EXPLORING THE WORLD'S MYSTERIES

Ancient Crete, Land of the Sea Kings . . . The wonderful palace built by the Minoans of Crete at Knossus makes the palaces of the Egyptian pharoahs look like "elaborate hovels of painted mud." Crete's great civilization came to an abrupt end in the middle of the 15th Century B.C. What destroyed it?

When a Woman was Pharoah . . . Queen Hatshepsut remains the most mysterious and the only woman among all the rulers of ancient Egypt. Why did her successor Thutmose III order her inscriptions defaced and obelisks she had erected in the temple at Karnak walled up? Why does her name not appear in later royal lists?

Marcahuasi, Stonehenge of the Andes . . . A day's travel east of Lima, Peru, 13,000 feet in the Andes on a plateau stand rough stone monuments of a Cro-Magnon head, a magnificent lion lying on a pedestal, tall pyramidal monoliths and a man-made sacrificial altar —products of a civilized race whose priests tore out human hearts as sacrifices to the sun god at least 7,000 years before any other city existed in the western hemisphere.

Letters to the Editor

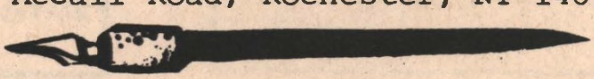
Dear Joan: I am in hopes that you will print this as I would like to hear from any readers that may have experienced the following phenomenon. In the past two months (April and May), four people (including myself) have found unexplained needle puncture wounds on our bodies. Under close examination they could not be classified as insect bites - but definite needle marks. None of us were aware of the other one's punctures until I made mention of it to them about my own marks. They were astounded and began relating how and when they discovered a mark on their own body... I can offer no explanation for this but I am interested to find out if any other readers have had this experience and I am also concerned when I find an unexplained needle mark on my body.... What next?! Mary Levesque.

* If any readers answer the 'call', just send your letter to the Journal office. I will forward all mail.

Dear Joan: What happened when Vaughn Green photographed the Shaver photo was the one on the left is a bit over exposed. Different exposures commonly make radical differences in what images are registered on the film since almost all rock images are multiple image systems. I haven't found any stones so far that have mental effects akin to Mrs. Cosette Willoughby's. Sometimes the multiple images of the same person show the individual from infancy to old age. Sometimes the stone does not have to be turned, but the gaze cast to either side of it... W.G. Bliss....

* Mamelwouth does it again! Never have we received so much mail about one single story! Cosette loves to hear from YOU about your experiences as well. Write her.

Dear Joan and Pat: I received your letter and the replacement copy of New Atlantean Journal. THIS issue came through in good shape... I'm having a terrible time with issues of FATE and INFO. About 30 percent reach here battered up. It is a shame the way the mail comes through these days. Frank Brownley, Rochester, NY. PS. I'm interested in collecting scarce and little known books with the Shaver Mystery and the various alternate earth ideas, flat earth, hollow earth, etc. Would like to hear from readers along that line. Would even welcome a list of titles of such material as it would help me to find some of these items... Address: 29 McCall Road, Rochester, NY 14615.



Dear Editor: I would like to buy back issues of the New Atlantean. Please have people contact me with what Volume # and price they want. Steve Tappan, Box 1017, Rudiso, N. Mex. 88345.

Dear Pat and Joan: As a new subscriber to your magazine I had to write and thank you for your prompt service. I received them before even two weeks were up. Now, that is what I call excellent service. I was highly impressed with all of the articles and only wish that I had known of your magazine earlier. I also wish that I had subscribed for three years instead of one, however, that poses no problem because when it is time to renew it, I will then subscribe for another three years. Also, I would love to order the ANKH mentioned in your latest issue, but I hesitate because of the black color portion in it. To many of us the color black in certain settings represent or suggests evil, death or something sinister. At any rate, I fully enjoyed your magazine and anxiously await your next issue. Irma Richards, Castro Valley, Ca.

* Dear Irma: While I very much appreciate your comments on our magazine, I am sorry that you misunderstood the REAL meaning of the 'Black' color! Black is the universal color of suffering and sorrow as well as the other meanings that you mentioned, and we feel that it sums up our feelings of sorrow and pain that was prevelent during the last days of The Old Continent. As many people all over the world still wear black clothes or a black armband to symbolize mourning for a loved one, we also look upon it this way. And ----- it is a constant reminder NOT to let it happen again! We, again, are going through 'the last days'.

Dear Editor: I must say, that I've only known of the existence of the New Atlantean Journal for less than a year, but am truly overwhelmed with its organization and especially its contents. I wish I would have known of its existence years ago. It is truly a benefit to this day and age. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for putting an emense amount of time and effort in these areas. I am also sending in for membership, to act as a research assistant, field investigator, area reporter, or anything else that I could help with. I am director of a research group, specifying in the areas of parapsychology, Bigfoot, UFO's and ancient civilizations. I have been studying in the field for 15 years and Peter Gutilla, the free-lance writer, I've been working with has been in the field about 18 years... SPECIAL FORCE INVESTIGATIONS, Tom Muzila, Redding, Ca. 96001...

* You, and our other research friends, are what make the Journal the informational help that it is to the field. No one 'goes it alone'! Thank you for your help!

Editorial

Since the dawn of the Ages, the Sacred Ones of all esoteric religions have possessed the knowledge that there exists an Opposing Force to the dissemination of Truth. While recognizing the fact that there are so-called forces of evil, it is also reasonable to assume that there are other entities which act to hold the negative forces in check. One of the more reprehensible 'tools' of the Opposing Force is Prophecy, both true and false. Such prophecies have variously been given by an amazingly wide spectrum of 'entities' that range from the 'extraterrestrial type, to the often more religious 'angel' type --- who, strange as it seems, BOTH can bear the SAME message! On ALL occasions that such prophecies are given there exists one of two possibilities: Either the 'entity', whether he proclaims himself an 'extraterrestrial' or an 'ultraterrestrial', is revealing one of the Sacred Truths -- which at THIS time should be revealed OR that a 'revelation' is now in progress that could set mankind back another few generations!

What can be accomplished with such false prophecy? When a TRUE type of revelation is FINALLY revealed, even by similar telepathic means, it will be DIS-believed immediately. Such are the tremendous forces we are now discerning. Why disbelieved? Because after so many TRUE prophecies are transmitted: quakes, floods, destruction, etc. - and when these events HAPPEN, a belief system is then instilled within the mind of the person receiving this. Then, a real 'biggie' is transmitted.... California will fall into the sea, New York will flood out, etc., etc., This person runs to the nearest tabloid and tells all.... When the Really Big One fails to happen our erstwhile soothsayer is left with a considerable amount of egg on his face - and will NEVER get another inch of space in the news again. Then - when a TRUE revelation appears no one will give it national distribution! Neat, huh???

TIME alone can reveal whether or not a 'message' is true or false. The one thing that IS revealed at the time of 'receiving' is that someone, somewhere, WANTS something to be made public! Such a tangled 'web' 'They' weave! Who are 'They'? Where are 'They'? I simply and honestly don't know - BUT - I think I have figured out the 'WHY'! Across this desk pass at least 10 or 12 'isms' a month. Each one contradictory. No one agrees with the other. It is quite plain to see they all can't be right - or- wrong totally! What, then, is TRUTH? IT IS WHAT YOU MAKE OF IT.

Caldwell, Idaho - Somewhere over the rugged White Sands Missile Range in N.M., Air Force pilots Pollock and Humphries disappeared APRIL 12, while on a training mission to simulate a dogfight with Soviet aircraft. The Air Force has been searching for the pilots and their planes ever since...When they disappeared officials launched a massive ground and air search involving special electronic equipment and even a U-2 spy plane. But weeks of searching have turned up not a trace... The two aircraft were flying at about 13,000 feet in windy, snowy weather when they vanished. HEAVENLY BODIES IN THE LORDS - Source: The Guardian, London, England. - 1/19/79. The Earl of Clancarty (otherwise known as the Honorable Brinsley Le Poer Trench, well known author and consultant on our New Atlantean Board) launched a full-scale debate in the House of Lords to call attention to the "increasing number of sightings and the landings on a world-wide scale of UFO's... "Suppose there was a mass landing of UFO's in Britain." He thought that there might well be panic because the people were not prepared...

MYSTERY STAR - Source: St. Petersburg Times - Los Angeles, Ca. - A mysterious cosmic discovery - possibly a doomed star in "some kind of terribly weird trouble" - was described Monday as "perhaps the most baffling astrophysical phenomenon since the discovery of the quasar." ... Dr. Margon observed the mysterious object last September at the University of California's Lick Observatory and recorded indications that it was moving away from Earth at high speed. But -- another portion of the light spectrum indicated the object was moving TOWARD the earth at the same time. Not only did the object appear to be moving in opposite directions, it seemed to be traveling at extreme speeds - up to 115 million miles per hour (the sun and other stars poke along at a comparatively modest 650,000 mph or less.) Margon said no known star exhibits such enormous velocities. And the velocity swings up and down along a regular 160 day cycle...

CONCLUSION

At other locations along the talus edge, two rooms of the temple were entered, with the assistance of our Mayan helpers, by squeezing through under stone lintels close to ground level. Both chambers were found to be filled, one almost to the ceiling, with purposely placed stones. From the latter corridor, a large passageway leads to the right at a slightly lower level; but this is so completely filled with rock that it is impossible at present even to penetrate beneath the lintel. It is a known fact that in the few cases in which such a Mayan "seal" has been discovered, its removal has resulted in major archaeological disclosures, as was notably the case at Palenque. One can only surmise what important discoveries lie buried beneath this tremendous fill which involves an entire temple. It is quite obvious that the Ancients did all in their power to preserve the building for posterity by filling its interior with stone and by covering its exterior with earth in which trees could grow. Nature, of course, did its share.

The Sacred Grotto, which lies directly beneath the Temple, was also sealed, at its crevice-like mouth. There is every indication that it was utilized as a place of worship since earliest Mayan times, possibly even earlier. One gains entrance with the help of a fifty-foot rope that can be attached to a convenient ramon tree growing from a crack. First there is a rather abrupt descent of about thirty feet; then fifty or more feet of rough talus before one reaches a relatively level floor. This is the vestibule room, an unprepossessing, slanted cavity showing breakdown. From it one may proceed vertically through the breakdown for twenty feet or so and thus connect with an older, horizontal passage doubling back on the left; another on the right takes a parallel course. Both passages are now crawlways. The original points of entry into these one-time corridors were evidently in a small, level room clear at the back of the vestibule, an inner chamber whose entrance is beautifully indicated by a central column dividing the mouth-like opening, numerous stalactites on eigher side having been carefully chipped away so as to produce a symmetrical architectural effect. One may still gain access to the lateral passageways from this room, but it is inconvenient since water-born deposits of long standing have constricted the openings.

The right crawlway leads eventually to a large, ill-defined room in the area of exceedingly rough breakdown directly beneath the Temple. That to the left is the main route, its seventy foot length is partly sand filled.

After negotiating this, a high, ledgy corridor of some hundred feet in extent brings one down onto level ground and face to face with a most impressive sight: A massive and ancient worked stone in the form of a SERPENT'S HEAD, with nearly a full coil of body, lies on the floor, having fallen from its original position above a narrow passage leading to the inner cave Sanctum which it had once guarded. The convincingly fanged mouth is wide open; the dorsum seems to have been roughened as to indicate scalation, and the whole thing appears somewhat water-worn. Could this be the "SERPENT WITH JADE EYES" that Morely sought. The eyes of our find have long been empty sockets.

Potsherds, which are particularly abundant in this area, recapitulate a complete history of the known Maya from the earliest Chikanel to the Toltec periods. There are also stained stones that appear to be sacrificial altars since they are associated with the bones and antlers of deer - a sumbolic animal. Indeed, it is this section of the cave which exhibits the greatest concentration of evidence for sacrificial ritual - judging by the blackened floor which is admixed with quantities of unburned copal and broken ceramics.

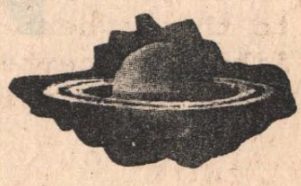
From here the cave extends onward and upward through a shelf-room and over a series of ledges to where one emerges by way of a definite portal into the principal chamber - a huge breakdown room similar to, but larger than, the terminus of the paralleling route. The two big rooms were - evidently - a single, spacious, vaulted hall at one time. A mountain of breakdown, estimated at a hundred feet along the diagonal from base to summit, clearly attests to the ever severity of the earthquake that long ago had caused the roof of this huge room to fall, dividing the latter into two separated sections and leaving an irregular, conical cavity in the sandstone which overlies the deeper limestone of the cave proper. The apex of the cone, we believe, lies directly beneath the temple; and it is this softer rock of the upper level that provided ideal surfaces for the schematic carvings which abound on wall faces, boulders and on ledges to the very top.

All these drawings are of enigmatic character - definitely non-Mayan and possibly very ancient. There are strange, bulbous-lipped faces, gods with up-turned noses, birds of symbolic design, tremendously elongated snake patterns, geometric diagrams and many archaic symbols, the circle-cross in particular. On a slab of rock inscribed with a myriad of super- imposed sketches, a most astonishing full-length figure of a bearded and hook-nosed deity stands out, showing all the characteristics of a gynandromorphic satyr complete with tail and cloven-hoof-like "hands". Close to the highest point of the room, a wall carving depicting what looks like a connected hierachy of Priests with long, protruding lips and symbolic accessories, presents yet another enigma.

The only known counterpart in the Yucatan of such physiognomy was a thick-lipped god on an ancient temple at Ixamal which was destroyed at some time since Catherwood delineated it in 1841.

Everywhere, but especially on the wall above the narrow entrance to the Great Chamber, HAND PRINTS are displayed in soot, the "BLACK HAND" by direct impression, the "RED HAND" printed as a stencil made by soot - blown across the hand while it was held against a reddish surface. Since the negative LEFT palm is the symbol for black magic, the RIGHT hand was used to print it; the opposite is true of the positive RED palm, symbol of white magic and healing. Sometimes BOTH hands were used in a clever combination to enclose symbolic shapes and even faces. One such shadow-picture, we believe, was intended to depict the bearded head of ITZAMNA, God of the Sky, Master of healing and science, for whom the RED HAND is symbolic.

During the week's sojourn at X-Kukican, we made several trips to the great hall of enigmas under the temple, for the purpose of photographing and studying the various phenomena. Many new things were found, including a human skeleton that could have been a sacrifice, inasmuch as the jaw was missing, a frequent occurrence in such cases... As we retraced our steps out toward the big room, we made a major discovery. A side channel, branching to our left, held out possibilities of deeper penetration into the cave. We took it and almost at once our attention was attracted to a strange, slanted, T-shaped disgram sketched on the wall of stone. A little farther on it became quite apparent that this marking had a purpose. Diagonally blocking a constriction in the channel was a smooth, cylindrical stone, pointed at its lower end and neatly fractured at its upper. The angle of repose of this stone faithfully reflects the angle of the two disgrammatic lines. Could this diagram by any chance - be a warning? Beyond the stone there is the inviting blackness of a widening passage and an abrupt descent. We tried squeezing around the barrier but with disheartening results - the stone started to shift. Closer examination revealed that it was triggered and that dislodging it would probably mean bringing the roof of loose stones down on our heads. In other words, this system of poised rocks is almost certain to be a humanly contrived "booby trap", designed to discourage, or do way away with, anyone seeking to reach the lower levels of the cave. If, as the legend relates, there is an important tomb at X-Kukican, it will be somewhere in the depths beyond the narrow, guarded opening. Quite possibly we are dealing with the actual tomb of Kukulcan himself. If so, it would antedate the last, great earth-disturbances.



Great central chamber, Loltun Cavern

All the evidence, and there is a lot of it, points to the conclusion that the site is a most ancient and sacred one to which countless pilgrimages were made and in which impressive rituals were performed over a long, long period. It is the expressed opinion of Dr. Alfredo Barrera Vasquez, Director of the Merida Archaeological Museum, that the cave carvings are highly enigmatic and that the site, as a whole, is very old. Other archaeologists of note who have seen it and its artifacts are inclined to agree... The Guardian Serpent, for example, is undoubtedly of the same order of antiquity as the water-worn altars and monsters of Loltun. Also the incised glyphs, particularly the bird symbols, seem to bear a close relationship to similar designs on stone tablets discovered thirty feet below the City of Mexico by William Niven in the early twenties. As for the hands, comparable stencilings - both RED AND BLACK, have been found on the walls of caves in the Pyrenees placed there by the Cro-Magnon in remote glacial times. From every side comes the insistent question: Are we not dealing with the signs of an extremely archaic and universal system of mystical knowledge? The tomb itself may well provide the answer.

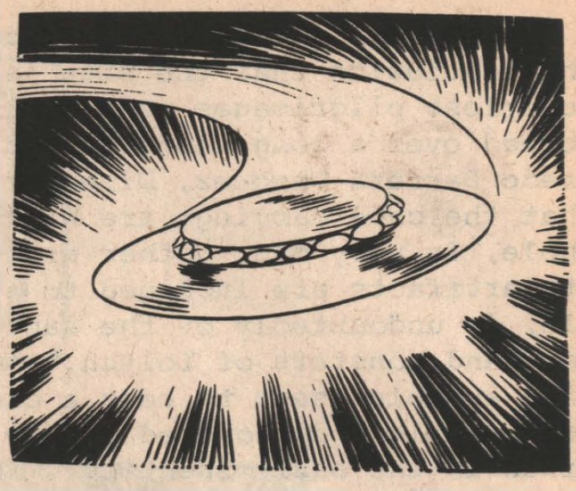
Now the world has two mysterious 'triangles'



A report by Uli Schmetzer in Rome

A 14 metre yacht bristling with sophisticated electric gadgets is being used in an attempt to solve the mystery of "The Adriatic Triangle". Over the past two month the 'triangle' (a stretch of sea between Ascoli Piceno and Pescara) has become the scourge of fishermen, airline pilots and sailors.

Seaman have reported sudden tidal waves on calm days, violent orange - mushrooms rising from the sea and navigation instruments that suddenly go crazy. Pilots have talked of flying objects rocketing from the sea at incredible speeds to zip across the skies. There have been reports of pas - tel green flying objects and luminous orange rays. This month (December) trawlermen refused to fish in the 'triangle' after two fishermen from San Benedetto del Tronto drowned when their vessel inexplicably capsized on a clear, serene and clear night, with the sea as smooth as a billiard table. In a short time the "Adriatic Triangle" has achieved a notoriety not un - like the stretch of Caribbean water known as the "Bermuda Triangle". The wave of sightings has not been restricted only to the sea - inland re - ports have become just as prominent - among them the puzzling state of a tale of a police patrol outside the town of Lecce which saw "an object emitting orange flashing lights" race across the city.

During its passage the police car stalled (and could not be restarted) and its two-way radio went dead. The partolmen said the car and its radio worked normally once the object had vanished. Two military airport officials at Brindisi sighted an object with orange and green lights. Navy Capt. Piero Gallerano set out to sea in Coastguard vessel CP2018 on November 9, after reports by various trawlers of a UFO being sighted six kilometers offshore. At 8:45 pm Gallerano and his crew of five saw, about 800 metres ahead "a luminous red object rise from the sea at an angle of 45 degrees. The sea was calm, visibility excellent, but for the next hours the radar and radio suffered major interference..." Despite the fantasy world spun around UFOS, the fact remains that many sightings are made by reputable people...

Soviet expedition may have found Atlantis

United Press International

MOSCOW — A Soviet scientist says a recent expedition west of Gibraltar may have found the lost continent of Atlantis — right where Greek philosopher Plato predicted it would turn up.

Professor A. A. Aksyenov, director of the Soviet Oceanology Institute, said in the magazine Light that a recent expedition found ruins and a group of flat-top mountains about 300 to 600 feet below the surface of the ocean.

The horseshoe-shaped area is in the Atlantic off Gibraltar, the area Plato designated in his account of tales about the lost continent, the first report to mention an advanced civilization lost underwater.

"The geologists think it quite possible that this horseshoe was a rather large archipelago that submerged as the result of geological unrest," he said.

He said eight underwater photographs taken by the research vessel Kurchatov focused on the flat top of one of the underwater mountains, Mt. Amper.

"The pictures show quite vividly lines of brick or stone walls and fragments of wide steps," the oceanologist said.

He added that "the Atlantis problem belongs to the category of centuries-old secrets that with the rapid progress of oceanology can be uncovered very soon — and quite possibly in an affirmative way."

The scientist currently is on a second expedition to the site and is expected to return to the Soviet Union in mid-April.

NATIONAL INVESTIGATIONS COMMITTEE ON UNIDENTIFIED FLYING OBJECTS

Dr. Frank E. Stranges, International President

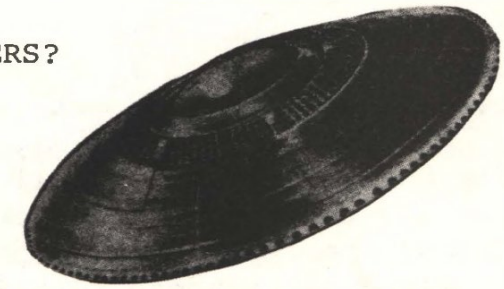
Pictured above is the United Nations Delegation assembled in July 1978 to discuss the proposed resolution on the nature, origin and intent of UFO's, put forward by the Government of Grenada. From left to right they are as follows: Len Stringfield, UFO researcher and author; Sir Eric Gairy, Prime Minister of Grenada; Dr. Gordon Cooper, astronaut; Lee Spiegel, Research and Visual Consultant on UFO data; Dr. J. Allen Hynek, Director of the Center for UFO Studies, Evanston, Illinois; Dr. Claude Poher, Director of the French Agency for the investigation of UFO's; and Reverend Ray Nielsen, Secretary of the European Headquarters of The Aetherius Society and leading international speaker. Also on the delegation were: Dr. John Holder, B. Sc., international lecturer and representative of The Aetherius Society; Dr. Jacques Vallee, Astronomer/Mathematician and UFO researcher; Mr. Ted Phillips, leading trace expert on UFO landings; Mr. David Saunders, Statistical Psychologist and Creator of Ufocat, and Dr. G. Bravo, UFO researcher and organiser of the 1st International Congress on UFO's in Acapulco.

This delegation consisted of leading world authorities on UFO's and was assembled by Sir Eric Gairy to advise him before presenting his resolution to the United Nations later that year.

Despite the lack of publicity on this major step forward the resolution was not rejected by any member of the United Nations General Assembly. In fact, there was a unanimous agreement that the resolution should be presented to the Committee for the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space again in June 1979. At this time information is being collated and prepared for this important presentation.

UFOS: INTERNATIONAL--SAVIORS--OR--DESTROYERS?
A Special Report by Joan O'Connell



On the opposite page you have 'UFO: FOREIGN INTRIGUE DAY' at the U.N. Commendable. Proper. Leading scientists, diplomats. A Head of State. Beautiful. Or - is it? Read on! Fleeting time has left in its tracks a few shattered shreds of Saviors -- who didn't Save!

CLIPPING: "TROUBLE IN PARADISE" - "How's THIS for the plot of tropical intrigue written by someone like Graham Greene? In the southern Carribbean lies an island called GRENADA, discovered by Columbus in 1498. It makes its living growing nutmeg and develops an easygoing population of 105,000 souls. For some reason it becomes independent of the British Crown in 1974 and falls under the authoritarian rule of one Sir Eric Gairy. He tells reporters he rules by divine right and receives instructions from God. He also goes to the United Nations each year to deliver lectures about flying saucers.

Because Sir Eric violates human rights and pickets public funds, a political opposition forms. It calls itself the New Jewel Movement and is suppressed by Gairy thugs marvelously named the Mongoose Gang. One day while Sir Eric is in New York, New Jewel leader Maurice Bishop, whose father was shot by Gairy police in a riot, stages a coup. During the takeover, government ministers are "arrested in their beds". American tourists continue to debark from cruise ships and most Grenadians follow reports of the cricket match in nearby Barbados between Australia and the West Indies. In New York, the coup is denounced by Sir Eris's information minister, Wellington Friday. Sir Eric himself threatens to return to Grenada and asks the U.S. for help. He received what is delicately described as "a vague reply." There are a couple of things wrong with this scenario. Nobody would believe it. And -- it actually happened... it is all true - right down to the names. Stay tuned for the next chapter. END OF CLIPPING.

Well now, fellow UFOFans, let us take a look at another 'Head of State' who thought UFOS were Saviours"- CLIPPING: HEADLINE: UFO SIGN OF GOOD LUCK, SAYS AMIN. March 5, 1973. President Idi Amin of Uganda saw a UFO splash down inLake Victoria Saturday and then take off like a "gentle rocket," radio Uganda said yesterday. Amin was among a number of people who saw a "spectacular object covered with something like smoke" descending at about noon into the lake, some ten miles away.

According to the radio, Amin said the object was of "great significance" and "a sign of good luck to Uganda." He added that all those who had seen it should attend prayers..... ANOTHER CLIPPING: DATED SEPTEMBER 27, '75. TWO YEARS LATER! "President Idi Amin of Uganda said he saw a Holy Star Friday which will give him "great power and bright future". Amin saw the "Night of Power Star" for five minutes Friday morning. He said the star appears only during the Moslem Holy month of Ramadan and that the incident "promised a bright future for me and for all U-gandans" and also great power to Amin. Amin in the past has also said he makes all major policy decision on running Uganda through messages from God sent through dreams... END OF CLIPPING.

Well, UFOFANS, need I say it louder? Obviously, both Gairy and Amin THOUGHT they were getting messages from ?God? -- Where are they now? What happened to them? You know -- you read the papers just as I do.

YOU THINK IT HAPPENS ONLY TO POLITICIANS??? It can happen to anyone - up to and including the great Jean Dixon, who announced on 9/14/76 that "Beings from outer space will land by next August." and they will help us overcome all disease, starvation and war. "This was one of the most shattering visions I've ever had. When it was over, I was drained of energy." Well -- how many "Beings from outer space" did YOU see land in August of 1977? About as many as I did -- ZILCH. How's the news on the starvation, war and disease front? YUP, again. Of course, she had trouble with 'outer space' even in 1967 when she was quoted in the San Francisco Examiner on Sunday, January 1... "THE UFOS are "real objects but do not come from outer space." Among other predictions... Well -- do THEY -- or don't THEY -- or what-???

Obviously, WHAT DOESN'T HAPPEN is MORE of a concern than what DOES! I have repeatedly said this since 1967, in SAUCER SCOOP, my old publication, in "FLYING SAUCERS ARE HOSTILE", IN "ALLENDE LETTERS: NEW UFO BREAKTHROUGH", IN "FLYING SAUCER INVASION: TARGET EARTH", all of these three books co-authored with Brad Steiger. Now, at this stage of the Game, (Whose (?) Game) it is more important than ever before to try to come to grips with the problem of 'messages', from God, or otherwise. Some messages have been 'right' -- others will be, and have been,totally 'wrong'. I don't even pretend to KNOW. Do YOU?

THE CLONESMASTERS' RETURN: ANCIENT PROPHECY FULFILLED - NOW --- OR --- NEVER? by Patrick O'Connell

A remarkable book, entitled THE TWELTH PLANET, by Zecharia Sitchin, has brought to light some facts concerning the ancient roots of the human race. In a sense, the book does more than unite the past or the present, it is the product of over 30 years of concentrated scholarship. The author has brought together lost anteduluvian texts --- predating Egypt, Sumeria -- even predating the legendary Atlantis and Lemuria. It ties in together ancient traditional religious texts such as the Christian Bible, the Ancient Vedas of India, the ancient excellent texts of the Middle East (Assyria, Babylonia, etc.) AND, most sensationally, newly discovered celestial maps of space flights to Earth - to reach the shocking conclusion that Humankind is descended from the Nefilim -"a superior race from Marduk, the 12th planet."

Sitchin, for the first time purports to offer "... proof that establishes where, when, how and why astronauts from another planet settled the Earth, and implanted prehistoric women with the genetic seed to create Homo sapiens."

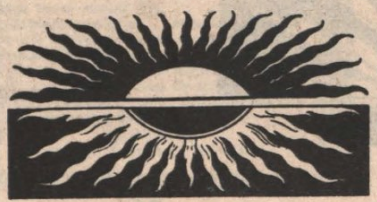
In POPULAR ARCHAEOLOGY (Vol. 8, No. 1- 1979) published by Life and Lettres Publishers, POB 4211, Arlington, Va 22204) Kevin McKean provides a bit of confirming evidence that attests to the validity of Sitchin's hypothesis concerning the 12th planet. According to him, some 6,000 years ago, at a very close distance from Earth a "... dim and unremarkable star suddenly exploded into the violent fireball that modern astronomers call a supernova..." It is related by him that among the ancient civilizations that witnessed the event, were the Sumerians, who recorded the phenomena in their myths and related it to their gods. Now the "scholar who first identified the record says the legend linking the star to the origins of civilization has turned up in Egyptian hieroglyphics, written thousands of years later..." George Michanowsky, a New York linguist, states that the legend was passed along -- in Sumerian symbols, which the Egyptians later borrowed!

More importantly, astronomers now believe that the supernova may have been the most cataclysmic phenomena ever witnessed by earth! McKean relates: "... by timing radio pulses coming from the object, astronomers estimate that it erupted between 8,000 and 4,000 B.C. It was toward the end of that period that the Sumerians ... developed the world's first astronomy, mathematics, and writing."

If you want to correlate the data in THE 12th PLANET, get a copy of Michanowsky's 1978 book: THE ONCE AND FUTURE STAR. The key part of this book is the fact that it is documented that the Sumerians had a legend that they were taught astronomy, mathematics, and writing by a god (astronaut?) called Ea, or "Enki", which was linked somehow to a special star in the constellation Vela. In other words - it appears that Marduk, or whatever name the Ancients called, went supernova, and thus, the Nefilim, if any still exist, must exist either in other dimensions or on other planets. It is significant that Sumerian legend had it that the Vela star would oneday return -- and bring back the "Golden Age". Well, scientific fact now indicates that, in a sense, the Vela star HAS been seen again!

Astronomers in 1977 used special instruments to pick up faint light pulses from the supernova renmant after pinpointing its location by radio telescope, according to McKean! Ancient texts and traditions document the physical existance of the goddess (or was she an astronaut, one of the Nefilim colonizers of Earth?) Inanna, whose Akkadian name was Ishtar. "... Known to the Romans as Venus, to the Greeks as Aphrodite, to the Canaanites and the Hebrews as Astarte, to the Assyrians and Babylonians and Hittites and the other ancient peoples as Iastar, or Eshdar, to the Akkadians and the Sumerians as Inanna or Innin or Ninni, or by others of her many names..." and ephitets Ahstar, Asteron, etc. She was at ALL times the goddes of Warfare and the goddess of Love, who, according to Sitchin, was "... a fierce, beautiful female who, though only a great-granddaughter of Anu, carved for herself, by herself, a major place among the Great Gods of Heaven and Earth." Jumping ahead 6,000 years in time, we again, in a sense, come face to face with Ishtar, or Ashtar. The following information was obtained through the courtesy of both the Blue Rose Ministry (Rev. Robert Short - POB 622, Joshua Tree, Ca. 92252) - and most importantly, through the tireless efforts of NEW LIFE MAGAZINE, 159 George St., London, W.1., England.

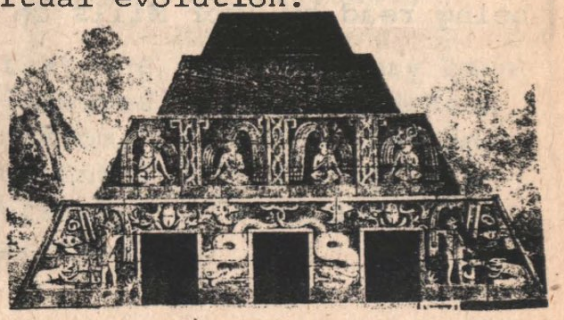
We are now re-printing what UFO researchers are coming to consider one of the most important, and at the same time, startling documents ever revealed to the planet Earth in modern times. What has come to be known as the "VOICE FROM OUTER SPACE" was, as best as can be determined, a transmission of the voice of an entity that identified itself as a spokesperson of the ASHTAR GALACTIC COMMAND. The voice over rode the 5:05 pm, Saturday, Nov. 26, 1977, scheduled news bulletin - being read by Ivor Mills on Southern I.T.V.



The transmission reportedly did NOT use Earth electricity! No monitoring of the transmission was made AT the TV station! Yet, hundred's of thousands of TV viewers reportedly heard it! Rev. Short speculates that the power used was somehow concerned with TENSOR CALCULATIONS and the QUANTUMS OF LIGHT-BEAM WAVE FREQUENCIES, as "... used in a form of communication via UFO to planets and persons!" Here then, is the unabridged version of the "VOICE FROM OUTER SPACE" - sounding " deep, as though coming through water (heavy, slow and wavering, as though it were more mechanical that of a manned-type agency)":

"This is the voice of GAMAAH (Gramaha) The representative of the ASTERON (ASHTAR) GALACTIC COMMAND, speaking to you. For many years you have seen us as lights in the sky. We speak to you now in peace and wisdom, as we have done to your brothers and sisters all over this, your planet earth. We come to warn you of the destiny of your race and your world, so that you may communicate to your fellow beings, the course you must take to avoid the disaster which threatens your world and the beings on other worlds around you.

This is in order that you may share in the great awakening as the planet passes into the New Age of Aquarius. The New Age can be a time of the great evolution for your race, but only if your rulers are made aware of the evil forces that can overshadow their judgement. Be still now and listen, for your chance may not come again for many years. Your scientists, governments and Generals have not heeded our warnings. They have continued to experiment with the evil forces of what you call nuclear energy. Atomic bombs can destroy the earth, and the beings of your sister worlds in a moment. The wastes from Atom Power systems will poison your planet for many thousands of years to come. We, who have followed the path of evolution for far longer than you, have long since realized this - that atomic energy is always directed against life. It has no peaceful application. Its use and re - search into use must be ceased at once or you will risk destruction. All weapons of evil must be removed. The time of conflict is now past and the races of which you are a part may proceed to the highest planes of evolution if you show yourselves worthy to do this. You have but a short time to learn to live together in peace and goodwill. Small groups all over the planet are learning this, and exist to pass on the light of the dawning New Age to you all. You are free to accept or reject their teaching, but only those who learn to live in peace will pass to the higher realms of spiritual evolution.



Hear now the voice of GAMAAH, the voice of the ASTERON (ASHTAR) COMMAND, speaking to you. Be aware also that there are many false prophets and guides at present operating on your world. They will suck your energy from you - the energy you call money, and will put it to evil ends giving you worthless dross in return. Your inner divine self will protect from this. You must learn to be sensitive to the voice within that can tell you what is truth and what is confusion, chaos, and untruth. Learn to listen to the voice of truth that is within you, and you will lead yourselves onto the path of evolution. This is our message to you, our dear friends. We have watched you growing for many years, as you, too, have watched our lights in the skies. You know now that we are here, and that there are more beings on and around your earth than you scientists admit. We are deeply concerned about you, and your path towards the light and will do all we can to help you. Have no fears. Seek only to know yourselves and live in harmony with the ways of your planet earth. We of ASTERON (Ashtar) GALACTIC COMMAND thank you for your attention. We are now leaving the planes of your existence. May you be blessed by the supreme love and truth of the Cosmos." END OF QUOTE FROM MESSAGE.

Whether you give the "Voice" any credibility or not, is an individual thing: Truth IS, and UNtruth can be determined by going within, and being sensitive. I feel that there is more to the themes behind such popular TV and films "Close Encounters", "Star Wars", etc. than the average person suspects! It seems that some form of REcontact is now imminent! Just what form it will take or when, remains a matter of intense speculation. In the meantime, WE WAIT!

THE SECRETS OF ANCIENT MEDICINE

(Reprinted from: Forgotton Ages. J.R. Jochmans, Box 82863, Lincoln, Neb)

Surgical skills are not only a legacy from the past, for we find evidences of knowledge of medicines and drugs that also match what we do have today. A medical papyrus from the Eleventh Dynasty outlines the use by Egyptian physicians of a mold grown on still water, prescribed for wounds and infections... Both the Chinese and Greeks employed packs of warm earth mixed with soybean curd -- which contains antibiotics -- on wounds, boils and carbuncles. In 1926, pharmaceutical researchers K.K. Chen and C.F. Schmidt made an analysis of ma huang, an ancient Chinese drug that "Quickened the mind and heart." They isolated the main ingredients, and discovered one to be the alkaloid ephedrine --- a well-known stimulant. The Chinese were equally familiar with bensedrine and pervitine.

From Indian magic potions, American scientists found reserpine, used today in many tranquilizers. The Egyptians were knowledgeable in the area of contraceptives. They prescribed a vaginal jelly of crushed acacia spikes, honey and dates. Only recently was it learned that the gum extract from acacia spikes is deadly to male sperm. The Egyptians consumed the root ami-majos before long journeys across the blistering deserts. The root, modern chemists found, contains 8 methoxypsorate -- which increased skin pigmentation, and helps to lessen sunburn... These and other medical figures testify to the high state of the healing arts at the very beginning of Egyptian history.

The Egyptians appear to have been at the forefront in the understanding and application ob bacteriology. The Greek historian Herodotus recorded that during the building of the Great Pyramid, one of the greatest problems faced was the possible outbreak of epidemics amoung the workers. As a prevention, the Egyptian officials made sure that everyone ate large quantities of radishes, onions and leeks. In 1947, two scientists isolated from radish seeds a substance called raphanin -- found to be a very effective retardant for the growth of several forms of microbes. A year later, Swiss researchers demonstrated that it successfully combats several forms of contact- infectious bacteria...

ATLANTIS REMEMBERED
by Rev. Thomas Long

The technology of the Lemurians survived through its elite practioners who had the knowledge necessary to make the proper applications insuring their living into the Atlantean Age of Earth civilization. Thus Atlantis was the cornerstone of the FIFTH transitional Age of the planet Earth.

It was in the early beginnings of this new continent, about 195,000 BC, which saw a new influx of human beings that became the FIVE races extant upon Earth in our age of today! This, of course, is the White, Brown, Black, Yellow and Red races. Each had their "Adam and Eve" thus giving an added insight into the quandry of the duality of the initial chapters of Genesis. "Amelius" was the name of the Red racial "Adam" and it agrees with the Edgar Cayce accounting as the beginning of the Atlanteans.

The Lemurians were the paragon of patience, and after about 40,000 years of growth and development within the red Atlanteans, they began to share their knowledge and understandings of CONTROLLING the elemental energies and beings with the Atlanteans. The "Moses' Rod", and "Jacobs' Staff" we know as Vril Sticks today were primary tools in this control and use of the forces. A headband of silver, copper and leather was a tool of telepathy and time/space teleportation. The "gasses" around Earth were used to construct what we know today as dirigibles.

Only the most knowledgable Atlanteans were chosen by the Lemurians, who made sure each choice was of strong spiritual-mind principles; this formed the "elite" core of Atlantean scientists, and would eventually prove to be the failing point that brought the final destruction. Nuclear power and control was discovered shortly after the mid-point of the Atlantean period becoming fully operational in their life styles about 40,000 BC. Then -- about 39,000 BC came a momentous occurence! INTELLIGENCES FROM OTHER WORLDS had ovserved with keen interest these accomplishments of a primeval society in the Earth plane; they now visited these members of the Universal Man company! They knew the true adepts within this core of elite, and to them they entrusted a higher knowledge of vibrational control over many more rare elements within the Earth spectrum of electrical energies. The crystals of certain granite stone types were used, along with the crystals of oxidized copper (Lapis Lasulis) in constructing the largest true generator ever divised by man upon Earth!

This enabled those few select to construct interplanetary and inter-galactic space-ships which were adaptable to any dimension or circumstance or material or electrical matter and fields of vibration. The head-band here evolved into the primary control of these huge and wondrous ships! The beam of electrical vibrations from this gigantic "radiant stone" with its INTELLIGENT cores of copper crystals, which could be (and still can be) programmed for the many functions of such a power source. It was the Human Mind, in conjunction with the head-band qualities that reached through the sound and color vibrational ranges of immense magnitude, which gave the ultimate control over the almost unlimited power of this electrical field emitted by the "stone". De-massing and materializing qualities were only one of myriad capabilities of such a vibratory force sent out by this generator which received its power from not only Earth and Solar System vibrations, but that of the Universal Energy flows also.

Many of the new complex patterns of energy vibrations and forces now emerging in physics can be put to use with this true generator. It still is lying in the Bermuda Triangle area, and is one of the prime sources of the dis-intergrating process which removes three dimensional matter from our physical sight! It is no wonder this area is a center of UFO activity?

Remember -- it was only a very few privileged to have this knowledge; so not many of the great ships were constructed on Earth. They were later used to take certain key people to other realms as the destruction of Atlantis drew closer. The selfish and material-minded intellectuals within the elite scientific establishment gradually influenced their way into control of the stone, but their thirst for world domination ended their efforts before they learned the inner secrets of inner and outer space travels and the building of the great ships. It was their decision to turn the beams from the many faceted huge radiant stone into the Earth for harvesting of precious minerals that started the Earth forc3s rebellion against their control. It was their final plan to attack the Yellow Race THROUGH the Earth with this beam of energy which triggered the Earth convulsion --- which swallowed all of Atlantis in 24 hours of the greatest horror ever known on Earth until that time! This was in 9564 BC and it was 2500 YEARS before the Earth forces were quite quieted enough for the few survivors to start another civilization!

Let us return briefly to that period BEFORE the arrival of the higher beings in 37,000 BC. Buring a period near 80,000 BC came cataclysms upon Atlantis as the final submergence of Lemuria remnants occured. These were of such intensity as to break the huge land mass of Atlantis into three large island-continents, and greatly slow their rate of technological advancement. As they regained control of the Earth forces, and the knowledge of nuclear energy was forthcoming, they built many power plants over their three portions. After the help of the Ancient Ones in 37,000 BC brought the Radiant Stone and its cylinders (12) there was a miscalculation.

This happened near the time of 28,000 BC and it concerned the control settings within their nuclear power plants. As more and more used were adapted to the Stone generator, frequencies began to rise unnoticed within the power plant re-actors. This was a source that went undetected and finally there was a chain reaction that simultaneously blew apart their entire nuclear complex in all three portions! This blasted the Atlantean 3-part continent into many islands, of which Posedia remained the largest (of which Bimini today is the last remnant). This is the time of the Great Flood - which many people today may begin to get a more true time-sequence guide into much spiritual literature.

There was another time of rebuilding and the survivors rapidly lost much of their spiritual fervor, and their return to technological supremacy was marred by human errors of life style and conduct we see so rampant upon our Earth today. It was only a matter of time to the ultimate end.

As a final note - one of the most significant "discoveries" coming out of the 'visit' and teachings of the Space-Travellers, was the knowledge of a portion of Creation used in the forming of our "world". They taught how that outer space phenomenon we know as 'black holes' are actually the tremendous vortices of energy used in creative processes by the spiritual hierachy called herein as "Universal Man". The 9564 BC destruction of Atlantis is the ONLY DIRECTLY CAUSED(HUMAN BEING CAUSED) "changing of the Age" on Earth today! Our racial memory of these advancements is very close to us; it is the incarnated Atlanteans of this present century which has now brought such great leaps in technology. We are again receiving aid from the Ancient Ones incarnated as Cosmic Souls in certain human beings today. THAT IS THE INFLUENCE 'ATLANTIS' HAS OVER OUR AGE...

YOU, TOO, MAY BE FROM KRYPTON!

by Brad Steiger

Author Brad Steiger believes that multidimensional UFO intelligences have always co-existed with us, but that in the last thirty years they have been accelerating their interaction with us in preparation for a fast-approaching time of transition and transformation. For generat - ions, prophets and revelators have been referring to this time as the Judgement Day, Armageddon, The Great Cleansing.

About eight years ago, as Steiger was traveling about the country gathering research data and lecturing, he began to make the acquaintance of men and women who claimed either to have strange memories of having come to this planet from "somewhere else" or to have experienced an interaction with paranormal entities since their earliest childhood.

Each of the "Star People," as Steiger came to call them, were normal and attractive in appearance and seemed to be rather successfully integrated into contemporary society. Their supposed knowledge that they were - 'star seed' and "strangers in a strange land" did not require them to withdraw from society or to present a behavior pattern that others might find eccentric or peculiar.

In his "GODS OF AQUARIUS", Steiger set down a number of accounts of the Star People, and he also listed several of their physical attributes and physiological anomalies. James Beal of Martin Marietta Aerospace, a former NASA engineer who participated in the Saturn V and Space Shuttle programs, learned of Steiger's discovery and decided to check it out. He soon found men and women with both the sense of mission and the physical anomalies which Steiger had mentioned in his book. Beal called these men and women "The Helpers", since they seem to have been programmed to serve as guides in the transition times which lie ahead. Later, Steiger was informed that Dr. Norman Cooperman, a psychotherapist from Miami, and Dr. Lawrence Kennedy, a parapsychologist from Lake Tahoe, had also discovered the Star People in the course of their work. Few of the "People" have all of the characteristics listed in GODS OF AQUARIUS, but all of the "Helpers" have a good number of the elements which have be isolated. Thus far, the pattern profile of the Star People contains the following elements:

*Unusual blood type. * Lower body temperture. * Extra vertabrae and lower back problems. * Appear hypersensitive to electricity, electromagnetic force fields. * Unusally sharp hearing and eyes very sensitive to light. * Low blood pressure. * Chronic sinusitis. * Thrive on little sleep. * Was an unexpected child. * Felt their mother and father were not their real parents. * Feel that their true ancestors came from another world, another dimension, and they yearn for their true home. * Complain of a feeling of great urgency, a short time to complete goals. * Had unseen companions as a child. * Had an unusual experience around the age of five which often took the form of a white light and/or a visitation by human-type beings who gave information and comfort. * Have since maintained a continuing series of eoisodes with "angels," "elves", "masters", or openly declared UFO intelligences. * Children and animals are attracted to them. * They do their best work at night. * They have unusual natural abilities with art, music, mathematics, healing, acting. * Their artwork and/or dreams involve very often a multi-moon planetary environment.*

Beal has expressed his speculation that these emerging and developing personalities may be the imaginal "cells" for our human species' metamorphosis into the future. Steiger's involvement with the Star People became even more intimate when he married a lady who can check off nearly every element in the above pattern profile, and who, since the age of five, has maintained a steady interaction with an intelligence which described itself as angelic.

Recently, Francie Steiger submitted to an encounter with science's most sophisticated new instrument for assessing the truth of anyone's claims - the Psychological Stress Evaluator (PSE). Develpped by two Colonels in military security, the PSE machine records the subject's voice patterns and indicates certain stress-related tremors which are controlled by involuntary muscles triggered by the subconscious mind. The PSE instrumentation detects, measures, and records in graphic manner any guilt-revealing variations in the human voice.

Francie told of her initial contact experience, then went on to describe the circumstances under which she was later given the teachings which the intelligences relayed to her and to detail certain specifics contained within those teachings. The findings of the PSE indicated that, in every instance tested, Francie was totally innocent of deception. Her voice was free of the stress which would indicate untruthfulness.

Francie, too, foresees that Earth must endure a season of cataclysmic changes, but she envisions a New Age consciousness which will then suffuse the planet. Although our Old World is about to die, a New World is in the process of being born.

Brad Steiger comments" "I believe that when mankind one day attains the final square in what I have come to call the Reality Game, we will find that we have achieved the evolutionary goal for twentieth century humankind -- the transcendence of our species. We will discover that from our very genesis our species has been a transitional one, literally the link between the animal and the angel."

Steiger speculated that at the present time, thousands of "Helpers" and "Star People" are being born into our species or are in the process of being activated and remembering their mission. "We are being pulled into the stars," Steiger said. "We are being forced into the Cosmos." "With understanding, with love, we will, as a species, progress out of our old physical limitations and rise to a higher realm that is ours by right of our star-seeded inheritance. Through the ministrations of the "Helper" cells among us and through the spiritual catharthis of dreams, visions, and inspirations, each man and each woman may attain the promise of a rebirth in the stars." ...

Air pollution linked to mental illness

AIR pollution has been linked to mental illness after a study by a top psychiatrist.

Dr. Meir Strahilevitz, of the University of Texas Medical Branch, at Galveston, said: "There is no doubt in my mind that certain air pollutants can aggravate some forms of mental illness, and may also contribute to psychological problems among the general population."

In a five-month study, Dr. Strahilevitz examined the relationship between the daily levels of several air pollutants and the daily number of emergency room visits and inpatient admissions to a St. Louis psychiatric hospital.

The study's results revealed a strong link between certain pollutants and various types of mental illness, he said.

"Our findings indicated on days when carbon monoxide levels were their highest, there was an increase in emergency room visits by psychiatric patients."

Amazingly, however, one pollutant — nitrogen oxide — seemed to have a therapeutic effect on patients who suffered from alcoholism and organic brain syndrome.

He added: "The total effect of air pollution on a mental state is just beginning to be evaluated. Certainly, it has been known that the weather has an effect on the psychological state of human beings."

GENETIC ENGINEERING

In the Sanskrit text known as the Samara Sutradhara, we find mention of the use of two biological weapons, each of which produced its own results - the samhara debilitated its victims by attacking the motor center of the brain, and the moha caused blockage of nerve impulses, resulting in complete paralysis. In the Chinese Feng-shen-ven-i, we find similar descriptions of germ warfare, and again reference is made to specific weapons causing specific results.

What these descriptions imply is that the ancients once actively created and produced strains of microbes -- much is the same way many modern governments are secretly conducting research to find new and deadly forms of microbes for military purposes. Just how far the ancients took their experiments may be found in an enigma that still effects mankind today - the virus.

When first discovered, viruses were thought to be an intermediary step between life and non-life: in an inert state, it is much like an inorganic crystal, but when active it acts with a purposeful manner, and duplicates by using biological processes.

But, as the virus has come under more and more scientific scrutiny, several disturbing facts have emerged. The most important is that viruses have a high degree of host specificity- in other words, it is as if they were designed to attack man, and man alone. And since man is supposedly only a recent arrival on this planet,the virus, too, must be a recent phenomenon. But - where did it come from? As Mooney, in GODS OF AIR AND DARKNESS noted, "Viruses have recently been synthesized in our modern research laboratories by recombining existing virus material, thus producing new strains not found in nature. Therefore it is not impossible that a highly advanced society in the past may have done a similar thing. This would connect closely with the reports of biological weapons in ancient documents."

Going one step further, modern researchers are also experimenting with changing the structure of DNA, the basic building blocks of life, which contain the codes of identity in the genetics of the individual. Already new forms have been produced which could prove to be deadly, and would be a serious threat if uncontrolled, because they have the ability to reproduce themselves. The virus is a little machine that accomplishes the very same thing, only in a specific manner: It contains a core of altered DNA material that it injects into the nucleus of a human cell, and the DNA in that cell is transformed to reproduce the virus form.

As a result, the cell is reorganized to produce more viruses, not cells, and when the cell disintegrates, its mutated offspring spread to attack and inject themselves into other cells -- and the process begins again, only multiplied. Did someone in the unknown past design the virus as a biological weapon? If so, it presupposes a knowledge of genetic engineering that is not very far removed from our own.

The extent to which the ancients carried out their genetic studies may be hinted at in a new development taking place in modern research. In 1975, Dr. Nils Ringertz of the Swedish Institute for Medical Research and Genits announced the successful crossing of genes of entirely different genera, to produce hybrid cells: his team had combined the genetic material of a man with a rat, a man with a chicken -- and even a man with an insect. In each case, the cell produced began to multiply -- in other words if it had been allowed to grow, each cell would have developed into the monstrosity created by the genetic combination, a "man-rat", a "man-chick", or a "man-insect." Dr. Ringertz assured his colleagues that the purpose of his experiment was to produce the hybrid cells, and these were destroyed once they began to multiply, so that the monstrosities could not mature into living creatures. But the procedure he used was simple enough.

It could be duplicated, in any genetic laboratory -- and one wonders if over the past few years, other researchers have gone ahead and secretly allowed such creatures to live and grow. Because of the possible genetic combinations are limitless, the kinds of hybrid creatures that could be created is also endless. And if such creatures ever accidentally escaped.....

In imagining what kind of monstrosities might one day be loosed upon the world, there is the sudden realization that we have seen these combinations before -- in the artwork and mythology of practically every ancient civilization. There we find the Mermaid (man-fish), centaur (man-horse) satyr (man-goat), harpy (man-bird), and the sphinx (man-lion). And - there are other well known combinations: pegasus (horse-bird), griffon - (bird-lion), capricorn (goat-fish),and the gargoyle (ape-bird). Berosus, the Graeco-Babylonian historian, records the memory of an age when such' genetic "freaks" abounded in the world: "There once resided most hideous beings, which were produced of a two-fold principle (genetic hybridization?).When man appeared with two wings, some with four and with two faces. They had one body but two heads; the one a man and the other of a woman. Other human figures were to be seen with the legs and horns of goats. Some had horses' feet; others had the limbs of a horse behind, but before were fashioned like men. Bulls likewise had the heads of men; and dogs with four fold bodies, and the tails of fishes. In short, there were creatures with the limbs of every species of animals. Add to these - fishes, reptiles, serpents, with other wonderful animals, which assumed each other's shape and countenance. Of all these were preserved delineations in the temple of Belus at Babylon." These combinations described here are as many and varied as one would expect from rampant genetic jybridization. Were these mythic creatures, only the product of imagination, or were they the offspring of an ancient science unknown to us? The answers may be closer than we would like to think.....

In our own civilization, research into the secrets of life is only decades old, but for other, forgotten civilizations of the distant past - the research may have extended over centuries -- perhaps even millenia. ... Perhaps the most startling revelations of the advanced nature of ancient research into the manipulation of the building blocks of life come to us from Sumerian inscriptions, dated between 4,000 and 5,000 years old. Several legends speak of a time when "god-men" ruled the world of prehistory, and in order to work the mines of the land of "Apsu" -- identified with southern Africa -- the Sumerian deities decided to creat a - 'lulu', or primitive worker, who would do the actual digging and other hard labor.

The god Enki was placed in charge of the task to "bring about the work of great Wisdom," and he, with the Mother goddess, Ninhursay, began to fashion the lulu. The place where the creation took place was called the - Bit shimti - the "house where the wind of life is breathed in." Upon entering the house, Ninhursay first "washed her hands", as any laboratory worker would, and called to her lab assistants to prepare the first ingredient: "Mix the core of clay, from the depths of the Earth in Apsu -- and shape it into the form of a core; I have knowledgeable young gods, who will bring the clay to the right condition."

The akkadian term for clay is tit (molding clay), but in its earliest spelling - ti-it -- it also meant "that which has life." In the Hebrew tit means "mud", with its synonyms bos related to bisa (marsh) and besa (egg). These connotations - clay, marsh, egg, hint at stages of development in the creation of the cell.

First the substance began as a "clay". In 1974, Dr. Graham Cairn-Smith of the University of Glasgow's department of Chenistry, announced a new theory on the origins of life. He was not satisfied that the first threads of nucleic organic material floating in the primeaval sea could have been coming together by chance, but must have needed a structural catalyst within which the threads formed into the first complex DNA patterns. Clay, he believes, was the ideal catalyst. Clay has a crystalline structure that has the ability to retain and "print" near old layers. This is a system capable of develoment by natural selection, by trial and error -- the first step necessary to produce molecules and arrangements of molecules that would eventually form the more complex systems of early life forms." More recently, in 1977, Dr. James Lawless of NASA's Ames Research Center, together with Dr. Edward Edelson and Lewis Manning, of the American Chemical Society, succeeded in demonstrating that clay containing nickel will attract amino acids, and the concentrated amino acids will then link up to form chains similar to protein. Dr. Cairn-Smith stated, "In simple terms, clay therefore could have been the basis of life: the blueprint of man."

The next stage of the "clay" development, according to the Hebrew/Akkadian word connotations, was that it became like a "marsh" = that is, the clay material was mixed with simple organic material, as one would find in marshland ooze. In the Sumerian texts, this is seen in the Mother Goddess Ninhursag's command that chemicals called "bitumens of Apsu" be used to purify or "impregnate" the clay. Bitumen is a petroleum substance made up of very complex hydrocarbon chains -- the basis or organic chemistry. What is described, in essence, is that organic chains were mixed in clay, and the clay patterns began to "print" the chains into more complex structures, such as DNA. That this shaping process was directed can be seen in the "young gods" or lab assistants shaping the clay into a specific mold, bringing it to "bind upon the mixture the mold of the gods".

Enki, the texts state, further ordered the assistants to carefully design the organic material into the genetic codes of a human-like creature. The result, in the last stage, was the formation of an egg, or a cell.

The next major step, once a cell was produced, was to give the cell an "essence" or code of life. This was done by adding "blood". The text reads: "I will prepare a solution, Let one god be bles... his blood - let Ninhursag mix blood with the clav egg." The texts make it clear that what was being sought in the blood was napishtu, or an "essence" related to shi-im - ti, the "breath-of-life-wind". The key is in the name of the god from whom the blood was finally taken - Te-e-ma. According to translators W.G. Lambert and A.R. Millard of Oxford University, the name means "personality" with the further connotation, "that which contained within wich binds the memory." This is nothing less than a description of the gene, the element which gives the cell life, and directs the cell to begin the process of reproduction... But it was Enki who performed the crucial injuection: He "blows in" the "breath-wind" into the cell, and gave it life. The next and final step involved artificial inpregnation. Ninhursag "cut off fourteen pieces of the clay - egg-cell" she selected fourteen cells out of the the newly-dividing creation. There then follows a description of the coming of fourteen - "birth-goddesses" to the operating table... Within each, one of the fourteen selected cells was placed in the womb, and the cells began to grow into a living being... Once the experiment proved successful, it appears the process of artificial impregnation was repeated again and again, the cells being used from the original cell created by Enki, Ninhursag and Ea. The result would have been the production of a multitude of CLONES. creatures that looked exactly alike.

... Who were these dwarfish creatures? Perhaps the answer may be found in the reason for the creatures' creation: they were to become "primitive workers" in the mines of "Apsu", or southern Africa. It is not without significance that this area has turned up some of the oldest prehistoric mines in the world -- as well as forms of "ape-men" that have been a puzzle... Were these forms, instead of being so-called 'ancestors' of men, acutally the result of genetic creation by jnknown experimentors in the past? Perhaps someday we will find the secret when the Bit shimti is unearthed -- the laboratory-house where enigmatic "gods" manipulated the "breath of life".

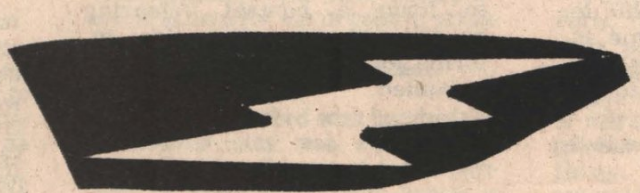
NAJ Editorial Note: The question now is: WHO CREATED THE "GODS"? The 'creators' themselves - were 'created'. All pathways lead to an ultimate truth:

A mystery flash traps women in 'tube of fire'

THE SUNDAY EXPRESS London September 26 1971

NOTHING, it seemed, could ever disturb the sleepy riverside village of Shaldon, Devon ... until, it reeled under the shock of 50 million volts! One moment all was afternoon stillness and silence. The dark cloud that was drifting overhead seemed harmless. Then suddenly the whole village was seared by a violent flash of lightning and thunder. People collapsed in pain. High plumes of water were seen to spurt out of the River Teign. Two women were enveloped in shrouds of fire. Electrical instruments abruptly burned out.

Some people had to have medical treatment for mysterious aches and partial prarlysis -- and were still going to their doctor weeks after the lightning struck... Today, more than a month later, there are people in Shaldon who are not convinced that the flash was due to ordinary lightning. Was it, they wonder, caused by a large metorite - or something even more sinister from outer space? Did it have anything to do sightings of UFOs from different parts of Britain the week before? Village ironmonger Mr. Tom Underhill said: "There was just one flash and a bang coming together. It wasn't like ordinary storm lightning..." "There was no rain and nobody saw anything drop from the skies. But some people say they saw the river spurting up as though something had fallen in it." Housewife Mrs. Betty Connell was one of the two women who found themselves "trapped" in a circle of brilliant light. "I didn't feel anything," but I was aware of being held in a tube of light and it took me several days to get over the shock."...



FIELD REPORT: THE NEW ATLANTEAN RESEARCH SOCIETY

We are grateful to our special investigative reporters, Mary and TAL Levesque, for the following reports concerning the Special Conference on Cattle Mutillations recently held in New Mexico. They were there in person attending the various sessions along with many other of our friends and co-workers in the UFO field. This conference was NOT one that was open to the public, and the reporters who were invited in were only those of presenting the proper credentials and a 'need to know' concern. In addition to the newspaper articles, the Levesques sent us a complete taping of the conference and photographs... This was held on April 20, 1979.

THE TAOS NEWS -- MARCH 1, 1979

Mutilation clues hinted

A New Mexico State Police officer who has investigated most of the cattle mutilations in New Mexico for the past two years says he now knows how the strange mutilations are done, but won't release the details.

Officer Gabe Valdez, of Dulce, said a mutilation near Encino three weeks ago yielded the necessary clues as to how the mutilations are accomplished — one of the biggest mysteries surrounding the 70-odd mutilations reported in the state since 1975.

Valdez said he cannot release any further details because it is not yet known who is responsible for the events.

He did say he may be able to make a statement sometime in the future, but made no promises.

"I may never be able to do it," Valdez added.

Valdez apparently has the last word on the investigations and releasing information on mutilations in New Mexico. Officials at State Police headquarters in Santa Fe referred mutilation questions back to Valdez.

New Mexico Sen. Harrison Schmitt has joined the search for a solution to the mutilations and plans to sponsor a conference in Albuquerque sometime in April among representatives from the states where similar mutilations have occurred.

Schmitt said he hopes to be able to form a central "clearing house" where nation-wide information on mutilations can be compiled.

Cattle mutilations have been reported in several states during the past few years. The mutilations all bear the same trademark: draining blood from the animal, near-surgical removal of the tongue, one eye, reproductive organs and the anus.

Thousands of reports of such mutilations are on record across the United States. Similar mutilations have occurred in Colorado, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Wyoming, South Dakota, Montana, Texas and several other states.

The most recent, and closest, mutilation to Taos, occurred Jan. 12 in Ranchitos. A five-year-old heifer belonging to Frank Suazo was found mutilated near Blueberry Hill. Valdez investigated that incident, but said he was unable to form any conclusions after completing his tests.

FBI To Investigate Cattle Mutilations

ALBUQUERQUE JOURNAL - APRIL 4, 1979

By FRITZ THOMPSON
Journal Staff Writer

Cattle mutilations were placed under the investigative scrutiny of the FBI Friday — the first time a federal agency has formally intervened in the case since the mysterious, unsolved incidents erupted around the nation more than five years ago.

While they acknowledged federal assistance is long overdue, many of the more than 90 persons at Friday's Albuquerque conference advised caution in the probe's approach.

Forest Putman, special agent in charge of the Albuquerque FBI office, eased the jurisdictional boundaries of the investigation when he told the conference his agency intends to keep close tabs on all mutilations.

"We're not going down the line with blinders on, looking only at those cases occurring on federal lands," he said. "We intend to look at other mutilations, as long as we see they have the same MO's (methods of operation).

Putman named Agent Sam Jones in charge of gathering data on the mutilations. "If we're going to solve this," he said, "we need a task force and we need to gather all the facts, facts that can be computerized."

In a closed door session Friday afternoon, law enforcement officials decided to assign the direction for the investigation to one of three agencies: the FBI, District Attorney Eloy Martinez of Santa Fe, or the New Mexico State Police.

"Within the next two weeks, we will make a determination on this," said U. S. Attorney R.E. Thompson. "We will decide which of the agencies will act as the primary investigative group and the central data collection agency."

Thompson said the decision rests on a number of factors. "The FBI has to get approval from Washington, Martinez has to find out if he is going to be given the ($50,000 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration) grant, and the State Police have to obtain clearance from the chief."

Thompson said representatives from Nebraska, Colorado, Montana and Arkansas attended the closed door meeting.

Thompson and U. S. Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., co-chaired the Friday conference. Schmitt has been instrumental in seeking federal assistance and prodding the gathering of authorities on the mutilation cases. the first such meeting since the mystery began.

"Now that we know who is primarily responsible for mutilation investigations in these other states, we will be exchanging information with them," Thompson said. "The investigation here, however, will focus on New Mexico."

The push for a more intensified and coordinated probe originated with Dulce rancher Manuel Gomez, who has lost six animals to unexplained deaths and muti tion within the last two years.

"It hasn't been easy for myself and my family." he said Friday. "We have experienced fear and mental anguish, not knowing when or where the next mutilation will happen."

For the most part, the compendium of testimony Friday yielded little new information. There was much talk of UFOs, helicopters with the numbers blacked out, and who should be involved in the investigation.

State Policeman Gabe Valdez of Dulce, who has investigated the deaths of 90 cattle during the past three years and who has been universally cited as an authority on mutilations, called for the formation of a task force composed of federal, state and county officials.

"Some people say this is the work of predators," he said. "If it is, we have some predators who have superpowers. It is hard for me to believe predators could pull the heart of a cow out through a small hole in the chest."

A U.S. map jabbed with hundreds of varicolored pins was exhibited by David Perkins, director of the Department of Research at Libre School in Farasita, Colo. It is the only map in existence identifying mutilations sites.

Perhaps the most pertinent statements were made by Carl Whiteside of the Colorado Bureau of Investigation.

Between April and December of 1975, the bureau conducted an undercover investigation, utilizing the expertise of the Colorado State University large animal hospital, the National Guard, the Department of Interior and the CBI laboratories. Agents from the bureau monitored all civilian and military helicopter flights during the time of the probe.

"Sadly, most of these efforts produced no results," Whiteside said. "For one thing, we were completely unable to place any unidentified vehicle in the air or on the ground near the carcasses that were found."

Whiteside said nine of the 35 carcasses examined in laboratories were judged to be "willful mutilations."

"I feel very strongly that the law enforcement agencies should investigate this with the same professional manner they would give to a homicide or a rape case," he said.

"I caution you to go about this in a careful fashion. I think using the FBI is a good approach, I think using accredited scientists and veteranarians is a good approach. You're going to have a tremendous problem, a tremendous job on your hands."

Thompson said federal jurisidiction would be bolstered if the mutilations are connected with helicopters carrying no identification marks. He said the authority would rest with the Federal Aviation Administration.

A brief presented by Tom Adams of Paris, Texas, who has been independently examining mutilations for six years, said the helicopters "are almost always without identifying markings, or markings may appear to have been painted over or covered with something. The craft are frequently reported flying at abnormal, unsafe or illegal altitudes. The mystery choppers may shy away if witnesses or law officers try to approach."

Still other witnesses, particularly Richard Sigismund of Boulder, Colo., argued for the possibility the mutilations are related to UFOs.

"The possible association of UFOs should not be lightly dismissed," he said. "Some sort of airborne vehicle is involved. Try as we will, it becomes increasingly difficult to link these mutilations to coyotes or cults."

Taking exception to many of the statements was Dr. Richard Prine, a forensic veterinarian from Los Alamos. "I have examined six carcasses, and in none of them have I encountered anything unusual," he said. Prine said predators were "probably" responsible for the mutilations.

A representative of the state veterinary diagnostic laboratory at New Mexico State University, Dr. Claire Hibbs, said he has not been in New Mexico long, but that he has worked on mutilation findings in Kansas and Nebraska.

He said the mutilations fall into three categories: animals killed and mutilated by predators and scavengers; animals mutilated after death by "sharp instruments," and animals mutilated by pranksters.

Raleigh Tafoya, governor of the Jicarilla Apache Tribe in north central New Mexico, told the conference he is worried. "I'm beginning to wonder," he said. "We have no idea what we're dealing with; we are concerned. There have been threats made on the people who have lost livestock." Tafoya declined to be specific about the threats.

"What we're dealing with is a possible or probable crime," Schmitt said "Few things are as dangerous as a crime that goes unsolved and unpunished.

"I caution you against being wedded to one cause for the mutilations; if you do that, you may miss something else. We need to establish a systematic network of communication. The structure of that network is up to the FBI."

Common characteristics of mutilations include severed sexual organs, a cored rectum, the tongue cut out and sometimes an ear cut off. Many of the animals, investigators say, have been drained of blood. In several cases, the vertabrae is broken. One witness Friday said he had probed cases in which the head of the animal "had been turned 360 degrees." And there is growing belief that many of the cattle are airlifted from the pasture, mutilated elsewhere, then dropped from the aircraft.

Perkins pledged the full resources of his files to the investigation. "I have been conducting a systematic collection of data since 1975," he said. "In all my studies I have never met more of a challenge. The only thing that makes sense about the mutilations is that they make no sense at all."

'The Only Thing That Makes Sense About the Mutilations is That They Make No Sense at All'

Cattle mutilation enigma probed

UFOs? Coyotes? or what?

By JACK EHN
Tribune Staff Writer

A UFO from a distant planet may have been involved in a series of cattle mutilations in Dulce, a speaker said today during a conference on cattle mutilation.

"We can no longer ignore the possibility that UFOs are involved in events like these," said Richard Sigismond of Boulder, Colo.

He said he has been monitoring UFO developments for 20 years. The federal government should investigate this possibility, he said.

Sigismond and others painted a picture today in which elusive alien aircraft and "mysterious forces" take part in cattle mutilations across the country.

OTHERS, HOWEVER, discounted these ideas. Some government officials said that the incidence of certifiable mutilations is so small they are hardly worthy of investigation.

But an investigation is what U.S. Sen. Harrison Schmitt, who organized the national conference, is asking for.

"The group or groups responsible for the mutilation killings have shown almost unprecedented discipline. There have been no leaks or informants to assist the state and local law enforcement officials in their investigation efforts," Schmitt told a crowd of about 80 at the Albuquerque Public Library, 501 Copper N.W.

"THE PURPOSE of this conference is to try to get the FBI more fully involved in the investigations," he said.

The killings have been reported in at least 15 states during the past five years. They have cost farmers an estimated $2.5 million, he said. Schmitt said he is "taking no position" on the UFO question.

MEANWHILE state Policeman Gabe Valdez, who recently sighted an aircraft in Dulce thought to be connected with mutilations in the area, said he is "not really sure it was a helicopter."

Was it a UFO?

"I'm not ruling that out. We're looking into every possibility," he told The Tribune. The craft, sighted last Sunday, made no noise, sported blue and green lights, and could move both horizontally and vertically, he said.

Valdez said he has some leads in his investigation into the sighting, but he would not discuss them.

THE AUDIENCE was buzzing with people arguing both for and against further investigations.

Cattle mutilations debated

Cattle mutilation was the topic discussed today by (from left) U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson, Sen. Harrison Schmitt and state Policeman Gabe Valdez. About 80 persons attended the conference called by Schmitt to probe the mysterious mutilations. Valdez one night recently sighted a silent aircraft capable of vertical flight near Dulce, where several mutilations have been reported.

GREAT, GREEN AND WITH TRIANGULAR EYES!Source: "QUEST-FRANCE" -1/17/79. Occupants of UFOS are great green men with pink veins on the head and yellow triangular eyes! This was reported from an officia watchman from Genova, Mr. F. Zanfretta, abducted two times, on the 6th and the 7th of December, 1978, by several green men "coming from very far inside a triangular steel-colored ship". His testimony was taped under a deep hypnosis by an expert from Genova...

They fluttered off and took them back to space in their UFO parked on the lawn. The tale of the sweet-toothed Martians may seem hard to swallow but Jean swears it's NOT pie in the sky, and the police have made an official report. "I opened the back door and there was a blinding light. Then the three men bombed past me and went into the lounge. They had horrible waxy faces like corpses." Jean offered them coffee, but they asked for a down-to-earth glass of water. They on the way out, they picked up the pies and told Jean they'd drop in again sometime. MYSTERY MEN IN A GREEN MIST

SOURCE: "NEWS OF THE WORLD" -LONDON, ENGLAND - 12/24/73

By JOHN CLARE

JOHN DAY is convinced his family has had a close encounter with creatures from another planet after driving through a green mist.

He says the strange beings were 7ft tall, pink-eyed and communicated by telepathy. His amazing story emerged, under hypnosis after John, a 33-year-old student and his wife Sue had nightmares about their experience.

He says: "I had never really believed in UFOs before this happened. Now I'm convinced aliens are here and only show themselves when they want to."

The couple's close encounter happened on a moonlight night as they drove to their Essex home.

They had been visiting Sue's parents in Harold Hill and the journey home normally takes 30 minutes.

But after driving through the mist, John and Sue arrived to find three hours had mysteriously passed.

The clock on their mantelpiece showed it was 12.45 a.m. —yet they had set out at 9.20 p.m. the previous evening.

Then the couple began to have the same bizarre dream that they were on an operating table being examined by aliens.

The dreams became so vivid the couple were afraid to go to bed. Finally John contacted a group which researches UFOs, in the hope of finding out what really happened that night.

I went on a spaceship and met the 7ft aliens

THE ALIEN: John's sketch

ZOOMED

He was taken to one of Britain's leading hypnotists, dentist Leonard Wilder.

Under hypnosis John recalled how a white light followed and finally zoomed across in front of his car on a lonely road.

Then a beam of light transported the couple and their car aboard an alien spacecraft parked in a nearby field. John, a father of three, told me:

> We found ourselves in a giant room. I was standing next to two or three beings.
> —They were about seven feet tall, and all dressed in a one-piece costume.

It was like a silver-grey stocking, with a balaclava-type hood which came halfway up their faces.

The most startling thing about them was their eyes. They were bright pink, and they had no eyelids.

I found I knew what they wanted me to do. I think they communicated with me by telepathy. I knew they wanted me to walk across the room, so I did.

There was a doorway leading to another room. We all went through it.

This was obviously an examining room, and they asked me to lie on what looked like an operating table. I did so and a metal arm swung over me.

MAGNETS

I got the impression it was scanning me. Then some smaller beings appeared. They were very squat and ugly, almost dwarflike.

Only one seemed concerned with me. He kept prodding me with a pen-shaped object.

After a while, he seemed to have finished and I asked if I could see around the ship. They agreed.

On a table, which was moulded into the wall, like the rest of the furniture, I saw a game.

It was a pile of cubes, which had magnets on every side. The idea of the game was to build the small cubes into a big one.

Towards the end of the tour the aliens left me alone in a room and suddenly an incredibly beautiful woman walked in. She looked just like an earth woman.

She had bright gold hair, and all around her there was a grey mist. She really was beautiful. She moved towards me, and I took a step towards her. Then suddenly she vanished.

Soon after the [illegible] over, and the next I knew I was driving down the road again.

The beings kept telling me they were friendly and I enjoyed it immensely.

Sue, a 25-year-old nursery nurse, refused to be hypnotised because she did not want to relive the experience.

But she told me: "When I lay on the operating table they painted me with a mauve liquid. Then they washed it off.

"They prodded me all over with a pen-like object, and didn't spare my blushes. Then I screamed.

"One of the tall beings came over and put his hand on my forehead. I went out likt a light.

VANISH

"Later they took me on a tour around the ship. They showed me a screen and said, 'That is Earth.'

"They pointed out England on it. Then we seemed to zoom in, and they showed me where I lived.

"I told the beings I didn't want to go back I. asked if I could stay on the craft, and they agreed.

"I saw John climb into the car, and it started to vanish. As it disappeared, I said I had changed my mind, and wanted to go back. Then I found myself sitting in the car."

Hypnotist Mr Wilder, said: "I have no doubt that Mr Day is telling the truth.

"I say this because when I first hypnotised him I conditioned him to tell only the truth.

Mr Barry King, member of the UFO Investigators Network, said: "We've made exhaustive inquiries and are convinced this couple had a close encounter.

"Certain aspects of it are similar to other abductions, like the design and furnishing of the rooms. We can find no reason to doubt its authenticity."

A secret French government study of eleven UFO close encounters in that country has concluded that the objects observed were material phenomenon that could not be explained as natural events or human devices. This is the first known instance where government sponsored research has reached such a conclusion.

The conclusion was leaked in a summary of the 500-page report, which says that the investigations of the UFO cases reveal the existence of aerial devices "whose modes of sustenance and propulsion are beyond our knowledge."

The level of the research in the French study was described by one scientist who has seen the complete report as "extremely high quality," making the bulk of the major U.S. Air Force study of the late '60's (known as the Condon Report) seem "very poor" by comparison. "In many cases the investigations were textbook models of how such research should be carried out," he said.

Indian healer wins a battle with bureaucracy

By JOHN DART
Los Angeles Times

Los Angeles Times

Wintu medicine woman Flora Jones has been contending for seven years with bears and the U.S. Forest Service in an area south of Mount Shasta, Calif. where she practices her craft.

Bears have ripped down and destroyed her $400 tents on five separate occasions, she says.

Forest rangers have warned the 72-year-old spiritual healer that she must remove the wooden platform for her tent and an outhouse, both used by patients she has treated in Trinity National Forest.

Officials not long ago proposed to allow her to gather her herbs and other plants and animal parts only if she confined herself to one acre.

Miss Jones complained to the 2-year-old California native American Heritage Commission about the bears as well as the rangers, since she believed some bears were being imported from Yellowstone National Park.

THOUGH THE bears remain a marauding threat, Miss Jones has a new special use permit from the Forest Service to roam at will in the traditional Wintu healing area, where her mother and father practiced before her, and to maintain two permanent structures there.

Her case is believed to be the first successful use of the American Indian Religious Freedom Act, which was passed as a joint resolution of Congress last summer.

The act marks a major turning point in governmental attitudes toward Indian religions, which in the past have faced severe obstacles.

In 1887 the General Allotment Act spoke characteristically of the priority of building mission schools on Indian lands "to civilize and Christianize the Indians."

Indian beliefs and traditions were appreciated more by the mid-1900s. But the First Amendment protection of religious liberty did not often work for citizens whose pews were rock and dirt, whose sanctuary stretched from horizon to horizon, whose sacred objects sometimes included illegal substances and feathers of endangered species and whose spiritual havens sometime sat on top of untapped energy resources.

COMPOUNDING these difficulties have been widespread fears that many of the old ways and insights are being lost as the elders die and dispirted or disinterested young people drift away.

The new act declares it will be U.S. policy within federal agencies to "protect and preserve" the rights of Indians, Eskimos, Aleuts and native Hawaiians to exercise their traditional religions.

Native Americans are to be granted, among other things, access to sacred sites on federal land, use and possession of sacred objects from nature and other freedoms to perform ceremonial rites.

"In itself, the act, Public Law 95-341, doesn't have a lot of teeth," attorney Kurt V. Blue Dog, codirector of the Native American Rights Fund in Boulder, Colo., said.

"BUT IT SETS the tone for the federal government, and that's probably the most important thing it does," the 28-year-old Sioux said.

It remains to be seen whether the act can be employed in various areas of conflict or inadvertent abuse.

Giant Cannibals in Nevada

By Charles Hillinger
Times-Post Service

Lovelock, Nevada

DID a MYSTERIOUS tribe of giant red-headed cannibals roam the hills of Nevada as recently as the 19th Century?

Piute Indians living in this small northwestern Nevada town are certain they did. Scores of red-haired mummies and thousands of artifacts have been discovered in a smoke-coated cave 22 miles southwest of Lovelock during the last 60 years.

But anthropologists and archeologists are not sure who the strange giants were or where they came from.

RECENT CARBON 14 dating tests, however, show that Lovelock cave was occupied at various times as early as 2000 to 3000 BC and as late as 1800 to 1850.

When James H. Hart and David Pugh uncovered the first of the 6½ to 7-feet-tall mummies while mining bat guano in the cave in 1912, local Indians were not surprised.

"Piutes around these places had been talking about that cave for years before those two men found it," said Annie Bill, 68, a lifelong resident of the Lovelock Piute Indian colony.

Annie Bill's aunt, Sarah Winnemucca Hopkins, described the cave and the peculiar tribe of huge red-headed Indians that took refuge in it in her book "Life Among the Piutes," published in 1883.

Mrs. Hopkins reported that the last of the Giants was exterminated by her people earlier in the 19th Century. "A small tribe of barbarians used to waylay my people and kill and eat them," wrote the daughter of old Winnemucca, a Piute chief after whom the town of Winnemucca, Nev., was named.

"THEY WOULD DIG large holes in our trails at night. Our people would fall into these holes. That tribe would even eat their own dead. Yes, they would even come and dig up our dead after they were buried, and would carry them off and eat them. The Piutes call the redheads people eaters."

Mrs. Hopkins said her people described the cannibals as very brave: "When they were fighting they would jump up in the air after the arrows that went over their heads, and shoot the same arrows back again."

She said the red-headed Indians numbered about 2600 when the Piutes began fighting a three-year war with them. "Toward the end of the war those that were left went into a cave. My people watched at the mouth of the cave and would kill them as they came out to get food and water," she said.

"My people asked them if they would be like us and not eat people like coyotes. But they would not give up. My people gathered wood and began to fill up the mouth of the cave. At last my people set it on fire; at the same time they cried out to them: 'Will you give up, be like men, and not eat people like beasts? Say quick — we will put out the fire.'

"BUT NO ANSWER CAME. In 10 days some of my people went back to see if the fire had gone out. They came back to my great-grandfather and told him they must all be dead. All members of the tribe who were exterminated had red hair. I have some of their hair which has been handed down father to son. I have a dress which has been in our family a great many years, trimmed with this reddish hair."

Clarence (Pike) Stoker, 69, a native of Lovelock and curator of Stoker's Museum in Winnemucca, has on exhibit a skull of one of the giants as well as baskets, nets, duck decoys, arrowheads and other artifacts from the Lovelock cave.

Stoker, who has participated in a number of scientific excavations in the cave, believes that if the mummies were not Indians, they may well have been Egyptians. "It's very possible they were descendants of Egyptians who sailed to America hundreds of years ago," he theorizes.

"THEY WERE AN exceptionally intelligent group of people," said Stoker, as he pointed out a calendar stone taken from the cave — a stone marked with 52 dots on the inside, 365 dots on the outside. "Didn't Thor Heyerdahl just prove the possibility that Egyptians may have sailed to America as long as 4000 years ago on reed rafts?"

During the last 60 years scientific parties from the University of California at Berkeley have uncovered tons of artifacts and scores of mummies from the cave.

Nessie is alive and well —on new film

By MIKE GLACKEN

LUTON EVENING POST - ENGLAND
FEB. 7, 1979****

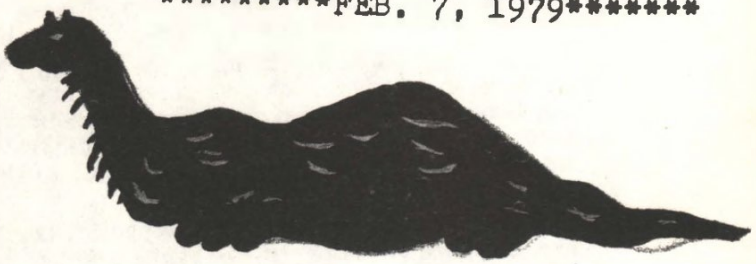
RAF CONFIRMS COUPLE'S HOME MOVIE SCOOP

SCEPTICS who don't believe in the Loch Ness legend had a monster surprise when BBC TV showed a film of Nessie shot by a Bedfordshire couple.

Viewers saw the first known movie film of what was claimed to be the head and neck of a creature looking round and then submerging three times in the waters of the loch.



The half roll of film was shot by 27-year-old Mrs Gwen Smith, of Hinton Walk, Houghton Regis, who with her husband Peter, a 32-year-old Dunstable accountant, spent two weeks at the loch looking for the monster in August, 1977.

The legendary Nessie appeared only two days after they arrived. The couple said they were by the lochside with their son Gary, then aged 20 months when a large head on a six foot long neck emerged from the water 500 feet away.

Already confirmed believers in the monster, Gwen and Peter were amazed and shocked at first. Then Gwen hurriedly started her 8mm camera rolling while Peter trained his binoculars on the scene.

She said: "A black pillar shape came out of the water and then sank below the surface again."

Then came the biggest shock of all, a young man rowed a boat out to where the monster was last seen and suddenly the head reared out of the water again.

"This was such a shock that I didn't film it.

"The animal came within a few feet of this lad and he rowed like mad for the shore," said Gwen.

Peter said: "The big rectangular head was at right angles to the neck and it was more or less in silhouette and so we could not see eyes or ears.

"I would roughly compare it to a prehistoric animal but the head seemed mammalian rather than reptilian.

"There is no possibility that it was something inanimate put there for our benefit.

Watchers

"The impression it gave was that it was just as surprised as the oarsman and it submerged much quicker than before as though making a tactical withdrawal."

The Smiths did not announce their film publicly because they say they did not want to sensationalise the issue.

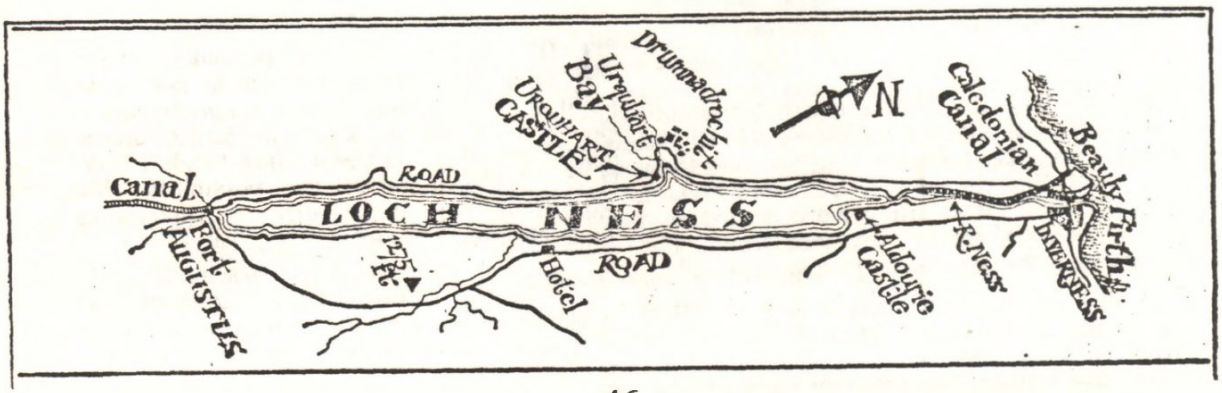
But keen Loch Ness watchers have been very interested to see it and it has been investigated by the RAF who decided that the movement of the neck shows that there must have been a heavy object under the water.

Peter thinks that the hard core of evidence for the existence of a monster cannot be denied.

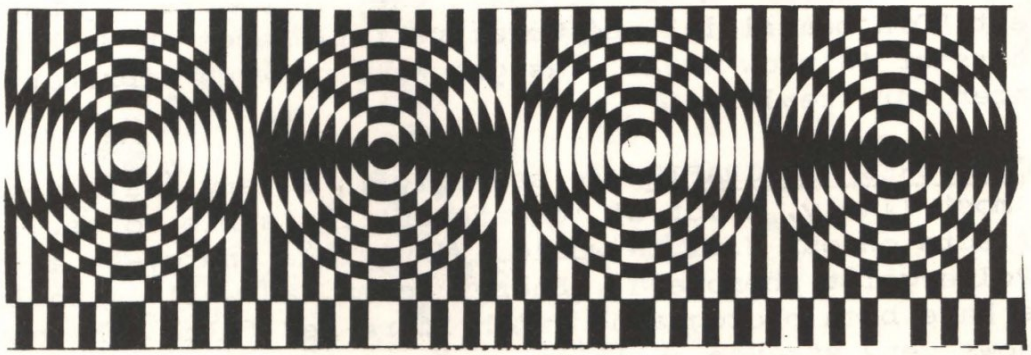
He said: "The attitude of the establishment seems to be that it is some sort of a joke which is incredible if you take the trouble to study the evidence.

"To anyone who says that we were fooled I can only say that the camera saw exactly what we saw and the proof is there."

Gwen said: "We shall be going up there again this August, and I shall be taking my camera, but I won't go out in a boat myself after seeing that thing coming out of the water."



IN SEARCH OF THE PHANTOM PHENOMENON
by TAL LEVESQUE: Consultant: The New Atlanteans.
A Special Report to our readers.....



We seem to be wandering through the UNknown, in a maze of Meaningful Co - incidences. Here and there, in the confusion, we catch a glimpse of the pattern. The reports of strange and unusual events seem related ... Occurring in clusters, in the same areas and many times at cyclic intervals. This includes Fortean and Bigfoot sightings, glowing aerial forms and psychic events. The earth is literally alive with electrical vibrations --- which can be easily manipulated. We have entered an era of Energy Pollution. The effects of electromagnetic pollution are causing changes in the electrical current flow of the planet. This changes the ION balance of the atmosphere and this affects both human and animal behavior. The adverse effects include breakdowns in many Biological functions, especially in the area of the brain. Studies are currently in progress which indicate that Solar, Lunar and Planetary influences coincide with atmospheric electricity, bizarre weather, earthquakes, UFO appearances, etc. EVERYTHING IS RELATED.

As you sit there reading this your bioelectric grey-matter computer (brain) is being hampered by outside influences... thus limiting your Consciousness potential. It is possible to suitably code "ELF" radiations to elicit a synchronous response in the Neuron-synaptic complex. The brain will trigger motor functions which, in turn, cuase man or animal to execute a programmed act. Electronic telepathy exists.

UFO witnesses have reported 'hearing' buzzing, clicking or hissing sounds described as being within their heads. When low-level energy was directed at test subjects, they reported 'hearing' these same sounds. Psycho - physiological studies have developed microwave brain control systems. Low power oscillators can even induce hallucinations in individuals. Many UFO witnesses emerged from the ordeal in a state of shock, temporarily blinded or with 'skin burns', nausea, nightmares and severe disorientation. These same effects are possible from exposure to extremely low frequency fields, which can be created both naturally and artificially.

COULD PART OF THE PHENOMENON REALLY BE INTERDIMENSIONAL CRAFT?

The Multi-Dimensional exponents speak of other Vibrational Time-Space - existences. Some relate that beings existing in other frequency environments may even dwell within this planet and the Moons' interior. These Ultraterrestrials have a vested interest in this planet. The sheer volume of the Phontom Phenomena indicates that 'they' are here in massive numbers. They manifest BOTH beneficial and Negative influences on Mankind. Using Energy Vectors or 'Window Areas', as gateways between vibratory levels - they can enter our 'reality'.

INVISIBLE CREATURES AND CRAFT? We see only in a very small spectrum... There are, most likely, a lot of 'creatures' invisible to us... yet... they can have effects on our Visible world. Invisible energy-forms may be behind some Poltergeist phenomena. Energy forms, as well as indigenous In - telligences have been photographed with infra-red film. The photographic evidence shows very strange entities, more or less transparent. Other photos show large amoeba-like forms... also... disc - shapes, usually accompanied by smaller 'sphere-shaped' objects. Even aero-form shapes that would be easily mistaken as helicopters without rotary blades! (See photo "Bravo #1, in THE COSMIC PULSE OF LIFE, by Trevor James Constable.)

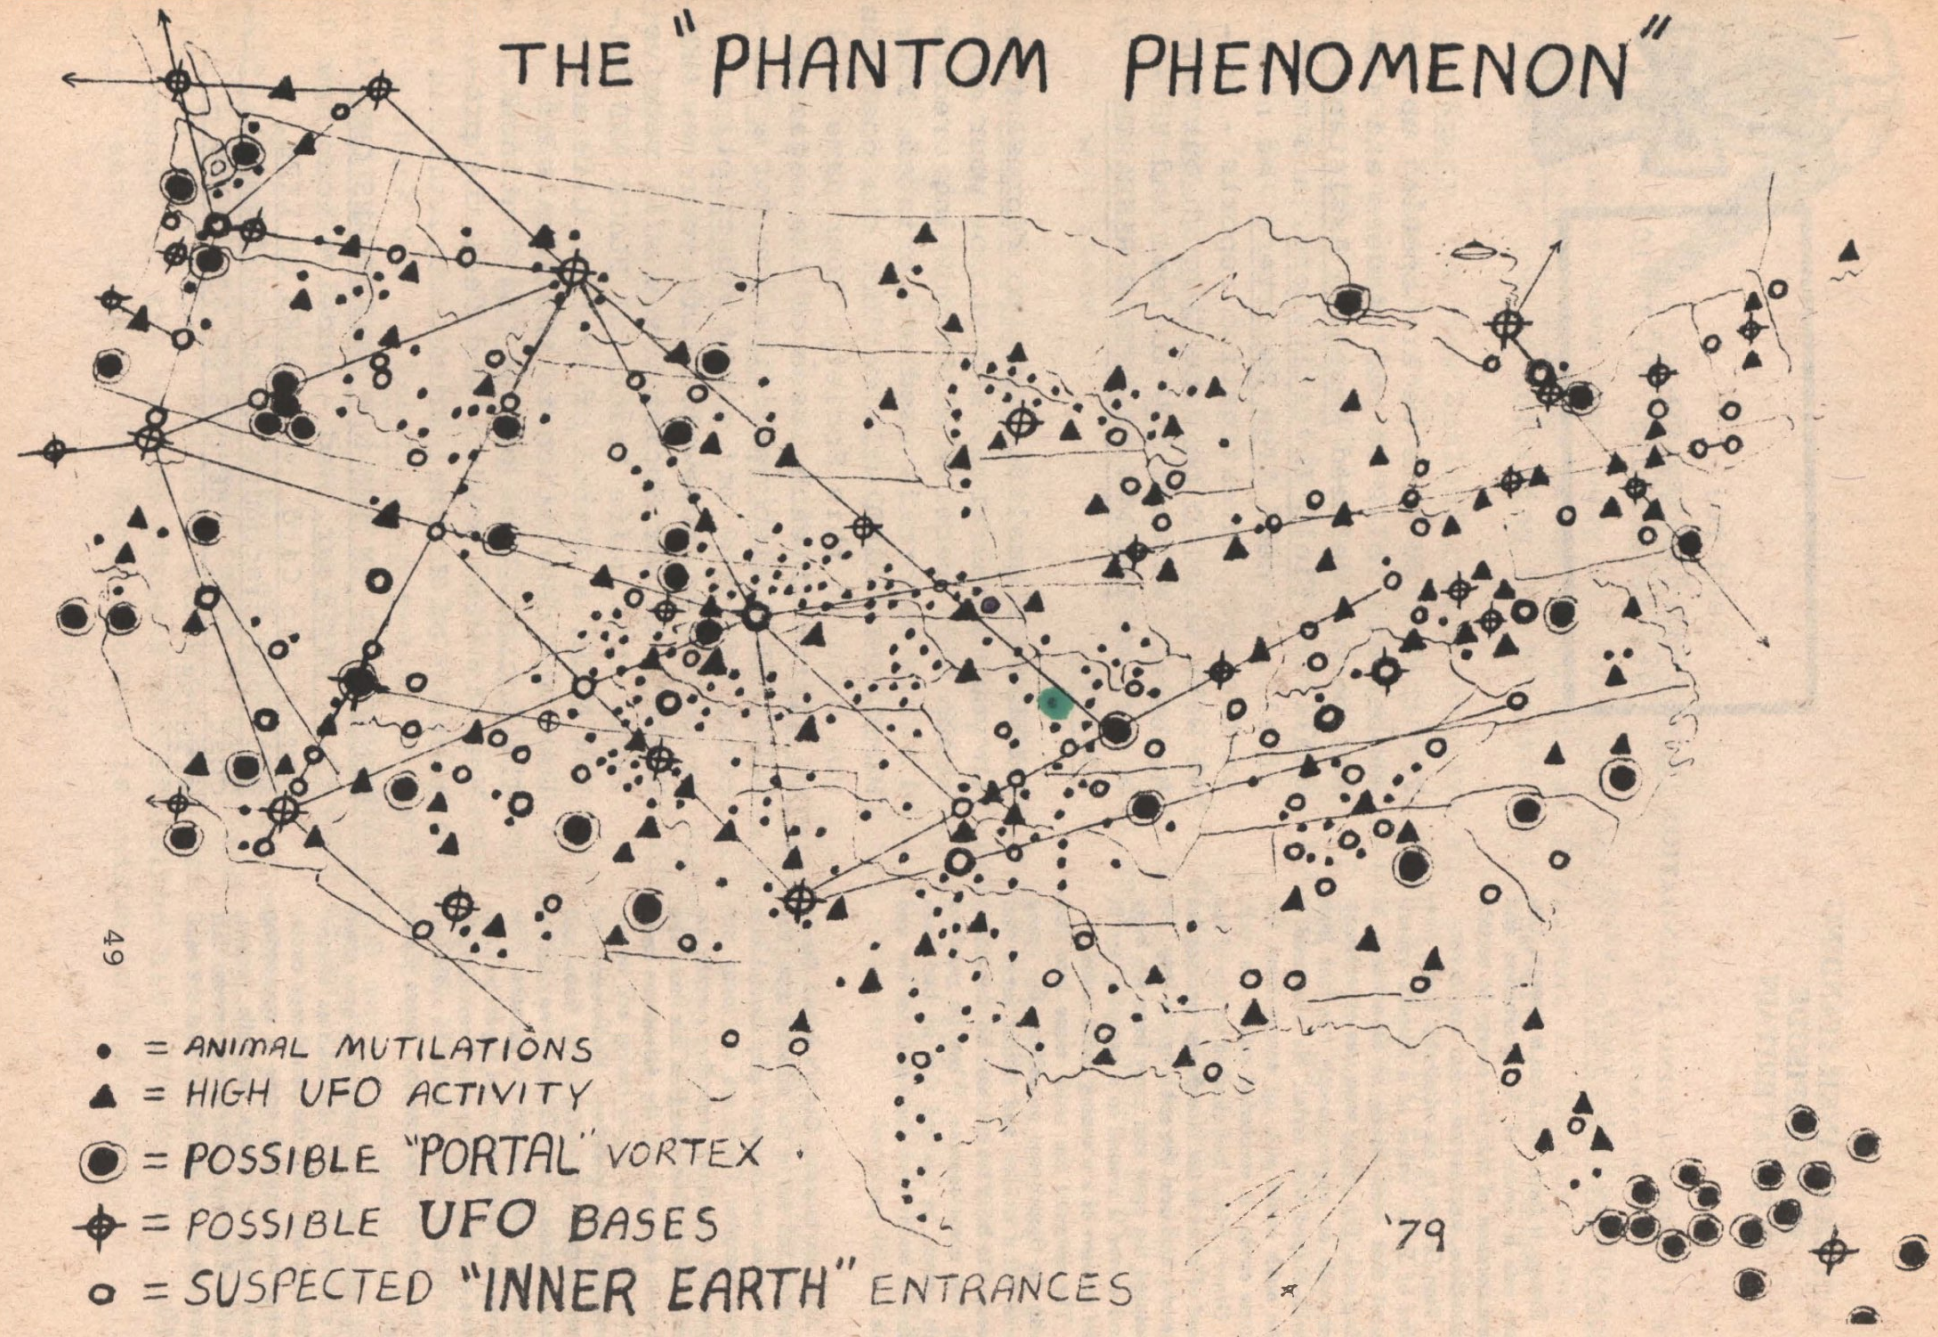
THE "PHANTOM PHENOMENON"



A CURIOUS ANKH-STANDING STONES EPISODE IN GREAT BRITAIN

LIFE UNDERSTANDING FOUNDATION
741 ROSARITA LANE
SANTA BARBARA, CALIF. 93105

Energy is form and form is energy. Unless one is aware of the production and management of this free energy in certain situations, unexpected events may occur.

Tom Graves in his admirable book, Needles of Stone, writes of a friend's experiment that went wrong at Stonehenge in England. The young man was experimenting with an approximately two-foot high ankh-shaped wire aerial. He wondered if the ankh could pick up energy from the stone circle. It succeeded rather too well.

Grave's friend had climbed on top of the roof of a car in the Stonehenge parking lot nearby and held the ankh by the loop. He pointed the open end away from his body and moved it around in a sweeping arc in the manner of a scanning radar aerial.

The moment the ankh came into line with the Stonehenge monoliths, the young man felt a sudden and violent surge that seemed to burn his arm and he momentarily lost consciousness. When he regained his senses, he realized that he had been thrown bodily from the top of the car and his arm felt paralyzed.

After six months, Grave's friend finally regained full use of the afflicted arm. For this reason, one shouldn't play around with these energies. There are too many unanswered questions regarding certain aspects of form (free)-energy at this time. The ancients and probably the Atlanteans knew about this type of higher energy and its uncontrolled manipulation. Rediscovery of these subtle but powerful energy forms and devices seems to be unfolding at an accelerated rate during the last two decades. Free energy may have a universal appeal in these times of energy shortages and curtailment, but a word of caution should be sufficient to the unwary experimenter. James Hamnett, Great Britain.

(Ed. note: Could the automobile have acted as a cavity resonator, the ankh an electro-activator, and could the Stonehenge circle, having been erected upon a connecting nodal point of earth's magnetic vectors, produced the higher life energy current that threw the young man down from the rooftop?)

Tunnel monster ?

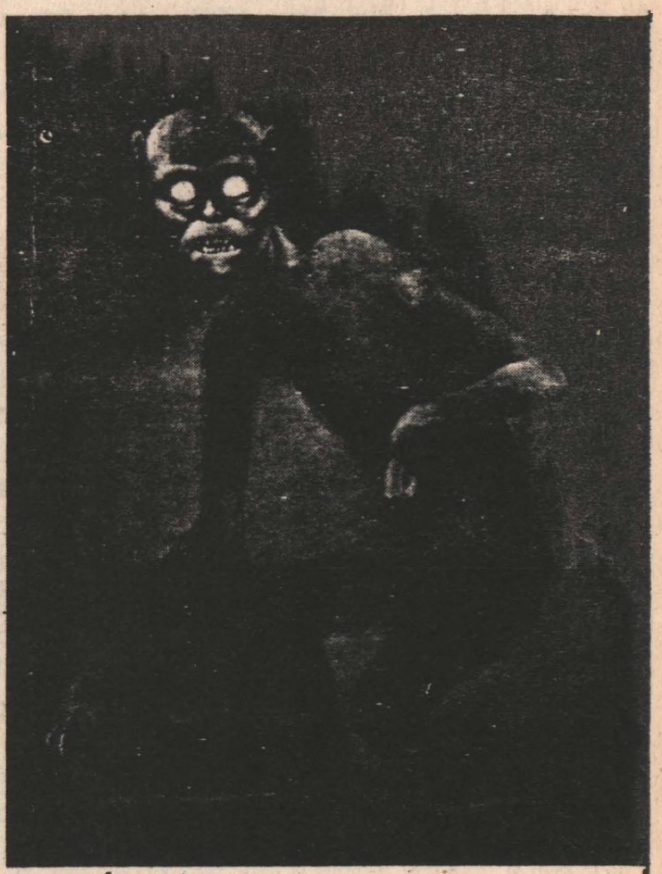
"If I tell you what I saw, people will think I was drunk or crazy, they'll never believe me."

On a summer day last August, Ernest, 51, firmly believes he saw some kind of a "creature" while crawling into a small cave near his Parliament Street apartment looking for a kitten... But, then about 10 feet inside he says he saw a living creature (nightmare) he will never forget. "It was pitch black in there... I saw it with my flashlight. The eyes were orange and red, slanted, it was long and thin, almost like a monkey... three feet long, weighing maybe 30 pounds with slate-grey fur."

He is convinced the thing spoke to him... "I'll never forget it," he said. "It said 'Go away, go away' in a hissing voice. Then it took off down a long tunnel off to the side... I got out of there as fast as I could. I was shaking"...

"I'll never forget it," he said. "It said 'Go away, go away,' in a hissing voice. Then it took off down a long tunnel off to the side...I got out of there as fast as I could. I was shaking with fear."



ARTIST'S rendering of cave "creature."

... Ernest believes the tunnel leads to the sewer system that runs beneath Metro and that the entrance beneath his apartment may have been only an access point used by the creature to the surface... Metro's sewer department agreed to inspect the tunnel since it could be a safety hazard. Children might try to enter it...

SOUTH MIDDLESEX

DAILY NEWS -

By MIKE CZECZOT
Of The News Staff

DOVER — Scotland has its "Nessie" and the Midwest has its "Bigfoot," but the South Middlesex area may have at its doorstep something which may put some credence behind Charlie Brown's dreams of "the Great Pumpkin," though it's origin may be other than good ol' Mother Earth.

The "it" has been described as between three and a half and four feet tall; with orange, shark-like skin; glowing eyes in a watermelon-shaped head, which lacks a mouth, ears and nose, and whose suction-like feet "mold" themselves to the surface.

Unfortunately, "it" does not yet have a name, since the four residents of this affluent community who've seen "it" haven't gotten close enough to ask, and no photographs are yet available, but one witness was able to recapture "its" likeness on paper (right)

That rendering was corroborated by a second, less professional, sketch by another witness, and the remaining two say "that's it."

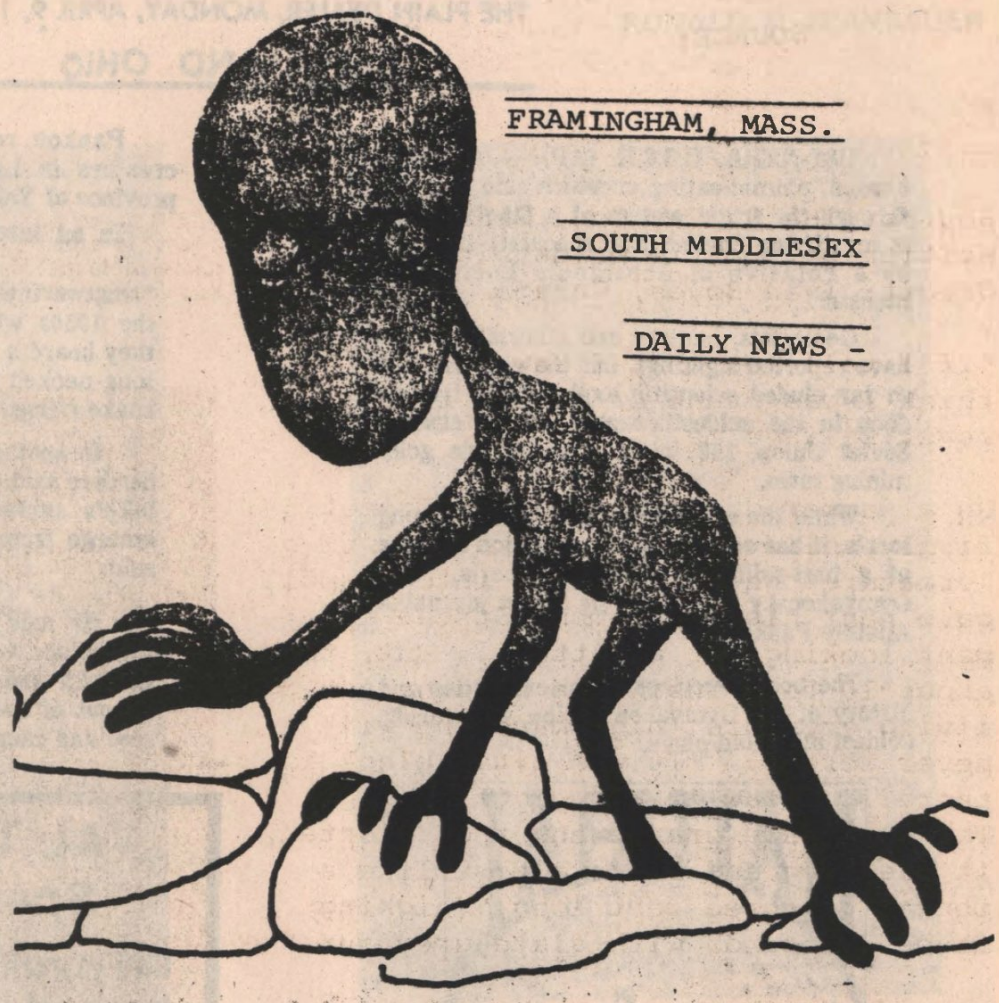
But, is "it" real, and, if so, what is "it," and where is "it" from?

"Good question," say local police. "At first, I was going to ask one of the witnesses to give me whatever it was he was smoking," the officer said, "but I know all four, and I know that, to all of us, they're very reputable people.

According to police, "it" was first seen at 10:30 p.m. on April 21, just off Farm Street near a bridge, by a high school student who was driving in the area.

The second sighting was later that night, at about 12:30 a.m. on Miller Hill Road, this time by a 25-year-old man and a friend, who were walking in the area at the time.

The third—and final, at least as far as police know—was the following night, at about midnight, just off Springdale Road, as reported by an adult motorist.



WHAT IS "IT"? — This is a sketch done by one of four Dover residents who recently told police there that they sighted "it" in three different sections of town more than three weeks ago. Is "it" a hoax, or is there something to "it" after all?

"We've also received some prank calls," the police dispatcher said Saturday. "One resident called and said that the phosphorescent glow from the creature's wheelbarrow was keeping him awake."

If "it" is for real, then how did "it" get here?

"There is an unconfirmed report of a UFO sighting in Medfield the day before (April 20)," according to Loren Coleman of Needham, the author of two books on the subject.

"I heard about this whole thing while at the Country Store one day," he said. "I've interviewed all four witnesses separately, and I think there's a lot to what they say. I don't think they're making this whole thing up."

"All of the witnesses told me they saw the thing 'walking' on a stone wall; I say 'walking' only because I can't think of another term to describe its movement. 'It' appeared to mold its feet to the rocks.

"As one of the witnesses' headlights hit the thing, its head turned very slowly in the direction of the light, and its eyes were glowing. They were either orange or green.

"The head was watermelon-shaped, but there were no ears, mouth or nose. Its skin was orange, and it was like that of a shark, or like wet sandpaper," Coleman said, although he added that no one got close enough to touch it.

"I can't really connect this to any similar incident in this area, or in the state," he said, "but there was a similar sighting in September 1955 in Hopkinsville, Ky."

He would not speculate where "it" may be from, or why "it" may have chosen Dover, Massachusetts, as a landing site.

critter mystifies Soviets

UST-NERA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A snake-headed, animal-eating creature said to glide through the frigid waters of a Siberian lake is mystifying Soviets who speculate it might be a relative of Scotland's Loch Ness monster.

Geologists, hunters and Siberian natives have reported sightings, but the creature has so far eluded scientific explorers in its lair deep in the coldest reaches of the eastern Soviet Union, 150 miles south of this gold-mining town.

While the creature is well-known among locals, it has come to wider attention because of a best-selling book about Siberia, "The Oymyakonsky Meridian," by Soviet journalist Anatoly Pankov.

The book describes the peculiarities and history of the Oymyakon region, the world's coldest inhabited place.

Pankov reports many sightings of a creature in Lake Labinkir in the Siberian province of Yakutia.

In an interview, Pankov said the first "trustworthy" sighting of the creature was in the 1950s when a group of geologists said they heard a "big splashing noise" and saw a long-necked creature with the head of a snake rising out of the murky lake's surface.

In another incident at Labinkir, reindeer herders said they saw a bird flying along the lake's surface and a giant pair of jaws emerge from the water "to snap it up," he said.

He said the most spectacular sighting took place when a hunter shot a goose near Labinkir and sent his dog to fetch it. Suddenly, out of the depths of the lake, a creature rose and caught the goose and then the dog.

The object in these photos was a golden yellow on the top shading to a dark yellow and orange color near the bottom rim. The underside of the rim was an orange-red.. It moved from east to west in a steady motion without changing altitude or pace. The witness could hear a soft humming sound coming from it. It appeared perfectly smoothe and seamless in appearance. The color, sound and motion did not change throughout the minute and a half sighting. Only 2 pictures were taken.

THE WEE ONES!

by Cosette Willoughby

The following is an account of strange experiences which led to rather unusual conclusions. Perhaps the readers can add to this mystery...

I am a rock hound and this means I tramp the hills around where I live. For years I have sensed that I have been followed by something that would have to be a master at canouflage to keep so hidden. Even though I could not see what it was, my other senses were acute, so I began to pay more attention. Many times I heard a little echo-like warbly sound and this, I deducted, was their (whatever they may be) spoken language. Many times I smelled the pungent odor of mushrooms, as this always happened when I felt particularly near them. They seemed (after awhile) to have gotten uded to seeing me out in the hills, and one day I had wandered a little farther into the low hills than usual. As I climbed one of the hills I found at the top two holes about two feet across. Across the top of these were laid twigs. The odd thing about the twigs was that they were interwoven in a lattice-work resembling woven cloth. I didn't touch them as I had a strange feeling to to do so. When I next went out there I could not find that place again.

... All afternoon I could hear the little warbly sounds following me around... With that I decided to attempt to bring whatever it was out in the open. I went to a tobacco shop and bought some real sweet smelling tobacco. I brought it home and divided it up into a lot of little plastic bags and when I next went out... I hung four of the little bags on the bushes and left them there. The next time that I went back the bags were gone... Then I decided that the tobacco smelled so good that they might think it was something to eat, and on eating it, it might make them sick. So I sat down by the bush and said: "You are not supposed to eat the tobacco, you should smoke it like the Indians did."... When I next went out to the bush the two bags of tobacco were gone. Also that day I wandered into a new area... In a little canyon against a cliff I found a deep hole that slanted down. I had some candy with me and thew a handfull into the hole. As I walked away from the hole I began to hear the sweet little warbly sound! They had found the candy and were pleased!

... I began taking them all kinds of things such as candy, bread, honey, chili-brick, peanuts... After taking a big bag of goodies to the hole and leaving I remember hearing a joyful whooping, yelling and laughing. They were really happy. Each time I would carefully examine the area for the tracks of animals or humans. All I find are my own footprints and a perfect 5-toed bare footprint less than three inches long! When I went to the hole one day - it was closed up! But, before that day I had seen two little fellows watching me from the top of the cliff. What I saw of them would make them about 14 inches tall. One was bald and very white skinned with a pointed head. The other was also white skinned with tousled black hair...

It was about two weeks before I had a chance to get back out there.... That day I had a big bag of peanuts in the shell with me and I took it to the toabcco-bag bush. I pinned the plastic bag to the bush and the next time I went there they had carefully torn a small hole in the side of the bag, and had worked each peanut through the hole leaving the bag intact. The bag had been high enough in the bush to be out of the reach of small animals and the weight of birds would have broken the whole bag loose... So, the little fellows left the bag there for future goodies! One day I put 4 or 5 little bars of candy into the bag and then went back to the car. On impulse I decided to go back to within sight of the bag... I saw 6 of the little fellows! These were smaller than the two I had seen previously and they were about 6 or 8 inches tall. They stood and ran on their hind legs and they were bustling around trying to decide what to do before the fellows down below found out... I have given them apples and they eat the apple and put the cores where I can find them. I finally gave them oranges which they peel before eating and leave the peels in a neat pile... There are many things I have found out... At times they make a whirring bird-call, so I decided to try making it in the hopes of luring them to me but when I made the call it got so quiet and with this I found that call was their danger signal. ... I took oranges one by one and threw them into the hole and after the first one I threw in I heard a little yelp. So I said "Sorry, look out down below." After I had thrown in all the things, I suddenly looked back and in a little alcove above the hole I saw something leap across and I saw a tawny colored long skinny arm. I got the impression of a monkey-like thing. Whatever it was, it was as big as I am.

My theory is that there are several sizes of them and I talk and sing to them all the time. I know they listen but I don't know if they understand. I have also written notes to them which they have taken. I even gave them an article that I clipped out of the Readers Digest telling about Gnomes. I have also given them clothing and I crochetted a little cap for the little bald-headed one. But, they don't seem to care for clothes as the ones I saw didn't wear any that I could see. Well, that is my story or least as much of it that I can put together....

HOW TO GIVE YOURSELF A "FACELIFT" AT HOME WITHOUT SURGERY!

You can do quite a bit of facelifting in the privacy of your own home without ever using a scapel! The firmness and quality of the facial skin is determined by underlying muscles which support it. Those "bags" under your eyes are merely signs of flabby muscles or "little pot bellies" of the face. Do the eye squeezing exercises (illustrated on pages 113 and 127) and they should soon vanish - if they aren't the result of some organic disease.

A double chin sometimes is seen on otherwise slender individuals who exercise the rest of their body. A double chin doesn't add to anybody's facial presentation. Do the exercises on pages 117 and 119 a few minutes daily and a double chin may no longer be your problem!

Droopy flesh and puffy skin around eyes, neck and jowls, are indications you need the exercises in this section.

YOUR FACE OFTEN TELLS YOUR AGE . . . IF YOU LET IT! So start TODAY on your FACE-LIFTING Program. TOMORROW you'll be glad you did!

CARDIAC REHABILITATION THROUGH EXERCISE

Dr. Paul Dudley White, the world-famous heart specialist, once told a House Appropriations Subcommittee, "Coronary thrombosis is an epidemic. Wise exercise is one remedy." Dr. Richard T. Smith, Director of the Department of Rheumatology of Pennsylvania Hospital, said: "The heart is a muscle and must have maintainance of tone. It is not the athletic heart that kills us, but lack of it."

The purpose of the exercises for patients with heart ailments is to strengthen the heart muscles, improve circulation, aid elimination, normalize the metabolism, oxidize excess fat, reduce cholesterol level of the blood and improve the general health. Exercises for cardiac patients should be carefully correlated with your doctor.

AVOIDING BACKACHE WITH EXERCISE

A generation ago after a full day's work, a man needed to rest. Today, after a full day's work, a man needs to exercise! It's hard to convince a laboring man he needs exercises after eight hours on the job. But over 80 percent of low back pain is due to muscular deficiency resulting from lack of proper physical activity. Pain in the back frequently begins because the muscles do not support the underlying vertebrae joints.

If you want to avoid backaches, or if you already have problems with your back, be sure to read pages 39 to 53.

ARTHRITIS

Exercise is beneficial for most arthritic patients to make joints and glands function more efficiently. For instance, exercise stimulates the adrenal glands into producing large amounts of cortisone. One must keep in mind stage of the disease, degree of pain, extent of activity present in soft tissues about the joints, and finally type and degree of deformity. Be sure to read pages 24 to 31 carefully.

PROSTATE DISORDERS

At least 60 percent of all civilized men over 50 years of age can expect to experience at least some degree of prostate troubles. Lack of proper exercise in the pelvic area is known to be part of the cause. Proper exercise can also be part of the solution.

It is a well known fact for example, that pet dogs living in apartment houses, and not getting sufficient exercise have a high incidence of prostate trouble, while prostate disease is almost unknown in working dogs, farm dogs, Eskimo dogs, sheep dogs, and so on. MEN, BE SURE NOT TO MISS pages 222 to 234.

CONSTIPATION

"More people suffer from constipation than any other ailment; and the same lack of common sense is often used today in treating constipation as has been used for centuries," writes Dr. Flatto. "One of the most important reasons for exercise is that it insures proper elimination of waste from the body. Proper exercise also strengthens internal muscles which hold all the vital organs in place, making it possible for the organs to perform their essential duties more efficiently." See pages 65 to 72.

IMPOTENCY

Proper exercise, by eliminating congestion, improving circulation, and bringing a fresh supply of blood into the genital area helps overcome premature impotency. See pages 180 thru 187.

EXERCISES TO IMPROVE THE SEXUAL EFFICIENCY OF WOMEN

One of the great modern tragedies resulting from lack of proper exercise, is the loss of sensation during sexual relations due to stretching of the perineal and vaginal muscles during childbirth. In the process of childbirth, the vaginal walls and muscles are stretched as much as a foot in order to permit the baby's entire body to pass through. Untold human misery due to loss of interest in the sex act stems from a state of affairs where the vaginal muscles can no longer perform properly.

Be sure not to miss pages 199 to 205, aimed at restoring muscular control to the female genitals.

VARICOSE VEINS

"If I were asked to select a disease for which lack of proper exercise can be blamed as a leading factor, I would undoubtedly nominate varicose veins as my candidate for the dubious distinction," says Dr. Flatto. "Not only does proper exercise often prevent the disease from occurring in the first place, but it may very well correct the condition if it has not progressed too far." Read pages 240 to 250.

There are over 300 actual photographs! It offers the best kind of preventive medicine: It's natural, free, and it works!
