a good representative of King Solomon. The purest precepts of Freemasonry were ever uppermost in his mind, and he would be found untiring in his endeavours to advance the welfare of the members. He called on the brethren to drink their Worshipful Master's health, and wish him a prosperous year of office. Brother Seymour Smith, by request, gave his humorous song, "Mrs. Brown's Silver Wedding," which elicited warm applause from all present. The W.M. then replied. He thanked Bro. Roberts for the many kind things he had said of him. He assured the brethren he would do all he could to promote their comfort. He then pleasantly referred to the first impressions he had experienced on being made a Mason, and recounted how he made up his mind to attain a high position if energy and perseverance would assist him. Before resuming his seat he proposed Prosperity to the Masonic Charities, and called on Bros. Binckes and Terry to reply. Bro. Binckes had not for many years had the pleasure of visiting the Crystal Palace Lodge. The W.M. had indulged in a hope that the three initiates would eventually become good and charitable Masons; he could inform these brethren that their Lodge had never failed in its devotion to the Charities. Bro. Terry, the Secretary of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution—in spite of the unsettled state of affairs abroad, and the fearfully depressed state of trade at home—had had a very successful Festival this year. The Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls had likewise resulted satisfactorily, and under these circumstances he (the speaker) looked forward, not without great anxiety, that the endeavours of his Board of Stewards would be successful. Bro. Binckes then recounted what was being done by the Institution whose claims he advocated, and drew a comparison with what was accomplished seventeen years ago. He referred to what was urged by that section of our Brotherhood who desired that spontaneous effort should take the place of missionary enterprise. In conclusion, Bro. Binckes referred to the efforts that were being made by Bro. Land, who was Steward for the Lodge at the Festival, which will take place on the 8th July, and trusted he would receive the continued support of the members of this Lodge. Bro. Terry followed: He recognized the kindness he always received, and gratefully acknowledged the great services rendered by the Crystal Palace Lodge. He then referred to the vacant Secretaryship, and trusted that, whoever might be elected, the three Officers would be able to work amicably together, and continue the good feeling which had always hitherto existed. After a song, by Bro. Morgan, the health of the Visitors was given, and Bro. Z. D. Berry P.M. 179 responded. With the toast of the Past Masters was associated the name of Bro. Thompson, who, having acknowledged the compliment, the W.M. gave the Officers. After a song—"Wilt thou be my bride, Kathleen"—admirably sung by Bro. Hume, the Wardens acknowledged the honour conferred on them, and shortly afterwards the W.M. summoned the Tyler, who brought an interesting day's proceedings to a close. Amongst the Past Masters present were Bros. Roberts I.P.M., Watson, Cox, Elsley, Acton, Thompson, Baxter, Weekes, &c., and in addition to those we have already enumerated, there were several visitors.

Hartington Lodge of Instruction, No. 1085.—The anniversary meeting of this Lodge of Instruction was held on Wednesday, 29th ult. Bro. J. O. Manton (Secretary) as W.M. worked the ceremony of raising, Bro. E. R. Ward S.W. 253 acting as candidate. The Preceptor Bro. M. H. Bobart P.P.S.G.W. and Bro. A. G. Taylor W.M. 253 illustrated and explained many usages in Continental Lodges, and other brethren, prompted by the Preceptor, contributed to the work of the evening. Bro. Bobart was re-elected as Preceptor and Treasurer of the Lodge, and Bro. Manton as Secretary, high encomiums being passed upon their very efficient conduct in their respective positions hitherto, special reference being made to Bro. Bobart's long services. The Bye-Laws of the Lodge were read. The report of the Audit Committee on the accounts for the past twelvemonths were presented, and unanimously adopted. Several propositions were submitted to the brethren, after which the Lodge was adjourned until the 26th June. Business being ended, the brethren partook of a sumptuous banquet. Bro. Batterfield will act as W.M. at the next meeting.

Lord Warden Lodge, No. 1096.—This Lodge held its usual meeting on Friday, the 7th instant. Present—Bros. E. Kirby W.M., A. H. Des Barres I.P.M., J. Laggett S.W., H. R. Botting J.W., J. B. Harrison P.M. Chaplain, T. J. Usher P.M. P.P.G.R. and Secretary, J. Carpenter S.D., W. Carterfield J.D., J. Westaway Org., F. R. England as I.G.; D. Fraser, J. C. Cross, T. Spurgeon, S. Holgate Tyler. Lodge opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The business on the agenda paper comprised the balloting for a joining member, which was found to be unanimous in his favour. Lodge opened up, and Bro. Spurgeon being a candidate for the third degree, was examined and answered the questions satisfactorily. This brother was then raised by the W.M. in a most able and impressive way, the ancient lecture and charge being given. The whole of the Officers did their work in a creditable and painstaking manner. Lodge was closed regularly down, after which the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and spent a very pleasant and social hour together.

Neptune Lodge No. 1264.—A meeting was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on 3rd June. Present—Bros. Joseph Healing W.M., A. Cotter I.P.M., J. Korn S.W., W. C. Webb J.W., P. B. Gee P.M. Treasurer, J. H. Linaker Secretary, A. C. Wylie S.D., T. Arden J.D., C. Fothergill I.G., P. Ball Tyler. After the usual routine business was disposed of, Mr. Chas. Cavers was initiated, and the installation of W.M. and Officers for the ensuing year performed by the retiring Master, Bro. Healing. The following are the Officers for the next 12 months:—Bros. Joseph Korn W.M., Joseph Healing I.P.M., W. C. Webb S.W., A. C. Wylie J.W., J. H. Linaker Secretary, P. B. McGee P.M. Treasurer, T. H. Arden S.D., C. Fothergill J.D., A Cotter P.M. D.C., R. Battersby, G. Crute and J. Sickle Stewards, J. S. Warden I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler. The appointment of the Officers were ratified, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed in an appropriate manner, and rapidly reaching the toast of the Prov. G. Officers Bro. Korn coupled therewith the name of Bro. Burgess, who, after Bro. Dealey had favoured the brethren with a song, responded in as brief a manner as possible. The fifth toast on the list was proposed by the I.P.M., and in doing so, he expressed the pleasure he had felt that day in installing Bro. Korn as W.M. of the Neptune Lodge, and particularly so as he had the honour of initiating him. He trusted that his term of office would be prosperous and happy, and hoped that he would have the same hearty cooperation of the brethen as he had received, and the aid of the P.M.'s whose assistance had been of so much value to him. The toast was recived with Masonic honours. W. Bro. Chapman responded to a unanimous call for a recitation, which was capitally rendered and highly applauded. The W.M. on rising to respond to the toast of his health, said: It is some eight years ago since I first saw light; I have held, during that time, the various offices, and have done my best to discharge their duties to the utmost of my ability. If I have satisfied you in my efforts, it is a source of satisfaction to me. In my new and exalted capacity I will endeavour to do my duty. Our Lodge is a very large one, and a very influential one, and its interests shall be carefully watched by me. We have had many good Masters in this chair, brothers who have done a deal of service for the Lodge, and if I am spared I will endeavour to emulate their good example, and during my term of office in carrying out my present intentions I have little fear of failing to give you satisfaction. The W.M. again rose, to propose the health of the I.P.M., who had so ably performed the duties of installing Master. Bro. Korn paid a very complimentary tribute to Bro. Healing, and the toast was received with musical honours. In the interval, Bro. Linaker complied with a request for a song. Bro. Healing I.P.M. returned thanks for the cordial manner in which the brethren had received the toast last given from the chair. He thanked the officers and brethren for past kindnesses, and with such hearty cooperation as he had received they could well understand how the good old ship, "The Neptune," had been laid down, was equipped, and now sailed forth in splendour and success. May all future Masters of this Lodge act as good commanders of a noble Craft, and steer it through its career of usefulness for all generations. The next toast was the Past Masters of the Neptune Lodge, which was heartily given by the W.M., and so received by the brethren. Bro. Hobart responded to the call for the next song. Bro. Gee returned thanks on behalf of the Past Masters, followed by Bros. Healing and Cotter. The health of the Visiting Brethren was very kindly proposed and cordially received, after which Bro. Niel favoured the brethren with a song. Several brethren returned thanks in response to the toast of the visitors. During the evening, the talented and genial P.G. Organist, Bro. Skeaf, delighted the brethren with his execution on the piano.

Dramatic Lodge, No. 1609.—This Lodge held its regular monthly meeting at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 28th ult. Present—Bros. W. J. Chapman W.M., J. B. Mackenzie as S.W., B. B. Marson P.M. as J.W., J. A. Ruison Secretary, A. Woolrich Treasurer, W. Sandbrook S.D., F. Wilkinson J.D., J. Capell as D.C., J. Pyer and W. Savage Stewards, W. P. Squire I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler; Past Masters Bros. Bell and Johnston. There was a strong muster of the members of the Lodge, and a few visitors. After the usual routine business had been disposed of, Mr. H. B. Cosby was balloted for, accepted and initiated. The Lodge having been worked up, Bros. Sanderson, Heap, Armand, Whittle, and Owen, of this Lodge, and Bros. Jones and Brown of Emulation Lodge, No. 1505, were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The Lodge voted two sums, one of three guineas and one of five guineas, for benevolent purposes. The Dramatic Lodge is, as a matter of course, quite a favourite in the province, and especially in Liverpool. There is great vitality amongst its members, and splendid talent for Masonic ritual. The Lodge is in its infancy, and it remains to be seen whether its prosperity in the future will be as sure as its rapid rise during the three years of its existence. The present W.M. is a Brother of power and action, yet there are others whom we have heard in our glorious ceremonies more impressive with less demonstration, more comprehensive with less effort. If ever the heart should—nay, must be—in unity with the word, it is most undoubtedly in Masonic ritual. No amount of vocal power, of energetic gesture, of rapid eloquence, can carry our solemn and beautiful teachings home to the heart of a listener, unless it proceeds from the eloquence immediately dictated by the heart of the speaker. After the termination of business the Lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to dinner, where a plain but substantial spread was duly appreciated. On the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts in quick succession. The object was evidently to enhance the enjoyment of the occasion as much as possible in a given time, as there were many of the professional brethren who had appointments to keep at the various theatres. In proposing the toast of the Visitors, W. Bro. Chapman accorded all a most hearty welcome, and Rev. Bro. Leslie responded. During the evening Bros. Richardson, Penney, Saunders, Cook and Haywood greatly delighted the brethren, with good subjects capitally rendered. The ever obliging and talented P.G. Organist, Bro. Skeaf, presided at the piano. After the Tyler's toast the brethren dispersed.

West Middlesex Lodge of Instruction, No. 1612.—A meeting was held at the Feathers Hotel, Ealing, on Thursday, the 6th inst., at 7.30 p.m. Present—Bros. W. Seward jun. W.M., E. C. Porter S.W., A. J. Burr J.W. Sec., Cross S.D., J. R. Fernee J.D., Wills I.G., H. E. Tucker Treas. Bros. Owen, Clark, Wright, Kusner, Davies 1146, &c. Lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read, confirmed, and signed. Bro. Owen having volunteered as a candidate, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed. This was followed by the rehearsal of the ceremony o passing, Bro. Clark being the candidate. At the request of the W.M. Bro. H. E. Tucker (Treas.), delivered the lecture on the tracing board of the degree. Lodge was opened and closed in the third, and closed to the first degree. Bro. Davies, with the assistance of the brethren, worked the first and second sections of the lecture. On the motion of Bro. Cross, seconded by Bro. Tucker, Bro. Davies was elected a member. A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Bro. Davies for the instruction he had given the brethren. After this brother had acknowledged the compliment, Bro. E. C. Porter was elected W.M. for next meeting, 20th June, and the Lodge was closed.

Eboracum Lodge, No. 1611.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held on Monday, but in consequence of the day being a general holiday, the Lodge was called off until Wednesday evening, when it was called on at 7 o'clock. Present—Bros. T. B. Whytehead W.M., T. Cooper I.P.M., J. S. Cumberland S.W., C. G. Padel J.W., A. T. B. Turner as S.D., J. T. Seller J.D., M. Millington I.G., J. Kay Secretary, J. W. Craven Organist, G. Simpson M.C., T. D. Smith Steward, P. Pearson Tyler; and Bros. Leah, Wilkinson, Jackson, Husband, &c. The business consisted of a raising and two initiations, which were worked by the W.M. The reports of the Lodge Committees were received and adopted, and Bro. G. H. Simpson, of the York Lodge, 236, was proposed as a joining member. After the close of the Lodge, the brethren met at refreshment, and were enlivened by solo and part singing by the musical members, who muster very strong under the banner of the Eboracum. The brethren of this Lodge purpose entertaining, at luncheon, a party of American Masons, who will visit York next month, deeming it a fitting opportunity of extending a fraternal welcome to their Transatlantic brethren, who are themselves world-famed for their hospitality.

The Panmure General Lodge of Instruction.—The first meeting of this new Lodge of Instruction, which has been formed for the purpose of affording instruction in the Craft, Mark, and Royal Arch degrees, by an ingenious arrangement which, whilst keeping the several ceremonies distinct, will enable brethren to associate for the general support and advancement of each other in the respective degrees, was held at the Antelope Tavern, Sun-road, Brixton, on the 6th inst. The Lodge was opened at 7.30 p.m. by Bro. James Stevens P.M. as W.M., Thomas Poore P.M. S.W., John Coe J.W., E. Francis S.D., J. Dunn J.D., C. T. Pearce I.G., T. Dickie P.G.P. acting Secretary. There were also present Bros. W. Ackland, C. P. McKay, Henry Lovegrove, E. Farwig, Joseph Croker, J. H. Wilkinson, and others. The ceremony of initiation having been rehearsed, the brethren proceeded to discuss the several propositions placed before them by Bros. Stevens and Poore, to whom had been granted the sanctions required from the Panmure Craft Lodge, the Panmure Mark Lodge, and the Panmure Royal Arch Chapter respectively. These were fully discussed, and the following resolutions were adopted, viz:—"That the Panmure General Lodge of Instruction be founded on the programme set forth in the circular convening the meeting, and that the order of working shall be:—

|---|---|---|---|
| First Thursday in the Month | | | Craft Ceremony and Sections, First Degree |
| Second | " | " | Mark Ceremony and Lecture |
| Third | " | " | Craft Ceremonies and Sections, Second and Third Degrees |
| Fourth | " | " | Royal Arch Ceremony, and Sections |
| First fifth Thursday in the Year | | | Craft Installation and Annual Festival |
| Second | " | " | Mark Installation Ceremony |
| Third | " | " | Fifteen Sections (Craft) |
| Fourth | " | " | Royal Arch Installation Ceremony |

The whole of the brethren present were constituted founders, and to their number will be added those who may be present at the first meetings of the Mark and Royal Arch sections of the General Lodge. Bros. James Stevens P.M. and P.Z., and Bros. Thomas Poore P.M. and J. were appointed Honorary Preceptors. Bro. Thomas Dickie, P.M. P.Z., was appointed Hon. Sec. The settlement of the By-laws was deferred until the expiration of three months, in order that the several sections might be properly represented in the General Lodge when holding its meetings in the first degree. The thanks of the meeting were voted to the respective Lodges and Chapter for the sanction accorded, and to Bros. Stevens and Poore for their services in preliminary formation of the Lodge. Bro. Coe was elected W.M. for the next Craft meeting, June 20th. Lodge was then closed, and the Craft meeting adjourned to that date. The first meeting in the Mark degree will take place on Thursday, the 13th inst., Bro. Thos. Poore W.M.

Panmure General Lodge of Instruction, Mark Masonry.—The second meeting of the above Lodge was held at the Antelope Tavern, Sun-road, Brixton, on the 13th inst. The evening being devoted to Mark instruction. The Lodge was opened by Bros. Thomas Poore P.G.I.G. as W.M., James Stevens P.G.J.O. S.W., C. P. McKay J.W., and the several offices below the chairs were efficiently occupied. The full ceremony of advancement was rehearsed, and explanations afforded by the presiding officers. A most instructive evening was the result, and a cordial vote of thanks to the Preceptors was carried with acclamation. The next meeting of the General Lodge will be devoted to the second and third degrees of Craft Masonry, and the subsequent Thursday evening to Royal Arch Ceremony and Lectures.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Dyspepsia, Jaundice.—These complaints are the results of a disordered liver, which secretes bile in quantity or quality incapable of digesting food. Digestion requires a free flow of healthy bile, to secure which Holloway's Pills and Ointment have long been famous, for keeping every other medicine. Bad food, irregularity of living, unhealthy climates, &c., are constantly throwing the liver into disorder, but test remedial organ can, under all circumstances, soon be regulated and healthily adjusted by Holloway's Pills and Ointment, which act directly upon the vital secretion. The Ointment rubbed on the skin penetrates those internal to the seat, whose blood and nerves it rectifies. One trial in all that is needed; a cure will soon follow.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Vice-Patrons, Vice-Presidents, Life Governors and Members of the General Committee.

MY LORDS, LADIES, AND BRETHREN,—

I have the honour to acknowledge most gratefully the extensive and cordial support I have received in my Candidature for the Secretaryship of your valuable Institution, and to thank those Members of the Committee who have favoured me with the promise of their vote and interest.

I beg most respectfully to solicit the assistance of those who remain unpledged, and I base my appeal on the following grounds.

In the enjoyment of perfect health, at the age of Thirty-eight, I feel myself possessed of those physical qualities requisite for the discharge of the arduous duties of the office.

I am a Life Governor of all our Institutions, and am this year acting as Steward for the Anniversary Festivals for the Eighth time.

Initiated into Freemasonry in 1863, I have been, and still am, an active member of the Order. Have passed the chairs in the Craft and Royal Arch, and held high rank in all the allied degrees and orders.

Engaged in commercial pursuits, I have for many years enjoyed exceptional opportunities of making the acquaintance of leading Brethren in the principal towns in the United Kingdom—to most of whom I am well and intimately known.

From my numerous Testimonials I have submitted several to the House Committee, which will, I trust, be regarded as exceedingly favourable, coming as they do from those who have had ample means of forming their judgment of my fitness for the position I aspire to attain.

 The Election, to be by Ballot, will take place in the Hall of Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen Street, London, W.C., on Thursday, 11th July next, from Two to Five p.m.

Your personal attendance is absolutely essential, and I earnestly hope you will find it convenient to be present to record your vote in my favour.

I need scarcely say, if I have the honour to be elected no exertion on my part shall be spared to still further increase the usefulness and efficiency of the Institution.

I have the honour to be,

My Lords, Ladies and Brethren,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

CHARLES FITZGERALD MATIER.

14th June 1878.

---

The Committee for securing the Election of Bro. C. FITZ GERALD MATIER have to add, in support of his Candidature, the following Testimonial, which, with many others, has been submitted to the House Committee.

STEPHEN BARTON WILSON,
Hon. Sec.

SIR,—I have great pleasure in bearing my testimony to your fitness for the post for which you are a Candidate.

As a Mason of high standing and unblemished character, I can imagine no one more calculated to give satisfaction to the authorities, in the position of Secretary to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, than yourself.

Very faithfully and fraternally yours,

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

PARLIAMENT has been enjoying a short respite this week from its labours, by reason of Whitsuntide, but owing to the Easter holidays having lasted longer than in ordinary years, and owing to the amount of work that remains to be got through, the rest is only a short one. The Commons has met again already, and on Monday the Peers will reassemble. Thursday last—the latter had an hour's sitting, when the Armenian Christians and the Congress were briefly referred to, while on Friday their Lordships sat for a couple of hours and a half, and the Lord Chancellor took an opportunity of proving his statement that on several occasions in the course of last century the Crown employed troops in various parts of the Empire which were not included in the Grant voted in the House of Parliament. In the House of Commons a considerable amount of progress was made with the Civil Service Estimates, and the Admiralty and War Office Retirement of Officers' Bill received a second reading, while on Friday further votes were agreed to in Committee of Supply. New writs have also been issued, in place of Mr. Russell Gurney late Member for Southampton, and Mr. Wykeham Martin late Member for Rochester.

The Queen and the Princess Beatrice are still in the Highlands, but it is expected that Her Majesty will return to the South some time next week. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught have gone to Paris, where the former is busily engaged in the performance of his duties as Chairman of the Royal Commission at the Paris International Exhibition. The Duke will go on to Berlin, and will there visit Prince Frederick Charles, to whose third daughter, as our readers will recollect, his Royal Highness was recently betrothed. On his return home he will be accompanied by his affianced bride and her father, as the marriage will take place in this country. On Wedn the Princess of Wales and her three daughters paid to the Horse Show at the Agricultural Hall, Lord and Suffield being in attendance on her Royal Highness. Duchess of Edinburgh is at St. Petersburgh, whe mother, the Empress of Russia, lies in a precarious st health, so much so, indeed, that her Imperial Majo prayed for in the churches.

The Great Horse Show which was opened in the Ag tural Hall on Saturday last is, in respect of the numb variety of the exhibits, quite up to the average, a been inspected by a very large number of visitors, wh watched the leaping and parade of the winners great deal of interest. Yesterday was the last da though the weather has not been the most favourab management have every reason to be satisfied wi results. It is not perhaps so agreeable a place to the Alexandra Palace grounds, but there is no doubt the quality of the horseflesh exhibited.

We have got well into the Cricket season, as is by the fact that this week has witnessed one of the annual fixtures, namely, one of the matches between and South. Of late years, the South have generally victorious owing to the tremendous batting powers c brilliant players as the Graces—W. G. and G. F others; but this week the victory at Prince's rested w North, who had three more wickets to fall wh winning hit was made. Mr. W. G. Grace scored 77 in his two innings, the other principal scorers side being Mr. Lucas 30 and 9, Mr. Ridley 49 and Mr. Hadow 40 and 22. Among the North Mr. Ho and 27, Lookwood 13 and 38, Mr. D. Q. Steel 26 a Greenwood 36 (not out) and 18, and Pinder 18 an out) 21 were the most successful. The Australia still in Yorkshire, where, on Tuesday and the followir they played an 18 of Batley, making 170 in their fir only innings, Mr. Horan being top score with 50 Eighteen had lost seven wickets for five runs, wh rain came down heavily and put a stop to the furth gress of the match. There has also been a good activity in the other branches of sport, in the yachti athletic worlds, several important events having be in the latter. Next week will be Ascot week, and hope, therefore, the weather will be a little mo pitious than it has been.

The Bank holiday had little to boast of in the weather, but the public went out in full strengt withstanding. The Crystal Palace and Alexandra were the principal attractions, but the favourite resorts were pretty well crowded with visitors, Bri Margate, Ramsgate, &c., being highly favoured. gards the different lines of railway, no doubt the had a hard day's work, but they had their rew course, if trains and stations offer any criterion returns. As to the Great Western, we believe tha previous year has the number of travellers by th been so great.

How the House of Lords will look next week the Prime Minister and his colleague at the Foreig may be imagined, nor is there much prospect of ar taking place in that august assembly until the re the plenipotentiaries from the Congress at Berlin. course, does not detract one iota from the political a of the moment, but we must be content to remain an expecting the events that may happen. It is son for the Congress to have assembled together, a enthusiasm with which the Earl of Beaconsfield ceived at Charing Cross Station and at Dover ar factory evidence that the country is well content its destinies at the Congress in the hands of the nob and his colleague. There was great cheering at the and when his Lordship embarked for Calais the spe gave him rounds and rounds of applause. All alo route his Lordship was received with great respect, was he on arriving at Berlin. His colleague starte days later, and has also arrived. Indeed, the repr tives of all the Powers are now in Berlin, and on Th the Congress was formally opened at what was know Von Radziwill palace. It is considered that a few will suffice for the transaction of the necessary bus Haydock, in Lancashire, by which it is feared over 200 lives have been lost. A meeting was held in Liverpool on Wednesday, under the presidency of the Earl of Derby, and among those present were the Bishop of Manchester, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Liverpool, Dean Howson of Chester, and other persons of influence. His Lordship having dwelt on the greatness of the calamity, a series of resolutions was passed having for its object the raising of a sufficient sum of money to relieve the distress caused by the death of so many bread winners. It is years since any such terrible calamity occurred, in fact, nothing has been heard of which can compare with it since the fatal explosion at the Oaks Colliery. At present it is not known how many deaths have actually occurred, as the work of exploration proceeds but slowly, and up to Wednesday only sixty-five bodies had been recovered. The scene in the neighbourhood can better be imagined than described. We trust the subscriptions of the public will be on the most liberal scale.

The Paris International Exhibition is likely, according to the accounts we have of it, to prove a great success financially. On Monday, over 200,000 people visited it, and had there been admission by payment as well as by ticket this number would have been largely increased. There seems to be a fair amount of visitors, but the hotel keepers would have more business if their charges were less exorbitant. However, that is sure to be the complaint in every capital, when a fête of this kind is in progress.

News of the somewhat sudden death of George V., ex-King of Hanover, reached London on Wednesday, and takes us back to the days when German unity existed only in the brain of Emperor William and his ministers. The late monarch had been deposed from his throne ever since 1866, when he sided with Austria against Prussia in the Seven Weeks' War, and Hanover became an integral part of Prussia. Then was established the North German Confederation, and a few years later followed the establishment of the German Empire. George V. was son of the late King Ernest, who, till the year 1837, was known in this country as Duke of Cumberland, one of the least popular of the sons of George III. On the death of William IV., in 1837, the throne of Hanover passed, by the operation of the Salic Law, to Ernest, and, on his death, his son became King, as George V. The deceased was, therefore, first cousin to our Queen, and the Court will consequently go into mourning. He is succeeded in his English Dukedom by his only son, the Crown Prince, who is unmarried. George V. was blind, and like many other blind men was a great musician. Until his reign came to a close, he was Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Hanover, but this has now ceased to exist as a separate and independent organization.

The political world is in a state of suspense, and will remain so for some time to come, until the issue of peace or war is settled. The most disquieting news relates to Austria, who is mobilising a part of her army. But Austria has been so vacilliating, that the quidnuncs have not yet made up their minds as to whether this is ominous of peace or war. All we can do is to trust in Providence that the peace of Europe may not be further broken.

ANECDOTES, &c. IN RELATION TO MILITARY MASONRY.

A French Merchant Captain.—In the summer of 1835, the schooner Vigilant, Captain Bergoun, from Dunkirk, arrived in Lerwick harbour, with loss of sails and other damage. The captain procured an agent, with whom he agreed for the necessary repairs, which were soon effected, and the vessel declared ready for sea. A misunderstanding, however, arose between the captain and the agent, on the charges incurred, which, in the sequel, proved to be excessive; the captain threatened to sail without acknowledging the account unless corrected, whereon a mediationæ fugæ warrant was procured against him. I knew him to be a man incapable of acting with dishonesty, although a little acute in the detection of certain mistakes, and was struck with astonishment at seeing him marched off to prison, and incarcerated beside a felon convicted of theft and burglary. As the captain understood the English language but very imperfectly, I proffered my services in his forlorn state. After the burst of indignation which naturally followed had subsided, he earnestly requested that a Freemason might be sent to him. I was acquainted with several gentlemen reputed to be of the Order, and to whom I made his case known. The agent who procured the warrant, the judge who signed it, and the captain who suffered by it, were all Freemasons; instant justice was rendered, and the captain immediately liberated. I was so struck with the wonderful influence of the mystic tie over the usual tardy operation of official regulations, that I eagerly seized the opportunity to become a Freemason.—Balcarres.—F.Q.R., Vol. IX., p 140.

The Surgeon and the Calcutta Masons.—The surgeon of a large trading vessel left England on a voyage that was calculated to extend over three years. The passage was not congenial to his nature, for the captain behaved to him with contempt, and he was not therefore treated as he ought to have been by others. The motive for the captain's conduct arose from the surgeon's non-compliance with certain peculative views which affected the interests of the owner, as well as the comforts of the ship's company, but which circumstances it would have been imprudent to have divulged, as such a course would have drawn upon him all the severity it was then in the power of a sea captain to inflict. On reaching a distant port, the surgeon left the ship, preferring to throw himself on the consideration of strangers rather than to endure a continuance of such cruel treatment, and his prospect was brightening. Several passengers, however, who were desirous of returning home, would only take berths in the ship on condition that the surgeon would resume his duties, his character being highly esteemed. On this the captain, by apologising for his past conduct, by promises of amendment in himself, and of full pay and privilege, succeeded in changing the determination of the surgeon, much to the satisfaction of the passengers. The surgeon packed up his moveables, and consigned them to a person to convey them on board. He saw his trunks secured on a sort of cart, which drove off, he himself following at a brisk walk. On the cart nearing the place where the boat was waiting, he observed the driver to use increased speed, and turn suddenly into the bush way, where in an instant he was out of sight! The blue peter was at the mast head, not a moment was to be lost, and the poor fellow boarded the ship without even a change of linen. The passengers kindly supplied him with many things, but the captain's conduct became harsher than ever; to jeers on his misfortune succeeded every species of vindictiveness in his power. His end had been answered. He had obtained passengers, with their money and stores, and he forgot all his promises to the surgeon, whom he unceremoniously dismissed on his arrival in Calcutta, and who became a wanderer and an outcast in the "City of Palaces." But the surgeon was a Mason, and in the hour of need, starving and scarcely clothed, he remembered that as he had promised to relieve others in their trouble he was probably himself entitled to ask relief. He applied to a Provincial Grand Master, who supplied his immediate wants, and shortly enabled him to make a decent appearance; soon after which he was engaged by a native gentleman in the upper provinces as secretary and medical attendant, in which capacity he still remains. Before leaving Calcutta he called on his friend the Grand Officer, and repaid the advance, with the most grateful acknowledgments for the powerful and truly Masonic kindness afforded him in the hour of affliction.—F.Q.R., Vol. IX, p 403.

The Jubilee of H. Langley, Esq.

STOREKEEPER OF H.M. ORDNANCE, PORTSMOUTH.

Come, sing with me the jubilee; 'tis fifty years ago
Since first our honor'd Master sailed to meet old England's foe,
He left his happy home, in Kent, so buoyant and so free,
And cheerful went, wherever sent, to serve on land or sea.
When George the Third called England's sons, he answered to the call,
And now we sing his jubilee, in this his festive hall.

He was in that dire hurricane that swept o'er ocean's waves,
When hundreds brave, in Christian's fleet, were hurried to their graves;
The seamen strove in that dread hour against the angry deep,
But, far beyond all human power, the awful whirlwinds sweep.
To Thee, O God! their cry was raised, on Thee for mercy call,
For him Thou spared Thy name be praised, in this his festive hall.

Wild anarchy had raised her head, and terror reigned around,
And all the noblest blood of France was shed upon the ground;
Bravely against their rebel hands he fought for many a day,
And when the dreadful battle raged was foremost in the fray.
But heaven preserved him, while around so many comrades fall,
And now we sing his jubilee, in this his festive hall.

He served when dreadful pestilence was spreading far and wide,
And saw his gallant messmates sink in numbers by his side;
Heedless of almost certain death, his willing aid was near,
While many from infection's breath shrank far away with fear.
But he was spar'd, while o'er his friends was laid the funeral pall,
And now we sing his jubilee, within his festive hall.

When tyrant France imprisoned him, his spirit never pined,
But to relieve his distress'd friends was foremost in his mind;*
His freedom oft he strove to gain, and reach his native shore;
Sickness and want, with manly pride, most patiently he bore.
And days and nights at sea had passed in little skiff so small,
Where now we sing he reached at last, o'er this, his festive hall.

This is his year of jubilee; we hail the happy day;
Long may he live, and we to serve beneath his gentle sway;
May He whose mercy grants him health, largely increase his store,
Freely he shares his hard-earned wealth in comforting the poor.
That heaven's choicest blessings upon his head may fall,
So let us pray who meet this day, within his festive hall.

W. F. WOLFE.

April 1842.

* Upon Mr Langley's arrival, a prisoner, at Verdun, he found six of his fellow townsmen, prisoners, in the greatest distress, these he relieved, and continued his kindness to them and the rest of the English prisoners during their captivity.

W. Richey, &c. Visitors—Bros. W. Lindsay 593, and T. G. Mills 697. Two new members were initiated, and it was announced that the Annual Festival of St. John would be celebrated on Wednesday, 26th June. After Lodge, the brethren assembled round the festive board, and spent a most happy evening. The W.M., in responding to the toast of his health, thanked the P.M.'s and brethren generally for the manner in which they had rallied round him during his year of office, and expressed his confidence that the Lodge would prosper under the presidency of the W.M. elect, Bro. Henuemeyer.

Hermes Chapter, No. 77, Gravesend, Kent.—This Chapter met, the first time this season, on Wednesday, at the Old Falcon, when the following Comps. were present:—E. J. Scott M.E.Z., A. Cameron H., E. C. Woodward J., T. Marley S.N., Rev. J. Holden P.S., J. Hall A.S., J. Kelso P.Z., Brown Janitor, and other Comps. There being no candidates for exaltation, the Officers were installed as follow:—Comps. A. Cameron M.E.Z., E. C. Woodward H., Rev. J. Holden J., C. A. Cottebrune S.E., T. Marley S.N., J. Hall P.S., W. Forstick 1st A.S., Kelso 2nd A.S., Brown Janitor. The Chapter was then closed in due form, when the Comps. retired to banquet, which elicited great satisfaction, and praise was given the worthy host for the way he had placed it on the table. The attendance was everything that could be desired; the wines were of excellent brands. The Comps. did not separate till the exigencies of the train service compelled them to return to town, after spending a most social and convivial evening, which will not soon be forgotten. During the evening the worthy host gave his name in for joining the Chapter at the next meeting in August.

Ancient Ebor Preceptory, No. 101, (K.T.)—The regular meeting of this Preceptory was held at York, on Tuesday. Present—The following members:—Thos. Cooper, T. B. Whytehead, T. B. Priasick, J. S. Cumberland, Geo. Simpson, G. H. Simpson, J. Ward, &c. Pursuant to notice on the summons, the Registrar, E. Sir Knight T. B. Whytehead, announced the circumstances attending the contemplated visit of a party of American Knights Templar to York, on the 25th July, and moved that a Committee be appointed to make arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors. This was carried unanimously. E. Sir Knight J. W. Woodall P.G. Constable for N. and E. Yorkshire was proposed as a joining member.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—At the meeting of this Lodge on Wednesday last, held as usual at the Railway Tavern, London-street; there were present Bros. T. W. C. Bush W.M., K. Harris S.W., A. Posener J.W., Gottheil P.M., Biddle S.D., Fells J.D., Moss I.G., J. K. Pitt Sec.; Walker, Campbell, Anderson, Sayer, Claridge, Woodward, G. H. Stevens. The ceremony of the second degree was rehearsed, the Officers being well up in their duties, the W.M. giving proof of steady progress. Two of the sections were worked, in which Bro. Campbell, a young Scotch Mason, who has, during the comparatively short period of his stay in the Metropolis, striven to acquire the English mode of working, especially distinguished himself. Not only was he able to dictate the responses, but gave the illustration of the six grand periods in a manner which elicited hearty approbation. Bro. K. Harris was elected to preside on Wednesday next.

The Mariners Lodge, No. 249.—The monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 6th inst. Present, Bros. J. C. Robinson W.M., F. Barnett S.W., W. P. Jennings J.W., R. Collins Sec., Wm. Corbett S.D., John Whalley J.D., H. P. Parry I.G., Leighton Org., P. Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Hayes, Pearson, Smith. Mr. Fitz-Gerald and Mr. Messenger were initiated, after which the Lodge was worked up to the third degree, and Bros. F. G. Porter and R. Thompson were raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The Lodge was then lowered, and the election of Master for the coming twelvemonths was proceeded with; it resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. F. Barnett to the chair; Bro. Smith was re-elected Treasurer for the year; Bros. Cangley, Howarth and Jennings Auditors; Bros. Smith, Pearson and Rose as Lodge Trustees. Ballot was taken in favour of the Rev. Bro. Pennington being elected an Hon. Member of the Lodge. It was proposed by Bro. Hayes and seconded by Bro. Stern, that a sum of £10 be voted from the funds of the Lodge for a Past Master's jewel,—carried. The Lodge was then closed in harmony, and the brethren, by request of the W.M., adjourned to refreshment. After proposing the customary Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were heartily received, the W.M. rose to propose the health of the W.M. elect, and in doing so spoke of the great pleasure he had in giving that toast. They all knew how deserving Bro. Barnett was of the exalted post he had been so unanimously voted to that night. They knew his untiring zeal for the Craft, the constant attendance he had given to his duties, and how he had worked himself up from the post of I.G. to the proud position he had just attained. No one felt greater joy in congratulating Brother Barnett than he did that night, and he had full confidence that, prosperous as the Lodge had been under his Mastership, it would be even more so during the coming year. Every Brother felt that it was a great advantage to have a Master who possessed so many excellent qualifications for the office as Bro. Barnett exhibited; his working will prove itself of such an unexceptional character as to give the most fastidious Brother satisfaction. The toast was drunk with Masonic honours. After Bro. Grey had favoured the brethren with a song, Bro. Barnett, in a very able but unassuming manner, returned his sincere thanks for the great honour conferred on him by their unanimous vote, and trusted that he would still, by the same course of procedure as had characterised him in the past offices, merit their esteem in the future. The W.M. next gave the newly initiated brethren, and said he had the pleasure of proposing that toast at nearly every meeting in his term of office; he felt sure the present brethren would prove themselves as valuable and honourable to the Craft as any of those he had previously had the honour of initiating. After the Entered Apprentice Song, each of the Initiates responded in a very appropriate manner. The last toast but one which it pleased the W.M. to propose was the Masonic Press; he said it was not often they had two representatives of the Masonic Press present. He spoke of the great value of Masonic journals, and the advantages which accrued to the brethren from reading them; it expanded the ideas, and instructed them with reference to leading questions in the Craft at home and abroad. In proposing the toast he would couple the names of Bros. Davies and Wood. Bro. Davies, on behalf of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, thanked the Worshipful Master for the able manner in which he had proposed the last toast; he congratulated him on possessing those appreciative sentiments which alone could prompt him to speak of Masonic literature so favourably. The fraternal greeting he had experienced that evening was a pervading characteristic of the estimable and hospitable brethren of Liverpool. His visit among them had been an uninterrupted source of satisfaction, as regards the majority of Lodges. He exhorted the brethren to read and study as much as possible, as one-half the pleasure we derive in being Masons is acquired from a knowledge of what transpires in the Craft universally. In conclusion, he paid a high tribute of praise to the healthy Masonic tone existing among the brethren generally, and the appreciative talent of those brethren he had come intimately into contact with in Liverpool. Bro. Wood sincerely thanked the brethren for drinking the toast so warmly, and the W.M. for mentioning his name. He spoke plainly, however, and rated the brethren present, and the members of the Craft in Liverpool generally, for not reading the paper he represented. He said it was disgraceful to think that the Liverpool brethren would not buy the Freemason,—as it was their paper. He thanked the W.M. for the opportunity of speaking to them on such an important matter, and expressed his unqualified protest against the brethren spending their money for any trivial diversion, and not thinking fit to spend a couple of pence in purchasing a copy of the Freemason. Bro. Wood concluded his remarks by again thanking the W.M. for coupling his name with the toast. Of course it is needless to say that Bro. Davies did not sympathise with the whole of Bro. Wood's remarks, as his experience among the brethren of Liverpool is that, Masonically, they are very intelligent, and the extensive patronage given the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE is a proof of this assertion. Bro. Wood should allow that every Brother Mason must have the right of exercising his own opinion. The W.M. next proposed the toast of the Visitors, in a very genial manner, and expressed the sentiments of the Lodge when he said they were always heartily welcome. Bro. Wright ably responded to the toast, after which the Tyler was called, and the brethren dispersed.

Lodge of Hope, No. 433.—The Annual Festival of this Lodge was celebrated at the Swan Inn, Brightlingsea, Essex, on Whit Monday, there being a very large attendance of members and visitors. The ceremony of installing Bro. W. S. Ling, the W.M. elect, was performed by the outgoing Master, Worshipful Bro. A. E. Rogers P.P.G.O., and the following were afterwards appointed and invested as Officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. R. C. Athill S.W., John Dean J.W., Rev. A. Portwee Chaplain, W. Clarey P.M Treas., J. E. Wiseman P.M. Sec., Jas. Lewis S.D., S. Lord J.D., J. Skinner I.G., T. Wilson Tyler. After the Lodge, the brethren dined together, a capital repast being provided by the hostess, Mrs. Harmer. The usual toasts followed, and a very happy social hour was passed. Among those present, either at Lodge or banquet, in addition to those already named, were the following visitors:—W. Bros. Joseph Burton Prov. G. Treas., Thos. J. Ralling W.M. 51 Prov. G. Sec., W. Bell W.M. No. 1024, Geo. Harvey W.M. 697, W. R. Crozier W.M. 370, J. Nicholls P.M. 276, the Rev. E. H. Crate, Alfred Welch P.M. 51 P.P.G.J.W., W. P. Lewis P.M. 51 P.P.G.D., Thos. Eustace P.M. 697, H. Everett, Rev. J. P. Britton, W. H. Ablitt, T. G. Mills, Jas. F. Ralling, and A. W. Ralling, Members of No. 433. Past Masters Bishop, J. Richardson, H. York, C. Blyth, W. Bragg, W. Minter, and Jas. Ames; Bros. A. A. Jeffries, Closson, W. Day, Bowdell, F. Eagle, H. Foulger, Nicholls and Wagstaff.

Fidelity Chapter, No. 477.—An emergency meeting of this Chapter was held at the Masonic Chambers, 55 Argyle-street, Birkenhead, on Thursday, the 30th May. Present—Comps. A. Samuel M.E.Z., R. Gracie H., J. G. Adams J., Wm. Bennett P.S., Samuel Jones P.Z. S.E., Bennett P.S., Holtaway Janitor; F. K. Stevenson P.Z. P.P.G.J. Cheshire, a good muster of Comps. of the Chapter; and Comps. S. M. Davies, No. 16, G.R.C., and M. McVerney 605. There were three candidates for exaltation, viz., Bros. Geo. Lloyd, James Marsh, and Enoch Evans. The beautiful ceremony was very ably performed by M.E.Z. Samuels. It is gratifying to state that this Chapter is now in a very flourishing state, and judging from the talent among the Companions, and the decided interest they all take in this supreme degree, No. 477 must go on prospering. When the offices of a Chapter are filled by proper and worthy Companions, it is inevitable that the same must prosper. When a Chapter declines, there is something very wrong, which should at once be looked into and immediately rectified. The Chapter being closed in due and ancient form, the M.E.Z. invited the members to supper. After the Companions had done justice to the good things provided, they were conducted into a very comfortable apartment to spend an hour or so in social intercourse. This arrangement on the part of mine host, Comp. C. H. Berry, was greatly appreciated. The usual toasts having been duly honoured, the M.E.Z. proposed the health of the Past Principals of the Chapter, and in doing so reverted, in a very touching manner, to the loss the Chapter had sustained in the death of P.Z. Harboard. In giving the toast he had great pleasure in coupling the names of Comps. Gracie and Jones. E. Comp. Jones returned thanks, and trusted he might be with them for many years to come. E. Comp. Gracie, in following, expressed the warm interest he took in Royal Arch Masonry, and the hearty sympathy and support he was ever willing to render to his Chapter. He was pleased to see so many Companions present—a sign which augured well for the future, and such pleasant meetings as the one they were enjoying was a source of gratification to him, and he felt it must be so to all present. Before he sat down he most cordially proposed the health of the M.E.Z. This having been honoured, Comp. Bennett kindly responded to the call for a song. M.E. Comp. Samuels, in reply to the last toast, expressed the satisfaction he felt in seeing so many Comps. attending the summons which brought them together that night; he regretted they were not brought together under such pleasing auspices more frequently. He was always pleased to fulfil the important office confided to him, and judging from the enthusiastic manner in which his health had been proposed and received, he had the satisfaction of believing he retained their esteem and confidence. He sincerely thanked the Comps. for their mark of esteem. E. Comp. Fraser proposed the health of the Officers, and in doing so spoke approvingly of their attention to duty, and their efficiency in executing the same. He coupled with the toast Comp. Bennett. E. Comp. Jones favoured the Companions with a song. Comp. Bennett, as P.S., returned thanks on behalf of the Officers; he said that he was induced to be regular in attendance and efficient in his duties as he felt that these were essentials to the welfare of the Chapter. As the E. Comp. had so kindly proposed the health of the Officers this side, he had great pleasure in proposing the toast of the second and third Principals. Comp. Russell volunteered the next song. E. Comps. H. and J. responded, and expressed hopes that the success of the Chapter might in the future be equal, if not greater, than the present. Comp. Fraser consented to give the next song. After which the toast of the newly exalted Comps. was given, and appropriately replied to by each. E. Comp. Samuels, in proposing the toast of the Visitors, did so in a very happy and cordial manner, extending a hearty welcome to those who had assisted to enhance the delights of the evening. He had great pleasure in coupling the name of Comp. Davies, who had kindly responded to his invitation to come and see their working. He trusted that he (Comp. Davies) had enjoyed himself, and that he was pleased with their work. Comp. Davies was connected with the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE, and had ample opportunities of acquiring Masonic knowledge, as he had visited much, at home and abroad. He (Comp. Samuels) had received some information from Comp. Davies with reference to R.A. Masonry in America which was very interesting, and no doubt Comp. Davies would give them some further particulars, as they were always delighted to glean whatever had a tendency to their advancement from Visitors of such extended experience as their guest possessed. Comp. Davies, in response to the toast of the Visitors, touched upon many points of interest concerning the Craft universal, the mission of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE in relation to the Order, the tone for Freemasonry in its entirety which must actuate the staff of a purely representative Masonic journal, and the great delight he felt in seeing the beautiful ritual of our glorious Order properly carried out. In conclusion, he thanked the Comps. for the marked reception accorded him that evening. The M.E.Z. thoughtfully and heartily proposed the health of their host, Comp. Berry, who had so liberally and thoroughly provided for their wants, and without whose aid they would not be so well cared for. The toast was deservedly well received, and Comp. Berry returned thanks. The Janitor's toast brought the meeting to a close, and the Companions separated, every one being well satisfied.

St. John's Lodge, No. 673.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 4th June. Present—Bros. H. Burrows W.M., T. Roberts I.P.M., D. Jackson S.W., W. Brackenbury J.W., W. T. May P.M. Sec., T. Clark P.M. Treas., L. Harman S.D., J. Seddon J.D., J. T. Callow P.M. D.C., H. Marshall Steward, T. Smith I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Corless, Kyle, Hocken, and Stephenson. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and declared correct, the I.P.M. took the gavel, as Bro. Burrows, suffering from the effects of his late illness, was unable to go through the hard work which came before the Lodge that evening. Bro. Roberts initiated two candidates, and passed two to the second degree; after which the Lodge immediately proceeded to elect the W.M. and Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bro. Jackson was unanimously elected to the chair, and Bro. T. Clark re-elected Treasurer for the same term. Ten guineas was voted for relief cases, and ten guineas for a P.M.'s jewel, from the funds of the Lodge. After a protracted sitting, during which time a discussion came up as to holding the annual pic-nic, besides many other questions, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren, by command of the W.M., proceeded to supper. After the brethren had refreshed the inner man, the W.M., in consequence of the lateness of the hour, proposed in rapid succession the Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly honoured. The W.M., on rising to propose the toast of the W.M. elect, said, when the time came for Bro. Jackson to occupy the chair, he was sure he would do so with credit to himself and honour to the Lodge. The toast was drunk with musical honours. Bro. Jackson, in responding to the toast, thanked the brethren one and all for the unanimous mark of esteem shown him in electing him to the important post of their W.M. He trusted he should merit their continued esteem, and promised that every effort should be made on his part to give them satisfaction. Bro. May, in proposing the health of the W.M., said he, as well as all the brethren, regretted that Bro. Burrows had not enjoyed the blessing of health during his term of office. Although he could not, from his delicate state of body, undertake to go through his business to-night, yet all knew how ably he could perform his part when well. He knew all would join and drink to his better health. Bro. Marsh favoured the brethren with a song. W. Bro. Burrows, in responding to the toast, thanked the brethren for the kindness and consideration shown him. He was glad to say, at the termination of his year, that the Lodge was very prosperous, and that in addition to providing for all necessary Charities they could afford to devote one hundred pounds to a pic-nic; he concluded by saying he wished every prosperity to the Lodge in the coming year. The next, the Past Masters' toast, was given with a few words of thanks for the assistance rendered by that body during the year, and Bros. Roberts and May responded. After Bro. Whitehead had sung a song, the W.M. gave the Officers, which toast was replied to by the Senior and Junior Wardens. During the interval Bro. Collier responded to the call for a song, and the W.M. wound up by proposing the health of the Visitors, to which Bro. Wright very tersely replied. The Senior Warden's toast brought the evening's enjoyment to a close, and the brethren retired.

Royal Alfred Lodge of Instruction, No. 780.—A meeting was held on Friday, the 7th inst., at the Star and Garter Hotel, Kew Bridge. Bros. Gomm W.M., Acworth S.W., Goss J.W., Gunner Hon. Sec., Tucker Treas., Porter S.D., Costelow J.D., Talbot I.G., J. C. Roe P.M. Preceptor, and Bros. Blasby, Botley, Dorey, Kyezor, &c. Lodge having been opened with due observance of ancient custom, and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed, Bro. Beckett tendered himself as candidate, and the W.M. ably rehearsed the ceremony of initiation. Bro. Beckett then answered the questions and retired. Lodge was opened up to third degree, and closed down again, after which Bros. Gunner and Tucker were unanimously re-elected Hon. Sec. and Treas. respectively; and having been invested, acknowledged the high compliment paid them. Bros. Costelow, Blasby and Acworth were appointed to audit the accounts of the past year. After the W.M. for next meeting had been elected, the meeting was adjourned in due form.

Merchant Navy Lodge of Instruction, No. 781.—Held its weekly meeting on Wednesday, at the Silver Tavern, Barnlett-road, Limehouse. Present—Bros. Clegg W.M., Breden S.W., Robinson J.W., Breden Sec., Ives Treas., Maxwell S.D., Westcott J.D., Warner I.G.; Turquand P.M. Preceptor, and Hogg P.M. 1349. Lodge opened, and the minutes were read and confirmed. Bro. Maxwell acted as candidate, and the ceremony of passing was very ably worked by Bro. Clegg. Some of the sections of the lecture were worked by the W.M., assisted by the brethren. A short lecture on the early history of Freemasonry in England was submitted to the brethren by the Preceptor. Bro. Breden will preside next Wednesday.

Eden Valley Lodge, No. 812, Appleby. — The annual meeting of this flourishing Lodge was held at the King's Arms Hotel, on Thursday, 6th June, at four o'clock in the afternoon. The W.M. Bro. R. Warton was supported by Bros. Cockfield S.W., W.M. elect, Whitehead P.M., &c., Fulton P.M., Rev. R. J. Simpson P.M. Past Grand Chaplain of England, Dr. Sayer, Arnison P.M. (Penrith), W. Kirkbride P.M., &c., Cassins W.M. Penrith Lodge, McKay W.M. 129, John Bowes P.M., &c., Robinson (York), Bentley, Ridge, and others. The Lodge was opened in due form and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The Lodge was then opened in the second degree, when Bros. Bentley and Ridge claimed preferment, and having sustained their claim, were entrusted. The chair was now assumed by Bro. John Bowes, and the candidates were separately admitted and raised under the able deaconate of Bro. Warton. Resuming labour in the second degree, Bro. W. Kirkbride took the chair, and with the assistance of Bro. Bowes installed Bro. Cockfield as W.M. for the ensuing year. The Lodge being closed, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting room, where an excellent dinner was tastefully served. The cloth being withdrawn, the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Rev. R. J. Simpson, in proposing the toast of the Installing Masters, paid a high compliment to the choice and master spirits who had kindly visited them, and performed the ceremonies in such a correct and impressive manner. Bro. Robinson, of York, in responding for the Visitors, begged to add his hearty concurrence with the complimentary remarks of his friend and brother, Canon Simpson. The meeting had been an exceedingly profitable one, and he congratulated the W.M. and members of the Eden Valley Lodge that they were able to command the services of brethren so competent to interpret their beautiful ceremonies. The Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close at ten o'clock.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—At the weekly meeting on Tuesday evening, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Bros. Carr W.M., Wardell S.W., Slaiter J.W., Polak S.D., Christian J.D., Forss I.G., Dallas Sec., Smyth Treas., P.M. Wallington Preceptor. Lodge was opened and the minutes were read and confirmed. The ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Holsworth candidate. Bro. Gilham answered the questions, the Lodge was opened in the second, and the Preceptor assumed the chair and passed Bro. Gilham. The W.M. then resumed the chair, and the Lodge was opened up and regularly closed down; the Preceptor then worked the fourth section of the First Lecture, assisted by Bro. Allen. A vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. for his able working in the chair for the first time. Bro. Wardel will preside at the next meeting.

Doric Lodge of Instruction, No. 933.—Held its weekly meeting on Friday, 7th instant, at Bro. Clayton's, the Duke's Head, Whitechapel-road. Bros. Francis W.M., Ellis S.W., McDonald J.W., Wolley S.D., Job J.D., West I.G. A number of other brethren were also present. The Lodge was opened in due form with prayer, and the minutes were read and confirmed. The W.M. worked the ceremony of initiation, Bro. Norden candidate. Bro. Webb worked the first, second, third, fourth and fifth sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Norden 205 was elected a member. Bro. Ellis was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week. It was proposed by Bro. Cundick, and seconded by Bro. Stephens, that Bro. Butler, W.M. of the Patterson Lodge, be invited to work the ceremony of installation at the next meeting. This was carried unanimously. A vote of thanks was ordered to be recorded on the minutes to the W.M., for the excellent manner in which he had worked the ceremony. The Lodge was then closed in due form and adjourned until Friday, the 14th inst.

Royal Victoria Lodge, No. 1013.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday, the 5th inst. Present—Bros. T. K. Hughes P.M as W.M., J. Thompson S.W., J. R. Rowan J.W., J. Stoddart Sec., E. Rogers P.M. Treas., C. Vick S.D., H. Glover J.D., H. Shewell I.G., P. Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Lowe, Kenyon, Younghusband and Baker. Visitors—Bros. Wright, Davies, Broughton 493, New York. There were very few members. The business was the election of W.M. for the ensuing year; also Treasurer for the same term. Bro. J. Thompson was elected to the former post, and Bro. E. Rogers re-elected to the latter. It is a matter of deep regret that this once compact, well attended, and well worked Lodge, bears such evident signs of having fallen into the sear and yellow leaf. It is useless trying to conceal the fact that there must be a reason for this falling off. The cause should be immediately looked into, and without loss of time removed. It could not have been pleasant for the founder, the first Master, the consecrator, yea, the Grandfather of the Royal Victoria Lodge, to be present and see the offspring of the noble and prosperous Merchants' Lodge, of which he is the Father so to say, languish and droop from sheer inanition. Let us hope that the presence of the illustrious brother, who recalled to mind the proud position No. 1013 held among the sister Lodges years ago, may infuse new zeal, new Masonic fire among the dead embers, and that this Lodge will again have good officers, energetic members, and a career of uninterrupted prosperity. The business of the evening was followed by the W.M. pro tem inviting the brethren to refreshment. After the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, and immediately proceeded to give what he considered a special toast; in doing so he expressed the great pleasure he felt in having the presence of Bro. Younghusband that evening. He, as the oldest P.M. and principal founder of the Lodge, had kindly, on his visit to Liverpool, come amongst them, and his presence recalled many recollections of the past; of the early history of the Lodge; we may safely say he was the Father of the Lodge, for without him in all probability No. 1013 would not have been founded, and without his invaluable aid its existence to the present time might have been a matter of doubt. Words fail to convey the feelings of the W. Brother in expressing the debt of gratitude the brethren of the Lodge, many of whom had never seen Bro. Younghusband before to-night, although all had heard him so frequently and respectfully spoken of during his absence from Liverpool; he therefore called upon the brethren to drink the health of their esteemed Brother in the hearty manner his name deserved. The toast was drunk with Masonic honours. Bro. Younghusband said he had great pleasure in being with them that night. No one knew better than he the early history of their Lodge. He was its first Master; he consecrated the Lodge, he watched over its infancy, and with all his zeal and love for the Craft presided over its chequered progress for four years. He never left his post vacant until the Lodge was strong and able to start on that course of progress and prosperity which distinguished its career, and placed it in the honourable position it occupied among its sister Lodges. He hoped that the future would prove as brilliant to the Lodge as the past, and most heartily thanked the brethren for their cordial greeting. In proposing the toast of the Visitors, the W.M. expressed the pleasure he felt in having the company of brethren from far and near at their Lodge that night. It was always pleasant to entertain visiting brethren, and the toast—cordially received at all times—would be drunk with more than usual warmth from the fact that a distinguished brother from New York honoured them with his presence. As this brother was about to start on his return voyage the next day, to the far West, he hoped he would carry with him some pleasing recollections of having visited the Royal Victoria Lodge. Bro. Broughton (New York) responded on behalf of the visitors; he said that the fraternal welcome given him that evening would make an indelible impression on his mind. He appreciated the genial manner in which the brethren gathered round the festive board, the hospitable nature of which he was so kindly invited to partake of, and which he almost regretted to say was not a custom in American Lodges; he doubted, however, if any Masons in the world gave a more hearty welcome to their brethren than was accorded, according to the custom there, than in the United States. He expressed the great pleasure he derived from being among them, and with many thanks concluded, offering a sincere wish for their prosperity and happiness. A few more toasts were proposed, duly received, and responded to, and after spending a couple of hours, during which time several of the musical brethren gratified all with some good glees, quartetts, and songs, the brethren dispersed.

Hartington Lodge, No. 1085.—Held at the Masonic Hall, Derby, on Wednesday, 5th June. Present—Bros. G. Pipes W.M., W. Heathcote P.G.D.C. I.P.M., M. H. Bobart P.P.S.G.W. as S.W., W. B. Hextall J.W., J. O. Manton Sec., H. Biggs W.M. 802 as S.D., P. Wallis as J.D., W. Butterfield I.G.; Past Masters Bros. F. Iliffe P.P.J.G.W. and J. Wosnof P.P.G.P., and a large number of other brethren. The Lodge was opened at 7.40 p.m. Bros. Hefford, Baxter and Arnold were passed to the second degree by the W.M. A Quarterly Communication from Grand Lodge was presented, and other business connected with the working of the Lodge was transacted. The case of a distressed brother, suffering from illness, received the favourable consideration of the Lodge. After the usual formalities, the Lodge was adjourned until the first Wednesday in July.

AN AMERICAN KNIGHT TEMPLAR PILGRIMAGE TO EUROPE.

EARLY next month the Sir Knights of the Mary Commandery, No. 36, of Philadelphia, U.S.A. will start on a Pilgrimage to Europe, the countries it is proposed to visit being the United Kingdom, France, Switzerland, the Rhineland, and Belgium. All the necessary arrangements have been made with Messrs. Cook, Son, and Jenkins, and a short sketch of them will probably interest our readers. There are four separate programmes, or rather the original programme will be varied after a certain date, so as to admit of the Pilgrims extending their visit to other countries than those at first contemplated. The whole party will leave home on Saturday, the 6th July, by the steamer Anchoria, and on the 15th they are expected to land at Mobille, and go thence to Londonderry. The day following they will go by train to Port Rush and visit the Giant's Causeway. The 17th will be spent in Belfast, and the 18th and 19th in Dublin. On the 20th the party will return by express train to Belfast, and take boat for Greenock and Glasgow, reaching the latter early on Sunday morning, the 21st. On the 22nd they will go through Lochs Lomond and Katrine, and the Trossachs, to Stirling and Edinburgh. The 23rd will be spent in the Scottish capital, whence, on the 24th, a visit to Melrose and Abbotsford, and then by train to York. Here we are given to understand the Pilgrims will experience a K.T. reception, which, it is needless to say, will be of a very cordial nature, and at Sheffield, on the following day, the reception will be Craft in its character, and equally cordial. London will be reached on the 27th, and the four remaining days of the month will be occupied in seeing its lions. On the 1st of August, after a flying visit to Brighton, the party will leave for Paris, viâ Newhaven and Dieppe. Here a stay will be made till the 7th instant, the ordinary attractions of the French capital being this year increased by the Exhibition. Here, too, we doubt not, the French Craft will welcome the opportunity of receiving the Pilgrims, and extend towards them that kindness for which they are distinguished. They leave Paris for Geneva by the night train, and reaching it early on the 8th, will devote the rest of that day and the next to seeing the sights for which the centre of the Swiss watch trade is remarkable. Then Chamouny on the 10th and 11th, Martigny and Bouveret on the 12th, Lausanne on the 13th, Interlacken on the 14th, on the 15th viâ the Brunig Pass to Lucerne, reaching Neuchatel on the 17th, and returning to Paris on the night of the 18th, and to London on that of the 19th. The return journey to New York will be commenced on the 21st, and the Pilgrims will reach again their native shores on the 3rd September. Thus, the Pilgrimage will last fifty-nine days, of which twenty-two will be occupied with the ocean passage out and home, while nineteen are assigned to the United Kingdom, six to Paris, and the other twelve to the rest of the Continental trip. The arrangements have been made with that regard to comfort and accommodation for which the Messrs. Cook and Co. are so well known, and the cost is set down at 360 dollars gold. The second programme is intended for those who do not propose to visit Switzerland, and the cost is set down at 275 dollars gold. The arrangements will be the same as for the main party up to the 6th August, when a ticket will be provided for London and New York. The third programme is for those who, not caring to visit Switzerland, are desirous of prolonging their sojourn in Paris. These accordingly will pay 300 dollars in gold, remaining in Paris till the 13th, and returning home viâ London and New York. The fourth and last programme is for Pilgrims who, remaining with the main party as far as Lucerne, may wish to see the Rhine country and Belgium. These will therefore continue their journey from Lucerne viâ Bale to Baden-Baden, thence to Heidelberg, and viâ Worms to Mayence. Continuing thence by boat to Cologne, they will leave that city by morning express to Brussels on the 23rd August, and after a stay of two days will go by boat to Antwerp on the 26th, and reach London on the 27th. They start by Anchor Line steamer for New York on the 28th, and may be expected home on the 10th September. These will pay 490 dollars gold. Such is the series of programmes as prepared for the Pilgrimage of the Mary Commandery, No. 36, of Philadelphia. We trust that everything may turn out as favourably as possible, and that the Sir Knights will thoroughly enjoy their trip to Europe. We are certain that, wherever they go, be it in the United Kingdom or on the Continent, they will be heartily welcomed.

THE LORD OF UNDERLEY.

THE Northern Counties of England—once the scene of almost incessant warfare—enjoy at the present day, in common with the rest of the country, a very high degree of prosperity. The mineral wealth of Northumberland is proverbial, while Cumberland and Westmoreland take high rank among those counties which are more particularly devoted to agriculture. Travel where you will, in the lake region, in the mountain districts, along the banks of the Eden and the Kent, in the Cheviots or on the Tyne, and you will find evidences of a peaceful prosperity, such as the richest and most influential countries might regard with envy. This has not always been the case. Ever since Britain has had a history of its own, almost even from the days when Julius Cæsar landed on the shores of Kent, the counties immediately south of the Tweed have witnessed many important historical events, and it is impossible to traverse any considerable portion of these without lighting on some more or less interesting relics of former days. When Britain was a province of Imperial Rome, the wall of Adrian was built to keep off the incursions of the Picts and Scots, and there were Roman camps and Roman roads for the greater security of the country. Hence the number of Roman remains in these parts is very considerable, and the antiquarian who visits them finds his time well occupied in the study of their history. Many supposed Druidical remains are likewise to be found, while not a few of the names, such as Helvellyn and others, are suggestive of the Ancient Britons. Indeed, even as late as the reign of Elizabeth, the language of the ancient inhabitants of the island was spoken here almost as purely as it now is in Wales. In the days of our Saxon and Roman ancestors the two westernmost counties formed the Principality of Cumbria, and the Kings of Scotland did homage to the Kings of England for these and the other lands they held south of the Tweed. In the many wars that took place between the two kingdoms these border counties had the most considerable share; indeed, the Wardens of the Marches were among the most important officers under the rival sovereigns, for on their sleepless vigilance and energy the safety of the frontiers depended. Even in the middle of last century, when the final effort to recover the throne of Britain for the Stuarts was made, we read of Carlisle being taken and retaken, and of fighting in the neighbourhood of Kendal. Since then, however, where once were continual forays, and cattle-lifting and other deeds of lawlessness were of frequent occurrence, the land has enjoyed an uninterrupted course of prosperity, and the history of these counties has been one of peace and plenty. No wonder then that Freemasonry should have established itself here, and having regard to the moderate extent of the population, to a degree that may be described as respectable. How soon it made its appearance in Cumbria is of no great moment, for in the state of society which formerly prevailed here, it would be difficult to obtain authentic records. Probably, in the old border days, there was a something which corresponded with our modern Freemasonry; for though men were breaking each other's heads from a sense of duty one day, they were clinking glasses from a sense of good fellowship another. It is probable, therefore, there was some mysterious bond of union which brought these rough but good-hearted fellows together at the festive board; and if they were not Masons in a speculative sense, seeing that the fracture of pericrania forms no part of our Masonic rites and ceremonies, they had an excellent idea of our fourth degree and its adjunctive properties, such as geniality and kindness, and the like. However, we must leave, without more ado, the consideration of this interesting problem, in order that we may sketch the career of a worthy Cumbrian, who, for over a decade of years, has held the supreme Masonic authority over the Counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and who, in the nature of things, may be expected to retain that authority for even a longer period. He is yet in the prime of life, having been born in the year 1844. After the usual course of study at Eton, he was entered at Christ Church, Oxon, and, during his stay there, was received into the mysteries of Craft Masonry, within the precincts of the Apollo University Lodge, No. 357. This was in 1863, and though the shortness of his career at Oxford did not admit of his making any sign of his proficiency in the Royal Art, it is evident he must have taken very considerable interest, and made unusual progress in it, for in two years' time, when the Underley Lodge, No. 1074, Kirkby Lonsdale, was chartered, we find him occupying the position of Worshipful Master, and so satisfactory to the members was his discharge of the duties of that office, that he was elected to fill it for the following year. In 1867, he was appointed by the late Earl of Zetland to be the Grand Master of the Province, and in that capacity he has gone on winning golden opinions from all classes and conditions of Freemasons. In 1869, he became a joining member of the Westminster and Keystone Lodge, No. 10, and in the same year, as exemplifying the favourable impression his rule as Prov. G. Master had made among his brethren of the Province, a Lodge (No. 1267) was founded at Egremont, bearing, as its name, one of the titles which belong to his family. In 1875, a second Lodge was founded at Carlisle (No. 1532), and in this instance, likewise, the compliment was paid him of naming the Lodge after another of the family titles. If we add that during the period he has ruled over the Province the number of its Lodges has been increased from thirteen to nineteen, or by about thirty per cent., we shall see at once that these compliments were not the meaningless things which compliments, unfortunately, too often are. There is, indeed, no doubt whatever of his popularity as a ruler, and Cumberland and Westmoreland Masons must rejoice, in season and out of season, at the wise selection made by the late Earl of Zetland, when he appointed him to be their chief. We are not aware that he has at any time held office in Grand Lodge, where he is entitled to sit by virtue of his Prov. G. Mastership, but he is the chosen representative of the Grand Lodge of Greece in our Grand Lodge, and in selecting him for his Legate, Grand Master the Prince Rhodocanakis could hardly have made a worthier choice. In other branches of the Masonic Art, he has attained to equal eminence. He is a Royal Arch Mason, and when the Bective Chapter, No. 1074, was consecrated, he was appropriately enough installed its First Principal, and at the conclusion of the ceremony he was installed as first Grand Superintendent of the Royal Arch Chapter of the Province. This auspicious event happened as recently as the month of October of last year, and as a somewhat lengthy account was given in these columns, we need not say more than that the muster of Companions was in every way worthy of so rare an occasion as the consecration of a new Chapter, followed by the constitution of a new R.A. Province; while all present congratulated themselves on the admirable appointment, by His Royal Highness the Grand Z., of one who already enjoyed such considerable experience as Craft ruler of the Province. Our respected brother is also a Mark Mason, and of high degree. He is a joining member of the Cumberland Mark Lodge, No. 60, Carlisle, a Past Grand Senior Warden of the Mark Grand Lodge, and was appointed Prov. Grand Mark Master Mason for the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland in 1872. Thus he combines in his own person the supreme rule over these counties in Craft, Arch, and Mark Masonry, a further evidence, were any needed, of his Masonic ability and the esteem in which he is universally held. It was, indeed, only a few days since that his Province was the scene of a very considerable gathering of Mark Masons. On that occasion a Moveable Grand Lodge was held at Keswick, under the auspices of his Provincial Grand Lodge, the business being the consecration of two new Mark Lodges, the Fletcher, No. 213, and the Henry, No. 216, and the installation of their respective Worshipful Masters. Everything passed off most admirably, and—need we say it?—there was great rejoicing that day in Keswick, nay, in the whole of the Province, over so unusual an event. Besides his Craft, Arch, and Mark honours, he is also a Past Grand Sovereign of the Masonic and Military Order of the Knights of Rome and the Red Cross of Constantine, and for aught we know to the contrary, still further honours may await him in these and other branches of Masonry. However, enough has been achieved in the fifteen years since he obtained his first insight into the secrets of Freemasonry to satisfy the most ardent ambition; though if we bear in mind that his father is at the present time the Grand Senior Warden of Ireland, and therefore that his love of the Royal Art is in some measure hereditary, we may find him directing his energies to the attainment of still further and higher distinctions. As regards those Institutions in which all true Masons take such honest pride, the Province is a liberal supporter of them all, and he himself has set them an admirable example by enrolling himself as a Vice President of the Boys' School, and a Life Governor of the Girls' School and of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Moreover, he has served the office of Steward in the case of our two Schools, and has thus actively as well as pecuniarily promoted their claims on the support of all Craftsmen.

Such are the main features in the Masonic career of the Lord of Underley, and a few words respecting his public career will serve to bring this sketch to a fitting conclusion. During close on fifty years the county in which he resides had had as one of its representatives in Parliament his maternal grandfather and his father successively, and he himself was elected to succeed the latter on his elevation to the peerage, early in 1871. He is likewise a J.P. and D.L. of the county, and in 1868 he filled the important office of High Sheriff. But it is chiefly in connection with agriculture, and especially as a breeder of cattle, that our brother has made for himself a name among the general public. Some of the most magnificent specimens of the famous short-horned breed have been reared on his estate, and the prices which many of the principal among them have fetched are almost fabulous. Many may regard the deep interest he takes in these pursuits as a simple hobby, but we are inclined to regard it as of far greater importance. We consider that the man who devotes a considerable part of his energies to the encouragement of agriculture, and especially to improving the breed of cattle is, in fact, rendering a great national service. The societies that have been established thoughout the country, the exhibitions which are annually held, and the Royal and noble patronage which is so liberally bestowed upon everything connected with agriculture, all these are proofs that the agricultural, not less than the manufacturing and commercial prosperity of the country, is a matter of common interest, and the leaders, the supporters, the encouragers of the art are as deserving of praise as the leaders of a commercial or manufacturing enterprise. It is among these leaders and promoters of agriculture that, for years past, the Lord of Underley has held a foremost place. Thus, by the public generally, in the political world, and in his county, no less than in the ranks of Masonry, our Cumbrian brother is widely esteemed and respected, and we are but giving utterance to the wish of every true Craftsman, when we express a hope that this esteem and respect may continue to be his portion for many, many years to come, while at the same time he may enjoy most amply those—which he has so long and so successfully pursued.

> "Rural delights, the joy and sweet repast

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF SOUTH WALES (EASTERN DIVISION).

THE Annual Meeting was held at Brecon, on Thursday, the 13th inst., under the banner of the Brecknock Lodge, No. 651. The Lodge was held in the Town Hall, which was tastefully fitted up as a Lodge room. At one end there was a raised dais, on which there were shrubs, ferns, and plants, with pedestals of blue, white, and gold, surmounted with flowers, vases of flowers being interspersed. The windows were darkened with scarlet curtains, the interior being lighted with gas. At the other end of the Hall were the names, printed in colours, of the whole of the Lodges (11) of the province. The following mottoes adorned the walls:—"Provincial Grand Lodge, South Wales, Eastern Division," "May all Masons ever be the Pattern of Virtue," "Prosperity to Masons and Masonry," "May every Mason attain the Summit of Masonry," "Give Relief to all Indigent Brethren," "Peace, Plenty, and Unanimity," "May Sincerity, Charity, and Peace, be Established in our Lodges," "A Cordial Welcome to Brecknock Lodge." The whole had an artistic effect, and reflected great credit on the artist employed.

The Lodge was opened at half-past one o'clock, by Bro. Richard Webb, W.M. of the Brecknock Lodge. The Officers of the Grand Lodge were then announced, and received with the usual honours. The chair was taken by Bro. Marmaduke Tennant, the Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who was supported by his Officers and a large number of brethren from various parts of the province. A letter from the Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Sir George Elliot Bart., M.P., expressed his regret at not being able to be present.

The Prov. Grand Secretary read the minutes of the Provincial Grand Lodge held last year at Aberdare, at which Sir George Elliot was installed, and also the minutes of Provincial Grand Lodge held subsequently under the banner of the Glamorgan Lodge, Cardiff, both of which were received and adopted. Letters were also read from Mr. C. R. M. Talbot, M.P., Lord Lieutenant of the County, in reply to copy of resolution passed at the Cardiff meeting in reference to the great loss Freemasonry had sustained in the death of his son, Bro. Theodore Mansel Talbot, late Provincial Grand Master; also a letter from Bro. Edward J. Morris, late Deputy Provincial Grand Master, in reply to a resolution passed at the same meeting. Both letters were ordered to be entered on the minutes. Letters of apology were also read from Bro. Colonel Philips the Worshipful Provincial Grand Master for the Western Division; from the Deputy Provincial Grand Masters for Monmouthshire and Gloucestershire, and other brethren of distinction, expressing regret at not being able to be present.

The Treasurer's accounts for the past year were received; and Bro. Canton W.M. of the Indefatigable Lodge, Swansea, was appointed Provincial Grand Treasurer, in the room of Bro John Jones, of Aberavon, who retires by rotation.

The report of the Provincial Grand Lodge Committee was read and adopted. The report was as follows:—

The Provincial Grand Lodge Committee have pleasure in placing before the Provincial Grand Lodge their usual annual report, and are pleased to be able to express approbation of the satisfactory working of the several Lodges of the Province. Petitions from brethren at Bridgend and Penarth respectively, for the formation of new Lodges in those districts, have recently, with the approbation of the Right Worshipful and Provincial Grand Master, been presented to Grand Lodge. During the past year, Brother Marmaduke Tennant, the Worshipful the Deputy-Provincial Grand Master, acted as Steward for the Girls' School, Bro. William Taylor, of the Glamorgan Lodge, Cardiff, acted in a similar capacity for the Boys' School. To both these brethren grateful thanks are due for the manner in which they have performed their onerous duties as representative Stewards. Bro. David Rees Lewis W.M. of the Loyal Cambrian Lodge, No. 110, Merthyr Tydfil, has kindly undertaken to act as Steward for the Boys' School for the ensuing year. The Committee have great pleasure in reporting the election to the Boys' School of Samuel Curry Roberts, the Aberavon candidate, at the April election. It is recommended that the following grants from the funds of Provincial Grand Lodge be voted to the Masonic Charitable Institutions, viz.:—To the Boys' School forty guineas, and to the Girls' School twenty guineas. The Committee recommend as a candidate for the Boys' School, Earnest Handel Jones, close upon ten years of age, son of late Bro. William E. Jones, artist, and Past Master of the Loyal Cambrian Lodge, No. 110, Merthyr Tydfil. The candidate is one of three children, bereft of both parents, and unprovided for. Subject, however, to the election of the girl Agnes Kerr, whose candidature was resolved upon at a previous meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge Committee, and to the election of the boy Ernest Handel Jones, by purchase, as hereinafter proposed, the Committee recommend for the Boys' School Ivor Stuart Price, aged nine years, son of late Bro. Thomas Price, of Cardiff. This candidate is one of four children who have been left totally unprovided for. In consequence of the large number of votes now required to secure the election of a candidate to either of the Masonic Schools—more particularly to the Boys' School—this Province is now much indebted for votes to the Province of the Western Division of South Wales and other Provinces, which must be repaid during the ensuing year. This circumstance renders the task of successfully returning the first-named candidate at the next election, by the ordinary method, unusually difficult. It is, therefore, recommended to the Lodges of the Province and the brethren generally, that a special effort be immediately made to raise a sum of 170 guineas for the purchase of his admission to the Boys' School, and that the said sum of 170 guineas shall form part of a larger sum of 300 guineas, if hereafter determined upon, to be collected for the purpose of purchasing the privilege of ensuring the admission and maintenance of one boy from the Province during the life of some brother to be hereafter fixed upon, and subject to such conditions as may hereafter be agreed upon by this Committee.

The Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master then proceeded to invest and instal the Officers for the ensuing year, as follows:—Brother Edward Daniel P.M. Lodge 833 and 1,323 Senior Grand Warden, Richard Webb W.M. 651 Junior Grand Warden, Rev. John William Wynne Jones M.A. 679 and T. Watkins 1578 Grand Chaplains, Wm. Thomas Canton W.M. 237 Grand Treasurer, David Rees Lewis W.M. 110 Grand Registrar, Evan Jones W.M. 679 Grand Secretary, James Livingston P.M. 1,573 Senior Grand Deacon, Edwin Sidney Hartland W.M. 1,323 Junior Grand Deacon, Matthew Wayne Morgan P.M. 1,578 Grand Superintendent of Works, John S. Woolley P.M. 237 Grand Director of Ceremonies, Austin H. Parsons W.M. 364 Grand Director of Ceremonies, David Roderick David W.M. 833 Grand Sword Bearer, Frederick Atkins 960 Grand Organist, Samuel Hern W.M. 966 Grand Pursuivant, George Bullerwell Tyler 237 and 1,323 Grand Tyler, Thomas Phillips J.W. 679, T. Matthews 960, J. Mayor Sec. 36, Henry N. Davies 1,578, and John Whitelaw Gunn 110 Stewards.

The Deputy Grand Master, as he invested Bro. Webb, begged to thank him, in the name of the Province, for the very satisfactory manner in which, as W.M. of the Brecknock Lodge, under whose banner they had assembled, he had provided for the reception of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Referring to the petitions from brethren at Bridgend and Penarth for the formation of new Lodges, he said that in the course of the next month the requisite warrant would be issued for the consecration of both Lodges. He further alluded to the efforts which Bro. Woolley had made in reference to the new Lodge at Bridgend, and to the eligibility of all the brethren who had that day been installed, as instanced by their success in the various Lodges to which they belonged.

Bro. J. G. Hall then rose and said, They had a brother present who had signally distinguished himself in connection with the Masonic Charities, and had also acted as Steward to the Masonic Schools. He alluded to their worthy Deputy Provincial Grand Master, who had collected a large amount of money on behalf of the Schools. He now had the pleasure to present to their worthy brother the jewel which fell to his lot, and he was quite sure that no brother in the Province more richly deserved it. In presenting the jewel, he also presented to him, on behalf of the Province, their best thanks for the highly satisfactory way in which he had performed the duties which he had undertaken.

The Deputy Provincial Grand Master thanked the Lodge for the honour they had conferred upon him. He could only say that if he had no jewel whatever, he should have been more than satisfied in knowing that he had done what he could in so excellent a cause as Masonic Charities.

The sum of 40 guineas was then voted for the Masonic School for Boys, and 20 guineas for the Girls' School. It was stated that last year not less than £100 had been sent from the Province towards the School Funds and other Masonic Charities. On the motion of Bro. Webb, the sum of five guineas was voted to the Brecon Infirmary. There was also £7 1s collected in Lodge, which was ordered to be handed over to the Vicar to be dispensed for charitable purposes.

After the Lodge had been closed in due form, the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared for them. The D.P.G.M. presided. Bro. Hall, in proposing the toast of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, spoke of the Masonic services he had rendered, not only to his Province, but to all the Masonic Charities. Bro. Marmaduke Tennant, in responding, thanked the brethren for the very hearty manner they had received the toast. Masonry had its charms for him, but some twelve months ago, when the appointment of D.P.G.M. had been offered to him, he had certainly hesitated before accepting it, and had he known that the duties of the Grand Master himself would, in some measure, have devolved upon him, he would have hesitated still more. He sincerely thanked the brethren for the way in which they had received the toast.

Bro. Matthew Wayne Morgan, in replying to the toast of the Visitors, complimented the Brecknock Lodge on the excellent reception they had given them. He had attended many Provincial Grand Lodges, but he must state that the Brecknock had eclipsed them all.

The other toasts were the Provincial Grand Officers, the Lodges of the Province, and the Secretary of the Brecknock Lodge, all of which were responded to.

There was some excellent singing and music, the musical arrangements being in the hands of Bro. Atkins, of Cardiff.

(1) The words "Red Cross Barr" have been pasted over the original printed description of this Lodge.

(2) Replaced on the roll as Bury's Coffee House, Bridges Street, in 1738.

(3) In the List of 1738 (Constitutions) this vacancy is filled up, the Horn, No. 3, becoming No. 2.

(4) An example of the irregular manner in which vacant numbers were apportioned to Junior Lodges.

(5) Erased 4th April 1744.

(6) Erased 25th March 1745.

(7) Erased 3rd April 1747. Restored 4th September 1751.

(8) This is the order in which the Lodges stand in the Constitutions 1756, though no numbers are given. It also corresponds with the engraved lists.

(9) With the exception of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, which became No. 60 in 1770, and No. 47 in 1780, the numbers of the remaining Lodges above cited, remained unaltered by the general closing up of numbers in 1770, 1780, and 1792 respectively, and were numbered as at present at the Union in 1814.

(10) Nos. 6 and 8 of previous list have changed places.

(11) Placed at the head of list some time before change of numbers in 1792.

* From Engraved Lists (Grand Lodge).

§ 8.—It is a task of much nicety identifying the old Lodges of to-day with those of a bygone period, since in most cases their early records have been destroyed or lost, and even where this has not happened the occasions are rare in which any histories of the old regular Lodges have been compiled. In the absence therefore of positive information, it is in the generality of instances necessary to work "backwards," and laboriously trace the old Lodges of current date from one number to another, and, by the aid of the various lists published from time to time throughout the eighteenth century, from tavern to tavern, until, by a concurrence of all essential requirements, in number, place, day of meeting, and date of constitution, the happy result of identification is rendered presumably complete. Names are of great use in connecting the present with the past, whilst dates of Constitution are equally serviceable in identifying the latter with the former; the period, however, commencing about 1765, and ending 1781, during which the numbers of Lodges were twice closed up (1770 and 1780) is the hardest to bridge over, since the dates cease to be given in full, and distinctive names were not generally adopted by Lodges until after 1776, and shortly before 1781.—(See § 14). Much confusion, moreover, has ensued from the relative positions of Lodges constituted in a particular year being occasionally varied; also through many Lodges which have been temporarily struck off the list being re-entered at one time, according to the date of re-admission, and at another reverting to the dates of their original constitution. On 24th February 1734-5,* the following resolution was passed by Grand Lodge:—"If any Lodge, within the Bills of Mortality, shall cease to meet regularly during twelve months successive, its Name and Place shall be erazed or blotted out of the Grand Lodge Book and engraven List, and if they petition to be again inserted and own'd as a regular Lodge, it must lose its former Place and Rank of Precedency, and submit to a New Constitution."* Under which rule, aided by a disposition of Grand Lodge, to visit with heavy penalties all Lodges who were irregular in attending the Quarterly Communications, a very wholesale clearing off of defaulting Lodges took place, though the reinstatements were very numerous. The present Tuscan Lodge, No. 14, then No. 9, meeting at the King's Arms, New Bond Street, was thus struck off in 1745, reappearing, however, on the list for 1759, to be again erased in 1764.†

On the 25th November 1774,‡ Grand Lodge further resolved "that all Lodges who have not contributed or shall neglect to contribute, to the General Charity . . . if no remittance is made, or satisfactory excuse given . . . the said Lodges will be erazed out of the list of Lodges."

§ 9.—Original No. 1, meeting at the Goose and Gridiron in 1717, removed from this tavern between 1723 and 1729, from which latter year until after 1765, its description on the lists was the King's (or Queen's) arms, St. Paul's Churchyard,‖ with the additional title in the engraved list for 1763 only, of the "West-India and American Lodge." In 1775-6 it appears as the Mitre, Fleet-street, but in 1778 had assumed the title of the Lodge of Antiquity.¶ At the Union in 1814, the rank of No. 1 having devolved by lot upon No. 1 "Ancient's"* (now the Grand Masters' Lodge), the premier English Lodge, was relegated to the position of No. 2 on the roll.†

§ 10.—Original No. 2, last appeared in the List of Lodges for 1736, as No. 2, meeting at the Bull and Gate, and would seem to have died out in 1737, as in 1738 the number is left blank in Pine's list for that year. Though in that published with the Constitutions 1738, the No. 3 of 1736 (Horn) has become No. 2.

§ 11.—Original No. 3 moved from the Apple Tree Tavern to the Queen's Head, Knave's Acre, before 1723; thence to the George and Dragon, Portland St., Oxford Market, in 1740; to the Swan (same locality) in 1744; in 1750 it appears as the Fish and Bell, Charles St., Soho Square, and continued to meet there until at least 1765; in 1775-6 it met at the Roebuck, Oxford St.; and in 1781 is described as the Lodge of Fortitude.

Some time between 1814 and 1832 it amalgamated with the Old Cumberland Lodge,‡ and is now the Fortitude and O.C. Lodge, No. 12.

This Lodge, as will be seen by the Note to No. 10 in the List of Lodges No. 4, (Constitutions) for 1738, tacitly renounced—so far as such renunciation may be valid, as to which some remarks will appear hereafter—or, at all events, suspended the exercise of their undoubted rights and privileges as one of the old Time Immemorial Lodges. Waiving, however, for the present, any inquiry into the effect of this act, it seems clear that the existing No. 12, the Fortitude and Old Cumberland Lodge, has derived, by an unbroken succession of members, whatever privileges original No. 3 was capable of transmitting to its direct descendant. It should be borne in mind that Dr. James Anderson,‖ the compiler of the Books of Constitutions for 1723 and 1738, was not only the authorised chronicler of, but also a leading actor in, the early Masonic history of the past century, indeed almost certainly a member of one of the four old Lodges in 1717, and that consequently his statement in regard to original No. 3, with the members of which—notably Bro. Anthony Sayer—he must have been personally acquainted, ought to be taken as absolutely conclusive.

The question, however, suggests itself, When did original No. 3 submit to a new constitution? And this inquiry becomes pertinent as regards the probable date of original No. 2 dying out. If, therefore, for the sake of argument, it be supposed that original No. 2 dropped out before 1729, original No. 3 must have taken its place in the list of that year, and remained as No. 2 until between 1736 and 1738, when it probably moved to the Queen's Head, and accepted a new constitution. This contention, however (besides involving an amalgamation with a junior Lodge), can only be supported by a mere cursory inspection of Pine's lists of Lodges for 1723 and 1725. As before stated, the absence of dates and numbers in these lists renders their value to the Masonic student, as standards of accuracy, most questionable, which view is amply confirmed by a careful scrutiny of their contents, for example: The "Horn," Westminster, which is known by subsequent investigation to be original No. 4, stands No. 5 in Pine's list for 1723: One "warranted" Lodge, at least, has therefore been bracketted with the Time Immemorial Lodges, and whether this be the 2nd, 3rd, or the 4th in order, it is difficult to determine. No. 4 on this list, the Moon (or Black Ball?) was dropped out in 1725, but whether this had the effect of closing up the four old Lodges to their proper number, or not, cannot be even approximately settled by reference to these Lists only.

Indeed, they throw darkness, rather than light, upon the inquiry, since it may be urged (on their authority only), that the fact of original No. 3 meeting in 1738 at the Queen's Head, Knave's Acre, where it had been so meeting continuously since at least 1729, justifies an inference being drawn that this sign and place of meeting are identical with those appearing second in order on the list for 1723, thereby pointing to the conclusion that as original No. 3 thus passes as No. 2, original No. 2 must then necessarily have dropped out. It should be noted, however, that No. 2 and 3 on the list for 1723, each met at the sign of a Queen's Head.

It is submitted that the No. 2 of Pine's List for 1729, meeting at the Rose and Buffler, can only be original No. 2, the remaining three of the old Lodges being otherwise disposed of. The expression, moreover, by Anderson in 1738, "The Crown, the other of the four old Lodges, is now extinct," is open to no other interpretation than that of a comparatively recent lapse.* The better opinion would seem to be that the list of 1723, being Pine's† first work of the kind, was very irregularly put together,‡ and it being beyond doubt that original No. 4 has been placed fifth in order of rank and precedence, it may fairly enough be inferred from attendant circumstances that a similar deprivation of its rights has occurred in the case of original No. 2, which appearing nominally as No. 3 (Queen's Head, Turnstile), yields therefore the position of No. 2 on this list to original No. 3.

Returning, however, from the region of surmise and conjecture, to the unimpeachable testimony of Dr. Anderson,* we find as a matter of fact, so attested by the sanction of Grand Lodge, that original No. 3 having moved to the Queen's Head, with its immemorial privileges intact, afterwards, "upon some difference, came under a new constitution:" and was subsequently given a place and number,‡ in accordance with the date of this alteration. (27th February 172$\frac{8}{9}$).

A further element of confusion in this Lodge's history is afforded by the fact of original No. 3, which was No. 11 from 1729 to 1740,‖ and No. 10 from 1740 to 1756, at the general closing up of numbers in the latter year, having been put ahead of other Lodges of the preceding year, and, like the Grand Stewards' Lodge (later on), placed before the fair date of its (nominal?) constitution.

The following details will render this clearer:—

Lodge* and it is now the Royal Somerset House and Inverness Lodge No. 4.

Original No. 4 became No. 3 in list of 1729 (possibly earlier), No. 2 on that of 1740 (1738 Constit.); but on List of 1750 there appeared but one Time Immemorial Lodge, as original No. 4, then No. 2, had been struck off the roll in pursuance of the following order of Grand Lodge:—

"April 3, 1747.—Ordered that the Lodge No. 2, at the Horn, in Westminster, not attending according to the order of the last Quarterly Communication, be erazed out of the Book of Lodges." †

Four years later,‡ this Lodge resumed its old position on the Roll, the following entry in the Constitutions explaining the reason of its restoration:—

"Sept. 4, 1751.—Upon the petition of several worthy brethren, after a long debate, it was ordered, that in respect to Brother Payne, late Grand Master, the Lodge No. 2, lately held at the Horn in Palace Yard, Westminster, should be restored, and have its former rank and place in the list of Lodges."‖

† Constit. 1756, p 248.

‡ It is curious to reflect, that had one of the periodical closing up of numbers occurred during 1747-51, original No. 4 must have sunk to even a lower depth than original No. 3, with regard to position on the Roll.

‖ Constit. 1756, p 252.

This, as before stated (see § 4), is the earliest of the engraved lists: the "Signs of the houses," as continues to be the practice throughout the entire series, are shown in miniature, and their exact signification cannot always be conjectured, especially with regard to "Coats of Arms," and "effigies" of contemporary celebrities.

If the Lodge meeting at the Anchor, in Dutchy-lane (twenty-third in order on above list) is rightly identified as existing No. 10, constituted 28th March 1723 (See § 4, List 2): then we can arrive at no other conclusion than that precedency by virtue of seniority of Constitution, has been entirely ignored. Excluding the four old Lodges, which are probably at, or near, the top of list, we should find, assuming the list had been arranged in chronological order, that nineteen Lodges, ending with the Anchor in Dutchy-lane, had been Warranted between 1717 and 28th March 1723; whilst, in the short period from March 1723, to, say, even December same year (Pine's first list was probably brought out some two or three months after St. John Baptist Day, 24th June) no less than twenty eight additional Lodges were added to the roll! (See § 11, Note 4).

UNWORTHY CONDUCT.

To the Editor of THE FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—Your Correspondent M. F. C. is not at all singular in his ideas respecting "the powers that be" in his Mother Lodge. To begin with, the Treasurer has no business to receive the fees or contributions from the members; the Secretary should receive them, and hand over to the Treasurer the amount that belongs to the Lodge, and to the Master the amounts that belong to the Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge.

The Treasurer should be compelled to open a separate banking account for the Lodge, and if he does not comply, he should be prepared at every meeting of the Lodge to show the state of account and the balance, at the request of any member; but where is the W.M. and the Finance Committee that this Brother should do just as he likes? and as to "paying his quarterages out of the funds of the Lodge," it is simply suicidal; for, although he may now be in affluent circumstances, the adverse time may come; then, where will he be?

A Lodge with a hundred members ought to disburse in Charity one hundred pounds per annum, and then have a respectable balance. There should be an Almoner in the Lodge, to whom distressed brethren should apply for relief, and this Officer should be supplied with funds by the Treasurer. As to attending banquet at the expense of the Lodge, it is really dishonest; as no Brother but a Secretary can claim that privilege, "his services being equivalent."

Cannot M. F. C. give us extracts from the by-laws of his Lodge, where the duties of Officers are stated? A little more light on this subject perhaps would cure the Treasurer of his hysteria.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

I. P. W., P.M., &c.

To the Editor of the FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE.

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER,—In respect of the case mentioned by "M. F. C.," I would ask that worthy brother, Who is to blame that so undesirable a person should occupy the position of Treasurer of his Lodge but the Lodge itself, of which he is a member, and in whose grave delinquency he has an undoubted share? If the Lodge goes on year after year electing this member to so important an office, if it voluntarily thrusts the wrong man into the wrong place, then I say it has only itself to blame if it finds the conduct of its finances is unsatisfactory. Of course, I know nothing of this case beyond what I have gathered from "M. F. C.'s" letter, but it strikes me he would have acted in a more manly and Masonic manner had he boldly opposed in open Lodge the re-election of this brother. I can well understand that his single voice might be of no avail, but I should think that under the circumstances as described there must be others equally opposed to this brother remaining in office, and therefore it ought not to be a matter of serious difficulty to get rid of him. It only needs some one to "bell the cat," and a brother who has mustered up courage to write to you, Sir, for the purpose of enlisting your sympathy and that of your readers, might, I think, screw his courage to the sticking point, and move that another brother be elected Treasurer. There is an old proverb that "God helps those who help themselves," and "M. F. C." will find this holds good in the present instance, if he will make the necessary effort. It is absurd to suppose that a Lodge numbering some hundred members is obliged to retain an objectionable Treasurer in office, whether he is in the habit of going off occasionally into violent passions or hysterics, or not.

Yours fraternally,

BETA.

MEETING OF THE LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

THE regular meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, when the list of applications for relief was much smaller than usual. Bro. Joshua Nunn presided, and the Senior and Junior Vice-Presidents' chairs were occupied respectively by Bros. James Brett and Eleazer P. Albert. There were but few brethren who attended, but among them were Bros. S. Rawson, S. Poynter, Griffiths Smith, C. F. Hogard, C. P. Cobham, H. Bartlett, W. Hopekirk, Charles Atkins, J. T. Miller, E. C. Massey, James Kew, C. W. Smith, W. H. Cohen, J. J. Unite, J. Diprose jun., Hugh Cotter, John Mason, Edward Terry, William Russell, H. C. Levander, John Hervey Grand Secretary, H. G. Buss Assistant Grand Sec., Joseph Smith, W. Dodd, and G. P. Britton. Four cases were deferred, and the remaining fourteen were relieved with £295, the highest grant being £50, and the lowest £10.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—A certain remedy for diseases of the skin. Ringworm, scurvy, scrofula, or king's evil, sore heads, and the most inveterate skin diseases to which the human race is subject, cannot be treated with a more safe and speedy remedy than Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which act so peculiarly on the constitution, and so purify the blood that those diseases are eradicated from the system, and a lasting cure is obtained. They are efficacious in the cure of tumours, burns, scalds, glandular dwellings, ulcerous wounds, rheumatism, contracted and stiff joints. These medicines operate mildly and surely. The cure effected by them is not temporary or apparent only, but complete and permanent.

FREDERICK LODGE OF UNITY, No. 452.

THE installation meeting of this excellent Lodge was held, at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon, on Tuesday, the 18th inst. The chair was punctually taken by Bro. A. T. Jeffery W.M., and there were present Bros. George Wright S.W., Chas. H. Edmands J.W., Jas. Robins P.M. Treasurer, Magnus Ohren P.M. Secretary, Charles Pawley S.D., E. H. Sugg J.D. and Organist, J. W. Sugg P.M. D.C., F. A. Manning I.G., a strong muster of the members, and the following P.M.'s of the Lodge and Visitors, namely:—P.M.'s C. W. Dommett, R. H. Evans, W. S. Masterman and Wm. Sugg; Visitors—E. P. Albert P.G.P., W. W. Morgan 211, Jas. Robbins P.M. 231, W. H. Boswell J.D. 1339, J. M. Collins 1601, C. H. Woodward 463, A. W. Williams W.M. 875, Rev. C. W. Arnold P.G.C. and D.P.G.M. Surrey, F. H. Wilson Ilex P.G.S. Herts, T. H. Boulton 880, H. Massey P.M. 619. The Lodge was opened with the usual formalities, and the minutes of the last meeting having been confirmed, Bro. Magnus Ohren proposed a motion to the effect that a sum of ten guineas be paid out of the Lodge funds to the widow of a deceased brother, who at the time of his death was a subscribing member of the Lodge. The W.M. seconded the proposal, and it was carried nem con; and it was also arranged that the Lodge should support the candidature for the Boys' School of one of the deceased's sons. The Report of the Special Committee having been read and unanimously adopted, the business of installing the new Master was at once entered upon. The ceremony of installation was entrusted to Bro. J. W. Sugg P.M., and a Board of Installed Masters having been formed, Bro. Sugg proceeded to induct Bro. Chas. H. Edmands into the chair of K.S. in accordance with ancient usage, and this task he fulfilled most admirably. The W.M. then received the usual salutations from the brethren, and Bro. Jas. Robins having been invested as Treasurer, Bro. Edmands appointed and invested the following brethren as his Officers for the ensuing year, namely—Bros. Charles Pawley S.W., Edwin H. Sugg J.W. and Organist, A. T. Jeffery I.P.M., Magnus Ohren P.M. Secretary, F. A. Manning S.D., Rogers J.D., John Methven I.G., and Chas. M. Ohren and D. W. Sugg Stewards. Bro. C. T. Speight having been re-elected and invested as Tyler, Bro. J. W. Sugg P.M. rose and proposed, and Bro. Jas. Robins seconded, that a Past Master's jewel be presented to Bro. A. T. Jeffery, as a slight token of respect from the members for his services as W. Master. The jewel having been presented and appropriately acknowledged, the remaining business was disposed of, and the Lodge closed in the usual manner. The brethren adjourned to banquet, which was capitally served by mine host of the Greyhound, and on the removal of the cloth, the customary series of toasts was given from the chair. After the Queen and the Craft, and the Prince of Wales M.W.G.M., which were duly honoured, followed that of the Pro G.M., Dep. G.M., and the other Grand Officers present and past, and the name of Bro. E. P. Albert being associated with it, that brother briefly, and in suitable terms acknowledged it. The W.M. then proposed the health of the Prov. G. Master and his Officers, and, in doing so, expressed the pleasure it afforded him to be able to associate with this toast the name of Bro. Rev. C. W. Arnold, the Deputy G. Master of the Province, whom it had been his good fortune to meet on previous occasions at the Masonic banquet table, though it had never occurred to him that it would be his lot to have him seated, as he was that evening, at his right hand. He spoke of Bro. Arnold's admirable qualities, and also laid great stress on the impression his sermon, on the occasion of the Provincial Grand Lodge meeting, had made upon his mind. The Rev. C. W. Arnold, in reply, acknowledged most cordially the very eulogistic terms in which the toast had been proposed, and the handsome reception accorded it. Since his appointment in 1877 to the office of Deputy G. Master of the Province, he had laboured, to the best of his ability, to make himself acquainted with its Lodges, and he had been able to visit all of them but three, and in the case of one of these he had been unable to discover its place of meeting. He was especially pleased at finding himself present in the Frederick Lodge of Unity, for he was well acquainted with the earnest zeal of its members, and the admirable manner in which they fulfilled their duties. Indeed, nothing had so much struck him as the able and impressive manner in which the ceremony of Installation had been rendered that evening by Bro. J. W. Sugg. Bro. Woodward replied on behalf of the Provincial Grand Officers, and after mentioning that Provincial Grand Lodge would meet on the 16th July, at Dorking, said that when he came into the Province there were but seven Lodges, and now there were eighteen, so that those who were anxious to obtain Provincial honours must look out and exert themselves, as the Provincial Grand Master only honoured those with office who were worthy. Bro. J. Walter Sugg proposed the toast of the W.M., and in acknowledging it Bro. Edmands expressed his regret that he had not been longer a Mason, as had he been such, he believed he would have been a better man. Years ago it had been his custom to revile Masonry, but since he had joined the Brotherhood, he had become a wiser, and he trusted a more profitable member of society. Bro. J. W. Sugg very happily responded to the toast of the Installing Master, and Bros. Dr. Wilson Ilex, A. W. Williams, and T. H. Boulton replied for the Visitors. Bro. W. Sugg, in acknowledging the toast of the Past Masters, expressed his regret at the absence of Bro. Jeffery I.P.M., on whom ordinarily the duty of returning thanks for this toast devolves, and especially at the cause which compelled him to be absent, while Bros. Jas. Robins, Magnus Ohren, and Charles Pawley responded for the toasts of the "Treasurer and Secretary," and the "Officers" respectively. The Tyler's toast concluded the list. In the intervals between the toasts, several of the brethren, among whom must be mentioned Bros. Magnus Ohren, C. M. Ohren, W. Sugg, E. W. Sugg, the W. Master, and Masterman, sang a variety of choice songs, to the evident delight of all present. Thus ended a most agreeable meeting, and one at which it would be difficult to say, whether the excellence of the working, the harmony existent among the members, or the pleasure of the Visitors, was the most noticeable feature.

OUR WEEKLY BUDGET.

THE House of Lords reassembled on Monday after the Whitsun recess. As a matter of course, no time was lost by the Opposition in questioning the Government as to the authenticity of the Project of a Memorandum of Agreement between this country and Russia, and purporting to bear the signatures of "Schouvaloff" and "Salisbury." The answer of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon was to the effect that the Memorandum had been obtained for publication surreptitiously, and that, as it was incomplete, it must be regarded as unauthenticated. Earl Granville was satisfied with this answer, but not so Earl Grey and Lord Houghton, who pressed the Duke for further information, but his Grace replied somewhat tartly, to the effect that he was the best judge of how far it was proper for him to go, and declined to say anything more.

In the House of Commons on Thursday last, a motion by Mr. Rylands, to the effect that all future treaties should be laid on the table of both Houses of Parliament before being ratified, so that both Houses might have an opportunity of expressing their opinion on them, was withdrawn, both Mr. Gladstone and the Chancellor of the Exchequer expressing strongly their disapproval of it. A motion of Mr. Hayter's, on the subject of the Militia, having been disposed of, the House went into Committee on the Army Estimates, and several votes were passed. On Friday, the Chancellor of the Exchequer was interrogated respecting the so-called Anglo-Russian agreement, but the right honourable gentleman contented himself with saying that the Government were in no way answerable for its publication, and that until he had read it more carefully, it would not be in his power to say anything as to its authenticity. On Monday the Marquis of Hartington was curious as to the same matter, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer answered in terms almost identical with those used by the Duke of Richmond in the House of Lords. The same evening, the Steam Power on Tramways Bill was read a third time, by 210 to 119, and Mr. Hanbury withdrew the resolution, of which he had given notice before the holidays, as to the article written by Mr. Gladstone in the Nineteenth Century. The House subsequently went into Committee on the Valuation of Property Bill, after rejecting an amendment by Mr. Clare S. Read, by a majority of 24. On Tuesday, the greater part of the sitting was occupied in discussing the question of Church and State in Scotland, Mr. Baxter, the Lord Advocate, Mr. Gladstone, and Mr. Cross being the principal speakers. The debate was adjourned. Wednesday was devoted to the second reading of the Women's Suffrage Bill. Mr. Courtney moved it, and Mr. Hanbury moved its rejection, the amendment being carried by a majority of 79, the supporters of the second reading mustering 140, and the opponents 219. Mr. Cubitt having obtained leave to introduce the Bill to amend and further extend the Acts for the Commutation of Tithes in England and Wales, the House rose shortly before six o'clock.

It was expected that the Queen and Princess Beatrice would leave Balmoral Castle yesterday afternoon for Windsor, where in due course she would have arrived this morning. The Prince of Wales has returned to London, and next week the Duke of Connaught is expected home from Berlin, where he has been on a visit to Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia. His Royal Highness will be accompanied on his return by the Prince and his affianced bride, the Princess Louise. The gradual recovery of the Emperor William is announced, but it is believed that his restoration to health will be a work of time only. The Empress of Russia, also, whose health has caused considerable alarm, and whose recovery had been prayed for in the churches, is pronounced to be much better, the inflammation having almost entirely left the pleura. Her daughter, the Duchess of Edinburgh, is with her Imperial Majesty.

The funeral of the late King of Hanover took place in the little Lutheran Church in the Rue Chauchat, Paris, on Tuesday. All the most distinguished personages in France, the Ambassadors, and members of the English and Hanoverian Royal families took part in the mournful ceremony. The principal mourners were the late King's only son, Prince Ernest Augustus and our Prince of Wales, and among those present were M. Patrick de MacMahon, and two Generals representing the President of the French Republic, the Comte de Paris, the Duc d'Aumale, Don Francisco d'Assisi, Lord Lyons, Prince Orloff, &c., &c. The procession was a most imposing one, and there was a strong force of cavalry, artillery, and infantry lining the route, or acting as escort to the body. The pall-bearers were the deceased sovereign's Cabinet Ministers, and the chief officers of his household. Among those present in the church were the Duc d'Alençon, the Princess Clothilde, Princess Metternich, and other ladies who went thither before the cortége set out. As to the future resting-place of the late King, the German Imperial authorities, had given permission for its interment in the family vault at Herrenhausen, but without any public ceremonial, but it has since been arranged,—such at least has been the latest announcement,—that the body shall be buried at Windsor. The Gazette of Friday last, contained orders for the usual Court mourning, and likewise for a brief period of general mourning, out of respect to the late monarch, who, it must be remembered, was a Prince of the English Blood Royal, being Duke of Cumberland and first cousin to Her Majesty.

The Duke of Cambridge may be expected early next week on his return from Malta, whither he set out about a fortnight since for the purpose of reviewing the Indian Contingent now quartered there. On Monday His Royal Highness held a grand review of the troops in garrison, the post of honour being accorded to the Indian troops, who mustered 6500 men, with 1600 horses, while the British troops on the ground were about 5000. On Tuesday the Duke inspected the Field Artillery and Indian Cavalry, and on Wednesday the Indian Infantry, and his Royal Highness is declared to have expressed himself in every way satisfied with the appearance and efficiency of the Contingent. On the afternoon of Wednesday a levée was held at the palace, at which the native officers were presented to his Royal Highness, both the guard of honour of one hundred Infantry, and the escort of sixty troopers, being furnished by the Native force. It was arranged that the Duke, after having witnessed some practice with the heavy ordnance in the fortress, should leave Malta for England late on Thursday evening. We are now beginning gradually to see the full effect of our recent warlike preparations. At least, off Portland is now assembled one of the most magnificent ironclad fleets which has been seen on any occasion. Among the vessels which compose it are such monsters as the Hercules, flagship of Sir Astley Cooper Key, the admiral in command, the Thunderer, and the Warrior, flagship of Rear-Admiral Boys, second in command. The ironclads, including turret-ships, number some fourteen or fifteen, and in addition there are several gunboats. This is called the Reserve Squadron, and in the event of war, might visit the Baltic, or be kept near home for the purpose of protecting our shores. Nor has there been less activity on land, for the troops at Aldershott, under General Steele, are being constantly exercised, and now that the Reserve have joined the colours for close on two months, the regiments must be in splendid working order.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Repeal of the Corporation and Test Acts was celebrated on Tuesday evening by a grand dinner at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. Earl Granville presided, and there were present in support of the noble Earl, Mr. Richard M.P., the Vice-Chairman, the Marquis of Lansdowne, Lord E. Fitzmaurice M.P., Lord Arthur Russell M.P., Earl Fortescue, Mr. W. E. Forster M.P., Lord Aberdare, Lord Kennington M.P., Mr. Dillwyn M.P., Earl Cowper, and many other leading Liberals and Nonconformists. The principal toasts of the evening were the event that was commemorated, and In Memory of Earl Russell. The latter was drunk in solemn silence, and acknowledged by Lord A. Russell. In the course of the evening it was announced that the Queen, in order to show her sense of the important public services rendered by the late Earl, had continued Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park, as the residence of the Earl's widow for the remainder of her life.

The chief sporting event of the week has been the Ascot Races, but in great measure shorn of their usual bravery, as the Court is in mourning for the late King of Hanover. An enumeration of the principal events and their results will suffice. On Tuesday, Her Majesty's Gold Vase was won easily by Count F. de Lagrange's Verneuil, the only other competitor being Lord Falmouth's Lady Golightly. The Prince of Wales's Stakes, for which Sefton was the favourite, fell to Mr. Houldsworth's Glengarry, Childeric being second, and Sefton and Bonnie Scotland running a dead heat for third place. The Ascot Stakes was won by Chesterton, who beat Advance by a length and a half, Finis finishing third. On Wednesday, Julius Cæsar carried off the Royal Hunt Cup, Belphœbe and Rosy Cross being second and third respectively, while Lord Falmouth secured the Coronation Stakes with Redwing, the Duke of Hamilton's Strathfleet, three lengths behind, taking second place, and third honours being shared between Baron A. de Rothschild's Brie and Lord Bradford's Blue Ridge, who passed the post together several lengths to the rear of Strathfleet. On Thursday, Verneuil was again victorious, and trotted in winner of the Gold Cup six lengths ahead of Silvio, St. Christophe being third.

As regards other events in the sporting world, the weather has been unfavourable for yachting, and, consequently, the Royal Cinque Ports Regatta has not excited as much interest as usual, but there has been great activity in cricket circles, and the Australians have been somewhat heavily defeated by the Gentlemen of England, who came off victorious in one innings by a single run. This was a result which had not been anticipated, as the visitors had scored 57 with five wickets still to fall, but these went rapidly, and they only contrived to raise the score among them to 63, which, added to the total of their first innings, gave them 138 to the Gentlemen's 139. The chief contributions on the side of the Australians were C. Bannerman 28 and 0, Midwinter 6 and 26, A. Bannerman 13 and 0, and Mr. T. Garrett 0 and 15. For the Gentlemen Mr. W. G. Grace 25, Mr. Gilbert 20, Mr. G. F. Grace 11, the Hon. A. Lyttelton 16, Mr. G. Strachan not out 21, and Mr. J. A. Bush 16, were the double figures. On Thursday, the Australians play Middlesex, at Lords. In the match between Kent and Derbyshire the former, thanks to the fine batting of Lord Harris (106), was victorious by 82 runs.

Of course all kinds of rumours are flying about as to the doings of the Congress, and it is very entertaining to read the dispatches of the different Special Commissioners and Correspondents. At best, however, much of what they communicate must be guesswork. According to all accounts, however, the Congress has entered on the Bulgarian question, and the admission of Greece has been mooted by our plenipotentiaries, though, as yet, no decision has been arrived at. We hear that Prince Gortschakoff, after a light repast of strawberries, was enabled to take part in the deliberations on Monday, and that on visiting Prince Bismarck, the latter's favourite dog made an attack on the Russian Chancellor, which, however, was prevented having any serious consequences as the German Chancellor effectually used his herculean strength and choked off the immense brute. On Wednesday, we are told, the wily Russian was carried in his chair into the hall of congress by a couple of stalwart footmen or chasseurs, while when riding in his brougham he acknowledged with great empressement the rare salutations paid him by the bystanders. Then Lord Beaconsfield has one day the appearance of being in deep cogitation with himself, and his serious demeanour is much commented upon by the public, who consider his pre-occupied manner is a sign that the Congress is not working promisingly. As to the Plenipotentaries, their number is now complete, for the Sultan's representatives have now arrived, and it said they are well satisfied with all that has been done so far. As to the effect caused by the premature publication of the Anglo-Russian agreement, the excitement is somewhat toning down, and people are beginning to think that until the whole truth is known respecting this important document, it is hardly worth while speculating about the value of partial truths. No doubt we shall hear in time what has been done at these momentous assemblies of the European Areopagus, but for the present we must be content with amusing gossip.

As to the state of things at Constantinople, matters are certainly critical, and the slightest accident might bring about a renewal of hostilities. Indeed, it was rumoured a few days since that the Turks had sent an ultimatum to General Todleben, to the effect that certain temporary watch towers from which the movements in the Turkish lines were visible by the Russians, must be removed, and troops were hurried up by the latter, the result being that there was a very considerable scare. Then the Mussulman rising in Roumelia still continues, and the Turks, though pressed by their enemies to surrender Shumla, Varna, and Batoum, resolutely decline to do so. Servia, too, is arming and appropriating territory, and the Roumanian and Russian forces might at any moment be brought into collision. All which shows that we are a long way off yet from a peaceful settlement of the Eastern difficulty.

Mr. George Magrath's Matinée Musicale will take place on Friday next, at 3 o'clock, in St. George's Hall, Langham-place, when he will perform selections from Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Chopin, and Liszt.

We have received several letters—one written within the last few days—from Bro. James Stevens, in which he requests us to mention that he is the "originator, and more than four-fifths designer," of the picture recently noticed in these columns, and entitled "Freemasonry and Civilization." We have seen that a controversy has been raging on this point elsewhere, and as it is a question which in no way concerns us, we must respectfully, but firmly, decline expressing any opinion whatever on the matter. That Bro. Stevens might well have evolved such a sketch as this out of his inner consciousness is not unlikely, but whether he evolved this particular sketch or not is, as we have said, a matter with which we have no concern whatever, and we cheerfully relegate to others the task of settling the point in dispute.

JAPANESQUE STATIONERY.—Although, for several centuries, the nations of the West have possessed a dim, and so to speak, semi-mythical knowledge of the Japanese, the wonderful people who have been aptly styled the English of Asia, it is only since the troubles that ended in the opening of the Treaty Ports to all the world, and destroyed the Dutch monopoly, that we have become really familiar with them, their manners and customs, and their manufactures. Now the intercourse between the two nations is very great, and although they have become very good customers of ours, they have also taught us very many things good for us to know. Japanese art is full of a strange and unique beauty of its own; their work in several fabrics is matchless. They have taught our colourists strange secrets. Their carvings in soft woods never cease to be a source of wonder. Their pottery and so-called Japan-ware are unrivalled. But, perhaps, in no fabric have their achievements been more remarkable than in paper. For centuries the Japanese have made from paper nearly everything — ships, drinking vessels, fortifications, packing-cases and other strong and heavy articles, on the one side, and on the opposite, the most delicate fans, lace, embroidery, &c. But they have also used paper as we have done for the purposes of letter writing; they never use a pen, a brush takes its place; but have not rested content with the plain material. Their love of symbols and signs has shown itself so strongly here, that when a Japanese receives a letter he knows at once the rank, sex, and condition in life of the sender, and can form a very good guess at the contents,—the nature of them there is no doubt about,—even before he opens and begins to read the missive. Thus there is a certain symbol for every rank, from prince to peasant, answering to a certain extent to our coronets, but descending much lower, which forms the basis of the ornamentation of the paper. Then comes the personal sign, responding to our crest, and finally the special ornamentation, telling the nature of the writer's business. In such variety are these last symbols employed, that a tradesman has one set of paper for applications for orders, and another for demands for payment. But the most beautiful of them are naturally enough those applied to social subjects, to times of merry making, or of mourning; in fact, to births, marriages, or deaths; and these certainly should be eagerly welcomed among ourselves; so we notice with pleasure that Messrs. Goodall and Son, the eminent and world famous stationers, of Camden Works, are extending, in many directions, their beautiful introductions of "Japanesque stationery." In all these, the paper is of the best possible tone and texture, and the purchaser may, if he choose, employ the symbols which, in Japan, are sacred to royalty, or send out his invitations to a dinner party, a ball, or a wedding, ornamented with the "Kiro," the "Mume," the "Kiku," orange bloom, and many others, or a delicate spray of mistletoe, which we doubt not, will have its own particular use among our young folk, especially at Christmas. More affecting, and equally appropiate, is the symbolism as applied to death. Instead of the ugly, cumbrous, black-edged paper, with which we have been too long familiar, Messrs. Goodall show us the stem of the bamboo-tree (the emblem of death and of mourning), running up one side of the paper, with the graceful tendrils and branches drooping over at the top, as though in tears, and these are so printed, in silver or black, as to be suitable for what is called complimentary, for half, or for deep mourning.

NOTICES OF MEETINGS.

Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193.—Considering the time of year, the meeting of this Lodge, held at the Railway Tavern, London-street, E.C., on Wednesday, the 20th inst., was well attended. Bro. Kennett Harris occupied the chair of W.M., and there were also present Bros. A. Posener S.W., Biddle J.W., Gottheil P.M., J. K. Pitt Sec., Moss S.D., Staley J.D., Woodward I.G., Bone, Sayer, Medcalf, Bush, Walker, W. E. Gomperts jun., J. P. Black. The chief business of the evening consisted in the rehearsal of the third degree, in which the W.M. exhibited considerable proficiency. Indeed, the Preceptor took occasion to compliment that Brother, and to assure him that he had disappointed him (the Preceptor) most agreeably; for while going through the minor offices, nothing appeared to indicate the possession of the capability displayed that evening. Subsequently, several of the brethren expressed themselves highly gratified with the able manner in which the work had been performed. One of the sections was worked, after which the ceremonies of closing down were practised. Bros. W. E. Gomperts jun. 869, and James P. Black 1185, were elected members. Bro. A. Posener will be W.M. on Wednesday next.

The ballot was taken for Bro. G. H. Gilham of Lodges Nos. 192 and 1632, it proved unanimous in his favour, and, being present, he was regularly introduced and advanced into the Order according to ancient form and custom. The election for W.M. was then proceeded with, and Bro. W. T. Christian S.W. was unanimously elected to fill the office for the ensuing year. The Treasurer, Bro. W. Groome, and the Tyler, Bro. Gilchrist, were re-elected to their respective offices. It was proposed, seconded, and carried that Bros. Sheppard, De Metz and Gilham be the lay members to serve on the Audit Committee. Borough Lodge, No. 424.—The regular meeting of this Lodge took place on Monday, the 17th June, at the Halfmoon Hotel, Gateshead-on-Tyne. Bro. P. J. Jackson W.M. in the chair; Hartle I.P.M., J. M. The Lodge was opened and the minutes of last meeting read and confirmed; the Lodge was then opened in the second degree, and one brother was passed. The Lodge was worked up to the third, and Bro. Pond was raised to the sublime degree of M.M., in a most impressive manner by the W.M. The routine business having been gone through, the Lodge was closed and the brethren adjourned to refreshments. The preliminary toasts being disposed of, the W.M. rose to give the Visitors; he said there was no Lodge in the Province that was more proud to see a good array of visitors than they were. He would couple with the toast the name of Bro. G. I. Dean P.M., who had given valuable assistance in the Lodge. Bro. Dean, in a few well chosen remarks, thanked the W.M. for the welcome he had given the Visitors, expressing the pleasure he and they must feel at being present. He congratulated the Master on the admirable manner he had given the third degree that evening; rarely had he heard it given in such an impressive and solemn way. Again he thanked the brethren for the kind way they had responded to the toast. In proposing the health of the W.M., Bro. Marchent P.M. expressed the pleasure he had in seeing him do the work in the way he had; it gave hope for the future. Had Bro. Jackson been a greater stranger, he felt he could have said more, but as he was his bosom friend, he would content himself by merely calling on the brethren to drink his health. Bro. Jackson, on rising, assured the brethren that nothing on his part should be wanting to forward the interests of the Borough Lodge, and he thanked them for the hearty way his name had been received. Before sitting down, he proposed, in a few well-chosen remarks, the health of the Past Masters, to which Bro. Marchent replied. The Tyler's toast brought a most enjoyable evening to a close, which had been enlivened by some capital singing, rendered by Bros. Goss, Ferry, Poad, Thompson, Mackey, Jackson, Cook, &c. The visitors present were J. Cook P.M. 481 P.P.G.S.W., J. Ridsdale P.M. 406 P.P.G.S.D., R. A. Luck P.M. 111, G. I. Dean P.M. 511, T. Halliday P.M. 406, J. Mitchell J.W. 1613, J. Goss S.S. 481, W. Croxteth United Service Lodge, No. 786.—The regular meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 13th inst. Bros. E. W. Parnell W.M., J. P. Wright S.W., F. J. Bailey J.W., J. Johnstone Sec., T. B. Browne S.D., P. B. Deuchar J.D., C. Wise I.G., W. J. Newman P.M. D.C., R. Neville Tyler. P.M.'s Bros. Carr and Holt. Visitors—Bros. T. K. Hughes P.M. 1013, S. M. Davies, FREEMASON'S CHRONICLE. The customary business having been disposed of, and Bro. C. Wise unanimously elected to the office of Treas. of the Lodge for the next year, Bro. S.W. the W.M. Elect, was formally presented to the W. Master, who in due form put the usual questions, and further obligated, finally installed, and proclaimed Bro. J. P. Wright to be the W. Master of the Croxteth United Service Lodge, No. 786 for the ensuing year. After the W.M. had received the salutations of the brethren, he immediately proceeded to install his Officers, which, with the able assistance of the efficient I.P.M., was rapidly and gracefully accomplished. The following are the Officers for the next year:—J. P. Wright W.M., E.W. Parnell I.P.M., F. J. Bailey S.W., J. Johnstone J.W., T. B. Browne Sec., C. Wise Treas., P. B. Deuchar S.D., W. T. Smith J.D., W. E. Skevington I.G., W. J. Newman P.M. D.C., E. Rayner Steward, R. Neville Tyler. The usual sum of five pounds was voted from the funds of the Lodge for the purpose of making the I.P.M. a Life Governor in the West Lancashire Educational Institution. This method of presenting a retiring Master of No. 786 with something more truly Masonic than a Past Master's jewel is highly noteworthy. It was announced at this time in the labours of the Lodge, that it was the Worshipful Master's command that the brethren adjourn to banquet. The Croxteth United Service is a very happy, compact, and as regards the services, well represented Lodge. The military costumes of a number of brethren had a brilliant effect, as they intermingled with those of less striking attire. After the brethren had done justice to a seasonably selected and well catered menu, the Worshipful Master rose, for the first time, to propose the toast of the Queen, which was drunk with enthusiasm, the brethren singing the National Anthem. The next toast that W. Bro. Wright had to propose was His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family, which was heartily received, accompanied with the anthem, "God Bless the Prince of Wales." The third toast, Our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate, was next proposed, and cordially drunk, after which the I.P.M., by permission of the Worshipful Master, assumed control of the gavel, to propose the next toast, and in doing so, said it was a matter of great pleasure to him to give the health of their new W. Master. He said he felt great gratification in seeing Bro. Wright occupying the exalted post he so justly merited, as they all knew how faithfully he had worked to attain it. He wished the W. Bro. every happiness and prosperity in his year of office, and he knew he had the entire support and sympathy of the brethren. He earnestly hoped and confidently believed that the Lodge during his term of office would be more prosperous than in the preceding year. The toast was drunk with great cordiality. Bro. Deuchar favoured the brethren with a song. The Worshipful Master in responding to the toast said, Worthy and Worshipful brethren, there are certain positions and periods in one's life which call forth the deepest and most active sympathies, and under such peculiar influences it is very difficult to express and convey adequately the extent of one's feelings. I have arrived at that peculiar period, and am placed in that delicate position, and words fail to express how deeply and truly I feel the responsibility of my exalted office. The cordial manner in which our worthy I.P.M. has proposed this toast, and the hearty manner in which it has been received by you, impresses me greatly, and such fraternal expressions have been the means of making the arduous duties of the Master a pleasure, and tend to inspire redoubled energy into the work, and make this Lodge hold such a good and compact position among its sister Lodges. I know you all desire the future prosperity of the Lodge to be equal to that of the past, and I sincerely reciprocate that feeling, and nothing shall be wanting on my part to ensure the attainment of so desirable an end. Brethren, I have now a particular pleasure, as well as a duty, devolving upon me, in proposing the next toast. During the past year we have been under the Mastership of a Brother who has advanced the interests of the Lodge, performed his difficult duties with punctuality, efficiency, and zeal, and during his term we have upon all occasions seen his goodwill towards the Craft, and that excellent trait of a Mason, brotherly love shown towards us to the utmost. I should be wanting in my duty to our I.P.M., as well as to the Lodge, if, in proposing his health, I said less than I have. As a crowning point to his many excellencies, you have seen and admired the admirable manner in which he has done the duties of Installing Master to-night. I now ask you to drink to the health of our esteemed and worthy I.P.M. in the most cordial manner. The toast was drunk with musical honours. During the interval Bro. Tompkinson kindly responded to the call for a song. The I.P.M., on rising to return thanks for the very kind manner in which his name had been brought before the brethren, and so warmly received, said he looked back upon his year of office with great pleasure, but the position he had attained was one which he had looked forward to with equal pleasure, and as the I.P.M. he would render every aid in his power for the interests of the Lodge. The toast of the Past Masters was very tersely put by the W.M., and Bro. Newman replied in as short and appropriate a manner as possible. Bro. Holt followed, and copied the same example as regards brevity. Bro. Wise favoured the brethren with a very humorous song. The next toast, that of the Officers, was given with considerable ability, in his remarks the W.M. alluded to the absolute necessity of the various offices being punctually and efficiently filled, so that the Master might have proper support, and that good, steady, practical working might be the prevailing characteristic of every officer. Bro. Tompkinson again volunteered a song. Bro. Bailey, in responding to the toast said, he was exceedingly pleased to reply to the toast from the West, and while feeling confident of being able to perform the duties devolving upon him in his new office, he looked forward to the time when, as a result of his discharging his present office to the satisfaction of all, he would be able to attain the exalted post in the East. The other Officers followed, and returned thanks, after which the Worshipful Master gave the toast of the Visitors, and in doing so said he had experienced great kindness from every Lodge he had visited, and he was sure that the brethren regretted as much as he did they were not favoured with a larger response to the invitations sent out. He had, in visiting as often as possible, gleaned a great deal of useful information, and expressed an opinion if there were more visiting done there would be less likelihood of divergence from that uniformity in our ritual which was so much to be desired. The W. Brother kindly alluded to the presence of Bro. Davies, who had faithfully responded to the invitation, and informed the brethren that he had great pleasure in forming the acquaintance of that brother who he regarded as a thorough Mason, and said that there would always be the same cordial welcome extended towards him at all times in No. 786. The toast was drunk with musical honours. Bro. Davies responded, and the Lodge was called from refreshment to labour, and finally closed in harmony. The Tyler's toast was given, and the brethren dispersed, after spending a delightful evening.

We subjoin the Bill of Fare:—Soups—spring; mock turtle. Fish—salmon; turbot. Entrees—ducklings; cutlets; spring chicken. Roasts—lamb; sirloin of beef. Sweets—blancmanger; rhubarb tart; gooseberry tart; jellies. Dessert.

Everton Lodge, No. 823.—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Wednesday, 19th June. Present—Bros. John Houlding W.M., H. Ashmore S.W., J. S. Cuthbert J.W., P. W. Glesby Sec., W. J. Lunt P.M. Treas., T. Webster S.D., J. Boyle J.D., John Beesley Steward, T. H. Carefull I.G., W. H. Ball Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Holland, Cottrell, Shaw, and Wilson. Visitors—Bros. Robinson W.M. 249, Burgess P.M. 1325, Wright W.M. 786, &c. Minutes of the last meeting having been read and declared correct, the ceremony of initiating Mr. John Jackson was ably done by W. Bro. Houlding. The Lodge was advanced, and Bro. Sumner was passed to the second degree of F.C. The working of Bro. Houlding in this degree is as efficient and easy as in the first, and the Everton Lodge under his Mastership is one of those Lodges in the town that we never tire of visiting. The impression produced at our first visit to the Lodge is unchanged to-day, and it is with great regret we say that there are too few Lodges which work so admirably as the Everton, in the ritual of the Order, and in the harmony that prevails. The Lodge was then lowered to the first degree, and on the Worshipful Master retiring for a few minutes, Bro. Wilson occupied the chair. In pursuance of a notice of motion, Bro. Cottrell P.M. proposed, and Bro. Holland seconded, that a sum of twelve guineas be voted from the funds of the Lodge to purchase a P.M.'s jewel for the retiring Master, Bro. Houlding. Carried unanimously. The ballot was now taken for the election of Worshipful Master for the next twelve months. The result was the election of Bro. H. Ashmore to that high office. The ballot was next taken for Treasurer for the same term, but previous to the vote being cast, Bro. Holland proposed, and Bro. Bagnall seconded, the re-election of Bro. Lunt, and the brethren, as well as the Worshipful Master, paid a high tribute of praise for the very able manner in which Bro. Lunt had fulfilled that important office. On the ballot being taken Bro. Lunt was unanimously re-elected Treasurer for the ensuing year. Bros. Callow and Gibb were elected Auditors for the same term. Bro. Callow proposed, and Bro. Carefull seconded, that a sum of money be voted from the funds of the Lodge to defray the expense of the annual picnic. Bro. Lunt proposed an amendment, to the effect that they have a picnic, but each brother pay his own expenses, so that more funds from the Lodge might go annually to the Charities. The amendment was seconded by Bro. Beesley. A lengthy discussion followed, and eventually Bro. Callow added to his motion that each brother defray his railway expenses, which gave satisfaction. Other matters relative to the picnic were discussed at some length. There were two votes of money from the funds of the Lodge for benevolent purposes. The Lodge was then closed, in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Dalhousie Lodge of Instruction, No. 860.—On Tuesday evening last, at Bro. Smyth's, Sisters' Tavern, Pownall-road, Dalston. Bros. Wardell W.M., M. Christian S.W., Finch J.W., J. Lodge opened and the minutes were read and confirmed, the ceremony of initiation was rehearsed, Bro. Webb candidate. Lodge was opened in the second degree; Bro. Weige answered the questions. Bro. Allen then occupied the chair; he opened the Lodge in the third degree, and raised Bro. Weige to the degree of M.M. Bro. Turquand gave the Traditional History. The W.M. resumed the chair. Bro. Webb worked the third section of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. The Lodge was closed down. Bro. Borer of Lodge 192 was elected a member. Bro. Christian will preside at the next meeting.

Grey Friars Lodge, No. 1101.—This Lodge held its monthly meeting on Wednesday, the 12th of June, at the Masonic Hall, Reading. Present—Bros. Arthur Welch W.M., W. G. Flanagan S.W., J. Early Danks J.W., W. P. Ivey P.M. Sec., Rev. C. R. Honey Chaplain, W. Ferguson S.D., E. J. Blackwell J.D., Thos. Newman D.C., J. H. Hawkes Steward, Hemmings Tyler. Past Masters Bros. Margrett, Hurley, Brown; Members—Bros. Pulley, Rhind, Hickie, Hunt, Bailey, Rolfe, Creed. Visitors—Bros. E. Baker W.M. 414, Withers, Hawkes 414. The Lodge was opened, and the minutes of last regular Lodge were read and confirmed. The Lodge was opened in the second degree, Bro. Hickie satisfactorily answered the usual questions leading to the third degree, and retired to be prepared. The Lodge was opened in the third degree, Bro. Hickie was admitted and raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The W.M. performed the whole of the ceremony in a masterly manner; he gave the lecture on the Tracing Board with such effect that it rivetted the attention of every member present; he appeared to feel every word he uttered, and this it is which gives such a beautiful effect and solemnity to this interesting ceremony. The Lodge was resumed in the second and first degrees, when the election of W.M. for the ensuing year took place; Bro. Flanagan was elected. Bro. Stransom, who was absent through indisposition, was re-elected Treasurer. Both announcements were received with acclamation. The Worshipful Master elect returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him by the Lodge, and nominated Bros. W. Ridley, Ferguson, and Newman as his Banquet Stewards. Bro. Hemmings was re-elected Tyler, and returned thanks. Bro. Newman, having given notice, now moved, "That the sum of twenty-five pounds per annum be offered to the Lodge of Union, 414, as a rent for the Hall, &c., &c., from Midsummer 1878." Bro. Hurley P.M. seconded it After a very interesting discussion, Bro. Pulley moved, and Bro. Bailey seconded, "the previous question" as an amendment. This was put to the Lodge and declared to be carried. The I.P.M. moved in a complimentary and appropriate speech, "That a P.M. jewel be presented to the W.M., in recognition of his services while occupying the chair," this was seconded by the W.M. elect, and carried by acclamation. The labours of the evening being ended, the Lodge was closed and adjourned till the second Wednesday in October.

Lewis Lodge, No. 1185.—A meeting was held on Saturday, 15th June, at the Kings Arms Hotel, Wood-green. Present—Bros. W. Sayer W.M., Thos. W. Bone S.W., James W. Berrio P.M. 1293 J.W., A. Speight Tyler; Past Master J. R. Cover, with many of the members. Visitors—Bros. C. L. Marsh 464, W. Woodward 1728, Thomas Smith 8, and H. T. Thompson P.M. 742. Bro. John Jefferey Drake, P.M. Morning Star 1396, was elected as a joining member. Bros. Black and Hearson, of the Lewis Lodge, and Bro. W. Woodward, of the Temple Bar Lodge, No. 1728, were raised to the degree of Master Mason. Bro. Best was passed to the degree of Fellow Craft. A petition was signed in favour of Emma Eliza Williams, as a candidate for the Girls' School. Her father, Bro. H. Williams, was initiated in the Lewis Lodge; he is now in a lunatic asylum, and this is a case in which the support of the Craft is earnestly solicited by the members of that Lodge. Proxies will be thankfully received by the Secretary.

Finsbury Park Master Masons' Lodge of Instruction, No. 1288.—On Friday, the 14th of June, at the Finsbury Park Tavern, Seven Sisters-road, N. Present—Bros. T. Bayley was appointed W.M. for the ensuing week, and a vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Press for the able manner in which he worked the ceremonies.

Square and Compass Lodge, No. 1336.—This Lodge held an emergency meeting at the Masonic Rooms, Public Hall, Wrexham, on Tuesday, the 18th inst. Bros. E. Smith W.M., J. Eyton-Jones S.W., J. C. Owen J.W., J. Williams Sec., T. F. Elisbury Treas., H. Davies S.D., J. W. M. Smith J.D., W. Garret Jones, William Pierce, and J. A. Chadwick Stewards, C. K. Benson I.G., Thomas Lee Tyler; Bro. E. Lovatt, J. Abbott Harris, John Bradshaw, Geo. Manley, Isaac Shone, J. Milligan, G. E. Woodford, R. W. Evans, J. B. Shirley, J. Edgar, &c. The usual formal business having been disposed of, the Worshipful Master initiated, in his accustomed efficient and impressive manner, Messrs. James Francis Kelly, Abraham Williamson, and Charles James Gibbons into our glorious Order. The labours of the evening being ended, the Lodge was closed in due and ancient form, and the brethren, by command of the Worshipful Master, adjourned for refreshment to the Wynnstay Arms Hotel, where the brethren were catered for by Bro. Marlees. After the removal of the cloth, the W.M. proposed the usual Loyal and Masonic toasts, which were cordially received and duly responded to. A pleasant evening was spent, and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

Fermor Hesketh Lodge, No. 1350.—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge was held in the Masonic Temple, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 11th instant. Present—Bros. W. H. Cooper W.M., J. M. Bennett P.M. S.W., W. P. Evans J.W., T. F. Cooper Sec., C. P. Titherly S.D., J. A. McMahon J.D., R. Carruthers Steward, R. Thomas I.G., P. Ball Tyler. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and found correct, the W.M., in his usual capable manner, initiated Mr. H. B. Browne and Mr. William Charles Riches into Freemasonry. The Lodge was then worked to the third degree, and Bro. T. H. Allbut was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. The Lodge was then lowered to the first degree, and the brethren proceeded to elect a W.M. for the ensuing year; the unanimous choice fell upon Bro. W. P. Evans to fill that important office. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a jewel to Bro. J. A. McMahon J.D., on his leaving England for New Zealand. The jewel was presented to that brother by the members of the Lodge, as a token of their fraternal regard. A P.M.'s jewel was voted to Bro. Cooper on his retiring from the chair. There was a good muster of brethren present, and among the visitors were Bros. T. Marwood P.G.J.W. West Lancashire, J. R. Goepel P.P.G. Director of Ceremonies West Lancashire, and several W.M.'s and Past Masters of Liverpool Lodges. The business of the evening being ended, the Lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Weyside Lodge, 1395.—The installation meeting of this Lodge was held on 11th inst., at Woking. Bro. Street W.M. was supported by his Officers, and a large attendance of members and visitors. After the confirmation of the minutes, Bro. J. H. Parker Wilson was installed into the chair. Bros. Tyler and Lord Ouslow were appointed S.W. and J.W. respectively. Bro. Charington having resigned the office of Secretary, it was unanimously resolved that he be presented with an appropriate testimonial, in the shape of a jewel. It was also resolved that a vote of thanks be recorded to him, expressing the regret of the members at his resignation. Bro. Eager P.M. was appointed Secretary in his stead. Several matters in conjunction with the Lodge were then discussed, and the Lodge was closed. The brethren adjourned to the White Hart Hotel, where a very sumptuous banquet was provided by the worthy host. The usual Loyal and Masonic toasts were fully honoured. Bro. Rev. C. W. Arnold G.C. eloquently responded for the Grand Officers. In proposing the health of the I.P.M. Bro. Street, the W.M. paid him a deserved compliment for the admirable manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair. The toasts of the Wardens, Officers, and Visitors followed, and were duly responded to, and the brethren separated.

Merchants' Lodge, No. 241.—The regular monthly meeting of this Lodge was held at the Masonic Temple, 22 Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 11th inst. Present—Bros. Geo. Peet W.M., J. Windsor S.W., T. Sheen J.W., T. Salter Sec., S. J. McGeorge P.M. Treas., Wm. Williams S.D., John Latta J.D., Geo. Broadbridge P.M. D.C., J. Whitehead I.G., Peter Ball Tyler; Past Masters—Bros. Knight, Robinson, Brown, and Lunt. The minutes of previous meeting were read and found correct; the Worshipful Master then initiated Mr. S. Jude into Freemasonry, after which the ballot was taken for the election of W.M., followed by that for Treasurer. Bro. J. Windsor S.W. was elected to the former, and Bro. S. J. McGeorge P.M. re-elected to the latter office, for the ensuing twelve months. It was proposed by Bro. Geo. Broadbridge, and seconded by Bro. Robinson, that the usual grant of five pounds be voted to the Relief Committee from the funds of the Lodge—carried. It was proposed by Bro. Geo. Broadbridge, and seconded by Bro. McGeorge, that the customary P.M.'s jewel be voted to the W.M. on his retiring from the chair. Bro. Latta proposed an amendment, which was seconded by Bro. Stainbury, that the sum of seven guineas be voted from the funds of the Lodge for the purchase of said Past Master's jewel—carried. Bro. Brown proposed, and Bro. Windsor seconded the vote of five pounds from the funds of the Lodge for a benevolent purpose—carried unanimously. Before closing the Lodge, the Worshipful Master availed himself of the opportunity of testifying his regard for the noble Lodge he had presided over during the past twelve months. W. Bro. Peet announced, in a few appropriate and touching remarks, that he had taken upon himself to present what he considered would be acquisitions to the pedestals in the west and south. He trusted the Lodge would accept from him, on his retiring from the chair, two exquisitely finished and massive brazen columns, and two gavels. It can be readily understood that such timely and valuable gifts will be highly prized by the brethren of No. 241, and they will be handed down to future generations as a fitting souvenir of the generous donor, whose name will be linked therewith as one of the most esteemed Masters that the Merchants' Lodge has had the good fortune to reckon among its own. On the presentation being accomplished, Bro. McGeorge, P.M. and Treas., proposed that the gift to the Lodge be accepted, and that a vote of thanks be tendered the Worshipful Master from the Lodge, and entered on the minutes, for the handsome presentation. The above motion was seconded and carried unanimously. The Lodge was then closed with solemn prayer, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment.

Doric Lodge of Instruction, No. 933.—Held its weekly meeting at Bro. Clayton's, the Duke's Head, Whitechapel-road, on Friday, the 14th instant, Bros. Butter W.M., Job S.W., Wallington J.W., Waterer S.D., I. P. Cohen J.D., McDonald I.G., Musto Hon. Sec.; also a large number of brethren, including the following Past Masters:—Bros. Myers, Koch, Barnes, Scott, Hogg, Atkins, Candick, &c. The Lodge was opened in due form with prayer, and the minutes read and confirmed; the Lodge was opened up, and the W.M. worked the installation ceremony in a most impressive manner, after which he rehearsed the ceremony of passing. Bro. Barnes proposed that a vote of thanks be recorded on the minutes to the W.M. for the able manner in which he had performed his duties, and that he be elected an honorary member of the Lodge of Instruction. Bro. Barnes, in the course of his remarks, said he was pleased that upon him devolved the duty to move this resolution; he had had a large experience in working the ceremonies, including that of installation, and he must say, and felt sure every Past Master present would confirm the statement, that it was not often the ceremony, in its entirety, was so well performed as it had been that evening, especially so if it were taken into account that Bro. Butter had rehearsed it only once before. Moreover, Bro. Butter had broken away from the traditions of the locality in which his sphere of action lies, and had come to the fountain whence the method he had adopted sprung—to a Lodge of Instruction noted for the number and excellence of its workers; and where his work was sure—not unkindly, but closely—to be scanned and criticised; circumstances likely to unnerve even the most expert, but more especially so the novice. Bro. Butter had, however, passed the ordeal with great credit to himself, and he (Bro. Barnes) was sure to the satisfaction of every brother present. The proposition was seconded by Bro. Candick, Preceptor of the Lodge, and unanimously carried. Bro. Butter expressed his deep sense of the obligations he was under, not only to the brethren, for so courteously allowing him the privilege of occupying the chair in a Lodge so justly celebrated for its excellent working,—he hailing from a Provincial Lodge,—but also to the P.M.'s, for the invaluable aid he had received. To his esteemed friend Bro. Musto, the Hon. Secretary of the Lodge, he was especially indebted; Bro. Musto was aware that he (Bro. Butter) had shortly, in his mother Lodge, to instal his successor, and had, in this kind manner, invited him to rehearse the ceremony at the Doric Lodge of Instruction. Bro. P.M. Musto had further rendered him material assistance in overcoming the difficulties of the ceremony, and had in a great measure conduced to that success the brethren had so pleasantly recognised. Moreover, his personal sense of obligation was deepened by the ELASTIC STOCKING KNEE CAPS, &c., for VARICOSE VEINS, and all cases of WEAKNESS and SWELLINGS of the LEGS, SPRAINS, &c. They are porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s 6d, 7s 6d, 10s and 16s each, post free.

NEW PATENT

CHEST EXPANDING BRACES (for both sexes.) For Gentlemen they act as a substitute for the ordinary braces. For children they are invaluable; they prevent stooping and preserve the symmetry of the chest. Prices for children 5s 6d, 7s 6d and 10s 6d; adults 15s 6d and 21s, post free.

TAMAR INDIEN.

SPECIAL CAUTION.

OWING to the marked success of this medicine, the only patent medicine universally prescribed by the faculty, and the acknowledged cure for constipation, headache, bile, hemorrhoids, &c., BASE IMITATIONS, containing drastic irritants, are being foisted on the public. The genuine preparation bears the title "Tamar Indien," and the signature E. GRILLON, Coleman-st., London, E.C. Price 2s 6d per box. In a recent case, 1876, G. No. 311, a perpetual injunction to restrain the defendant from applying the name "Tamar" to his lozenges was awarded, with costs, by Vice-Chancellor Bacon, on 19th January 1877, and all such piracies will be summarily proceeded against.——N.B.—See that the outer wrapper (directions) are printed in the English language, and that each box bears the Government M stamp.
