laid the readers of the JOURNAL under obliga-tions in thus fornishing womething of a nov-elty to think of, he might naturally feel chagrined if the benefaction were allowed to pass without eliciting some acknowledg-ment, even though it comes in the shape of a critique. And as no one else has come for-ward, I propose, without attempting to tra-verse the entire field of discussion, to indi-cate some of the points concerning which my judgment inclines me to say—non sequif-ur.

cate some of the points concerning which my jadgment inclines me to say—non sequit-ur. The curious reader will naturally inquire, What is the new scientific theism which in the 'expectation of its author, is to effect a "philosophical revolution"? If 1 understand it aright, it is a theism without God as a creator-axisting outside of his works, the God ordinarily understood; but a conception of an infinitely intelligent force, inherent, immanent, in nature, unfolding in the growth and changes manifested therein: "God and the universe are one," says our reviewer. Again, "Modern science is rapidly reaching; nay, has almost reached this sublime concep-tion of the universe as a living and glowing organism." That is to say, this sublime con-ception contemplates the universe as a huge animal, if such a characterization will apply without irrevernee-panthelsan, in short, with a new name and a new style of presen-tation. Again, "The universe, per se, is an infinite, Self Conscious Intellect, which, though infinitely removed in degree, is yet essentially identical in kind with the human intellect." On points so momentons, one is naturally solicitous to know how these things are proven, and how this sublime conception is reached. Unfortunately the Professor is a little hazy on these question—or we are. It is not easy here as elsewhere, to see the con-clusions; when we do, we too often find an unproved assumption. A quotation or two will suffice to indicate the contention and the method, sufficiently, perhape, to enable the intelligent reader to form an idea of them so as to follow the thread of the discus-sion. "He (the author) has undertaken by the

The claim of science to be real knowledge of a real and intelligible universe is the volce of the collective experience and reason of mankind. Upon this basis Mr. Abbot there-fore, has reared his entire superstructure." It is well to understand this paragraph, for upon the ground here taken the battle is to be fought, as the reviewer suggests. The claim here put forth for science, if I under stand what science claims, is unwarrantable, and contrary to the truth. I am not aware that science asserts a real knowledge of a real universe in the scase here intended to be conveyed—that is, physical science. But I am aware, that metaphysics does this just at present, and I am moreover aware that meta-physics has obtruded its assumptions into the domin of natural science ever since and before it compelled Galileo on his knees to forswear his convictions. I grant that the physicist, when assiled by the metaphysi-cian, or when setting easide imperiment issues, does at times say a word concerning the nonnenon or the essences of things-Euj-physical science in its proper phere, has to do with phenomena and phenomena and, The "real knowledge of a real intelligible universe," contended for by Mr. Abbot, I un-derstand to be a something back of phenome-na—a hypothetical essence- which physical science has never yet been able to grasp, or ind in its crucible as a residual substratum over and above the properties belonging to corpore at things. Here a science in yald is accredingly ques-tionable, when we consider the fact that dif-ferent animals seem to receive- unlike the pression from one and the same object;—in-stance the tobacco-worm, deasting on nico-tine, the May bug on ordure, the turkey buz-zard and carrion crow on animal putrescence. Can any one in his senses believe that the pressions in these instances would be iden-lical with human perceptions under similar conditions? And i in finese several cases to be external reality? Which represents the true property of any of these substances? Take the case of the co <text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text><text> just what Mr. Abbot contends for. His whole theory is built on the postulate that knowl-edge of Being is real as well as seeming-of perception of the noumenon, as well as per-ception of the phenomenon. As f wish to be perfectly fair with my subject. I must here be permitted to give a lengthy extract, which, I trust, will bring the issue clearly into view. The theory of phenomenism, he (Abbot) considers as the root of modern idealism. By this he means the notion that nothing can be known except phenomens and that all these depend for their existence upon indi-vidual or human conscionsness alone. The universe itself is thus included as being only a mental picture; and reality, existence and being itself are mere farms of relation, with-out other validity. He vehemently declares this theory false-root and branch. Even a phenomenon-universe, a universe which is only one in seeming, must have something to represent. This something which it rep-resents is its cause-a noumenon-universe, or a universe which actually exists. He ad-mitrably sets forth his meaning by recapitu-lating the admirable story of " Alice in the Wonderland where the maiden has the curi-ous experience with the famous and ever-grinning Cheshire cat." ""I wish you wouldn't keep appearing and vanishing so suddenly; you make me giddy." "All right, said the cat; and this time it vanished quite slowly, beginning with the end of the tail, and ending with the grin, which remained some time after the rest of it was gone. ""Well! I 've often seen a cat without a port to the broad-backed tortoise, replied, something, he knew not what. And thus here, as in all other cases, where we use words without having clear and disjinct ideas, we talk like children; who being ques-tioned what such a thing is, which they know not, readily give the satisfactory an-swer, that it is something; which in truth signifies no more, when so used, either by children or men, but that they know not what, and that the thing they pretend to know and talk of is what they have no dis-tinct idea of at all, and are perfectly ignor-ant of it and in the dark."

In the thus given these definitions, and this argument of Locke's, that the reader may clearly understand the nature of the lissue in question. In the review which I am here reviewing. I find nothing as fact or argument going to controver this reasoning of the English philosopher. In fact, nothing we have the rest of any of argument on this point is attempted. From beginning to end, we are treated with a begging of the question. And I should probably not have noticed it at all in a public way, but for the fact that this doctrine broached and maintained by Mr. Abbot, is getting quite popular with a certain class of religious teachers at the present day who assume to lead public sentimes. If therefit would be easy to give an evanple illustrative of the fact. True, in our contemplation of outward things as they affect our senses, -matter, or rather its properties, -we are accustomed incontinently to infer synstration as lying back of all appearances; but that we Rnow of any such by all deep thinkers of every school of any note for many hundred greats. Whether on this inference just mentioned, is tenable as probability or conceivability, it is not my purpose here to discuss. It is enough of the same form of the same of the assess of truth where so much is claimed. #### The Vital Needs of the Hour, or Co-operative Labor versus Strikes

There is an Arab saying that the world is upheld by four things: the learning of the wise, the justice of the great, the prayers of the good and the valor of the brave. All noble work is prayer, and we can wor-ship God best by working, if by wise thoughts and brave actions we help to trace a way to realize the universal brotherhood of man, and help mankind to fulfill its divine desting. realize the universal brotherhood of man, and help mankind to fulfill its divine destiny. The wage-workers are the wealth-producers of the world. Without hands, brains are al-most helpiess, and the time is coming-may, it has already come when workingmen are something more than hands, and demand that they shall be regarded as such. The time has come when, agitation presents a more cheerful aspect than rest and quiet content. It is a sad day when human souls are satisfied with less than the best of every thing. And a sad day is approaching when we recognize wealth as the only standard. Has it become recognized as such in our Repub-lie? I think not. Notwithstanding what is said about our Republic, she never stood so fair as now, and her prospects were never so good as now, for when laborers begin to aronae themselves to a question of justice,-when the workingman feels that he has a soul in his body, it is a sign of better times to come; and we need not fear the result of the agitation which is stirring up the people to day. It is not when any wrong can be per-petrated without arousing the people to day for the is the people to day in danger, but when any wrong can be per-petrated without arousing the people to day. The side of the people to day is danger, --then is the time for warn-ing. The great question of Capital and Labor is

In danger, but when any wrong can be per-petrated without arousing the people, then there is danger, -then is the time for warn-ing. The great question of Capital and Labor is bound to be settled within ten years at the intest. There will be a better understanding much sconer. But, workmen, be patient, and above all be on your guard against the ene-miles of workmen, all of whom do not live in palaces. American citizens, watch and wait, pray and work, and believe in the supremacy of the good and in the ultimate victory of the right, But remember that two wrongs mere make a right, and that tyranny among the masses, on the part of the workmen, is no better than that of unonpolists, but is often more mean and oppressive. Tyranny, whether it is, clad in the rough dress of the poor or rolis in chariots, is to be fought squinst. But the day has come for something better than argument against oppression. Extrast per-omos of intelligence should organize and com-bine the efforts of the good in practical work. What means the conflict against our pollitical system? What right have good citizens to de-acy of the good and the hear is for those-in fomfortable circumstances, who are never hybrid the rest of the boar is for those-in for stable circumstances, who are never hybrid the right and leave the elections to de-sides morey-getting and ease, and recognize of government that ever existed. Do some-thing besides grundling against those in power. That great middig class that is earnest when interseted, -to arouse themselves now and turn their attention to comething be-sides morey-getting and ease, and recognize for government that ever existed. Do some-thing besides grundling against those in power. That great middig class that is earned when interseted, -to arouse themselve ac-stiletis and the seething mass of workers. This is a reasonable request. Organize for a the government domain, and demand some provisions for those downtrodden million of powernment domain, and demand some provisions for those downtrodden mi either pay reasonable taxes or be thrown open to the millions of families that are without means. There is only one way by which strikes can be averted and the other desired ends-attain-ed, and that is by co-operative labor. That there is some method by which this may be done there can be no doubt, if the intelligent will always keep this fact in mind, that to permit a single wrong to go unredressed is to allow a growing danger which threatens the safety, the happiness of all. Workingmen are the producers, but they should remember that brains also are necessary, and that the hands should obey the brains. Capitalists are workers, too, but they work, not to produce but to roll up the product of other men's la-bor and hold it as their own. The only wise and employers is by arbitration. Meetings of the great leaders of the wageworkers and of the capitalists should be held in every com-munity and for once those in power should listen to wisdom. American citizens should be heard by those who have placed them in pow-er. The time has come when they should study the needs and the rights of the great, masses, listen patiently to their petitions, and then teeds upon what is best, for alt.

No one of the distinguished men whose effigies ennoble and adorn our public groun's has left the record of a purer life or one which teaches a more inspiring lesson to the people of this country. which teaches a more inspiring lesson to the people of this country. From the Journal report of May 14th we extract as follows: When the Metropolitan steamship Gen. Whitney was moored at the north side of India wharf Thursday morning a massive figure resting in a sheet of while was seen in the centre of the deck. The bronze form which was there armly bolted and chained was that of the man who perhaps more than all others had been instrumental in striking the chains from fellowmen- the foremost of the Abolitionista-William Lloyd Garrison. The air over the water was heavy with the humidity of the East wind, and the rigid whiteness of the outline stood out with a weird effect of blanched surface in the mist. When he who had once been ostracised in New England was thus borne back in honored efficy the coming and the receiving bore as implicitly in keeping with this own. The statue represents Garrison when years and peace had placed their hand of placidity upon him. One sees a venerable man, the fine lines of whose head and face tell the story of how and why he was victor instead of vanquished. He is seated in a big chair, looking slightly to the right. The pose is easy and graceful. The right hand, grasping a few sheets of manuscript, rests upon the sing of the left look is thrown forward more than its fellow, and the left hand rests upon the arm of the great leather-covered chair, the legs of which are concealed by the folds of an overcoat thrown over the chair. The arrangement of the drapery is in harmony with the easy posture of the figure, so that altogether the composition strikes one as full of force, simplicity and natural resemblance, he has sought also, with good ancees, to embody hit was done at the original by its outward resemblance, he has sought also, with good ancees, to embody in the face and form the deep-lying traits of the main's character; and to explain the reason why he was one of the easy hower, are an inkstand, quills and some manuscript, and leaning agalact one of the large farm whet we to

PLACING IN POSITION.

The weight of the whole is twenty-six hun-dred pounds. PLACING IN POSITION. The early hours of the afternoon had lapsed before the massive bronze was lifted up from the environing merchandize and borne to-ward the pedestal. As it passed Washington street there was instinctively brought up the memory of that afternoon about the same-hour when Garitson was forced to leap from the rear window of the Liberator office, and was with difficulty rescued. from death at the bands of the mob that blocked this thor-oughfare. About 4:30 P. M. the status reach-ed the spot between Dartimoth and Exter streets, where the sight was doubless a wel-come relief to the quartett of Genoese work-men that had long hung in picturesque atti-tudes around the granite base waiting to lift it to the chosen resting place. No attendant delegation and no ceremony or perfunctory words were needed before the elevation of a work of at that could speak its own theme in allent expression. It was turned so that the face came in the direction of Dartmouth atreet and the back of the massive chair in that of Exter street. The turn of the head toward the right shoulder, as conceived by the artist, relieved the rigidity of the sitting posture, and the expression of the counte-nance in harmony with this gave the impres-nable will" that Lowell praised. On looking at these lineaments, Whitler, as on the sad day seve years ago in old First Church, Roxbury, might have been inspired to speak of . "The sourd herefort overpast."

Roxbury, might have been inspired to speak of "The sounding birred shamed and still." The bounding birred shamed and still." To some the attitude of the head aroused the auggestion of turning away from the Old State House, which had been the scene of the mobbing, and looking toward the Emancipa-tion Group, which seemed to leal the results; while to others it seemed to look beyond to that spot in Forest Hills Cemetery where she who had been the companion of his life and struggle has been laid away forever. The features and even expression can be discerned at a greater distance than those of any other statue in the neighborhood, and when the graceful ranks of young elms which bend over from the parterre on either side are developed they will appear to look out from a tick and the results.

wheat in his mind, and be just as tenacions of holding fast to one as the other. He will be more likely to fail into bitter antagonism on the score of the errors gathered up than his facts—his fails information being most vylnerable, will bo othen brought in question, and will need much nursing to keep it from failing out of line. The student of spiritual philosophy in a matter of argumeit approaches his orthodox neighbor with serenity of mind being con-selous that his knowledge of ratural law, as applied to matters both objective and sub-fective, gives bin a wall of defence too strong for anyone, only armed with doubtful traditions. It is much like the indian bow and arrow, or the old revolutionary musket, contending with the lumproved reviolving ri-fie. Facts and philosophy are far-reaching, ready and profound while dogmatic assump-tions founded on special texts, are often weak and short-sighted, having no founda-then in made to day or many centuries in the past, in itself carries no proof, except so far as it grees with the common experience of mankind. Were it otherwise, we might take our Bibles into court and ask that statements therein shall stand for law. In court we swear a witness on our sacred book, and re-quire him under penalty to tell the truth, though the book may contain many errors. In this respect the Mohammedans surpass us in confidence. Their Koran may be in-troduced in their courts as a book of law. The trained intellet th spiritual facts, and the underlying principles, not only reads all sacred books with deep interest, separating the many sparkling gems of truth from mythical statements, but from an exalted point of, view it looks forth to the world, see-ing Vammy seeming contradictions, errors, ans and inconsistencies with a rationalitie soul. A deeper grasp, a greater breadth, and more elastic bound of the aspiring mind car-ries it about the using sectariany the future restituality rove to the liberated soul. How many in the ranks of Spiritualism that for months have watched over the wasting form of friend or beloved child, have witness-ed the slow decay, and the writhing anguish of dissolution, and yet so soon after the bod-ily struggles with death were passed, have seen the sweet child face 'looking out from a light cloud, and heard the well-known volce saying: "Mother, weep not for me. I'm wrapped in the Holy Father's manile of un-failing love-eternal sunshine of the spirit is on me now. Be strong, be cheerful, faith-ful and hopeful ever, and a crown of glory, waits you-farewell, mother, till I come again."

It and nopern ever, and a crown or know, awaits you-farewell, mother, till I come again." To-day we behold an old poverty stricken man in rags, feebly tottering along the bigb-way, and we say: "O' how pitiful the sight." yet to-morrow he dies, and his soul is joined to the heavenly host, no longer poor, no longer an object of pity, but rich in his heav-enly inheritance. To-day we behold the reel-ing sot fallen in the guiter, and we say: "O, Father, can that erring mortal be made fit for the society of the just and pour in apirit?" The angels answer, "Yrel He has a noble soul, and when he comes to us, freed from the base appetites that hold him in a worse than serpent's coil, the spirit force in him will rise to action in the higher faculties, and the repelling and loathsome inebriate becomes a shining saint in a celestial com-pany." Then, dear friends, let us have a seet charity for the erring—they are on brothers and bound to us through a common destiny.

coming kingtom of chiest, out has been giv-en no specific explanation. But these re-markable sentences are lucid under this new light. This most certainly refers to a condition of life upon earth. It is sound common sense. In the ideal world we always pictore the crowning of woman as the queen of her hus-band's heart and life, as the fulfillment of a natural hope and expeciation. The femi-nine nature must be held in still greater honor and reverence. Woman must herself arise and assert her sovereignty as mistress of the divine powers which constitute her a creator of life. The long ages in which she has been more the servitor than companion of man has left its debasing influence upon the race. Marriage, divinely instituted, is no longer divine. It has become only a legal ceremony in which spiritual unity and adap-tation are left out of account. It is, perhaps, no wonder that in the search for purity we look for a being who has no relations to any other being of equal grade, who can respond with the affection and sympathy which be-longs to all life in cartily or celestial spheres. But within a generation woman has begun to awaken to the conscionaes of the sacredness of her personal rights, and the trast committed to her. In them. She cannot without sin permit these to be invad-cannot without sin permit these to be invad-cent by Church and State. Slowly but surely as the dawn is followed by the day, the race will advance to a faul recognition of the fact that their powers and faculties are of divine origin and must be exercised only under the divine influences of love and wis-dom. .

Woman and the Household.

BY HESTER M. POOLE. [106 West 29th Street, New York.] SEALED ORDERS. Out she swung from her moorings, And over the harbor bar, As the moon was slowly rising. She faded from sight afar-And we traced her gleaning chavas By the twinkling evening star.

None knew the port she sailed for, Nor whither her cruise would be: Her future course was shrouded, In silence and myster; She was sailing beneath "sealed orders "--To be opened out at sea.

Some souls, cut off from moorings, Go drifting into night, Darkness before and 'cound them, With scarce a glimmer of light: They are acting beneath "sealed orders" And salling by faith, not eight.

And sailing briefaith, not sight. Keeping the line of duty, Through evil and good report, They shall ride the storms out safely, Be the voyage long or short. For the ship that carries Good's orders, Shall anchor at last in port. Helen Chauncey. "A New," or "Bridal Edition" of the "La-dies of the White House." or "In the Home of the Presidents," by Laura C. Holloway, has just been issued by Funk & Wagnalls of New York. It is of uncommon interest just at this time, as it contains a sketch and portrait of Miss Folsom, the bride of the President, in addition to the complete history of the social and domestic lives of the Presidents, from Washington to Cleveland. With each new administration the book has an addition, un-til it contains nearly nine hundred pages, making an epitome of American history. It is the only one, should be written by a woman. It is needless to say that every word is full of interest. The book begins with the story of pretty making an epilome of American history. It is fitting that a work of this kind, and it is the only one, should be written by a woman. It is needless to say that every word is full of interest. The book begins with the story of pretty Polly Dandridge, the belle of Gov. Dinwid-die's Court at Williamsburg, and later the happy girl-mistress of the plantation-home of Col. Castis, which was then known as the White House. Every one has some knowl-edge of Martha Washington, but that knowl-edge of Martha Washington, Wife-Ablgail Adams - there was a cordial friendship, which showed itself when the latter went to live at the new Capitol in the wildernees, and in the unfinished and 4-reary bulkling designed for the future home of the Presidents. She was a Yankee pastor's daughter, brave hearted and patriotic, and she has left a faue wor-ty the glowing tribute paid it in this work. Jefferson was a widower, and it would have served the purpose of history to have stated the fact in a dozen lines and dismissed the administration. But in this case, as in the case of Mre Jackson, who was hever in the Awhite House, the chroniels is complete, and we learn io know and love the beartfill wife of Jefferson and, the mother of his brilliant dangthers as well as we should had she lyed to go with her husband to share his great honors. The era in which Jefferson was Pres-ident of the United States was one of the most interesting, historically, yet known. Mrs. Monroe is not as well known to the American public as she gleserves to be; for, even had she performed no other noble deed, her service to Lafayette, in perilling her life-and her husband's fame, but many incidents of her intieshouk fame, to in-terean due bestowed. Like many another of the most cultured women who every graced the White Honse. Mrs. Jackson was the vic-tim of a most crule and wanton slander, which crushed her heart and took her life. She did the winter preceding the inangura-tion of her husband, and he went to the White Honse wearing her likeness next to his heart. On Hannh Yan Buren, the gentie-looking and refinement, a picture is drawn that is in striking contrast with that of its predecessor, though in one point like it. Mrs. Yan Buren had been dead a number of years when her husband attained to his high place. Mrs. Harrison lived long year's after the death of President Harrison, and made her, name a synohym of goodness and usefulness. She was not a conspicuous character. The por-trait of Mrs. Tyler is a lovely, innocent-look ing Southern girl, fair and pure as a flower, and exquisitely refined and attractive. Mrs. Polk, like Mrs. Jackson, came from Tennes-see, and the stately, childless woman made the White House entertainments memorable for the's elegance and of her neutrons and lavees, and the scisoms of that era are vivid iy recalided in the actionality. Distin-glained people are mentioned in numbers as adding to the success of her receptions and lavees, and the customs of that era are vivid iy recalided in the actionality. Distin-glachary Taylor's wife and daughter went to the White House in the blacs of his military fame, and the other soccupancy of the Presidental chair was a season of great interect of this famous officer soccupancy of the Presidental chair was a season of great in the set of the

And af-ter her, Mrs. Hayes, hale, hearty and happy, vastiy overpraised, but with sympathies for the right, and a friend of temperance. The reserved, self-centered figure of Mrs. Garfield and the shadow of the President's mother, nex are thrown upon the canvas lurid with the reflections of another tragedy. Like the figures of a camera, we next see the gentle wife of Mr. Arthur, who never lived to see his elevation to the White House, but Mrs. McElroy, his sister, took her place. Then follows Miss Cleveland whom every body re-spects and likes so heartily. Large of brain. broad of view, a student and a sympathizer in every good work. remembered with honest sympathy and ac-miration. Before these words are printed, the first wedding of a President will have taken place in the White House. The young, ambitions, innocent girl united to one so much older and world worn, will win the sympathy of every woman. She bylers a difficult field, with the gaze of all the each fized full upon her. And the reporters who follow every motion and report every frill and ribbon she wears, will invade the privacy of her life to a miserable extent. #### CHICAGO, ILL., Saturday, June 12, 1886. Modern Scientific Thought-Beaction from

Materialism.

The trend of the latest scientific thought is away from materialism. The theories which have been used to build up the notion 18 of the potency of matter are now being used to illustrate the truth of a spiritual potency in all and through all, unfolding, shaping and transfiguring the outer shell of stuff which we see. Evolution is being seen as the upward tendency showing the progressive and infinite plan of a positive mind-The Soul of Things. The late books of John Fisk, "The Destiny of Man " and " The Being of God," show this tendency in the thinking of an able man who has been known as a devoted advocate of the views of Herbert Spencer, but who now sees further and with clearer vision now sees further and what than the purblind Englishman.

book of Francis E. Abbot, former editor of the Indency. It may be said that shows a like tendency. It may be said that Mr. Abbot is a metaphysician rather than a scientist, yet he uses the discoveries and statements of scientists to serve his ends and illustrate his arguments with subtle skill.

These tides of thought run in the air, and uplift souls as the ocean tides lift up the crested waves. It is harder to fell whence they come than the way they go. Great thinkers in the Spirit-world, which is more the realm of causes than we blind ones know, may give us light, and help us to help ourselves in ways we know not of.

Here is another testimony, helping and showing this setting of the tide toward the sky rather than toward the mud. A crowded meeting of the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute in London was lately addressed by Professor Lionel Beale, F. R. S., President of the Microscopical Society. This Institute in-vestigates all scientific subjects, those said to militate against religious belief included. Speaking of various theories he declared himself one of those who held ".that no form of the hypothesis which attributes the phenomena of the living world to mere matter and its properties has been, or can be, justified by reason." He then said:

fied by reason." He then said: I would draw attention to the declaration again and again repeated, and now taught even to chil-dren, that the living and the non-living differ only in degree, what the living has been evolved by de-green from the posilizing, and that the latter passes by gradiations towards the former state. No one has addiced any evidence in proof of these conclusions, which are, in fact, dictatorial severitons out, and no descrime of any hird which is accually passing from the non-living to the living state, or which can be solutely different conditions of matter, has been, or solutely different conditions of matter, has been, or shown to establish any connection between these ab-shown to establish any connection between these ab-solutily different conditions of matter, has been, or can be at this time, brought forward. Between purely vital and purely physical actions not the faint-est analogy has been shown to exist. The living world is a 'solutily distinct from the non-living world, and, instead of being a necessary outcome of it, is, compared with the antiquity of matter, prob-ably a very recent addition to h,-not, of course, an eaddition of mere transformed or modified matter and emergy, but of transcendent power conferred on matter which the solution of the solution of the solution of the solution of transcendent power conferred on addition of mere transformed or modified matter and energy, bul of transcendeni power conferred on matter which controls regulates, and manages both matter which controls assumed by the materialist that are open to doubt or objection. Pacts com-pletely controvert all materialistic view which have been put forward. To be condemped as uncentrie is the doctrine that there is a relationship between or two of the positions assumed by the materialistic ties doctrine that there is a relationship between one-living and living matter, or that the term mo-lecular mechanism can be applied to the former. The simple fruth is, thit be essential phenoment of all thing beings cannot be explained without re-course to some hypothesis of power tosilly different from any of the known form or modes of energy. Any one who allows the reason to be influenced with the oblight to similit be reason to be influenced with the oblight of admit the activation to be influenced. It will be remembered that Typdall asys: "I do not think the materialist is entitled to easy that his molecular groupings and mo-tions explain everything. They explain noth-ing. The problem of the connection of body and soul is as insoluble as in prescientific ages." "5" others to materialism, and has given us a deal of chilly and foggy agnosticism, yet he said: "But when you stand on cold baid materialism as the creation and creator of all, I object." It did not satisfy either his scientific mind or his intuitive soul, and he leqlared that in his " hours of clearness and vigor." and " in the presence of stronger and healthier thoughts," atheism " dissolves disappears, as offering no solution of the ery in which wedwell and form a part." In the new and more transparent atmos phere of to day we must read these " stronge and healthler thoughts " of Tyndall between the lines of his other statements, and so use them for spiritual ends. But we return to the address of Professor Beale. Speaking of Nature as explained by the materialist, he

Nature as explained by the materialist, he said: A Nature which was really a blbd, insatiable, ir-resistible fate, faisely called law, destitute of inte-ligence and reason, devoid of mercy and justice, is the Nature held up for our admiration, with the con-soling assurance of dictatorial authority that it eprang from chace in obedience to everlasting, self-dictatorial authority that it eprang from chace in obedience to everlasting, self-though to being but the undulations of cosmic neb-ulosity, and dependent upon the newer ceasing gra-ulos of infinit, everlasting atoms, as they bound through the ages from vold to vold. This the dui-these more the mest superficial of all creeds, --materialism, which includes some mixture of anti-hese main accepting as a truth, --H, indeed, they are not actually based on it,--the monstrons assumption that every living thing is just as much a machine as a which, or a windmill, or a hydraulic apparata. According to the material contequion, writhing ower its existence to the properties of the material particles out of which it is constructed. But is it not strange that it never seems to have occurred to the materialistic devoce that neither the watch, por the strange that it never seems to have occurred to the materialistic devoce that neither the watch, por the strange that it never seems to have occurred to the materialistic devoce that neither the watch, por the strange that it never seems to have occurred to the materialistic devoce that neither the watch, por the strange that it never seems to have occurred to paratize, nor any other machole known to or made to constructed? A single fact of clairvoyance, one clear said:

A single fact of clairvoyance, one clear case of slate-writing, one proof of intelli-gence controlling the force that moves a table without contact of visible power, over-turns the machine theory and shows man as a spirit served by a bodily organization. Not singly, but by thousands do such facts occur. Not long ago a liberal clergyman, holding a good position as a Western preacher, said: " really see nothing noteworthy or important in this slate-writing." A descendant of some old Saducee has said

Verily though one rise from the dead yet will I not believe?"

Need of Education in Righteousness.

That able writer, Dr. J. R. Ruchanan, may well rejoice at an awakening interest in the great truths, and an awakening sense of the great dangers, which he so well pointed out in his great book on "The New Education," or on "Moral Education," as he named its first ditions. In the Christian Union is a long article in a like-yein with his words. The writer says:

The writer says: The writer says: The vertice rays: The latent conviction is as yet little more than a discontent with present methods. No prophythas atten to forceast the future, or point out clearly a method that is better, but we have gone along the present line long enough to demonstrate that inter-lines deprayed. We must add a third B to the future that, a man may be well educated and more the future less deprayed. We must add a third B to the future and community well educated and more the less deprayed. We must add a third B to the future B's; namely, Bighteousnes. The greatest dange out commowealth are threateded, not by ignore voters, but by intelligent fiscality. The leaders of the mob at Fort Worth, the aposite of the mago, the aldermen of New Yort. City—who have started, we hops on their way to S ag Sing—and the company them on their journey, to say nothing of milroad wreckers, land-steller, and treasury robbers of greater wealth and eminenco—all are, or might be, graduate from our public schools. Had he read Buchanan's book he would

Had he read Buchaman's book he would have given one man credit for foreca the future and for the suggestion of better methods of education. But the good seed is sown, and in due time must come the har-Rev. Washington Gladden, in a late article in the Century puts this poor inade-quacy of our culture of conscience, even in one of our best educated commonwealths, as follows:

One of our best educated common wealths, as follows: The only State In the Union that carsfully collects its more statistics brings to light some startling facts representing the increase of crime within the nast thirty years. In 1850 there was one prisoner to Mas-anchusetts to every sight hundred and four of the population; in 1850 there was one bereat four hun-dred and eight-seven. The ratio of the prisoners to the Whole population marky doubled in thirty years. But it may be said the ship morease is due to the rapid growth of the foreign population in Masachusetts. There would be small comfort in this explanation if it were the irrie one; but it is not the true-one. The na-tive criminals are increasing faster than the foreign-born oriminals. In 1850 there was one native pri-soner to every net hundred and fiftee native citi-stron mative elitones; in 1850 there was one native prioner to every one thousand" two hundred and sh seven native citizans; in 1880 there was one nat prisoner to every six hundred and fifteen native or zens. The ratio of native prisoners to the nat population more than doubled in thirty years.

Are we concentrating our efforts on intellectual keenness devoted to money and pow-er, and neglecting in school and home, " the weightler matters of the law, judgment, jusrey ? Then our pe and no gold or gems can eave us. So died Greece and Rome, amidst the beauty of art, the luxury of wealth and the pride of const glitter where the canker quest-th was most fatal.

Ruskin, in England, protesting against the Aussin, in Auguine, protesting against the same want of moral development there, said: I know of pothing that has been taught the youth of our time except that their fathers were apes, and their mothers winkley; that the word begun in ac-cident, and will end in darkness; that honor is a foi-ity, amblico a virtue, charity a wice, poverty a crime, and rescality the means of all wealth, and the our of all wisdom. Both Mr. Cartyle and X how perfectly well all along what would be the outcome of that education.

The perpetuity of our Republic, the peace and safety of private life, the sanctity and beauty and joy of home and family, all derighteousness-obedience to the ral, laws of the universe. Here is pend on right one short sentence from the Christian Union which condenses the leading ideas of Buhanan:

Although his mode of statement has led no system will develop the individual, or conserve the community, which does not recognize and pro-vide for body, mind and spirit. It is, hopeful that two illuminated minds see the same great truth. The strife of cap-ital and 'abor will cease with this new education, and they will be, as they have been finely called "two wings to carry one bird upward."

By Spiritualists, who of all others should hasize the culture of man's inner life this duty of and danger of the hour should b seen and met. In every house moral and eth ical culture can begin at once. There duty can be best seen in the light of love, and guardian angels will help in the high task and so the good work shall spread everywhere and rule in all public places.

Last Subbath Pulpit Teachings.

Prof. Swing said: "There are thousand of things done by the multitude that are no longer worthy of imitation, and there is an obligation on the individual to rise above the average level among mankind. There is to day a certain average business morality, and it may be better and higher than in days past, but it is still below the average."

Dr. W. H. Thomas alluded to prayer a follows: "Prayer is not an idle wish breathed in the ear of space, but a strong exercis of volition that beats at the door and will not be satisfied with nay. How often h been seen that the earnest desires of a peo ple, strengthened for the time by the spirit in the inner man, has wrung liberties, re-forms, glorious victories from adverse circumstances? And to-day the nations are rising, and they breathe more and more the united prayer for justice and liberty, for virtue and righteousness, which ere long will not fail to bring, by the very law of its own being, most imposing victories." The Rev. Mr. Bland preached at the Wabash Avenue Methodist Church on "The Criminal ity of the Liquor Traffic and the Coming Triumph of Prohibition." He said: "The overthrow of the rum power will come sud denly. It will come when this Nation awake to the fact that it employs an army of ene mies and licenses them to murder. The day will come when this traffic will be so abhorred that nothing a speaker can say against it will be regarded as radical. When men properly understand the hideousness of the traffic it will be placed in the front rank of rimes.

Rev. J. S. Greene, rector of St. Matthew's (Reformed Episcopal) church, on Larrabee Street near Fullerton Avenue, preached a on upon "Divorce and Its Evils," to a large congregation. He quoted statistics to show with what ease divorces could be pro-cured, and led off with the announcement of the fact that in Cook county alone, last year, there were granted 833 divorces. Within the past year there had been granted in Mas-sachusetts, 600; in Maine, 478; in Connectisachusets, 600; in Maine, 476; in Connecti-cut, 401; in San Erancisco, 333, and in New England as a whole, 2,113. Frequency of divorce inevitably accompanied a generally dissolute condition of society. For five hundred years a divorce was not granted in Rome. Those were the days of her virtue, Nory and power. The reign of vice then be-of terror was introduced into France with no fewer than twenty thousand divorces in one year. The preacher urged the necessity for an amendment to the laws that would give the whole nation a uniform and righteous divorce law.

The Absorbing Topic.

To the credit of the clergy be it said, they are, as a rule, expressing their views freely upon the present labor agitation. True, many of the utterances are glittering generalities but even these are better than nothing. At the great Congregational Convention at Saratoga, last week, the annual sermen by Rev Dr. Brand, ignored church matters and grap pled with the labor struggle. Two tho delegates, representing a very large constitu-ency of intelligent and well-to-do people, listened to Dr. Brand's views, on a socio instead of theologic theme. The wires report Dr. Brand as follows:

instead of theologic theme. The wires re-port Dr. Brand as follows: The speaker condemned Nihilism and an-archy in the strongest terms, and at the same he urged in no uncertain voice the duty of all Christian organizations to unite and har-monize the differences between these war-ring forces. Monopoly begits avarice and avarice is tyranny, which always tries to cruch instead of conciliating its real or sup-posed foe. But this should not be permitted in such a country as this. Capital and labor should walk arm in arm and appreciate each other's rights as well as duties. He bitterly decounced mote and lawkes proceedings. A Christian people cannot afford to be govern-ed by Anarchist riots, and their government should protect them against such outrages, even if all its military forces had to be call-ed out. The workingmen who are the serv-ants of great grinding corporations and mo-nopolies have a right to complaid. The men have no idea of heaven except making money-nor of heil, except not to make it. Capital-ists have organized, and one needs the work of the Christian missionary as much as the other.

The Phantom Train.

An old story which may be of interest to the students of psychical research, says the Boston Herald, comes from Old Orchard. Be-

Boston Herald, comes from Old Orchard. Be-fore the Boston & Maine Railroad was ex-tended to Portland visitors reached Old Or-chard by a branch of the Eastern Road. Since the building of the former road's ex-tension the branch has been abandoned, and no trains have run over it for years. The rails are up, and in many places the roadbed destroyed. Last summer, as a party of Cana-dian gentlement, three in number, were walk-ing along the deserted road, they heard distinctly the rumble of an approaching train. It came nearer and nearer, and yet nothing was seen. As it came close to them they all involuntarily jumped from the track, and the invisible train passed them, going toward the beach, the sound growing fainter as it went on. The gentlemen were much fright-ened, and one was much overcome by the ocened, and one was much overcome by the oc-currence. He could not shake off the impression that had been left, and declared that he knew something terrible was to happen. That very afternoon he received a dis-patch from friends in Montreal teiling him that his wife and only child had been killed by a railroad accident that very forendon.

A Clairvoyant Reveals a Fortune.

It appears from the New York Sun that M. Stafford is a trustee of Dr. Talmage's Tabernacle, and is well-known in legal, church and Masonic circles in Brook lyn, being a lawyer and also the present Master of Brooklyn Lodge. His elde broth er, Capt. R. S. Stafford, is a captain in the United States Army, and is at present sta-tioned at David's Island, in Long Island Sound. Several years ago, while the father of the two Staffords resided with his family in Rochester, N. Y., a famous clairvoyant and fortune teller visited that city and caused quite a sensation by her wonderful powers of forecasting the future. Her parlors were thronged day and night by all classes of peo ple of Rochester, and among those who went to see her was lawyer Charles M. Stafford and his father. The elder Stafford, who was radically skeptical regarding a belief in what he considered the wild vagaries of a half lunatic, was somewhat taken aback when the woman selected him from the crowd and assured him that he was entitled to an English title and a large estate. He looked upon it as a huge joke and laughed heartly ever afterwards when relating the incident to his friends. Not so, however, with young Charles, who was indelibly imd with the idea, and decided to m ak an investigation. He spent hours, days and weeks tracing up his genealogy, until he had traced it in a straight line up to Baron Bulkely Stafford, who died in England about 1767. That was as far as his armorial ability would allow him to go, and he sent the pedi-gree thus obtained by him to an English barrister, with instructions to place it in the hands of some one competent to carry the genealogical research back to its beginning, and dig the tree up by the roots. After waiting patiently for a long time Mr. Stafford was lately rewarded by a communication from his London barrister, in which that gentleman says:

gentileman eays: Undoubtedly the above Staffords have a lawful right to the ancient Barony of Stafford and to the manors and baronial castle of Stafford and to other manors and baronial castle of Stafford have a to realed by special act of Parijament in the reign of Bichard 1, the Lionhearted, and descended to Nicholas de Stafford, from whom the Stiffords ord be above genealogy are desconded. The Staffords remained in possession of this barony for 500 years, and until Rodger Stafford, was compelled to sur-render it to the King, an arbitrary act on the King's part which was condymmed by Farliament.

Scandals.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate says The Northwestern Christian Advocate says: "Newspaper scandals about ministers are numerous first now. Please note the fact that the church does the proseculing, how-ever. These sad tales prove simply that God continues to put his treasure in earthern vessels which, because human, sometimes fail. Note, too that the world has steadily improved since the date at which one-twelfth of the disciples went astray. For example, our own church has about 12,000 ministers, but only a half-dozen recreants. If 1,000 should fail, the apostolic proportion would be equaled."

Please also note the fact that Spiritualists do the exposing of frauds, and do it fairly and thoroughly. We believe the world "has steadily improved " and hope Methodism shares in that improvement, yet "only a half dozen recreants" among 12,000 ministers is too low an estimate. We fear a half hundred would be too low. Doubtless the Advocate will help 'turn the rascals 'out," and 'try to decreas their growth in future.

By four different methods he, Sir William Thomson, has shown that the distance be-tween two molecules in a drop of water is such, that there are between five hundred mil-lions and five thousand millions of them in an inch. He expresses that result in this way that, if you were to magnify a drop of water to the size of the earth, then the coarseness of the graining of it would be something between that of cricket-bails and small shot. Or we may express it in this rather striking way: You know that the best microscop can be made to magnify from six thousand to eight thousand times. A microscope which would magnify that result as much again would show the molecular structure of water.

He had been a sub scriber to the JOURNAL for many years, and was an ardent Spiritualist.

In explaining his attitude toward the doctrine of the Trinity, the Rev. R. Heber Newton says in the Christian Register: "There are some of our modern dogmas that it is simply inconceivable to me that Jesus could have held, or could hold to day, were He upon earth. There are others which I may think it questionable whether He would hold were He back among us, but which present to my mind no moral inconceivability. The question of the Trinity is one of these. In the form in which it is held by the conventional Christian, I am quite sure Jesus would not accept it. In the form in which it is held in philos philosophic minds to day. I do not see why he might not accept it. Each of us is ob-liged to look at such a question from his own From my to me entirely possible that He should hold such a thought of the Divine Being. If I did not think so I should not be where I am."

ed. These things we have to expect. We dis-claim against supersition in the churches; the ranks of Spiritualism, are honey-combed with it. One of the greatest sources of frand is this y church-members. They look on the me-diums as creatures divine, a little different and higher, more sacred than anything wortal. They will sit down and listen to some weak, poor, uneducated, uncultured, simple minded man or woman, who shuts his or her eyes, and gets off a lot of twaddle that does not amount to anything, and call it grand, sublime, because they think it came from the spirits above. Whether it comes from there or not, judge of its merits. It makes no difference if it comes from the 47th heaven, if it be not a true revelation. These meetings here have been of great use for many years; they have educated men to think, but it does seem to me it is time that the Spiritualist societies of N. Y., especially this Conference, which has always represent-ed the fadical and aggressive side, should take holf of these matters, and attempt to regulate them in some way. I do not wish jo gets at it properly in the right spirit will be better for it in the end, but it depends altogeth-epon the use made of it. If any are just coming into Spiritualism. parties were identified as the fellows. They had slept in the barn, and they had been joined by a third. They intended to rob the house and steal a horse and buggy to get away with. In hopes of shortening his term of imprisonment at the expense of his com-rades, one of the trio turned States' evidence. He said it was understood between them that if Mrs. Robinson and the children awoke they were to be killed. Now comes another singular feature of the Robinson reached home, his wife was sitting up with him, and as he was resting very easy, she fell asleeg. The little old womau reappeared, sait down, and said to the pa-tient: "Your bother reached home in time. I am glad to see you getting better so fast." With that she was gone, and none of the parties I have been speaking of ever saw her again. People who know the brothers well are firmly convinced that they saw and heard just what they allege, and those who scoff at the story find it hard to explain why Robin-son startied for home as he did, and arrived just in time to arrest three hardened fellows who were promptly sent to State prison.-N. Spiritualism as a Help to Christian Lie.
 An address has just been printed, delivered by John Hooker of Haritford, the reporter of our suppresence court of errors, in Willmanuic recently, on the relations between Christianity and Spiritualism. "A belief in spirit life," he says, "makes a man a better Christian." M. Hooker has been a decound a congregational church for 20 years, and that has been the sown experience. It involves a belief in a print life," he says, "I mest few intelligent Christian me, who do not hours been a decound a congregational church for 20 years, and that has been the own experience. It involves a belief in a future probation, but, he says, "I mest few intelligent Christian me, outside of the theological schools, and pertaps I should say, qualifiedly, out-added of the ministry, who do not hold the same view. Decline in the Church.

Decline in the Church. The Rev. Dr. William Chauncey Langdon is writ-ing a series of papets for The Lietag Church on the Church's linek of ciergy, which, though intended to apply especially to the Episcopal Church, probably applies more or less to all the Christian denomina-tions. There are, according to Dr. Langdon, 1,500 parishes and mission stations in the Episcopal Church without ministers, while on the other hand there are hundreds of Episcopal ciergymen, and among them some of the most devoted, hard-work-ing and spiritually efficient men in the denomina-tion, who are unemployed. Dr. Langdon gives four reasons for this state of affairs. First, the Church has reserved to likelf no right to send any minister to even the smalled partials in the land, while on the other hand there are no legitimate steps by which. Less of this state of affairs. First, the Church has mained partials in the land, while on the other hand there are no legitimate steps by which. Costinues from First Pare ) and science and religion shall eat straw lov-ingly like an oz. Thave dwelt the more at length on this idea-the noumenon, because it is the key-stone of the arch of this new transcend-entailsm. The accription of a something in nature, in which properties or attribute, is iterated and reliterated in every conceivable form of speech as if sheer persistence in dogmatizing would commend it to the judg-ment of sensible mee. In the perusal of this remarkable review of, a remarkable thelem, I have had repeated oc-casion to notice that wherein the author's showing appears to be dedicient in proof, the dedict is more than made good by the zeal of the admiring commentator. In fact, it is this person we have mainly to deal with, as own. So identified is Prof. Wilder with his theme, that it is clear he has made himself responsible for the seminents advanced. The zeal of the convert is apparent everywhere; the author, and the exponder are in double harness, tugging together in the same quag-mire. A quotation or two more on the topic in hand, and we will dismiss this phase of "Nomensum, the philosophy latent in the

RELIGIO-P ism, which it seems has captivated the imag-ination of Prof. Alexander Wilder, I hav-almed to meet the issue on the ground where it is eet up—meet it squarely, and fairly, with-out evasion or subterfuge—meet it as bolts honorable and manly controversy; but I re-gret to say that such a course does not meet the exigencies of theism, nor does it seem to commend itself to Professor Wilder, if I may judge in view of two articles published in the JORNAL last year; —the first, June 13th, en-titled "The One Who Is," credited to Prof. W., who, in his article, predicated God on the de-liverances of intuition, or as he phrases it— the "higher faculty;" affirming there as now, that the "effect which is visible and phenom-enal, depends vitally upon that which is nomenal and invisible." The other article, of Julth.—God and the Religious In-stinct," was written in reply, by the present writer. In my article, I hald down these simple, plain, easily understood propositions interrogatively and affirmatively, thus:— "But can the finite mind cognize the infinite? To this we must come at last. Has man any faculty by which he can take-signizance of the infinite in anywise? Will any one affirm this? If not, what do we know about this power or intelligence not of ourselves in which we are immersed? Simply that it transcends any-thing we know of as a spertaining to human nature. This is the extent of our intuitions in this matter. But this is not Theism as or-dinarily upderstood. What this power or intelligence of determining the man nature. This is the extent of our intuitions in this matter. But this is not Theism as or-dinarily upderstood. What this power is, or where we now of as appertaining to human nature. This is the moral sense acting singly capable of determining the-guestions than is the moral sense acting singly capable of determining the sense acting and dominating the faculty. The ne-tions, is the sole measure of our knoyledge. Where it fails, knowledge fails. If there be here indicated, the onus here indicated, the onus probandi lies with the party assuming such to be the fact." Instead of responding to this common sense view of the case, like an advocate confident of the tenability of his theses, and this abili-ty to hold his own, the Professor, ignoring the issue here presented, sets himself about to heat up some new sensational evasion, and after a year's cogitation turns up with this marvelous revelation from Boston. (don't know that it is quite becoming in me to mention this little matter of etiquette when others with similar or greater provocation remain silent. I have now in my mind an "Open Letter to Alexander Wilder." from a gontleman in Wisconsin, in which certain, criticisms were courteously yet vigorously presented which failed to elicit attention from the Professor. However, waiving this as of no significance or importance, let us turn to the subject in hand. And here I must be pérmitted to enter my protest emphatical-ly and unqualidedly against the 'licentious use of words the import of which no one does nor can comprehend, such as we have been treated with most lavishly in the article un-der review. "When the Professor save " absolute" or ab-

Passing over alles, we will give our attention sim-ply to the last five words which I have taken the liberty to italicise. With reference to these, my idea is, that when we talk about the infinite purity, rectitude and holiness of God, we deceive ourselves with a phantom; the mind is con-fused, as it " seeing through a glass, darkly." Words represent ideas, and have their deter-minate meaning, and necessary limitations. Some are so fixed and unalterable, that the signification they bear exhausts their capac-ity of expression to that extent that no qual-ifying adjectives can angment or intensify their import. Such I take to be justice, rec-titude, purity and holiness. The question then is: What do we understand by justice, or rectitude, its quivalent, as applied to Dei-ty? In briefest statement, it is this: "Strict conformity to right." To do justity, is to do all that is required of any one. There are no degrees of this thing. Strict conformity to right is justice or rectitude. Anything hort of this is not just: To speak of infi-nite justice or rectitude, is a solecism, and absord as to say ard attick is infinitely straight, or a cube is infinitely square. The stick is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is not straight. A cube is either straight or it is simple jus-tice or rectitude, comprehends all there is of it. The possession of this attribute by the supreme Being, does not change its nature nor intensify iks quality, neither more nor less. We cannot conceive of this attribute of the singhty, as we do of the manifestation of

Supernatural Manifestations in Mr. Robinson's New Home.

In the year 1870 a family named Robinson removed from Medina county, Ohio, to a farm near Davenport, Iowa. Mr. Robinson made the purchase before his family left Ohio, and bought of a real estate agent in Davenport. It appeared that the farm had changed hands several times within as few years, and that the last owner had lived on it less than a fort-night. There was a good frame house on the place, the barms and sheds were in good re-pair, and the land was certainly rich and fertile.

place, the barns and sheds were in good re-pair, and the land was certainly rich and fertile. Mr. Robinson got the place at what he called a great bargain, and he had few ques-tions to ask about former owners and why they left. As the house had been tenantless for several months, there was need of repairs. Robinson hired a couple of painters, and was with them about the place for three days, all taking board at a near farm house. On the evening of the first day one of the painters went over to the bouse after a pipe he had deft. The time was just after sun down. The kitchen door was not locked, and he went in that way to go up stairs, leaving the door wide open. The door leading from the kitchen to the cellar was shut. The door leading into the sitting room was open. As the painter, haited in the kitchen for a moment to look at the new paper on the walls he-hard a sound on the cellar stairs which filled him with amazement. It was as if somebody was walking backward-down the stairs and dragging something which bumped on every step. This noise continued until the bottom step was reached, and then there was a dull blowga half cry, and all was still. The painter puedetshe door open and axked who was there but fill was quiet. At this same moment the kitchen door, which he had left wide open, and the sitting room door, which he had noticed was open, both clammed shut. He pulled the back door open and rushed out, all desire for an evening's smoke having been driven from his mind. However, on the way back to the other house he made up his mind to say nothing of his adventure, fearing the ridicule which is always justly or unjustly heaped upon the man who becomes frightened over what he cannot see. His pale face and agitated manner were subjects for inquiry, but he excused himself on the ground of sickness. The next morning he wondered if he had really heard what he thought he had. The more he thought of it he site though the had. The more he thought a but he vidows. He town of some temporary halladination. home. Robinson at the same time leaving for Ohio to bring on his family. What occurred after the family reached the farm is gleaned directly from Robinson and his wife and, in the light of all circum-stances, must be taken for the truth. The household goods were teamed out, and as they got there late in the afternoon, the family were invited to remain at their neighbor's over night. This was the same farmer with whom Robinson and the painters had stopped. After supper Robinson, his boy, 12 years younger, went over to the house to un-box and unpack some of the goods, taking a couple of candles along. It was not yet dark when they reached the house, and the boys started out to make a tour of the place. They had been up stairs about five minpites when an crying. Robinson laughed at the idea, telling them to look more carefully and they would find a cat. The lads refused to leave was busy and paid no particular, heed to them.

would find a cat. The lads refneed to leave the room in which he was at work, but he was busy and paid no particular, heed to them. It was midsummer, and the evening was without a breath of air to move a leaf. Rob-inson had passed into the parlor with an armful of goods, and the boys stood by an open box in the kitchen, when the cellar door suddenly opened. They ran screaming into the parlor, and their terror was so man-ifest that Robinson was for a moment un-nerved. He was sure that the cellar door had been shut for an hour, and when he was, to say the least, greatly astonished. It might be some one from the other house playing them a trick. He took a candle and wentdown cellar, but it was empty of any living thing. He finally concluded that the door had not been folly shut, and that some movement of the boys had opened it, and as nothing further occurred he worked for an hour, and went away langhing at the boys who bugged him so closely. During the next day the house was so far settled that the family coccupied it after sup-per. Kreybody being tired out by the day's work, they were off to bed at an early hour. There was a bedroom bff the kitchen, and in this the boy slept. There was another off the sitting room, and this was occupied by the sitting room. and this was occupied by the sitting room door, but he saw that it was shut. The two bedroom doors were left open, also the door, but he saw that it was hut. The two bedroom doors were left open, also the door, but he saw that it was hut. The two bedroom doors were left open, also the door, but he saw that it was hut. The two bedroom doors were left open, also the door between the sitting room and kitchen. Nothing whatever occurred to alarm any one until about 10 o'clock. The boy was fast asleep, Mrs. Robinson soring, and Robinson was dozing off, when the daughter came running down stairs and cried out that she had heard 'the sounds of a woma momaning and sobbing. The father ridiculed it, but while he was speaking the sitting room dor shut with a bang. He finished off with a blow and a state of y and bottom. This cry awoke the boy from his deep eleep. Robinson was an old soldler and a brave man, and he did not hesitate a moment to begin an investigation. He lighted a lamp and went down cellar, and then he made a trip up stairs, but he could not discover the slightest cause for the mysterious sounds, let alone the curious manner in which the doors had operated. The rest of the family retired to bed, but he loaded his revolver and sat up all night, fully determined on solving the mystery. Nothing further occurred, how-ever. When morning came he tried hard to convince himself that every thing had come about from natural subses—a cat in the gar-ret, rats in the cellar, a draught of air, or something of the sqrt. His family tried hard to agree with him, but they weres o timid that none of them would go up stairs or down cellar alone.

Bometaning of the sort. His hamily tried hard to agree with him, but they were so timid that none of them would go up stairs or down cellar alone.
After supper of the second night, Robinson made a careful inspection of the cellar. It was an ordinary farm-house cellar, lighted by two windows, and contained nothing but an empty box and a few stone jars. He inspected the garret, and he found it entirely empty. He sounded the various walls, but there were no hiding places he could discover. No one went to bed. The cellar door was shut, the sitting room door laft open, and two lamps were left burning. At 9 oclock Robinson were up stairs alone, determined to investigate the mysterious sounds, which seemed to start there. He east for half an hour alone in the dark, when the sobbing and meaning suddruly brgan. There could be no mistake. The tones were those of a woman, who seemed to be pleading and grieving. They had not continued above two minutes, and Robinson had not located them as coming from any particular spot, when he heard a door down stairs slam to, and the wife and children screamèd out in terror. He hastened down. The solution was wide open. The sounds on the stairs began and ended as usual, and Mrr. Robinson took his family to a country hotela for wills saway hired a stury dy oung fellow to go back with him, and passed two nights in the house. On the first induced the farm. It was his policy to keep the matter quiet, but, among the few who heard of the strange proceedings, were two men who one day accompanied him to the farm, and gare the cellar a careful looking over all first the house and slept in the barn.
