THE JOURNAL OF BORDERLAND RESEARCH

BSRF No. 1 Published by Borderland Sciences Research Foundation, Inc., PO Box 548, Vista, California 92083 USA. Edited by the Director, Riley Hansard Crabb, Doctor of Metaphysics in the Society of St. Luke the Physician.

The Journal is published six issues a year with the assistance of the Associates, at the Director's home, 1103 Bobolink Drive, Vista. It is printed, 36 pages an issue. The Foundation was incorporated under California law, May 21, 1951, #254263, and has been in continuous existence since then. Address all correspondence to the PO Box. The Journal is included in the Foundation membership of $7.00 a year. Single copies and back issues of the Journal are now $1.50 each. If you don't care to join you may receive the Journal by donating $7.00 a year or more to the Foundation. The Director's wife, Ms. Judith Crabb, is office manager and Secretary-Treasurer.

PURPOSES OF BSRF: This is a non-profit organization of people who take an active interest in unusual happenings along the borderland between the visible and invisible worlds. In the words of the late Meade Layne, founder and director of BSRA from 1946 to 1959: "BSRA publications are scientific in approach but employ few technical expressions. They deal with significant phenomena which orthodox science cannot or will not investigate. For example: The Fortean falls of objects from the sky. Teleportation, Radiesthesia, PK Effects, Underground Races, Mysterious Disappearances, Occult and Psychic Phenomena, Photography of the Invisible, Nature of the Ethers and the problem of the Aeroforms (Flying Saucers). In the year 1946 BSRA obtained an interpretation of the phenomena which since has come to be known as the Etheric or 4-D interpretation, and which has not been radically altered since that time. This continues to be the only explanation which makes good science, sound metaphysics and common sense."

The chief present concern of the Foundation is to make this kind of unusual information available as a public service at reasonable cost. Headquarters acts as a receiving, coordinating and distributing center. An important part of the Director's work is to give recognition, understanding and encouragement to people who are having unusual experiences of the borderland type and/or are conducting research in any of the above fields. For consultation on borderland problems, or for Spiritual healing through prayer, write or phone 714-724-2043 for help or for an appointment. Donations and bequests toward Foundation research programs and expenses are welcome.

The 24-page list of BSRF publications is available from Headquarters for 50¢ in coin or stamps. This includes mimeo brochures on borderland subjects, tape recordings of Mr. Crabb's lectures and of members of the Inner Circle, talking through trance-medium Mark Probert. "MORE DEAFENING THAN ONE CAN CONCEIVE OF"

Adapted from an article by Florence A.
Fuller in the May 1918 "Theosophist Magazine"

PHNOM PENH (UPI) -- "The United States put an official end to the bombing of Cambodia today, closing out history's longest air war and a decade of U.S. combat in Indochina. . . during which 7.4 million tons of U.S. bombs were dropped on South Vietnam, North Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. . . ." (LA "Times", Aug. 15, 1973)

We dont have any first-hand reports of the effects of our bombing of the Indochinese from the Lower Astral plane -- the First Resurrection as it is called in Oahspe; but we do have this revealing description from the Rev. Douglas Price of the other-world results of the bombing and shelling of World War I; so it should do just as well.

Price was an Anglican priest in Australia. He passed on during World War I, a little less orthodox than most because he had done some reading in occult science, a rather sceptical review of the Theosophical material of the time. An article of his, "The Continent of Death" in a borderland journal of the time, "The Modernist", had caught the eyes of Miss Fuller. This presumably established a mental link with Price, an "aka thread" as the Hawaiian Kahunas call it, which served as a connection when Florence and a friend decided to experiment with Astral contact. They used "rod and board", whatever that is.

A: "Is anyone wishing to speak?"

Ans: "Yes, Douglas Price."

A: "Is it really you?"

D.P: "Yes, try to do this scientifically."

A: "I am glad that you are able to speak to us."

D.P: "Not more glad than I am. Tell _____ she need not worry. I have seen Leadbeater."

A: "Has he been of help to you?"

D.P: "Yes."

A: "Are things as you expected?"

D.P: "No, better. I am not working yet. You will make it easier for me if you try to understand what astral work is. I am doing things in my own way now, writing and speaking in a place here -- not as I used to do but free to say all I know."

A: "But you said just now that you are not working yet!"

D.P: "Let me tell you in my own way. I saw Leadbeater and he told me that I should work with him."

This should not be surprising. Charles W. Leadbeater had been an Anglican priest also, before he threw himself full time in to the work of the Theosophical Society. He and Annie Besant could be said to have "graduated with honors" from H.P. Blavatsky's Esoteric Section of the Society in London of the 1880s and 90s. So at this time in World War I Leadbeater and Besant, in addition to their physical plane activities, were working in full consciousness as Invisible Helpers on the Astral plane -- when they could spare the time and energy.

MORE WORK THAN WE CAN DO

A: "Will you be glad to do that?"

D.P: "Yes, I like him. I never can rest while there is work to be done, more work than we can do. If I can say all to you that I wish, I will write a book and tell what I have learned here. . . I am so glad to be free from my body, I wish I could tell you what it is like. . . Heaven is a state of consciousness which I have not yet reached, but I feel sure it is there.

"I rise in my body to places that some would call Heaven, but there is no Deity that I have seen. I look for some sign of His presence but it is not there. Remember, such things I do not wish to dogmatize about. Since I have been here I have seen more people of your line of thought than I have done in my life on earth.

"I see the war victims, red with blood, being carried by helpers to places of rest, and gently led to better thoughts. Messengers take all to their respective places, whether German or British. Many of those still in physical life come here at night to help while their bodies are asleep. You see people, sometimes, whom you would not credit with such kindly feeling in their everyday life, trying to lift wounded men on their shoulders and put them in safety, where they will be taught and helped. Theosophists are busy always teaching them. I never had such an opportunity before to see the thoughts of men; they terrify me!"

A: "Have you heard anything of the Masters, of whom we are told in the T.S.?"

D.P: "I have touched the hem of Their garment. I saw the wondrous glory in Their faces. What I heard Them say I cannot tell you. It was as if the whole world glowed with light when They passed.

"I will continue what I was saying about Heaven. It is a state of bliss to those who believe in a personal Deity; to others like myself, Heaven is a far-off land. In the place where I am, no such bliss is experienced. Love for one's fellow men is here in plenty; such love as makes a man lay down his life for his friend. I see

To do this, is to me a Heaven of my own making. I see men, every day living in a hell of wounds and torture such as only devils could invent, but helpers come to them in shining robes of white. They lift them gently and place them in places of rest. I know more of this life every day. It opens up new wonders to me, such as I never dreamt of. I can have very conscious knowledge of where I am living. I see all around me those in whom I once did not believe, such as I told you of before; they are more real to me daily. I see that they have in their hearts a great love for Humanity. I see, also, that they have made no distinction of race; all alike are helped. Is this clear to you?"

To paraphrase Price's observation of the Shining Ones and their impersonal help and care of the war dead in 1917, these Invisible Helpers make no distinction between the invading Americans and the Vietnamese of the 1970s.

"NOT ONE OF THE SAVED"

"Death is not such a divider. It only makes one see round what one did not believe in before. I tried to imagine a Heaven world. I cannot do so. Clearly, I am not one of the saved! I just seem to go on as I did when in my body. As I said before, I see more Theosophical work here than I ever did before. I saw those of whom I told you, in their work, in a place called Grandcourt, in France. Each of them was carrying a body in his arms, every one of whom was shot to pieces -- legs and arms lying in confused heaps, horrible beyond description; yet there I saw the helpers and Shining Ones who lifted these maimed things, scarcely human in their mutilated bodies, blown out of all appearance of humanity.

"I saw them leave these writhing forms and gradually take on human shape again, the helpers showing them how to do it. They they are taken to places of quiet, until they regain some item of consciousness. In such a world of agony and pain the helpers work, all through the hours of deadly thunder of guns, more deafening than any one can conceive of. All this is my daily life here. Here I see Leadbeater building bodies, forms similar to those they had when death found them. In these he takes them to some one who will guard them, until he can show them how to move about. I also see still more glorious and wonderful figures here; they also help the poor victims in this way, telling them how much their efforts have done for themselves, as well as for the cause of right. The Germans, as well as our own, have given their life-blood freely in what they believe to be the cause of right -- but quite wrongly, as I see now. Yet it can be counted to them for righteousness. Ever in this cruel struggle Germany has lied and deceived, but there is no blame attached to the soldiers for carrying out their brutal work. Their poor minds have been obsessed with the idea of fiendish cruelty. . . I work as I have never worked before. I love to help in lifting those poor, wounded ones; I carry them as I see others do, and lay them at His feet who helps us all."

A: "Can you explain?"

TO BE ABLE TO STAND BEFORE THE GREAT LORD

D.P: "I lay them, as I say, at the feet of a Shining One, where Leadbeater is also. I know not why I do so, because I never believed much in your Masters before I quitted my body. I now realise that They are real, but also human beings as we are, though far more advanced, as well as being more powerful to help. When I tell you that I see Them, you must not suppose that I presume to come near Them; I could not if I would. I seldom look when I lay my burden down."

There is the suggestion here that the Rev. Price, in the actual presence of one of the Great Ones, is overwhelmed by a sense of unworthiness. Our strong feelings of guilt and shame make it almost impossible for us to face the Light. D.K. touches on this problem in his "Letters On Occult Meditation" to Alice Bailey. It is in the section on The Masters, where D.K. talks of the "immediate goal" of the Teacher in preparing his pupil "for the first initiation. This takes place when the capacity of the pupil to hold a certain rate of vibration for a specific length of time is developed. . . This is accomplished by a gradual raising of the vibration at few and stated intervals, and later more frequently until the pupil can vibrate with greater ease and comfort to the vibration of his Master for an ever increasing length of time.

"When he can hold if for this period (the length of which is of course one of the secrets of the first initiation) he is subjected to the application of a still higher vibration which -- when held -- will enable him to stand before the Great Lord for a length of time sufficient to permit of the initiation ceremony. . . "

Obviously, when Price brought a shattered Astral form to the feet of a Shining One, he was subjecting himself to higher vibrations at stated intervals. In Oahspe we read that souls find it difficult to rise out of the earthbound conditions of the first resurrection to the second and third heavens or resurrections because they cannot stand the Light.

D.P: "I never take those of unclean life to Him. I leave them to some other helper, who still helps them. In their boeies is some kind of matter that I do not understand. Where I stand I see lost homes and desecrated hearths in what was once a fair village of France (now Vietnam and Cambodia), smiling and happy only a few years ago; while now it is a heap of ashes and utter ruin."

A: "Will you tell us how you see what is going on in France, when you are standing here?"

D.P: "Quite easily. I think of France, and the whole panorama comes before me."

A: "Do you think you are correct?"

D.P: "Yes, you can ask Leadbeater. As I keep with those who know what is being done, I can help more. I let myself be carried in my astral body to a place that I have never visited before. I saw there Theosophists working as hard as they could. I saw many other people working too, but the Theosophist's knowledge of his astral body made him of greater service in getting about."

THE WALLS CAME CRASHING DOWN

"A little more I must tell you. It is a child's story. In one of the houses where I sleep, little Jeanne was also sleeping. She woke very hurriedly. I saw a big shell coming and tried to tell her, but Jeanne was in her physical body and I could make her hear. I lifted -- as well as I could -- a heavy chair and pushed it to her side, but no use!

"Still she did not stir, being somehow paralysed with fright, the noise of bursting shells drowning all else. At last she caught hold of the chair and crept silently under it. The walls came crashing down and the roof also, but that tiny child remained. I tried to lift her but could not. Suddenly a shining light appeared near the place where she was entombed, and out of that light a child like herself came and crept into the ruins, where he found her safe and well, but frightened of course, and very hungry. The boy led her to a place nearby, where she was picked up by some of the Red Cross people or other service corps. When I saw her again she was none the worse for her experience with the guns."

F: "I wonder who the boy was?"

D.P: "I do not know the boy, but he is often here."

A: "Do you mind telling us the name of the village?"

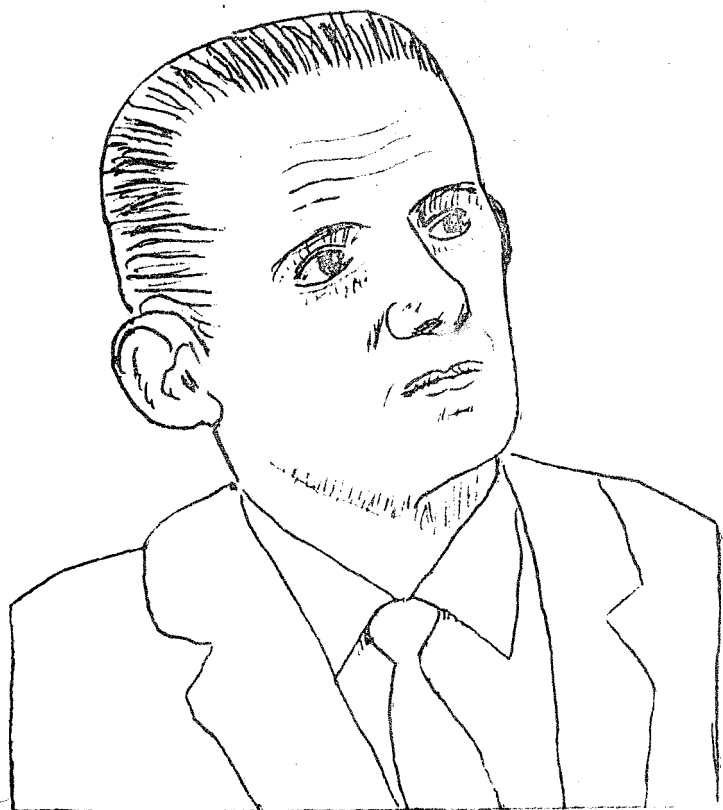

D.P: "Somewhere on the Somme."

A: "That is enough for tonight."

(To be concluded in the next Journal.)

THE MAN WHO READS NATURE'S SECRET SIGNALS

By Thorn Bacon, from "National Wildlife"

CLEVE BACKSTER

Suppose you were to be told that the philodendron plant resting on the window sill above your kitchen sink screams silently when you break a breakfast egg in the frying pan, or that the potted drecena on the sun porch grows apprehensive whenever your dog goes by?

Finally, would you dare believe that when you accidentally cut your finger the dying cells in the drying blood transmit signals to the philodendron, the drecena and to the parsley in your refrigerator?

Provocative questions? Indeed yes, but one which are being seriously, soberly and quietly investigated by scientists at several major American universities as a result of some bizarre findings by the Backster Research Foundation of New York City.

The object: To discover if there is an unknown communication link between the cells of plants and animals through which distress signals are transmitted that broadcast threats against any member of the living community!

These staggering implications were reported in an abstract published on Sept. 7, 1967, by Cleve Backster, a former interrogation specialist with the Central Intelligence Agency, who operates a New York school for training law enforcement officers in the techniques of using the polygraph -- commonly known as the lie detector.

Backster was one of a four-man panel of experts called to testify before the 1964 Congressional Hearings on the Use of Polygraphs by the Federal Government. Following duty with the CIA as an interrogation specialist, he became director of the Leonarde Keeler Polygraph Institute in Chicago. Since 1949, he has acted as a consultant to almost every government agency which makes use of the polygraph. He introduced the Backster Zone Comparison polygraph procedure, which is the technique standard at the U.S. Army Polygraph School.

CHANGED HIS LIFE

Teaching polygraph, however, became a secondary interest to Backster on a February morning in 1966 when he made the discovery which changed his life. These are the words he used to describe what happened in his laboratory that morning:

"Immediately following the watering of an office plant, I wondered if it would be possible to measure the rate at which water rose in a plant from the root area into the leaf. I chose the psychogalvanic reflex (PGR) index as a possible means of measuring the rate of moisture ascent. The pair of PGR electrodes could be attached to a leaf of the plant. Hopefully, by using the Wheatstone bridge circuitry involved, I could measure the increase in the plant leaf's moisture content onto the polygraph tape.

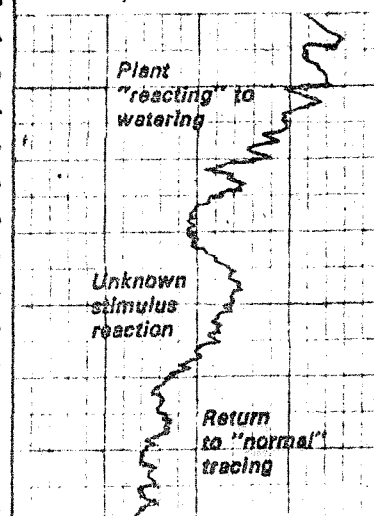

"Deciding to pursue the idea, I placed a psychogalvanic reflex electrode on each side of the same leaf of the nearby Dracena Massangeana plant with a rubber band. The plant leaf was successfully balanced into the PGR circuitry, its electrical resistance falling within the resistance limit of the instrumentation.

"Contrary to my expectation, from the outset the plant leaf tracing exhibited a downward trend. Then, after about one minute of chart time, the tracing exhibited a contour similar to a PGR reaction pattern typically demonstrated by a human subject experiencing an emotional stimulation of short duration. Even though its tracing had failed to reflect the effect of the watering, the plant leaf did offer itself as a possibly unique source of data.

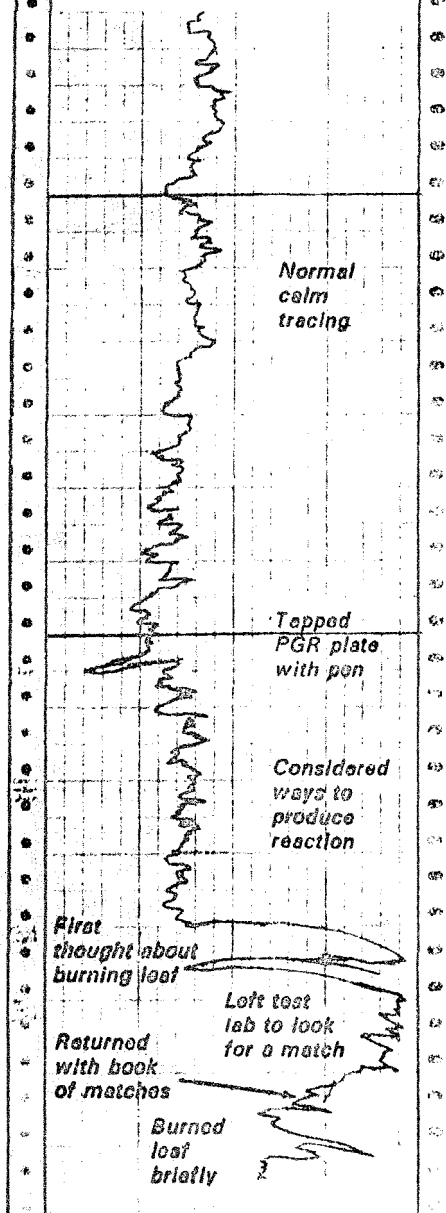

"As I watched the PGR tracing continue, I wondered if there could be a similarity between the tracing from the plant and a PGR tracing from a human. I decided to try to apply some equivalent to the threat-to-well-being principle, a well-established method of triggering emotionality in humans. I first tried to arouse the plant by immersing a plant leaf in a cup of hot coffee. But there was no measurable reaction.

"After a nine minute interim, I decided to obtain a match and burn the plant leaf being tested. At the instant of this decision, at thirteen minutes fifty-five seconds of chart time, there was a dramatic change in the PGR tracing pattern in the form of an abrupt and prolonged upward sweep of the recording pen. I had not moved, or touched the plant, so the timing of the PGR pen activity suggested to me that the tracing might have been triggered by the mere thought of the harm I intended to inflict upon the plant. This occurrence, if repeatable, would tend to indicate the possible existence of some undefined perception in the plant."

Below, Backster's first reading from a plant, a dracena massangeana being watered on February 2, 1966. The upward tracing in the center of the chart was his first suggestion of some type of arousal reaction from the plant.

Further tracing from Backster's experiment of February 2, 1966, showing his first deliberate stimulation from a test plant. Backster regards it as significant that his intent to harm the plant produced a stronger reaction (anxiety?) than the actual burning.

THE HARD, GOLD FACT OF TELEPATHY

Backster began to explore how the suffering of other species affected his plants. He bought some brine shrimp, ordinarily used as live food for tropical fish, and killed them by dumping them into boiling water. As he saw the polygraph recording needle leap frantically, he was awed by a startling and apparently new concept: "Could it be that when cell life dies, it broadcasts a signal to other living cells?" If this was so, he would have to completely automate his experiments, removing all human elements which might consciously or unconsciously contaminate the results.

In the years since Backster has spent many thousands of dollars in transforming his offices into a space-assembly of mechanized shrimp-dumping dishes, a sophisticated electronic randomizer and programmer circuitry and multiple PGR monitoring devices. But the results continue to point to a capability for perception in all living cells -- a perception that Backster calls primary. I asked him for more details.

Q: What do you mean by primary?

A: I mean primary in the sense that this perception applies to all cells that we have monitored, without regard to their assigned biological function.

Q: What types of cells have you tested?

A: We have found this same phenomenon in the amoeba, the paramecium, and other single-celled organisms, in fact, in every kind of cell we have tested: fresh fruits and vegetables, mold cultures, yeasts, scrapings from the roof of the mouth of a human, blood samples, even spermatozoa.

Q: Do you mean that all of these cells have a sensing capacity?

A: It seems so. Incidentally, we have tried unsuccessfully to block whatever signal is being received by using a Faraday screen, and even lead-lined containers. Still the communication continues. It seems that the signal may not even fall within our electro-dynamic spectrum. If not, this would certainly have profound implications.

Q: What kind of a signal is it?

A: I can answer your question better by telling you what we think the signal is not. We know it is not within the different known frequencies, AM, FM, or any form of signal which we can shield by ordinary means. Distance seems to impose no limitation. For example, we are conducting research that would tend to indicate that this signal can traverse hundreds of miles.

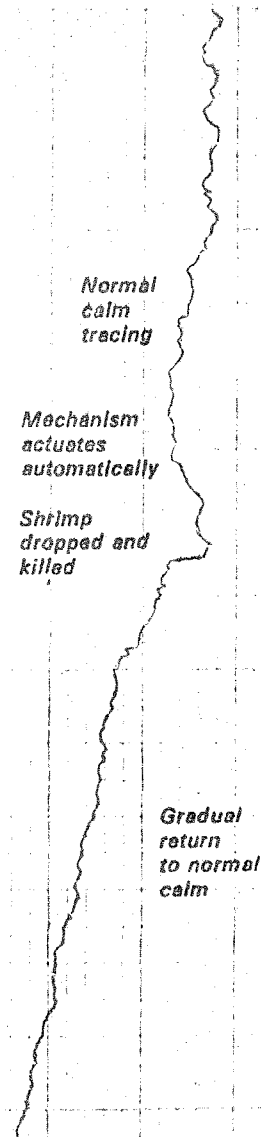

Q: Are plants attuned to stress?

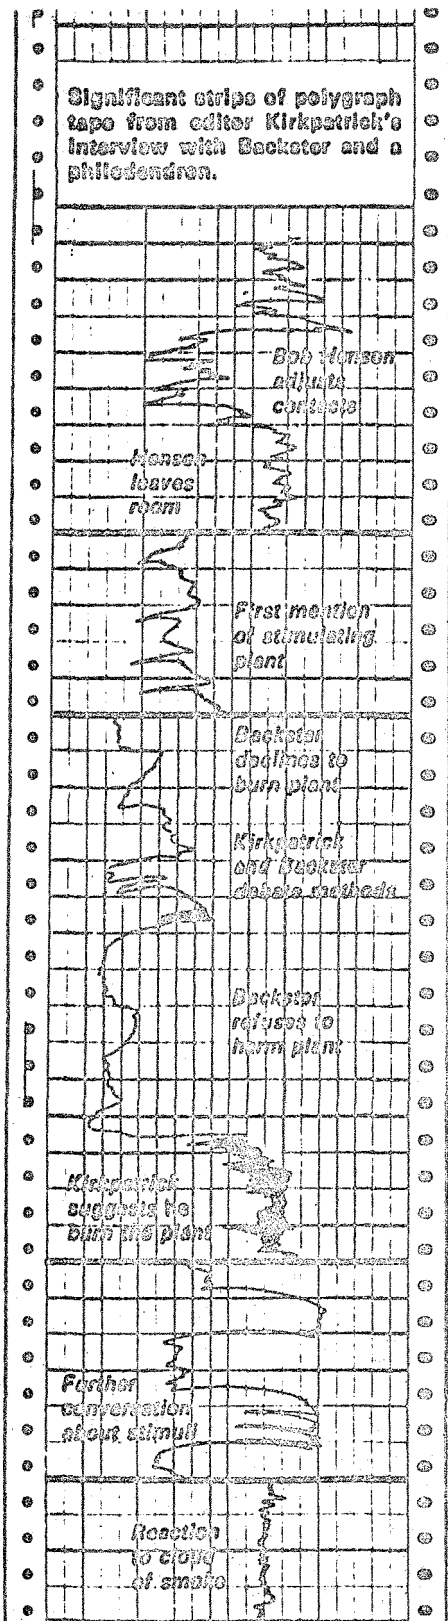

A: Perhaps. I used to have a Doberman Pincher in my office. He slept in the backroom where I had an electric timer hooked to a loud pulsating alarm, which was located directly above his bed. Actuation of the timing mechanism was accompanied by a barely audible click which preceded the alarm by approximately five seconds. The dog would invariably hear the click, and would leave the room before the bell, which he disliked intensely, started to ring. Although in a different room, with the plants, I knew exactly when the dog was leaving his room, even though I could not hear the click, because the plants acknowledged his movements by showing reaction coincidental to the click, reflecting the Doberman's anxiety.

Q: In the final analysis, aren't you saying that we must reassess our definitions of sensory perception and intelligence?

A: Who can say at this point? There are certainly implications here that could have profound effects on those concepts. Our observations show that the signal leaps across distances, as I said before. I have been as far away as New Jersey -- about 15 miles from Manhattan -- and have merely thought about returning to my office, only to learn when I returned that at the precise moment I had had the thought -- checked against a stop watch -- there was a coincidental reaction by the plants to the thought of coming back. Relief? Welcome? We aren't sure, but evidence indicates something like relief. It isn't fear.

PLANTS HAVE EMOTIONS

The trend of Backster's research results does indeed embrace profound implications. Do plants have emotions? Do they make strange signals of awareness beyond our own abilities to comprehend? It seems so. Personally, I cannot imagine a world so dull, so satiated that it should reject out of hand arresting new ideas which may be as old as the first amino acid in the chain of life on our earth. Inexplicable has never meant miraculous. Nor does it necessarily mean spiritual. In this case it may simply prove to mean another extension of our natural laws.

Let me leave you to ponder a question Backster asked me. Many hunters have observed that game animals somehow sense the exact moment of the opening of the hunting season. We can perhaps ascribe this to the noise of the first gunshots. But, how can we explain the similar observation of game's apparent awareness of the exact moment of the season's close? Cleve Backster may be approaching the answer to that question, and a lot of others.

The editors of "National Wildlife" were as doubtful as you may be after reading Thorn Bacon's account of Backster's Phenomenon (now often called "The Backster Effect"), so we visited and photographed him in his offices, just off Times Square in New York City.

We found a quiet, polite, serious and successful student of the psychology of interrogation (and of occult philosophy as well! In his lectures Backster hints broadly at Guidance in his work.) He works almost full time on the exploration of his discovery in an office cluttered with extremely sophisticated electronic gear and decorated with thumbtacked records of plant -- and other cell life -- reactions. He showed us the original tape from his first discovery of the phenomenon, and yard after yard of tapes from succeeding experiments. One thing impressed us immediately: First, Cleve Backster is not some kind of a nut. He really knows his business, and is pursuing his investigations with great care to avoid any charge of criticism from the doubting scientific community, though he admits that seems inevitable.

As we talked, Backster set up his specially modified polygraph with a fairly ordinary philodendron leaf clamped in position for reaching the psychogalvanic reflex index. He mentioned that he no longer handles his plants with anything but great care, since they seem to be attached to him as their owner and caretaker. When a plant must be handled or stimulated to produce a reaction, that is done by his assistant, Bob Henson, who "plays the heavy".

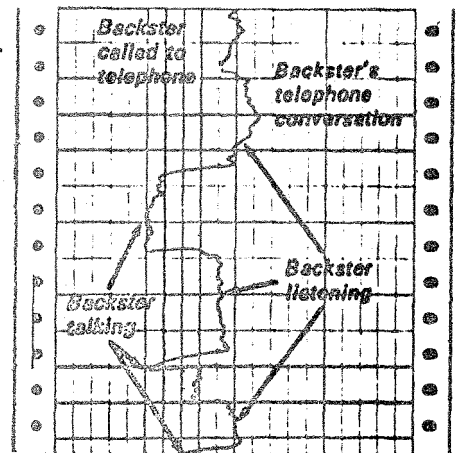

As we sat chatting, the pen traced a graph of normal repose for the plant, until Bob walked into the room. The graph suddenly turned to one of agitation, and bobbed markedly until he left. Then it calmed down again to a normal tracing.

Later, we talked about ways to stimulate the plant for a photograph, and Backster explained that he preferred not to "hurt" the plant. I remarked that perhaps I could do it, and reached for a match, watching in astonishment as the plant produced a violently agitated reaction even as I began to speak.

Still later, the plant's readings became calmer and calmer, and Backster explained that after an extended time, they seemed to become accustomed to stimuli and their reactions became less marked. At that point I blew a cloud of cigarette smoke over the plant without warning, and it produced a jagged little graph that Backster didn't try to interpret but which I proclaimed to be a reaction of annoyance.

While George Harrison was shooting the accompanying photographs Backster suddenly asked him if anything was wrong; the plant was showing something like a sympathetic reaction to consternation, but was not being stimulated in any way. George admitted that he had just discovered that one lens was not working properly, and had been worrying about the photographs he had already made.

Altogether, we ran the machine on that plant for two hours, and produced a dozen very interesting reactions, some of which Backster recognized (though he is very reluctant to try to interpret them in human terms) and some others that made no particular sense at all, like the up-and-down reading yielded from a telephone conversation Backster held. . . SELF HYPNOSIS

The Shortest Route to Getting What You Want out of Life

by Charles Rhoads

In this lecture given for Parastudy in 1971, Charles Rhoads shares with us some of his experiences at the New Age Center in Oklahoma City. His three major fields of interest are ESP, Hypnosis, and Healing. His work with Hypnosis has acquainted him with just about every kind of problem that can be encountered.

Self hypnosis by means of a suggestion is a way of getting quickly into the subconscious mind. It can be done by positive thinking. Many areas of study are associated with positive thinking - the law of desire, for example. Whatever you truly desire you can have. You don't have to worry about money. The following incident illustrates the law of desire in action.

A young couple living in El Paso, Texas, went to a lecture one night and for the first time heard about the law of desire. Whatever you desire and think about enough must become a reality for you. They went home, talked it over, and wondered how they could put this law to a test. The young man was an architect, and although his wife had studied interior decorating in college, she did nothing other than keep house.

After thinking about this law of desire for a couple of weeks they came up with an idea that would pool their talents. They decided they would plan their dream house, and if the law worked, this dream house would have to manifest for them. When you visualize something to the last detail and make up your mind this is it - that this is what you want and you can't find anything you would like to change - shortly thereafter in God's good time this is going to manifest in your life.

So they started on the plans. He outlined the rooms, and she with her colored pencils put in the furniture, rugs, and pictures on the walls. They decided to make the house large enough to accommodate a nice sized family. They didn't skimp on anything. Three-car garage, swimming pool, tennis court, and the works. After all, it was a DREAM house!

More than a year was spent completing these plans. One rainy winter night they spread all their plans out around the room on tables, on the floor. And as they looked at their dream house they realized they had reached the point where they couldn't think of a single thing to change. This was IT. Their perfect conception of a dream house. At this point there was a knock on the front door. An elderly gentleman stood there in the rain. He said, "I'm looking for the Smiths who live next door." The young man replied, "I'm sorry, they are in Florida on a week's vacation. But come in, if you will."

The stranger said he would have to call a cab, and he would appreciate stepping inside. They told him to warm himself at the fire. The young lady went to the kitchen to make him a pot of tea, and while he was standing there with his back to the fire he began to notice all the plans lying around the room. He got curious and he said, "Young man, what's all this about?" The young man, being a bit bashful hesitated a bit trying to find the right words. He finally explained about the lecture he and his wife had attended which had resulted in the plans for the dream house they had conceived. The visitor asked if he could examine the plans a bit further, and they told him to go ahead. He spent about an hour making the rounds, looking at the different rooms, the landscaping outside, and he kept nodding his head as though in agreement with what he was seeing.

When he had finished he pulled out his card and said, "I forgot to introduce myself. I'm Mr. Brown from Baltimore. I like what I see here, and by sheer coincidence I'm a builder. I would like to make you youngsters a proposition. If you would come to Baltimore, and you, young man, design my houses, and you, young lady, furnish those houses, after signing a three-year contract with me I will pay you both a salary, and I will build you this house and give it to you free!"

And they did and he did. So you see, you don't have to worry about where the money is coming from. All your subconscious mind has to know is that you WANT whatever it is you want.

In dealing with hypnosis, it is necessary to be very careful what is implanted in other people's minds. Once the subconscious gets hold of an idea the chances are that the idea is going to grow and manifest in that person's life. Much of the hypnosis work at our Center is done with children, in the areas of stuttering and stammering - youngsters who cannot seem to get interested in school. As we move on up into High School and college areas our main concentration is on what we call a photographic mind and a perfect memory. We implant into the subconscious mind of the student the suggestion that everything he reads, sees, or hears will store itself at the top of his mind in such a way that it will be subject to total and immediate recall any time that information is needed. With combined prayer we ask that lines of communication be built from the eyes and ears to a new block of memory cells at the top of the head; also that lines of communication from every part of the student's memory will be built up to this block of memory cells that contain all information the student has ever studied, and is to be subject to total and immediate recall.

About three years ago we had a young student from Edmund, Oklahoma. This youngster was failing in three subjects. At the end of the semester, after using this suggestion and self hypnosis at home he was able to bring each subject up to a straight A. He developed a better photographic mind and a more perfect memory than the average person is able to develop. He would only have to read a question on his test, close his eyes, and the whole page the answer was on would immediately be reprinted in front of his mind's eye. This is unusual in this area. But other students have told me that similar things have happened.

We had one student from the FAA Center. This is a government project concerning Civil Aviation in Oklahoma City where once a year all the control operators are brought up to date on new methods and techniques and equipment. This student had some buddies from the FAA Center who were getting ready to take a test. Two out of eight boys agreed to let Ken work with them on this photographic-mind-perfect-memory suggestion. After working with them several times he was sure this "perfect memory" had reached a workable level for them. On the day of the test all eight boys felt they had passed with flying colors. But when the grades came back it was discovered that the two boys he had worked with were the only ones who had passed the test. When the national grades came down from Washington, out of 870 boys who took the test these two boys were number one and number two in the nation, gradewise. So we know this photographic-mind-perfect-memory suggestion works. We use it where salesmen are concerned - people who need to remember new texts in connection with new equipment. When a salesman has a bad memory for names and faces we teach him how to recognize and call by name people he has met in the past. Most of the salesmen find this a big asset.

The big problem with self-hypnosis is that none of the subjects ever think they are asleep. In reading books about hypnosis you may be in a hypnotic state, but because you can still hear and think, you do not believe you are really hypnotized. It is hard for the average individual to understand that self-hypnosis and natural sleep are two different states of consciousness - as different as day and night. You tend to think that self-hypnosis is very much like the sleep state you enter into at night. But this is not so. Even when you are in the deep catatonic state you still hear everything that is going on. And for this reason you do not think you are under hypnosis. All hypnosis is self-hypnosis. If you allow someone you trust to put you under, give yourself the suggestion that your leg is getting heavy, etc. when you get to the point where you can't lift it then you are under hypnosis. You are not under anybody's power, and nothing happens unless you let it happen. There is no way you can hurt yourself with self-hypnosis except in those instances of projection into another realm which might be so peaceful and attractive that you want to stay there. You can stay there as long as the body is awake, but once it drops into a natural sleep state you will come back whether you want to or not. This is roughly the same as astral projection. Here is an example of astral projection:

Two years ago a student of mine who owns a drug store began hypnotizing his hired help as a sort of standard procedure. Before he hired someone he would put him or her under hypnosis and ask rather pointed questions such as: "Are you honest?" After working with many of these youngsters he found that some were able to tune in to certain people he knew and pick up what was physically wrong with them. As he had prescriptions coming over his counter every day he knew from these prescriptions approximately what was wrong with the person. So it wasn't hard for him to pick out a name on a prescription at random and send someone (astrally) out to this address. Then, knowing what was wrong, he could quickly ascertain whether or not the right information was being picked up.

One girl whom he hypnotized was given the suggestion to "travel" to a certain house and check on the gentleman living there and "see what you can find wrong with him." The first thing she reported was that he was having hot flashes. She was told once more to check on the gentleman of the house - apparently hot flashes are supposed to be limited to the female sex. But she insisted that he was having hot flashes. The next thing she said was, "He is afraid, or very fearful, that he has cancer." The hypnotist said, "I think you must be at the wrong house. Check him again and see if you can find anything else wrong with him." On the third try she came up with an ailment in the area of the stomach that the hypnotist was trying to get her to say. But just to be sure, he said, "Run out into the back yard and see if you can find any pets there." He knew this man had two Doberman Pinschers he was very proud of. This would be a good way to determine whether she was at the right house or not. The girl said, "No, I don't see anything." He told her to look thoroughly - behind the bushes, around the garage. Finally she found a dog out behind the garage, a bulldog. He said, "Oh no, I know you're at the wrong house. But look around once more and see if you can find any other dogs." Finally around the side of the house beside one of the bushes she found an Airedale. He shook his head and said, "Come on back. You're at the wrong house."

The next day when the gentleman came in to pick up a prescription the druggist said, "Hey, old friend, how are the Doberman Pinschers doing?" The man replied, "Somebody poisoned those dogs a month ago. Now I've got a Bulldog and an Airedale." So Mickey said, "May I ask you something? Are you afraid you have cancer?" The customer, very surprised, exclaimed, "How in the world did you ever know that?" Mickey replied, "Never mind, I've got another question. Do you have hot flashes? The man, overcome with amazement, said, "I don't know where you're getting your information, but that's right." The druggist never did tell the man how he was getting his information.

One of the girls we work with in hypnosis reports that three "doctors" appear to her, allegedly spirit physicians. One is an X-ray technician; one an ex-medical doctor who can go around and give people shots but they seem to get better. The third person is a sort of handyman. If, for example, something is wrong with somebody's knee, one of the doctors will run over and take an X-ray of the knee and hold it up for Polly to see. He'll point to a certain area in the knee. And from her years as a Lab assistant she is able to tell from where he is pointing what is wrong there. She has been able to pinpoint any number of bad knees, elbows, etc. Sometimes the doctors will tell her what the person can do about it in order to get relief. This sounds like prescribing, but we don't do that at the New Age Center. We make recommendations, and if somebody wants to follow them, all right.

We also work in the area of hypnotic age regression. I hypnotize the person. Then after deepening him and getting the conscious mind set aside I go into the subconscious and tell him to go back in time to age sixteen and describe to me what he sees himself doing. I must watch the subject and be sure he doesn't get a bad reaction. This can be headed off by telling him to recall a happy time during the sixteenth year. Then I take him back to the age of six and I have him describe something that is happening to him then. After that I take him back to the very earliest thing he can remember.

I have had people describe to me how rough the bedcovers were at the age of one, how they would chew on the edge of their crib. It might be that someone told them that at a later date and they were remembering it. Then I tell the subjects they will keep getting younger and will be aware of being in their mother's womb. Surprisingly enough, they can find themselves there. They may be floating, it may be dark, it may be warm, they may be aware of the mood their mother is in, they may not. But they are aware of a lot more than you think they are aware of as consciousness in the womb.

Then I tell them they will get still younger and will find themselves floating backwards through the darkness, through time, looking for a lighted area, and when they see such approaching they are to slow down and stop, and by walking into the lighted area they will soon see themselves in a past era. I don't let them identify with the body. I got jammed up a few times by letting them do that. They would experience the shock of an earthquake and they'd go through all sorts of contortions because of the pain. Other times they'd get shot in the back by an arrow in early America. And they would go through that anguish. So I don't let them get into the body. The only advantage of this is, for example, they can talk the language of the day. I can get the same amount of information and more by keeping them out of the body, telling them that when they see themselves they will recognize themselves and they will know that person's every thought and feeling; yet if something happens to that person it will not hurt. I ask them if they understand this, and when they say yes, I know they will not run into any situation that will create a traumatic effect. They can watch buildings fall on themselves, they can drown or anything else, and they can stand there and describe it and it doesn't bother them at all.

It is important, upon getting them into a previous life, to ask how old they are. Then I ask them what the most important thing is that they have learned out of life up to this point. Sometimes they will say, "Well, you have to work if you want to eat." Or it might be something stupendous. Then I will move them ahead five or ten years and always ask what is the most important thing at this point. When I feel I have gotten enough information I move them ahead to about three days before they think they're going to die. Usually at this point they can watch their own death scene, and being out of the body it doesn't hurt them any - just somebody dying and they could care less.

So far we have found no pattern as to the length of time a person is out of this third dimensional plane we are existing in here. We regressed one gentleman back 68 consecutive lives. He was out less than a year between this life and the one just before this. At one time he was out over 800 years. We were told in a channel session one night that karmic indebtedness determines the time of transition and the time you come back to earth. When 51% of the people whose lives you must touch enter the heavenly realm you start making plans to join them up there so you can make plans to meet them back down here. When 51% of the people get back down here and you're up there you make plans to come back.

In dealing with the idea, in hypnosis, that your subconscious mind will see to it that you get what you want I hereby emphasize that all heaven and hell can't stop it. I can give you an example. I am very interested in the healing field, and we have had some fine healings that have occurred through the people at the Center. A certain lady came to the Center in November of 1968. She had cancer, and there was no doubt of this because she had already been through nine cancer operations. She was begging the doctors for a tenth, and they refused on the grounds that any further operations would be useless. The cancer was spreading all over her body and she wouldn't live through another operation. She had already had all the cobalts she could take. I asked her if she would be willing to submit to hypnosis, as this is the quickest way to get into the subconscious and get it working on your problem, whatever it is. It may have to be reinforced. If you aren't a good subject some sort of reinforcement will be necessary, possibly have someone else do it for you. This particular lady had nothing to lose, and she made a very cooperative subject. I worked with her several times until December. At this point her husband moved her to Arizona. He thought the warm climate would be beneficial to her. In march I received a letter from this lady saying, "I do want to thank you. I have just been to the hospital. They have taken all kinds of X-rays, they have made every test they can make, and I don't have a cancer cell in my body."

With some cases I use spiritual healing and prayer therapy. When, for example, a man comes to me with an ulcer I place one hand on his back and the other hand where the ulcer is. Then I ask God to use me as a channel to set in motion within this area between my hands all the corrective, cleansing, and healing forces necessary to meet this person's every need, to do away with every negative cell in this area and bring it back into a perfect state of being. I watch the forces working, and I try to get the subject to visualize the area that is hurting as a dark area and I will hold my hands there as long as is necessary to make that dark spot disappear. When we see it disappear I KNOW the ulcerated condition is gone. It can happen in one session or it may take several. Set a period - three days or three weeks - and once the subconscious goes to work on it, it is only a matter of time before it does disappear.

I can guarantee that if you want something and let the subconscious mind know you want it, you can have it. It's like having Aladdin's lamp. Rub it. Get it into the subconscious. It may not come as fast as you like. But it's going to come if your subconscious mind knows that you want it.

Trinities, World Saviors, Their Modes of Action.

Trinitarianism is faound, open or latent, in many religions, the reason being that it a fact in Nature---the three elements being the Field and Repulsion and Attraction acting therein: the Sun threw off the nebulous Earth, then pulled it back, hence the orbit which in this relation is the Field. In Hinduism, Brahma the Creator, Vishnu the Preserver, Shiva the Destroyer (or Restorer, reducing used-up material to a condition for Brahma to re-use) all three being manifestations of the Undifferentiated Absolute, Brahman, from which all came, to which all return. (Refer back to Steps 1 and 2).

In Christianity, Father, Son, Holy Spirit, all one Substance yet mystically each separate ("one napkin, three folds").

In Judaism the Trinitarian element is not for the multitude, who are told, "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord", Deuteronomy 6:4. But "The Secret Doctrine in Israel", by A. E. Waite, discloses the Kabala, with major and minor Trinities, the chief being Kether the Crown, Chokmah the male Wisdom, Binah the Mother. All are manifestations of Ain Soph, the Undifferentiated Absolute.

Confining our study now to Christianity, the Father is Creator, the Son Redeemer, the Holy Spirit a personification of their combined effect. Step 14 tells how Man, having Freewill, is in great danger of self-destruction, but the Second Person (or Aspect) is concerned with preventing this. This Person, embodied as Christ, must act through physical means in order to keep human life going on the physical plane. For this He has at His command miraculous powers (refer back to Step 6). Max Heindel explains the method in "The Rosicrucian Cosmo-Conception", Chap. XV, "Christ and His Mission", particularly the Section "The Cleansing Blood". Thus Christ, Preserving Aspect of the great triune Solar Spirit, has emissaries of varying rank, race, and religion whom He sent to Earth from time to time when Freewill got too far out of hand. None were completely successful---this is the meaning of the parable of the wicked husbandmen, Matt. 22:33-39. Christ Himself entered a human body as Jesus in a final effort, which He culminated by suffering death in such a manner that His Blood, the fluid carrying human physical life, fell on the ground, thereby starting an instant chain reaction in the sub-atomic structure of the Earth, initiating a spiritual effect that postponed the day of decision, Step 14, giving humanity collectively a final chance.

That such an action is physically possible was shown by Tesla, the great electrical scientist, using the principle of resonance, like soldiers marching in step across a suspension bridge and swinging it to destruction. Finding by measurements that "the earth was literally alive with electrical vibrations" (this was in 1899; today we know them as electronic) in thunderstorms, he set out to find the limits that could be artificially reached. To so this he built a 200 foot mast topped by a copper ball on top of a Colorado mountain, from which a tremendous current supplied in increasing rhythm by a resonating coil would shoot artificial lightning. As was discovered, these electrical waves went out in widening circles over the Earth, then closing over the surface to the antipode of the mast, then up again to the mast, back and forth at about the speed of light, building up intensity and accompanied by terrific thunder, so that had it continued the Earth would have been in danger of shaking to pieces. Fortunately, the power source, a 300 horse-power dynamo, was destroyed in a few seconds. See Chapter Eleven, "Prodigal Genius, Life of Nikola Tesla", by John J. O'Neill, Tartan Books, Ives Washburn, Inc., 1944.

Return to Heindel for a synopsis of further details, pp. 407 et seq.:

When the Blood flowed the great Sun-spirit Christ was liberated from the physical vehicle of Jesus and found Himself in the Earth. . . in the twinkling of an eye He diffused His finer body over the planet and so has been able to work from within on the Earth and humanity. A tremendous wave of spiritual power, with earthquakes, and a flash of dazzling sunlight overwhelmed the Earth. All were dazzled by its brightness, so that the Sun appeared darkened; human sight gradually recovered in about three hours. The dead were seen, Matthew 27:45-53---actually the spiritual sight of the living was awakened to see the inhabitants of the spirit world. The regenerative effect so violently inaugurated slowed down with the resistance of the physical globe and with the deadening effect of the collective human mind, so that after two thousand years it is questionable whether there are in the immediate future enough human of positive good will to carry the Earth and humanity past the turning point, or whether those of good will must be gathered into some other path of progress and the remainder allowed to regress and drift back to chaos, Step 14.

This is the separation of tares and wheat, of sheep and goats, Matthew 13:30; 25:32.

THE END.

NIXON'S POLICE STATE IN ACTION

"Psychic Joseph DeLouise sees another stock market crash coming and the U.S. government is trying to shut him up. The famous psychic -- who predicted correctly that the price of gold would double and the Dow-Jones Industrials would climb above 1000 -- now sees gold skyrocketing to more than $240 an ounce and the market plunging to below 750. The Securities Exchange Commission (SEC), which governs the nation's stock market activity, reacted to the Chicago psychic's predictions by warning him to stop commenting on 'stocks, bonds, the Dow-Jones averages or the price of gold' or he 'may face prosecution'. This item from the National "Tattler", June 24, 1973, verifies our observation in the last Journal, that Oracles who predict or reveal the clandestine operations of government are in extreme danger of persecution. The small investor who heeds DeLouise's warning may get out of the market before he can be taken by the Open Market operations of the Federal Reserve Wall Street axis.

INSPIRED BY THE DARK FORCES

COC On the Rise and Fall of Hitler's Third Reich Part XIV

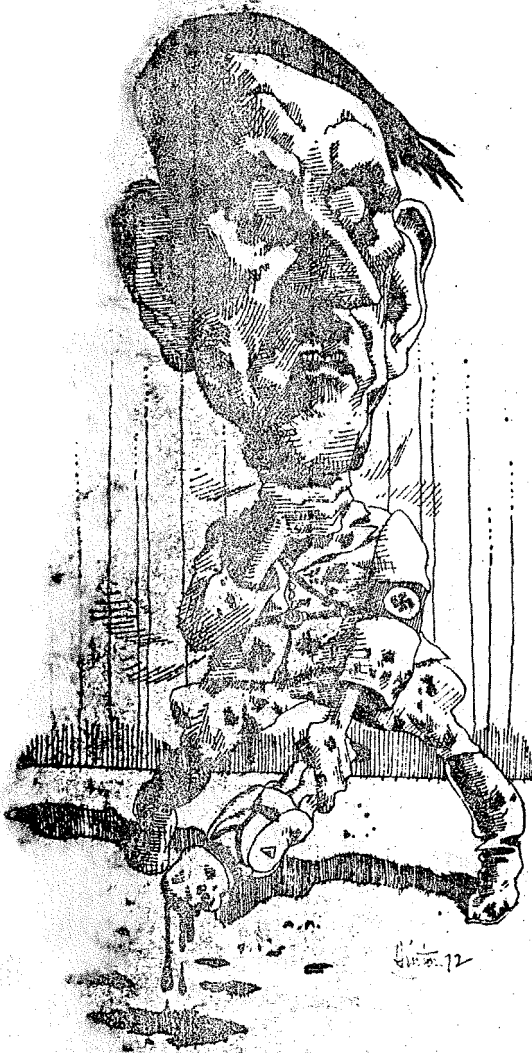

In her writings on Occult Science, Dion Fortune gives this sage advice to all students: Wherever there is fear and aberrated sex, there is black magick. In examining the life of Adolf Hitler we find both. Syphilis made him a eunuch at an early age. None of this aspect of Hitler's personal life is touched on in Pauwels and Bergier's book, "The Morning of the Magicians", because perhaps they were ignorant of it then.

Hitler's "fool", Putzi Hanfstaengl, now in his 80s, writes that his boss was impotent, incapable of normal sexual relations. "The result was that he transferred his sexual aggression into politics. He was taking out on blood and corpses what he couldn't do in bed."

But Hitler did have girlfriends, Eva Braun and Angelika Raubal. With them he could only have abnormal or aberrated sexual relations for emotional satisfaction. Autopsy of the suicide's body in the bunker in Berlin in 1943 indicated no testicles.

Hanfstaengle quotes a woman friend telling him that Eva Braun complained to her: "I am nothing but a prisoner. As a woman I get nothing from Hitler." His own impotence made of him a sexual vampire, a tool for drawing off the generative energies of his partners and victims. These energies were used by his elemental gods, the Qlippoth, to ensoul Hitler's thought-forms of the will-to-power.

Generative or sexual energies in normal intercourse are polarized. Each partner in the embrace absorbs the other's auric release; for the emotional-spiritual nourishment of each, a sacrament indeed! None of this is available for magickal operations, except the white magick of a successful marriage! This was of no interest to Adolf or to his guides on the Lower Astral plane, even though German women sent cradles and other gifts to Adolf, suggestive of their desire to see him happily married.

ADOLPH HITLER

Joe Alex Morris, Jr., Times staff writer, interviewed Hanfstaengl in Munich in June 1972. Putzi told Morris of one of Adolf's casual assignations, Gretl Slezak, furnished by Herr Goebbels, the Propaganda Minister -- one-quarter Hebrew by the way, but unknown to Hitler. "He took her off into a darkened room and Goebbels directed Hanfstaengl to play mood music on the piano. Hanfstaengl said he later asked Gretl how it went. 'She looked toward heaven and shrugged her shoulders'."

Early in his career Hitler fell in love with Angelika Raubal "a lush if lazy daughter of his half-sister. . . living in poverty with her mother in a Vienna slum apartment on the third floor of an old army barracks. . . The girl apparently was the only woman ever to satisfy Hitler's sexual needs. As a result he showered attention upon her and scandalized the party treasurer with his lavish outlays for her clothing at a time when the Nazi party didn't have much money".

Being a eunuch, Adolf couldn't satisfy Geli's need for sexual polarity in a normal way. All of his generative energies had to be preserved for the success of his magickal operations. Nevertheless, his need for intimate companionship produced such followup remarks as this from Geli (Angelika) to a friend, and relayed later to Putzi: "My uncle is a monster! No one can imagine what he expects of me."

PSYCHOLOGICAL PROFILE OF HITLER

Dr. Walter C. Langer and a team of psychiatrists later figured out just what, and why, Hitler demanded of his women partners. This was part of a psychological profile bought and paid for by the Office of Strategic Services in 1943. The American Command had to know the character and motivations of the German leader. That psycho-analysis is now available as "The Mind of Adolf Hitler: The Secret Wartime Report" by Walter C. Langer, Basic Books, $10.

"The inability to love (in a normal way), the confusion between sexuality and assault and between manliness and sadism were to be features of Hitler's personality which he imposed on Germany and Europe. . . Langer infers Hitler's sexual abnormality from his exaggerated pseudo-masculinity which he noted had 'all the earmarks of reaction-formation'. Hitler's lack of a testicle was not discovered until Russian pathologists performed an autopsy in 1945. On the basis of partial evidence Langer found that Hitler had the masochistic sexual perversion of having women urinate and defecate on him. This perversion has been corroborated by the painstaking postwar researches of Robert G.L. Waite. . . "

Other requirements of Geli were that she pose for pornographic drawings and paintings, by Hitler, the amateur artist. Hanfstaengl told Morris that the party treasurer had to "buy back from a black-mailer pictures Hitler had drawn of Geli".

Henry Ford, Sr. was one of the earliest millionaire supporters of the Nazis. I suppose the old mechanical wizard would turn over in his grave if he knew that his hard-earned American dollars had gone to finance such dirty political tricks in Europe!

Geli had to find satisfaction with other men, Hitler's chauffeur Emil Maurice, for instance. There were other casual liaisons which didn't bother Adolf too much, apparently, until she became pregnant by a Jewish house painter in Linz. She even wanted to marry him! This was too much. The lovers, Adolf and Geli, had a violent quarrel in her apartment the morning of Aug. 18, 1931. Later she was found dead with Hitler's pistol by her side. The helpful verdict of the Bavarian authorities was, suicide. But she had a broken nose and there were other bruises on her body. If her lover hadn't done it on the 18th during their quarrel, perhaps one of his faithful hatchetmen did it for him the next day. Hitler was at Nuremberg on party business and reacted with great shock at the news of Geli's violent end and rushed back to Munich. He succeeded in suppressing the usual demand for an autopsy of the girl's body and had her quietly buried in Vienna.

"For years afterward, Geli's room in a house on Prinzregensstrasse was kept a shrine, with fresh flowers provided daily. Hitler would go there and lock himself in for hours at a time, Hanfstaengl said."

ELEMENTAL MAGNETISM AND ITS SUBTLE USES

You can turn to Krafft-Ebbing for a detailed picture of aberrated sex in Central Europe of the 1920s and 30s. Among average people it's a matter of individual concern; but when these aberrations are found among the leaders of nations, it's a matter of national and international concern; for then it's a part of Black Magick and the charging of astral currents with human vitality to control the minds and hearts of millions of people! If the leader himself is ignorant of magick, he is led down the paths of sexual deviation by his black robed, white skinned -- or yellow skinned -- black hearted Controls from the Lower Astral plane. In Hitler's case there is little doubt that he was an avid student of the occult arts.

The follower of the Left-Hand Path adheres to this principle: "Evil, be Thou my Good!" Deliberately shutting himself off from the Light, he becomes a scavenger of used Life-force discharged as waste matter from his own and other living organisms, human and animal. The most powerful of these elemental sources of contaminated energy are seminal fluid and freshly shed blood -- thus the prevalence of sodomy and other deviate practices among the priesthoods, and of blood sacrifice in all of the degraded Christian and pagan religions. (To be continued in the next Journal.)

CLIPS, QUOTES & COMMENTS —

"TAKE MY NAME OFF YOUR MAILING LIST NOW!"

"Our Philosophy of Life is to so live in our thoughts, words, deeds and actions that we leave the world better for having lived in it. I had felt that you likewise had such ideals and that you had studied and accepted Higher Teaching. So I was much disappointed that you would publish such as the P.5-9 article, 'An Initiate At Work' (July-Aug Journal). Thoughts are things! Where your attention goes, your energy flows and your substance follows. No use sowing such seeds.

"Take my name off your mailing list now! My records show that my subscription ended in November and with an additional $10 donation, but I call it quits now. If you have felt such articles might increase your subscriptions, I ask that you learn your lesson. You should know the Law.: The Way to precipitation, levitation and the Ascension.

"We started as poor country kids, worked our way thru college, and by right thinking and pure living have attained Health, Wealth and Happiness -- and I mean all three! 'Nothing is too good to be true. Nothing is too wonderful to happen, and nothing is too good to last.' Think this over. You's for better living in the New Age!"

Thank you so much for your opinion, clearly and honestly spoken. Tell it like it is, as you see it. That's the way we try to edit the Journal; but, being on the Hermetic rather than the Mystic Path, we prefer to see things truly rather than to see them nicely. Let us remind our readers of the motto stated in the first Round Robin Journal we published under our own name in 1959: We are engaged in a search for the Truth; whatever that Truth might be; wherever that search might lead.

The fact that some Truths are shocking cannot deter us from searching for that Light which leads eventually to freedom from bondage to the flesh. The Mystic wants to flee the world and abandon it to the bastards. The Hermetic wants to bring the Light of God down to the physical plane to redeem it! Quite a difference. When that Light is released into the dark places of human minds and hearts, the revelations are shocking to the unawakened -- which is the great mass of mankind. So, all of our work is really a war against sleep. Jehoshua-Apollonius put it so well when he wrote: "For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted (redeemed), and I should heal them." Matthew 13:15.

Another great teacher of the Western Tradition put the same idea into drama and poetry in the play, "The Tempest". Sir Francis Bacon, writing under the pen name of William Shakespeare, uses one of the nice guys in the play, Gonzalo, to illustrate the point. In Act II, Scene I Gonzalo is not only physically asleep on the ground but also "asleep" to the plot on his life by Alonso.

Prospero, the leading character of the play, is a thinly disguised autobiographical portrait of Bacon as the philosopher-occultist, in control of himself and of the forces of Nature. He sends a liberated elemental sprite, Ariel, to sing in Alonso's inner ear and awaken him:

"While you here do snoring lie,
Open-eyed conspiracy
His time doth take.

If of life you keep a care,
Shake off slumber and beware.
Awake! Awake!"

Bacon deliberately made use of shocking material to keep his audience and readers awake. He makes the bald statement in his philosophical writings that "the stage must be drenched in blood" if the playwright would hold the interest and attention of his audience.

THE TRUTH OF CANCER CURE LEADS TO MEXICO

"My husband developed a lung infection over a long period of time. Not being inclined toward orthodox medical practice, he tried everything. Our experience at the Contreras Clinic, Tijuana Beach, Baja California, was very interesting and informative. We learned that Laetrile does not completely cure cancer but does bring the condition under control. The patient must then continue with maintenance dosage and special diet. A situation similar to insulin and diabetes.

"Most of the patients at the Clinic are terminal cancer victims and have had surgery, cobalt, radiation and chemotherapy. Some of the chemotherapy is similar to mustard gas causing loss of hair and loosening of teeth. With this type patient Laetrile helps for a while especially in the easing of pain; but the patient's resistance to a virus infection or some other ailment is very low; and they frequently succumb to the ailment but do not die of cancer! I know of three such cases where autopsies were performed and no cancer cells were found. The chances for restoration to health for these people are about one out of three.

"My husband tried everything including color therapy, Eeman screens, magnetic healing, vitamins, sun-bathing, breathing exercises, and of course spiritual healing. As to the patients (at the Contreras Clinic) who had not been worked over by the usual U. S. doctors, physically and financially, there is a good possibility of bringing the cancerous condition under control. Research by Dr. Ernst Krebs, the internationally recognized biochemist, and others, indicate that dormant cancer cells are always present in the body. Certain conditions cause these cells to become cancerous, such as a point of irritation; much depends on a properly functioning pancreas.

"Statistics indicate that the majority of lung cancer people have been heavy smokers. In tobacco smoke there are tars capable of damaging lung tissue. Apparently, if the individual has a well functioning pancreas, lung damage may not take place. This would account for the relatively few individuals who live to a ripe old age and continue smoking."

The target organ for disease in the body could also be indicated to some extent by the Sun sign in the natal horoscope. The lungs are part of the air system in the body. It doesn't seem likely a cancer-prone person with natal Sun in an Earth or Water sign would have cancer of the lungs.

"Eventually, my husband's lung filled with fluid and the pain was so severe we had to resort to medical treatment. According to the lung specialist, due to my husband's age, 73, the lung could not be removed. He was in the hospital for three weeks, with antibiotics and some surgery. I then took care of him at home for three months and was with him at the last moment. No traditional funeral, just a simple memorial service at a Masonic Lodge. Cremation and ashes strewn over the ocean from a small plane. I miss his companionship more than words can say. However, we enjoyed forty years of a very happy marriage, which is more than some people get out of life.

"He had made up a number of astrological charts, which indicated adverse aspects hovering over him. My chart for 1973 indicated bereavement. I also asked for a message from Florence Becker. She was an outstanding medium for years in San Francisco. I had been greatly concerned because we had not gone to the Phillipines for help from the psychic surgeons. Mrs. Becker replied that nothing could have kept him on the earth plane any longer. His life cycle was completed and he is adjusting very easily to life in the Summerland."

NUTRITIONIST ADELLE DAVIS ON SICK LIST

"I received today your 'Koch Remedy' brochure and the one on 'Tulku, The Tibetan Initiation'. I've enjoyed everything you've sent me. When I picked up the Koch Remedy book it opened to pg. 52 and Adelle Davis' name stared me in the face. Have you heard the news that Adelle has cancer? It was diagnosed June 15th, Multiple Myeloma (bone cancer) and leukemia. Dr. Ernst Krebs, Jr. (biochemist of San Francisco) is working on the case with Adelle's doctor, Dr. Virginia Livingston of San Diego. They're using Laetrile (amygdalin, B17) of course; and I would say, hopefully, they are using dietary measures.

"You may or may not know that Adelle has always been a meat eater and a milk drinker -- eats liver for breakfast -- and recommends these items in her books, and stresses high protein. When Dr. L. found cancer she immediately contacted Mrs. Wyn Davis (no relation) of Chula Vista, Cal. to go to Adelle with nutritional advice!!!! As Wyn told it to me, she said to Dr. L: 'She wont listen to me. I would take her off meat and dairy products and those malted milks she's always drinking.' Adelle will ~~not be able to speak~~ at the International Association of Cancer Victims and Friends in September as originally planned.

"I attended the Cancer Control Society Convention (headed by Betty Lee Morales and Lorraine Rosenthal -- formerly the Los Angeles Chapter of IACVF) in July at the Ambassador Hotel here. Paavo Airola was one of the best, or the best speaker on the program. He said: 'Stop eating meat. Get your protein from natural foods.' He points out that the Russians and Bulgarians are far healthier than we are in this country. One reason is they east 1/3 or less protein than we do. He says, 'Liver is the worst thing you could eat.'"

E.L.B., Los Angeles, California

Yes, it seems that meat is one of the most common cancer-causing irritants in the American diet -- at the physical level, that is! Even more common cancer-causing irritants at the emotional level are hatred, bigotry, prejudice and deep-seated fears. Couple these negative emotional habits with marriage or job frustrations which block the complete expression of the generative energies in constructive work, and you have the potential for cancer production.

Karmic factors or causes going back into preceding lives would also have to be taken into consideration. Adelle Davis is in her mid-seventies, I believe, and thus has already led a full life. If this is a terminal situation -- as it was in the preceding case described on page 25 -- no change in diet or living pattern is going to delay the end result for long. In fact, resistance on the part of the sufferer to any and all suggestions which might improve the situation can be taken as an indication that the Higher Self has decided to wind up this particular embodiment and get the hell out.

The life plan has been completed. With that out of the way the cancer or other mortal disease is allowed to have its way. The cancer elemental which fastens itself upon the sufferer is very likely one of his or her own creations of the past, when devilish practices of black magick and vampirism were even more prevalent upon the earth than they are now! The victimizer now becomes the victim, and there is nothing the would-be healers can do to stop the inevitable result.

PLEASE, KINDLY LEAVE THE PREMISES!

A couple of years ago or so Max Freedom Long came to realize that cancer and other diseases would soon terminate his physical life. This caused him no distress because he was preparing to wind up all his physical affairs anyhow and seek a new birth elsewhere, not even on this planet! -- or so he told us. But his close friend and devoted student, Dolly Ware, refused to give up in her dedication to restoring Max to health. She persuaded Dr. Jose "Mind Control" Silva and several of his assistants to fly out here from Texas -- paid all their expenses, no doubt -- to try their techniques for a cure. But Max wasn't about to have his exit plans interfered with, especially by expert mind-probing techniques which might reveal the innermost workings of his mind and heart. Dr. Silva and his helpers were ordered politely but firmly out of the house.

Actually, Max might have been defeating his own purpose by refusing the healing help of Dr. Silva; for it is an occult principle that if the Higher Self has chosen to terminate a physical life with the help of a deadly disease, the energies directed from the healer to the patient will be used to accelerate the destruction of the form rather than to preserve it.

D.K. puts it this way in Alice Bailey's book on "Esoteric Healing": "The healer must ever bear in mind that his task is either to heal -- under the karmic law -- or to aid in the processes of dissolution, bringing about, therefore, a higher form of healing."

"DOCTOR WINS REVERSAL ON LAETRILE"

San Francisco "Chronicle", June 15, 1973: "The conviction of an Albany physician on 'cancer quackery' charges was reversed yesterday in Alameda County Superior Court's appellate division. The decision by the three-judge panel, read by Superior Court judge Lyle E. Cook, said Dr. John A. Richardson, 48, never actually claimed the apricot-pit extract called Laetrile could actually cure cancer. There, the panel asserted, Richardson did not violate state law when he sold Laetrile -- ruled ineffective by both the F.D.A. and the State Health Department -- to two state agents posing as cancer patients. The decision reversed the ruling of December 7, 1972 against Richardson and two of his nurses, Margaret K. Grosch and Charlotte R. Anderson, by Berkeley Municipal Court Judge George Brunn."

KEEP YOUR LOW SELF UNDER CONTROL!

"Poor old Max Long! He was a prime example of the Closed Mind being an Open Door to negative suggestions. He admitted at one time that his Guidance on something or other had been off beam. It was pretty obvious to me when he came out with the statement that he was due to graduate this trip!"

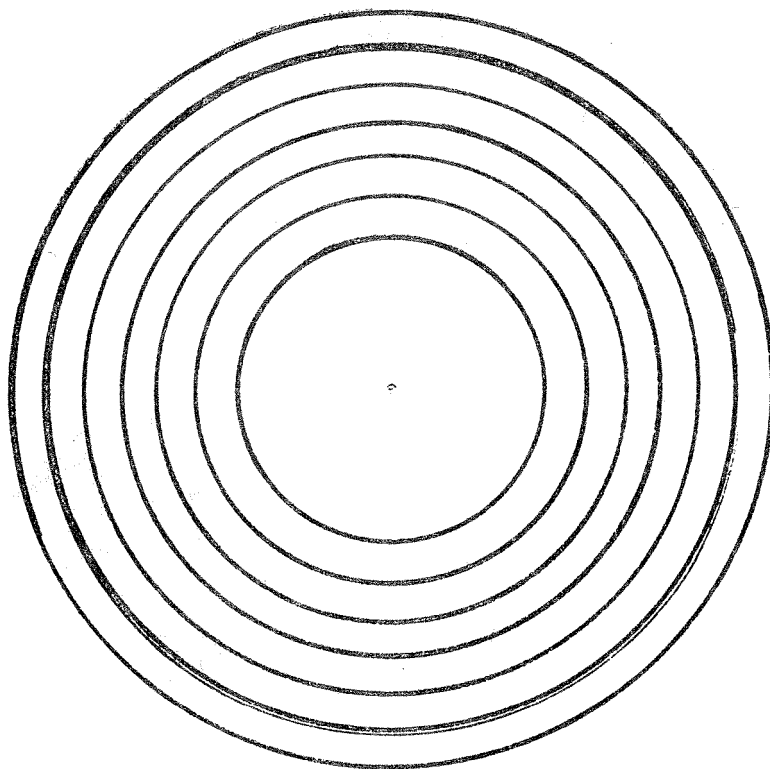

As your Director understands it, the Graduation referred to by Max isn't necessarily an initiation into a higher level of consciousness, but transfer to another line of evolution, on another planet.

"I am afraid that instead, he is spending a good deal of time kicking himself for not using his own considerable mental power instead of allowing himself to be led by the nose by the Powers of Darkness. I noticed in at least one of his taped lectures, that he wound up in a completely different tone of voice from that used during the lecture. I'm afraid that one of the troubles he has left us is that those who persist in looking on the Low Self as a separate entity are thereby creating one which would be an easy mark for the suggestions of the PoD. Sooner or later this Low Self will act up badly, like the tame lama thought up by Madame Alexandra David-Neel, and which it took her six months to get rid of."

The "tame lama" episode is from David-Neel's "Magic and Mystery In Tibet". We discuss this and much other Tibetan magick in our new brochure, "Tulkus, A Tibetan Initiation", $2.00. Properly instructed, a magician will draw his mental creations back into himself after they have served their purpose; otherwise, fed with his vitality, they continue to grow until they assume an independent existence -- just as do our physical children -- but for which the magician is completely responsible! Eventually, the insatiable demands of the Golem -- as the Rabbi calls it -- dominate the thinking of its creator, the magician, and his commands are only echoes.

"Herewith is a full scale copy of the Energy Diagram, also those for purifying water and for neutralizing noxious rays. The two latter cover a very wide range in each case. The water one being intended for use with any ordinary domestic supply, which is negative. If a glass of water is treated with it, the polarity of the water is reversed. This can easily be demonstrated by tuning a pendulum to it, and seeing whether the pendulum will gyrate over a plus or a minus sign drawn on a piece of paper. An easier way is to try the rear of the diagram on the water when it will be found to cause the pendulum to gyrate. The other varieties of positive water can readily be tested in the same way.

"The Noxious Ray diagram is equally effective for locating detrimental earth rays, and undesirable elements in food, also emanations from radio and TV, whether the set is operating or not. I have found the open equiangular triangle to be an excellent neutralizer in both cases. If your radio and/or TV is not otherwise

Remember, the above diagrams and the treatment device on the preceding page have no power in themselves, to believe so is superstition. These are psychic phone numbers which put you in touch with invisible Forces which do the work! If you can eliminate incompatibles within yourself -- such as lack of faith -- and maintain your concentration. You, actually, are the channel for the Force you evoke with this, and as Dion Fortune reminds us: "To be a channel for an Angelic Cosmic Force is a privilege. It is also an initiation." The only thing you have to fear in summoning forth positive forces of this kind is that you may not obtain results. They will not obsess you.

THE UFO GRID AND FREE ENERGY

"Is there any source whatever of information pertaining to the work of Nicola Tesla? I mean something that gets into it a bit. I have this manuscript from Health Research entitled 'Enigma Fantastique', which delves superficially into Tesla and Steiner's work. Reason! I have a suspicion that if the ideas of Tesla were adapted to tapping the global grid system so delineated in the book 'Harmonic 33' by Capt. Bruce Cathie, that a workable and cheap power source could be evolved.

"I have a letter from Capt. Cathie that says in part ' -- you are correct about the grid being a complete source of power. The Static electricity inherent in the earth is put in motion by the reaction of the grid system and can be tapped off in the manner described by Tesla. I have direct evidence that scientific groups are carrying out extensive experimentation of this nature in NZ. This evidence is shown in my second book, 'Harmonic 695'.

"I am working with an electrician who is very interested in this phenomenon and and we are trying to construct a field strength meter that will pick up the radiations from the aerials when we get in their vicinity (mentioned and pictured in 'Harmonic 695'), and a coil and a condenser that will pick up the signals from the aerials and convert them into usable power. This is a new brainstorm so we're not very far down the road of discovery. Are there any other BSRA's working on this type of project?"

Dr. E.W.C., Kaitaia, New Zealand

No, we know of no definitive technical work on the electronic wizardry of Nicola Tesla; nor have we had any word from Associates that they are trying to tap the world-wide UFO grid system. The De-Land Frost Guard system is the only thing we know of at present that might do it -- if one were erected on a known grid line or at line crossing points. A reprint of our illustrated article on the Frost Guard in the Sept-Oct 1971 Journal is available for $1.25.

In his latest "Proceedings", (July-Aug-Sept 1973) George Van Tassel has a condensed, illustrated reprint of his 1954 articles on the "Earth As A Motor" and the Universal Power which causes it to turn. "Recently NASA and the Russian space program," writes George, "printed data on the measurement of linear lines of energy in space in a rhythmic wave motion of 8 cycles per second. These are the lines shown in these reprints which we called 'the positive lines of force'. These are the vertical lines in all three drawings. When science develops some method of measuring the negative lines of force, shown horizontally in these illustrations, then they will begin to understand the birthplace of atoms and of solar systems."

Our own Central Intelligence Agency is keenly interested in the UFO grid as a communications link with the Invaders who haunt our planet, and as a power source, but not for public use! This became clear to Capt. Cathie as he developed the material for "Harmonic 695" (now out of print). It also became clear to the New Zealand college students who organized the protests against the CIA's huge electronics surveillance bases in New Zealand! The one at Kauri Point in Auckland, for instance. They did succeed in preventing the installation of another on South Island, the so-called Omega navigational station near Lake Pearson.

"The (American) station fitted on the grid as though one had been tailored for the other," writes Cathie. "I produced my grid map years before Omega was ever heard of, and I have no claims to being clairvoyant. . . ."

"INDIA PARTY CHIEF LEADS NEW ANTI-CIA DRIVE"

NEW DELHI (Oct. 5, 1972, Los Angeles "Times") -- "A month ago Shankar Dayal Sharma was just another member of the faceless collection of middle-aged men in New Delhi humbly doing the political bidding of Indira Gandhi. . . . But almost overnight Sharma has become a lightning rod of controversy, all because of his one-man campaign against the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, which he accused of fomenting violence in India."

Somebody must have given Sharma a copy of Cathie's "Harmonic 695" to read, and the Indian politician believed it! After all, Sharma is a well educated man. He has a doctorate in law from Cambridge University, and he was also a Brandeis fellow at Harvard here in the United States.

"There are attempts being made to interfere in our internal affairs by backing one political party or another. We are in economic difficulties," Sharma tells a visitor. "The CIA has always been around but this is the first organized attempt to exploit discontent and create violence and oppose the government."

"Times" writer Drummond wrote also that "speaking in Bihar on Monday, Mrs. Gandhi added her voice to the anti-CIA clamor: 'It is not for us to prove that this agency is working on our country. It is for the CIA to prove that it is not active in India.'

The CIA could not prove, for instance, that the huge electronics network along the India-Tibet border was not being used to monitor India's internal communications. It was started in 1963 after India's border war with China, with American technicians and money, and called Peace Indigo. Then came war with Pakistan, one of America's closest Eastern allies. India wanted military supplies to help carry the conflict to a successful conclusion. Nixon placed an embargo on sales of weapons to India. This gave Madame Gandhi an opportunity to close down Peace Indigo "for the convenience of the government of India", quoting an AP dispatch from New Delhi, Oct. 12, 1972. On that same day a few hundred miles to the east, the Indian government was given an outstanding example of the ruthlessness of the secret government of the United States.

FRENCH MISSION BOMBED IN HANOI RAID

SAIGON (AP) -- "The French diplomatic mission in Hanoi was badly damaged and its chief diplomat wounded Wednesday during a U.S. air raid on the North Vietnamese capital. France protested to the United States. . . Navy planes attacked the military target. . . Six people were killed. . . Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird conceded that U.S. bombs may have struck the mission, a compound of five buildings in the heart of Hanoi."

The compound was bristling with electronics communications and surveillance gear; so this was an enemy listening post. Foreign newsmen on the scene reported that Navy destruction of the mission was no accident, despite pious protestations from Washington. A Canadian TV man told AP: "I counted at least a dozen sorties by jets and watched as one, defying heavy antiaircraft fire, dived very low dropping two bombs. No possibility of pilot error."

Pierre Susini, head of the French delegation in Hanoi, died a couple of days later, of 1st degree burns and bomb splinter wounds. The order for the Navy raid came direct from Washington, bypassing the U.S. military command in Saigon.

"YOU CANT POSSIBLY BEAT THEM"

That's the impression America's secret government would like to give to th world. It has had some notable successes of which it has publicly boasted, forcing changes in the governments of Guatemala and Iran, and lately, possibly Chile. In New Zealand this "group", as Capt. Bruce Cathie calls it, has forced the government there to allow the erection of super-secret communications bases. In "Harmonic 33" Cathie theorized about the existence of a world-wide UFO grid, used for power and communication by the Flying Saucers. In his second book, "Harmonic 695", Cathie records his astonishment that an elite group of American scientists not only already knew of the existence of the grid, but was actually mapping it out in New Zealand and was in touch with the Invaders making use of it!

"I was told by a foreigner holding a high position with one of the (NZ) government ministries that I would be stopped from publishing this book by those in charge of 'the experiment'. 'This group,' I was told, 'is all-powerful, and you can't possibly beat them.' . . As I dug in closer to the truth of the UFOs and the power sources which they use, I was twice approached by a 'middleman' who was interested only in finding whether or not I would stop my research fo a price. When he found that I was prepared to go on with my research and publish at all costs, I was warned that unspecified 'strange things' would happen to me if I persisted." The threat of the stick didn't work with Cathie; so the "group" tried the carrot. "A little later I was again approached, offered a position working with a small band of scientists with the hint of a very healthy salary. My answer was the same; and on this occasion I gave a full report to the New Zealand government of the offer."

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION

The "group" went a different route with the Prime Minister of India after she had shut down the Peace Indigo listening posts in that country. On or about Oct. 22, 1972 Madame Gandhi was scheduled to give a political talk in the Bengal city of Darjeeling. As the proceedings were getting under way a band of about fifty right-wing hooligans invaded the hall shouting, "Kill the Prime Minister! Kill Mrs. Gandhi!" As they headed for the platform with their sticks and clubs her security guard succeeded in spiriting Mrs. Gandhi out of the place and away to safety. Otherwise there might have been a change of government in India that day. For some mysterious reason this important news item didn't appear in the Los Angeles "Times"; we heard it twice on CBS radio news.

The LA "Times" did carry this news item from New Delhi, Nov. 5, 1972: "The Indian government has permanently blocked the U.S. Military Airlift Command's round-the-world shuttle service. After 23 years New Delhi last month withdrew permission for the regularly scheduled military flights to use Indian airspace. . . ."

BI-PARTISAN SHIFT AWAY FROM THE EXTREME RIGHT

"Congress's rebirth will be a stunted and limited one, however, unless the plague of Watergate is ended. Here the Republicans are the decisive factor. They hold the balance on the veto, and the key to whatever action Congress eventually takes. If the Republicans find that Watergate jeopardizes their own political careers and the future of their party, then they will begin to move for their own salvation. Everyone we interviewed, Republican or Democrat, agreed that the real initiative against Nixon must come from the GOP or at least from a bipartisan effort. It cannot be Democrats out to get the President. And the thing that will motivate GOP legislators will be jeopardy of their own skins. If they begin to see that they can lose as many as 40 seats in the House and 10 in the Senate, then they are certainly going to tell the President, privately and publicly, and in no uncertain terms, that they are not about to walk the plank for him (as apparently VP Agnew is being made to do now). The feeling is that the President left the base of the party in 1971 by failing to support Republican loyalist candidates, and party loyalty to him is almost nil."

UNDERSTANDORAMA, Oct. 28, 1973, Griswold's Claremont Inn, 515 West Foothill Blvd., Claremont, California. "Designed for opening portals for expanded consciousness." All day Sunday seminar includes speakers: Dr. Judith Tyberg, Revs. Henry J. and Diane Nagorka, Dr. Daniel W. Fry and the Director of BSRF. We will review the Psychic Surgery of Dr. William Lang through medium George Chapman in England: How Lang's medium was chosen, how he trained for five years on the spirit plane in the control of his medium, and a dramatic reading of the interview between journalist Bernard Hutton and Dr. Lang, in which the latter describes in detail his work. Program starts at 10:30 a.m., $5.00 donation. Write Seminar Director Esther Ellsworth for details. PO Box 626, Morongo Valley, Cal. 92256, phone 714-342-6680.

CALIFORNIA PARAPSYCHOLOGY FOUNDATION, Sunday, Nov. 18, 1973, 7:30 p.m. Director Crabb will give the Four Ways To Freedom (or Holiness) talk from our Kabala Lesson Series. These are the Ways of the Faqueer, the Monk or Nun, the Yogin or Kabalist, and the Way of the Adept. They are related to the Four Worlds of the Kabala: Physical, Astral or Emotional, Mental and Spiritual. We will also give a Musicolor concert illustrating the Four Ways and Worlds in sound and color. $2.00 donation. Oneira Hall, 4949 Hawley Blvd., San Diego, Calif. The printed Four Ways talk is BSRF No. 24-D, Lesson Eight, illustrated, 48 pages, $2.00. Available also on Cassette, $5.50 or 5 in. reel tape, Monaural, 3 3/4 speed, 1 1/2 hrs., $5.50.

CLOSED CLASS WITH THE YADA, No. 2. A printed transcript of the Second in a series on Occult Science by the Yada di Shi'ite, through Mark Probert, begun in the summer of 1967 in San Diego. This is an unparalleled opportunity to to start occult studies and follow through with a Master teacher. Subjects include: Breathing and Stretching, Milk an Antidote to Smog, Deadly Effect of Anxiety, Absolute Need For Companionship, Murder In the Name of Jesus Christ, The Perfume of Understanding, Apples a Blood Purifier, The Mind Never Sleeps, The Machinery of Suggestion, Delayed Telepathic Suggestion, etc. $2.00
On Cassette tape, $5.50, or 5 in. reel Monaural, 3 3/4 speed, $5.50.

LETTERS FROM CHRISTOPHER At long last we have made some photo-copy offset reproductions of this English classic of psychic research, the communications between Ruth Tristram and her son, Christopher, lost at sea in April 1943. Lord Dowding wrote a forward to the book, telling the readers that Mrs. Tristram was a personal friend of his. Undoubtedly he had the opportunity to read copies of the letters as they were received. Christopher tells of his rapid adjustment to life on the other side. Because he had known fear, through drowning, he was able to rap with others, German and Russian soldiers, as well as British, in helping them to reconcile themselves to their violent rebirth out of the flesh. Most important and revealing is Christopher's use of color, and the blending of Color Rays to neutralize the ugly fear and hate colors in the auras of the victims of the war. These continually recurring references to Color Therapy are most outstanding and inspiring; and they are most instructive to anyone interested in color, whether artist or healer! Of especial Space Age interest are Christopher's interplanetary trips: one to Mars and one to the Sun behind the sun, Sirius. The Mars trip, with his younger brother Lancelot, was to observe development and use of Color Ray-Keys in the laboratories of Mars Etheria. These they brought back with them for use in their Color Therapy here on Earth Astral. The group trip outside the solar system to Sirius, under the direction of Charles Wesley, was of tremendous mental stimulation to Christopher -- and to anyone who reads it with an open mind. It took two months of earth time. The book is illustrated with a picture of Chris, drawings, indexed. . . . $4.95

TULKUS, A TIBETAN INITIATION

The only way to get out of the world alive is to construct a Solar Body or Body of Light with the mind and use that as an immortal vehicle of consciousness. Tibetan Lamas perverted this doctrine, this "thirst-quenching beverage of immortality" as Blavatsky called it, into a self-reincarnating maintenance of power and wealth as heads of their monasteries for hundreds of years. This makes fascinating and instructive reading to students of the borderland. This is the Way of the Yogin in our Kabalistic lesson series. Illustrated. . $2.00
