(Mother of Jesus)

Heretofore unchronicled

This book is TRUTH — NOT fiction! It contains actual reminiscences of Beloved Mary concerning the experiences of Her final embodiment on Earth, prior to Her Ascension. This is the very first time Beloved Mary has so opened the "treasure-chest" of Her heart to mankind. It is also the first time such material has been put in printed form for the blessing of any and all who care to open their minds and worlds to Her tremendous help. Since She once lived here on Earth — in a physical body similar to our own — and since She has victoriously met and conquered all human problems, is it not reasonable to believe that Great Loving Mother-of-Light is able — as well as MOST WILLING — to assist mankind now who are caught in the limiting distresses of human creation?

Beloved Mother Mary KNOWS THE WAY "HOME"! She will show it to you — but, quite naturally, you must give Her your attention long enough to learn that "Way"! That attention is Given Her WHILE YOU ARE READING HER WORDS.

...Editorial...

There are times when an editor starts his editorial with the sure knowledge that he's got a good issue. This is one of those times. Actually, none of the proof pages are back yet, but from all we have left on our desk, a hastily scribbled single sheet with the titles of the articles being set for this issue, we read a rather impressive list.

One of the questions frequently asked about flying saucers is whether or not they are hostile. As a general rule, the tendency has been to regard them as friendly. But in this issue, Jim Wentworth decides to regard them as hostile. Maybe he's wrong. But his article is worth reading.

Another article (which is a "first" for SEARCH, by the way) is "The Secrets of Outer Space" which is written by a Soviet scientist. One of the things that caught America flatfooted when the Russians put up their first sputnik was the accusation that the administration had every opportunity to know months in advance of the Russians' progress, and that our intelligence services had fallen down on their responsibilities. We all know now that it was perfectly true—the Russian scientists had published the whole plan, with details of progress, including a timetable of launching, in their scientific journals, to which even you can subscribe if you wish. Of course they were in Russian, and needed to be translated. It is unforgivable that American intelligence men did not translate them. Now, here in SEARCH we present the translation of this Russian account of some of the secrets of space they have solved, and some of the secrets they are trying to solve. In it you will find reference to a strange occurrence on the moon, which our newspapers have failed to report, insofar as we are able to discover.

When a whole giant crater disappears, it is NEWS. But this news was news only in Russia, it appears. We give it to you now, the first of a series of articles by prominent Russian scientists. No politics, no nationalism, just a pure exchange of knowledge. SEARCH is proud of its intelligence service. It intends to keep you posted, so that at least you won't be surprised by more sputnik-scoops.

Do You Laugh Your Greatest Powers Away?

THOSE STRANGE INNER URGES

You have heard the phrase, "Laugh, clown, laugh." Well, that fits me perfectly. I'd fret, worry and try to reason my way out of difficulties—all to no avail; then I'd have a hunch, a something within that would tell me to do a certain thing. I'd laugh it off with a shrug. I knew too much, I thought, to heed these impressions. Well, it's different now—I've learned to use this inner power and I no longer make the mistakes I did, because I do the right thing at the right time.

This FREE BOOK Will Prove What Your Mind Can Do!

Here is how I got started right. I had heard about hypnosis revealing past lives. I began to think there must be some inner intelligence with which we were born. In fact, I often heard it said there was; but how could I use it, how could I make it work for me daily? That was my problem. I wanted to learn to direct this inner voice, master it if I could. Finally, I wrote to the Rosicrucians, a world-wide fraternity of progressive men and women, who offered to send me, without obligation, a free book entitled The Mastery of Life.

That book opened a new world to me. I advise you to write today and ask for your copy. It will prove to you what your mind can demonstrate. Don't go through life laughing your mental powers away. Simply write: Scribe C.P.M.

Editorial — — — — ★

Hypnotism is a fascinating subject. In this issue, we present the story of Karlstad, a "terrible" hypnotist. This is a true story, and certainly a spine-chilling one.

One of the most prolific contributors to SEARCH is Dr. W. D. Chesney, M. D., who is rapidly becoming one of our readers' most loved writers. We are publishing his book (that is, your editor is seeing to it that the book is printed and distributed) A DOCTOR IS BORN, which is something every American should read, if he values his health AND his American heritage of freedom! We've got a hunch that when the book appears (just as fast as it can be printed, but which may take several months, printing conditions being what they are) it will be a complete sell-out. We're not soliciting orders, but we are accepting them in advance from those who want to be sure of a copy of that first edition. The price is $3.50, and we guarantee both delivery and delay. Fair enough? Nothing like being honest about how we're working; and that's the word for Dr. Chesney—honest! In this issue we present "Are You Playing The Fool?", another of the biting, scathing, documented articles he is turning out by the truckload. Here's a doctor, after more than the average man's three score and ten, who has a lifetime of holding-things-inside behind him, and who is now letting them out in one tremendous explosion. He's a fighting, blood-and-guts American, he is! And if he's got some truth to tell, SEARCH is all for letting him tell it! Don't miss any Chesney article, and this is one of his best—and hottest!

Can a man really heal by laying on his hands? Can he heal at a distance? If the evidence presented in this issue is true, then Dr. Reginald Mills is such a man. You'll be astounded at the story concerning him "The Healing Hands of Dr. Reginald Mills", which is complete with affidavits and testimonials. But as we sent it to the printer, we wondered about that word "proof". SEARCH tries to dig out the evidence, the facts (if we may call anything a fact), and it attempts to prove things. Mostly, this is a matter of acceptance, and a matter of your own personal decision. SEARCH presents the factors for your thinking, you weigh them and analyze them, one against the other, and decide for yourself. In that sense, we thought, all the material we have presented on Dr. Mills proves nothing. It may be true that what is described happened, but can it be duplicated at will? That is the true test of a fact. If it ex-

"The absolute tops in over 100 books on the subject of flying saucers! Undoubtedly the most all-embracing on every aspect of the subject that has yet appeared!" The Hon. Brinsley le Poer Trench, editor of the bi-monthly Journal of Space, FLYING SAUCER REVIEW.

"FLYING SAUCER PILGRIMAGE"

By Bryant & Helen Reeve

They went on a 23,000-mile pilgrimage to meet the people who claimed to have seen flying saucers, even ridden on them! They wanted to know these people for themselves, so they could judge their stories! Here, now, is their factual account of that pilgrimage. Meet them all for yourself: Adamski, Fry, Bethurum, Williamson, Angelucci, Van Tassel, Desmond Leslie, many others. And then they saw a saucer themselves! Read their exciting conclusions, their singular message to you!

Further comments:

"The authors have written the account of adventures and experiences in a most readable and delightful light-hearted manner, however do not be deceived by their gay and happy style. Oh, yes, they want you to enjoy their pilgrimage with them, and you will, too. But this book certainly goes "deep" and explores saucers, the space people and their raison d'être, from every possible angle."

"Are contactees chosen in advance by the space people? Why don't they land? How do we look to the space people? What are they like? What can we learn from space beings? Is this civilization ending? Why are the space people coming to earth in such great numbers at the present time? Are the space beings hostile or friendly? These are just a few of many questions discussed in this book."

"No one seriously interested in learning the truth about flying saucers can afford not to have this book on their shelf. Better, have it by your bed!"

ists, it can be duplicated at will. It is demonstrable. We read of the cure of paralysis he made, and we thought: "Here's a chance for proof—(your editor is partially paralyzed through an accident that crushed his spinal cord)." If Dr. Mills, through absent treatment, could cure that crushed spinal cord, we'd really have something that could be proved. The hospital records are sure and positive, by the world's best neuro-surgeon. A cure could not be denied. And then we thought—"but that would be proof only to me." Which is perfectly true. Besides, the miracle of a cure beyond that of medicine or surgery is already on record. Your editor was positively diagnosed as doomed never to walk again. But he simply decided he was going to walk, set up a time schedule, and followed it almost to the hour. Some of you may remember the story of that "miracle" in a past issue. And of the help we had from another realm.

No, we can't be unreasonable. Powers such as these should not be wasted. If they really exist, SEARCH will try to find them out. Perhaps you want to be healed? Dr. Mills address is published. Why not you try him out? No money is mentioned in the article as we received it. If so, let us know. If cured, let us know. If not, let us know. After all, that is the test. Duplication, again and again.

Have you been following the series of articles called "Getting To Know Yourself" by John Mentor. We've been getting quite a few letters of commendation on this series. It deals with your dream symbology, and how your subconscious tries to reach you from out of the dream world to solve your waking problems for you. It deals with your real self, and how to contact it. Maybe the author knows what he is talking about. But even if not, his premises are stimulating, and make us think. We don't understand why we dream, or even how. We give dreams all kinds of interpretations, usually wrong. We even say that they are not dreams, but reality, in some spirit world. John Mentor has a lot of idea material on this subject. We've learned quite a bit ourselves from these articles, and we're mighty curious to see where his subsequent articles will lead. Is it possible to solve a problem deliberately by studying your dreams, or even directing your dreams? Sounds like a great idea—because one thing your editor has always regretted is wasted time sleeping, when he could have been accomplishing things. Except for the fact that your editor dreams constantly, and has often worked out plans, stories and various problems in dreams.

Sometimes he even dreams of Brigit Bardotte—mighty pretty, ain't she! A Marilyn Munroe with "zing".

Which brings us to the current argument going on in the letters section regarding sex and seed and immortality. It always amazes us to note how popular our letter section is. Actually, it is the largest letter section in the world. Sometimes people accuse of us filling the magazine with letters because we don't have to pay for them. Little do they realize that we never pay for anything in SEARCH! When we used to pay for material, we couldn't get anything good. It seemed that true "searchers" weren't interested in "that old buck", but in searching. When they realized we really wanted the truth, and not fancy typing (and cleverly falsified stories intended to draw a check) we began to get some mighty fine stuff. And we now never get a manuscript that is deliberate fraud. No money in it, so why try to trick us! But regarding letters, we want to say this: every day we get such a stack that one thing is sure; we can never answer them. Nor can we ever print all of them. So, if you write us, and don't see your letter printed, or answered, don't be disappointed. You have run up against an impossibility. We can't even find time to answer the flood of business letters we get, much less the friendly ones from all you readers. But we do print what we can, and you'll admit we answer them there! We answer them with all the ability at our command, because to us this is the greatest fun in the world! And it is an education valuable beyond compare. How much we've learned from the countless thousands of letters you've written us in the past thirty-two years! We only hope you've learned even a small percentage of it from the ones we've printed, and from the writings that have come from our typewriter because of the letters you wrote us. Why not join the "search" by writing your own letter? Tell us what you know. We'll pass it on some way, so that all of us can benefit. Because it is a fact you readers are the "best writers in the business" and your letters beat any article we ever saw! The popularity of "Come, Let Us Reason. . ." is proof of that.

We want to mention here our May issue of FLYING SAUCERS which will still be on sale as you read this. This, and the coming July issue, contain some of the most fascinating saucer material that has ever come our way. The sensational popularity of FLYING SAUCERS is amazing us. We suggest that if you like SEARCH, you will find more of the same (but specialized on saucers) in FLYING SAUCERS.

And remember, both of our magazines are distributed differently from any other magazine in the world. We go only where we're wanted. And we depend on our readers to introduce us to interested newsstand owners. If you find a newsstand which does not carry our magazines, ask the owner for permission to send us his name and address. Tell him we can double his profits on a single magazine (in percentage, of course, because we aren't the Saturday Evening Post). If you can convince him to handle our magazines, we will pay you $5.00 for each newsstand you secure for us, as soon as his order is received, and deliveries commence. To those of you who have given us tips of this sort, and haven't yet gotten your check, be patient; you've given us many hundreds and the work is literally swamping us. Also, not always does the follow-up result in an actual order. In that case, it is up to you to keep after him.

This plan is working extremely well, as witnessed by the strange fact that the average sale of our magazines at such newsstands is 85%, whereas the average that is reached by agents, or area distributors, is about 35%. This goes for every distributor including the biggest. There is the case of the distributor in one fairly large town who received 75 copies from us.

He consistently returned 69 covers, unsold. Finally he threw up the sponge. We went to the main newsstand in town (on a tip from a reader) and persuaded him to order. His order, significantly, was six copies. He sold all six, ordered more. Today he is selling 50, no returns. That is the difference. We deal with him as a personal friend, not as a big corporation. As a result, he loses that sense of animosity that the "little man" feels against the "big man" who runs a monopoly. Gone is that "negative" sales attitude, and those "unsold" copies become "sold" copies. There's a lot in the power of positive thinking, after all! Try to force a man to handle 75 magazines, and he'll sell six. Tell him you'll be happy if he sells six, and he'll sell 50.

There's a lesson here somewhere. The man who has learned it would make a darned good president for the next administration! Maybe that's exactly why the nations of the world are failing to "sell" freedom (and themselves) to each other—you can't ram it down the human throat with a big gun, or an atom bomb.

Ever stop to think that when you "throw your weight around" it's your own energy you're using up? And when you're all tired out, that's when the "meek inherit the earth".—Rap.

THE TERRIBLE HYPNOTIST

By Lottie E. Butler

Hypnotism! A benevolent force that can do immeasurable good? To be sure. But what the average public, or you folk, perhaps, who read this true experience of mine, do not believe or understand is that by way of hypnotic force, one human mind can inflict pain, misery, and sometimes even death upon another human being. And with perfect impunity, too. The most tragic part is, nothing can ever be proved and there is no legal protection whatever against this force, if used against you destructively. Who can prove the tricky goings-on and subtlety of the human mind, especially the type which would make Dracula or Frankenstein appear mere babes in the art of criminal psychology? I feel that people should know and start understanding the truth of this concentrative force, and learn how to combat such a force (should its evil form be imposed upon you) in its early stages, before it becomes ingrained in the subconscious mind and accomplishes the power to rule your human motor, that is, the functioning of your complete thinking capacity which rules every nerve, every organ in your body, thereby imposing either good or bad effects, as the operator sees fit.

Having spent a great number of my early years in the entertainment field, I found, upon retiring from this work, my new work as typist in a small office was rather trying. However, they tried to be understanding as to my slowness in catching on.

I remember very well, the first day, when my eyes sought the glass-enclosed office of my employer, Mr. James Karlstad, who sat like a majestic spider behind a huge desk and looked out over the hirelings who sat at smaller desks in one big room. He had a pale, sallow face, huge black piercing eyes with a sensuous stare, and graying hair. He impressed me as being a man of not too good health.

As the days passed, I tried hard to learn my new work. Mr. Karlstad would pass my desk and give me an approving or unapproving stare, I wasn't sure which. I took it, however, that the stares were of approval, because one day he stopped and talked with me awhile and before leaving, he asked me to have dinner with him some time. Imagine my surprise!

To make a long story short, we covered many places of amusement, such as night spots, dinners and the races at various times. One night he informed me he was married but being divorced and asked me if I would consider marrying him. Somehow I felt this was rather sudden, and recently I had noticed a sort of strangeness in his manner. A vagueness in speech, - I couldn't just detect what it was. Finally, I said I would think it over and was seriously doing so when one day, just before Christmas, I noticed him sitting at his desk, his face blood red, staring at me across the office space. His face twisted into an attempted smile, but he looked the essence of evil, as though he were thinking horrid thoughts. It was pitiable to note how he was striving to control some emotion which had overcome him. I became nervous and unstrung, but I did manage to pretend, at least, to be working.

We did not see each other during the Christmas holidays, but on resuming office hours, I passed by his office one day and stopped in to thank him for the huge Christmas box each of the employees received from the Company. He stared and stared at me, saying nothing, his face again blood red and his mouth attempting to shape into a smile of appreciation.

Finally, I said, "James, are you well?"

With this, he shot a stare at me, his eyes distending, and I felt something race through my body like a bolt of lightning, then a flickering of nerves.

I said hurriedly, "I'm sorry, I hope you'll feel better. Have a happy New Year." And I left him sitting there looking very much in distress.

Later on I spoke with one of the girls who had been with the firm many years. She informed me that he had one arrested lung and had been a sick man. Also she explained that he had to rest a year in a mental institution because of some illness, but that he had recovered and was now all right. I wondered about this. I did not believe he was all right at all.

In the office, his visits to my desk were becoming more frequent. His face expressed illness.

An indefinable illness of some kind. He stared and stared at me from his office. Suddenly, I decided that it was high time I got out of this office and stayed out.

I was becoming frightened, nervous and uncomfortable. I forthwith resigned and went home.

Mr. Karlstad phoned me and asked why I had quit working for him. I explained that I thought it best not to see him again because of his marriage and the condition of his health. This remark tore him to pieces. He was sinister, almost violent over the phone. He said to me, "My illness! Yes! I have what is diagnosed as mental disease. Now, you are shocked aren't you? This disease is a vibrating pressure of the brain cells and because of this condition, I have superior power to rule other human minds. I have the power to rule you, to direct your complete destiny. No, it is not insanity as you are now thinking. In closing, let me tell you my girl, if you try to leave me, you will be sorry!"

He phoned me daily, revealing such terrible things. Once he went into great length to explain how he had gained control of the organization I had worked for, through his incredible subtlety. This sounded fantastic to me, but his next revelation stunned me. He said he had brought about the death of his associate, thereby gaining control of the company, to say nothing of influencing his mother-in-law's mind until she drove her car over an embankment to her death. While I was trying to take all this in he kept on in his grim, forceful voice: "You are my next victim. I hate you! I hate your deceitful arrogance! It will be a delight to destroy you!"

I was frightened, very frightened. I hung up the 'phone. I felt my heart racing. I went to the mirror and saw that I was white as a ghost and was trembling all over. My head started to ache as I reached the bed. I lay down trembling. Then as plain as if he were standing beside me, I heard Karlstad's voice, threatening me telepathically. "I mean to torture you. I mean to rack your body, race your heart, ache every nerve and rule your very blood stream. You are frightened now because you are in my power. I am operating your mind, and try hard as you may, you will never get away from me. I am supreme in mental force and from now on I shall direct you as I see fit!"

"Heavens!" I cried to myself. "Is this thing possible? This man is a monster. I see nothing but his horrible face, hear his awful voice in my every thought. I must see some one for help, - a psychiatrist, an M.D. . . ."

I did make an appointment with the most renowned psychiatrist in my city. Here are his exact words to me regarding my experience.

"Well, it's rather difficult to just advance an opinion, since there are numerous forms of hypnotism. I was reading recently about the fight doctors are waging in the islands. There, men die for no reason at all. Nothing organically is wrong with them. Yet a man or woman will go to sleep and never wake up. It is called witchcraft by some, but many believe these deaths attributable to a kind of hypnosis, a concentrative force exercised by one human mind over another, controlling the organs of his body. I do believe that there is such a force and if used destructively, it can be very dangerous, indeed, if it is not met by a power as great or greater than the one aimed at you.

"So it is up to you, my dear, to develop within yourself a power as great or greater than this man's. Further, since you are this far under his power, I might suggest, if you find yourself unable to combat him, you might employ the service of another to concentrate on you with a thought of good, thereby overpowering the destructive thought wave coming in to you. Personally, I don't go along with the science of hypnosis. For the most part, it is my belief, the effects and taxation on the mind of those who practice it, and their subjects could lead to moral, if not physical, death!

"My dear, you should have come to me sooner. All I can advise you now, is to start concentrating . . . Stop the fear. First and foremost erase fear from your complete mind . . . Concentrate against him . . . Concentrate hard . . . Go after it determinedly . . ."

Try hard as I could to combat this awful creature who was trying to destroy me, I could not find the strength. I suffered from nervousness and pains throughout my body, blood rushed to my head. I could feel my heart pounding, I could hear a distant voice threatening me, Karlstad's voice. I could see his face enduring one of his spasms and knew he was operating a power over me. I was hysterical with fear. Then came the climax.

I felt a vibrating wave of something throughout my body, accompanied by an eerie sound, a suggestion from a silent voice. "Your blood is rushing to your head. You are going to bleed. You are going to bleed to death." My nose started to bleed. I started hemorrhaging. I phoned my doctor. It was three o'clock in the morning. He applied aid but to no avail. He phoned for an ambulance. Examinations, even cardiographs, showed nothing organically wrong, yet the bleeding persisted. Finally after much treatment it stopped. I told my doctor, who was pondering over my condition, about the hypnotic experience. He admitted it was possible, but quite unusual.

This nose bleed happened three times and the last time I found some combative power. I knew I had to fight. I had learned to send out a power of thought, a strong one, minus my previous fearful ones, and it helped. I was gaining strength. He was weakening. I spent hours trying to decipher this problem. My reason covered the horrible outcome of this evil force if practiced extensively. The possible, incredible effects on children, if operated against their inexperienced little minds.

Then one day good fortune came my way. I accepted another position. My new employer, noticing my nervousness, sympathized with me. He was a kindly man. I unburdened my troubles upon him. I believe I may say he understood me completely. He said he would try to help me. And he did help me.

Whenever I felt the monster approaching, he seemed to sense it. Almost immediately I felt another force covering me. A soothing, good feeling. It continued until I felt nothing at all but the presence of this wonderful man of beautiful thoughts. Thus, together with his help, I clarified my mind and shoved the evil force out.

Karlstad, now realizing that in this new opponent, he had met his match, and a superior one, who recognized his process of operation and one who could over-Power his own thinking organ, became frightened. He realized the thoughts he tried to inflict on me were blocked. They had no effect. Instead they reverted to himself. Try as he may to stop it now, this mental practice was of too long standing. The taxation on his mind became too great. It had consumed him completely. His mental motor now started automatically. Even when he didn't wish it, it ran away from him. There was no cure. He was now unable to reach his mental photograph and do his nefarious work. The result was infliction of pain and misery upon himself. The eventual climax, madness and self destruction.

As for me, I was now free of him. Whenever I felt any twinge of evil, I would immediately reject fear . . . start concentrating on something . . . some good thought and hold my power of concentration until the evil faded away like mist upon the breeze.

This was my true experience with hypnotism in its evil form, and I do hope my telling about it might aid you in some way to cope with it, should it ever happen to you. But I hope, also, from the bottom of my heart, that it never does happen to you. Or to anybody. And I mean that.

The HEALING HANDS of DR. REGINALD MILLS

By George W. Lagus

Can spiritual healing cure leprosy, remove cataracts, grow new bones, reduce blood pressure, alleviate multiple sclerosis, cure paralysis, make operations unnecessary? Here is the story of Dr. Reginald Mills of Hollywood, California. Does he actually perform these miracles? Read the testimony presented here and decide for yourself.

Dr. Reginald Mills, and his son, Dr. Basil Mills, come from London, Eng- land. Both have the gift of healing hands, a gift that has been in the family for over 300 years. The treatment consists of laying on of hands. Absent treatment, based on psychic projection, is practiced on a voluntary donation basis, and distance is no barrier.

George W. Lagus

Many patients feel warmth under the healer's hands. A few see a white or violet light around Dr. Mills' hands. Some feel a stab of pain in the affected area. The power sometimes causes convulsive spasms in present as well as absent patients. Red marks have appeared on absent patients over a thousand miles distance. BLIND-

NESS due to cataracts can be cured, claims the doctor, if the patient submits to a number of personal treatments, usually never exceeding 30 treatments. The doctor has many testimonials on file. His files are open to inquirers, and contain testimonials for cures of following conditions: Leprosy, Blindness, Paralysis, Arthritis, Gall Stones, Kidney Stones, Diseases of Bladder, Heart, Sinus, Glands, Intestinal Ulcers, Growths, Multiple Sclerosis, Diabetes, High Blood Pressure, Addison's Disease. These testimonials can be read at the following address:

Rev. REGINALD MILLS, D.D.
1443 North Fuller Avenue,
HOLLYWOOD 46, California

Possibly the most amazing cure on record is that of Valentin Maglasang of Culion, Palawan, Philippine Islands.

Leprosy probably occurred as long as 4000 years ago. It was common in Europe from the 2nd until the 16th century. It is still common in Asia, and hundreds of cases are still treated in the United States. The infectious character of the disease was confirmed in 1873 by Hansen, who discovered bacteria in leprosy wounds. Researchers failed to produce the disease in experimental animals, that is to transfer it from man to animal, although they discovered a strain of animal leprosy affecting mice under natural conditions throughout the world.

Human leprosy is not readily contracted, as more than 95% of those intimately associated with lepers develop immunity; but once the disease is well developed, it is almost incurable by medical means. Until the 20th century, the outlook for the leper has always and everywhere been regarded as hopeless.

Mental stress together with lack of proper nutrition as a rule precipitate the disease, sometimes decades after exposure to the germ. It is logical that the course of the disease could be reversed by a change of mental outlook and a change of diet. However patients suffer severe mental trauma once they are detected and deported to a place where disease is constantly impressed on their minds. Also the vitamin content of their food is mediocre. It is little wonder that leprosaria are the last station and point of no return for many who die there wretchedly.

The Jews in biblical times threw the lepers out of their towns and camps. Christians did the same thing in the Dark Ages. Jewish Rabbis and later Christian laws called the lepers "the living dead," denying them legal rights. Saint Francis of Assisi, who lived in the 13th century, thought otherwise. He cared for lepers and is said to have healed some miraculously. He had no dread of the disease and freely kissed his patients' wounds.

Chaulmoogra oil was for some time used in Burma as a remedy against leprosy, but it had an unpleasant taste. Nowadays medics use sulfa drugs that were discovered in 1935. All sulfa drugs are somewhat toxic (see Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia), producing blood abnormalities and kidney damage when indiscriminately used. Lepers received sulfa drugs for many years without results for many of them. Medics still reach for knives to perform crippling operations on lepers. Researchers know that sulfa drugs rob the body of vitamins, thus hindering natural immunity mechanism of the body. (See J. I. Rodale's Healthfinder)

A publicized spiritual healing of leprosy was accomplished by Dr. Reginald Mills, of California, U.S.A. In February 1957, the writer of this article contacted Dr. Mills to sponsor a series of absent treatments for a destitute leper on the Philippine Islands. The patient was Valentin Maglasang, father of four children, confined in Culion Leper Colony, Culion, Palawan (Philippines). His wife presented us with his past history, as he wasn't able to write due to progress of the disease. The subject was continuously leprous for twelve years, leprosy affected his kidneys continuously for the past four years, and a progressed leprous wound on his right foot caused him pain for the past three years, all in spite of sulfa medications.

The patient responded to absent treatment and regained strength and appetite. Pain in his back disappeared and he was able to stand erect. His kidney disease disappeared and he was found bacteriologically negative in May 1957, five months after commencement of Dr. Mills' psychic treatment. But the leprous wound on his right foot still remained. Doctors who X-rayed the lesion, insisted that only bone removal would save his leg, as bone destruction was too great and there was danger of gangrene.

But Valentin Maglasang was afraid to undergo crippling surgery, his wife appealed to Dr. Mills to give her husband's foot special treatment daily. No medication was applied to the patient's swollen foot. He stubbornly remained without medical attention for more than one month. On July 18, 1957 Valentin's wife wrote to me the following:

"My husband refused to enter the hospital. He told me: 'What is the use to enter the hospital when I have my own doctor. Dr. Mills is a wonderful man'. He (Valentin) stayed in the house and had his ulcer washed with boiled water without any medicine. He did this for about a month keeping strong faith in Dr. Mills' spiritual healing. As if a miracle, his severe foot ulcer got dry and finally healed."

On August 21, 1957, Valentin Maglasang consulted a lawyer to draft an affidavit, showing his past history of illness and his cure by spiritual means. The affidavit was sworn and legalized before Roberto P. Reyes, Justice of Peace, Culion, Palawan, Philippines.

Subsequent letters from the patient's wife confirmed our sincere belief that Valentin's cure was to last.

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES, PROVINCE OF PALAWAN, CULION RESERVATION AFFIDAVIT

I, VALENTIN MAGLASANG, of legal age, married, a leper-inmate of Culion Leper Colony Palawan, Philippines, after being duly sworn according to law, depose and say:

1.) That in 1937, I was found bacteriologically positive of leprosy and was admitted in the Eversley Childs Treatment Station, Mandawe, Cebu, Philippines; and that in 1940, I was discharged from the said treatment station after having been found continuously negative in a series of about ten (10) bacteriological examinations.

HEALING HANDS

2.) That in 1945, I got a relapse of leprosy and was readmitted in the said treatment station; and that in 1947, I was transferred to Culsion Leper Colony; and in 1948, I got married to one Floserfina Paller, who is also a leper-inmate in this colony.

3.) That since 1953 I had been suffering from loss of energy and appetite, pain in my urinary passage and backache due to kidney disease until February, 1957, when my wife (thru Mr. George Lagus, of San Antonio, Texas, U.S.A.) had me treated, by absent treatment method, by Dr. Reginald Mills, who resided at the time of my treatment in Hollywood, California, U.S.A.; and that after about three (3) months period of strictly adhering to Dr. Mills' absent treatment instructions, I regained strength and appetite, and the pain in my urinary passage and in my back disappeared.

4.) That in 1954, I got a leprous wound on my right foot which I had continuously suffered; and that in May 1957, my foot, having much swollen and the pain becoming terrible, was X-rayed and found to have a rotten bone and in view thereof, the doctor insisted that my foot needs surgery in order to take out the rotten bone, as it might develop to gangrene; but I declined the surgery, for I was afraid to undergo operation of my foot; hence in June 1957, my wife again (thru the said Mr. George Lagus) had me treated by the said Dr. Reginald Mills; and that after a little more than one month of absent treatment by Dr. Mills, my leprous wound on my right foot was completely healed.

5.) That at this date of executing this instrument, I can stand straight and am able to move around more freely and feel stronger; and that to the best of my knowledge, I feel that I am completely cured of my kidney disease and of my leprous wound on my right foot.

6.) That in April last, I was found positive, and in May 1957, I was found bacteriologically negative of leprosy; and that I would like to state here that before a leper-inmate in our place can be released, he or she has to undergo a series of bacteriological examinations and be found continuously negative for a period of at least six (6) months.

7.) That this instrument is executed for the purpose of extending my sincere thanks to the said Mr. George Lagus, who thru his benevolence had me treated by the said Dr. Reginald Mills, and also for the intention of expressing to the latter my heartfelt gratitude for having been cured of my aforesaid ailments by his unique absent treatment method.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 20th day of August, 1957, at Culion Leper Colony, Palawan, Philippines.

VALENTIN MAGLASANG

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 21st day of August, 1957, in Culion, Palawan, Philippines. Affiant exhibited his Residence Certificate No. A-1177942 issued at Coron, Palawan, Philippines, on August 20, 1957.

Following are a few sample affidavits from the files of Dr. Mills:

Oct. 14, 1953

Dear Mr. Mills:

Knowing that you and Mrs. Mills are leaving for Canada, I want to take this opportunity to let you know how much your sojourn here has meant to the people of Los Angeles.

You have brought health and comfort to many of my friends and to me personally, and I know of others who have had miraculous cures as a result of your treatments.

I am grateful for being cured of a rectal fistula and growth which would have required surgery had it not been for your help. You also brought about a glandular tone-up and improved digestion including relief of chronic constipation of life long standing.

I know a woman who was saved from a major gall bladder operation, and started passing stones after her first treatment with you.

Another remarkable case is that of a young man with a badly deformed back, for whom the doctors could do nothing. As a result of your treatments, a large piece of solid protruding bone about six inches long in the upper part of the spine, has flattened down to almost normal position, and the bone itself is forming separate vertebrae with connecting cartilage. Subsequent treatments will undoubtedly show even further improvement.

There is the case of a woman suffering from heart trouble and high blood pressure. You brought her blood pressure down to normal (as shown by subsequent medical examination) and her heart has given her no trouble since.

A man scheduled for surgery because of diabetes and complications was sent home without the operation because his urine and other tests were negative after you had treated him.

Another man with Addison's disease was benefitting from the treatments and his color and general health showed improvement, although he had to interrupt the treatments because of leaving town.

To me, the most remarkable cure of all is the case of a man who fractured vertebrae in his spine as the result of a fall. He was supposed to go into a cast within a week, but through your help, the back healed up completely in a few days and he had no need of the cast.

Warts have disappeared, and there have been many minor cures, but I enumerate only the cases which have been most outstanding.

I wish both you and Mrs. Mills the best of luck on your journey to Canada, and will be eagerly awaiting your return to Los Angeles! Several people whom you haven't met are anxious to see you as soon as you return.

With warmest regards,
Sincerely,

To whom it may concern:

It gives me great pleasure to say that through the agency of Mr. Reginald Mills Divine Healer the cataract on my right eye has quite disappeared.

I am grateful to God for this recovery, and thank J.M. Mills for his considerate attention.

Dear Mr. Mills:

May I say again how very much I have appreciated and benefitted from your treatments in helping me to regain health and strength after suffering as I did with multiple sclerosis less than a year ago. I often picture you giving me treatment and feel you will direct occasional thought vibrations this way. Keeping me and my feet on an even keel.

Let me know when you return and I do hope you and Mrs. Mills will have a most enjoyable and beneficial holiday. Am hoping to hear more details of Mexico if you arrive there!

Yours very sincerely,

Letter from K. H. Skard

Dear Friends:

I for my part am as healthy as a child: no pains whatever. I have no falls any more, and my cataract is entirely gone. Please let me hear from you soon.

Dear Mr. Mills:

I am writing to thank you for the help you have given me. As there is no visible and spectacular cure for migraine headaches, and as only the person who suffers from them can say whether they are better, I want to put in writing that the relief I have from pain, through your treatment, has been nothing short of wonderful. Not only do I say 'Thank you', but I hope that this letter may be of use to you in your work of 'divine healing'. You can be sure that my best wishes will be with you in your work, and with both you and Mrs. Mills for your future. I sincerely hope that I will continue to be free of headache, but you can be certain that in the event of any future pain, it is to you to whom I will return.

Yours sincerely

Dear Doctor Mills:

My ever grateful thanks goes first to God for you his wonderful healing channel whose hands have healed my body of its disorders.

I am most grateful to have avoided surgery for gallstones through your wonderful healing.

To those who are suffering from paralysis I can say this. I had instant healing thru Dr. Reginald Mills. I had no control of my right leg when I tried to walk I did not know which direction my foot would go. I didn't have the power to lift my foot from the ground making me shuffle rather than walk, was always in danger of falling.

When I heard of Dr. Mills' work I decided to try treatments.

The doctors I had gone to before had not been able to do anything for me. It was a case of creeping paralysis and gradually growing worse as time passed. After Dr. Mills' first treatment I went downstairs without holding the rail though a little unsure but when I got outside to my surprise I walked easy and fast as I had done years ago.

That was 9 months ago and am still walking that way. I am still amazed at the change after so many years of suffering and uncertainty.

ARE YOU PLAYING THE FOOL?

By Dr. W. D. Chesney

Phineus T. Barnum was one of the greatest showmen and one of the greatest slickers the world has known. Pink elephants, green rhinos, white hippos; he could produce at the wave of his magic wand. On being called on the carpet concerning these 'wonder' (same category as 'wonder' drugs, and situations) exhibits, he chortled, "The American people are never satisfied unless they are being humbugged."

Was he right? I have just returned from a visit to a large library to check up on both sides of the political situation before the general elections of 1948, 1952 and 1956. I read Democratic papers. I read Republican papers. And I am more firmly convinced than ever I have been in a fairly long life that Shakespeare knew 'em:

"A POLITICIAN, ONE WHO WOULD CIRCUMVENT GOD."

But, friends, we do not need to go back any farther than the daily newspapers to know that the worms are eating away at the heart of America, and through America the world. Let's take a short look at a newspaper that claims to be "The World's Greatest Newspaper." Just the last seven issues will amply show you what we are trying to point out. My I first quote the words of a great Roman satirist of about the time of Jesus Christ?

"Make many promises; for what harm can promises do? Any one can be rich in promises." (Ovid, Ars Amat. Book 1, 143) He was speaking of seduction. There are two kinds of seduction, viz., physical and mental. SEARCH magazine, April, 1958, page 26, exposes one of the most dastardly and criminal attempts to seduce the human mind that has occurred in 2000 years. And that diabolical invention, straight from Beelzebub is being used on every human being right now. The siren ditties drummed into our subconscious minds, via eyes and ears, lauding every form of degenerating cigaret, liquor, patent medicines, dentifrices, cosmetics, are the means employed by inconscionable rascals to seduce the mind. But, perhaps we are all wrong in pointing out the conspiracies against all that is good, pure, decent, Godly. Perhaps the whole 'mess' is what we like. Perhaps Cardinal Carafa (d. 1591) had humanity sized up right when he said, "Populus vult decipi; decipiatur." (The people love to be fooled; so, let's fool them.) Can it be possible that we Americans want to be fooled?

My father was sent by Lincoln to Topeka in 1863 and saw that he was elected County Attorney of Shawnee County, Kansas in 1864. His instruction from Abe Lincoln was to clean up Kansas, and later, if possible, get the James boys and the Youngers and see them hung for one of the really great crimes—The Lawrence Massacre. As a youngster, I used to see and talk with many of the cold-blooded gunslicks. I talked to Calamity Jane Canarray and still have her watch which she pawned to father to get $10.00 for a purpose you may well guess. I talked with Boston Corbett many times while he was a guard at the Kansas legislature in late '80s. All this is related, not for any self aggrandisement, but to assure you that we heard and were seduced by politicians before Lincoln had been gone a quarter century. Our adult males listened to the promises of political puleces irritans, voted, and helped perpetuate the villainy in governments we view today. And I say again, THINK NOW, for if you do not, the time is close at hand when the toxic physical and mental barrages launched against you, will forever put ALL beyond any possibility of THINKING.

About the time of the 1888 general elections, I heard a well known Kansas politician say, "I would not vote for Jesus if he ran on the blank party. I would vote for satan if he was on my party." Now, if we will just take a look at the promises made by both parties, and view the results, would it not be a good idea to vote for satan, in the first place, and get it over with in a hurry?

Take the un-FUNNIES in the newspapers of the last few days. "Hoover (FBI) says juvenile delinquency at highest point in history." "Ike Fires Head of F.C.C." You remember this was caused by some strange goings-on concerning the allotment of a TV channel. "Leopold Gets Freedom Today." We recall the fact that at least twelve so-called psychiatrists testified in this case. Half said he was insane. Half said he was sane. PSYCHIATRY! Is it another racket? Have you folks any idea the number of women who are violated during these psychiatric examinations? Did you know that many of the buzzards willfully and maliciously tell women to become adulteresses? And other doctors, because of that diabolical abortion called medical ethics, will not testify in cases where actual rape could be proved, if the family doctor would tell the truth. Wake up, doctors. Break your chains!

Did you read the American Mercury which described another diabolical crime committed by psychiatrists—the Lobotomy? Thank God, there are some decent doctors who condemn in the most vitriolic terms such crimes. Dr. Bailey, the noted Neuro-surgeon, for instance. One wonders if medical monopoly will do him what it did to Dr. Ivy because Ivy said he got promising results with Krebiozen. Remember? Get and read Benedict FitzGerald's report to the Senate Committee that was to investigate the following matter. May I repeat a portion of it? Maybe you will wake up and put your broken-down Congressmen to work for America. This Government document, made by ONE HONEST MAN in governmental service. Just a portion of this true servant's report accuses the a.m.a., the f.d.a., the U.S. Public Health Service and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, of conspiracies against the health of YOU and YOURS. The reports says, "Dr. Moore's rascality. . . ." (for the last ten years the treasurer of the a.m.a) The report makes it quite evident that Senator Bricker of Ohio, might be particeps criminis to the conspiracy to create diseases, perpetuate disease and death saecula saeculorum. Death to YOU and YOURS. Some have stated that this biped Bricker has actually destroyed this great document. If he has not, let him produce it. It is said, with considerable ground for belief that the a.m.a spent unlimited money to re-elect this—you name him. I do not use that kind of language.

The report, furthermore, states, "BEHIND AND OVER ALL OF THIS IS THE WEIRDEST CONGLOMERATION OF CORRUPT MOTIVES, INTRIGUE, JEALOUSY, SELFISHNESS, OBSTRUCTION AND CONSPIRACY THAT I HAVE EVER SEEN." You are getting actual statements from an expert investigator in criminal jurisprudence. He knew criminals. He knew crimes. He demanded a sweeping investigation of all these crimes and their perpetrators. And FitzGerald says, "HOW LONG WILL THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TAKE THIS?" Folks, I have told you hundreds of such governmentascalities, I have told you where to get the evidence, I have, I'm sure pointed out that Rep. Frank O'Keefe deplored and condemned the hundreds and hundreds of coal tar poisons and other toxic substances in everything YOU must eat, drink and breathe. This was in 1949. Are WE dumb enough to believe that Congress was honest, aboveboard and free from the most grave suspicion, of the Iscariot price? In 1951. Representative Delaney, Chairman House Select Committee to investigate poisons in everything a human uses, wrote an article for American Magazine, "PERIL ON YOUR FOOD SHELF." He told of the most ghastly effects on human beings from all these poisons. He infers that a good percentage of all mental cases are caused by these damnable chemicals we MUST use, for we get them whether we will or not.

For going on nearly a half century the few decent and honest men in Congress have been trying to bring a stop to all this mass poisoning, yet it increases every day. Write to our junketeering, juggling congressmen to do something for America. For nearly half a century Congress has known we are being poisoned physically, and now we are about to be poisoned mentally—hence spiritually.

Well, we have just been reading how that man heading the F.C.C. was caught with his unmentionables down. In the investigation it was proved that a high ranking member of the House committee had put his own daughter on the public payroll for 4 years for $12,000, while she was going to High School at Camdenton, Missouri. I have hundreds of such proofs of rascality in government. Now right here, in my newspaper I find proof of the fearful state of dishonesty in our armed forces abroad. You read it, but did you digest the fact that nylon hose were one of our principal first lines of defense? Don't laugh that one off, for it came out in Congress.

Already we are witnessing more rascality in Congressmen. I have had letters written them, and have the usual double dye, double-cross, double dealing replies, signed by some of these choice parties in Congress. Some have written that they know nothing about the O'Keefe matter, the Delaney matter, the FitzGerald matter. And furthermore, you can easily read between the lines, without using your glasses, they don't give a single tinker's dam. Some of them have written actual lies—is that new to most Congressmen?—concerning the situation. (I'm a letter getter, keeper. I got it from father, he got it from one of those honest type Presidents, Abe Lincoln.) For a very long time now men of good will have pointed out the tragedy surely to fall on mankind. 25,000,000 humans have been killed in the sacred name of Jesus Christ. Do you imagine that a career politician would hesitate in the performance of any crime to gain the ends that hagiology has committed to gain its ends?

Here is a poem by Hilair Belloc, we should all learn and act on it, for there is just no good in a career politician. The great George Washington said, "The office should seek the man, not the man the office." Here is the Belloc rhapsody in z minor:

"Here richly, with ridiculous
display

The politician's corpse was laid away.

While all his acquaintances
sneered and slanged,

I wept; for I had longed to see him hanged."

Here is why one must feel that way, if he is a human. Last month a great—in subscriptions—farm journal, said that a certain U.S. f.d.a. party had declared the most deadly insecticides harmless. You know that bureau contains the one dangest bunch of prevaricators under one large roof, for I, W.D. Chesney, can show at least one hundred statements made by that same gang, that that insectide was—to express it in my own language—a real man killer, as well as a slaughterer for all life. You remember that it was that same f.d.a. that was charged by that one honest government investigator, Fitz-Gerald as one of the parties guilty of conspiring to keep you sick, and kill you slowly. And I, the old fool who is trying oh so hard to save YOU, "believe it or not," I ask you to again read my piece in April SEARCH, especially the written words of A. Lincoln, Wilson and Lord Maccauley. And I ask you this: "Who would you rather believe, the modern politicians, or one A. Lincoln?"

The writer has at this moment, letters from various bureaucrats on government perpetual pensions living off all of us, in dolce far niente that would shame the very demon, telling me that I was crazy (I'm proud of that because that's what other politicians said about Jesus the Christ. The really accurate translation direct from Aramaic, the language—the only language that Jesus and His disciples spoke, that of Lamsa, himself an Aramaean—tells us that the Jewish ecclesiastical politicians said, "Thou art crazy. Who goeth about to kill thee?" So I'm in good company in trying to save your bodies, while Jesus Christ tried to save men's souls.) From the same bureaucratic career politicians, I have letters TELLING ME ABSOLUTE-LY OPPOSITE.

And those letters are from the f.d.a., the U.S.D.A., from our perpetually perigrinating Congressmen (both houses). I have correspondence from one and all of them proving black is white, food is poison, poison is food, right is wrong and vice versa. Due to former incidents from politicians, in which my home was burned, three laboratories were burglarized and set on fire with the evident attempt to destroy evidence, my present records are beyond their reach. Some day soon I hope to display them in print photostats. "But," say you, "this is America. They just don't do these things here." To which I say, "The heck they don't. I have the absolute proof in good black and white." Try this one on for size: About two years ago, before there was any seeming threat of depression, I accidently got hold of some news that almost floored me. After some difficulty I persuaded Lawrence Smith (Rep. Wisconsin) to obtain some records from the Census Bureau. That record is in a safe place. But it stated that even in those lush days of political hooley this:

THERE WERE NEARLY FIVE MILLION FAMILIES—not individuals, but families—with incomes of less than one thousand dollars a year. THINK. While we were forcing peoples all over God's green earth to accept our billions, FIVE MILLION AMERICAN FAMILIES IN THIS COUNTRY HAD LESS THAN IT WOULD TAKE TO FEED A PRIZE HOG.

What a wonderful time for us all to stop and take stock by reading our great Free Press just about October, 1956—the mess was to be cleaned out. Criminal career politicians were to take up permanent residences in federal prisons, income taxes were to be lowered, 28½ billion dollars was to be saved by cutting out pork barrel easy spots for another set of political you know whats. Oh Brothers and Sisters! Then came the usual smoke screen—we must spend additional billions to save us from Russian Communism. Well, we had armed Russia to protect us against Japan and Germany. Now we are arming Germany and Japan to keep the Russians off our necks. The Japs used our own weapons to kill Americans.

May I tell you a great secret? This double talk about what a Sputnik can do to us is all prop wash. The same with their ICBMs. Our 'boys' in Washington know right now that there are very many implacements in Siberia to shoot radioactive cobalt into the air and let the ever present, never ending air currents bring it and set it down on your back steps. Can't be done? During W.W. II, the Japs did damage to our west coast by sending incendiary-explosive balloons on us. The rich pay off is this, our career politicians are raining radioactive materials down on us galore. If you doubt, consult your MYSTIC, or SEARCH over the last five years. If you further doubt, ASK RAY PALMER TO INTRODUCE SOME OF MY POSITIVE EVIDENCE IN MY BOOK HE IS NOW PRINTING I've got some stuff that will make your hair stand on end. You see, fellow passengers to the sink, most honest folks read of all these crimes against YOU and YOURS, AND FORGET. I read, remember, clip, photostat, file and keep. Did you know that, while your S.S. may be about $50.00 a month after you reach 65, our Babes in the Woods in government draw many times that much at 62. And here are records of Congressmen, who were actually guilty of treason, drawing lush pensions from their residence in the pen. Not long since we killed two foolish Jews who sold military secrets to Russia. Why weren't these Congressmen given the hot seat?

Now we positively know that cigarets are the prime cause in lung cancer, hypertension, all circulatory diseases—heart, Buerger's. We know that, Congress knows that, the President knows that (if not why did he reportedly stop smoking them?) the a.m.a. knows it and has so stated. (Yet a.m.a. did not mind 'picking up the demnition gold and silver' by running ads for cigarets). The f.d.a.

knows it. The U.S. Public Health Service knows it. In fact it is general knowledge with people that read and remember. Everybody who read Cicero's Orations Against Catalina, should remember his words and apply them to our own Catalinas. Let's just quote a bit of it, supplying the names of a few bureaucrats, "How long will you try our patience, Oh you human devils? The Senate knows of these diabolical crimes against mankind. The House knows of them. The President and his cabinet know them, yet you have the gall to stalk into our midst." I cannot give you the remainder. It might be considered lese majeste'.

Here is one from Germany's greatest medical journal pointing out cancer developing from insecticides, X-rays, stilbesterol, and hundreds of other chemical additives to our foods. And, here is some more government chicanery for your little (BIG) black book. Recognizing the stark tragedies behind cigarets, a Representative in Congress vainly tried to get a bill through forcing these panderers of murder to put a skull and crossbones on each pack. Did he get this great humanitarian deed adopted. HE DID NOT. Who got what? Who paid?

Another from the a.m.a., journal, September 14, 1957. (Remember, the journal goes to doctors.

Has your doctor told you about the disasters now facing you from poisons in everything? Why has he not done so?) This issue of the a.m.a. corporation, commercial house organ, tells us that Senator Bennett, Utah, has introduced an amendment to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act and is intended to offer us idiots who smoke cigarets, a caveat emptor before we enrich the Tobacco Trust any further. This must be on each package—if the bill passes, which it definitely will not because the Tobacco Bandits are more powerful than good government—

“Prolonged use of this product may result in cancer in the lung, heart and circulatory ailments, and in other diseases.”

Representative Fino of New York introduced a bill to provide: “Cigarets sold in interstate commerce shall be packaged and marked so as to show the nicotine content and the tar content in each package.”

Will that bill pass such a Congress as now obtains? That's a real joke, that question. Only a direct intervention by Providence would get this protection from cigaret makers. No, gentle reader, nothing will be done just as nothing has been done by Congress in the last half century to stop mass poisoning of Americans, by Americans, for the benefit of commercialism, and career politicians. I mentioned, in the foregoing, that I had seen articles in a large farm journal and had written the editor condemning two articles from our government gangs and conspirators. I sent him original documents proving my condemnations true. He replied that he would accept the reports from Washington. THEN I TOOK HIS SHEET AND WENT THROUGH IT WORD BY WORD. I FOUND AD AFTER AD FOR THESE POISONS. IN OTHER WORDS, THIS MAN WAS THINKING OF HIS BLOOD STAINED THIRTY PIECES. AND TODAY BRINGS ME MUCH JOY, BECAUSE:

Blue panties Strauss has been caught in one of his most vicious lies and Congress is surely riding his neck. The sonofagun gave out the report that a test bomb underground did not affect anything over 200 miles distant. And the fact, he is now forced to admit is it really rocked and rolled 'em in Alaska, over 2300 miles away. It's said by reputable folks that the shock was felt in Russia. Did I tell you that I mined Carnotite in my own prospect in 1919, and found at the time the disastrous effects of even weak Uranium ores on those who contacted it? Furthermore, I have a long list of statements made by B.P. Strauss over the years that prove him what he knows he is—this space is left for you to fill in.

And today, an officer of the medical society called on me with strong protests against what I have written and you have read. I got out some records, and I firmly believe he is going to resign from his society of medical misinformation. Oh! there are uncounted decent, honest and honorable medical doctors who long to practice medicine in the way Hippocrates would approve. And I received another letter from a party in Bureaucratsville, D.C., stating that the rottenness proved in U.S. F.C.C. and A.E.C. is the assurance of congressional investigations of all those villainous mongrels that head many of the bureaucratic buzzards roosts that we would be overpaying if we gave them nothing.

In the same mail a letter from Washington friend stating that some villain in the Food and Drug administration is spending enormous sums on a TV program, Channel 5, March 19th, on a lying, a diabolical, an inhuman, an infamous film, called, "THE MEANEST CRIME IN THE WORLD." It is an attack by a.m.a. and f.d.a. on the Hoxsey treatment—a treatment that has cured thousands of cancers, after the patients were given up to die by orthodox medical ogres.

This is the same f.d.a. that permits thousands of poisons in our foods, drinks and air. The same f.d.a. that knows cigarets are causing hundreds of thousands of deaths annually. The same f.d.a. that crawls before villains in medicine and commercialism. The same f.d.a. that wrote me, and others that all government certified colors were safe, and non-cancer making. The same f.d.a. that does not list, in a way that all may see and be warned, the disasters threatening humanity from stilbestrol, paraffin and mineral oil. The same f.d.a. that, after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that bleached flour was unfit for food, nevertheless, issued licenses to millers to bleach flour. The same f.d.a. that knows the quantity of flour flavors, rotten eggs, synthetic colors, and a host of coal tar synthetics, in baker's concoctions, yet does nothing. The same f.d.a. that knows of several cancer treatments that are curing cancer, and yet, at the order of a medical monopoly, persecutes those known cancer cures. The same f.d.a. that sent out agents to threaten patients that were cured of cancer with dire penalties. The same f.d.a. that has stated and will again state that this bunch of villains did investigate the Hoxsey treatment, the Drochnes-Lazenby treatment, the Koch treatment, and other successful treatments—and lied like their sire Satan. The same f.d.a. that knows of the advertisements for cigarets, poisonous patent medicines, and a hundred other kinds of toxic garbage and does nothing.

I can list hundreds of other equally contumacious and culpable crimes done by members of that bureau. The u.s.d.a. needs a few attentions. This bureaucratic buzzard's roost also issued permits to bleach flour after the Supreme Court had ruled this product unfit for human consumption. The same usda that has advised the most poisonous insecticides in farming—poisons we find in every morsel of cereal grains, vegetables and fruits. There was a time when there was so much poison on American apples that Britain refused to permit them entrance. It's probably worse today. Yes, it was one of those villains who said, "Of course there is DDT (darned deadly and toxic) on that apple. But it won't hurt Johnny too much if he only ate one apple." Assassin, how much is 'too' much? Suppose Johnny ate three apples, you villain without love for God or man?

A Supreme Court that looses known conspirators to wreck our America! Senators and Congressmen foresworn and many traitors. Did you know about the man from Kentucky, who was sent to the Pen for treason, and drew a high pension through the grated doors? Congressman May, No? Do you remember the incident in which an Oklahoma Senator threatened to expose the rascality of the Senator from Michigan? The latter remarked "If the Oklahoma senator opens his mouth, I will offer his campaign malfeasances in evidence before the Senate." FINIS. No exposures.

"Villains, villians, damned smiling villains.

That one should smile and smile and be a villain."

Lincoln said, (See Search, April 1958) "A crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble. . . . corruption in high places. . . . and the republic is destroyed." Government rascality assassinated Abraham Lincoln. It has been positively proved that the spirit of Abe Lincoln stalks through the White House. This statement is confirmed by Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Queen Wilhelmina and others I have contacted. It is said, that at times, he wrings his hands and moans as he walks. God, is it any wonder?

And why do I, a man far too near the end of his earth life to lie, or accuse falsely, take this risk of assassination, or worse? I have taken human life in my younger days. I hope to erase some of my Karma by whatever name designated. Many friends have written me that they fear for my safety. They wonder what form of revenge by persons in government, or medical despotism will be my lot. I have prepared and placed in places of greatest safety, much evidence. In case of any regrettable incident the evidence will be available. Is this real protection? I doubt it. But that's the way it is. When one realizes that federal judges refused to permit the introduction of hundreds of witnesses, who were willing to disrobe to show the scars where there had once been cancer, and their solemn oaths that Hoxsey had cured them. When we note that a U.S. Senator refuses to allow the positive evidence of cancers cured to be known. When we see our noble country (once) lie in bed with the British assassins who machine gunned down 1500 innocent Egyptians. And with the French assassins who machine gunned down innumerable folk of Tunisia. When we send our living to communist countries. When we refuse to stop and consider the crimes committed against the real owners of America.

When we witness, without emotion, starving of our own countrymen. When we see a government that permits the installation of literally thousands of poisons into everyman's food, drink and air. When we witness the abject brutality of those who have sworn to protect human life, and feloniously attempt to prevent their malfeasance to be known.

When we consider that members of the most noble calling on earth, when worthily and honestly practiced—THE HEALING PROFESSION—reject known cures for cancer. Who shall say? In the days of my folks in the days of 'bleeding' Kansas, nearly all outlaws sent word of intention to murder. These men were outlaws. Our present brand of rascals are ABOVE THE LAWS. But YOU, and YOU only, can change that by: REFUSING TO ELECT ANY MAN TO PUBLIC OFFICE UNLESS HE MAKES A SIGNED, WITNESSED AFFIDAVIT TO PASS THE INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM LAW. AN ACT THAT WILL ENABLE YOU TO REMOVE FROM PUBLIC LIFE WHETHER ELECTED, OR APPOINTED, FROM THE VERY TOP TO THE VERY BOTTOM, ANY ONE WHO IS SUSPECT. If the aspirant to office will not make and sign such a guarantee of honesty, in office, refuse to vote for him.

About your usual source of news, may I introduce to you the author, Sheridan's evidence, "The newspapers! Sir, they are the most villainous, licentious, abominable, infernal. . . ."

Fellow Americans, you can correct all of these awful threats to your God, your country and yourselves. We still have the ballot. Use it now for the day is coming when you will find the same situation that obtains in Russia—one candidate for each office.

As far as I personally am concerned as to what form of revenge that those I have exposed, may seek to inflict on me, I am on borrowed time. I can only say with Hamlet Prince of Denmark:

“Why, what should be the fear?
I do not set my life at a pin’s fee.
And, for my soul, what can they do to that,
Being a thing immortal as itself?”

BEAUTY AT A PRICE?

Chest X-rays of two young women caused some scientific hair to stand on end. Both sets of lungs showed an extensive “infiltration process” which meant that something was being breathed into the lungs but was not being breathed out.

That isn’t good, as you will see, and so, three doctors investigated the young women with a who-done-it thoroughness. Neither worked with chemicals nor in places where there were fumes of any sort. There seemed no clue until it was found that both used hair sprayers.

As Drs. Martin Bergmann, Jeromz Franck, and Herman T. Blumenthal of Jewish Hospital, St. Louis, remarked in their report:

“Hair spray is currently one of the most widely used cosmetic preparations.” But off-hand you might not think users inhaled much of the stuff, they added.

But the residue of a hair spray was injected into guinea pigs and after the passage of enough time to permit “transportation,” the scientists found clear changes in certain cells of liver and spleen. They were characteristic of changes known to go with substantial infiltration of foreign substances with large molecules into human chemistry. Among these substances are natural and synthetic resins such as those used in hair sprays.

In body chemistry these substances are very slowly broken down and disposed of. While this is going on, they’re kept in storage in fat depots. The extent of the harm which could come from this is not thoroughly understood—it might be extreme or slight. But the potential is one to take very seriously and that is why the doctor’s report was published by the New England Journal of Medicine.

The SECRETS of OUTER SPACE

Dr. F. Y. Zigel (Astronomical-Geodesical Society)

Here we present an article written by a Soviet astronomer. So that our readers may know what is going on in the Soviet Union, and the discoveries made by their scientists, SEARCH will present, from time to time, authoritative articles by the most respected of Russian scientists, those of world wide reputation and proven ability

The Soviet Union has launched its second Sputnik. It will aid scientists in acquiring quite a lot of wonderful information on the Earth, the atmosphere, and conditions of flight in the cosmos.

Other Earth satellites will be launched in the future, too. It is impossible to have one Sputnik contain all the apparatus necessary for various types of research. Therefore, the next Sputniks will be equipped with special instruments for research of the Earth's magnetic field, cosmic rays, etc.

The so-called "gaseous tail" of the Earth presents a far from clear picture. However, this peculiar train of gas particles extends in a direction opposite to the Sun, reaching nearly to the Moon. Until now it has been extremely difficult to study this "gaseous tail," since it has always been observed from the Earth's surface, i.e. through the layer of atmosphere, which diffuses many rays.

Early in the night, in the western part of the heavens one can often see a cold, whitish luminescence. This is another secret of the cosmos, the "Zodiacal light." Until now the cause of this lumination has been unknown. Future Sputniks will help study this cloud.

In the near future it will be possible to study cosmic rays "in their natural state," to study cosmic rays that have not first gone through the thick filter of the atmosphere. This for one, will make possible to gain greater knowledge of nuclear forces.

The International Geophysical Year is being conducted during a year when the number of sun spots is the greatest. The life of the Earth is in many ways dependent on conditions existing on the Sun. Next year, a year when the Sun's activity will be at its height, we can expect much interference in radio broadcasts, big changes in meteorological conditions, and changes in the ionosphere. With the aid of the Sputniks, it will be possible to follow the general dissimulation of cloud banks over the Earth's surface, a fact of great importance to meteorology.

One can go on and on, describing the possibilities for research with the aid of the future Sputniks. It is known, that under definite conditions in the cosmos, objects lose their weight. It will be possible to launch hundreds of rockets to a great height, approximating 3,000-5,000 kilometres above the Earth's surface and then create giant Sputniks from their hulls. These Sputnik-research institutes will be the basis for research of the celestial bodies and will also serve as refueling stations for interplanetary rockets.

There is no atmosphere to diffuse rays at such great heights. And this will create extremely favorable conditions for studying the cosmic bodies, planets, stars, and nebulae from the Sputnik-research institutes.

If we sit back and dream a bit, we can visualise great telescopes, ten-thousand powered and over, hanging in interplanetary space. Such telescopes have been the age-old dream of scientists of all countries. Their great importance is obvious, if one considers that modern telescopes cannot magnify more than 700 times. If the magnifying power is increased greatly, the distortion becomes so great that astronomers can no longer make use of this data. There are other reasons for creating such instruments. Thus, by making use of the zero-g factor of objects in interplanetary space, one can create telescopes of any size which will make it possible to "bring closer" hundreds of thousands times the farthest stars and planets.

So far, however, this is only fantasy. We have many problems which must be solved in the nearest future. Thus, despite the fact that the Moon is comparatively close to the Earth, it is still in many ways a mystery to scientists.

What actually is happening in the depths of the Moon and on its surface? Until now we have been able to judge of all this only from the most approximate observations through our telescopes, but as yet, no one has found out the nature of the strange, ever-changing greenish spots which appear at times on the bottom of several of the Moon's craters. Then again, the craters themselves remain a mystery. Quite recently small new craters appeared for reasons still unknown, on the bottom of the Plato circus.

Besides, we do not know why strange whitish clouds appear in some areas of the Moon. In the near future we shall be able to study these phenomena with the aid of Sputniks aligned on predetermined orbits. Then, the complete disappearance of the gigantic Alkhazen crater, with a diameter of 40 kilometres, will cease being a mystery.

What catastrophe took place on the Moon if such a crater could disappear so quickly and leave no trace? What are the processes going on inside the Earth's natural satellite—the Moon? We expect to have the answer to all these questions in the very near future.

THE END

Protest Kills Try Of Subliminal TV

Public opinion murdered Hollywood's first timid attempt at televised subliminal perception before it could be demonstrated on the air.

The now-you-see-it, now-you-don't process of communicating with viewers was to make its debut on station KTLA in April, but station bigwigs were scared off by mountains of mutinous mail.

General manager Lou Arnold announced last January that KTLA would flash public service messages—"Drive carefully," "Lock your doors at night"—to viewers at a rate (1/500th of a second) too fast for the conscious eye to see, though they'd register on the subconscious.

"We have been deluged with phone calls, letters and petitions," the harried Arnold says. "Church groups, P-TA, women's clubs and other organizations poured letters into the station. Doctors and teachers objected violently, too.

"People were afraid they'd be propagandized into doing things or buying products against their wills. They frequently described subliminal communication as 'sneaky.' They demanded to know what they were watching at all times."

Ninety-nine per cent of the mail was strongly opposed to the idea. Female objectors far outnumbered males.

"I doubt if we will attempt subliminal communication again until it is generally accepted by the public," Arnold said.

"Like it or not, subliminal perception is coming in the future. There is no doubt that it is a new method of communication and a means of education."

HOSTILE SAUCERS

By

Jim Wentworth

SAUCER enthusiasts are not a special breed of people. Among them are to be found the egotists, the selfish, the ambitious, the temperamental, the scrupulous. Not to forget (among other human characteristics) the prejudiced.

Yes, the prejudiced, many of whom will argue red-faced on the benevolence of the visiting aliens, pointing out that as they have been coming here for thousands of years, any designs they might have had to conquer or destroy the Earth would have been done long ages ago.

No, says this type of enthusiast with fist-pounding finality, the extra-terrestrials of superior intelligence are here through their philanthropy. Wishing us no harm, they are vitally concerned over our hydrogen and atomic tests which they fear may yet wipe out all earthly life. Especially so if those hellish weapons are used in an all out nuclear war.

When a story breaks into screaming print of apparent saucer hostility, the enthusiasts cry out: "Accidental!" Ah, but is it? Really?

In his book FLYING SAUCERS ON THE ATTACK, Harold T. Wilkins repeatedly warns that to believe in the friendly intentions of all space visitors is unhealthy and dangerous, and that we had better fast-awaken from this illusion.

Another author who shares Wilkins' views of hostile saucer entities is T. (Trevor) James who, in 1956, wrote SPACEMEN—FRIENDS AND FOES. This comprises two booklets, each of 18-page length, and makes grim reading.

As a world traveler and professional seagoing radio operator, T. James is of the Christian Science religion. Always had he believed in other-world intelligences, and it was the reading of the better-known flying saucer books that got him interested in the subject.

So many varying viewpoints and conclusions as to their origin, purposes and nature left him understandably confused. One author praised their friendliness. Another warned of their hostility. T. James wrote his booklets for one reason:

to clarify the saucer mystery so that the reader could critically judge for himself any truth or falsehood.

But first authentic contact had to be made. How? One place he felt impelled to visit was Giant Rock. This was a desert airstrip, remotely located between Victorville and Twenty-nine Palms in California, reputed as a long-time landing group for aliens.

Here he met George Van Tassel, owner of Giant Rock and author of I RODE A FLYING SAUCER, whom he describes as "Middle-aged, balding, of average size, one of the pioneers of 'communication' with the space ships."

And this alien communication was made possible through telepathy in a dark, hollowed-out room beneath the seventy-foot high Giant Rock.

All sorts of messages from the space beings followed, some forecasting future events. As an example, saucer fans are only too familiar with the events of June, 1952, when saucers "buzzed" the National Capitol and White House in Washington, D.C., on the nights of the 25th, 26th and 27th.

"Van Tassel," informs T. James, "has a receipt from Air Force Intelligence, Washington, dated June 23, 1952, for a message passed to them by the saucer beings stating that the Pentagon was to be given 'something to muddle over,' and we are going to give this old globe a buzz."

LATER, away from Giant Rock where T. James believed authentic contact had been made, he was anxious to try for himself the method of training for telepathic reception given to him earlier by Van Tassel.

T. James practiced earnestly. Several months passed with no results. Then it came—genuine messages by telepathy in a conscious, waking state, the communicator being Ashtar, Commandant, Vela Quadra Sector, Realms of Schare.

As an "etheric" being who had evolved beyond a physical and astral body, Ashtar did not possess the fleshly body of a human. Normally unseen, he could produce self-visibility to human optics by converting the vibrational frequency of his own body.

In ROUND TRIP TO HELL IN A FLYING SAUCER, Cecil Michael tells how two humanoid aliens repeatedly appeared and disappeared before his very eyes in his auto repair shop. Who were they? A couple of etheric pranksters?

Likewise, there is Kenneth Arnold whose June 24, 1957 sighting added the words "flying saucers" to the world's vocabulary. Arnold has made the claim that "unseen entities" have visited him at his home. He believes they were saucer pilots, living beings—definitely not ghosts.

Invisible at all times, uncommunicative, he was aware of their presence when, as the aliens walked about the room, his rugs and furniture sank down under their weight. When they sat on various objects, the results were the same. (See FLYING SAUCERS ON THE ATTACK. Page 67)

Editor's note: Where Wilkins got this is a mystery! It is absolutely and 100% untrue! We have Mr. Arnold's unequivocal statement that nothing of the sort occurred, and that he wishes it made a matter of record. FLYING SAUCERS takes this opportunity to state flatly that Wilkins is mistaken.

ALL other beings of our solar system's various planets are etheric, too, and quite visible to each other. They live much as we do, the big difference being that they do not possess the dense, physical "casing" of humans. The conversion of an etheric can be done so perfectly that an Earthling would never think of him as other than a fellow human.

Because of the importance of etheric matter, let us dwell upon it more carefully.

Ashtar explained that where he comes from they have all the elements known about on Earth—and many more. The etheric form of these metals differs in its atomic and molecular structure from earthly made metals.

In etheric iron, for example, the distance between the nucleus and the orbiting electrons is much greater than in terrestrial iron. This enables the atoms of our steel to pass completely through the atoms of etheric steel. And it is done in such a way that nothing happens to either form of steel.

Due to etheric steel vibrating at a higher rate than earthly steel, it is not registered on human eyesight. However, under favorable circumstances it can be seen. Such as when in the presence of certain terrestrial atmospheric gases. Or at the desire of the space ship's operator.

Etheric ships, normally a part of the invisible world, have been made visible at will to and for certain human individuals. George Adamski, one of those selected, was thus able to photograph them. Ashtar, therefore, vouched for the authenticity of Adamski's controversial space ship photographs.

Etheric substance cannot be damaged or injured by physical matter. This applies to any etheric object, from a pebble to a space craft.

At one questioning session, Ashtar gave the measurement of a heel-shaped craft in which he was then present about two hundred miles above the little Pacific island of Eniwetok proving grounds. His craft was fifteen miles long and fourteen miles wide, housing some 200 discs (or flying saucers) and thousands of etherics!

THE phenomena of the strange green fireballs first showed up around Albuquerque, New Mexico, in the latter part of November, 1948. Since then, reports have been coming in freely.

Because they bore some resemblance to meteors and meteorites, Dr. Lincoln La Paz of the University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics, was summoned. After careful investigation, he, unlike other astronomers, did not believe them to be natural meteors or meteorites. He opined that they differed in several respects.

- (1) Their greenness was much more vivid.
- (2) Their trajectory was far too flat.
- (3) They were overly big for meteors.
- (4) They always moved silently.
- (5) They left no particle to be found.

Enigmatic fireballs (green and otherwise), continue to be seen in various parts of the United States. Fifty were reported over eastern states in 1950. Especially numerous, too, were they in the spring of 1955.

On one occasion—April 5th of that year—two objects streaked silently through the morning skies of New Mexico. Meteors, remember, produce a terrific racket. Believed to be fireballs, one was a brilliant green, the other a brilliant white.

For two meteorites to fall in New Mexico in one day would be incredible. Incredible for orthodox meteorites, as claimed by Dr. La Paz.

Nothing was found of the fireballs. Ditto a third fireball which shot over New Mexico the following day—April 6th—and yet a fourth on the day after!

That was the last straw for the good doctor. Now he made the flat statement, openly and more vociferously, that because of the objects' silence and other odd characteristics, they could not be ordinary meteorites!

Is there any direct relationship between them and the flying saucers? Ashtar had something to say about this. Yes, there was a definite connection, he admitted.

Fireballs of that type are dropped from etheric craft to nullify certain radioactive effects which earthly scientists are unaware they are releasing. Thus is the poisoning of humans prevented. Etherics cannot intervene actively in the cessation of the dangerous nuclear bomb testing explosions. Still, they must do everything possible to prevent the wanton destruction of human life that could be the result of the experiments.

Despite the official denials of our scientists that our weather has been affected by nuclear experiments, on June 11, 1956, Ashtar claimed the opposite to be true. The resultant change, he announced sorrowfully, is irrevocable, permanent. Our seasons have been shifted ahead by eight weeks! Alarmingly, our axis has been disturbed!

Ashtar predicted considerable climatic havoc which has certainly come to pass. Have we not experienced unprecedented torrential rains, winds, record-breaking low temperatures, floods, earthquakes, etc?

The atomic and hydrogen blasts affect our whole atmosphere, penetrating beyond into the solar system. Reactions go unnoticed by our scientists.

A characteristic of the green fireballs when observed is that the air contains detectable copper. True. This is part of their function, most of which are seen in the vicinity of atomic installations and laboratories. Two points grimly stressed by Ashtar were:

(1) Not all fireballs are released from etheric ships upon the orders of the Heavenly Father.

(2) Not all fireballs have the same purpose. Some are released from hostile saucers.

Again the uninitiated reader new to the flying saucer mystery is confronted with the above term. Just who, or what, pilots them?

Familiar with the Shaver Mystery, T. James asked about the underground degenerates known as "deros."

Ashtar confirmed the existence of a greatly degenerate race, but stated they dwelt at the Earth's core, these forces of Satan! And they are an "astral" race, cruel to surface man, merciless, utterly unmoral. That is where they are mainly degenerate, not so much in science, but in morals as we know and understand the term.

They emerge in their astral craft near the south magnetic pole and circle the globe with speeds not greatly exceeding 3,000 miles per hour. Compared to the etherics, their craft are clumsy, primitive, but still vastly advanced over man-made aircraft.

Their sojourns in space are confined within the astral regions around the Earth. Earthbound, there is a limit to the altitude the astrals can attain. This is 125,000 miles. To quote:

"At certain times of the year, travel to the moon is possible to the astrals when the astral shells of the two bodies overlap. When these shells separate, however, any entities on the moon are cut off from the earth until the next time the astral shells overlap. No physical or Astral Entity can go beyond the earth-moon system."

As mentioned previously, only etherics inhabit other planets of our solar system. However, only on Earth are there two kinds of beings—physical and astral. This takes in the Earth-Moon system.

INSERTED here is an oft-asked question.

"What," T. James wanted to know, "is the relationship between the sightings of space craft and the proximity of Mars to Earth?"

He was told: "There is, in fact, no real relationship, only one which seems to be present. When Mars approaches Shan (Earth) there is what I shall describe as an etheric reaction between the two. The result of this reaction is that craft in your skies become more easily visible to your optics. In actual fact there are no more and no less craft in your skies during Mars' proximity than at any other time. The difference lies in what is available to your physical optics."

Yes, alien craft are made up of a material that is akin to, but of a higher vibratory form than, earthly matter. Therefore, they are not normally visible to our eyes.

In summation:

Etheric craft are genuine interplanetary craft, friendly and helpful to Earthlings. Their disc or heel-shaped machines give off red, green and white lights, often flashing alternately. They can travel at light-speed, and in multiples of this speed.

Astral craft, a pseudo space craft, are from our planet's interior, and, capable of reaching a speed of approximately 3,000 miles per hour, can attain only a certain altitude from the Earth's surface: 125,000 miles. Their craft are mostly cigar-shaped, infrequently giving off a white or bluish white light, usually constant rather than flashing.

These latter are the hostile saucers, long responsible for innumerable acts of violence against our surface, and having active human agents who are devoid of mercy and ethics.

GRAY BARKER in his THEY KNEW TOO MUCH ABOUT FLYING SAUCERS, tells how saucer investigators were threatened, and silenced, by grim-faced men in black suits. One of these men, sitting in a car in Australia, was identified as "a known criminal." Are we to gather from this that surface agents of the astrals are chosen from the non-law abiding citizenry of Earth?

Another question: Are Shaver's legendary deros and the astrals from Earth's core one and the same?

Answer by Ashtar: "No. The Dero are no longer confined to the caves of legend and story but are reincarnated again upon your surface. Many of your eminent scientists on Earth, driving forward with the perfection of ever more prodigious blast forces, are reincarnated Deros. Because of their prior lives as cannibals and degenerate beings, they are prone to exert themselves for destructive ends, since they fall easily under the astral influence."

Here may be the answer as to why some human scientists have disgustedly refused to pervert their talents for destructive purposes, while others seem to flourish best perfecting destruction.

Further vital information pertaining to the astrals was imparted by Ashtar, and worthy of quoting in full. When asked: "What is the nature of the astral regions around the Earth?" he answered:

"The astral world is divided into two broad sections. First, there are the bodiless entities from your surface, the so-called dead people, who must become incarnate again in order to qualify to pass on completely to the etheric state. Some of these entities are awaiting what will be their last incarnation. Others are those who have had their carnate existence terminated abruptly or accidentally, such as soldiers and criminals. All these entities have in common the intense desire to become fleshly once more, in order that they may carry out something left undone, or else may qualify to be no longer earthbound when their incarnations terminate. This is the Garden of Waiting. There are also the monstrosities and phantasmagoria which are degenerate thought forms. The other great section of the astral world is the astral regions of evil which surround and interpenetrate Earth, inhabited by beings who are forever discarnate and forever earthbound by decree of the great God of the Universe. These beings cannot enter the Garden of Waiting. It is against these forces that we of the etheric world are warring."

ASHTAR revealed that the moon contains life, the entities being physical in form and astral (like Earth's morally degenerate underground race) in activity and allegiance. They, also, are allied with Satan.

For the past two hundred years, approximately, there has been much, much evidence of lunar activity, all reported by reputable astronomers such as Sir John Herschel, Gruithuisen, Miller, and a host of others. Modern astronomers include Britisher Dr. H. P. Wilkins, and Americans Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper and James C. Bartlett, Jr.

Observed were such enigmas as strange bright lights (sometimes blinking intermittently—at other times appearing as a beacon), geometrical patterns resembling city streets, dark objects crossing the moon's surface, inexplicable mists, craters that appear, disappear and change shape, the 1954 discovery of an artificial lunar bridge (?) of twenty mile length, increasing appearance of indentation-topped domes. The lunar enigmas go on and on.

Astral craft are piloted by many beings. They may be human type entities in the astral body, or elementals, sub-human slaves of the astrals. Or astral monsters, gigantic in size, not subject to our gravity, utterly terrifying to a human observer.

That humans have been so terrified is already on record. To cite a few cases, all of the year 1955.

ON August 21, 1955, about 7 p.m., a bright object landed near a farmhouse rented by the Sutton family eight miles from Hopkinsville, Kentucky. Some fifteen creatures emerged. With heights ranging from three and a half to four feet, they had oversized hands and arms. Their eyes were large, as were their pointed ears.

One witness described their clothes as "nickel plated." Others claimed that the dwarfs did not walk but "seemed to float." They jumped on the trees and roof, peered into the windows.

The men of the house fired at them with shotguns, and, though direct hits were made, the invaders seemed invulnerable. Knocked down, they immediately bounced upright. Then they retreated to their space ship.

Police investigation later revealed nothing which would indicate an alien landing. The dry and dusty ground held no footprints or tracks. Scratches were nil on the farmhouse's painted tin roof. A hole, inexplicably square, marred a window screen where a shotgun blast had been fired from inside.

Unmistakably felt was a sense of uneasiness, of something strange, in the air. A few things about the family stood out. They were still highly excited, frightened—and sincere. All were cold sober.

Later, around 3:30 the next morning, the bizarre space dwarfs returned. Gunfire from the Sutton family drove them away.

Then, two days later, the Suttons themselves disappeared. No one knows why.

LORENZO FLORES and Jesus Gomez of Carova, Venezuela, were hunting near the Trans-Andian Highway between Chico and Cerro de las Tres Torres when they saw a bright object off the highway some 150 feet. This was on December 10, 1955.

Thinking at first that it was a car, their mistake was revealed at their approach to the object. Now they saw it resembled a pair of wash bowls placed one on top of the other, estimated as approximately nine feet in diameter, and hovering about two and a half feet from the ground. Fire spewed from the bottom.

Four tiny men of extreme hairyness emerged, all about three feet tall, with features not easily seen.

The two humans were spotted. When seized, Gomez fainted dead away. The dwarfs then attempted to drag him back to their strange craft.

Though frightened, Flores ran bravely to his friend's rescue with his unloaded shotgun. He struck out at one of the creatures with the butt. It was as if he had hit a brick wall. The shotgun broke into two pieces!

Flores and Gomez tore away, the latter having by now recovered consciousness. They told their story at the nearest police precinct. Both wore shirts that were ripped to shreds. Scratches covered their bruised bodies.

Authorities investigated. The craft was then gone, but signs of its presence were seen. Also noticeable were signs of the fight.

Psychiatric examination of the two men—Lorenzo Flores and Jesus Gomez—made it clear that they were sane and responsible.

It was on the night of December 16, 1955, when Jesus Paz dined with two friends at a San Carlos, Venezuela restaurant. As he was being driven home, the car stopped on his request near the Exposition Park of the Ministry of Agriculture.

Paz stepped behind some bushes apparently to relieve himself. Back in the nearby car waited his two friends, one of whom was Luis Mejia, a national guardsman.

Suddenly there arose a piercing scream as if from Hell itself. The bewildered men ran to Paz in the brush where he was found lying unconscious on the ground.

Another form was seen—hairy, dwarfish—that raced for a flat, shiny craft hovering a few feet from the earth close by.

Luis Mejia cursed upon recalling his gun was back in his barracks at Guard headquarters. He threw a stone at the rising craft (now carrying the dwarf) which set up a deafening buzz.

Authorities were notified of the hair-raising story. Suffering from shock, Paz was under medical care. He had not gone unmarked, for his right side and spine held several large, deep, lengthy scratches—like the clawings of a wild animal!

THE trio of above cases (a rash of others have been reported throughout the world in recent years) involved small-sized aliens.

But how about the ones of giant stature, the monstrosities? The "West Virginia Monster" incident of September 12, 1952, comes quickly to mind.

On that day, a housewife and six boys ranging in age from ten to seventeen, headed for Flatwood Hill, in West Virginia, to investigate a "meteorite" which appeared in the late evening as a grounded pulsating light. A gas-smelling mist, sickening, assaulted them as they ascended.

About fifty feet away, down the hilltop's other side, rested a strange, globular object, approximately house-sized, that regularly dimmed and brightened. If this sight brought fear to the group, then what they next felt could only be described as cold, paralyzing horror.

For close to a tree near the object was seen a bizarre figure, a figure that was not less than ten feet tall, with a round, blood-red face, and a green body!

Projected from the creature's eyes, or eye-like openings, were greenish-orange beams of light. Terrible claws (grapnels?) were thought to have been seen by the housewife.

When the monster (possibly a robot, or space-suited alien) apparently moved toward the group, it waddled with a bouncing, floating motion. The humans retreated in panic, the awful stench in their nostrils, later to be sick for hours.

Upon re-visiting the scene an hour later, an investigating party with shotguns found the giant and pulsating machine gone. However, there was evidence of a strange visitation.

Below are two more cases of extra-terrestrial giants visiting the Earth.

Some five miles from Sudbury, Ontario, Canada, sprawls the sizeable nickel mine at Garson. On July 7, 1954, a 23-year old painter, Ennio la Sarza by name, stared aghast when he saw an object plummet earthward.

There was no expected crash, for the object—rightly called a space craft—slowed its descent, to hover slightly above the ground.

Out of it emerged three body-glowing creatures that were obviously not of this world. What other conclusion could one reach when the creatures were described as thirteen feet tall, greenish-blue, and possessing six sets of evenly distributed arms (legs), ending with crab-like claws?

Twin antennae covered their heads, and, in the centre of their foreheads burned a single eye! So burning that one of the creatures hypnotized Ennio and, by telepathy, ordered him to perform a "task." Just what it was, Ennio has never said. Rather would he have died than perform it.

He fainted.

Ennio, it must be pointed out, was then not at all familiar with the flying saucer mystery. Such principals as Adamski, Bethurum, Angelucci, were completely unknown to him.

On coming to, the aliens were gone. An RCAF officer investigated the story. Nothing was told to questioning reporters.

Two twenty-year-old boys and one of seventeen met up with a giant creature one Saturday night in May, 1956. This was out in the country near Marshall, Mich. First one of the youths was grabbed from behind and hoisted up, then another was snatched.

The third youth, in the glare of his car lights, was stunned to see his companions being carried away under each arm by a fearsome giant who was covered with heavy hair, or fur, and having extra-big eyes, green in color.

One of the captive youths was dropped when the seemingly startled giant brushed an outside table at the house's end. This youth then bravely pushed the other. The remaining captive was released, and the creature vanished into the shadows.

Two peculiarities about the astral entities are glaringly noticeable. First, they are not subject to our gravity. Second, they are not of the same order of matter as humans. One should expect, therefore, strange manifestations involving them.

Bear in mind that the West Virginia Monster did not run, but "bounced" as it appeared to come toward the horror-stricken humans on the grassy hill. That its landed craft was seen might have been due to atmospheric conditions in that area being suitable for rendering astral matter visible.

Also, the bizarre dwarfs in the Hopkinsville affair "floated" rather than walked, while direct shotgun blasts failed to kill them.

Such smallish creatures have frequently been seen stealing water, as in the incidents at Steep Rock Lake, Ontario (July 2, 1950) and Brush Creek, California (June 20, 1953). To T. James wonderment, Ashtar gave this reply:

"Water is a valued commodity in the center of the earth where they (the astrals) dwell. One of the reasons they come to your surface is to steal water, which they do from tanks, lakes, rivers and reservoirs as convenience dictates."

Numerous are the examples of hostility and destruction caused by some space craft. Examples will follow, but first a quote of Ashtar's, this one a grim warning in reference to the Satanic forces.

"Should aircraft of yours be sent against them, they will be destroyed through the agency of a heat ray. Fires of mysterious origin will occur in the Americas and Western Europe."

Now, consider the following account in which a heat ray of some kind appears to have been used.

When, on July 2, 1954, a UFO showed up on Air Defense Radarscopes near Utica, N.Y., an F-94 Starfire jet was scrambled from Griffith Air Force Base. The time was 12:30 p.m.

It was not long before the gleaming object was seen visually by the pilot and his radar observer in the rear cockpit. The jet shot upward to close in.

Then it happened. Sudden and totally unexpected. A wave of heat like that of a blast furnace filled the cockpit!

Dumbfounded, the pilot checked the plane's instruments. All were found to be working perfectly. Here was not the answer for the mysterious heat. Then where—?

The heat was growing in ferocity. Soon it would be unbearable. The sweat-drenched pilot feared his plane might burst into flames.

Dizzily, he yelled for the radar officer to bail out after he had jettisoned the canopy. The other did not have to be coaxed. He was out in a flash.

Then, just before the pilot pulled the ejection lever that would hurl his form out of the cockpit, he espied the gleaming unknown object passing overhead.

The deserted jet crashed into Walesville, a village in New York state. Four people were killed, another seriously injured.

Never losing its brilliant glow, the UFO remained motionless above Utica for hours after the crash of the F-94 Starfire jet.

Another mystery which involved intense heat occurred on a summer day in 1947.

Picture a bridge. One of wooden structure, four hundred feet long, suspended on steel cables. Of its three trestles, two of the higher ones decorated each end, with the lower one in the middle. The bridge spans a ninety foot gorge through which flows the Salmon River. This is in the state of Oregon on the highway between Warm Springs, Idaho, and Riggins.

On July 24, 1947, this bridge caught on fire. Apparently it happened very suddenly, the entire structure enveloped in flames from end to end, burning furiously. Heavy clouds of black smoke billowed upward, presumably caused by the creosote-treated roadway on the bridge.

The steel cables, amazingly enough, were later found melted in several places. Ordinarily, it takes 2800 degrees Fahrenheit for steel to melt. No ordinary open air wood fire could ever generate enough heat to be responsible for the fire. Then what had brought it on? Lightning is instantly ruled out as the day was cloudless.

Farmers in Woodside, California, were startled when, on August 28, 1954, at 4 p.m., a mysterious explosion shook their eardrums. Their amazement soared when they beheld the sudden burning of a patch of Portola Road's macadam surface.

The blazing area was unmistakably rectangular; 70 by 270 feet. (Editor's note: A 70-ft. wide road? Do any of our readers know the facts here?) Unmistakable, too, was the fire's cause—scores of small metal pellets, strange in that, irregularly shaped and a quarter of an inch thick, they seemed to be cast.

Where they had embedded themselves on the road, the surface was bubbling. Even upon the arrival of firemen half an hour later, the metal could not be handled.

The fire was unexplainable to investigating Intelligence officers of the American Air Force and Army. Demolition experts were also at a loss. Fragments of the unknown pellets were gathered up for future analysis.

Many are the planes—American and foreign—which have mysteriously crashed or disappeared entirely. The previously related case about the U.S. jet's encounter with a heat ray (?) is unusual in that the survivors lived to tell the tale.

Quoted below is a paragraph from T. James' works that is a real eye-opener.

"Disappearing airplanes and airplanes lost from unknown causes have attained an astounding total. In 1955, there were 1,664 major accidents to United States Air Force machines. This is equivalent to 18 squadrons of jet fighters, since 794 were lost and 75 bombardment type aircraft, equivalent to five squadrons. Over 20% of these losses are from 'undetermined causes.' These figures, recently given by Brigadier General Joseph Caldara, director of Flight Safety Research for the U.S.A.F., may or may not have anything to do with assaults by the hostile saucers. But when 20% are from 'undetermined causes,' one is entitled to wonder, since this means more than a hundred jet fighters lost without explanation. To this, we must add the 26% of losses due to material failure, one of the specialized methods employed by the Satanic machines."

As for why terrestrial planes unaccountably disappear, crash, collide . . . T. James was given one reason by Ashtar.

The astrals frequently desire an especially skilled or talented human for, say, their technical knowledge. The plane (this could equally apply to cars, trains, ships, etc.) in which they happen to be present, is caused to crash, and the wanted human, released from his physical body after his "death," has his astral form seized and taken to the nether regions.

Now, it seems obvious that the advanced etherics (the true interplanetary forces) have no use for human technology and skills. But the astrals are a different matter, for, though they are superior to Earthlings in many ways, they fall below the etherics in brain-power. Still, one wonders how the underground race, being degenerate, retains such higher-than-human scientific wisdom.

Ashtar's answer was memorable:

"Scientific advancement is not now, never was, and never will be, related to moral development."

For another quotable answer on alien abductions, let us turn to the November-December, 1955 issue of Meade Layne's ROUND ROBIN where is printed excerpts from a letter by T. James.

"Question: We have been puzzled by the abductions of whole airplanes and crews. There are some things we would like to know: First, do you ever, for any reason, take human beings off this earth and abduct them, so to speak? Secondly, why are these planes taken?"

An etheric, Andolo by name, was the contact during the absence of Ashtar on this occasion. His answer:

"First, our laws forbid us to interfere in any way with the life plan of any entity. We cannot bring about a physical death wittingly under any circumstances. Everything must proceed in its universal plan, which we are bound to carry out. However, the dark ones do not live by our laws, but prey upon mankind freely, seeking vehicles for themselves by any method they know. They do not hesitate to bring about the "death" of an entity if it serves their purpose. We have nothing to gain or learn by taking your machines; such actions are meaningless to us. Not so the dark ones, however. They have several reasons for the 'abduction' of planes and crews. First, they may desire the actual physical material of which the machine is constructed, for purposes of their own which don't concern you at the moment. Secondly, they may desire the entities in the planes for purposes of their own, regarding which I shall presently tell you nothing. Thirdly, they may desire both these first two things in combination. The advancement in flight of earthmen is moving steadily toward the 3500 mph which is the limit of their present attainment. They are interested in seeing what you are doing and how you are doing it. This increasing mastery of the science of flight, soon to make extra large forward steps, is concerning them greatly. All this is a little beyond your present understanding but eventually you will piece it all together and know the whole truth."

January 7, 1954. Seen over Dieppe, France, was a fast-moving UFO. Immediately after the sighting there came an aerial explosion which startled hundreds of residents.

September 18, 1954. Three men spotted a strange green object over Oakland, California. Next came an equally strange sky quake.

The above cases (two of many) would indicate a definite connection between UFO's and sonic "booms." For not always can the overhead explosions be blamed on terrestrial jets, as they are sometimes heard in areas free of supersonic aircraft.

Indeed, to the light-speed of Ashtar's craft—and multiples of it—supersonic speed would be as the lazy movement of snails. Astral craft, though they can not come anywhere near the interplanetary craft in regards to velocity, are still capable of supersonic speed.

Ashtar affirmed that alien craft, visible or invisible, break the sound barrier on occasion when on some mission of their own.

T. JAMES is of the conviction that most major nations know, in their highest circles, part of the saucer story. He feels they are fully aware that some of the UFO's are coming from the Earth's interior, and have evidence that our entire world is in the power of the astral craft!

If this awesome news was presented to the public—"fantastic" is the word Albert Bender used to describe the secret in THEY KNEW TOO MUCH ABOUT FLYING SAUCERS—how would it be taken? Calmly? With indifference?

Indeed not. The bulk of humanity would be terrified—shocked to the very bone! One can imagine the hysteria and animal-panic that would grip the world. For such ideas as astral and etheric beings is presently incomprehensible to most human minds. People for the most part accept the familiar; shun and fear the unfamiliar.

One final question. In suppressing the frightening information of hostile saucers, are the major nations doing the right thing?

Perhaps, as T. James believes, they are being very wise.

HOLLYWOOD LOOKS AT THE UNKNOWN

by Thomas Kneitel

An encouraging trend seems to be starting in Hollywood, land of Frankenstein, Dracula, and Dr. Jekyll. Trickle through the "horror" and "invaders from other planets" fantasies are a few (a very few) motion pictures which are based either on the occult or the search for the truth in matters that baffle scientists. These pictures fall into the following general categories:

1. Pictures which report actual facts, emphasis is off the dramatic values. ("Documentaries")

2. Pictures which speculate as to what might happen if certain reportedly factual phenomena are actually true.

3. Pictures which dramatically portray incidents which could conceivably occur under unusual conditions which are known to exist.

For the knowledge questing observer, or student, of the occult these motion pictures provide interesting background material on many subjects.

A good example can be shown by the picture THE SNOW CREATURE, which falls into category 2. The elusive, and now famous "Abominable Snowman" (SEARCH, August, 1957) is the star of this film, which was filmed mostly far above the snowline on windswept glacial ice where the creature's near-human footprints were first reported in 1879. The "Snowman," called by prominent scientists the possible missing link between men and apes, is at last captured atop Mount Everest and brought to America. He nearly kills the American scientist who captured him and he gives Los Angeles an unexpected night of terror, finally being tracked down and destroyed in the city's underground maze of sewer tunnels. The question as to whether or not the "Snowman" actually exists, or is a myth, has never been definitely answered, although several Sherpas (Nepalese guides) on Col. John Hunt's 1953 British expedition to Everest reported seeing one at a distance of 30 feet. The film version of the "Snowman" is a woman snatching half-man-half-ape, patterned after the physical description given by the Sherpas. THE SNOW CREATURE's author, Myles Wilder, apparently spent considerable time doing research on the "Snowman," and evidently he has a scientific mind, because the picture sets forth several valid and interesting theories.

By far the most factual picture made about the unknown (category 1) for general theatrical release is "UFO." This picture tells the story of UFO's from the day of the first "saucer" sighting, back in 1947, until the present time. A dramatic, authenticated story, the film presents to the public, for the first time, actual motion pictures of UFO's in flight. These color motion pictures of UFO's are the only ones known to exist, and were declassified following exhaustive tests by Air Force Intelligence and the Navy which conclusively established the authenticity of the films.

The first of the two amazing films of the UFO's in flight was filmed by Nicholas Mariana, in Great Falls, Mont., on August 15, 1950. Mariana's film shows two objects streaking across the clear blue sky ("They made a kind of whooshing sound," says Mariana, who is interviewed in "UFO.") to the horizon.

The second film was taken by Naval Chief Photographer Delbert C. Newhouse. The Newhouse film shows 12 white disc shaped objects darting about the sky over Utah. Newhouse is also interviewed.

Other persons who speak in "UFO" are Capt. Edward J. Rupert, USAF, head of "Project Bluebook," code name for the "saucer" study program; electronics engineer and radar specialist Wendell V. Swanson, several UFO witnesses, including an airline pilot, and Air Force and Navy officers.

The unfortunate Mantell incident is discussed, and there is a dramatic reenactment of the 1952 "buzzing" of Washington, D.C., by UFO's, when not only did the radar screen show the strange objects, but the pilots of the interceptor jets made visual contact with the "saucers."

The producers of this film have signed a sworn affidavit stating that "Every scene, every word . . . in this motion picture is true. This is the way it happened. Not a word, not an incident has been altered or 'fictionalized.'" The film does not speculate as to what UFO's are, or where they come from, it merely presents the facts in a well organized and informative manner.

Other recent films worth noting are NIGHTMARE (category 3), which takes up the problem of whether hypnotism can drive a man to murder; THE MONSTER THAT CHALLENGED THE WORLD, a speculation about the widely reported sea-serpents; and THE PHARAOH'S CURSE, which (although highly exaggerated) recalls events similar to the strange deaths occurring when the "Curse of Tutankamen" was "invoked" in the late 20's and early 30's.

Does this handful of pictures (and a few others) mean that Hollywood finds that it doesn't have to rely solely on the vivid imaginations of story writers? It's too early to tell, but it's a trend that will be appreciated by those seriously interested in the unknown.

REQUIEM FOR A CANCER VICTIM

By Dr. W. D. Chesney, M.D.

Today I watched a good friend—his body that is—laid away in mother earth. He died, said his doctors, from cancer. But did he? This was his third trip to the operating table. He had money sufficient to ask for and receive the finest medicine had to offer. He did not delay in consulting his doctor. Why did he die? Why did Senators Vandenberg, Taft and many others die despite no delay in seeking immediate help? Privately I had advised my friend to go forthwith to Hoxsey, Drochnes-Lazenby, or any one of several others that had a good record for curing cancers after the regular medic had given them up. His doctors and surgeons advised against this trip that might have saved his life. They killed my friend.

They burned him with radium and X-rays; they cut away much tissue from his body. Yet, he died. The Tribune of this date, March 24, 1958, carried the usual medical column of Theodore Van Dellen, quite a big shot in the a.m.a., bringing mis-information—information showing some of the worst sophistry I have ever read. And some of the greatest untruths. He took many hundred words to tell his readers that all this condemnation of X-rays is wrong; that these rays are, in fact, quite tame. Yes, he says that in former times the use of X-rays was dangerous and deadly. But, nowadays, he chortles, they are quite safe in diagnostic use.

Now, let's face facts—and if you do not believe the real truth, ask me to prove what I shall say. I could not look in a mirror if I did not warn you there are vipers in your vicinity. Before me as I write this is this Van Dellen party's Tribune column of just two years ago, in which he stated that those who work about X-rays have nine times as much blood cancer as doctors who do not work with them. Furthermore, he stated that children born to people who worked with X-rays have far more ill health, and propensities to heart diseases, cancer, etc., than the children of physicians who did not work with these killer rays. (Ask Ray Palmer to publish a cut of this record.)

Van Dellen fails also to mention the positive fact that those who work with X-rays have the protection (?) of heavy lead glass, heavy leaded gloves and aprons. The patients have no protection from the primary or secondary radiation from the Crookes tube. Here is a recent blast made by the a.m.a. commercial house organ, the Journal, literally flaying alive the use of X-rays in fitting shoes, when the rays supposedly only hit a portion of the feet. What has Van Dellen to say about all the facts set forth supra? (Ask Ray Palmer to run a bit of my evidence). Now here is another, a statement made by the scientific editor of the Associated Press, "DOCTORS WARNED TO BEWARE OF THE USE OF X-RAYS IN DISEASE TREATMENT." Here is one, mirabile dictu, mirabile visu, from The American Cancer Society stating in bold language that bone cancer may follow the use of X-rays. The report covered twenty pages. The report was made by really big shots in the matter of tumors. (From CANCER, July 6, 1948).

Now for heaven's sake get this: H. J. Muller, Nobel Prize Winner, stated at an a.m.a. convention that the medical profession was doing permanent damage to humans by X-rays. Yea more, he said,

"THERE IS NO DOSAGE SO LOW AS TO BE WITHOUT RISK." Here now is a red hot one. There is no greater tumorologist on earth than George Miley, M.D. He was called to testify before the Senator Pepper committee which was investigating rascality in medicine. Dr. Miley reported the finding of Reinmann who stated that cancer patients who had not received X-rays or radium treatments live longer and more comfortably than those who received them. (The a.m.a. spent money like water to beat Senator Pepper's further efforts to humanity. They found enough poor, ignorant people to accept the money and beat Pepper.). Dr. William S. Bainbridge, another cancer authority. He wrote: "While some still believe in the efficacy of radiation (author: X-rays or gamma rays from radium, or radon), my skepticism is being increasingly substantiated." An English authority, Dr. Leonard Hill, said, "Large doses of radiation produces the destruction of normal tissues such as bone marrow and lymphoid tissue, leucocytes and epithelial linings, AND DEATH ENSUES." Can one make it stronger than all this? Tell me how, Dr. Van Dellen. Doctor Feinblatt, another great oncologist stated in good strong words that those who did not get radiation of any kind, did live longer and more comfortably than those that got surgery, X-rays, radium or radon.

At a recent a.m.a. convention at St. Louis, another highly reputable radiologist, Dr. Lockwood, quoted Dr. Muller as follows, "Three minutes of X-rays does more harm to the genes of the cells than a long lifetime of normal living." The exponents of radiation so nicely dodge the known fact THAT THE EFFECTS FROM RADIATION ARE CUMULATIVE, AND DO NOT HAVE TO IMPINGE DIRECTLY ON THE GONADS TO DO PERMANENT AND IRREPARABLE HARM TO OUR DESCENDANTS. The SatEvePost, December 21, 1946, said, "A doctor who claims to know an effective treatment for cancer not involving surgery, radium or X-ray is an ipso facto quack." I hereby christen that once great child of the great Ben Franklin, "THE SATURDAY EVENING PEST!" Yes I said PEST, because of what you have read and what follows. Dr. C. F. Rhoads, of the Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research recently stated that X-ray, surgery and radium treatment was possible in only 25 percent of cancer cases. RIGHT. But, Doctor, tell us the great secret: What happened to the other 75 percent? How many of the 25 percent really recovered? AND, DOCTOR, TELL US WHAT PERCENTAGE OF SUP-POSED CANCER CURES BY X-RAYS AND RADIUM, PLUS SURGERY, WERE REALLY CANCER AT ALL? And all your advocates of radium, radon, X-rays or surgery, read this from W. A. Dewey, M. D., former professor of medicine, University of Michigan:

"IN A PRACTICE OF NEARLY 45 YEARS I HAVE YET TO SEE A SINGLE CASE OF CANCER—SAVE A FEW SEMI-MALIGNANT EPITHELIOMATA—CURED BY SURGERY, X-RAYS OR RADIUM."

From all of which may one not deduce that a large proportion of cases claimed to have been cured by any of these implements of satan, had been mis-diagnosed? Dr. L. D. Bulkley, another cancer authority, wrote:

"Cancer is not a surgical disease. Neither surgery, X-rays nor radium have changed in any way whatever the ultimate mortality of cancer in 40 years. The mortality was 90 percent in 1894; Now it is 92 percent."

For the edification of all who trust in surgery, X-rays, radon or radium, I repeat Dryden's wise aphorism:

"He'd rather far that I should die

Than his prognosis prove a lie."

As I have said again, and again. HEALING, WORTHILY AND HONESTLY PRACTICED, IS

BY FAR THE NOBLEST PROFESSION ON EARTH. The honest doctor admits it when he errs. The dishonest doctor, of which there are far too many, protected in their vicious courses by medical madmen, is the vilest sort of assassin. He comes into your house as a friend. Stabs you in the back like another Brutus stabbed his real friend. He fills you full of drugs that steal away your will to think and reject unneeded surgery.

Governor Dewey's Morland committee reported that well over half of all the physicians in the New York City area were demanding and accepting kick backs, split fees, and other criminal side lines.

AND I TELL YOU AGAIN THAT THE A.M.A. KNEW THIS AND, DESPITE THE FACT THAT CROOKS IN GOVERNMENT HAVE BESTOWED THE REGAL POWERS OF PUNISHMENT ON THESE SCOUNDRELS, THE A.M.A. DID NOTHING. AND THAT VERY SAME SITUATION OBTAINS THIS VERY DAY. AND WILL CONTINUE TO BEDEVIL EVERY DAY UNTIL WE CLEAN OUT FROM TOP TO BOTTOM. REPLACE THE GOONS IN GOVERNMENT WITH DECENT MEN WHO HAVE MADE AFFIDAVIT UNDER OATH THAT THEY WILL INVESTIGATE THE A.M.A. AND ITS LICKSPITTLES IN OUR BUREAUS. ELECT NO MAN WHO HAS NOT TAKEN OATH THAT HE WILL FIGHT FOR AN INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM LAW. THROUGH THAT WE, THE PEOPLE, CAN THROW THE CROOKS OUT OF OFFICE AND INTO SAFE PLACES.

AND I SAY AGAIN, ASK RAY PALMER TO PUBLISH PICTURES OF SOME OF THE CRIMES COMMITTED BY A.M.A., AND MANY GOVERNMENT BUREAUS. MAKE ME PROVE WHAT I SAY. MAKE THE CONTUMACEOUS MEN WE OVERPAY ACCOUNT FOR THEIR CRIMES AGAINST GOD AND AGAINST MAN. I have told you before and I tell you again that we Americans are being taken for the greatest ride, no longer a free ride—Congress sees to that—that has happened in the history of the world. Call me crepe hanger, for now. Let the rascals in government lull you to dolce far niente. 'Live modern with the big red L. & M.' 'Reach for a Chesterfield.' Or Camel. Live on the damnable junk advertised on radio, TV and in the Press. Then raise hades when it is far too late. Live in spiritual darkness as you are separated from your God because you now know the facts, and "Live modern on the big red letters L & M." Get your

exercise as you 'Walk a mile for a Camel.' Let the patent medicine fakers prescribe something for your liver bile. Coal tar chemicals for you and yours for all diseases. But do keep this in mind: THE PRESIDENT OF THE A.M.A. STATED THAT THE ABOUNDING GOOD HEALTH WAS DUE TO THE FINE PRODUCTS PUT OUT BY THE BAKERY TRUST.

YOUR REQUIEM

The proper committee of the United Nations put it in print that Americans stand from 12th to 16th place in the matter of that 'abounding health' described by President Henderson.

The United Nations put it in print that the longevity record of these 'abounding health' Americans was seventh among the civilized Nations. (Where may one find civilized nations?)

Dr. Paul White, Eisenhower's cardiologist, said that the state of health of the American people was the poorest among all nations.

The great Oncologist, Dr. Smith said, "Last year there was more heart diseases, more rheumatism, more strokes, more hepatitis, more cancers, more kidney diseases, and other degenerative diseases than there was in the history of the United States." Not long ago a really reputable physician reported that the post-operative deaths in American hospitals was by far the largest in the world.

Re the matter of X-rays alone, I have given my authorities. Let us hear from Van Dellen giving his authorities. Also let him read over his column for the last three years, and tell us frankly why he changes like the weathercock. God help America. It's a leadpipe cinch that politicians in state and medicine won't do it. But YOU, YOU who read this can do something about it.

YOUR FUTURE

By Dorothy Spence Lauer

What does tomorrow hold in store for you? All of us would like to know, and there are various ways of predicting. Here, in Mrs. Lauer, we present a prophet who employs an unusual method, and whose ability SEARCH proved positively, 87½% accurate, over a period of two years.

Everyone is going to be quite amazed at the change of attitude, in material they read or see on their television screens, in regards to Russia. Many people will also begin to know that I have been right all along - that there will be no war with Russia. We're going to hear entirely different things about the Russians than we have for some time. I feel this will be a mass psychology that will be used on all of us so that we will be prepared when this truth will be revealed between Russia and us. It is going to sound very revolutionary to everyone. There will be skeptics who will not want to accept this decision, but, on the other hand, I feel there is going to be harmony and a complete exchange of ideas that is going to astonish the skeptics, who were so sure we would have war.

There are also going to be things come up in the nation that will cause a great deal of talk. Several notable figures are going to walk away from their jobs because things haven't been what they wanted. Sharp criticism is going to be pointed at Eisenhower for decisions he will make - and yet, when this peace exists between Russia and us, there is going to be a great deal of scientific exchange of ideas that will help both of us. Otherwise, had this peace not existed, I'm afraid we would really have had some trouble. I feel that their scientists, working with our scientists, are really going to bring forth many wonderful things that are going to be revolutionary, to such an extent that we both benefit. I'm sorry to say that there will be skeptics who will be sorry to see this peace, as they will maintain there will be war eventually, but I say that there won't be.

It also appears that there is going to be some catastrophe in Pennsylvania - something disastrous will occur in that particular state.

Many officials will be called to this state and work will be at a standstill.

There are also going to be many happenings where airplanes are concerned that will lead to new investigations. It won't be sabotage, but there is something found in the airplanes, some little imperfection in material or mechanism. Investigators will find it, if they haven't already.

Many new outlooks as far as business is concerned - business will be on the uptrend. There will be a sharp decline in the stock market and many people will want to sell, but I feel they should not - later on they will be glad they didn't.

The new chemise idea will not become very popular - people will not accept it as a whole and manufacturers should not put too much into it.

You, Ray Palmer, will find that a man who has caused you a loss in the past will come back into your life and want to make amends. Don't listen, or again a loss will be suffered. Mrs. Palmer will also remind you of a past loss. I only hope you listen!

Also could you possibly have something where cows are concerned come up? This could be very disturbing. What could cows have to do with you? Well, you shall see!

News from Egypt that surprises all of us.

Letter carriers will have some good news.

People all over should avoid investing their money in a sure thing that will be offered through the mail.

In addition to my psychometric analyses, I also forecast the future by means of aura analysis. I do this by means of a picture of the subject. If any of SEARCH readers are interested in testing my ability along this line, I will consent to do so, if you will follow the instructions printed elsewhere in this article. I do need, and this is very important, a photo, a snapshot, to do this type of analysis. There are many things the aura can tell about you—your health, your character, your predispositions. All these indicate possible future developments, and when analyzed psychically with care, helpful information can be obtained. I am willing to put this to SEARCH's usual rigorous test, over a long period of time. Your reports to the editor will amaze him, I predict!

(Editor's note: Why not accept Mrs. Lauer's challenge? She has proven she has some special ability known as psychometry, correct in 87½% of all cases, over a period of years. And your editor has done some research into aura phenomena —so it's worth testing further.

We are unable financially to reimburse Mrs. Lauer for her time, so let's put it on the same basis as her psychometry. You readers have financed our experiments before, and we appreciate it. So, if you are interested in this new phenomena, and helping prove its existence, read the instructions printed here-with carefully, and once you have had your aura analysis, and determined its results, communicate them to us for compilation and analysis as to correctness. It should be very interesting! And we're go-

Editor's Note: Dorothy Spence Lauer is a Psychometrist, specializing in precognition. Ordinarily she needs but an object belonging to, or handled by, the subject, or the presence of the subject, to become aware of the psychic influences from which she draws her information. However, for the sake of expediency in providing her with a sufficiently strong personal psychic impression, the editors of this magazine hit upon the Bible verse method. By writing out a verse, while concentrating, as described in the instructions given on this page, we hope that a sufficiently powerful psychic impression will be made to enable the medium to receive the information she seeks. We have made this service available to our readers purely in an experimentative atmosphere, in an attempt, first, to determine whether or not this ability is of a nature both real and valuable; and second, to provide you with an interesting bit of entertainment.

For the convenience of our readers who wish to contact Mrs. Lauer personally, you can do so by writing your Bible verse according to instructions and mailing it directly to her. Usually Mrs. Lauer charges much more (from $5 to $10) for an analysis, however she will analyze any verse sent through SEARCH magazine for $3.00. Please send your personal orders to Mrs. Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and not to this magazine. We do not assume responsibility for them, nor for the content of her analysis. However, we would appreciate continued cooperation from those of you who have personal analyses regarding her percentage of accuracy, so that, over a long period of time, we may accumulate a substantial mass of evidence of the reality of the power technically called psychometry.

HOW TO GET A PSYCHOMETRIC ANALYSIS

Select a short verse from the Bible, perhaps your favorite, and write it on a separate sheet of paper, meanwhile concentrating on your problems. Then mail the sheet to Mrs. Dorothy Spence Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and enclose $3.00. Bear in mind the reply may take several weeks.

By the way, have you noticed how remarkably right Mrs. Lauer has been in her published predictions the last few issues? She has hit the nail on the head on several instances that have your editor blinking his eyes.

HOW TO GET A PHOTO AURA ANALYSIS

Send a snapshot of yourself to Dorothy Spence Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and enclose $3.00 to cover the cost. Be sure to include your return address! Surprisingly many applicants forget this! And please, if possible, report the results to SEARCH magazine, after their accuracy or inaccuracy is determined. Remember, reports of inaccuracy are as important as those of accuracy.

EDITOR'S NOTE

In our February 1958 issue, Mrs. Lauer predicted: "An ocean liner will sink—many lives lost". In our April issue (on sale in February) Nyle Rothenbach took it upon himself to confirm her prediction, but added details. He specified it would occur before the middle of March, sinking would be caused by a terrible fire, and the ship would be abandoned. The holocaust would be fed by high winds. He named the run as the Europe to U.S. run, also the color of the ship.

On March 31, the Norwegian liner Skaubryn burned to the waterline and was left to sink. 1200 people were rescued in the most dramatic rescue operation in modern times. Only one man died. The scene was the Indian ocean.

Mrs. Lauer saw, by her peculiar ability, this disaster and told us of it. Mr. Rothenbach added that it would be caused by fire. True, in each prediction, details turned out to be wrong. But, what are the mathematical chances of predicting an ocean liner disaster in any particular month? How Mrs. Lauer (or Mr. Rothenbach) sees or "senses" these things we do not understand. But it is understandable that seeing it, large loss of life would be assumed. It was hailed as an incredible miracle by experts that the rescue was so complete. Only the most fortuitous of circumstances combined to effect this miracle.

Can we say that Mrs. Lauer is again correct in a very large percentage-wise way? Obviously we can. And we thank Mr. Rothenbach for adding his uncanny prediction to what can only be classified as the "workings of the unknown".

One thing is certain—any person planning an ocean voyage in March, 1958, could have avoided the danger of this catastrophe by not making the trip. Which makes psychometry a valuable ability!

The MURDER Of ANIMAL MAGNETISM

By Jerome Eden

Note: The author of this article is the translator of the two basic works by Dr. F. A. Mesmer on his discovery of Animal Magnetism, contained in the books, Memoir of F. A. Mesmer (1799), and Maxims on Animal Magnetism.

Human history has been a constant battle between Life and Death, or, as Mesmer wrote, between "movement and sleep." In every age, great men have risen above the quietly sleeping, quietly toiling mass of mankind, and pointed the way toward Life. Socrates, Christ, Giordano Bruno, Galileo, Columbus, Laennec, Semmelweiss, Freud, and Wilhelm Reich, are examples of such men. In every case, each was met by death for his pains—through persecution, slander, harassment. Many were murdered outright, while others were forced into exile or into insanity, or deprived of a livelihood. And always, their work was distorted, suppressed, or met with complete silence.

If one studies the lives of any one of these great men, one discovers a pattern to this Murdering of Life, a pattern which was originally uncovered and outlined by Dr. Reich, and which he called "The Murder of Christ." The fact that Dr. Reich himself fell victim to this pattern of murder which he unmasked, vividly points up the fact that the killing and suppression of Life is still going on, unchanged, and generally unnoticed, right up to this present day.

All of the foregoing is by way of introduction to the topic at hand—that is, The Murder of Animal Magnetism. Present-day conceptions of "Animal Magnetism," or "Mesmerism" have nothing whatsoever to do with Mesmer's original discoveries or procedures! Today, the word "mesmerism" or "magnetism" is synonymous with hypnotism. However, never in his life did Mesmer employ hypnosis. Animal Magnetism, as a scientific theory for the treatment and prevention of disease, has been completely and entirely distorted. Today, Mesmer is considered as either a quack, charlatan, a clever magician, or as a "sincere physician who went off!"

When I first began my study of Animal Magnetism, I was struck by the volumes upon volumes, all readily available in the English language. All would, in one way or other, acknowledge Mesmer as an important figure, albeit something of a "queer duck." Each author became an "Authority" on Animal Magnetism, freely quoting the previous "Authority," who, of course, quoted some other "Authority." Not once did such "authorities," whether medical or literary, ever bother to read Mesmer's own work. On the other hand, however, Mesmer's works, with but one exception, were not available to the English-speaking public. As a matter of fact, the only book which Mesmer himself had written, and which was available in English, was published in 1948, which was 169 years after the original French edition had first seen the light of day.

Whatever is true of the Murder of Animal Magnetism, of the persecution and harassment of its discoverer, of its final total distortion and suppression, is also true of the works of all other great men. Mesmer had disturbed the sleep of the world, and the reactive violence attests to the extent to which that sleep was disturbed. Let us trace the thread of this murder back a bit, and watch how it operated then, as it still operates today.

Being a keen observer of Nature, and being very much in touch with Life both inside and outside his body, Mesmer postulated the existence of what he called a Universal Fluid, a Fluid which is active in our universe, able to penetrate all organic and inorganic matter, and which animates and exhilarates all life. Without going into his Principles, let it suffice to state that Mesmer was able to cure the so-called "incurable" chronic diseases, by rendering them acute with Animal Magnetism. At first Mesmer's discoveries were accepted, and everywhere scientists and journalists rushed into print, making exaggerated and unfounded claims for this new science, without heeding Mesmer's pleas for restraint and caution. Mesmer was then swamped by hundreds of patients who flocked from all parts of Paris to his quarters. Now, the silent scoffers, motivated by jealously or fear, or afraid of "jeopardizing their professional prestige," could no longer contain their malevolence.

After having poured his own money, for years, into his research, Mesmer was accused of preying upon a gullible public. When he treated the poor, without fees, he was accused of having some clever ulterior motive, usually pornographic. He was accused of immorality, of conducting a sexual racket, and denounced by some pathological sniper to the chief of police. Time after time, Mesmer requested a thorough scientific investigation of his discoveries, and was refused. Instead, the "Recognized Scientists" preferred to slander him behind his back, to investigate his patients, to project their own filth upon Mesmer and his work.

Slowly, Mesmer attracted a group of qualified, honest physicians to his work, men to whom their patients' health was more important than their prestige. But they were never "recognized." But the flood of patients continued, and something had to be done to stop this man who refused to use drugs, and whose very scientific principles revolutionized medicine and physics. The attitude of SCIENCE toward Animal Magnetism can be summed up like this: "Mesmer can't be right! If he IS right, we'll have to throw out 95% of what we've learned for so many years. He makes our work absolutely meaningless, if not downright criminal! He just can't be right! So he isn't! And we'll prove it!" Such is the sell-out of humanity by "Honourable Men."

In 1784, after Mesmer left Paris, following a vicious campaign to discredit him, a Commission was now formed to "Investigate Animal Magnetism." Admittedly prejudiced, and formed for the sole purpose of damning the work, this Investigative body proceeded to investigate, what? Animal Magnetism? Never! The Investigators retired daily to the house of one Dr. Charles Deslon. Deslon was a former student of Animal Magnetism who had studied under Mesmer, and then had gone his own way. Mesmer had disavowed this former student who was now practicing his own form of Magnetism! The Commission was headed by the ailing and aged Benjamin Franklin. Franklin was so sick that he was scarcely able to leave his bed, let alone conduct any scientific investigation. His name signed to the infamous report by this Commission, was nothing more than a shield behind which the conscious scoundrels took refuge. Lavater the chemist, Doctor Guillotin, inventor of the "humane killer" which bears his name, Jean Bailly, astronomer, and Jussieu the botanist, were among the members of this Commission. After investigating Charles Deslon, just the commission reported, ". . . imagination does everything."

Louis XVI had 20,000 copies of this Report printed, and flooded all of Europe with them. Imagination does everything! Everything is explainable by "suggestion," a beautifully evasive word that covers more than it enlightens. Imagination and suggestion, suggestion and imagination, right up to this very day. No one bothers to read the discoverer's own writings, no one bothers to repeat the original experimental and clinical work—just put it down to imagination and suggestion! The incredible phenomena of patients who, under the influence of Animal Magnetism, could estimate their own and other's illnesses and indicate accurate curative measures—imagination and suggestion! Dr. James Esdaile's Mesmeric Hospital (not "Hypnotic Hospital as some authorities would distort it) wherein Dr. Esdaile employed Animal magnetism as the sole and exclusive anaesthetic in hundreds of major surgical operations—imagination and suggestion! And the hundreds of clinical studies done by Dr. John Elliotson of London, who used Animal Magnetism, never hypnotism: cases of physical ailments of all types—imagination and suggestion! The cases of the treatment and cure of domestic animals by Animal Magnetism—imagination and suggestion! Where is the hypnotist who can suggest to a horse that its leg will get well?

And so the Murder of Life continues to this day, while the masses sleep and toil on. And then in a hundred or two hundred years from now, someone will say "Wasn't it terrible what they did to that great scientist, back there in those uncivilized days! Of course, we are more enlightened!" WE ARE NOT! As long as we malign without investigating, as long as we shoot-off our mouths with wise-guy opinions (under the guise of free speech), as long as we ourselves refuse to stand up for and fight the Murderers of Life, WE are the guilty ones. And the Murder of Christ remains our Murder.

I RECALL PREVIOUS LIVES

If Mrs. Joan Merrill had lived in the 1600s, she might well have been considered a witch.

First of all, Mrs. Merrill has such fiery, dramatic good-looks and such a breathtakingly beautiful face that she would have been sure to arouse the envy of many drab and influential 17th century matrons. After taking one look at her, they probably would have demanded her hanged.

Secondly, Mrs. Merrill lives at 31 Alpine Road, East Weymouth, in a high hilltop house overlooking Whitman's Pond—a house which has, at least at night, a beautifully poetic but definitely eerie setting. The moonlight is reflected in the dark, still water, and the entire scene, like the water, seems dark and completely still.

But the biggest reason the young housewife and mother of two would have had serious difficulty in 1692 would have been her beliefs—not to mention the vision she once had.

Even in this sophisticated age when science fiction often turns out to be non-fiction, when millions have read "The Search For Bridey Murphy," when the signs of the zodiac are as common a decoration as the fleur-de-lis, when psychiatrists believe in the value of handwriting analysis, Mrs. Merrill's beliefs may seem a little startling.

Mrs. Merrill, who is a member of the American Society for Psychological Research, is a firm believer in psychical survival. According to this school of thought, each person has about 20 lives on this earth.

"I remember one of my own past lives," said Mrs. Merrill, who is also a prolific—and published—writer of magazine articles.

"I had been a little boy," said the young housewife who looks incidentally, about as feminine as Marilyn Monroe. "I remember that particular life, rather than others I've had, because my death had been such a traumatic experience. I had been killed by a huge, prehistoric bird while my mother had gone out to get something for my brother and me."

The Weymouth mother said the fact she had been a very small child in her present life when she first remembered that death corroborates her beliefs. "When I first remembered what had happened in my other life, I still hadn't even learned that such huge birds had once existed," she said.

How had Mrs. Merrill, who is a graduate of Quincy High School and the wife of Alfred Merrill, an electrical welder at the Boston Naval Yard, ever become interested in psychical research?

"I got very much interested in the subject after I saw a vision of my son three years before he was born," Mrs. Merrill said. "Before that, I knew absolutely nothing of psychic research."

Her son, cute chubby Ronald Lee, who is now a year and a half, was about 25 years old in the previous life, Mrs. Merrill said. Asked for more details about this experience, Mrs. Merrill showed us a copy of a letter she had sent to the American Society for Psychological Research. In it she had said:

"... I wasn't bereaved, our small house is certainly not 'haunted,' and I, (at that time the 28-year-old mother of one small daughter) had no place in my mind whatsoever for 'spooks.'

"It was the fall of 1953, and, then, as now, I was in the habit of putting the cat into the cellar at night. The cat had gotten a little unco-operative about going down there, and on this particular night, in order to get more co-operation about it, I tossed down a piece of cheese (which our cat likes enough to go right after). The cheese landed on the top step, and the cat followed but instead of being attracted to it, was held and attracted by the same sight that I saw.

"There is a landing way down where the stairs turn. Suddenly I saw this faintly luminous vision come running around that bend, swinging his arms and taking the steps two at a time from the bottom, past the corner at the landing . . . His feet made heavy noises on the steps.

"He was short—not much over five feet tall. He was nimble and agile but his body seemed a little wide. Not the wideness we see in one in the flesh who is fat—more of a general boxiness of figure, even to a wideness of the sleeves of his coat, for, from the outline, the appearance of a coat, a suit coat, was highly suggestible.

"Our eyes met and his were surprised. I rather liked his looks, his questioning eyes, his vigor, etc., but I was shocked . . . His eyes were more luminous than the rest of him . . . I couldn't speak. I couldn't move to shut the door—not then while his eyes were on me. My reaction, however illogical it may seem to you, was to wish he would look at that piece of cheese instead of at me. He actually did, then; he turned his head quickly from me to the cheese. At the time, I didn't know what he was but I knew he'd read my mind . . .

". . . Suddenly I was able to slam and lock the door. As soon as I did it I also realized that all I was locking out was my sight of him and not him himself because anyone who could get into a locked cellar such as ours could obviously come through another locked door.

"I quickly told my husband who insisted that what I saw must have been merely the reflection of something shiny in the cellar but he did not particularly feel like going down to investigate. I knew, of course, that that couldn't possibly account for it, but realized that if our situations had been reversed—if my husband had tried to tell ME that HE had seen some 'spook' in the cellar running up the stairs that I would be just as much inclined to laugh and tease him about his eyesight, too.

"I told my parents, and their silent reaction as they first quickly shot questioning glances at each other was probably 'Has she suddenly gone out of her mind?' and to me, 'You must be tired. Maybe you don't get enough sleep nights . . .' I was convinced but I knew I couldn't be convincing. I didn't believe in 'spooks' but knew I'd seen one and even exchanged a form of mental telepathy with one . . ."

After this experience in 1953, Mrs. Merrill wanted to find out all she could about psychical research. "I read everything I could find on the subject," she said. "I get books on psychical research and eastern philosophy both at Tufts and at the Thomas Crane Public Library," the young housewife said.

What about her husband? Is he convinced now?

"Oh, he believes it now," Mrs. Merrill said happily. "But it wasn't easy. I kept reading things to him to convince him until finally he believed it, too. I guess that was inevitable; there is so much evidence of psychical survival."

Justice definitely fits into the scheme of things in the psychical-survival picture. You get punished or rewarded from life to life, Mrs. Merrill explained.

"A person who might have been very cruel to others in one life may get unloving, terribly strict parents in the next life, as punishment," she said.

Although the friendly, young housewife has no plans for the next life, she does have a definite goal for this one. The attractive Mrs. Merrill, who studied journalism at Suffolk University and has always been interested in writing, said she would eventually like to write a book on psychical survival.

Yet, despite her great interest in the subject, Mrs. Merrill has never written a magazine article about psychical survival. What does she write about? Astrology, for one thing, and even such non-mystical, mundane subjects as child care and animals.—East Weymouth, Mass.

RAPS IN THE NIGHT

As an introduction, I have been a Spiritualist all my life. I got it from father and he got it from Abe Lincoln. They were personal friends. Lincoln held seances in his Springfield, Illinois home, in the White House, and he often went to Alexandria, Virginia, and New York City to consult mediums.

When World War called on us, I was sales manager for a serum and vaccine manufacturer and had three distributing centers: one in Ohio, one in Indiana and one in Illinois. I spent most of my time in strictly Abe Lincoln territory. My headquarters town had several good hotels, but unless one had a reservation days ahead, he was out of luck. I rented a room in a large mansion where Mr. Lincoln used to visit.

My samples used to come in plywood cases about 20 x 36 inches and, when I was out of this town, the cases were placed in my room. From the first night I attempted to sleep in that place I knew something was psychically wrong, or right—you decide which. I was on the second floor and my room opened into a long hall. Across the hall from me two salesmen had a room together. Next to their room two college students roomed.

The first night I dropped off to sleep for I was very tired. About midnight I was awakened by a rat tat tat on one of my boxes of merchandise. I got up, switched on the light and looked over everything in the room. The moment I switched off the light and got back in bed, the raps recommenced. They were loud and insistent. I tried questioning the agency involved in the same way the Fox sisters did at Hydesville, but the raps only grew louder. Then came the second phase of this psychic experience: Heavy footsteps passed back and forth in the long hall. I arose quietly and suddenly jerked open the door—to find no one. As soon as I closed the door the footsteps started again—slow and measured as if made by one who walked with a troubled mind.

I took this combination until about 2:30 A.M. and then dressed and went to one of the large hotels and sat up the remainder of the night in the lobby. The next night I screwed up my courage to try it again. The raps and the footsteps started on schedule. I got up, threw open my door and flashed my light back and forth. No one, no footsteps. Again I went to a hotel and sat up all night. Early next morning I returned to my room and moved all the furniture around. The box I put up on a table. My four friends asked me why I had been up stamping back and forth in the hall nearly all night. I accused them of trickery although no trickery could have explained the rapping on the box of samples.

That night I was almost worn out from lack of sleep. I took a powerful sedative and fell into deep sleep before nine o'clock. At midnight I was drawn back to consciousness by the raps and the foot steps. There was no trickery I knew for the two salesmen and the two students were out of town. At 3 A.M. I had to give up and fortunately found a room at the P. . . . Hotel and slept all that day. What caused these phenomena? Your guess is as good as mine. I know they were supernatural. Why did this come to me? I cannot even guess. I made guarded inquiries of some close friends and was told, cautiously, that the place was considered a haunted house.

I moved to another lodging house and was no longer bothered. That same year I attempted to stay one night in a pre-Civil War hotel at P. . . . I have rather a good scientific education and belong to several scientific societies, and was not given to imagination. But let me give you my solemn oath that I stayed in that hotel room for several hours. And got up at 3 A.M. and had a taxi drive me to another town nearly thirty miles away.

I would not have stayed in that room another hour if the owner of the property had given me the place and a large cash bonus. That room was full of poltergeists—not mischievous, but distinctly evil and malicious. Even the Catholic Church now admits the reality of psychic manifestations. Get a copy of TIME February 18, 1957, page 69 and you will agree with me that anybody who doubts the return of the spirits of the so-called dead has need of a psychiatrist. From a scientific view point let it be said in all earnestness that not one single scientist of reputation ever investigated Spiritualism and did not himself become a Spiritualist. Like 'doubting' Thomas, they saw hence they knew.—W. D. Chesney, M.D. Milton Junction, Wisconsin.

THE ASTRAL BODY

This incident happened back in 1946 while I was working as a salesman for a well-known candy manufacturer. It was also during a time when my wife and I were doing some very concentrated occult work. One of the customers on my route was a baker whom I called upon every other week, as the candy business was not too brisk in his establishment. On this particular day, I remember, I wondered if I should go in, as I believed he was in the hospital, having read that he had had a heart attack about a week before. I decided to go in anyway on the chance that one of his sons would be in. There was usually a clerk in the store at the front, and I would ask, ordinarily, if "H. P." was in, and if I could go back to see him. On this day, however, no one was at the counter in front, so I just walked to the rear, where the baking was going on. To my surprise I saw "H. P." standing there in his baking clothes, as usual, and as I walked down the steps to the lower level, he hailed me. I approached him, and said, "Hi, 'H.P.', do you need anything today?" He answered, "No, not today." Then I asked, "How are you feeling now?" He replied nonchalantly, "I'm O.K." I turned and as I started to leave I said to him, "You'll make it all right." His remark was still nonchalant: "I'll be all right." Then I left. During this conversation I stood approximately two feet from him until I said, "You'll make it all right," when I leaned toward him and almost touched his shoulder with mine, but at no time did I actually touch him. Also, during this conversation "H.P.'s" son was in the room, kneading bread, but paying no attention whatsoever, except that he greeted me when I walked in.

That evening while my wife and I were figuring up the day's business I remarked to her that I had seen and talked to "H.P." She said, casually, "Oh, is he out of the hospital already? How did he look?" I told her that he looked the same as usual. Then she tossed in a comment to the effect that he must not have had a very serious heart attack if he were back to work that soon. That finished the matter for that evening and no further discussion of it took place at any time until two weeks later when I made my customary call at this bakery shop. This time there was a girl at the counter, so I asked if "H.P." was back in the work room. She said, "Why, no, he's in the hospital." This surprised me, so I said, "But he was back two weeks ago." She looked at me, as if I were crazy, and answered, "Oh, no, he's been there all these weeks. In fact, his condition was so bad that they didn't expect him to live until about two weeks ago." Two weeks ago! That was when I had seen him! I suddenly realized that what I had seen was "H.P.'s" astral body, and decided to say no more. That evening my wife and I discussed this matter at quite some length. It appeared to us that the time I had seen him coincided with the time that his condition was about the worst, and he no doubt was wandering about in his astral body, and that his thoughts being strong on his occupation, his astral form must have materialized to me. Perhaps his son would not have seen him even if he had looked up or then again he might have, as we understand it would be possible for more than one person to see this manifestation, but perhaps the son just missed the whole performance by having his attention on his own work.

We took particular note of the time thereafter, and it was still about six weeks longer before he was allowed to come home from the hospital, and even then was not allowed out of his bed for another three weeks. I even went up to visit him at his living quarters above the shop while he was recuperating in bed, and he still looked very sick, so unquestionably the other experience was of the astral body, because that is never sick.

This was certainly one of the strangest experiences I have ever had, and probably the most impressive. Anonymous.

FROM OUT OF THE PAST

Whether you believe it or not, or whether you admit it or not, doesn't make much difference.

Skeptics hoot at the idea that certain people can see or hear forms and voices from another plane.

These multi-sensed folks are proclaimed mental. Yet, are we, who are not color-blind or whose hearing is not impaired, considered mentally ill by those who cannot see the colors we do, or hear the sounds that we do?

I was too young, when this particular event occurred, to philosophize. I just sat with my eyes and ears open, and thought it was wonderful. I still think so, but the goose-bumps race up and down my arms and the hair on the back of my neck raises in a roach, when I remember the night.

Mr. M had come to see my father about some trivial matter - sale of a car, I think. The room where we were gathered was small, heated by a wood-heater and lighted by a coal-oil lamp. Papa lay on a couch, miserable with an illness that was of long duration but of unknown origin. Mr. M sat at his side, making small talk, getting nowhere against the wall of pain surrounding papa, and feeling no doubt very out of place. Mr. M was a big man, black haired and copper-toned by Indian ancestry. Suddenly, his body tensed and his eyes went blank. He said to papa, "May I touch you? May I lay my hands on your body? Dr. Montgomery is here. You are sick and he can help you."

Papa was too miserable to pay much attention to Mr. M, and told him to go ahead. Mr. M unbuttoned papa's shirt and gently placed his brown fingers on his abdomen. Slowly he moved them across and back and forth. Suddenly he jumped, as though his fingers were burned.

"Here it is!" he exclaimed. "I see you many years ago. There are people around, with many animals. It is a rainy night." Mr. M sat stiff and still in his chair, only his fingers moving in a web of long-gone remembrance. "There is a fire—it looks like a campfire, and you are eating from a tin pan. Now you are going to bed, and I see you in a black coat—it is still raining. I've lost you. Wait." We all waited. There wasn't a sound except papa's tortured breathing. "I've found you. You are in great pain. You are very ill. I see you for many days in a wagon and you are very sick. You were poisoned by what you ate. Now, I've lost you again."

Mr. M relaxed and sat back in his chair, and his eyes focused clearly on papa.

"Did I tell you anything?" he asked.

"Yes," answered papa. "I remember the whole thing now. We were taking a herd of cattle to Texas and for supper we had sauerkraut. And I was sick after that." He sighed and the pain left his face. "Right now, I feel much better. I don't know what you did,

MYSTERY IN THE NEWS . . . .

FRIENDS AVOID BRITISH WOMAN WHO SAYS SHE SAW 'SPACEMEN'

BIRMINGHAM, England, Jan. 13, 1958.—Mrs. Cynthia Appleton said today that her friends and neighbors walked out on her when two spacemen walked into her life.

The 27-year-old mother of two girls claimed that the spacemen walked right into her home, sat down, and had a talk to her about their plans for earth.

Mrs. Appleton said she saw the spacemen twice in six weeks. The first visitor from outer space arrived solo but on his next visit he brought a friend along, she said.

"Tall and blond—like Greek athletes they were," she added.

"One afternoon last November I was in the lounge of my home when a spaceman suddenly appeared.

"I was terrified but he spoke so kindly that I wasn't frightened any more.

"He said his people were willing to come to earth but with only one objective in mind . . . to raise the standard of our civilization."

Mrs. Appleton said the spaceman returned and brought his friend along last Tuesday.

"They had domes on their heads and wore tight fitting costumes," she said.

Mrs. Appleton said that since the spacemen started to call, her friends and relatives had stopped dropping in. She said they are avoiding her.

"Some people are saying that I am a crank, some that I am loose-headed and others that I have been working too hard," she added.

But two Church of England clergymen who have called on Mrs. Appleton said they believed her story.

Her husband, Ronald, said he believed it, too.

JAPS PRODUCE A-HORROR FILM

TOKYO, Nov. 16, 1957.—The Japan Council against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs has produced a documentary film showing the gruesome effects of radioactivity. The film pictures deformed babies and adults at Hiroshima and radioactivity experiments that produced two-headed fish. Prints have been presented to the Soviet Embassy and other prints are to be given to the American and British embassies.

PACIFIC OCEAN MYSTERIOUSLY GETS WARMER

The Pacific ocean is getting warmer, but scientists don't know why.

In a report to the California marine research committee, scientists of five agencies said that ocean temperatures in 1957 were higher than at any time in recent history.

In some areas, surface temperatures were as much as 5.5 degrees above the 1949-1956 average.

The change seems to be Pacific-wide, the report said, pointing out that Hawaii had its first recorded hurricane, and that the ice went out at Point Barrow at the earliest time in history.

At the resort town of La Jolla, Cal., sea temperatures reached the highest averages during the summer in the last 26 years, and similar changes were recorded all up the coast.

The warming extended to a depth of a quarter of a mile, at least off California. One scientist said that over the 200,000 square miles of the California current region this represented the equivalent in energy of 560 billion barrels of fuel, about half the world's resources.

"It would have required four times as much sun's heat as was received to attribute the change to that source alone," the report said.

The warmer water allowed southern fish to move much farther north. Dolphin were caught as far north as the California-Oregon border, the report said, and white sea bass were taken off the Columbia river.

California sport fishermen had their biggest catches in a decade. Almost 30 times as many 1957 year-class sardines appeared in live bait catches as in the previous high year, and the spawning reached at least as far north as Monterey bay in northern California. Yellow-tail and bonita tuna, usually found largely in waters farther south, have been taken in great numbers off all southern California sport fishing ports.

What does it all mean? The scientists say they don't know but they're fairly certain the high temperatures were not the result of a wave of southern water swept northward. "Rather," says the report, "it appears that warm water came from the west or northwest."

The report, entitled "1957: The Year of Warm Water and Southern Fish," was prepared by officials of the California Academy of Sciences, the California department of fish and game, the Hopkins marine station of Stanford university, the United States fish and wildlife service, and the Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

BRITISH PASSED UP DEATH RAY IN 1915?

The mysterious inventor twirled the dials of his "death ray machine." Forty feet away a rat in a cage fell dead, a tiny wisp of smoke curling above its body.

Three times the dials were turned and three times rats in their cages collapsed into shrivelled heaps. Then the inventor crumpled up a pile of newspapers and placed it across the rented room in Oxford st.

Again he switched on his machine and the paper puffed into ash.

It was a man named Ernest Clifton who brought the mysterious inventor to the attention of several friends.

His idea was they would finance the "death ray" and sell it to the British War Office. The inventor himself spoke hardly at all except to say at one point:

"For 5,000 pounds ($20,000 in 1915) I can build a machine that will wipe out a quarter of London."

Clifton and his friends insisted it be shown to the War Office. But that was before the war really got going and perhaps the inventor did not meet with much encouragement. In any event he disappeared. No one knows where the plans might be now.

VICTIM 'FORESAW' CRASH FATAL TO 43

Forty-three persons, including a stewardess with a premonition of disaster and three honeymoon couples, were officially reported dead Nov. 16, 1957, in the flaming crash of a giant British flying boat carrying vacationers toward the sunny south.

The dead included all eight crew members and 35 of the 50 passengers aboard. All 15 survivors were injured, six seriously.

Troops and neighboring farmers worked for 12 hours in the wreckage of the four-engined Solent amphibious airliner, which crashed in flames on the Isle of Wight, England shortly after leaving Southampton for the Madeira Islands.

The pilot had radioed 15 minutes earlier that one of his engines had failed and he was turning back.

Stewardess Muriel A. Hanning-Lee, 22, had told friends earlier that she had a premonition about the flight and would plead illness to avoid it.

She went along at the last minute, however, to help an air-sick trainee, Angela Kitcher, who was getting her big chance for promotion to stewardess on the trip. Angela died, too, on her 22d birthday.

Scattered among burned trees and twisted steel at the chalk pit where the plane came down were leaflets describing the pleasures of leaving Britain's winter fogs for the warm sunshine of the Madeiras.

TENNESSEE MAN 'SEES' LITTLE MEN

A Tennessee truck driver claims he chatted with "three pasty-faced little men" who emerged from a "balloon-like" flying machine that was parked on a highway near Meridian.

Malvin Stevens of Dyersburgh, Tenn., 48-year-old driver for Cook Truck Lines, said the meeting took place on Mississippi State Highway 19, about 15 miles northwest of Meridian.

"At first I thought it was a weather balloon," he said after reporting in at his company's offices in Meridian, "but then I saw it was equipped with a single blade propellers at each end and a third propeller on top of the thing."

The driver, who was en route to Meridian from Memphis, said he scrambled out of his truck and was met by three "little men" who emerged from the contraption.

He described them as about four and a half feet tall, wearing grey clothing and with "pasty white faces."

He added:

"They were friendly and wanted to talk to me but they only gave out chattering."

"I stood there for what seemed like an eternity. They got back into the machine and took off—straight up."

Unlike other motorists who claimed they spotted strange flying objects, Stevens said his motor did not go dead when he approached the "thing."

Actually, he said, the experience lasted only two minutes.

Stevens said he resumed his journey to Meridian and when he got there, other drivers described him as "looking white as a sheet."

Company officials said Stevens "was a reliable family man not given to practical joking" and added they would be inclined to believe what he said he saw.

The officials added that a device on Steven's truck which records mileage showed that the driver did stop at the particular place he said he did and for the length of time he indicated.

IT HAPPENED TO ME

but the pain is gone."

Mr. M turned to mamma. "I'd like to wash my hands, if I may. And I want a fresh towel. Be sure to boil the towel afterwards—it will have poison on it."

But the towel was never used again. Even after boiling, it still had faint crooked brown streaks.

APPROACH TO TELEPATHY AND THE SUPERNATURAL

Around us, coursing through us, are energies of almost infinite variety, energies that the more and more refined and perfected instruments of science are just beginning to reveal to us. Currents from every broadcasting station in the world pulse within the spoon with which you stir your coffee. Connect that spoon to a radio or TV receiver and it will tune to one of these currents and amplify it, converting it to sound and image. Yet, sensitive as such a radio receiver is, it is a gross and clumsy instrument compared to the total instrument that houses and is the vehicle of the human mind.

Only part of that total instrument is the brain as we know the brain from physical observation, and the nervous system with its various centers in the body. When we die, the part remains, to decompose and return to the elements. Part of the total instrument is then gone—dead—and there remains only another part, about which we, the living, know nothing at all though our five physical senses or any instrument known to science.

Thinking in the brain is the result of activity of the nerve cells in the cortical layer, which are connected to one another by the microscopically fine nerve threads that make up the interior mass of the brain. And if that were all there were to the physical process underlying mind, telepathy would be impossible, for the activity of one brain cell is no different than that of any other.

So, since telepathy is a fact, we must look elsewhere for its mechanism than in the neural activity of the brain. It is not the purpose of

MAXIMS on ANIMAL MAGNETISM

by F. A. Mesmer, Doctor of Medicine

Being the First English Translation of Mesmer's
Original Principles and Procedures

QUOTATIONS FROM THE BOOK:

From the Translator's Introduction: "The Maxims of Dr. Franz Anton Mesmer is an unusual work in many ways. Historically it represents another example of the struggles of one man against powerful adversaries, political as well as scientific, united in a common cause: to kill not only a new discovery, but the discoverer himself. That these adversaries thoroughly succeeded is evidenced by the fact that present-day conceptions of "Mesmerism" and "Animal Magnetism" have nothing whatsoever to do with Mesmer's original principles or procedures . . ."

From the Chapter ON MAN: "Man receives and collects a certain quantity of movement, as in a reservoir. The surplus or fullness of the reservoir induces wakefulness."

From the Chapter ON SENSATIONS: "In addition to the known organs, we also have other organs proper to receiving impressions . . . It is very likely that we are endowed with an internal sense which is in communication with the entire universe . . ."

From the Chapter ON INSTINCT: "Illness is nothing more than a disturbance of the progression of the movement of life . . . Death is the complete abolition of tonic movement. Man's life begins by movement and ends by repose . . ."

From the Chapter ON NERVOUS DISEASES: "The extension of the faculties of each sense organ can be carried as far and even farther than lenses have extended sight . . . This same person, in complete darkness, perceived all the poles of the human body clearly, as a luminous vapor . . ."

From the Chapter ON PROCESSES: "In order to establish harmony, one places his hands upon the patient's shoulders, then proceeds along the length of the arms as far as the tips of the fingers . . ."

"BOOKS THAT TOUCH LIFE"

this article to discuss such a mechanism. All we wish to do here is point out that it must exist, and that it has a physical connection with the brain while the brain is alive and functioning. In that sense it can be thought of as being somewhat like our ears or eyes—another sense organ. In the same manner we have other “senses”, such as precognition, contact with minds that no longer have a physical brain in their make-up, etc.

There is one important difference between the things these senses bring us and the things our eyes and ears and the senses of touch, taste, and smell bring us. This difference is verification. You see something, you reach out and touch it. You hear it, you turn around and see it.

On the other hand, you receive a telepathic impression, and it is not verified by anything else, so very early in life you are told you have a vivid imagination, and as you grow older you are taught to distinguish between fantasy and reality—fantasy, of course, being anything not of the five physical senses.

But there is another course that is far more dangerous than denying the reality of everything not brought to you by the five physical senses, and that is plunging into unverified impressions and giving them meaning that has little or no relationship to the reality from which they stem.

With sight, we learn at first by reaching out and touching what we see. Later we can see something too far away to touch, and rely on sight alone to tell us what it is. After learning by verification from other senses, we can know what is making a sound by the nature of the sound itself without having to see it.

In the same way, in recapturing the senses with which we lost contact in childhood, we must follow the path of verification.

There is absolutely no difference between telepathic contact with a living person and a discarnate one, but telepathic contact with a living person is verifiable and can be attempted under test conditions.

How do you go about it?

There are the methods used by esp experimenters. One person looks at something on a card and the other person tries to get a mental message which tells him what the card is without his looking at it. The trouble with such methods is that they do nothing to get at the root of what prevents you from reading another person's thoughts. If you can't read minds to start with you can use the Dr. Rhine methods forever without results.

In order to understand the problem involved in reading minds you must realize that you have a strong psychosomatic block against it, and you do read people's minds already,

but it is blocked off from consciousness.

Consider that fact for a moment. We are accustomed to thinking that spiritual mediums, mind readers, fortune tellers, etc., if genuine, have some special gift or ability the rest of us don't have. That's not true.

We all have such abilities, and they operate constantly, but we block them off from consciousness—refuse to recognize them.

Our dream department, however, still has close communication with the part of our mind that has these supernatural gifts; and though we cannot communicate directly with the esp part of our minds, we can communicate with the dream department and it can convey the message to the esp department. And vice versa. That fact is the key to recovering our natural esp abilities consciously. You and your esp department have a mutual friend, your dream department.

But at once the difficulty of the problem becomes obvious, because you don't understand the language of symbols your dream department speaks. That is why, in these articles, it is stressed that you must start with getting acquainted with your dream department and understanding what it tells you. And you must do that by studying your dreams, and concentrating first on getting spot success in interpretation of your own dreams in areas where verification is possible. Dreams having to do with everyday problems.

Then, eventually, you can begin to latch on to daytime communications from the dream department and distinguish them from thoughts emerging in the normal stream of consciousness, and finally you will learn to recognize messages through the dream department from the esp department. And when you reach that stage you will very quickly be able to bypass the dream department and be in direct two way communication with the esp departments again as nature intended in the first place!

You must remember and hold always in mind that verification is the only true path toward accurate perception of that which can't be directly verified. That can't be stressed too strongly, and it must be emphasized over and over—even though it makes enemies of a great many readers who have already, for many years, been off the deep end in uncharted waters, following maps they made up themselves or copied from someone else who made them up.

There are those who firmly believe that all dreams are reality on the astral plane, which is not so. Similarly, there will be other aspects of these articles which will meet violent opposition from readers who have positive convictions contrary to those aspects. Such readers cannot be persuaded to consider the possibility that they are mistaken, and some of them will undoubtedly try in every way to stop these articles, by writing indignant letters, cancelling their subscription to the magazine, etc. If they succeed, the articles will cease to appear, of course; but if they, as well as the rest of you, realize fully that these articles actually make no assertions about the nature of anything, but only show you how to make contact with and communicate with all departments of your being, building up from the verifiable so that your developed perception can reach out to the physically unverifiable with accurate awareness, there should be no violent objections from anyone.

Actually, in most cases, words are just words. I use the term, dream department, because it is a good, down-to-earth term. I could have used the term, astral realm, with the same meaning, but I prefer the more accurate clarity of terms gained by confining the meaning of the term, astral realm, to its proper place, the realm of the discarnate, the physically unverifiable. This division is necessary to any sane approach to the total reality of the cosmos. Telepathic contact with another living person you can talk with is no different than contact with the dead, the discarnate, in its basic mechanism, and the road to actual contact with the dead is that of telepathic exchange with the living, then communication with the dead. Unless that course is taken, you become a person listening to your own imaginings, convinced that they are spirit voices—or at least you run that danger, and at best you never learn how to distinguish positively between them. At the worst extreme you come to deny that there is any symbolism involved, and you accept the symbolism employed by the dream department as literal reality.

Accepting the symbolism of the dream department as literal reality sets up a process which can best be called feedback. For example, in the type of dream where you are in a car on a steep hill, and the brakes don't work, and ahead is a washed out bridge where you will plunge into a raging torrent, if you convince yourself that this is a literal, prophetic dream, you have, in addition to the very real problem which gave rise to the dream, the added problem of trying to avoid the "automobile accident" you are convinced is going to happen to you, and this leads to another dream which creates another problem, etc. Actual insanity can, and often does, result. More often a milder form of irrationality results, in which we perform symbolic acts.

A good example of symbolic acts is vandalism in teenagers. A teenager whose father has fallen down on the job of being a father to him has probably transferred his father-symbol to his school. Then one day his actual father belatedly tries to take him in hand, and his dream department feeds to him a dream that the school building is hateful, so he sneaks into it during the night and breaks windows, throws ink around, or even burns the school down. It is a symbolic act performed instead of the direct action of killing his father for trying to discipline him.

Much more common (we all perform symbolic acts of this type) are such things as gossip to tear down a person's reputation when those persons are doing things we would like to but are afraid to. "And would you believe it, Mrs. Smith," says Mrs. Gossip, "Miralda was down in her basement with that plumber for two hours!" And thus Mrs. Gossip has a symbolic illicit relation with the plumber, and only incidentally tears down the reputation of Miralda.

When anyone does something violent and unpredictable and they don't know why, it is a symbolic act performed in place of something else.

All this is tied in with the problem of learning how to latch on to your natural telepathic ability in this way: you read people's minds right now, but the messages come into consciousness via the dream department, and symbolically, and unless you tackle the whole field of symbology you can't learn how to distinguish one thing from another. The skill you gain in understanding any of your own symbology will help you on your whole symbology front, and conversely, on any part of the symbology front where you can make progress you are gaining skill that will help you other places. And of equal importance, the very act of studying your own dreams and uncovering the fact that this or that thing you did was symbolic will develop in you that faculty of impersonal self awareness of your thoughts (stream of consciousness) which is vitally necessary to telepathy and all kindred extensions of your awareness.

Now, how does telepathy come to your conscious mind? Let's consider some illustrative examples. In that way we can tie telepathy in with dreams and symbolic acts, etc.

You have received a letter from someone. The letter is cheerful, you enjoyed reading it, you decide to answer it right away, and suddenly you remember that snapshot taken lately, and decide to enclose it in your letter. You get out the snapshot of yourself and naturally glance at it, and for no accountable reason your attention is directed to the position of your legs in the snapshot, and the thought enters your mind, "The legs of a cripple . . ." You think, "My, what a crazy thought!"

With the proper self training in recognizing such errant thoughts you will immediately recognize you have latched onto a telepathically received bit of information. The problem then becomes one of deciphering it. As you lift it out more and more into consciousness you will perceive little mental flavors and asides associated with it, but also your speculative imagination will be running wild and you will have to keep from getting sidetracked.

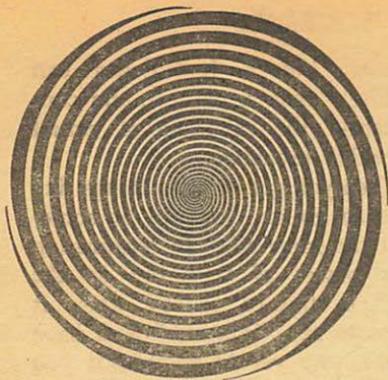

In all probability your correspondent is confined to his or her bed due to an illness not mentioned in the letter at all, and when you read the letter telepathic contact with the person was established, and you became aware of that person being confined to his bed.

Once you have gone that far, the thing to do is find out. Get verification. Because you are in touch with your hidden powers, and you are remembering how it felt, and if you can be sure of it, next time you will recognize the feeling more surely.

And of course, now that you have read the above example, you will have a tendency to go overboard, and the next letter you get you will be having so many "telepathic" impressions that you will be unable to recognize a real one if it is there. But as the months go by this interference by the wishful imagination will drop out and gradually, now and then, you will have spot success. And in a few years you will wonder how you could ever have been unsure of yourself.

Telepathy occurs close at hand as well as over a distance. You are with someone, either in silence or carrying on conversation, and gradually you become aware that you are thinking of something unrelated to the conversation, or a thought has popped into your mind. Without interrupting it, examine it for feel. If you suspect telepathy, frankly say to your companion, "What were you just thinking about?" You are interested in personal verification, not in establishing something for the benefit of your companion, so what you are looking for is for him to pause, re-examine his most recent thoughts, and tell them to you. Eventually you will get positive verification sometime, and will have lifted out a positive and direct telepathic experience to add to your backlog of development. Eventually you can tell positively even when your companion of the moment lies

THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK

Have your subject gaze fixedly at this spiral and then READ TO HIM the hypnotizing techniques given WORD FOR WORD in Chapter Two of this "Handbook of Hypnosis for Therapy." As soon as he is hypnotized, READ TO HIM the particular WORD FOR WORD therapy which applies to his particular problem. Many such therapies are given, always in the exact WORD FOR WORD form, which is essential in any scientific or professional use of hypnosis.

There has never been a book like this. A few years ago an article in Western Family said about its principal author: "Along the west coast, the 'hypnotism man' whose students you'll most likely run into, is Charles Edward Cooke."

Cooke has taught doctors of medicine, dentists, psychiatrists, psychologists, ministers of the gospel, nurses, and many others, from San Diego, California, to Spokane, Washington. Cooke has mass hypnotized as many as 400 people at once by READING the WORD FOR WORD hypnotizing technique in this work.

Although written for the professional man, this book will have a wide appeal among laymen who seek precise methods rather than the vague directions that have hitherto been available. THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK was written by Mr. Cooke in collaboration with science-fiction novelist and short story writer A. E. Van Vogt.

about his thoughts or otherwise evades this invasion of his privacy, as many people do automatically.

The best and surest method of latching on to your telepathic ability, however, is to find someone to work with you on it in the type of experiment I will now outline.

Set a definite time several days in the future so that you can both prepare mentally for it, for the experiment. During the pre-determined period lie down and close your eyes, and relax, and passively study your thoughts—but not too passively, since you want something positive to come out of it. After the set period is over, write down all you remember. Then get together with the other person and compare what you have written.

When your thoughts have not coincided don't discard what you've written down, but examine it for symbolic relationships. Often there will be no direct correspondence between what both of you were thinking during the set period, but after a few such sessions a pattern of symbology will emerge that will indicate definite telepathy. Thus, at 3:10 he may have thought of a poker game, while you thought of the sterling silver piece on the fireplace mantle that holds seven candles, and the common denominator of the two thoughts is the number seven. A single instance of this type of correspondence means nothing, but a few dozen can definitely show a pattern, and consequently the existence of actual telepathic exchange.

When you get definite things like these to go on, you are at somewhat the same stage in recapturing your power of telepathy as the baby is toward speech when it learns to say, "Ma ma." You have a long way yet to go, but if you persist, eventually you will break down the psychosomatic barriers and have it, in full consciousness.

About all that can be done for you in these articles is best described in the language of the fisherman. I can only open your tackle box and explain to you the proper use of the various fish hooks and lures, and give you some ideas about where to go fishing. But it is you yourself that have to go fishing—not for a brief skeptical moment, but hour after patient hour, day after patient day, with your eye on the surface of your thoughts, waiting for that subtle ripple that indicates the presence of a fish under the surface. Also, I can only show you rough sketches of the kinds of fish you should try for. If you ignore those descriptions you are quite likely to come back with a load of old shoes, inner tubes, dogs, ducks, and people, because not all that swims is a fish, and not all that gets caught on your hook is alive.

MAGIC AND MYSTERY IN TIBET

A fantastic yet true book by the only European woman ever to have been honored with the rank of a Lama. Madame Alexandra David-Neel speaks and writes all the Tibetan dialects fluently; she is a practicing Buddhist; she travelled and lived for 14 years in Tibet.*

LET SCIENCE EXPLAIN THIS!

Madame David-Neel witnessed strange things during her years in Tibet. She investigated them relentlessly. Out of her researches came fantastic findings—findings that western minds find it difficult to comprehend—but which cannot be denied. Such as . . .

- How the Tibetan mystics can talk with each other over vast distances by a strange kind of telepathy.
- How they run incredible distances without rest, food or drink.
- How they bring corpses back to life.
- How they actually create animate objects by thinking them into existence.
- How they learn to float in air and walk on water.
- How they learn to live naked in zero temperatures by generating a protective body heat similar to that produced by the bee.

Yes, the secret powers long attributed to Tibetan mystics are true. Read the eye-witness account of a foremost scholar whose classic you will cherish forever. Testimony is unimpeachable.* A great * Madame Alexandra David-Neel was born in Paris and studied at the Paris Sorbonne under Prof. Ed. Foucaux, a Sanskrit and Tibetan scholar. She made several journeys through the East but felt most "at home" among the Tibetans. She devoted 14 years to the study of Tibetan mystic doctrines, philosophy, lore and customs. She explored vast tracts of Tibetan territory which no white traveler had ever seen before. Her books have been translated into many foreign languages, including Annamite. Madame David-Neel herself has been awarded the gold medal of the Geographic Society of Paris and been made a Knight of the Legion of Honor.

You have to learn how to fish, and you have to learn how to recognize a fish when you catch one!

Each of these articles in Search covers ground that can only be understood in its proper perspective after months and years of patient mastery. At the same time, as those of you who have been reading them can begin to see now, they are all related and inseparable, and positive verifiable progress cannot be made in one field without awareness of the others and some sort of perspective of all. Anything that can happen inside your mind can seem to be one thing and be another.

It would be as false—and falsely dogmatic—to assert that all things which seem to be dreams are dreams as it would be to assert that they are all real experiences on the astral plane. One reason you are urged to try for spot success rather than concentrating on one thing is because such a program enables you to make progress without troubling yourself overly much with mysteries you won't be equipped to fathom for a long time.

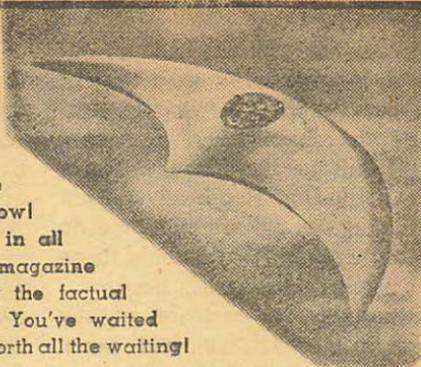

One of the seeming contradictions or reversals you will encounter as you progress is the fact that much that is truly supernatural disguises itself in the cloak of the natural so thoroughly that only very clear insight can enable you to discover its true nature, while much that seems unquestionably supernatural is not. One of the most difficult hurdles will be that of accepting the truth you will see and recognize concerning some of your most remarkable personal experiences. Experiences that seem unquestionably supernatural, but which unquestionably are not. (However, by the time you are able to see the true nature of such things in your own life you will be in contact with so much that is truly supernatural that you should be able to relinquish the wish fulfillment urge to believe something supernatural which is not!)

The most common type of seemingly supernatural phenomena can be illustrated by an actual experience that took place years ago. I saw a girl change into an animal before my very eyes, and become a huge boxer. Fortunately I recognized the true nature of this seeming miracle, and had a chance to study every aspect of it while it went on. The change was swift but not instantaneous, taking perhaps two full seconds from the first signs of change until the change was complete. She remained changed for well over ten seconds before reverting to her human form once more, and during that period of ten seconds or more I had a good opportunity to study the giant boxer dog she had become in detail, calmly. The dog was twice as large as an ordinary boxer but even so it was shorter than the girl had been, and I especially examined the space where her head should still be if what I was seeing was illusion. Her head was not there, and I could see what was in the background that should have been blocked off by her head.

From all the evidence of my senses a true miracle had taken place. I had studied it calmly and without prejudice, and could find no flaw in it to prove it was illusion. And if I did not know what really happened, I would today be willing to swear by all that's Holy that the girl did change into an animal and back again, before my very eyes.

Now, what really happened?

Since this seeming miracle belongs in a large class of allied seeming miracles, some of which have shaped and altered the course of history, we will devote our next article to what actually took place.

Come, Let Us Reason . . .

Letters from our Readers

Dear Ray:

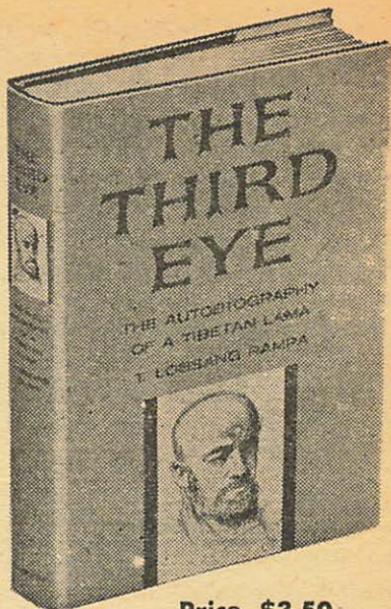

Just a little note to mention that, in answering my note to a fellow reader of Search magazine by way of tape recording, I was told that he had received 'quite a few' letters in response to his 'Personal' item in Search. The maker of the recording (Dale Meyers) commented that he had to revise his opinion of the magazine in view of the letters to him, for none were of the

'crack-pot' or fanatic type, but, on the contrary, each one displayed considerable intelligence not only by the queries and remarks made but also in the literary quality of their letters. Dale further remarked that one can hardly feel surprised by the high quality of answers received via contact in a magazine without, in all fairness boosting the rating in his opinion of that magazine.

When T. Lobsang Rampa entered Chakpori Lamasery he was told by the Lord Abbot: "I know all about you, all that has been predicted . . . of every thousand monks, only one is fitted for higher things. . . . You will be specially trained, intensively trained, and in a few short years you will be given more knowledge than a lama normally acquires in a long lifetime. The Way will be hard, and often it will be painful. To force clairvoyance is painful, and to travel in the astral planes requires nerves that nothing can shatter. . . . You will be trained here in medicine and in astrology. . . . Your Path is mapped for you . . . although you are but seven years of age. . . ."

In a charming simple style, the author recalls his arduous yet inspiring years in the Lamasery: the painful operation to open the "third eye" which would heighten his powers of clairvoyance; his intensive studies in Tibetan history, Buddhism, and the theory of reincarnation; his spiritual training in telepathy, hypnotism, and astral traveling. There were also moments of delight: riding giant kites hundreds of feet in the air; trips to the highlands where herbs were gathered amid spectacular mountain scenery.

T. Lobsang Rampa's autobiography not only makes fascinating reading but also for the first time brings to Westerners a better understanding of a Tibetan's world—the spiritual life and the temperament of an unusual homeland.

Dear Ray:

In case you've not seen the booklet telling of the "Golden Rule" project, I've asked the committee to mail one to you. Being aware of your views on further testing of nuclear bombs, I surmise you would favor nation-wide publicity to the four men who are risking their lives to protest this destructive activity.

Albert Bigelow, Naval Lt. Commander in W.W. II, after unsuccessful attempts to present President Eisenhower with a petition signed by 27,000 people, decided that a personally sacrificial plan must be devised. With the help of a committee and following necessary preparation, he and three other men left San Pedro Feb. 10th in a 30 ft. ketch, "The Golden Rule". Their intention is to sail into the designated bomb testing area by April 1st. Bert Hubbell, Box 126, Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., took pictures of the men and boat as they set out on this hazardous expedition, a project which gives proof of their willingness to lay aside personal interests for the cause of humanity.

If and when the public becomes awake to the needlessness and evil producing nature of further bomb tests, our Government will undoubtedly find better ways to assure the world of its integrity and good faith.

Dear Ray:

I would like to interject myself into the controversy that has arisen between Mrs. Lemon and Mrs. Davis with regard to the reproductive seed.

Saint Thomas Aquinas in discussing the problem "is it all right for an unmarried woman subject to her own authority to bear children out of wedlock", first makes a very good case for allowing it as an approved practice as it is done to a large extent today in Sweden, then he refutes himself by arguing that the father has an obligation to the child because of the "seed" and that it is not fair to the woman to make her bear the obligation that belongs to the father. Saint Thomas took his reasoning from Aristotle who held that the mother had nothing to do with the reproductive process except to fatten it up during the process of growth, and that the child was entirely the product of the father.

The terminology of the Bible can be interpreted in that fashion; and it probably was the intent of the masses of people in the first century that it had that meaning. It seems certain, however that to the learned element among the Rabbis and early Christians, the Reproductive Seed was interpreted to mean a magnetic process. We have a power that can be conserved to a great extent in the married state as well as in celibacy. We must remember that early divines when speaking of concupiscence and lust were speaking of what Doctor Freud called repressed sexuality and not as the terms are commonly interpreted today.

That celibacy does give the person observing continence certain mystical powers seems indisputable. We find the same phenomena taking place in mystics, and continence advocated for the same reason, in systems of religion entirely unrelated to each other.

That the Reproductive Seed does not have the meaning in early church writings that Saint Thomas gave it would seem provable from the life of Origen. During Origen's life time he was not widely opposed as a heretic as was the case after his death. People in his own time seem to have been against him because he went too far in following the text "blessed are ye who make yourselves Eunuchs for the kingdom of heaven's sake" and had himself operated on. He was an advocate of saving the "reproductive seed" and he could not very well have interpreted the terms in the later sense.

With regard to the 144,000 virgins of Revelations I think Dr. Cyrus Teed had the right idea. He explained the word Virgin as derived from the Latin Vir, man, and the Greek Gyn, women, and explains the term as referring to a group being born in which the male and female magnetic fluids are balanced. There is no reason why the author of the Book of Revelation should not have known both Latin and Greek and deliberately chose the word with the idea that it would have a secret meaning when translated from the Greek Parthenos into the Latin Virgo.

Dear Rap:

"Martians, Go Home," by Fredric Brown is a science fiction novel I read soon after it was published in 1955 by Bantam Books. It proved extremely interesting, and contained two concepts that, though not original, still linger in my mind.

First concept: In the story, inoffensive Earth is invaded—and conquered—by a billion unique Martians. The uniqueness is not so much in appearance—humanoid, averaging two and a half feet in height, hairless, green-skinned, etc.,—but unique in that they can be seen, and audibly heard, but never felt or touched. For, like smoke, one's hand would pass clean through them.

Too, the Martians could be photographed, their sounds, vocal and otherwise, recorded on wax or tape.

Invulnerable? Indestructible? Apparently so. For one Martian was unharmed when a tested H-Bomb was fired as he sat upon it.

I wonder, Rap, what you think of the first concept, of author

Brown's form of alien life? Does the idea of it being noncorporeal, without solidity, but still plainly visible and not at all transparent, strike you as a possibility—somewhere in our vast, vast universe?

Second concept.: This concerns the word "solipsism." But let me quote from "Martians, Go Home."

"Latin, from solus meaning alone and ipse meaning self. Self alone. The philosophical belief that the self is the only existent thing. Logical result of startling reasoning with 'Cogito, ergo, sum'—I think, therefore I am—and finding oneself unable to accept any secondary step as logical. The belief that the world around you and all the people in it, except yourself, are simply something you imagine."

In short, the universe and everything and everybody in it are simply figments of your imagination. Nothing more. Nothing less.

In a sense, I think it is a sort of "blasphemy" to say that you have a concept, or that there exists a concept, that does not exist somewhere in our vast universe. It is like saying that you have thought of something that the Creator did not—which makes the one conceiving this concept greater than the Creator. So, answering your first question, I think that such things certainly exist somewhere. When we link up the words God and Infinity, we come to the inescapable conclusion that in Infinity, God conceived of these things, and created them. Else, there is no such thing as Infinity!

The second concept, that we are alone, and nothing else exists, is saying that we are God, we are All. It is a favorite concept of persons afflicted with inferiority complexes. They console themselves with the thought that nothing is real, only part of their own imagination, and therefore subject to them. But why stop with this? Why not imagine that you also are only imagination? That NOTHING exists. A little thought will cause you to turn, startled, to see WHO imagined you, then! And you'll be back to God, and wind up admitting that if "solipsism" is a fact, it is God who is the self in question, and not you.

Actually, my opinion on this is perfectly firm. I believe everything, but everything, to be perfectly real, and that these things are visibly real because they were imagined. Could you fashion anything whatever without first imagining it in your mind? Imagination does not construct phantoms out of nothing, it constructs reality out of the UNFORMED. But imagination or no imagination, the UNFORMED is

PSYCHIC DEVELOPMENT

Aura researchers have now developed a mechanical means of learning to see the human aura — permanent optically perfect filters mounted in a pair of goggles adjustable to your head-size. They leave your hands free! Up to now the most highly developed psychics have had to learn to see the human aura with the aid of awkward physical means—expensive fragile screens and hand-held films, treated with obscure dyes of short-lived power.

... to own aura goggles in this country. To detect aura radiation from the human body, animals or inanimate things you need only a few minutes practice with AURA GOGGLES. The leather frames fit close to your head to shut out all unwanted light rays. The filters are pinacyanole bromide, a coal tar derivative that is not expensive and will not deteriorate with age or use. Of the few researchers who have had the privilege of testing the goggles, more than 90% have seen the aura on their first try!

REAL, all the time. So, in the final analysis, this concept is the result of confusion as to the SUBSTANCE being the IMAGINED. BOTH exist, and they operate on each other.—Rap.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

I would like to address this letter to Russ Sputnik, who states in the "Letters" section on page 81, first column, the following. "I do not care to use such words as Jupiter or JEHOVAH or Odin. Allah and God are little better."

From the appearance of Mr. Sputnik's statement, he seems that he might be a Mohammedan. However, they believe, that is, CLAIM TO BELIEVE Isaiah the prophet who wrote part of the Hebrew Scriptures, and Isaiah called God "Jehovah" as will shortly be proven. I suggest Mr. Sputnik, that you look up "Jehovah" in any dictionary, you will find that that is God's name, and as stated at Matt. 6:9, that name must be sanctified before Armageddon: "Our Father in the heavens, let your NAME be sanctified."

I have been exhorting to many people to use God's name "Jehovah." Not the nameless term "lord" like Christendom says, whose identity would be lost among the many personages in heaven and in earth who are called "lord." No, but God discloses his name, that we may not look to the wrong source or channel for the fulfillment of the promise; and he puts his own chosen name before the statement of his promise, declaring: "Therefore, thus said the Lord Jehovah." (Isaiah 65:13, Robert Young Translation). Jehovah God is the great Creator of all things, the Maker of the heavens and the earth. For the first two thousand years from man's creation he was known to men of faith by that name "Jehovah"; but for over nineteen hundred years after that, beginning with faithful Abraham the Hebrew, he was almost exclusively associated with the Hebrews and Israelites and Jews. He is the living and true God.

If he had no personal name by which we could speak of him and address him in prayer, there would be no sense in the third of his Ten Commandments given to the nation of Israel through the prophet Moses; which commands: "You must not take up the name of Jehovah your God in a worthless way, for Jehovah will not leave the one unpunished who takes up his name in a worthless way." Likewise, as stated above, there would be no sense in the prayer that Jesus Christ taught his followers to address to God at Matthew 6:9, as quoted above. (Exodus 20:7,—the scripture in this paragraph.) The divine command not to take up

God's name in a worthless way was, not a command never to pronounce it, nor a command always to use some unauthorized, inferior substitute for it, but a command never to misuse it.

The Hebrews, Israelites and Jews are not responsible for God's unusual name. No creature in heaven or on earth gave it to him. He chose it for himself. He gave it to himself. He announced it as his own, saying: "I am Jehovah, that is my name; and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise unto graven images." (Isaiah 42:8) Men who claim to know and represent and worship God have become ashamed of that name; but the exclusive Owner of it is not ashamed of it. He is not afraid of having his name known because of his deeds and associations that are reported in the ancient Hebrew Scriptures, like a hunted criminal afraid of being identified because of his dark deeds and incriminating associates. He does not fear that harm will come to anyone if his name is made known in connection with his works, his promises and his people. He has chosen no poor name, but has already covered it with matchless glory and will glorify it still more in the future. The first thing that PROVES false religion to me is when people do not use God's name.

This letter is meant as a refutation to the clergy that read SEARCH, and all writers of letters in your columns, as well as just readers. That the true Creator of the new heavens and earth may be honorably identified we are obliged to mention his unique name "Jehovah" in all its connections orally, and correspondingly.

Dear Ray:

In my previous letter (Search, Feb. 1958) I gave my conception of religion and pointed out that each race except the white race has a religion of its own. The white race borrows its religion from the yellow race.

You remarked that what I had given was not a concept of God, and further stated that God cannot be conceived or defined by yourself or anyone else. It is that statement to which I wish to take exception and give herewith both my conception of God and my line of reasoning which brings me to this definition.

You say that God is Universal in concept and that he must be pictured in the form that we are capable of picturing Him. May I point out that since the beginning of this atomic age we have come a long way in our concepts. But in

by Robert Huffman and Irene Specht

What happens when both the conscious and subconscious minds are stilled?

In a series of hypnotic experiments carried out over a two-year period, startling evidence was uncovered that man has a "third mind"—a God mind, a part of God within himself.

From this mind came words of such love and wisdom their power changed the lives of the group involved in the experiments, and inspired them to share this wonderful adventure.

Here is a book that answers hundreds of questions on perplexing everyday problems and the eternal mysteries of life; a book that leads the way to a true partnership with God.

our concept of God we must still picture Him in his relation to man.

Theologians and poets tell us that man is made of dust, but created in the image of God. Some go further and say that man consists of body, soul and spirit—that he is a combination of the material and immaterial.*

A chemist tells us that man's body consists of only 10% dust and 90% water. A physicist says that man's body consists of 16 elements—16 different kinds of atoms.

Science has shown that all atoms consists entirely of two electrical forces; protons and electrons. The proton and electron consist of nothing more material than points of force whirling in a cyclonic manner in opposite directions. Therefore we can say that man's body—and all other material things—consists only of specific amounts of cyclonic force.

But these cyclonic forces of which we are composed are animated and controlled by higher forces, in much the same manner that the cyclonic weather patterns upon earth are initiated and controlled by forces in the sun. These higher forces are strictly immaterial but they underlie and motivate the material forces of which we are composed. They comprise man's soul and spirit.

The soul comprises those immaterial forces which objectify a man, giving him individuality and personality, mentality, personal attraction and repulsion, direction of activity, expansiveness and restrictions. Underlying all of these forces is the Spirit, giving us life, consciousness and will-power—attributes of God.

God is a trinity, we are told, of will-force, intellectual force and the force of motion. He is the underlying force which creates and maintains all of the other forces of the Universe. Existence without Him is impossible, just as the existence of the earth as we know it is impossible without the sun. Ours is a Universe of force, of which God is the center.

John D. Cowan
Box 1323 Lea Sta.

If we read you right, you say that our individuality is not a reality, but only an objectivication (what a word!) of immaterial forces. And since all matter (those cyclonic forces you mention) is acted on by the "higher forces," producing objectivity, it would seem that none of us have anything but a pseudo-individuality. There we disagree with you again, but no matter, this is an argument that has raged through the centuries. The real point you seem to make is that God is a trinity of forces without objectivity, and therefore individuality (the very triune concept denies Him individuality). How then can you classify Him? What is will-force? The force of a NON individual? What is intellectual force? The force of a NON individual? What is force of motion? A NON individual in motion? Words, my friend, are NOT real things. They are not individuals. They are phantoms, imaginary things we use to describe real things. You have given God a number of words, but they lack a "real" thing to describe. You've used all the same old words, but what I said you couldn't do, was to INVENT a word to enable us to conceive a God. Assuming that you DO invent one, how will it describe a NON individual? But before we go too far along the wrong road, how can we say God is an individual, even in your own exposition? If you succeed in conceiving God as anything at all, you give him individuality; and that you deny him, by your own words. However, I grant you that you've done a remarkably good job of approaching the impossible. Until something better comes along, let's just string along with your concept. I doubt if I can get any closer, even if I were to try something I were secretly saying to myself was futile.—Rap.

Dear Ray:

I've read a good many of your magazines, and enjoyed them. I am certainly not one who refuses to go beyond easily proven fact. In fact, many of the theories I believe in will probably wait for proof until many of us are thoroughly dead (or reincarnated). I approve of your investigation of the AMA chicanery and all that.

But when it comes to the Shaver mysteries! I'll admit that Shaver's stuff is good fiction, and it evidently proved profitable. But as to believing it:—Perhaps I am not as vitriolic or impetuous as some people, so let's say that when I call it unbelievable I am putting it mildly. It is easy enough to spin yarns if one can convince his readers that he can hear, feel, smell, or see things that the readers cannot. But some of us just don't fall for that line.

Therefore I join Mr. Gerald B. Laurich (Letters, December issue of "Search") in inviting or "defying" the deros, mechs, teros, or flying saucers of subterranean origin to contact me and give me some iota of proof of the existence of any of them. Yes, I defy them. Let Shaver conjur them up if he can. And let the angels weep.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dana Howard has been a subjective sensitive since childhood. While still a youngster, she was stricken with tuberculosis of the bone and sentenced by specialists to amputation of a limb or an untimely death. Guided by a power higher than infantile reasoning, while still awaiting surgery, the young girl went on a hunger fast.

Her frail body was encased in a heavy plaster cast. It was then that her strange nocturnal travels began. She would leave her body and travel in space.

These unusual flights continued throughout her long confinement and miracle cure.

The culmination of these experiences was an involuntary teleportive flight to the Planet Venus in the summer of 1939. It was then that Dana Howard met the beautiful Venus-sent messenger who called herself . . . Diane.

By DANA HOWARD

The Discourses of Diane on Intuitions, Disease and Destruction, Religion, The Sub- Worlds, Reincarnation, Alchemy of Finance, and Secret of Youth.

Many earthlings have come to realize that our planet is entering a new phase — that we must be prepared to move along with it. Over the Threshold tells how that preparation can be attained. It answers such age-old problems as the Secret of Youth—Reincarnation—Disease and Destruction—Religion. It provides a satisfying answer to the mystifying flying saucer phenomena of the past decade.

This inspiring book shows how we might tap and utilize the creative essences stored in the highest ethers. Creative thought has long been considered an abstract quality, producing hit-or-miss results. But Dana Howard, through Diane, brings creative thought to the plane of absolute creation.

—Rap

Dear Rap:

Something rather strange and very frightening happened to me a week ago and it has had a lot of mulling before the experience is put on paper. But here it is, make what you want of it.

Around two o'clock in the morning I was sleeping with a weight at my back and in a dream state decided I was taking a nap and that one of my grandsons was sleeping on the davenport behind me. But the pressure grew so great that I wakened in moving over to give the child more room. The dream state was gone.

I was at home in bed, my own bed, and no grandchildren around. This weight was at my back and as I moved it came with me, more weight than before, and it began quickly to surround me, like the soft body of a huge snail might adjust itself to the curves of my body as it clung around me from the small of the back to the shoulders, climbing up my back, across my right side and had started down the front of my body. I could hardly breathe. I tried to flex my arm to push it away but my arm was powerless against the crushing weight of the thing. Realizing my own helplessness I said, aloud, I think, "Oh, God help me!"

As if those words were a talisman, the weight just sort of slithered away and was gone. I gasped in the air in great gulps, and breathing never before seemed so good.

When I could breathe easily again, I turned on the light and saw it was a quarter past two in the morning. I do not know how long this experience lasted, but it could not have lasted long or I would not be here to tell about it.

Suffice it to say that my entire rib area has been sore ever since, thus making the experience real and beyond the dream stage. The thing that pressed on me must have had the force of a boa, but it had the size and somewhat the shape of a three year old child. I could

Dear Mr. Palmer:

It certainly is refreshing to find that I am not so much alone as I had thought. This has been a big question in my mind for some time. Why of all men I should be chosen to receive such wonderful and unorthodox information as has been pouring in on me for twenty years I could not imagine. And now, lo and behold I find that there are literally hundreds, if not thousands of us.

You see sir, I have been in communication with the Spirit World for exactly twenty years this month, during which time I have never attended a spiritual group meeting, talked with a medium, or even a person who believed in spiritual communication, have never read a book on spiritual matters, never have I had any contact with a fortune teller, mind reader, astrologer, or any other person of this world that would so much as discuss these things with me. Early in the work I learned to my complete financial ruin that in this work one has no friends in the world, for because of certain things I said and stories I told, my wife and her religious group had me arrested, on an insanity charge. I was held ten days in solitary confinement, I was tried, adjudged sane, but ordered from my home and family; all my property, money in the bank and other assets were taken from me. Yes even my own children (being misinformed) turned against me and stated in a written letter that they considered their Father dead. All this happened seven years ago. I was directed to go into Mexico and there continue my study. This I have done and no man molested me in any way. So you can appreciate my feeling when I received the four copies of Flying Saucers which I had ordered (I had seen your ad in Fate which I had picked up in a news stand) No, Mr. Palmer, whether one believes me or not they can never say that I have simply copied some other men's stories. I do not belong to any organized religious body, and owe no man or group

In more recent times, there has been a growing realization that on other worlds than ours even in other universes, there are other living beings. The idea that earthbound man may some day journey into the heavens to discover other men and women, like or unlike himself, grows by leaps and bounds. Within man's soul lies the truth — mortals exist on other spheres!

In this book, many references and quotations are given from the latest authentic reports on Saucer phenomena. Because many believe there are contradictions in some of the reported happenings, it has been necessary to show that, there is a great story and purpose behind all these experiences.

Here, in this book, is the history of OTHER TONGUES, and of OTHER FLESH: calm scientific evidence that there are brothers of ours in the skies overhead.

We are not alone in the Universe!

any obligation whatsoever. But I can tell any honest truth seeker, much about spiritual plane existences, space men, flying saucers etc., that would shock the average man out of his wits (if he could understand it). I have been in constant communication with spiritual people, twenty years, I have stood on the borderline and looked over, I have talked with space people, and have spent seven hours aboard a space ship, during which time I attended a lecture by the master of the ship, and what I saw and heard at this lecture would curl your hair.

Mr. Palmer, I am just an ignorant country boy; no education (as you will note by the spelling herein) I make no claims or bids for greatness, popularity, sympathy, money or even confidence. I have everything that I want and need, that man can give. I have nothing to sell now or later. But I will give to any man who may ask of me. I will answer any question that one may wish to ask seriously and honestly, That is if I have the answer, and I assure you I have many.

I hope you will publish this letter for I surely would like to communicate with some of the people whose experiences are noted in Flying Saucers. And too, if there is any one anywhere who has ever heard spoken this name "DAP O'DAY" and could give me the correct interpretations of it they would surely be doing a great good for me, themselves and the cause generally.

As an example of what comparing notes might do for us, listen. Anyone who claims to have had contact with space men and continue to refer to the UFOs as "Flying Saucers" never using their proper name (Scout craft) will certainly bear the closest investigation. The space people themselves refer to the mother ship as the "Ship" or call it by name. They call the so-called flying saucers "Scout Craft" or sometimes the wheel in English.

In conclusion I will say again that I shall be very glad to help in any way possible, but will not "Scatter my pearl before swine". nor join any organized group or cult that could in any degree hamper or restrain my thoughts or actions. Freely I have received and freely I will give.

Anyone wishing to write me should address: D. M. Martin, Gen. Del. Del Rio, Texas. I live in Mexico but will receive mail addressed to the above address. Should any of your readers happen to be coming this way on vacation this summer and will get in touch with me I will arrange for a personal interview if so desired.

Prepare and LIVE THROUGH OR DIE in the GREAT FLOOD

Coming Soon, Which Will be Caused by a SHIFT OF THE AXIS OF THE EARTH as a Result of the GYROSCOPIC ACTION of Our Solar System.

A similar shift, thousands of years ago, caused the ice ages, and the oceans to rush over the land at terrific speed, tearing mountains away and covering tropical forests (which are now our coal beds) with hundreds of feet of earth.

READ AND HEED, the amazing book, "The Coming Disaster" (4th edition, 95 pages), telling what the flood will be like, about when it will come, the warning to be had, and containing the astronomic, gyroscopic, mathematical and geological proofs, written plainly. These proofs are indisputable and all who have seen mechanical demonstrations leave convinced that the book is correct.

This is not a religious prediction, but is purely SCIENTIFIC. However, the Bible predicts it. Isaiah 13:13. "Therefore I shall shake the heavens and the earth SHALL REMOVE OUT OF HER PLACE. 24:20. "The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard." See also Amos 8:9; 8:8 Haggai 2:6; Isaiah 10:26; 19:5; 28:17; 44:3; 24:20.

"I freely take an oath that God strike me dead this very moment if there is any substantial error in this book — Adam D. Barber, author."

READ in this book (1) a letter from the Nobel (prize) Foundation referring it to their physics committee; (2) the report of an analytical laboratory confirming it; (3) many newspaper clippings, letter from the Civil Defense Corps of Ohio, letters from astronomers and others pertaining to it; (4) about 25 'run of the mill' fan letters from readers of it; (5) our efforts to date to save civilization through this flood and our latest plans for it, including pressure on congress to build balloons and boats; (6) our plan to prevent the flood by diverting the axis of the earth with atomic jets; (7) commendatory letters from the noted scientists Dr. Franwich-Gospatt of England and Dr. Malcolm H. Tallman, of New York; (8) our scientific analysis of flying saucers and of sputnik; (9) diagrams explaining the gyroscopic action, to cause the shift.

Eclipses are foretold with accuracy many years in advance. The prediction of the shift is along similar lines, only more complicated. On Dec. 21, 1956 the sun rose in the wrong place, indicating a forerunner slight shift. Houses in San Francisco and Oakland, Calif. are sliding in the ocean, as well as in San Diego; tides are higher than ever on the west coast; the Pacific Ocean is much warmer; sewers and water lines in New York, Seattle and Mexico are being sheared; mountains are cracking, all as a result of the gyroscopic pressure that will cause the great shift. Icebergs are floating farther south than ever.
