EDITORIAL

OVER THE years there has been a steady increase in the difficulty that faces small publishers like ourselves. The problem of reaching the people who would be interested in our type of magazine is a great one, and can be solved in only two ways. One of these ways is to purchase mailing lists from other firms who have already sold something of a similar nature, and solicit them by mail. This is an expensive process, and there is a limitation imposed by the fact that less than 2% of such solicitations are successful. Out of every 1,000 letters mailed out, only ten or twenty will be answered. It costs about $85.00 today to send out 1,000 such mailing pieces. The fact that they are called "junk" mail, even by the Post Office doesn't help a bit. So, you can see that in the case of SEARCH magazine, we offer a subscription for $4.00, and if we are lucky enough to get 2% replies, we will net $80.00. Already we have suffered a loss of $5.00. But we expect that in one year, when time comes for renewal, we will get 50% renewals. Thus, a year later, we may make up our losses and show a profit.

The second way to reach our readers is by placing the magazine on the newsstands. But over the years the competition for newsstand space has become so fierce, and so unfair, in that SEARCH is a little magazine, and often gets crowded off by the big magazines, that even here we find ourselves losing money. We have reached a ratio of three magazines placed on sale, but only one of them sold. Thus 67% of our newsstand distribution is wasted effort. On the remaining 33% we must depend for income and a slowly growing subscribers list. Our advertising income is negligible.

Now, today, we are reaching a critical point. The only way that a profit can be made is by subscription sales. The newsstand sales are becoming too costly. Uncle Sam continues to raise postal rates, so that shipping rates to the newsstands make that 67% of unsold magazines a burden that is disastrous to the remaining 33% that is shipped to any purpose. Further, there is a large turnover in newsstand operators, and when they go out of business, or sell out, or prove irresponsible, we can't collect even for the 33% we did sell. Every year we count several thousands of dollars as uncollectible. This is in sharp contrast to the subscriber's check, which reaches us in advance.

You might wonder what is the purpose of writing an editorial of so irrelevant a nature? The answer is simple - we are thinking of our many friends who buy the magazine at the newsstands rather than by subscription. You may soon find that SEARCH is no longer available at your newsstand. You may be told it has "folded up". Well, that won't be true. What will be true is that we couldn't afford to send it there anymore, and removed it from sale. But the fact will be that SEARCH is still being published, but you will have to subscribe to get it. So, if you find your SEARCH missing from your newsstand, just remember one thing, you can still get it direct from us, and at a far cheaper cost than the 35¢ you spend for it at the newsstand.

We don't want to lose you. And we hope you don't want to lose us!

SEARCH is getting to be too good a magazine to throw two-thirds of it into the junk wagon that collects unsold copies from the newsstands!

Last issue, when we ran L. Taylor Hansen's poem, "The Curse of Tippecanoe", it inspired the author to write us a new article about the famous presidential curse, and in this one, the question we asked, the "why" of it, is given an answer that comes to us direct from the Indians themselves - for that's where L. Taylor Hansen went to find out. You will find this article to be intensely interesting and significant. And by the way, if you haven't yet read LTH's sensational book "He Walked The Americas" you have missed the most important book he has written, and we have published. Also, you don't see many books with color on every page! - Rap.

THE CURSE OF TIPPECANOE

THIS MAY have never been written, had not Ray Palmer thrown the gauntlet to me with the burning question "WHY?" "Why should President Kennedy be a victim of the Curse of Tippecanoe?" It has haunted me also - this question - so I set out to learn the answer. Where does one go for such an answer? To psychic mediums? No. I might distrust their interpretations. I would go to the Indians. So I did. Not yesterday when I read Ray Palmer's article in SEARCH magazine, but very shortly after the event of November 22, 1963. What I learned I will disclose in a moment, but first, let me tell how I happened to write the poem "The Curse of Tippecanoe".

It happened on the night when the Republican Convention was noisily convened in Chicago. (During the Democratic Convention, by the way, the commentators sitting around while the voting was progressing mentioned the old curse which was due. I had of course, heard of it before. Who hasn't? But it was during the Republican Convention that it came so heavily to my mind.) Perhaps it was because of the great picture of Abraham Lincoln framed with flags above the speakers platform. Something about that sad face haunted me. I picked up pencil and paper and began to write the poem. At that time neither young man had been elected, but the nomination in both cases was more or less certain. That is why I ended the last two verses

"Once more a President's face has grown pale (Ike)
As nears the second decade
Is it indeed an old wives tale?
Perhaps these men were too old and frail,
But now our men are young and hale
Laughing at Spectres as they enter the vale
Youthful and unafraid.

Yet remembering Lincoln's sad-eyed shade
In a convention's smoke-filled blue,
One cannot but wonder if a dark parade
And a death-bell toll will come - or fade,
Leaving once more a nation dismayed
As we enter again that second-decade
Of the Curse of Tippecanoe."

I put the finishing touches on the poem and sent it off to Ray Palmer for Search Magazine before the voting had ended. Actually I thought the doomed man was Nixon, not Kennedy. Friends were with me the afternoon I mailed the letter and we spoke of the Spectre of the Curse. I remember saying: "I am not particularly superstitious, but if I were Nixon - I wouldn't want it."

"Can you be so sure it is going to be Nixon? It could be Kennedy you know." My friend asked with a teasing laugh. But I just couldn't joke about it somehow, and the subject was dropped.

After the death of Kennedy's son, I hoped that the old curse was actually losing its power - taking the life of a babe instead of the nation's leader, but when the assassination occurred, I sought out an Indian Sachem. There are some very good ones left; among the Sioux, the Apache, the Navaho and other tribes to name a few. This man did not speak for publicity, so I shall not name him or his people.

After the long preliminaries demanded by Indian good manners, I finally asked almost the same question that Ray Palmer asked in his article: "Why was an innocent man stricken in a curse which took place over a small battle so very long ago?"

He puffed on the tobacco (which I had given him for his pipe) for some time, apparently staring off into the clouds. Then when I had almost despaired of the answer, it came.

"The curse pronounced by Tenskwa-tah-wah in 1840 was not so much concerned with the battle on a minor river in Indiana, as with the treatment of the Indian people. The battle took place in 1811. The Trail-of-Tears took place in 1839. Do you know of this? Four tribes besides the Shawnee were driven west from their cattle and homes. They were allowed to take only what they could carry on their backs. The trail of the Cherokee, Chicasaw, Shawnee, Choctaw and Creek were littered with the dead and dying, men, women and children. Such diseases as measles ravaged their misery but the march kept on and on to Oklahoma. No one was allowed to stop for the sick. In that horror was born the curse for the man who sought the presidency that year with the unforgotten slogan "Tippecanoe and Tyler Too." He was the focal point for the agony and fury of a despairing and defeated people."

"I understand how it might have happened. Yes. But why does it keep on?"

Once more he smoked quietly for a lengthening period of time. Then at last came the answer:

"Do you remember in your histories, or do they tell of the innocent Apache village which was surrounded by white men and burned to the ground killing every living soul except one little girl who died later? That chief had been white-man's friend. His people had always lived there quietly tending their fertile fields. Since this happened, nothing grows on these fields - nothing! Many farmers have tried and given up in despair. Nothing ever will grow there again."

When I did not answer, he continued more thoughtfully: "You told me once that scientists were learning to grow germs like cancer, on something they like, and after studying the germs these scientists may learn how to kill the germs and thus save lives?"

"Yes," I nodded, "they grow them on eggs. But what has this. . .?"

He nodded.

"Perhaps the curse Spectre gains his strength from greed, broken promises. . ."

"I understand what you are trying to say, but let us be specific now. . ."

"Very well. The time that Dull Knife's band was moved down to the last babe - I believe that was in the seventies. And the massacre of Wounded Knee on Christmas Day - that was in the nineties. *And the . . ."

(*Men, women and children of Big Foot's band - even infants - They were surrounded by Cannon while coming in to a reservation.)

"Never mind. I follow the sorry picture. But how about Roosevelt? The Indian people progressed under him?"

"The sheep of the Navaho were cut down until a wealthy tribe was starving. . ."

"Roosevelt's idea was good. The sheep were overeating the land."

"But the way it was carried out was cruel. The sacred 4 horns were the first to be shot."

"But you admit the picture is getting better as a whole. The dam which would have covered the Pueblos of San Ildelfonso and others was not built. The Hopi were not deprived of their fields. Some tribes are being paid for their lands . . ."

But other treaties were not honored even recently - the Seminoles of New York State."

I tried another approach.

"You remember the Prophet? What would The Lord of Wind and Water say to curses?"

His dark eyes held the shadow of a twinkle, as he answered:

"What would Jesus Christ say to broken promises and horrors like the Trail-of-Tears?"

I shook my head and spread my hands out in a gesture of defeat. Then he added softly:

"There are good men and bad men among my people as there are good men and bad men among the whites. Also there are those among my people who have strange power - as you know. Not all of them are good. But I hope, as I know that you do - that in time The Curse of Tippecanoe will have nothing to feed on, and the power of The Spectre will fade away to nothing."

I knew I had been dismissed and so we parted with our mutually exchanged gifts and warm good wishes. Yet on the ride home, a curious incident from my childhood suddenly came to my mind.

I was about eight or nine years old, hunting through a shelf of library books in Washington DC where I was living at the time with my widowed mother. Suddenly a hand was laid on my arm and I looked into the face of a lad about my own age. The blue eyes behind his glasses twinkled as he said: "I didn't know you liked adventure books. You never gave much hint of it in school."

"Neither did you," I countered. "What are you after?"

"The same book you have in your hand: 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under The Sea'. 'I read it last week and I was hoping there was a sequel and if not, I was going to read it again.'"

That is how Wentworth T. Harrison and I became fast friends. Of course, the fact that he lived in a beautiful old mansion which had a stable with ponies may have helped too.

One time when we had ridden over to our apartment house and we were having lunch, my mother asked: "Wentworth, what does the T in your name stand for?"

"Tecumseh."

"Isn't that an Indian name?"

"It might be. My mother says that some day I will know what it means. You see she wants me to be president, when I grow up."

"You and a few million other boys."

"But I have a pretty good chance. The Presidency runs in my family. My great-great-grandfather was William Henry Harrison and my grandfather was Benjamin Harrison elected in 1888 and defeated in '91 by Cleveland."

"He had a good deal of hard luck didn't he? He lost the governorship and lost twice to Cleveland."

"That's right, but my mother is sure I will be president."

"What do you want to be?"

"I'd rather be a sailor."

Mother laughed and changed the subject.

Long years afterward when, due to our constant travel, Wentworth and I had lost track of each other, and the Curse of Tippecanoe came to my attention, I began to look up the strange pattern of events which followed the men connected with the Harrisons. Tyler who helped Harrison campaign and to whom the curse was spoken, was unsuccessful in his bid for a term of his own finally withdrawing. And after that it seemed everything he did to his death failed.

It is possible that the Curse is losing its power. Johnson who succeeded Lincoln had a very frustrating time in the White House fighting off impeachment. Few men have had a first term of their own among those who succeeded the victims. Roosevelt (Teddy) wanted a second term of his own, but the Republicans nominated another man and furious "Teddy" formed his own party - The Bull Moose - which died, along with his career. Coolidge and Truman both having won a first term of their own, did not choose to run again. Our new president has an exceedingly short term of succession. Will he stop with one term of his own?

Also there is another slighter pattern. The preceding president when the fatal time nears seems to have a serious illness as if in warning. Wilson was sick for much of the last part of his term. Roosevelt faded visibly before the fatal zero year of the "second decade" (second ten year period) and Eisenhower had a heart attack, as the time began to near.

The Indians do have a strange power - at least some of them. There are many historical facts I could quote. Not all of them are good men as my old friend the Sachem noted. I do not know the answer. But I do know what happened to my childhood friend.

My mother called me hurriedly to breakfast one morning and spread the paper out before me, pointing to a small column on the bottom of the first page.

"Scion of prominent family killed.

Wentworth T. Harrison was killed yesterday in the flaming wreck of his new sport car..." The article went on to say that the family came from one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence - Benjamin Harrison, and listed among its members two presidents.

"Wentworth must have graduated from ponies to racing cars." mother smiled icily. But I couldn't answer for the lump in my throat. Suddenly I smelled the fresh clear air of the woods surrounding Washington where we rode to pick chestnuts and play pirate. (Even those delicious Indian chestnuts are now gone, having been the victims of some kind of disease.)

I suppose the memories of our childhood are among the most poignant. The sun never again seems so bright - the wind so fresh. Doubtless if I returned, I would not find the Potomac River so utterly lovely.

Yet there was a sinister aspect of that paper which I did not recognize as I tore off the front page with Wendt's death notice and put it away among my things. Only very recently, packing to go to Europe, I came across it again. Unfolding the yellowed sheet carefully I was shocked at the large headlines above Wendt's small column.

"NATION GREET'S NEW PRESIDENT"

The picture was that of Warren Harding, and the date 1920.

Coincidence?

Or another augur of a victim of The Curse of Tippecanoe?

FACES IN YOUR DREAMS

What causes them?

ON OUR front cover this month is a painting by Barbar Sorensen. It is not a painting from imagination. It is from a sort of Day Dream; a vision induced by looking long at one of Richard Shaver's slices of stone. It is an amazing painting, because it can be recognized by almost any person who has had dreams, while asleep, or while "day-dreaming", in which processions of weird and unfamiliar (and familiar) faces parade before one, floating about in fantastic gyrations. Some of these faces are so startling (or terrifying) that they wake us up with a start. What causes them?

First, are they the faces of real persons, or of real animals, or of real "demons"? Are they only figments of our imagination, of our subconscious? Are they the subconscious patchwork quilt of all the faces we have seen (although not really noticed) during our lifetime? Psychologists say they are. But all of us can remember at least one face that shouts aloud: "I am not one of those!". Such a face we feel instantly is not anything in our previous experience. It suddenly confronts us is our sleep, or in our day dream, or even while totally awake, flashing on the screen of our mind's eye with no apparent summons. Your writer has seen many of these faces, and he considers them to be real faces. If so, how then are they seen?

During our life we have sought the answers to this type of question, and after forty years of investigating, we have become convinced of one thing; some of these faces exist here and now, in an ordinarily invisible realm, and they are able to present themselves. Where is that "here and now"? We think it is that place we have taken to calling "The Hidden World".

Let's list a number of theories as to where these faces come from. Some say we are seeing the faces of the dead, from an astral world of after-life. Some even claim to recognize the faces, and because they are the faces of those who have passed on, therefore they are seen from the world of the dead. But how can we be sure it is not our memory playing tricks on us, conjured with by our subconscious mind, which gives us so many fantasies during sleep? The answer is, we can't. But it may be true, all the same.

Shaver says they are faces induced by dream machines operated by hidden wights in caverns deep within the earth. The same objection applies to his theory, because it could be the subconscious. But all the same, it could be true.

Some say these faces are from other dimensions. What they mean is hard to define. Is it a fourth or fifth or sixth dimension, at "right angles" to the first three? Hard to conceive, isn't it? And equally hard to see. Could our subconscious make us see a "right angle" even itself cannot conceive? It seems not. But until we define "another dimension" we will have to say only that it could be, perhaps. . . .

Are they the faces of another race that lives alongside ours, separated only by "frequency"? We know there are invisible frequencies, some of which we can already make visible by mechanical means? There is, then, a basis for this theory, and it could be so.

Only one thing can be said with conviction, the faces are seen. It would be fair to conclude also that they really exist. And it would be wise to conclude that all theories might be equally true, and that such faces exist in all these places. One thing is sure, we will find out about at least one of them - when we die!

It would be interesting to have our readers write letters on this subject, and discuss the matter in our Letters section. Perhaps someone has an answer or two, or a new theory? If you've ever seen these faces, why not tell us about them, for the sake of the record?

AKHNATON -

AMENHOTEP IV -

MOSES?

I HAVE read your magazine since the first issue of Mystic before you changed its name to Search. Many things have interested me and some have roused me to the boiling point. But this issue, October, 1963, hits right home in two of your articles, the one about the Mummies in Canada and the one about Moses' pyramid in Jordan. Also, Mrs. Lauer hits the high spot in one paragraph of her prophecy.

Wow! If you only knew what you have hit into. I don't know how much you can take, but let's see.

My story is so big that a whole body, the core of the Master Teachings, have been formed into one of the modern White Lodges, with Seven Degrees in it. It is the Inner Wisdom of the Ancients revealed and corroborated by modern sciences.

If ever one man rose from the dust of ancient yesterdays, it is Akhnaton, also known as Amenhotep IV. I found in your article on the mummies, the first verification of Amen-Hotep for one of his daughter's names. It was given to me many years ago. However, her name was not exactly Amenhotep. It was Ah-Mena from Hotep. And she was not a girl of about twenty two years, but was a girl of thirteen. She was murdered by her own father, Amenhotep IV, in a sacred ritual ceremony in Thebes, Egypt, under the vicious threats of the Ammon priesthood, the priests he was at war with over monotheism.

Her father laid her on the hotep, which means: the "altar of offerings", in an inner room of the temple and stabbed her through the heart with a dagger. It was horror, grief, fear and hatred of the Ammon priests, coupled with his monotheistic beliefs, which made him take the rest of his family north after that. There, near Heliopolis, he built the city, El Amarna.

He loved all of his children but Ah-Mena was his oldest and favorite. You see it was the custom in Egypt to give the first child to the temple just as that same custom prevailed later in Judaism. She was a temple virgin, separated from the rest of her family. She saw little of any of them except her father, whom she adored.

What real difference does it make whether the mummies in Canada are smuggled back to Moses' pyramid or anywhere else? I am very interested in the fact that Canada believes it has the mummies of Amenhotep IV, his daughter Amenhotep and several others. But I question whether these are the real mummies of these people. Why has not Canada advertised this fact in view of all the interest being shown in Akhnaton and his family. Canada could make a mint of money off these mummies. Anyway, the mummies are not half as important as the message they have to give to the world in this day and age.

The message Akhnaton has for now is as modern as tomorrow's most erudite sciences, coupled with the most advanced knowledge of the universe, of the Creator of the universe, and of man's relationship to that Creator. He has a vital message for this New Aquarian Age which is fairly bursting upon us. It is coming through. He is working in and through almost every main Mystery School and Lodge. So far they have only parts of his whole message, but it is here, waiting for the world to receive. His message, as does the message of Moses, centers around pyramids even as his religion centered round Gizeh and possibly the Moses pyramid in Jordan, long ago.

The importance of the pyramids, all of them, can never be over-estimated. The pyramid forms, the world over, preserve the map, the Way, the message, the hope for all the ages yet to come. If we are to believe one thing in the bible, it is that it is now time for the Pyramid to begin witnessing. And that "witness" will be far more than just measurements of the solar system and the universe, or even prophecy as the pyramid Gizeh seems to give it. These verses in the bible are electrifying in the light of today's knowledge.

Isaiah 19:19,20. In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt (Gizeh), and a pillar (Zion) at the border thereof to the Lord. 20: And it shall be for a sign and for a witness unto the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt: for they shall cry unto the Lord because of the oppressors, and he shall send them a savior and a great one, and he shall deliver them.

This is a last day prophecy, or a prophecy for the New Aquarian Age. Gizeh was in the midst of the land of Egypt, but Jerusalem, containing Zion, was in the north-eastern border of Egypt when this was written, though Egypt's claims to the territory were being contested even then.

I am beginning to believe that Akhnaton is the savior to come to Egypt, and that he may be getting ready to reincarnate very soon. He will work with the Master Jesus, the Great Manu, again in our day as he has in ages past. He will champion Truth as the One Religion, with One God for the whole world, for the whole universe.

I am firmly convinced reincarnation is a fact. I have much good evidence to substantiate it. Not superstition nor ESP alone, but modern research, scientific knowledge, etc. Akhnaton reincarnated as Peter, the disciple of Jesus, at the beginning of the Christian era. We know something of his work then.

If Akhnaton is to be Egypt's savior he will come as the champion of Truth which is just as pertinent and True today as it was when Akhnaton and Moses gave it over three thousand years ago. Another thing, which many scholars and archaeologists are coming together on: Either Akhnaton and Moses were contemporaneous or else they were one and the same person. There is strong evidence to support the belief that Moses and Akhnaton may have been one man. Read the books, Moses and Monotheism, by Sigmund Freud, and Oedipus and Akhnaton, by Velikovsky.

Remember Moses is the last part of the name Thut-mose. Moses is distinctly an Egyptian name, not Hebrew. Moses was a member of the royal Egyptian family, was trained in the same priesthood as Akhnaton, had the same religious background. If they are not identical, they at least had to know each other very well. In considering the story of Moses pleading with several pharaohs, at least three, the only time in Egyptian history when this could have happened would have been during or just following the reign of Akhnaton.

Moses could not have been pleading long, not over two to three years. A question as vital as freeing the slaves would not wait, especially with an empire going to pieces and the opportune time for a drastic move right before them. Akhnaton who is believed to have abdicated his throne, was replaced by one of his daughters and her husband. They ruled but a few months, were murdered, and another daughter, with her husband, Tut-Ankh-Amon, came to the throne. Their reign too, was very short. They too, were murdered. Then came the general from the Egyptian army who was married to the woman who had been Akhnaton's nurse in childhood. He strengthened Egypt, but in the meantime the Israelites, along with many others of differing nationalities, had fled the country, with Moses as their leader. Or was it Akhnaton who had abdicated his throne leading them?

Akhnaton's name for God, Aton, was given to the Israelites and they worship him to this day under the name Adon-ai, which means: Excellencies of Adon. Or is it Excellencies of Aton? It is so easy for variations in spelling to creep in as any etymologist knows.

It is believed by some modern scholars there were two Moses. The first, who led them out of Egypt and gave them the One God Adon (Aton?), Adon-ai, and his religion with its lofty ideals, may well have been Akhnaton. The second Moses, at Mt. Hor, gave them a jealous, vengeful, tribal god, Yahweh. He became their Jehovah, whose name it was death to pronounce. Instead, the Israelites used the name Adon-ai in all public reading and speech.

The bible verses previously quoted in the chapter which Isaiah heads with: A Burden of (or for) Egypt. Isaiah was burdened with prophecy for many nations. This Burden of Egypt is ready right now to fairly burst forth in a divine glory of the Great Wisdom for the New Age. Not only for Egypt, but for the whole Earth.

A most interesting verse in The Vision of Hermas, number II, page 201 of the Lost Books of the Bible and Forgotten Books of Eden, is this statement: "The Lord is nigh to them that turn to him, as it is written in the book of Heldam and Modal, who prophesied to the people of Israel in the wilderness."

This is a startling statement. Until this was read, this writer had never heard of any books or writing which had been given to the Israelites in the wilderness. This is most enlightening in view of the fact they were being taught the immanence of God, not by word of mouth from Moses alone, but from some book in their possession. This leads to a very pertinent question. Where did this book come from? Was it something brought from Egypt? It might have been one of many books. Akhnaton was most aware of the immanence of God, of his personal care for the welfare of his people.

The One God, with whom Adon-ai or Aton-ai?, was later identified by the Israelites; was enthroned in the fifteen storied pyramid Zion, under the name El Elyon. His Wife, and Mother of their Only Begotten Son, was known as Elat. Their Sone was known in Phoenicia as their god, Adonis. In Egypt the Son was sometimes identified with Osiris. To Akhnaton that Son was Aton. To the later Israelites he was Yahweh, or Jehovah and Adon-ai.

That early Holy Trinity of Father-Mother-Son God in Three Persons, was El Elyon-Father, Elat-Mother, and Son, known by many names in surrounding nations.

El Elyon, as Father God, was higher than any of his Sons in the other nations. He was known as the "Most High." But never, until David captured the pyramid Zion from the Jebusites and established his throne-palace in it, did the Israelites ever call their God the Most High. They did not originally worship the Most High God, but rather, discovered him in Zion where he had been enthroned nearly 2300 years earlier by the Ca-nas or Canaanites, who had brought him through Chi-na, the Sacred White Island and India from Mu.

The Israelites crystallized their religion round the Most High God, El Elyon, with Jehovah for the unpronounceable name of his Son, whom they forgot, for to them Jehovah became the Most High God, with Elohim, plural of Aloha, and Adon-ai as the Son. These names were the three which emerged as the most vital. They had many other names, but they were not in general usage.

The pharaohs of Egypt, just prior to Akhnaton, travelled north-east once each year to worship this Most High God in Zion and to hunt lions in the Palestine area. Akhnaton's priests knew of Zion and associated with the Melchizedek priests located there. They all accepted El Elyon as the Father God of Aton who was Creator of Heaven and Earth.

Later Christianity places all the powers and attributes of the Son in the man Jesus. They do not recognize the Chri-Sat or Christ Being as a Living Being who created and dwells in every bit of the created universe. The Life Force who created and dwells in every created thing. A universal Christ, who is in all, sustains all. We are told we have "Christ in you", one of the truest statements of the Christian bible. Christ fills or occupies all the space in our universe and sustains every thing He has created and placed in that universe. Nor does Christianity remember the Christ or Adept Perfected Son initiation of the Ancient Mystery Schools, nor the Seven Mysteries known and practiced in early Christianity. Christ has been in our universe, in us, from the first moment when this universe began. For we were there from the beginning with Him, according to our own Christian bible. And this was long, long before Mu and Atlantis. Christ has been sending Adepts and Christed men all through the ages to help man in his evolution toward Perfection. Jesus was a Christed man sent to help man re-evaluate, re-deem himself. Jesus' power is so great we cannot fathom it.

Christianity has wandered far from its earliest Truth. Jesus would recognize very little of what passes for Christianity today. About nine tenths of our present day ministers read one, maybe two verses from the bible, and from there on, their sermons are their own opinions colored by the general attitudes of the time. The bible, as a real source of material to study, is almost completely neglected. Yet it is the most occult and factual book in existence today. It is a book by Initiates, for Initiates, once the keys to unlock its coded messages are obtained and applied to it. If Jesus were with us today he would bow to worship his Most High Father God, the One who was known as El Elyon in Zion.

It was the One God religion of Aton - Adon-ai which the Israelites were "chosen of God" to plant in Zion, alongside his Father-Mother, El Elyon - Elat. Did Akhnaton as Moses lead and inspire them in the beginning of their mission? Re-read Exodus in your bible carefully.

El Elyon, Jehovah, Adon-ai - these three names emerged as the principal ones for God among the Israelites. The name El was certainly known to Akhnaton as well as the Israelites, for he named his new city El Amarna, which means: the fire of the Pure Being, El, made manifest.

The name El is attached to names all over Egypt, Palestine, Babylon, some in the Orient and in the Americas. But El is the later spelling of Al, the name for God on Mu and still preserved in languages and place names in the Pacific.

The earliest Israelites used the name Al-him instead of El-him or Elohim. Both are plural forms. Alhim of the Israelites connected directly with the Alhim of Mu. Al-oha, good-bye in Hawaii, is also as old as Mu. It means: Messenger gives the peace and rest of God. Similar to Jesus': Peace on Earth, and to the Occultist's salutation; Peace with you.

The name Amenhotep means: Amen, Ah-Menes, Menes, Ah-Mena, different spellings, but mean: The Unifier. Hotep means: Table of offerings. Total meaning: The Unifier from the table of offerings. Both Amenhotep and his daughter Ah-Mena were Unifiers. They wanted then and now, to bring all the religions back into the One Religion, Truth. They were sacrificed back there. What will the people do with them today?

Amenhotep changed his name to Akhnaton, which means: Manifestation of the One God, Aton.

Zion means: Temple of inquiry for the little sons of God. A fifteen storied pyramid, it had a hotep or table of offerings on its summit where David lit the altar fires and brought the blessings of God down to the people. Psalms 26:6, 48:12 and 68: 24-35.

Gizeh means: The rise or exaltation of the little sons of God.

Another name, applied to Gizeh is Khufu. Khufu means: Khu, Work that has been spoiled; Fu, difficult return. Total meaning: Difficult return of work that has been spoiled. It was man, the little Ze or Gi, who was spoiled. His difficulty was that he could not rise again to his God-planned perfection and perfect Sonship with God. The name Khufu on the bricks in Gizeh may not be the name of pharaoh, but rather the kind of structure Gizeh was to be.

A hotep on the summit of Gizeh shows where the sacrifices were made. Not all human either. A hotep, or at least a flat platform is on the summit of most pyramids the world over. The "head of the corner" or cornerstone mentioned by Jesus was this capstone or cornerstone. It symbolizes Christhood, perfect Sonship attained. Christhood, the stone has been rejected by all builders. They could not then, cannot now, place it Jesus said, "The Stone which the builders have rejected has become the head of the corner."

If the pyramid in Jordan mentioned in October Search was built while the Israelites were in the wilderness forty years, it would have been directed by either the first or the second Moses. It would perpetuate the Aton or Adon, give the Israelites some excuse for wandering around so long and bring the pyramid Zion closer to the Egyptian pyramids, and also closer to Judaism which developed around them.

Akhnaton could well be the "savior" Isaiah prophesied would come in the last days to help Egypt, the whole world. Manly Hall lists him as one of the great saviors. He may reincarnate soon to carry forward his unification of the Truths in all religions into One Truth. He may be an unknown babe right now. His Secret Teachings are already here. He will neither down nor destroy what is good or true in any religion. He will act again as Amen, the Unifier. Perhaps once again we are coming close to the realization of the One Religion, Truth, which was known on Mu and Atlantis. Akhnaton will work with Jesus when he comes again to re-establish Truth. Truth is to be the religion of the New Age, again according to the Christian bible. And when we see Akhnaton with Jesus again, we will be looking once more upon Peter, the disciple who was entrusted with the establishment of his church when he was here before. For Akhnaton was Peter the Disciple in Jesus time. We know of his work then. We will see it again.

Ah-Mena reincarnated as Ruth, the sister of Mary and Martha, mentioned in the Aquarian Gospel. She stood with Peter on Mt. Calvary and saw the terrible storm as it broke over Jesus' limp body. Peter's hair turned white that night.

Jesus himself mentioned Elijah who had reincarnated as John the Baptist.

Now, in this day, Ah-Mena is reincarnated again. Elijah and Gabriel have appeared, harbingers of the return of Jesus and the re-establishment of the One Religion, known long before the Noahic floods which took Mu and Atlantis down. Truth. Holiness and Truth will be on Jesus' thighs, bible. Truth will be championed as the religion of the New Age. Akhnaton will be with Jesus, a staunch supporter and ally. And - he will save Egypt.

Ah-Mena is working for the One Religion and is giving out the Lost Secret Wisdom to all who will receive. A Wisdom which every modern science reveals and substantiates.

Amenhotep-Akhnaton, must be coming soon. Jesus must be coming, for the two will work together as they have in the past. The articles in Search draw attention to Akhnaton, and whether or not the mummy in Canada is really his, the purposes of the Great Ones are being accomplished. People are investigating and the Truth Akhnaton and Ah-Mena champion may burst upon the world any moment. The very mummies of these ancient ones are being utilized to bring the world's attention to them and the work they are to do.

By now you may ask how I know all these things. I do know, and know that there is much more to know. I can prove the Pyramid Wisdom with today's most modern sciences as easily as with the religions and Ancient Wisdom. You see, I am Ah-Mena from Hotep. Tell us more of Moses' pyramid in Jordan. We would like to know more. That pyramid is mentioned in a new book, Fair Gods and Stone Faces. Can't think of author's name. Did Moses and the Aaronic priesthood read the Book of Heldam and Modal to the Israelites as they labored on that pyramid before entering Canaan? That pyramid has raised more questions than the mummies have, though they have done well enough.

Chapter IX

Orthodoxy

The science of religion should teach an intelligent realization of the nature of God and the life hereafter, but humanity is still kept in subjection by fear, superstition, dogmas and creeds, and has not yet attained liberation through a full understanding of what becomes of the dead.

Passing through the change called death, a great majority remain in entire ignorance of their condition, and are bound for a time to the earth plane by their false doctrines. These cling to their orthodox ideas, often influencing those still in the body, and the mental derangements which frequently follow in the train of revivals are examples of these obessions, as are the phenomena known as "The Gift of Tongues," and "Seizure by The Power," which accompany many revivals.

Religious exhortations readily lead to mental aberrations since invisible religious fanatics always are present who are unconscious of their transition and, having found no higher life, retain their mortal bigotry, and by their presence add to the insane fervor.

These spirits often make themselves audible to excited sensitives, for at such gatherings many are encouraged to listen to "the still, small voice," supposedly of God. During religious excitement, the psychic faculty is highly sensitized, giving mischievous spirits, as well as fanatical spirits, the proper opportunity to impress credulous persons with their whisperings.

Such entities, for their own deceptive purposes, may pretend to be angels, the "Holy Ghost," or "The Spirit of God," and the thoughtless victims, elated and unwilling to listen to reason, heed these whisperings, which so frequently lead to obsession and possession, resulting in madness, insanity and other psychoses.

The most difficult to enlighten of the earthbound spirits are the religious fanatics. Dominated in earth life by one narrow, fixed idea, opposed to logical analysis and independent thinking, they are found, after passing out of the physical, in a state of self-hypnosis, ceaselessly repeating their empty "religious" jargon.

Nothing exists for them but their dogmatic creed; they are adamantly set in their self-assurance, and it is often many years before they can be brought to a semblance of sanity.

Christian Science

The domination of any one fixed opinion to the exclusion of further mental growth holds the spirit in a state of non-progression, as has been attested by intelligences who on earth had held strongly to the Christian Science teaching regarding the non-existence of matter, and who have told of the difficulties encountered in freeing themselves.

A friend of ours had been a deep student of Christian Science and at the same time an investigator of the facts concerning spirit return. Shortly after he passed away he was brought to our circle to be awakened through controlling Mrs. Wickland, and has since told us something of the conditions in the spirit world.

Experience: January 27, 1918

Spirit: Mr. H. M.

Psychic: Mrs. Wickland

"You know, I had been sick for a long time before I passed out. I made my mistake in trying for so long to cure myself. Christian Science says we should overcome matter. We cannot overcome matter by will. When we are in the physical body and the body needs certain forces of which it is made, if we do not get them in our food we must get them through medicine and so build up the body, because will cannot conquer substance.

"God has given us a will to use as a force in Nature and we should use it rightly. When, as Scientists, we refuse to do this, we must suffer the consequences. I was an example of such a consequence. I went into Science with full will power and full faith that there is no such thing as matter and that we should overcome it. I tried and failed.

"Mrs. Eddy is suffering now for advancing that idea. When you have a dress that is wearing out, you try to get some material of the same color and quality with which to mend the dress. We do not do that with our bodies. We think the body should develop the substance it needs when it wears out.

"I did not get enough elements in my food to build up my physical body, my organs became atrophied and sluggish and were inactive because I did not take the right food to give them proper activity.

"I should have gone to a physician to have him put me in a normal condition, but instead I tried to use my will to make things work. I tried by intelligence to overcome and build up the weak part of my body. That is just as if one refused to mend a worn place in a dress, insisting that no hole could come in that dress. I was just as foolish about my body, and I had to suffer the results.

"Probably some day things will be so understood that there will be no death . . . I mean, that we will merely step out of the physical body into the spirit world. If one would prepare himself for passing out of the body as he does for a journey, he would be able to say: "Now I am ready to go. I am through with this world. It is time for me to go, and I want to go to the spirit side of life." Then there would be no dread.

"Many Christian Scientists ruin their bodies by lack of right care and often go as far as I did; they use will, no reason, and take improper nourishment, or not enough.

"I should have liked to remain on earth long enough to do the work I felt I should do but I will do the work on the spirit side of life, and when my wife comes, we will work together.

"I really lost all thought of things material, and I guess I thought we could live on air. I always thought conditions would change some time. I did not realize what was happening. I was so hypnotized in my work that I hardly lived in the material world.

"Don't let yourselves be hypnotized by ideas. Every theory has some good in it, but let us take the good and discard the rest.

"As Mrs. Eddy now sees these things, she wishes she could correct many of her statements. She now has to suffer for her mistakes, and it is very hard for her. Her followers come to the spirit side of life and expect to find things as she taught them."

Mrs. Eddy, herself, has spoken in our circle several times, and has brought invisible audiences which she has endeavored to free from the misconceptions acquired from her teachings relating to the problems of life and matter.

Experience: February 24, 1918

Spirit: Mary Baker Eddy

Psychic: Mrs. Wickland

"I am here again, and I feel so sad. Do not doubt me, do not doubt me! Why will people doubt me?"

"Help me! God help me! I am in a terrible condition.

"I knew about the wonderful truth of the life beyond. I knew it well while in life, but I shut the door because I wanted a religion of my own. Spiritualism belonged to the past days. I wanted something new, something higher, something better than spirit return.

"I taught that you must not let any entities control you, or influence you, or give you any inspiration, but that you must be yourself and develop yourself, and be one with the Infinite. Shut the door to the spirit world and be selfish . . .

that was I. I had the truth of healing the sick. I was a medium, and in my younger days, my childhood, I was obsessed. As I grew older, no one knew what was the matter with me, for I had such queer spells. Now I know what it was . . . an influence was controlling me whenever I had the spells. I was of a very nervous temperament, and I was cured of those spells by Dr. Quimby. He believed in the work of obsession. I took some of his doctrine and used it for my own. The doctrine would have been alright if I had not denied the finer forces in Nature.

"I was a trance medium and I gave readings, but I must confess I felt that was too common. I wanted to reach more intelligent people, because I found that Spiritualism would not reach the people I wanted to reach, so I took Quimby's doctrine and the vision I had of mortal mind in the Spirit world and combined the two. I want it understood that I used to give readings in Boston. I was very selfish and wanted to be somebody and have some kind of a religion where I could have a following. I wished once that on my birthday, church bells all over the United States would ring, and before I died I had that wish. I wanted to be the one that would be looked up to.

"I denied matter, but friends, as I told you one time, I had a vision, and I saw how they treated patients in the other world, but at that time I thought it was a dream. They were teaching the spirits that there is no such thing as matter. They said: 'Forget it, it is only imagination. You are not sick, you just imagine it. That belongs to matter. That is only your mortal mind. You should overcome and develop the spirit within you.' I thought that this vision meant that I was to teach that on earth, and I set to work. Now I see my mistake, because there is matter, and so long as you live on the material plane you have to recognize matter. When you reach the spirit side of life your mind has to be taught to overcome matter, not cling to it, because spirits in darkness are clinging to matter as much as we cling to matter when we have our physical bodies.

"During the last of my days I was not myself very much. All through life I was back and forth on the invisible plane. You know, I was a psychic and I could have been a very good one, and have done more good to the world through my psychic power than I did. At the last I was too obsessed to be responsible for all I was doing. If I had used my psychic power, I could have helped thousands.

"Many who were followers of my Church have gone into New Thought. From New Thought they come into a more spiritual understanding. New Thought is more liberal. In New Thought they branch out and, being liberal, will look into spirit return. They are more liberal in their reading of books. I forbade my people to read anything but Science books. That was because of my selfishness. I wanted a church of my own with my people under my thumb.

"How I do wish I had taught obsession, which I knew was true, but I did not. When I used to go into trances I wrote a great deal, and when I came to myself, I would deny what I got.

"If only I could get people to recognize matter and recognize the truth of life. If I could only go back to my Church and teach the truth, the genuine Truth of God! God is the Spirit of the Universe and we are a part of that Great Spirit. Understanding this, we can overcome matter."

Mrs. Eddy was then asked a question. "Is the little pamphlet called, 'Confession by Mrs. Eddy from the Spirit World,' authentic?"

Spirit: "Certainly it is. I am trying through every avenue to speak; I am not going to stop here. I will take advantage of every chance there is for me to tell the truth and reach my people. You may hear from others that I have talked with them. I want you here to help me spread the news, not much, just a little thought now and then will help. I will get my people together over here and bring them to you, if I may come once in a while, for I can reach them more easily when I control a mortal body."

Further evidence of the fact that Mrs. Eddy, when on earth, knew the truth regarding the spirit side of life and the earth-bound condition is found in one of the early editions of the Christian Science textbook in the chapter on "The Science of Being."

"If the Principle, rule, and demonstration of Being are not in the least understood before what is termed 'death' overtakes mortals, they will rise no higher in the scale of existence at that single point of experience; but will remain as material as before the transition, still seeking happiness through a material instead of through a spiritual sense of Life, and from selfish and inferior motives. So long as the error or belief lasts, that life and mind are finite and physical, and are manifested through brain and nerves, so the penalty of sickness, sin, and death will continue. To the other, the spiritual class, relates the scripture: 'On such the second death hath no power'."

Chapter X

From time to time various well known personalities in the fields of philosophy, religion, and metaphysics had been drawn to the Wicklands to express what they had learned since "passing on."

In part are some of the comments from the poetess, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who wrote often of the life beyond.

"When I was in earth life I was once a bond servant, with wrong ideas and foolish thoughts of truth, but toward the last the simple truth and an understanding of the real life beyond were shown to me and I accepted them.

"The truth had to come to me through sorrow. We do not seek for truth until we have had a deep sorrow, such as losing a dear husband or friend, then the heart seeks after the truth and will not let dogmas and creeds stand in the way.

"We are hungry to know about the life beyond, and to learn if our dear ones and friends are with us to guide and help. I felt the loss of my dear husband so keenly that I was broken-hearted. I could not think that I would not be with him and near him again, but the light of truth and the understanding that there is no death came to me and I felt him around me.

"This beautiful truth will come to everyone who earnestly seeks after it, and after finding it, we must stand for it in all honesty and sincerity, because, if we do not, doubt and fear will come in and shut the door on our dear ones who have only gone ahead to prepare our home everlasting.

"You wonder where the real life is. The real life is on the other side of the grave, as you call it. This life on earth is only a temporary school - - the school of learning to know ourselves, and for what object we are here.

"People think that when they die they will see God, but how few realize what God means. God is the Life of all things. How little people think of this earth plane and what it really is. It is only an infinitesimal part of the Universe.

"You can learn much, however, about the other side of life while here, and when you 'pass over' you will learn more of the things which you could not learn here because you could not understand them.

"Oh, the world of worlds! If you could only travel to the beautiful worlds beyond and see the grandeur there!

"In time you will have receivers which will record messages from our side of life. It will not be long before a message will come over this receiver from the other world that will awaken the people from their creeds. It will awaken the churches.

"Churches will be empty, but it will be only for a short time, because a new religion will spring up - - a religion which will be founded on the truth of spirit return, and not on dogma.

"People will live for others and will not grasp all for themselves. The churches will be for the people, not for the creeds. People will pay money to the church, but it will be to further the work of the beautiful truth of the life beyond. There will not be any salvation, but you will learn to know that we are with you. There will be churches which will have open doors for the spirits, as well as the mortals.

"If you could only realize what vast numbers of invisibles there are outside the door waiting for the chance to come in and learn the truth of life, and how they are crowding each other for help.

"People refuse to recognize the fact of obsession because they think it hurts the cause of spirit return. I believed in it thoroughly because it was true, and I KNEW IT."

Another time a venerable family friend of the Wicklands, came to visit, Dr. J. M. Peebles, former Consul to Turkey, world traveler and for sixty years an international lecturer on psychic science, having passed on at the age of ninety-nine.

"I am young now. I was always young in spirit, but my body commenced to grow old and I could not always do as I wished. I should very much like to have lived to be one hundred years, but I could not. I had a most beautiful celebration on my hundredth birthday in the spirit world among friends.

"I was very glad to go. When I reached the spirit world I was glad to find such glory, happiness and beauty. I understood about the spirit world, but it cannot be described. I cannot tell you how it is when we have understanding.

"Even though I had been a Spiritualist for many, many years, still I clung to dogma as well. I was a Spiritualist on one side, but I could not give up the dogma of the Christian religion - it was my hoodoo.

"I traveled around the world five times, saw many conditions of life, and heard many different lectures on the Great Truth. Let us not have beliefs. Let us only learn to understand the grandeur of God.

"Realize that this little earth is only a grammar school. It is not a university, not even a high school; it is only the first grade of life. Many do not learn even in that school.

"We have in the spirit world teachers of higher things who teach by object lessons. I wish you could see how rapidly the children progress by this method of teaching. We take the children to schools of various kinds and teach them God's wonders. There they learn the real life, not merely reading and writing.

"People are lost for a real understanding of life, and for this reason obsession is becoming so much more prevalent on the earth plane. Insane asylums are filled, yet the doctors do not know what to do to stop insanity.

"Let us have more love for each other; let us all help the weak ones and reach the point where we are brothers and sisters. When that time comes everybody will work just half the time they do now; they will have more time for themselves and more pleasures. Now half the people are idle and a detriment to themselves and the world at large. If all would work for others, and not have such unrest, it would be better for everybody concerned."

Very unexpectedly, Madam Helena P. Blavatsky, whose teachings and writings made world-wide the theory of Reincarnation, joined the Wicklands one evening to express her thoughts since "passing." Excerpts of views purported to have been received from her, as well as those of Mary Baker Eddy in a previous installment, are presented that readers may have the opportunity to decide for themselves wherein the truth lies.

"I wish there were more like you to help us, to meet us on a half-way basis to understand that there is no death. I do wish I had taught this truth more, and also that I had tried to look further into it. I knew about it. I also had many manifestations. I do not know why, but when truth comes to us we shut it out. Truth is always hidden. We have to search to find it. Theories and dogmas seem to have more chance in the world than truth. Every one has some manifestations, but hides them instead of acknowledging them.

"I wanted to be a leader in some way or other. Now I want to bring the truth to the world. I knew of spirit manifestations, for I had them myself. I did a great deal in my early days along this line, but then I commenced to investigate Theosophy. To me came Reincarnation. It appealed to me for a time, for I could not see truth clearly. I felt it was very unjust that some should be rich and have such good times, and that others should be so poor and have such trouble. Others did not get enough earth experience - - at least so I felt. I studied Reincarnation, and I thought there was truth and justice in the theory that we come back and learn and have more experiences. I taught it and wanted to bring it out to the world and its peoples. I felt that I remembered far back in my past. I felt I knew all about my past. But I was mistaken.

"Memories of 'past lives' are caused by spirits that bring such thoughts and represent the lives they lived. A spirit impresses you with the experiences of its life and these are implanted in your mind as your own. You then think you remembered your past.

"When you study, especially when you study Theosophy, you develop your mind and live in an atmosphere of mind. You remove yourself as much as possible from the physical. Naturally you become sensitive, and naturally you feel the spirits around you. They speak to you by impressions, and their past will be like a panorama. You feel it and you live over again the past of spirits and make the mistake of taking this for the memory of your own former incarnations. I did not know this when I lived. I took it for granted that these memories were true, but when I came to the spirit side of life I learned differently.

"I studied a great deal. Theosophy is still the best and highest philosophy of life intrinsically, but let us study the truth. Let us live up to the truth of it and forget theories. Let us develop the truth within us . . . find ourselves. Let us not look far away; let us not look in the past; let us not look into the future, but let us find ourselves in our present condition, and let us be true to ourselves. Let us forget all theories and dogmas. Let us know and feel the nearness of God."

Another old friend, Dr. Adams, a physician and metaphysician who had been a lecturer among the Spiritualists during his earth life, visited the Wicklands occasionally.

"I am heart and soul in this work. I was in it when in life, not so much doing the obsession work as does the Doctor, but I was in the work of spreading the truth that there is a life after this. It is a real life, not an imaginary one; it is a life of understanding, not a life of belief.

"The time will come when conditions will be very serious for the people of earth, but after that things will be better. People will reach a better understanding and will learn through sorrows to comprehend the mystery of life.

"At this time people are being crushed, but after a while there will be an awakening. It is said, 'The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine,' and that is what the world is going through now.

"The time will come when people will know that we are not dead when we pass to the spirit side of life, but that we live. Death will be like a journey one takes to another country where loved ones will be waiting. You have flying machines now, but after a few years you will have air inventions that are not dreamed of at this time. This is only the beginning of many remarkable inventions to come. You will use more electricity, and atmospheric conditions will be used as power. You will get power from the sun which will be of great benefit to humanity. Machinery will run by that power. Anyone with a little instruction will be able to use it, and can take all the power he wants from the atmosphere.

"Do all you can to open the door to the unseen, but always with an understanding of the governing laws. The average Spiritualist does not even study the philosophy of life or know the laws that govern between this world and the next. I shall be glad when all phenomena is buried and philosophy takes its place, when preachers preach the true gospel of God, not of the Savior, but of the Divine Life in each of us. We must understand God better and learn to know Him as we have the power to do."

CONCLUSION

Demonstrative evidence clearly indicates that much which now seems mysterious can be brought to light by appropriate research. "The supernatural is only the natural not yet understood."

Advanced intelligences on the invisible side continually urge that broad-minded investigators on the physical plane cooperate with them in establishing research centers in asylums, churches, universities and other institutions.

Scientific bodies, willing to master thoroughly and observe governing laws, could readily obtain evidence similar to that presented in this volume. Especially could such evidence be obtained in institutions for the insane, as most inmates are potential psychics who could be developed into instruments for psychical research.

Psychic research circles, formed to learn the truth of life and spirit existence, should be of inestimable value to churches, for such investigation would prove positively the continued existence of the soul, and convert mere faith and belief in a life hereafter into definite knowledge.

It is not presumed or held that this avenue of research is a panacea for, or a full explanation of, all mental aberrations or obscure mortal vagaries, but it is indicative of the need for fuller knowledge of the role which the invisible world plays in human problems.

Thirty Years Among The Dead

This is a condensed version of Dr. Carl A. Wickland's Classic (and now out of print) book on abnormal psychology. It is a record of his work with obsession carried on with Mrs. Wickland, who was an accomplished medium. Together they cured many obsessed persons, persuading discarnate spirits to give up their hold on their victims, and thus restored their patients to normal, happy lives. This book is still years ahead of present day research in this field.

MRS. LAUER'S PROPHECY

THE UNUSUAL codes found in some manner in very, very old buildings, I believe in Jerusalem, will be finally decoded in such a way that many true prophecies will come about through those who will decipher these correctly. This will be something new and will be quite amazing to the average person who reads them, but they will find that they will be accurate. This is something that has never been discovered before and will be amazing to all of us, but you can rest assured that each and every prophecy that is decoded from these will be correct."

One paragraph from the prophecy by Mrs. Lauer published in October Search magazine. She could never have written a prophecy which fits better with the subject matter for the rest of the magazine for that month. Akhnaton, the Egyptians, the Israelites, Moses, David,

Jesus, and we of this Aquarian Age, etc., all are involved in her prophecy. She has touched the heart and center of the whole purpose and meaning of Akhnaton's life. Akhnaton's Aton became the Adon-ai of the Israelites, whose religion was eventually housed in a 'building' in Jerusalem.

The one building most involved, - and why on earth did she say it would be a building, but she is correct, - is ancient Zion, lying now a rubble of rock on Mt. Ophel, immediately south of the temple area in Jerusalem. Even more than the temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel and Herod, and far more than the mosque of Omar presently standing on the old temple area on Mt. Moriah, Zion has the coded message she speaks about. They are preserved in symbols, many of which were lost but have recently been rediscovered. Prophecy from all the ancient books and bibles of all religions and Mystery schools converge on these symbols of Zion. Every religion, every science, including our latest developments, are opened wide by the correct application and interpretation of these symbols.

Harper's Bible Dictionary, containing archaeological data to 1952, tells us Mt. Ophel, not Mt. Scopus, was the location of Zion. From the Lost Books of the Bible and the Forgotten Books of Eden, in the first book, the Gospel of the Birth of Mary, Zion is described as having fifteen flights of stairs. David, in his Psalms, tells of the circling ascent of the ceremonial procession as it wound its way up these fifteen flights to the summit of Zion. Psalms 48:12, 68:24-25. He wrote fifteen Psalms, 119 to 134 inclusive, for the fifteen stories or flights of stairs. They are headed in the bible, "A Song of Degrees", one for each flight. One of Akhnaton's songs, his so-called Hymn to the Sun, Psalm 114, was preserved in Zion and in our bible. It is a Hymn to the Creator, sung by David and the singers on Zion.

Zion was a cone shaped pyramid. The first two stories were said to be at least thirty-eight feet high and joined the wall around the temple area at the southeast corner. The record of the number and types of people who were housed in Zion would demand a very large structure.

The priests, all children dedicated to the Temple Zion, students from all tribes, burial space for the kings, space for classrooms, temple virgins, soldiers, a palace for David, - all these were housed in Zion. It was a residence for many, a temple, a school, a fort, a palace, a burial place for kings. It had to be a huge structure. Small rooms or cells opened out on possibly every one of the fifteen levels, with the lower, larger rooms reserved for the main places of assembly.

The Melchizedek priesthood was housed in it when David took it by conquest from the Jebusites around 1100 B.C. This was the first entry of an Israelite into Zion since they left Egypt with Akhnaton's Adon or Aton. David took his soldiers and stole in through an underground corridor cut in the stone beneath Zion, which led outside to the well. He was in the pyramid before the Jebusites or the priests knew of his presence.

Zion is described as a round pyramid, made of a near white stone, quarries for which are believed to have been found nearby. It was called "white as snow in Salmon" by David. The word Salmon means: "White." All of the Psalms were written in, for, around and about Zion, for the Temple of Solomon had not yet been built. It was Zion David loved and wrote about. Thirty times it is prophesied that a New Zion shall come. It will, for it is the pyramid throne of God to come in the New Holy City. There is something pertaining to the Holy City and the Pyramid Throne in every book in the Christian bible.

The Melchizedek priesthood remained in Zion and David was there converted to the worship of the Most High God and became eventually its most zealous high priest. He was speaking of Zion when he said, "I would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of the wicked."

A careful study of the Psalms, all of them, yields many descriptions of both the ceremonies at Zion and the people who participated in the circular ascent to the summit where David lit the altar fires to the Most High God and then brought the blessings down to the people. This same ceremonial ascent was observed at all main pyramids, in Babylon, Egypt, Palestine, in Central America, on the Shensi pyramids in old China, on the Temple of Heaven, a four-levelled pyramid in Peiping, China, etc.

The true symbols, which both conceal and reveal the Secret Wisdom about to be re-revealed to this our new Aquarian Age, were built into the very structure of Zion. Our eyes have been centered on Gizeh, but it is Zion which outspeaks all the pyramids of the world, yet reveals the Wisdom symbolized in all of them. These symbols, correctly interpreted, begin with a universe in creation by its Supreme Creator, God the Father, functioning and creating through and by His Only Begotten Son, Light. This Light is the real original Primal Creating Light of the universe, recognized as the Source of Creation by both religionists and present day scientists.

The symbols end, when placed in correct order of evolution, in the Holy City of God, eternal in the heavens, a City not made with hands. The City, the pyramid Throne, prove a real condition existent now. A real City in the heavens, not imaginary, but REAL, and scientifically provable. That is why the pyramid form will remain. It points the way to that other City. It includes every Wisdom incorporated in every religion, science and philosophy and all the human knowledge yet to be known in the world. No matter which religion, which Wisdom, which bible, which age, if it is true symbolism it is incorporated in Zion and supported in Gizeh and all the main pyramids in the world. The correct interpretation ties all, every seemingly separate Wisdom and ritual, back into the One Wisdom, the One Religion, which has One God at its Head, and leads to One Common Home for all that lives. Not humanity alone, not life on this earth alone, but all that lives in any form whatsoever, anywhere in the universe. Pyramid Wisdom will be vital to every age, for it will last as long as there is one created living being in the universe anywhere which has not found its way Home.

The Holy City, with its pyramid Throne, New Zion, is not the possession of a select few Christians, nor even the Jews or Israelites. It is the epitome of all symbolism of all Adepts and Initiates throughout all ages, in all nations, and the Beacon City on a Hill for all. No nation, no religion, no select few, can ever claim Zion for themselves alone. The Goal of all Life is symbolized in the Capstone or Cornerstone on its summit. Scientists today are making giant strides toward it, though unconscious of the direction they are taking.

The Holy City not made with hands, eternal in the heavens, was made by the Son-Creator, and perceived by the Adept Sons of God, at least as far back as Mu, and perhaps even earlier. These Adepts gave the form to man in symbols, the most potent and pertinent of all being the Pyramid Form. For it is the Throne centered in that City.

The Christian bible is the most occult book in existence except possibly the little known Book of Dzyan. It contains more cryptic statements and prophecies from the White Brotherhood than any other bible. It is not, never was, intended for the misinterpretations, distortions and abuse it is now passing through. Yet it will fall into place once it is correctly interpreted and no Truth in it will be lost. It gives much of the Pyramid Wisdom.

The fact that pyramids were constructed as far back as Mu, which is believed to have sunk around 13,000 years ago, and Atlantis which sank around 11,000 years ago, shows how long these Adepts have been in possession of this Wisdom. The Golden Age on Mu and Atlantis was real, for possession of this Pyramid Wisdom, even the ability to incorporate it in the pyramid form, demanded a very high degree of scientific knowledge of our earth, our solar system and the universe as a whole.

How could those ancient pyramid builders have incorporated such measurements as the sidereal year, the distance to the sun, the length of a year, the existence and orbits of many heavenly bodies, if they had only astrological instead of astronomical wisdom? How is it that present day astronomers accept all this ancient knowledge as mostly accurate? Me? I can't even tell you any of the moon's movements. I have to read them from books or magazines. And I never would have dreamed of a solar year, or a sidereal year of 25,860 years if I had not read of them. And then last, but most certainly not least, Daniel's prophecy about the man with feet of iron and clay mixed.

There is to be a Stone, cut out without hand, which will smite it and it shall be broken. This is the Christ Stone, the "Head of the corner" at the summit of a pyramid which Jesus said all the Builders had rejected. They will "cut it out without hand", or take on Christhood just as Jesus did. Christhood, Adeptship. This is the Stone which will fall on the feet of the image. Again in chapters seven and eight, Daniel tells of what is to take place when God's kingdom is set up on earth. However, he is told to shut the rest

THE TIME HAS COME!

"THE TIME HAS COME" the Walrus said, "to talk of many things;
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax, of cabbages and Kings!"

We've talked of shoes and ships and wax but hardly mentioned Kings,
The cabbages we'll let relax, and talk of the King that swings.

THE LORD OF ALL IS COMING SOON! A WELCOME WE MUST GIVE!
But this - our house - is filled with dirt, in it it's hard to live.
The passions vile run rampant here, true love has been forgotten.
The quest for wealth has stunned the soul and made the mind quite rotten.

Now, when your house is filled with dirt and in an awful state,
And honored guests are on their way . . . are almost at the gate,
What should one do? You know yourself, We cannot let them wait!
Get out the brooms, the rags and mops before it is too late!

AMERICA IS DESTINED FOR A VISIT FROM THE KING!
So Greed and Hate and Violence must quickly take to wing.
And in their place we substitute a love for everything,
And may the world perk up their ears to listen while we sing.

A Song of Love for God Most High is what we should attempt,
For only through His love can we from troubles be exempt.
Instead of running round the world, let's stay at home and work;
For if you look around a bit you'll see we're quite berserk.

Let's stay at home and clean our house, let others do the same.
Why should we mess with all of those who only cast the blame.
We must seek Truth and live the life and leave the rest to Him.
This is His world, not ours to do according to our whim.

So let us first example set and practice what we preach,
And as a nation seek the Truth, it's right within our reach.
Our love and understanding will the wall of hatred breach.
When we ourselves are purified, 'tis then that we can teach!

The Source of peace and bliss and love on which we can depend,
Was placed within the form of man, we only need ascend.
Our love and faith and courage will the Veil of Maya rend,
And soul will rise up to the Heights into our Lord to blend.
Now that we know "what's happening" we can our ways amend,
And hurry to the Fount of Love to start a brand new trend.

We've much to learn and time is short; pure love demands its due.
Look towards the East with humble heart, from them let's take our cue.
They know the Truth since ages past, for us it's something new.
The seekers of the Higher Path are there to welcome you.

Remember each and every one: AMERICA NEEDS YOU!

of that vision up. The last of it is to be re-revealed at the time of the end." And for all his prophesying, God said to him, Dan. 12:9, Go thy way, Daniel, for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end.

This "time of the end" is here now. The end of the Piscean and beginning of the Aquarian Age. All prophecy, including Pyramid Prophecy, is converging. No person sixty-five years old or older but what can say we are living in a day far different than when they were ushered into the world. The New Age is even now having its difficult and hectic birth. More, much more, will come in a few more years, but that birth may be more difficult before it becomes clear what this New Age will bring.

Two things reveal Daniel's prophecies recently and opened them wide for the world to know now. One: Gizeh first, then Zion, then all pyramids the world over, revealing their meanings. Two, it was a scientific discovery which finally opened Daniel's prophecy so that all mysteries and all prophecy may be completely revealed through the Pyramid Form and its accompanying Wisdom. Especially Zion and Gizeh. Not Daniel's prophecy alone, but all prophecy and Secret Wisdom from all nations, all religions and Mystery Schools.

That discovery seems remote from the subject but it is the One Key that fits every lock and opens them all, at the same time combining all Truths into One Truth, with One Creator God, One Destiny, One Holy City the Home for All. That discovery was made or publicized about 1952. It was - that this created universe in which we "live, move and have our being" is a bounded universe. Underline this. This is the discovery which opened Daniel's visions!

Our Universe has an edge beyond which creation cannot go. There, the created resolves back into the Uncreate atomless moist Original Light, the Mother. And quickly from there, returns to Original Darkness, Father, the complete No-Thing or All-Thing surrounding our created Universe. At first it was thought our Universe was about four billion years old. Then it was raised to possibly five or even six billion years. Later scientists agree they do not know what its age may be, possibly as much as thirty-five billion years.

Whew! Some Years! But our Universe is definitely a timed and bounded creation, which demands for it a beginning and a Beginner. Way back there on Mu and Atlantis those Adepts and Initiates of the White Brotherhood had to have this knowledge. The Book of Dzryan gives ages we can no longer compute for we have lost the key to their word meanings. They extend far beyond even Mu or Atlantis to beginnings measuring into the billions, possibly trillions of years. The excuse for the construction of the pyramid or its use as a symbolic repository of Divine or Pyramid Wisdom does not exist unless these Adepts had this knowledge. Did they have it? I say yes, for every occult book or bible known, from ancient times describes this Universe. It is very distinctly described a number of times in the Christian bible. The Wisdom from the Orient, however, gives it most succinctly, and so simply that a child can understand it. They speak of our universe as the "Egg of the Universe." That does It! The EGG.

Scientists now tell us our universe is shaped something like an egg. Far more than this, these ancient Wise Men used the shell, the inner thin skin next to the shell, the white of the egg and last, the yolk for the Great Central Sun, as a perfect delineation of our Universe and the location of the Father, Mother, Son-Sun and Created Material Universe. And what they said agrees exactly with what present day astronomers describe. Father, Outer Shell, the Darkness at the edge of our Light Universe; Mother, the Thin Skin inside the Egg which preserves the moisture in it, the astronomers say a thin atomless sheath of Pure Moist Light surrounding our Universe just inside the Darkness; the Only Begotten Son, Light, the Yolk or Great Central Son-Sun, the invisible crystal clear "white" Light at the center of our Universe, recognized by both the Adepts and modern scientists as being responsible for all material creation. All atoms are pieces of this Light. "By him (Light) were all things made." This Son-Sun is the Chri-Sat, which means; the Doing God, the Cre-ating God.

The name Chri (Kree) means to do, to act. Sat (Pure Being). Chri-Sat, the Pure Being, Light, who did all Cre-ating, had his name finally contracted to Christ, a name preserved in many of the pre-Christian Mystery Schools.

This Christ of the Universe, Light, has been brought down and confined to the physical body of the Christed man, Jesus. Present day Christianity has retained Jesus but has lost the Universal Christ, especially in his first manifested form, Universal Light. Yet their own bible gives it to them. The Pyramids, especially Gizeh and Zion, re-reveal him.

Now, can anyone say the Ancient Wisdom preserved in pyramids developed from the fear worship of savages? Fear worship probably developed mostly after the floods and cataclysms which took these continents of Mu, Lemu-ria and Lanka beneath the ocean and devastated most of the rest of our globe, leaving a starving, fighting humanity whose only hope of survival was a return to savagery. No, a thousand times, No. That marvelous, scientific, lofty, inspiring Pyramid Wisdom did not develop from savagery.

There was a great high culture back there in those pre-flood times, a marvelous wisdom as well as religion. Religion was based upon their knowledge of the Universe, of the Creator who made it and sustains it even now, of man's place in that Universe and his relationship to that Creator, along with ultimate Destiny and eternal Life. Their desire to know the Creator's Plan for them, to conform to that Plan that they might fulfill that destiny, coupled with the discovery that Life cannot be destroyed, was crystallized into what became the Pyramid Wisdom, their religion.

Their very first symbol is a black Ball, shown as a black circle when drawn on a flat surface. It illustrates the Uncreate Darkness condition of the Space where our Universe was about to be created and placed. Uncreate Darkness was the Living Being who occupied all that Space, although He seemed as a No-Thing because he was completely Unmanifest. The Pre-Dawn Mother Moisture or "Face of the waters" separated itself from the Father Darkness and concentrated within the center of His Divine Body in this Space. Father Darkness Fire, moved upon the "face" or inner surface of the "Waters", the Ball of Mother Moisture within Himself and said, "Let there be," (the Word), and when he said, "Light", then Light, his Son, came forth. This is the true Only Begotten Son clothed in his first form, Light. That light is the real first Primordial Light of the Universe and the Creator of everything in the Universe. Not only the Christian bible states, "By him, the Christ Creator, were all things made," but science today knows this statement is true. All atoms, the bricks of which this material Universe are composed, are pieces of this Light stepped down and crystallized into physical forms.

This bears out the scientific accuracy of the statement John 1:1-4. In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, 2. The same was in the beginning with God. 3. All things were made by Him (the Son-Sun), and without him was not anything made that was made. 4. In Him was life and the life was the Light of man.

The statement that "the Word was with God and was God," is scientifically accurate. God separated Light from his own Darkness Self. "The Light shineth in the Darkness and the Darkness comprehendeth it not", agrees with science again. Or rather, science agrees with this Ancient Wisdom. Even God could not see his Son, Light, until that Light was separated from him, or individualized. The ancient book of Dzian says, "Light, the Son of Darkness."

Nothing in present day science is more exact than these statements of the beginning of things. This is the pattern followed by George Gamow, a modern authority on astronomy, in his book Creation of the Universe. Every atom of matter in the whole Universe was very literally made by that Light. Gamow believes that the Primordial pre-atomic Essence or Stuff in Space underwent a series of changes which caused it to collapse inward two different times. The first would have been moisture, the Mother in the Wisdom. The second caused the Great Light, clear invisible "White Light", the Son-Sun to be concentrated in the center of the Universe. The Great Central Sun-Son. Following this the Son-Sun radiated Himself out into the Space in which the material Universe is now located. All things moved in spirals and vibratory waves. Somewhere in this movement, the beams became separated into tiny little orbits of their own separate from the Son-Sun. They became electrons, then atoms. Gamow believes this Essence was precipitated into atoms in the space of about half an hour in the whole Universe. One half hour! The Book of Dzian says, "Space curdled." How would you write it down today for a generation to read at least thirteen thousand years from now? The "Curd" in the "White of the Egg" became the material Universe in which we now live.

That Life and Light are together, One, in the Great Central Sun-Son. It is stepped down and rayed out to us on our Earth by our own Sun. Without the light of our sun we would not have life on this planet. The Great Central Sun-Son gives some of itself to every heavenly body, to every living being, to every single atom in All of the created Universe.

The Black Ball is the first symbol used in the Secret Pyramid Wisdom, and progressing from symbol to symbol, taking modern science along with all of the religions, we find the full story, the whole Plan, the Way, the opening of all prophecies of all religions for all the time that this material Universe remains. Some Statement? Yes, but that is just what the Wisdom Religion symbols do.

How much did God reveal to the ancient Adepts? Isaiah says, "The end was known from the beginning. The pyramid symbols reveal the truth of this statement. At least parts of this Wisdom have been incorporated in every pyramid form and every religion in the world. No pyramid is meaningless, no religion without some Truth. The pyramid's form, if nothing else reveals much. But Zion, even though it be but a rubble of stone, bespeaks all the Wisdom and leads straight to the Holy City and the pyramid Throne of God centered in it, copy of the City "not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

The material Holy City is called, "the pattern of things in the heavens", the "figure of the true". A pattern, a model, a symbolic copy. It is also called a "mountain," "mountain of the house of the Lord", "high hill", "high place", "holy hill", "holy mountain", in the bible. The Wisdom is preserved in all the sacred books connected with these "mountain pyramids".

Zion incorporated Wisdom from Mu through the Ca-nas, or later Canaanites. A little variation of the word Ca-Na is K'an, a word preserved in the I Ching, sacred book of China. K'an means: abysmal waters. It is often shortened to mean: abysmal. This alone should give some idea of the origin of the Ca'nas, 11.

Zion, pronounced anciently, Zee-on, is very similar, or almost identical with See-an, Sian. Sian Fu is the name of the ancient city of the emperors of China, near what is now the Ordo desert where the Ca-Nas came from. The great Shensi pyramids, close to Sian Fu (See-on Fu), are called the Sky Mountains, and the natives believe the spirits of the ancestors are still in them.

One, the largest, is one thousand feet high and fourteen hundred feet square at the base. Two lesser ones, are about the size of Gizeh. The other four are smaller. Were these built by the Ca-Nas while they were still in the Sacred White Island? The name Sian connects directly with Zion in Palestine. The name Fu connects with Gizeh in the name Khufu, Khu-Fu. Sian Fu, connected by some strange etymological quirk with Gizeh and Zion. Coincidence? Buried Karakota lies at one corner of a rough triangle which outlines this desert and points to it as the former location of the Sacred White Island.

Also, the most ancient book known in the world is the Tibetan Book of Dzyan, (Dzee-on), quoted by Blavatsky at the beginning of her Secret Doctrine and carrying out the same order of creation as is described in our Christian bible when our bible is correctly interpreted. Dzee-on is too much like Zee-on and See-an, to pass it by unnoticed. The Book gives most accurately the Pyramid Wisdom. All these names are connected with pyramids and the Pyramid Wisdom.

Meanings of these words are; Sian Fu, Difficult return to the temple of inquiry of the little sons of God. Fu means: Difficult return. The Khu in Khyfu means: work that is spoiled. Khufu means: Difficult return of work that has been spoiled. Man is the work that was spoiled. His ceremonial journey up to the summit of the pyramid is symbolical of his difficult return to God, to the Christed Sonship meant for him. It is the journey to the Holy City and ascension up the Throne to Christhood.

Both Zion and the temple of Solomon had very set rituals and teachings by which the people learned "how to go the city." Many could not grasp the deep Wisdom and eventually wearied their Teachers or Adepts. The bible says, "the labor of the foolish wearieeth every one of them (the Adept Teachers) because they (the foolish) know not how to go to the city." All the Adepts of the Pyramid Wisdom taught their people "how to go to the city."

All the interest in Akhnaton is causing research into his beliefs. This is leading straight to the Pyramid Wisdom and the unfolding and fulfilling of the prophecies which are bursting upon us now. All present religions have come to us mainly from this one Body of Truth, colored by the particular prophet who founded the religion. It was the One Religion spoken about before the Noahic flood.

All reasearch leads straight to Gizeh and Zion, located on Mt. Ophel in the south part of the city of Jerusalem. "Zion shall return", David tells us. We are travelling at breakneck speed into the New Age. And all that is True in the old will be carried forward into the new. Truth, the phoenix bird of Egypt, will never be downed nor lost forever, but rising from the ashes of yesterday, will soar anew in the Age to come. Science and religion are her two wings and they will balance her in this new Aquarian Age.

Yes, Mrs. Lauer's 'building' in Jerusalem, the pyramid Zion, ruined though it be, has all the symbols, and there are those who are ready now to give the interpretations which will decipher both the Wisdom and the prophecies correctly. Mrs. Lauer was prophesying out of the day and time. For that moment she touched the Universal Mind and gave us something from the Akashic Record which the Great White Brothers have allowed her to read before it happened that the world might be alerted. That something is almost upon us even now. With that one paragraph Mrs. Lauer has placed herself among the True Prophets of all time in the Great White Brotherhood.

RADIOACTIVE FALLOUT AND THE BIOLOGICAL EFFECTS OF RADIATION

Kenneth Willoughby

RADIOACTIVITY is not new to man. The human species, like all forms of life on our planet, has evolved in an environment which has continually bombarded its cells with high-speed particles. This natural radioactivity comes from the air, the rocks and the soil, the walls of buildings. Even our own bodies contain radioactive isotopes, which have been present since the beginning of the universe. Besides these primordial sources, a steady rain of cosmic rays, coming from somewhere deep in the vastness of our galaxy, is continually generating fresh radioactivity as it crashes into our atmosphere . . . This is . . . the natural 'background' of radiation to which life on our planet has been exposed for millions of years. But at the turn of our century man suddenly began to produce new radiations in the laboratory. William Konrad Roentgen . . . experimenting with a beam of electrons, discovered that the impact of these particles on the walls of his tube created a mysterious radiation which he named X-rays..

The hazards of X-rays and radium, once understood, can be controlled. But with the discovery of fission and the explosion of the first atomic bomb, the hazard became general. Man-made radiation now began to pervade the atmosphere and man's whole environment . . . Scientists grew more and more concerned about the steadily increasing rain of fallout." (Ref. 1, pp. 11-13)

"The Radioactive Products of Atomic and Nuclear Explosions. Radioactivity . . . lies principally in the fission products from the splitting of uranium or plutonium. The millions upon millions of nuclei fissioned give birth to a multitude of particles of many varieties of radioactivity; in all, some 200 different radioactive isotopes emerge from a fission explosion. Some are intensely active but short-lived; some will go on spewing radiation for hundreds or thousands of years . . . First, there are the high-speed beta particles, or electrons, which are emitted by most fission products. These particles cannot penetrate far into matter and therefore produce little damage at worst, skin ulcers - when they attack the body from outside. But if a beta-emitter gets inside the body, it can cause serious injury to the sensitive tissues there . . . Secondly, there are the alpha particles, another product of the decay of radioactive isotopes, including radium. Carrying twice the charge of electrons and 4,000 times more massive, they are stopped by matter even more quickly, but like the beta particles they become a serious menace inside the body. Thirdly, a nuclear explosion and its debris release gamma rays. . . similar to X-rays but more energetic with high penetrating power which makes them dangerous from outside the body as well as within. Among the fallout products are many gamma-emitters . . . The intensity of radiation from a nuclear explosion is so vast as to numb the mind. From a one-megaton bomb, the gamma radiation an hour after the explosion is equivalent to the radioactivity of 300,000 tons of radium! And the various kinds of radiation continue to be released in large amounts for a very long time. Strontium 90 is produced in such quantities that 30 years after the explosion the undecayed strontium 90 still left in the world will amount to as much activity as that of 200 pounds of radium. The radioactive debris from a bomb burst is swept sky-ward and sets forth on various journeys which will depend on the size of the particles, the vagaries of the weather, and so on. Some of the deadly dust will fall to the ground in the vicinity of the explosion within ten hours. Some will ride the winds for several weeks. And some will rise to the stratosphere and fallout months or years later on the other side of the world. The amount and distribution of radioactivity depend, of course, on whether the bomb is exploded in the air, on the ground or under water. When nuclear bombs are detonated in outer space above the earth's atmosphere . . . half the high speed fission particles are propelled away from the earth and the other half toward the earth, so that the latter . . . eventually fall to the ground. Beta particles . . . are trapped in the earth's magnetic field and form a band of electrons 300 or 400 miles above the earth's surface.

"The 'Clean' Bomb. A clean bomb would be one depending almost entirely on fusion . . . But a completely clean bomb is an obvious impossibility. To begin with, a fusion bomb requires a fission bomb as its trigger. And . . . the fusion bomb releases neutrons in copious quantities. Neutrons, bombarding the surroundings, transform atoms of the air, earth, water and the material itself into radioactive isotopes. In amount, this induced radioactivity is insignificant compared to the fission products. But it may have some peculiarly dangerous consequences . . . The most important of the neutron-produced substances is radioactive carbon 14. Carbon is a prime constituent of living matter, and it makes up 18 percent of the human body. It therefore became a matter of concern when the monitors of fallout discovered that the fusion bombs were creating carbon 14 in significant amounts . . . Our bodies . . . have always contained some cosmic-ray carbon 14. Now this radioactive load has been increased by the bomb-generated radiocarbon . . . It is estimated that bomb tests thus far have added 1,300 pounds of radiocarbon to the 1,900 pounds normally in the atmosphere. . . On the whole we must conclude that there can be no really clean bomb, even in theory. The fact is that up to the suspension of tests in the fall of 1958 the radioactive pollution of our atmosphere . . . continued at an accelerating pace." (Ref. 1, pp. 20-24, passim)

"From Bomb to Man . . . There are two types of fallout, early and late, and they have quite different biological effects . . . Within the first few hours after bomb detonation the major hazard of fallout is exposure of the whole body to gamma radiation. The effects are in every way analogous to those seen after exposure of the total body to X-rays . . . A few feet of earth or concrete can furnish almost complete protection against lethal intensities of gamma radiation. By remaining in such a shelter for the few hours or days required for the fresh fission products to dissipate the major part of their activity, one could escape this hazard . . . But there is another aspect to the fallout problem, and this relates to the part of the fallout energy that is still being released weeks, months, or years after the bomb explosion . . . The residue of long-lived isotopes is very small in amount. Its biological effect is completely trivial so long as it stays outside the body. But if the radioactive particles enter the body, in the food and drinking water we ingest, in the air we breathe, or through the skin, it becomes a hazard. Once one emerges from the bomb shelter, he has the immediate and long-range problem of obtaining food and drinking water. Everything he touches is radioactive." (Ref. 2, pp. 38-40) The length of time that food and water would remain dangerously radioactive would depend on the amount of radioactive particles absorbed and the rate of radioactive decay which varies with the various radioactive isotopes. Some experimental work has been undertaken with the object of perfecting some method of decontamination or anti-radioactive protection. A physician in the United States Army's Life Sciences Division has stated that "he hoped a usable anti-radiation pill to protect humans from the effects of radioactive materials would become available. . . The pill would apparently protect an individual from both the immediate effect of radiation and also long-term genetic damage . . . It would probably cause certain undesirable side effects - such as nausea and vomiting - but would still be effective." (Ref. 3) "Radiation from fallout inevitably contaminates man's food supply. Radioactive elements in the soil are taken up and concentrated by plants which may be eaten by humans or by animals which in turn serve as human food . . . Probably the most important potential food contaminant is strontium 90 which concentrates in bone tissue . . . Detectable traces of it have turned up in milk supplies thousands of miles from the site of atomic explosions. Food from the oceans is also subject to radioactive contamination. Marine plants and animals extract and concentrate various radioactive elements that get into sea water. The concentration is cumulative, increasing as it proceeds up the chain from microscopic plankton to edible fish." (Ref. 4) "Once a radioactive isotope has been taken into the body, the amount of damage it will do depends on its physical half-life (i.e., rate of radioactive decay) and also on its 'biological half life,' meaning the average length of stay of the substance in the body. In the case of substances which have a comparatively rapid rate of exchange in the body's metabolism, the radioisotope is soon excreted. For example, the biological half-life of carbon in the human body is about six months . . . On the other hand, an atom of strontium 90 built into bone, where the rate of mineral exchange is very slow, may not be eliminated during a person's lifetime." (Ref. 2, p. 41) "Radioactive materials are not deposited uniformly throughout the skeleton. The result is that some spots are much 'hotter' than others. . . Hence there is a debate between what might be called the 'averagers' and the 'hot spotters.' The averaging school of thought . . . has based its estimates of fallout hazards on averages and tended to discount the importance of variations . . . The 'hot spotters' . . . focus upon the points of highest radioactivity as indications of the biological hazard. Understandably they tend to arrive at lower rather than higher . . . tolerance levels." (Ref. 2, pp. 47-48) Amount of fallout. When nuclear testing was suspended in 1958 there had been

"detonated a total of 174 megatons, 92 megatons of fission explosions and 82 megatons of fusion. Each megaton of fission produces about 100 pounds of fission products; therefore the total release of radioactive material amounted to some 9,200 pounds. Most of this decayed within a short time, but it included longer-lived material still floating in the atmosphere, steadily dripping more contamination upon the soil. Hence even without any further bomb tests we must expect the radioactivity of our food to continue at considerably higher than pre-test levels in the coming years. . . ." (Ref. 5, p. 51)

Biological Effects: "The ways in which radiation damages living things are . . . studied from two opposite approaches: . . . by irradiating a whole animal . . . and by irradiating single cells and even parts of cells . . . to find out what makes the whole animal sick. The connection between these is beginning to be filled in. Acute Effects . . . several specific kinds of acute radiation death are known, mainly from work with small animals. When the whole body receives a dose in the range of 300 to 800 roentgens, the small intestine gives trouble within a few days: there is severe nausea and weakness, and the lining of the intestine almost sloughs off, exposing the animal to heavy loss of fluids and peritonitis . . . The intestine usually recovers, and in a few more days the patient feels better. But after two to three weeks the blood forming system gives out: the bone marrow stops producing cells, and the patient usually dies. This is called 'marrow death.' In the case of human beings, a dose of 600 roentgens is sufficient to cause marrow death for almost everyone exposed; 400 to 500 roentgens will kill about half of those exposed; and 300 roentgens will kill only a few. Injections of bone marrow cells taken from an unirradiated donor can protect against doses perhaps two to three times as high as these . . . When the dose is 1,000 roentgens or more, marrow injections cannot help. The small intestine fails to recover from its early damage and the patient dies about one week after exposure. . . At much higher doses - somewhere above 3,000r - comes what is called 'central nervous system death.' The nerve tissue is comparatively resistant and shows no sign of damage up to these doses, but at this level it succumbs abruptly. Apparently the nerve cells' ability to discriminate between sodium and potassium suddenly breaks down, and the patient dies within a few hours or a day or two after exposure . . . At much lower levels of exposure, we can still see some acute effects. Local irradiation of just the hands, the jaw, or some other organ may produce a burn, loss of hair, temporary sterility, or a dry skin. A dose of 50 to 100r to a large portion of the body may cause temporary effects on the blood, though the person may not feel ill at all. Finally we come to the milder doses which show no immediate symptoms but are still of concern to practicing radiologists, to people occupationally exposed and to all of us because of our life-long exposure to background radiation, X-rays, and now fallout. The long-term effects of these small doses are the same as those that show up after recovery from acute exposures . . . genetic damage, cancer, and shortening of life . . . Is there a 'threshold' dose below which there will be no effect at all? It is clear that a certain minimum dose is required to produce acute illness or death. On the other hand, most authorities agree that there is no threshold for genetic damage: any dose, however small, will take some toll of the genes. The major argument has been whether a threshold exists for the other long-term hazards, particularly cancer. A second question, not always clearly stated, is whether there is a dose rate at which we recover from the damage as fast as it accumulates. For acute effects there clearly is such a rate, and we have just noted that some of the delayed effects are reduced when the dose rate goes down. The key question, then, is how far they can be reduced: Will they go to zero or just to a definite small amount. The answers . . . are not all in yet. It seems at present . . . that there are two kinds of injury - a recoverable and a nonrecoverable part. Recovery in turn has at least two mechanisms - replacement of damaged cells by new ones, and actual recovery of injured cells . . . The situation becomes even more complex when we study radiations from materials inside the body, such as the radioactive products in fallout - strontium, cesium, barium, iodine and so on. The factors of importance in assessing this type of hazard include the physical half-life of the isotope, the nature and range of its radiation, the amount taken up by the body, the duration of its stay, the organ that receives the radiation . . . Some kinds of radiation are more damaging to live tissues than others. For example, alpha particles produce more effect per unit of dose than X-rays do. We can rate the various radiations on a scale of 'relative biological efficiency' (RBE) . . . The RBE of a given radiation may vary with the biological effect being studied. But in general we find that alpha particles have the greatest effect, neutrons come next, and beta particles and X-rays have the lowest efficiency . . . The RBE is now used as the basis for translating the amount of radiation into biologically effective dosage. The unit employed to measure a dose in biological terms (and to express the maximum permissible exposure') is the rem: it is calculated by multiplying the RBE by the 'rad' - a general unit of radiation energy very close to the roentgen, long used as the standard in measuring X-rays. Effect on Individual Cells . . . Our ideas of how radiation kills a cell or produces a mutation are changing as we get more information. On the basis of early all-or-nothing ideas, we would have concluded that no treatment could alter a cell's chances of survival on irradiation. Then we found that treatment during irradiation could protect to some extent, and now even after the irradiation we can do things to alter the final result, as far as a single cell is concerned. Perhaps the most significant new finding is that there are natural repair processes which undo some of the damage from radiation. The residual damage does not drop to zero, even at low-dose rates, but it may be less than was thought. Cancer Effect.. Radiation increases the incidence of most types of cancer, and the higher the dose, the sooner the cancer appears. At high doses, however, the animal may die of other causes before cancer has a chance to develop, and so the cancer-inducing effect is obscured . . . In considering whether there is a threshold for cancers . . . we must bear in mind that leukemia, a blood disease in which white blood cells multiply very rapidly, may not be typical of other cancers. On the whole, we are in the highly unsatisfactory position of being unable to say with any confidence, either from animal experiments or from actual human cases, whether or not there is a threshold for most forms of cancer. . . The data observed in animal experiments seem more consistent with a threshold relationship, but they are not conclusive on this score, and against the animal findings stand . . recent data . . . on human patients, which imply that there is no threshold for leukemia down to two roentgens. Life Shortening. Now let us look at the effect of radiation in shortening life - that is, reducing life expectancy in a general way without reference to any particular cause of death . . . The normal average death rate is fairly high in the early childhood years, dips to its lowest point in the teens and then rises steadily with advancing age. After the age of 30 or so, the death rate increases at a phenomenally regular pace, doubling about every seven or eight years. This general picture applies not only to human populations but to other animals. . . The effect of a general influence on health is reflected by a shift of the whole curve toward lower or higher age. . . Analysis of mice exposed to radiation from bomb tests have yielded results that when extrapolated to man . . . say that doses up to 300 to 400r will shorten life by between four and nine days per roentgen of exposure. Other experiments have generally been in line with these results. Radiation definitely ages the population so that it dies off from all causes at earlier ages than it otherwise would. And there seems to be no dose threshold for the life-shortening effect. . .

“ ‘Permissible Limits’ or Levels of Safety . . . Our notions of ‘maximum permissible exposure’ hark back to early days when little information was available on effects of small doses and when far fewer people were being exposed to radiation than now are. By 1928, after it had become clear that safety standards needed to be set, most groups placed the limit of exposure at 0.1 to 1 roentgen as a maximum daily dose. Since then the tendency of such agencies as the International Commission on Radiation Protection (ICRP) and the American National Committee on Radiation Protection (NCRP) has been to reduce the limit periodically, while translating it from radium and X-ray terms into comparable units for other radioactive isotopes. Some critics have felt that limit reductions have not been sufficiently drastic, while others have attacked the whole concept that there is such a thing as a permissible dose. All through the history of the ICRP and NCRP, their main concern has been protection of the relatively small numbers of persons occupationally exposed to radiation. But ‘nonoccupational exposure,’ that is, for the general populace, is another matter. In 1953 the ICRP suggested that one tenth of the occupational exposure level should be acceptable for the general population. When we come to consider acceptability for this area, however, several new questions arise . . . Is there a threshold for radiation effects, and if not, just how small or large is the risk from fallout? . . . Estimates of the Risks. To give numbers on how many persons will be hurt by fallout . . . we must use many assumptions and calculations, all based on rather skimpy data. The results are therefore somewhat uncertain, but they are clear enough to allow this definite conclusion. The number of people hurt will not be zero, and it will also not be so large that each of us has to be anxious about his own personal safety. This will be true even if the number rises to twice or five times the present estimate . . . If there is a threshold for the nongenetic forms of damage, then very few people will be hurt directly by the fallout. It seems probable, however, that there is no threshold for leukemia, and perhaps none for life-shortening . . . In aggregate man-days of life lost, and in the number of people affected, life-shortening now seems to be the major deleterious effect . . . We can summarize the situation this way. Our best estimate is that the chance of getting leukemia is one in 100,000 (it may be three times greater or less than this). The same applies to all other cancers together, and it turns out that the genetic risk also is about the same. The life-shortening effect cannot be expressed in terms of odds; all we can say is that many millions will be affected in some degree. Numerically we might say that it may amount to three million persons losing an average of three years of life, or 30 million losing four months, or three billion losing one day." (Ref. 6, passim)

Genetic Effects. "Ordinarily a gene copies itself unerringly through generation after generation. But occasionally it somehow mutates . . . A mutant gene is just as stable as the original gene, so it can reproduce itself in its new form from generation to generation. Mutations occur in all parts of the body, but only those in reproductive tissues will be inherited . . . Aside from gene mutations, there are sometimes gross alterations in chromosome structure, due to breakage of chromosomes and rearrangement of the broken parts. . . Mutation and chromosome breakage are exceedingly rare events. A typical mutation occurs about once in 100,000 generations. This means that a human gene goes through millions of years without mutating. What kinds of effects are produced by mutation? The simplest and probably most correct answer is: every kind. Geneticists studying human heredity have catalogued mutant genes that affect all parts of the body in all sorts of ways. The same is true for the mouse and other well-studied animals such as fruit flies. Some mutations impair embryonic development in some way so that the fly dies before reaching the adult stage. Others, probably the majority of all mutations, cause a statistical reduction in the life expectancy - not certain death but an enhanced probability of death. Human data support this . . . The most common mutation is not a clearly recognizable genetic disease but an impairment of some body function, so that the individual is more likely to succumb to the various hardships and diseases of life. . . Only a small fraction of the mutations that occur produce conspicuous genic diseases. The greater number exert their effects on the population in a milder and non-specific way. But the fact that a mutant causes only a mild effect doesn't mean it is unimportant. A mutant gene that causes death is eliminated along with the person it kills, so only one individual is affected. But a mutant that produces a 50 percent chance of death lives to strike another day: on the average it will affect two persons before being eliminated. And a gene causing one chance in 100 of death will affect a string of 100 persons before it is eliminated . . . All kinds of high-energy radiation produce mutations if they reach the chromosomes. . . Radiations . . . also produce all sorts of chromosome aberrations. . . Geneticists are convinced that there is no threshold for radiation-induced mutations: that is, there is no dose so low that it produces no mutations at all. Each dose, however small, that reaches the germ cells between conception and reproduction carries a risk to future generations proportional to the dose . . . but human data are inadequate for more than the crudest of quantitative statements and the results in experimental animals differ from one species to another . . . In the absence of better information, about all that can be done is to use data on mice - the closest animal to man on which we have quantitative information. It should be clearly understood that all estimates of future genetic damage . . . have depended on mouse data and may therefore be very far off. The United Nations Report on the Effects of Atomic Radiation estimated that 4 percent of all human infants now have or will develop serious hereditary defects. It is not known what fraction of these are directly attributable to the mutation rate. The reason is that some of the harmful genes in the population are not maintained by recurrent mutation but by other mechanisms. For example, some genes are beneficial in a single dose but harmful in a double dose. Increasing the mutation rate of such genes would cause less effect on the population than a corresponding increase in a mutant that is unequivocally harmful. Unfortunately we don't know which kind of gene is most responsible for the 4 percent of genetic defects among infants. The United Nations estimated that a permanent doubling of the mutation rate would cause the 4 percent to rise eventually to 5 to 8 percent . . . According to the UN committee, the radiation from the fallout of the bomb tests up to 1958 is about 0.01 roentgen. If the present world population has a total of two billion children, these would inherit an estimated 20,000 mutations as a result of the fallout. If tests continued at the 1954-1958 rate for a 30-year generation the number would rise about tenfold - to 200,000. This is about 1/2000 of the mutations expected from other causes, or one thirtieth of the number that would be produced in the same period by natural radiations . . . The amount of genetic damage due to fallout and other man-made radiation is small relative to mutation from other causes. Yet, considering the size of the present and future world population, this small fraction can be a very large number." (Ref. 7, passim)

PRYING INTO THE UNKNOWN

By Will Carson and

YOU MAY BE MISSING OUT ON ONE OF THE GREATEST EXPERIENCES OF YOUR LIFE -

You may skip the following, or you may read it, smile, lay it aside and forget it. But you will be the only one to have lost. We will feel sorry for you that you cannot share in this great experience, but - what more can we do?

Did you know that there's an element in life, available to practically everyone in this day and age for almost nothing, which, when properly utilized, can lift you to a higher plain of existence, add another dimension to life, brighten the gloomiest day, calm the jaggedest nerves - make a healthier (in mind and body), more relaxed, happier, BETTER person out of you?

This element is known by what has come to be a very misleading term - so misleading that when we repeat it here you probably will immediately be inclined to refute us. The term is "music", but we hasten to qualify that what we are going to refer to is TRUE MUSIC - which might be defined as: Sound vibrations organized so as to please one's aesthetic values. This does NOT mean what a lot of people think of as "long-hair" music, "Opera", or even specifically classical music. We are not going to talk about any specific type of music, because TRUE MUSIC is simply that, no matter how it may be further classed. Symphonies do, indeed, produce TRUE MUSIC, but we've also heard TRUE MUSIC produced on a solo harmonica with no accompaniment; by unaccompanied voices grouped around a campfire; by dance orchestra; by the wind riffing through an aeolian harp. The two important things are that it IS TRUE MUSIC and that you SUBMIT YOURSELF to it...That, the latter, is the important secret; because once you learn it, you will be able immediately to identify the former.

We were fortunate to have been born with the ability to SUBMIT OURSELVES to TRUE MUSIC; others we know who were not born with it - who seemed, in fact, to have inherited a prejudice AGAINST it - have LEARNED to submit to it and thus found their lives as enriched as our own.

A strange thing, this prejudice against certain music. It is probably due to the fact that most people "adopt" the kind of music they associate most closely with their own self-image; thus, the person who regards themself an "intellectual" will profess to Classical music - all too often never actually knowing HOW to really enjoy it. The "avant garde" will prescribe only to the most sophisticated modern music; and the teenager who either openly or secretly represents the inaccessible world of the adult often eschews ANY music remindful of that world by adopting a type of "music" completely satirical to it.

But even though the air of America today is full of music of all classes and caliber, only a fortunate minority know how to savor the nirvana attainable through COMPLETE SUBMISSION to TRUE MUSIC. At the same time, it's as simple as that: SUBMITTING to it. Much simpler, in fact, than for us to try and tell you how to go about it. Although we might suggest a few steps:

First, FORGET your prejudices against certain types of music - unless you're prejudiced against racous "music", then you're on the right track! - Next, get yourself some recordings of GOOD music, TRUE MUSIC - we suggest classical to start with because most of it by the Old Masters is guaranteed to be "Good" - and we do NOT suggest OPERA music, which is intended to be SEEN as well as heard and often CAN be quite unlistenable, unless you're a died-in-the-wool Opera fan. Then lock yourself in a room, start the music - forget about YOURSELF and all your worldly worries; GIVE YOURSELF to the music, SUBMIT COMPLETELY; it will meet you halfway - it will take you by the heartstring and lead you to realms of existence you never knew existed! It might take you awhile to learn HOW to submit, but keep trying!

The pleasure will deepen with experience, as you learn to submit more fully and as your ear naturally becomes more sensitive to the finer points of music. Eventually it will not be necessary to give your exclusive attention in order to fully enjoy it; and probably once you have actually tasted its nirvana, a certain part of you will ever remain attuned to any strain of TRUE MUSIC you may hear, any time or place, and automatically submit to it.

"Suddenly there's Music!" can mean nothing - or it can mean that suddenly your whole spirit is lifted with dramatic buoyancy! We speak from experience; and without this experience, our life would only have HALF its value.

As we said: It's up to you: if you want to ignore one of the most enjoyable elements of life, we can only feel sorry for you. But we're also convinced that if EVERYONE DID learn how to SUBMIT THEMSELVES to TRUE MUSIC, we would learn one day that "Suddenly it's a better world!"

THE HAUNTED ORGAN

(We've dramatized the following without, however, altering any of the pertinent facts as we have them in a letter from the persons we here refer to as "Joe" and "Betty.") -

They laughed, when the antique dealer told them the old parlor organ they were purchasing was "haunted"; but it gave Joe an idea, the next time a certain cousin came to spend the night at their country home, on how to enliven his visit. . .

"Cousin", it seems, was the rather gullible sort who often found himself the butt of Joe's lively sense of humor, but which he good-naturedly accepted apparently as "the price you had to pay if you stayed at Joe's."

"By the way," said Joe, as he and his wife Betty were having a nightcap with Cousin in the parlor where the old handcarved mahogany "pump" organ was now ensconced, "don't be alarmed if you hear someone playing it during the night. The dealer, said it used to belong to an old woman who liked to play "In The Gloaming" and after she died he swears that several people who stayed in her house heard the organ playing during the night - "In The Gloaming" - and when they went out to see, there was no one there.

"Not that we believed it," Joe added soberly; "and, of course, it's never played since we've had it, except with help of human hands and feet."

Cousin, by now suspicious of anything of this sort Joe might tell him, only grinned - although, for once, Joe was not making up a story but only repeating what the dealer had told him.

"I would be more surprised than scared," said Cousin, "because I know neither one of you know how to play an organ - which is why I wonder what you wanted to go and buy something like that for."

Joe shrugged. "Might have somebody over who can play it sometime. Needed something to fill that corner, anyway."

"It was just too pretty an old thing to pass up at the price," Betty added. Her words were almost drowned out by a crash of thunder. The storm that was brewing couldn't have been more timely if Joe had ordered it. It was going to fit in perfectly with certain preparations he had made.

"Well, let's turn in," he said now. "Sounds like it's gonna be a good night for sleeping - as well as for spooks."

They said their goodnights and went to their rooms, Cousin to the guest room which was conveniently located opposite the hall from the parlor where the "haunted" organ could be seen from the doorway. What couldn't be seen, however, was an auxiliary speaker hidden in its baffle, connected by a concealed wire that ran from the tape recorder in Joe and Betty's room, on which the previous day a neighbor who could play the organ had recorded "In The Gloaming."

Now Joe and Betty lay in wide-awake anticipation for the thunder to reach just the right dramatic climax, then all Joe had to do was reach down and plug in the tape recorder, which was all preset to play - that way there'd be no tell-tale click. They could hardly contain themselves, envisioning Cousin's reaction when he suddenly heard the haunting strains of "In The Gloaming" faintly through the percussion of the thunder, and him peeking through the bedroom door to see who was playing the organ at this hour and, in the eerie flashes of lightning, seeing - no one!

Now at last the storm sounded like it was sitting on the very rooftop, the thunder and lightning almost simultaneous; Joe reached down and plugged the tape recorder in. In a few seconds, through the storm sounds could be heard the thin, plaintive notes of the "haunted" parlor organ, playing softly in the far side of the house, "In The Gloaming."

They could hardly suppress their laughter as they anticipated Cousin's reaction, which should be coming any minute now. He was not a man to take things stoically, and he was a very light sleeper.

They waited, while the distant funeral tones continued, punctuated by the timely crashes of thunder.

Maybe Cousin was too scared even to open his bedroom door!

Certainly he could hear the music - and surely he wasn't asleep. Yet, there was no peep out of him. Maybe it had given him a heart attack! No - that was silly. Maybe he suspected it was them and he was just pulling their bluff.

Whatever was going on in Cousin's room, it was not the reaction they had anticipated, and when the song had ended, Joe unplugged the tape recorder and settled back in bed.

"We won't say anything about it in the morning. He knows neither one of us can play and I'll bet he was just too scared to open the door and look, because if he had - we'd have heard from him!"

But in the morning it was Cousin who surprised them by broaching the matter as soon as he joined them at the breakfast table.

"So which one of you has been taking music lessons?" he asked.

He almost caught them off guard but they were quick to recover - and both Joe and Betty can be quite poker-faced if needs be.

Joe feigned a yawn. "No, like I said, we just bought the organ for a decoration piece - and then I was intrigued with the legend about it supposed to being haunted. More coffee?"

"Come on now, which one of you is holding out on me? That was a pretty good performance last night for someone who a week ago couldn't play a note. Was it you, Betty?"

"What's that, Cuzz?" Betty asked.

"Are you the one that's learning to play?"

"I told you," Joe said "neither one of us is learning to play. What are you talking about anyway?"

"You know what I'm talking about," Cousin grinned. "I figured you were going to pull something when you tried to prime me with that story about the organ being haunted."

HEALING STONES

by

DORIS M. HODGES

THROUGHOUT the ages, man has found certain stones and other substances that appear to be helpful in restoring physical health as well as aiding mental development.

In the past very few writers have attempted to present an intelligent discussion on this subject. The author, Doris Hodges, has spent much time and study on it and in "Healing Stones" gives the reader an intelligent presentation of these aids. The thirteen chapters cover Amber, Emerald, Amethyst, Ruby, Turquoise, Moonstone, Opal, Jade, Pearl, Diamond, Jet, Topaz, Lazurite, Azurite, Malachite and Chrysocolla.

BEYOND THE LIGHT

by

FAY CLARK

FOR CENTURIES the Indians of the west and Mexico have worshipped the peyote cactus because the eating of its buttons or roots seems to draw aside the veil and allow the mind of man to touch a higher level of KNOWING.

Mr. Clark tested the effects of peyote and experienced an amazing expansion of consciousness. Directing this out-reaching with self-suggestion, he was able to look backward into the past incarnations of his friends and to see how the human being grows and progresses, or stumbles and loses ground. He looked for the ultimate truth in religions and saw the great and living truths separate themselves from the mass of dogmas and become so simple and self-apparent that he could describe them in history-making sentences. In no other book has the full range of sensations produced by peyote been so graphically portrayed. This book opens new windows of insight and experience. No sincere searcher can afford to overlook it.

"Really, Cuzz," Betty said
"What ARE you talking about?"

"Look, you two have pulled too many of these things on me in the past. This time I'm one step ahead of you! Which one of you DID play the organ last night during the storm? It'll be a precedent if somebody in this family turns out to have musical talent!"

Joe and Betty exchanged a look of no-nonsense; then Joe said: "I not only CAN-NOT play the organ I DID NOT touch it LAST NIGHT - I'll swear to that. Did you, Betty?"

Betty shook her head. "Honest to gosh, not me! But what are you trying to tell us? - that you heard the organ playing last night?"

Cousin's expression sobered. "Let me hear you both swear that it wasn't either one of you. . ."

They obliged him with all sorts of vows that neither one had left their room last night and for a moment they almost had him convinced; but then he broke into a grin. "Ah! So you DIDN'T touch the organ - but what about the tape recorder? Let me hear you swear you didn't touch THAT!"

It looked like Cousin was getting wise "in his old age," as Joe puts it. They broke down and admitted their trick and they all had a good laugh. Then Betty said:

"I'll bet we did have you scared for a minute though when you first heard the organ."

"Well, for a moment my hair did kinda stand on end - especially when I tried to turn on the lights to see who was playing and they didn't work."

"What didn't work?" Joe asked.

"The lights. I guess the storm knocked them out."

"You mean the lights in your room?"

"Yes. . ."

Joe got up and went to the guest bedroom. He tried the lights. They worked. He came back to the kitchen. "Now wait a minute, let me get this straight: Are you telling me you tried to turn the lights on WHILE the organ was playing?"

"Why - yes. Why?"

"You heard the music - the tape recorder was on - and you tried to turn on a light and it wouldn't work. . ."

"I tried both the lamp and the overhead light and neither one worked, so I figured. . ." Cousin broke off in mid-sentence. "Hey, wait a minute. . ."

The three of them looked at each other with mouths ajar.

Betty said: "If the storm knocked the power off - how could the tape recorder play?"

"That, my dear, is the sixty-four dollar question," her husband told her. Then he turned back to Cousin. "You didn't really try to turn any lights on last night, did you!"

Cousin looked genuinely innocent, and Betty said: "Let's check the clocks and see if the electric ones have been stopped."

They did, and the two electric clocks not only were twenty minutes slower than all the other time pieces in the house, but the red tabs were showing, which indicated further that they HAD stopped.

"Then YOU set them back or stopped them or whatever you did," Joe now accused Cousin.

"I did not! I would've had to sneak into your bedroom and - well, I just didn't do it!"

They both knew too well that Cousin was not a practical joker himself or good actor.

"Well, the only other answer," Joe said, "is that the plug by our bed is on a separate line and that one somehow didn't get knocked out - because that tape recorder DID play. We all heard it!"

"There's only one fuse box and switch for the whole house," Betty reminded her husband.

"I know - but there's got to be a logical answer. Unless Cousin is lying. . ."

"I'm not! I swear the lights wouldn't work."

Joe turned to his wife. "Throw the switch on the fuse box and I'll see if that outlet by the bed stays hot - it's got to!"

Betty went to the fuse box above the kitchen stove and Joe went to the master bedroom. When the power had been off for a moment, she called to him. "Well, did it work?"

"Hey - I want you two to come in here!" came his reply. Betty threw the power back on and she and Cousin went to the bedroom. "Which one of you rewound this tape recorder?" Joe asked them.

"Rewound it?" said Betty. "You know I never touch your tape recorder; I wouldn't even know how to work it."

Joe's eyes moved to Cousin.

Cousin shrugged. "Me neither. Besides, you both know I haven't been in here this morning." Then the significance of the matter came to him. "You mean to tell me the tape recorder hasn't been played?"

"Well, Joe. . ." Betty said. "We heard an organ playing, yes, but the fact remains that this machine is still set exactly the way I had it set before I plugged in the cord - and it has not been played!"

Now it was Cousin's turn again to suspect a trick. "Yeah, sure, not since last night. When did you rewind it, Joe? Just now or last night?"

Betty said, "Look, I know he didn't rewind it last night and he didn't have time just now and besides the power was off. . ."

At this point, all three started talking at once. It was rather confusing, what with the accusations, and even Betty and Joe found themselves, during the course of it, questioning each other. Needless to say, it ended in stalemate. All three were in accord on three points: they all DID hear the organ playing "In The Gloaming"; each one KNEW that they themselves were not withholding anything from the other: and all three KNOW that one of them HAS to be the "guilty party" - although none has ever been able to prove a thing on the other.

The facts, as far as anyone has been able to determine, are: the organ played; neither Betty, Joe nor Cousin can play a note; the electricity had been off WHILE the organ was playing; the tape recorder had been found all set to play, but hadn't played an inch; and the outlet into which Joe had plugged it was not on any separate line.

Then who - or what - HAD played the old antique parlor organ that night while the darkened house trembled beneath the storm's fury?

We wonder - if they had listened more closely, might they have heard in the background a hollow, cackling laugh - like that of an old woman who had pulled a bit of mischief?

ADDENDUM

We have just received our copy of L. Taylor Hansen's "He Walked

The Americas," and while so far we haven't had time to do more than thumb through it, we can verify that it is a very beautifully constructed book, art-and print-wise. We know from the ads that its chief subject matter has to do with the evidence found in legends of the primitive peoples of the Americas that a Christ-like prophet once walked among them, about 2000 years ago, teaching in "the same words as Jesus Himself." It so happens that we have just been reading another book which tells of His travels among the tribes of this country - a book left in this motel room by members of the Church of Latter Day Saints. It will be interesting to look for parallels between this Book Of Mormon and Mr. Hansen's handsome volume.

Although we are entertainers, we should like to say that we are not typical "show people." We would much rather camp in the wilderness beside a mountain stream than check into the fanciest motel beside a heated swimming pool. Perhaps this is why we can't help but feel almost a personal affront whenever we are in a forest or a desert or in the mountains and come suddenly upon a pile of trash discarded by some unthinking person. As more and more people have it made increasingly easy to drive casually into wilderness areas where previously few human feet had tread, our public wild areas stand in very real danger of soon becoming extensive trash heaps.

This is not only on our own evidence but the word of many officials who see a growing need for closer restrictions and more extensive policing of these regions.

Whoever is first on the Moon, we think we know what they'll find: Beer cans.

YOUR FUTURE

Predictions of the future by the ability known as psychometry. She can find lost objects, determine the state of your health, predict your future. Try her, and see.

ONCE A year I go by the signs of the Zodiac and I have received many complimentary letters saying that people like this once a year. So instead of taking each month, I'm going to take the signs of the Zodiac (most people know which they are born under).

ARIES. These people are going to find that they must watch those who may take advantage of them moneywise. They are going to study many things that will bring about changes in their life to such a degree that even those closely associated with them will be quite surprised. Many people will say that Aries persons are foolish to add so much knowledge right now into their lives, thinking that they should be well pleased with the results they have already achieved. But Aries will not be content and new doors open to them that will be most surprising.

TAURUS. These people are now going to take strides ahead. Where they have been held back before, suddenly they find people more anxious to listen to them and even where love and happiness are concerned they are going to feel more secure than they were in the past. They must be a little cautious, though, in saying something forceful in forcing issues about. If they tone this down, they will gain their way. Otherwise there could be controversies over speech.

GEMINI. Be cautious in regards to being over-anxious, trying to force issues where business conditions are involved. So many wonderful things coming their way that for a moment they will feel as if their head is spinning. These people are putting a great deal of effort into gaining the very thing that they want. Personal matters are also going to be much brighter and better for them.

CANCER. These people must be cautious. They may be tempted to skim over several important issues, or do things too much in a hurry to get them out of the way. This is not the usual attitude of a Cancer person. But suddenly they feel this is what has to be done, but they must be careful and they must not overestimate their abilities at this time. Otherwise they could be called to account for several of their actions.

LEO. They must not dwell upon past errors. They should realize that these were lessons they have learned. They are certainly going to find that there are going to be better conditions in practically every department of their life. A person who may have accused them wrongly in some manner may state publicly that they were wrong, and apologize.

VIRGO. These people have either had broken ties during the year, or they are about to break ties. They have many personal feelings about different people and business situations and they may say them in an outspoken manner, thus causing people to walk away from them. They should allow their better nature to come to the fore.

LIBRA. Many of these are going to sign new types of contracts. There will be many Libra who will marry this year. There will be many who suddenly find that the right person means more to them than anyone else. They have great ability. Opportunities will be put before them in such a way that they could almost do what they want.

SCORPIO. They must watch their health condition. The majority are going to suffer from trying to do too much in one day, or figuring out in their minds what they want done. This could bring about many conditions that could hurt their health. That they will have to draw a line in regards to making decisions. Some Scorpios are going to find that they will have to make amends to people they love.

SAGITTARUS. They are certainly going to find better conditions for them. Suddenly they will see that practically everything they touch becomes more realistic, whereas in the past many of them had so many disappointing things that they are a little afraid of the future. But better conditions are certainly ahead for them. They must be cautious, though, in not allowing their nerves to get the best of them, or to say things while irritable.

CAPRICORN. Very, very good financial conditions. Much is to be gained in their lives and they are going to weigh several situations where people whom they love are involved, and weight it with a sense of justice.

AGUARIUS. Many who were born under this sign may now reap the rewards of things they have done in their lives. They will also reap good rewards in the good things they have done. They will have good results in things that they have previously undertaken. They will finish things that have been started and then have been put aside. Also, if they are interested in romance, this department in their lives seems to be on the up trend. However, there will be on again off again conditions where affairs of the heart are involved. They will have to make up their minds about what they would like to do. Also, they will be very lucky in any competition of any kind in which they may take part.

PISCES. They should be cautious, very careful that they do not sever relationships through being stubborn, almost as if they don't want to give in to even those they love. It is as if they are having an iron will in putting ahead that which they want and if they are not careful, they could run into complications.

There are the twelve signs of the Zodia, but they are not calculated according to astrology, but my psychic impressions.

The world in general is going to be in a rather uprising state of mind, especially where Panama is concerned, which you no doubt have read about. Panama could regret many of their decisions. The results of their president's actions could bring about some rather drastic conditions to Panamanians and they will regret many things if they are not careful. My advice would be: do not sever relations with the United States. You are going to be sorry if you do.

I was very sorry to find that I was correct about President Kennedy not living out his term. This is one prediction I wish had not occurred.

Jacqueline Kennedy will be headline news not too far in the future.

President Johnson will have some very interesting things to say that are going to make us all take notice.

I have received many, many requests of people who would like to have an analysis done on a tape recording. If they wish to send a five inch tape, 600 feet-no more, I will be happy to do this for them. They have to send their own tape and of course the fee would be somewhat increased because of the six hundred feet involved. If they are interested, they can write me about this. The price of the tape would be fifteen dollars. The fee will remain the same in regards to the photo aura or the card chart.

Where you are concerned, Ray, there is going to be something better come your way. You may be a little annoyed with people, but you are going to hide it. A responsibility could be placed upon you quite unexpectedly by a man. You should let this man know that you don't mind the responsibility, but you certainly don't want to take the responsibility of his action. When this occurs you will know what I mean. And again, don't worry about things, Ray, as things will get better for you as time goes on. Look forward to better conditions.

Predictions made Jan 20, 1964.

HOW TO GET A PSYCHOMETRIC ANALYSIS

Select a short verse from the Bible, perhaps your favorite, and write it on a separate sheet of paper, meanwhile concentrating on your problems. Then mail the sheet to Mrs. Dorothy Spence Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and enclose $4.00. Bear in mind the reply may take several weeks.

Send a snapshot of yourself to Dorothy Spence Lauer, Amherst, Wisconsin, and enclose $4.00 to cover the cost. Be sure to include your return address! Surprisingly many applicants forget this! And please, if possible, report the results to SEARCH magazine after their accuracy or inaccuracy is determined. Remember, reports of inaccuracy are as important as those of accuracy.

Editor's Note: Dorothy Spence Lauer is a Psychometrist, specializing in precognition. Ordinarily she needs but an object belonging to, or handled by, the subject, or the presence of the subject, to become aware of the psychic influences from which she draws her information. However, by writing out a verse, while concentrating, as described in the instructions given on this page, a sufficiently powerful psychic impression will be made to enable the medium to receive the information she seeks. We have made this service available to our readers purely in an experimental atmosphere, in an attempt, first to determine whether or not this ability is of a nature both real and valuable; and second, to provide you with an interesting bit of entertainment. Please report results to us.

- Dr. W.D. Chesney has given me permission to continue his work that he was doing on Spiritualism. Since the doctor has discontinued his work I have taken over his complete collection of books and photos that are fully documented by 100 scientists that have tested many mediums who were under strict control conditions. Many of the photos were taken by Dr. Chesney, Sir William Crookes, and members of the A.S.P.R. Among the items is a signed statement by Mrs. Houdini that the message that was given to her by Arthur Ford is the one that was agreed upon by her and her husband. Space does not allow me to describe the many photos but I plan to make copies of all of the photos and anyone who would like to have them may get them for the cost of the postage and having them copied. The doctor has given me written permission to use his name in connection with my work and is acting as a director in helping me get started on this work that should be put before the people. # OAHSPÉ—THE LONG LOST, AUTHENTIC, UNEXPURGATED, UNCHANGED FIRST EDITION

AFTER 75 YEARS!

THE 1882 EDITION OF THE WONDER BOOK OF THIS AGE, PHOTOCOPIED FROM THE ORIGINAL, NOT A COMMA CHANGED!

In 1891, for reasons not acceptable to many, including myself, John Ballou Newbrough and Andrew M. Howland issued a "revised and corrected" edition of OAHSPÉ. These revisions and corrections (and omissions and additions) have never been satisfactorily outlined, and because since 1885 the first edition could not be purchased anywhere, the public has been unable to ascertain what these changes were. In all my life, I have been able to find but one copy of the 1882 edition. Others are rumored to exist, but if they do, they are in private collections. With this photocopied edition of OAHSPÉ, reproduced from this lone volume, the 1882 edition is once more made available to the public. With the advent of the Space Age, OAHSPÉ is being vindicated, thus I am pleased to make this controversial edition available to those who, like myself, believe it to be one of the world's important books.

Perhaps the best way to describe OAHSPÉ is in the words of the book itself: "A sacred history of the dominions of the higher and lower heavens on the Earth for the past twenty-four thousand years, being from the submersion of the continent of Pan in the Pacific Ocean, commonly called the Flood or Deluge, to the Kosmon (present) Era. Also a brief history of the preceding fifty-five thousand years, together with a synopsis of the cosmogony of the Universe; the creation of the planets; the creation of gods; the unseen worlds; the labor and glory of gods and goddesses in the ethereal heavens; with the new commandments of Jehovah to man of the present day. With revelations from the second resurrection, formed in words in the thirty-third year of the Kosmon Era." The purpose of the book is: "To teach mortals how to attain to hear the Creator's voice, and to see His heavens, in full consciousness, whilst still living on the earth; and to know of a truth the place and condition awaiting them after death."

This edition of OAHSPÉ contains 928 pages. It also contains nearly three quarters of a million words, and calculating from actual time of writing, it was written at the rate of 120 words per minute! This on an 1880 Sholes typewriter is a miracle in itself. Many of the drawings in OAHSPÉ were done at the same time . . . in the dark! The Book of Cosmology might have been written by today's space scientists! Much of the science in OAHSPÉ has only recently been "discovered". Newbrough could not have "guessed" so rightly, especially in the face of all the authorities of his day. Today space satellites are discovering "how it is" out in space, while in 1882 OAHSPÉ contained the same information! As an instance, the now famous Van Allen radiation belts, complete as to nature and height! The scientific reader is overwhelmed by the science of OAHSPÉ.

Where The Reader Has His Say

Dear Ray:

"Sad news from the White House" could mean anything from the death of somebody's pet to that of a servant or relative. And as for Dorothy Lauer's not telling a reader of an impending death - if I knew it was pending to me personally I would appreciate a chance to get my affairs in order. I would be a lot less concerned with my rights; I wouldn't subscribe ahead for magazines that interest only myself - lots of things I would do differently.

I am challenging you and Dorothy to an official test. I will send her a Bible verse or write her the question in detail, giving names of places, dates as far as known now, and details. Something is scheduled to happen this year. (If it doesn't that could prove as conclusive if she sees it, as it is practically set up.) I will, of course, pay her regular fee of $4.00 as this isn't a gimmick to get a free reading. What I want to know is "what happens afterwards?"

I have never yet known anything definite to be predicted beforehand. I have checked on various Spiritualist claims of how right they were on the years predictions and an analysis of the previous year's predictions comes out less than 50% right when you omit the vague references to "trouble", "unrest" and the like. There's always trouble and unrest of varying degree anywhere. Even the most calm and placid life has moments of indigestion and an occasional bout with mosquitoes.

I will stick out my neck and make you a prediction. Something either happens fatally to the killer of Oswald or else he soon disappears from the public eye. Oswald was too conveniently silenced. And his killer is the only link.

THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK

Have your subject gaze fixedly at this spiral and then READ TO HIM the hypnotizing techniques given WORD FOR WORD in Chapter Two of this "Handbook of Hypnosis for Therapy." As soon as he is hypnotized, READ TO HIM the particular WORD FOR WORD therapy which applies to his particular problem. Many such therapies are given, always in the exact WORD FOR WORD form, which is essential in any scientific or professional use of hypnosis.

There has never been a book like this. A few years ago an article in Western Family said about its principal author: "Along the west coast, the 'hypnotism man' whose students you'll most likely run into, is Charles Edward Cooke."

Cooke has taught doctors of medicine, dentists, psychiatrists, psychologists, ministers of the gospel, nurses, and many others, from San Diego, California, to Spokane, Washington. Cooke has mass hypnotized as many as 400 people at once by READING the WORD FOR WORD hypnotizing technique in this work.

Although written for the professional man, this book will have a wide appeal among laymen who seek precise methods rather than the vague directions that have hitherto been available. THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK was written by Mr. Cooke in collaboration with science-fiction novelist and short story writer A. E. Van Vogt.

Chapters from THE HYPNOTISM HAND-BOOK

Even astrologists can't name the next president and some even admit it! Orrissa Rines, Alton, N.H. 03809

• You make us a challenge. And we answer with a prediction: If you did find Mrs. Lauer to be accurate, and to measure up to your challenge, you would "chicken out" on it, and rationalize the whole thing away. Naturally we accept your challenge. Even knowing that it will make an enemy of you, and you'll quit reading our magazine. However, we answer your challenge immediately, in the following letters. They are all that is needed: Consider - if any of these three had been you, and made your challenge, they would have lost the game, wouldn't they? So, how will you, as another loser, prove anything more? And if you win? We can see you now, triumphantly telling these other three that THEIR experience doesn't count, because YOURS is the truth. If you think that the death of a pet would be "sad news from the White House", your sense of values is distorted. As for getting your affairs in order, the Bible advises us all to do that daily because "the time and place thereof no man knoweth". We aren't concerned with "various spiritualist claims," only with Mrs. Lauer. And by the way, what strange power leads you to make that Oswald killer prediction? Come to think of it the killer could go to the chair, if convicted! You needn't be psychic to predict that! Maybe astrologists can't name the next president, but maybe we can. How about Johnson? (without OUR vote). - Rap.

Dear Mr. Palmer:

I would like to report to you about an aura analysis performed recently, (12-22-63) by Mrs. Dorothy Spence Lauer.

I merely sent her my photograph, with no other writing, (printing) except for the addresses on the envelope. I admit that this was a little harsh, but it has added to the authenticity of the experiment.

In one of the first paragraphs of the analysis she states; "You should be a little cautious of a health condition that seems to be in the leg or thigh area". As a matter of fact, I have had an operation on a muscle in my right leg that has been only partially successful.

It is too soon to comment on the accuracy of her other observations, but I will inform you when and how they come about.

Mrs. Lauer must be a remarkable person to be able to perform these psychic services, or even to find time to do them. James F. Lallok, 354 W. 116th St., Chicago, Illinois 60628,

THE HIDDEN WORLD

There is a hidden world, unseen, mostly unsuspected, and largely denied - yet it exists as surely as the sun shines in the sky! It is known by many names, and it has many ramifications. Some people call it the Secret Government. Some call it the Shaver Caverns, inhabited by "dero" and "tero", those evil and good ones who inhabit caves deep in the earth. Others believe it is an Astral world, inhabited by the dead. Some even say it is another dimension. One thing only can be said to be literally true - there is an invisible force in our lives that governs us for good and evil, and against which we fight incessantly, some knowingly, some blindly. Now there is a magazine devoted to seeking out this Hidden World, presenting all sides of the story, giving all the evidence that is available to prove its existence.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE THINGS YOU CAN READ IN THE FIRST EIGHT BOOKS: "I Remember Lemuria!"; The Masked World; Voices In The Night; Beyond The Verge; The Lorelei; The Elder World; The Return Of Sathanas; Mandark; The Facts On Deros; The Mind Rovers; La Sorciere; In The Beginning; The Fountain Of Youth; and others. Many of these are complete book length novels. All are entirely factual. They are the most mysterious writings in the world.

SPRING-SUMMER-FALL-WINTER 1962

Dear kap;

Enjoy "Search" very much and had Mrs. Lauer's analyses twice. Once 1959 - nothing happened. Again 1960 - nothing happened - until 1963. Then the whole business happened. She's uncanny, so accurate. Am out of money and can't renew my subscription but have many Fate and Search issues from 1953 to 1963 to sell. Then can renew subscription. Anyone interested? Mrs. S. Day, 14 Prospect Avenue, Rumford, Me. 04276.

Dear Ray,

I am writing to you for several reasons. The first is to tell you that I will not be able to renew my subscription to the "Hidden World" books, due to economic reasons. I hope I will be able to again subscribe at a later date. I continue to buy Search and Flying Saucer magazines while I am traveling. They can be found in Dover, Del., and Baltimore, Md. I enjoy these magazines, particularly Search.

In October, 1961, I wrote for a reading from Mrs. Dorothy Spence Lauer after seeing her ad in Search. This reading was done from a specimen of my handwriting. I was amazed at the accuracy of some of the prophecies she made concerning my life and events which subsequently transpired. She was right about everything except a forecast she made which concerned a certain stock which went down instead of up. Nevertheless, I read her column avidly whenever I can. Her prediction about sadness from the White House which was made in the latest Search certainly came true with the tragic assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas. I have a feeling that when the truth about this sad event is made public, if it ever is, it will prove to be so fantastic that people will not believe it. I may be all wet - I am no prophet. It is just a feeling I have, part of which began after reading a recent paragraph by Mrs. Lauer.

Another reason for writing you concerns Richard Shaver. About a year ago I sent for some of his stone slices to see if I could spot the pictures he claimed were to be found therein. For about six or eight months I examined and re-examined them to try and find what I was supposed to but was unsuccessful.

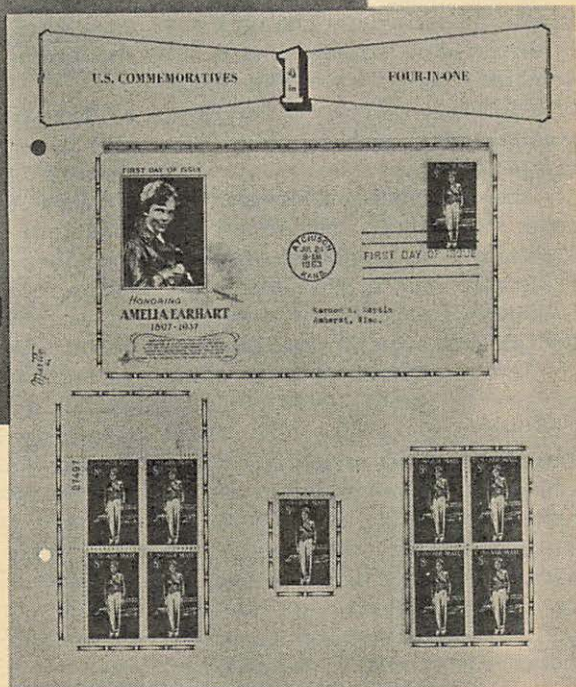

Recently I sent them back to him at his address in Wisconsin but they were returned to me unclaimed. I am at a loss as to how I can contact him so that I can send the stone agate slices back. Any help you can give me would be greatly appreciated.

I imagine you get countless reports of UFO sightings and so-called saucer incidents, but I'd like to add a couple of my own.

Early in the summer of 1963, I would put the month about June, I was standing in the back yard of my rural home enjoying the night air. The time was around ten P.M. Suddenly a bright object flashed across the sky west of where I was standing. The UFO was traveling very rapidly from south to north and was only visible for a couple of seconds. The best way to describe it is to say that it resembled the crown of the Statue of Liberty, that is, it had long pointed arms, and the color was bright orange.

The other incident does not concern me directly but is so interesting that I would like to pass it along to you for what it is worth. I believe the person who related the tale was entirely truthful.

A relative of mine was attending college in Buena Vista, Va., in October of 1960. She said she was studying in her room about seven P. M. when there was a terrific noise like an explosion and a strong rushing of air, as if the wind had suddenly increased in velocity. The fire engines and police rushed out of the town toward a supposed chemical or industrial plant, apparently in search of a minor catastrophe. My relative was never able to find out anything whatsoever about the cause or nature of the above event. She spoke as though the firemen and police were never able to find the cause, either. Strange? Hello, Chas. Fort!!

I admire your courage in continuing to print articles which probably no other magazine would touch with a ten foot pole. You have done much to awaken and arouse the people of America, and we are ever in your good thoughts. We are grateful beyond words. Charles C. Sharp, 3rd, R.D.#1, Bridgeton, N.J.

● We are sorry that we can't give you any information about the missing Mr. Shaver. He was hounded from his home by a faked up charge, and once more the story of his life is flight from the dero. If you do find out where he is, keep it secret. He is our good friend, and we don't want him persecuted. As for the Hidden World, we too have been persecuted until we found it almost impossible to finish the third set of four books (1963). The last two are now on the press. In the fourth set of four, we had intended to complete the unknown portions of the mystery - now it may never be known. However, we intend to make one last try, appealing to the 1700 subscribers who still remain with us, to renew 100%. Without that, it cannot be done. Your decision not to renew is discouraging, because it will occur, we believe, in 700 or more cases, in which event the dero

DOES DANDRUFF MAKE YOU WANT TO HIDE YOUR HEAD IN SHAME?

You might as well, if you're going to let dandruff and scale and skin rash make you bald as an egg. You've bought plenty of preparations, and they don't work, you say? Of course they haven't! You've probably been cheated as many times as I have. I'll bet I've spent hundreds of dollars on jim-dandy goo, and wound up with worse dandruff than I started with. Made me plenty mad, too. I always get mad when I think of the lousy junk designed to chisel your honest dollars out of you. Mad enough so that when I find something good, I'm not bashful about telling my friends about it. And SEARCH readers are my friends. I had dandruff all my life, and despaired of getting rid of it, until one day Ken Arnold (the flying saucer man) left a half bottle of Turn-er's at my house, and flew off to Boise without it. I tried the stuff, because Ken's no slssy, and he doesn't put perfume on his hair. Well, in one week my dandruff was gone! And my hair had begun to darken. My wife tried it, and her rash disappeared. You can bet we wrote Ken in a hurry and asked where he got it! And now, we're telling you. But don't just take our word for it—here are a few testimonials from our readers, to back us up.

As I have about used up one bottle of your hair preparation, please send me another. I have had very good results in ridding myself of dandruff and itching. Lionel O. Branberg, Sharon Springs, Kans.

Enclosed find money order for $10.00 for two more bottles of Turn-er's as soon as possible. You sure found a good product. In the sixth application my dandruff was cured. Thanks to you. It does all you say and more, too. And it sure brings back the natural color to your hair. Thanks! R. E. Van Gordon, 1905 W. Milham Road, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Enclosed please find check for $5.00 for another bottle of Turn-er's as soon as possible. I have been bedeviled by a terrible itching in my eyebrows for over thirty years. It seemed to be a large flaky dandruff, but if I combed it out too near the skin, a watery substance would start, causing a scab-like condition. I have been to dozens of doctors . . . none did the slightest bit of good. After reading what Ray Palmer said, I decided to try Turn-er's. After the sixth application, I have not had an itch in my brows, and the skin underneath is as clear and clean as my face. I certainly am thankful to Mr. Palmer for bringing such a fine product to my attention.—S. W. Crusen, 2336 Fillmore Ave., Buffalo 14, N. Y.

Enough? Well, then take it from Ray Palmer, one bottle of

Dear Mr. Palmer,

Your March Issue was excellent and timely. There have been many prophecies concerning the death of the President. The Nosttradamus one I quote and interpret:

"In a time and place when flesh gives way to fish

The common law will be constrained

The Old Man will make a strong stand, then taken from the midst,

All things in common among comrades badly set back".

The time and place is the United States in the present, when our scientists are experimenting with mammals (mice and dogs), having them breath water into their lungs like fish. Civil rights are constrained. The "Old Man" means patriarch, or governor or president; in this instance President Kennedy who made a strong stand for civil rights, and "Taken from the midst" means death by accident. The apprehension of Lee Oswald with all its implications results in a set back for the "comrades".

The die was cast and the Hand of Providence guided the events, so the petty blaming of one another is still a very unenlightened level of thinking. The need to understand the assassination of the President on a higher spiritual level is very evident. The entire country is blaming itself and one another in an emotional fault-finding and examination of conscience. To see the event on a higher level we must turn to the Bible and see Jacob, who cheated his brother Esau, and lied to his father as one who is beloved of God, not because of his spirituality or lack of it, but because he was capable of being a channel of God's will. Thus we can turn to the President and see a man, regardless of our personal political views and also his, as one whose words were divinely inspired and prophetic as a channel of God's will. He was an "Elect" soul. The very nature of his death reveals his status as such, since only the elect suffer martyrdom. As a follower of Christ, a good son, husband, and father, a champion of all that is Good, slain by one who represent all that is Evil, Anti Christ, and law defying, we see the term "martyr" is correct. The sacrifice of his life was for our spiritual awakening.

Another prophecy which may be of some solace to those who love their country is by the late Edgar Cayce (who also predicted the death of the president), regarding political changes: "In America, in the political forces, we see a re-stabilization of the powers of the people in their own hands. . . a breaking up of the rings, the cliques in many places".

This country founded with the belief in God, can only be destroyed if we turn away from God, remove His name from our Constitution, money, hearts, and lips of our children. We need prayer and a purification and cleansing of our thinking, so that we can attain to a higher level of understanding. We need to pray for the fulfillment of the promise of Christ, that He would send His Advocate, the Comforter, i.e., the Holy Spirit, without whose blessing we are without spiritual love and without understanding of the higher truths. Helen Turner, 928 30th St. NW, Winter Haven, Fla.

● It is a fact that if big government is not halted now, it will result in the total loss of our freedoms. Let's hope you are right, and that the voters go to the polls this November and vote for freedom. It will take time, but it can be done. The evil that is with us is guided from "the other side" or the "Hidden World", and men are its tools, but also, there is good guidance from those sources, and understanding of what goes on in the world today, baffling without a hidden world to blame for it, can only come to those who think about the unseen things rather than the seen. What is on the surface is not only false, but deliberate confusion. Even the just see but dimly. -Rap.

Dear Ray

'Just finished reading page 56 in the March issue of Search. re - the wife who cannot feel that her husband is dead on the Thresher. Odd how many sensitives had dreams on that. I only saw the boat sink in the words "The Thresher is the reaper - but an old school teacher friend of mine in Oregon wrote to tell of her psychic experience.

She SAW the Thresher captured under water by a huge blinding paralyzing light. It was led into a cliff under the sea level. The men were all taken from on board into an underground class room. They are well treated. The captors led them to a room of odd machinery - etc.

Would not this interest the wife who cannot BELIEVE THAT HER HUSBAND IS DEAD.

The Teacher's name is Mrs. Agnes Fredericks, Box 604, Echo Oregon. 97826.

Agnes would not mind your asking. She writes for psychic publications. After she told me of it I sent her the Shaver books to read.

Get her to tell you all of it. We both belong to Arthur Burke's Wisdom Pool. Deborah Clark, 2 Washington Ave., Saugerties, N.Y.

Dear Ray;

I have been reading and re-reading the articles in your December 1963 edition of SEARCH, and one article in particular has drawn my interest. The article I am speaking of is the one on page 13, titled "Why I believe in Reincarnation" by Mr. Harry Vogtman.

In his article he states; and I quote, "If reincarnation is a fact, then there must be proof, and I find it, not in heresay evidence, but in the only reliable proof we have of eternal matters, the Holy Bible".

Then He goes on to give various passages from the Bible, both from the new testament, and the old. The way he handles those scriptures would be very convincing to me, if I didn't know my Bible any better than I do, but I know it enough to disprove Mr. Vogtman's "theory" about reincarnation.

He gives the scripture found in St. John, chapter three, verse three, where it says "Ye Must be born again", but I feel that this verse has nothing to do with the life hereafter, as far as the soul being born into another individual is concerned. I believe this verse means that we must be born of the spirit when we are regenerated, or "saved" as some say. This would be a spiritual birth, NOT a natural birth. The writer of this passage goes on to say, that that which is born of the flesh (or natural born) is flesh, and that which is born of the spirit (spiritual born) is spirit.

Also it says in another place that "it is appointed unto man once to die, and after this the judgment". What did it say now? Did it say that man was appointed to die twice? three times? four times? No! It said ONE time only! He said that when the wicked are cast into hell, this was the SECOND death, and NOT the fourth or fifth! If Mr. Vogtman is going to believe SOME of the Bible, he is going to have to believe ALL of it, because it says in the Word of God, that "all scripture is given by inspiration of God."

I am not trying to say that God COULDN'T allow a FEW cases of reincarnation if he so desired, I don't know all of God's plans, I merely wish to state here what the Bible says about it. If I or anyone else knew all of God's knowledge, than He wouldn't be God, because we would know as much as He does! If the Lord allows reincarnation, I can't find it in the Bible, but maybe it's in there somewhere and I haven't found it yet, but until I do, I'll still continue to doubt reincarnation.

I must close now, but answer this letter and tell me what you think about my view on this subject. Also, you have my permission to publish this letter in the readers section of SEARCH if you want to. Mr. Lonnie L. Lillard, General Delivery, Peoria, Arizona.

Other Tongues -- Other Flesh

George Hunt Williamson

In more recent times, there has been a growing realization that on other worlds than ours, even in other universes, there are other living beings. The idea that earthbound man may someday journey into the heavens to discover other men and women, like or unlike himself, grows by leaps and bounds. Within man's soul lies the truth — mortals exist on other spheres!

In this book, many references and quotations are given from the latest authentic reports on Saucer phenomena. Because many believe there are contradictions in some of the reported happenings, it has been necessary to show that there is a great story and purpose behind all these experiences.

Here, in this book, is the history of OTHER TONGUES, and of OTHER FLESH; calm, scientific evidence that there are brothers of ours in the skies overhead.

We are not alone in the Universe!

HERE IT IS AT LAST!

Orfeo Angelucci's NEW BOOK

Orfeo's first book THE SECRET OF THE SAUCERS, went into five editions! The glimpse its readers got of cosmic perceptions raised a demand for more—and in this book, Orfeo has given what is in his heart.

The dynamics of the Universe are presented simply in Son of the Sun. The Cosmos lives in a music of the spheres as a concept of Infinity and Eternity is laid bare. In this very real Space Age there is a moral and spiritual undercurrent which soon may swell into world tides, for Man not only seeks all the truth, but knows it when presented.

A NEW VIEWPOINT ON MAN'S HISTORY DURING THE PAST 10,000 YEARS

What happened to mankind after the Atlantean civilization was lost? How did humanity react when Nature went mad? Where did the seeds of human culture survive? When did the world begin to recover from the effects of catastrophe? Who initiated the process of rehabilitation? Has knowledge of the source of world progress been suppressed and withheld from maturing mankind?

This book presents a scholar's answer to these and many other questions. Historical facts long obscured by Roman and Mediaeval propaganda have been examined and evaluated against an unusual but never fanciful background. The result is a new picture of mankind's history during the last ten thousand years.

MEN OF MYSTERY WHO ARE THEY?

One of the themes discussed is that the course of history has been changed abruptly, from time to time, by certain unusual men who have suddenly appeared upon the human scene. They have been few in number, but their thought and action have influenced succeeding generations. Sometimes this influence has been violent and drastic, at others it has gone almost unnoticed, unappreciated and under-valued by both contemporary observers and historians.

Human progress has been the gift of this inspired minority. Isolated by their genius and extraordinary in their abilities, they have demonstrated a marked difference from the ordinary people of any period in time.

What sort of men were these? Most important of all, to us and to our future, how has mankind utilized the knowledge these men have brought into the world?

Almost two thousand years ago a mysterious white man walked from tribe to tribe among the American Nations. He came to Peru from the Pacific, He traveled through South and Central America, among the Mayans, into Mexico and all of North America, then back to ancient Tula, from whence he departed across the Atlantic to the land of his origin. Who was this white Prophet who spoke a thousand languages, healed the sick, raised the dead, and taught in the same words as Jesus Himself?

The Most Important Book We've Published!

Once in a lifetime an opportunity comes along to present such a book as this! The result of 25 years of research, it is a collection of authentic, documented Indian legends of both American continents, of immense value as Indian lore, and tremendously interesting and fascinating to old and young alike. The illustrations themselves are authentic Indian work, painted by some of the top

Indian artists of our time, plus many original engravings drawn by the famous explorer and artist, Cathwood, to whom we owe much of our scientific knowledge of the ancient races of Central America. These illustrations are in themselves priceless, because the original structures depicted have since weathered and many inaccuracies are lost except in these drawings. Further, the book is the final answer to the question of 1900 years: Did Jesus come to save only the inhabitants of the Old World, or did he come also to the New? Here is proof that he did! The identity of the Prophet cannot be positively made, but those who read these legends have their own firm opinion. Lastly, the Archaeology and Anthropology and Geography of this book is a scientifically judged accuracy. It is one of the most valuable tools in the toolbox of the true thinker!

Every Word True! Every Word Documented!

These are true Indian legends, gathered during twenty-five years of research by L. Taylor Hansen, archaeologist, from many different tribes all over the Americas. By consulting museums, libraries and experts on folk-lore, it has been possible to correlate the findings into this fascinating book, backed up by the spades of the diggers into ancient ruins, and by all the sciences with which L. Taylor Hansen is familiar. This is a book that will back up the New Testament of the East, with the Christian Indian legends of the West. In this book is proof that the Savior came not only to one continent, but to all the world. This book will strengthen your faith as no other could!
