THE JOURNAL OF BORDERLAND RESEARCH

BSRF No. 1 Published by Borderland Sciences Research Foundation, PO Box 549, Vista, California 92083 USA. Edited by the Director, Riley Hansard Crabb, MsD.

The Journal is published six issues a year with the assistance of the Associates, at the Director's home, 1103 Bobolink Drive, Vista. It is printed, 36 pages an issue. The Foundation is incorporated under California law, May 21, 1951, #254263, and has been in continuous existence since then. Correspondence is addressed to the PO Box. The Journal is included in the Foundation membership of $12.00 a year, domestic. Foreign membership/subscriptions are now $15.00. Single copies and back issues of the Journal are $2.50. A donation of $12 domestic or $16 foreign will also bring the Journal to those who dont care to join BSRF. The Director's wife, Mrs. Judith Crabb, is office manager and Secretary-Treasurer.

PURPOSES OF BSRF: This is a non-profit organization of people who take an active interest in unusual happenings along the borderland between the visible and invisible worlds. In the words of the late Meade Layne, founder and director of BSRF from 1946 to 1959: "BSRA publications are scientific in approach but employ few technical expressions. They deal with significant phenomena which orthodox science cannot or will not investigate. For example: The Fortean falls of objects from the sky. Teleportation, Radiesthesia, PK Effects, Underground Races, Mysterious Disappearances, Occult and Psychic Phenomena, Photography of the Invisible, Nature of the Ethers and the problem of the Aeroforms (Flying Saucers). In 1946 BSRA obtained an interpretation of the phemomena which has come to be known as the Etheric or 4-D interpretation; it has not been radically altered since that time. This continues to be the only explanation of the UFOs which makes good science, sound metaphysics and common sense."

The chief present concern of the Foundation is to make this kind of unusual information available as a public service at resonable cost. Headquarters acts as a receiving, coordinating and distributing center. An important part of the Director's work is to give recognition, understanding and encouragement to people who are having unusual experiences of the borderland type and/or are conducting research in any of the above fields. For consultation on borderland problems or for Spiritual healing through prayer, write or phone 714-724-2043 for help or for an appointment. Donations and bequests toward Foundation research programs and expenses are welcome.

The 35-page list of BSRF publications is available from Headquarters for $2.00 in money, check or stamps. This includes brochures on borderland subjects, tape recordings of Crabb's lectures and of members of the Inner Circle, talking through trance-medium Mark Probert. THE MASS MOVEMENT FOR TOTAL NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT

JOIN IT! -- OR ELSE!

By Alan, Dr. James E. Muller, Sir Francis Bacon
And Lao Tse, With CQC by the Editor

"Most of the thinkers of your race are well aware of the dangers inherent in the use of nuclear weapons, but there is another aspect of the problem that is not generally recognized. That is the fact that unless unity is achieved between your nations, the very existence of such weapons will eventually bring about the downfall of your civilization, even though they are never used.

"The truth of this fact can be understood by anyone who will think a little. Civilizations are built and maintained by men of vision, who think and work for the future. What man will be willing to dedicate his life and his work to the benefit of generations yet unborn, when the foreseeable future does not extend beyond the next twenty-four hours?

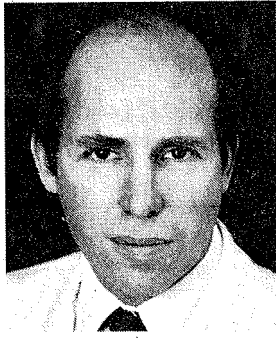

"Already many articles have appeared in your newspapers and magazines commenting upon the rapid rise of what they describe as juvenile delinquency (1954). Some writers place the blame upon the parents, some upon the schools, others blame the church or state. Actually, none of these agencies are especially at fault. The condition is due principally to the fact youth is particularly sensitive to a condition of insecurity -- any of your psychologists will verify this -- and never in the history of your race has the future been less secure.

"It has been publicly stated by one of your highest government officials, that the political and military tension between your government and the government of Russia may continue at its present level for the next forty years. This would mean that two more generations of your people would be born and reared under the constant threat of imminent annihilation. No civilization which the universe has yet produced could endure under these conditions. . ."

These words of wisdom are even more poignant now than they were when Daniel W. Fry heard them from the lips of the Flying Saucer Commander, Alan, in the Oregon woods, and printed later in Alan's message "To Men of Earth". A man of earth, Dr. James E. Muller of the Harvard Medical School gave us a thought-provoking appraisal of the problems of the current nuclear confrontation in "Newsweek" magazine for March 1, 1982 in the guest column "My Turn", which he titled: "On Accidental Nuclear War": "When the horror of nuclear war forces its way to consciousness, many cling to the belief that it is so horrible no rational person will ever push the button. This discounts our stated policy that we would push the button in self-defense, but it does provide comfort -- until the possibility of accidental nuclear war is considered.

"The military, to whom we have delegated the task of managing nuclear weapons, well understands the danger of unintentional war. A special program called the Personnel Reliability Program (PRP) exists for individuals with access to nuclear weapons. More than 100,000 are included in the program; to enter it, an individual must show evidence of emotional stability and good social adjustment and not have had a problem with alcohol or drug abuse. Physicians assist in the screening process and periodically monitor those selected.

"The results of this surveillance are shocking. They should be known by everyone who believes nuclear weapons bring national security, every world leader, every arms-control negotiator -- indeed, everyone living in the nuclear age -- yet it seems very few are aware of the numbers, buried on page 323 of the 1979 report of 'Hearings Before a Subcommittee of the House of Representatives'.

"In 1975, 5,128 personnel were removed from access to nuclear weapons because of violations of the PRP; in 1976, 4,966 and in 1977, 4,973 -- an annual rate exceeding 4%. Reasons for removal in 1977 included alcohol and drug abuse, the primary drug abused was marijuana, but more than 250 were removed for abuse of drugs such as heroin and LSD. In the same year, 1,289 were removed for 'significant physical, mental or character trait or aberrant behavior, substantiated by competent medical authority', which might 'prejudice reliable performance of the duties of a particular critical or controlled position'.

MISCONDUCT

"In addition to these medical disqualifications, 828 were disqualified for negligence, 350 for court-martial or civil convictions of a serious nature and 885 for evidence of 'a contemptuous attitude toward the law'. Description of this misconduct should not be interpreted as a criticism of the military, for it is we who have asked them accomplish the impossible in handling nuclear weapons safely.

COMPUTERS CAN BE DEADLY

"Computers, which occasionally tell us we have died, or never existed, or must pay a bill a second time, are also intimately involved in the nuclear arsenals. The record of mistakes is extensive. During an eighteen-month period, the North American Defense Command had 151 false alarms! Four resulted in orders that increased the state of alert of B-52 bomber crews and intercontinental ballistic-missile-units. A major false alert, lasting a full six minutes, occurred when a technician mistakenly mounted on an American military computer a training tape of a Soviet attack. Mechanical malfunction and human errors have also led to a number of accidents with nuclear weapons.

"The risk of an accident increases as we increase the size of our arsenal and the number of personnel involved. Our move to 'Counterforce' warfare, in which each side becomes concerned that it must fire its missiles before they are destroyed, decreases to less than 30 minutes the time available to evaluate the computer signals of a possible attack and decided to launch. The spread of nuclear weapons to less-developed countries with limited technical sophistication also increases the risk.

"What are the implications of this understandable but somehow startling evidence of technical and human fallibility? Can a group of individuals whose judgment is impaired decide to launch a nuclear weapon without authorization or fail to respond properly to a computer error? Although the Pentagon has stated that no single person can launch a nuclear weapon, under certain conditions the crew of a submarine can fire nuclear weapons on its own. Our survival also depends on the proper conduct of Soviet personnel and computers. Alcoholism is a major health problem in the Soviet Union and is at least as likely to exist among their military as it is among ours.

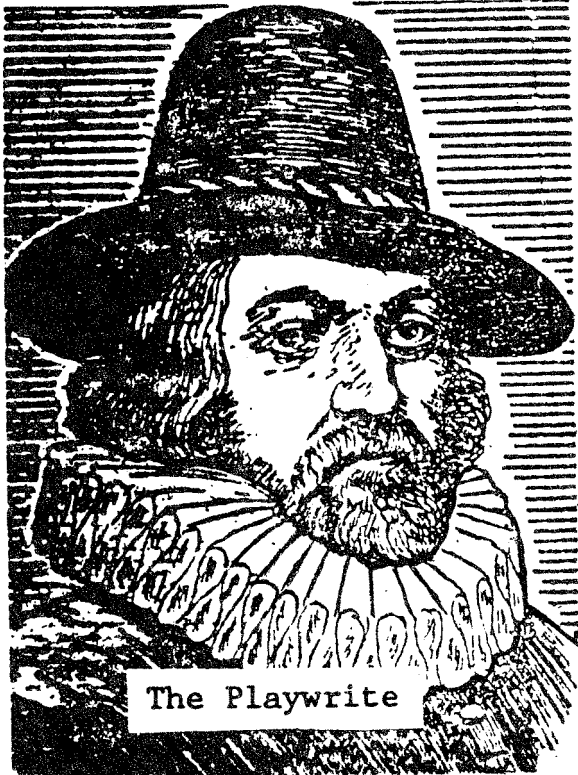

"An unauthorized launch would undoubtedly require a combination of failures, but the opportunities are numerous and increasing. Must we drift passively toward that moment when chance brings together the critical mass of plutonium and drugs, alcohol, psychosis or computer error that will destroy us and all we value?

"TO BE OR NOT TO BE, THAT IS THE QUESTION"

"We are moving inexorably and unwittingly toward a finale similar to that so powerfully described in 'Hamlet'. At the play's conclusion, Fortinbras enters and finds the recently slain Hamlet, Laertes and the King and Queen of Denmark, and Hamlet's friend Horatio explains how such a disaster occurred:

"And let me speak to th' yet unknowing world
How these things came about. So shall you hear

Of carnal, bloody and unnatural acts,
Of accidental judgments, casual slaughters,
Of deaths put on by cunning and forced cause,
And, in this upshot, purposes mistook
Fall'n on th' inventors' heads.

The Playwrite

FRANCIS "SHAKESPEARE" BACON

"We are now the 'inventors'. We have set the stage for 'accidental judgments', 'forced causes' and 'purposes mistook' to lead us, not to a series of palace murders, but to an event of unimaginable horror in which millions of innocent people will die agonizing deaths. Physicians who survive will be unable to provide even minimal pain relief for most of the dying.

"There is really only one cause for optimism: the phenomenal growth of the mass movement for total disarmament. Hope and a sense of common purpose have replaced despair and isolation for tens of thousands. If others with similar concerns act on their belief, the movement can become an unstoppable force. The coming spring can be a time of renewal of the belief that humanity can survive. Such progress is needed; the hour is late. We can live with the threat of accidental nuclear war for 10 or 20 or 30 years, as we have -- but not forever."

(Dr. Muller teaches at the Harvard Medical School and is a founder of International physicians for Prevention of Nuclear War.)

MAN WILL NOT BE DESTROYED FROM THE EARTH

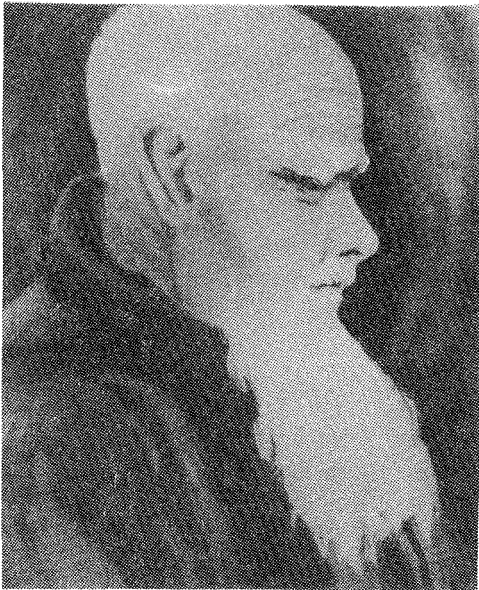

Thirty-four years ago people were concerned about the threat of thermo-nuclear war, as many more are today. It was May 4, 1948 when the late Eileen Garrett, dedicated borderland researcher and internationally famous medium, visited the home of Mark and Irene Probert in San Diego, California for a seance. The Chinese sage, Lao Tse was occupying and controlling Mark's body. Mrs. Garrett put this question to Lao Tse:

"In working for a World Federation can we find a way to maintain what man calls peace?"

"Peace, world peace," replied Lao Tse. "In my time and long before, the world and man have been at odds, because that is life. Life without struggle is not life. All things seethe with struggle. To end struggle would end existence on earth. Of course, now that man has arrived at the mental point of life he assumes he may dispense with wars. Only when he can dispense with personal wars, between individuals, can he dispense with national, international wars."

"You do not see hope of that in the immediate future?" asked Mrs. Garrett.

"I do not," replied Lao Tse. "Growth is struggle. The development of mankind depends entirely on the individual. As the man grows, his neighbor gets the growth. He cannot change the world until he has first made the change in himself. All talk, talk, talk, talk for endless time. It does no good. It is nice to think of -- but man will not be destroyed from the face of the earth, no!"

"With his great atomic powers, with his poisons and gasses, he may destroy a few but life will persist. The quest of life is the quest of God; and the quest of God is the quest of the Self. Each of you must persist in that quest. Sufficient of of your culture will remain that another will follow out of it. Always enough of the seed is left to restore. You cannot kill the seed and in the seed is life."

But, will that human seed have a civilized or a Stone Age environment? As Alan observed to Dan Fry in the Oregon woods, "There is nothing intrinsically wrong with your material science. It will progress and expand to horizons as yet undreamed of, if only your people will provide a (moral) foundation capable of supporting it."

"And if they dont?" Dan asked.

"Then your civilization will go down. It will destroy itself in a holocaust which will leave few survivors. Those few who do survive will have neither the ability nor the desire to rebuild their science. In a few generations their descendants will have returned almost to the level of the animal. Then the process of evolution will begin again. In fifteen or twenty thousand years another civilization will emerge. It will face the same problems and the same opportunity for their solution. If it fails, it will in turn go down. This is an immutable law of the universe, but one which operates according to the free choice of the race. Your race and your culture are not doomed to extinction, they may continue upon their upward course until they have left this danger behind them forever. The choice is yours."

"There is little doubt which choice the people would make," replied Dan, "if they were aware of the alternatives between which they were choosing." That awareness is now developing! In 1982!

USING HYPNOSIS AS A PSYCHIC RESEARCH TOOL

By
Gene Hurtienne

I am presenting to you BSRF members an theoretical idea concerning hypnosis as a research tool that would, if developed properly with the right statements, motive and attitudes, aid mankind in a number of life's areas. Those areas being Medicine, History, Religion and Crime. I realize that hypnotism is used in some of the mention areas of life, but the results are not what they should be and achieving good results are hard to come by and is hardly worth the energy spent.

In the areas where hypnosis is used, it is not used that much or that often. In medicine it is used mainly to ease pain, to quit smoking or aid in the birth of a child. Doctors dealing with mind and emotional problems use hypnosis only where the patient may request it or when the doctor might feel it would be helpful. In the area of crime, if the police force need greater detail or more clues from a witness, they are asked to go under hypnosis.

Wherever hypnosis is used, there is one common denominator-- each person either as a patient or as a witness must be hypnotized. There was one exception to this--EDGAR CAYCE. He was able through self-hypnosis to project his mind and with a proper statement from his wife, read the Akashic Records or if necessary the higher mind of the person who requested a reading from him.

The theoretical idea is simple. Instead of having one person hypnotize each person as required, let this person have an assistant who would be a good subject for hypnosis with a strong mental link of unity and harmony of purpose. The results of such a team would be quicker results and better data. Let me note that from what data I have found, little or no thought has been given to this theoretical idea. There maybe those who have tried this concept using hypnosis, but I have yet to come across it.

The axiom that this idea is based upon is the universal concept or law as some call it; that every thought, word and deed created by an individual is recorded upon the ethers of what we call the universal consciousness or sometime called the memory of God.

Now let me briefly state what could be done in the four mentioned areas:

Medicine:

A doctor and an assistant working together as a team would through proper statements project the mind of the assistant to the akashic records or the higher mind of the patient in order to give a physical reading of the patient in the office or at home. The assistant would view the condition of the body and the cause of the illness, and after receiving this information the request for treatment would be given. From this data, the doctor would proceed to treat the patient. This method would save the patient testing, x-rays, lab. mistakes, and wrong treatment, plus operations. The doctor would gain healthy patients and the knowledge of what the causes of illness are.

History:

Though hypnosis has not been used in this area, it is one that should be. EXAMPLE: A historian who is studying the life of Christ would have the assistant go back in time to that period and read the akashic record and report on what is observed and said. Such questions as to his life as a boy, teenager, and did he have any brother and sisters could be answered. Also there would be the statements he told his followers than what is given in the bible. Then there is man's beginnings on Earth. The list is long.

Religion:

Since reincarnation is primary a religious concept, let me offer a way in which this idea can be proven to the world by using the theoretical idea of hypnosis.

1. Ten persons who are unknown to each other would receive the same list of names which are also unknown to the ten person performing the experment.
2. Each of these ten persons would have an assistant they could work with and each assistant also must not know anyone on the list of names.
3. As each assistant makes contact with the akashic record, each person on the list of names would have a certain number of questions asked for them. example;
 - a. type of death of last incarnation prior to this present one.
 - b.name of personality of that incarnation.
 - c. age of death in that life.
 - d. Date of birth and place of that incarnation
 - e. name of spouse if married and number of children and there names.
 - f. name of last five incarnations prior to this one.

The list of names should contain;

1. names of person
2. address of person
3. birth of person (day and place)

If proper contact with the akashic records is made and the proper statements and wording of questions given, then all those taking part should have the same results.

Crime:

The police force hypnotist and assistant would go to the scene of the crime and upon arriving, the assistant would go under and have their mind projected to a point where they could view the events of the crime that had taken place. In viewing the event, the assistant would be able to give detailed information of those involved as well as the position or location where they could be found. This would be done by picking up the etheréal vibration of those involved.

You BSRF members who try this theoretical idea and would like to share with me and others, let me know through BSRF of your results.

Phineas Parkhurst Quimby got involved in such a hypnosis research program at Belfast, Maine in the 1840s and found an excellent subject in young Lucius Burkmarr, proving telepathy, clairvoyance, and attracting the wrath of the right-wing religious fanatics who claimed his demonstrations of mind-over-matter were the work of the devil.

Interestingly enough, it was doctors, desperately in need of a scientific technique for getting behind the facade of the physical body to find the causes of disease, who saw the possibilities of clairvoyance. It was they who got Quimby involved in the medical research in the 1850s which evolved into the full time occupation of the Science of Health.

It wasn't long before Quimby found he could dispense with Burkmarr and do the clairvoyant diagnosis, in full consciousness, himself, once he got his own mental blocks out of the way; nor did he hypnotize his patients, using, rather, positive suggestion. But he antagonized the doctors eventually by saying bluntly: "My theory exposes the hypocrisy of those who undertake to cure in that way (by prescribing medicine). They make ten diseases to one cure, thus bringing a surplus of misery into the world, and shutting out a healthy state of society. They have a monopoly, and no theory that lessens disease can compete with them." He was equally critical of orthodox theology, for he found that the other half of his patients were sick from cockeyed religious ideas impressed on their receptive minds by the protestant ministers and Catholic priests of the Maine of his day.

"THE CORPORATE HEAD-HUNTERS APPEARED, FOR AWHILE"

By Lyle Ottinger, BSRA

(Remember the lead article in the May-June 1981 Journal, "I Had Stumbled Into This Occult Business"? Here are some more of Mr. Ottinger's Astral experiences.)

"The source of the Astral attacks on me, the vicious ones, were identified by a process of elimination and deduction from local news and gossip.

"Some were total strangers. The rest I scarcely knew of. The worst two, semi-retired, were nearly killed in a car wreck, and, after a lengthy stay in a hospital, decided to move away. One of my attackers died in a fire. Others died of various infirmities or decided to move elsewhere. One titled person turned his attention to evening up an old score, a fellow that had been sharing the titled person's wife's attentions some years ago, and to launch another raid on the Federal treasury under the guise of greasy piety."

Solomon warns "the way of the Transgressors is hard" (Proverbs 13:15) and the attackers put to flight indicates that this Associate has Good Forces helping to maintain his Astral defenses. In his previous communication we hazarded the opinion that some of his nightly attackers might be the Dwellers or Sin Bodies of local Mormon officials protecting their "empire".

"During that series of events the screamers continually disappeared. With no one to urge them on, the clowns gradually lost interest -- with my encouragement, of course. I repeatedly informed them there would be no more circus to watch, no more mental nor astral gymnastics. The screamers interfere with the action, are distracting and mess up the results.

"Meanwhile, I have made friends in the workaday world who come to my aid at night -- unknown to their conscious minds, of course. As I said before, if I could still hold to just 1st astral consciousness when out of the body I would need no help. The sudden deaths of my tormentors would have been by my hand."

Not your hand, Lyle, but their own! Their evil, reflected back off your wall of Light, came back to them and they could not handle it.

"After the fanatics, the interrogators or corporate head hunters type appeared for awhile. Arrogant. Asking questions. Demanding I tell them the secrets, the wisdom of the Ancients, offering deals. No deal. I am baffled by what they are impressed by. The system doesn't give a person a leg up on life. The secrets are the same ones that Nature proclaims constantly.

"For 15 or 20 years I used to receive some help and advice from unknown entities in solving the problems encountered in the borderland. In the years I have resided here, not one has come to help. Evidently these bigoted hords are too much to endure.

CLAIRAUDIENCE IS NOT MAGICAL

"Night side entities seem unable to discover at what point a person is awake or asleep. That is, when consciousness is shifting gears. When sitting quietly rereading or just thinking a person will often be very nearly asleep. Consciousness follows habit and switches to the astral senses. Comments of night side entities are heard quite plainly. The speed and ease of doing so are normal after years of practice. Clairaudience is not magical. If there were not a barrier between these two sets of senses it would be difficult to keep one's head on straight in the workaday world. Clairaudience is the normal function of the astral senses.

"Pondering one night on ways to increase my income to meet winter's bills I overheard the comment, 'Oh, money isn't important,' followed by a small chorus of affirmations. Guess whose opinions those were? I should live so well and with so little labor as they do! They have got their fingers into every government giveaway they can get their hands on. So I wonder, how much of this put-down goes on in the night side of life?"

This Associate knows by direct experience that we're never alone, and the quality of our associates, visible and invisible, is determined by our own thoughts and feelings. Right now in our nation's capital a would-be presidential assassin is on trial. The debate between prosecution and defense is over whether young Hinckley was sane and under self-control when he pulled the trigger? Or was the "put-down" from the "night side of life"?

"I didn't intend to start jotting down enough notes to approach book size. I am not sure anyone would really comprehend what I was talking about. So maybe it is useless to try. All of my experiences are in altered consciousness, some in the body, some out of the body and some sort of half-and-half; however, the switch I accidentally tripped started a couple of decades of events that I had no part in organizing. It's all automatic.

"With millions of people in the world, past and present, it couldn't be something that happened to me alone. So I started digging. Finally I realized there is loads of information on it, once a person learns how to read what is written. No wonder our schools dont each much on similies, metaphors, analogies, symbols, personifications in myths and fabulous histories."

LORD BYRON PERSONIFIED "MANFRED"

Yes, Mr. Ottinger, myths, fabulous histories and dramatic poems like Lord Byron's "Manfred" are true stories of the experiences of the awakened ones; but it takes one to know one! Late one evening in 1930 a young American arc-welder named Richard Shaver was sitting alone in the living room of his Pennsylvania home, reading "Manfred".

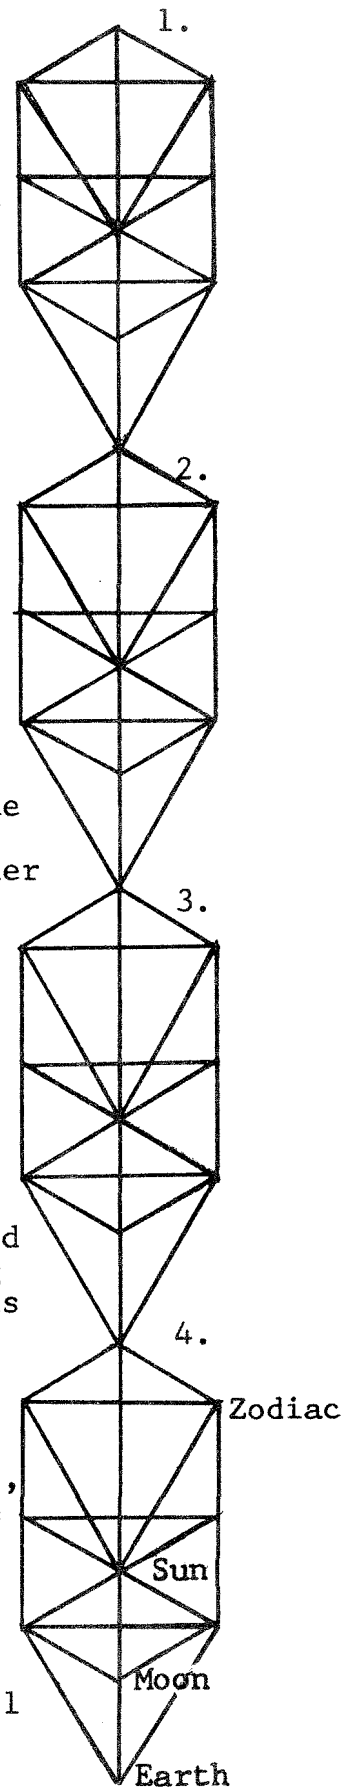

The realization swept over him that Manfred's ceremonial evocation of the Witch of the Alps was a true experience of Lord Byron! And if Byron could do it, why not he? So he put the book down, visualized a symbol and sent out a mental call. The response was quick. A light appeared near the ceiling and expanded into the image of a beautiful young woman. The Witch of the Alps? Now, to quote from page 8 of our transcribed lecture "The Reality of the Cavern World" (BSRF 2-E, $3.00)

"You can imagine how shocked he was, this material-minded young man of 20th Century America. He realized how scornful this beautiful creature was of the fear that came and went through him 'like wind through a swinging door'. The thing that stabilized him was her own calm self-assurance. Another thing he realized was that his thoughts and emotions were easily visible to her, even as hers were to him. He admired that complete self-possession she had. And then there swept through him the realization that he had succeeded! This was his second mistake. It caused a flash of misgiving to go through her mind.

"His guest suddenly knew that she had made a mistake in answering his call. She had expected to come to some one 'in the know', one of the very few here on the surface who know of the Cavern World and its inhabitants. With that she shut everything off and disappeared, but not before peering into his thoughts for a long moment to make sure she could identify him at some future time.

"Poor Richard would never be the same again. All his preconceived ideas about life were gone. He knew beyond any shadow of a doubt that the myths, the fables, the fairy stories of his childhood were the truest record of the early history of the planet which has been written. He had seen likenesses of his Astral visitor reproduced many times in the fairy stories of his childhood."

THE WITCH OF THE ALPS

in the Palmer publications of the 1950s.

Shaver wrote that the Cavern world witch who awakened him to that other Reality forced him to see her as she wanted to be seen by this dweller on the surface. Was she really so beautiful? Or as her natural Cavern-world self was she more like the witch pictured above left?

(From: "The Reality of the Cavern World")
July-August 1982 RR, Page 12

"Religions would fall apart," writes Lyle Ottinger of his awakening to the reality of the Astral world and the racial myths which reveal those Mysteries. "The Greeks spoke of them as internal dialogues and knowings, and experiences. Ptolemy drew them upon the stars, 48 symbols. The 49th was the Sun, the spirit over-soul of each person. The three Virgos are the three 'sisters' in the 'house' of Carlos Castaneda, author of the Don Juan Trilogy.

THE HIGH PLACE OF THE MIND

"The 'place of power' in the Mexican mountains Carlos went to is not a geographical place. It is a place or point in the series of events in the mystery language of metaphors and symbols. Mountains, hills, altars or any high place means mind, or of the mind. The stage is split consciousness, the knowing and feeling that one is lying on a bed and a simultaneous forgetting the circumstance that the nature scenery one is observing cant be real because one is surrounded by four walls of a room.

"The snapping and popping are sounds in one's own head. The quick, bat-like critter one sees is a visual construct of one's subconscious mind, and is nothing to be afraid of. The critter's inquisitive actions are the same as being nuzzled on the back of the neck by a puppy. I laughed aloud. What it is supposed to represent I dont know. (A tamed, elemental force, of the Air)

"The wagon in the Zodiac is the physical body. Some of the symbols are more abstract. They represent the physical, psychic, intellectual and spiritual stages in this psychic-physical process. But a person acts knowingly and has a clear memory of the events, not the vagueness of dreams.

"Even so it is difficult to describe the whys and wherefores of it with reason and logic; and I really cant see that it gives a person any advantage in life to make up for what it has subtracted from it. So you see, many of the events I relate are a sort of half-truth in that they could happen to anyone. But most are not likely to happen to anyone if they have not first went through the years of ordeals that I have done.

"Possibly, if there were experienced, qualified instructors to advise a person along the way it might be worth the effort, to obtain skills to balance the waste of the years. But, as the situation stands now it is a waste of time for anyone."

It may seem a waste of effort, Lyle, but nevertheless those years of effort have brought you to the place where you are aware of the need for a Topology or Topography of the Universe. You need a roadmap with numbered highways to lead you to that High Place of the Mind where comes the assurance that you are on the right Path. Such Roadmaps are available from both the Western and the Eastern Mystery Traditions, take your choice. The bare outlines of such a Topology are on page 11 and you've already taken the first steps along the Way, Path 11, from the Earth to the Moon, in the lowest of the Four Worlds of the Cabala.

THE WITCH OF KONA

Or Awakening To The Astral World

At The Most Intimate Level

By Tom Donner

For the past few years I have been in touch with entities. It began with a Succubus contact which lasted five months. After that, entities manifesting in a full length mirror, to my amazement. Sometimes I see them flitting about as dark shadows, or red "blobs", eith when glancing into a mirror or out of the corner of my eye.

I am not receiving any direct instruction from them. The only direct manifestation of a material nature was the Succubus. No, I did not attempt to conjure her up. Actually I was not even thinking about it nor studying that unique phenomenon. It just happened one night, and for the next five months she appeared -- materialized -- solidly about two times each week for that period of time.

There was no way to "wait up" for her, her visits were random relative to days of the week and time, from 1 a.m. to 4 a.m. and only twice in one week. Upon leaving she would seem to float backwards out of the room and no matter how rapidly I ran to the other room she would completely disappear. When she decided to leave she mentioned it, then it seemed like I could not move, could only watch her get lighter and float backwards out of the room. As soon as she left and I could move, I would rush to the light switch and look all over the apartment but could not locate her.

I was not married at that time. I had been divorced about ten years. I was not sexually active with anyone then; nor was I plagued with sensual dreams at night. All my dreams were relative to business problems or personal problems. But I was studying all the books I could obtain on the occult and occult subjects: Alchemy, Hindu Tantric techniques -- not from the Middle Ages standpoint of transforming base metals into gold but of transmuting body secretions into Elixir and other esoteric activities of that nature.

She first appeared about 2 a.m. I felt someone leaning over me and shaking me on the left shoulder. I came half awake, realizing where I was and that no one could possibly be shaking me as I was the only one in the apartment; but when I opened my eyes I was astounded, here was a nude woman leaning over me shaking me awake.

WHEN THE PUPIL IS READY THE MISTRESS APPEARS

My first impression was that one of the neighbors had somehow got into my apartment, but why was she running around the neighborhood in the nude? Then I jumped up to do combat with this person. That was when I heard mental words telling me to calm down. "Everything is going to be all right."

Of course I have heard about people claiming to hear voices in their heads, but I couldn't equate with their experience; so I just passed it on. Now it was happening to me! If anyone ever experiences a voice inside his head he or she will know what it is like.

Upset at this strange woman in my apartment in the middle of the night I attempted to grab her. She just seemed to glide out of my reach, all the time admonishing me to calm down. I asked her what she wanted. There was no answer, just the same message to "calm down" and to enjoy myself.

I couldn't believe this was happening to me. It was too good to be true! She initiated the first contact. She was exactly like a real human female, beautiful shape and body, not overly endowed, with a face that seemed smaller than normal for her body, large forehead and high cheekbones, very narrow chin, absolutely white hair that was combed straight back from her forehead and hanging straight down her back. She had eyebrows and eyelashes (nothing like the entities seen by UFO contactees) and small but full lips.

There was never any conversation with her. She refused to answer any questions. All she would say -- in my head -- was that everything "is going to be all right. Dont worry about anything. Just enjoy yourself". That was all I ever got out of her. Incidentally, she absolutely refused to lie down. Everything was done in a standing position. Really!

Then, being human, I was the one that ruined that beautiful relationship. I hadn't had a girlfriend for some time, too busy traveling and working. Then I became serious about a young lady here in Kona. We began dating about the time the Succubus was visiting me, and as inevitably happens we became intimate on a regular basis. I didn't need my Succubus lady friend. After the first time I became intimate with my lady friend -- now my wife -- my night mistress never returned.

Then came marriage and my wife, who up until that time was the picture of health, developed all manner of problems: two major operations for cancer, a total hysterectomy, a complete thyroid-ectomy, etc. Obviously, her sexual ardor went to zero and I might as well be single again, at 53. Sometimes I think my Succubus lady friend must be observing me and laughing at what a stupid human I was to throw away such a great experience for a mundane one. But, as I mentioned earlier about the entities appearing in the mirror many times, that was after becoming involved with my present wife. Strangely enough, these entities appearing in the mirror never said anything more than "Everything is going to be all right. Dont be upset. Take it easy."

Yes, that was a wonderful experience, to have all the joys of sex but none of the responsibilities! But to call your celestial nymph a succubus is doing her a disservice. She doesn't fit Paracelsus' description of a succubus, but rather the demi-goddess Yakshis of Hindu Tantrism, which you are studying at the age of 53, well into the philosophical period of your life. Thus your unused sexual energies should be expended, not out through the crotch, but inwardly and upward through the higher force centers of the Etheric double -- called "eyes" in the Cabalistic tradition. So, the falling in love again and marrying is as much a part of your spiritual development as were the nightly visits of Yakshi for five months -- an awakening occult experience the reality of which you cannot deny.

You write that you have added the works of Dion Fortune to your occult library, remember this observation from her book, "Esoteric Philosophy of Love and Marriage" that one of her Teachers told her: "Only those who are rightly married can go on to the higher degrees. The most important work is done by the pair, not by the solitary worker, who is always more or less unstable, and nothing in occultism is more undesirable than instability. For such work the closest sympathetic rapport of the highest nature is necessary, and such intimacy and propinquity is only sanctioned in our society when it has been regularized by marriage. Union upon the physical plane need not take place, and in fact will not take place while the life forces are being used on other levels. . . ."

This is "rising into love" with the deliberate blending of male and female forces for an expansion of consciousness rather than physical self-indulgence. DISCOVERY OF THE SECOND LAW OF GRAVITATION

By Craig Gunnufson

Almost everyone has heard the story in which an apple fell on Newton's head and this led to the discovery of the Universal Law of Gravitation, which is: "Any two bodies attract each other with a force proportional to the product of their masses and inversely proportional to the square of the distance between them, $F = GMm/r^2$ "

I believe I have made a very fundamental discovery which could be called the Second Universal Law of Gravitation. It came about as an outgrowth of my Ether Displacement Theory. The Second Law of Universal Gravitation states: "Matter absorbs and re-radiates energy from the medium (ether) which is responsible for the phenomenon known as gravitation. The rate of energy being radiated is proportional to the square of the mass."

$$\begin{aligned}dE/dt &= kM^2 = \text{power,} \\k &= 7.2 \times 10^{-34} \text{erg/gm}^2 \text{sec}\end{aligned}$$

Therefore, an intrinsic property of matter is that it absorbs energy from the ether.

The rate of acceleration of a falling object, which acquires kinetic energy is a measure of energy flow via conduction through the ether. For example, under Newton's law of gravitation, if one of the masses in question is doubled, it would follow that force and therefore the rate of acceleration would double. Since the kinetic energy is proportional to the second power of the velocity, we would also expect the energy flow via conduction to be proportional to the second power of the mass times some constant.

The solar energy output is not less than 3.89×10^{33} erg/sec. If we assume that fusion and gravitational mechanism are the only methods of energy production, then the ether must supply 2.8×10^{33} erg/sec since the neutrino measurements account for only 27% of the Sun's energy. From laboratory work it is known that nuclear fusion reactions give off neutrinos. It has been generally accepted that the Sun's energy is the result of fusion but, over the last 10 years, counts of neutrinos emitted by the sun have been less than expected. In "Science", Jan. 1976, J.N. Bahcall and R. Davis, Jr. reported finding only 1.5 Solar Neutrino Units (SNU). Under the standard solar model, 5.5 SNU were expected. If these figures are correct, then only 27% of the Sun's energy may be produced by fusion.

Then "K" was calculated to be 7.2×10^{-34} erg/gm²sec. It is recognised that this value of "K" is a first approximation since it is likely that celestial bodies contain other energy processes and the neutrinos measured may be general background levels. Based on this value the predicted minimum energy output of other celestial bodies were then calculated:

|-----------------------|-----------------------|------------------------------------|
| Earth | 5.97×10^{27} | 2.6×10^{22} |
| Jupiter | 1.88×10^{30} | 2.5×10^{27} |
| Saturn | 5.6×10^{29} | 2.3×10^{26} |
| Neptune | 1.0×10^{29} | 7.2×10^{24} |
| Uranus | 8.6×10^{28} | 5.3×10^{24} |
| Alpha Centauri "A" | 2.15×10^{33} | 3.33×10^{33} |
| Alpha Centauri "B" | 1.75×10^{33} | 2.2×10^{33} |
| Alpha Centauri "C" | 2.39×10^{32} | 4.1×10^{31} |

There is much disagreement among geophysicists as to the Earth's total rate of energy dissipation. Values of heat quantities measured are in the order of magnitude of 10^{20} erg/sec (Sclater, "Review Geophys. Space Physics", Vol. 18. p. 269-311) However, Williams and Von Herzen pointed out in 1974 that much more heat could be lost due to hydrothermal circulation of sea water. Some estimates place this heat loss at 100 times greater than continental heat loss. Therefore, at the present time, the total energy released by the earth is highly speculative. My calculation of 2.6×10^{22} erg/sec is within the range of possibilities.

From the data received by the probes sent to Jupiter there is an outer layer of atmosphere that is quite cold, but under this colder layer is a much hotter layer, around 440° C. (Encyclopedia Americana, Vol. 16, p. 254, 1979) Because the outer layer acts as insulation, we would expect only some portion of the energy radiated by the inner layer to escape the planet. Using the Stefan-Boltzmann law it is possible to calculate the upper limit of the rate of energy lost through radiation.

$$E = kT^4 = (5.7 \times 10^{-5}) (713^\circ\text{k})^4 = 1.47 \times 10^7 \text{ erg/cm}^2 \text{ sec}$$

$$E_t = E (\text{area}) = (1.47 \times 10^7) (6.48 \times 10^{20}) = 9.5 \times 10^{27} \text{ erg/sec}$$

Since some portion of this amount is able to escape through the outer layer, then my figure of 2.5×10^{27} erg/sec is within probable range.

Newton himself recognized that bodies were attracted to each other, but the actual mechanism remained a mystery to him. In the 19th Century, Lesage theorized that a medium of hyperfine particles could account for the inverse square law discovered by Newton. Lesage's theory also showed that gravity is a push, not a pull or attraction. Since then, there have been others who have come up with similar theories independently.

However, Lesagian theory has had its critics. In recent times two of the most notable are Richard Feynman and Willy Lay. In his essay, "The Case For A Lesagian Theory of Gravitation", that appeared in the Association for Pushing Gravity Research, 1979 Mutual Aid addition, John Kizer presented some of the arguments made by these critics. One of them is: "The the friction generated by the impacts of these ultramundane particles upon masses such as the earth would, of necessity, make the earth white-hot within a short period of time."

In this statement the critics are right qualitatively but not quantitatively. My claculations show that the earth does not have sufficient mass to become qhite hot, but the Sun does.

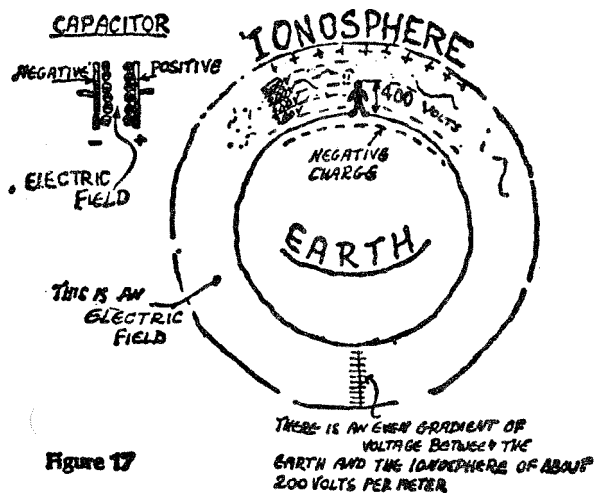

It can be seen that with this new law of gravitation we can calculate the rate of energy radiation of celestial bodies. These rates confirm the idea that space, or the ether, has usable energy. There is much research presently going on for the purpose of tapping this energy. This confirmation further legitimizes this important research.

OUR HIGHLY CHARGED ENVIRONMENT

The electrical aspect of that "usable energy" Gunnufson speaks of has been known for some time and its potential measured, about 200 volts per meter or yard, going up from the negative surface of the earth toward the positive Heaviside-Kennelly layer or ionosphere about 40 miles up; so, for a six-foot man there is a difference of 400 volts between his feet and his head. But, to turn that potential into useful, usable electrical energy takes some doing, as the inventors of free-energy devices are finding out!

Here is Itzhak Bentov's diagram of the Earth's Usable Energy field in his book, "Stalking the Wild Pendulum". This energy is pumped into the subject -- or object -- of the Radionist's healing efforts when the subject's "witness" is placed in an oscillating electro-magnetic field -- such as Dr. Abrams' ELF wave Oscilloclast, which had a base rate of 1½ Hertz (cycles per second). The successful Spiritual Healer draws on the same inexhaustible supply of energy when doing Absent Treatment or Laying-on-of-Hands.

BE SURE YOUR DOCTOR IS HONEST, SAYS DR. MENDELSON

By Ron Kotulak
From NHF's "Public Scrutiny", Part II

MEND: My argument is that the most dangerous kind of doctor is the kind who looks as if he's a good guy. He's the guy you have to be more suspicious of, you have to ask him more questions, and insist on documentation for everything he says.

PSA: There seem to be hundreds of so-called authorities giving different advice to parents on how to raise their children. Dr. Spock, for instance, has become an institution. What should young parents do?

MEND: The first thing they should do is reject any authority who says at the end of each chapter, "Talk to your doctor." Also, I would immediately interview the expert and see if he or she is really the right one for you. I want to know that his or her experience was. How many children have they had? Were they born at home or in the hospital? Was the author sedated in childbirth? If it is a husband, was his wife sedated? Were their babies breast-fed, and for how long, how successfully? What kind of diets do they use at home? Did they use jarred infant food or did they use their own food? Since all the experts I know are deficient in all these respects, my answer is that I would trust no experts.

PSA: If breast feeding newborns is supposed to be so healthy, why do most mothers shun it and bottle feed their infants instead?

MEND: I think there are two major reasons for that: The first is that they don't know. They don't know the dangers of bottle-feeding, which are well documented. They don't know about the diseases that occur only in bottle-fed babies, which doctors know there is a long list of -- necrotizing enterocolitis of the newborn, neonatal hypocalcemia, neonatal hypoglycemia, neonatal hypothyroidism -- and about the other maladies that are much more common in bottle-fed babies -- sudden infant death, child abuse allergies, gastroenteritis, pneumonia, asthma. Then in later life, there are the correlations between bottle-feeding and hypertension, arteriosclerosis and obesity.

Your whole life is affected by how you were fed as a baby; but nobody pays any attention to this. Even with the radioactivity, strontium-90, and the PVBs and the PCCs. It's been shown that breast milk has the ability to selectively keep these agents from being absorbed into the baby's body, and bottle milk does not! So bottle-fed babies -- babies who have cow's milk -- have a very high amount of strontium-90 in their tissues, which breast fed babies have practically none. Mothers don't know because the doctors dont know, and if they do they aren't talking.

The second reason is purely economic: These days it takes two incomes to support a family -- everybody has to go to work. Something like 55% of all mothers start nursing but after a couple of weeks they have to give it up because now the tradeoff is poverty versus breast-feeding.

CHIROPRACTORS INSTEAD OF DOCTORS

PSA: You recommend that people avoid the medical profession and seek alternate methods of care such as chiropractors. Are you advocating that people get to chiropractors instead of doctors?

MEND: I dont have to advocate it -- they're flocking to chiropractors. The great advantage that chiropractors have is that by law they are not permitted to use drugs or surgery, and therefore they cannot do as much harm as the physician can. After half a dozen physicians couldn't get rid of my wife's back trouble, she went to a chiropractor and got excellent results. And in a lot of states in this country, chiropractors are delivering babies at home. As far as I am concerned they can be absolutely trusted.

PSA: Kidney dialysis, heart and kidney transplants, as well as other procedures, have saved thousands of lives. These therapies result from medical research. Isn't research necessary to make these kinds of advancements?

MEND: My problem with instruments such as the dialysis machine is that the tools of modern medicine are so powerful that they damage the people who use them: the radiologists and leukemia; anesthesiologists and cancer and genetic defects to the kids; renal dialysis and hepatitis. If anyone ever did an accurate calculation, it would turn out that the only thing renal dialysis is change who will die -- kill some who would live and save some who would die. Therefore it must be regarded as experimental.

PSA: How does that address the question of medical research in general? Are you in favor of it?

MEND: Absolutely, as long as everybody knows what's going on. You see, I'm confident enough that the information concerning the side effects of these things is known right at the beginning of the studies.

PSA: If we are getting sicker as a result of modern medicine, as you mention in your book "Confessions of a Medical Heretic", why are people living longer?

MEND: I dont think people are living longer. I think we are making a mistake in statistics. Everyone says that in George Washington's time the average life expectancy was 38 years. However, most of that was caused by the deaths of newborns. If you lived to age 5, then your life expectancy was exactly the same, maybe a little better. There's some evidence that if you lived to age 5 or 10 a hundred years ago, your chance of reaching 90 was better than it is today. In fact, Linus Pauling now has some statistics showing that life expectancy is dropping for adults; and I think he is right. Because now we are suffering from the so-called degenerative diseases, which I don't think are degenerative at all. I think that most of the degenerative diseases today are going to be shown to be due to X-rays, drugs, polluted food, additives, preservatives and immunizations.

THE NEUROLOGICAL DAMAGE OF IMMUNIZATIONS

PSA: Speaking about immunizations, the control of communicable diseases, especially through immunizations, has been regarded as a mechanism that has caused the greatest improvement in people's health. Do you seriously advocate that parents not have their children immunized?

MEND: What I advocate is that parents have access to the same controversies that are going on inside the medical journals. For example, doctors in Connecticut had rubella and mumps immunizations stopped. I think people should know that Dr. Edward Shaw, an eminent pediatrician from California, has come out against whooping cough vaccine because he says it is not effective and it's got a lot of neurologic dangers.

I think people should know the link found this year by the head of the Tennessee Communicable Disease Department between DPT and sudden infant death, which resulted in the withdrawal from the market of 320,000 doses of live vaccine. All I'm saying is that inside medicine itself, immunizations are very controversial. Even the polio immunization. Sabin and Salk point out that three-fourths of the cases of polio in the last ten years have been vaccine-induced. I don't see any reason why people shouldn't be just as confused as the doctors. Right now they don't believe the doctors are confused.

Dr. Mendelsohn might have added that the development of the immunization program in modern medicine coincided with the vast improvements in public sanitation and in drinking water, which are really responsible for the elimination of communicable diseases. Naturally the medical associations and pharmaceutical companies are going to take the credit for their immunization program.

MEND: The other thing that people should know is the suspicion by people like Robert Simpson of Rutgers University that immunizations are allergy shots and the introduction of any foreign protein by injection into the body may later lead to the so-called immunologic diseases like multiple sclerosis, Parkinson's and rheumatoid arthritis.

PSA: So what do you tell parents? Not to have their children immunized?

MEND: I'll tell you what I tell them. My grandchild is 17 months old and has not been immunized. Immunizations are just as controversial as what I call the other three holy waters of modern medicine: silver nitrate in the eyes of babies, routine intravenous fluids to laboring mothers, and fluoridated water. They're still controversial.

CHEMICAL LOBOTOMY VIA THE WATER SUPPLY

Dr. Mendelsohn may not know that Fluoridated Water originated in Nazi Germany in the 1930s and helped enslave the minds of the German people to Adolf Hitler's fanatical ideas. Chemists of the I.G. Farbinindustrie finally chose Sodium Fluoride, one of the world's deadliest poisons, as the "drug" which could make masses of people agreeable to Hitler's unreasonable demands. Sodium Fluoride is odorless, tasteless and imperceptible to the senses in minute doses in drinking water; so it was ideal for Hitler's purposes and for the soul-less human monsters who were guiding him from the Lower Astral Plane. Russian leaders picked up the idea from the Germans in the 1940s. This chemical lobotomy may help explain the docile acceptance of the soul-destroying philosophy of the Soviets in that unfortunate country. Needless to say, Satanic forces are trying to do the same thing for native Fascism here in the United States.

PSA: You attack the medical profession on numerous grounds. Why then to you still belong to the AMA?

MEND: I suppose I've gotten to used to paying my dues that when the bill comes in, I pay it. I dont know. I've always belonged. I suppose it may be that there lurks a splinter of hope that I can influence the AMA (American Medical Association). And that is really irrational. I cant get myself to sever my connections. You see, there are two models of heretics. There's the kind I dont want to be -- the Joan of Arc model. And then there's the kind I would like to be -- the Martin Luther model. Martin Luther left the Catholic Church but he didn't stop being a Christian. Maybe that's the answer. I dont really want to do anything to those guys. I just want to put them out of business, that's all.

PSA: I think the majority of them would think that's pretty bad medicine for them to swallow.

MEND: All I want is to have the government start a massive retraining program for doctors so they can get into some kind of honest work, myself included.

PSA: Your denunciation of the medical profession (in his book, "Confessions Of A Medical Heretic", Warner Books, $2.75, by Robert S. Mendelsohn, M.D., 1979, published by Warner Books, PO Box 690, New York NY 10019) has stirred the wrath of many doctors. How have they reacted to your book?

MEND: The major reaction from friends is that they want to know why I spread it out before the public instead of leaving it inside the medical journals. To which my answer is that nobody reads medical journals, not even doctors, because the purpose of medical journals is to impede communication. The real purpose, of course, is to promote associate professors to professors. The second reaction I am getting is a lot of fan letters from doctors whom I call "closet medical heretics".

PSA: Since you go so far in saying that 90% of surgery is unnecessary and that most doctors should be eliminated as far as their jobs are concerned, and that we'd all be better off for it, would you say that you're saying this with a grain of salt? Or are you saying it as an actual thing that should be done?

MEND: I admit that I say it with considerable humor, because it is too grim to be presented straight out. But I'm dead serious about it. And furthermore, I think that if it isn't done, it will bring our country down -- not only from the standpoint of health -- because doctors are now so dangerous to the health of each individual -- but from the political standpoint, because of the fantastic amounts of money now going into the medical system. I think that's a greater danger to our economy than the petro gouge right now. It is totally unrecognized. (From the March 1981 issue of "Public Scrutiny" the Journal of the National Health Federation, Mark Lockman, editor. $7.50 of the $12 annual membership fee in the National Health Federation is for the Journal subscription, published at 212 West Foothill Boulevard, Monrovia, California 91016. Single copies of the NHF Journal are 60¢.)

The National Health Federation was founded reluctantly by the late Fred J. Hart. I say reluctantly because his original dedication was to promoting further development and research in Radionics after the pioneering work of Dr. Albert Abrams in San Francisco in the early 1900s and 1920s. But the electronic approach to the alleviation of human ailments was a threat to the sale of drugs and surgery and did nothing but stir the murderous opposition of the AMA and the pharmaceutical industry. After years of endless harassment by the medical authorities, Hart finally threw in the towel. He realized that the only way to fight the soul-less human monsters, the scum of the galaxy, who run the sick industry, was to form a broad-based popular support for the fight for freedom-of-choice in therapy in the political arena and in the courts.

THE DECLINE OF THE WEST

The "greater danger to our economy" that is "totally unrecognized" by all but a few shrewd observers of the current scene, like Dr. Mendelsohn, is part of the increasing decrepitude of our old civilization. If our Euro-American civilization had its beginnings with the formation of the Hanseatic Leagues in Europe in the 900s, as suggested by Oswald Spengler, then we're about 1000 years old -- and that's old for a major civilization. Proof is in the inadequacies of our present institutions, which no longer serve the needs of the people. And, if there is a military takeover in 1984, as predicted by George Orwell in 1949, we will have entered the "Caesar Period" of our declining years, as predicted by Spengler in 1919.

CLIPS, QUOTES & COMMENTS —

THE SCUM OF THE GALAXY, THAT'S WHY!

"Why is the planet earth and its inhabitants in the present precarious position which it occupies in the Solar System, and the very precarious position in which practically every inhabitant finds himself or herself, at this time? I think I could safely say that there is not a single individual in the entire population of the planet whose stability and security is beyond question. Oh, there are many who assume that they are stable, that they are prosperous and have nothing to worry about as to their future.

"In a sense, my beloved, this is a very, very commendable condition of mind; for We have admonished you at all times to keep your minds and souls and hearts directed in a positive and prosperous point of reference. But on the other hand each one of you and every soul upon the planet will, in the future, either near or far, be called upon to exercise all of the spiritual, mental and even physical acumen of which you are capable. This should not in any way endanger your life in any category but should only make you recognize the instability of Earth at this time.

"Why are there continual wars, threats of wars, rumors of wars? Why are there millions of women, children and even men starving to death? Why are there thousands upon thousands oriented toward a criminal career, insanity, disease and you name it? Is this a normal situation for your beautiful planet? For your Earth is indeed beautiful as We view it here and as you may view certain areas, but other areas are the antithesis of beauty!

"We must go back to the inception of the creation of the earth itself, wherein the Being who is now the Earth accepted a choice to nurture in its bosom the scum of humanity which came from every section of the Galaxy, but notably from the residue of the planet Maldek which was destroyed by its own actions.

"So the planet Earth has been inhabited by every conceivable type of human being. There has been through the ages a concerted effort upon the part of its governing body, here in this Realm, the Spiritual Hierarchy, to amalgamate and harmonize those heterogeneous types of beings. Should I say that our efforts have failed? From the human standpoint that would be the conclusion. Yet from the Spiritual standpoint We have won a great victory; for We have abided and implemented every rule and decree and request of our Supervisor, Our Beloved Father-Mother God; and We have now come to the crescendo of the Divine Plan for the redemption of your planet.

"In conclusion we ask you why are you here? Are you part of the scum which was brought to the earth? Oh no. By no means. You are, all of you -- yea now millions of you! -- the catalyst and the saviors of your planet. For were it not for your advent upon it and your dedication to its redemption, it would have been dissolved even as a planet ere now, even though beloved Sanat Kumara gave His life, so to speak, and sacrificed His throne upon beloved Venus to assist you and Us in its redemption."

Yes, having successfully taken Venus through its Judgement Day millions of years ago, the Planetary Logos of Venus apparently volunteered to do the same for the Solar Logos by becoming the Planetary Logos for planet Earth. There is one good reason. If Earth is Venus's hell -- as your editor-director suspects -- then there must be millions of Venusians in incarnation here, failures of the Venus Judgement Day taking the work over again, as well as millions of Maldekians. Then what about the Planetary Logos of Maldek, who failed also? Is He the Jehovah of the Jews and the orthodox Christians? In his book, "Rosicrucian Cosmo Conception", Max Heindel wrote: "Jehovah is the highest initiate of the Moon Period. He is leader of Angels and Regent of all moons, ours included", and the Moon is a remnant of Maldek, which formerly orbited between Mars and Jupiter. The Master D.K., writing through Alice Bailey, doesn't name Him but does make several cryptic references to this karmic relationship between certain inhabitants of the earth and Maldek, and the Planetary Logoi.

THE "LOST TIME" OF OUR EARTH SCHEME

In "Treatise on Cosmic Fire" D.K. writes: "It is an interesting occult fact that our Earth should now be in her fifth round, and paralleling the Venusian scheme, but the moon chain of our scheme saw a period of temporary retardation of the evolutionary process of our Heavenly Man; it resulted in a temporary slowing down of His activities and caused 'lost time', if such an expression might reverently be permitted. The Lords of the Dark Face, or the inherent forces of matter for a time achieved success, and only the fifth round of our chain will see their ultimate defeat." (p. 392)

And on page 670: "The three lower deva orders -- the lower fifth, sixth and seventh -- have a close connection with the Moon. They are the building agents which (working on the involutory matter of the three worlds) construct the lower three bodies of incarnating man. They are a branch of the Lunar Pitris (but they) are those functioning in our particular scheme and are closely allied to our planetary Logos. Groups of these Pitris are found wherever man is in incarnation in all schemes, but in other schemes they differ somewhat from ours, as the 'Mystery of the Moon' is connected with a peculiar esoteric condition which concerns our planetary Logos."

That was first written in 1925. Now back to the message from Djwhal Khul with which we opened this CQC section of the Journal, published in the March 1982 "Voice of Universarius": "And thus, regardless of the number of Anti-Christ's who are now on the rampage and who are yet to come and manifest, our beloved Earth will rise from the ashes of its degradation and take its place with the revered and blessed Family of Helios and Vesta. All of this may not take place in your physical life time, even though you may be a babe in the cradle (to those sitting in the meeting at Zelrun Karsleigh's Universarius center in Portland), but yet it is just as inevitable as the Sun that rises in the East and sets in the West. Be not, my beloved, fearful or faint-hearted, nor let your vigor down or your determination to carry through whatever has been assigned to you in this embodiment, whether it be a combination of physical, mental and spiritual vocation, or whether it be only one of these. Do it well. Do it as your Higher Self directs you and then all your questions, preceded by Why, will be answered for you even in this, your present life time."

Djwahl Kuhl

Since Zelrun Karsleigh's passing, the Revs. Margaret Myers and Phil Burbutis have moved the headquarters of Universarius from Portland to 4360 No. Bear Claw Way, Tucson, Arizona 85715, phone 602-749-2140. The monthly "Voice of Universarius" is $15 a year.

The illustration above is from Jinarajadasa's "First Principles of Theosophy" and shows one "petal" of the flower of evolution for our Solar System. The Moon Chain, No. 3, had only one physical planet, Maldek, led to destruction by Lucifer. The Earth Chain, No. 4, has three physical planets, Mercury, Earth and Mars. As you can see, we are at the bottom and there's nowhere to go but up! The Solar Logos has plans for the shattered remnants of Maldek, the belt of Asteroids between Mars and Jupiter. Writes Jinarajadasa: "By the time the Asteroids have coalesced into a planet and become the centre of evolution of the life-wave, the work will have been completed in the Earth Chain. Our Earth will have become a dead planet with no evolving life upon it; it will have shrunk in size through loss of its liquids and gases and other causes, and it will then be attracted to the physical planet of the new (5th) chain and attached to it as a Moon."

Speaking of Moons we are reminded of ours and that momentous occasion when Astronaut Neal Armstrong set foot on it, July 1969. In occult circles here in the United States it was said that Armstrong had "returned to the scene of the crime". What crime? The sabotaging of a planetary schoolroom -- of which the moon is one remaining segment. With thousands upon thousands of people now protesting the nuclear arms buildup and the threat of an all-out atomic war, here is one indication the Earth will not be another Maldek.

ONE OF THE MORE FAMOUS MALDEKIANs, LORD BYRON

He was also into Ritual Magick! His highly successful drama-poem "Manfred" is thinly disguised autobiography. It sold 20,000 copies on the first day of publication in London, June 16, 1817. Manfred opens with a highly dramatic scene in his chalet high in the Alps on a stormy midnight, when he is evoking the elemental gods:

"Ye Spirits of the unbounded Universe!
Whom I have sought in darkness and in light --
Ye who do compass earth about, and dwell
In subtler essence -- ye, to whom the tops
Of mountains inaccessible are haunts,
And Earth's and Ocean's caves familiar things --
I call upon ye by the written charm
Which gives me power over you -- Rise! Appear!"

And finally They do appear, seven of them in order; and it is the response of the last one, Lucifer?, which is of interest to us:

"The Star which rules thy destiny (Byron)
Was ruled, ere earth began, by me:
It was a World as fresh and fair
As e'er revolved round Sun in air;
Its course was free and regular,
Space bosomed not a lovelier star.
The Hour arrived -- and it became
A wandering mass of shapeless flame,
A pathless Comet and a curse,
The menace of the Universe;
Still rolling on with innate force,
Without a sphere, without a course,
A bright deformity on high,
A monster of the upper sky!
And Thou! beneath its influence born --
Thou worm! whom I obey and scorn --
Forced by a Power (which is not thine,
And lent thee but to make thee mine)
For this brief moment to descend,
Where these weak Spirits round thee bend
And parley with a thing like thee --
What would'st thou, Child of Clay! with me?"

(Quoted from the Modern Library College Edition of "The Selected Poetry of Lord Byron", Random House, and from BSRF No. 2-E, "The Reality of the Cavern World", $3.00 postpaid.)

Did Byron earn his deliverance from this jail of the solar system in his short, brilliant career? Maybe. Touched by the poverty and suffering of the people of Greece, he threw himself into the revolution against the corruption of Church and State, of the Turkish rulers, contracted fever, and died at the age of 36 in the campaign of 1824.

ON BEING AN INDIAN

"What is an Indian? The Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines the term as a 'member of any of the aboriginal (primitive) peoples of North and South America except the Eskimo.' But is this what is really meant by 'being Indian'? Let's explore this point further. It is thought by more than one scholar of ancient pre-history that the Indian pre-dates even the civilizations of Lemuria and Atlantis. If so, that would make the Indian the eldest of Brothers, with perhaps the earliest metaphysical/spiritual connection to our God-Source.

"A remarkable corroboration of this comes from the Bible itself, for the literal translation of the word Adam from the Aramaic means Red. The Adamic Race was therefore the Red Race. Furthermore, it is well documented (though little known) that Christ Jesus, when He walked the Americas, may have actually coined the precursor term, for Indian when he referred to them as being 'En Deus', or 'In Dios' -- 'in God'. Thus, in spirit, being Indian is simply 'being in God'.

"Now let us explore two other significant aspects of Being Indian: 1. The Indian's Role in Earth's Future; and 2. Who are the Indians? Many psychics, seers, clairvoyants and insightful historians have seen the Indian's role as that of Future Spiritual Leaders, that, after whatever upheavals and earth changes -- whether geophysical and/or economic -- imminently upon us have occurred, the chaotic aftermath in a strife-torn America will be smoothed over by Indian guides who will re-connect us with our ancestral abilities to live solely off the land. We will once again walk the Earth Mother in Balance, in Love, in Light and in Unity. The Great Upheaval is, then, a Great Purification into the Coming Age -- not something to be feared, but rather revered; for it is our initiation into the next form of our promised evolution.

"Finally, who are these Indian guides, these benevolent directors of future Earth Awareness? Are they solely the Red Race of today's reservations, settlements, and villages? An astounding answer was provided me recently by a very dear Sioux Medicine-Woman who now resides in Phoenix. I was lamenting the plight of alcoholic and derelict Indians throughout the country, and asking how these afflicted souls could possibly be leaders of the future. She looked into my eyes and heart and said simply: 'They are not Indians!' I blinked and asked for further explanation. She continued, 'The destitute are reincarnations of whites who formerly mistreated Indians. You, and others like you, are the reincarnation of Indians whose Paths are toward becoming what you once were and will be again -- spiritual leaders -- Indians'.

"I was absolutely stunned by this amazing revelation for I felt its truth surging in my heart."

ETERNAL YOUTH, FOR ADMIRALS ONLY

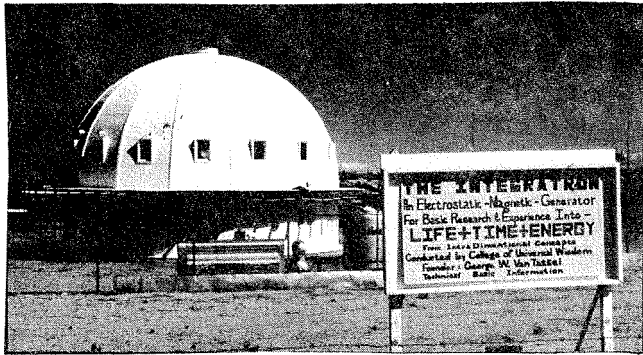

From "Omni" Magazine, June 1982 issue, Clip sent in by Associate Alice Dashiell: "INTEGRATRON. George Van Tassel built his extraordinary Integratron machine on 10.2 acres of land near Yucca Valley, California in 1959."

Wrong. George started the Integratron in 1959 but it was still unfinished at the time of his sudden death in 1978.

"Van Tassel told his constituents he'd constructed the four-story dome according to blueprints sent by aliens from space."

Wrong again. There were no blueprints for the Integratron, not at the physical level anyhow. George told us that only as each stage of construction was completed did he get the inspiration for completing the next stage, and the money to do it!

"The Integratron would prevent aging and rejuvenate the old, he claimed, as soon as the Extraterrestrials came to calibrate it. They never did. Unable to tap the machine's power, Van Tassel died in 1978."

When we last visited Giant Rock and the Van Tassels in July 1975 we were startled to hear George state that he was receiving financial and technical help from the government. I thought, "That's the kiss of death if I ever heard it!" Then, when he said that the Navy had completed a smaller version of the Integratron and was using it I thought, "They no longer need him. He's served his purpose."

"Then, in 1979, Van Tassel's widow, Dorris, deeded the structure to the Christology Church, which in turn assigned it to Donald Lockwood, a mechanic in San Francisco. Dorris, who claims she signed the deed against her will, is now trying to reclaim the machine. But the courts recently issued an injunction preventing her from interfering with Lockwood's possession until all suits and countersuits have been settled.

"Meanwhile Lockwood opened the Integratron's doors to the general public for the first time on April 24, during a two-day convention called SPACE (Star People Announcing Christ's Encounters) '82. Attendees were disappointed to find that the Integratron's 75-foot diameter interior showed little evidence of high technology. Two doors on opposite sides of the dome led into a room with concrete floors, wooden walls, a Tesla Coil and a rheostat. Among the most disheartened were elderly members of the now-defunct Ministry of Universal Wisdom, who allegedly sent Van Tassel some $500,000 worth of social security checks each year in hopes of gaining immortality. Lockwood told them he would no longer accept their contributions, nor could he promise them eternal youth. (No, that's reserved for the Admirals!) He added that he would be happy to hear from anyone -- human or otherwise -- who knows how to make the Integratron work."

If Lockwood does succeed in completing the Integratron, or even comes close to it, he will suffer the same fate as George Van Tassel. But the beneficial effects of soft radio waves on living tissue are no secret. The principle was discovered and proven empirically by the Russian engineer, Georges Lakhovsky, in Paris in the 1920s, and re-proven in Hollywood by electronic engineer Bob Beck in the early 1960s with a miniaturized version of Lakhovsky's Tesla Coil and Multi-Wave Antenna. This information is incorporated in our book, along with schematics and illustrations, BSRF No. 29, "The Lakhovsky Multi-Wave Oscillator", $5.50 postpaid, for anyone who wants to build and experiment with their own "integratron" at home.

"1,332 PROTESTERS ARRESTED AT LIVERMORE WEAPONS LAB"

LA "Times", June 22, 1982: "Authorities arrested 1,332 anti-nuclear protesters Monday in a peaceful but unsuccessful attempt to shut down the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, the weapons research center. At one point early in the day, an estimated 3,500 demonstrators had gathered at several sites around the 640-acre facility, 50 miles east of San Francisco, California. The protesters waved signs, sang hymns and chanted anti-war slogans as they blocked traffic on roadways into the laboratory. Later, as arrests were made, many left and their numbers dwindled to fewer than 400 persons. . . Inside the laboratory, several workers reported by telephone that it was a hectic and distracting day, that a number of employees had taken day off on vacation time, and that there had been some lengthy delays for others in getting to work.

"Atomic warheads for the Polaris, Poseidon and Minuteman II missiles and the Army's Lance missile system were designed at the facility here in Livermore. . . A weapons designer, Paul L. Chrzanowski, said, 'There have been absolutely no unpleasant incidents.'"

But earlier in June Chrzanowski and other technicians at the Lab were interviewed by Lee Dembart, LA "Times" science writer. These Dr. Strangeloves are painfully aware of the revulsion their horrible work is creating among their friends and relatives, and the revulsion is increasing. . . they find themselves at the center of attention sparked by the nuclear freeze initiative, renewed public concern about the horrors of nuclear war and occasional protests outside the laboratory gates.

"Inside the laboratory, which is run by the University of California for the U.S. government, about 7,200 employees continue to go about, in a highly professional manner, their tasks of designing and testing new nuclear weapons and figuring out the military systems in which they will be used. But the Livermore scientists believe that they have lost public support, and some of them say that friends and relatives have stopped talking to them. They receive hate mail from strangers who accuse them of producing weapons 'which will end life as we know it' as one person wrote.

GIVE THE GOVERNOR "A" FOR EFFORT!

"Some times the protests are job-threatening. In recent years, Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. sought unsuccessfully to have UC Board of Regents sever the university's ties with Livermore and with the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico, which also designs nuclear weapons. The Regents roundly voted the governor down last year. (The scum of the galaxy? Well, that's what the Master said.)

"The scientists bristle at their public image as Dr. Strange-loves, intoxicated with the weapons they make. But they are convinced that far from being warmongers, they want peace as much as anyone else. The way to keep the peace, they say, is through deterrence, and deterrence requires a credible nuclear arsenal."

This is Jesuit sophistry, right out of Satan's Agit-Prop division in the Cavern World beneath us. The Russian designers and builders of horrible nuclear weapons use the same rationalization for their suicide mission.

"Years ago, when I first got into this business, this was a very well-respected task," said Jay B. Chase to Lee Dembart. Chase, 42, is an executive in the nuclear weapons program who has been at the Laboratory since 1962. 'It was important to the nation. It was important to my nation's people. Today I still feel good doing it because I feel it is a responsible, important job to do; but I no longer believe the rest of the people in the nation feel the same way about it. That is a little hard to take.' (But not hard enough for Chase to quit his work and join the protesters, yet.)

"I didn't come here expecting that because of my work I would be the most popular person in town," said Chrzanowski. He wasn't disappointed. 'There are a number of people I know who choose not to talk to me about the job. I have an older brother living in Chicago. We don't talk about it.'

"Mary Schrot, a decisions analyst, said, 'Friends are avoiding me. I am very much distressed because these are educated people and I wonder how well they are thinking things out.'

Your educated friends are thinking things out, Mary, along with millions of other concerned, thinking people the world over; and if peaceful protests fail to stop the insanity of the nuclear weapons program, other means will have to be devised to neutralize the billionaire families and corporations which profit from this munitions industry ($15 billion dollar's worth this year in the U.S. alone!) and the evil governments which give legal support to this madness. Earth must not and will not become another Maldek.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE NO LONGER?

"In a world already too full of unwelcome news, we must share with you a recent setback in the long struggle to vindicate Karen Silkwood and force the nuclear industry to stop endangering its workers and the public. The 10th Circuit Court of Appeals has stripped the Karen Silkwood estate of all but $5,000 of the $10,500,000 judgment against the Kerr-McGee Corporation. In a 2-1 decision, the judges made a political decision which undermines our legal system while shielding the nuclear industry from the consequences of dangerously contaminating workers and the environment. . . .

"Yes, Karen's clothing and furniture are worth $5,000. But her young life (28 when she was killed) and what she fought for are worth exactly nothing according to this decision. What does this mean for the future behavior of the nuclear power industry?

"The Court held that the Atomic Energy Act pre-empts the right of juries to award punitive damages against the nuclear industry when permitted by state law. If allowed to stand, this decision says that only the Federal government -- which has long nurtured the nuclear industry -- has the right to determine whether or not the industry is guilty of endangering the lives of its workers and the public; only the Federal government -- and not the states -- can punish the industry for such abuses. Yet Federal regulatory agencies never even fined Kerr-McGee for its many wrongful acts. Now there can no longer be any redress through the courts if this decision is not overturned. . . ."

Sara Nelson, Administrator
Karen Silkwood Fund

And not a word of protest from the White House; so, another glib election campaign promise made by President Reagan goes down the drain; for he did promise to return power to the States if he was elected -- but his billionaire supporters come first. Another case in point:

LA "Times", May 30, 1982: "A Federal judge in Denver dismissed a $196-million suit by a group of landowners claiming that radioactive emissions and underground seepage from the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant posed a health hazard. The decision ended a nearly 7-year series of complaints against the Federal government, Dow Chemical and Rockwell International Corporation.

LA "Times", May 11, 1982: "The Atomic Energy Commission ordered scientists to suppress evidence that fallout from Nevada nuclear tests in the 1950s contributed to the deaths of thousands of sheep in southern Utah, a former Utah county extension agent has testified. He said government officials had given 'a kind of pre-programmed set of answers' to questions about the sheep deaths." . . .

LA "Times", May 16, 1982: "The State of New York has filed a $1.08-billion federal lawsuit asking that Getty Oil Co. and five utilities be forced to remove 165 metric tons of spent nuclear fuel rods at a defunct reprocessing plant in West Valley, south of Buffalo. The state's Energy Research and Development Authority charged that the defendants were 'unjustly enriched' by their failure to remove the rods from underwater storage at the facility and reprocess them to reclaim usable elements."

This case illustrates the staggering, enormously expensive, and so far unsolved problem of nuclear wastes which, obviously, the electric utilities companies intend to dump on us, the taxpayers. In view of the adverse decisions against the plaintiffs in the Silkwood and Rocky Flats cases is it likely that the State of New York will get any satisfaction from the Reagan Administration? Not likely.

THE RICH FALL INTO TEMPTATION

Reagan and his henchmen in Washington would do well to be reminded of Paul's admonition to Timothy about hobnobbing with the affluent. Verse 6:10 is well known, "For the love of money is the root of all evil", but Verse 9 is more explicit: "But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition."

THE REVOLUTION PREDICTED BY EISENHOWER

While in the White House President Eisenhower felt the pressures of the billionaires and their immoral greed for money. By 1959, in his second term in office, he felt led to say: "I like to believe that people in the long run are going to do more to promote peace than are governments. Indeed, I think that people want peace so much that one of these days governments had better get out of their way and let them have it."

(Quoted from Ken Keyes new paperback, "The Hundredth Monkey", published at $2.00 by Vision Books, St. Mary, Kentucky 40063 and donated to the BSRF reference library by Associate Bob Shaffer.)

Abraham Lincoln, talking to Father Chiniquy in the Oval Office of the White House in August 1861, spoke of his awareness of the financial and religious interests in this country dedicated to the total destruction of democracy. He said that if the people ever awoke to the evil of these subversive interests the revulsion would be comparable to that which swept France a hundred years earlier

(Paraphrased from Father Chiniquy's "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome", Osterhus Publishing House, 4500 West Broadway, Minneapolis, Minn. 55422, 1961 edition, $3.95)

A subcommittee in Congress has passed a resolution calling for a freeze on the production of nuclear weapons. Here in California a tremor of fear sweeps through the 7,000 employees of the nuclear weapons facility at Livermore as the statewide drive to put the Nuclear Freeze initiative on the state ballot in November gains momentum. At this writing it seems likely that California will be the first state to declare that our choice is not atomic suicide.

U.S. PSYCHOTRONICS CONFERENCE, JULY 23 - 25, 1982

At the Green Center, Colorado School of Mines, Golden, Colorado. Golden is a suburb of Denver. Title of the Conference this year is KINDLING POINT + 1.

The primary purpose of the USPA Conference is to provide an interchange of solid technical information among professionals engaged the broad area of psychotronics. Other purposes which are no less important are: To provide interesting and informative presentations for those just beginning their work in psychotronics. To provide introductory programs of interest to the general public. To provide an open forum atmosphere for new, untried and controversial ideas, projects and theories.

Papers on psychotronics subjects are welcome and, if acceptable, the researcher might be included in the speaker program and his or her paper included in future publications of the USPA. We have been invited to present our paper on "The History of Radionics" as an illustrated lecture. Other invited speakers on this year's program include Dr. Andrija Puharich, Marcel Vogel, Thomas Bearden.

For full information about the Conference and for membership in the USPA, write to Robert Beutlich, Secy-Treas., 3459 W. Montrose, Chicago, Ill. 60618. There is a regular Newsletter to members.

THE RADIONIC QUARTERLY

This is the regular publication of the British Radionic Association, 16A North Bar, Banbury, Oxon OX16 0TF, England, telephone (0295) 3183. Annual subscription £5.00 in the United Kingdom, $15.00 a year surface mail to Yankees, $20.00 airmail.

In England, Radionics is not a dirty word and this New Age science of therapy can be practiced openly without harassment by the medical authorities. The Radionic Association has regular courses in the practice of the science and graduates qualified practitioners. So, the Quarterly has articles by people who are openly making their living in this field and speak or write with the authority of their experience.

For instance, the current, June 1982 issue, has a brief article by Honor Bowen-Colthurst on "Horticultural and Agricultural Radionics" and her work in commercial Greenhouses in Sussex, which she began in 1979 "to see if we could increase yields and decrease disease and pests, these being chiefly botrytis, slugs and cutworms. We used as a witness a map of each greenhouse with North clearly marked, together with the leaves of plants taken at random to represent the whole crop. The instrument used was the Malcolm Rae 44. The results on the whole have been pleasing. The main crops grown are tomatoes, lettuces and celery. . . " She claims success also in the speeding up the growth of a lettuce crop, lagging because of lack of sunlight, to clear a greenhouse for the regular planting of tomatoes. "The majority of the lettuces were harvested at the desired weight and the house planted with tomatoes in time to yield well this summer." The use of Radionics in agriculture is enjoying a great revival of interest after the vicious attacks of the chemical industry in the 1950s. The Malcolm Rae Radionic equipment, in the opinion of your editor, is the most advanced available today. At the time of his sudden death in 1979, over 2000 of his machines had been sold and were in use all over the world, mainly in the United Kingdom; and he had created over 3000 rate cards covering all known disease conditions, remedies, parts of the body, etc. His partner, Margaret Belsham, carries on with the help of her husband. For information write to Magneto Geometric Applications, 45 Downhill Road, Catford, England SE6 1SX. Phone 01-461-2220. We are reviewing some of the late Mr. Rae's work in our current lecture on "The History of Radionics". The Rae equipment calls for the use of the Pendulum rather than the rubbing plate.

BSRF No. 2-E: THE REALITY OF THE CAVERN WORLD - Our transcribed, illustrated talk about the interior of the earth and those who live in it. This includes comment and analysis about the following: The origin of the Serpent Race, a magickal ceremony in the Alps by Lord Byron for evoking the Cavern dwellers, the Shaver Mystery and the Deros, the Catacomb of Hal Saflini on Malta, garbage dump for the Knights of St. John, human dwarfs and 20-foot giants, the Kingdom of Pan -- Fauns and Satyrs, the Planes of Consciousness in the Earth and a guided tour through the Interior, and in conclusion a message from an Earth God. Postpaid. . . $3.00

BSRF No. 7-A: RETRO ME, The Practical Magick of Psychic Self-Defense - The most important weapon in the mental arsenal of the Student of the Mysteries and Occult Science.
