THE JOURNAL OF BORDERLAND RESEARCH

BSRF No. 1 Published by Borderland Sciences Research Foundation, PO Box 549, Vista, California 92083 USA. Edited by the Director, Riley Hansard Crabb, MsD.

The Journal is published six issues a year with the assistance of the Associates, at the Director's home, 1103 Bobolink Drive, Vista. It is printed, 36 pages an issue. The Foundation is incorporated under California law, May 21, 1951, #254263, and has been in continuous existence since then. Correspondence is addressed to the PO Box. The Journal is included in the Foundation membership of $12.00 a year, domestic. Foreign membership/subscriptions are now $15.00. Single copies and back issues of the Journal are $2.50. A donation of $12 domestic or $15 foreign will also bring the Journal to those who don't care to join BSRF. The Director's wife, Mrs. Judith Crabb, is office manager and Secretary-Treasurer.

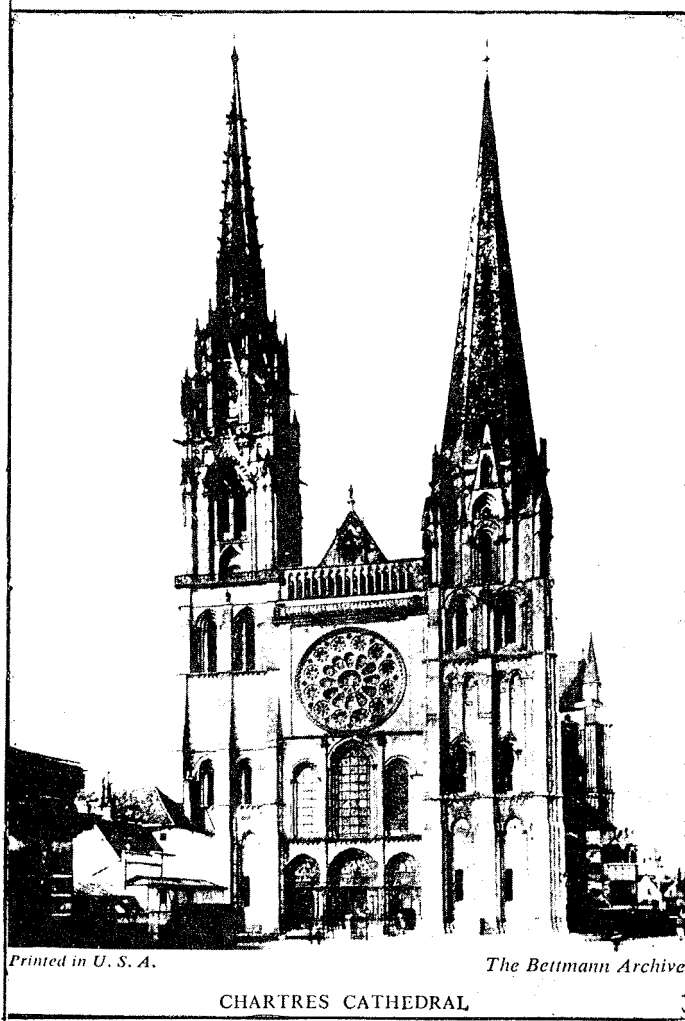

PURPOSES OF BSRF: This is a non-profit organization of people who take an active interest in unusual happenings along the borderland between the visible and invisible worlds. In the words of the late Meade Layne, founder and director of BSRF from 1946 to 1959: "BSRA publications are scientific in approach but employ few technical expressions. They deal with significant phenomena which orthodox science cannot or will not investigate. For example: The Fortean falls of objects from the sky. Teleportation, Radiesthesia, PK Effects, Underground Races, Mysterious Disappearances, Occult and Psychic Phenomena, Photography of the Invisible, Nature of the Ethers and the problem of the Aeroforms (Flying Saucers). In 1946 BSRA obtained an interpretation of the phenomena which has come to be known as the Etheric or 4-D interpretation; it has not been radically altered since that time. This continues to be the only explanation of the UFOs which makes good science, sound metaphysics and common sense."

The chief present concern of the Foundation is to make this kind of unusual information available as a public service at reasonable cost. Headquarters acts as a receiving, coordinating and distributing center. An important part of the Director's work is to give recognition, understanding and encouragement to people who are having unusual experiences of the borderland type and/or are conducting research in any of the above fields. For consultation on borderland problems or for Spiritual healing through prayer, write or phone 714-724-2043 for help or for an appointment. Donations and bequests toward Foundation research programs and expenses are welcome.

The 35-page list of BSRF publications is available from Headquarters for $2.00 in money, check or stamps. This includes brochures on borderland subjects, tape recordings of Crabb's lectures and of members of the Inner Circle, talking through trance-medium Mark Probert. CHARTRES CATHEDRAL

WARSAW, August 15, 1982 (AP): "Speaking to 200,000 pilgrims in the shrine city of Czestochowa in southern Poland, the nation's Roman Catholic primate, Archbishop Jozef Glemp, urged an end to 'hatred, which some times can be invisible but still exists when people keep silent and grind their teeth'. . . Glemp spoke at celebrations marking the 600th anniversary of the installation of the country's most revered shrine, the painting of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa at the Jasna Gora monastery. Polish-born Pope John Paul II had hoped to attend this celebration but postponed the visit at the behest of martial-law authorities. . . "

We have no information or pix of Poland's Black Madonna or Black Virgin in our BSRF reference library, but we do have some on the Black Virgins of France. Anyhow, Chartres is much easier to spell than Czestochowa and the August news item is a cue for a Christmas story about the Mother of Jesus and Her occult significance, both as the Earth Mother and the Sky Mother whose Cloak of Blue cradles the Earth in Her ever-loving arms.

THE FEELING OF POWER

"Just as the human soul has its hidden recesses, so the cathedral has its secret passages," writes the French adept, Fulcanelli, in his book "Le Mystere des Cathedrales". "They extend underground below the church and, taken all together, they form the crypt (from the Greek word 'hidden'). In this low, damp place, the observer experiences a strange feeling and one which imposes silence: it is the feeling of power combined with darkness.

"We are here in the abode of the dead, as in the basilica of Saint Denis, burial place of the famous; as in the Roman catacombs, cemetery of the Christians. Paving stones, marble mausoleums, tombs, historical debris, fragments of the past abound. A heavy silence fills the vaulted space. The thousand outside noises, vain echoes of the world, do not reach us here. Are we about to issue forth into the caves of the cyclops? Are we on the threshold of a Dantean inferno, or beneath the subterranean galleries, so welcoming, so hospitable to the first martyrs? All is mystery, anguish and fear in this obscure retreat.

"Around us are a number of enormous pillars, sometimes in pairs, standing on their broad chamfered bases; short capitals, only slightly projecting, squat and unpretentious; rough, worn shapes, in which elegance and richness give place to solidarity. Thick muscles, contracted under the effort, which untiringly share the formidable weight of the entire building. Nocturnal will, silent, rigid, strained in eternal resistance to being crushed. Material power, which the builder knew how to direct and distribute, by giving to all these members the archaic aspect of a herd of fossilized pachyderms, joined to each other, rounding their bony backs, hollowing their stone chests, under the pressure of an excessive burden. Real, but occult, power, which is exercised in secret, develops in the darkness, toils without respite in the deep foundations of the work. This is the dominant impression, felt by the visitor, when going through the galleries of a gothic crypt.

THAT PAGAN CONNECTION!

"Formerly the subterranean chambers of the temples served as abodes for the statues of Isis, which, at the time of the introduction of Christianity into Gaul, became those Black Virgins which the people of our day surround with a quite special veneration. Their symbolism is, moreover, identical; both the one and the other bear the same famous inscription on their base: Virgini Pariturae; to the Virgin about to give birth. Ch. Bigarne tells us of several statues of Isis, described in the same way. 'Already,' says the learned Pierre Dujois, in his 'Bibliographie de l'Occulte', 'the scholar Elias Schadius, in his book 'De Dictis Germanicis', had pointed out a similar inscription: 'Isidi, seu Virgini ex qua filius prodituru est'. So these icons appear to have none of the Christian meaning applied to them, at any rate exoterically.

"Isis before conception is, says Bigarne, in astronomical theogony, that attribute of the Virgin which several monuments considerably prior to Christianity describe under the name of Virgo Paritura, that is to say the earth before its fecundation and which the rays of the sun are soon going to bring to life. She is also the mother of the gods, as is attested by a stone at Die: Matri Deum, Magnae Ideae. The esoteric meaning of our Black Virgins cannot better be defined. They represent in Hermetic symbolism the virgin earth, which the artist must choose as the subject of his Great Work. It is first matter in mineral state, as it comes out of the ore-bearing strata, deeply buried under the rocky mass. It is, the texts tell us, 'a heavy, brittle, friable black substance, which has the appearance of stone and, like a stone, can shatter into minute fragments.' Thus it appears to be the rule that the personified hieroglyph of this mineral possesses its special colour and that the subterranean parts of temples are reserved as its dwelling place.

CHARTRES BEST ENDOWED

"Nowadays, Black Virgins are not numerous. I will mention a few, all of whom enjoy great celebrity. The Cathedral of Chartres is best endowed in this respect. It has two of them, one, called by the expressive name of Notre-Dame-sous-Terre (Our Lady underground), in the crypt, is seated on a throne, whose pedestal bears the inscription mentioned above: Virgini Pariturae. The other one, outside, called Notre-Dame-du-Pilier (Our Lady of the Pillar), occupies the centre of a niche filled with ex votos, in the form of burning hearts. The latter, Witkowski tells us, is the object of devotion of a great number of pilgrims. 'In early times, the stone column which supports it was worn away by the licks and bites of its fervent worshippers, like the foot of St. Peter in Rome or the knee of Hercules which the heathen worshipped in Sicily (and we might add, the nose of Lincoln's head by Protestants at his tomb in Springfield, Illinois. RHC); but in order to preserve it from too ardent kisses, in 1831 it was given a wooden surround.' Chartres, with its underground Virgin, ranks as the most ancient of all the places of pilgrimage. At first it was just an ancient statuette of Isis 'sculptured before Christ' as ancient chronicles tell us. At any rate, our present figure dates only from the very end of the eighteenth century, the one of the goddess Isis having been destroyed at some unknown date and replaced by a wooden statue in which she holds her child on her lap. This was burnt in 1793 (when the people revolted against the corruption of the Church and its priesthood. RHC).

MORE THAN JUST A CHRISTIAN TEMPLE

"The gothic cathedral, that sanctuary of Tradition, Science and Art, should not be regarded as a work dedicated solely to the glory of Christianity, but rather as a vast concretion of ideas, of tendencies, of popular beliefs; a perfect whole to which we can refer without fear, whenever we would penetrate the religious, secular, philosophic or social thoughts of our ancestors. . .

"During the great medieval period it was the scene of other ceremonies, very popular with the masses. There was the Feast of Fools -- or of the Wise -- a processional hermetic fair, which used to set out from the church with its pope, its dignitaries, its enthusiasts and its crowds, the common people of the Middle Ages, noisy, frolicsome, jocular, bursting with vitality, enthusiasm and spirit, and spread through the town. What a comedy it all was, with an ignorant clergy thus subjected to the authority of the disguised Science and crushed under the weight of undeniable authority! Ah! the Feast of Fools, with its triumphal chariot of Bacchus, drawn by a male and a female centaur, naked as the god himself, and accompanied by the great Pan; an obscene carnival taking possession of the sacred building, nymphs and naiads emerging from the bath; gods of Olympus minus their clouds and minus their clothes; Juno, Diana, Venus and Latona converging on a cathedral to hear Mass. And what a Mass it was! It was composed by the initiate Pierre de Corbeil Archbishop of Sens, and modelled on a pagan rite. Here a congregation of year 1220 uttered the bacchanal cry of joy: Evoe! Evoe! -- and scholars in ecstasy replied:

Haec est clara dies clararum clara dierum!
Haec est festa dies festarum fest dierum!

(This day is the celebrated day of celebrated Days!
This day is the fest day of feast days!)"

A SPOT OF SUNLIGHT, JUNE 21st

"There is in Chartres Cathedral, in the western isle of the south transept, a rectangular flagstone, set aslant of the others, whose whiteness is noticeable in the prevailing grey of the paving. It is conspicuous for a shining, lightly gilded metal tenon.

"Every year, on 21st June, when the sun is bright as is usual at that time of year, a ray strikes this stone at midday precisely; a ray that comes through a contrived space in the stained-glass window named for Saint Apollinaire (Apollo, the Sun God?), first on the western side of the transept. All the guides point this out and it is accepted as a whim on the part of the pavior, glazier or builder. Chance having brought me to Chartres one 21st June, I formed the wish to see this curiosity, among other curiosities of the place. In my reckoning, local midday time would fall between a quarter and five minutes to 1 p.m. as shown by our watches. It was exactly then that the ray illuminated the stone. . .

"A concerted intention was at the bottom of this. Stonemason and glazier obeyed an order. And this order was given with a view to a specific time; the only moment in the year when a ray of the sun can fall on the flagstone in the summer Solstice, the sun reaching the climax of its northern journey. It was then given by an astronomer. . . the inclination of the slab was certainly intended. The place was chosen by a geometer.

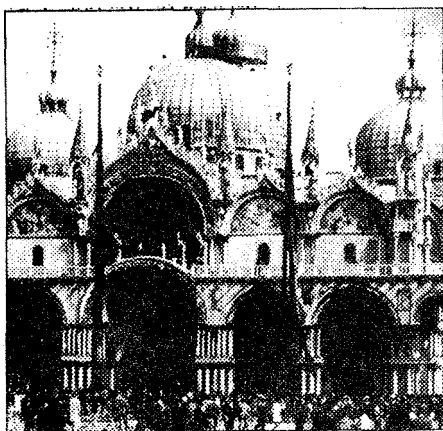

"When this little game of 'the sun on the slab' is played in one of the most venerated chathedrals of the West, in one of the places of highest fame in France, the idea takes hold of you that there is a mystery. It took hold of me. . . "

No mystery to a student of the Cabala, the "disguised Science" as Fulcanelli calls it, for the Hierophant of the Lodge leads his students of the Mysteries through a ritual appropriate to the Summer Solstice, positioning himself so the beam of light from the high noon sun strikes the crown of his head. When it does so, he redirects the ray to the Atf crowns of his followers, that their Solar Angels may benefit, too, from the intense radiance of that 'high tide' of Solar energy. We may be sure that students of other solar gods, Buddha, Zoroaster, Lao Tse, Krishna, Hiawatha, Lono, etc. had rites designed to take advantage of that Solar tide.

THE RAINBOW OF COLOR IN CHARTRES

"Here the half-light was magical with bright rays. Everything contained its opposite in itself (a Cabalistic principle). Immensity welcomed you. Height. . . seemed to induce growth. Although the sun stood in the south, it was the Rose in the north transept that glowed with a thousand fires. The tall figures of St. Anne of the Black Face, holding both the Lily and the Virgin, of Solomon and David, of Melchisedek and Aaron, though immobile were alive with Light. . .

The Romanesque arches and domes of St. Marks in Venice, Italy, quite different from the up-lifting Gothic arch.

"If we confine ourselves to Gothic art this alone puts a question to which no answer has ever been given," writes Charpentier. "We know all about Romanesque origins (the rounded dome); we follow the path from monument to monument, period to period; but the Gothic has always eluded attempts to fix its origin. The historic question remains posed. It appears suddenly, without preamble, towards 1130 A.D. (not long after the first of the Knights Templars returned to France from Jerusalem! RHC). In a few years it reaches its apogee, born whole and entire without experiment or miscarriage. And the extraordinary thing is that all at once it has at its disposal master craftsmen, artisans, builders, enough of them to undertake the construction of eighty huge monuments in less than a hundred years. . .

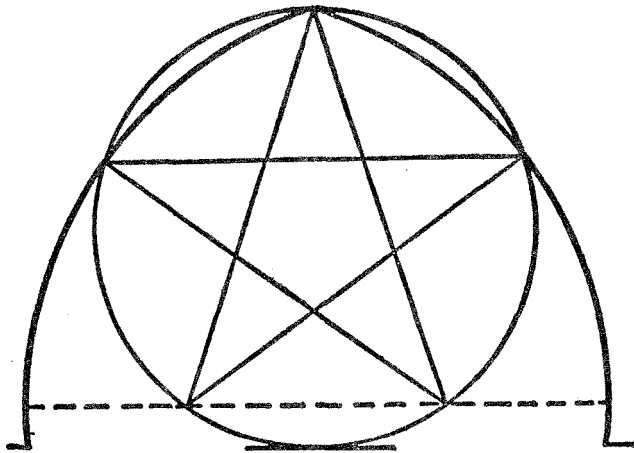

"The relations of breadth, length and height were not planned to make the church look pretty; they result from a necessity which the builders could not escape, something 'outside' themselves. In the same way the Ogive proceeds from a necessity which is moreover less architectural than physiological.

Yes, the occult Hierarchy of the planet had decided it was time for Western man to get up off his knees and stand on his feet! And we freedom-loving Australians, Americans and New Zealanders are the result of those Forces set in motion 700 years ago in France, Germany and England.

"And those famous windows, which no one has ever been able to analyze or reproduce, and which possess such extraordinary qualities of light were conceived under necessity. (That "necessity" no doubt was an appropriate Cabalistic ritual performed over each batch of colored glass, tintured with a few drops of freshly shed blood or sperm to give it the necessary life while in the molten state. RHC) Everything is designed to act on man, on mankind; everything to the last detail: the labyrinth now littered with chairs, the flagstone on which the midday sun casts a spot of light at the summer solstice.

MYSTERY ON MYSTERY

"All these things were brought into being by men who knew what they were about. We do not know who they were or whence they came. It was great. Notre Dame de Chartres is 700 years old. The church has suffered, apart from the inescapable damage of time, at least one serious fire; yet there has never been any need to strengthen, shore up or restore, save some matters of detail. And these amazing architects who conceived the church, the builders who built it -- we simply do not know them. . . Faith may remove mountains and these men undoubtedly had it; but it calls for something more to poise the largest known Gothic vault and one of the highest. It calls for knowledge. Where did they get it?"

"Cluny is explained by its scholarly monks -- but not Chartres, Amiens, Sens, Reims, about which there is nothing monkish, for these are popular shrines, built for the people, by laymen; by men of this ignorant people, that is. We ask how they can have furnished carpenters, masons, stonemasons, sculptors, scholars in numbers required for the building of these immense vessels of stone. One has to bear in mind that in northern France alone, at the time Chartres was being built, nearly twenty cathedrals of the same importance were under construction, all by hand. . .

"This flowering of the cathedrals must have been willed. . . by an organization with the requisite knowledge, which had competent builders at its disposal and the means to finance them. Finally, and this is obvious, it must have been of a religious order. But the secular clergy, the bishops, canons and priests, had neither the knowledge nor, apart from the great metropolitan sees, the means. Only the monastic orders, above all the Benedictines and Cistercians, had at that time the knowledge, the means and the builders; but they reserved it all for their abbeys. It was neither Cluny nor Citeaux that made Chartres. We fall from one mystery to another. And why this huge, magnificent church in the mere borough of Chartres?"

THE DRUID GROTTO UNDER THE HILL, ON A LEY LINE

"The cathedral of Chartres stands on an eminence whose history remains in many respects mysterious. In Christian times it was one of the most sought-after places of pilgrimage in France; but before that the Gauls went there in crowds and still earlier the whole Celtic world, even from beyond the Rhine.

"Pilgrims of the Christian era, those of the Great Pilgrimage, who came from the East, entered the town by the Porte Guillaume not far from which they were received at the 'hospital' of the Benedictine monastery whose Abbey is now the church of St. Peter. Here they were lodged, refreshed, cherished; then, having prayed in the Abbey, heard matins and mass, they went up singing psalms to do homage to Our Lady of Under-the-Earth, the Black Virgin, in whose honor they had taken the pilgrim's staff and cape.

"Next, they went in procession, by a passage on the north side which leads to the crypt, to visit a grotto underneath the church, where the sacred statue was to be seen. Having punctiliously made their devotions and having been asperged with water from a well which opens in the crypt, of which they likewise drank, they walked in procession, still underground, round the vault of Saint Lubin and emerged by the southern passage.

The Celtic well at the foot of Sainte Modeste (North Door). (Chapter 2.)

"In the evening they listened to the story of the Black Virgin. The statue, carved in the hollowed-out trunk of a pear tree and very ancient, represented the Holy Virgin, seated with the Infant God on her knees. Age had blackened it, for it was made, not by Christians but before the birth of the Saviour by Druids, pagan priests to whom a prophetic angel announced that a Virgin would give birth to a God; and it was thus that they prostrated Her, as She was to be, with great devotion and on the pedestal they wrote, in fine Roman lettering, the words Virgini Pariturae, meaning, 'The Virgin who will give birth to a Child'.

"When the first Christians came to Chartres they found this statue and were amazed. They conceived a deep reverence for this prophetic Virgin and they continued to call the cave where they found Her 'the Druid grotto', and without knowing why, they called the well on one side of it 'The Well of the Strong', a name it had kept through the ages.

"What the pilgrims did not know was that they had merely taken a road that generations on generations had taken before them. . . before the Christians. . . before the Celts. . . in the grotto where a Virgin Mother reigned, a Black Virgin who was named

Isis perhaps, or Demeter, or Belisama. . . They came a long way to reach this spot, this mound, where Earth dispensed gifts. . . One seeks the gifts of Earth, something Earth gives like a Mother. . . A pilgrimage being essentially a religious exercise, it is a religious advantage that is sought. It is Spirit that one wishes to find. . . where a man quickens the sense of the Divine in himself. This is the greatest gift of Earth and Heaven to man. . .

THE EARTH'S GRID LINES, ALWAYS THERE

"More sensitive than we to the action and properties of natural forces, the ancients knew such places much better than we do and if we want to find them again we are reduced to searching among the clues they left, megalithis, dolmens or temples. Chartres is certainly such a place. . .

"It would be a pity not to recall the old Gaulish name for Spirit, Wouivre. . . the name our ancestors gave at the same time to snakes that glide on the ground and, by extension, to rivers that 'snake' much as the Wouivre, and to currents that 'snake' through the ground. Today we call these 'telluric'. Some of them spring from the movement of subterranean waters; others from faults which have brought different kinds of soils into contact, which develop differences of potential according to changes in temperature; some flow from the depths of terrestrial magma.

"These currents are a manifestation of a life that goes on deep in the earth. . . they carry to those places where they are found a fresh supply of life which makes the earth fruitful. . . the ancients gave the name Wouivres to the currents that today we term cosmic, or at least magnetic. They represented them by winged serpents and some times birds. . . often shown as birds with women's faces. . . the places where they were especially active were marked with stones which in some manner localized and condensed them. (Crossing points of grid lines? RHC) Sometimes tall stones were used to collect celestial currents as well; today we call them menhirs. These were fertility stones, for they accumulated the fertilizing properties of earth and sky. . . a Dolmen is not a fertility stone; its significance is religious. It is placed on a spot where the telluric current exercises a spiritual action on man, a spot where 'the spirit breathes. It reanimates the cavern and it is in the bosom of the Earth herself, within the dolmenic chamber, that man seeks Earth's gifts. . . one was held in higher repute than all the others. It was situated in the country of the Canutes . . . the sacred stone of Belisama was laid in a sacred place, this stone, brought here and set up in the night of time, is still to be seen. The cathedral was built over it. . .

A TELLURIC CURRENT OF SPECIAL POWER

"At Chartres the earth has a peculiar quality which enables man to obtain integration, initiation, grace; and this new birth into a higher state of humanity. It must have been held in the highest esteem to set such a crowd of pilgrims on the road. . . the Druids, who were for a long time hierophants of the place, took care only to initiate those worthy of it who from this very fact would not be tempted to make use of powers that were the evident result."

JESUS, OF THE CELTIC DRUIDS

No doubt a Jesus was initiated there, or Hesus, 834 B.C., whose ministry and martyrdom centered around what is now Marseilles, France. It was the unending conflicts of his followers in later years, with those of the Hindu savior, Krishna, that caused the Council of Nicea to create the compound name, Jesus Christ, for the new, priesthood-created savior, to placate both sides.

"One remembers with what care the ancients, including Christians, established their cult sites over points that were tellurically potent -- the telluric current that bathes Notre Dame of Chartres with its terrestrial emanations. For unlike most Christian churches of old days the head of this cathedral is directed, not to the east but the northeast, by more than 45°," continues Charpentier in Chapter 3 "A Mysterious Orientation".

"Earth turns with its aerial envelope, but there is another and invisible thing that does not turn with her, not at the same time, that is, the medium in which the worlds swim. The Greeks called it Aether; the Alchemists Spirit of the World; our ancestors the Winged Wouivre, the Celestial Great Serpent. . . Why then is Chartres turned not to the East but to the Northeast? . . . There is but one explanation, the direction of the telluric current. One goes to Chartres to ask something of the Earth and one must bathe in the terrestrial current, face toward it. . . access to the dolmen must have been by a covered way through which a man went, bathed in the telluric current, to the new birth which is impregnation of his being with divine Spirit.

"Over and above this, it is truly remarkable that the Christians should have reconstituted this 'covered way' for what otherwise are the galleries that lead from the towers of the facade to the grotto where Our Lady of Under-the-Earth was found, to the site of the dolmem, the well whose water was reputed miraculous long before? . . . "

THE MUSICAL MYSTERY AT CHARTRES

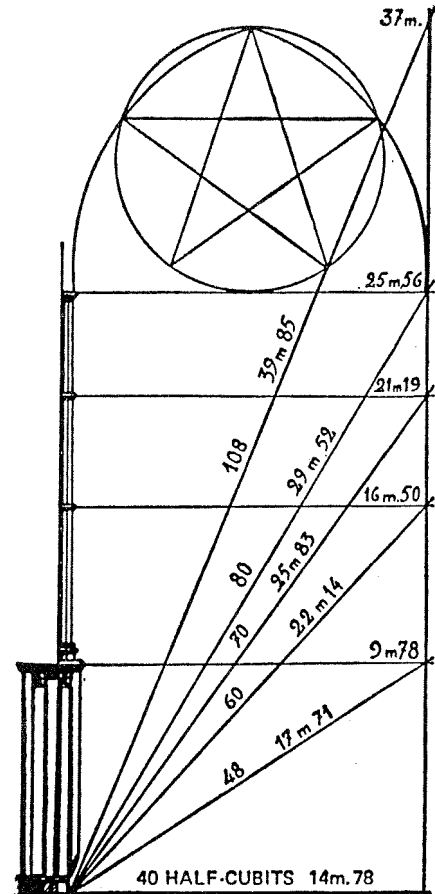

Charpentier speculates that the Ogive idea was brought to France in the 11th Century by the Knights Templars: "The physical and physiological action of the ogive on man is extraordinary. Whether it is due to mimesis, to the action of lines of force or to other causes, the ogive works on mankind. Beneath it a man pulls himself together, stands upright. It is very important historically. It dates the beginning of individual consciousness among men, until then reduced to a condition of total slavery, by the 'race of seigneurs'. The idea of a community, a common people dates from it.

"This is yet more important in a religious sense, because physiologically telluric or other current can only enter man via a vertebral column that is straight and vertical. Men can only move to a higher state by standing upright. . . The keystone of the vault is at the highest point of the star. . . From the ogive the 'creators' of Gothic went on to derive much more by a process of 'crossing' it. They found the high secret of the musical stone, the stone under tension, a secret lost when men lost the science of transporting the huge dolmen-tables.

"The crossed ogive is built on the principle of the transformation of lateral into vertical thrust. It is a sum of forces in which the vault no longer weights down but springs upward under the lateral counter thrust of the buttresses. . . The activity in the stone, therefore, is a state of constant tension which the art of the master builder can 'tune' like a harp-string."

And Charpentier insists that Gothic style did not grow out of the Romanesque style of the Roman Catholics, as some claim. "Romanesque handles forces that are directed downward. The vault weighs on the walls" as it weighs on the worshippers, on their knees. "The Gothic, built up on a dynamic of pressures, handles forces directed upwards. The Romanesque vault collapses, the Gothic leaps." And those magnificent, freedom-inspiring temples, were built by secret orders of the Freemasons, who left the signatures of their occult science and their craft everywhere on those buildings, for those who "see" rather than

AN AMERICAN SEER, HENRY ADAMS

"At the entrance to Chartres the Virgin declares herself divinely Queen in her own right; divinely born; divinely resurrected from death, on the third day; seated by divine right on the throne of Heaven, at the right hand of God, the Son, with Whom She is one.

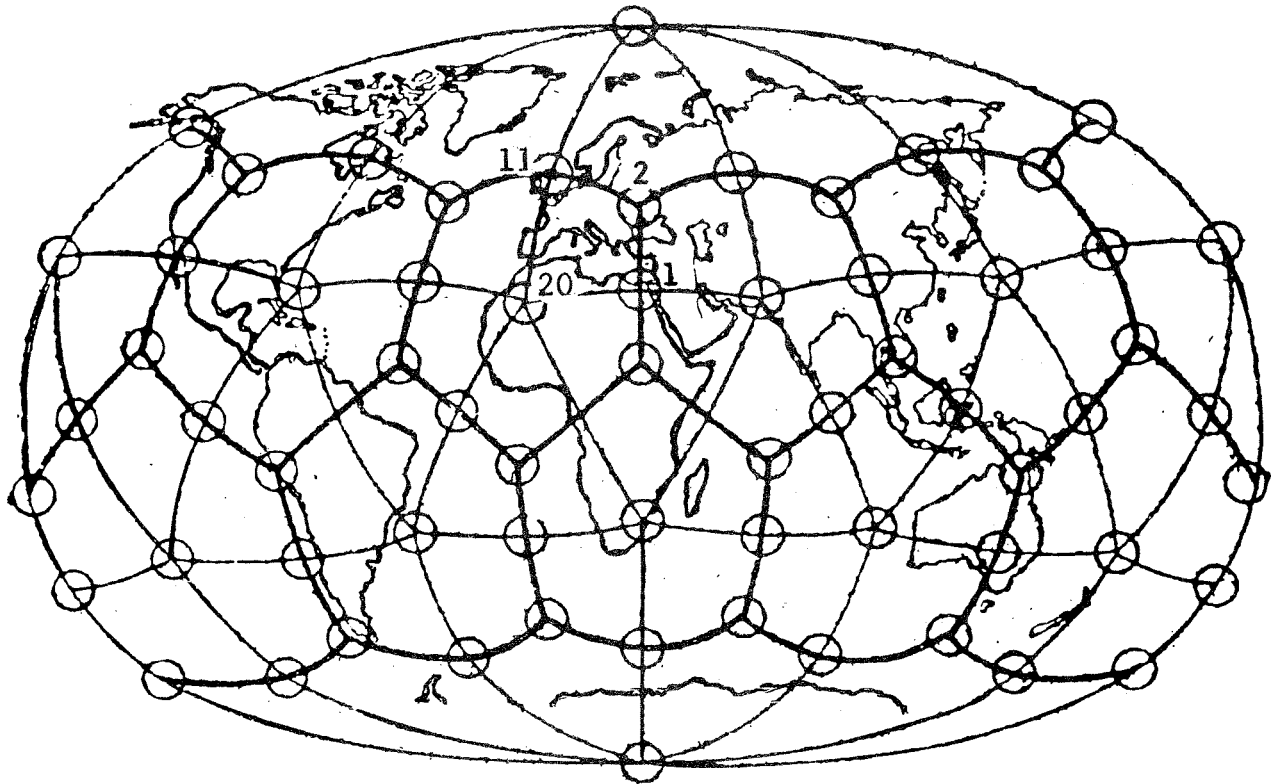

It seems that the image-maker who sculpted the tympanum of the door of The Nativity at the royal entrance to Chartres Cathedral took for his model the Black Virgin from the crypt, which was destroyed in the sixteenth-century. (Chapter 2.) Photo: Giraudon.

"Unless we feel this assertion of divine right in the Queen of Heaven, apart from the Trinity, yet one with It, Chartres is unintelligible," writes Henry Adams in "Mont-Saint Michel and Chartres" after his pilgrimages there in the 1890s. "The extreme emphasis laid upon it at the church door shows what the church means within. Of course the assertion was not strictly orthodox; perhaps, since we are not members of the (Roman Catholic) Church, we might be unnoticed and unrebuked if we start by suspecting that the worship of the Virgin never was strictly orthodox; but Chartres was Hers before it ever belonged to the Church and, like Lourdes in our own time, was a shrine peculiarly favored by Her presence. The mere fact that it was a bishopric had little share in its sanctity. The bishop was much more afraid of Mary than he was of any Church Council ever held.

". . . At Chartres Christ is identified with His Mother, the spirit of love and grace, and His Church is the Church triumphant. Not only is fear absent; there is not even a suggestion of pain; there is not a martyr with a symbol of his martyrdom; and what is still more striking, in the sculptured life of Christ, from the Nativity to the Ascension, the single scene that has been omitted is the Crucifixion. There, as everywhere in this portal, the artists seem to have gone out of their way in order to avoid the suggestion of suffering. . . perhaps even more emphatic is the sculptor's earnestness to make you feel, without direct insistence, that you are entering the Court of the Queen of Heaven. . . " Interesting, isn't it, that Chartres is not cursed with one of those hideous caricatures of Christ on the Cross that disfigures Roman Catholic churches and represses the parishioners. ("Mont-Saint-Michel and Chartres", by Henry Adams, a Mentor Classic paperback, 1961, The New American Library, 501 Madison Ave, New York, New York 10022, 75¢)

PLANETARY GRID

The above map of intersecting lines of Etheric forces is the so-called Russian Grid because it was developed by Russian engineers and archaeologists. It was illustrated and described at length several years ago in an article by Christopher Bird in the "New Age Journal" (date not given) and sent to us by an Associate. The idea of a world-wide power grid along which Flying Saucers travel regularly is not new to Journal readers. We reviewed Capt. Bruce Cathie's book on the subject, "Harmonic 33", in the early '70s. He thought he had discovered something new but was chagrined to learn that an elite group of American scientists was already well into the subject and were developing a grid map of their own, apparently in cooperation with Flying Saucer entities, and keeping it secret! After all, if such a free-flowing source of usable energy became available to the general public it would raise hell with the electric and petroleum power monopolies -- not to mention Wall Street's massive investments in same!

More recently, the First Quarter 1982 issue of "Pursuit", the Journal of the Society for the Investigation of the Unexplained, has an excellent article on "The Planetary Grid" by John T. Sinkiewicz. His numbering system for the major crossing points is different from that in Bird's chart above, but he goes into considerably greater detail of the Grid System and its refinements, including coordinates for the intersections, down to the 4th decimal place!

CHARTRES ON A GRID LINE?

Louis Charpentier, in his book "The Mysteries of Chartres Cathedral" makes much of the idea that the gallery crypt leading to the Black Virgin was lined up with Telluric (earth) forces flowing in a north-easterly direction. Thus the worshipful feelings of the pilgrims to the underground shrine were enhanced.

He notes also that the cathedral itself is laid out on a north-east line, rather than the traditional east, which causes the Celebrant of the Eucharist to look toward the rising sun when facing the altar. But Notre Dame de Chartres is dedicated to She who bore the Savior, rather than to the great Sun spirit Himself; so Charpentier suspects that the Knight Templar initiate who laid out the temple in the 12th Century was well aware of the flow of the Earth Mother's currents in that part of France. It is only now, in the late 20th Century, that these grid lines are being "re-discovered" by science.

Turn back to page 13 and the small circle at the bottom center of the illustration. Count up five circles, to the one labeled "1". This is the great pyramid of Gizeh at Cairo, Egypt. This, the most obvious grid marker in the Western world the Russians chose as the first. Sinkiewicz gives this as Longitude 29°58' North and 31°09' East. Go up to the next circle, marked "2". This is Kiev, Russia, 50°53'N - 31°07'E. Now over to the left to the next big intersection marked "11". This is Edinburgh, Scotland, 56°56'N - 3°17'W, and down to the next big intersection, marked "20". This is somewhere out in the Erg Iguidi desert of southwestern Algeria, 25°08'N - 4°21'West. We have now bracketed France in the Earth's icosadodecahedron grid system -- a geometrical figure which, its discoverers claim, preceded and guided the physical construction of the earth billions of years ago, and sustains its present life and form. Women give form to life so it is logical to assume that the Grid System represents a Cosmic Feminine force, the Great Sky Mother!

We transferred grid crossings 1, 2, 11 and 20 from a world map to the Map of Europe in the "Great World Atlas" published by the Reader's Digest. Then we laid out the minor grid lines as nearly as we could figure it out from Sinkiewicz's instructions. Sure enough, Chartres is on a northeast line which also includes Paris.

Proof that the existence of the Grid System was known in Europe in ancient times is the re-discovery of Ley lines and their markers all over the place. There is also the quote from the Greek philosopher-magician-mathematician, Pythagoras, in Chris Bird's article on the Russian grid -- and also taught by Plato: "The earth, viewed from above, resembles a ball sewn from twelve pieces of skin." Were Plato and Pythagoras taken aloft in a Flying Saucer to have such an exalted view of the earth? Or were these advanced, Sixth sub-race humans capable of OOBs, Out-of-the-Body projections in full consciousness? Take your choice. THE TYPICAL GEOMETRIC STRUCTURE OF DISEASE

or HOMEOPATHY UP TO DATE

by Malcolm Rae, Part II

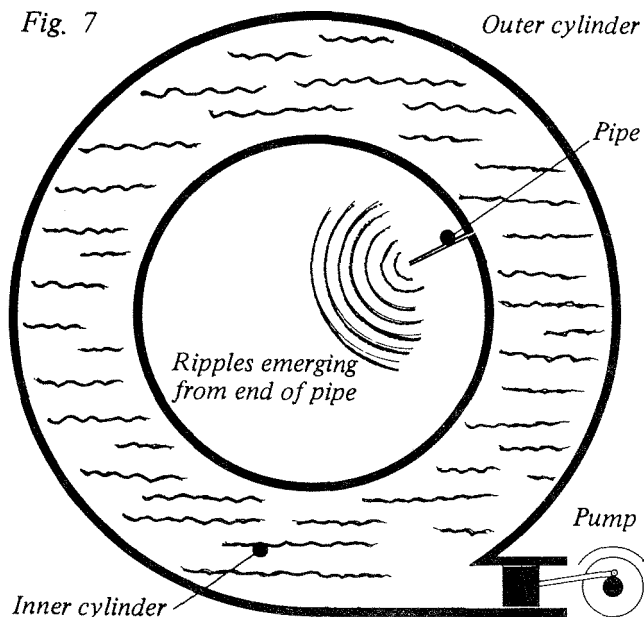

An interesting observation is that any substance can be charged with its own potency energy, but water, alone, can be charged with the potency energy of any other substance.

The best analogy available is this:

1. Imagine a plan view of two concentric cylindrical open-topped tanks each almost full of water. Imagine that the outer tank has entering it a pipe from a pump which rhythmically increases and decreases the pressure inside it. (6)
2. Under such circumstances, the water in the outer tank will be disturbed by pressure waves, from which the water in the inner tank will be screened by its cylindrical construction.
3. Now imagine a short length of pipe extending towards the centre of the inner tank from a hole in its side. From the inner end of the pipe ripples will be formed. (Figure 7)
4. Add a second length of pipe from another hole in the side of the inner tank and ripples will emerge from it, to mingle with those from the first pipe, forming an interference pattern. (Figure 8)

In the foregoing analogy the pulsating water in the outer tank represents the pulsations attributed to the magnet, and the inner tank and pipes represent the simulator card on which the printed lines are able to carry the magnetic pulsations.

The interference pattern is not affected by the size, but is dependent solely upon the proportion; and it may be compressed into a connection from a point at or near its centre, and lead to a circular disc wherein it expands to cover the area of the disc. A vial of water, standing on the disc, will become charged with the pattern of the card -- as long as the vial holding the water is cylindrical in shape.

The pattern within the circle is a function of the following factors:

1. The Nature of the vibrations applied to it.
2. The number of partial radii.
3. The relative lengths of the partial radii.
4. The angular distance apart of the partial radii.

However, since the magnetic vibrations employed are a facet of the Universe, they may be regarded as constant, and by making all the partial radii the same length, the pattern becomes dependent only upon the number of partial radii, and the angular distance between them.

REMEDIES ARE CODED MESSAGES

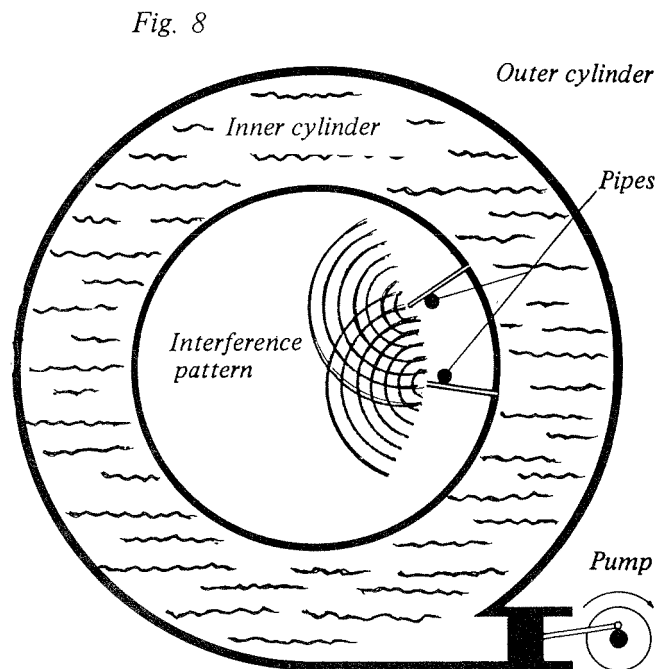

Excluding surgery, manipulation and methods involving direct adjustment of the patient's physical body, there appear to be no more than two basic ways in which a therapist can influence him. He can introduce into the patient coded instructions designed to remind him what to do remedy his disorders (which include all oral remedies other than food supplements), and he can provide him with the material substances required by his organism to fulfill those instructions. All Homeopathic remedies, however prepared, above about 12C potency, and all magneto-geometrically prepared remedies, regardless of potency, are solely coded message bearers and nothing else. They do not contain the material, but only the information pattern of the substance they represent.

It must be stressed that exact equivalents of conventionally made Homeopathic remedies below 12C, or of tissue salts, cannot be made by magneto geometry; for whilst it can replicate the thought which defines the material, it cannot create the material. In practise, it appears to be the "message" only which is required for most administrations of even low potency preparations -- but the limitations must not be overlooked.

Out side of that limitation, magneto-geometric preparation has a number of advantages, and no disadvantages known to me. Amongst the advantages are the following:

1. Remedies prepared by magneto-geometry are consistently accurate as the standard as to which the card is drawn. They cannot vary due to variations in mother tinctures. Nor can they be influenced by the substance of the containers in which they are potentised.
2. Regardless of the potency required, only one process is needed, occupying a maximum of 6 minutes.

Nov-Dec 1982 RR, Page 17

This removes all liability of error which might occur in the long sequence of processes, and it enables high potencies of new remedies to be prepared in minutes.

3. To prepare remedies, such as Oxygen M, which would be difficult if not impossible to prepare by succussion-dilution, is no problem. Hence the range of remedies available to the Homeopath has been greatly extended by the development of the magneto-geometric method.

4. The ability to prepare a remedy within minutes relieves the practitioner of the need to carry large stocks, and enables him to provide a remedy or potency which he does not have in stock, without having to order it and await its arrival. Moreover, instruments are small enough for a visiting doctor to carry one, together with a suitable selection of cards, on his rounds.

5. The cost of each card, from which an unlimited quantity of the remedy, in any potency, may be prepared, is only about the same as the cost of the smallest vial of a manufactured remedy.

6. The list of Homeopathic remedies for which cards are available exceeds 2,000, and continues to increase in response to requests for remedies not yet listed.

Consideration of these advantages focusses the attention upon the two serious weaknesses in the descriptions applied to Homeopathic preparations. These are:

1. As previously observed, the number used to describe the potency of the preparation does not describe the preparation itself, but relates only to the number of stages of succussion to which it has been subjected, and the degree of dilution of each stage. It is, then, little wonder that radiesthetically competent Homeopaths have not infrequently observed differences between remedies bearing the same description, from different manufacturers -- for the actual potency is dependent upon many factors, amongst which are:

- a. The number of stages of succussion and dilution.
- b. The number of succussions per stage.
- c. The degree of dilution per stage, which is normally standardised to one in ten parts or to one in one hundred.
- d. The violence of the impact of each succussion.
- e. The orientation of travel prior to impact.
- f. The length of travel prior to that impact.

There are probably other factors, but the foregoing are enough to render it obvious that unless all were standardised throughout all manufacturers, differences in products would surely occur.

THE QUALITY OF A HOMEOPATHIC REMEDY

2. The second weakness to which I would refer is an overlooked factor which might be described as "the quality of a remedy", and the most suitable analogy by which to illustrate it is electrical. Two definitions normally applied to a Homoeopathic remedy are:

- a. The substance from which it is prepared, which might be called its "characteristic".
- b. Its potency, which might be regarded as its "voltage".

The "characteristic" of a car battery could be described as "direct current electric motive force", and its voltage would probably be nominally 12 measured when the battery is not connected to a circuit which is drawing power from it. However, the time throughout which a battery will remain at 12 volts when apparatus is connected to it is drawing on its content, is called its capacity, and is expressed in ampere-hours. The number of ampere-hours available will depend on the size of the battery and the amount of charge which it is holding. Together, these two factors might termed its "quality".

When an oral remedy is taken by a patient, it is similar to a little battery from which is drawn the patient's requirement. If the remedy is of poor quality, the patient's requirements soon discharges it and renders it ineffectual. If it is of high quality however, it will be better able to meet the patient's needs.

The quality of a succussion-diluted prepared remedy is probably dependent upon the factors which I have enumerated, or at least upon some of them. Observation of Dr. Hahnemann's instructions produced a high quality remedy. The quality of a remedy may be measured radiesthetically, on a 100 cm rule having a circular disc at the zero end. The remedy is placed upon the disc and the extent of the energy field along the rule is measured with a pendulum. A magnet is brought close to the edge of the disc at the same instant that a stop watch is started, and the magnet will start to neutralise the remedy and reduce its field. A continuous check on the measurement along the rule is made until it has reached exactly half its original measurement, at which time the watch is stopped. The time which has elapsed whilst the reduction in measurement has occurred may be regarded as the half life of the remedy under those circumstances, and the longer it is, the better is the remedy's quality.

If the standard comparative measurements are to be made in this manner, it is of course necessary to have the rule correctly orientated and remote from ferrous metal; it is necessary to use a standard size and material of disc; and it is necessary to use a standard magnet always identically placed; but Homoeopaths with radiesthetic sensitivity may make relative comparisons of remedies from their own stocks by the simple method I have outlined.

Remedies prepared by the efficient application of Magneto-Geometry will be found to have about the highest "capacity" available, and man, amongst other positive characteristics, be expected to possess a commensurately long "shelf life" should the need arise to store them.

A BLACK BOX FOR PREPARATIONS

Earlier in this article, mention was made of an instrument which will prepare remedies from substances, or from existing potencies of substances, without the use of geometric cards. This is illustrated in figure 9, and functions by the application of magnetism to a sample of the substance from which the potency is required; or by the application of magnetism to any potency of that substance. It does not supersede the potency simulator, but rather it is complementary to it -- for whilst the former can prepare the potencies of substances for which the user possesses none, the latter will immediately prepare a potency of any substance which he does possess. It renders auto-therapy much more workable than it has previously been, for a potency can be made within a few minutes from a sample of the patient's blood, urine or sputum.

It enables the practitioner to prepare immediately highly individual remedies sometimes required for treating allergies.

Not only will it prepare any potency from any substance, but it will prepare any potency from any other potency of that substance. For example, if Gelsemium 30 is available, and Gelsemium M is needed, or vice versa, the required potency may be prepared from that which is available.

In conclusion, it should be stressed that whatever weaknesses exist in the theoretical understanding of Magneto-Geometric remedy preparations, the system has been well tried by many Homoeopaths. There are around 1,000 instruments currently in use (1976), in 19 different countries, and an ever-increasing demand for additions to the already 2,000-strong card repertoire.

Malcolm Rae died suddenly in 1979, probably the victim of psychic attack -- as did several other leading Radiesthesists that year, within a few months of each other. This kind of martyrdom is not unusual for those who pioneer radical changes in procedure for entrenched interests, medical or otherwise. His partner over the years, Margaret Belsham, carries on with Magneto Geometric Applications, 45 Dowanhill Road, Catford, England SE6 1SX, phone 01-461-2220. In the opinion of your editor, this is the most advanced Radionic system available today.

The patron saint of martyred pioneers is Prometheus. If you remember your Greek mythology, it was He who dared to bring down the fire of heaven to mortals, and lost His freedom in the successful attempt -- perhaps because He saw the Light "as through a glass darkly" and wasn't fully aware of all the implications of such a dare.

CLIPS, QUOTES & COMMENTS —

THE "BLACK VIRGIN" AND HER DAUGHTERS ON THE MARCH IN USA

"Dear R. Crabb:

"The countdown for the Equal Rights Amendment is now over. But the battle for equality for women will go on -- stronger than ever -- until justice is ours. Soon I will send you a letter detailing the next steps we must take together down the long, difficult path toward justice and equality.

"For now, however, it is fitting that you and I pause to commemorate the historic campaign we have waged together. As part of that remembrance I wanted to write you personally and share my thoughts and impressions with you. Toward the end of those last difficult weeks of lobbying, it was so easy to feel deserted and betrayed. But, frankly, in the final hours as I stood before a crowded Washington press conference to announce the end of the Countdown Campaign, I didn't feel deserted at all.

"I knew that you and the 200,000 members and friends of NOW were with me. And I knew also that we had the hopes, prayers, and good wishes of countless millions more. Now that the campaign is over, I have two distinct feelings. One is sadness. The other is that of liberation.

"I feel sad for those very real victims of sex discrimination who will continue to suffer economic deprivation because there is no ERA. The elderly women cheated by the unfairness of the Social Security System laws which result in women receiving significantly less in benefits than men. The divorced women whose lives are made even more difficult by state statutes that discriminate. And the unemployed women who bear the brunt of a wretched economy where affirmative action is all but dead amid a resurgence of more -- not less -- sex discrimination.

"Life will be much tougher for these women without the Equal Rights Amendment. But they will not be forgotten. NOW will not forget them. You and I will not forget them. At the same time I have a new sense of liberation -- of freedom -- which I hope you share. No longer must we walk on pins and needles, afraid to disturb or alienate those legislators whose votes we needed to close razor-thin margins in the remaining unratified states.

"No more begging! No more insults! No more!

"Now you and I are free of the oppressive deadline. If the battle for the ERA taught us anything, it clearly and unequivocally demonstrated that women are a mighty and skillful political force.

A growing political force. The next time the Equal Rights Amendment is considered, we will have changed the political face of this nation.

THE VICTORY OF MIRO IS ILLUSORY

"This time a handful of fearful men together with the silent lobby of corporate interests which profit from sex discrimination stopped us. Out of fear of change in their 'good old boy' lifestyle, and with the support of those who profit from sex discrimination, this handful of legislators denied equality to half the population of this nation. But their victory will prove illusory and their historic importance trivial.

"These men of limited vision are holdovers from another age. And you and I will ride the rising tide of public opinion to help defeat them, help change the laws they pass, and help curb discrimination by those industries that put them into office in the first place and that continue to profit from their actions. As you and I remember the ERA we must not forget our opposition, the Republican Right which openly attacked and destroyed the ERA, those Democrats who opposed it, and those business interests that worked ever so quietly and effectively against it.

"And we will always remember our friends. Friends like you.

"No memory of this historic campaign would be complete without using the word 'sacrifice' to describe the extraordinary effort which went into the ERA campaign. In the final year of ratification, hundreds of NOW activists rearranged their lives totally to work on the Countdown campaign. Thousands gave up their free time, weekends and vacations to work as volunteers for weeks on end. Hundreds of thousands sacrificed both time and money to make the ERA the law of the land. . .

"Other statistics which signal the fact that this historic movement will not be denied, that it just grows stronger every day. . . NOW's growth from 40,000 members five years ago to more than 200,000 today, and still growing. Behind these numbers are the real people like you who stuck with us through the difficult months. Friends like you who will not rest until equality and justice are ours.

"As I look at my daughter. . . As I look at the contemptuous expressions on the faces of some state legislators. . . As I think about you. . . I know there is no defeat -- only delay -- and no power exists that can kill our dream of 'equality of rights under the law' -- our work together is not the end but the beginning of a massive, historical struggle for equality that will ultimately prevail."

So, in their drive for Equal Rights it is the Daughters of Isis, the Black Virgin, who will "change the political face of this nation". Well, they are on a collision course with MIRO, the Military-Industrial-Religious Oligarchy that runs the nation at a profit, dominated by men, of course. The largest and wealthiest corporation by far that these activist women have to contend with is the Roman Catholic Church. The irony of it is that the President, Eleanor Smeal, is herself a Roman Catholic. If she continues her present course she, like Martin Luther of old, will have to make an agonizing reappraisal of her religious affiliation; for the Good Old Boy who heads the Church at present made it abundantly clear when he was in the United States a couple of years ago that, as far as he was concerned, women would continue to hold their secondary, inferior status in the Church.

Church policy in this country is formulated and administered by the National Conference of Bishops, the most powerful political lobby in the Nation's capital. A good example of their strength was the 1962 arrest of Hugh Hefner, publisher of "Playboy" magazine, for pornography. Their real goal was censorship because Hefner was running a long series of editorials on his liberal philosophy, and it was being read and discussed by millions of impressionable young Americans. Hefner found that the arresting officers were Roman Catholics. The District Attorney was Roman Catholic. The mayor of Chicago was Roman Catholic. The governor of the state of Illinois was Roman Catholic; and when he looked to the leadership of the nation in Washington he found that the Attorney General and the President, the Kennedys, were also Roman Catholic!

If Eleanor Smeal and her fellow officers of NOW are not yet fully aware of this alien, Fascist influence in the nation's affairs, they will be by the time the presidential campaign of 1984 is over. Using the democratic process of the ballot box these women are determined to kick out of office every legislator who opposed the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment; but, if MIRO sees that this use of the democratic process is any real threat to their control of the nation, it will be neutralized, sabotaged by a manufactured crisis and the imposition of a military dictatorship, to maintain "law and order". So, the political Armageddon is on as the women of the nation sharpen their weapons for the fight for economic and social reform. It promises to be a bloody one before the Old Guard goes down to inevitable defeat. The Daughters of Isis have the power of the Earth Mother, the Sky Mother and the irresistible Force of the Black Void of deep space behind them. They -- and She, the Black Virgin -- will prevail.

WHAT PRICE SECURITY? ASKS ADMIRAL GENE LA ROCQUE

"What is security worth? What would be willing to pay for it? I ask you these questions, Dr. Crabb, as I have often asked them of myself when I consider the future. How much would I be willing to pay for the safety and security of my family? How would I pay for the security and survival of my community and my country? I guess I'd pay just about anything. If it took all my income, I'd gladly pay it, if it meant that my children, my grandchildren, and the citizens and future citizens of my country could live securely, in peace.

DID WE GET WHAT WE PAID FOR? NO!

"Since World War II we've given the Pentagon two trillion dollars to provide us with security. That money paid my salary throughout my naval career. It bought lots of weapons. But did it provide us with security? Did we get what we paid for? Have our tremendous expenditures for armaments brought us safety and freedom from fear? I'm afraid the answer is no.

"Despite the trillions we and the Soviets have spent creating the most powerful military forces in history, we are faced with the dreadful fact! There is no defense against nuclear missiles! Neither we nor the Soviets can build a defense against nuclear weapons, no matter how much we spend on weapons. Both societies stand 30 minutes away from nuclear destruction, if either country decides to launch nuclear missiles.

"For years I made plans to use nuclear weapons against enemy forces. During my seven-year stint in strategic planning in the Pentagon, I became acutely aware that nuclear weapons had created a whole new ball game. They are a quantum jump. They changed all the old rules of warfare. The concept of military superiority has become meaningless. Each time we or the Soviets build a new nuclear weapon -- whether it's the MX, the Cruise missile, the B-1 bomber, or the Soviet SS-20 and Backfire bombers -- the arms race escalates and our security is decreased.

"Each time we and the Soviets agree to forego the next spiral of the arms race, we are that much safer. I know you are as concerned as I am about the security and economic wellbeing of our nation. That's why I am sure you share my concern at the massive military budget. At the highest price in peacetime history it cannot protect the American people from nuclear war! -- And it cannot assure prosperity at home.

"Surely we need to buy whatever weapons are necessary to defend the United States, but spending $1.6 trillion in the next five years will distort our society and decrease our security. It means we will spend $37 million every hour for the next five years! This will cost more than $10,800 for every taxpayer in America!

THESE ARE THE FACTS:

"The U.S. and its NATO allies have outspent the Soviet/Warsaw Pact military forces for many years -- $215 billion to $175 billion in one year alone.

"The cost of new and often unnecessary weapons continues to escalate. This year the Pentagon says the cost of 47 weapons systems will be $50 billion higher than its estimate for the same weapons in 1980.

"The massive U.S. Navy exceeds the Soviets in warship tonnage and nuclear-powered submarines and ships, and outnumbered the Soviets in aircraft carriers by 13 to 0. Now we are building 110 new warships.

"Our submarines carry 5,000 nuclear weapons -- 3,000 of which are always aimed and ready to fire at the U.S.S.R. The Soviets keep 400 nuclear weapons at sea, ready to fire at the U.S.

"The United States has 410 strategic bombers, compared to the Soviet's 145. More than half of the Soviet bombers are still propeller driven.

"We have always had more nuclear weapons than the Soviets. Today we can explode 12,000 nuclear weapons on the Soviet Union, while they can explode 8,000 on us.

"The United States will build 17,000 new nuclear weapons in the 1980s if we continue to move forward with current plans for the MX, Cruise, Trident, Pershing II, the neutron bomb and other weapons.

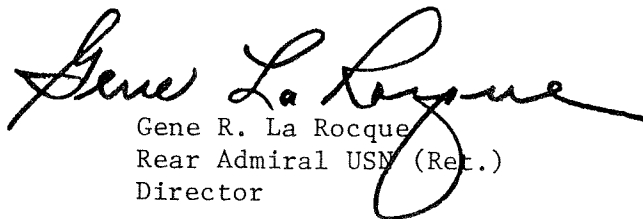

"Our leaders in Washington are trying to build enough nuclear weapons to 'win' a nuclear war. The fact is that we have a surplus of nuclear weapons now! The U.S. and the Soviet Union can both destroy each other -- and there is nothing either side can do about it, once a nuclear war starts.

"But there is something you can do to help avoid nuclear war. You can help the Center for Defense Information. Last month the House of Representatives defeated a proposal for an immediate nuclear freeze with the Soviet Union by two votes. That vote shows how far we've come in alerting Congress and the public to the increasing likelihood of nuclear war -- but how far we still have to go.

"For 10 years the Center for Defense Information has been effectively educating key members of the Congress and the executive branch. My staff and I regularly present objective military analyses upon request. . . the media are turning more and more to CDI to obtain reliable information on the U.S. military. . . 15,000 readers of our 'Defense Monitor', including members of Congress, government officials, key members of the media, organizations of concerned citizens, and individual subscribers in the U.S. and abroad.

"Because of the military experience of our staff and our reputation for providing up to the minute analyses of the U.S. and Soviet military, the Center for Defense Information has become a major resource for the American public. During the crucial months ahead, Congressional committees and the media will rely even more heavily on CDI for the facts and impartial analyses they cant get anywhere else. This means a greatly expanded program of research, analysis, writing and public appearances for our small staff.

"That's why we need your support if you want to: Slow the senseless arms race, Cut waste in military spending, and Reduce the military influence on U.S. domestic and international policies."

A GARDEN GRID POINT

"I've always had the predominantly psychic approach to healing -- which is heart, and admittedly some gadgets convey it better than others. Now I'm outfitted for medical Radiesthesia with pendulum, a chart, an atomic table, herbs, homeopathy, colours, and above all a Cathar 'Braida Medallion' which harmonises and heals and is indifferent to influences other than Cosmic, also a cosmic Sun symbol, a circle with a dot in the center.

"I have located a Telluric-Cosmic crossing point in my garden and put a stone there, about nine inches down and correctly oriented. A huge area is now positive, including Parliamentary buildings!

"These symbols, plus a vision of a gowned priest with medallion and girdle, have been given me by a clairvoyants and in my own meditations. This of course goes back to Cathar (not Catholic) theory of disease in the Psyche as written up in Dr. Arthur Guirdham's 'The Psyche In Medicine -- a Foot in Both Worlds'. His books are not even in the public library!"

A. Cathar, Wellington, New Zealand

The Cathars, also known as the Albigensians, were the Protestants of the south of France when the great Gothic cathedrals were being built in Europe under the guidance of the Knights Templars. The link between them and the Templars is not well known, and for a good reason, the Fourth Crusade. Pope Innocent III, a great physical plane agent for the false Christ, Looeamong, launched the Fourth Crusade against the Cathars in 1208 A.D. and the slaughter continued for 36 years, long after the Pope's supposed death in 1216 A.D. One who is supposed to have escaped the final massacre in the Pyrenees in March, 1244 was Wolfram von Eschenbach. He lived to write the Legend of Parsifal, which later inspired Richard Wagner. Thousands of those martyred Cathars are reincarnated now in 6th Sub-race bodies, directing their "perfecta" Light into the dark places of the world. Innocent III apparently felt remorse for the monstrous crimes committed by his orders and returned a hundred or so years ago to free millions from slavery even as he had enslaved millions to the false doctrines of Looeamong. His name in that life? Abraham Lincoln. Now he works with the Cathars rather than against them, as the mills of the Gods grind on. "DANGEROUSLY" MOVIE ONLY TOO TRUE FOR CAST

Sydney, Australia - "Against many of the odds, if not precisely all of the odds, the heralded Australia director Peter Weir was wrapping up his latest movie here this weekend (6/6/82). To start with, the title is enough to tempt the odds -- "The Year of Living Dangerously". It's taken from a description of 1965 by the late president Sukarno of Indonesia. It was his last year in office.

"Said Weir of the troubles dogging his production, 'I have my own theory of what's been going on. It's not been widely reported but shortly before his death, Sukarno is supposed to have said, 'I curse anyone who makes a film about my life!' Weir, with a smile playing at the corners of his mouth, noted, 'What we are experiencing here is that pharaoh's curse.'

"'Dangerously', a love story set against the chaotic conclusion of the Sukarno regime, was scheduled for a 12-week shooting schedule half in Manila, half in Sydney. . . Hopes were high (and still are) for a Christmas release here and a February release in New York and elsewhere. But then there was the well publicized nightmare in Manila. The shoot was abruptly stopped in the face of threats of death and destruction from Muslim extremists. Cast and crew fled to Sydney on any available flights. The mad scramble to get out was, as one bystander observed, 'just like getting out of Saigon in the last days of the Vietnam war'.

"For the first month in Manila, things had gone relatively smoothly, aside from wilting heat, a mercurial phone system, promises from suppliers that were not kept, delivery schedules that weren't honored, airline schedules that weren't met and an official Filipino bureaucracy that thrives on an endless appetite for paperwork and forms.

"Weir was able to overcome all until a slew of telephoned and written death threats surfaced. Weir said, 'Enough!' In 12 hours he pulled out a crew of 63 Australians and the three American and three Australian stars. The trouble began when the 'Dangerously' crew moved to a filming location in the center of Manila's Muslim quarter. . . " (Alan Markfield in the LA "Times", June 6, 1982)

WISCONSIN FOR THE NUCLEAR FREEZE

LA"Times", Sept. 16, 1982 - "Wisconsin voters gave overwhelming endorsement to the nuclear freeze idea in the first state-wide vote on the matter. California and seven other states, as well as the District of Columbia, will vote on it in November."

If President Ronald "Atomic Suicide" Reagan continues to support an expanded nuclear bombs and weapons program, as demanded by his billionaire friends of the munitions industry, the Nuclear Freeze may well be an issue which will bring about his defeat at the polls if he chooses to run for office again in 1984. This is an issue which will not go away or be buried out of sight as has been the Flying Saucer issue through five administrations.

"FILES ON UFOs CAN BE WITHHELD, HIGH COURT SAYS"

Washington (AP), March 9, 1982 - "The Supreme Court Monday refused to order the National Security Agency to disclose what it knows about Unidentified Flying Objects. The court, without comment, let stand a ruling that the Agency's files on the subject do not have to be made public under the Freedom of Information Act. A group calling itself Citizens Against UFO Secrecy had sought all the executive branch agency's documents relating to UFOs. The agency released some information but withheld other data. In November the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington upheld a trial judge's ruling that the disputed information must remain secret because 'it clearly relates to the most sensitive activities' of the agency."

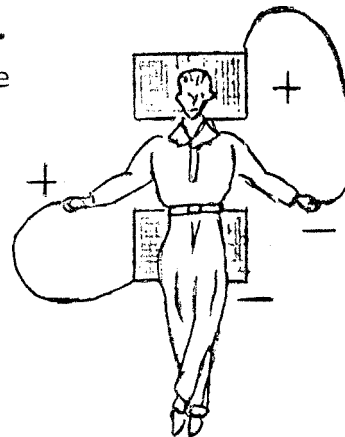

The National Security Agency's most "sensitive activity" is to protect America's power and banking cartels at all costs. The radical, cheap, universally available, non-polluting power demonstrated by the Flying Saucers since 1947 -- if publicly available -- would make obsolete the oil, gas, electric and nuclear power industries and Wall Street's multi-billion dollar investments in same would be in great jeopardy. And of course this would be true of all other Western nations as well; but the door to the breaking of the information monopoly has been opened by the Earl of Clancarty and his Flying Saucer information committee in the House of Lords, England. Saucer researchers from all over the world are being invited to present their data, opinions and conclusions to the committee in its on-going search for truth in this area. The ultimate results of the research of this committee will be the end of civilization as we know it today.

PLUGGED UP WITH HEAVY METALS

"I need a lot of help with my health and would appreciate being put on your Prayer List and/or on the Radionics machine. I will enclose a picture. I dont know if you need physical details but all my systems have been drained to exhaustion -- glandular, blood, liver, circulation, etc., due to an attack by an 'eating entity', which has since been exorcised -- but not before it did severe damage. Since I am a hairdresser, my system is plugged up with hair spray and heavy metals. Thank you for whatever assistance you can give."

J.F., Hollywood, Calif.

Looks as though a lot of repair work has to be done as well as purging your system of the occupational hazards of hairdressers. The most obvious "cure" for you is a change of occupation; for even if our Forces succeed in balancing your condition, your system will be thrown out of balance again by the poisons absorbed in your daily work. Daily use of a set of Eeman Screens, pictured here, will help to neutralize the daily dose of "junk" -- if the experience of other Associates is any criterion; they also may help to discourage continued and unwanted companionship from other "eating companions" picked up from customers at your beauty salon. "Unclean spirits" Jesus called them in His healing work. You might also consider Chelation as a means of ridding your system of heavy metals. It aint cheap but some Associates swear by it.

EEMAN SCREENS JUST WHAT WERE NEEDED!

"Just have to write to you today! You are due a huge hug of appreciation. I used the Eeman Screens off and on all day yesterday and they are fantastic! It is apparently just what has been needed to normalize my aura, as damage to it is the grandmother's forte.

"The first two times I needed to lay there one hour -- before the yawning and stretching point. After that about half an hour. Then I'd get up and do things for an hour, until pooping out again, and would again lie on the Screens. I didn't go to sleep on them, nor any other manifestation, just lay there with eyes and body heavy, not wanting to move one iota. But more than that I could feel, after about 10 minutes, the linings of the mucous membranes -- nose, throat, bonchial tubes and lungs -- drawing together with the drying that was going on. I felt heat in my head, and since grandma's 'headquarters' in me has been the head -- nose-throat-ears -- I think that now I've never had enough vital energy going to those areas. Certainly I've always had to 'fight' for holding my attention on anything, taking notes until a moment of strength later when I could study and make them a part of me.

"I found that by taking the scrap of copper screen I did not need for the two mats -- hips and head -- and placing it under my feet, I got a current okay without crossing my ankles. It hurts my back to cross my ankles as instructed by Eeman. But the current was stronger with the ankles crossed!

"Then, during the day, they (her 'eating companions') didn't bother me. Apparently the aura was strengthened just sufficiently each time to keep them out for an hour. Oh, a few forays attempting to bother me, but just little jabs, nothing lasting. So now the remaining problem is to figure out the night business, which I think the Banishing ritual should take care of. Because, during the night, even though I went to sleep all hooked up on the Screens, I moved of course and woke up bleary eyed as usual, feeling worse than when I went to bed -- and with the usual dreams of people entering my house."

This student is apparently the victim of artificial elementals she created deliberately as a Pagan magician in Egypt and Hawaii to attack others and steal their vitality, their power. So she is attacked and victimized by her own creations in this life. Aren't we all? There seems to be no "remission of sins" for one who knowingly violates the law in this fashion. He or she must suffer the attacks until the full "quanta" of evil energy has been sublimated and thus achieve the "baptism of repentance" referred to by John in Mark 1:4.

This also is the kind of case with which the Spiritual Healer can have only limited success because the lesson must be learned, driven deeply and irrevocably into the conscience of the sufferer.

THIS "BAPTISM" TOOK TEN YEARS

Dear Abby: "Please tell Nighttime Boxer, who awakened in the morning badly bruised and beaten for no apparent reason, to talk to his clergyman. Both Jews and Christians recognise the authenticity of diabolic attacks, and there is responsible documentation on this subject. Please don't be biased. Any competent religious leader (what, no Cabalists?) can recognize whether one needs to see a psychologist or an exorcist. My best friend spent many years in a mental hospital with no lasting cure. Everyone thought she was hallucinating. After her release she joined a small church, and a year later she wrote to me, 'At last the 'wolf' is gone. I am at peace with Jesus.' She died peacefully in her sleep. I know what I am talking about because she was my sister, and our whole family went through hell for over 10 years because we were told there was no such thing as diabolic attacks. Now we know there are!" (LA"Times", 5/7/82)

"SUPPORT ISRAEL OR RISK THE WRATH OF GOD"

Philadelphia (UPI) Sept. 22, 1982 - "The United States must support Israel or risk the wrath of God, Moral Majority leader the Rev. Jerry Falwell said Tuesday. 'I don't think America could turn its back on the people of Israel and survive,' Falwell said. 'God deals with nations in relation to how those nations deal with the Jew. History is replete with illustrations of people who have touched the apple of God's eye.'

"Massacres of Palestinian refugees after the pullout of peace-keeping forces from Lebanon have not swayed Falwell's staunch support of Israel. 'Whoever did it must have been animals. I don't believe the Israeli government was in any way involved,' said Falwell, who was in Philadelphia for a taping of a television talk show. Falwell said he doubts that the Christian (Catholic) Falangist party in Lebanon was responsible and speculated that sympathizers of the Palestine Liberation Organization may have killed the refugees to turn world opinion against Israel."

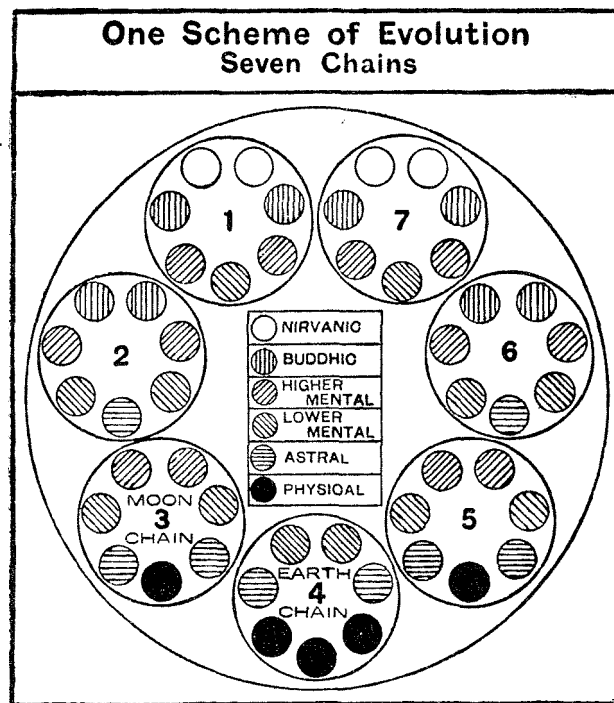

No, Rev. Falwell, the Maronite Catholics who slaughtered the Palestinians in Beirut are quite proud of the killing of heretics in their holy war against the followers of Mohammed. As for the problem of the support of Israel, your public statement is an echo of the one made by the Master D.K. back in the days of the Alice A. Bailey writings, that Western civilization has three major problems which it must handle as best it can: Money, Sex and the Jews. Just who is this wrathful God of the Jews? The Bible says His name is Jehovah; but Madame Blavatsky, in Vol. II of "The Secret Doctrine", reminds us that a "few learned Fathers of the Church were aware that Jehovah was no 'highest' God but a third-rate Potency".

JESUS SEPARATES HIMSELF FROM JEHOVAH

Let us remind ourselves of the Savior's famous dispute with the Pharisees, detailed in the Fourth Gospel: "I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me because my word hath no place in you. I speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye do that which ye have seen with your father (Jehovah). . . Ye do the deeds of your father . . . Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar and the father of it. . . ." (John VIII 37-44)

There must be a false Jehovah, a Moon god, worshipped by the Jews and certain Gentiles. The Israelis still reckon time by their old, pagan Moon calendar. The real Jehovah is a Planetary Logos who, according to Max Heindel, is responsible for all the Moons in our Solar System. He is the chief Jailer; for Moons are the institutions to which extremely backward souls are committed from their home planets. But remember, the Earth is "moon" for the planets such as Mercury and Venus, which don't have Moons, and for Maldek, the only physical planet of the previous Chain or Solar System. See the illustration below from Jinarajadasa's "First Principles of Theosophy", where the Moon Chain is so-called because our Moon is the largest remnant of that unfortunate planet, blown up a million years ago.

It is my guesstimate that Jehovah was the Planetary Logos of Maldek and His "punishment" was to be made Chief Warden of all the Solar System prisons for having allowed the human race on Maldek to get out of control and destroy their planetary schoolroom in an all-out nuclear war. Billions of souls "going to school" on Maldek had to be parceled out to other planets in the Solar System. Those who fell to Earth because of their failure to live by higher principles arrived on that large remnant which settled into orbit around the Earth and which we call our Moon. Those who passed the Judgement Day tests on Maldek are now here, some of them, trying to help prevent a nuclear war. The Solar Gods have determined that it will not be allowed to happen again, not on this planet anyway, and They have the power to back up their word!

JESUS SAVES, MOSES INVESTS

In his last book through Alice Bailey, "The Externalisation of the Hierarchy", the Master D.K. wrote: "It is an interesting fact that the Jews are found in every land without exception, that their influence is potent and widespread (far more so than they themselves are willing to recognise), and that they wield most potently that peculiar concretisation of energy which we call money. They constitute, in a strange manner, a unique and distinctly separated world centre of energy.

THE ENERGY AND LIFE OF A PREVIOUS SYSTEM

"The reason for this is that they represent the energy and life of the previous solar system. You have often been told how, at the close of this solar system, a certain percentage of the human family will fail to make the grade and will then be held in pralaya, or in solution, until the time for the manifestation of the next and third solar system comes around. Then they will constitute the advanced guard and the symbol of the coming humanity of that system.

"The same thing occurred in the system before this one and those whom we now call the Jews. . . are the descendants of that earlier group. . . If you will remember that the third ray governed that system and also governs the Jewish race, if you bear in mind that that system was occupied with the divine aspects of matter only and with external conditions, and that the Jews were the highest product of that system, you can come to an understanding of the Jew, his separateness, his desire for racial purity and his interest in that which is commercial and tangible. The Jew, down the ages, has insisted upon being separated from all other races but he brought over from the previous system the knowledge (necessary then but obsolete now) that his race was the 'chosen people'.

"The Wandering Jew has wandered from System One to this where he must learn the lesson of absorption and cease his wandering. He has insisted upon racial purity; for that was his major problem in early Lemurian times when the race came into a world that had in it no human beings; for it was before the coming of the Lords of Flame (from Venus, a Round ahead of us in evolution). This insistence has been carried down the ages and has governed the rules of marrying and the preparation of food, instead of being dropped as it should have been, thousands of years ago. It is these facts (unknown to the modern Jew) which have militated against him down the years, and made it possible for the forces of separativeness and hate, to use the Jewish race to stir up world difficulty and thus bring to a crisis the basic human problem of separation.

"When humanity has solved the Jewish problem (with the understanding and cooperation of the Jew) and overcome ancient antipathies and hatreds, it will do so by fusing the problem in one vast humanitarian situation. When that happens, the problem will be rapidly solved and one of the major difficulties will disappear off the face of the earth. Racial fusion will then be possible. Our earth humanity and the group of human beings who are far more ancient in their origin than we are, will form one humanity and then there will be peace on earth." (pages 76-77, first published in 1957)

THE SECOND COMING? DONT HOLD YOUR BREATH!

Several Associates who should know better -- and Benjamin Creme himself -- favored us with copies of his prophetic material about the coming of Lord Maitreya (an Eastern name for the Christ) in May 1982. Of course it didn't happen! So I asked one of Creme's devotees for the latest rationalization from the prophet without honor: "Answering your note, latest from Ben. Creme is that the Reappearance has been delayed -- awaiting Maitreya's being found BY THE MEDIA -- rather than by Ben and his group. Ben says it's going to happen 'soon -- and I dont mean 1983' -- so guess a bit of time will tell."

E.R.C., Lemon Grove, California

Here are some intelligent observations on the Reappearance of the Christ in physical form, and in public, by one of His more advanced pupils, the Master D.K., writing through Alice Bailey in "The Externalization of the Hierarchy", in June 1947:

"Aspirants are prone to ask the question as to why the Christ does not come -- in the pomp and ceremony which the churches ascribe to the event -- and by His coming demonstrate His divine power, prove convincingly the authority and potency of God, and thus end the cycle of agony and distress. The answers to this are many. It must be remembered that the main objective of the Christ will not be to demonstrate power but to make public the already existent Kingdom of God.

"Again, when He came before He was unrecognised, and is there any guarantee that this time it would be different? You may ask why would He not be recognised? Because men's eyes are blinded with the tears of self-pity and not of contrition; because the hearts of men are corroded with a selfishness which the agony of war has not cured; because the standards of value are the same as in the corrupt Roman Empire which saw His first appearance, only in those days those standards were localised and not universal; because those who could recognise Him and who hope and long for His coming are not willing to make the needed sacrifices, and thus ensure the success of His advent. . .

"Another answer is that when Christ comes forth from the Place of Power, bringing His disciples, the Masters of the Wisdom, with Him, that Place of Love and Power will be situated on earth, and will be publicly recognised (in the MEDIA, of course, as the Creme group fondly hopes). The effects of that appearance and of that recognition will be terrific, calling forth an equally terrific onslaught and effort by the Forces of Evil -- unless humanity itself has first sealed 'the door where evil dwells'. This must be done by the establishing of right human relations. . . " (Pages 616-617)

Our ten year holy war against heretics -- Communists and Buddhists -- in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, and the current holy war between Maronite Catholics and Muslims for the control of Beirut, Lebanon, is proof enough that we have not "sealed the door where evil dwells" and are not ready to "establish right human relations" with anyone else except on our own terms, this Christmas, 1982.

VIETNAM ALL OVER AGAIN?

The American Marines are there in Lebanon again, for an indefinite stay. 20 years ago in South Vietnam American advisers and money were supporting President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic trained by the Jesuits at a seminary in New Jersey; and Diem's American-armed troops were raiding Buddhist pagodas in Saigon. Now we have Jesuit-trained Amin Gemayel as President of Lebanon and his American-armed soldiers are slaughtering Muslim Arabs. According to an LA "Times" story of Oct. 20th "the Reagan Administration has sent $107 million in economic aid to the country (Lebanon) since June. Over the last five years the United States has provided Lebanon with about $100 million in military sales credits".

A couple of days earlier President Gemayel flew to this country to ask President Reagan for several billion dollars in aid for his war-torn country. Immediately after landing at John Kennedy Airport he was driven to St. Patrick's Cathedral to attend a special Mass, and to receive the imprimatur of the American branch of the Church. A three-column picture of Gemayel with Cardinal Cooke of New York appeared on the front page of the "Times" the next day -- and in most other metropolitan dailies, no doubt. If President Gemayel gets the same kind of advice from Cardinal Cooke that prelate has been giving President Reagan for the past two years, Lebanon will be worse off in 1984 than it is now! Anyhow, we taxpayers will be expected to dig deep into our pockets to prop another Church dictator on his throne in an alien land -- while basic social services in this country are desperately short of funds.

In 1963 President Diem decided that South Vietnam couldn't win a war against North Vietnam and it would be wiser to try to work out a peaceful deal with the Viet Cong. Suddenly the rug was pulled out from under him in October. It was claimed that the order for this prejudicial action came from President Kennedy. Suppose President Gemayel comes to the conclusion that it will be better to try to work out a deal with the Lebanese Arabs rather than to fight them, will he suffer the same fate as Diem? And if so, will his sudden demise be attributed to President Reagan? Gemayel's brother has already been blown up, presumably by "Arab" terrorists; but no one is claiming that distinction! Regardless of who done it, it is obvious that mankind has not "sealed the door of evil" in the Middle East, and American influence is forcing it to stay open, thus further delaying the Reappearance of the Christ, and sustaining the evil influence of the False Christ, Looeamong.

SURROUNDED BY GOOD PEOPLE

"I hope this letter finds you healthy and in good spirits. Everything at the foundation seems to be going well. I am still being harassed by selected media groups, and being asked (by an official subpoena) to spend about one afternoon a month in the Attorney General's office. They don't like writing to you and giving you health information. This 'might be' practicing medicine without a license. Everyone knows that vitamins and minerals are completely worthless, so it 'might be' mail fraud. They done like my appearing on radio and TV and telling people about alternative healing therapies for Cancer and Arthritis. In spite of all this, I am feeling terrific. I am surrounded by good people at the Foundation office. I have the support of all or you and God still loves me. What more could anyone ask?"

HIGH PRECISION ELF WAVE GENERATOR

"Here are details on the new micro-computer controlled ELF generator. It uses a state-of-the-art, low power micro-programmer. Its output rate is determined by selecting one of six thumbwheel switches. This gives a six-digit accuracy in frequency selection and means a stability of .00001 Hertz! As an example one could select an ELF frequency of 7.80541 Hz. It is shirt-pocket sized, operating on a small battery, has a light output as well as a voltage output for a small speaker. The magnetic coil pulsing can be controlled by a volume-control knob. Price not set yet I hope to sell it for less than $250. I'm available for consultation and work on other exotic, electronic borderland gadgets."

TUMOR DESTRUCTION WITH MAGNET AND METABOLIC THERAPY

"Please renew my subscription to the Journal and send the plans for the Phoenix Radioclast broadcaster which produces little or no radio or TV interference. My mother had a hard lump, wide as a silver dollar on the inside of her thigh. It receded rapidly and totally disappeared within two months after I started to treat her. I used my new, high-powered Multi-Wave Oscillator which I flicked off and on rapidly with a remote control switch. She taped a a piece of magnetic tape over the lump when she slept at night, using the North pole side of the tape. She also used Hoxsey herbs, alfalfa, pancreatic enzymes, Vitamin E and selenium, cod liver oil, black strap molasses, B15 and choline and inositol, zinc orotate, raw organ and gland tablets including raw thymus."

J.A., Tallmadge, Ohio

The Phoenix Radioclast is a simple little three-tube broadcaster which creates a small, rapidly pulsing electro-magnetic field from an 8-inch diameter copper wire antenna laid on the body. It would probably more effective even if it had a mechanical, sharp cutoff in the ELF wave area of around three or four cycles per second, something like what J.A. was trying to do manually with his MWO. The Phoenix schematic is free to anyone who wants it but the book on the Lakhovsky Multi-Wave Oscillator, BSRF No. 29, is now $5.50 postpaid, due to high printing and postage costs.

ELF WAVES, PSYCHOTRONIC WARFARE and WELFARE

We have pulled together Bob Beck's excellent talk on ELF Wave Warfare between the U.S. and Russia, serialized in 1980-81 Journals, and given originally to the U.S. Psychotronics Association conference at Atlanta, Georgia in 1979, added to it relevant press releases of the time -- before the censorship clampdown -- for the over-the-horizon warfare goes on today; and have included the more recent illustrated articles from the Journal on TENS (Transcutaneous Electric Nerve Stimulation) devices and their proven ability to stop pain, chronic pain, in about 85% of cases. TENS are ELF (Extreme Low Frequency, 1 to 20 cycles per second) devices. The most effective rates for therapy seem to be from 1 to 6 cycles or Hertz. This is the Welfare part of the brochure. Higher cycles are more notable for their effects on consciousness, noted briefly in the material, with much experimentation still to be done. Ed Skilling's article on his proven TENS device is there, along with the schematic and list of parts, as well as Radio Shack's Electronic Metronome of the 1970s, an ELF wave device, with schematic and list of parts. Postpaid. $5.50

PHASING IN THE NEW RACE

Advanced souls of the incoming 6th Sub Race are growing up now. They have demonstrable Psycho-kinetic powers, now popularly referred to as "the Uri Geller effect". Dr. Andrija Puharich researched 30 of these Superkids and wrote up the results in his new book, "Time No Longer", publication of which has so far been blocked! But we published a lengthy interview with him about the kids by knowledgeable New Age editors in 1981 RRs, and have put the serialized articles together, along with relevant material and illustrations in a 36-page brochure of the above title. Postpaid. $3.50
