HE WALKED THE AMERICAS

BY
L. TAYLOR HANSEN

$6.95 plus 25c
postage & handling

Almost two thousand years ago a mysterious white man walked from tribe to tribe among the American Nations. He came to Peru from the Pacific, He traveled through South and Central America, among the Mayans, into Mexico and all of North America, then back to ancient Tula, from whence he departed across the Atlantic to the land of his origin. Who was this white Prophet who spoke a thousand languages, healed the sick, raised the dead, and taught in the same words as Jesus Himself?

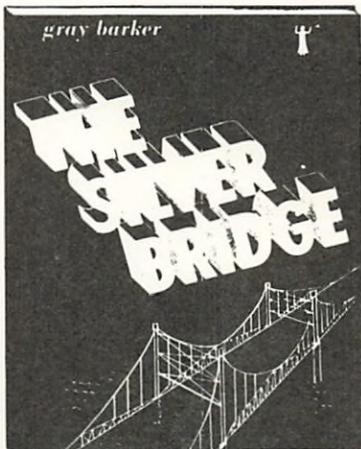

These are true Indian legends, gathered during twenty-five years of research by L. Taylor Hansen, archaeologist, from many different tribes all over the Americas. By consulting museums, libraries and experts on folk-lore, it has been possible to correlate the findings into this fascinating book, backed up by the spades of the diggers into ancient ruins, and by all the sciences with which L. Taylor Hansen is familiar. This is a book that will back up the New Testament of the East, with the Christian Indian legends of the West. In this book is proof that the Savior came not only to one continent, but to all the world. This book will strengthen your faith as no other could!

JOURNALISM'S "DEATH STALKERS" —GHASTLY MENACE TO AMERICAN LIBERTY

In one sense of the word, I am a journalist. But I do more than simply report the news; I am also an editorialist. However, in either facet of my writing, I have adhered to the tacitly understood "oath" of the journalist always to report the news in its truest factual aspect to the best of my knowledge, and to offer my editorial opinion in all honesty taking care to label it plainly as opinion or comment presented in a strictly personal sense; and never with the deliberate or even inadvertent intent to falsify or to cause harm to any person about whom I am writing. Thus it is that over the past few years I have viewed with shock, horror and great alarm the trend toward something far different in the field of journalism.

Today a new wolf pack roams the nation, mad with blood lust, killing for the sake of killing; just as the wolf pack attacks the herd of sheep, killing till none remain alive in spite of the fact that hunger has already been sated beyond all capacity. Today the media is on the hunt for victims, their idealistic mission to "inform the public" buried under a power-mad orgy from which they seem now unable to withdraw.

One young modern journalist, also viewing the spectacle with horror, said in 1973: "... (these... blood-thirsty, moralistic young media types... remind me of the Jacobin fire-eaters—many of them also journalists—who led the French Revolutionary "Reign of Terror" in 1793-94." My thanks to Kevin Phillips for letting me know I am not alone in my opinions.

Now that a dozen or more of America's most prominent politicians—a president, a vice president, treasury secretaries, attorneys general, secretaries of state, senators, ways and means committee chairmen, governors—have been destroyed or wounded, it would seem that Kevin Phillips' analogy is a good one.

The media, however, is today describing itself in the very same way Camille Desmoulins, a prominent French Revolutionary journalist, described his fellow journalists as "the very small number of those to whom only the witness of their conscience is necessary, men of character, incorruptible citizens." These modern journalists regard themselves as crusaders for justice, admirable men, heroes in their own eyes; but far worse, they are adulated by the majority of the public whose ignorance of the fearful danger presented to themselves by this horrendous attack on the guarantees of the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and the process of Liberty and the freedom of the individual from anything but a trial by a jury of his peers, seems incredible in the light of how "enlightened and informed" that public is presumed to be. The bitter fact is that not too many persons have ever read the Constitution or the Bill of Rights to know what they contain, or if having read it, understand what they have read.

Irving Kristol, a New York University professor, recently put it quite clearly when he said: "Journalists today are extremely 'idealistic', in the same sense that many college students in the '60s were 'idealistic' (he was being ironic). They are not much interested in money, only in power. And 'power', for the media, means (only) the power to discredit and destroy—it is through such successes that they acquire visible signs of grace. After Watergate, the media are in a state of mind that can only be described as homicidal manic. They feverishly seek new victims, prominent ones if possible, obscure ones if necessary. There is the smell of blood in the air, and of fire and brimstone, too."

Where does it go from here? How many more political necks must be laid on the guillotine? It is to be hoped that the American people are not completely gullible fools, and that the "purge" is passing its peak. As intensifying absolutist moral standards demand the sacrifice of more and more office holders (for bribery, wiretaps, cover-ups, gifts, loans, preferential treatment or whatever) the public is confronted with this unhappy alternative: either today's politicians are incomparably worse than those of past generations, or our contemporary media moralists have gone mad with a criteria of purity that is impossible to maintain. None of us are saints—all of us have some dirty laundry that can be exposed to public view—but in the current mania, it is a case of "out damned spot" no matter what the consequence, which is now total ruination for the spotted one. None of us can now be said to be safe from the violation of our Constitutional rights, or from being tried in advance by the media to the everlasting destruction of our character, our ability to earn a living, and even of our health and safety from mob action; everlasting because the media cannot retract without convicting themselves of violation of law and the consequences of redress. It is far better that many of the guilty escape the guillotine rather than that one innocent one is thrust beneath the plunging blade. Yet the media no longer finds this morally acceptable in its fanaticism and its zeal of the type which has always in the past destroyed human liberty, no matter what its justification.

Like Louis XVI, the French monarch executed by Robespierre and company, modern politicians (and presidents) are a bit worse off than their predecessors because they represent the consummation of several decades of abuse of power. But even so, they are being judged by entirely unprecedented standards—purity gone as berserk as in 1793-94.

Some elements of the national media have become aware (as Kevin Phillips) of the bloodlust and the danger, and are trying to draw back. So did Robespierre in his time. But the rush of events—and the standards he had laid down—entrapped him and drew him on. Today the New York Times and the Washington Post are forced to go on in their vicious self-entrapped crusade, and are obliged to apply the same standards to Edward Kennedy, Nelson Rockefeller that they so gleefully applied to Richard Nixon and John Connally. Now not even their friends and favorites are immune from the jaws of the monster they have loosed. The carnage is mounting, and will continue to mount.

No nation can tolerate this self-destruction of its leadership resources. Likewise, no great people has ever allowed such power to pass for any length of time to an elite of purist zealots and moral censors. In France, it took only eighteen months after the death of Louis XVI for the tide to turn, and Robespierre's

The Ocean Living Institute has been formed to conduct and promote research in oceanography and independent self-sufficient forms of community living on the ocean. It will encourage individuals and business firms to form investment groups to fund construction and operation of ocean based industries, serve as a clearinghouse for ocean living contacts, publish information on legal and other aspects of oceanic settlement, publish information on new concepts in oceanography, aquaculture, and oceanic settlement, and conduct tests on new concepts and devices.

The institute is a non-profit corporation and contributions of cash and supplies are deductible for federal income tax purposes. The institute is in the formative stages, and is especially interested in hearing from people who can help to develop it.

Jacobins were themselves executed so that France could live and breath again. Not that the Dan Rathers of today should be placed under the knife, but they should be ousted from their positions of public trust and forever denied access to the communications media to inflict their sadism on a suffering and increasingly agonizing and terrified people.

Unfortunately America's Dan

Rather than mere pamphleteers and agitators. Our "Reign of Terror" is given tremendous power and impetus and irresistibility by some of the most powerful mass communications sciences in the world, and curbing their excessive accusatory power is likely to be not a matter of months, or of decades, but perhaps impossible to control. There is more behind the scenes than the communications facilities of television, radio, newspapers, magazines, satellites in space and instant "analysis" and propaganda programs. Even the governments of the world are involved, and certainly the secret service organizations, and the minions of the growing police state "state of the world". Witness the incredible spectacle of the FBI knowingly circulating a character from Ian Fleming's detective novels, identified as Eric Starvo Galt, as an actual police composite of the killer of Martin Luther King as derived from the identification of physical features by witnesses. All of the Watergate burglars also had their little chuckle at the expense of the "stupid" public by giving false names when arrested, all taken from spy novels written by E. Howard Hunt himself, although it was a foregone conclusion that their real names would be instantly known when they were even routinely checked out.

Hunt was the mastermind of Watergate. He was a CIA man for 23 years, as was Gordon Liddy. They were highly trained men—certainly not so inept as to be caught with marked hundred-dollar bills, White House phone numbers, and all sorts of evidence incriminating the President they were "out to get". And it was inevitable that this monstrous plan against the people of the United States would be aided and abetted by "leaking" all the proper information to the media zealots, some of whom were in on the plot, and the consequent "trial and conviction by the press" that followed during two long years of infamous perfidy against the honorable precepts of the fourth estate.

We are faced now with the ultimate weapon against freedom, given unfettered power by the inventions of the science of communication, placed in the hands of ravening wolves who masquerade as public heroes, and perhaps, in their madness, are even heroic in their own estimation.

We are faced with only one reasonable choice—never to believe another word uttered by a newsman because even though he bears the mien of a man, he may have the visage of a wolf. We cannot trust them, and we should ignore them out of existence. And it must be that some of them already sense that in their zeal they have already destroyed themselves.

We, the pub, are not entirely fools—sooner or later the truth will occur to most of us; though sadly too late because we may have lost our liberty because of our slowness to realize our gullibility.—Rap.

HYPNOTISM AND HEALING

By Orvil R. Hartle

URSA, (Universal Research Society of America), was born and founded on May 15, 1965 by Harry F. Koch and Orvil R. Hartle—two fellow dreamers.

Originally we were Indiana Unit 2, LaPorte Sub-Committee of N.I.C.A.P., (National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena), and we were primarily engaged in the investigation of the U.F.O.

As time went on, and since Harry and I shared a common interest in all phenomena; our proximity to Psychic phenomena, made us aware there was need for investigation also into these Psychic fields; where, in some cases, it was apparent there was inter-relationship.

However, scarcely before we were started; the Maker decided He had better things for Harry to do and he was suddenly called to his eternal rest. He was buried May 12, 1966.

Since, I have earnestly endeavored to keep U.R.S.A. alive; by being open-minded in all things, constantly bearing in mind—The Golden Rule!

In addition to our research and investigation of all phenomena; URSA holds as goals—Equality—Fairness and open-mindedness—Have concern for youth—and condemn not that which we do not understand!

Our research has covered twenty-six areas of psychic phenomena. In this article, we will touch briefly on our work with two of these: Hypnosis and Healing.—O.R.H.

HYPNOSIS

What is Hypnosis and why does it play an important part in "Psychic Research?"

Hypnosis is "not" sleep; but an

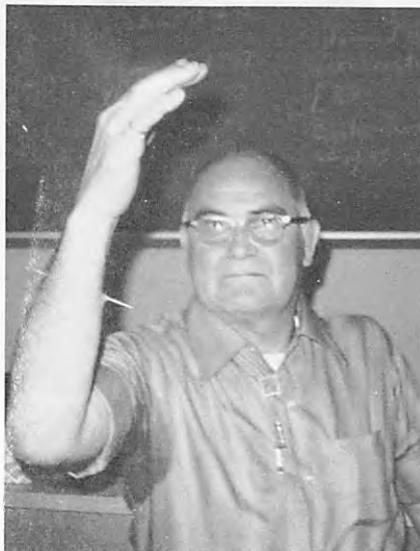

"altered" state of consciousness between wakefulness and sleep. It is the "twilight" zone in which the mind is many times as efficient as in the conscious state. The "trance" state,

(or the unconscious level of mind), has an infinite number of planes of "awareness" or disassociation, between consciousness and deep sleep. These trance states induced by hypnosis, seem to have much closer communication with the subconscious, as it does with the conscious level. For this reason, the hypnotic state, in which psychic abilities may be "controlled", is an invaluable tool in investigation of paranormal psychology.

Psychic abilities are determined by trance induction and giving the subject various psychic jobs to do; arranging these experiments in such manner, accuracy may be verified. When searching for one with psychic talent (and this talent by use, may be increased), those with little abilities are not considered, due to the amount of time required to make them useful, experimentally.

The entire gamut of E.S.P. phenomena may be considered for investigation via hypnosis. Since hypnosis may be used to condition and improve the mind in these areas; it follows that "any" facet or product of the mind may be investigated.

In dealing with the entranced subject; it must at all times be remembered, the individuals' mind is in the hands of the hypnotist. This mind may be likened to a "piece of dough" and may be molded as though leaving a "thumb print". It is quite obvious by improper handling; fears, phobias, or some other detrimental effect upon awakening may be a result; these effects being induced. It is the "goal" of the one in command to leave the subject in better condition than before trance induction.

Qualifications enabling the hypnotist to process psychic phenomena need not be rigid; but he must have a well-rounded knowledge, generally, of the working hypothesis in para-psychology. A Doctorate is unnecessary. Concept of human anatomy is helpful, as well as unbiased, open-minded insight into all things, allowing that "all things" may be possible.

Paula Moyer, the author's daughter, displays three knitting needles pushed through her arm!

HEALING

Healing is not accomplished in all cases. Apparently there is a Divine Force that must approve and be in accord, for healings to be accomplished. This healing essence seems to pervade all living things, and in the case of illness, there is some conflict between this essence and the sick body. This force is directed by the healer, or agent, from without to within, harmonizing and making whole again. The sub-conscious mind of the one afflicted is attuned to this energizing essence; then the repair-shop of the body takes over; the chemistry of the body is thus changed, new cells are made or tissue repaired; and the body is again made whole. These healings may be made "at a distance" by telepathic contact, or they may be made on contact or by the "laying on" of hands, etc. Healings have included, Asthma, Bursitis, Arthritis, Leukemia, Correction of Emotional Disorders, Ruptured Retina of the Eye, Correction of Eyesight, Warts, Boils, Infections, Ulcers, Running Sores, and many more, far too numerous to list.

THE STORY OF BILL

William Combs—607 McCollum Street, LaPorte, Indiana, while at work, experienced a severe eye irritation in his right eye very suddenly. This eye, upon examination by several specialists was diagnosed as a "ruptured" and "hemorrhaged retina". The other eye was inflamed and showed signs of also deteriorating. They were fighting to save what little sight was left in the right eye and medication and other treatment was being used on the left eye in order to avoid losing sight in that one also.

Mr. Hartle claims his daughter is an excellent subject for experimenting with hypnosis.

Without knowledge of the specialists, U.R.S.A. got to Combs in April after he had suffered this condition the preceding December. Two weekly sessions for 10 weeks and once a week thereafter for 5 weeks with Bill healed both eyes. His color perception is perfect, his axis of vision perfect; his present eyesight is not 20-20; but 20-15 in both eyes. His right eye vision, when his hypnotic sessions were begun was 20-800. In addition, along with healing of the eyes, this man rid himself of an extreme case of ulcers, undoubtedly brought on by nervous apprehensions and fear of losing eyesight.

Bill's rapid improvement and Son-in-law, Robert Lee Moyer, Jr., also joins in the experiments.

recovery has elicited much comment by his attending eye doctor, who considers his case a medical miracle, as it is unknown for complete recovery to have ever resulted from affliction of this type.

Egotism: That certain something which enables a man who's in a rut to think he's in a groove.

HAPPENINGS NOW

HYPNOSIS— AN EFFECTIVE TOOL

POLICE WORK

The entire police force in Winter Park, Florida is now trained to use hypnosis. The director of the program, Lt. Ronnie Avery, is licensed as a hypnotist by the state of Florida. He believes that hypnotism may help them solve crimes that might otherwise go unsolved.

The policemen are trained to hypnotize themselves to aid their recall of minute details of a crime which might otherwise go unsolved. They also learn to hypnotize willing witnesses or victims. Under hypnosis, the subject can often recall pertinent details that emotional shock or excitement may have erased from his conscious mind.

MEDICAL DIAGNOSIS

A specialist in pediatrics and clinical hypnosis, Dr. Raymond LaScola of Beverly Hills, can make diagnoses by using hypnotism to communicate with the patient's mind! He puts his subject into deep hypnosis and then uses a technique called "indiomoter questioning". Apparently, while under hypnosis, the subject can reveal the causes of the body's ailments. During the session, Dr. LaScola asks questions which require only a "yes", "no" or "don't know" answer.

Dan Rowan, star of the now defunct "Laugh-In" TV show, has revealed that he once asked Dr. LaScola to put him under hypnosis to find out what was wrong with his leg. He was scheduled for exploratory surgery for a suspected cancer on his leg. If the lump was cancerous, he was told they might cut off his leg.

Quite naturally worried about this unhappy prospect, Mr. Rowan was relieved to learn that his subconscious had told Dr. LaScola that the swelling was not cancerous, but rather, a build-up of dead tissue caused by his daily insulin injection which he took for his Diabetes.

The next day, the surgeon who operated on the leg found it was exactly as Dr. LaScola had diagnosed.

WALLACE HELPED BY HEALER

After treating Governor Wallace with some success, an anonymous healer says he believes "a cure is only a matter of time". According to THE ENQUIRER, where this story was revealed, Governor Wallace is reported to have said, "I don't pretend to know how this man relieved the extreme tenderness in my abdomen and the burning pain in my flanks, but they certainly seem to have gone".

During the visit to the governor's mansion, it was also reported that the anonymous healer healed the damaged kneecap of the governor's personal attendant, Mr. Edward Maxwell, as well as the injured wrist of Mrs. Wallace's ten year old son, Jim.

ANGIE'S TREE

By Ray Palmer

Our front cover this month was painted by Angie Paulson, who is one of our twin-granddaughters (Amy is the other, and her painting appeared on the July, 1974 cover of SEARCH). They were both second-graders when they painted the covers. Their grandfather is something of an art critic (in that he becomes very critical indeed when he sees the Metropolitan Institute of Art award $2,000.00 first prize to a board ripped off an alley fence, painted black, and skewered with bent nails; or $3,500.00 for a square of cardboard painted solid black, nothing else), therefore he is inclined to consider that the paintings by his granddaughters, on the basis of comparative excellence, ought to bring in the neighborhood of something like $683,000.00.

Could it be that the "experts" at the Art Institute are really so numbskulled as to what constitutes art, or are they suffering from brain tumors—or is there something else behind this quite widespread "down-grading" of art? However, let it not be said that this grandfather doesn't see the value in the simplistic and sometimes very beautiful modern art forms called Impressionistic, Cubist, or what have you. It is very true that anybody can "finger-paint" and daub a canvas with random passes of various colors of paint. It can be said that any artist has to begin at the beginning. And to insist that beginning artists show some "innate" talent that infers they already knew something about painting before they left the womb, is to eliminate most of us from ever being artists. It seems to us that any talent begins with "basic potential", and that because life is infinitely varied, it is inevitable that not all of us will choose a life dedicated to a particular "ability". It might be said some of us have a "proclivity" for art (it would seem that Angie and Amy have such a proclivity), and therefore embark on art as a talent that might lead to a career. It would seem possible, however, that all of us have an infinite number of potentialities, in that existing long enough we might, in eternity, become talented and proficient in absolutely everything. The postulate of eternal life must necessarily include that premise; otherwise it is limited in its eternalism; and limits imply an end. Thus it is that the "artist" who won acclaim and a prize for dumping paint on his driveway and running back and forth over the mess with his car, has just begun at the beginning with one of his talents, and will eventually become a great artist. What he has shown is the basic of all talents, the power of imagination. It is imagination which inspires all of us to anything we do. We must first imagine it! Because of the infinite possibilities of imagination, it is just in line with the theory of infinite variety that not all of us will "image" a process that will become "art" at the same time. A good thing, too—because some of us will need to be pipe-fitters! It is this variety of interaction which will provide society with everything it needs, from fitted pipes to comic books.

However, there is at the present time a disturbing false note in this behavior of the "experts" in making the inept judgments they do in regard to art in particular (although it can be said that there is concerted trend toward "debasement" of the human spirit and possibilities toward development to the degree of mastery in almost everything). But why would there be such an attempt, and by whom?

At various times in human history there have appeared on the world scene those individuals or groups who have had an insane desire to "rule the world". We say "insane" because it cannot be sane to want to be anybody's master. Even the most minor process of reason would reveal that the "shoe on the other foot", even the would-be ruler would resent being a slave, and would fight for his freedom. It would seem that today is no exception, and that there is an attempt at enslavement on the part of one or many. What seems to be different in the annals of history is today's multiplicity of "tin Hitlers" and "little Caesars". We find it in the monopoly of the arts (such as in painting where the fumbling idiots and daubers gain magnificent monetary reward through "closed circuit" plotting and monopoly, while the true artist, who became so because of a lifetime of effort and study, is left scorned and begging and unnoticed by the "mass" of devotees; and in the field of the theatre, we see the great bulk of fame and fortune going to incredibly crass and talentless and monkey-like imitators who monopolize the silver screen and the boob tube). We find it in politics, where a vast bureaucracy acts as though deliberately to destroy the individual and to mold him into an ant-hill of compliance and docility, deny him the very chance to express the true talent he wishes to develop in himself. We find it in governments, where we witness the violent attempt to prevent a group of "amateur" but sincere individuals from expressing themselves with the impressionist art forms that are so easy to do that they can offer a beginning point for anybody with a brush and a putty-knife and some paint. It is very good that such art forms exist in this primitive form; it is very bad that they are suppressed, and even worse that artists who have advanced to a high degree of capability are ridiculed and made fools of by another type of "cardboard emperor" who laughs behind the public's back while he awards prizes to junk, and relies on the average man's fear of looking ridiculous by having an opinion of his own that differs from that of the "expert". It is sad that the mass of people will wait for the "clue" as to where their adulation should be directed, then fawn at the base of a pile of scrap metal that is really only the junkyard set up in the public square.

All of this is very discouraging to the earnest developer of his own talent, and it does have its frustrating effect. But perhaps this is not the real purpose of what is going on; can it be that the self-annointed "rulers" of today recognize that people with developed talents cannot be enslaved? Do they recognize that individualism, in which talents are developed, is true liberty and that these individuals are not amenable to oppression and enslavement? Are they making a concerted effort to destroy such individualism and prevent development of true talent, so that they can "lord it over" their superiors, and conceal their pitiful niggardlyness of character?

Thus it is that we present the artwork of Angie and Amy Paulson on our covers, and we do it with great pride because it is evidence that the basic capabilities exist in all of us, and if not suppressed, can and do blossom into beauty and development toward a grand maturity which cannot help but frustrate the vicious aims of those mad ones who would rule us all to the destruction of themselves in the end.

The next time somebody tells you a fence board is worth $2,000.00, and Angie's Tree is but the aimless daubings of an infant, assert one of your own basic talents—your innate ability to distinguish for yourself what is good and what is trash. We can't give Angie $2,000.00 for her Tree, but we can say she is worth it! And so is every child on Earth who has ever painted a Christmas Tree or a Thanksgiving Pumpkin. The pumpkin will inevitably develop into a beautiful carriage, and the child into a lovely princess.

TRUE EXPERIENCES

DEATH KNOCKED THREE TIMES

By Berenice Babcock

As for life after death I am really convinced of that, having had several psychic experiences myself.

In 1966 my aunt was in bed five years before she died and in the hospital 58 days before she died of Leukemia.

She and my uncle had built a three-room and bath home for my husband and me. It was located on their five acre lot at the edge of town. I cooked and we carried meals to them and did house work etc. for six years. Our houses are about 75 feet apart.

One Saturday night there was bright moonlight and anyone who has ever lived in Florida knows what gorgeous moonlit nights we have—light as day. My husband and I were in bed talking. It was past midnight when we both heard three knocks on my aunt's front door. I got up and hollered out our window "no one there what do you want?" Uncle had died in June and this was November. I looked over and could see porch and door and not a living soul there, except their dog in the yard. He howled! Just three weeks from that very night my aunt passed away. I say it was a sign or omen.

Three weeks ago I heard my aunt call me, "Berenice" just as plain as day like she used to do when she'd want me in the night. It was so real I even raised up in bed to answer, when I realized she was gone.

WAS I ONLY DREAMING?

By Rev. Harold A. Hilton

One night during 1958 an experience of being on a spacecraft occurred to me. The experience has been etched in my mind so vividly, that I have wondered since if it was only a dream, or an "out of the body" reality.

The space craft appeared luminous and opaque to a certain degree. The structure and instruments were clearly revealed to me. The construction of the space craft was circular, almost global in design. The front, or cockpit, appeared as a hatch type, with an opaque covering that closed over the opening of the hatch. This extended about three feet above. It looked like a hood. which also could be used for observation purposes.

There were four other occupants, three men and a young woman. They were fairly tall, but lean and angular with keen eyes and aquiline features. The men were of dark complexion, the woman fair. They were friendly, but seemed intent or serious—no boasting or bantering. They moved about with ease with sort of a gliding motion.

My mind was full of questions, as well as curiosity which they noticed and answered telepathically before I even asked them.

Concerning the construction of the spacecraft, their telepathic reply was: The craft construction was of such nature to resist and offset nuclear, or solar radiation, which bounced off their spacecraft. And here, I must confess, I may have later confused the name of the material or substance. My subconscious mind, upon awakening, termed it as Stontonium or Stroutouimin. I distinctly remember their relaying the information that the material of the space craft was much lighter but stronger than aluminum.

Other factors and incidents noted were 2 of the men remained on the flight deck for operational or observation purposes. Later, I was in the hatch with the other man and woman. The spacecraft in motion was quite high and appeared to be hovering. I was able to see a city below us.

Every few moments the woman was checking my heart beats and reflexes with an instrument which, instead of the usual stethoscope, seemed to be a round disc which registered my reactions, etc., by sound waves which gave off a certain light to the woman checking me over.

All at once I found myself sitting up in my bed, wide awake and with a refreshed feeling. I have never had another such experience.

DOES THE WORLD NEED RELIGION ?

By RICHARD LEE BOEHM Ms.D

The word "religion" can be extremely controversial. Here religion is equated with "belief" as opposed to "knowing" and education.

He who said America was a Christian nation, lied!

As for those people who call the U.S.A. a 'Christian' nation, I'd like to remind them of the following.* "The government of the U.S.A. is not in any sense founded upon the Christian religion: Treaty with Tripoli, 1797, negotiated during the Washington Administration and signed into law by President John Adams."

But the American people have been duped into believing and embracing this false ideology—founded by the would-be World Slave Masters!

MANKIND HAS BEEN "DUPED" INTO BLIND BELIEF

Corrosive religion has got to go, if we are to survive as an independent nation, and our children are to remain a free and progressive people in the future.

Earth's religions, as conceived and put into practice by religious mankind, are against the major laws of growth and independent development.

Mankind has been duped into "believing" religion is a knowing process. But it is not! It is mere belief—a hearsay combined with distorted views of certain tribal history of a confused and misled mankind.

Belief is not the answer. The answer is knowingness through an Inner Awareness. The confused term, belief, has been substituted for the condition Awareness. Awareness comes from an inner knowledge—a cosmic principle of primal intelligence, woven into all matter. A workable fact that can be set into operation in the here and now!

The idea that man must believe before he can do, is folly. Mere believing does not make a thing so! If it isn't so; no amount of believing is going to make it so! People of religious mind believed for a long time that the world was flat. Did that make it so? Hence, belief has to date been proved incorrect. Belief must be replaced with awareness.

It is an awareness of the fact that counts. Psychic awareness is inner-knowingness.

If all mankind would have given complete attention to religious beliefs, our progress would have been even more questionable than it is now. We would have remained a fearful and superstitious lot, fearing every facet of nature. But, an inner awareness leads mankind out of the Stone Age into the Space Age. It was an inner awareness that hinted we could place a man on the moon if we would try. Do the things and you have the power.

The twisted concepts of religious mankind dictated the world was flat and to try to prove otherwise would be against God. How many times must religion be proved fundamentally wrong before it be examined in proper light?

The concepts of religious mankind are being proved wrong all the time. Mankind seems to fear that if their concepts of religion and creation are proved wrong, it would eliminate Primal Source. Why must the erasing of ignorance erase Primal Intelligence? Is not intelligence manifested when ignorance is removed? Hence, the acquiring of intelligence may not be so much an adding on process, but the removing of ignorance or stripping the blinders from our eyes.

DOES MANKIND MEAN PART ANIMAL?

Evidence is coming forth that our ancestors may have come to earth from other places and blended their seed with that of the Animal peoples producing what is termed today human mankind. We may very well be part animal and part something else. In the old records man and mankind were races apart. Mankind was only a kind of man—not actually man.

Who, then, was the man race? Where did the man race come from—Inner or Outer space? Could race memory, after all, answer these questions?

Is mankind's ego so strong that they cannot stand the concept that they may really be part animals? What is the shame in being part animal? I don't see where mankind is so very much more intelligent than the so-called lower beasts. What beast created the A-bomb? What beast has the highest crime rate? What beasts feed their young dope? Before we pat mankind on the back perhaps mankind should take another look at itself?

Mankind is a hybrid animal. Why can't we face up to the facts? We can be better than we are. But why do we insist on being the chosen few? Is there not the ring of ignorance there? It's a mighty big cosmos. Why should mankind be so special and have it all? Do we detect a note of greed there? Ah, selfish mankind—awaken!

There is a Primal Power, a Primal Intelligence and a Primal Purpose in the cosmos. It, in no way, reflects the "God of our fathers", or the concepts of the "believing masses".

The young folks are saying; "Man needs a new religion." That is, also, a misconception. That is like saying; "Man must change his old lies for new lies! Man does not need a new religion or a religion of any kind.

What mankind needs is a new world-wide educational system that will assist mankind to know himself. That is where mankind's answer lies.

The individual will never find his own answer any place outside himself. It seems mankind has been duped to fear looking inside himself. Apparently he does not like looking his animal self in the face and admitting it is truly there. It is something one might tame or control but not something one can get rid of. The animal is truly a part of himself. That's the part that makes him human, otherwise, mankind would be another type of being.

TRUTH IS MORE SCIENTIFIC THAN RELIGIOUS

As time evolves, we will come to know the truth which is to be more scientific than religious, although science, to date, has been as mislead as the "believers". They too, preferred a comfortable doctrine of belief and tradition rather than the facts. Both have been ignoring the unknown and both are afraid to peer beyond the veil, being duped into believing they must not touch!

The unknown may shortly push itself upon all peoples forcing recognition. Some of mankind is awakening. But the bulk slumbers on, secure in their ignorance. The youth imitate the corrosive principle, thinking they be different and unique. They are caught up in the corrosive law of self-destruction.

The world's governments and educational bodies decay from inner corruption at all levels. All the masses do is shake their heads and ask "Why does the Great Good God do this to them?!"

People, please, understand that no God—nor anyone else—is doing anything negative to you. YOU, are doing it to yourselves through ignorance! No Deros or evil spirits could harm you unless you believe, thus giving them the power to do so. Belief is a major power in the negative. If you think and believe something can hurt you, you give it the power to do so. Man, believing in evil, reaps evil because he recognizes it in a manner that breathes life into it. One must be able to recognize this corrosive principle.

Mankind has bought the religious doctrine of good and evil, but in such a case, evil is always stronger and will dominate the good.

Ah yes, evil is very real. The World Controllers thrive from evil. It's a way of life for the king pins. They have the power because the masses, in ignorance and fear of death, give it to them.

Can death really be any worse than this living hell on earth today? If people were not afraid to die and going to Hell for ever and ever the world's governments would have no power over the people at all!

When man stops fearing death and learns to live his life as he sees fit according to inner awareness, and allows his neighbor to do the same, then will he be able to lay claim to freedoms. Each individual must be taught the law of "no trespass". As long as the bulk of mankind believes he has the right to trespass against his neighbor and force him to live as he dictates, there can be no freedom for mankind!

There are two Primal Laws: Growth and Corrosion.

What's wrong with this world is this: The people have fallen under the spell hypnotically, of the corrosive principle. Mankind has become worshipers of this destructive principle. They have now arrived at the point where they tear down more than they construct, sliding toward total destruction. They can't find the reasons why because they are educated to think in terms of complexities. The simple answer eludes them. They just "compute" answers, like a machine!

DEVELOP THE INDIVIDUAL

The Primal Good is always toward more growth and expansion. Life is motion, growth and expansion. It is an endless cycle, acting upon itself for the purpose of continuing existence. One must maintain a forward motion. Beyond this Primal Concept, mankind can conceive little.

The individual parts cannot in a true sense be sacrificed for the whole. It is the individual parts that maintain the whole. If the individual parts are weak, they cannot hold up the framework. Thus Primal Source requires its individual parts to develop strength and individual uniqueness.

— PREDICTION —

By Gladie M. Bills

I wonder what a deer looks like—
I would really like to know.
My Grandpa says he remembers
When deer roamed to and fro,
And lived amid the tall trees
A long, long time ago.

I wonder what a tree looked like
That grew in Grandpa's day.
He said they grew so big and tall
The wind would make them sway;
With ruffled grouse upon their limbs
A-hooting love songs gay.

I wonder what the grouse looked like,
— There used to be so many—
They were very pretty, Grandpa said
But now there aren't any.
Doesn't seem to be much left,
And it really isn't funny.

I wonder what things will be like
When I am old like Grandpa now—
S'pose the kids will be asking,
“Grandpa—what's a cow?”
Guess there won't be much left
That God made, anyhow.

I would trade my space suit—
Or Dad's atomic car.
I would even trade my next moon trip—
As I am tired of going so far.
I would even trade my souvenir—
From the last H-bomb war.

All of these I would gladly trade
If I could have been a kid,
And lived in days like Grandpa
And seen the things he did.
Guess I will have to be content
With what there is instead.

ARIES March 21-April 20.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Mate or a child have problems, be patient, tolerant. Partner may spend more readily than usual, may acquire some items of beauty though. There could be some anxiety regarding home, parents. Your spiritual nature is deepening, much invisible guidance is yours now. Be cautious in a real estate matter, you could get into debt here. Also false advertising can lure you, best to be alert regarding this. Aries reconcile, reunite with one who may have become estranged. Avoid legal tangles, be tactful with kin. Jupiter soon brightens your money picture and our outlook in general. Watch your diet.

TAURUS April 21-May 20.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Job or business, career changes for the better and approval or assistance from those in power. Watch nerves, Taurus, and health, relax when you can, though health will be improved. Get along with relatives. Something a bit restrictive in this department for a while longer. Mail may be delayed or even lost. Caution in travel. A legacy matter looms around this time or soon. If so, be sure to have everything well defined therein. Sudden engagement, marriage or separation for Taurus now, with unpredictable Uranus in this angle for sometime to come. Courtship, investments, young people's matters all exciting around this time. Develop a latent talent. Self-understanding, communing with self from time to time will prove enlightening, a good idea. You may have to say "no" to someone before they understand what they should. Your wise counsel is a guiding light for others to follow. Surprise overtures from the opposite sex.

GEMINI May 21-June 21.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Friendship and love will be entwined for many "Twins" now and a new self image just what you most need. A foreigner could fascinate, while news from afar may gladden, too. Use the soft touch with the mate, who may have a few peculiar, private problems. New and old friendships bring excitement, pleasure. Be alert on trips. Social life picks up (and does it ever!) Someone may have a motive. Avoid those with loose morals. Colorful, talented people are drawn to you now. Be realistic about all your contacts though, and avoid disillusion.

CANCER June 22-July 22.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Cancerians now have the chance to make up, reconcile, and should. You are a good friend and listener and will not divulge secrets entrusted to you, which may concern a co-worker. Job matters still subject to upsets or some form of unreliability in some instances. Take care of health, especially avoid mishaps around the place of work. Take care of pets. Love, childrens' matters hold some surprises, with an element of the unexpected characterizing these areas. Be the calming influence in a sea of turbulence all about you, more likely than not around this time. . .and soothe the ruffled feathers of the partner. Gain through inlaws, the foreign born, publishing, radio or television, advertising. Investment, speculation matters may be chaotic. You gain, then lose, etc. or gain where you expected to lose. Love affairs continue to be unpredictable but exciting.

LEO July 23-August 22.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Leos tend to be more health conscious now. Be alert in all investment or speculation matters as you could be deceived. Be firm with the young, who may know how to wheedle something out of you in one of your weak moments. A love affair can have you walking on cloud nine, but try to be realistic and don't get hurt, Leo! You gain through the assets or good fortune or others, so this is where your luck lies now. A delay in some matter will turn out to be lucky, afterall, so don't chafe too much in this respect. Be your old beguiling self (who wants a fireball around, all the time, anyway?) Behind the scenes matters favor Leos now, so hold a quiet chat with someone and they might see it your way. Life is romantic, dramatic, but don't trust strangers unduly, just to be on the safe side. Gain is coming soon through long distance matters, foreign, and through publishing, the media, and possibly through in-laws. Your aspirations are high, as well as your courage.

VIRGO

August 23-September 22.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Health, job, friendships, all spell excitement for Virgos now. Control too much impulse, think things through more. Trips may be sudden, unexpected, and something regarding relatives or one, also accented now for you. You gain through inheritance before too long. Again through the partners good fortune, either or both. You worry regarding your own health or that of a family member. Again property matters disturb or are unstable. Avoid stimulants, read all medicine labels carefully now and for some time to come, Virgo, with Neptune hovering in this (home, property) angle of your chart. Quietly, calmly, you reach an agreement with someone over something that has been disquieting.

LIBRA

September 23-October 23.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Income, money, property and possessions matters all will be subject to revisions now for Librans, because of Uranus in this angle of their chart. Increase in finances yet there will also be an element of the unexpected herein, so don't be surprised, Libra. Prestige rises and is exciting. Reconcile with relatives, be "big" about this, for you know how much you value harmony. If some one is envious of your radiant personality, let them be, and go your own way. Perhaps even you couldn't change this person, anyway? You may take on more responsibility in your work than would be wise, so watch this tendency now, and strive for moderation rather than going to extremes. Possible gain through an aunt or uncle. Use care in travel, also avoid getting too involved with one you are with on a trip! Avoid mishaps in the home, which could occur now, and quarrels, as well.

SCORPIO

October 24-November 21.

Jan.-Feb. '75: You yourself will be instigating changes in your own life now Scorpio. For one thing, your real self will come to the fore if never before, with freedom-loving Uranus in your sign now and for some time to come, for this planet breaks the old mold, in favor of the new and the new will call to you now, stronger than ever in your entire life. Look out for freak mishaps though and take care of health, and avoid speed, carelessness, in travel. Get along with relatives, neighbors. You rise to any challenge around, take it in stride. You can be downright psychic in money, property matters, yet in spite of this should have such clearly defined, just in case, (Neptune now being in this house for quite some time yet). You may be thinking of a residence change, again may have some concern regarding a parent or someone in the home. Long distance matters may be stressful, or news from there on the sobering side. Avoid involvement with a foreign born person, who may seem restrictive, inhibiting to you. Your personality is highly magnetic. You can be the mediator in some matter and your diplomacy helps the situation.

SAGITTARIUS

November 22-December 21.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Friendship, children's matters could cause you some concern around this time with Mars stirring up impulse, excitement. A bit of turbulence here and there. Best to keep a calm head. Neptune still in Sagittarius makes for complications. You get involved before you realize, then wonder how it all happened. Written, verbal matters, favor you after a while, if not straight off in this period. Behind the scenes help too, where you accomplish much, probably when alone and left to your own resources. Don't be too hasty in some reply you make, Sagittarius, but think it through first. Study, reading, helpful now, and will be financially rewarding to you before long. Control expenditures, for money may slip through your fingers—especially later on in this period. Protect possessions, property. Look out for possible theft around this time.

CAPRICORN
December 22-January 20.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Single Capricorns now make important decisions regarding love, marriage. With Saturn in this angle for about another year, you could be assuming new responsibilities in these areas. Get along with the partner (or potential partner), who should look to their health, by the way. You are ardent, energetic, but control any unruly emotions, with Mars in Capricorn later in this period. You can gain through relatives now or soon. May also be facing a major home or residence change you might have been thinking about for some time. Money comes through property matters, you could sell at a profit, especially in the near future. Don't neglect any health problem, which could well go undetected by you. Look out for mishaps, burns or cuts. Smooth the ruffled feathers (feelings) of a partner or associate.

AQUARIUS
January 21-February 18.

Jan.-Feb. '75: Money, property matters continue to be expansive now for Water-Bearers. Neptune brings fascinating human contacts but you have to sift through the facts, regardless, as some could unintentionally deceive or misrepresent. Still, you'll be meeting some who are glamorous or talented or both. Be poised, tactful, a good listener, all of which you know how to be, Aquarius. Background echoes need not disturb if you maintain your own self-confidence and dignity, as you learn much quietly, behind the scenes. Travel could well be on your agenda after mid-March of the coming year, as well as greater personal prestige and favors or money through relatives. Study, reading, research, benefit and you attain new enlightenment. Parental, job, business, or career changes seem to pop up from out of the air—yet such have been building lately. Conserve energy, take care of health.

PISCES
February 19-March 20.

Jan.-Feb. '75: You are popular, Pisces, but don't overdo the social scene. A business, job or career (if not parental, also) matter seems disturbing just now. Stay calm, something of perplexing or complicated nature will soon resolve itself. Strive for complete honesty in any business transaction and you'll be glad you did. Protect health, avoid damp clothes or damp places. And if you smoke, do so with sensible moderation. You soon enter a favorable money period, may also deal with property, could gain through this source before long. A legacy matter could pose a problem or has by now. A love or marital break may have a silver lining after all, so don't let this get you down for long—if such has occurred. That is; it may turn out to be a blessing in disguise. Develop your creative or artistic side, as it not alone will be financially rewarding but spiritually as well.

The Toll of Karma

By DAHANA WOOD

We are constantly reminded of the karmic liabilities ever facing us in this changeable old world! The law of cause and effect.

Yes, we all experience constant effects from causes set up. In forgetting to turn off the car lights, some hours later the battery goes down; among many other instances of carelessness, we learn that there is an effect to what we set into motion—the cause!

In the ARCANÉ teachings, heavy weighs the toll of karma. One student came to me one time, his emotional body in a whirl, wailing, "The leader of ---- Activity, told me that I was a certain King in another life, and killed many people who displeased me; now I must face this karma, and it is weighing on my soul, how am I ever going to make up for it in this life? Do I want to go out again with this horrible coil to be resolved?"

He thought about it so much he began losing his attention on his business, so enthralled was he over the fact of his enormous debt! Within the year his business failed, then he lost his home; his wife could not tolerate his musings with the occult side of life, and left him. So within a year and a half everything he had earned in the material life was swept away. This also set up a karma for him because 25 people who were employed in his factory lost their jobs. Numerous orders were un-fulfilled. Legal matters were all changed, causing expense in the failure to complete notes and promises of payments. Additional legal fees fell due, and our friend could not meet the overwhelming cost of his failure.

He disappeared from the scene and went into a threadbare existence where he did not use his gifts or talents, but rather nourished his accumulating debt of soul!

WE, who look upon his case, can see where he lost his balance. Without knowing of his previous karma, he was happy in his present life, successful in his business, continued to please people with his creative work, and kept his employees working and happy. This is reflected into his home, so at that time he no doubt was fulfilling his plan, and paying his debts past and present.

Herein is the hook—once he got his attention on a so-called PAST LIFE he became the victim of his own fantasies! These morbid thoughts overcame him, and the Mistress of Fate, kicked him down!

Energies, seeking their own level, could, of course, attach itself upon a being coming into a mortal life. We might even understand it as a psychic MASS qualified with the vibrations of the accumulated essences of the deed, that made up the mass.

In a subliminal way these could effect ones new life (assuming the soul was one predestined to come back into a mortal existence) because it is just possible that every entity that passes through death does not ever come back to this particular mortal plane.

So this 'soul debt' could hang as a weight, or a stumbling block to ones good health or success—not necessarily, but, I think it could, depending upon its potency, depending upon the mortal's sensitivity, or willingness to explore these possibilities! We know for certain, that many souls go on in life with an indestructibility as far as 'weights' are concerned; their blythe nature rides over every obstruction. WHAT HAPPENS TO THEIR KARMA?

It may still be there, but the constant living the life of resolved problems, as you go along, may reflect and diminish the karmic load.

For the sake of those who do not understand the action of so-called karma, we give an example: This certain man was a war lord in another life. He brutally killed many men, in a way that was not humane! He finds a way to be re-born, and the hatred of all these souls forms an entity (a congregate) of psychic energy that hangs within his mortal aura. So in this new life, he tries to be kind, yet every once in a while his old intolerance comes to the surface, and with it an undue anger. In one of these fits, he kills a man.

The law takes its course, he is convicted, and sentenced to 'Life'. Still a spark of his will to make things right, he learns to help in a medical way, and during his life in prison he brought relief and comfort to hundreds of hopeless inmates, thereby doing the utmost for his mortal life, through the services in prison. In the outer life, it would not have been possible for him to have accomplished as much. (this is a true case)

The occult explanation of this would be: His own karma led him to the place where he would meet a number of the souls he had sinned against in the other life, and bringing them hope and assistance in the intolerable prison life, he paid back much of his moral debt.

Any way you care to look at it, "cause and effect" fits. What is deplorable is the use of a natural Law of the Cosmos; by so-called Seers who take it upon themselves to impart such personal ancient history, as telling a truth-seeker, that he was so-and-so, and that he did such-and-such, now weighted with the karma of it. Is it important for him to know this? Since previous lives are a moot point, who can be sure of the report of even the wisest psychic? Another thing irks people who do not recognize karma, as such, is that one in another life had a different body and personality. Coming into this life all memory of the other is gone. Is he the same person? Or a new one in a new body?

Contemporary or Carry-over Karma

One case that impressed me, was a friend who confided; I'm happily married now, and I do so want to have a child; after four years, it just seems as though there is no hope. A strange thing happened to me recently. . .to go back a bit, I have been praying quite diligently that the Lord send me a soul (child) I did not give up hope, because I do believe in prayer. Not long ago I had some sort of vision; an angel in white, (in my dream) answered me. . . I seemed to be asking why my prayers for a child had not been answered. He simply looked at me and said: "You know why a child has not come to you!"

Instantly she knew what He meant! Prior to her marriage she had been involved with an unsuccessful love affair, that lasted some years. During that trying time she had resorted to several abortions; in the end freeing herself from the alliance. Now she felt the termination of the pregnancies was the reason for her barren state. Another point of contemporary karma at work.

Interesting instances of carry-over karma, relate to a person who had connection with, and was a former witch, belonging to well known covens in another life, and another age, now embodied with a peculiar physical impediment.

Another story is told by Dion Fortune, an able psychic investigator, who also assisted people troubled with unknown psychic disturbances. Miss Fortune relates: "At the time I knew Miss L., she was verging on a breakdown which was alleged to be due to overwork, and she was anxious to get away from the cities and back to nature."

Miss Fortune wanted to help her so she took her to a hidden retreat, an occult college located in the sandy Hampshire Barrens. She suggested Miss L. might like to help with the household chores, and thus arranged for her vacation. First a strange thing was noticed when she went up to the horse that had drawn the carriage from the station, he reared up in a thoroughly frantic action overturning the carriage in the ditch. The amazed driver said that the horse had never displayed such behavior before.

However, this was only one incident of many more strange things that happened, when this girl was present. One night Miss Fortune was awakened by a terrible nightmare and evil forces seemed to be all around her. She used the banishing formula that she knew, and peace was restored for the time being.

There were more nights with the same unrest, and when the group exchanged experiences, they found many were alike. The only person who did not mention having nightmares, was Miss L. One morning, while Miss L. and Dion Fortune were attending to food preparations in the kitchen, Miss L. brandished a long carving knife, finally making a thrust at Miss Fortune! At that precise moment the head (adept) of the college, walked in and further destruction was avoided.

The peaceful little college of Hampshire Barrens did not see the end of weird occurrences! Strange lights and spheres, some with the likeness of Miss L. within them were seen. Finally the whole case was taken up by the Head who investigated the psychic history of the Being and character of the witch, Miss L.

Her vicious escapades were curtailed, and psychic signs were used on the dorms to keep her malignant spirit from entering. And so through the psychic investigation, it was learned of her earlier involvement with witchcraft, and she freely told of her 'astral' (?) self dabbling in revenge and other phenomena against people she disliked. She did these unusual psychic acts without studying or knowing the exact process of her craft. Some inherent memory served her in this and spontaneously she operated the witchcraft, that was built up in her memory from another active life as a witch from a coven.

In this case she was assisted to overcome the malignant approach to life, which had caused such psychic interference where ever she went. Her vengeance was debilitating her physically, not to mention the unpopularity which had hounded her all her life. So we might assume that her karmic load was lessened by folk who understood her weaknesses, and strengthened her psychi until it was brought under constructive control.

We are merely studying the karmic interference here, but there are other interesting points to the case, including the resolving or handling of the karmic habits.

Karma and Psychic Murder

It is held by occultists that congenital epilepsy has it's roots in Black Magic or Witchcraft (distinguished from brain tumors) in which the sufferer participate in a past life whether as practioner or victim, the fit being an Astral struggle with a discarnate entity, reflected on the physical body by means of the well known phenomena of repercussion.

Mr. C. suddenly became the victim of epileptic attacks while his wife had terrible nightmares, which continued until her health became a problem, as with Mr. C. and doctors were consulted. No organic reason could be found for either of their disturbances.

Mrs. C. had a good friend who suspected some psychic disturbance and their peculiar case was given into the hands of an accomplished Psychic Adept. Mrs. C. cooperated in giving what details she could. After psychic investigation, the Adept told her, there was evidence of witchcraft and that Mr. C. seemed to be connected in a karmic way. He found two women (possibly in the physical) whose karma attached to Mr. C. Thus Mrs. C. became the victim of jealousy.

The story of the previous embodiment went like this: A mother and daughter were coven witches and had involved Mr. C. in that life, the younger of the two being his mistress. Either by design against him or by mutual plan, he was party to their schemes and witchcraft. The women paid with their lives for crimes committed, but Mr. C. did not.

The Adept asked Mrs. C. upon relating this which he found from the psychic investigation, if she knew any one who fitted the description of the two women. Mrs. C. said she certainly did! The elder woman was his mother, who lived in the house with them on an upper floor, bedridden in poor health. The mother did have a young friend who hovered over her, and both these women had such an adverse effect on Mrs. C. that she arranged never to be in the home alone with either.

To complete the psychic investigation, some horrifying facts were disclosed. Mrs. C. was a second wife. The first wife had cancer of the womb at an early age, and although an operation seemed to clear that up, some strange malady seemed to sap her strength, until she faded until death took her. Soon after the death of the first wife, the visiting witch hoped to capture the attention of Mr. C. with the possibility of becoming his wife. All her compounds came to nought, for Mr. C. never could stand this woman and he only tolerated her because of his mother. After his marriage to the second Mrs. C. the above mentioned troubles began. While these investigations were going on, Mrs. C. also developed cancer of the womb. Surviving an operation she seemed to pick up health for a while.

In the mean time, the young witch of the piece was looked up, and some startling facts about her past revealed itself. Years before the present situations, the young witch's sister became engaged, and the two moved into her spacious home. Before they got married however, the lover became ill with consumption, lingered on a few years, then died. In the mean time the young witch became engaged to a young man herself, who promptly moved into her home. Not long afterward, he developed the same consumptive disease of the sister's lover and soon died. This seems to have been repeated, for she promptly engaged another young man, who moved into her house, and before they could get married, he too succumbed to the same ailment! In the mean time the young witch's aunt came to live with her, presumably to care for the ailing lover. This situation went on in sort of a limbo, while she frequented the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. as she had done for years since the first marriage of Mr. C.

In the interim the Aunt became ill with a mysterious disease. At this point of the psychic investigation, the second Mrs. C. began having nightmares, at the same time her husband had his epileptics. Occultly speaking, one can assume that the unrequited witch was visiting the object of her love and whether she engaged in an astral affair, or just molested him causing the epileptic seizures and his wife's nightmares, is a point one cannot really prove.

It was soon after these revelations, that Mrs. C. was told she should get the young witch out of her house, regardless of the old Mother's feelings. This she did!

For a while things seemed to improve, and the psychic investigations, plus some kind of help gave some respite. However, the witch was not to be put down and, no doubt, she took a new track. Perhaps she had the help of HECATE and her cycle of the moon which governs evil, as well as the productive feminine organs.

Not long afterward, Mrs. C. fell sick with cancer of the womb, the same as the first Mrs. C. had. while she seemed to recover for a while after the operation, one night Mr. C. died after an epileptic attack, and only a few hours later Mrs. C. followed him.

The saga, was not yet finished: The aunt and the ailing lover died within a short time of the C's, and soon after that the witch experienced a complete mental breakdown, and had to be put away.

All these incidents considered separately, might not be conclusive. When combined with the fact of the illnesses, of 3 men on different occasions, the psychic trouble of the C's, the similarity of both cancer cases of the two Mrs. C.'s, the strange terminal illness of the aunt; there is a strong case for VAMPIRISM, and it was thus believed by the Adept who conducted the psychic investigation.

Had Mr. and Mrs. C. (both wives) tracked down their disturbances, recognizing the astral nature of them, and the black magic connotations involved, they might have saved themselves and the vicious karma that followed Mr. C. because of his disinterest in the young witch who could not forget him—nor give him up!

Can we escape our Karma? or can we handle it in a spiritual way with help from the Most High?

Pressing problems are evident everywhere. Are we willing to face the fact that we, through our own indifference, have gradually allowed things to get out of hand? And now we are blaming the country, and we are blaming the President and the lawmakers, not realizing that situations created scores of years ago are merely coming to a head. However, there is still time left to save our blessed country if we will only look and learn. Everyone must do his share, must work, must demand changes and must be willing to make changes in himself.

But in order to work to be able to accomplish things, we must build health. We must teach others how they, too, can get more energy if they work with nature, live simply and stop pampering themselves. Within each one of us there is a powerful force. . .the potential with which we were created. . .that can change any condition if we're only willing to waken to the fact and make some sacrifice.

Dr. Ann*

Dear Doctor Ann: I was ill just before Christmas last fall. Then lost my husband in January. He had a massive coronary.

Since I already did not feel well, my daughter called my doctor and he was out of town. The substitute gave me some pills to help me through the funeral, etc. I took them faithfully, but kept getting worse until I was down in bed. Then my daughter called her doctor. He gave me two more kinds of pills which I also took faithfully.

I finally realized I had to get up and get back to work. The company nurse saw me stagger in the hall and took me back to her office and put me to bed and called my own doctor.

He said that the other medicines were wrong for me and were also fighting in my system.

I still get so tired. Also would like to lose weight. I did lose 20 pounds being sick, but that is the wrong way to do it. I have low blood sugar and a thyroid problem.

Do you think sprouts would help? or will anything help me. I would like to get rid of headaches and feel good once again.

Also since the wrong medicines, my eyes have been bothering me. Before that I did fine. I do wear glasses and had them changed last year. Before they always stayed stable for several years between changes.

I sure pray and hope that you can help.—E.A.

Heartfelt Greetings: I was very happy to receive your letter due to the fact that you are interested in helping yourself. We realize how trying it is when a person passes on, especially the one that you love and have worked with for so many years. This is exactly what happens—the constant stress upsets the whole body and creates the problem such as you have. Then one continuously takes different pills which means poisoning the bloodstream. This kind of treatment can never solve any problems. It only creates more problems that are more difficult for the body to handle.

Health is natural. If you have a health problem you must go back and find out what is the cause and then move from there correcting it.

As you said, you have headaches. Headaches are caused by poor digestion, nervousness and more than likely constipation. The poisons accumulating can also cause eye problems. It is a vicious circle—you have so many things that you have to deal with, and you have waited so long.

Why not get busy and really work with Nature correcting the cause, improving your health through organic foods and then you can move from there. Yes, you can really move to health and enjoying life.

I hope to hear from you again.

1995— THE YEAR KOSMON ARRIVES

Dear Ray:

Referring to my letter printed in the November SEARCH: Relating to the last event which took place in 1896 A.D. in the Book of Es, some further explanation is required in order to avoid confusion and misunderstanding.

An analysis of Paragraph 1 of Chapter 1 of God's Book of Eskra, by itself alone, would make it appear that this paragraph would have to be limited to the heavenly history concerning the first 3,000 years of the cycle of Bon. If it were not for paragraphs two, eight and nine of the same chapter, such a conclusion would be correct. However, it appears to the writer that paragraph 2, 8 and 9 suggest something different, such as:

(a) That the historical events which took place in heaven during the first 3,000 years of the cycle of Bon produced the events that happened in the next 300 years,

(b) That paragraph 9 seems to indicate such a conclusion by the statement "for the period of this cycle which is now at the close", and

(c) That the first 300 years of events in the Book of Es certainly would cover the period which is now in 1881 A.D., at the close of the cycle of Bon.

Dr. John Ballou Newbrough died April 22, 1891 and he therefore did not live long enough to witness the establishment of the Olympic Games and therefore the significance of the year 1896 A.D. was not available to him at the time that the 1891 A.D. edition of Oahspe was written and published. Without Palmer's photo copy edition of the 1882 A.D. edition of Oahspe, the reference to the 3,300 year period concerning the heavenly history of the cycle of Bon could not have been discovered.

The writer realizes that many of the readers of Oahspe will dispute the conclusions set forth in this letter. However, it should be pointed out that these conclusions also rest on two other premises, namely:

(a) That the year 2574 B.K. referred to at paragraph 44 under "The Basis of the Ezra Bible" in the Book of Saphah has been established as the same year as 580 B.C.

(b) That the year 2344 B.K. referred to at paragraph 47 under "The Basis of the Ezra Bible" in the Book of Saphah has been established as the year 350 B.C. and that paragraph 51 which follows paragraph 47 establishes the fact that Joshu was born in 1994 B.K. which is the year 1 A.D.

The computations of both (a) and (b) will establish 1995 A.D. as the year Kosmon arrives.

CORRESPOND—TO FORM LINKS OF LIGHT

Dear Faithist Friends,

This is an invitation for you to correspond with me. When I first read Oahspe, I felt very much alone as there was no one to talk to or to write to, that I knew of. Unfortunately now we have over-zealous people who send letters-plus, to everyone whose name appears in Faithist literature. Some have gone overboard in their zeal to share psychic experiences—far out! Others are trying to talk people to part with their belongings, and money, of course, to form their own kingdom...with pay. I believe these are at heart good people. Others are not even 'Faithists' but use the list for their own personal gain.

OAH SPE teaches that we are not to force our opinions on others. The theme for the Kosmon Age is Liberty with responsibility. Free choice! If Jehovih wants more communes, He will provide the means without COERCION. Love finds the way, and we must believe in guidance. BUILD THE KINGDOM from within, first.

There are hundreds of very fine Faithists who live together in small groups, in love and harmony. In Chapter Two (II) Book of Es, Daughter of Jehovih, we have directions from the Father regarding the Kosmon Era. It is well worth while reading. Verse 9 gives us a way of solving all our problems successfully.

I would be very happy to correspond with any Faithist in harmony and understanding. This is one good way of forming LINKS OF LIGHT.

Peace!

QUESTIONS

Dear Sir:

I have discovered the book Oahspe and feel I have gained much God approved knowledge. But I have several questions now and no doubt will have many more.

Is there a copy of the Rites of Emetchachavah? If so, can such be obtained? Is the information similar to Chap. VIII pg. 327-343?

Do the so-called Jews of today know of the name E-O-IH? Is it ever used by them?

I've always wanted to know more about the Essenes. Where are the archives of the Essenes of Kosmon spoken of on page 910? Can more information be secured or is it already included here and there in Oahspe? What does Oahspe mean and how is it pronounced?

Are you personally a follower of spiritualism. Does the picture on pg. 639 mean that the Algonquin tribe of Indians are descendants of the tribe of Dan who are spoken of as making the trial of a serpent?

Don't the British Israel people consider they are of this tribe?

Page 723, v. 22 speaks of the Books of the Ancients. Have you read Baird L. Spaulding's Life and Teachings of the Masters of the Far East? I was glad I had read the three volumes, for it rather prepared me to better accept Oahspe's information on angels and their use during the past eons.

I hope you are not too busy to answer my questions. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Miss Alberta Johnson

● Insofar as I know, the Rites of Emetchachavah do not exist in specific form other than as they appear in Oahspe.

possession of Wing Anderson, who published the "blue" Oahspe, and since his death they have passed into other hands. They do not seem to be readily available for inspection, but we are trying to discover if this is possible. (See previous issues of SEARCH for information already announced).

Oahspe is pronounced Oh-ah-spay. It means Earth (O), Sky (Ah is what we say when we look upward into the blue sky); Spirit (Spe is the ancient word for spirit). Thus Oahspe means Earth, Sky and Spirit; the history of our corporeal world, the atmosphere world, the world of spirit (ethe) or what we called the ether or "empty" space.

Spiritualism is but a phase of life, a minor one. It has to do with contacts between the world of the living and of the so-called dead. It is not something you "follow". It is merely evidence of a larger "religious reality". To be a follower of spiritualism is to limit your scope.

The "serpent people" are one of the Algonquin tribes of American Indians. Their "totem" is the serpent. There is probably a connection between the tribe of Dan in this totem, since it is a legend that there are no serpents in Ireland (which might be because the serpent people migrated from the British Isles to America). At least Oahspe stresses the constant migration of people from East to West.

Dan is an important word in Britain, and there is no doubt a connection.

There are many "books of the ancients", and I doubt if Spaulding's books are the ones referred to—however Spaulding's books are worth reading.—Rap.

WOMAN IN HISTORY

Gisela Faldowski

*If you leaf through your history book
It never needs a second look. . .
The glory goes without a fail
To some brave and famous male.
Still the rumor is well-known
"A woman is behind each throne."*

*In the name of equality
We shall write a woman's history.
Around the world in every nation
This is the time for liberation.*

EVE

*When the sun began to rise
It was over Paradise.
Adam was first, but we believe
Most happenings began with Eve.
Bless the Lord for his foresight
To help poor Adam in his plight.
Even Tarzan needed more pals
Than the four-legged animals.
The necessity was plain
For Adam: Eve: for Tarzan: Jane.*

*Now Adam! Even to this date
Had he never had a mate. . .
Would still sleep under the apple tree
And there would be no more history.
Thus, man departed this beginning
Because of the "orig'nal sinning".
The snake continued its conceit
The next time he and Eve did meet.*

*"Eve, you are adorable and neat
Right from your head down to your feet. . .
But you always wear your birthday suit.
I tell you, that is not your "fruit".
It stirs up only beastly passion.
So why not play around with fashion?"*

*Eve was fast to understand
She asked God for a helping hand.
The Lord came down—He was right there—
And brought the first fig-leaf to wear.
Now Adam wore the same thing, too
But Eve soon begged for something new.
"Always green leaves—that's not fair.
I have nothing new to wear."
On her knees she prayed: "God, please, Sir. . ."
He gave her next a coat of fur.
To this day this devilish crave
Turns the female into slave.*

*The pair did not behave too wise
And soon got chased from Paradise.
Work was the password from those days
As the true and Holy Bible says.
But that didn't make Eve so sad,
Since change and new things made her glad.*

*One day Eve got irritated
By the things her husband stated:
"I think male is superior,
And wife is much inferior.
From a bent rib you are created
And second-fiddle to me mated.
I think I'm of the highest station
The very crown of all creation."
And so the age-old battle here began
Due to conceit of ego-bloated man. . .*

"Our aim is to put spirit in contact with those in your world who reach out to open the barrier which separates our two worlds, which in reality, are one".

Question: What is speaking in tongues?

Answer: With those who speak in tongues, we find spirits of one long gone who expresses through one who is in a trance state, brought about through a heightened religious ecstasy. This entity speaks in the language he or she used while in the physical body. Languages unheard today often come through, as life has been and always shall be in one form or another; in one world or another; in one planet or another; in one sphere or another; in one continent or

IS MENTAL TELEPATHY LOGICAL?

By Sylwood O'Toole

Systematic studies of the communication of ideas through other than ordinary senses have not proved conclusively the existence of, or the non existence of mental telepathy. There is a rather small group of "materialists" who deny the existence of anything they cannot hear, see, feel, taste or smell, but because an intelligent person refuses to be limited by the limitation of another's five senses, and because of the steady out-croppings of mental telepathy actualities, most people harbour at least some degree of belief in the subject. The belief persists in spite of the lack of scientific evidence—irrefutable evidence—of the existence of thought transference.

The notions of Freud on mental telepathy and allied phenomena provided some sort of answer for a limited group, but in the final analysis, this approach proved more superstitious than that which it sought to dissolve. Freud maintained that an association of ideas would produce simultaneous thoughts in persons, and thus accounted for the superstition of thought transference. I draw from my own experience to relate an instance of mental telepathy, or telepathic occurrence, and how it might be explained away by the Freudian notion, which is, incidentally, found in his "Psychology of the Error".

Several years ago, I received word from a motion picture actor—famous in the silents and up to the early forties—that he wished me to visit him, and discuss with him the possibilities of my publishing his memoirs. I set a date for the meeting, and forgot the incident until the evening before. I had to drive some seventy miles to his ranch. Nothing significant occurred until the following morning. I awoke with a melody in my brain. I sang it as I dressed. It ran through my mind as I ate breakfast, and I whistled it as my wife and I got in the car to go to meet the former cowboy star. The song was not consciously associated with the actor. It was, however, a popular song made famous in the late thirties by a female singer of some talent and a tremendous following.

I should mention that I did not know the actor personally, and had heard no news of him in twenty years, he being absent from the screen during this period. Now imagine my surprise upon arriving at the actor's ranch to be greeted by his wife—who was the female vocalist whose career was launched on the popularity of the tune I had awakened to whistle that very morning! I did not know she was married to the actor, and had not thought of HER for fifteen years or so.

Musing this over, driving back from the appointment, I discussed it with my wife, and concluded that the Freudian notion might apply: it would be explained as follows: somewhere, perhaps in a magazine, I had read that the actor had married the singer. I knew it unconsciously, and mechanically associated her with him, and when the unexpected call from the actor came, my mental mechanism, working on a subterranean level, brought forth the symbol of the singer (her most popular song) and associated it with the actor. This satisfied me, and lent verity to the Freudian notion.

I could not so easily brush aside a later manifestation of extra sensory perception. With the actor's manuscript on my desk, I resumed my normal duties of reading and evaluating manuscripts, dicking with authors, trying to find publishable material and overseeing the thousand and one details of book production. I neglected the actor's manuscript. First, I could not decide what to tell the author-actor, because the book was not ready to be published, and I didn't want to hurt his feelings. A publisher, because he deals with sensitive and creative artists, feels an obligation always to walk softly. "Let it rest there," I decided, "until HE calls me. Then I'll think of some solution."

A month passed, and the script occupied a part of my crowded desk. Then one evening, about nine o'clock, I was in my studio office at my country home, writing promotional material for a book, when a sudden urge compelled me to say to my wife, who was busy in another room. "I think I'll write Jack," I said, entirely spontaneously, "and tell him something—anything—about this book. I ought to give him some kind of report."

"Okay," came the disinterested answer, "if you can think of something to say."

I started the letter, mentioning again how I had enjoyed his films in the "old days," and repeating what he already knew—that he was of the old-time school of cowboy actors who actually could ride, shoot and rope a steer.

At the end of page one, the phone rang. My wife answered. It was the actor's wife. Obviously, if all is materialistic and we have but five senses, this was merely a coincidence. A rather startling one, to be sure, but—after all, co-incidences do happen.

On the phone myself, talking to the refined, cultured and gracious singer, I surprised myself by suddenly asking her. "Tell me, where is Jack from—originally."

"He comes from Oklahoma," she answered easily, and then named a small town—Kingfisher—in central Oklahoma.

This was, I suppose, not unusual. Except that I came from that town, too, and that my first name—never used now—was also "Jack."

I have not been able to rationalize this according to the Freudian theory of association. It was, clearly, evidence of some sort of empathy, sympatico, understanding between myself and another, on a plane outside the normal five senses.

The salient factor about all occurrences of mental telepathy is the spontaneity with which such manifestations come: it is impossible to force an occurrence, just as it is impossible to force a lock with a key which does not fit. And perhaps we, in our effort to understand the phenomenon, are trying to utilize the wrong key: logic, the logic of Aristotle.

Psychical researchers do not have sufficient evidence to convince me of the existence of psychical phenomena, even though I know it exists. The problem may be principally one of words: the easiest and fullest communication between your mind and mine is through words. In attempting to reduce everything in the universe to words and sentences, we fall prey to an impulse to refute anything that stubbornly refuses to fit inside a word or a group of words.

The five senses can be fitted fairly snugly inside words and sentences, but even here we must perforce lose a part of the essence of a thing in the transposition: I say to you, "The sky is a pale blue, with milk-white clouds scattered over the central area." This conveys my meaning, but undoubtedly a portion of the sense data picked up by my senses and related to you through my brain, is lost. Certainly, you are relying upon the perfection or imperfection of my sensory perception. Who can say but what we miss—not the minor part of the phenomena which we observe and sense—but the major part of it. Therefore, what we know of the universe must necessarily be infinitesimal, and the portion of it lying outside our cognition is infinitely larger! In order to broaden our understanding of or feeling for this portion of the universe lying outside our sensory perception we must work counter, in many cases, to what is defined as "logic".

The imperfections of logic are well-known: did any scientist ever set out to discover a certain thing and actually discover it? Or has the ordinary scientific finding (such as penicillin, the law of gravity, the steam engine) been entirely an accident, and brought forth only because the scientist was looking in general, not looking for anything in particular?

Mental telepathy lies outside our cognition, if we define cognition as a systematic translation into words and objects of those perceptions that our brain picks up through the five senses. Yet it exists, and only the dogmatic and bigoted materialists, victims of orthodoxy, will categorically deny the existence of that which cannot be sensed with the five senses.

Who can speculate on what else lies outside our meagre senses, and our megalomania? Between me and the person who sits opposite me at a table may be universe upon universe, peopled perhaps by creatures not so very different except in size (and that is relative: if we were suddenly all made one inch tall, who would know it?) and perhaps wondering, as we are wondering, to what end we are spinning in space.

I love a finished speaker,
I really, truly do.
I just don't mean one who's polished,
I just mean one who's through.

A Scotsman visiting in New York complained, "Ay, they're a crass lot here; very impolite. They pound on my hotel room door at three in the morning and they pound on it at four in the morning."

When asked what he did about it, he replied, "I didn't do anything about it. I just kept on playing my bagpipes."

Hostess: Glad you like my casserole. It's glucono delta lactone, calcium polysilicate and magnesium carbonate dextroxe mixed with meat flavoring.

Nobody can get as mad over nothing as a waiter who was expecting a good tip.

Adults would get on fine with kids,
It somehow seems to me,
If they'd just tell it "like it is" . . .
Not "like it used to be"!

Joe had been granted three wishes by the Good Fairy. So first he wished for a beautiful car. Blink! He had a car. Then he wished for a seaside mansion. Blink! He had his mansion. Thinking this over, he decided to wait awhile before he used up his third wish.

A few days after Joe was happily driving along in his new car on the way to his mansion. He turned on his radio and began singing along with the catchy little tune that was playing: "Oh, I wish I were an Oscar Mayer wiener." Blink! And he was. . .

WHERE THE READER
HAS HIS SAY

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE NO VOICE

Dear Ray:

I'm not the type of reader who writes to you each time I disagree with one of the articles in your publications, but occasionally I come across an author whose logic and definitions galls me. I refer to Alson Frys' abortion article in the September SEARCH.

To begin with, I think it ridiculous to write of the killing of animals for food as a point in favor of abortion. Abortion is not brought about for this purpose. He states:

"The facts are, that it is perfectly acceptable to kill life for use as food (or accidentally) and as long as one does not kill for sport or in anger. . ."

Generally man does not kill other humans as a food source. What kind of reasoning is this?

He also states: "Life is simply: that which can sustain itself." What. . .like the Sun, or a forest fire?" And what's all this nonsense about: "In the case of an abortion it is impossible for a baby to be born for at least seven months after conception and since the child must be able to sustain itself at its mother's breast to even be a legal planetary life form, any abortions before seven months is perfectly legal and free from any Karmic repercussions."

This statement sets up an interesting scene:

SHERIFF: Hey fetus. I just thought I'd let you know you've got no rights, no how. You are not a legal planetary life form.

FETUS: Sorry about that sir, no one informed me of the law! However

I will be 7 months tomorrow if you'll just give a little guy a break. And could you inform me as to what an illegal planetary life form is?

So Alson Frys' definition of life is that which can sustain itself. Well, the fetus does sustain itself, through its mother's umbilical cord. Also, speaking of laws. . .it's the simple law of nature that the young of the species, unborn or not, be maintained by their elders. This has been going on since time immemorial, even before anyone coined the phrase: "legal planetary laws."

Back to your "killing of life", which according to you is O.K., as long as it's not done in sport or anger—like a drunken driver perhaps? Well, the unborn one, which is still alive no matter what fancy phrases you conjure up, will be just as dead whether killed in anger or with a laugh.

According to Mr. Fry, it is possible to go within and know instead of relying on others. I dare say, a lot of weird individuals go within and come up with all sorts of strange and dangerous concepts. Your "within" is not my "within" Alson.

Another quote: "It is interesting to some persons that the breaking down process in rocks now taking place through radioactive elements logically points to their having had "life" themselves at some distant point in the past."

Now I quote Isaac Asimov (from his book "Building Blocks of the Universe). "One of the first things they found out was that uranium atoms are breaking up all the time. Each uranium atom, sooner or later, throws off, with great force, some of the sub-atomic particles that make it up. These flying particles are the radiations that Becquerel detected." This is radioactivity, Alson. There are about 21 unstable elements. "An atom of any of these elements if left to itself, will sooner or later change into some other kind of atom." Uranium eventually changes into lead.

Alson also mentions "The Ancient documents dealing with the xtals and rocks." Just what are these documents?

And now the piece de resistance of the entire article. Again I quote: "Unless a woman mentally wants a child at the time she is in union with a man, she will NOT be impregnated."

He also suggests we ask knowing women.

The Reader: Hi. . .are you a knowing woman?

Woman: Well. . .I don't know.

My dear sir. . .sperm and egg have a mind of their own. That is their job. . .to unite. Hours later at that. And what about women, or young girls, who became pregnant without knowing the facts of life? And I do mean very young girls. . .who were attacked and didn't know what was going on.

Your article reeks of naivete.

As for myself, I wish I knew all the things you do about souls between incarnations. It's real groovy if you do.

I'm just not in on all this esoteric knowledge.

Finally, I'm not trying to make anyone feel guilty for what they've done, but I think it kind of ironic that you successfully made it to adulthood and now show disregarded for others in the womb. I don't know, maybe fate decreed you to be saved so that you could write your masterpiece without concern for those who have no voice.

Blessings,
Stu Olson

ALTERNATE ENERGY SOURCES

Sirs:

We are involved in a national, even international controversy on energy. Research from many good sources indicate there is plenty of petroleum products available right now, the real struggle is between environmentalists and the great petroleum combines who profit from these products. Governmental bureaucrats are in collusion with petroleum companies to hide the real facts from the public. It is not a long walk from either Capitol Hill or the White House to the Patent Office where records are available on innumerable efficient carburetors that have been bought up and kept off the market by both oil and auto industries. American cars in Europe are understood to be competitive with European cars with carburetors much more efficient than in the United States. These issues need to be resolved and can be resolved with alternate sources of energy that can now be adopted and brought into use. Why should one generation use up the petroleum and oil reserves of the planet in one generation? It should be labeled robbery, greed and selfishness. There is a better way to go.

A culture that can move from Kittyhawk to Apollo in seventy years can quickly and easily move into alternate energy areas. The ones who could do the most in the past were the greatest scoffers in the case of the engines, rocket power and the other new developments. The same is true today where bureaucrats or structured minds are concerned. The inventors and creative minds are with us today, as always and answers are readily available.

Electro Magnetic Power is here, developed by Ev Gray Industries, Van Nuys, Calif. A motor is tested and proved that develops 95 h.p. runs silently, uses batteries for impulse, develops real power. It can run autos, and is adaptable to any energy need. Solar energy is here now, already applied in a few homes, Washington D.C. and elsewhere. Standby power is utilized in case of emergency from utility sources but the saving is tremendous. Additional research will improve this rapidly.

Professors at M.I.T. have proved that gravity has a positive and negative effect. It can be used for lift as well as attraction. Two others proved it before M.I.T., both known to me in the UFO Space approach. Trucks and highway weights could be lifted almost right away with application of these factors.

Leonard Grayson of Bozeman, Mont. and a few others have developed vertical lift. Saucer type craft that are safer than any jet, propeller or forward take-off craft now in use. Any type of motor can be utilized, such as electro magnetic. The Ancient Swastika, clockwise motion known to the Hindus symbolized four primary forces of energy, we have these truths, but do not apply them. Flying Saucers, UFO, both in ancient times and today demonstrate these energies in use.

A new look and application of right energy sources will cut and end pollution cycles, save crops and fields and vegetation. We can develop a plan for rapid transit through the air and underground as utilized in ancient times on the earth, but nothing faster on the ground than a horse can gallop. Life has more value than to be trampled by selfish greed and rapid expansion. Industry can be developed for underground areas, save the valleys, and hills for habitation and beauty and future good. Man's Creative Mind can come to the fore again, concrete should no more destroy the good land, there is a better way.

THAT WHICH A MAN SOWETH, SO SHALL HE REAP

Dear Ray Palmer:

It appears to me that when most people attempt to reason, they start in the middle of a subject and then blindly hit out in all directions. They don't seem capable of following through to a satisfactory conclusion. I am a carpenter by trade (of the old school). One of the first things I learned, when starting to build a house, was to construct a foundation that would not only be strong enough to hold the structure intended but to make it square, plumb and the top surface level. I have found, over the years that a good foundation, as a starting point, is important in any venture. So in keeping with this thought, let us start to reason and try to put some of this jig-saw puzzle together so that it will make sense.

Perhaps the most important basic question any individual will ever be called upon to make is how they believe this universe is operated. Is it (1) In an orderly manner according to a pre-conceived plan, under natural laws created and enforced by a spiritual over-all intelligence that, strictly speaking is in every thing? or (2) Do they think, as the atheists do, that there is no God and what ever else it is that they believe or (3) As my orthodox friends say, there is a just God but He is not working at it right now. He let the devil take over for the time being. But at the battle of Armageddon God will win back His kingdom on earth from the devil, then a chosen few will live in paradise for ever more or something to that effect. Perhaps you are among those who admit that you just don't know what to believe on this subject. To our younger brothers that believe there is no God, we can't think of anything to say that would help them; to those who believe as my orthodox friends do, and who are satisfied with their lot, we say, "God bless you".

To those who are not satisfied with the theories mentioned above and are looking for some logical satisfying answers, here are some to consider: First of all it is necessary to believe in the system we are living within. We are not now referring to man-made laws but universal, natural, God laws. If you believe that you are the innocent victim of circumstances or a voodoo hex, or an evil spirit, or the stars, or the devil, or bad luck or some mysterious germ that accidentally happened along to cause you some disease or ailment, then you cannot believe that there is a just God. There is a purpose for everything that occurs in this life. Pain which appears to be an evil fulfills an important purpose; it acts on the order of a built-in-alarm system to warn us when we are in danger and not living in accord with natural God laws. Just as a loving parent disciplines a child to teach it right from wrong so we are disciplined by the Father of all living things and we must undergo the baptism of fire.

There is great wisdom in the Bible i.e. if you can understand the true meaning intended and can allow for the changes that have been made (revised). According to this great book, apparently all the trouble in the world stems from the fact that God gave man free will through Adam and Eve. They used their free will contrary to God's edict and they were punished. God not only punished them but all humans born into this world thereafter. Now, if we are to be logical about this matter, how can we conceive of a just God that would punish us for something that Adam and Eve did? Perhaps this "original sin" idea was invented by the church fathers to provide an excuse for salvation and the material profits that they would derive from it etc., or perhaps there is some other meaning in it that we don't understand.

If we pray for good health and at the same time violate the natural laws pertaining to it, then it is reasonable to believe that our prayers will not be answered, and that should apply to any other phase of life. My orthodox friends, who suffer due to wrong living, expect to leave all their misery behind when they go to their great reward in heaven. Once again, if we are to apply reason to this situation, we must come to the conclusion that we cannot expect any special favors from a just God. We must work for and honestly earn that which we receive.

A definition in the dictionary of the word "reincarnation" i.e. "the belief that the soul upon death of the body moves to another body" is not only misleading but very badly put. For example: If, on the one hand, I honestly came by a plot of land and material sufficient to build a house, then I built the house according to my ability and finally occupied it, that could be likened to reincarnation, and it would be good. But, if on the other hand, I forced myself into the house of another and by so doing I caused a great injustice to the rightful owner, that could be likened to spirit possession and would be evil. Some are born into this life in a relatively primitive stage of development (young souls) while others start a life on Earth in a very advanced stage of wisdom (old souls). Keeping in mind that there is a just God, it is reasonable to believe that ultimately the one will receive the same advantage as the other, regardless of the fact that one started sooner than the other. There are those who do not accept the theory of reincarnation, maybe because of religious teaching or some other reason. There are those who just don't like the idea of returning to life in the flesh. Perhaps it is because of a physical defect in their own body or some unpleasant experience that is associated with the physical. If there is a particular resentment or sore spot in your life that stands in the way of a happier more useful life, it usually is because you have failed to overcome the problem confronting you.

As individuals, we are not necessarily responsible for the actions of the majority but only for such conditions that are within our range to change. If we can rise above the majority, then we can avoid the effect of that which they have caused. The theory that humans evolved from one kingdom to the other (mineral, vegetable and animal) finally coming up to where we are now, appeals to me. I believe that, "There is no great and no small to the One who created all. The dewdrop is just as important as the universe in it's ultimate purpose."

Very truly yours,
George Brunner

The Two Angels Twangela & Tarmela

GLADYS MARIE SHARP

STRANGERS IN OUR MIDST FROM OTHER WORLDS

AN ADVENTURE INTO A DREAM

"The TWO ANGELS—TWANGELA AND TARMELA"—surely has to be the most fabulous love story of the century! In the deepest sense, it concerns the life of each human being. It is mystical in depth, eternal in scope, unrivaled in beauty. Much revealed is very sacred. Yet, it is hoped through this sharing, to inspire and encourage many who may similarly seek, while feeling that they, somehow, are different and so, become afraid to speak out, or to tell their innermost dreams. Too, this story is for those who are NOT afraid, but merely discouraged, feeling that their most profound hopes, prayers and dreams are, somehow, fruitless.
