H.P.B. Theosophical School

ENTIRELY INDEPENDENT, Self-supporting body of Individual Workers united with the state of the serve HUMANITY. state

OUR name "Theosophical" is derived from the word "THEO-SOPHY," which is "the body of truths which form the basis of all religions and which cannot be claimed as the exclusive possession of any.

The aims of the H.P.B. THEOSOPHICAL SCHOOL are to organise Schools, Libraries, Study Classes, Lectures, Public and Drawing-room Meetings, maintain a Lecturers' Bureau, etc.

We hold Correspondence Classes on Theosophy, Comparative Religion, Psychical Research and other Higher Thought Subjects.

We are pleased to announce that, sooner than we anticipated, we will be able to open the doors of the H.P.B. RESIDENTIAL CLUB (West End, London), where those who are interested in the study of the above-mentioned subjects, and who desire to live on a sound Vegetarian or Fruitarian Diet, will find a pleasant comfortable home where they will live among people with similar interests and be surrounded with a current of thought helpful to their studies.

The H.P.B. RESIDENTIAL CLUB will have, besides the usual Club Rooms, a Lecture Room, where Public and Private Lectures will be delivered.

The H.P.B. RESIDENTIAL CLUB will be open for Ladies and Gentlemen equally; early applications with the USUAL REFER-ENCES from would-be residents will be helpful to the Management.

Correspondence and inquiries are invited and should be addressed to the President, 71, Clements Inn, Strand, W.C.

THE NEWER SPIRITUALISM. By FRANK PODMORE.

Demy Svo, 8s. 6d. net. (Inland postage, 5d.)

In this book Mr. Podmore essays to give a complete account of the recent evidence published by the Society for Psychical Research and its bearing upon the hypothesis of a life after death. In the first section of the book the physical phenomena of Eusapia Palladino, the Italian medium, are discussed, and the methods of deception apparently practised are illustrated from the past history of Spiritualism. The second and longer section of the book gives a clear and sympathetic sketch of the messages received through trance and automatic writing purporting to proceed from the spirits of the dead. Mr. Podmore points out the objections to the theory; the constant association of the trance with fraudulent physical phenomena, and the immense mass of "make believe" in which these messages are embedded. Whilst reluctant to pronounce definitely against the hypothesis of spirit communication, he shows that the recent evidence, the most striking yet obtained, in any case throws new light on the structure of the human mind and on possible extensions of human faculty. The book is essential to those who wish to understand the present position of psychical research.

The Daily News says:—"It is only by a thoroughly sane, coherent statement of the problem such as Mr. Podmore has made, that we can hope to get at those facts which are the basis of belief."

POEMS OF T. E. BROWN (Golden Treasury Series). Selected and Arranged with an Introduction and Notes by H. F. B. and H. G. D. London: Macmillan & Co., Ltd., St. Martin's Street. Price 28, 6d net.

THOMAS EDWARD BROWN, the Manx poet, is fittingly honoured by the inclusion in this series of a selection of his works, but to those on the alert for admirable verse his poetry has long been known and valued. He possessed a vigorous mind and deep emotions, together with a strong religious instinct, turning in the direction of mysticism. Above all, he had an abounding vitality and a health of mind which is as refreshing as it is rare. There is a thrill of quiet ecstasy in many of his verses, and in "Praesto" we are reminded of some old master of sacred poetry. George Herbert might be speaking as he meditated in the stillness of his chamber :---

Expecting Him, my door was open wide: Then I looked round If any lack of service might be found, And saw Him at my side: How entered, by what secret stair, I know not, knowing only He was there.

We will conclude this short notice with the following lines :----

When love meets love, breast urged to breast, God interposes, An unacknowledged guest, And leaves a little child among our roses. O, gentle hap ! O, sacred lap ! O, brooding dove ! But when he grows Himself to be a rose, God takes him—where is then our love ? O, where is all our love ?

B. P. O'N.

WIND ALONG THE WASTE. By Maud Annesley. London : Methuen & Co., Ltd. Price 6s. net.

To some natures excitement, danger, adventure, are the very breath of life. Of such a type was Gonda Byrne, the lady artis, who becomes involved in an attack by the Paris apaches. She faces the situation with a nerve and presence of mind that are the indirect means not only of her escaping unhurt, but of her growing enamoured of the strange adventurous life of the Paris hooligan. The vogue just now of idealizing criminal characters is well applied in the present story, and the celebrated artist and her double life, in which she comes under the influence of the leader of one of the most active gangs of apaches, makes absorbing reading; and for those in search of thrilling narrative the book can be heartily recommended. It is but fair, however, to those of our readers seeking novels of distinctly occult interest, to mention that in the story be ore us this is not present. H. J. S.

THE QUEST. A Drama of Deliverance in Seven Scenes and a Vision. By Dorothea Hollins. London: Williams & Norgate, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden. Price 4s. 6d. net.

In these days of restless toil, when men are ever ready to push the weaker ones aside in the mad rush for position, for wealth, and for social pinnacles, it is to be feared that such a quiet and, apparently, uninteresting matter as the writing of verse is of no account. But we are glad that a Society like the Poetical Society, which was recently formed, has determined that the study of poetry shall not be lost sight of-a most laudable object. This Society issues its own Journal, while it emphasizes the fact that there is a reaction in favour of poetry. The Thrush is also a lately established paper, the interests of which are absolutely devoted to poetry. Therefore, knowing something of these matters, and being cognisant of the dearth of public interest in them, we welcome the volume before us with as much warmth as our critical acumen will allow. But when there comes to us a drama replete with a high mindedness, encompassed about with a full knowledge of all the attributes of the true dramatist, intermixed with an understanding of the human side of things, our welcome is more real, more emphatic, and-may we say?-more serious. It was an interesting scheme, not to say a very ambitious one, on the part of the author, to express in verse something of the spirit to be found in the writings of Eucken. No way should be left untrodden in the effort to stir up in the minds of the people a need for a great spiritual awakening. We regret to say there is a great need for this spiritual upheaval. We see it around us day by day ; we see a studied and a stolid indifference to things of greater import; we regretfully have to acknowledge that to the crowd the things of the spirit are uninteresting, of no account, useless. Miss Hollins has, in beautiful language, vitalized her idea with a fervour which produces a concurrent She makes no appeal to mawkish sentienthusiasm in 'our own hearts. mentality, but she yearns to stir the real sentiment within us; she calls upon our higher emotional parts through the great intellectuality of her poems. Technically, she is very capable; philosophically, we find ourselves in much sympathy with her, while ethically, she has captured our approval. Poor work may sometimes be uplifted into a high state of perfection by the deep sincerity in which it is steeped. Miss Hollins has accomplished an excellent work, and achieved a full measure of seriousness and earnestness at the same time.

PARALYSIS, obsessions, tetanus, rheumatism, brain exhaustion, glandular swellings, nervous collapse due to operations and other causes, and weakness of the organs, can only be really cured by scientific magnetization by persons spiritually endowed and trained. Painful and dangerous operations by these means are successfully averted. Operations for appendicitis—the new name for inflammation of the bowels—are rendered totally unnecessary. Certain persons are spiritually endowed who are trained in the knowledge of the magnetism of the human system, its connection with the nervous system and the brain. As this cannot be taught in the hospitals it is not easily accessible to the general public. Mr. W. H. Edwards, whose many remarkable published cures are well authenticated, continues to carry out his treatment by correspondence and personal interview. Aided by clairvoyance of a remarkable capacity, Mr. Edwards can give pronounced aid when all other known means have failed. All kinds of disease can positively be relieved if not wholly cured. Book of the Sacred Magic (The) of Abra-Melin The Mage, as delivered by Abraham the Jew unto his Son Lamech, A.D. 1458. Translated from the Original Hebrew into French, and now rendered into English. From a unique and valuable MS. in the "Bibliothèque de l'Arsenal" at Paris; with copious Notes and Magical Squares of Letters. By L. S. MACGREGOR-MATHERS. 4to, black cloth, Magical Square on side in gold. 1900. (Pub. at 218.) Postage free 10/6

The original work, of which this is a translation, is unique, no other copy being known, although both Bulwer Lytton and Eliphas Levi were well aware of its existence; the former having based part of his description of the sage Rosicrucian une junier on that of Abra-Melin, while the account of the so-called Observatory of Sr Philip Derval in the Strange Story was, to some extent, copied from that of the Magical Oratory and Terrace given in the present work. There are also other interesting points too numerous to be given here in detail. It is felt therefore that by its publication a service is rendered to lovers of rare and curious Books, and to Students of Occultism, by placing within their reach a magical work of so much importance, and one so interestingly associated with the respective authors of Zanoni and of the Dogma and Ritual of Transcendental Magic. The Magical Squares or combinations of letters, placed in a certain manner, are said to possess a peculiar species of automatic intelligent vitality, apart from any of the methods given for their use; and students are recommended to make no use of these whatever unless this higher Divine Knowledge is approached in a frame of mind worthy of it.

THE TRANSIT OF SOULS. By John Henry Willmer. Pp. 302. 6s. London: John Long, Ltd.

MR. WILLMER has drawn materials from the phenomenal side of occultism for a rousing Indian romance. He imagines that a Mohammedan Nawab. whose offer of marriage had been refused by a beautiful Englishwoman, succeeded, by the help of a mischievous fakir, in leaving his carnal abode and becoming the tenant of her fiance's body. The fiance finds himself in the Nawab's body and embarrassed by a beautiful wife, who aspires to motherhood. Each soul uses its new instrument according to its nature, offering clues for the detection of the fakir's crime which the instructed reader feels he would not have ignored. A thrilling duel of wills between a saint of Kashmir and the fakir who effected the transmigration of souls prepares the way for a satisfactory dénouement. Mr. Willmer's characterization, though occasionally unconvincing, is never dull; a misanthropic boy who believed that he was a dog in a previous existence is a picturesque and impressive little person. It must be confessed that the supernatural machinery of the story is somewhat too much in evidence, and that a certain Begum is almost too good to be true. Mine, however, shall not be the hand to rub the bloom off Mr. Willmer's bright sensationalism.

DICTIONARY OF THEOSOPHICAL TERMS. By Powis Hoult. London: Theosophical Publishing Society, 161, New Bond Street, W. 5s. net.

It is with regret that the publishers of this excellent Theosophical Dictionary notify it as a posthumous work, the author having died shortly after the completion of the manuscript. Mr. Hoult has identified himself so thoroughly with the Theosophical movement as to render his knowledge of its terminology a matter of intimacy. This is fully shown in the present work by the extent of the vocabulary, its polyglot variety, and the liberality of the definitions. It would be impossible to work through this dictionary without gaining a very extensive and correct view of the Theosophical system of thought, and this is a test which can hardly be applied with satisfaction to many of the reputed expositions of the same system where the glossary is lacking. This is a book which reflects great credit on its author, and one that should find a large and ready sale.

Be your own Astrologer and Read your own Nativity.

Before you ask an Astrologer to cast and read your Nativity, try and read it for yourself. You may think this is impossible, nevertheless you can read your own horoscope more cheaply and better than any one else can do it for you if you know how to do it. Let us teach you how to do it for yourself. You can then not only read Your Own Horoscope but the Horoscopes of all the persons you know.—HOW? This way. Send for a copy of "THE KEY TO YOUR OWN NATIVITY," and you will not only be surprised and delighted at its simplicity, but able within one hour to read Your Own Nativity for yourself. The Key to Your Own Nativity. (Delineations.) The most remarkable book ever published. Without seeing a person whose birth-time you know, you may read his, or her, horoscope from a series of numbered delineations, commencing with the ascending sign and the Ruler of the Nativity, etc., etc., going on to the future prospects. No one using this book can deny that Astrology is a science as well as an art. By the use of this book any person of average intelligence may become his own astrologer, and learn more in one hour than from any other in a month.

THE SCIENCE OF SOCIAL ORGANIZATION. By Bhagavân Dâs. London: Theosophical Publishing Society, 161, New Bond Street, W. 3s. 6d. net.

It cannot be denied that of recent years much that is serviceable to the higher needs of human life has been gained from a study of Oriental methods, and it is not beyond the range of possibility that, despite the great difference between the sociology of East and West, some remedial measures may be found from the same source which we can profitably apply to the amelioration of existing evils in modern social life.

To this end Mr. Dâs has given us a very clear and concise statement of the Institutes of Manu. He shows how the ancient system of Indian sociology may be applied to the problems of life, to those of education, of the family, and political life.

The exposition is sustained by quotations in the Sanskrit Text which are here spoken of as "the original," though it is extremely improbable that the Institutes can have escaped revision at the hands of the favoured caste, and Mr. Dâs himself hazards the suggestion that interpolations may have been made. In any event the system compares favourably with any existing system in the West, and notably in the particular that it makes ability the limit of obligation and power the measure of responsibility. In this sense "the Sudra (servant) can do no wrong." Those who profess the knowledge of Government are made culpable for all existing social evils. Our ministers of State should read Manu.

THE LIVING MUMMY. By Ambrose Pratt. Ward, Lock & Co., Ltd. 6s.

A VEIN of psychic interest runs through the whole of this story, spiritualism, clairvoyance, and occult science in its many branches all being pressed into the service of the novelist. In thirty chapters of breezy narrative we are told how Pthames, son of Hap, after lying for centuries embalmed according to his own directions, without removal of the lungs or heart or viscera, is resuscitated for a brief spell to serve the ends of Dr. Belville and Sir Robert Ottley. We are reminded of Wells's "Invisible Man" when we read of how these two scientists discover in the tomb of the mummy a papyrus containing the secret of how to render opaque objects invisible. Each uses his knowledge to further his own designs : Sir Robert Ottley to increase his fortune; Dr. Bellville to accomplish the destruction of his rivals in love. Between them events are always happening fast. From chapter to chapter the reader is carried on with breathless intensity, until the climax is attained : explosion, fire, and sudden death bringing matters to an unanticipated termination, and leaving the hero, Dr. Pinsent, and heroine, Miss May Ottley, finally "happy in their labour and their love."

THE FORGING OF PASSION INTO POWER. By MARY EVEREST BOOLE,

This is a book on the redemption of moral waste. It suggests a system of sewage-farming applied to the moral and educational world; the fertilisation of what is good by the immediate utilisation of what is evil, instead of letting the evil flow out in waste to poison the rivers. Five Shillings net; postage 4d.

London: C. W. DANIEL, 3, Amen Corner, E.C.

PSYCHIC, MAGNETIC and SPIRITUAL HEALING. BY AN EXPERT.

PARALYSIS, obsessions, tetanus, rheumatism, brain exhaustion, glandular swellings, nervous collapse due to operations and other causes, and weakness of the organs, can only be really cured by scientific magnetization by persons spiritually endowed and trained. Painful and dangerous operations by these means are successfully averted. Operations for appendicitis—the new name for inflammation of the bowels—are rendered totally unnecessary. Certain persons are spiritually endowed who are trained in the knowledge of the magnetism of the human system, its connection with the nervous system and the brain. As this cannot be taught in the hospitals it is not easily accessible to the general public. Mr. W. H. Edwards, whose many remarkable published cures are well authenticated, continues to carry out his treatment by correspondence and personal interview. Aided by clairvoyance of a remarkable capacity, Mr. Edwards can give pronounced aid when all other known means have failed. All kinds of disease can positively be relieved if not wholly cured. See Interviews published in Light, St. Paul's Magazine, and The'Gentleman's Journal.

Mr. W. H. Edwards is prepared to deliver lectures in England and abroad on Natural Healing and Spiritual Philosophy in their relations to mundane affairs.

Address: c/o THE OCCULT REVIEW, and No. 6, Wynell Road, Forest Hill, S.E., by application. By correspondence, 5s. per letter prepaid. The full use of the appendix explained.

A SUGGESTIVE INQUIRY INTO The Hermetic Mystery WITH A DISSERTATION

IN THE PRESS.

ON THE

MORE CELEBRATED OF THE ALCHEMICAL PHILOSOPHERS.

BEING AN ATTEMPT TOWARDS THE RECOVERY OF THE ANCIENT EXPERIMENT OF NATURE.

IN FOUR PARTS.

Part I.

AN EXOTERIC VIEW OF THE PROGRESS AND THEORY OF ALCHEMY.

Part II. A MORE ESOTERIC CONSIDERATION OF THE HERMETIC ART AND ITS MYSTERIES.

Part III. CONCERNING THE LAWS AND VITAL CONDITIONS OF THE HERMETIC EXPERIMENT.

> Part IV. THE HERMETIC PRACTICE.

With a Biographical Memoir of the Authors,

BY

ISABELLE DE STEIGER,

Author of "On a Gold Basis," and translator of Eckartshausen's "Cloud upon the Sanctuary."

This important work in Hermetic Science ranks as a classic in Alchemical literature, and its reputation is beyond dispute. The present edition is not a verbatim reprint of the original, but a revised and corrected edition, made from a unique copy containing the author's own corrections, added in the course of the past 50 years. No comment or criticism from the modern point of view will be presented, as any such attempt would be superfluous and entirely contrary to the spirit of the work. A Biographical Memoir will be added by Madame de Steiger, to whom the above-mentioned copy was bequeathed, together with the valuable library of Hermetic books.
