THE IMPLICATIONS OF TRANCE MEDIUMSHIP

Various Types of Spirit Individual, Family and National

1. TYPES MOST SENSITIVE TO SPIRITUALISM: The hearts and minds of children are sensi-Poets tive to the invisible world. who have clearer vision than most of us, have taught that it is little joy to know we are further off from heaven than when we were children.

As children, Santa Claus was real to most of us, and so were the fairies, but as we grew to maturity these sentiments and views gradually faded out, and the invisible world turned out to be less real. What is said of children may be applied analagously to races and nations, for with greater sophistication the world of spirit falls into the background, and is eventually lost.

Backward Races

When this happens the learned become rank materialists, holding on to the doctrine that matter is everything, and finding in material qualities and forces, a complete explanation for all life and exist-ence whatsoever, and denying the existence of the spirit and soul in man. Many of us sing the hymn which contains the prayer:

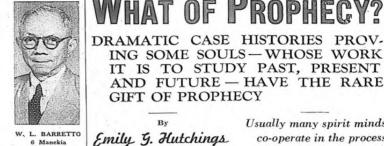

"That I may read with childlike eyes, Truths that are hidden from the wise."

The more worldly wise and sophisticated a race or nation be-comes, the greater tendency for it to lose the vision of the invisible world inhabited by spirits. That there is an advantage in every dis-advantage is a truism. The backward primitive races and nations do lack many of the facilities of the most advanced and cultured nations, but this disadvantage is made up by clearer vision in that they have a better idea of the invisible world of spirit around them.

"Cultured Nations"

Burma is deemed by most people to be backward, as compared to France or Britain, but, on the whole, she is nearer to the world of spirit than some cultured nations. In the same sense, we as grown ups are further off from heaven than when we were chil-dren. The so-called backward and primitive nations accordingly feel the reality of the spirit world around them.

Spiritual healing is a scientific truth and principle. Complete healings, on all planes of those who have lived this principle, attest to this truth.

Sympathy for one who is ill or in an unfavorable state of being is detrimental to both the sympathizer and the one with whom he is sympathizing.

Man seeks his well-being ac-cording to the light of his understanding; and always, as part and parcel of his well-being, man de-sires physical health; for whether he is a millionaire or an unskilled laborer, his world is conditiond by his physical health or lack of it. Few there are who have come to the realization of the mighty truths underlying the words, "As a man thinketh in his heart so is

"Why the Healings?"

Let us take the case histories of two men, Jones and Roberts. Both contract the same disease at the same time. Jones looks to a medi-cal doctor for help; Roberts goes to his practitioner, who has healed him many times. Each finds the relief he sought.

Months, perhaps years, pass. Jones and Roberts become aware of a new ache, a new pain. As be-fore, Jones goes to his doctor, Roberts to his practitioner. Jones follows the path of assuming that there is no explanation for his ache -man is bound to get sick sometimes.

But Roberts begins to wonder why he must go back to his prac-

The Supreme Court of the United States has carefully safeguarded the religious freedom which the Federal Constitution guarantees.

In the case of Watson vs. Jones, (80 U.S. 679) decided in 1871, the Supreme Court wrote:

"The dissenting church of England is not a free church in the sense in which we apply the term in this country, and it was much less free in Lord Eldon's time than now. Laws then existed upon the statute books hampering the free exercise of religious belief and worship in many most oppressive forms, and though Protestant dis-senters were less burdened than Catholics and Jews, there did not exist that full, entire, and practical freedom for all forms of religious belief and practice which lies at

One Sunday afternon, early in reachabler, we had been listening adio program dealing with long-range prognostication, when the telephone rang. The voice at the other end of the line was that of Iona Brandt, to whom I had made a promise when she transferred her Church of Soul Science from East St. Louis to St. Louis, that at some convenient time I would "pinch-hit" for her regular speaker, as I had done frequently for Dr. Will J. Erwood, when he was pastor of the Church of Cos-mic Science, ten years ago.

Soul Projection

Mrs. Brandt had just received word that the visiting medium who was scheduled for the following Sunday would not be able to fill the appointment. Would I please come to the rescue? Without a moment's hesitation I agreed. What would be the theme of my discourse? RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

U. S. Supreme Court wrote, with the concurrence of Mr. Justice Holmes, Mr. Justice Brandeis and Mr. Justice Stone, that "The battle for religious liberty has been fought and won with respect to religious beliefs and practices, which are not in conflict with good order, upon the very ground of the supremacy of conscience within its proper field."

In United States vs. Ballard (322 U.S. 78) it appeared that the defendants were members of a religious sect known as the I AM movement. They were charged with a scheme to defraud by organizing and promoting the movement through the use of the mails, —that literature was sold, funds solicited, and membership in the I AM movement sought "by means of false and fraudulent representations, pretenses and promises." The following are good examples of the representations:

The First Amendment

"That Guy W. Ballard, now deceased, alias St. Germain, Jesus, George Washington, and Godfrey Ray King had been selected . . . by the alleged 'ascended masters', Saint Germain, as a divine messenger; and that the words of ascended masters' . . . would be transmitted to mankind through the medium of said Guy W. Ballard . . . "

False representations regarding healing were also alleged, including that "the three designated persons had the ability and power to cure persons of those diseases normally classified as curable and also of diseases which are ordinarily classified by the medical professions as being 'incurable diseases.''

The indictment charged that such false representations were made with intent to defraud.

They Cannot Prove

The Supreme Court reversed the conviction, and wrote in its opinion: "The laws knows no because

""The laws knows no heresy, and is committed to the support of no dogma, the establishment of no sect."... The First Amendment has a dual aspect. It not only 'forestalls the compulsion by law of the acceptance of any creed or the practice of any form of worship' but also 'safeguards the free exercise of the chosen form of religion."... "Thus the Amendment embraces two concepts,—freedom to believe and freedom to act. The first is absolute, but in the nature of things, the second cannot be."

Freedom of thought, which includes freedom of religious belief, is basic in a society of free men. It embraces the right to maintain theories of life and death and of the hereafter which are rank heresy to followers of orthodox faiths. Heresy trials are foreign to our Constitution. Men may believe what they cannot prove. They may not be put to the proof of their religious doctrines or beliefs. Religious experiences which are as real as life to some may be incomprehensible to others.

Doctrines Subject to Trial

Yet the fact that they may be beyond the ken of mortals does not mean that they can be made suspect before the law. Many take their gospel from the New Testament. But it would hardly be supposed that they could be tried before a jury charged with the duty of determining whether those teachings contained false representations. The miracles of the New Testament, the Divinity of Christ, life after death, the power of prayer are deep in the religious convictions of many.

If one could be sent to jail because a jury in a hostile environment found these teachings false, little indeed would be left of religious freedom. . . . Man's relation to his God was made no concern of the state. He was granted the right to worship as he pleased and to answer to no man for the verity of his religious views.

Polygamy Discussed

The religious views espoused by respondents might seem incredible, if not preposterous, to most people. But if those doctrines are subject to trial before a jury charged with finding their truth or falsity, then the same can be done with the religious beliefs of any sect. When the triers of fact undertake that task, they enter a forbidden domain."

George Reynolds was a Mormon and a resident of the Territory of Utah. He was convicted of a violation of the statute of the United States of 1862 making polygamy a crime. On appeal he assigned as error the rejection by the court of evidence offered by him to show that plural or polygamous marriage was part of his religion. The Supreme Court of Utah affirmed his conviction.. (I Utah 226 and 319.)

He then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and that court wrote, "Polygamy has always been odious among the northern and western nations of Europe and, until the establishment of the Mormon Church, was almost exclusively a feature of the life of Asiatic and African people. At common law the second marriage was always void, and from the earliest history of England polygamy has been treated as an offense against society. . . .

Board of Education

"The only question which remains is, whether those making polygamy a part of their religion are excepted from the operation of the statute. . . . So here, as a law of the organization of society under the exclusive dominion of the United States, it is provided that plural marriages shall not be allowed. Can a man excuse his practice to the contrary because of his religious belief? To permit this would be to make the profassed doctrine of religious belief superior to the law of the land, and in effect to permit every citizen to become a law unto himself. Government could exist only in name under such circumstances." The U. S. Supreme Court accordingly affirmed the conviction. United States vs. Reynolds (98 U.S. 145).

Very recently the Supreme Court decided an interesting case which bears directly on religious freedom.

In 1945 Mrs. Vashti McCollum of Champaign, Ill., the wife of a Professor at the University of Illinois, brought suit against the Board of Education, seeking a Mandamus to compel it to stop using the public school buildings for religious purposes.

The school authorities set aside a half hour period each week for religious instruction in school buildings by ministers or teachers of various sects, who instructed the school children of their respective faiths. Attendance was voluntary, and any pupil not attending the religious instruction was not released from regular school work during the instruction.

Reversed By Court

The reason for bringing the suit, Mrs. McCollum said, was because more and more pressure was being put upon her son, James, then a ten year old fifth grade pupil, to attend the religious classes. The boy was being ridiculed, shunned, embarassed and ostracized, she said.

The legal ground for her objection was that tax-supported property was being used for religious purposes.

She lost her case in all the Illinois courts, and then she appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, which decided her case on March 8, 1948. McCollum vs. Board of Education, (333 U.S.).

The Supreme Court reversed all the Illinois Courts and decided for her by 8 to 1, saying:

'The foregoing facts, without reference to others that appear in the record, show the use of taxsupported property for religious instruction, and close co-operation between school authorities and the religious council in promoting religious education. The operation of the state's compulsory education system thus assists and is integrated with the program of religious instruction carried on by separate religious sects."

Religious Laws Explained

"Pupils compelled by law to go to school for secular education are released in part from their legal duty upon condition that they attend the religious classes. This is beyond all question a utilization of the tax-established and taxsupported public school system to aid religious groups to spread their faith.

"And it squarely falls under the ban of the First Amendment (made applicable to the States by the Fourteenth as we interpreted it in Everson vs. Board of Education. (330 U.S. 1.) There we said: 'Neither a state nor the Federal government can set up a church. Neither can pass laws which aid one religion over another.

"Neither can force influence a person to go or remain away from church against his will or force him to profess a belief or disbelief in any religion. No person can be punished for entertaining or professing religious beliefs ance or non-attendance.

or disbeliefs, for church attend-"No tax in any amount, large or small, can be levied to support any religious activities or institutions, whatever they may be called, or whatever form they may adopt to teach or practice religion.

Church vs. State

"Neither a state nor the Federal Government can, openly or secretly, participate in the affairs of any religious organization or groups, and vice versa. In the words of Jefferson, the clause against the establishment of religion by law was intended to erect 'a wall of separation between church and State.'

"The majority in the Everson case, and the minority as shown by quotations from the dissenting views in our notes 6 and 7, agreed that the First Amendment's language, properly interpreted, had erected a wall of separation between Church and State."

After Mrs. McCollum had won her case she was interviewed by the press at her rooms at the Hotel Pennsylvania. New York City, and was reported by the press to have indignantly denied that she is an atheist, as the press invariably called her, and she added that separation of Church and State is good American doctrine.

Our Personal Rights

She also remarked that since her suit was started in 1945 she had received more than 6,000 letters. Slightly more than half were favorable. More than half of the unfavorable communications contained religious tracts, which she put in a big box and sent to the University library.

Under the Supreme Court decisions it is perfectly clear that a person may hold absolutely any religious belief, no matter how ridiculous or absurd it may seem to others.

But when it comes to acting on, and practicing those beliefs, there are limits beyond which the courts will not permit you to go. As stated in Watson vs. Jones you have a right "to practice any religious principles, and teach any religious doctrine which does not violate the laws of morality and property, and which does not infringe personal rights."

PERMANENT WELL-BEING

ciples of healing misapplied. No One can heal another of anything. One can give the keys to per-manent well-being to another, but the second party must use the keys to truly benefit.

Law of Compensation

Unless the consciousness changed-that is, cleansed of old thoughts which have created the malformations - the body is not healed but merely confines the disease until such time as the pressure of uncontrolled thoughts, affecting the feelings and emotions, cause a new outbreak.

Patients will often say, "But I've done nothing in this life to de-serve such suffering," indicating by their very words that they have not yet learned that their soultheir awareness-is the aggregate of all they have thought and felt done from Infinity to the immediate Now.

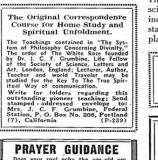

The error thoughts and acts of another life not adjusted in that life call for adjustment in the Now. and man is reluctant to face the truth of his being, the law of Life: that he alone is responsible for his place in life; that there is no pun-ishment, only compensation. It is not comfortable to know that we have earned all that life metes out it would be easier to blame others and circumstances.

Consciousness Purified

Jesus said, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit," meaning that we sow and reap according to the wave lengths of consciousness in which we function. As there are wave lengths of the atoms of sound frequencies, radio, light, x-rays, etc., there are wave lengths of the atoms of the higher realms, such as thought, astral and psychic realms and on into the realms of Christhood and the Infinity of the Godhead.

For instance, the wave lengths of the atoms used in gossip, resent-ment, jealousy, are in the lower planes of consciousness, and when man is attuned, say to the wave length of gossip, he cannot then be attuned to any of the wave lengths of Loving-Kindness, which are found only in the higher planes of consciousness.

In order to reach the higher realms, man has but to consciously become aware of the tangibility of the Father, remembering he is but a channel for His Love-thus in this constant awareness of Love Infinite, he has purified the atoms of his own being and is no longer

And in purifying his consciousness, he has automatically raised the rhythm of his physical cells. This is the only true healing—The Healing of the Consciousness.

Mighty Laws Revealed

Long ago, The Buddha, another mighty Son of the Father, gave mankind a scientific Truth when He said: "No one can purify another." The application of this key is indeed the way to redemption and release. It is a rugged way, for it means exactly this: man must reform his own consciousness, and he can do so only by living constantly in the awareness of the Father.

Thus when we take the time to study the words of those Mighty Sons, Who became (each in Their The Way to the Father, we day) the significance of Their see Teachings. For each gave to mankind the same identical Laws of Infinity, couched in the language that best served man in His Day.

Today, these Mighty Laws are scientifically revealed, for this is a scientific age. The recognition, and acceptance, of these Laws of Infinity will open the door to bring about the permanent well-being, which man so desires.

The recognition of this prin-ciple of a previous cause for a present effect is the opening of the door to the means of utilizing these same immutable laws in bringing about a state of per-manent well-being.

The Cellular Rhythm

In the complete manifestation, all is Spirit. Therefore, the physi-cal elements are congealed Spirit. In other words, all planes of con-sciousness from the physical to the Godhead are one and are linked with a common bond that holds them inseparable. With this un-derstanding we have the key to release from all discordant conditions.

The key is simple. Man's total state of being is based upon the aggregate of his expressions of consciousness. If he is subject to repeated sicknesses with periodic states of comfort, he is riding up and down on the scale of the law of Cause and Effect. He is inconsistent, and does not operate in a manner compatible with the un-changeable laws of infinity.

If man were to raise his total consciousness but one wave length, he would effect a change in his complete being and thereby enjoy a better average state of conditions.

All rlanes of consciousness being linked, the raising of the consciousness raises the awareness on all planes including the physical. Therefore, by an increase of consciousness the cellular rhythm is increased with a resultant better state of being from the physical plane upward. Were it not so,

Elizabeth Memorial Church, Miami, Florida

There are dozens of spiritualist churches in the State of Florida. Nearly all these recently built edifices follow a certain modernistic style typical to that part of the Southland. The church above (see picture) comes in this category. It is the Elizabeth Memorial (Spiritualist) Church, 729 N. E. 71st St., in the city of Miami. The minister, Rev. Marie Wilson (see page 10, June 25th edition) con-ducts services every Friday evening throughout the year. The public are invited.

that is, if the cellular rhythm did not increase with the rhythm of consciousness, one could not remain in the body.

Spiritual Attainment

But - herein lies another key which is, at the same time, a warn-ing. One should not set out to improve his condition by raising his consciousness unless he has the determination and stamina to continue to raise it. Because, if we are on the upward climb and let oursives drop to a lower wave length of consciousness, the same law of oneness will cause the cellular rhythm to try to keep apace with the change of rhythm of consciousness so as to keep the soul within the body.

Therefore, as one lowers the consciousness, by a fit of anger, a negative expression or thought, a feeling of resentment, etc., that one causes cross currents to become activated within the being thereby causing discord. A person of very high spiritual attainment can become very ill by permitting the consciousness to drop even for a short period ..

Law of Oneness

One should never work for another if the one doing the work permits himself to revert to even short periods of negative consciousness. For instance, if the practitioner holds the least feeling of resentment for someone else, the feeling, however remote, is mixed up with the radiations of any treatment he may give to a patient.

This is true even if the practitioner is not indulging in the negative feeling at the time of the treatment. The practioner owes treatment. The practioner owes it to his clientele to purge himself of all negative ideas and never again revert to them for any reason whatever.

By the law of oneness of all things, the practitioner mixes his wave lengths with those of the client, and when in the matter of treatment the link is activated and all wave lengths of one, become part of the wave lengths of consciousness of the other.

No One Can Purify

One might argue that prayer for another cannot harm that one. One might also say that there have been many healings by practioners who have not purged themselves of all negative ideas.

They were not healings, they were but temporary cures.

Furthermore, the thoughts of the practitioner do not work on the physical wave lengths of the client but on wave lengths of the frequency of the ideas. They may affect the physical condition not at the time, they may even never be noticed physically — but they are mixed in the consciousness of the individual receiving the treatment.

While no one can purify another or defile another, the one who is treated is affected because he permits himself to be affected by calling upon someone else to work for him instead of doing the work himself. They attune both ways and are thereby one with each other in consciousness.

Inner Healing

Sympathy for one who is ill or in an unfavorable state of being is detrimental to both the sympathizer and the one with whom he is sympathizing. This is behe is sympathizing. cause the one sympathizing tunes in to wave lengths of consciousness of the one in the discordant state of being.

Thus he is receiving and giving adverse radiations and both in-dividuals are recipients of greater electronic forces of fulfillment of desire. Desire is that which is in the consciousness. If one worries, then one desires that which he is worrying about, so far as the intelligences of fulfillment are concerned.

What Buddha Said

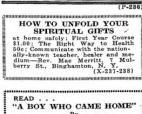

Inner Healing is a very subtle matter. One should go about it with eyes open and with the determination to conquer and "overcome" in this life so that he will not be required to be reborn in order to have a desire fulfilled, or to accomplish something left undone in the present physical life. The only true healing is the raising ones own rhythm and continually raising it, is the only means by which he can purify on all planes-thus effecting complete and permanent healing on all planes of consciousness. To believe otherwise is but prolonging the day when the complete and permanent healing will take place. Too long has man looked to someone else to do his work for him. It can not be done.

Then comes the question, "How does one go about raising his consciousness and continuing to raise it?"

Space does not permit going into the full scientific aspects of why this answer is given, or why the procedure to be given is the answer. However, this much can be given. The Father Infinite, being infinite, is beyond finite (human) conception.

Therefore, from age to age He has sent a Son to be the Way and the Truth and the Life. The Be-loved Christ said, "No man cometh to the Father but by me." Buddha, 500 B. C., made a similar statement as did Krishna and Rama, 5,000 B. C. and 10,000 B. C. respectively.

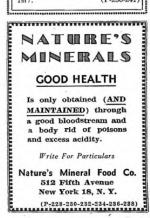

Declaration of Belief

These Great Sons were conditioned, through many lives, to live and move (consciously) in the Godhood plane and what They said was spoken in the Godhood plane. Consequently, attunement to and through any of Them, (the One of individual choice), is attunement to the Higher wave lengths of the Consciousness of The Absolute.

Declaration of belief, and prayer, are not enough. Therefore, let the Christian world attune to and keep attuned to The Christ, the Buddhist world to The Buddha, the Hindus to Sri Krishna or Rama, and in so doing they will find themselves lifted, by their own works, to realms beyond the limitations of the boundaries of human consciousness. This is not a platitude, it is a scientific truth and principle-and the complete healings, on all planes, of those who have lived this principle attest to the Truth thereof.

Swedenborg Prophecies

This concise record was taken down in January, 1934, when Iona Brandt and her spirit teacher, Dr. Karl, were members of the Tuesday evening class. In that group one of the members wrote shorthand in the dark.

The speaker was Emanuel Swedenborg. Now after fourteen years, the seventeenth century Swedish philosopher's ability to foretell coming events is worthy analytical study. It was only when I came to analyze the entire document that my faith in long - distance prediction was shaken.

Swedenborg told us that the King of the Belgians would die by accident. He declared: "It will not be an airplane disaster, but it has to do with dizzying heights. Little more than a month later the world was shocked by the news that King Albert, an enthusiastic mountain climber, had plunged to his death from a peak high in the Alps.

What Skeptics Say

The next revelation was not so "Returning from the sinister. Continent," the speaker continued, "I see the budding of a royal ro-mance." Then, with an amused laugh, "Oh, no, it is not the Prince of Wales."... Edward, Duke of Kent, made good the item of international gossip by announcing his engagement to the lovely Princess Marina of Greece. Of this there had been as yet no hint in the newspapers. However, the Princess had been visiting in London, and the fourth son of the King had shown her marked attention.

The skeptic would say that Myrtle, through whom Swedenborg was speaking, had used her faculty of soul-projection to tap this exciting stream of court gos-sip. By such means the validity of spirit intervention, with its proof of survival and the possibil-

GERLINGS RESIDE AT LILY DALE

Rev. Helene Gerling World's Centennial Celebration at Rochester.

At Lily Dale during July and August, she and her husband, Rev. J. Bertran Gerling, conduct spiritual activities at their summer cottage on North St. The Gerlings are listed on the official 1948 Lily Dale Assembly program during July when they will officiate for three s as sponsors of the World Centen day nial Celebration.

In January, 1949, Southern Cassada-Spiritualist Association has scheduled Rev. Helene Gerling for lecture and message work at Cassadaga, Florida.

An honorary degree of Doctor of Philosophy and Science has been conferred upon her by Dr. K. T. Rama-sami, President of The Indian Academy of Science, Kishanattan, Tinnvevelly District, South India.

During the past 15 years of service in the field of Spiritualism, she has made public appearances in Illinois, California, Florida, Texas and Canada. She was born in Rochester, N. Y.

When asked about the future of Spiritualism, she replied: "When man becomes miserable enough, he shall return to the things of Spirit . . . and this turning could lead him to Spiritualism. Surely the chaos in the present-day civilization shall one day be overcome. Indeed, a new day shall dawn and the world shall be vitalized with a Spiritual Renaissance."

ity of communication, could be nullified.

We, whose earnest desire it is to augment this evidence, could play the skeptic by discounting "selective telepathy" and insist that it were more rational to assume that Emanuel Swedenborg had been an unseen member of a diplomatic group, discussing Edward and Marina and the advisability of permitting another tie between the royal houses of Britain and Greece. There was already the marriage of Princess Alice to Prince Andrew of Greece. Had the Swedish seer gone on to predict a union of Alice's son with the heiress to the British throne, in 1947, that indeed would have been prophecy.

Philip, destined to give up nationality, religion and undiluted royal rank in order to marry a girl whose mother was a "commoner," was at the time a boy of thirteen. He could not have begun dream of becoming Prince Consort to a Oueen.

Method of Procedure

So neither our medium nor her distinguished guest could have picked the idea out of any mortal's mind. The simple fact is that none of the 1934 predictions looked that far into the future. The method of procedure was set down in the second paragraph of that fourteen-year-old document, for Swedenborg declared:

"I myself have not come di-rectly into the world's problems, but I have studied them for many months through minds who influenced other minds, and eventually touched the minds of your controls. Through the study of conditions I have reached certain opinions, and from these conditions I know that those which are to be, will be. Some souls have the gift of prophecy, and these are the souls whose work it is to study Past, Present and Through some unknow-Future. able method they are guided to suggest the result. The Sensitive of earth, who has Sensitives out here, will know what is to happen as the inevitable result of conditions already known. It is through this method of transmission that I am able to speak to you.

The significance of this statement cannot be too strongly stressed. For any kind of predic-tion, team work is absolutely necessary. At the two ends of the wireless telegraph there must be human instruments who came into the earth life with the "gift of Prophecy." One still occupies a One still occupies a physical body and the other is in spirit. Behind the spiritual entity there are all sort of news discriminating observgatherers. ers, correlators and analysts, who bring the facts together and dewhat will be the probable cide outcome.

Spirits Can Be Wrong

Any intelligent and unprejudiced group of human beings could do the same, if they were in position to see all the facts. John Balderston gave a concrete illustration in his play, "Berkley Square," which I read aloud to the audience in Mrs. Brandt's Soul Science Church. He pictured persons on boats, floating toward the confluence of two streams.

We, in the boat on the west fork of the river, could not know we were in danger of a collision with the boat that was approaching the main stream, from the rapidly flowing east fork. However, a man in an airplane a few hundred feet above the tongue of land between the tributaries, might look down from his superior vantage level and realize what was almost sure to happen when the two boats came together. He could even shout a warning to one pilot or the other, the chances being that neither of them would hear him.

The pilot who did hear must have been blessed with supernormal hearing. The aviator, with superior vision and the ability to calculate speed and distance, would not necessarily be correct in his deduction. Just so, the spirit communicator who warns us of impending disaster might a wrong conclusion. arrive at Also, he might give us the comforting assurance that we had nothing to fear, because he had every reason to hope the disaster would be averted.

Explanations Demanded

In the early months of 1934, neither Emanuel Swedenborg nor any other equally well known spirteacher realized that within it years the truce of the first World War would be broken. In England particularly, Spiritualists were dumbfounded when the British government declared war on Germany in September, 1939. They had been told by their leaders that there would be no war for another half-century.

Spirit controls were taken to task. Explanations were de-manded, faith in all manner of prophecy was profoundly shaken. Many and varied were the excuses offered by the mediums or their extramundane informers One of these was that the truth would be too shocking, or that certain ends of justice must be served by permitting the earth to undergo a complete bath of blood. Another was simply that those in spirit hoped to the last moment that national quarrels would be settled without resort to arms. They may have smothered prophecy under a cloud of wishful thinking.

As we were informed, spirit minds cooperate in the process of formulating the answer to the dominant question: "What is go-ing to happen?" One type of mind at each end of the transmitting-receiving se! is necessary. As Swedenborg dec. ured: "Some souls have the gift of prophecy. In a very limited degree I hav had that gift from childhood. Like Cassandra. I never trust my "hunches" because usually I would rather not believe what I all too plainly foresec.

Frightening Situation

In the investigating group with which I have worked since June, 1931. I have come into contact with possibly a score of individuals who definitely possessed this gift. Predicting the future is loosely labeled as "fortune telling" which is simply silly.

Mother Shipton, after she had predicted some of the mechanical miracles of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, spoiled her reputation as a "fortune teller" by adding: "The world to an end will come in 1881."

The frightening situation which now confronts the American people was fore-shadowed in a soul-projection experiment con-ducted by Dr. Parker in one of Myrtle Brown's classes on the night of January 15, 1943.

It may be pertinent to remark that both Dr. Parker and his medium possess the prophetic gift. on that occasion the class But work was turned over to a beautiful spirit teacher, named Lucy Lane, a member of Myrtle's band from the beginning, one who identified herself as an English actress who passed from the earth plane about a century ago.

Proper Interpretation

Four members of the class participated in a clairvoyant exercise that was startling. They respond to the familiar names, Al, Bertha, Jim and Bill. Following the usual breathing exercise, we were told to give out what we saw. Al began, in a tone of mys-tified excitement: "I see a great big white house. It's night, and the curtains are drawn, but light streams out from the windows. On the curtains I see shadows of people walking back and forth. It's as still as the atmosphere just before a tornado. Something tense is going on." "What do you see behind the house?" Miss Lane asked. "The ocean," came the prompt reply. "Now turn around and look behind you. What do you see?" Al hesitated and then exclaimed: 'High mountains with a new moon over them." "Very good; now does anyone else see farther in the distance?" to which Bill responded: "I see great wastes of sand, with the Sphinx grinning, and back of her the Pyramids."

"I know what it is," Bertha cried out. "The house is the white villa at Casablanca on the west coast of Morocco, where the conference between Roosevelt and Churchill is going on this very minute. Stalin, Chang Kai-shek and De Gaulle were invited, but all of them had business elsewhere. They're mapping the future. I wonder what they are saying."

Prophetic Panorama

"Time will tell," the gentle voice murmured. "Now, does any other member of the class see a significant figure in the durkness of the Casablanca villa?"

"Well, I'll be --!" Jim exploded. "It was as if a spotlight had been turned on suddenly, and there he is-a rooster, strutting back and forth in front of the white house, wagging his head toward the shadows on the window curtains, flapping his wings, showing his spurs and crowing to beat the band."

"Myrtle, what is the significance of a crowing rooster?" Al's wife asked.

"I'm not sure: but under the circumstances I should think it would be victory."

"No." Miss Lane said rather sharply. This was her prophetic panorama and she wanted no mis-understanding. "The cock is a symbol of treachery. When Peter denied his Lord, you remember, the cock crew. A crowing rooster is a dangerous enemy, a person to be feared because he plots destruction behind a curtain of deceit."

Cassandra of Old

Going to the opposite side of the room, she spoke directly to Jim, for whose clairvoyant vision cock had been illuminated. "What color is the rooster?"

"Red! The biggest, reddest, most insolent rooster I ever saw."

"That is correct. I beg you to put this down in your class note-books. It is of the deepest significance. Later on you will under-stand."

Five years ago, had Lucy Lane gone on to inform us that the cock was Red Russia, whose Dictator was well pleased to remain on the outside while Britain and the United States plotted the downfall of his real enemy, that he would hide behind a curtain of darkness until he was ready to use his spurs, we would have been shocked, incredulous.

Like Cassandra of old, she would have hurled her warning against deaf ears. No one would have believed her. (The End)

Harmonial Phosophy andrew J. Davis Man Is Not a Fallen Creature But a Risen One

By W. H. EVAN5

Andrew Jackson Davis has been called the John the Baptist of Modern Spiritualism. Born on August 11th in 1826, at Blooming Grove. Grange County, New York State, of very poor parents, be became the philosopher of our movement. He has been a great formative influence upon the thought of the New Age, and if today he is not studied as widely his work stands as a monument to one of the Great of mankind.

Harmonization of Diversities

He was a truly humble man and refused to allow himself to be made either a laader or the founder of a new school of thought. He said the world had suffered enough from that sort of thing and he would do nothing to emphasize differences, as sought the harmonization of hudiversities. man

Man being divine must find his own way: must be his own saviour and live a life of brotherly love. He was not unmindful of the practical application of his philosophy and the third part of his great work. Nature's Divine Revelations is devoted to an analysis of the social conditions of the world at the time he lived. He believed that all men are poten-tially good, and that it is circumstances rather than ill-nature that make men evil.

A Virile Socialism

In this part of the work he points out how the system under which all men live generates divisions and evils so that these be-come necessary for success. For For instance disputes mean litigation which is good for lawyers, how then could they be expected to work for changes that would mean the narrowing of their incomes?

That many do is testimony to his assertion of the innate good-ness of man. So in disease, much sickness means money for doctors, hence they are liable to become more interested in disease than in keeping people healthy. Again we see that many doctors rise above this, and so prove his contention of man's innate good. In many ways his suggestions lead to a virile Socialism, and he was in advance of his age.

To Combat Materialism

When in the magnetic sleep he announced the opening of the door between the seen and the unseen worlds. declaring that this would become general. And he tells us that on the night of the 31st March, 1848, that he was awak-Andren, 1040, that he was awan-ened from sleep by a gentle breathing upon his face and a voice proclaimed. "The good work has begun, brother."

Here we see that the rappings at Hydesville were no haphazard or accidental happenings, but part of a plan. It was the spear pris-ing apart the difficulties created by theological suppressions, and a weapon to combat the materialism of the age.

Rationalized Swedenborgianism

His first book caused a sensation when it was published, and he promptly renounced all rights in it as being not his own, but the work of higher beings. His chief spirit helpers seem to have been Galen, an ancient Greek physician, and Swedenborg. Galen influenced him for his healing work and Swedenborg gave the teachings. Indeed his Harmonial Philosophy may be said to be rationalized Swedenborgianism. It was these two spirits who gave him his Magic Staff. This is an in-teresting story. He had, under stress of spirit power, gone a long distance to the Catskill mountains where he had some visions. On his way back he stopped at a small graveyard.

Climbing the fence he sat there for a time and was visited by Galen and Swedenborg. They talked to him and Galen showed him the Magic Stall.

It was peculiar, being made in

Galen took it small segments. apart showing him the names of various diseases with their remedies. Putting it together he gave it to him. On it were the words, "Under all circumstances keep an even mind." He was to use this staff and live according to its motto. Feeling pleased he took the staff and turned to leave his spirit friends

On climbing over the fence his clothes caught in it and finding it difficult to free himself he petulant-ly handed the staff to Galen to old whil: he got over the fence. Le then held out his hand for the staff. but Galen shook his head. and told him he was not yet ready for it. He had fallen at the first trivial test. But later he gained it and lived by it.

4 Creative Power

The Harmonial Philosophy apocals to reason. It uses emotion to enlighten and not to confuse as it does when not controlled and disciplined. It affirms that at the root of All there is a Creative Power, which can be conceived of as a universal Fact. a primal Cause, or as a Father.

These three views are given as being in accordance with Science. Philosophy and Religion. The philosophy is reformative: it is iconoclastic in the smashing of which clutter the human idols temple, but it does not leave a ruin, it reveals the pure beauty of the temple which, cleared of the debris of ancient speculations. stands forth with chaste and heavenly glory.

Men and women represent the Creator in lowly form. and man is not a fallen creature but a risen and rising one. Earth life is a rudimental state of existence. The universe exists to produce man who is the fruit of the manifold forces flowing through it.

Reincarnation Denied

Material being affords the means whereby the universal becomes particularized in individual beings. The greatest which have lived are lowly in comparison to what man will become in the spheres beyond.

Thus return to earth by repeated incarnations is denied as be-ing a reversal of the Jaw of progress which is onward and up ward, and not a constant returning upon its tracts with forgetfulness of what happens between incarnations. Individuality demands continuity of memory and any break in it means loss, change, confusion and inharmony.

No matter how far we progress we shall always be ourselves and no other. It is a rational philosophy, for it puts first things first, and gives proper importance to matter, revealing it as part of one great Whole.

A Rational Philosophy

Modern psychology has no adequate explanations of such men women as Andrew Jackson and Davis. How came it that an uneducated youth-he only had five months school — could, when in in the magnetic sleep, give such a body of teaching as he did? Materialistic philosophy cannot say.

The worst it can do is to deny the facts, the best to stand in puzzled awe before this phenomenon. How much the teachings of this Seer helped to free the minds of men from the bugbears of a bankrupt theology, we may never know.

The world owes him and his like a great debt. His was the glorification of reason culminating in a faith based upon the inner resources of the spirit which reason discloses.

SPIRITUALISM IN BURMA

in Burma the spirit or nat festivals are well attended annually at many of the centres. The people have faith in the mediumship of seers. They analyze the activities of the various grade and types of spirits constantly employing their influences or forces, either for the uplift or downfall of mankind Guardian Spirits

2. INDIVIDUAL, FAMILY, AND NATIONAL SPIRITS: Most people believe in the spirit world around them. There are varied types of spirits. just as there are varied inhabitants on this physical world. The dog befriends us while the tiger may destroy. The dove is friendly while the hawk is dangerous.

In like manner, spirits in the invisible are. according to their traits, friendly or inimical to mankind. The Burman like a Christian believes there is a guardian spirit. KO-Sauk-Vat or angel protecting him like the demon of Socrates, who warned him of his dangers. The Burman believes much more, for he has a family spirit as well. On the seventh day of the birth of a child, the family spirit or guardian is propitiated with offerings of rice. betel and cocoa-nuts. To symbolise the event, a string is tied round the child's wrist to signify to the evil spirits that it has been initiated into the family and therefore under the protection of the family spirit. Old Customs

Nor is the family spirit forgotten at the solemnization of marriages though the propitiation at ccremonial is falling into this desuetude. Customs are continualundergoing changes due to contacts with other races and their re-ligions. and the introduction of Buddhism into Burma has wrought many changes in the indigenous ceremonies.

Just as the adoration of the religious founders and their saints, superceded the worship of the spirit of ancestors in other counso in Burma the adoration of Buddha and his disciples has gradually replaced the worship of the manes or the tutelary benevolent guardian ancestral spirits and the other ruder forms of spirit adoration

There are still a few, as in other Eastern countries, who preserve the charred bones of parents and ancestors, - presenting the relics with offerings of food as is done before the image of Buddha. In the year 1885, there were found in Mandalay. gold images of kings and queens of the Alaungpaya

WONDERFUL A GIFT CIFFI enabling man to lift the surtain of coming events, has been given to the world. Advice as to how this stift may be sequent will be mailed upon re-ceipt of 26c covering charges. Address Edson Milo Cleveland, P.O. Box 837, Palm Beach, Flor-ida. (P-206) Cleveland

SPIRITUALIST CAMPS SCHEDULE WHITNEY

Rev. Ralph A. Whitney, 1298 Bryden Road, Columbus, (5) Ohio; lecturer, teacher, mental medium and blind-fold billet reader; minister for The Ohio Avenue Spiritualist Church of Columbus for the past eight years. During the current 1948 season, Rev. Whitney is scheduled, July 17th to 27th, at Silver Belle Spiritualist Camp, REV. WHITNEY Ephrata, Pennsylvania; from August 1st to 15th at The Lake Brady

Spiritualist Comp, Brady Lake, Ohio. Other camps engaging Rev. Whitney during the past ten years: Lily Dale Assembly, Lily Dale, N. Y. and Ashley Spiritualist Camp Association, Ashley, Ohio dynasty, together with a book of odes or lyric poems, which were chanted when paying these spirits homage.

Invoking Aid

Apart from the personal or individual guardian spirit and the family spirit, we have the national spirits; and there are 37 of them in the Burma pantheon. They form the ruling spirits of Burma They of whom 14 were royalty and 12 officials. The rest are commoners, many of whom met violent deaths Annual Nat (spirit) festivals are held in their honor many of which were inaugurated by kings who supplied royal boundies.

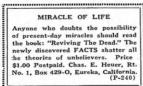

At ear boring ceremonies, Brahman astrologers 'assist with their incantations invoking the aid and blessings of the Gods of the Hindu pantheon. At most of the nat (spirit) festivals, the mediums propitiatory (natkadaws) make offerings invoking the blessing of the indigenous pantheon. The mediums also sing the odes recount-ing the heroic deeds of the spirits during their sojourn on earth in the flesh

Though many Burmans have been converted to Christianity, Buddhism and Islam, yet at heart been there is still their belief in the ancestral spirits guarding their in-terests in life, and the national spirits in the national life.

Earthbound Souls

3. MAHAGIRI SPIRITS: Amongst the thirty-seven ruling spirits of Burma, the outstanding ones are styled the Mahagiri (meaning great mountain) nats. The principal spirit when in the was Maung Tin De, a powflesh erful and influential blacksmith of Tagaung. The king raised his sister to be his queen, and after she had joined the royal seaglio the king, fearing that Tin De might become a centre of disaffection, had him arrested and personally supervised burning him at the stake.

His cries, at the torture, brought his sister to the rescue, but she was unsuccessful, and was burnt with her brother. The violent death of these two souls caused them to be earthbound and dangerous to the public, for every living thing that approached the tree under which they were burnt, died mysterious-When the king was ly. informed of the danger to his subjects, he ordered that the tree be uprooted and thrown into the river together with the skulls of the two who were causing the trouble.

Strange Sacrifices

These floated down the river many hundred miles, and were eventually stranded near Pagan where the local monarch, through the usual channel. the medium, learnt of their plight. The trunk was salvaged, cut into two parts. and human forms engraved on them. The spirit of the two were given the rank and insignia of roy alty, and an ordinance was issued that the public pay homage to these powerful spirits annually. This annual homage became an institution of the nation. - being sanctioned by royalty.

As in all institutions and festivals, accretions were subse-quently made from time to time and the ceremonies became more and more complex and even sacrifices were made with white buffaloes, white oxen and white goats.

In later years King Shinbyushin. attending the festival. realized that these sacrifices were against the tenets of Buddhism. and stop-The Mahagiri nats are ped them. not only the national spirits but also of the households, and this is symbolised by each house or hut in the many villages in Burma maintaining on one of the posts of their houses, a cocoanut tied with a red string, indicating that it is the residence of the household and national spirit. the Mahagiri nats.

Consecration By King

4. TAUNG BYON NAT FES-TIVAL. The next in importance in the indigenous pantheon of Burma, is the apotheosis of the two brother spirits who are styled in some cases as Shwe Pyin Nyinand sometimes at Bwatwi aung and Bwatta. Both are the sons of a foreigner who married an ogress of Popa. These brothers led a of Popa. These brothers led a charmed life and possessed pro-nounced psychic powers, which they used in the service of their King, both in his wars and in his search for relics of Buddha in China.

In celebrating one of his successes the king ordered the construction of a pagoda in which every one was obliged to contribute a brick. On the completion of the pagoda the king prepared to consecrate it but was annoyed beyond measure to find that the two brothers had failed in their duty, for their two bricks were missing. In spite of the meritorious services rendered them, their execution was by ordered and they were duly executed.

To Appease the King

On his return home, the king found his boat held up by some The occult powers. ministers, when consulted, informed the king that the two brothers had become powerful spirits, and indicated their resentment at the treatment meted out to them.

To appease them the king order-ed that a temple be built next to the pagoda, and the people were ordered to make regular offerings to them. Thus originated the Taungbyon festivals which are held annually in August in their honor. It has become one of the most popular festivals, and is attended by several thousands. How Cities Were Protected

5. VARIED TYPES of SPIR-ITS: Just as the earth, the air and the sea are inhabited by all manners of living things from mi-crobes to man; from tiny fish to the whale; from the harmless dove to the destroying hawk, from the friendly dog to the dangerous tiger; some friendly to man while others are inimical to him, so there are varied types of spirits some friendly and benevolent, while others definitely antagonistic to him.

This accounts for some people making propitiations to the evil spirits. Like the Christian, who believes that he has a guardian spirit watching over his interests, so the Burman believes that he has (a) a Ko-Sauk-Nat, the personal guardian spirit protecting him from evil.

Besides the personal guardian angel of the Socrates daemon type, the Burman also has (b) his FAMILY and (c) his NATIONAL spirits .- guarding the family and the nation respectively.

The Burmese monarchs not unlike those of Europe in ancient days, believed that they could (d)create guardian spirits for the protection of their cities. This they did by burying human beings alive under the gates of the cities, as was done in Mandalay.

Western Superstition

Some monarchs put to cruel death enciente women in the hope that there would be two guardian spirits. namely, that of the mother and the child. (e) Villages also have their guardian spirits, for whom the villagers have miniature huts constructed and to whom they. from time to time, pay homage by invoking their supernatural aid, to protect their interest.

(f) The spirits of forests and rivers and tress are of a friendly type; and they are often invoked to be present at business contracts.

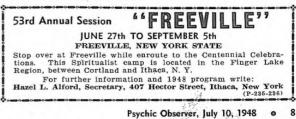

(g) A barren woman will approach a banyan tree and place lighted candles and flowers. Then they will invoke the spirit of the tree, Yok-Ka-So, for the gift of a child. The spirits of the forests, the genii and the dryads in most countries are deemed friendly to man.

The superstition of the Westerner, who touches wood when he de-sires to ward off any calamity, is a relic of the invocation to the spirit of the forests, or tree. - for the wood he touches has been a part of a tree. Many of the superstitions of mankind, have much truth at the kernel, if we could dive into them.

The term Tase is a generic term, meaning all evil spirits, and of these the most frightful ones are (h) the Thabets, who cause great fear to mankind. Then there are the tiny spirits (i) called Hminsa who assume the appearance of cats and dogs and are most mischievous imps causing sometimes endless trouble to the people as well as creating a nuisance generally.

In Europe, they are known as Poltergeists, a German term meaning troublesome ghost (polter is a noisy troublesome person, and geist is a ghost). Sitwell in his

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIS

By E. B. GIBBS

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York recently rebuked Dr. Barnes. Bishop of Birmingham, because in his book "The Rise of Christianity" he appears to do all he can to bring about its fall! He has. for instance, discarded the teachings of the Church on such points as the physical Resurrection and the miracles described in the Gospels. This caused panic in the Church of England where there need have been no panic. If the Archbishops had read "The Resurrection of Christ"(°) by Geraldine Cummins they could have calmly refuted Dr. Barnes's argu-ments by means of irrefutable psychic evidence obtained in modern times.

Mrs. Guppy-The Medium

Taking certain examples of psychic phenomena attested to by reliable witnesses, Miss Cummins shows that by the same processes and without any breach of the Laws of Nature, Christ performed His miracles and also rose from the dead. This book should be read by every clergyman and sin-Christian because cere it demolishes in a few pages the out-of-date arguments denying the authenticity of much of the authenticity of much of the Gospels, which were put forward in Dr. Barnes's book.

Geraldine Cummins tells of how the physical body of Mrs. Guppy vanished from her home at Highbury and in less than a moment reappeared in a seance room three miles away. Ten witnesses of good character signed a document testifying to this amazing fact. In hundreds of other cases through Mrs. Guppy. (See additional information below) material objects (i.e. flowers) were dematerialized and rematerialized in the presence of the scientist Alfred Russell Wallace, to whom, with Charles Darwin, we owe the discovery of the Theory of Evolution.

The process in connection with the flowers was no doubt the same as the method employed in the case of the transportation of the physical body. The book also contains the case of the Marchese Centurione Scotto who had psychic experiences similar to those of Mrs. Guppy. His physical body and rematerwas dematerialised ialised with Professor Bozzano and others as witnesses.

But what is of supreme interest to all Christians in this book.

Mrs. Samuel Guppy, II (Agnes Nich-ols) powerful medium, discovered by Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace in his sister's, Mrs. Sim's, house about a year after he started his investigation into Spiritualism in 1866: The young girl, a professional contact. The famous naturalist learned that Miss Nichols saw spirits as a child, and in carefully watching her medium-istic development, encountered startling and animals rare flows - ... ally birds under test conditions. Mrs. Guppy passed away. December, 1917. ("Encyclopaedia of Psychic Science" by Nandor Fodor).

"The Resurrection of Christ," is the long automatic script and also Geraldine Cummins' analysis They explain the process whereby lesus in an analogous manner to that of the two cases mentioned caused His physical body to disappear from the Tomb and reappear subsequently to Mary and to the Disciples. These chapters with their interesting account of the "life units' are written dispassionately. *

It would seem difficult for Bishop Barnes, however materialistic his views, to refute their reasoned arguments. They also describe the process whereby the reported miracles of healing were accomplished. They make clear that the miracles were no miracles in the sense that Christ broke no natural law when he healed the sick and brought Lazarus back to life.

Professor Joad

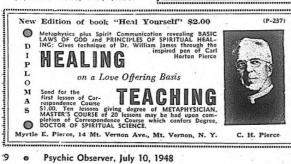

It must not be taken as showing disrespect when I say that in such work Christ demonstrated the fact that He was the greatest medical scientist the world has ever known. That He was and still is, in view of His work a pioneer scientist, ahead of all others is a fact that scientists and ecclesiastics, however great their learning, have so far missed.

If Bishop Barnes and the Archbishops would, without prejudice, study Psychic Science and carefully consider the analysis in the Cummins booklet they could accept without any qualms of conscience as truth the miracles and the Resurrection of Jesus.

Projessor Joad wrote in the London Sunday Despatch, "Now Bishop Barnes wants to make Christianity square with science. His general line is that God has never worked and can never work otherwise than in conformity with book "Poltergeists" and Harry Price in his "Poltergeists over England" give most interesting accounts of the investigated cases. The Higher Triad

The Burmans have another type called (j) the Phoke who are the most dreaded. They are the vam-pires of Europe, and accounts of them are well recorded in "Truths in Popular Superstition" by Dr. Herbert May, M. D. These vampires spread terror particularly in South Eastern Europe and the terror caused has led to widespread deaths.

The popular belief is that at night the vampire comes out of his grave to suck the blood of the living, who die as the result. When any spectre is suspected, the authorities would order the corpse to be disinterred. The strange thing is that the corpse is generally found in a state of preservation, which strengthens the belief that the spirit had been living on the blood of the living that he had sucked. The authorities would then drive in a stake into the heart of the corpse which really was in a coma, and the body would be burnt to ashes.

The spirit, soul and mind of man, the higher triad, comes to his friends to inform them that he is still alive, hoping they should come to his aid. The message is misunderstood, like a man reading a telegram in code of which he does not understand the key. Fear and panic takes possession of him, and thus he meets his death mainly through fear.

Uncanny Tales

Now that the modern world has learnt about Spiritualism and also of telepathy, wireless telegraphy and telephony, through electrical vibrations in the ether, the true reason for the deaths that followed from the spirit of the corpse in coma is better understood.

It is not yet understood, however, how the corpse remains in good condition sustained by some mysterious source. It was really a death-trance, with the pulse ceasing and the breath stopped, and the unfortunate person is buried alive and his endeavors to make known his condition is without success, only causing more deaths through their unfounded fears, and preconceived notions.

In Burma, many uncanny tales regarding these Phokes prevail. There is another class of a spirit called (k) Ok-Ta-Saung, the guardian spirit of treasure supposed to arise when a person who is inordinately fond of wealth, passes on to the spirit world. Stories are told where these spirits appear in the form of beautiful women, attractive phantoms of delight, and when men fall in love with them they are doomed. and the sooner they run away from them the better.

(Nathteins) resemble generally the priests of the religion of Shamanism in which mag'e and sore-The ery play important parts. The priests contact the spirit and give messages to the votaries. Both priests and mediums go through similar stages

Concentration of mind of the priest (or medium) and sitters is essential as well as some degree of faith — the assurance of things hoped for and the conviction of things unseen. There is unbroken silence for a few minutes. Eyes are riveted on them with unblinking steadiness. The modern Spiritualist seances however vary from Shaman-ism for they begin with the Lord's prayer (if they are Christians) and sing a hymn or some pleasant tune to bring about harmony. The presence of a sceptic being a wet blanket, does not help. Concentration is the keynote for the development of the spiritual or electric power. The priest or medium shows signs of motion, trembling or contortions of face, and even shivers as in a fit.

A Spiritualist medium at times stands up when entranced and personates the spirit that has Sometaken possession of him. his veins are enlarged and mes his pulse quickened. His words no longer his own but that are of the spirit that has entranced him. His voice, gestures and language resemble those of the spirit when he was in the flesh.

Healing Centers

7. PRACTICAL AND TAN-GIBLE RESULTS: The mediums of Burma have not reached the practical standards that those in West have attained. No orthe ganised institution has collected the results of their activities, as is done in the West. Such records show that Swed-enborg helped the widow of the Dutch ambassador at Stockholm to recover the hidden receipt which saved her from financial embarrassment, and that Captain Disko was saved from shipwreck by his deceased benefactor, Captain Burton.

Spiritual Healing Centres have been established in many coun-tries and India has one in Coimbatore where the spirits of those who were doctors when in the flesh assist the institution with advice for the cure of the several ailments for which the orthodox methods have been unavailing. The spirits through the gifted unpaid mediums have, in many countries in the world including Burma, rendered help but these cases need to be collected and brought to the knowledge of the public for the proper understanding of the science, art and philosophy of Spiritualism.

Unfortunately, there are many charlatans in every profession and the fact that there are quacks in Spiritualism does not by any means lower the tone and standard of Spiritualism any more than the quacks in medicine damage the science of medicine.

Pure Spiritualism

8. CONCLUSION: SPIRIT-UALISM THE EARLIEST RE-LIGION AND THE FINAL: In spite of the impostors, Spiritualism is gaining ground everywhere. All scientists, philosophers, statesmen and men of education, who rigidly investigated Spirit-ualism, have turned converts to not only the reality of the phe-nomena, both physical and mental, but also to the spirit theory, that communication with the departed is a possibility. The Bible is full of Spiritualism and if Spiritualism is taken from the Bible, there would be no Bible, left, said one of the prominent preachers. Madame Blavatsky that eminent and brilliant soul, the founder of Theosophy, said "Theosophy is pure and unalloyed Spiritualism."

Thus both Theosophy and the pure Spiritualism are the synthesis of science, philosophy and religion.

Theodore Parker

Pythagoras (600 B C) taught us that matter and spirit are in principle identical, and with the triumph of the spirit we would assume the form of immortal god and that there is a continual evo-lution from the mineral to the vegetable and then to the animal, through electric, etheric and spiritual forces, progressing in unbroken continuity. The attraction of light bodies to rubbed amber was once deemed trivial and meaningless, but through the aid of continued investigations by scientists we have been provided with our modern electricity which produced our radios and wireless telephone with which people speak across continents.

Pictures and photos are flashed through the wireless. Spiritual-ism is still a relatively unknown force that can yield even more beneficial harvest than electricity. Theodore Parker, an eminent Christian preacher, said "Spirit-ualism will be the religion of the future". It was the earliest religion and will be final when the excrescences are purged. Then will it become a real blessing to mankind.

WHEN TWO WORLDS MEET

A Materialization Seance WITH

Bertie Lilly Candler

as told by

LEONARD (TED) MAY, B. C. E. 119 S. W. 37th Ave., Miami (35) Florida

Through the materialization mediumship of Rev. Bertie Lilly Candler, it is the rare privilege of persons living in this earth-life to see, feel, and converse with those living in higher planes of vibration, persons who have passed through the chemical change known as death.

To readers unfamiliar with beaded jacket, and flowing white Spiritualism, this may seem far-fetched, but the facts speak for themselves, and the phenomena defy other explanation.

Consider, for example, the materialization seance held in Miami, Florida, on April 16th, 1948. The seance room (like the rest the Beckoning Light Spiritualist Church, of which it is a part) is concrete block construction, of with concrete floor.

A simple red velvet drape. hanging by shower-curtain hooks from a horizontal square loop of iron pipe, formed the cabinet, in which, during seance, the medium sat on a plain wooden chair.

Tried and True

Illumination was provided by the usual red lantern-type light, on the wall at the end of the room from the cabinet. The 28 people present were seated in a horseshoe circle of chairs, with Rev. Madge Hart and Edward Kimmey as cabinet attendants.

Thorough examination of the room. and cabinet, was made by the writer before the seance began. (Readers may be assured, there were NO "trap-doors", or anything of that nature.) The medium wore a simple smock, no purse or pockets. In the case of tried and true mediums like Rev. Candler, it is felt that these examinations are unnecessary. but they were nevertheless made, for the assurance and satisfaction of sitters and readers.

The medium took her place in the cabinet, all lights except the red lantern were turned out, and the group repeated the Lord's Prayer and sang "There's a Land That Is Fairer Than Day . . ." Then, following "Nearer My God to Thee . . .", SILVER LEAF, the Indian girl spirit who helps Rev. Candler's manifestations, stepped from the cabinet.

Her long black braided hair,

LEAF, came out and stood beside her. This pretty little spirit said she was TWINKLE EYES, a control of Elsie Gerhart, one of the sitter's. The two spirits moved about and carried on simultaneous conversations, independently of each other.

"Special" Phenomena

If anyone had been under the mistaken impression that the medium masqueraded as the spirit, they'd have a very difficult time trying to explain these two Indian girls, both smaller than the me-diums or any of the sitters!

After these spirits had faded back towards or into the cabinet and disappeared, a hymn was sung and two other young ladies, of identical appearance, tall and dressed in flowing white robes, appeared together. They called for one of the ladies present, Mrs. Cora Fox, and identified them-Cora Fox, and identified selves as her twin daughters, who had grown up in spirit. T meeting was a thrill to behold.

Many other spirit loved-ones manifested in pairs, but of the greatest general interest would be description of the following pecial" phenomena: WELDEN GERHART, son of special

Mr. and Mrs. J. Welden Gerhart, materialized and spoke to his parents.

Remembers Birthday

He brought with him his lovely spirit sweetheart, VIOLA, daughter of a lady present, Wold, daught ence Apelt. The young couple conversed with their parents and friends, WELDEN saying, among other things, "Isn't she pretty? Look at her dimples! I told you in St. Petersburg that I'd bring her with me some time, and here she is!"

(Note: This seems to be a case of what is known as "cross-cor-respondence", a promise being made through one medium in one city, and fulfilled through a different medium in another city.) WELDEN and VIOLA each accepted pencil and a small pad of blank paper, and wrote a note!

(Upon examination after the (Spon examination after the seance, these notes were found to read, "Gee, are we happy" and "Happy Birthday Mother" re-spectively.)

These two fine spirits led the group-singing of "Happy Birthday to You . . . " and walked several feet forward, hand in hand, as all sang, "Here Comes the Bride . . ." sang, "He for them.

Expressions of wonder and delight could be heard from those present during this demonstration. It is to be noted that the spirit forms held up the material weight of the pencils and tablets, proving their own objectivity.

Deutsch Spoken

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Horn's spirit daughter, VIRGINIA, looking very lovely in her ectoplasmic robes, came forth, accompanied by another girl, ROSE, whom VIRGINIA said is in her same dancing class. As members of the circle sang the "Merry Widow Waltz," the two girls danced beautifully for about three min-utes, then vanished.

AUNT ROSIE ENDY came and spoke "Pennsylvania Deutsch" to Verna Specht and Elsie Ger-hart. AUNT ROSIE brought hart. AUNT ROSIE brought with her JIMMIE, Mr. and Mrs. Gerhart's lovable little three year old spirit grandson. After a brief conversation with AUNT ROSIE and JIMMIE, the Gerharts called this writer up to meet the little boy.

Nature's Laws

Seated on the floor within one foot of the child, he could clearly see the dimples in the baby's chubby little hands! Mrs. Gerhart handed JIMMIE a small studentsize aluminum trumpet, and told him to "say hello to Uncle Ted." Whereupon JIMMIE held up the trumpet and in a true three-year-old's voice said, "Hello, Uncle Ted" several times!

(This is another case where the spirit form was much smaller than anyone else present, and supported the weight of a material (metal) object.

At a previous scance with Rev. Candler, this writer witnessed spirit form build itself in front of the cabinet, and subsequently speak, sing, and dance!

One spirit, TOM CHRISTY, came wearing a dark business suit, and upon being reminded that he had been a salesman on earth, he replied, "Now I'm telling only the Truth, and that is free to all, that spirit is eternal, and that we retain our individuality beyond the grave. We make our own happiness or unhappiness, according-

Silver Leaf's Technique

After various other similar manifestations, SILVER LEAF'S voice was heard from the cabinet, saying, "You can all stand up and rest now. The Power is getting low."

Amid a chorus of compliments and thanks from the sitters, she went on to say, "I did the best I could, and we did have a good circle, didn't we!" All agreed.

NTUITION from the materialistic viewpoint may be defined as the power of the mind by which it immediately perceives the truth things without reasoning or of analysis; and from the psychic viewpoint thus: intuition is divine instinct, by which is meant an in-stinct directly derived from the highest Spirit Plane or World. The materialistic definition is obviously omissive, since it merely gives a reason without supplying the source. That, however, suffices for the class of scientist who attributes everything to the physical and cannot grasp the possibility of there being forces outside the ken and pale of science. The scientist in-vestigates the functions of the human mind, he even endeavors to allocate to territories of the brain, certain of the qualities and tendencies.

Workings of the Mind

The scientist is blind to the possibility of those qualities and tendencies being affected and in-fluenced by unknown immaterial forces outside the organs of the body, because he refuses to believe in the existence of such forces. To him every thought and every feeling originates in the physical. The key to every psychological mystery, he decrees, is to be found within the realm of science, but he abstains from a satisfactory revelation of that key.

Every human being is born with the rudiment of the mystery sense of intuition. Science attempts to make intuition subordinate to reason generated by the material brain; it fails because it attempts the impossible.

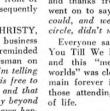

Through the ages great philosophers and thinkers, like Porphyry and lamblichus, have agreed that reason is subordinate to intuition. Referring to intuition, Iamblichus says: "There is a faculty of the human mind which is superior to all which is born or begotten. Through it we are able to make contact with the Superior Intelligencies and to be transported beyond the scenes of this world."

Highest Psychical Plane

In most, if not in all, of the ancient schools and cults of philosophy we find a wholehearted belief in intuition as a purely psychic faculty, unfettered by the material body, and deriving nourishment from forces on the highest psychical plane.

I am not evoking reminescenes of a fantastic past; I am writing the record of a personal experience the factual realism of which, for the last twenty years, has anchored my faith in the unconquerable Truth of the possibility of human communioa with Angels.

Had the incident enriched the life of a hindu ascetic or one versed in the daily practice of mantrams that lead into the bliss Samadhic raptures, it would have been less apt to arouse a reaction of lingering jubilance and appreciation. This however does not happen to be the case.

I had little time for asceticism. Between the run of a general practitioners' office in a small and the carrying on of bacteriological research at home there was no leasure left for the reciting of Buddhist mantrams or the mastering of Yogi precepts.

I Have Found It!

Not unfrequently, there would be obstetrical calls to be made after office hours. A hard life indeed. but a life replete with inner gratification for having served mankind cheerfully. Then too, man does not have to be an austere recluse in order to experience the thrills of the quest and discovery of the Holy Grail. Forsooth I found that out.

It is enough that we should keep our hearts and minds pure and undefiled from greed and envy and share with our less fortunate comrades all the treasures of life. Mark well, . . "all the treasures", not merely those we can readily dispense with.

NOW FOR THE STORY.

One late afternoon I received a call from a colleague asking me to take care of an emergency confinement case. He gave me the practical hint that there would be no chance of collecting a fee, inasmuch as the prospective patient lived in a Godforsaken shack, somewhere in the neck of the woods.

Breach Presentation

So Don and I had gone. Don favorite saddle-horse, was mv clever, spirited, tireless, loyal. In Theosophical parlance we would call him an highly individualized specimen.

We lost our bearings and wan-ered for one hour. When we dered for one hour. finally found the shack, the husband received us with a volley of invectives

The patient was a primipara; the case a breech presentation. Strict asepsis was out of question: There was no help available. The dear souls were madly in love. She kept screaming- "Fred, he's killing me." You can imagine the re-action it had upon Fred. He threatened to choke me. A shot of hyoscine relieved the tension.

When the infant uttered its first cry, Don whinnied. I had forgotten all about him. That whinnying did something to me; it made me feel that in moments of great stress, even an animal is given the ability to encourage its master. Somehow it made me think of Job.

As you probably know, there came a moment in the dark hours of Jobs' life when, deserted by all his friends, his dogs remained loyal and stood by, licking his sores. It was to his dogs that Job, glancing up at the firmament, exclaimed in a mood of hyster-ical joy: "Look, God has not for-gotten us; God is lighting His lanterns in the heavens." As I thought

Ismael Ireadia of that particu-lar incident in the life of Job, I Ismael Ircadia could almost visualize the whole scene . . . the radiance of the old Prophets' face, the trembling Prophets' face, the trembling, emaciated finger pointing to the stars, the dogs, the desolation of the earthly environment.

When I looked at the face of that uncouth man who had treat-ed me so coarsely, I thought I could detect in it something like a transfiguration. After all, was he not, even as Job, beholding the light of lanterns lit by God-Love in the eyes of his firstborn . . .

I made ready to leave. I wished them good luck and peace and happiness. I was just about to mount, when he suddenly opened the door, walked up to me and handed me two bills . . . saying . . "Sorry, doc," apologizing shyly, "for the way I treated you. Here's twenty bucks," The words came. slowly, pairfully, reining in the emotions that flooded his soul.

What Don Sensed

I thought of Mozart of that dismal hour in his composers' career when, in midwinter, he tried to dance himself and his wife into warmth. There was no money to buy fuel with.

"Don't you want the money, doc?" he inquired with a peculiar helplessness in his voice. "I swear doc, that's all I got. I swear I'll pay you more as soon as I can." . .

I did not hear the rest of his plea. I lifted myself into the sad-dle muttering . . . "Forget it, dle muttering . . . "Forget it, Fred. I've been amply paid already. That som of yours may grow up to be another Mozart." Don sensed that I was in a hurry to go. He snorted and wheeled and whinnied and was off. I never knew that horse to be as spirited as he was that evening . . as we rode through the midst of the inspirational decorum of magnificent' September sun We had to cover several miles. sunset.

Where at any other time I would have been weary and hungry and thirsty, that particular evening I felt elated. My hearing seemed keener than it had ever been; the air I was breathing seemed enriched with all kinds of unusal, exquisite fragrances; the chlorofile of patches of new grass that vivified some of the solitary meadows bordering the dirt road glowed with a deeper lovelier green than I had ever noticed before.

What Shelley Said

Again the thought and vision of Mozart asserted itself. We were two miles from home. The sun was plunging its crimson gold orb in such splendors that I could not refrain from feeling an urge to admire and worhip. At that time I was totally unaware of the para-meta-physical fact that I was being prepared by my Spirit-Guides for a priceless, memorable spirit-ual experience. Shelleys' immortal fragment of poetry projected it-self upon the screen of my mind . . .

of light diviner than the common sun sheds on the common earth . . and all the place was filled with magic sounds woven into one oblivious melody."

I started reciting the poem out loud, but as I spoke, there surged through my whole being a wave of undescribable felicity and expectancy. The words were metamorphosed into deliriously beautiful musical sounds.

My Initiation

Suddenly Don sidestepped and stopped, head erect, nostrils wide open, his whole frame aquiver. He stood there for I do not remember how long, afraid as it were to move, his glances rivetted the direction of the meadow that rolled its wounded greenness to the right of the road. He was staring, staring.

That which he saw was coming nearer, nearer. I could tell by the almost imperceptible slow movement of his splendid Berber head. Now he started to whinny, but oh so strangely, as if reluctant to disturb the holy quietude that en-nobled the pastoral scenery.

It was then that the Initiation for which I had been so tenderly for which I had been so taken , prepared by my Spirit Guides . . crystallized. My breathing grew deeper and slightly faster, then slowed down markedly. Don's quivering communicated itself to my physical, psychic and ether-eal vehicles. I could see what Don saw . . . the hazily materialized form of a wondrously beautiful etheric being.

Etheric Conversation

The closer He came to us, the keener the delineation of his perfect features. He was tall, vibrant with an unearthly vigor: a wealth of flowing, wavy, golden-auburn hair: a full round, heavenly youthful face; an idealized Greek statuary masterpiece of moving human anatomy.

His gait was heroic, like the gait of an exultant, princely heran exultant, princely heralder of recently won victories. A living, triumphant apotheosis of courage, cheer, fearlessness. All these things called attributes were dancing and singing and blazing in the majesty of his magnetic eyes, large, deep, blue, eloquent eyes. Oh, those unforgetable eyes . . .

He was dressed in Olympian

Every person is born with such a faculty, but it is not every person who recognizes its nature and listens to its promptings, which, through persistent neglect, may, in time, weaken and entirely cease. Intuition is really the voice of one's guardian angel, warning one of impending danger, moral and physical, and advising one what to do and what not to do.

Sometimes the warning and advice comes to one in sleep and sometimes in wakeful moments.

Dr. Abercrombie, in his Intellectual Powers, narrates the case of a clergyman, for whose veracity he vouches, who, while on a visit to friends, dreamed one night he saw his house in flames.

On waking he felt so strongly that it was no ordinary dream but that his family were in dire peril.

apparel. We did not speak. And yet, we conversed. He read my questions in my eyes; I read His answers looking in the God-mirroring glories of His eyes.

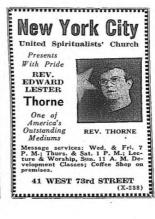

No Shadows

I do not know how long the meeting lasted. All I do recollect is that, eventually, Don began to walk again, continually quivering and softly snorting. The Angel walked with us, to our right, for about one mile. He and I com-muned mentally. I shall never, never forget that communion.

Felicity sat enthroned in the tabernacle of my adoring con-sciousness. I closed my eyes to thank the Great, Unnamable Creative Spirit Whose Love had given so much lovableness to all the universes. I looked again. The Angel (of the Lord) had gone.

You ask me for the color of His garments? Celestial green. Celestial green. The color of His aura? Brilliant yellow. Did his body throw a shadow on the earth as He walked? No, . . . Angels do not throw shadows.

Oh, that all the children of Man might see the Vision I have seen, and believe, and Love, and all the world be healed!

that he got up at once, tore off home, and arrived there just in time to save his family from being burned to death. "He might have ignored the dream," Dr. Abercrombie says, "had it not been for his strong intuitive feeling that it was a dream from the spirit world."

Heed Warnings!

Many people will remember the sensation caused by the never-solved mystery of the disappearance of the ten-thousand-ton liner Waratah when on a voyage from Sydney to London. Of all the people who were on board her when she left Sydney, but one survived, and he owed his escape from a watery grave to a dream and sub-sequent intuitive feeling that he must leave the ship when she called at Durban.

Several times he was on the verge of disregarding the feeling, but opposition only made it stronger, and in the end he yielded to it, and left the vessel at the above port. It was soon after she quitted Durban that she mysteriously vanished, so completely that not a trace of her was ever found.

Mental Philosophy

Intuitive, too, is the innate belief in the life to come and the inherent knowledge of good and We study our instincts too evil. little, and listen to their lessons too carelessly. Men, sometimes from a religious error, but more often from a worldly one, are wont to regard it expedient to disregard and suppress their natural instincts.

To the instinct that urges them not to do a certain thing or ill will come of it they pay no heed, only to realize, when it is far too late, how much wiser they would have been to listen to that intuitive note of warning.

Man's better nature is moulded by his instincts. How much remains of that nature in man depends on the measure he is guided by his faculty of intuition.

"All impulses to perform a kind act owe their source," Carl Hahn, an Austrian writer and lecturer on mental philosophy, says, "to the innate intuitive faculty. Yield to innate intuitive faculty. those impulses and the faculty gathers strength, crush them and the faculty will, in time, be starved to extinction."

Obey That Impulse!

Vices have been described as the enemies of intuition. Intuition warns man at an early stage of his existence, and, maybe, at later stages, against indulgence in vice, and if he stubbornly refuses to be guided by its urgings he will in the end become the slave of vice, and the divine voice from the Other Side will, for him, ever remain silent.

The greatest philosophers and propounders of moral chics were well aware of this that they crushed all tendencies to vice with in them by a ruthless adherence to the strictest mode of asceticism a wholehearted submission and and obeyance to their intuitive sense. Intuition has been likened the prescience of the woman, to and the man who shuts out from himself the divine light of intuition to a robot.

Not only does individual man owe much to intuition but the world is immeasurably indebted to it also, for without intuition there would never have been the world's most elevating and wholly desirable creeds and beautiful and illuminating works of art and literature. There would never have been a Jesus, Buddha, Leonardo de Vinci, Titian, Milton, or Shakespeare.

SPIRITUALIST CAMP AT HYDESVILLE NEW

Margaret Lewis Purchases Hyde Farm

Her Tremendous Undertaking Most Commendable

Psychic Observe

The history of Spiritualist Camps in the United States is a matter of record. All began under humble circumstances and under apparent-ly unsurmountable difficulties but when such vision, as shown by Rev. Margaret Lewis (above), is backed by the will to achieve an objective, only success can be the answer. Our great pioneers struggled faith-fully and selflessly to found all of the present-day spiritualist camps and now, we have, in this modern day, a woman who knows what she wants and sets forth to accomplish a great task.

ts and sets forth to accomplish a great task. Faith in the spirit world, backed by her own limited finances, es as the only prop upon which she now stands. However, there is no thought in her mind of failure. She believes hundreds will come forward to help ... financially yes, for many have already contributed labor as well as substantial donations for so worthy a project. It has never been the policy of PSYCHIC OBSERVER to sponsor or promote any project in the sense that they urge financial support but, in this instance, mention is made and those who feel they would like to help, must communicate direct with Rev. Lewis. She will submit her plans and keep interested parties informed as to her needs from time to time. Address Rev. Margaret Lewis, Hydesville, N. Y. for details.

the natural laws revealed by science.

Space does not permit me to present the argument in the Cummins book. But the following passages are of interest: "There is shown that there is evidence of an almost semi-physical shape or double of the physical body. "The double is bound to the the physical body by the Vital Cord and also, during normal health by a web of threads. If some of the latter are injured or broken. certain glands may be affected.

threads . . . "Christ" was able to live consciously in his Double and came, in time, to control the flow of the life-units so that not only could He nourish His physical shape with them deliberately, and not merely instinctively, but was also able, if occasion demanded, suddenly to exteriorise this neuric energy, pour it, for instance, into a paralytic and cause him to rise up and walk."

(In the same manner He was able to treat His body when it lay in the Tomb. Then this neuric energy, this essence broke like through the human frame, and by reason of its condensation. increased the pace of the electrons driving them more rapidly round the nucleus.)

Bishop's Futile Argument

Such a process naturally led to the Body entering another dimension. Before it actually did so, before the life-force stormed through it, the spirit had registered the command that the Body should pass through the linen wrappings and the walls of the tomb. Thus. through it being in another dimension, the wrappings were not disturbed."

It seems to have been a matter of timing, an increase in the speed of the atoms and then a decrease when the body reappeared in the earthly rhythm, i.e. to Mary in the Garden. Quotations, however, are useless. It is necessary to read "The Resurrection of Christ" order to realise how Psychical Research makes much of the Gospels appear intelligible and authentic history.

Bishop Barnes's arguments are built on sand. This booklet establishes Christianity on the Rock of Psychic Science and should especially appeal to young scientifically minded people whom this Prince of the Church seeks to convert to a hundred year old creed dogma of Science which has been disproved and is based on the quick sand of materialism.

OPENING SERVICES JULY 4th

Camp Will Be Dedicated By Rochester Unit of World Centennial Leaders

By The Editor

According to Rev. Margaret Lewis, President of The Min-istry of Spiritual and Divine Science, a new spiritualist camp bearing the name of the above organization, will open July 4th at Hydesville, N. Y. One hundred and forty-six acres of land, completely surrounding the Fox Memorial Shrine, have been purchased by Rev. Lewis whose attorney submitted the following statement.

"By deed dated and acknowledged March 31, 1948, GENEVIEVE A. CORNWELL conveyed about 140 acres of land (comprising a large part of the William Hyde farm, so-called, located at Hydesville, Town of Arcadia, Wayne County, New York) to THE MINISTRY OF SPIRITUAL AND DIVINE SCIENCE, a religious corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with principle offices at No. 55 State Road, Hampton Manor, Rensselaer, New York. This land adjoins the Fox Sisters' plot, the birthplace of modern Spiritualism. The date falls on the 100th anniversary of the first rappings heard by the Fox Sisters. The deed was recorded in the Wayne County Clerk's Office on April 1, 1948."

This new camp, located about one mile from Newark, N. Y., is near the New York Central Railroad main line between New York City and Chicago. Rochester is about forty miles north and Buffalo is about seventy miles west of the camp site. The motorist will find good roads in this section of New York State. The camp will officially open July fourth, when a committee visitors, representing the and Rochester unit of The World's Centennial Celebration, will sponsor the dedication ceremony. According to a recent tele-phone conversation with Rev. Lewis, vast improvements and extensive construction is under way so that when the camp opens visitors will enjoy all necessary accommodations: a coffee shop on the premises, ample apartments, and rooms in the nearby For reservatown of Newark. tions write Mrs. For reserva-tions write Mrs. Hicks, Newark, N. "I think we, as true Spiritualists, should get together and make this hallowed ground a place of beauty and inspiration. I am sure we can make it a fitting memorial to the Fox family and all those other fine Mediums who gave their all toward building up this great truth.

"On this land we have a house, a shed, and a very large barn, all in bad condition. We are tearing the barn down and re-building it into an auditorium, which we hope will be ready for the Fourth of July.

"We plan to erect a large healing shrine, octagon in shape, where will be hung Memorial Placques containing the names of Loved Ones. We are also setting aside 25 acres of this land to build a Sunshine Village to house some of our aged and retired mediums,—giving them a little cot-tage of three rooms and bath to live in for the rest of their time this side of life. "This will not not be a village on of charity, there will be provi-sions made by which this Sun-shine Village will be sustained. Various organizations have their homes for the aged, why can't we of this Wonderful Movement have a Sunshine Village where each soul may live their lives in their own way in peace and harmony, away from all worry. "To do this great work, it is going to take a great deal of money. I have done my part, so therefore, I must appeal now to all peoples of the world to help all peoples of the world to help this great work for Humanity. "Please disregard all affilia-tions with whom we might be-long. We are all Spiritualists and children of God. Therefore, as such, let's work together and show the World at large that, we have something of which to be proud."
