PREFACE.

While there are numerous Concordances of the entire Bible, as such, both of the Authorized and Revised Versions, and in all languages as well as in their original Vernacular, there are none so far as we can learn of the Book of Revelation itself. This is a surprising fact, in that this, the very last book of the Scriptures, has probably more students than any other, and the convenience of such an index for it alone is too manifest to need comment. Why one has never before been prepared, is thus a very remarkable consideration, and in supplying the desideratum now we feel confident that the work is at least opportune and a current necessity.

Because, in so far as in us lies, we in particular are now launched upon a very natural consummation of our own prophetic and historical studies, to wit, the exposition of That Book itself, and the very possession of such an Index as this, will afford those who accompany us a ready means of turning at once to any word or sentence, and at the same time act for them as a sort of Dictionary to the work itself.

The fact is, a great flood of suggestion, which is Light, will be cast upon this mysterious work through a mere reading of its pages, and the comparing of its figures under their several environments. It is a book of symbols and their use is made less intricate by collecting them together so that they may reflect upon each other and excite reflections in the minds of the reader and searcher.

Of course, being of necessity built up of strict quotations of mere headlines and leaders, this work will lend itself with equal value to students of this Book whether they favor the Preterist, Historical or Futurist Schools of Prophecy as applied to the Apocalypse: and is submitted to them all with the confidence that it will be of value, and with the hope that any omissions will be noted and supplied to us before we break down the type, now standing. Finally, we take the Revised Version as the basis of this Index because that Version is now the one in general use, and that is rapidly supplanting the Authorized Version, while as a mere Index it will be much better for our own Version in that it not only sends the reader quite as directly to our own translation, or to that of King James as if based upon them, and at the same time acts as an intermediate comparator to all the Versions.

Prof. Totten and His Ingenious Theory of The Lost Tribes.

New Haven Palladium,
February, 21, 1903.

Professor C. A. L. Totten is a soldier, author, inventor, publisher and hierophant. Hierophant is set down by Webster as "one who teaches the mysteries and duties of religion." He is especially hierophant. He resigned from the army to devote himself to the study of the Bible, its chronology and science. He believes that the Anglo Saxon race is identical with the lost tribes of Israel. His effort to prove this has earned him among thoughtless people the reputation of being a crank. He has brought an amount of erudition to the subject that staggers belief. He has written a series of biblio-historical books, called "The Our Race Series," to prove his position and get others to admit it. He has as many followers scattered over the world as Elijah Dowie has centered in Zion. He is a man that for real ability can give Dowie cards and spades and have some left over.

The critic and the fool may say what he pleases about Totten's lost tribes theory. If he has not established his case he has built up a monument of human ingenuity in the effort to establish it that is more intricate, more ingenious and more wonderful than the Baconian cypher of Ignatius Donnelly was ever conceived to be.

Totten is a soldier, who comes of a family of soldiers, whose son is now a soldier. He was graduated from West Point in 1873 and after rendering distinguished military service from that time to 1890, he became professor of military tactics in Yale. In 1893 he resigned his position to devote himself to his theory of the lost tribes. In West Point he was distinguished in mathematics and dialectics. It was here he became grounded in astronomy and laid the foundation for his future researches. His full name is Charles Adiel Lewis Totten. He was reared in the Episcopal Church, and had his taste for Scriptural study imparted to him by a rector who preached from the Old as much as from the New Testament. For some time he was a disciple of Swedenborg. At the same time he made a study of modern spiritism with other students at West Point, and held seances. He was in danger of complete infidelity when his attention was attracted to a pamphlet entitled "1882, Coming Troubles On the Face of the Earth. The English Speaking People Daniel's Fifth Empire." He has since devoted himself to showing that this is indeed true. All that he has possessed has gone to his work. He has tons of plates, tons of books and charts waiting purchasers and several manuscripts of unprinted books waiting means of publication. He is a wonderful man. If he has made a mistake it is a wonderful mistake.

Professor Totten has been fortunate in his family life. A photograph of which he is especially fond, shows him with three of his children on his lap, Jim, Tephi, and Eda. The picture was taken in 1884 and the children are grown up now. The boy is in the army and may have as distinguished a career as his father has had. Personally Totten is a most earnest and lovable man. He talks with a simple force and directness and is democratic in habit and speech. His friends sometimes call him a rolling stone. He comes at it from the other side and says: "I do not intend to gather any moss, it is the truth I am after."

"The Key that Unlocks the Political Problems of the World"

The foregoing is a new book by M. L. Streator, a Gideonite, and with which many of us are familiar. He is getting out a second edition of his first volume, The Anglo-American Alliance. We would it were his first edition his second volume, but this, we hope, will come in time. He says of the foregoing new book in a personal letter as follows: "I have printed 2,000 copies of a pamphlet, entitled 'Selections from the Promises to the Fathers.' It contains the preface to the second edition and the chapters on 'The Hope of Israel,' 'The Planting of Israel in Britain,' and 'The Land of the Covenant,' besides various Opinions of the Press and the People. It gives fundamental evidence concerning Anglo-Israel truth. It contains 212 pages and retails at only 35c copy. The imprint of Our Race Publishing Co. appears on a thousand copies."

We gladly advertise this book, having examined it. It is an excellent work for distribution and quick digestion and may beget a desire to secure the whole book, and at any rate is a most reasonable piece of Anglo-American effort to the Race on lines that are bound to come in time. To such as have not been able to afford Mr. Streator's more expensive $2.00 work, we can certainly recommend this one as a meeting far more than half way.
