

of continency, and I believe, are truly of the most fastidious of the human race. For my part, I feel akin, to a large extent, with your people, who seem to walk so near to God and his angels.

The ideas of Samuel Hurlbut, of S. Union, Ky., are before me, as expressed in your paper of May. I feel assured I can say "yea" with a heart full of earnestness, to his invitation to 100,000 Shakers wanted-to all, he so beautifully says, from No. 1 to the end of No. 8. The community life leads to higher attainments. Truly these should lead to happiness. Now, if radical "free-lovers" could be accepted, to entertain their sentiments among you as a people, I doubt not you would have many accessions to your numbers.

I am thinking of offering my lands, at least in part, for community. Radicals, as we are, we can not affiliate with selfishness, the impurity, the eraft, the dishonesty, the untruthful-ness, the total faisity of the world. We want a harmonious home, based on the social science, wherein we may have a Temple of Freedom, and live simple or plain, virtuous, intellectual and progressive lives.

Why can you not, as brothers and aisters, open the door of your community? Extend the hand of welcome, and bid us come in, to Extend rection from the dead." As a type of resurrected souls, the first-Jesus, was continually teaching others what he knew they could not then understand. But in the last days, when they would be begotten again into the kingdom of heaven, and be born again into the kingdom of God, all things that he had said unto them would come to their remembrance.

If I have made, my premises plain, so he who reads may run, the conclusions will be easily apprehended. Your complaint is that you can not affiliate with the selfishness, the craft. the dishonesty, the untruthfulness, the total faisity of the world, as it is. Judging the tree by its fruit, the system by its effects, you condemn it. In that, your class of free-lovers and the Shakers agree.

You want a harmonious home based upon science-social science-where you can live simple, plain, intellectual, progressive, virtu-ous lives. That is just what the individuals who have built up Shaker societies wanted, and what they have found, or rather, schleved. It has been done by formaking all appertaining to the propagative order-natural relationships arising from birth and culminating in marriage, together with selfish property rights and minating in m ments, which generate class distinctions and devastating wars. Woman can never be free until liberated from physical maternity. Hence, as she feels the influences coming from the resufrection order-"the law, going forth from Zion," of the equality of the sexes, possible in the Spiritual order only, she fights maternily; she frets and chafes under its burdens and its restricting duties. Then she kills and destroys what the legal, lustful free-lower has not destroyed and killed by his brute powers and unbrutal passions. You ask why we can not open our doors and take you in as simple free-lovers, who desire scientific propagation, while those, among you who may prefer, like the Shakers, pure, holy, cellbate lives, have liberty to live so to do-an important question, which I wish to answer logically, not intending the least disrespect to the questioner. Suppose a pack of wolves who live upon mutton, should thus address a flock of sheep, "God and nature made us wolves and sheep and endowed us with all our faculties, powers, passions and appetites-both communities -the pack and the flock, recognize one common Creator, who is good. Why can we not fraternize and live in peace and love together? True, we are roving and unhappy, but it is because we have not, like you, a home, a fold and kind shepherd, who protects and provides. We do not wish to do anything wrong or un natural-anything we ought not to do. Let us be good and fraternize together. We mean no more harm in eating mutton, than you do in cropping the grass and flowers of the field. Lay aside your exclusiveness-be liberal, noble, -let us all live in one fold, each party carrying out a line, according to our inherent rights, observing the organic laws of our be-This will be to the honor of our comings. mon Orestor, and the mutual happiness of each other." Can the leopard change his spots or the wolf his tastes? Will they eat grass like the ox and lamb? Or would the pack of wolves refrain, when hungry, from devouring the stilly sheep, which had opened the door of their fold and admitted them in? Judge ye of your own selves what is reasonable. Can two walk together, except they be agreed? And if the Israelites were so taught agreed? And if the israelites were so taught the laws of separation that they were not wil-ling to sow diverse kinds of seed together, nor by generation, to mix the blood of different species of animals, nor their own, by inter-marrying with Gentiles, nor even to wear linsey-woolsey garments, how much more chould the children of this world, who "marry and are given in marriage," be separate from the children of the resurrection order, who, like Jesus, live pure, holy, celibate lives? Are you not like fish, which are dissatisfied with the water, and yet would surely die upon the land? If these waters have become muddy -land and water mingled-is it not because the law of separation has been violated? and the waters have not obeyed the command "Hitherto shalt thou come and no further. This creates amphibious creatures in the earth, and the Revelator saw unclear spirits, like froge-amphibious-come out of the mouth of the false prophet, and out of the mouth of the beast and of his image, out of church and state-flesh and spirit-organization. and alistic, spiritualistic, intuitional and revela-tional powers. May the very spirit of truth possess us, increasingly, to the glory of God and the good of humanity.

The Remarkable Vision of Charles

the Twelfth.

BRO. JONES:-Of all for singular apparitions of vision that have ever been set down, the vision of Charles XIL is, perhaps, one of the most curious, and decided by the best suthenti-cated relation of the kind on record, depending not upon the testimony of an individual, who from nervous excitement, or other mental morbidness, might have fanced the whole scene, and afterwards transcribed his waying dream in the glowing terms of a fancifu."im agination, but upon the concurrent authority of one of the most learned and grave charac ters of Sweden, supported in many of his as-sertions by the concierge of the palace. The original document is still in existence, and open to the inspection of every traveler who desires to see it. The whole is clearly and concisely written, and signed by the King, his physician (Dr. Baumgardten), and the state porter. A note is attached in his Majesty's own hand writing, stating his thorough conviction that so strange a vision must have been vouchsafed to him as a prophetic warning, and also his desire that the said document should be preserved among the State archives, in order to see whether the prediction would ever be accomplished. This note bears date some short time before Charles was killed, (about 1716). The complete fulfillment of this vision came to pass in 1792, about twenty-six years after its appearance. J. H. Chicago, Ill.

master at this unusual hour. "Where is the key of the eastern wing?" demanded the King, in a voice of unsuppressed anget.

"Here, sire," replied the servitor instantly producing 1.

Charles started with surprise, but quickly ecovering himself, asked, "To whom have recovering himself, paked, " you afforded the use of this key

There are three locks to open before admission could be gained. The sentry would allow none to pass in without my accompanying them. No human being could possibly get in." "Look there, then, and tell me the meaning of those lights?" rapidly demanded the King, who suddenly withdrew the curtain he had with a great many other realities that are equally significant to the growth of a freer and healthier religion.

A few enterprising men, among them D. P. Wilder, Quartus Doran, S. P. Howes, Thomas Middleton, located in different parts of the State, have been instrumental in getting an act through the legislature recognizing the association of Bpiritualists, and authorizing them to hold and make use of funds that may be donated or bequeathed to the society for the advancement of the philosophy and religion of, or arising from, a knowledge of spirit inter-COULTER.

D. P. Wilder, of Plymouth, an old ploneer of Spiritualism, has at his own expense, built A fine hall among the hills and vales, where Achas W. Borague, one of the first trance speakers, used to walk and meditate. Here ahe first caught the fire of inspiration and her she area caught the fire of inspiration and her overflowing soul guided and poured it into the hearts of those who were prepared to re-ceive it. The seeds are in the soil, have taken root, and the plant is strong and vigorous; in due season will come bud; slower and fruit. due season will come bud, Hower and fruit. There is a thrifty little society at Bartonville, which owns a hall and systams lectures most of the time. The life and spirit of this society is Mrs. S. A. Wiley, a soul full of energy and devolon, to our cause; a good wite, mother and citizen, constantly winning golden opin-ions for the divine constantly ber functed by ions for the divine consolation her funeral discourses afford, being called by Christian, Infldel and Spiritualist on such. occasions. Long may she live to administer to the weary, dis-consolate and broken hearted mourner. Many of the ablest advocates of our philosophy, and some of the most remarkable test mediums commenced their career among the Green Mountains; and now, every Sunday throughout this State, many resident speakers address the people on the live questions of the day from the stand-point of Spiritualism. The thinkers of this State are all full of vigorous activity, and the number of three days' meetings, quarterly and annual conventions, indicate the irrepressible fleaire to eradicate old systems by the substitution of the newer and fresher inspiration of our age and generation. Our stay in Boston was short, but we had good control of eyes and cars, and we used them. Ten years ago there were four places where public meetings in the interest of Spiritualism and free discussion were held; now there is about ten places where lectures and test circles are given every Sunday. I attend-ed four different halls on July 5th, and found them all well filled. After the morning service at Cotton Hall, and as I was leaving, a lady in the audience whom I had never met, addressed me by name, described and gave me the name of George Bates, a very dear friend who has been in spirit-life over fifteen years, and this was the first I had ever received from him. What is to be done with such a fact? Friend Luther Colby of the BANNER or LIGHT, looks as healthy, hale and young as he did nine years ago, and I found him at his post selecting, harmonizing and constructing into readable shape the matter pouring in upon him, both from the friends and enemies of Spiritualism, individual physical mediums, and others. If the BANNER and JOURNAL should issue, each one hundred more columns of reading matter every weak than they now do, they could not begin to publish the mat-ter that is contributed; this is another evidence of the soul's desire to obtain a knowledge of the immortal life through a presentation of its own experience, and inquiries concerning the experience of others. I visited the home of A. E. Carpenter, an able lecturer and professional psychologist; and, by the way, Mrs. Carpenter is one of the best médical clairvoyants and test mediums in the country. I met many people in Vermont who told me of the sweet hours of communion and the holy communications, held and obtained from their dear spirit friends through Mrs. Carpenter's mediumship. Boston is full of the active expressions of free-thought now, but its old Puritanic spirit contested every foot of ground that has been gained and occupied by the Free Thinkers and Spiritualists during the last twenty five years. In this growth Materialism and Spiritualism have mutually participated to bring about the neve induced by participated to oring about the present condition. Here are radical clubs that aim to discuss both sides of every question in which Materialist, Spiritualist and Conservative Christians are invited to give their highest and best thought for the benefit of the race, and this we claim has been brought about

REPLY OF BLD. F. W. EVANS.

ORNEN SHIPMAN, ESTREMED FRIEND :--- Your important letter of the 6th inst., is in my possession. The tone and spirit of it are good. People may disagree in doctrinal matters, yet be one in spirit; or, they may be one in ab-stract ideas, and be diverse in spirit. "Ye know not what spirit ye are of," was the gentle rebuke of Jesus to his disciples who had foreaken all others to follow him.

You refer to s visit at Mt. Lebanon some twenty-five years ago, and to the favorable impression made upon your mind by individ-uals and by our system. Among so many visitors and incidents, I do not recall that visit.

After stating that you are free-lovers of the Woodhull and Claffin school, you express a wish to fraternize with us, to the number of a few hundred-at least so far as our outward order, the temporal, goes. I infer from the fearless, yet friendly tener of your communication, that you are free lovers from principle-a love of truth-and not for other supposed additional indulgence attending the practice of your ideas; that, in fact, begging the question, that Shakers are right and Free-lovers wrong, per se, it is, with you, a matter of misunderstanding, that of love for unrighteousness-of confusion of ideas, arising from the admixture of truthful principles that appertain to two distinct orders-two discrete degrees. This causes both your agreements and disagreements with the Shakers; in a word, the Shakers with their asceticiam have more charity for, and, do better understand Free-lovers, than do orthodox sectarians, whose actual lives approximate much nearer to free-love sensualists than they would care to have the world know or thin

Is it not an indisputable fact, that the popular idea of marriage is that of a license, granted by the respective parents to the bride and bridegroom, for them to live in fornication without public reproach or private condemnation?

THE VISION.

It was a dark and gloomy night. The clock had struck ten. The ill-lighted room cast an additional gloom on the figure of Charles the welfth, as he sat in front of a huge fire in his favorite saloon in the palace of Stockholm. Immediately in front of him, over the fire place, was suspended the picture of his queen, with whom, to cell the truth, he had just been disputing, and now sat in allent discontent, mentally comparing the sharming form which hung before him with the now less beautiful figure of her Majesty, only breaking, his sullen silence by occasionally muttering some curse on her altered temper.

When the King was in these moods he was always closely attended by his physician Baumgardten. The re-action in a mind so buoyant as that of Charles, being proportionately dangerous, it was often feared he would commit suicide; so the doctor always remain ed near him, seeking for a convenient opportunity to draw his mind back to livelier things, to arouse him from the dreadful mental prostration to which he was subject.

On the evening in question, Baumgardten had sat patiently for about an hour, alternately watching his Majesty and the storm which was raging outside. But neither the view of the sullen monarch, nor the opposite wing of the palace, which formed the grand hall, where the State trials and similar events took place, could afford much amusement to the tirplace, could afford much amusement to the tir-ed son of Æsculapius, who finding his patience begin to wear out, suddenly started up, and be-gan pacing the room up and down, in the same manner that mariners pace the quarter-deck of a vessel at ses, occasionally stopping at the window to look out on the black and gloomy pile of buildings Thave mentioned.

Suddenly he started back. "Great heavens, sire!"

"Bilence!" growled the King)

The doctor took two more turns across the chamber. At length he could contain himself no longer.

"What is this extraordinary appearance?

Please your Majesty' some strange event is taking place in the hall of justice." "Hold your tongue, sir, or I shall command you to quit the room!" replied the monarch, who felt annoyed at these interruptions of his reverie, and which he believed arose from a mere desire to arouse him from his month. mere desire to arouse him from his m tion

The doctor paused, but after a while curi-osity got the upper hand of his batter jadg-ment, and walking up to the King, he touched him on the shoulder, and pointed to the win-

concierge

The poor man stared a moment, and gasping for breath, totally heedless of the presence of his Majesty, fell back into a chair which stood bar him.

"Arise, arise; I see you have had no hand in the strange affair," added the King in a "Get a lantern instantly, and milder tone. accompany us to the building. We will pass round through the centre of the palace. Breathe not, however, a syllable to any one, but be quick "

In five minutes more the trio were en route, and soon arrived at the door, which the King required his trembling servitor to open. He did so; the brilliant light streamed upon the group. The affrighted porter instantly fied, while Charles, followed by Baumgardten, boldly stepped into the room, though his blood ran cold as he perceived it filled with a large assemblage of knights and nobles superbly ar rayed, whose faces, though he saw, neither he nor Baumgardten could distinctly catch. They were all seated, as if a State trial were going on. The high officers sat in gloomy silence as one or two inferior officers moved noiseless ly about. Presently the word "Guilty" seem ed to breathe through the room. A short, i solemn pause and a door opened, and three men appeared, men apparently of rank, bound and prepared for execution. They were fol-lowed by the headsmen, and others bearing the block, etc. Not a word was uttered, --not a movement shock the assembled judges. The principal criminal laid down his head on the block, and the next instant it rolled from the scaffold, and actually struck the foot of Charles the Twelfth.

At this juncture every light disappeared The King called loudly for assistance to secure the persons who had thus assembled, and com mitted violence beneath the royal roof.. Be fore he had time to do so twice, the frightened porter rushed in, attended by several officers of the household, and servants bearing torches. Not a vestige of the vision remained. Every thing was in its proper place. The very dust which had been allowed to acumulate, rested on the furniture. Every door was well fasten ed;-scaffold, block, criminal, judges, all were

One only token remained to bear out the actual scene which had taken place; a large drop of blood had stained the stocking of the King, exactly on the spot on which the trai-tor's head had rolled.

The next day the record was drawn up from which this sketch is taken.

In 1799, Ankerstrom and his two principal accomplices justly suffered death for the mur-der of their sovereign, Gustavas the Third, King of Sweden.

Now our Western or Pacific friend and Now our Western or Facine friend and brother, James Lick, the generous and Liberal benefactor and philanthropist of California—a may who if we are correctly informed, left Pennsylvania, his mative State, some years ago, to seek his fortune in the far West. He locat-ed "in the land of gold," as California was then called; his circumstances wore humble, but being a mechanic he knew how to work, and being imelligent, industrious, frugal, and economical, he knew how to accumulate, and better still, to save his money for the promo-tion of good objects. Fortune favored him; he became immensely rich, and to-day the Pennavivania carpenter (for such we under-stand Mr. Lick originally was) is able to, and actually does, dispense his millions in behalf actually does, dispense his millions in behalf of science, the mechanic arts, charty, public baths, orphans, &c., as may be seen by the following enumeration of his deeds of baceso-lence, mercy, and wisdom. This is practical goodness, and we all admire the kind motive which prompted and the untitled in the kind motive which prompted and the untiring industry and noble generosity which has real zed it; and if Mr. Lick's great example were only followed by our rich men generally, there would be Heaven on earth, and as for Hell—well, probably there wouldn't be any Hell at all, for we have noticed for many years that in proportion as kindness, sympathy, compassion, charity, and common sense gain ground. Hell takes the "back track" towards the land of silence, forgetfulnees, oblivion, and eternal anght. But we are too long keeping our readers from the catalogue of Mr. Lick's bounties, and here they are, in the annexed article which we copy from the Herald.

JAMES LICK CF CALIFORNIA.

A public banafactor. --James Lick, E:q, of San Francisco, has given $2 000,000 for pub-lic charities and scientific purposes, as follows: --He donated $700,000 to the construction of the largest telescope in the world, for the observatory at Jake Tahos, $420 000 for public monuments; $150 000 for public balm in that city; $100,000 for Old Ladjes' Home; $10,000 to the Society for the Protection of Animals; $25,000 to the Ladjes' Protection Relief So-ciety; $10,000 to the Mechanics' Library; $25,-000 to the Protestant Orphan Anylum; $25,-000 to the City of San Jose for an Orphan Asylum; $15,000 for the erection of a bronze-monument to be author of the "Star Spangled A public benefactor .- James Lick, Erg , of monument to Be author of the "Star Spangled Banner" in Golden Gate Park; $300 000 for the endowment of a school of the Mechanical Arts in California, and the residue in excess of $1750,000 to the Pioneers' Society. He makes shaple provision for his relatives, and reserves the homestead and $25,000 per annum for himself. In addition to the above very generous do-nations, Mr. Lick has contributed largely, and far more than any other donor, to the erection of the Temple for the Paine Hall and Home for the Investigator; and we improve this op-portunity to say again, in behalf of Trustees and friends of the movement, that we thank him most gratefully for his bountiful, free, and timely aid. Without it we might not have been able for years, if at all, to have fully succeeded in our long-cherished enterprise of raising in Boston a handsome, imposing, en-doring, and useful monument to Thomas Paine, the political and religious reformer,-a building that will not only prove a Memorial to the honor, the name, and memory of the great "Author Hero of the American Revolu-tion," or the inspired penman (if there ever, was one, of Common Sense, Crisis, Rights of Man, and Age of Reason, but also a building that shall furnish facilities for opening a large Liberal book store, and likewise prove a com-fortable and permanent home for the INVES-TIGATOR for generations to come. These objects, for which we have toiled early and late, night not have been secured in our day but for the munificence of our California brother and benefactor; but thanks to that! the dream of our early manhood is to be realized in our advancing age, and as Paine Hall passes down to posterity or into other Liberal hands, the name of James Lick will always be associated with it as the generous friend whose timely assistance mainly contributed to render a doubtful experiment successful.

CHURCH PROPERTY.

The value of church property not taxed in The value of church property not taxed in this country is estimated at over seven hun-dred millions. A large portion of this proper-ty is yielding a profitable income to the indi-vidual or corporative owners. Is there shy good reason why the people who pay taxes on their property shall bear these burdens with out corresponding benefits !- [Western paper. More than forty years ago, Abner Knceland advocated in the columns of this paper the right. justice, and expediency of taxing right, justice, and expediency of taxing church property; but the much needed reform has not been accomplished even yet. A poet tells us that "the muls of God grind slowly;" be that as it may, "accertain that legislation is a slow eech when sectarian interests clog its wheels.

Churches, in the eye of the law being cor-porations, the same as a factory, railroad, theatre, bank, etc., the property of the former should be taxed as well as that of the latter. There should be no favoritism and exclusiveness in this respect. Our povernment is not theocratic—a union of Church and State, and the State a mere tool of the Church; conseqently a church corporation has no more rights, immunities, and privileges, or ought to have no more legally, than any other corboration.

poration. But the church has, and always has had in Massachusetts, an especial favor granted it by law; and the only reason given for it is, that we are a Christian people. This ples, how-ever, amounts to nothing, because we have no legally established religion. If we had, it would be consistent to exempt church property. But as we have no such religion, a church is no more justly entitled to non taxation than a railroad, insurance company, museum, or any other kind of business, for the carry-ing on of which an act of incorporation is secured

And the injustice of the exemption becomes more apparent, when it is remembered³ that a church, like a theatre, is protected by the po-lice, fire department, and military, if neces-sary; but the church pays nothing for its protection, and the theatre does. Any one can see the injustice of this distinction, and the wonder is that it is suffered to exist any Nonger.

MATTER

"Has original matter the ability of form-ing disorganized matter into the capacity of thinking? If so, how is it done ?"

Most ur questionably matter has the ability to do all that has been done in the Universe. If any proposition is or can be established by the universal observation of mankind as demonstrated truth, it is, now reduced to a positive certainty that the ultimate atoms or elements of matter, under certain conditions, obeying the eternal law of animalization, have the ability to arrange, combine, or organize themselves into organs "capable of thinking," just as other atoms or elements of matter, under other necessary conditions, obeying the eternal law of crystallization, have the "ability" to crystalize themselves into cubes, octohedrons, tetrahedrons. But "Aote this is done"- how matter operates in "forming" or elaborating from inorganic materials the primitive-cell, the living tissue, and the sensitive nerves—is not thoroughly known, though many physiological facts have been discovered by microscopic 'observations within a few years past, going to show or explain "how" the mysterious process of animalizing, vege-tation, and crystallization are commenced or developed. Man's knowledge is necessarily limited to the observation of phenomena, be-hind, beyond, above or below which he is as yet unable, and perhaps will forever remain

The last or final analysis of knowledge, are elemental or self-evident facts, which form the fundamental basis of ratiocination. Hence, "we can only reason but from what we know," and we can only know by observation and experience. We know, for instance, that the force of gravity is inversely as the equare of the distance: , but "how" or why this is so, we know no more than we know "how" or why lead is heavy, or "how" and why two and two make four. We know by observa-tion and experience, if we know anything, that the brain thinks, but "how" the brain shinks we have no knowledge by experience, and therefore know no more "how" matter or-ganizes itself into brain, or "how" thinking is done, than we know "how" and why sugar is sweet, or "how" and why vinegar is sour. Can any one tell "how" and why fire is hot? We only know these to be self evident facts, and their statement to be their only proof, but no one can tell how or why they are facts, because there is no observation and experience on the subject.

phonomena, the question would never have been a matter of debate, since the facts on record prove beyond all doubt that Mohammed was a trance and clairvoyant medium, consequent that the imposture theory is alto-gether untenable as applicable to his career. Although Mr. Smith had not the knowledge which would enable him to authoritatively decide this note this care right. which would enable him to authoritatively decide this point, his conclusions were right nevertheless. He narrated that Mohammed was troubled with "fits," and that in one of these fits, or in a dream, he saw an angel holding a scroll before him, which the future prophet was asked to read, but which he could not decipher until spiritual power was conferred upon him to do so; thus he read the decree of God, which he afterward put on record in the Koran. The divine messenger told him afterwards that he was the angel Ga-briel. briel

After Mohammed became convinced of the divinity of his mission, it was sometime before he made his belief publicly known, and then the result was that for many years he was subjected to insults and derision, and in these, its early stages, the new religion had to force its way by virtue of its moral influence alone. Mohammed believed himself to be but mortal man; he considered himself but a channel through which these divide revelations gould flow, and he felt that he was not pure chough to fulfil his mission; yet his life was simple and upright, and in bis career mankind was presented first with the life and then with the theology, which is ever the case, whether it be in the life of an individual or in the life of a nation. So many difficulties did he have to encounter at the outset that his teachings seemed to make no way at all; indeed, once in despair he thought of committing suicide; still he was comforted by angelic visions, and his enthusiasm gradually rose till he resisted all discouragements.

Mohammed had curly black hair, and coal-black sparkling eyes—eyes that flashed with the light of prophecy; he was very fond of animals and children, and had an affectionate nature. One of his servants, who lived with him half his life-time, said that he had never been scolded by the prophet He was simple and abstemious in his diet, even after he rose to place and power; in fact he had all the characteristics of a good trance medium. Powerful mediums are always of an affectionate and passionate disposition; they are gov-erned by impulse rather than by the steady force of strong convictions, except when they believe they have a mission to perform. fortunately, many physical mediums do not feel that they have any mission to perform except to gratify their impulses, but it is fre-quently different with those mediums who are gifted with trance, clairvoyance, and the higher forms of revelation. Towards the end of his career, when Mohammed possessed such vast power, the messages in the Koran became worldly, and seemed framed to carry out merely the temporal wishes and designs of the prophet; this same declension may sometimes be seen in modern mediums; in those cases wherein they have sometimes morally deter-iorated after becoming subjected to the temptations incidental to popularity and worldly distinction. It by no means follows that the worldly messages in the Koran were impos ture any more than the bther, because it is a fact that when the minute of mediums are not in a passive state, and when they strongly de-sire particular things, such a state of mind has a tendency to warp the messages which flow into the the lower world through their organisms.

The Mohammedan religion is well worthy of study by the light of Modern Spiritualism, because from first to last, it is a strictly his because from first to last, it is a strictly his-tory al religion; instead of there being as many readings of the Koran as there are of the Bi-ble, the text of the Koran may almost be said to be staretyped. Mohammed and his fol-lowers lived altogether within the historical period, so that it is possible, by examination of the records of his own time and of succeed-ing generations is an unit more than the start of ing generations, to see what proportion of genuine spiritual manifestations actually "occurred in the presence of Mohammed, and how a vast mass of unreliable miraculous tra dition gradually accumulated after his death. which had no real foundation in fact whatever. In so doing, Spiritualists will have a great advantage over Mr. Bosworth Smith, who describes trance And visions as "fits," and so far as can be seen as yet, seems to have a ten-dency to deny the reality of spiritual phenomens altogether. But as he has announced that next Saturday he will speak of miracles and the miraculous generally in connection with the career of Mohammed, no doubt he will define his position in this respect more fully than he has done in the two lectures already delivered.

had already made Italy famous. All the world witnessed his fall, and he whose eyes had first pierced the mysterious vaults above, who of all his race had first brought back tid ings of new suns and planets in its sublime abyss, yielded to the terrors of torture, the fear of death, and sacrificed the integrity of his soul to the manaces of the church. With malignant joy the Jesuits saw the last great Italian perish within their toils, and were perheps satisfied with the humflistion of Galileo.

When, at the close of his splendid career, covered with renown, yet shut up in his villa at Arcetri, the prisoner of the Inquisition, watched by envious eyes, threatened, should he murmur or rebel, with the most dreadful punishments of the church, Galileo, sick and worn with age and sorrow, lamented in letters to his friends that he had ever vantured upon those studies which had served only to bring upon him persecution and shame, a fair-haired, blue-eyed poet from the cloudy North, who was just entering with an equal ardor upon the search for truth, visited the bright skies of Florence, saw with astonishment the imof Florence, saw with asonisation to the in-prisonment of its greatest genius, and heard, perhaps, from his own lips the unmerited sor-rows that had fallen upon his later years. It was Milton lamenting for Galileo. In the cul-tivated society of Florence the years English scholar must often have remembered the lonely prisoner who, shut out from all the pleas-ures of intellectual intercourse, was confined in the distant villa. Milton at Florence wrote verses, was complimented in graceful stanzas, and was not slow to return the elegant adula tion. Yet with all the more intelligent Florentines he saw typified in the fate of Galileo the quick extinction of Italian letters. In his de-fense of the freedom of the press, he relates to the English public how a severe Inquisition had checked at Florence all mental progress, how the accomplished Florentine lamented that they had not been born in a land like England, where learning was free, how nothing was now written in Italy, but 'dattery and fustian." "There," he adds, "it was that I found and visited the famous Galileo, grown old, a prisoner to the Inquisition." The spec. tacle of the great philosopher, silenced, terrified, contemned, never passed from his mind. In his youth he had lamented over him tender ly. In manhood, when a mental tyranny like that which hung over Italy seemed about to envelop all England, and a persecuting church and a despotic king had nearly subdued its virtue, Milton, instructed by the fate of Italian thought, led on the defenders of freedom. And when, in his old age, blind and forsaken like Galifeo, he poured forth in sonorous strains the treasures of a life of study, ope of his most splendid similies, one of his most touchings allusions, is when he paints the Tuscan artist on the height of Ficsole, and makes the ohief glory of science lend aid to the immortal grandeur of his song - EUGENE LAW RENCE, in Harpers' Magazine for August

Religious Absurdities.

The absurdities perpetrated by some in the name of religion can only be explained by the deficiency of such persons in the sense of the ludicrous. If their sensitiveness to ridicule were equal to their egotiem, they might be made to see themselves as others see them.

The revivalist who there a chromo to every convert may be the creature of a groteique fancy, but there are artifices restried to for "winning souls" that do not fall far below this in mischlevous absurdity. They consist of Arenched to xts-like "Let her drive," or of eccentric phraseology, such as "Here is a verse that presents a nsuscated Christ," or of labori ous attempts at facetious piety, as, for ex-ample, an advertisement of a soap dealer which contains the following pufl by a Brooklyn divine: "I have used your soap with pleasure and prefit, but best of all Lhave held pleasant converse with you concerning Him who washes all our sins away," Perhaps both soap-dealer and soap-headed parson would justify this exchange of puff for articles puffed, by the axlom, "Business is business." We recollect seeing on a huge banner at a country fair, "Ye ought to turn from these lying vanities unto the living God." This is certainly not the application of the text most likely to conciliate as intelligent farmer, who could hardly be expected to look upon his fat oxen and premium wheat as lying vanities and offensive to God. An ordinary eye for the fit-ness of things would have made a better selection, or, rather, none at all. The same bene ficent eye might have prevented the Y. M. C. A. of this city from following the late corner-A. of this city from following, the late corner-stone procession in a cart, carrying a banner with the inscription, "Jesus Christ the Corner-Stone." It might have restrained the inju-dicious Tory who, during the late election in England, started the hustings cry., "Beer and the Bible! Stand by a National Church and a National Beverage" National Beverage." Perhaps the reverend gentleman who pro-nounced an eulogium the other day upon "Jim Fisk," at the dedication of a monument to that illustrious scoundrel, would have declined the invitation if he had realized the incongruity of the spectacle. He did not deliberately design to bring reproach upon the public virtue, he is simply deficient in the sense of the incongruous. Perhaps the clergyman who has been arraigned by the Chesapeake Presbytery for trying to impress the decalogue upon his wife with his fist would have escaped this unpleasant duty could he have foreseen what everybody Histde else sees-how ridiculous a duty it is. fense is that on coming down to breakfast on Babbath marbing his Babbatarian suspicions were aroused by seeing some eggs upon the table. He suspected, not the eggs, but his wife. He catechised her, and she admitted that she had borrowed those eggs that morn-ing, and, for aught she knew (this is our sus-picion), they might have been laid during the small hours of that sacred day. Her husband "told ber that he would teach her how to break the SabOath," and he did so by nearly breaking her jaw with his own hand. What is a wife's jaw to a husband's Sabbath? We recommend this sixth sense to those missionaries in Rome who appeal for money not so, much because of the spiritual destitution of the Romans.ss because those who are supplying the destitute are under the special command of the Al-mighty to "make Rome how!" with a Pro-testant theology. One of them says he was "pushed and pulled into Rome by the Lord," implying, by the way, that the Lord and he,— or rather he and the Lord.—and all the thick coming missionaries in Rome, are no more concerned for Naples (which has five times as concerned for Naples (which has five times as many people) than they are for New York, or London, or any other unromantic spiritual harvest field. This missionary tells /us also harvest-field. This missionary tells/us also that his mission is "so odvantageously placed that paslim-singing may be heard—especially if the singers be instructed to Filse their voices a little—in the very chambers of the Popel" The object is not so much to convert the vaga-bond Italians, which can easily be done by a handful of macaroni, but to move upon the Protestant pocket in this country with the tidings that the slumbers of the Holy Father are broken by the strains of a Protestant hymn. are broken by the strains of a Protestant hymn. Call it the Five Points Home for American Arabs, and the contributions drag. Call it the "Vatican Mission," and promise to sing loud enough to disturb the Pope's rest, and there will be no end to donations! That is the theory of the dramatic missionary, but it is not so enchanting as it was. The element of absurdity is beginning to tell.

AUGUST 15, 1874.

A youth at a camp-meeting in Nebraska jumped into a well with the remark that he "guessed he would go to glory." He was res-cued, but his "morbid impulse" is probably too far gone to admit of the cure we propose. He is beyond the reach of his sense of the ridienters. ridiculous. His fate, however, should be a warning to other absurd religious people, who msy yet save their reason by exercising it, and increase their stock of common sense by cultivating it. They may arouse' themselves in time to see that religion, to be healthy, must be at least same, and that to keep it same it must be mixed with our every-day work-a-day life. As there is nothing in this world so fascinating to the common run of people as a simple and earnest religious life, so there is nothing more transparent or repugnant to them than the ranting egotism which mistakes itself for religious zeal, or the pious buffoonery which, while it may split the ears of the groundlings, must alienate the thoughtful, confirm the skeptical, and make the judicious grieve.—Chicago Tribune.

BEAUTIFUL JEWELRY

INFLUENCE OF THE CLERGY.

It is a startling proof of the uncontrollable influence of the clergy of our country, that by their unaided efforts, they are able to do, what the strenuous efforts of charity, aided by the voice of humanity, the dictates of benevolence, and the cry of the destitute widow and orphan, could never yet effect-to make public sub-scriptions and contributions popular, and loose the purse strings of the most penurious. Yet such is their control over public feelings, that dollars are collected to advance their objects. dollars are collected to advance their objects, considered questionable by many that lend their pecuniary sid to promote them, where a cent could not be obtained to aid the cause of "heaven-born charity." If, then, they have the power to initiate these schemes into the circle of fashion, and to fix upon them the stamp of popularity, there can be no question of their ability to turn them to a good secount for the increase of their influence. Of the money raised, it is said they can not avail themselves, it only being intended for distribution by way of application to certain purposes; and hence, that whether their col-lections, be great or small, though they may serve to show the influence they possess, they can not increase it. We thall see. Immenses sums are collected annually for missionary purposes. What use is made of it? Most of it goes to the clergy themselves; to that por-purposes. What use is made of it? Most of it goes to the elergy themselves; to that por-tion of them that may be considered third, fourth, and fifth rate members of the body-and who, themselves, are the creatures of those in higher standing. Most of these, like a swarm of hungry locusts, are seen prowling

The Mediumship of Mohammed.

[Frem the Lo. don, (Eng) S; iritualist.]

Now that knowledge of the phenomenal characteristics of spirit influx is gradually accumulating in consequence of the experience gained by constant observation in a scientific age, it often becomes very interesting to read the records of the past, and to discover how very much light is thrown by modern manifestations upon the mediumship of the great re-ligious teachers of the world in ancient times. The student of Spiritualism has a great advan-tage in this respect over everybody else, be-cause others who at the present time are giving attention to the science of the comparative study of religions, have a tendency to deny the reality of the spiritual phenomena which have been witnessed in all periods of the world's history, these phenomena being gen-erally ascribed by them to the imaginations of enthuliasts who gradually allow the mirscu-lous to creep into their sacred traditions, as century after century elspess after the death of the revered teacher they follow. But the Spiritualist who has accurate practical knowl-edge of the nature of the modern phenomena, can bring that knowledge to bear upon the The student of Spiritualism has a great advancan bring that knowledge to bear upon the facts stated in ancient records, and to some extent is thereby able to separate true spiritual manifestations from the miraculous stories incidental to tradition.

An illustration of the truth of these remarks was furnished by a thoughtful lecture at the Royal Institution, given by Mr. R. Bosworth Smith. M. A., of Harrow School, last Saturday, on "Mohammed and the Mohammedans." The great Mohammedan religion, which now The great Mohammedan religion, which now numbers from one hundred to one hundred and: fifty millions of followers—s religion which has spread over a large portion of three continents, and which is extending into Africa with a hundred times more rapidity that Chistianity—was undoubtedly founded by a trance and clairvoyant medium. Mr. Bos-worth Smith entered much into the question of the sincerity or otherwise of Mohammed, a point which is much disputed by his modern Galfleo's Fall.

The close of the sixteenth century and the triumphs of the Jesuits gave the final blow to the vigor of the Italian mind. From that insuspicious moment, save one, no powerful and independent thinker, no Milton, Bacon, Newton, Hampden, flourished on the sterile scene of priestly tyranny. For two centuries the voice of free discussion was stilled, the wants and aspirations of the people found no utterance nor defender, or if one ventured to sigh for a new Italy he was shut up in the cells of a Roman Inquisition or banished to the chill regions of the North. The deliver-ance of Italy from its mental bondage and its spiritual focs has come at'last from foreign ands and hostile armies, and the perpetuation of its novel freedom must rest in no slight de gree upon the protection of a German lord. Yet it was to Italy that Europe once looked for its own deliverance from feudal tyranny and mental decay. Its prosperous republics, the centres of industry, taught to Ger-many and England the chief elements of civilization; the poets of Tuscany awakened the European intellect. But for Dante and Petrarch there could have been no Shakspeare nor Spenser; and when in its last decline, in the close of the sixteenth century, the poison of priestly tyranny had dissolved all its members, when there was no room for letters and no hope of mental advance, the genius of Italy had already clothed itself in the guise of painters and sculptors, and covered with a cloud of artistic glory a land that was swiftly perishing in the dead embrace of popes and

The trial and imprisonment of Galileo from the final scene in the death of the Italian intellect. The most eminent genius of his country if not of his age, almost the founder of modern science, the peer and contemporary of Shaka-peare, Bacon, Milton, the successor of Michael Angelo, had Galileo obtained an utildrance in Italy for scientific truth, the spell that prested upon her might have been broken. All here might have bloomed once more a distribute touched by the free spirit of Dante, a political progress that would have reflected the Puriprogress that would have reflected the Puri-ianic revolutions of the North. But with Gallico' fell the independence of Italian thought. His abjuration is the saddest picture in modern'intellectual history. Conscious of the truth, he was condemned to renounce it and repeat a falsehood. The Newton, the Herschel of his age, he was forced to abjure the favorite studies of his life, and pause for-ever in that path of scientific discovery, which

GOD AND THE DEVIL IN PARTNER SHIP

11Y A. 8188 IN.

Long ages before God said let there be light. He and Batan, his eldest, got into a fight, When the infinite God by the aid of his teeth, Hurled Lucifer down to the regions beneath.

In chaos he wandered from corner to nook, And soon commenced business upon his own hook.

As he happened around when this world was begun,

In the dack-ground he loitered and saw it all done.

When through, God was-tired like a man who had threshed,

But he rested a day and felt greatly refreahed. And looking around o'er his works as he atood.

He said he considered it all "very good."

So at ten the next morning, he started for beaven.

And Satan crawled out at a guarter of eleven, And ere the bright sun upon noonday had shone. He gobbled the job and ascended the throne.

When God came again "in the cool of the day.'

His plans were all spoiled and the Devil to pay. So into a frenzy of passion he burst, And all he had made he vehemently cursed

Keep cool, muttered Satan and grieve not so keen.

Said he it is true I have spoiled your design, The children which you have created are mine,

As the conquest is made and the glory I've won,

I will help you get back an occasional one.

So they counseled together as mut-talks with man,

And entered into a co partnetship plan, As Satan already was been of the day He had things arranged about his own way.

Thus the firm was established, the writings all make. Satan rolled out his brimstone to stock up the

With Satan to scare and the Lord to invite, God gets by that plan an occasional bite. Though the scheme at the best does not work bled in Parliament to take counsel upon some of the circumstances and events which such combinations might produce, would Irish members be saturied by coming to the imperial council and availing themselves of their impe-rial position to express their sentiments and give their votes? [Hoar, hear.] And if their counsels were disregarded, if their votes were outnumbered, can we believe that a Roman Catholic Parliament in Ireland would be indifferent to events which they must class among the highest and most interesting to them, and in which their feelings are the most deeply engaged? Sir, I cannot for a mo-ment myself resist the conviction that in such a state of aflairs the Parliament of Ireland would not besitate in believing that it was an exclusively Irish affair to consider the condition of the head of the Boman Catholic faith. [Hear.] Well, I believe that would lead to great cangers, and possibly lead to great dis-saters, and that if we found the two countries pursuing a d flerent policy that might happen. which none contemplate without a feeling of terror-we might be called upon to interfere between's portion of the Irish people who did sympathize with the majority of the Irish Parliament and perhaps to interfere with force. Nor can we suppose from the experience that we have had that the maj srity of the Irish people, with a majority in their Parliament which had declared its opinions clearly and decidedly upon this question, would easily be daunted, either by the threats of the Pro-testant population of Ireland or even by the interference of England. We might be approaching one of those crises in human affairs that fill the largest pages of history. Civil war might even be a lesser evil than the calamities which might impend over both countrics. There might be sympathy with nations which might not have been subjugated. We have been told that even in the course of this debate, by an honorable member, that there is great sympathy between Ireland and a forand probably one to whom there are future Hestinies remaining Sir, these are consid-erations which greatly influence me in the consideration of this question. I caunot view it as a question whether we ought to establish a great vestry in Dublin. [Hear, hear] I can not stop merely at the consideration whether it might or might not involve our administra-tive system in influite difficulties and incon-sistencies. These are all light matters com-pared with the question which I have submitted to myeelf, and which to my eye assumes much greater magnitude. I am opposed, therefore, to this motion, because I think in volved in it are the highest and nearest inter ests of our country. [cheers | I am opposed to it for the sake of the Irish people as much as for that of the English and Scotch. History repeats itself. It is more than six hundred years since the first pope undertook to direct the purely political functions of kings.

It is tweive hundred years since the bishops of Rome rendered political homsge willingly -giving unto Casar the things that are Ca sar's-to the delegates of the Roman emper ors after the transfer of the Imperial seat to Constantinople. It is ten centuries since the popes assumed the temp ral functions, and eight since Matilde of Tuscany made a gift of her states to the see of Rome and the 'patrimony of St Peter" was organ zed. It is only seven hundred years since the German emperors abandoned their pr-ctice of nominating popes, and Alexander the III. conferred that function on the cardinals. Power of the Catholic Church.

Now that all danger from the comet has passed away, its long flashing tail no longer disturbing the sleep or portending approaching dangers, another source of trouble has arisen -catholicism, which is disturbing the government of England. In Mr. Disraell's speech on the Home Rale in Ireland, we find the following:

There is no doubt-I may say it without offense-that the large majority of the popu-lation of Ireland are of the Roman Catholic faith. Honorable gentlemen opposite need not be alarmed. I am not going to make any observations disparaging to their religion. I have always expressed, as I do now, my re-spect for their faith. I cannot conceal from myself that the organization of the Roman Catholic religion is a most powerful organizay Catholic religion is a most powerful organiza-tion-perhaps, if I may say so-the most powerful now in existence. I will say this, that it is not the less powerful because the head of that faith has been deprived of his capital and a few provinces. I believe his power has increased. [Hear, hear.] I am not here to impute to the head of that faith, or his compation and account account of that faith, or his counselors, any aggressive spirit against civilization or the tranquility of Europe. But they are of flesh and blood, animated by the feelings and influenced by the passions which have slways goverend transactions of man-kind, and I cannot doubt that such influences and such feelings must have a great effect up on the conduct of a Parliament elected.in Ireland by an overwhelming majority professing the Roman Catholic faith, and returning to the Roman Catholic faith, and returning to that Parliament a large majority of represent-atives of the same faith. I want to know, suppose that to happen, which it is not im-probable may happen, and which, perhaps I may say, may certainly happen. In the genera-tion which is now, we will say commencing -suppose there was a great movement in Europe, the object which was to restore the head of the Roman Catholic faith in the capital which he has lost and the provinces of which he has been deprived—and suppose we were also expanded, partly by tolerance, partly by its inherent force; until at last it did not besitate to treat whole nations as if they were individual subjects, and princes and monarchs with the courage and contumely inspired by the fendal system. In 1200 Innocent III. laid an interdist—then far more dreaded than a tidal interdiel—then far more dreaded than a tidal wave or an earthquake now—upon France. Eight years later he discharged equal thun-derbolts on England, and deposed King John and Otho IV. of Germany. The successor of Otho is now squaring the account, and ma-king out a balance in favor of the state, with as calm an indifference as marked the condcut of Innocent IV. when he made the German throne was a second time in 1545 throne vacant a second time in 1545 The vengeance which the Emperor William' is stolidly perpetrating on the Catholic Church ignores the fact, however, that when the popes essayed political power, and exercised functions which, according to to Hallam, they alone were able to exercise in behalf of civilizstion during the Middle Ages, they never transferred to themselves the prerogatives of which they temporarily deprived rebellious potentates. They never stole. And that is what Germany is about to do; which Italy has done, and which Austria will do as soon as the throne feels strong enough to kick the altar over. The new German law regarding vacant dioceses, promulgated ere now, author izes the state to absorb those dioceses and their belongings whose bishops the previous law has imprisoned or driven into exile. The confiscatory sections are as follows: 6. Upon an Episcopal see falling vacant in consequence of a sentence of the ecclesiast ical court, the chapter of the diocese shall be forthwith called upon by the governor-general of the province to elect a vicar. Unless the governor-general be informed within ten days of a vicar, having being elected, or un less the vicar elected takes his oath of allegi ance within a formight after the expiry of the first ten days, the minister of ecclesisatical affairs shall appoint a commissary to take charge of the property, real and otherwise, be-longing to or administered by the see. Should any coercive measures be required to cause the said property to be handed over to the commission, such measures shall be taken by the governor-general.

"2. The terms 'bishop' and 'Episcopal' used in this law likewise apply to archbishops and prince bishops, their sees, boards, divceses, etc. The Episcopal rights and functions referred to in this law are those properly belong-ing to the Episcopal office as well as those delegsted to it.

The state having gotten hold of the prop-erty, the people will be permitted to elect such priests, and superior ecclesiastics, as are acceptable to the state, under the law impo sing state supremacy over the church; but as such priests would have no authority from Rome, and, consequently, no spiritual func-tions, the people will be compelled to leave the property in the bands of the state, and do without religious services - Chicago Times.

AUTHOR OF THE "ORIGN AND DESTINY OF MAN."

This work is remarkably sugrestive of thought, and is, in an eminent degree, a KET TO FOLITICAL SCIENCE, as well as the STATESMAN'S GUIDE. It probes the profound in mature; it deals in great principles more es-pecial y than in the dry details of mere facts, although it purjoorts to trace the origin of the various phases of government, from the crude savage despotisms of prin-tive times, when gross selfshness was the railing motive, ensured and upware in the scale of morel and infinite tra-derive opment, to the present time. CHICAGO, BATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1874.

Spiritualism at De Bar's Opera-'House.

A performance announced as a "Night with the Spirits" last night drew a good audience to this theater. The gentleman running this en-tertainment, Mr. S. S Baldwin, advertised that he would do all the tricks of the Daven-port Brothers, the celebrated medium Foster, and other famous so called Spiritualists, and then explain and expose them. The first part then explain and expose them. The first part of his promise he redeemed, the last he did not. On the stage was placed a cabinet, such as is generally used by the spiritual mediums in their scances. Mr. Baldwin, assisted by a lady and another gentleman, went through all the well known manifestations, and did them all with great skill; in fact, some of them were done with greater rapidity and were more star-tling in their effect than anything done by the Davenport Brothers. Four gentlemen were chosen by the audience to examine the spa-ratus and bind the performers when necessary, and they evidently did the work entrusted to them faithfully. Any one who has never seen these astoniahing tricks should take this opportunity of doing so, and if they have ever had any faith in this most visionary of all the modern isms, it will speedily be dispelled. Among the many marvelous tricks shown was the collection of a number of articles from the audience by one of the committee; the pro-fessor being previously blindfolded and shut up in his dark cabinet, named each one, giving the date on a coin, the printed matter on cards, and such a minute description of the articles as could only be obtained by a careful exam-ination. He also, while bound in his chair in ination. He also, while bound in his chair in the cabinet, wrote upon a slate certain mes-sages purporting to be from the Spirit-world-one to a steamboat captain, advising him, when he raced, to "either win or bust;" also a message to the St. Louis Democrat Company, informing them "that the conduct and policy of their paper was highly approved of in the Spirit-world." The latter communication was signed "Tom Collins." Most of the materialistic manifestations usually shown by the Spiritualists were given, the promised expos-Spiritualists were given, the promised expos-ure consisting mainly in the assertion of the performer that they were accomplished entire-ly by physical means. It is true he explained the modus operandi of a few things, but they were of a trivial character. There is nothing the public like so much as to be astonished, and when a trick is explained all astonishment ceases, so, perhaps, Mr. Baldwin acts wisely in keeping his secrets to himself, for his audience may go again to wonder at his marvels. The promise of exposure makes a very good advertisement; for there were many peop e in the theater last night who would not enter such a place under any consideration, with-out the excuse of aiding in the laudable pur-pose of exposing something that was wrong. There will be two more performances—to-night and to-morrow night-when the pro-gramme will be entirely changed —St Louis dence of intelligence consists in their noisy verbosity, who will call it a complete exposure of genuine spiritual manifestations. Ministers of the gospels, pious devotees, and opponents of liberal views will flock to see Baldwin perform, regarding him as a most desirable acquisition to Christianity, and a powerful opponent of the Davil.

Mr. Baldwin's performance consists of tricks exclusively; the genuine medium resorts to no tricks-he leaves the spirits to do what they can, and everything that is accomplished, is traceable directly to them. It is indeed a remarkable exhibition of spirit power to have two handkerchiefs exhibited simultaneously at the apertures in two different cabinets ten feet apart, as is frequently performed in Mrs. Miller's presence, and person who could arrange an ingenious device and do the same, calling it an "expose," might be regarded as entitled to the appellation of "Prince of fools" during the remainder of his natural life. These performances of different chariatans or mountebanks constitute no exposure of Spiritualism. To do that is an, impossibility. As well call all greenbacks counterfeit, because imitations thereof are in circulation to defraud and deceive the people.

Mr. Baldwin should be compelled to do all that getuine mediums can, or be arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses, tried, convicted, and imprisoned. Also those who claim a spiritual origin for what is performed in their presence, and yet do it all themselves, should share the same fate. Those two classes should meet the same doom, and be locked in the same cell, and there hold communion with each other.

In Mrs. Miller's scances, she will touch the ends of her fingers to a stand, and the strength of two men can not hold it to the floor! Let this mountebank Baldwin do the same, and then we will know that he derives his power from spirits-perhaps he is aided by a band of Diaka. Possibly he may be the victim of Diakks influence. His organism is probably of that nature that would attract around him spirits from the Diakks region of the Spiritworld. If so, he is able to perform feats the whys and wherefores of which he will under no circumstance explain. Indeed, the article from the Democrat asserts that Mr. Baldwin acts wisely in keeping his secrets to himself.

Mr. Baldwin's exposure does not injure Spiritualism in the least. The tidal wave, animated by supramundane influences, moves grandly forward, receiving accession to its mighty volume as it advances, until now it has force sufficient to remove churches, to wash out the Orthodox influence from ministers of the gospel, while those who bathe in its pellucid waters are refreshed, and feel animated to perform a glorious work. Indeed, nothing can hurt the truth-nothing can tarnish it-nothing can expose it! As the River of Time rolls along, carrying on its bosom throbbing active life, truth becomes more brilliant, while error and superstition gradually vanish. So don't be alarmed about the safety of Spiritualism. The inuendoes of the press, church members and mountebank exposers, can not even make an indentation on the surface of the mask that covers and protects it. It came to stay-to convert the world, and to usher in the millennium!

be compelled to submit to the painful ordeal of having our tongue perforated in the most cruel manner, and in case that did not act as a preventive against further infringement of the law, the letter B would be branded on our forehead. This, indeed, is a relic of the dark ages. It should not be repealed ; it is too monstrous a law, too hellish in its penalties, to ever be handled in order to bury it out of sight of religious fanatics. Let it stand as a monument of the folly and fanaticism of the past, in order to see if there is a remnant of barbarisus resting in the church that would lisp one word in its favor, or that would dare to enforce its cruel provisions.

But what shall we say to our Brother Luke P. Poland, the author of the recent law which enables bigots and fanatics to get us indicted and taken from our own State to a foreign land where such barbarous laws stand in full force upon the statute book! Not out of the United States it is true, but under a government where laws yet remain upon the statute book which would disgrace the most benighted nation on earth.

Thirty-eight years ago four young lawyers, viz: Luke P. Poland, E. L. Mayo, H. P. Smith and S. S. Jones, with N. P. Keeler and several others of their friends, on a certain Sunday, attended a Camp Meeting in the town of Wolcott, in the State of Vermont. None of us were noted for plety, neither were we considered very bad young men, and yet if the old law above quoted had been in force in Vermont, we should each and all have been amenable to it, and in all probability each of us would have had our tongues bored, and as Poland was our captain on that occasion, he doubtless would have suffered the extreme penalty in that law provided! Ab, me! It is horrible to contemplate what might have been the consequence that would have followed such a catastrophe.

Bro. Poland's eloquence as a lawyer would have been forever hushed by reason of an ecclesiastical hole in his tongue. He would have had a letter B engraved on his forehead with a hot iron, -for it must be remembered that Judge Poland was a somewhat wayward young man, and often repeated effenses, defined in the decalogue, and not less frequently those enumerated in the above quoted law.

"Bro. Poland on the score of old friendship will compassionately refrain from procuring an indictment against us at Washington under his law, we feel well assured, and yet we confess that we are stepping upon dangerous ground. Still he must admit that our case is well put against him, at least under the fourteen sections above referred to, but not quoted at length.

If the Judge questions it, we will refer him to the facts as we can establish them in the personal experience of Bro. H. P. Smith on that ever to be remembered Sunday.

But we had in our mind the consequence that would have followed the execution of those laws upon Brother Poland in the early budding of his legal acumen, and which have finally burst into full bloom as a flower of a new genus known as the "Poland Law."

First, in our mind's vision we behold our friend's eloquence checked by a hole in his tongue | Second, we behold one of Vermont's most brilliant and shining lights snuffed out at the age of 22. Thirdly, we behold Vermont in the Free Soll campaign, of a few years later. destitute of a young politician, who was destined by an all-wise Providence (if not thwarted by his violation of the above law) a few years later, to be the recipient of the ermine of a Justice of the Supreme Court of Vermont, from thence elevated to the Chief Justiceship, and from thefice by the ap pointment of an admiring Governor to the Chamber of the United States Senate, and from thence by the free suffrage of a grateful people to the House of Representatives. And also let us query what would have been the fate of the Poland bankrupt law, and several pails of whitewash, the compounding of which he has superintended, and last but not least where would have been the recent " Poland Law " for punishing presumptive editors for scandalum magnatum.

A Spirit Announced His Own Death, which Mrs. Jennie Lord Webb's Seances. is Verified.

BRO. S. S. JONES -I received, a few, days ago, a letter from Brother Cyrus Lord, 160 Warren Avenue, of your city, bearing a com-munication as follows from W. T. Cum-mings: "I was struck by lightning, a day or two since, at Atlanta. I know Dr. Taber. I will try to make myself known through Mrs. Smith. Tell the people I am all right now, but went Tell the people I am all right now, but went out sooner than I expected. Never stand in a draft during a storm, if you don't want to get killed by lightning—W. T. Cummings." This man was killed by lightning here on the 8th inst., 3 o' clock A. M. while standing at an open window. The letter of Brother Hord bears date of the 10th inst. The com-munication are given by the bart the standing munication was given through the medium-ship of Mrs. Webb, Dr. Lords' daughter, No. 111, Walnut street, Chicago.

F. F. TABER, M.D. Atlanta, Ga., July 17th, 1874.

After the above was in type, Dr. Lord, father of Mrs. Webb, called at our office with a letter from Dr. Taber, of Georgia, to the same effect as the above. Dr. Lord then related the circumstances of the spirit's communication, which was in substance as follows:

Dr. Lord was sitting at the table with Mrs. Webb, receiving directions by independent writing from the spirit of Hon. N. A. Foster, formerly editor of the Maine State Press, in regard to the development of Mrs. Smith, of Atlants, Ga., the lady referred to by the spirit in the above communication.

Dr. Lord is a developing medium, and the spirit of Mr. Foster directs him in regard to instructions to be given for such development, which he transmits by mail to the mediums he is thus aiding.

It will be seen that the spirit of the man who had just been killed, seized upon the opportune moment, and gave the facts in regard to his death. As with a man awaking from a sleep, he says, "I was struck by lightning a day or two since." He knew that much, but did not know the precise time. Others in this life could and did tell the precise time.

"Another fact worthy of notice; his friends and acquaintances were holding a corréspondence, both by letter and spirit writing, with people in Chicago, hence the spirit was brought en rapport with Mrs Webb, the medium, and gave the test communication above published. This communication was given by independent writing with his own hand upon a slate held by the medium.- [EDITOR JOURNAL.

A Mystery.

An exchange gives a description of something curious, said to have occurred at the beautiful little cemetery, Georgetown, Ky. It sppears that the cemetery is carefully tended and guarded by a keeper, who resides in a sombre-looking cottage at the main entrance to the cemetery. The grounds are well laid out, the trees well placed, the walks well kept, and the moauments scattered in picturesque profusion. Somewhere near the central spot in this city of the dead rises a massive pile dedicated to the memory of one of Bcott county's wealthiest men, whose remains lie buried beneath.

One day the gardener went out to his daily bor and in his round monument stood. He looked at the place where the name and age of the deceased stood blazoned forth. It was not there. He rubbed his eyes and looked again. Still the engraved letters did not make their appearance. He began to doubt the evidence of his senses, and going up to the marble, he passed his hand along its smooth surface in search of the letters, with the same result as met) his previous examination. In perfect amazement he startled for a while, then, actuated by some strange impulse, he took a position upon the opposite side of the monument, when lo and behold, there stood the letters as bright and clear as eyer. There was but one inference from this, either the grounds had changed their shape in the night, which was not likely, or the huge monument had been moved around. 'But how this was done was the mystery, for there were no footprints on the soft, green turf, or any signs of workmen having been employed at that spot during the night, and to accompliah what had been done a tremendous force would have to be brought to bear. ' And so it appeared a perfect mystery how the fact was accomplished. The man carried the news to town. The curious Conce rushed to the scene, and puzzled themselves as to how the mystery could have been wrought. Hundreds of people visit the place daily, and the matter is as great a puzzle as ever.

We have frequently alluded to the remarkable mediumistic powers of Mrs. Webb. Her phases of mediumship are marvelous-physical and mental. It will be remembered by our readers that it was through the mediumship of Mrs. Webb that our old and estdemed friend, Dr. Samuel Underhill, gave us a communication which we recently published in this paper. That was a communication writen by the Doctor's own spirit-hand. . Many such are given in the presence of Mrs. Webb.

AUGUST 15, 1874.

Bro. R. R. C. Bardwell, of Penn Yan, N. Y., in a letter dated July 15, to Mrs. Webb, endorses the truthfulness of a communication; given through her mediumship, from his second wife, in the following words : " In one place (referring to a clause in his letter to his spirit-wife) I asked her to tell something that might convince the children. In her communication she said the last garment she made was not quite finished when she left. This was true."

Mrs. Webb gives seances to private parties who wish to investigate Spiritualism by themselves. Address or call on her at her residence, 111 Walnut street, Chicago, in regard to such seances.

BPES BARGENT, THE AUTHOR, TO MRS. WEHR, THE MEDIUM.

DEAR MRS WEBB : Your letter of the 10th was duly received, and I am glad to learn that you are still well enough to give those manifestations of a super-sensual power, which impressed me so much when I witnessed them some years ago_in Roxbury, under cir-cumstances which excluded all possibilities of deception or delusion.

. I read recently an account given by Mr. S. 8. Jones of a Seance at which you had given him an excellent test in a communica-tion from Dr. Samuel Underhill. It seemed to me, and seems to me still, one of the best tests I nave ever seen authenticated. I have laid it aside for quotation in case I should prepare another work of any extent on spiritual-

Mr. Wallace's work is having great influence in England as I learn by a letter from Mr. H. D. Jackson, the husband of the little girl who initiated modern Spiritualism, under the name of Kate Fox.

I have read with interest the articles in the Chicago Times on Mr. Wallace's pamphlet. They seem to me able and impartial.

Mrs. Sargent returns your messages of re-membrance. She recently lost her dear mother, who, you may remember, was present at your seances at our house, and to whom Spiritualism was a source of the greatest consolation up to the last of her mortal stay with

Wishing you health and prosperity, I re-main, dear Mrs. Webb,

Respectfully yours, EPES BARGENT,

Boston, July 23d, 1874.

Mrs. N. D. Miller.

This lady's seances continue to attractattention from all classes-the skeptic as well as the confirmed believer. She interests the believer and bewilders the skeptic. Her tests are given with ease and rapidity and are of a character calculated to interest the investigator. There are but few mediums in the world as highly favored as Mrs. Miller. May she live long, and continue to sow the good seeds of the Harmonial Philosophy.

ED. JOURNAL -Enclosed, find the above account from the Democrat, St. Louis, Mo., of the exposure of Spiritualism. What is the truth in this matter? Is it possible we are all the dupes of tricksters? Yours,

FOR TRUTH.

Kirksville, Mo,

Dou't be alarmed, Brother, at the exploits of this mountebank. He offers $5,000 to any person who will designate a single feat performed through the instrumentality of mediums that he can not himself perform,-like one other distingushed charlatan who promised the whole world to Jesus if he would fall down and worship him, or cast himself from the planacle of the temple, when the miscrable wretch did not own a foot of it. Baldwin's impudence is unparalleled. He has some very clever tricks, undoubtedly, that he performs, which he announces to the public as an exposure of Spiritualism. The poor simpleton's brain is not of sufficient capacity to comprehend the fact that for every genuine article, there is a base counterfeit-the latter he perfectly represents.

Spiritualism can not be exposed by any proceas whatever. If a spirit can move a chair standing in the center of a room, with its own influence, that man would be a most consummate simpleton who by arranging machinery so that it could move it, would call the same an exposure of Spiritualism! If a spirit writes on a'slate in the presence of a medium, would it be an exposure of the feat for an expert to do the same through the instrumentality of some ingenious device? Of course there are addle heads drough in every community whose evi-

Good Chance for Bigoted Church Members to Bore Heretics Through the Tongue.

Judge Poland's law authorizing the indictment in the District Court of Columbia, and the arrest and removal to Washington city, of any editor or publisher accused of libel, has resulted in unearthing a genuine religious monster designed to persecute heretics and promote the religion of God. Persons indicted and arrested under the Poland law, must be tried for libel under the definition of the old Maryland laws. One of these laws, though long since repealed in Maryland, and dated back to Colonial days, but still in force in the District of Columbia, has been hunted up by a correspondent of the New York Tribune, and reads as follows :

An act to punish biasphemous swearers, drupkards, and Sabbath breakers, and for repealing the laws heretofore made for the pun-ishing such offenders. Be it enacted by the Right Honorable the Lord

Proprietor, by and with the advice and con-sent of his Lordship Governor, and the Upper and Lower Houses of Assembly, and the authority of the same:

authority of the same: That if any person shall bereafter within this province wittingly, maliciously, and ad-visedly, by writing or speaking, blaspheme or curse God, or, deny our Savior Jusus Christ to be the Son of God, or shall deny the Holy Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, or the Godhead of any of the Three persons, or the Unity of the Godhead, or shall utter any profame words concerning the Holy Trinity the Unity of the Godhead, of ahall utter any profane words concerning the Holy Trinity or any of the persons thereof, and shall be thereof, convicted by verdict or confession, shall, for the first offense be bored through the tongue and fined twenty pounds sterling to the Lord Proprietor, to be applied to the use of the country when the constraint the use of the country where the offense shall be committed, to be levied on the offender's body, goods, and chattels, lands or tenements; and in case the said fine cannot be levied, the offender shall suffer six months' imprisonment without ball or mainprise ; and that for the second offense, the offender, being thereof convicted as aforesaid, shall be stigmatized by burning in the forehead with the letter B, and fined forty pounds sterling to the Lord Pro-prietor, to be applied and levied as aforesaid, and in case the same cannot be levied the oftender shall suffer twelve months imprisonnent without bail or mainprise; and that for the third offense, the offender being convicted as aforesaid, shall suffer death without benefit of clergy."

[There are fourteen sections more, but they effer to swearing, drinking, and breaking the Sabbath.]

Now, should we publish an article in the JOURNAL, desying that Christ is the Son of God, or show the utter absurdity of the belief In the existence of the Holy Trinity, we could under the Poland law be indicted, arrested, and tried in the District of Columbia, B. C. ALLEN sends for and if found guilty of the charge, we would no post office address.

The Camp-meeting at Fort Dodge, lowa.

In this issue we publish a call for a campmeeting at Fort Dodge, Is. Dr. Sanford is very zealous and anxious to make a success of this meeting. He wishes all good public mediums that are uncontaminated with Moses-Woodhullism-Social-Freedom, to attend. We are glad to see this indirect evidence even, that the meeting is not to be run in the interest of that infamy.

Iowa resolutions since the great-free-love meeting have not met the expectations of the Spiritualists of that State, nor of the true Spiritualists of any other part of the country. They have been insipid avoidances of expressions, instead of outspoken disapprovals of that most detestable doctrine. We hope to see the Iowa Spiritualists place themselves upon record on that question, at this meeting, in a manner not to be a disgrace to them when the history of Iowa Spiritualism is written up.

A specific ignoring of social freedom in their call, would have given them the multitude of attendants which the officials so much desire.

We hope this intimation of the character of mediums required, will have the same effect. Hence, we say to the Spiritualists everymere in the North west, Turn out en mass, ad declare the sentiments of true Spiritualists to the world.

WE refer our readers to the advertisement headed "Mrs. Blade & Mrs. Carey." Mrs. Blade is a splendid medium for slate writing, giving tests, etc., and Mrs. Carey is an excellent magnetic healer.

S. C. ALLEN sends for books, etc., but give

Dr. D. C. Dake,

The following encomium is taken from the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle, and is a just tribute to a worthy healer, and a live Spiritualist and medium: "Dumont C. Dake of Chicago, Ill., who formerly resided in this city, is now here on a visit. The doctor has a large practice in Chicago, and is at the head of a cure (health institute), which has a deservedly high reputation. His visit to Rochester can not give greater pleasure to himself ithan to his friends who welcome him back with great satisfaction, even if his sojourn here can buly be a temporary one."

Grove Meeting.

There will be a Grove Meeting at /Waverly, Iowa, commencing Sept. 5th, and holding over Sunday the 6th.' Mrs. H. Morse, State Missionary of Iowa, and A. J. Fishback, of Michigan, are expected as speakers. Let the friends of Northern Iows come up to the "feast of soul." Come with well filled baskets, blankets, etc. The citizens will do all in their power to make comfortable all friends from a distance.

The Spiritualists of Macomb Co., Michigan, are to hold a two days' Grove Meeting on Saturday and Sunday, the 23d and 23d of Aug., one and one-half miles west of Disco. Mrs. L. A. Pearsall, G. B. Stebbins, and other speakers are expected.

Letter of Fellowship.

The RELIGIO PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY granted a letter of Fellowship to Brother Felix Bonfi of Santiago, Chile, on the Tsl day of August, 1874, constituting him a regular min-. ister of the gospel, and authorizing him to solemnize marriages in due form of law.

MRS. COLBY, of Indiana, is now lecturing in Chicago, before the First Spiritualist Society. J. RAINEY sends 50 cents for Photograph of Katie King, but don't give any post office address.

J. W. VAN ARMAN, of Wisconsin, please send your address to Mattle Hulett Parry, Beloit, Wis.

Bro. E. W. Shortridge, of Salem, Oregon, says he has been lecturing and traveling the year past with success. He says histen months labor in that country has been a success. We are glad to hear it, and hope the friends will keep him at work. Address until further notice, at Balem, Oregon.

BRILLE A. CHAMBERLAIN, of whom we have so frequently mentioned as doing a good work in Oregon, informs us that she can be addressed until further notice at Bols City, Idaho. We hope our friends will give her calls to lecture, wherever she may go. Our friends in the mountains often write, imploring us to direct the attention of true Spiritualists to these localities. Now is the time for them to secure her services.)

DR. J. K. BAILEY lectured at Utica, Mich., Sunday July 12th; at Wales Center, Mich., July 19th; made a brief visit at Port Huron, Mich., for many years his home, and passed through Canada to Sterlingville, Jeilerson Co., N. Y., where he may be addressed until further notice. We hope the friends of Spiritualism in the East will keep Bro. Bailey in the field by giving him plenty of work and just com station therefor.

THE CLOCK STRUCK THREE, by Dr. Bamb, Watson is now ready for delivery!/ It is a large 12 mo. 853 pages, printed on beautiful tinted paper, well bound and sold at the very reasonable price of $1.50, postage free. Next week we shall review the book at some length.

RELIGIO-PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL

(Phonographically reported for this department of the JOURNAL, by the Editor)

I was speaking of the necessity of observing the conditions of order and harmony in spiritaal circles, if we expect good manifestations. It is curious to observe how some of the highest spiritual laws have been set forth, particularly by the poets long ago. Perhaps there is no poet of higher rank than Tennyson. Twenty-five or twenty-six years ago when he wrote his "In Memoriam," touching the necessity of harmony, if we will attempt communication with the other world, it seems to me really amazing and certainly a wonderful proof of poetical inspiration, that he, in advance of all that we have seen, has been able to set down one of the most important laws connected with Spiritualism. Hosays:

How pure in heart and loved in head With what divine affections bold, All hour's communion with the dead!

In vain shalt thou, or any, call The spirits from their golden day Except, like them, thou too canst say My spirit is at peace with all.

They haunt the silence of the breast, Imagination calm and fair, The memory like a cloudless air,

The conscience as a sea at rest. But when the heart is full of din, And doubt beside the portal waite, They can but listen at the gates" And hear the household jar within.

By the way, this truth has a much more ex-tended theatre of application-has a much more extended mode of showing itself, than simply in regard to spiritual manifestations, if in any family there be bitter discord-there be jarrings and heart-burnings, be sure that that family will not be visited by good spiritual in-fluences from the other side; not that good spirits are unfeeling, but that they are incapa-ble of entering there. Having not the power they remain outside, and listen to the jar within.

I think if all men and women who are members of families, were thoroughly convinced of this truth, we should have fewer family dissensions than we have. That leads me to say a few words in regard to a question which is often asked touching the use of Spiritualism. Perhaps you will allow me to state, as it occure to me just at present: During a visit I made to a friend in New York, a lady whom I have known for many years, and who is very well known to the public, - she had heard of a matter I gave you an opportunity of seeing, asmely, the three verses of the Greek Testsment, which I myself saw written by a luminous hand, on a piece of paper, placed upon my knee. She had asked me to show her that paper. When I called I found a gention in had arrived before me. I was introduced to him; nothing was said about Spiritualism for him; nothing was said about Spiritualism for half an hour, during which time two ladies entered. Finally I said do you think your visitors would consider me a heathen if I provisitors would consider me's heathen if 1 pro-posed to show you that writing? The ladies protested that they would not, and the gentle-man assented coldly. When I had done so, my friend turned to the gentleman, and asked, "What do you think of that, sir?" He re-plied: "I don't know; I don't pretend to ex-plain how it was done." Turning to me he said, "What possible use can it be?" My re-ply was "Are you serious air, in asking that ply was, "Are you serious, sir, in asking that question?" "Why should you doubt that I was serious?" If what I have shown you is genuine, said I, it is certainly evidence of a power outside of this world, the question of another life is inwolved, and do you ask me what is the use of it? But says he "I believe in another world, and I need nothing of that kind." All right, said I; they that are whole need not a physi-cian, but they that are sick, what of them? What do you think of the sick men outside the church, such as Darwin, Huxley, Tyndall and Spencer, and hundreds of others; have you no feeling for them? "Why," said he, "they have the Bible, and if they don't believe the Bible so much the worse for them. I said, but if they do not believe the Bible, is it better to leave them entirely in their un-belief, or to supply them with that sort of evidence which reaches their case? Who was that man? I said, after he left. "That is one of the bluest of blue Presbyterians, and I never was so much pleased in my life, as I was to hear what you said to him. him." I know that a great many persons think that they have a perfect belief in another world without such evidence, but I question whether their feelings about the next world deserve the name of belief, certainly not conviction. I remember, some four or five years since, taking breakfast with a friend of mine, a Presbyterian clergyman. He is one of those who does not say everything that he thinks; he is a thoroughly liberal man. I believe he remem-bers the saying of Christ, "I have many things to say to you, but ye can not bear them now." After breakfast, when we were about separat-ing, he said, "If you are not in a hurry, Mr. Owen, I would like to have a little talk with you." This gentleman is of a wealthy family, and has an independent fortune of his own. We sat down at a front window, with a hand-We sat down at a front window, with a handwe sat down at a ront window, with a hand-some brown-stone church just opposite. He said, "Having studied this matter of Spiritual-ism long, what effect has it had upon your faith? Do you believe more strongly than you did in the immortality of the human soul, and a future life?" Baid I, "If I were to say yes, the language would not convey to you a correct idea. You would think it strange if I were to any that I think there is a brown store courted idea. You would think it strange if I were to say that I think there is a brown stone church over there." Baid he, "Do you mean to say that your conviction in regard to another world is the same as your knowledge about that church?" Baid I, "That is exactly what I do intend to say." Baid he, "Well, Mr. Owen, if I could say the same thing I would be willing to give up half I am worth in the world." world." I remember on another occasion conversing with a Bishop of a very orthodox seet, but who had been looking into Spiritualism, as even bishop's will sometimes. He related to me this fact: having been called upon to visit an aged minister, nearly eighty years old, I believe, the conversation turned on the evidence of Christianity. 'At the close of their conversa-tion the dying man said, "Ah, Blahop, the proof, the proof, if we only had this." These things clearly indicate that many, even of the most orthodor, have not that pri of belief; that sort of knowledge that we ought to have, if it is to enter into our lives as a con-viction. There is no day of my life in which that conviction and its results do not occur as prompting motives. There are other uses of Spiritualism; it is not enough merely to believe, even in the firm-est manner the existence of another world. We must have rational views of it. Is it a theatre of action, of progress, or is it an assemblage for eternal worship! Now I confess to you frankly that if it is an assemblage for eternal worship, if those who are most favored there are to sit in a grand amphitheatre, before s throne with harps in their hands, to praise God forever and ever; if that is the best that can occur to us on the other side, I would almost as soon be a Buddhist, and believe in their Nervana. They have no hopes, no fears, no joys, no sufferings nor anxiety; they are absolutely at rest, and that is all. Such a heaven as that, is no heaven to me. A heaven where we shall not help our fellow-creatures as we do here, where the grand aims of the human heart can not find satisfactory exercise, such a heaven has no attractions for me.

Then be it remembered this is only the beautiful side of the orthodox heaven. Take Calvin's idea; take even Luther's idea, and he did not go so far, and you will find them as-serting that a mere handfull escape from hell where they are to suffer torment forever and ever. When we look at this thing it seems amazing that mankind should have believed what they have.

Supposing a line marking the grade of hu-man character divided into one thousand degrees, there must be some point in that gradation above which all go to heaven, and below which all go to hell; let us suppose one hun-dred and eight that number. Number one hundred and eight is promoted to heaven; number one hundred and nine is consigned to heil. How very small must be the difference of merit between these two. Upon my word, Buther it seems a waste of time and thought to argue such an absurdity. I do not mean to say that I think there is no suffering on the other side, but I believe as Bidnop Butler in his Analogy says, that it will be suffering as the result of our own actions; such suffering as naturally results from our actions, and is not arbitrarily imposed upon us; it is our owd, often ignorantly no doubt, but still our own. I do not believe for a moment that Christ himself expressed any bellef in the doctrine of eternal punishment. He speaks frequently of suffering, and "outer darkness" is a common, and I believe, perfectly correct expression, to designate the state of these who go into the other world, being unprepared for such an existence.

I think there is a great deal contained in that expression, "outer darkness," used by Christ. In a general way I believe that there is a great deal more important truth in the gospels, and in the words of Christ, than we are at all accustomed to impart to them, a great deal more practical good.

Now let us take the very first words which he is recorded to have spoken, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." What the orthodox idea of the kingdom of heaven is, I have already stated, but Christ's idea was thus expressed, "The kingdom of God cometh not by observation, neither can ye say, Lo here, or lo there, for behold the kingdom of God is within you.

The Qusker doctrine-the old Quaker doctrine-not the orthodox Quaker doctrine-the kingdom of God is within you. He said, "Re-pent for the kingdom of God is at hand." That is to say the time is approaching when the conscience of man, the spirit of God within him, shall be his guide. I believe that Spiritualism will do more than any other one thing to bring about the state of the kingdom of God, taken in they sense which Christ ascribed to it.

To conclude and sum up what I have sought to present to you, I would say that I consider Spiritualism as a supplement to Christianity. Christ evidently did not declare that his work on earth was a finality. He expressly said just before his death "I have many things to you, but ye can not bear them not "He that believeth on me, the things that I do shall he do, and greater things, because I go to my Father.'

ter as they had been, were the school which had prepared me for an important work, and while I would not recommend anyone to fol-low such a course, I desire all to know that there is a compensation for every condition of life, however much of suffering it may bring. My mission in this life was laid out partly by my earthly experiences, but more by my father's career, as I was very closely linked to

I have always occupied two different and distinct conditions, which is no uncommon thing either for spirits or mortals; I mean the one in which I am materialized and do my work on that plane, and the one in which I res: and labor on the interior and spiritual plane. I have never met anyone who has been willing to continue so long as I have these two kinds of life. My first which is on the physical plane, as I have said, has been a progressive one, and I have been so successful and have done so much for spirits and mortals, that I am not dissatisfied with it. The other, my in-terior and spiricual condition, is enjoyed in a beautiful home of peace and love, and very few spirits can realize that I am the same spirit in the two conditions.

Of course, I can tell you a great deal more about my physical condition in spirit life, than that which I shall term my spiritual, though I desire to tell you all I can of both, and I am very happy to know that I can do so much more with you alone on the spiritual plane on which we meet, than I can when clothed with a material form so as to be visible to all. We could not have had this freedom and fullness of intercourse if you had not seen me when I am materialized.

The relations which I bear to my father, have kept me on the physical plane, as a voluntary actor; of my success my friends here and on earth can judge. My father's condition and on each can be a worker on the most material planes of spirit-life, and I have been happy in helping him. We have performed an immense amount of labor on this plane as well on the spiritual as the earthly side.

We have circles here for the purpose of instructing spirits in the various physical manifestations. This may seem strange to you, but very few spirits would be able to communicate in any way without this instruction, and there are some that, we find it almost impossible to teach and hence they can not be heard from directly.

Father and I have concluded that we would close our separate narratives here, and give you our joint experiences, and endeavor to explain to you not only the mode of our opera-tions, but as far as possible the philosophy of all these things, in which we shall be aided by numerous spirits, some of whom are far beyoud earthly scenes and conditions. We shall first describe the formation of circles in the different conditions of life.

----Lectures.

A. J. Fishback, the great Spiritual lecturer, began a series of lectures here last Friday evening. On his first appearance he was greeted by but a amall audience. The next night he spoke to a great many more and on Sunday afternoon and evening he addressed large con gregations in Mintonye's Hall. Monday night he addressd a full house on the subject of 'Love, Marriage, Divorce and Social Free Mr. Fishback is a decided Spiritualist dom. and firmly believes that the Spirits of the de parted communicate with the living in accordance with natural laws. We can give no idea of the doctrines taught by this eloquent man. His thoughts are original and he clothes with words that fascinate. People will go to hear him and he fastens their attention with the force of his logic and the power of his oratory. He seems a thoroughly good, moral man and is commended for his exemplary life by one of our most eminent ministers whose personal friend he is and whose guest he hasbeen. All classes of our citizens go to hear No Spiritual lecturer has ever before him. drawn such audiences in Osceola.

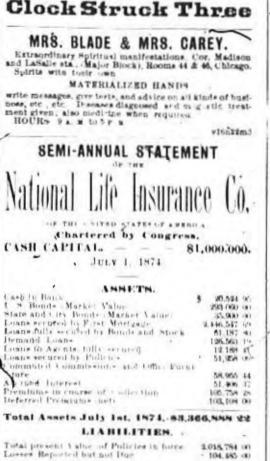

We believe that last night was his last in the place for the present, but we are assured that he will be with the people of Osceola again if his life be spared. His lecture on temperance last Sunday night was a powerful eff art, and probably did more for the cause in this tern, than all of the prohibitory legislation ever enacted in the State. There are vast nhinbers of people who are by no means Spiritualists, yet think it a pleasure to listen to the discourse of A. J. Fishback. - Osceola, Reacon, Iowa.

Our friends throughout the State of Iowa will do well to secure the services of Brother Fishback. Hagives universal satisfaction as a lecturer - | ED JOURNAL.

-----Camp Meeting.

DEAR BROKER . Stir up the friends of our cause in your vicinity, to come to the meeting, and don't fail to come yourself. Let us have a good time, and a grand success, and let the people of the State know that the Spiritualists not only have a good, or a better religion than not only have a good, or a better religion than any of the sects, but they can practically de-monstrate it, by attending this large gathering of the lowers of our philescophy. It will cost but a triffe and by thus meeting together, we may strengthen our cause and benefit ourselves. Tell the friends to pack their tents in trunks with other things neces sary at Camp Meetings, and come prepared to have a good time, and they will not regret the time or money spent

RELIGIO-PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL.

A Strange Scene and Seance.

DEAR JOURNAL :- A few evenings ago, 1 witnessed one of the most remarkable scenes that ever fell to my lot, or sal think, to the lot of any mortal For strange, wild, weird lot of any mortal. For strange, wild, weird actions, songs, speeches, music, etc., it was surely unsurpassed A good sized room was well filled, while three or four mcdiums sat near one end of the room, the rest sat in a cir-c'e. The apartment was well lighted, and the first thing to which we were treated, was the celebrated "fire test," when fire was handled by the medium with naked hands as handled by the medium with naked hands as if it had been so much yoe instead of fire. understand that Dr. John Stolz recently occupied my old platform before the "Free Religious Society of Chicago," and delivered himself of a lecture in which he took the ground that "the fire test was all a trick," and that to prove it, he did the same thing in the presence of the audience. Now, I have no money to stake and no disposition to "bet" with my old friend Stoiz, but I have the remnant of better days in the shape of a piano that cost $625 I will give him this instru-ment if he will do what I have seen the afore said medium do, without cooking the firsh on his hands and arms. Now, Doctor, come on, and if you fail, you shall present me with your anatomical preparations and the para-phernalia used in octuring on anatomy, physlology, etc. It is a vain assumption. No man can held his hand in the crisping, crack-ling frame of burning alcohol and not be burned unless he is preternaturally protected frem it.

Well, at the close of this test there came speaking under strange ultramundane influ Deep and mysterious problems were ences. discussed-such as have perplexed, embar-rassed and confused the minds of the most profound theologians of all ages; as, for example, the question of a true "Theology.

Then came the order to extinguish the lights of burning lamps. This helog done, a small, frail, feeble woman took command of the forces that were to be mustered, and in a voice of authority-loud and stentorian, with the sir of an autocrat or a dictator equal to Cromwell or Napoleon first, she issued her mandates, and gave her orders. Her own daughter deeply entranced, wasconducted to the adjoining room, when in "an unknown tongue" songs and duets were sung and played in the most perfect time, making the most beautiful of music. The daughter and mother are utterly ignorant, as I understand, of all languages except their own, the bag lish-certainly not well skilled in the. An accomplished teacher of music, vocal and instrumental was present and declared that one of the artists sang in what seemed to be a combination of, German and Italian, was ex-quisite in time and melody. The lid of the piano was raised and blow after blow was struck by the controlling influence on the overstrung bass, till you would think the pisno, a fine Steinway, was ruined. Much of the conversation was in the same language as of the songs. Parties were influenced by those strange magnetic currents that, were never influenced before, and frightened badly enough. After this storm was over, I said Well, I have seen here to-night, in some sense, an exact duplicate of those wonderful revivscenes I used to witness when I was a lad "And here is doubtless a solution of the problem said to be referable alone to the "Holy Ghost.

T. B. TAYLOB, M. D.

An Imposition Explained.

DEAR JOURNAL.-In your columns of May sun, you published a starting and very inter-esting account of "A spirit appearing in open court and singling out the forger of his will." It reads well, and as the names of the interest ed parties, dates and localities are given with minute detail, it certainly wears the garb of truth. However, one of the residents of our little town, resolving to test the matter, hit upon a wondroun wise (f) method of gaining the facts, and accordingly appealed for information to the Postmaster of Poplar Island Creek or Neck. Promptly the re back, positively denying that there is the faintest glimmer of truth in the "StoryStranger than Fiction," and asserting that the persons named have never lived in that place, stc., etc. The gentleman who received this answer was no little elated thereat, and calling in his Spiritualist friends, regales himself and amuses them by the emphatic and rhetorical fi surishes with which he dwells on his own ingenuity in thus ferreting out falsehood and, establishing truth. Of course, his anxiety to attain the actual knowledge of the case is decidedly commendable and we give him due credit for the same, but when he concludes his remarks with the declaration that the JOURNAL is responsible for this narration because it is proved untrue, therefore the JOURNAL is a wholesale humbug, and its con-tents a tissue of fictions, indignation is apt to usurp patience, and we are forced to ex-claim, "O, ignorance, thou art the true Prince of Darkness; sufficient for all ages is the poison thereof!" Too bad, ian't it? that you published that account; for it has lost to our ranks, perhaps, a mind whose profundity is evidenced by the logic-with which it deduces that, if a correspondent quotes an article from the Tribune of Denver, Col., sends it to you for publication, and it turns out to be a fabrication that these fore you are a network of fiction, your contributors a corps of swindlers, and Spiritualism a grand lie. Than see, joined with the candid and deep research of this same inquiring mind, the trusting, the infantile simplicity by which it is characterized. Rejecting the JOUANAL with its references, it takes the word of a post-master (probably just because he is such) without knowing sught of him, his honesty or truthfulness; but, then, all United States post-masters are models of morality and truth. I send this to you, my dear JOURNAL, because I believe Mr. - represents a class of your readers who need a chapter of explanation from you. It seems almost impossible to make them understand your true mission and endeavors-they fancy that because the JOURNAL is a Spiritualist organ, it must be burthened with all the false statements, underhand trickery, dishonest maneuvers and contradictory opinions of any persons or societies styling themselves Spiritualists. They can not or will not comprehend that your noble object is to elevate mankind and draw all souls nearer the shining mount of perfection, through the sgency of reason and its handmaiden, investisgency of reason and its handmalden, investi-gation, that your ever-echoing command is merely to investigate—seek, "knowing well that those who dokeek must find;" that your columns are open to the relation of spirit mani-festations, which you publish as they come, demanding the name and address of the writer as a guarantee of good faith, but-leaving the acceptance or rejection of the statement to every reader's own judgment. When can the masses be made to realize that the untruthfulness of one or ten thousand wonderful experiences in Spiritualism, can never in the alightest degree aflect our glorious philosophy. From time immemorial it has find its bribe-vulnerable expounders, its hum-bug mediums, its wrong doing believers, and still every day and every year, it rises higher above the earth-earthy in which its roots must be imbedded here below, reaching its ever green arms into the smiling skies of eternity.

In the forest of religious faiths, it is the majeatic king of trees, alike sought by whitewinged birds of purity and uglydnsects, whose sting is poison to virtue. Those slimy serpents will coll their hideous length around the greenest boughs, but their fangs have no power to injure the tree. They live in the to day-the night of death will chase them to their homes of darkness and remorse, while it will bloom on forever and forever in the sunlight and radiance of the never-ending to-morrow ANNIE JAMES.

Wilcox. Pa. Has Spiritualism & Definite Theory?

MR S. S. Jones :- Permit one of inquisitive mind, yet honest intention, to inquire for in formation hitherto unattainable. For several years I have careful tread whatever has come in my way, on the subject of Spiritualiam, and have looked in vain for a settled theory upon which to locate it, for I find that while one holds up the spirit revelations of the day as proof of the genuineness of the Bible, and refers to the B ble sgain as proof of the claims of modern spirit manifestations, another ridi cules the Bible as a cheat, and relies on spirit communion direct as infallible revelation. While one holds up Spiritualism in opposition to Christianity, another finds his Christian faith strengthened by a belief of Spiritualism. While one pronounces the "Orthodox" theory a delusion, another-as John Emerson, from the Spirit world, professes to have been inspired by heavenly spirits when in the fl-sh presching the 'Orthodox'' doctrine. One makes sport of the "Methodist's bell," yet Emerson, a Methodist. was inspired to preach this same doctrine of the eternal punishment of the wicked.

How shall we reconcile these conflicting messages from the Spirit world? If spirits there have no better means of forming correct opinions, and are no more truthful in their statements than men in this world, they would seem to be very unsafe guides. But if we are to believe the report of John King, alias Morgan, after his two hundred years of areat re-morse and suffering, we must conclude, that if there is not such hell as is described by the Orthodox clergy, there is yet a place sufficient. ly wretched for all practical purposes of punishment. In truth his report represents a place or state of torment just as I have always regarded it, forming my opinions from a Bible stand-point. On the state of the wicked a ter death I can but regard King as strictly Orthodox

Again, I am astonished on all sides! I hear Spiritualists condemn the Bible, a book distinguished for its history of spirit revelations, while Bible Christians reject Spiritualism as unworthy of investigation, and at the same time preach its peculiarities from one end of our land to the other. If it is true, as I have so often heard from the pulpit, that "the pirits of our departed friends are our guardian angels," and that "only a veil hides them from our view," I can't see why these same preachers should cry out "bumbug" and "beelzebub, when others profess to have penetrated this veil and gained a means of communication with these same spirit friends. Then, on the other hand, if Miss Cook can call up and materialize a spirit, I can't see why it may not also be true that the Witch of Endor did really call up and cause Samuel to appear to Saul, as in the Bible history of the case. If modern spirit revelations are true, I can't see why belief of this should require a rejection of the Bible, so full as it is of accounts of ancient apirit manifestations and revelations. History gives us no account of any changes in the physical laws of the universe, and it seems reasonable to conclude that the laws of the Spirit-world may also remain the same in different ages. That if a thing is true to day, it was also true two thousand years sgo, or will be so in the coming future.

Will you or some one inform me and numerous others, as to the real light in which the Bible is held by the masses of Spiritualists. Is it accepted as a truthful history of events. and only certain of its doctrines condemned. or is its truthfulness as a history also rejected? I understand Rev. Samuel Watson as a "Chris tian Spiritualist," on the one hand, and Mosca Hull, as an Infidel Spiritualist, on the other hand. These men I take as representatives of the two extremes. But what do the masses believe regarding the Bible? And if Spiritualism should be reduced to a system or creed, will the Bible be endorsed as a whole, in part, or altegether rejected? Your explanation will much oblige one in search of more light, and who is willing to accept the truth wherever found ..

d'Il vine Louis Lateau took the Holy Sacrament almost ravenously. "In the afternoon, about 2 o'clock, she fell into ecstasy. The Bishop of Tournai went to her previously to see H, perhaps, in conversation she would forget the time; but no-punctually at 2 o'clock she became allent, and her vyca fixed. The Cure of the village declared that L'uise often during her excitement saw apparitions. First she saw God in His glory, and later on, the suffer ings of Christ, especially in the last stages. Shortly before 3 o'clock Lousie fell to the ground, and at 3 she extended her hands. Strange to say, during these convulsions, when the spirit is transported to other regions, it still lives for the things surrounding the body. A consecrated article, for instance, being placed in the immediate neighborhood of Louise, a gentle smile was seen to play on her features. Also during the prayers she smilled at certain moments (fourteen of us were pre-ent, and the priests were praying); when the words 'Gloria Patri,' 'Misericordia,' or 'Misericors,' were uttered she smiled in a remarkable manner no matter if the prayer was delivered in the French, German, or Hebrew; for in her ecstasy she understood all languages, and consecrated or unconsecrated articles were im-mediately distinguished by her Professor Levre convinced us by plunging a penknife her extended hand that Louise was ininto sensible to all laws of the natural world; for the hand was not withdrawn nor finched; neither did any blood proceed from the place penetrated. When during the prayers the names of Jesus and Mary were mentioned, the upper part of the body of Louise arose from the ground; but this movement was no voluntary one, as generally the case; she seemed to be b rne up invisibly. On the Bishop uttering the words, 'Ob, my Jesus, I kneel to Thee,' she turned round so quickly and fell down so suddenly before the Bishop, that I and the Bishop were quite concerned, feating she was going to spring out of the window. On the episcopal cross approaching her she seized it with her hands. At the termination of the prayers she again felt down-or rather was invisibly placed down, for by falling she would have wounded herself on the payement. Indeed" (states Msjunke) "our language has not been the proper word for expressing the

'On the next morning, at six o'clock, although she had lost so much blood on the previous day, Louise was nevertheless in the church. I called again on her. On entering I found her occupied with her sister in needlework. She offered me a chair, and was somewhat reserved Her face was rather pale, but seemed transfigured. I said I was a prickt from Germany, where the Church had now so much to suffer, and begged her to pray for me and the Catholics in Germany, and that I would remember her when offering up mass. She replied, 'Je yous remercie, monsieur,' and nothing further. She has been so much visited by theological and medical commissions, by men of learning, princes, and distinguished personages, that she is quite insensible to the external world; she receives no presents whatever, and is living imfery poor circumstances. Among other trials, she was shut up for a month without receiving the whole time the least nourishment." These are the words of Msjunke literally translated, and, to add to the force of his statement, he finished by declaring, "All this I have witnessed with my own eyes; so I found Louise Lateau "-The Hour, Jane 26 h (Berlin Correspondent)

SL'FFALO, N. Y .- L. Day writes.-Allow me to express my best regards to you for your kind notice of my affairs. The JOURNAL and BANNES have saved me much suffering by their timely notice.

DE RUYTER, N. Y.-J. Hill writes.-I think I can say of a truth that our cause is gaining ground in this place very fast, and nothing is doing more for it than your paper, and especially the stand you have taken against free loveism suits them to

E. ARLINGTON, VT .- A. Valle writes -- Jt lesses me very much to see you have gone so strong sgainst free-lovelam.

COOLETVILLE, MASS. - A B. Bishop Writes. -Those LITTLE BOUGUETS have come to hand and are indeed very instructive to both young and old. and may God speed them ou their way until their praise shall sound from shore to shore. We think the Journan and Bouquer are doing far more good than you know of, as the Post Masters who are so very plous they would not be seen taking a Spiritual paper for fear some one would know it. but surely they will often steal the JOURNAL sway and keep it several days to read, therefore we trust it does them some good; perbaps they think as did old mother Eve, that stolen fruit is always best.

HOUSTON, TEX.-Burr R. Tivn writes.-The pure light of Spiritualism is illuminating the dark-ness here; and thousands, who a few years since were stupid in bigotry and superstition, are now walking in the paths of Spiritual light. This change is due in a great measure to the JOURNAL; It is now visiting every mok and corner of this vast State. Our neighboring town Waco has a large circle of Spiritualists, numbering in it many of the foremost men of the place. Wein Mt. Calm are few in number now, but strong in faith. It is but a short year since the great work was com but a short year since the great work was com-merced through the single excitions of that inde-fatigable Spiritualist, Df. Peiham. He ever holds himself ready to defend the cause, is armed at every point, and woe unto the Orthodox, be he minister or, layman, who provokes a contest. Whenever argument fulls them, they then at once resort to abuse, the chief weapon in their arsenal, but the Doctor cares as little for that, as he would for the Pope's excommunication.

DYER STATION, TENN .- A Truth Seeker writes .- We have had for the first time in the his tory of our country, a lecture upon the Spiritual Philosophy, who halls from Texas, and whose name is Col. 8. D. Hay He gave a most interesting lecture which was listened to with interest interest even by those who reject the giorious truths of angel ministration Mr. Hay after his first lec-ture here went to Trenton, but returned by invitation and delivered three more lectures. After the audience had assemuled, amounting to some 150 M. M. Taylor, pastor of the Methodist Church here, came forward, and after some preliminary remarks uttered in an excited and bold manner, read from a paper which he beld in his hand, sev eral question. I' you are sequalated with Mr Hay, you can imagine the prompt and decided answers he gave to the several questions, and the answers he gave to the several question, and the genteel flagellation he administered to the bighted and ignorant divine. This so enraged the follow-er of the meek and lowly Jesus, that he sprang to his feet and angrity harangued the audience, dealing intovectives and low personalities to the infinite delight of the ignorant.

KIRK WOOD, MO. J. P. Hibler writes -I have just received an extra entitled 'Church and State," perporting to be the organ of the 'United States Church'' But let me ask, Bro. Jones, as you are low the case and have some charce to know, what king of meats does this female Crear feed on, that the can unite Church and State, and lash all the code Sofittanilis to his support whether all the gold Spiritualists to its support, whether they wish a not, for she plainly says in one pas-sage that all Spiritualists after reading this extra, that do not immediately enroll their names in support of her "Church and State." will be spot-ted as free lovers, and sgainst law and marriage. Well, I am a Spiritualist of 22 years standing, but I don't propose to be lashed into any such a con-cern. I have alway been sgainst the free love Woodhull tribe from the days of the Nicholses to the pres ni, and have gloried in the victory you have won in the noble fight. This woman seems to he truly down on free lovers in one passage, and in another column she seems to be check by four with the Woodhull. I think it is a dodge of the Woodhulls. They have played out pretty much on their first base, and are striking for another. The truth of it is, Bro. Jones, I take as little stock in sourting rampant fanaticism as do in free-lust.

REMARKS.-Never have seen the circular or paper you refer to, therefore can give no opinion thereon. If the statement is made therein that all are free-lovers that do not immediately patronize it, you can set its publisher down as a most consummate simpleton

DAKOTA CITY, NEB .- An Observer writes .- It is with great pleasure that I state that Dr. W. Barr, of Harrisburg, Pa., favored us, on yester-day, at our Court House, with a very excellent jecture on Spiritualism. The Methodist and Lutheran churches here are so prejudiced that they would not concent to have the lecture delivered inside of their sacred walls. The Doctor had a large audience, and proved that the Hible is full of Spiritualism. He was argumentative, searching Spiritualism. He was argumentative, searching and pungent. He took up the objections to Spiritualism, and showed that they were all founded on mere prejudice. He run a handsome parallelism between Spiritualism and Orthodoxy, parallelism between Spiritualism and Orthodoxy, and proved the great performing of his system of faith and practice. The one was seen to belovely, inspiring, and soul elevating, while the other was proved to be repulsive, despotic, and soul terri-fying. While the one is making rapid progress, the other is gradually dying out. The Doctor's powerful arguments may yet prove the good seed which shall produce an hundred fold. After the bedrus closed the archibited fold. After the lecture closed, he exhibited the RELIGIO-PHIL OSOFILICAL JOURNAL, and urged the importance of subscribing to the same, as the best paper pub-lished. A number came forward and subscribed, and many more promise to do the same.

Louise Lateau and the Stigmata.

BBO. JONES:-It appears from the Spiritual ist published in London, that for some time lately, a young girl named Louise Lateau, has created quite a sensation in Belgium and the provinces of Prussia. She is said to be"stigmstized," and pretends in her moments of ecstasy to see God in his glory. (Under the term "stigmatization" the Catholic church under stands the miraculous peculiarity of persons bearing on their own body the five principal wounds of our Bavior, and bleeding from them on certain days) Bois d'Haine, the village in which Louise Lateau lives, is now the place of pilgrimage for many pious persons coming from Holland, Germany, and Belgium, to witness with their own eyes the performance of the miracle. Majunke, being some time since in Treves on a visit to his constituents, made also a call upon Louise Lateau, and remained several days in Bois d'Haine, where he also met with Bishop Mermillod, and Lefevre, a medical professor at the University of Louvain, After his visit, Msjunke gave a lecture on what he beheld, from the reports of which. in Ultramontane papers the following items are. extracted:

"Louise is a very simple girl; she has seen very little of the world, and spent the greater part of her life in a solitary country cottage. She daily receives the Holy Sacrament, which is her only nourishment. For two years she has neither esten nor. drunk anything else. When she does not receive the communion she is seized with deadly faintness, so that even on Good Friday she is allowed to partake of the Lord's Supper. Every morning at six o'clock she visits the church, at some dis-tance from her abode, except on Friday, when the Holy Sacrament is brought to ber. Last Friday, it was administered by the Very Raverend the Bishop of Tournal. I myself assisted. In the little room, floored with bricks, ed. In the fittle room, floored with bricks, we found everything prepared as for a person dangerously til. Louise was kneeling at the table and bleeding profusely. The bleeding by Louise Lateau Segins at midnight on Thurs-day and terminates at midnight on Friday. First the forehead bleeds, as when the crown of thorns pierced the head; the blood streams from under the hair down the checks; and then

RINGGOLD, LA .- Mrs. Luella C. Jeter writes. -I consider your paper a "God send." It came to my father, Isaac Coleman, just the week after my sister died, and it seemed a healing balm to our, stricken hearts, to me it was something very strange, and I could not credit half I saw.

BAXTER SPRINGS, KAN .- W. J. Raney writes. You may consider me a life time subscriber if the JOURNAL continues the course it now pursues on the Woodbull question. I am well pleased with the paper, I commenced reading it six months are as a trial subscriber. I have renewed once, and now I want my paper to continue at any price.

MT. BLANCHARD, O - Ablaha Cole writes. - I confess there are some things published now and then in your Journal, which handles old theology rather roughly. It is my opinion it is not always the best way to approach some individuals.

VINTON, IOWA .- James Wood writes .- An esteemed, friend, Mclibeny, induced me to sub-scribe for the Journan three months on trial. I see the time will be out next week, so I enclose P. O. order for one year's subscription. I do not know what to think about this spiritual commotion, but perhaps if I read on a year longer I may fall into line or become more skeptical than ever. We shall see.

That is the true course to pursue. Investigate Spiritualism as you would any other system of philosophy. If it is based in an immutable principle, you will find out that fact. If not you may have the credit of exploding the greatest fallacy of the age. We predict the former will be the legitimate result of your labors-ED. JOURNAL.

have been for some two years a constant and atten-tive reader of your invaluable paper, and it has been instrumental in tearing my preconceived no-tions and theological prejudices all to finders. I would not part with the light and liberty, the rest and happiness which I have derived from its perusas, for all that this world can give. Go on in the good work, and God and the holy angels will bless vou.

BOSMEL, OHIO.--Asa Ware writes.--1 highly appreciate the letter in your paper written by E. D. Blakeman, of Circleville, Ohio. I sympathize with him. I lived with the Shakers 23 years, and worked hard, receiving the reward of $55 and my clothing. I sympathize with all that are educated from childhood to look on out siders as totally depraved, and on the broad road to that place which smells of fire and brimstone, as taught by ertreme religious enthusiast.

BAN PABLO, FLA .- Ell Haworth writes .- It has many times been my lot to be the frail medium through whom the light of heaven has been reflected and shone upon poor souls in distress, that they might find comfort. I well remember an instance in Havana, when a strong man of mili-tary renown lost his only son by sceiden; he failed to find comfort in religion as he viewed it, and came to me. A good angel came and reflected the light through me, and whispered ords of peace in his heart. peace in his heart.

STILL WATER, MINN. Jesse H. Legrer writes. -E. V. Wilson, or some other person has sent to my address a copy of a paper entitled, "The Spiritualist at Work." In that paper the "Gentle". says "there are certain things that he never done." but does not say that he does not sfilliate with First the forehead bleeds, as when the crown of thorns pierced the head; the blood streams from under the hair down the cheeks; and then the hands, side, and feet bleed from the above and below." "Could you love my children ?" "Yes, and everybody else's, I trust." "Could you be a mother to them ?"

"Please explain your meaning, sir."

"Could you marry me?" "I suppose I could, you being willing." "Then you agree to it, do you?" said he, patting her under the chin.

"By no means," said she, drawing back.

"Because I shall never marry any one who does not love me with his whole heart."

"But I admire you exceedingly, fair lady.

'But I love you warmly, nevertheless.'

"Then there is another great obstacle, I do not-love you. When I marry, I with re-ceive a whole heart, and give a whole heart. While I esteem you as a friend, loving you

"My friend, I think there is something so much better than either extreme of constant speech or constant silence, that it may be compared with diamonds and that is to speak when you have something to say, and be silent when you have not. Am I right?"

"Pretty good," said Munson, who began to see that he had not come off first best, so far, for it was quite evident that during the even-ing he had been talking a good deal when he had nothing to say. Still, wishing to draw him out somewhat furfier, he called attention to the sermon which they had all heard in the other fond admirers, two or three of whom I will mention : A Mr. John Howard, a widow-er with two children and an aged mother on his hands, was the next one to apply. Mr. Howard was a plain matter-of-fact kind of a man, well to do in the world, and having gone through with the courting business once before, approached it unabashed and as a mat-ber of business. Ida's charming case of man.

"Mr. Boothroyd," said he, "we had a capi-tal sermon this morning, did we not?" "I'm sorry I can not agree with you," was the reply.

"But don't you think he proved overwhelmingly the existence of a God from the design that every part of the niverse exhibits? Did he not show that whenever manifests design must have had an intelligent designer, and that nothing can exist without a cause !"

before, approached it unabashed and as a mat-ter of business. Ids's charming case of man-ners made every one feel at home, and induced great freedom of expression. For some time, Mr.) Heward had been feeling around and drawing Ids out as far as he dared, until he concluded he had pretty clear sailing. "Are you fond of children ?" said he. "Exceedingly, so," exclaimed Ids; "I think a person not fond of children has a malforma-tion of mind." "Mr. Munson, does God exist?"

" Certainly."

"Does God's existence come from a cause?" "N-n-no," says Munson, somewhat em-"I'm glad you taink so," said he; "Can you get along well with old people?" "I have always loved their society," said Ida,

Mr. Munson perceives the very foundation stones of the sermon, which he had endorsed, giving way, and after hesitating a little, says he presumes the clergyman meant to say that no created thing exists without a cause.

Mr. Munson, please to tell me what things in this universe were ever created?" said the quiet and mysterious Boothroyd, now warming into eloquence. "All things, except God himself."

"Your proofs, please."

"Because, as the clergyman says, they show such wonderful design. The fact of a design shows that there must have been some infinite designing cause.

"But the child's question : 'Who made God?' knocks this logic to stoms."

"But I really love you." "That is the first time you have mentioned the fact, and so I conclude love can not be a "You say a design, from its display of intel-ligence, must have required a designer to make very absorbing feeling with you, as business arrangements seemed to occupy your atten-which was about an hour's ride from New York. Mr. Boothroyd presented a somewhat green appearance, his hair being combed down in front almost to his eyes, his clothing a plain and cheap suit of grey, his hat somewhat tum-bled, his boots though clean, unpolished. BEING A REVIEW OF "CLOCK STRUCK ONE" AND A'REPLY TO IT-AND PART SECOND. SHOWING THE HARMONY BETWEEN CHRISTIANITY, SCIENCE AND SPIRITUALISM.

By Rev. Saml. Watson, D. D.

In the long list of distinguished divines connected. with the Methodist Episcopal Church, few have enjoyed so high a reputation, and none have been more beloved by their constituents than Da. Warson. In the early days of Modern Spiritualism he honestly believed it to be one of the vilest of humbugs and the work of the Devil. Nor did he ever intend to give the subject any attention, but that about twenty years ago it forced itself unbidden into his own family circle, a deeply interesting history of which he gave to the world in Clock Struck One, which, has already palsed through several editions; creating a decided sensation in the church and causing the author to be cited for trial.

"The Clock Struck Three" contains a very able review of the first book by a master-mind and a reply to the same by Dn. Warson. Then follows eleven intensely. interesting chapters, detailing the author's rich and varied experience and giving the result as showing that in the author's opinion, there exists a harmony between true Christianity, as he interprets it, Science, and Spiritualism.

Extract from the Introduction.

royd, you go into the mystical depths of things beyond all human power to grasp. There is no use in our attempting to measure God or to understand him."

"Exactly, my friend. Hence the shallow-

" But what," exclaimed Mr. Munson, "do you say that somebody made God? or do you say that there is no such being as God in existence?"

"I mean to say that the subject is infinitely logians should not be so superficial as to at-tempt to account for the origin of things in such a way, for scientists will laugh them to acorn. Science goes to show that all things of even matter is impossible-much more so that of spirit. While I perceive that a spirit to grasp primates or ultimates. Let us be modest. Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

During this argument, Ida was all eyes and ears, and Boothroyd mystery than ever, although from the very first she had discovered traits of superiority in him. Munson thoroughly cornered in argument, covered his defeat as best he could, but was not a little astoniahed and mortified at being thus met by this poor, green, laboring man whom he set out to make fun of ; whence did he gain his knowledge of science and logic, his command of language? Had he not been sitting stupidly silent, as though he had no He retreated from the subject of disides ? cussion as soon as he could gracefully, and entered upon the lighter subjects of social life; while Boothroyd sank again into his seemingly stupid and silent condition. To be Continued.

The other gentleman, Mr. Charles Munson, so of New York, presented a great contrast to Mr. Boothroyd, having an air somewhat distingue and possessing a fluent speech, being elegantly dressed, and riding up to the house in a fine carriage. He quite eclipsed poor Mr. Boothroyd, who seemed baahful about speaking in his brilliant presence, but would let him do most of the talking. Boothroyd said he made his living by honest industry and seemed to take pride in it, although his elegant rival never once insinuated that he was under the disagreeable necessity of steeping to labor.

Sunday seems to be a day which many dedicate to courting, or to sparking, as the old ex-pression/is. This name, I presume, is used because the eyes of both lovers are apt to spartle with joy and their tongues with wit, while the finest fewelry and clothing they possess is apt to be worn. This unusual display and effort is perhaps one reason why they both so often gain inflated ideas of each other, which must have a collapse as they come into contact with the trying ordeals of life. Ida, however, adopted an elegant simplicity of dress; her hair being somewhat short, hanging in easy curis on her neck and shoulders, like the Grecian ideals, instead of being arranged in an enormous wad to overheat the brain ; and her enormous wad to overheat the brain ; and her skirts flowing in easy curves, instead of being humped up into rude angles that project a foot beyond the back. Then she was fond of wearing white or light colored dresses, so that the ing white or light colored dreams, so that the sunlight might come to her body, and even at periods when her colors were lighter than the prevailing fashion, it was no bar to her enter-ing the best society, as it is called, for unlike many persons, she honored the dress more than the dress honored her. At any rate, her father declared that she gained her bird-like elasticity from taking so much sunlight as well as come all exercise.

as open air exercise. Sundays, I said, are often made courting days, and our two lovers coming every Satur-day evening to the pretty village in New Jer-sey, where Mr. Manning lived, often found themselves together in Ida's company. The brilliant Mr. Munson did most of the talking, and paid but very little attention to Mr. Boothroyd, whom he considered a greenhorn gener-ally, hardly worthy of notice as a rival, for he was sure Miss Ida would not encourage him a moment while persons so much superior were around. He seemed to put forth special efforts to detight Ids, and astoniah Mr. Booth-royd, with his sallies of wit and his fine ways generally, and to all appearances he succeeded, for the one was full of happy smiles, and the other was quite silent as if scarcely daring to other was quite silent as if scarcely daring to speak in the presence of such superior culture, and yet occasionally, when Munson would catch the keen glance of his rival, he would seem to say to himself, "Perhaps there is something in that man after all, and perhaps he is weighing me, who knows." Neverthe-less, he concluded he would rally him a little and get him to talk and in that way, perhaps, make a little fun of his awkwardness. Bo quoting the old proverb: "Speech is aliver, alence is gold," he remarks: "Tm doing more than my part of the con-versation. Do, pray, let us hear from you, Mr. Boothroyd," "Ordinary speech, you consider only silver," said Mr. Boothroyd, rousing a little.

NEW YORK LECTURES.

Mr. Peebles has just finished his month's course of lectures for July, with us. His eloquence and overflowing heart has kept us thorquence and overflowing heart has kept us thor-oughly warmed up, and the attendance has been admirable even during this hot season. Mr. Collier, of England, also gave some ex-cellent lectures, and on the last Sunday, the Rev. J. H. Harter, of Auburn, N. Y., gave us two lectures which were quite thrilling, over-flowing as they did with wit and pathos. Some-time the audience would ware and compating times the audience would weep and sometimes shake the room with their laughter. Mr. Har-ter was formerly a member of the Dutch Reformed Church, then he progressed into Meth-odism, then he advanced to Universalism, in which church he was preacher for many years; now he has become a thorough Spiritualist, and says if there is anything higher, he is will-ing to find it. Being a fascinating speaker, and a most genial, high-toned man, spiritual societies should send for him in all directions. He is famous as a temperance lecturer, and as a speaker for lyceums, I think, must be al-most unsurpassed. He is an old friend and class-mate of Mr. Peebles.

Our lectures are to be suspended through August.

State Camp Meeting at Iowa Falls, Iowa.

On the 9th, 10th, 11th, 19th, and 18th of September, 1874, the Spiritualists of Iows, will hold a State camp meeting at the above time and place. It is expected and believed that this will be the largest camp meeting ever held in this State. In order to make it so, it is expected that every member of the Committee of Arrangements will use their best endeavors to set before the friends of our cause, the pleasure of attending and representing our cause from the various places in each District. At this meeting the Committee have arranged to have what all desire, viz. : the best of speakers, and last but not least, as a matter of interest and instruction, we expect and shall use our best endeavors to have what we all wish to see, positively, one or more materialization medi-ums, so that those who come may meet their supermundance as well as their earthly friends there. It is also expected that one os more spirit-artists will be in attendance. Every ex-artion will be used to procure the attendance

May it not be that the semi-infidelic atterances of Spiritualism bitherto, have been the "foolish things" choice to confound the "mighty" Materialistic tendency of the infecterath century, both in Europe and America! Science, proud of her past achievements, has well nigh surrendered to the stabborn facts of Spiritualism, which will not down at their bidding, but submits cheerfully to the most arasting demands of scientific criticism. This will be seen fully when the reader reaches that part of the book devuted to this subject. I also give communications received through a medica in where not have all the confidence I can have in any one, in either world, to show that all of my teachings have been in harmony with Christianity as I understand the Christianity, properly understood, and Spiritualism, discobed of the seconcences, will be confirmed by science, and all sweetly harmonizing in hastening the Milemial giory which is dawning upon the world, when the New Jerusalem shall descend to earth. 18mos cloth, 352 pages, tinted paper.
