

the PYRAMID

CANADIAN, AMATEUR HORTICULTURIST, GILBERT MILNE, COMMENTS: "PYRAMID BRINGS A SICK PLANT BACK TO LIFE."

"It's absolutely unbelievable, Bill . . . it's a sight for sore eyes!" So states Gilbert (Gib) Milne, of Toronto. "Lifeless plants revive with three or four days Pyramid exposure," Gib adds. "A small palm tree about to die came back beautifully after a month's Pyramid treatment. And . . ." he goes on, "this may be the most important discovery of all: where are the bugs?" Milne, one of the world's leading freelance photographers, further adds. ". . . a terribly important find. Healthier plants can be expected to attract more pests. No bugs here. No white flies, red spiders, red mites, aphids, no slugs. In fact no rust, mildew, plant diseases raiding the greenhouse and sunroom vegetation as before. And by the way . . . no damp-off. The boys in the trade will tell you what a curse this can be.

"I'm not using sterilized soil, which is very interesting. Right?" Gib continues on the cassette tape, mounting excitement with every word. His plants are thriving under a variety of good, and deliberately imposed, fair and bad conditions to prove beyond a doubt his plant stimulation techniques produce positive results. And to be sure, his methods have created a plant growing investigation all over Canada, with a furor matching the hubbub created by the eminent horticulturist, Luther Burbank, plant breeder of fame, beginning with his famous discoveries in the 1880 s. Growers, nurserymen, florists and college level researchers in Canada, are seriously looking into Pyramid-Plant environments and new growing techniques suggested by Milne. We might add, with pleasure, Gib gives the Pyramid Guide credit for alerting him to the Pyramid, life energies potential.

Gib goes on . . . "my sunroom and greenhouse plants are positively thriving over, under, in and around small open-frame Pyramids. I haven't fertilized with anything, except a light, surface spray, plant feeding this year." Mrs. Milne's parsley responds well to Pyramid emanations. "You just can't believe the texture of the leaves," says Gib. Still, some plants seem to be over stimulated by the Pyramid's charge, especially larger specimens, according to early experimentations. "They appear to be burned by too much energy, so I take them out of the replica's range at times."

The plant buff's longtime electroculture work proves seedlings selected from the same pack, sprout in double-quick time when placed in metal cans or haloed with looped wires. The reinforcement of electro-sky energies pep-up droops and revitalize runts. Milne picks up plants by the stem — pot and all — and with no danger of uprooting them. Plants grown in cans or staked at, or around their base with nails, even girdled around stems and tree trunks with pins and nails show surprising, accelerated growth. Root systems develop with great vigor and literally cling to the nail or metal rod entering their domain from above. Gib, goes one step further and energizes laggards with a little acupuncture. A small pin inserted just below the stem or branch node brings on new growth at that point. "Strange to say," Gib continues, "plant, root systems are content to stay within the metal cans provided them and thrive with surprising intensity, whereas, plants in clay pots have roots ever seeking moisture and nourishment through holes outside the container housing them.

"Here's a shocker," says Milne. My daughter had a birthday on February 7th, where she received a very large and beautiful bouquet of red carnations. During the first four or five days, she kept them in her room day and night. Finally, she brought the carnations into the Pyramid area of the house. Would you believe, we kept them another month before throwing them away?" Gib's words are now flowing a mile a second. "We know geraniums do well in a 45 or 50 degree climate. Sixty to 70 degrees is the most they usually stand. This little guy over here is taking enormous punishment in 85 degree heat, and ever bit as healthy as he can be."

PERHAPS THE WHOLE WORLD IN HIS HANDS . . .
Dr. Ray Brown simulates the Crystal holding position of metallic appearing arms and hands suspending the Crystal Ball he brought to surface from the undersea Atlantic, pyramid room seven years ago. The confounding artifact may have waited countless centuries in some ceremonial attitude before the diver removed it in 1968, and who is now prompted to publically reveal his closely held secret.

STRANGE, SHADOW-LIKE PYRAMIDS SEEN IN ATLANTIC CRYSTAL BALL

Early in March 1975, Dr. Ray Brown, Mesa, Arizona Naprapath, publicly revealed for the first time his extraordinary discovery of a perfectly formed crystal sphere, with shadow-graph appearing pyramids, found within a greater Monolithic Pyramid in the center of Bermuda Triangle in 1968.

Brown, one of five seasoned treasure and artifact divers operating for several years off the Florida Coast, displayed his remarkable, sub-sea object at the Phoenix Psychic Seminar. Spectator responses there continued the unusual chain of physical and mental reactions to the presumed pre-history oracle. Energies from the crystal seem to direct their rays toward the solar-plexus and brow centers of some observers, with no dire consequences, but certainly shock-life effects.

Several factors associated with the luminous, transparent ball, suggest it may focus and project force-fields quickly perceived by psychically aware observers. Dr. Brown purposely withheld information on his find due to many bizarre circumstances before, during and after his encounter with the artifact, retrieved from a ninety-foot high pyramid in twenty-two fathoms of water beneath the Atlantic surface.

Brown and his cohorts were well aware of the dangers associated with their underwater searches for sunken, spanish galleons, and usually elusive treasures. "There's an ever pervading presence of danger lurking near the occupants of smaller craft navigating throughout the so-called triangle area," said Brown. After diving on a

TRIAL BY FIRE

"When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee."

Isaiah 43.2

The third initiation of five ceremonial trials found in ancient teachings, refers to the ordeal by fire. The idea of one enroute to mastership, overcoming fire by superphysical means seems quite fanciful in terms of the human scene as we know it. Anyone of rational mind knows heat above 140 degrees can raise a blister in a hurry. Higher temperatures cause second and first degree burns. A little higher, with temperatures above boiling point (steam), 212 degrees fahrenheit, death from burns can come in a matter of moments.

The more I travel, the more I see and learn, the more I trust the Bible and its allegorical, legendary teachings. We must find our own interpretations for the seemingly unbelievable, or blindly accept someone else's concepts, a risky proposition at best, with such a wide divergence of opinion existing between religious leaders, religions, agnostics, non-believers and the like, aptly described as religious confusion. The Bible describes things in beautiful ways: when we are ready for the teaching we find it was already there, just waiting for our realization of the message cloaked in allegorical descriptions and language.

On March 7th, 1975, I witnessed the reality of the foregoing. Komar, Vernon Craig, demonstrated great courage and self-mastery over fire by walking through a fire pit of burning coals ranging from 1,000 to 1,440 degrees fahrenheit. The feat has been duplicated on numerous occasions, mostly by aborigines, Kahunas in Polynesia, and some eastern tribes. As far as I know, Komar is the first American to conquer fire in modern times.

Where were the medical doctors? Could Komar's ability to out-think pain and avoid what appeared to be certain cremation be of value to the healing fraternity? Where were the scientists? No chemical, mechanical or physical aids, and no low magic employed here. No tricks, whatsoever. Must Komar walk through the pit a thousand times before science - requiring repeatable results - accepts the validity of his performance? They tested so-called psychics with special zenor, guessing cards in telepathic experiments for some thirty years before telepathy became a generally accepted, scientific fact. It's a long, hot road ahead for Komar, and men of his ability.

Knowledge of the intuitional processes applied by Komar, if shared, will bring us all closer to higher self-realization. What are we waiting for? Komar, can you tell us how to overcome fire? Maybe we can use the same principles in overcoming other limitations. "Man shall overcome," alludes to the possibility of returning to our Divine state. Rising above the torment of any element awaits the realized person: the bush that burns without being consumed by fire. Whatever Komar manifested the night of March 7th, wasn't out there in the physical world someplace. He did it from within. If you doubt this statement, ask him. It was only his second attempt since his initial try in 1964, unexpectedly forced upon him at a Wayne County, Ohio, Old Folk's Home benefit. Manly P. Hall, once wrote of an engineer working in the Great Pyramid, who said he considered the wondrous monument an engineering embarrassment. In light of Komar's fire-walking and other pschic feats - and based on presently accepted scientific knowledge - this could be considered a medical-scientific humiliation. Bill Cox

DANIEL 4

19. Then was Neb-u-chad-nez-zar full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Sha-drach, Me-shach, and A-bed-ne-go; therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnance one seven times more than it was wont to be heated.

20. And he commanded the most mighty men that were in his army, to bind Sha-drach, Me-shach, and A-bed-ne-go, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnance.

ATLANTIS AND THE GREAT PYRAMID

Physical evidence now exists for the continent of Atlantis. Megalithic temple blocks, roads, and walls were observed and photographed underwater at depths of 35-95 feet on the continental shelves near Bimini in the Bahamas (1968), and in offshore Spanish territory near Barbeta, 20 miles north of Gibraltar, (1973). Leading authorities on pre-history (e.g. Dr. Mason Valentine, Edgerton Sykes) have validated these undersea remains indicating they are vestiges of a pre-Genesis Atlantic Ocean culture, specifically Atlantis.

Where was Atlantis? Most experts agree it extended outward from the continental shelves on both sides of the Atlantic in the areas of Spain, Portugal, Ireland, Mexico, Central America, the Bahamas, and Canada.

According to psychic data, Atlantis existed as far back as 100,000 B.C. or earlier. The lost continent was destroyed, or drowned, about 11,000 B.C. through the joint action of melting glacial ice, cosmic upheaval, and earthquake. The latter date is easier to assess because of information secured from geologists and oceanographers about rising water levels, changes in undersea strata, and cataclysms frequently experienced in the Atlantic from 29,000 B.C. to 11,000 B.C.

How does the Great Pyramid of Egypt relate to Atlantis? According to accounts from Edgar Cayce and other psychic seers, the Atlanteans, fearing their imminent demise, decided to bury records of their civilization in a location invulnerable to physical changes. Therefore, it is believed they travelled down the Mediterranean before the fall of that great culture and selected Egypt as the burial place for these records, specifically the Great Pyramid and the area adjacent to the pyramid. Some accounts state the Great Pyramid in Egypt at the time the Atlanteans arrived, was constructed by survivors from the sunken Pacific Ocean continent, Lemuria.

Other writers have stated a belief that the Atlanteans built the Great Pyramid to protect their secrets. El Amra was the earliest recorded pre-dynastic city of Egypt (circa 4000 B.C.). A German team, (March 1975), reported finding another city near the Great Pyramid thousands of years earlier than any other recorded Egyptian culture. Considering the antiquity of Jericho (9500 B.C.), and other ancient cities like Catal Huyak in Anatolia, the dates of these early Egyptian cities coincide with the destruction of Atlantis, generally estimated as 11,000 B.C.

AETHERIC APPARATUS WITHOUT FIXED SUGGESTION

Patentschrift, Patentirt im Deutschen Reiche vom 14. 1891 ab. Oscar Korschelt, Leipzig, Germany, (Thanks to subscriber, Bernhard Vaegs, West Germany.)

This device, according to the inventor, taps life energies from the ether. Korschelt's idea evolved out of earlier findings by Wilhelm Weber who believed minute, etheric-electric particles originated in the same cosmic plasma. Korschelt agreed with Weber's concept that these particles are concentrated with unlimited intensity throughout the immediate, etheric (humidic) band surrounding our planet. The theory goes on to state that this energy band causes vibrational fields to issue as rays and beams from all forms, up to a certain distance. These energies presumably obey unknown, but hypothetically logical, mathematical laws in their activity, (ed note: shades of RADIESTHESIA).

Korschelt claimed his form energy apparatus caused a vacuuming effect, created by rotation and orderly interaction with the free, positive etheric particles, adding, and with the negative molecules inherent in solid forms.

"It is therefore possible," stated Korschelt, "by the diffuse moving aether in the atmosphere, to balance-out," the base theory of Korschelt's cosmic contraption. "This apparatus," Korschelt wrote, "can be used for all purposes where an increase of living energy from the aethers is desired."

Figure 1 - The Korschelt apparatus so fixed upon the tripod stand, allows the etheric particles in velocity to enter the mind-aura field of the subject at the point of receptive ingress, joining with the union between the intuitive and intellectual hemispheres of the brain.
 Figure 2 - This spiral on disc device will through a system of wires, gather whorls and curved lines of energy from the ether, bringing the etheric particles into a state of rotation, and will mount upon certain spots so that the living energy can be made useful in various ways. One side of the interconnected, wire-loop, spiral-framed disc is colored blue so that identification between positive and negative sides can always be assured.
 Figure 3 - The helical coil, as developed upon the round plate mentally suggests rotation and is therefore effective with sufficient and carefully selected visualization. However, the chain (figure 5) effect of double-side, wire mountings might be utilized as a driving mechanism to gyrate the etheric wheel under certain conditions. The inventor suggests the etheric whirl can be amplified or lengthened by application of the spiral-link chain.

Dear Bill,
 Thanks for your help in getting the pyramid kit out to us... Put a 6-foot high model in the livingroom, and it's terrific. My wife was not immediately enthusiastic about my idea for the livingroom, but is now completely sold on the pyramid for meditation; we started sleeping in it, and don't plan to sleep any other way; it gives one the sensation of sleeping on the ground in the mountains, a very fine feeling of lightness and well-being that we value. Alfalfa sprouts have done well. I've got to do controlled tests to be sure I haven't imagined it. One large bushy plant has taken up residence inside, too, and it seems to want to stay. Meditation and energy levels definitely seem enhanced. Will be in touch with you after we return from Europe. Thanks again. Our Best, Hans Heinzerling, Minneapolis, Mn.

A New Reality Continuing Series

Soon we began to lose track of time, entering into a new kind of space consciousness. Our sense of space and dimension also became distorted. I personally experienced the sensation of being in a rubbery-like environment, where near walls — according to my memory — suddenly receded from expected range. At one time, I entertained the thought that someone might have removed the walls entirely; or else I was going slightly mad. On other occasions, the walls and household furnishings seemed to be closing in upon me. The once large living-room became almost as confining as a walk-in closet. Until inner perceptions begin to open up, one stands alone in a kind of no-man's-land, neither seeing or feeling life's familiar guideposts. At this point, sound, touch and fragrances become valuable tools in determining one's orientation. Acute listening becomes readily apparent during the first hour. The thinking mind — with eyes open in normal situations — is receiving about 80% of all external input. This 80%, suddenly shifting to other areas of conscious awareness creates a dramatic effect, to be sure.

Eric McLuhan, with a group of Toronto University students followed the lead of the Frenchman, M. Luceran, who became blind in his youth. Having had sight once, Luceran was determined to recapture old visual impressions. Having occasional moments of awareness of things through vibrations — and without the benefit of ordinary vision — Luceran experimented with expectations of discovering new ways of seeing. It was through his encounters with vibrational sight that he authored a book some fifty years ago, (written in French, and to our knowledge, no longer available). Bill Cox

Thoughts from a Pyramidologist
by Bernard I. Pietsch
A PYRAMID EYE ON THE UNIVERSE

From several different meteorological relationships in the Great Pyramid, a very special basis of timing of any and all cycles is given. Since Saturn is the most rigorous time giver, (Chronos), and Mercury has the shortest period, the relationships are exactly 123.6 orbits of Mercury in one orbit of Saturn, and implies a reorder of the Astronomical Table of elements and plants is long overdue. This is a very important and innovative piece of information, since it establishes with certainty values we give to the solar system, now only derived from earth's point in space. Think about this for a minute. To assume the solar system must work as we see it admits to a narrow minded perspective. The pyramid information is given in terms of the perspective of being outside the solar system according to the cycles and inter-relationships of the planets and systems in the starry worlds beyond. The base of true timing rests with the rate of expansion of the universe, and the ancient mathematicians carefully recorded it in the ponderous library of stone.

FRAGMENTS OF THE PSI, (HIGHER) COSMIC SCALE

We have taken on a very ambitious project. Where does one begin to define the levels of superconscious thought, higher mind-to-mind communication, (telepathy), mind over matter; past, present and future memory, psychic, spiritual and Divine healing; the realms of clairvoyance and clairaudience? It is a sad comment on the present evolutionary development of our society, when, as David St. Clair put it: "... in the name of archaic laws, little old ladies all over the country are being arrested for telling fortunes or giving past life readings."

Who can say where any individual operates in consciousness at a specified time: Judgements seal the door of understanding. Bio-feedback devices, despite successes are for the most part, completely inept instruments in coping with the vast realms of mind. The psychological sciences are lost in a maze of intellectualism, conscious and sub-conscious memory, microscopically acquired imprints through conscious, learned processes. Huge grants for the study of hitchhiking in the U.S. or the study of African temperatures during the ice age, or funds for investigating the sex life of the South American guri-guri bug produce no useful information about ourselves, and feelings about each other. Psi investigation does however go right to the heart of this little understood subject. Why then, can't grant monies be secured for an intensive study of parapsychological and metaphysical phenomena? Give us our TV, a weekend camper, night baseball and a six-pack and most everyone remains pacified. Better we don't get too smart, too soon. Anyway, we must try.

The intuitional mind is our guide. The conscious intellect and its sense-oriented reservoir of knowledge — for what it's worth — are only adjunct to the inner prompting unfolding the PSI Scale. It releases in fragments, and we begin with the understanding there is the lower, electromagnetic spectrum, labeled as the Part Scale of Cosmic Vibrations and shown in our last, No. 17 issue of the Pyramid Guide, (see page three therein). And above the now forming PSI Scale, there is another spectrum aware people can sense but not know, except in flashes of cosmic consciousness or moments of illumination; it is OMEGA CONSCIOUSNESS, beyond total self-remembering and continuity of consciousness, seldom experienced in any degree, unless one has completely awakened from the MAYA, illusory world of matter.

Our main thrust will be toward defining some kind of order out of the higher PSI spectrum. We have several, possible arrangements, and a hint of their respective order in sub-scales within the overall spectrum. We welcome all comments, but ask that you the reader, withhold final judgement until the information has had an opportunity to unfold.

At this point, and before the next edition of the newsletter, we present a portion of the framework encompassing the PSI scale of Cosmic Vibrations. We base our approach on the proposition that all spectrums, high and low, readily interact in their higher and lower octaves, and harmonics, under the conscious or superconscious direction of the potentially realized, OMEGA, Divine mind of any human being evolved to that point of evolutionary experience. We make no claims to any special gifts or Spiritual attainments. The information is offered in the light of our Creator's great legacy: Man/woman's right of free choice.

schedule through the 1960's, the Arizona adventurer concluded; "people alone in this area of the Atlantic are often fearful of Cuban artifact pirates, sharks, water too hot or too cold for diving, international restrictions and there's always the 'Bermuda Warp.'"

After studying Spanish Archives for signs of possible treasure-laden shipwrecks, the diving crew occasionally found success, and had in fact, supplied some important museums with artifacts, including Inca art treasures, gold cats with emerald eyes, and other gems of antiquity brought up from the atlantic deeps. They towed a magnetometer behind their boat and worked with sensing devices on board. Once charted, likely diving locales were pinpointed with a floating marker. An earlier designated spot drew renewed interest, so Brown and two other divers slipped over the side, alert for signs of unusual shapes, hopefully leading to a worthy find.

On this particular day, Dr. Brown, in his descent, noticed the ordinarily clear sea was now somewhat opaque with unsettled sediments, recently stirred by the outer rim of a passing hurricane. He had difficulty in seeing more than a few feet ahead. Presently, located at a greater depth, the searching diver looked upward through the murky water to see strong beams of sunlight outlining what appeared to be an Egyptian-like Pyramid. The huge stone structure loomed some ninety feet from the ocean floor. The astonished fortune hunter wondered if it was a trick of his imagination, or was he really seeing the great stone form he thought it to be? It was a strange scene, said Brown, "This monolithic structure emerging from an ocean shelf in some hundred and thirty feet of water." He had no idea how much more of the pyramid remained concealed beneath the visible sea bottom. He noted the polished marble-like surface on the monument, entirely free of the usually expected, coral encrustations found on unmoving underwater objects.

The now electrified diver swam around the pyramid some distance below the topstone, apparently fashioned out of Lapis Lazuli or similar material. On his third pass around the colossal form, he was surprised to see a large, doorless opening, unobserved in his other two approaches around the four sides. Without hesitation, Brown entered the room-sized chamber with a pyramid-peaked ceiling. His light source flashed on stone walls inscribed with swastika symbols. Seven stone seats — one slightly elevated — bordered the rectangular structured walls of the chamber.

Brown's eyes must surely have danced when they focused upward on a two inch plus, diameter shaft projecting downward from the peaked ceiling, obviously trained upon the pedestal mounted forms poised waist-high below. Metallic appearing arms rose up out of the stone platform with hands directed upward in the manner of semi-supplication, both gently holding the amazing, spherical crystal artifact. The bewildered diver reasoned he had certainly swum into the distant past, the culmination of an earlier traumatic experience where he temporarily left his body for an unscheduled trip into the Cosmos following a near-fatal diving accident in the Atlantic in 1968.

Now quickly arousing from his reverie and awareness of a lost time-sense, Brown became immediately conscious of an ominous presence. Perhaps thinking the mysterious opening, which had eluded him during his explorations around the pyramid before entry might now close in upon him, the excited diver suddenly decided to abandon that very strange space, and on impulse, quickly plucked the crystal ball from between the yielding, upright metallic hands.

Finally, returning to the boat, Dr. Ray Brown decided not to reveal the import of his find until he had time for further reflection upon significance of his chimerical episode. The other divers also brought up what they believed to be peculiar, inoperable electronic devices of unexplained origin.

Dr. Brown, long familiar with the vagaries of governmental attitude and laws applying to discoveries of value in international waters, decided to keep his crystal ball encounter a secret. "Once the artifacts are confiscated," he said, "you go to court, maybe after you've won your case a few years later, the treasure has strangely disappeared." Besides, Brown heeding the sinister warning, intuitively imparted that memorable day, decided never to return to the site, and to further await guidance from within as to the implied humanitarian potential connected with his find.

Thus, in March, 1975, we were privileged to witness Dr. Ray Brown's unveiling of the classic, Atlantean Crystal. A few people reacted physically and some psychically to the noble object as mentioned before. We sensed inexpressible feelings toward the exquisite orb; as though it was some form of communicative device — perhaps still on signal — beaming and receiving cosmically imposed properties beyond our comprehension to translate. Dr. Brown sees a possible link between the natural, geometrically shaped, hexagonal crystal, and the spherically, hand-formed crystal ball.

Disobeying a previous pact to heed the intuitional warning not to return to the sea pyramid site, three of the five original divers are no longer alive, a blood-chilling omen. They all met death in diving accidents, their empty boats were found drifting aimlessly in the silent, untelling Atlantic.

Milne breaks all rules with his hibiscus. The flowers blooming three to four days, and even then, the blooms can't be shaken off. "And over here . . . says Gib, "this tiny orange tree with constant blooms. Bill, you never saw so many oranges on a tree in your life."

The dynamic photographer considers light a most important ingredient where plants are concerned. Most of his garden specimens flourish under controlled, fluorescent light. "But," says Gib, "plants under the Pyramid do better in light deprived areas. Figure that one out." Apparently vegetation, always through photosynthesis, seek a balanced environment of heat and light for their vitality and propagation. "The variations of requirement of artificial light are many," says Gib. "The foot-candles of light used must balance and harmonize with each individual plant's needs."

The innovative horticulturist, refers to an earlier comment . . . "light-starved specimens do well in the Pyramid environment, and qualifies the replica as a new kind of light source." Though this light may be invisible to ordinary sight, and not readily detected by available scientific instruments doesn't mean it's not there. Of course electrical, magnetic, solar, lunar and other energies can be involved. To confirm Milne's and the Pyramid Guide's earlier suspicions, Gib set up a two foot high Pyramid above plants enveloped in the complete nigrescence of his basement darkroom. After a month his "impatiens" were doing very well. The fibrous begonias have held their own, defying the logical principles of horticulture. Gib adds: "I'm going to run extensive tests, because it's very obvious there's a secret source of light inside the Pyramid . . . it's just unreal, what's happening!"

The pleased plant hobbyist continues to confound knowledgeable visitors, for example, by breaking geraniums off the parent stock, where they quickly take root and grow with a burst, defying known laws and time in the process. For more information concerning Gilbert Milne's work and cassette tapes, monologues and a one-to-one taped discussion on his work with Bill Cox, April '75 in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, write to the Pyramid Guide.

THE GREAT AMERICAN FIRE-WALK . . . at Bill and Betty Finch's Phoenix, Psychic Seminar. (1) Komar, (Vernon Craig), of Wooster, Ohio, in his "civies," surveys leaping, ten-foot high flames, in preparation for his twenty-foot, seven to eight second walk through 1,200 degree average, metal melting, hot coals. In the next panel, (2) Komar tunes up for the spectacular in full performing regalia, by leaping barefooted from upturned, (and very sharp) sword blades, onto a bed of flesh piercing nails, (sorry no photo of the actual jump, as some little boy nudged the camera on the last moment. Oh well . . .) but in the following frame, (3) Denied use of flash for obvious reasons, camera captures near-end of Komar's superhuman effort, just before stepping out of the fire pit. The rather ghostly looking fakir, by the way, did not run; he walked, at times shin deep in the blazing coals, and appeared to partially levitate during the last few steps, (4) The next day, Komar feels no pain lounging on the patio turf of the J. Newton Sands Hotel in Phoenix. (See more on Komar's amazing feat in Fourth Dimension Reachout on page two of this edition.

ARE YOU READY FOR THIS . . . ? Dr. Ray Brown, Mesa, Arizona Naprapath, poses with his approximate 2½" diameter, Atlantic Crystal, discovered in a sub-sea pyramid while scuba diving in the Bermuda Triangle, 1968. An expert has appraised the rare object at $18,000, but the perfectly formed artifact isn't for sale at any price. Dr. Brown says the Crystal seems to have some of the characteristics of the legendary Urim and Thummin, referred to in the Bible; "made from light itself," says Brown, "involving more than mere physical properties."

EGYPTIAN-LIKE PYRAMID . . . looms ninety feet above the Atlantic Ocean floor, in the middle of the Bermuda Triangle. Dr. Brown, described the polished surfaces and tightly fitted, mortarless joints of unmatched craftsmanship, and free of the usually expected, live coral encrustations. Brown, announced the nature of his find last March, after waiting a few years to share it with the world at the Phoenix Psychic Seminar.

"OBSERVE THE PYRAMID CRYSTAL FROM EYE LEVEL," says the adventuresome, former sea-diver. Three shadow pyramids — sometimes a fourth can be seen — each, in sequential, staggered row, appear to conform to a miniaturized angle and degree of the Great Pyramid of Giza. From the side, the pyramids are seen as four parallel, darkened planes inside the one-piece, uncut Crystal Ball. In addition, an auric light may be captured by the eyes of clairvoyantly inclined observers.

THE OREGON VORTEX
PLANETARY CHAKRA OR EARTHLY ACUPUNCTURE POINT?
LOC. 42°29'40"N 123°5'W Mag Declination 1944 - 20°E.

What manner of strange energy whirlpool spherically divides ground level near Gold Hill, Oregon? The vortex and its minor vortices has scientists pondering.

With its seemingly visual and geometric distortion, warping and magnetic trickery, the Oregon Vortex beautifully attunes with galactic and Cosmic energies. In its diverse behavior a balanced, celestial mathematics appears in coordination with universal laws, right down to the electronic perfection of our tiniest atom.

Photos disprove the possibility of optical illusion, nevertheless, investigators standing erect within its circular margins and most trees near or touching one of the 57" wide terralines are seen to look taller and lean toward magnetic north, but appear shorter facing south. Still, a companion walking away southward becomes taller. Upon approaching he appears shorter.

This phenomenon opposes all laws of perspective. Upright posture aligns one's body with the vertical, whereas slouching causes the body to lean away from the plumb line.

The periodically expanding and contracting 165'4-1/2" radius, corona of energy, creates a definite warp. The Indians were well aware of this magical site. Legend says they called it "The Forbidden Ground."

The Indian ever Cosmically attuned to life energies and form applied them to healing and regenerative purposes. Unfortunately, our technological concepts of ancient cultures usually distort legends with fanciful notions and tourist appealing propaganda.

New knowledge affirms magnetism's obvious effects on living organisms. "A magnet has not one effect on the living system but two effects, each supplied by the two forms of energy transmitted from each pole of any and all magnets, even the earth itself, which is a great magnet." (*from "MAGNETISM AND ITS EFFECTS ON THE LIVING SYSTEM" by Albert Roy Davis and Walter C. Rawls, Jr.). Davis and Rawls point up "the exciting possibilities of altering the genetics of plants, animals and many forms of life within the new science of 'Biomagnetics'.

Terralines running north and south, east and west through the Oregon Vortex contact it with a period of oscillation measured at 22.329 seconds. They curiously correspond to the square root of the astronomical light unit of distance @ 498,5000 seconds. The terralines beyond contact with the area do not oscillate but move some 14-1/2" as the circular field expands and contracts. They also exert no noticeable reaction upon a compass, so scientists can't legitimately say the Oregon Vortex is a magnetic field. A heavy lead shield can't halt the energy's penetration, but gold can absorb energy waves.

Seven of these vortices are known to exist. They conform in number, though not in location, to the human system of chakras. One of these high energy points lies only 40 miles away on the summit of the Siskiyou Mountains in Oregon.

One wonders what would happen to water flowing over the Oregon Vortex. Davis and Rawls write of charging water by running it over a south pole magnet. Magnet water applied to root systems increases plant growth, should world food shortages and starvation be inevitable?

THE TRIANGLE - THE BASIS OF LIFE
Tony Mallin

Dear Friends:

In the May/June 1974, No. 11, PYRAMID GUIDE, on page 5, Lucille McNames (Sari), says, "The pyramids were designed as a triangle to receive and preserve vital forces, the creative progressing, unfurling formation of life."

While in the process of researching whale brains I ran across an article about rat brains relating to the little understood gray matter of whales. I ran across a drawing of a cortical neuron and immediately grasped its significance, recalling Lucille McName's revealing comments. I'm enclosing my sketch of this cortical neuron. When you see it, note its name, "pyramidal cell" and significance.

This "pyramidal cell" communicates with others of its kind by dendrites, long feelers. These dendrites have spikes receiving energy from other "pyramidal cells." Do they like pyramid replicas accumulate energy? Instead of containing energy as our pyramid models do it seems they send the force onto the next "pyramid cell" via their dendrites?

This brings up many possibilities with pyramid replicas. Even more surprising, Sari stated that, "The pyramids were designed as a triangle to receive and preserve vital forces . . ." and this is exactly the "pyramid cell's" function. I'm amazed that she came to such a basic premise and I'd like to know how she did it . . . ?

Tony Mallin, a one-man drive to save the whale, and his whale information program: "Project Jonah," sees cosmetic and pharmaceutical firms and pet food producers using whale products overseas as a great threat toward the whale's extinction. "Foreign whalers harpooning one of these creatures, one approximately every seventeen minutes, are the chief offenders," he says, and account for about 90% of the great whale kill."

MT. SHASTA — A PLACE OF PROMISE
(Part one, of two parts)

Fourth Dimension Reachout

For years the beauties, legends, underground cities, temples of the good and mysterious and supernatural inhabitants of Mt. Shasta have been noted by several writers.

Legend is defined as "a story of life coming down from the past." Let us look into some of Mt. Shasta's legends as I open my journal containing truths given to me by those who live on a plane of evolution far beyond my own. The broad valleys of Strawberry, Squaw, Butte, Shasta and Scott comprise the area once known as "Valley of the Dome," with Mt. Shasta as "the Dome."

Long, long ago, many races preceding the Indians came to worship in this Valley of the Dome, a vast amphitheatre. Healing, learning, rest, restoration and inspiration drew them here, and in the not too distant future the people of our planet will come again. There was a great and wondrous temple of light in this Valley of the Dome, so far in the distant past it cannot now be remembered, but one day the temple will be rebuilt in this same amphitheatre, for MT. SHASTA IS A PLACE OF PROMISE.

Powerful cosmic rays pour down upon Mt. Shasta. These vibrations have the power to influence whomever and whatever they fall upon. For many centuries the Valley of the Dome's earth has been impregnated with these cosmic rays enriching it with nourishing minerals. The people of this valley worked and worshiped the Deity we call God, even now as we worship Him. They weren't "supernatural," but ordinary folk just as we are, having the same aspirations, difficulties and compensations we experience. To be supernatural, one must have capacities beyond the normal, to perform miracles. Jesus performed so-called miracles but he was not supernatural. Through self-denial and self-discipline he manifested the creative power vested within him and in all of us and he used this power to a superlative degree.

The Valley of the Dome's rich soil produced food in great size, flavor and abundance. Mt. Shasta's lava, the potash, lime and iron in their decomposition added to the soil's fertility at her base. The essence of these minerals together with decomposed granite, decaying vegetation and abundant rainfall, indeed make it a magical earth.

In a letter from a friend long in communication with those who live on the Plane of Thought the following came through:

"The vibrations of the past are easily felt or experienced at the so-called power points on the earth's surface. The ancient mystics held their meetings and ceremonies, spending much time communing with God and unifying themselves with the universe. The pure but powerful vibrations of these ancient, high adepts still remain. They chose these spots for worship, as with the Valley of the Dome, for they knew their own power could be increased in convergance with cosmic rays in abundance here. Thus the cosmic rays of now and the high vibrations of long-gone men permeate this Holy place."

Power points, where there is a grounding of light are produced by invisible rays striking the earth at certain spots on our globe. The more a spot is used for meditation and/or prayer, and dedication to the Divine Plan, the more powerful the sites' vibrations will become. Visitors of all times may then experience the great power stored within that area. Wishing to know if Mt. Shasta were such a place I went to those highly evolved ones with whom I frequently converse:

"Yes, Mt. Shasta is such a point of power in the universe where in long times past, great ones came to live and work, and pray that they might increase that power within themselves, and then, as they went out into the world of men they would radiate that power to awaken them of the possibility and need for a better life. Mt. Shasta is indeed such a point of power seldom felt elsewhere."

I have on several occasions climbed magnificent, mysterious Mt. Shasta, never to her summit but nearly so. The ascent is difficult and hazardous, particularly from Rest House at the timberline where the climb is steep and nearly perpendicular in places. Noise polluting snowmobiles churn the once clean blanket of snow into mud ruts disturbing the mountain's natural vibration and rhythm. Fires have too ravaged the lovely mountain and her timbers have been cut, adding to her hurt. Mt. Shasta is the homeplace of wonderfully wise Beings who ever serve our Creator by watching over us, helping us in our struggles to find the Christworld way.

These great, wise, highly evolved ones live in their etheric bodies in the etheric field of the mountain and they disperse the disturbing and sometimes malicious vibrations being thrust into the atmosphere by those who know not the mountain is a place of peace, prayer and meditation: for many come here for restoration and inspiration. Those great ones have been holding this beautiful place in God's universe free from the ill effects of negative vibrations so our people may seek healing and rest here. In its own time and rhythm disrupting conditions will no longer be, for the earth continually moves higher and higher into its own true vibratory rate. Such undesirable emanations will have been withdrawn from the area leaving it as it was meant to be when created.

For more than twenty-five years we've known insects react in strange ways to pyramid environments. Mere wire frame or thread, maypole type, pyramid caps somehow enhance or disturb the vibratory space of Nature's tiny creatures.

We've observed flying insects upon approach to a panel-less meditation pyramid suddenly veer off at right angles, as though they struck an invisible barrier. By odd coincidence there's no absolute assurance this will occur. Flies and mosquitoes for example, seldom zoom right on inside, oblivious to the apparent auric shield driving away their brothers. Of these interlopers few find it convenient to linger inside for very long hurriedly departing for less hostile environs. Those who are somehow unaffected by the high sound vibrations stirring inside the open frame pyramid's high energy chamber can drive the inquisitive researcher completely "bugs." By what stroke of Nature are they the exception? Could they be in a more elevated state of group consciousness?

In 1948, Verne Cameron discovered maggots infesting decayed meat soon made a rush for the sidelines when a pyramid cap was placed over the object of their feast. We earlier reported the bizarre behavior of wiggly fishing worms subjected to a wire pyramid frame mounted over their earthly dwelling place. I believe the speed, intensity and quality of pyramid vibrations are just too refined for such sluggish, low vibrational creatures. Flies and the like are obviously in higher states of vibration than earth-bound insects. Still they vibrate too low for prolonged pyramid play. None it seems, have any more business loitering inside a pyramid than I would meditating in a microwave oven. Why become a cooked cookie when there are friendlier habitats outside? Yes, the pyramid's song shoos away inquisitive insects. We solved our outdoor, summer eye-gnat problems with a pyramid covered patio four years ago.

The freaky list of pyramid-insect reports runs long and wide. I leave these curious questions with you?

How come pyramid frames seem to control algae and other minutia life forms in a fish tank or aquarium, while tiny brine shrimp grow astoundingly larger and experience a trebled life-span? Why do some organisms grow to enormous proportions, producing greater yield, and attaining brighter color, texture and more balanced symmetric form in pyramid environments? Meanwhile others are found literally burned, as with over-fertilizing, wither away from overcharging after a few hours inside the open-frame pyramid chamber? When they know the answers to these questions investigators will realize one key to understanding "Life Energies" lies concealed in the little-known science of "Form Energy."

PYRAMID'S RELATIONSHIP TO EARTH'S MAGNETIC FIELD NOTED BY CLEVELAND, OHIO RESEARCHER, BILL HALAS SAYS, "TIM BALLINGHAM'S LETTER PRINTED IN VOL. III, NO. 4 OF THE GUIDE REMINDED ME OF THE FIRST PYRAMID EXPERIMENTS I CONDUCTED DURING MY VACATION ON PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND, CANADA. I USED A VENTILATED CARDBOARD PYRAMID WITH A BASE OF 16 CM. THE EXPERIMENT CONSISTED OF PLACING A POKKET KALLIROSCOPE (MANUFACTURED BY KALLIROSCOPE CORP., CAMBRIDGE, MASS.) UNDER THE PYRAMID. IT IS A PLASTIC METAL AND GLASS CHAMBER ABOUT 3"x5"x1/2" AND FILLED WITH PERCHLORETHYLENE. YOU CAN SEE INTO THE CHAMBER THROUGH THE GLASS PLATE TOP. IT LOOKS LIKE CLOUDS INSIDE. THE CLOUDS ASSUME VARIOUS SHAPES WHEN YOU SHAKE THE KALLIROSCOPE OR WHEN YOU PLACE YOUR FINGER ON THE GLASS. THE HEAT FROM YOUR FINGER CAUSES THE GASSES INSIDE TO MOVE. THE KALLIROSCOPE WILL PRESENT SLOWLY CHANGING FORMS WHEN JUST LEFT STATIONARY NEAR A WINDOW. SOMETIMES IT JUST GOES BLANK. WHEN I PLACED THE KALLIROSCOPE UNDER THE PROPERLY ALLIGNED PYRAMID A STRAIGHT LINE APPEARED IN THE CLOUDS OF THE DEVICE. THIS HAPPENED WITHIN ONE HALF HOUR AFTER BEING PLACED UNDER THE PYRAMID. I HAD NEVER SEEN THE KALLIROSCOPE PRODUCE A LINE LIKE THIS SO I CHECKED ITS DIRECTION WITH A COMPASS AND FOUND THE LINE WAS POINTING DUE NORTH. I REPEATED THE EXPERIMENT MANY TIMES. THE LINE APPEARED A NUMBER OF TIMES BUT NOT EVERY TIME. I LATER TRIED PLACING A LODESTONE ON THE KALLIROSCOPE TO SEE IF A MAGNETIC FIELD WOULD PRODUCE A LINE OR SOME PATTERN RELATED TO THE MAGNETIC PROPERTIES OF THE STONE. IN EVERY INSTANCE WHEN I PLACED THE LODESTONE ON THE SCOPE THE SCREEN WOULD GO BLANK... NO PATTERN OF ANY SORT WOULD BE FORMED. I MUST CONCLUDE THERE WAS A DEFINITE RELATIONSHIP BEING CREATED BY THE PYRAMID; I.E., A CARDBOARD STRUCTURE PATTERNED AFTER THE GREAT PYRAMID PRODUCED AN EFFECT RELATED TO THE EARTH'S MAGNETIC PROPERTIES. THE PLANT MACHINE... AN ELECTRONIC WINDOW ON THE RESPONSIVENESS OF PLANTS TO PERSONS AND SITUATIONS HAS BEEN DEVELOPED BY A NORTHERN CALIFORNIA ELECTRONICS RESEARCH FIRM. WORDS FROM ONE GONE OVER... Our earth is not a mere conglomerate of soil and sand, tree and fern, mountain and meadow; not just a great, round orb created for man to walk upon. Ah, no. The earth is spirit substance, as you and I are spirit substance, and it groans and exults, sorrows and weeps, inhales and exhales even as we do. Nikola Tesla, the great electrical genius who was wholly God-motivated and God-directed, tells us "the Earth's vibrations have a periodicity of approximately one hour and forty-nine minutes; that is, a wave of contraction goes through it returning one hour and forty-nine minutes in the form of expansion. The earth, like everything else is in a constant state of vibration, continually contracting and expanding."

Elevnora Wherit together with her gentle husband, Dr. Paul Wherit, live on a large parcel of pine and floral-covered acreage a short distance from the base of Mt. Shasta. They have been residents there almost continuously since the early 1940's. Elevnora and Dr. Wherit know Bliss: They are in Bliss and Agape Love Consciousness a great deal of the time, and Mrs. Wherit is an accomplished writer, artist, avid meditator and channel of wisdom teachings. (eds'.) (To be continued)

World travellers, Soichi Asai President, and Hiroshi Ono, Vice President of the UFO and Parapsychology Researching Club of Kyoto University, Kyoto City, Japan, visited Guide Headquarters in Los Angeles May 16, 1975.

"Uri Geller's recent visit to Japan generated a large wave of psychic activity among Nipponese children," they said, "Many actually upstaging the well-known, Psychic Magician." Asai and Ono told us the known number of psychically active children in Japan may run between twenty and thirty thousand.

At first, the children could only bend spoons, knives and other light utensils, but later on they began to demonstrate various new and unique, psychic abilities according to their own self discoveries. For example, here are a few phenomenal talents that came to light during the interview:

"Some youngsters found they could predict the type and order of playing cards dealt face down on a table," said Asai, "Others were able to mentally generate a thought photograph on camera film, exposed in total darkness." One child can cause metal objects to disappear in local space. Psycho-Kinesis (P.K.) moving objects by mental direction soon became a rather common occurrence. "Teleportation, prophecy and telepathic, mental radio communication no longer remain unusual forms of expression in Japan," says Asai and Ono. One boy they know, can simultaneously see happenings in the present or shift into cognition of future events merely by gazing into a water-filled washbowl. Another youth with P.K. abilities can recharge batteries by touching them. Masters of Esoteric Teachings have long predicted the dawn of new root race births presently occurring on a planetary scale. These children, advanced in their evolution prove extra sensory perception is not extra at all.

It occurs to me that the highly potent Atom Energies unleashed by the Atomic Bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, at the close of World War II, may have given Japan's immediate environment new rates of vibration, affecting the psychic capabilities of that nation's newborn children. Jean Caminer

BENDING SPOONS with mental energy (P.K.), by Japanese children has almost become a national pastime since Uri Geller's visit to the Great Pacific Island.

MATERIALIZATION (Apports) Bringing objects and matter from a distance into physical manifestation

DEMATERIALIZATION: (Mentally causing matter (objects or substances to disappear, locally or at a distance)

PSYCHO-KINESIS: (P.K.) Mentally changing matter, such as bending metal objects. (P.K. in more elementary form: acting on an object or organism at a distance. Many forms of Psychic healing commonly occur at this level.)

(P.K. in descending octaves and harmonics. First signs of buoyancy — horizontal levitation. Some degree of moving material objects through mind power.)

PSIONIC ENERGIES

PSYCHOTRONICS: Use of a material device or mind energy generator of particular alloys, form, design and arrangement, to mentally charge it at a distance and causing its motion to sustain for various periods of time.)

PERSONAL MAGNETISM AND THE BODY

ELECTRIC: Conscious or involuntary use of magnetic or electrostatic fields associated with the physical form causing so-called non-physical events to occur, such as: starting or stopping watches or clocks; causing noticeable energy changes in radio, electronic and sound equipment.

Roboly worked with the McLuhan group, and joined them in taking the Camera Obscura experiment to Brazil where Jean-Claude directed a film on their work while there. It isn't a workshop for amateurs; too many pitfalls await the uninitiated. Some zealous experimenters unaware of the deep psychological and esoteric aspects of the experiment soon found Camera Obscura requires years of background and development before one can become a guide. "Try blindfolding yourself for an hour or two at home alone," they say, "without a guide, and notice the feelings of panic and helplessness invading one's consciousness."

After being deprived of sight for several hours, I learned to move about with greater speed, above anything I had ever dreamed imaginable. Then in tiny sips and flashes, I discovered occasional twilight glimmers of the outside world and the people around me. A new kind of awareness dawned in consciousness, but a presentiment or type of foreboding, unknown before, fear of being left alone by the others, in empty silence entered my mind at regular intervals. This, with other experiences indicated to me the importance of preparation and guidance.

On the second day, I came to know the presence of a vibrational presence, as it were. Outside, the vegetation, and even inanimate walls and structures announced their presence. For example, where I had previously felt for the edge of a long, narrow cement walk with my foot, a walk that led to the seashore, I instinctively knew where the ribbon of cement led. Indescribable voices of shrubs, closing on both sides formed a narrow passage through with I passed unerringly on the path to the sea. Could it have been my subconscious serving up images to light the way? Did my subconscious mind possess visual powers, perhaps sensing via my body aura? Could telepathy be involved?

With my newfound orientation there were others who walked faster, and with more deliberate movement. Were they pecking? What manner of power had they discovered? I'm still not sure, except that they too encountered the realm of vibrational sight. Their perceptions, or sensing, may have come to them in other ways. One knows it by living it.

On another occasion while strolling to and along the seashore with the group, imagery signalled the presence of a long tunnel before me, a tunnel which of course didn't exist. But by following the visualizations, I was self-guided correctly along the concrete walk, and again later at water's edge, knowing if I didn't trust the dream-like tunnel in its outline and direction I would certainly go astray.

EARLY EGYPTIAN FIGURE Projects in wall shadow behind Hawaiian Kahuna, Morna Simeona. Ms. Simeona was speaking on "A Glimpse Into Egypt" at the '75 Rainbow Festival in the Sheraton Waikiki, Honolulu, HI. where the spectre seemed to coordinate its motion with the speaker's bodily movements. However, there was little visible in the physical-material foreground to correspond with the ancient, high priest's giant-like, umbrageous outline.

Dear Mr. Cox,

...For your readers: Extraordinary proof of Akasha "La Domenica delCorriere" (weekly) from MILANO 20100, via Solferino 28, of May 2, 1972 published in interview of 47 years old Father Pellegrino Ernetti on his last discovery - so he could localize and recompose the THVESTES, a tragedy performed at Roma in 169 B.C. near the Apollo Temple between the Flaminio Cirque and The Forum. Written by Quintus Ennius, it is written in a difficult Latin. He found proof for his discoveries with since short deceased people on which there is abundant historical information (Pope Pie XII, Mussolini, etc.) Their images were compared with films and engraving of their epoch. The results are nevertheless satisfying. More, he took photos of Christ, the more known (photo) being this of the expression of the dying Jesus. On this (he claims he also filmed the life of Jesus) he do not yet make any commentary. As this machine could provoke a worldwide tragedy yet, as it suppress the liberty of speech, action and thought. Thoughts to emit energy and can then be tuned in and capted. So, either the whole mankind will destroy itself or there will be a new moral, more elevated. For the machine, a series of antennae (you say areals?) shall give the possibility of tuning into (particularly) the voices and images; the double track of sound and image let after each human from his birth till his death, a sort of identification card. Science, you know, has confirmed that sound can be transformed into light and universely. Then, even the tone, so as the light, wave will not be destroyed. As everything can again be catched. The Russians confirmed that Father Ernetti has really photographed Jesus on the Cross. Later it will be possible to see, at last: at your TV, the real life of Jesus. This for too many people interesting machine can be dangerous and used for evil. So the Italian government took it and put it in Roma, in a night and day guarded armoured (vault or) cellar. In July-Aug. you tell that space being Kolar said, the pyramid is 45,000 years old. But E. Cayce in his precise lectures said it was constructed by Hermes and the High Priest Ra-Ta (that its construction was directed by, more exactly) at Gizeh, in 10,490 to 10,390 (it took a century), completed in Araaraat's time. ... J. VUILLIEN, PERRET, FRANCE. (Ed. note: This letter had to be printed verbatim.)

Dear Bill Cox:

Mrs. Sheila van Niekerk from Rhodesia has written me this unusual letter. She mentions the "Pyramid Guide" and the helpful articles therein. You mentioned the fact that she wrote me in one of your issues perhaps two issues back. The outstanding statement in her letter is that the pyramid eliminates parasites. In my 10'x10' base, angle iron-no sides pyramid in my patio, I have noticed the absence of insects. ... "Dear Mr. Williams, Many thanks for the pyramid received last September/October time which has been under my bed suitably oriented and placed ever since. My health has improved enormously since I started using this pyramid and I've been able to help others similarly with the information you so kindly sent. All parasites are cleared. As you so rightly say, the information in The Pyramid Guide is quite fascinating. I wrote off for the first six copies as you suggested. They only arrived this month but are already doing the rounds with my dowsing friends and others interested in similar matters. There is so much of such tremendous interest that I often wonder where folks find time to be anything except busy learning and studying the wonderful natural laws with which we can work. ..." CHARLES W. WILLIAMS, EAST BRIDGEWATER, MASS.

Dear Sirs:

I was privileged to hear Mr. Bill Cox speak on pyramids when he came to Cleveland on April 16, 1975. I am still very enthused about pyramids, and in fact, in my current role as an urban planner, would propose that new construction in downtown Cleveland be built in pyramid shapes. At Mr. Bill Cox's lecture I actually "tried a pyramid on", I was very surprised to find that I did experience a tingling sensation when I removed it. Mr. Bill Cox, unfortunately did not have enough information on constructing a pyramid and he said that by writing to this address, you would mail me some information on how to construct them. I have enclosed a self-addressed-stamped envelope for your convenience. Please rush, I am most anxious. LARRY W. SCHUSTER, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Dear Bill:

...I've enjoyed reading "The Pyramid Guide" for on more than a few occasions it has caused me to sit back and look at things from other levels that are open to me. It has been most interesting. JOHN J. MULHALL, PLEASANT HILL, CALIFORNIA.

Dear Bill:

Thanks for your letter; also for the 'Guide' copies--practically all have been distributed locally, mostly to students who seemed to take quite an interest in the articles. I believe the U. of Oregon has a record enrollment this quarter (I am certainly aware of the greatly increased numbers on campus)--hopefully this will produce some new 'Guide' subscriptions. I can appreciate the workload you must have at this time. I've just moved my own office. and am getting out from under the paper again; enclosed is some class printing, also my report of a UFO sighting of 28 Sept. Immediately following my UFO contact, on the hike out of the woods, we had an encounter with Big Foot (the Sasquatch)--more intense an energy field even than the presence of the UFO--and much more revealing into the nature of the psychic plasma field. Although I did not actually see Big Foot, Mr. Daigneault did, and rendered a sketch of the furry creature, with a silver, conically-shaped head. I can say now with some degree of certainty that the two phenomena, UFOs and Big Foot, must be connected in some way. This may relate to the "tunnel" and the "arrow" mentioned in my report--as Big Foot is a land & subterranean creature and could be connected with those earth features which we were observing when we first came under UFO surveillance. The shape, or Energy of Form, of Big Foot's head seems to me to be directly connected with the creature's capability of putting out a strong PSI Plasma Field. At any rate, Bill, all this info may be edited for inclusion in the 'Guide' as you see fit. DOUG STEINMETZ, EUGENE, OREGON.

PYRAMID GUIDE:

...If you live in a trailer, or other metallic structure, or near one, and you gave up pyramid experiments because "they don't work," take an ordinary cheap compass and place it exactly in the center of the place you will put your pyramid, and orient your pyramid by the compass, regardless of what any maps or theories say or where the north star is or where the sun rises. The reason is that in addition to the frame and axle, a trailer is full of things like stoves, heaters, refrigerator, radio, TV, etc., which have their own magnetism. Try walking the full length of a trailer with a compass and point your body "north" -- it's something like doing a square dance. Evidently pyramids work on the local magnetism, and not on the earth's magnetic axis. Incidentally, Egypt and Florida are both located where the declination is close to zero, or in other words where a compass points true north. J. HERRON, MONTICELLO, UTAH.

DEAR SIR: ...The vortex-atom theory as relating to the pyramid represents a milestone in scientific progress. By 1980 anti-gravitic devices will become as common as electricity is today. Combustion engine and oil are now dying industries. I foresee teleportation and time distorting machines before 2000 A.D. Much of the old math is now outdated, including Einstein concepts. Synthetic Logic in a multi-valued system is many times more powerful than numerical logic. Synthetic Geometry, low-low Entropy Content Analytic Geometry, moderate Entropy - combine these and you have near ZERO Entropy. (Quality-Quantity-Process) This decade will see the emergence of the first prototype starships. Something like 7-timewarps akin to 7-quantum jumps of velocities beyond light, dark, energy bands. A new definition of "time": interacting particles in MOTION via the ether produce local space-time frames; hence the by-product of time, the effect, has its cause in MOTION. Q. Although my friends and I could not afford to come and hear you speak at the Cleveland, Ohio Unity Church, I listened for quite awhile out in the lobby. I found your ideas very much in harmony with my own; however, I wish to take issue with your concept of Psi as an electromagnetic phenomenon. If, for instance, telepathy or dowsing were a particular band of frequencies of electromagnetic radiation, it would follow the inverse square law, that is, that it would diminish in amplitude as a function of the square of the distance from the source. This would contradict the fact that telepathy has been received at least from the moon, and that "map dowsing" at great distances from the water is possible Psi phenomenon, not screened or interfered with by objects or waves which are known to affect electromagnetic radiation. I most strongly suggest that you read "Consciousness And Realities", Avon Books, Published by Outerbridge & Lazard, by Charles Muses and Arthur Young. The area of conflict is in Chapter 3 in an essay on ESP by Arthur Young. I would appreciate your writing me in regard to this problem. It occurred to me as an afterthought that if time "transcendence" is possible, it could not be because of vibration because electromagnetic oscillation requires time to occur. Love, Michael Shellenbarger, Lyndhurst, Ohio.

A. I didn't say telepathy or dowsing are on particular bands or frequencies of the electromagnetic spectrum. The point I tried to make was that telepathy, dowsing and other so-called psychic manifestations lie in a range of ever increasing vibrations far above and beyond the electromagnetic scale of phenomena, and these scientifically presumed, paranormal expressions can interact in their lower octaves and harmonics with touch, sound, sight, smell, taste, electric radio, heat, chemical and other rays identified with the electromagnetic range of vibrations. I also added that the higher octaves and harmonics of the electromagnetic scale can at times blend with higher Psi (mind) energies. It is interesting to note that mounting evidence in my own personal research and experiences convinces me that thought is the ultimate impeller of all energy activities. What, whose thought, when, where and how? Were our present electromagnetic legacies the gifts of Divine Beings who preceded us on this planet? And what of the ascending octaves and harmonics of the higher Psi spectrum. Can we call them in to play and control their essence force as humans? I believe so... And herein lies the realm of neither physical, black or white magic. It is high magic. BC.

TRUNCATING THE CONE...D.V. Walsh of Bermuda asks: Do you have any information on the vibrational alterations created by truncating a metal cone? The late Verne L. Cameron did some experimenting with inconclusive results. There seems to be a definite change of external energy patterns and flows outside. The fields within this cavity generator are difficult to measure without doing so inside the form itself.

Dear Mr. Cox: Although I am a recent addition to your ever growing readership, nevertheless in this relatively short time I have profited immensely from the learning experience provided by your most worthy publication. New Age thought of whatever expression should essentially provide an impetus to the Spirit of man (his higher intuitive nature). Accordingly, a valuable publication with these goals should, in addition to cataloging objective and subjective phenomena, also provide articles whose format is designed specifically to get readers to think creatively instead of mechanically. This can be accomplished best by employing a non-intellectual, free-flowing style suffused with a kind of verbal symbolism. The reader's thought in endeavoring to decipher the symbolism, unhampered by rational urgings due to the simplicity of style, of necessity moves back upon itself - discovering its own nature. Thus, in addition to providing meaning for the symbols, the reader focuses on his own consciousness, providing a healthy atmosphere for the bud of self-knowledge to flower. The true power of symbolism as a key to unfolding man's intuitive nature has yet to be recognized and appreciated. In the literary field, outside of poetic imagery, there are to my mind, few prose works with this symbolic power. Welcome exceptions are "Some PAGES", and "A GESTURE OF CO-OPERATION WITH KRISNAJI'S WORK", both by Quis Separebit. Two books which achieve this with an intellectual framework are "PHILOSOPHICAL GEOMETRY" by Andre Vanderbroeck and "THE SINGLE REALITY" by Preston Herold (Perhaps will be the "Bible" for New Age Science/Religion). Some purportedly New Age periodicals; however, serve to stimulate either man's lower intellect thru cold reporting, or cater to his emotional nature via sensationalism, thus serving to compound the error in thought which has shackled the Spirit of mankind for centuries to separative materialistic conceptions of existence. Indeed, how could such a magazine adequately communicate the significance of, for instance, musical tones and colors on our higher "vehicles", or the principle of regeneration, expressed annually as the Spring-Summer season (the import of which goes far beyond a physical orientation of Earth-Sun). The PYRAMID GUIDE, however, thru a basic understanding of the importance of the intuitive faculty by you and your staff is heads above its contemporaries in helping to unfold the potential spirituality of its readers. I salute you. One would hardly expect such observations from a mathematics-physics teacher such as myself, but I've learned thru spiritual awareness the importance of balance between "inner" and "outer". The symbol of the Trinity expresses this completely, where mere verbalization is powerless to do so -- ...Donald Reed, Wolcott, Conn.

DEAR GANG AT THE GUIDE: I have made 2 pyramids, one for the Yucca plant which has had it on for about 3 weeks. Since that time it has sprouted 5 new points of growth, the biggest is 6" and the smallest is 1" tall so it has certainly worked. Chuck, of course, being the scientist says it would have grown anyway and it could be so. In any case it certainly didn't hurt it any and the pyramid is still on it and I'm sure it will make it now. Might even look better as it will have several stems if things progress as they have to date. The other pyramid I made 5'x5' and it covers my strawberry plants. The problem with these was the birds were eating them so I covered the pyramid with a net. Needless to say that we have had some lovely strawberries and the birds couldn't get at them. Also everyone said that this year they would not produce because they never do the first year after planting. But they did with the pyramid so you can tell Bill all about it. My metal pyramid sits over my formerly sick house plants which are also doing fine now...Judy Kutal, Athens, Georgia.
