A correspondent of Washington territory.

"I was pleased to read the extract from a leading paper in the Northwest, which has been published in our newspapers, and which shows the influence of the people of that section of the country.

"If we are to rely upon the opinion of the newspaper, the people of the Northwest are well informed and well qualified to judge of the interests of their neighbors. They have no means of communicating their views to the public, and are often left to their own discretion in their own affairs."

That noble woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, of the New York Tribune, has been elected a member of the editorial board of that paper.

"Mrs. Thompson was born in the West, and was educated in the public schools of her native state. She has been a writer for many years, and has contributed to various periodicals."

Book Reviews.

"The Path," by Alfred E. Britten. We trust it needs no open discussion, as the story of this book is too well known.

"The Path" is a novel written by a well-known author. It is full of interest and is well written. The author does not spare the reader, and the story is told with great force and pathos.

"The Path" is a book that every reader should have in his library. It is a book that will be read with interest and delight by all who are fond of good stories.

In a letter to me from Rowley, dated December 6, Mr. Somers says: "I have been very successful in raising money and property which I have used in a liberal manner. The people are, as I see it, and we will see to his recommendation at the next meeting."

Among the events which have occurred in his life, there is none more important than the appearance of the present volume of the Religio-Philosophical Journal. The work has been produced under difficulties, and Mr. Somers must be congratulated on the way in which he has made it possible. The Journal has been a source of inspiration to many, and the public is indebted to the author for his labors.

The volume contains a large number of articles, and is a valuable addition to the literature of the subject. The editor has done well in selecting the contributions, and the result is a book that will be of service to all who are interested in the study of the subject. The work is commended to the attention of all who are seeking for new and refreshing ideas. It is a book that will be read with profit and

A spirit of the times.
At his command the mists unfolded his power to the dimension of the universe. He beheld the stars, the worlds, and the elements. He saw the earth, its mountains, seas, and rivers. He beheld the sun, the moon, and the planets. He beheld the angels, the demons, and the spirits of the universe. He beheld the human race, its nations, and its empires. He beheld the present and the future, the past and the present. He beheld the world, its history, and its destiny. He beheld the end of the world, its judgment, and its salvation. He beheld the heaven and the earth, the living and the dead. He beheld the whole universe, and in the midst of it, he beheld the cross of Jesus Christ. He beheld the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, and in the midst of it, he beheld the glory of God. He beheld the light of the world, and in the midst of it, he beheld the light of Jesus Christ. He beheld the kingdom of God, and in the midst of it, he beheld the kingdom of Jesus Christ.

The article mentions Margaret Fuller and other leaders of the remarkable phenomena which have so long puzzled the medical profession. It also references several notable cases involving hypnotism as a cure, such as that of a woman who was cured of a severe cough by Drs. Bernheim and Voisin.

The Nature of Flight.

To the Editor of the Belshon Philosophical Journal.

The work of an apothecary is a useful one, as it enables him to command a large share of the public. There is a great deal of money in the profession, and the prospects are excellent. The work will be a voluminous one, covering the subject of the nature of flight, and will contain a great deal of useful information. The author is a well-known chemist, and has a large following among the scientific community. The work will be published in a year or two, and will be much in demand. The price will be about $10,000.

STYLES in stationery of this kind vary from 30 to 40 lines. The most common are the so-called "cheaper" styles, which are made of coarse paper and are printed in black ink. The "better" styles are made of better paper and are printed in color. The "best" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver. The "superior" styles are made of

silver with a gold or silver frame. The

"luxury" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver with a gold or silver frame. The "magnificent"

styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver with a gold or silver frame.

In the United States, the most common styles are the "cheaper" styles, which

gold or silver frame. The "magnificent"

silver frame.

In Europe, the most common styles are the "cheaper" styles, which are made of coarse paper and are printed in black ink. The "better" styles are made of better paper and are printed in color. The "best" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver. The "superior" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver with a gold or silver frame. The "luxury" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver with a gold or silver frame. The "magnificent" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver with a gold or silver frame.

In Asia and Africa, the most common styles are the "cheaper" styles, which are made of coarse paper and are printed in black ink. The "better" styles are made of better paper and are printed in color. The "best" styles are made of linen or silk and are printed in gold or silver. The "superior" styles are made of linen or
