DOES HEMISPHERE CONSERVE ENERGY?

Guide subscriber Jim Collins of San Pedro, Calif., has been scratching his head over this one.

In 1968 he bought a mod, battery-powered pencil-sharpener. The device — as depicted here — consisted of a 3¼" diameter, 2" high plastic dome. A 2½" high cylindrical base housed two dry-cell batteries.

"Of course I didn't use the sharpener too often," says Jim. "Except in emergencies when a point broke off, I'd usually wait until several dull-pointed pencils accumulated, then I sharpened them in one operation.

"The pencil sharpener came equipped with ordinary Japanese-made batteries, which were never taken out. In the approximate four to five-year period since purchase, there was no noticeable depletion in their power," Jim adds. "Normally seldom-used batteries, or those stored over this period of time tend to leak or lose their charge. Could the hemisphere form and cylindrical base account for this unusual happening?"

COULD THIS "UFO-ISH" PENCIL SHARPENER BE BENEFICIAL TO THE ENERGY CRISIS?

RESEARCHER REPORTS GENERATOR TIME-SHIFT

Dear friends,

My experiments since February or March have been with TIME. I have produced a rudimentary warp generator that shifts time twenty-five to thirty years. Also I have produced the anti-work generator (also in rudimentary form). This nullifies natural work energy. In addition to this, I have produced a non-radiating warp. This lets us see that this potentially dangerous energy can be confined to a small area. As I see it at this time, all warps are potentially dangerous!

I live in an area where lies a near-perfect setup for studying this energy. All of this about warps came as a result of investigating certain unusual phenomena.

If you ever get into a natural warp field it is an experience that you will never forget if the energy is strong enough. You will sense an alien something which has driven two people I know into panic.

There should be a lot of warp energy along the San Fernando fault in California. You determine that the work exists at points where no energy can be detected via map-dowsing.

In reference to the findings of B.J. Churko of Saskatchewan, Canada. (See question 1 of "Guide Replies"): Mr. Churko may have something in the observation he makes. In my area, I do not find a vortex around the pyramid. Instead, I find three high-directional beams. These are obviously induced by two local sources

LIVING LEGENDS

Interspersed with yoga disciplines, exercises, mantrums, and meditations, the esoterics at London Festival ran a fascinating mind-expanding gamut recessed only long enough for a bus excursion to the astounding ancient sites of Stonehenge and Glastonbury.

We heard Dr. Allen Jynek, formerly in government research on UFO phenomena, reveal concepts of the possibilities of life in the solar system on other planets; heard Dr. Gina Cerminari authority on reincarnation; marvelled at indescribably magic mysteries of India performed by Komar; learned about manufactured cosmetics and garments not based on animal destruction from Muriel, the Lady Dowding; spiritualism from Maurice Barbanel, Bertha Harris, and other English "pros". The British, incidentally, are in an admirably advanced state of acceptance of things spiritual, metaphysical, mystical, and occult. These concepts are not, as in the U.S., still on trial and waiting scientific testing. An exclusive residential block, mist London's of honking taxis and frantic traffic, Belgrave Square, is given completely over to the Spiritualist Association of Great Britian and is under government sponsorship celebrating, in 1973, one hundred years of service!

Time and the Everlasting Now

Fourth Dimension Reachout

If I'm to accept the belief that every moment co-exists, all that ever was, is, and will be, must exist in this instant. The present becomes the past before I can articulate the thought. The immediate future has already slipped into the present, and just as quickly slides into the past while I ponder the question.

Parallel time implies eternity of the moment. One of the great scientific and philosophical lights of our age, the late P. Ouspensky believed the limitations of man's mind lead him to think of repetition rather than eternal existence. Ouspensky said we place ourselves in an impossible position accepting the idea of a disappearing past and a not-yet-existing future. "If this is so," he wrote, "nothing exists, or everything exists."

If we look to J.W. Dunne's serialism, (serial time, an infinite series of dimensions, comprehended as an array of consecutive time points), we observe the continued movement of life through space, and interpret it as successive instants in time.

We were intrigued by the ancient Kahunas of Hawaii as well as the Devas and Elementals as Elaine Peick described them and their activities. A very great privilege was seeing the astronaut, Edgar Mitchell's film concerned with "Inner Space"; hearing our own Bill Cox on the subjects of dowsing for auras and etheric emanations and going on to the energies found in the great pyramid replicas. We even took part in the "unveiling" of the first prototype of panel-less, adjustable meditation pyramid with the excitement of various experiences and reactions from foreign and American ones who sat under its apex and within its framework.

A great highlight of the festival, for me, was hearing for myself the wonders of the music the famous Rosemary Brown is able to produce from "other world" sources. Singularly lacking in either musicianship or technique, this very ordinary and notably humble person is yet able to serve as the perfect instrument through which Franz List (yes!) can act as a "control" to bring his own compositions and those of masters - Beethoven, Handel, Chopin, Schumann, and others, through Rosemary, to the piano via the staffed pages. Highly skeptical music authorities and critics have finally been forced to admit the individual styles are unmistakable when played by a skilled musician! How remarkable! According to Rosemary, masters, the object is to prove immortality through the transmission of music.

And then, when gazing upon the ruins of Glastonbury (the Vale of Avalon) and Stonehenge, on the excursion break, we were struck by the enormous significance of the mysterious networks underlying the origins of these and of the Great Pyramids and other monoliths. Mary Caine, who conducted the tour made us aware of the "Glastonbury Giants", (see "Psyche and Psi" in the California Scene's next Quarterly). These are Zodiacal configurations resulting from terrain and natural land marks, which,

How remarkable it is when we consciously perceive a multiplicity of stationary forms enveloped by an action scene of low, medium and high-speed motion. We somehow comprehend the moving objects all playing against and interpenetrating one another in an infinite variety of kinetic splendor. In an instant, our eyes, fantastic cameras they are, instantly record these incalculable moving forms and color.

In pursuing this thought further, imagine viewing the movie of a man walking from his car to the door of an office building. The rapid succession of frames, (interconnected stills), give the illusion of continuous movement. If we replay the film in reverse, we see the man walking backward toward his car, a form of time regression. Simple enough! But at this point a strange thing occurs. Regular time ticks ever onward while we visually observe a scene of time regression; time moves in two directions at once.

Ouspensky also refers to lines of time, (two dimensions of time). For example: If a man while sailing a boat walks along the deck, he may become a second dimension of the scene's movement. I marvel at the innumerable velocities of cars speeding along a busy freeway, all aerturing action at their own particular cadences. Their activity becomes other dimensions (subject to sudden change), of a fixed time perception held in my mind, in a given moment. It's thrilling to think of the usually taken-for-granted ability we possess to instantly record this complex panorama shifting from scene to scene in a matter of seconds, and with almost imperceptible effort.

The awesome color and form, (moving symbols), folding into and unfolding out of the kaleidoscope eyepiece while studying a burning log proves to me our ability to perceive infinity. The experience must have already existed in our inner-mind, otherwise we would experience gaps of comprehension -- thought blindness of a sort.

Do successive moments move along the line of a circle? Could time ride in a fixed point on the edge of a rotating wheel? If this imaginary point completes a full revolution on a wheel suspended in space, it seems time and events are destined to repeat themselves -- over and over. On the other hand, if a wheel completes its full revolution moving on a horizontal track, it has moved from the point of beginning to another station along the track, time never repeating itself, ad infinitum ... Maybe time doesn't progress in fixed circle (s), but rather in an ever rising and expanding spiral where the arc never meets its previous tracing.

Vast distances obliterate our concept of time, and we mistakenly comprehend some external, visual input as a real thing. Mirages, spinning rings, airplane propellers, wagon wheels and railroad tracks all trick the eye. We see water on the desert highway where none exists. The whirling propeller appears as a disc, the gyrating ring a sphere, and the RR tracks come together down the line. Thus speed and distance in time create illusions of form, solidity, and distortion. But no rigid body is ever completely at rest. Atoms in a rock pursue their motion visible to the naked eye.

TWELVE-FOOT-HIGH COUNTERPART TRAPS, UNTRAPS LIGHT. A January 29, 1973, article on pyramids in the national tabloid, "Midnight", tells of two photographers whose meters indicated light within the interior darkness of a twelve-foot-high pyramid replica. Upon further examination after the instrument was taken outside, the meters strangely failed to register - even exposed to the radiant rays of bright sunlight. SHARPENING COPPER. James H. Banks of San Diego, Ca., gives us the gist of a Pittsburg, Pa., Magazine article describing a pyramid-sharpened copper razor blade as being suitable for shaving. Even though copper is soft, the writer suggested, the metal stayed sharp after shaving. REPLICA CREATES TIME DRAG. Banks also added that a battery-operated watch he owns loses about a half hour daily if kept in the bedroom near his pyramid replica. Thomas Allen LeVesque writes: "Pyramid Guide #2 says 'The addition of a metal maypole emerging from the base - up through the pyramid's center ... above the apex ...' greatly enhances the energy output. Tesla used electricity to produce magnetic waves which could distribute energy without wires. Tesla's experimental station in COLORADO Springs, Colorado, (1899) was a wooden PYRAMIDAL tower with a mast in the center, extending above the apex. Atop the mast was a three foot copper ball. This ball radiated the energy waves! A thought: What would be the effects of an 'orgone' energy accumulator in the shape of a pyramid with a metal pole up through the pyramid's center and above the apex, on top of which is a copper ball?!*!#3* ... Synergy ... the unique behavior of whole systems - unpredicted by behavior of their respective sub-systems, events, or parts...Energies are released by conversion of Rays. The Keys to form are in terms of their basic patterns. As a symbolic medium in natural magic, the natures of things depends upon arrangement of their parts and not upon the basic nature of these parts themselves." DETECTING MAGNETIC FIELD CHANGES. From Bob Freedman, Honolulu, Hawaii. "The best yet (from G.G. Luce's Body Time), 'People can also cultivate a sensitivity to very slight magnetic-field changes. This is the trick of the dowser who senses underground water pools through exceedingly small changes of magnetic field strength. In 1962 a Sorbonne physics professor, Yves Roard, discovered that by holding the arm very taut, and balancing a long stick, the nerves and muscles in the arm would become sensitive to small changes of magnetic field strength. These changes from water in the soil would cause the muscles to relax and the stick to dip. By using a magnetometer, Roard found that people could sense extremely small gradients (3-5 milligram changes). He planted electric coils underground - approximating natural magnetic gradients - and found that 'average' people could learn to detect the tiny magnetic field changes.'"

DOWSING PROFESSIONALS AT WORK. Viola W. Gorman, of Enumclaw, Washington, speaking of her recent trip to the American Society of Dowsers Convention in Danville, Vermont, says: "There were seminars on the Aurameter, Dowsing Inner Space, Professional Dowsing of Underground Water Veins, Pyramid Power, Clairvoyant Dowsing, Radio and T.V. Effects, Noxious Earth Rays, Detection, Suppression, Psychic Map Dowsing for Missing Persons, Prospecting, Pendulum and Personality, Sensitivity Tests, Auto Accident Sites, and Dowsing Phenomenology." Mrs. Gorman ends the piece by writing: "It was a thrill to see and hear the professionals at work."

NOVEL DOWSING EXPERIMENTS WITH PYRAMIDS

Dear Friends:

I received your short message in the mail early last month. Hopefully your trip to Europe was most enjoyable as well as informative . . . Some of my latest experiments have been very productive as of late. I will enumerate one such experiment in detail below.

First of all, a scale was devised to measure Psi energy intensity. Although it is rather arbitrary, it suits my needs well. Psi energy may thus be measured, using this scale and (a) a trained psychic, (b) a pendulum, (c) a suitably calibrated psionic device. Since the use of a pendulum would probably be more convenient for most people, a scale has been enclosed which may be used in conjunction with it.

PSIONIC	0 - 1	Depleted energy in average humans.
INTENSITY		Fatigue, Illness, Physical death (0)
LEVELS:	1 - 2	Healthy condition in average humans.
	2 - 3	Positive, magnetic humans (not psychic).
	5 -	Lowest possible level for controlled psi to be initiated, such as telepathy, mind to mind control.
	10 -	Average intensity of 6" high pyramid model with no base or tip measured at apex. Average level of many occultists.
	10 - 20	Level of many advanced occultists. Level required for proficient mind control, telepathy, clairvoyance, PK, on a limited basis, healing, astral projection, etc.
	24	A best-selling metaphysical writer.
	100	Probable level at which psionic energy produces readily observable physical effects. This scale extends indefinitely. (Poltergeist phenomena, weather control.) Do not confuse the intensity level with the frequency of the energy.

This scale is used to measure the intensity of Psionic energy. Probably the best parallel to electricity would be voltage. Of course, the voltage in an electrical circuit is that parameter which determines the current flow across a resistance.

An experiment was conducted to determine how the maximum energy output of a Cheops pyramid replica may be induced. Since a 6" high model was used, pyramids of varying heights may produce energy outputs not in proportion to those of the models used.

Also, daily and hourly variance in magnetic, gravitational, and other fields may produce variance in results obtained; but this has not yet been determined.

The model was situated in a position relatively free of artificial electromagnetic fields. Listed below are the varying tests subjected to the pyramid and the resultant measured intensity levels.

of radiation: a nearby television re-broadcast station transmitting five channels at only ten watts per channel in the vicinity of eight hundred MHz; the source from a 1000 watt broadcast station on 1450 KHZ. The hederectional beams are as follows: (1) to the north and south a hederectional beam which reaches the Missouri boundary (determined by map-dowsing). This is low-frequency, negative energy of the second spectrum and emanates from near the base of the pyramid.

(2) A second hederectional beam to the east and west reaches the Minnesota-Dakota boundary from the aluminum-cardboard model. From a mere framework model this energy reaches the west boundary of Montana! This energy lies between Beta and Gamma of the X-ray region. From the peak of the pyramid, the third hederectional beam is to the east and west and reaches to about seven hundred miles west of Egypt. When the pyramid is grounded, this energy reaches to about seven hundred miles east of Egypt. I'm not sure of the frequency of this energy; it is electro-magnetic and, as I remember, it may be in the ultra-high frequency region of the radio-frequency spectrum. It emanates from high on the flat surface of the aluminum model as first described in the Pyramid Guide. Yours truly, Sam J. Main. Ely, Minn.

Magnetized and non-magnetized steel needles were placed at the apex of the pyramid (with base). The needles were placed vertically, in a line perpendicular to the base. Measurements made at the apex indicated a decrease in output. Apparently the steel, or the small diameter of the needles; or both, restricted the flow of output energy.

Generally, it was found from analysis of results that (a) the 6" high Cheops pyramid model may be induced to yield a higher energy output not exceeding a certain limit. (b) the maximum energy output for the said model may be obtained by adding a baseplate, an aluminum tip, and the application of magnets as described above.

I sincerely hope that a contribution has been made, or capstone, to the pool of knowledge pertaining to psionic research. Perhaps more researchers in the field can expand upon the area of knowledge which I have lightly touched upon by the above experiment. If anyone that you know of would be willing to repeat the above tests, I would welcome hearing of the results. The Pyramid Guide contains much needed background information pertaining to my research. Otherwise, much precious time would be wasted in the process of "discovering" many facts that are already known by others.

along with leys and lines we've read about in Jon Michel's View over Atlantis and other sources, suggest that geological as well as astronomical, astrological, and physical laws of an incredibly ancient period dictated their positions in relation to magnetic factors. Stonehenge and the Great Pyramids are equal sources of puzzlement and conjecture, regarding both age and construction. There will have to be further coverage on some of these aspects.

Later, I found it near impossible to realize I could be standing in misty sunlight on the luxuriant green underlying the whole of Glastonbury Abbey where the fabled King Arthur, Sir Launcelot and Galahad, knights of the round table, and beautiful Queen Guinevere held forth. There was even the site where Arthur's and Guinevere's tomb had stood from the twelfth to the fifteenth centuries. And how beautiful is the stonework making up that vast skeletal and once-great church structure as it soars blue sky-ward!

Chalice Well, near the Abbey, an ancient pilgrim's haunt, has a history that merits, and will receive, attention in a coming issue. But certain it is that the riddles inherent from past "worlds" - Pyramids found worldwide, Stonehenge, and other such gigantic structures, the "lost" Atlantis, - all compete tantalizingly, in interest with those of the esoteric and unseen as they were revealed at the amazing London festival.

Dear El Cariso Publications; Thank you for answering my query about the Hieronymous Machine. Here is some information that you may not have. I belong to the ESP Lab of Los Angeles. Al Manning is head of it. In this month's newsletter, they offer a psychotronic generator for sale. It is called ATLANTIAN ENERGY GENERATOR, MARK 1 and costs: $19.95. It is recommended for use only by those who are familiar with the Lab's pyramid work.

This past month I had pneumonia. I hooked a blue light into a pyramid covered with foil. I put my picture in it and left the blue light shine on it continuously. It really helped. I've had pneumonia twice before, but this time I recovered quicker and with much less medication.

You have my permission to print my comments about my pyramid research. Sincerely, Mae Belle Simpson., Bedford, Penna.

Dear Pyramid People,

Thank you very much for the complimentary copy of the "Pyramid Guide". After reading the newsletter, it gives me greater confidence to further pursue pyramid studies (knowing I'm not the only person who believes there is some value to be gained from studying the pyramid form).

I am planning on "teaching" a course on the pyramid phenomenon at the Experimental College which is part of the University of Washington here in Seattle. If anything of interest to you and your readers evolves from this venture, please be assured you will hear about it.

You have my permission to give my name and address to any readers living in the Seattle area who express an interest in sharing pyramid experiences / ideas with people like me. Also, let me know if there are any other readers so inclined. I would like to get in touch with them. Thanks. Bryan A. Brewer 2210 33 rd, Ave. South Seattle, Wash.

REACHOUT Continued

Strange things space and time. According to Dunne, this page appears as space when viewed up and down. But scan the words horizontally and the perception becomes time. What talents we have! Upon closing our eyes we easily move backward or forward in space and time, and in a trice mentally leap to the surface of the moon if we so desire, (time again moving within another time.) This extended power of awareness through high order observation opens the way to four-dimensional consciousness.

Dear Bill; I received your letter and after a little detective work, here is what I've come up with: The man who did the experiments to which you refer is Dr. John Joseph Sipe, formerly of the University of Washington's Department of Ceramics Engineering. (The 'Guide had inquired about the man following Bryan's earlier comments about someone who viewed pyramid-treated razor blades under an electron microscope. eds.)

Unfortunately, he is no longer in the Seattle area. He is known to have taken a job with Smith, Klein, & French, a pharmaceutical house, in Philadelphia, Pa. He left no forwarding address with the school. None of the other people I talked to at the University were familiar with the experiments, so you will have to try to get in touch with Joe Sipe. Good luck!

Enclosed is an article (which you may already have read) which is interesting in two respects: (1) The author mentions microscopic "striations" on energized razor blades - this seems to bear on your original inquiry - and (2) the author mentions some experiments with quartz, although different from those you described to me. I obtained a very low-grade piece of quartz and tried what you suggested - without results. I am currently making inquiries to obtain better quartz specimens, and I am also doing some background reading on the piezoelectric properties of quartz and crystals in general. Hope I can report some results soon ...

But, what's more exciting to me right now are the concepts and exercises in Joseph Weed's Psychic Energy. I'm grateful to you for turning me on to this book. [I did find it in paperback!] I have just begun to exercise breathing and thinking about the food I eat, but I can honestly say I feel a difference beginning to happen already. Once I begin to accumulate more psychic energy, I may want some advice from you about how to control its flow. But it's enough for now just to say it seems to be working! Many thanks for everything. Bryan.

Dear Mr. Cox; Thank you for your very nice letter - hope you had a marvelous time in London! We have completed our incorporation; in fact our board of trustees is meeting this evening. The following is our formal name & address: Universalist Psychic Society of America, Inc. Box 313, Morris Plains, New Jersey, 07950.

Our present plans include conducting a series of classes in astrology, the art of chiromancy, etc., in hopes of identifying those students we feel would make serious, worthy members of our society. There will be no charge for these courses, so we anticipate no problems in getting students.

At our meeting today, Dr. Sanjuro, our trustee, is going to address us on the topic of "medical sensitivity". He will discuss the possible use of a sort of personality evaluation - to include an up-to-date horoscope, to aid in determining the best day for operations, etc. I am going to speak on the use of highly sensitive electronic machines for detecting very faint electrical waves, and the possibilities of undiscovered waves in the electro-magnetic spectrum.

These are busy days. I'm carrying a full twelve hour load at Rutgers University - finishing my doctorate - am principal of a large Junior High School, a teacher of politics at a local college, and president of a housing authority... Again, thank you for your letter and all good regards. Arthur B. Nash. Lt. Colonel USA (ret) President ARJO.

Continuing With the Great Verne L. Cameron Discoveries

MENTAL BEAMS AND CONE RAYS

On May 23, 1949, a Fallbrook, California Realtor showed much interest in the mental beam. I asked her to concentrate through a doorway upon a small taboret in an adjoining room. Then I directed her to move around so the beam would have to go through the wall. I easily followed the ray to the taboret with my aurameter. Then she said, "Now try again; I'm concentrating on something you can't see." I followed the beam across an adjoining room to the corner of an inner office. I showed her the spot on the office wall. She said, "It is beyond that." So I went around through a door and picked up the beam again where it was striking a Lions' Club emblem in a corner of the office. I went back out and described what I had found. "That's it!" she exclaimed, "That is what I was concentrating on. I knew it was there and you didn't." This seemingly proves that nothing but the reflecting surface of water, or a living body, can impede the beam. A stone wall has no effect upon it.

Several months ago I built a simple instrument to test the field of force around coils, similar to those some local chiropractors were developing for curative purposes. I produced a strange type of coil, a cone spiral of corrugated cardboard wound with one-half-inch wide tape.

I found this type of coil had strange properties. There wasn't any input of energy from power sources. The device acted as an accumulator of the same wave length and with exactly the same characteristics as body emanations, and rays with which I locate underground water.

I found that one coil twenty inches in diameter at the base will accumulate and throw a powerful beam of energy from each of its sides a distance of sixteen-hundred and sixty feet long. I made two, twenty-inch coils, one sixteen-inch, one twelve-inch, and one eight-inch. These I compounded into a group on a wood frame with the polarities of the various sides concentrated into a single beam from the center of the coil pack.

I followed the ray for more than a half-mile with my aurameter, a water locating instrument, and found the beam unchanging in size at that distance. In estimating the energy from the entire group, this beam should reach out nine-thousand to ten-thousand feet. The ray can be confined in a wire from the center of the coil and conducted to a pipe line underground, thus energizing the wire and the pipe line so they may be followed with the instruments for many hundreds-of-feet.

This great concentration of power, I am reasonably sure, is of a wave length between ultra-violet and X-ray. Its entire beam upon striking a bucket of water is diverted upward in the familiar ninety-degree cone. It forms a vertical column exactly over the water the size of the surface of the water. If this beam strikes the upper part of one's body, it is deflected out of the chest, taking most of the body's emanations with it.

PYRAMIDS AS LIVING MONUMENTS
From the Cosmic Memory of Sari!

The sacred name given for "pyramid" derives from PYRA, symbolizing Divine fire, or cosmic energy, operating with very high rates of frequency. Imhotep, possibly a God-like scientist, may have directed construction of the great pyramid of Gizeh. He knew that religion and science issue from the same God Principle, God in action as pure science.

Veins in charged mineralized rocks serve as conduits for Vital Force, the God-Stream or flow of energy in wood, stone, and etc ... Just as man's veins serve as conduits, so do many things act as vessels for Divine flow. Vital force travels via the universal law, "Like attracts like". This life force is charged with dynamic thought. Contemplate this thought deeply: Light is life in man's blood (life) stream. It is also blood or life to the mineralized blocks of wood (now stone) in pyramids.

The circle surrounding the Great Seal on America's one dollar bill exemplifies an earth (on any planet). The eye above the pyramid represents the "All-Seeing Eye" of Deity. Note how its light disseminated life charges (light) to this great edifice! The Latin words, "Novus Ordo Seclorum", meaning "A new order for the ages", indicates new data must come forth and be "heard" for earthman's awakening.

Recent knowledge that the pyramidal blocks were solidified into stone was given telepathically to the higher mind of another being on planet Earth. I must certainly agree with her findings, a re-discovery showing these blocks went through a highly evolved petrifactive process. Although immovable they yet receive perpetual life charges from the Cosmos into their living atoms! Life charges feed into the conical shape of pyramids giving permanency by means of their effect on the stone's content.

God's vital force preserves and evolves man's spirit even as it preserves the pyramids (and evolves them). Everything evolves with mankind. If spirit and pyramids were not of Divine origin, both certainly would have perished long ago; for there is no other real support. Ideas conceived in Divine Mind are imperishable! Remember, Divine constituents of ultra-violet light charge the atoms in both man and pyramids.

Crystallographers who helped build the great pyramid drew forth light from their own centers where reflected Deity "resides" and fused IT with energy from the cosmos. Certain highly evolved crystals with the vital force were revered, for their light contained positive charges of God.

The gemologists charged gems with cosmic energy as found in crystals. Alchemists understood how solar energy transmuted base metals into gold.

Geometrists measured lines and surfaces of pyramidal angles in geomorphic relationship to the higher zones.

Dear Mr. Cox, Thank you for your letter with the issues of the Pyramid Guide that I had ordered... I noticed in PG #6 that Collon Shandler is trying to build some orgone accumulators. This is exactly what the Oraccu is. Wilhelm Reich found that all non-metals seem to have the property of absorbing "orgone energy" from the atmosphere - particularly wood, paper, stone, and plastic. Metals also absorb the energy but then release it almost immediately. A layer of "fold" composed of, for instance, cardboard and aluminum foil, will absorb energy from the cardboard side, transfer at least a part of it to the metal, and expel it out the foil side. Arranged in a cubic structure, the energy would be concentrated in the interior. The more "folds" used, the higher the intensity of the concentration. In comparing pyramidal oraccus to cubic ones, I have found no difference in their abilities to produce sharpening, water purification, and dehydration effects. However, the pyramidal shape does seem to act as what Reich would have called a "shooter", or a ray gun, because of the energy beam coming out of the apex. Curiously, the apex beam does not produce the effects mentioned above. It may have healing properties, but Reich specified that iron or steel is best for healing. Unlike the pyramid, the cubical shape does not seem to need orientation to any particular direction, but the orientation of the object inside it does make a big difference. I would be most interested in corresponding with anyone interested in working with oraccus.

For those who are interested, Volume I of Discovery of the Orgone, subtitled Function of the Orgasm, is published in paperback by Noonday Press and is available at any good book store. Volume II, subtitled The Cancer Biopathy, is still unavailable. Highly recommended is Wilhelm Reich: Selected Writings, also by Noonday.

To comment on the symbols printed on the last page of PG #6, I programmed my pendulum to rotate only if there were a definite energy output from one of the symbols. The only response I got was to the MALTESE-like cross. I will be glad to keep you informed of my oraccu experiments. If you want any more specific information, please let me know. Yours sincerely, Serge V. King

Sovereign Order of Saint John of Jerusalem®
* Knights of Malta *

Historical painting depicting the Order engaged in their first hospital activities (11th Century), protecting European culture and civilization, and the ceremonial Knighthood by the Grandmaster.

These world famous Hospitallers and Knights (of which we find many false imitators today) were always known and respected as the "Protectors of all Christendom," and the ancient arbiters of Religion, Military, Statecraft, Health and the Sciences.

With wholesome praise by 62 Pontiffs, one pope declared: "Almighty God hath built up your Order," . . . as "an immovable pillar of His Church." Lauded also as "Soldiers of Christ," Pope Alexander IV said: "Ye are the elect people of God, a princely race, and an earnest body of righteous men. Ye are the council and congregation of the King of mighty kings."

CAN REPLICA REDUCE RUST?

Worldwide reports indicate form energy in pyramid models actually chases rust, stain, tarnish and various types of weathering and corrosion from metals, including silverplate, costume jewelry, old coins, buttons, knives, and patina from antique goods.

If mounted in a properly oriented pyramid, and allowed sufficient charging time, the incrustation or rust is somehow drawn off the metallic object. The minimum period for noticeable results requires at least a two-week exposure. This time-lapse is an arbitrary one, depending on the thickness and intensity of the corroding substance.

We would appreciate hearing more from experimenters as to the final results attained, and whether the form-energy charge actually sheds the specimen of oxidization leaving it in neat little piles around the base of the object as occasionally reported.

CHALICE WELL, Glastonbury, is chalydeate (iron) in content and radioactive. It flows a consistent 25,000 gallons per day even in draught periods. Archeologists place its building before Christian period, possibly by Druids. Stones are placed in wedge formation LIKE THE PYRAMIDS, so Sir Flinders Petrie believes Egyptian colonists could have hewn the well about 200 B.C. Legend has the Chalice cup from the last supper brought to the well by Joseph of Arithmea on orders from St. Philip, around 60 A.D.
