Hypnosis Tapes/Books/Seminars to improve your life and explore the unknown !

Dick and Trenna Sutphen conduct their world famous seminars in Scottsdale, Arizona and other cities — they often appear on national TV and are the subject of articles, from the tabloids to Time Magazine. Their hypnosis tapes have been used successfully by thousands. Dick is a bestselling author for Simon Schuster Pocket Books. Twice a year he teaches his unique techniques to Doctors, Psychologists and Psychiatrists.

The conscious and subconscious portions of our mind are often in conflict. Consciously you want something, but subconsciously you create mediocrity or failure. Hypnosis is the ultimate way to reprogram the subconscious. We have over 50 perfectly safe tapes to OVERCOME PROBLEMS — PROGRAM GOALS — HAVE MENTAL EXPERIENCES. Anyone can become a good subject in a few weeks. The tapes hypnotize and provide a "self-release" so you can awaken on your own. "Trigger words" are often used for post hypnotic conditioning so you can draw upon your programming when you need help in a waking situation.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Friends: A sincere apology from this 36 year old pensioner, who had the misfortune to fall in the bathroom and break three ribs. During my painful period of recovering, some of my mail got mislaid and covered up. Thank you so much for your trust in me and sending me the Journal, which I cheerfully subscribe to for 1979. I wouldn't be without it. By the way,raise your subscription price to $6. Everything else is going up. A bank money order costs 50¢, a P.O. money order 30¢ (shame on you, Uncle Sam! Cheapskate!) Well, since the sum is so convenient, I'll just put an Abe in a lined envelope and have a beer with the 50¢ saved! Sincerely, Roxy Clark, Everett, Wa.

 Dear Roxy: IF we raised our prices, as everyone else is doing, we might lose not only your friendship, but your business! NO - our prices WON'T go up, and when you get your new issue you will find 16 MORE pages for the same $5.00. Your subscription and hundreds of other new subscribers have enabled us to do this ------- and NOT by raising our prices. Goodwill puts more in the bank - than inflated subscription prices. YOU get well soon! We need you.

Dear Sirs: I am enclosing a check for $5 to renew my subscription to the Journal. I am enjoying reading the Journal. My neighbors also enjoy it. Sincerely yours, Erma L. Kint, Fl.

 Hi Erma! And thank you for the renewal. Your neighbors are what we call 'pass on' readers! And - we appreciate each and every one! J.

Dear Friends: Please continue my subscription for 3 years. Am enclosing check of $10. Your Atlantean Journal is very, very good, and I do thank you very much for all the work you do to accomplish getting this information of high quality to the public. Sincerely, Charlotte Hunt, N.J.

 We thank YOU for YOUR help, without it our information would not go far!The Law says: You Get Back - What You Give Out. We both have shared - and received - and given out. This printed page shows that THAT Law really works! ... J.

Dear Ones: Have finished reading G.H. W. "Road in the Sky" and have looked but have not been able to find the new book he has written. I am very interested in those South American cultures, hope you can help me. I love your Journal and wish the both of you a wonderful New Year and may you make known that which is still unknown to the average student. Thank you for being. Mary Ann Pinnell, Seatle, Wa.

 George Hunt Williamson's new book should be out soon, we will do a review and an announcement of When! Thank you for Caring... J.

Dear Joan: I enjoy your magazine so much! In Oct.,'56, when I was young, I was a private pilot. Of course, back then you never heard much about UFOs like you do now... But anyway, I sure started believing in UFOs! It was about 11 PM and very foggy and suddenly my engine started sputtering, I looked at the gas qauge and saw that my tank was about empty because I forgot all about checking it. Well, I was starting to panic when I was suddenly startled by some sort of force that was pulling me back into the seat! Well, I got a weird feeling and I turned around and even through the fog I could make out some blue and green lights whirring around about 50 yards off to the side of my plane. The colors sort of reminded me of a Howard Johnson's sign, well, you can bet I was scared to death!

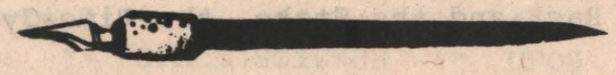

The next thing I know the engine stopped because the fuel was used up. But the strange thing is that the plane didn't go out of control but instead it starts descending smoothly, almost like a glider! I looked to the side of the plane again and the lights were descending parallel to my plane! Well, I landed real smoothly in a corn field and I got out of the plane and now I could still barely see the lights through the fog. They hovered about 100 yards away for about a minute, then they took off really quickly. I couldn't believe it. It sort of reminded me of the Lone Ranger when he saves someone's life and then he gets back on his horse and looks back for a few seconds and then he rides way away without even waiting to be thanked! Well, the only person I told my experience to is my wife, and she said that if it was really a flying saucer then she's sure glad they are friendly. She even said that it might be fun to have them for coffee, but I thought they probably don't drink coffee as it probably doesn't agree with them, I know my bad stomach and it doesn't agree with me! Ever since then, I'm a believer! Great magazine! Jeff Brown, Milwaukee, Wisc.

 Dear Believer! WE Believe! You're right, go and tell it to the 'next-door neighbor' and see WHO believes! Don't bother telling them -- TELL US! So that we can share your experiences with our other readers. As far as we are concerned, YOU are the Expert. J.

Dear Joan and Pat:... Recently my wife and I went to Kweilin, China for a pleasure trip there. This city is fully surrounded with million-year old small mountains... Saw 2 beautiful karst caves with scenes inside look like a fairland, shapes of Buddha, Kwin-Yam etc. Some of the caves are very deep which may lead to ancient tunnels - perhaps to the Inner Earth... Sincerely, Anthony Lee, Hong Kong...

 Dear Anthony: Go Get Em! Send me some photos, if possible! .J.

THE TIME-CYCLES
OF DOOM .....

Site of religious fanaticism unearthed, open for tours, in Peru

United Press International

LIMA, Peru — Lima's most grisly historical site is the Museum Of The Inquisition on Bolivar Square. Closed for centuries, the subterranean torture chambers of the 16th century Holy Office of the Inquisition were excavated 10 years ago and opened to the public by the Catholic Church.

According to church figures, approximately 1,500 suspected infidels and heretics died at the hands of the Inquisition, most of them tortured with a variety of bizarre mechanical devices.

The torture racks and devices have been completely restored and the inclusion of lifelike wax dummies gives them a realistic touch.

Admission is free and English placards provide a full explanation of the religious fanaticism of the past.

A Time to Reap ... A Time to Sow ... A Time of Shame ... A Time of Glory. To perpetuate into countless ages ahead this dreadful scene of Man's inhuman desire to obliterate all that does not agree with HIS religion - A Time of Shame. Can they but think that they can obliterate their Shame by perpetuating their methods of the destruction of other human life? "Admission is free" -- to where? Their hell? Their heaven? Was it not paid for in the blood of another of God's creations? I cry for those lost Incans, and try to find it in my heart to forgive the 'Holy' Inquisition. May we ever be protected from such 'Holiness'.

The Time-Cycles of Death have a way of repeating -- and repeating -- The Inquistion, the Gas Chambers of Belsen, the Horror of Hiroshima. Just as lands and continents continue to sink, and to rise, in an endless Time-Cycle of EarthChanges, Man continues to Sink and then to Rise again. May God grant us, the EarthChanglings, the wisdom to never repeat or perpetuate that which is In-human ever again. If we fail, in our next attempt at a Life-Cycle, we have naught to look forward to but the Rack and the Stake, the Time-Cycle will out...

PART TWO

Round symbols, ladder-like diagrams, scrolls, spirals, boxes and large, square holes cut deeply into cave formations bring to mind most vividly certain West Indian petroglyphs and ceremonial terraces of problematic origin. There are death's heads and macabre figures galore, and they adorn many walls and rocks. One such figure, a nine-foot sinister giant with a full beard, appears to be winged and his body is vertically and horizontally perforated with holes running clear through him, most likely to support torches or other ceremonial accessories.

Another giant, of more benevolent mein, lies prone, his half-buried body decorated with symbolic designs. But the most spectacular feature of this ancient art is the weird asseblage of nightmarish monsters and chimeras fashioned from the great stalactites and massinve stalagmites. We also noticed working far above the floor in seemingly inaccessible situations. It would take a volume to do them justice.

I will choose as examples three conspicuous masterpieces in chamber 4 of Thompson's map: Surmounting a hill of breakdown, formed in ages past, when a section of roof fell into the cave, are several much worn effigies. Rain cannot account for their condition since they occupy positions protected from the elements. The most discernible of these is a dominating six-foot high altar in the form of an OWL, its bill and eyes represented by an ancient and familiar symbol not restricted to the Maya - the V - with spherical terminations. Nearby, toward the darker side of the one mound, is an elephantine head with extended, short trunk. The face is a square depression and the nostrils are indicated at the flaring end of the nose. Then, at the bottom of a deep pit in semi-darkness, looms a colossal stalagmite, green with algae, which inspired the protrayal of an enormous, glowering head, complete with conical hat. All these - workings, many obliterated by trememdous time and apparent erosion by submergence, bespeak extreme antiquity. Are they the reasons why the cave was so sacred to the Maya who must have inherited some of the knowledge of the secrets it contained? The mystery is now indeed a baffling one but perhaps not altogether hopeless in the light of the following observations:

Since our first joint expedition to Yucatan caves in the summer of 1961, my partner and I planned a revisitation with the express purpose of locating something on which we had set our exploratory sights from the moment we first learned of it. Our informant was Prof. Vicente Vasquez Pacho, an itinerant teacher in the sparsely inhabited hill country of the central Yucatan. This able explorer and scholar had been attracted to our work and became closely associated with us in our latter endeavors. Also, I wish to pay tribute to our indefatigable guide, Sr. Benjamin Sanchez Bacelis, whose aid was immeasurable on every expedition we made. Without the help and friendship of these two fine gentlemen, little could have been accomplished. I now quote from d'Obrenovic's report:

"During the 1920's and 30's, the late Dr. S.G. Moreley, famous Mayan scholar, conducted research in Yucatan. Prof. Vicente, then none but a teenage boy, knew him very well, for the scientist lived in the home of Vicente's uncle, Dr. Moises Vasquez Vega, in Oxkutzcab. During this time Vicente often listened to discussions in his uncle's home and he remembers that Dr. Moreley for may years was desperately trying to locate a sacred Mayan grotto in the hills of the Oxkutzcab area, called Kulucan - Grotto of the Plumed Serpent." "Dr. Moreley interviewed many in Oxkutzcab and asked them if they knew of a cave with such a name... I have been told by several people, who spoke with him at the time, that they were not sure what he was asking about. They knew there was a cave high in the hills where only Mayan hunters went, but they knew it was called X-KUKICAN, not Kukulcan, and since he was asking for the Grotto of Kukulcan, these people couldn't give him any information. We believe the name 'X-KUKICAN' is really a corruption of Kukulcan."

"Other people have told me that they knew the location of the cave he was looking for, but they were simply too afraid to tell him about it. They did not want the sacred place violated by the scientist, and they never wanted to have to appease the Guardians of the cave. They believed that if Moreley found and entered this sacred grotto, evil would befall him and all who accompanied him -- evil that might engulf all the inhabitants of the area. They wanted to protect him as well as themselves."

"... Every time he was in Yucatan, the great Moreley searched for his sacred grotto, and we know definitely from retracing his steps, that several times he came very close to the opening of the cave of X-KUKICAN - but he never found it. We say without hesitation that we have now discovered the very grotto that he was looking for." ... "There are no trails directly into the site. A new generation has appeared in the village, but still the ancient beliefs prevail;and until we finally located the main entrance to the grotto on January 13, 1962, and passed within, no man had ever set foot in the sacred place since the last Maya .

In the remote past, a devastating earthquake struck the area causing serious break-down in the cave and toppling the large altar. Scooped out rocks and seats, evidently connected with the same ancient rituals as the altars, lie shattered amid the general confusion of break-down. It all happened so long ago that there is no appreciable color difference now between fractured and unfractured rock. Could not this too have the result of widespread cataclysm; and if so, were not the stone-workers themselves pre-cataclysmic? Perhaps they were the "PUUS", the Mayan legends speak of. Someone had the "LITTLE PEOPLE" definitely in mind when a six-toed foot was carefully carved on a Loltun stone. One thing, however, is certain: The oldest signs of man in the most venerated underground world are definitely NOT the work of the Maya in spite of the fact that they have been using the area for ceremonial purposes since time immemorial as attested to by the wealth of Mayan potsherds of the different periods to be found everywhere.

On other anthropological aspects of the Loltun, Michel d'Obrenovic (also known as George Hunt Williamson) has this to say: "Loltun is a strange, beautiful, 'lost world' sort of place. There is material evidence on every hand that for centuries the Maya used it as a gigantic tomb. Legends say they buried their rulers and religious leaders here, and the codices were supposed to have been hidden in the last tombs of the kings and high priests... In one place there are carved steps leading down into a pool of blue-green water where pilgrims must have purified themselves before entering the deeper sections of the cave for funeral and other rituals. There are entrances which were formerly sealed with masonry blocks, tonbareas, stone stairways, corridors and tortuous passageways leading off in all directions." "The strangest and most important thing about Loltun, however, is the fact that there are countless carvings representing faces of men, animals, gods, etc. Many of these, including the numerous petroglyphs, are in no way similar to Mayan carvvings; and the faces are usually the faces of men with full beards."

"The present-day Maya say that they (as a race) had nothing whatsoever to do with such carvings in Loltun and nearby caves. They say these things were placed there by the "first inhabitants" of Yucatan, the small, and hunchbacked men they call "PUUS". These men were supposed to have been completely destroyed by a catastrophe that swept the Yucatan in remote times, destroying everything on the surface and leaving only the carvings in the caves as reminders that they had passed that way. The Maya say that later their ancestors, the first Maya, entered and found these all strange remains of the "PUUS". Thus, archaeological and legendary data agree with the geological and zoological evidence. The resulting correlation can scarcely be dismissed as coincidental. All this is vitally important in the light of what is to follow.

X-Kukican lies on an elevation among calcareous hills that are honeycombed with archaeologically rich caverns and grottos, many fine ones containing stone "seals", a sign of sacred status. The main temple appears to be a centrally located elememt within a ring of smaller, outlying structures (probably four) which we suspect are linked by underground connections. The diameter of the circle is approximately a half mile. So throughly are the individual chapels obscured by the blanketing thron jungle that they are extremely difficult to detect from a distance, resembling as they do slight mounds on an already undulating terrain. Above the elevated "sacbe" (terrace and road), a level area which makes an ideal camp site, the temple rises about 50 feet higher. It is impossible, without excavation, accurately to estimate the number of levels but there seem to be at least five and possibly seven. A little clearing at the talus top of one forest-covered facade revealed a totally unexpected architectural form, a very simple, and evidently quite archaic great recessed CROSS whose base was formed by an exposed portion of a care worked stone lintel. We did not dig below this lintel to see where it might lead. A rectangular projection in the center of the cross could once have supported an image, as the arm directly over it is slightly domed. The 'stucco' in this niche was intact and had retained some of its original color... ... ...
NOTE: In our next issue Dr. Valentine will describe the Temple grotto itself, descriptions of the Mayan sacred 'seals', the large rooms of the grotto, with the fascinating details of a long ago civilisation, and the still unsolved mysteries of what was found there!

THE SYSTEM OF TELLURIC LINES

COLIN H. BLOY

The dowsable leys do not always follow the alignments of Watkins. A mediaeval church which is not situated on a traditional site appears to attract the line away from its original path. Equally, the church can exhibit more lines than the basic form of the cross. In England, at least, many churches have blocked-up doorways, the doors of today being in different places. Both demonstrate lines... You will also find great, triple-lined circles in churches - that vary in size according to the church - but the circle always passes through the font -- at the west of the church. A cathedral usually has a circle of 6 lines, as does for example, the cathedral of Gerona.

We began to make a map of the lines in southern England and noticed the lines which emerge from the Downs begin in enoumous excavations, called disused chalk-pits by the Ordnance Survey. However, within them one can find terminal points ending in huge double ranm's horn spirals. We came to call them Earth Temples. The reasons that struck us to take this view were that these so-called chalk pits were at the top of the Dpwns, dominating the countryside, when the modern pits are at the bottom The internal geometry is very precise; a complex system of terracing and tumuli producing internal lines all focussing on the central emission. We could not believe, dowsing evidence apart, that there had been an agreement amongst hundreds of chalk miners to mine at the top of the hill... The most striking are those of Wolstenbury and Malling, near Lewes, where there is a huge complex. Of course, dowsing explains their function anyway -- at the back are huge parabolic areas which seem to be capturing celestial energy to combine it with earth energy at the point of the Ram's Horn spirals. We believe them to be pre=megalithic.

At the same time this study led us to a hill knows as Saddlescombe -- at the foot of that strange cut in the Sowns near Brighton - called the Devil's Dyke. A huge and perfect hemisphere apparently made with the spoil from the cut. Approximately 250 metres across the base, probably the largest artificial earth-mound in Europe and unknown. A Christian cross formation of lines has the hemisphere as tis centre - the central axis being some 11 kilometres long - each arm goes to a church - one of them a Templar church and nearby on the other arm is a Templar preceptory. Always when you go dowsing near Templar sites you will find mysteries!

And - here we have two photographs taken by chance, apparently showing this energy at work. One is at an earth temple and the other in the center of the Avebury stone circle.

Indeed, it was following the line system out of the South Downs, and noting how it became a tripple-line system at a particular tumulus - it was at another Templar church, that of Shipley, Sussex, that we noted the tripple became a six, and we feel, although we have not been able to trace it all the way on the ground, that this six-line system connects to the Heel Stone at Stonehenge where, as Underwood noted, and we confirm, the existence of a six-bar line is witnessed by six very clear notches in the stone itself. It was at Stonehenge we encountered the first main line -- of 49 parallels.

We learned more about the overall continental system from reading a book called "Les Druides" recently appeared in France by Paul Bouchet, the Archdruid. He states the existence of the Ley-System as I described earlier and how to dowse it. He also states how the Western European system develops from Mount Pamir, in the extension of the Jimalayas in Southern Russia. This appears to be the Mount Meru of the Buddists - from which emerge the celestial influences. He describes how the line goes to Teheran, where there is a split, one goes to Western Russia -- and the other to Jerusalem bia Babylon, going on from there in a further split to the Pyeamids and Africa, and via Cyprus, Rhodes, Santornin, etc. to Southern Europe.

... The principal line of the Mediterranean Coast of Spain passes by the enormous Aztec type pyramid built in the last few years at the new motorway link-up on the frontier at La Junquera - it goes to Barcelona where it passes through the great church of Santa Maria del Mar, the Cathedral and the Castle on the hill of Monjuich whence it goes to the monastery of Montserrat. There are three main lines in Spain... We have also observed that there are forms or symbols of a geometrical nature - associated with the system that appear in certain places! Some of these may be dowsed as it were on a neophytes blackboard over a large area - around the Templar Church and Preceptory of Shipley, Sussex. They are in groups of 49 and based on circles, squares, elipses ans spirals. Our findings have been checked by independent dowsers. A similar display is around the Templar Church at Temple Cloud. The Order of the Knights Templar clearly knew all about the Ley-System, and always built, just as their Moslem antagonists, the octagon into their religious constructions. An interesting confirmation of this may be seen in a visible display - picked out in stone around the windmill in La Mancha, at Campo de le Cryptana, the place where Don Quixote began his quest. The windmill belonged to a parallel military order of Spanish religious chivalry, that of Montesa, into which the Spanish Templar went after their dissolution.

These symbols appear in different places in the System and appear to indicate the different functions. For example, all Spas are in the System and as many are different in their curative functions, they exhibit different symbols at their functional points. I will show a selection: you can see again how the number 7 plays a crucial role in these symbols. We have recorded some 3,000.

The Ley System is not a static phenomenon but a DYNAMIC one. It has a PULSE RATE of 4 per minute... I can only leave you with some hypotheses, none of which is without some experimental evidence:

1) It may be likened to the nervous or acupunctural system of the earth. It is related to underground water, passages, and geological faults.
2) The Earth is an Organism and NOT a machine.
3) It concerns ancient knowledge, not lost, but hidden.
4) The energy has aspects of the electro-magnetic, electro-static and radio-active fields, and more: it appears a possible manifestation of the unified field.
5) The System aliments the biosphere and the noosphere and appears to emanate from the deosphere, to abuse slightly the terminology of Teilhard de Chardin.
6) That FORM has much to do with the system and the sacred geometry as well. It is a Cabbalistic phenomenon and it may be for this reason the Knights in Spain were called "Caballeros".
7) That ALL paranormal phenomena depend on this energy, and to manifest, the site of the phenomenon has to plug itself into the syste...

It is a fundamental phenomenon of our existence, both conscious and unconscious, and there are many mysteries to unravel - if our work is not mistaken and we have taken many precautions against auto-suggestion...

ON THE 24TH MARCH, 1978, IT APPEARS AN IMPORTANT CHANGE IN THE SYSTEM OCCURRED. FROM THAT DAY THE 8 REPLACED THE 7 IN THE LINES AND THE SYMBOLS. A MAIN LINE IS NOW 64 PARALLELS INSTEAD OF 49/(Editor's Note: could this possibly be another check-point of the increasingly rising vibrations/'frequency-change'?)

Those who wish to check this phenomenon and follow the lines, should put on clean armour and, apart from their pendulum and rod, take their own shield and lance, and mount a white horse, with a clear pennant, because they are going to find that they are not going to tilt with windmills - But, in common with the Knights of Old, on the quest of the Holy Grail - the chalice that feeds mankind. May they go with sincerity, humility, and much spiritual clarity, with their Alpha and Theta brain rhythms functioning well. Beware of Dragons, the great Telluric Spirals --- but to kill them impale them and fix them in STRAIGHT LINES!

IT IS A WORK OF GREAT VALOUR.

NEW ATLANTIS REVISITED by Colin Amery
Our Australian/New Zealand Reporter..

It is a daunting prospect to revisit a book of prophecy, especially when you have written it yourself, to see how accurate your periscope to the future has proved to be. When Aldous Huxley revisited his 'Brave New World', he found that much of his projected future fantasy had become a reality. If George Orwell were allowed a visit - from the astral realms - he could justly claim that most of the nightmare he foresaw in his '1984' had already come to pass. My own work, "New Atlantis" took its title from Sir Francis Bacon's utopian saga of 1644 which described a sophisticated island continent with submarines, microphones, air conditioning and a great research foundation.

Writing a work of prophecy is a dangerous two-edged sword. Either the critics will dondemn you, when future events belie your predicted scenario, or, if the opposite occurs, you (the hapless author) will be blamed for the disasters that follow. It is a Catch-22 situation. Knowing that a prophet has no honour in his own country, I took off to the south seas in research of the sunken sister continent of Lemuria, just six months before my book was due to be published in July, 1976. This flight brought me to New Zealand, called by the Maoris who were its first main inhabitants, Aotearoa - Land of Abiding Light. A new search began for the roots of the Motherland and a new book has resulted - Lemurian Testament - which I hope will not be my last.

But my first and abiding love will always be for Atlantis to which I devoted eight years of my life in a quest that proved her to be as elusive as the legendary scarlet pimpernel. I sought her here, and there, and everywhere. In Egypt (Khemu to the ancient world) I stood before the inscrutable Sphinx, trying to divine the secrets behind its enigmatic features that later appeared on the front cover of my book, On the Aegean island of Santorini I sifted through volcanic ash, for some said that the legendary Atlantis once lay. I found no trace. In the musty archives of Madrid's Biblioteca National, I pored over Mayan codices, trying to crack the cypher of its cryptic lettering; at the British Museum I examined under microscopes documents mellow with age, that might yet yield some clue to the and much spiritual s of the past. I stood on a high hill in Lisbon -- functioning well.: the Portuguese capital that had survived the great but to kill them 755, and knew that I had been there before.

I

Deja vu hit me, too, when I visited Spanish churches with their old soaring steeples in dusty Ectramadura. In city squares I gazed upon statues of proud Cortez and Pizarro - the pig boy - conquistadores of the new world. I felt it again at the very quayside where the Santa Maria had unfurled its sails for Columbus to make his epic voyage of discovery.

It was in America, in fact, that I found the strongest confirmation of a former existence of the now sunken continent. The 'sleeping prophet', Edgar Cayce, had predicted that an Atlantean Temple would be discovered 'off the slime edges of Bimini'. Professor Manson Valentine and deep-sea diver, Dimitri Rebikoff, took his advice and found the underwater temple at a place called Paradise Point. When the fossils sticking to the temple walls were carbon-dated, their antiquity was pinpointed to about 12000 years ago, just when Atlantis is reputed to have disappeared... So already marine archeology was lending its support to the Atlantean hypothesis, solid constructions emerging from the seabed to back up the traditions of occult teachings that spoke of a lost super-civilization from the ancient past. Readers of this magazine will need no introduction to the famous - 'pyramid in the Triangle'.

Glimpses of these underwater constructions are also made from the air from passing planes. In 1941 a ferry pilot, taking a bomber from Brazil to Dakar, spotted the walls of a ruined building on the ocean floor some 500 feet below the surface, close-by St. Paul's Rocks -- situated on the spine of the mid-atlantic ridge. Here is about the middle of the longest chain of mountains in the world which stretch from Iceland in the north to Terra del Feugo, land of fire, at the southern tip of Argentina. They are a living proof and eloquent testimony of the land bridge that once linked Europe with America.

Whilst more and more physical proofs of the true reality of Atlantis are emerging, thanks to the technology of our own day, at the same time striking parallels have shown the similarity between the two eras. Brinsley le Poer Trench, a New Atlantean Journal Consultant, makes this point in his foreword to my book: "A terrible decadence has set in, some of the symptoms being greed, violence, and a general negation of all moral principles. Indeed, as Colin Amery points out, the same thing is happening here/now - exactly like it did in long ago Atlantis." In my final chapter of New Atlantis, I hold up my periscope to the 80's, which many agree to be the Key Time for determing the future evolution of this planet. This was my prognosis.

"First must come the cleansing process whereby the old order will be swept away. It will necessarily involve huge loss of life and a fundamental shake-up of the earth's physical alignment." The timetable for the beginning of these changes was 1976. In that year there were 9 major earthquakes of more than 7 points on the Richter scale. In China a million lives were reportedly lost. According to the scientists, Gribbin and Plagemann, authors of "The Jupiter Effect", the planetary alignment began in July, 1977, and will reach maximum impact in 1982. Likely effects will be huge storms and a disruption of the wind and weather patterns around the planet. These climatic changes have already been observed in both hemispheres. New Zealand, from where I write, is already experiencing heat wave conditions -- in what is still early summer. A very bad drought is expected. In America the pull of Jupiter is 11 times the earth's diameter - and is bound to cause massive earthquakes in 1982, and the author's single out the Los Angeles section of the San Andreas fault as being "likely to move."

As a postscript to the latest edition of my book I have added this stop press item from Daniel Logan's "Anatomy of Prophecy" -- "The physical changes of geography will commence from the year 1979 onwards... tides will rise sharply as the ice begins to flow once again as it did thousands of years ago." And the scientist who is relaying this message from other planes, Dr. Stanley, goes on to warn that the west coast of America will be split into four quarters and the east coast innundated...

And, after all, this Atlantis, we are told, will rise from the ocean bed. The "time of changes", as Tal Levesque , a New Atlantean Journalist, just wrote to me, IS NOW. Scientific fact has caught up - finally - with occult speculation. It's good to know that we were right all along. May Love and Light and power restore the Plan on Earth!

Right there!

Sandra Hooper, a McMinn County resident living near Delano, points to the area where early Friday morning she said she saw two man-like forms that were picked up by an unidentified flying object. The craft was approximately 25 feet in length and approximately 8 feet in height, she said, and glowed a bright reddish color. When the craft hovered over the ground, she said, the two figures "just disappeared." In the background can be seen the window from which she viewed the object. (DPA Photo by James Ewing) ✳

THE SECRETS OF ANCIENT MEDICINE

(Reprinted from: Forgotton Ages. J.R. Jochmans, Box 82863, Lincoln, Neb)

SURGERY AND DRUGS FROM THE UNKNOWN PAST...

The science of modern medicine is said to be the fastest growing field today, because so many innovations in technology are being applied. Every year sees surprising developements in surgical techniques. Looking into the past, however, it becomes apparent that we are only retracing steps someone else once took in these area, in an unknown era lost to history.

In the mid-1960's, Prof. A. Jagharian, head of operative surgery at the Yerevan Medical Institute in Russian Armenia, examined a number of skulls from the ancient site of Ishtikunuv, located near Lake Sevan in Armenia. The site was inhabited by a prehistoric people called the Khurits, who settled there prior to 2000 BC. Two of the skulls reveal remarkable skill in head surgery. The first is the skull of a woman who died when about 35 years old. At an earlier age, she suffered a head injury that made a hole in her skull one-quarter inch in size, that must have left brain tissue exposed, and resulted in a loss of much blood. The unknown prehistoric surgeons skillfully inserted a plug of animal bone, and the woman survived the delicate operation. We know this from the skull: her cranial bone grew around the plug...

Other evidence of sophisticated surgery is believed to be even older than the Khurits finds in Armenia. In 1969, a Russian expedition of researchers from the Universities of Leningrad and Ashkabad led by Prof. Leonid Marmajarjan discovered 30 skeletons in a cave in central Asia. Dating techniqued placed the age of the remains within the early Paleolithic period of the Stone Age. The skeletons were taken back to the University of Ashkabad, where an extensive scientific examination was undertaken. In a report made to the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Novenber, 1969, it was noted that a number of the central Asian skeletons showed signs of surgery having been performed. Like the Lake Sevan finds, there were several examples of successful operations on the skull. But, what astonished the scientists even more was that among the skeletons there were also traces of surgery having been performed in the area of the heart. The ribs had been masterfully cut, and there was also evidence that once an opening had been made, the remain ribs were further spread apart

The ribs had been masterfully cut, and there was also evidence that once an opening had been made, the remaining ribs were further spread apart by retraction. Every feature indicated by the remains corresponded with what today is called the "cardiac window" -- enabling surgeons to perform open-heart surgery. The periosteum or bone deposits on the cut ribs indicates that the patients survived 3 to 5 years after this extremely delicate operation had been made.

Similar examples of advanced surgery were discovered among the pre-Inca Peruvian skeletal remains. Delicate trepanning and other operational proceedures had been performed on the cranium, with a recovery rate of above 85% -- higher than that obtained by modern surgeons. The ancient Peruvians also used the tourniquet, forcepts and scalpels of highly polished brass, employed a cocoa-based anesthetic, and bandaged their patients with gauze and absorbing cotton...

Evidence of advanced surgery can be found not only from skeletal remains, but also from artistic representations. Among the Chimus - a pre - columbian cultured people who flourished on the coast of Peru -- are beautifully carved wooden arms, legs and hands, used as artificial limbs. These indicate that skillful amputations had been performed, which in turn presupposes the practice of jygiene, anesthetics and an intimate knowledge of anatomy. Chimu pottery art, too, reveal surgical techniques: in one, an anesthethic is being administered to a patient being prepared for an abdomenal incision. Perhaps the most fascinating scenes of prehistoric operations were found depicted on a group of 14,000 stone carvings discovered near Ocucaje, on the Ica river, in Peru. The stones are of hard andesite, and microscopic analysis of the etching grooves reveal encrustations showing that the carvings are many thousands of years old. Dr. J. Cabrera Darquea, professor at the University of Ica, discovered a number of stones pictured scenes of surgeons cutting into blood vessels and tissue, and the patients are shown with tubes in their mouths. Scenes on 20 stones are nothing short of an operation on the heart. Dr. Edward Maxey, member of the American College of Surgeons in Florida, noted of the pictures: "I am tremendously impressed. In the stone carvings the detail is clear -- the seven blood vessels from the heart are faithfully copied. The whole thing looks like a cardiac operation and the surgeons seem to be using techniques that fit with our modern knowledge."

This is a disturbing revelation in itself -- that someone in the unknown antiquity had achieved a level of sophistication rivaling our own. But there are other pictures that are even more "out of place." As Dr. Cabrera noted, and has been verified by medical physicians, there are stones which show a brain transplant in progress....

The success of these prehistoric examples of surgery testify to scientific developments beyond the understanding of later, supposedly more "cultered" civilizations: the Greeks, the Romans, and even Western knowledge up until the present century. The operations presuppose advanced knowledge in three specific areas -- hygiene, anesthetics, and blood flow and control. It is interesting that we find an understanding of all three among many ancient peoples.

In Egypt, early physicians understood the need for sterilization ---- they fumigated the operating room, and before making an incision, they washed their hands thoroughly, and made sure knives were both washed and heated in a flame. In China, the surgeon Hua T'o in the Han Dynasty - (A.D. 25-220) is described in the chronicle Hou Han Shu as performing an operation in the following manner: "He first had the patient swallow a heated hemp powder mixed with wine. After intoxification and unconsciousness took place, the surgeon cut with a sterile knife into the abdomen and cut out the morbid growth (tumor). He thoroughly cleansed the stomach ... after, the wound was stitched, and a marvelous ointment applied that hastened the healing." We have here the application of both hygiene and anesthetics.

Among the Dogon, a tribe of central west Africa, is the age-old legend that the planets in heaven are like "circulating blood". They describe the action of blood in the human body this way" "The movement of the blood in the body which circulates inside the organs in the belly, on the one hand, 'clear' blood, and on the other, the oil. The blood-water -- or clear -- goes through the heart, then the lungs, the liver, and the spleen; the oily blood goes through the pancreas, the kidneys, the intestines and the genitals." The Dogon also recognize that food and drink nourishment enters into the blood and is transported to all organs; air also passes into the blood, by way of the lings. The question is: Where did a "primitive" tribe receive such an intimate knowledge of the workings of the body, particularly an understanding of blood circulation, which supposedly was not discovered in Europe until the 17th century?

Schwartz, in Mysteries of Easter Island, analyzed pictographs of the enigmatic rongo-rongo- writing from that remote Pacific Isle, and discovered that several indicate an intimate knowledge of anatomy. One symbol in particular represents the circulation of blood from a mother's heart to the uterus and fetus, through the unbilical cord. The symbol clearly shows the aorta, the trunk and two branches of the pulmonary artery, and their actions causing the blood to flow.

While there are many examples of surgery from the past the pruposes of which (and the techniques employed) are clearly recognizable, we are also confronted by instances that are totally baffling -- and beyond our present knowledge.

In the 1930's, a collection of ancient fetishes obtained from the San Blas Chucinaque Indians of Central America was sent to London for examination and exhibit. Pro. Sir Arthur Keith, a noted anthropologist, discovered that one of these fetishes was a perfectly preserved human male fetus. He judged that it had been removed after five or six from the mother's womb, by what must have been an extremely delicate form of surgery. What amazed Sir Arthur was that, under the microscope, every detail -- from the pores in the skin to the tiny hairs that would have become eyebrows -- could be seen. Amazingly, however, the fetus had not been dried, cired, smoked or chemically treated by any known preservation technique. As author Richard Garvin noted: "Contrary to the living conditions and habits of the Chucinaque, such an ability to preserve this embryonic child displays a scientific knowledge far surpassing their technological ability." As if adding mystery upon mystery, it was also discovered that the fetus had a skull formation completely unknown to modern science.

In other words, it does not correspond to any cranial type of a natural origin. What caused this malformation? Was the fetus perhaps an experiment that failed? Did some unknown surgeon in antiquity somehow alter the growth of the child while ti was still maturing inside the mother? Perhaps one day -- when our science has progressed to that level of sophistication -- we will answer these mysteries.....

RONALD M. SPANBAUER

November 21st, 1978

Dear Joan:

All the photographs I have are for trading purposes only unless otherwise specified. The few computer analyzed photos that I have cannot be published without the owner's consent. Therefore I am enclosing a series of photographs taken April 19th in the Northwestern part of Wisconsin. I have offered these photographs for publication to other magazines. However, since I maintain a strict policy of discretion when dealing with persons who have sighted UFOs or taken pictures of them and since I've refused to use real names and exact locations in my submitted reports, these photographs and a full report have been rejected for commercial publication. Perhaps your readers will enjoy seeing them and reading the report.

I have been given permission by the photographer to offer these prints and an account of the sighting, which I investigated, for publication. If you decide to publish the story you will have had "a first".

The following is a brief account of the incident.

Mark Coltrane and Janet Lester (control names) were in the vicinity of painted Lake, a small body of water near Flaxen, Wisconsin, when they decided to stop and enjoy the beautiful Spring day. Mark had brought along a fishing rod which he intended to use for practicing casting, since most of the ice had already disappeared from the lake.

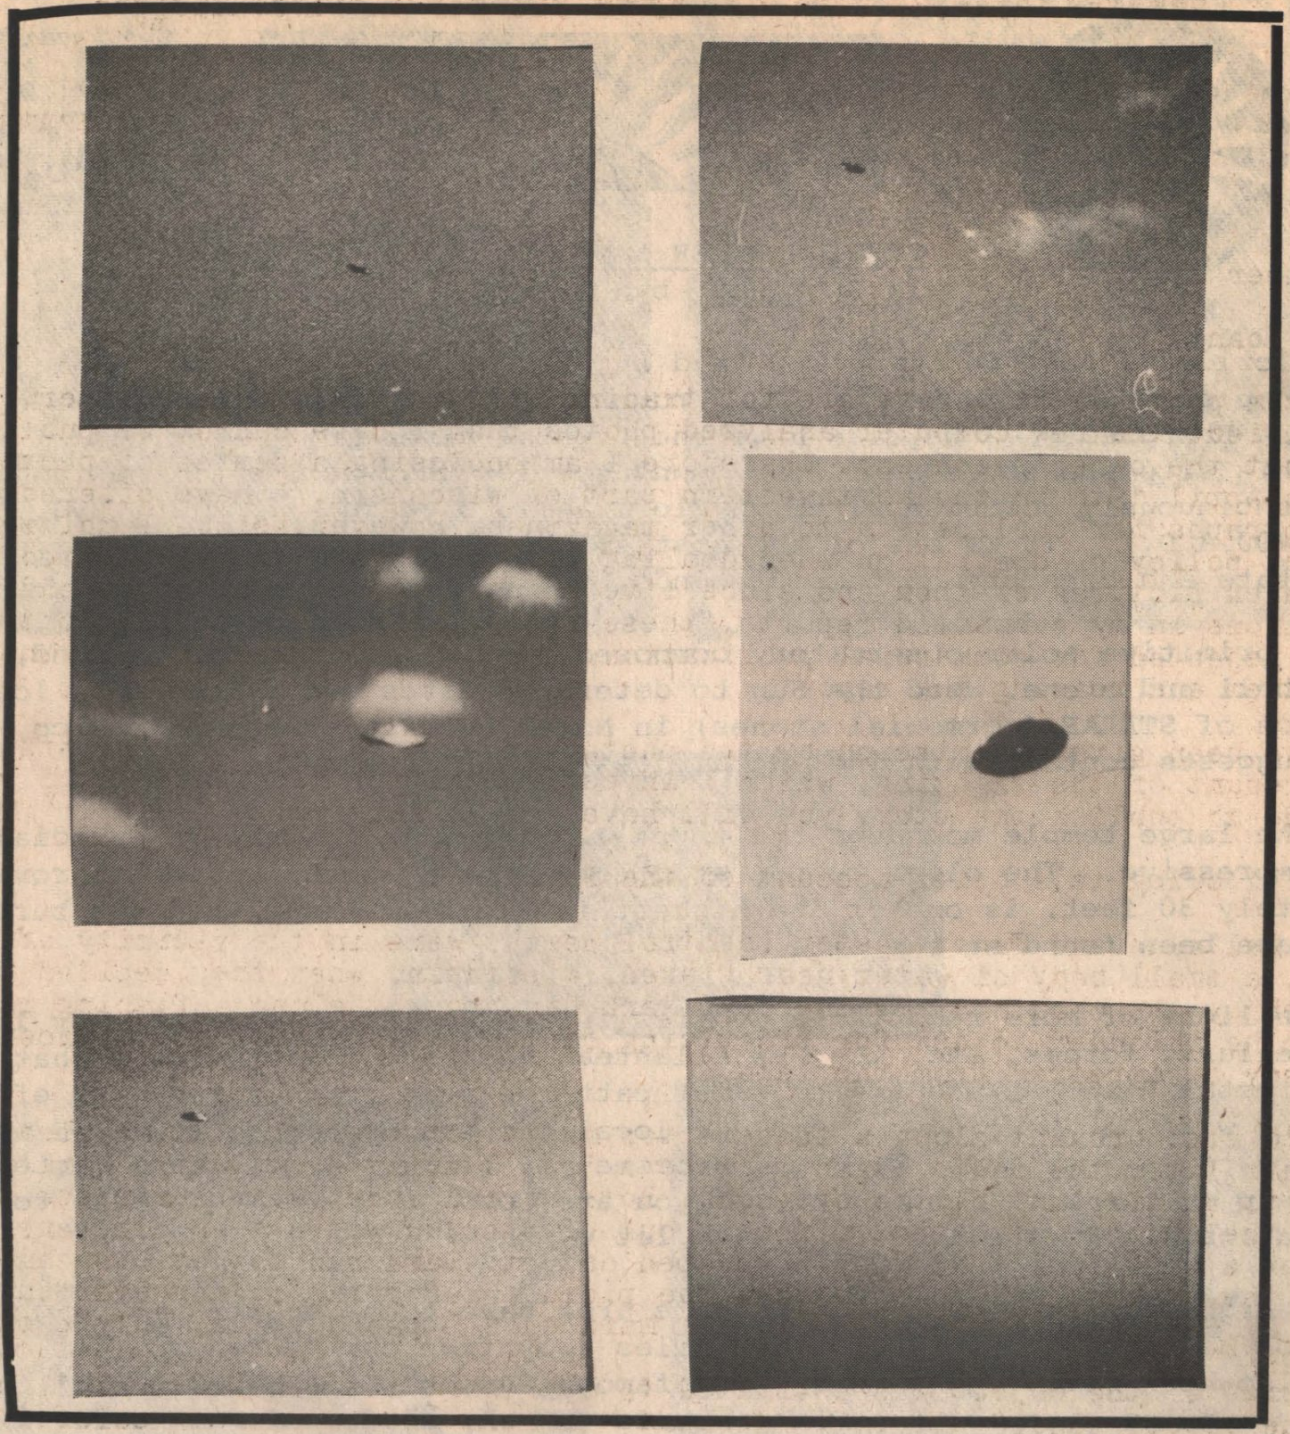

They'd also brought along a transisitor radio for their listening pleasure. Moments later the radio began to make a loud buzzing sound which Mark attibuted to an airplane flying overhead. Both he and Janet were surprised to see that the object which came directly out of the Sun was not an airplane but rather a brilliant, shiny, disc-shaped object. Mark ran to get his camera from the car and was able to take one picture befor the object started to make a 360' pass around them. In all Mark shot 9 photographs, only 6 came out.

The size of the object was estimated to be "about the size of a small car". As the object passed directly overhead, Mark noticed different colored lights blinking on and off in an irregular pattern. A red or amber colored light is visible in the center of the object in photo #4. The entire incident lasted approximately a minute and a half.

I realize this isn't much of a report but it is all I have time for right now. Feel free to use what there is. In return, you can send me copies of any photos that come your way, including the one in your next edition.
I will appreciate your comments. Hope to hear from you soon.

Yours in research,

Ronald M. Spanbauer

NOTE: WITH THE PUBLICATION OF THE ABOVE PHOTOS AND MR. SPANBAUER'S LETTER WE BEGIN A NEW COLUMN IN OUR JOURNAL! WE CAN'T THANK HIM ENOUGH FOR SHARING HIS RESEARCH WITH ALL OF US, AND WE LOOK FORWARD TO MORE OF THESE FASCINATING CASES. I AM ALSO SURE THAT YOU, THE READER, WILL NOT PICK APART THESE PHOTOS BECAUSE OF THE USE OF 'CONTROL NAMES'. WHEN SOMEONE WRITES TO US AND ASKS NOT TO BE NAMED, WE HONOR THAT REQUEST, AND WE HAVE GONE ON TO UTILIZE THAT INFORMATION STATING SUCH.

CRYSTAL RIVER: AN AMERICAN STONEHENGE?
IN FLORIDA? by Joan O'Connell, Editor

Florida is fast becoming THE land of mystery! Between the Bimini Road Complex, the Triangle area, and rumors upon rumors of more pyramids in the Everglades -- we also have the Crystal River Temple and burial sites. This site preserves an Indian mound complex that is one of the longest continuously occupied sites in Florida (1600 years - from 200 B.C. to 1400 A.D.). It is one of the most important pre-Columbian sites in the state and consists of temple mounds, burial mounds and middens.

A primitive solar observatory composed of a giant calendar of sand, shell and stone, used the Sun to determine dates and is the only location of STELAE (cermonial stones) in North America, north of Mexico, and suggests contact with Indian cultures in the Yucatan.

The large temple mound to the north, 235 feet in length, is especially impressive. The older temple structure to the south, rising approximately 30 feet, is one of the highest in Florida. More than 450 burials have been found at the site.

In light of more recent discoveries in the fields of dowsing, ley lines, telluric forces, etc, the New Atlantean Research Society feels that the Crystal River mounds and calendar patterns need further research efforts. So, with the help of some of our local members and consultants we will try to do just this! We would welcome any of our out of state members help or theories, and if any of you are possibly planning a trip to our fair state in the future, please let us know.

I might also add that in this same area have been reported UFO sightings for many years, and just a few miles away from the mounds Bigfoot has also been seen! The famous (or infamous) Brooksville Haunted Hill is just a tad south of the River mounds - ah, shades of Warminster and the REAL Stonehenge in England! Will the Florida mystery stones speak? Do they also gleam and whisper on moonlit nights? Will the soft murmer of Mayan voices again sing upon the Temple Mound and reveal to us the lost ages of wisdom and knowledge? Perhaps. Or they may decide to be silent in their palm-shrouded tombs. Content to let the Sun rise again upon their sacred land and shine among the happy spirits still abounding in the pine forest along the banks on their Crystal River... ...

Death in the wild triangle

THE SUNDAY SUN - CANADA
NOV. 13, 1977**

By PETER YOUNG
Staff Writer

It's a malevolent maze of rock, swamp, jackpine and blue spruce looming north and east of Sault Ste. Marie.

The Northern Triangle.

Sportsmen flock to it for its trout and bass fishing, to hunt its bear, moose and deer. Some are successful.

Others — more than 100 a year — are swallowed by the Triangle's wild green maw.

Some of them are lucky; snatched back to civilization by rescue operations run like minor military campaigns.

Some get "bushwhacked" — a slide into insanity.

About 20 per cent drown. Sometimes, years later, other hunters or fishermen will stumble across bleached bones. Others are simply never seen again.

Mac Nicholson has been battling the Triangle since it killed his brother-in-law 16 years ago. The brother-in-law was one of the 20 percent that drowned.

Now Nicholson commands a private army of 275 volunteers — Sault Search and Rescue Inc. — with their own trucks, snowmobiles, aircraft and radio equipment. About 100 times a year, he mobilizes his army.

45,000 miles

Their target is the Triangle — 45,000 square miles of Spruce, Swamp and countless unnamed lakes. It's that wedge of land separating Lake Superior from Georgian Bay with its points at North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and Geraldton.

The immensity of the area, the tortured tangle of undergrowth can crumble a man's mind in seconds.

"It's a type of claustrophobia — everything just closes in. Their minds go blank and they run themselves into exhaustion," Nicholson says.

Sweat-drenched, panicking, they'll bull blindly through the thickest bush, bouncing off trees, dropping their rifles.

"The worst one I've seen, we had to put him into a strait jacket," says Nicholson.

"He ran into the search line about the middle of the third day. It looked like he'd been running steady the whole three days.

"It was November but he was stripped to the waist and sweating. We actually had to throw him down and hang onto him," Nicholson recalls.

Lashed into a strait jacket and rushed to hospital, the 35-year-old man needed a week to return to normal.

Some lost hunters become wary as wild animals.

Nicholson remembers the 23-year-old German hunter, lost last year in the Triangle, who literally ran and hid from searchers.

"We spotted him from helicopters twice in clearings but he got away from us."

"We had to land men and track him down."

Care needed

When they reached him, the searchers avoided loud shouts and sudden movements.

"You've got to be extremely careful," says Nicholson. "If he's armed and looks nervous — you don't know what the devil he's going to do."

The Triangle's air of brooding menace works its greatest damage on the minds of young children.

When children under 10 are lost, "you've got to get on it quick," says Nicholson.

"One hundred per cent of the time, he'll curl up and get under something."

Tucked into the foetal position, the child will let reserchers pass inches from him without stirring or making a sound.

A classic example was provided by the two 10-year-olds who wandered away from their home into dense bush several winters ago.

One member of the shoulder-to-shoulder search line ducked under a spruce to brush snow away from its base.

Huddled beneath the snow, hunched in the foetal crouch but alive, were the two youngsters.

"They didn't even look up while we were brushing the snow off them," says Nicholson.

The Triangle's reputation as a wilderness playground for hunters and fishermen masks its graveyard history.

Toronto-area men are learning the Triangle's special brand of doom.

Most lost sportsmen were American five years ago, but now "75 per cent of the people we look for are from the Toronto-Hamilton area," Nicholson says.

The Triangle doesn't give up its victims easily.

Despite massive search parties at times numbering 1,000 men, eight people have disappeared in the last 15 years.

The bones of four of the missing men were later found by accident. No trace of the remaining men has been discovered.

If the Triangle can be fearful for people on foot, the picture is even blacker for pilots.

Since 1952, at least 34 people in 17 aircraft have been gulped down by the Triangle.

The wedge-shaped deathtrap straddles the main air arteries connecting western Canada to southern Ontario.

Search pilots describe it as a monotonous sea of green.

Like the ocean, it can make its victims disappear with hardly a ripple.

Fragments from seven of the 17 aircraft have been located over the years.

But not one complete aircraft and none of the 34 bodies has ever been recovered.

'It scares you'

"It's all blue spruce and water. It scares you to death to fly over it," says helicopter pilot Richard Pearce.

Landing strips are hundreds of miles apart. Navigation aids and weather reports are minimal. Pilots fly the Triangle knowing their margin for error is zero.

"You can fly around up there for a week without hearing any radio chatter," says Pearce.

"When something small goes wrong — that's it."

A large, heavy aircraft gliding in for a crash landing will leave a visible scar along the carpet of green.

But a small plane is sucked under the canopy of fir and pine without a trace.

"You can't even find the haystack, never mind the needle," says Pearce.

A pilot with Ranger Lake Helicopters Ltd. of the Soo, Pearce has been on searches where planes have been found then lost again.

"We had already brought people out (of one crash site) but we couldn't find it when we went back until (other survivors) lit signal fires," he says.

A small armada of search aircraft has been crisscrossing the Triangle's corpse-grey skies for the past week, hunting for two downed Toronto pilots.

Calvin Gavine of Etobicoke and Eric Lind of Scarboro have been missing since taking off Nov. 3 from Marathon, on Lake Superior's north shore, en route to Toronto.

Like so many others, they flew into the Triangle and never flew out.

Military aircraft from the Trenton search and rescue headquarters have been fruitlessly scanning the area in bad weather.

Now the families of the men are taking an active part in the search.

Gavine's family yesterday announced a $1,000 reward for anyone finding the crash site and $500 for anyone giving information leading to its location.

Exploring passageways into different dimensions linking the material and non-material worlds

The "Dark Holes" in Space

by the Mystical Traveler Consciousness

ED. NOTE: The Mystical Traveler Consciousness exists simultaneously on all levels of consciousness in total awareness. This Consciousness works here in the physical realm with those people who have asked for that assistance. This same Consciousness works on each realm within the lower worlds of psychic influence and also within the Soul Realm and each realm higher, reaching into the supreme totality of God's Beingness.

The Mystical Traveler Consciousnss, moving through John-Roger, has established the Movement of Spiritual Inner Awareness (MSIA), a world-wide spiritual organization which has it's headquarters in Los Angeles, California.]

JOHN-ROGER

The lower worlds, the planes of the physical, astral, causal, mental and etheric, are the worlds of matter. The spiritual worlds of Soul and pure Spirit are the worlds of anti-matter. Matter is the psychic-physical-material part of life; anti-matter is the spiritual area of existence. There have been many science fiction stories written about what might happen if matter and anti-matter came together. It's quite obvious that when these two come together a change takes place; there is an explosion, and scientists say when this explosion takes place, nothing is left. But since anti-matter is nothing, anyway, it is still there. It's really another way of saying that the material world will deteriorate and decay, but the spiritual world will endure.

There are many planets in the universe and the earth, believe it or not, isn't the highest frequency (nor is it the lowest). But all the planets, no matter how high the frequency, are in the worlds of matter. And as long as anything in these worlds matters to you in such a way that you feel you can't get along without it, then you may find yourself on the cycle of return to see if that's really truth or illusion.

There are material worlds that are so fantastic, where the consciousness can become like a demi-god, where you can levitate at will, materialize whatever you desire, indulge in any pleasure you can imagine. But as long as you dwell within any of the worlds of matter, you must stay in the cycle of return.

Scientists are beginning to "discover" what they refer to as "dark holes" in space. They haven't figured out what they are. These "dark holes" are Light in another form. Those who have observed these say that they're dark and void, and that there is no light there -- but light has many shapes and forms and sizes. The holes in space are not void; they are channels for movement from one dimension to another. It's quite obvious that if you were attempting to travel between dimensions, you would not try to move through something solid. You would move through that which is not solid, which might appear to be void -- except that within that "void" there is a great Light, but of such a rarified nature that it cannot be seen with physical instruments of the physical level. When you learn to move your consciousness into the spiritual perception of anti-matter, you can see very clearly that these holes in space are actually much like a tube between the dimensions, and that intercommunication and intergalactic activity are happening there. The machinery with which scientists are trying to detect activity is not refined enough to pick it up -- but it's there.

Because the activity that is going on in these other dimensions must be of a frequency that fits those particular levels, the holes appear to be dark and void when observed in space. But when the activity comes close into the frequency of the earth, it picks up a frequency that fits the earth, a frequency of denser matter, and appears as an object of some sort, a "flying saucer", a UFO. Some of this activity doesn't come all the way into this frequency, just partially in; so people who are somehow attuned to the frequency the activity is on will see these "UFO's" -- either physically or psychically -- and other people see nothing.

The communications that are possible through these interconnecting magnetic force lines are tremendous. You can move upon them as rapidly as you can visualize something in your mind's eye. But these other worlds are still in the level of matter; it's just very rarified.

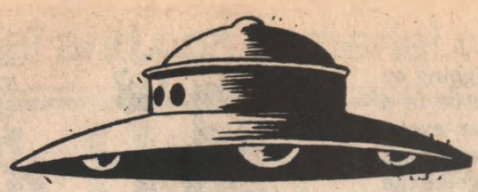

The level of anti-matter is strictly the level of Soul and the levels above that. Those are the realms of pure Spirit, non-matter. It's not necessarily easy to break through all the lower, material levels and reach those higher planes.

There are a few keys I can give you. I've already mentioned that if something on this level or any of the material levels matters so much to you that you can't let go, then you must continue to come back to that. We're all creators and we create many of our own laws, which we must then fulfill. When you can begin to learn detachment from this level and from material things, you can begin to lift into a Soul awareness. an awareness of anti-matter.

When the Soul transcends and overcomes the body, when the awareness of the Soul becomes stronger than the awareness of the body, mind, emotions and subconscious, when your primary focus in life is maintaining and expanding your awareness of your Soul -- are establishing yourself

INTERNATIONAL UFO REPORT

New Zealand TV crew films another UFO

United Press International

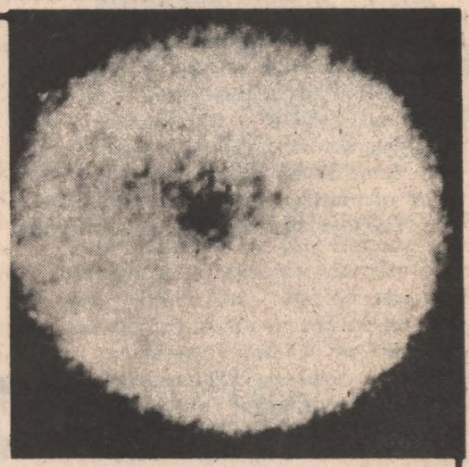

SYDNEY, Australia — A television crew Wednesday filmed the second UFO spotted in New Zealand in four days — a brilliant object "like a volcano" that flashed a pulsating light across the predawn sky.

The new sighting also was reported by six policemen in a town 500 miles away from the TV cameras on New Zealand's South Island.

The national newspaper The Australian, which reported the sighting of the second UFO in today's editions, said military aircraft patrolling New Zealand's skies did not pick up the UFO on their radar.

The original New Zealand UFO sighting that made world headlines on New Year's Eve was corroborated by an airport radar controller who saw an unknown object on his scope.

Scientists puzzled by the UFO sightings suggested they might be caused by reflections from Japanese squid fishermen, who are using high-intensity lights in the night-time harvest now in progress off the New Zealand shore. But they could not explain the radar incident.

This is the latest UFO filmed by a TV crew.

AP

The film crew turned its new photos of the UFO over to the government for analysis by a computer capable of eliminating film distortions and defining the relative shape of the object.

The New Zealand network's news editor, Douglas Echkoff, said, "We have no doubt that we have the most detailed and dramatic film of a UFO taken by nonmilitary sources anywhere in the world."

THE TORONTO SUN - CANADA -- NOV. 14, 1978

DRAIN GAS TANK, LAND IN OIL FIELD

UFOs have powerful thirst for gas

The UFOs are coming, and they seem to be thirsty for oil and gasoline.

Carlos Acevedo and Angel Moya say that on Sept. 23, they were south of Buenos Aires in Argentina when a yellow and violet light shone in their rear-view mirror.

A strange force shut off the engine and headlights of their Citroen CG, lifted it off the road and set it down a minute later and 150 kilometres north. The "force" also drained the car's gasoline tank.

The first-ever saucer spotted in oil-rich Kuwait landed silently, where else but in an oil field. It was as big as a jumbo jet, cylindrical, with a huge dome and a flashing red light.

After seven minutes, it took off without a trace.

That's the testimony of seven Kuwait Oil Company technicians, including one American, who said they saw it.

If estimates of Kuwaiti oil reserves drop suddenly, you'll know why.

Italians Sight UFOs; Object Photographed

ROME (NYT) — The skies of Italy, it seems, are full of OVNIS, the Italian version of UFO's.

Unidentified flying objects that give off green, red or white lights and have a doughnut-like hole in the middle have been reported, and in some cases, photographed, at dozens of places between Palermo, Sicily, and Milan, in the north.

The most alarming item so far was from San Benedetto del Tronto, a fishing village on the Adriatic near Pescara, where two fishermen in a boat were reported to have disappeared without a trace on a clear night when the sea was as smooth as a mirror and lit by a full moon. Fishermen in the area refused to go out at night after that, and there is talk of an "Adriatic Triangle," reminiscent of the legendary "Bermuda Triangle," where ships and planes are rumored to have disappeared for generations.

Thursday the phenomenon of the OVNI — "oggetto volante non identificato" in Italian — hit Rome for the first time, being reported by none other than the officers on duty in the operations room of police headquarters.

Dozens of people called, all with the same message: "We see an enormous beam of green light just overhead." A lieutenant and a noncommissioned officer, "driven by curiosity," as they said later, ran out on the terrace and exclaimed: "We see an enormous beam of green light!" The light disappeared in a north-northwesterly direction between Tiberina and Salaria, two residential quarters.

In Palermo on Tuesday a bank clerk, Nino Raffagnino, said he spotted an object just before midnight, made a dash for his 1,000 millimeter telephoto lens and came up with a series of pictures that appeared in the press. One, taken when the object was stationary, according to Raffagnino, showed a disc of light with a hole in the middle.

Officers of the Palermo police, alerted by citizens' calls, also snapped pictures and sent them to the newspapers. Taken while the object appeared to be moving, they showed a long, wide streak of light in the dark sky. Reports of sightings also came from a night patrol of the Carabinieri, the elite national police corps, at Lecce, in the south, and from two soldiers standing guard at Brindisi, on the Adriatic coast.

Associated Press

A police picture shows a UFO over Palermo, Sicily, one of many sighted over Italy and Sicily in recent months. The UFO traveled south and had a golden glow of varying intensity.

DALLAS MORNING NEWS: 12/15/78

In Corriere della Sera, the influential Turin newspaper, Francesco Alberoni, a well-known sociology professor, expressed surprise that so many sightings were being reported just now. Normally, he said in an interview, such flurries on extraterritorial activities come at times of great national anxiety, but Italians are rather less worried than usual about either terrorism or politics.

Weird objects, gas put scare in Italians

From Wire Reports

ROME — Dozens of Romans reported sighting unidentified flying objects before dawn Thursday and police confirmed seeing "a very long and very bright emerald green trail descending vertically from the sky."

Meanwhile, a gas leak provoked panic and fear of a UFO landing in some areas of the Eternal City, police reported.

A large quantity of non-explosive, non-toxic gas used to flavor the main gas and make it noticeable to users leaked out of a plant in the southern part of Rome. A strong wind spread the gas over a large portion of the Italian capital.

Many people who called police headquarters for information on the smell expressed the fear it could have been announcing the coming of an outer-space object, police sources reported.

The UFO sightings and gas leak came hours after the satirical magazine Il Male (Evil) put out a fake edition of the newspaper Corriere della Sera reporting a Martian landing in Mexico.

Arctic Haze

Pollution Cover Increases Fears Of Disastrous Melting Of The Ice Caps

St. Petersburg Independent

Wednesday, January 10, 1979 3-A

Any great melting of Arctic ice packs would be disastrous.

NEW YORK (AP) — A puzzling haze over the Arctic ice packs has been identified as a byproduct of air pollution, a finding that may support predictions of a disastrous melting of the Earth's ice caps.

But Dr. Kenneth Rahn, one of the scientists whose work helped identify the seasonal haze, said Tuesday it was impossible without further work to predict what climatic effect the Arctic pollution may have.

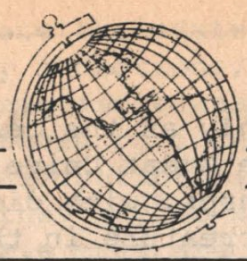

Moreover, Rahn, of the University of Rhode Island School of Oceanography, said no similar haze has been found over the Antarctic, which has most of the world's ice.

The haze was first noticed when weather planes began making routine flights inside the Arctic Circle in the 1950s, Rahn told a news conference at a meeting on pollutants sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences.

Analysis showed the haze to be made of sulfur compounds, principally sulfuric acid and ammonium sulfate, which now appear to derive from sulfur dioxide gas emitted during fuel combustion in industrial centers, Rahn said in an interview.

In the winter and spring, global weather patterns sweep this pollution northward. But the solid pollutants all fall out while the gas reacts slowly to form a sulfate haze, he said.

Winter sulfate concentrations at Point Barrow, Alaska, reach a monthly average of two micrograms per cubic meter, compared to about five micrograms year-round in the northeastern United States, he said. Similar levels have been found in Arctic air at Spitsbergen, Norway.

Author: "THE VIEW OVER ATLANTIS"

A proposal for recognizing a natural force to provide an instantaneous, Universal Transport System!

People who mysteriously vanish, who are sometimes seen at the actual point of vanishing; cases of bi-location and people who suddenly find themselves taken up from one place and set down in another (including cases of fairy or UFO abductions), the flights of witches and shamans, spontaneous levitations of holy men, levitations of people and objects during outbreaks of so-called poltergeist disturbances and people who turn up somewhere, not knowing where they are or are in a trance or shock or amnesia.

Animals out of place, creatures of one continent that turn up in another, or were thought extinct yet appear or apparently come fleetingly from another time, showers of frogs and other creatures and objects from the skies, recorded from the earliest times and never explained.

Pots and pans that fly about during hauntings, waters and other liquids that seep from unknown sources or pour down the wooden cheeks of sacred icons, the prayers of the pious or the caperings of rain-makers answered by downpours, lost objects miraculously found and the required book or reference falling into the hand of the obsessed scholar.

In all these and many other classes of unexplained and therefore little heard of events, there is the suspicion of a theme: Of men, animals, and Things shuffled about the Universe, instantaneously and by no known agency, but sometimes apparently in response to intense desire. Charles Fort wrote a book called Lo! on teleportation, a word he coined for a hypothetical natural force that acts distributively. "The look to me," he said, "is that, throughout what is loosely called Nature, teleportation exists as a means of distribution of things and materials, and that sometimes human beings have command, mostly unconsciously, perhaps sometimes as a developement from research and experiment, of this force... It may be that among savages there are teleportationists."

Fort's notion of the world was that the earth is roughly at the centre of a vast egg-shaped cell, probably one of many in the great Universal body. The Universe is an organism, rather senile perhaps, with diminishing powers, but still functioning like any living creature in that the needs of any part of the body awake a response in the whole. Teleportation is the self-regulating principle in the body that send fish to expectant ponds, swarms of insects in response to dearths and rains to areas of drought -- sometimes -- over-compenstating with floods where nature's desires are augmented by the interference of rain-makers and clergymen.

If you think of an idea you start to get feedback; and no sooner do we think of teleportation, that Fred Hoyle starts babbling of viruses teleported to this earth from outer space, and astronomers invent black holes which, according to some speculations may have the effect of dematerializing things in one part of the Universe and reassembling them elsewhere. There may therefore be the potential for an instant teleport system about the Universe, which was just what Charles Fort predicted would be discovered when the force of teleportation was discovered, recognized, demystified and put to use.

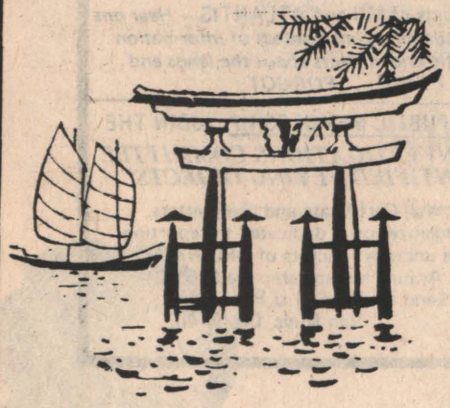

One of the most useful new sciences of our own time, the study of the mentality of scientists, teaches us that any crack-pot theory can gain acceptance if it ties together with other accepted crack-pot theories. By such an arbitrary process is our Reality made. Knowing this, let us be beneficial and tie in some theories that will raise the quality of Reality a little higher. To the awsome theory of black holes, the Kali-like, devouring female image of modern low-minded cosmology -- let us tie in a nebevolent theory, teleportation, and let it become as real as it has been under previous belief-systems. And, together with a Universal instant transport system we have as a side effect an even greater benefit, one that is capable of restoring the human race to its natural and original hight state, -- instant enlightenement.

Shamans and witch-doctors, my information comes mostly from Professor Eliade's Shamanism, often receive their vocation spontaneously. Sometimes, as among us at poltergeist hauntings, a person is picked up as if by demons and levitated, perhaps to a tree-top, where he is found deranged and babbling. Usually in these cases he develops mediumistic powers and is then trained in the traditional lore and magic of his tribe.

Compare the state of mind of modern UFO contactees or the victims of fairy abductions, as the experience of being taken from earth by a strange force was once described. In very many of these cases, as can be proved by interviewing UFO contactees today, they feel somehow in mental contact with the creatures or the forces that abducted them - and they become sensitive and prophetic. Often they go mad. Yet, I believe they are the same people as in tribal societies would be recognized as potential shamans, healers, prophets and so on. One of my ambitions is to open a chold of Platonic studies for UFO contactees, thus taking a burden off the lunatic asylum system while increasing the world stock of sages and Initiates.

Here then is a projection of the future more exciting, beneficial and practical than the remorseless, uninmaginative horror-story of Leary -style space colonies and other such depressing developments of current technology. Teleportation will be rediscovered, people will move about the Universe at the speed of thought, goods will be instantly directed to where they are needed, rains will be sent to deserts, manna will drop onto hungry travellers, and colleges for post-teleoortation novices will develop the god-like potential of the Human Race. Does all that seem likely? Well --- neither did television!

ODE TO A SPACE-SHIP

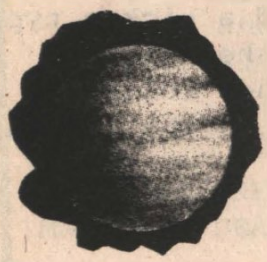

Black and gray, plastic and steel
Guage and dial, straps and wheel
All are torn, bent or dented
Doors are hanging, hull is rended
Hissing, Whistling against the hill
Then at last all is still.

I feel a fear, I wonder why?
Nothing could live thru a fall from the sky.
But what's that? In that hallway?
Can a man in this wreckage lie?
Is that a man with a head so huge?
His blood is red, dark red like rouge!
Good grief, he is rising, standing tall,
Staggering this way, about to fall.

He falls at last, murmers a word
What can it be, this sound I've heard?
What is it's meaning? What's it worth?

This silly sound "IMFROMEARTH"?

Cattle Mutilation Mystery Deepens

FROM THE ALBUQUERQUE JOURNAL: 12/13/79.
CREDIT: Mary and TAL Levesque.

By FRITZ THOMPSON
Journal Staff Writer

A semi-secret test conducted one night last summer was cited this week as providing "startling and baffling" new evidence in the mysterious cattle mutilations which have proliferated in north central New Mexico. Further intrigue was added Tuesday with the disclosure of a previously unreported and unpublicized UFO incident near Taos less than four days before the test. Both the test and the incident left tangible materials with similar properties. The materials have been placed under continuing analyses at an Albuquerque laboratory.

New Mexico, with 35 "confirmed" mutilations so far this year, has been identified as one of three states - Arkansas and Missouri are the others, exhibiting a dramatic increase in the number of reports. Combined with figures from previous years, the state has had a total of aprox. 60. The test last summer was conducted on the Manuel Gomez Ranch near Dulce, in an area where the majority of the state's mutiliations have occurred. Gomez and State Police Officer Gabe Valdez penned about 120 of the Gomez beef cattle in a corral and moved them through a squeeze chute and moved them through and under an ultra-violet light. During the nocturnal test Valdez said, five animals were found "with a glittery substance on the right side of the neck, the right ear and the right leg." Samples of the affected hides were removed along with unaffected "control" samples from the same animals. Schoenfeld Clinical Laboratories in Albuquerque analyzed the samples and found the affected hides to contain significant deposits of potassium and magnesium - the potassium content was more than 70 times above normal... The ultra-violet light test is the first such test known to have been conducted in connection with the mutilations. The test at the Gomez corrals took place July 5. At the time, Valdez, Gomez, and retired scientist Howard Burgess were unaware of an incident which had occurred four nights before near Taos.

Three families living near each other 3 miles NW of Taos were startled at 12:05 a.m. by what they later described as "a very bright orange light outside their homes." ... Mrs. Vargas said members of all three families saw the light, she said it hovered over a space between her house and that of an immediate neighbor. A 500 gallon fuel tank and a pickup type truck were directly below the object. The next morning, she said, a thin powder was found on the roof of the pickup's cab. They collected the powder in a jar. Eventually, the substance was given to the lab in Albuquerque.

He described the chips of material as a dull gray and about three eights of an inch long, 1 sixteenth of an inch wide, and about as thick as a sheet of paper. ... He said microscopic particles are imbedded in the material. "We cannot really say what it is yet," he said. "For the moment, I'm Baffled." ... One official noted mutilated cattle generally are found lying on their right side. The same side the live catter were - "Marked on"...

Schoenfeld said initial analysis of the substance show it contains significant amounts of potassium and magnesium --- the same elements found on the hides of the cattle tested four nights later. In descending order, Schoenfeld said the residu contains calcium, sodium, potassium, aluminum, phosphorou magnesium and iron. Other elements presently identified in - clude barium, bismuth, platinum, vanad - ium and strontium.

A SPECIAL BOOK REVIEW: THE ALLENDE LETTERS: NEW UFO BREAKTHROUGH
by Patrick O'Connell, President, The New Atlantean Research Society

This is a MUST for every serious researcher! Joan Whritenour (now Joan O'Connell)and Brad Steiger have, for the first time anywhere, fully brought forth the significantfacts and incredible details surrounding the purported 1943 US Navy research into Altert Einstein's Unified Force Field theory. This book, originally published in 1968, has gone through many reprints, NOT IN THE USA, but in England! (Tanden Books - 14 Gloucester Rd, London, Eng. SW7). This is one UFO book that is like no other! The disappearance that was purported to have taken place at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, in which a destroyer, and it's crew, amazingly reappeared, within minutes, at the ship's other dock in the Norfolk, Newport News, Portsmouth, Virginia area, forms the basis for this incredible book.

If you feel that we are "not alone" in the Universe, that there are ancient races from outer space, "inner space", even from Earth, who pilot the mysterious UFOs -- this book if for you! Do members of some underground civilization walk among us to monitor scientific advances, sabotage strategic technical development and silence successful investigators? Did a number of crewmen on that ill-fated ship (that was teleported) - burst into flames while others lapsed into invisibility in from of their families and before patrons in a crowded bar? Are there men still confined to psychiatric wards as a result of the "successful" experiment? and --- What Went Wrong?

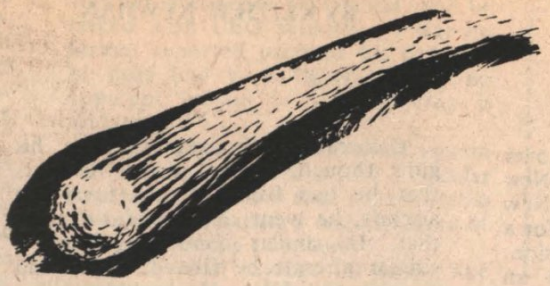

These are only a very few of the probing and perplexing questions raised by the unique UFO documents known as the Allende Letters that are examined in the book by Steigher and Whritenour. In short, their 155 page book is the FIRST BREAKTHROUGH in the wall of silence that has always surrounded the senstational top-secret Navy experimental research on making matter INVISIBLE!

Before you scoff or write them off, these letters, and the anotated book on UFOs that accompanied them have figured in, and had a mystery attached to them concerning their own disappearance! And mysterious fires!

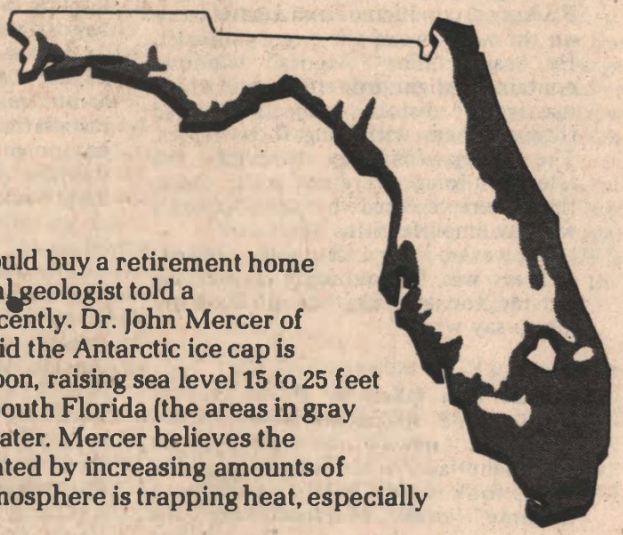

With the reports of UFOs increasing, can you afford to ignore The Allende-Letters and the clues that lead to other strange and enigmatic UFO mysteries? Buy a copy of this book today, if you REALLY want to Know! Order from: YES! Bookshop - 1035 31st St. SW, Washington, D.C. 20007. The cost is the best bargain - Only 95¢ plus $1.00 postage and handling-(they have to be imported from England).

THE FLORIDA RESEARCH REPORT!

No 20-year-old should buy a retirement home in South Florida, a glacial geologist told a conference of writers recently. Dr. John Mercer of Ohio State University said the Antarctic ice cap is likely to begin melting soon, raising sea level 15 to 25 feet — and putting much of South Florida (the areas in gray on map at right) under water. Mercer believes the "greenhouse effect" created by increasing amounts of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere is trapping heat, especially in the polar regions.

UFO'S OVER NEW ZEALAND – "THE 1978-79 FLAP"

BY KEITH W. NEWMAN

Whatever was in the skies over Kaikoura in the South Island of New Zealand on the weekend prior to New Years festivities certainly was in for a right old name-calling session. Especially after it was captured on film on 31 December by a television crew.

Within a week astronomer Peter Reid had made a definite identification, it was the planet Venus which was prominent in the skies at that time of the year, then RNZAF Squadron Leader Ray Carran blamed intense lighting from a Japanese squid fleet fishing off the coast. Local psychic Johnny Sheridan, who predicted the Wahine disaster and has helped in several crime investigations in Australia and New Zealand claimed it was a warning that an earthquake was due to strike here. Other explanations ranged from ice crystals, flocks of mutton birds, light reflections, meteorological balloons, meteorites that had failed to burn out, and top secret American missile research.

It seemed that everyone had jumped on the bandwagon trying to explain away the unusual light show that was witnessed, filmed and captured on radar.

In response to the public outcry to find out exactly what the furore was all about the NZ Government sent up airforce planes on a 'UFO Safari' in an effort to get to the root of the mystery – but to no avail. The RNZAF also put squadrons of Skyhawk fighter bombers on stand-by just in case.

The original sightings were made from a Safe Air Argosy aircraft heading into Christchurch International Airport on the evening of 21 December, by Captain Vern Powell and Co-pilot Ramble.

Actual film of the objects was obtained ten days after the first sightings. Melbourne's television Channel O were quick off the mark, they contacted their reporter Quentin Fogarty, holidaying in New Zealand, linked him up with Wellington cameraman David Crocket and chartered a Safe Air Argosy to fly over the Clarence River area in search of the elusive unidentified lights. They hit jackpot.

The film was later tested, prodded, and scrutinised by experts of many kinds and eventually put down as blurred and not clear enough to say for certain that it was a genuine film of a UFO.

Cameraman Crocket stuck by his guns though, to put down rumours that he had filmed Venus from the aircraft, he went out and did exactly that. In similar conditions from a similar aircraft he filmed Venus and showed the films side by side to try and dispell that belief.

Head of the Department of Scientific and Industrial Research (DSIR) Optics Division, Mr Norman Rumsey, conducted exhaustive tests on the windows of the Argosy aircraft. He said "The Argosy windows contained slight imperfections which massively distort objects filmed through them with long focus lenses. The lines cutting through the television image were not really there, they were created by the Argosy's window imperfections."

However, Mr Rumsey added: "There was undoubtedly something outside the aircraft, but it's not my job to say what."

The film taken by David Crocket took prime space on New Zealand television news, and along with comment and interviews the initial items took up just over 15 minutes of air-time, even overshadowing the prominence given to the recent November elections on National News.

Just when officialdom was hoping all the fuss about UFO's would die down and disappear another major encounter of the first kind was made. . . . .

Television One reporter Terry Olsen, sound recordist Lloyd McFadden and cameraman Cas Kasukaitis filmed an object off the north-east coast of the South Island, in a similar area to the sightings captured on film and the original observation.

The "Country Calendar" television crew claimed the object was about 3000 metres in the sky above the ocean. The crew vouched for the authenticity of the film and claimed they had seen two objects but had only one on film.

McFadden said: "It was rotating on its axis and pulsating." Cameraman Kasukaitis said: "It was definately moving because we fixed the camera on it and the object moved out of frame." Reporter Terry Olsen said: "The second object seemed to flare up suddenly by the side of the first, it then scudded across the sky. The first object was still visible after the sun had risen – about twice as bright as the morning star – it eventually rose into the sky and disappeared."

Piloting the Argosy freighter with the television crew aboard was Captain Bill Startup and Co-pilot First Officer Bob Guard. They agreed after viewing the "Country Calendar" team's film that this UFO was similar in size and colour to the objects witnessed while he was piloting the television crew, and that the description appeared to fit that of the original sightings made on the evening of 21 December by Captain Vince Powell also piloting an Argosy aircraft.

A "massive bright white light" paced Captain Powell's Argosy for some miles and appeared on radar installations at Wellington and on equipment in the aircraft itself. Captain Powell explained that the 'light' made a close pass by the aircraft at an estimated 17,000 kilometres an hour.

Powell is quoted as saying: "Immediately after the abrupt manoeuvre it vanished off the radar screen, and yet when we looked outside, there it was a flashing white light!" The object had disappeared from the Argosy's radar screen, but was still visible to the naked eye until the aircraft began its descent to land at Christchurch.

Captain Powell said: "I know Venus when I see it." He's been a pilot since 1944 and has observed the planet many times. There was talk about UFO's before take-off from Wellington. Captain Powell was informed that he may be asked to check on some unidentified radar returns while in the air. Once airborne he was told by Wellington that there was "a large return on our port side at about nine o'clock and at a distance of 40 kilometres. . . . ." "We looked out and there it was, a huge white light with a red tinge to it."

While attention was focussed on 'mystery lights' over Kaikoura, strange occurences that seem to have received a lower key coverage, and maybe point a more convincing finger at UFOs, were happening.

A huge and brightly lit UFO was photographed as it hovered over the ocean about two miles offshore at Riversdale Beach near Masterton in the North Island. Mr E. J. Thorley kept watch on the strange object for more than an hour using binoculars and a camera. The object was observed from 3.10 am until 5.15 am on 3 January. "It was so bright it lit up the room, even with the curtains drawn," he said.

Mr Thorley reported: "It was moving slowly and was shaped like a football with a light in the middle. Smaller lights seemed to shoot off from the UFO, and each time this happened the object would grow dimmer. What convinced me it was a UFO was the reflection on the water."

Another person living in Masterton reported seeing a bright object in the sky. Miss D. Winhall was getting ready for bed at about 10 pm when she saw a light shining through the door of her home. "I thought at first it was someone with a torch, but when I looked outside there was this bright object in the sky."

Early on the morning of 4 January, a personal friend placed a toll call to me from the same part of the country. Mrs Jan Wells lives on a sheep station at Blair Logie. Her nextdoor neighbour phoned her at about 4 am and asked her to look outside and see the object she had been observing.

Jan grabbed a telescope and went outside her home. To her amazement only 400 yards away was an object which she described as "big as a two storey house and shaped like a football". She said: "It was enormous and hovering above our neighbour's place. There was a green light all around. It had a blue knob on top and a red glow underneath, it was like a cigar."

She watched the object for about an hour, "Then it just lifted up, came down again and moved off toward the coast, there was a bright light and it disappeared."

Near Blenheim, in the South Island another occurence that could well be linked with UFO activity – a Rapura farmer reported parts of his paddock of peas had been flattened "for no apparent reason – yet the crop is undamaged".

The farmer, who wished to remain anonymous, believes the circular impression of some four metres across "would have taken a terrible force of air or something to achieve".

Other than saying: "It looks like some kind of craft has been over it" the farmer says he's baffled. There is no sign of tracks leading to or from the impression.

Sightings of Unidentified Flying Objects were made at Stokes Valley, Karori and Raumati Beach during the later half of December and a large white light flanked by three smaller objects was seen over Petone on New Years Day. Other reports came from Christchurch and Whangarei.

It is important I feel, to note that newspaper offices linked to Press Association and other international link ups were flooded with UFO reports from around the world at the time of the 'New Zealand flap'.

Let us hope that 1979 proves to be a fruitful one for UFOlogists and curious people the world over, and that at long last we may find some positive lead or clue to the mystery that has perplexed and confused manking for centuries, if not longer.

THE MYSTERY OF THE MUSHROOM MONUMENTS IN THE MARIANAS:
By Ruth Youngsblood (UPI)

The mushroom shaped monuments found ONLY in the Mariana Islands in the western Pacific remain one of the world's archaeological mysteries... Hidden in the jungles, in coastal coves and in the lowlands are hundreds of the curious looking megaliths islanders call "LATTE" STONES --- or "HOUSES OF THE ANCIENTS". One legend attributes their existence to a race of giants, and many villagers still regard the sites where these stone markers are found as places to be avoided. A saying, passed on from generation to generation, claims that one can sense a LATTE site before seeing it while walking through the jungle. If the stones are encountered, special prayers must be uttered to placate spirits, referred to as "PEOPLE OF THE BEFORE TIME"... The LATTES usually occur in double rows of EIGHT to TWELVE stones and consist of a lower stone, shaped like a pedestal, and an upper one, placed on top like a cap. Below the ground they are supported by large restraining stones.Those that constructed them probably had their ancient origins in the Malay peninsula and settled in the Marianas, of which Guam is the southernmost and the largest. The rest of the island group dots the Pacific East of the Phillipines... ... ...

BIGFOOT?
REPORTED SIGHTINGS NEAR VILLAGE
REVIVE HOPI LEGEND OF TRIBAL GOD
by Maggie Wilson
Source: Arizona Republic-2/11/79.

A "large, hairy, humanoid creature with incredibly big feet" has been reported sighted in recent weeks near Polacca, a Hopi Indian village at the foot of the reservation's First Mesa... According to Kendrick Outah, who first reported the sightings in Qua Toqti, a Hopi newspaper, all who have had a close encounter with the creature are "Public figures, reliable people".

Others call it Hairy Harry, or the Incredible Hulk, but some elders of the tribe have another, more fearsome name for the apparition ------ MASAU-U -- one of the gods of the Hopi pantheon. For the traditional Hopis, that name alone makes the now eerie events even more disturbing. - For knowledgeable "bahanas" (the Hopi word for Anglos), the name MASAU-U brings a degree of esoteric fascination to the story that far surpasses the Bigfoot legends.

Outah said the first sightings occurred at Polacca's Assembly of God Church, and he reported the thing "caused every dog in the village to begin barking simultaneously" and disrupted church services.

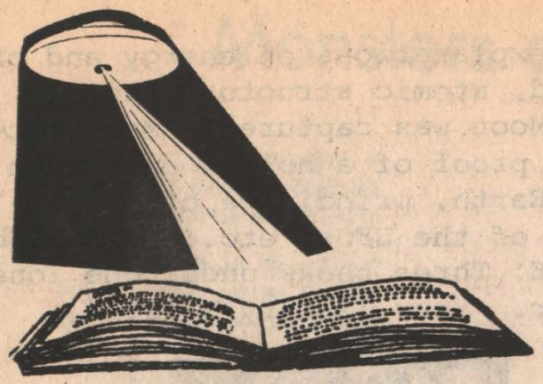

The Hopi Tribal Police were called, Outah said, and found smears of fresh blood on the church bus and tracked footprints "unusally large"- but otherwise like human footprints; down Polacca Wash. But the footprints disappeared where First Mesa's sheer cliff walls make their precipitous rise. Another sighter told Outah that he heard strange noises in the night and, going to investigate, he saw a "very large and hairy living thing" standing beside the shadow of a tree trunk.

Again, oversized footprints were found. Again the footprints disappeared at the edge of the mesa by the ancient village of Walpi. A third sighting occurred in the light of the Jan 13 full moon, heralded by the barking of dogs gone beserk. When a Hopi husband went to the window , he said he saw the being standing near his house before "it ran on toward the west and disappeared from sight." Other Hopis have claimed similar experiences (including one who noted that the creature had a head as big as a large pumpkin), but, said Outah, "these three sightings have been substantiated by police officers who were dispatched at the sighters' request for assistance."

... But the suspicions persist among many Hopis, especially the older ones, that they are seeing the namifestations of a major diety - MASAU-U, the god who controls the underworld, death and darkness. "There is a certain being at First Mesa whom it could be," A Hopi man cautiously volunteered. "Because of the way life is now, this being might be showing himself to tell the people to shape up and settle down to living the Hopi way." Among many Hopis, that's the general idea - that MASAU-U is re - appearing to warn them... MASAU-U has been described as the antithesis of the bright, living world of the Hopis. A fearsome creature of the night who wears a large, blood-smeared Kachina mask and rabbitskin robe, he can, according to legend, pass back and forth through the plane of the living and the dead. He is the only Kachina diety who can appear at any time of the year, not just the period between winter solstice and summer solstice when other Kachinas appear.

"Though the kiva, the underground ceremonial chamber, and the grave are his domain, his appearance his is not always the fearsome creature of the night. In day, according to legend, he can transform his appearance and can be distinguished from any other handsome young Hopi man only by the incredible length of his feet - roughly the length of a normal man's forearm". So - are the recent Bigfoot sightings in the First Mesa's villages really the result of a kiva priest donning MASSAU-U masks and rabbit skin robe and taking it upon himself to warn backsliders from the Hopi way? ..."In my experience, things aren't done that way among the Hopis." "The manifestation of MASAU-U would be regarded more as a divine revelation, though I hate to hazard even that guess." "Hopis see, do, hear and think things that make complete sense within the framework of their own culture, not ours." "I believe when they say they've seen the creature, they believe they've seen the creature. I'll let it go at that." That, and the admonition to remember that "superstition is always the other fellow's religion."

HE HEARS THE "COSMIC CHORD"!

EXPERIENCE the sensation - but approach the listening experience with reverence, for, as Halpern explains: "For thousands of years, Andean civilizations produced a unique form of pottery for use in rituals and meditations. When played together, the precise tunings of these ancient instruments create the Extra-Ordinary effect that you will experience."

And - EXPERIENCE it you will! For it is positively true, that, as he further states: "...The low-frequency 'buzzing' sound that you hear - exists solely in YOUR head and nervous system. It was not played by the instruments nor altered electronically in the studio." The sounds themselves are eerie, to say the least! When played for a number of UFO contactees and observers of Close Encounters of the 111 kind (landings and near landings) - the consensus was that the SOUNDS are IDENTICAL to the noises they heard emitted by UFOs! Here, then could be the connection between modern-day UFO contactees, and the Ancients not only of Peru, but even possibly Atlantis and Lemuria!

This is a truly sensational "discovery" or RE-discovery of an Ancient Science. Steven Halpern, PhD, has succeeded in recording these unique tones and he uses the real McCoys! NOT replicas! And, in the process, he has created, as he states, "... a psycho-acoustic time tunnel into a meditation experience that has not been practiced since the conquest of the Incan Empire."

The ultimate 'high'! Tune in on the Cosmos! Relive the glorious past, and FEEL. Incredible listening..... Fantastic vibrations..... Hear it!

Monsters cruise East Coast

HEATHSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Undulating, gliding through the dark water, raising its head, then diving.

Nessie of Loch Ness fame? No, it's Cheasapeake Chessie, the sea serpent of Cheasapeake Bay.

A handful of people have reported sighting strange creatures in the bay and a bit upstream in the Potomac River.

The descriptions match, if not in size, at least in general appearance. They bear a striking resemblance to the fabled monster of the Scottish lake.

Donald Kyker, a retired CIA employee, reported that on July 25 he and his wife, Ann, saw a creature about 25 to 30 feet long and about as round as a telephone pole. He said it stuck its head out of water and then dived.

John Merriner, head of the ichthyology department at the Virginia Insitute of Marine Science, said the creature described by Kyker "is one hell of an animal to be in the bay."

Kyker was the first person to report what he'd seen.

Myrtle Smoot and her husband, who live in Annandale, were at their summer cottage just down from Kyker's home. Kyker telephoned the Smoots to tell them what he'd seen, and when they looked, there it was, heading toward the bay.

Mrs. Smoot said that within an hour they saw three more — one big and two small — heading upriver, and they frightened her.

She said the big one was longer than her 36-foot-long porch, and the smaller ones were 5 to 10 feet long.

Her husband shot one of the smaller monsters in the neck, she said.

"It rose out of the water and disappeared. Having children and grandchildren who swim and ski, we wanted to find out what it was. We didn't know whether it was dangerous, and we figured if we could get one, we could find out what it was."

Smoot fired several more shots. The creatures disappeared beneath the water.

C. Phillip Stemmer, 53, an electronics engineer who lives next door to the Smoots, was there at the time. He said they looked "like self-propelled logs."

"They weren't just three 'somethings' floating there. They were moving faster than the water. They were making wakes," said Stemmer.

Mary Lewis, an employee of Virginia Electric Power Co., said that on June 27 she and two cousins were swimming in a pool beside the Potomac, downstream from the Smoot cottage, when they saw several creatures too large to be ducks or snorkels.

With that basis established, let us explore the memories of Atlantis as it was in its beginnings; it approx. 200,000 year existence; the life-styles of its peoples, customs, governments and impact of its age of being on this planet Earth. Then finally its downfall and destruction, and that final influence upon our world today! It may be far beyond even the strongest imaginations. For better understanding of Atlantis, and its effect upon Earth as well as all other life-forms on and within Earths' several dimensions; it is best to make this brief and over - simplified explanation of the basic beginnings of planet Earth, and how the "Life=Forces" grew and evolved in matter and form. The final part of this story will concern the actual formative (Creative) process by which our "world", which includes all of our solar system, came into being and its purpose. This will further explain certain "re-creative" aspects encountered in Atlantis and other ages.

The Atlanteans knew, and we are very close to that knowledge, with the recognition of the space phenomena our scientists have termed "Black Holes". The basic fact we need to establish here are the "Transitory Ages of Earth". All Life, in its native estate is as spirit-form, sometimes spoken of as energy; thus existing in what to our understanding is known as "air, or ether".

In actuality, it is what could more properly termed an "Electrical Spectrum", for all of Creation is primarily electrical IN NATURE. Electricty is VIBRATORY energy, and the RATE of Vibration determines its manifestions into matter and Life-Forms, regardless of Dimension. So...

As the molten Earth cooled, the first entrance of Life was into the Mineral Kingdom, which was the First Age of Earth. Elemental entities evolved until another step (age) became necessary... This brought the Plant Kingdom, partaking of both the mineral kingdom and the etheric energies, and the Second Age was established.A certain consciousness also evolved in the plant kingdom, so another step (age) was a necessity... The Animal Kingdom came into being, partaking of the plant kingdom and indirectly through plants, the mineral kingdom; at times directly ingesting certain mineral elements for its growth. Certain Life-Forces of the etheric entered into these animal Life-Forms and a consciousness we best know as "instinct" evolved. This was the Third Age, and as the instinct became unmanageable, to use a mild word, another step (age) was and became imminent. The Human Being arrived!

The Fourth Age of Earth was established with this TRANSMUTATIONAL AGENT KNOWN AS A HUMAN PERSON came into being as a partaker of the Mineral, plant and animal; with the added factor of the personofication of the Celestial Life-Force; thus a REPLICA of all Creation in its Physical (Earth elements, Mental (full consciousness of "being" and thinking), Spiritual (Universal Mankind), therefore of Divine origin and Memory). For these reasons was the Human Being given dominion over the Earth - with the original right of Free Will and Choice to "create" in HARMONY and BALANCE with Earth and Cosmic Laws. To disregard the immutable - spiritual laws meant a dis-harmonious condition upsetting the balance of Creative Energies (vibrational patterns), resulting in natural destructions and catclysms; which could bring another "Age" for another effort at manifesting their "God-Hood".

A further note of interst to consider is that at each evolving transition to another, and higher dimensionsl level of Life On Earth; there was "destructions and cataclysms" on, within and around Earth. This served the purpose of removing certain elements and elemental Life - Forms not necessary to the lessons of an evolving LIVING Earth; and an eternal evolving Creation. Thus we see the "Cleansing and Purging" action on a global and solar system-wide scale; as the other planets were "used" in this process. (We shall understand "how" this was done in concluding parts of this accounting.) This is the Eternal Law of re-cycling and re-emergence on a higher plane of Being now becoming evident in our generation of advanced thinkers, researchers and others.

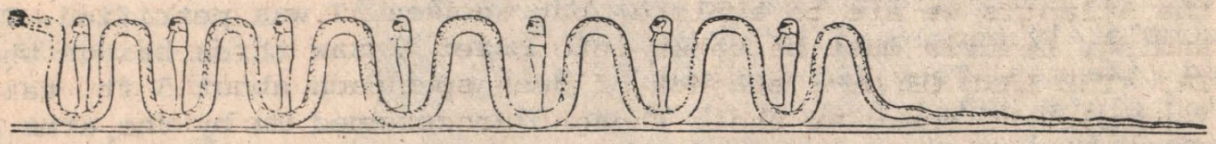

The majority of these are Atlanteans with some Lemurians. Practically every one on Earth today, with the exception of a few Cosmic Souls) are re-incarnations of these First human expressions of Life... WHERE did this "Fourth Age" manifest on Earth, and what was the Earth like in geography? With the final settling of Water, organic Earth, and the firmaments of the solar system; a huge continent shown forth - covering nearly all of the present Pacific Ocean and its islands; including Australia, Antartica, most of South America, Central America, and Mexico. Parts of California, Arizona (TELOS) and New Mexico were portions of this gigantic land mass. A major portion of present day Africa, the present mid-East, and all of the Asiatic countries along with an adjoining half of Russia formed the remainder of the "Mother" Continent.

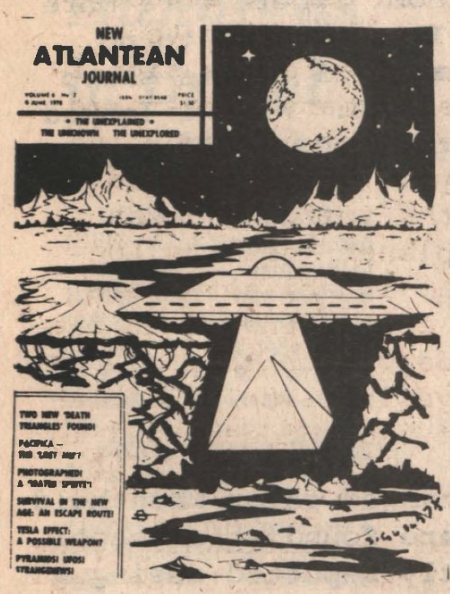

The land that was to become ATLANTIS was mostly a vast marshland with low-lying plains and hillocks interwoven with deep and raging rivers; many of them salty. It was to be many millions of years before it became the Atlantis we are to explore; but to be done properly and in understanding, Lemuria must be taken into brief account. So this was - LEMURIA, "THE LAND OF MU"; subject of much speculation and consternation of all people who exercise their thought processes, including imagination. Lemuria, them, is the "first Age" of humanity on Earth, although there had been three previous Transitional Ages of Earth; which took eons of time as we know it today. As an aside note, due to its significance and influence upon Earth and its inhabitants of many life-forms and life-expressions; there was a planet within our solar system which figures prominently in the destructions and cataclysms that "birthed" Lemuria; and was to have a tremendous effect upon the emerging Human appearance millions of years later. This was the planet knows as Lucifer, sometimes called Marduk among other names. It inhabitants were the most "advanced" in every way within our world, consisting of 12 planets with the Sun as the mucleus at that time. Today, with Lucifer destroyed and one "planet" as yet hidden from human eyesight, only 10 planets are observable; we shall learn the identity of the "Hidden One" in the concluding part of this narrative.

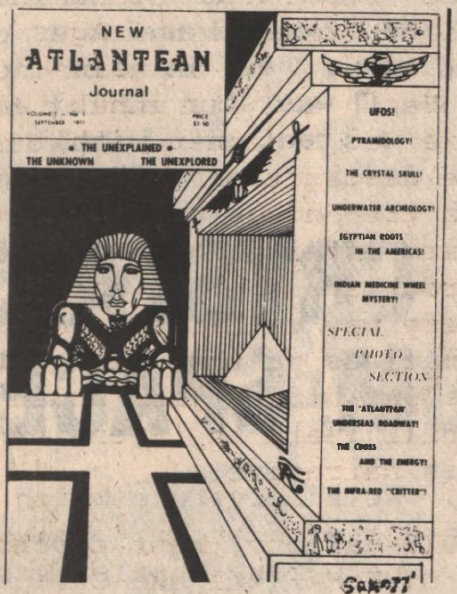

However, that genesis of DIS-harmony, best described as selfishness, existent in every life-form of Free Will and Choice; grew until these people decided to take over and rule our solar system. They destroyed themselves and their planet (no more will this happen) in their DIS -harmonic application of Cosmic (spiritual) Laws. Shades of Atlantis! As above, so below; as within, so without; as before, so today; etc.

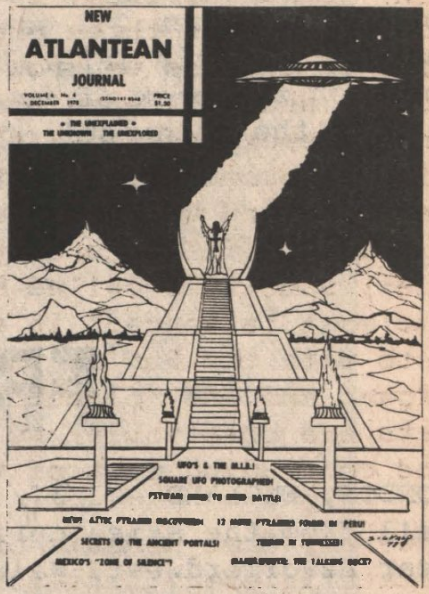

This destruction was brought about by the bringing of Lucifer close to the Earth and the resultant energy interference patterns with the electro magnetic and electro-static fields destroyed Lucifer and brought about the necessary "Cleansing" action upon Earth to establish the Fourth Age.

This was the Plan that eventually brought the Transmutational Agent of all Universal Cosmic Energies in their IMAGE, which we know as the human being today.Therefore, the WILL of the Agent is of even more importance than the Intellect, which should give many of us pause for thought! What happened to the inhabitants of Lucifer? Since you cannot destroy energy, only change its form; these entities exist in their natural estate of spirit-form and as such are one of the most important influences to be reckoned with in our world today; just as it has been and was with Lemurian and Atlantean alike. Many conclusions can be reached by people of all walks of life along this line of thought; but one of the foremost to be considered is that humanity today can "educate" the selfishness right out of the beingness of these presently unseen entities. They can do this by their life styles of Free will and choice in taking and making that impartial, selfless, therefore EQUAL application of the Universal Law of Love. This is a most important fact relative to the final parts of this story and the influence of Atlantis into this present time... END OF PART 1.

Kidnapped—by blue aliens from a UFO

DAILY EXPRESS, LONDON, ENGLAND - 2/14/78 - A terrified housewife told yesterday of her spectacular kidnap by a UFO. She revealed her exper - ience after reading the report of flying saucers in the "Welsh Triangle". Mrs. G. recounted the incident through Contack U.K. The nightmare turned reality began when she was hanging up wash in her garden in Ermington... "Mrs. G. became aware of a blue shining light moving towards her. Then she told us: "The light hovered over the garden. I was petrified. Then I was completely enveloped in bubbles of light. I saw three beings who looked like men. They did not speak. They were each about 5 ft. tall - wearing bluish metallic-like clothing. They grasped me by the arms and we were lifted up a beam of light into a kind of room. There were more of the men there. I was given the impression that I would come to no harm. A little later, I found myself back on my lawn. I felt a sharp blow on the back of my neck. I was stunned but not hurt. When I looked around the thing set off at a great speed and disappeared... ... ...

CRYSTALS FROM SPACE

LONDON, ENGLAND - 3/17/78. Weird crystals which changed color when held fell from the skies during a fierce storm. They were found at a school near Havorfordwest, Wales, where many pupils recently reported seeing a "spaceship". The crystals are about a quarter of an inch long, and are reddish-brown in color. They changes to a light fawn shade when they were collected by baker Henry Evans of Hawthorne Rise. They are now being examined by the British Unidentified Flying Object Research Association. South Wales coordinator, Mr. Randall Pugh said: "Some people thought them to be rock crystals from snow clearance operations, but they are definitely made of a quartz-like material and are not salt crystals. Henry Evans said: "I collected about 25 of them and noticed that they started to change colour as I held them. They did not melt like a hailstone." Haverfordwest lies in the "BROADHAVEN TRIANGLE" - an area where many UFO sightings have been reported. The Presell District Council said they had no gritting or snow clearance vehicles in the Haverfordwest area at the time the crystals were found... ... ...

Hundreds in Brazil see UFO

DOURADOS, Brazil — (UPI)—A brilliantly colored — and speedy — unidentified flying object was spotted twice last week by residents of Dourados, 600 miles west of Rio de Janeiro, a local policeman said over the weekend.

Officer Antonio Jose da Silva said hundreds of the city's 80,000 residents and much of its police force saw a disc-shaped object emitting bright flashes of red and blue light and moving rapidly above the city Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The local newspaper "O Progresso" published a photo of the mysterious object Thursday, da Silva said, but newspaper officials could not be reached for comment.

"It looked like a star," da Silva said. "It was flashing bright lights, blue and red." The object was not an airplane, he said.

Da Silva said other residents, local policemen and Matto Grosso state policemen sent to Dourados were on the streets when the object appeared Thursday.

EVOLUTIONARY!

Consider Homo sapiens; that awkward, ill-equiped, idealistic biped which has emerged so recently from Nature's process. And consider also how unpredictably vast its empire of creation has become. Witness Man, the artist, drawing forth the visions of tomorrow's culture; Man, the scientist, patiently unlocking the closely kept secrets of the universe; Man, the philosopher, wandering the realms of speculation to discover yet another degree of certainty. Yes indeed, a very imaginative creature.

And now, for the first time in history, there is a unique periodical dedicated to the spirit of philosophic, scientific and artistic evolution—elan vital: Journal of Creative Adventure.™

Within our colorful pages you will voyage the entire 'integral' spectrum of human endeavor. Legends of fantasy will take you beyond the here and now while in-depth explorations of contemporary science and technology will remind you of our true potential. Provocative essays on politics, religion, logic and many other topics of the philosopher's mind will meet with the poet's subtle ways and masterful artists will share their esthetic offspring.

All of this and much more is blended into each perfect-bound issue with a discriminating eye toward quality representation and enduring value. The Journal of Creative Adventure is designed to be collected into an ever-growing 'encyclopedia' of imagination and accomplishment!

THIS BOOK MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE!

THIS BOOK EXPLAINS, FROM A MEDICAL AND SCIENTIFIC VIEWPOINT, HOW PROPER SEXUAL BEHAVIOR CAN HELP YOU LOOK YOUNGER, THINK CLEARER, AND LIVE LONGER!

Kinsey and Masters and Johnson investigated sex habits of the average person. "But average is not necessarily normal" says Dr. Flatto. He researches what is normal sexual behavior — how men and women should approach the sex act from the standpoint of health, happiness, and the betterment of the human race.

This unique book shows how sex may be beneficial or harmful. Its abuse can lead to prostatitis, prostate enlargement, birth defects, mental disorders, arthritis, heart attacks, and even cancer. It points out medical problems of birth control drugs, abortion, venereal disease and alternative safer methods.

It contains over 25 pages of photographs of exercises designed to help prevent prostate disorders, constipation, varicose veins, intestinal disorders, colitis, as well as exercises to improve the sexual efficiency of men and women.

If you can't answer these questions– You need this book!

- What are the principle physical causes of impotence in men?
- Which exercises are beneficial to improve potency?
- Which foods increase potency?
- What diseases can be caused by indulging in sex too often?
- Which simple exercise can help prevent and even help overcome prostate disorder?
- What simple movements can improve the sexual efficiency of women?
- Under what conditions can sex be beneficial? When can it be harmful?
- Which is the safest, cheapest, and surest method of birth control?
- What diseases are caused by the birth control pill? By the I.U.D.? By abortion?
- What physiciological functions should be performed before and after sexual intercourse to prevent V.D.?
- Can too much sex be harmful to a woman?
- What are the benefits of "seminal conservation"?
- How does sex affect the heart?
- What are the possible after-effects of having a legal abortion?
- How does an abortion affect future children?
- What simple, drugless steps can a man take to improve his fertility?
- What is the surest, safest and most effective way to prevent V.D.?
