The SECRET POWER

By MARIE CORELLI

A GREAT BOOK OF "SECRET KNOWLEGE"

PLUS

THE MOST AMAZING BOOK OF PROPHECY
OF THE PAST CENTURY!

THE ATOM BOMB PREDICTED HALF A CENTURY AGO:

"Radio-activity is an explosion of great violence; the energy exerted is millions of times more powerful than the highest explosive substance yet made in our laboratories; one bomb loaded with such energy would be equal to millions of bombs of the same size and energy as used in the trenches. One's mind stands aghast at the thought of what could be possible if such power were used for destructive purposes; a single aeroplane could carry sufficient to annihilate a whole army, or lay the biggest city in ruins with the death of all its inhabitants."

What SEARCH Means To You

The pages of SEARCH are open to all who have something important to say concerning the occult, the unknown, the metaphysical, the controversial, the suppressed and allied subjects.

It is the policy of this magazine to present both sides of any question, and to refrain from discrimination. However, the editor considers himself "one of the gang" and will slug it out with anyone who cares to enter a battle of words.

Manuscripts are NOT paid for, and nothing is solicited with any guarantee of publication if circumstances intervene. SEARCH assumes no responsibility for photos, drawings, manuscripts, and will not return unless sufficient return postage is furnished by contributor. Manuscripts should be typed, or written neatly, one side of paper.

EDITORIAL

ONE OF the things that has made SEARCH (or any magazine edited by Ray Palmer) a little bit different from other magazines is the editorial he writes. Perhaps the secret of its popularity is in its very personal approach to the reader. Without seeming to try, he makes the editorial "we" a truthful, convincing "we", and not something adopted in an attempt to create the illusion that the editor and the readers are actually "we", and not just "you" and "I" (mostly "I"). The fact is, from the very day your editor was born, it was "we". He never suspected that it could be anything else! It just came naturally to use that pronoun in everything that was done in connection with, or even remotely related to, another person or persons. It meant an even larger concept - the concept of "sharing". Ray Palmer never did, nor ever wanted to do, anything in his life ALONE! It was always "we". When he was a little boy, he got a coaster-wagon for Christmas. When he jubilantly took it outside to play, he introduced it to his playmates with these words: "Now we can have fun!" He never referred to the wagon as "my wagon". The idea of going over to the other side of the street and indulging in unilateral and exclusive play with "his" wagon never occurred to him. And if any playmate refused to join him in play with the wagon, he saw very little point in playing with it at all. There was one thing he was not - and that was a "loner".

Maybe you can guess what happened? He wound up being the only one who didn't get to play with "our" wagon. But he was of a peculiar trend in reasoning - his conclusion as to the reason for this was that the wagon produced so much pleasure for his playmates that he just couldn't find it in his heart to take possession simply because of his own selfishness. Not that it occurred to him to resent it; quite the contrary, he was delighted at being the instrument and cause of so much happiness. The wagon became unimportant, personally - the pleasure of his companions, combined with his, was too desirable and good to sacrifice to any mean streak in himself.

When they deliberately broke his wagon, he couldn't understand why. When he asked them, they jeered at him and said: "Because

you're DUMB!"

Ray Palmer has been asking "why" ever since. Not just about this simple human reaction to the pronoun "we", but to thousands of complex questions which have come up during a lifetime. Curiosity drove him to find means of searching for answers. Answers can only be found through asking questions, either of people, or of things. If we ask people questions, we must ask them in a manner that will elicit an answer, convince them to share their knowledge with us. If we ask questions of things, it is through the act of research, investigation, discovery, actually digging up artifacts. To the results, reason and logic must be applied for analysis. We were aided in asking questions of people because of an innate ability to express ourselves on paper. Somehow or other, words written by your editor present themselves in a more friendly and personal fashion to the reader. By some mysterious reapproachment, the reader himself thinks of the editor as "personally friendly" and warmly present instead of coldly distant (as "Rap" and not "The Editor").

When we started this magazine, we called it MYSTIC. That was because the word mystic concerned the unknown. We wanted to know that which was unknown. Later, because we found that the title tended to suggest only the unknown, which never really became known, because the subject matter always was "the unknowable", we changed the title to SEARCH. We felt that searching into the unknown was what we're doing - so we began to call our efforts a search. Today, perhaps, the word we should be using is ANSWERS. That is what we really want! Answers!

The sudden looming of that word before us is shocking. What about all our years of searching into the unknown - have we found any answers? If so, what are they?

For the first time in our life, we've got to avoid the use of the pronoun "we", and use "I", because we can't know what answers you have found out of our mutual search - I can only tell you what answers I have found! The first question that occurs to me is whether I have actually found any answers or not? In order to answer this one, I'd have to review some facts. What has happened to all these years? When I was a boy, the other boys broke my wagon. Rather illogically, I was actually happy about it. The wagon itself could be fixed (and I did fix it, because I am also mechanically inclined). The happiness the wagon had brought far superceded the wagon itself. That was what was important, I thought.

The wagon was only typical. During my life, I've approached my

WHAT IF YOU WERE ONE OF FIVE MEN AND FOUR WOMEN MAROONED FOR LIFE ON A STRANGE LOST "GARDEN OF EDEN" BY AN AIRPLANE CRASH? WOULD FIVE "ADAMS" AND FOUR "EVES" MAKE THIS MODERN EDEN A PARADISE?

Today the world is beset by numerous problems, a far cry from the Garden of Eden where life was peaceful and happy and untroubled. Have you ever wondered what would happen if a small group of people got a chance to go back to that original Eden, and begin all over again? Could they begin to build a beautiful new existence, or would they make the same mistakes all over again? Can man really control his animal instincts? Is sex really evil, and is "sin" inevitable?

Do FLYING SAUCERS come from Space?

If you think so, here is a book you should read. This is a picture of Space as it is today, and will be tomorrow, in the opinion of a leading Space scientist and one of America's top Space artists. We are going out into the realm of the saucers, to take our place in that strange community of unknown peoples. We should have some facts at our disposal so that we will know what it will be like "out there". This book is one you will find tremendously exciting, scientifically plausible, emotionally staggering, inspiring yet frightening. You owe it to yourself to put "flying saucers" into a scientific framework. This book will do it! Highly recommended by the editors of FLYING SAUCERS.

THE SHAVER MYSTERY

One of the most fascinating and strange true stories of our time!

By Richard S. Shaver

Atlantis... Lemuria!

On May 21, 1951, LIFE magazine called it: "the most celebrated rumpus that rocked the science fiction world". Said LIFE: "The Shaver Mystery concerned a race of malformed subhuman creatures called deros (from detrimental robots) who inhabited a vast system of underground cities all over the world. The original name of their habitat was Lemuria, and they had once been slaves of a Lemurian master race. But this master race had long since disappeared from the earth, leaving the ignorant and malicious deros in control of the great cities and wonderful machines it had built. Since then the deros occupied themselves mainly in persecuting the human race who lived on the crust of the earth above them. The deros were responsible for much of the evil in the world. Catastrophes, from ship-wrecks to sprained ankles, were attributable to their influence. They often appeared on the surface of the earth and were sufficiently human in appearance to pass unnoticed in a crowd. But they performed most of their harassments by telepathy, rays and other remote-control devices from their subterranean homes. Their underground cities communicated with the surface through various caves which were extremely dangerous for human beings to enter. The deros first came to light in a story called "I Remember Lemuria!" published in 1945 in Amazing Stories."

THE HIDDEN WORLD

Does An Ancient Race
Still Live Underground?

What do you know about the Shaver Mystery? For four years it created an enormous debate. LIFE magazine gave it 8 pages. There are many theories: Those who support Shaver in his materialistic honeycomb of caverns the world over, heritage of a Titan-Atlan race which fled a poisoned world over 12,000 years ago. Those who call his caverns the "astral", his dero the spirits of the dead. Some say it is another dimension, another realm of life alongside ours, invisible under ordinary circumstances. Whatever it is, you will find your brain whirling! There are twelve books of 192 pages, 115,000 words each, still available at $1.50 each, or $18.00 for all 12.

SEARCH MAGAZINE

Amherst, Wisconsin 54406

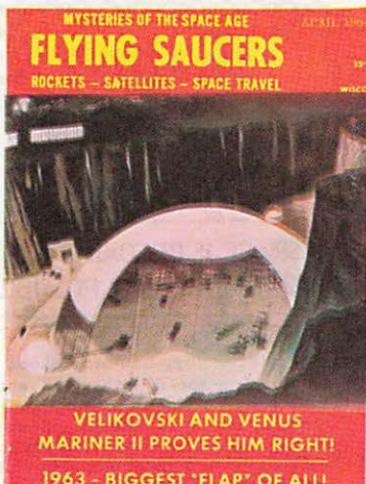

We are all interested in new things, in things previously unknown, in prying into the mysteries that surround us on all sides and make life such a complicated and wonderful adventure. It is necessary to our peril-fraught future as a civilized race that new things be brought out into the open where all of us can inspect them; that actual proof be presented to support the unknown acceptances of yesterday. Our moral development must keep pace with our mechanical advance. We are truly and honestly searching for the answers to the questions we begin to ask from our first reasoning days until the hour we die — when we go on to discover the answer to the greatest question of all.

In this great free America we have an advantage over half the world, in that we can do our own thinking and our own talking. We can exchange ideas, we can challenge old ones, we can devise new ones without fear of being clapped in a dungeon or ostracized as a heretic. Here knowledge and research is the recognized realm of activity of every person. That is why we have published thought-provoking, challenging articles, typified by an upward-looking spirit of inquiry, ranging from the lowliest investigator, the child who asks "Mommy, where did I come from?", to Dr. Rhine of Duke University, who is engaged in a scientific search for the soul! SEARCH asks many such questions, and as the answers are forthcoming, brings them to its readers honestly, competently and accurately; without bias, and without distortion or axe-grinding implications.

FLYING SAUCERS

with complete coverage of the famous UFO.

Flying saucers are a fact. A national poll has proved that one American in every four is aware of the truth of that statement. In spite of this, FLYING SAUCERS magazine is the only publication devoted to presenting all the facts and all the latest news concerning unidentified flying objects. It is the only magazine wherein the public can pierce the fog in which official sources have shrouded a matter of vital and general public concern. Here is a magazine you can depend on to keep you up to the minute on every development. More than 5000 sightings have been reported to the editors, and new sightings come in daily. Hundreds of these are from reputable people, airline pilots, scientific experts, even clergymen. FLYING SAUCERS has a staff of experts who evaluate every sighting, subject every photo to exhaustive tests, analyze every theory presented, and who meticulously report the truth as they see it. Today Man is aiming his sights at the stars. He intends to fly to other planets. But are the inhabitants of other worlds already visiting us? It may be so, but even if not, this magazine is writing the daily history of the new space age!

Magna Carta of Space

by WILLIAM A. HYMAN, A.B., LL.B., D.H.L.

SPACE IS BECOMING CROWDED--YET IT IS A LAWLESS ELEMENT.
DO WE FACE THE POSSIBILITY OF A "PEARL HARBOR" OF SPACE?

Space technology has progressed with an astonishing speed in the few years that have elapsed since the Russians orbited the first artificial satellite. Statesmen, lawyers, scientists and other scholars have devoted a great amount of time and effort to developing rules for the control and guidance of activities in space. That the conduct of mankind is far from ideal is not in doubt. The author recognizes that activities in space need regulating. He offers as a constitution or basic law for space activities the idealistic Magna Carta of Space which he has developed over a period of years. Mr. Hyman, a successful practitioner of various aspects of air law and other law presents a popularized and colorful argument attesting to the urgent need for agreement on broad rules of conduct of nations in space. Mr. Hyman poses most of the basic questions which are proving to be major stumbling blocks. Where is outer space? Where does air space end? How may the accident victim of activities in space be compensated? How can nuclear activity be controlled? What is peace? What is a peaceful and what is an aggressive use of space? Where does national sovereignty end and how is sovereignty acquired? How should space communications be organized and controlled? The author delves into history, morality, religion and current occurrences in pointing out the necessity, urgency and feasibility of agreement along broad guidelines for conduct in space. He is calling for Space Law NOW.

These are true Indian legends, gathered during twenty-five years of research by L. Taylor Hansen, archaeologist, from many different tribes all over the Americas. By consulting museums, libraries and experts on folk-lore, it has been possible to correlate the findings into this fascinating book, backed up by the spades of the diggers into ancient ruins, and by all the sciences with which L. Taylor Hansen is familiar. This is a book that will back up the New Testament of the East, with the Christian Indian legends of the West. In this book is proof that the Savior came not only to one continent, but to all the world. This book will strengthen your faith as no other could!

fellow men and women with literally thousands of "wagons". Every-time I found something that "we" could share, I brought it to them - and every time they smashed it!

That is ONE of the things I learned - one of the answers. There is something in man that reacts to the "we" concept of brotherhood by destruction. It began with Cain and Abel. Abel never questioned that life was to be shared with his brother. Brotherhood was as natural as creation. But Cain, faced with the concept of brotherhood, reacted by slaying his brother. And he did it because "you are DUMB!" He looked upon Abel's offering of fruits and grains as childish, inane, stupid - his own offering of a living animal, sacrificed, slain upon the altar of self, was deemed far superior. It was in accord with reality - not with illusory "dreams". And now that I've given you an answer, it is one that requires an explanation. The mere answer that I have learned that you will inevitably smash my wagon and me with it, is not enough. I'll have to tell you about yourself, and your relation to me, and to God, and to Nature, and to each other.

Since I have referred to Cain and Abel, let me start by quoting a passage from Genesis (1:28). "And God blessed them (man, whom he created in his own image, male and female), and God said unto them, be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the Earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth on the face of the Earth."

The words used in this verse are easy to understand. Their meaning is plain. It cannot be twisted to mean anything except what it says. I am going to tell you what it says to me. The whole answer as to why my playmates smashed my wagon is there. First, man is to "subdue" the Earth. He is to dominate the fish in the sea, the birds in the air, and EVERY living thing that moves!

By FORCE!

Every living thing that moves!
INCLUDING YOUR BROTHER!

If your brother stands in the way of your domination, subdue him! Smash his wagon. Knock him down. And if this is not enough, kill him!

There are three absolutely vital requirements laid down in this passage in the bible: 1) keep the Earth populated; 2) subdue (control, manage) it; 3) dominate all living things (bend them all to your own will, to your own benefit).

If, at this point, you are beginning to bridle; if you are already reaching for your typewriter to protest in horror, hold it a moment. Read me out; the answer is more complex, and there are two sides. I intend to be fair in presenting them. Also, I want to present my answer in complete form, so that you will have to answer me with reason, with logic - not emotion, not passion, not anger, not moral preaching.

I'm going to quote still another passage in the bible (probably the one you have already decided to throw back at me). It is Mark 12:31. ". . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these."

The word "these" refers also to Mark 12:30 which says: ". . .

thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment."

You must acknowledge God as your master. He says he is your master; you agree. His first command is to love him (with every energy, excepting none). Then he says you are to love your neighbor "as thyself". First, to love yourself is to be selfish. Next, since all your energies are commanded to be expended in loving God, no energy is left to love either self or neighbor. It is obvious that you are commanded to be (in relation to your neighbor - your brother) totally selfish.

All these "commandments" are consistent and compatible with each other. None is a contradiction.

In order to assure you that I am not solely the originator of the "answer" I am describing to you here, I will give the Marquis du Sade credit for arriving at the same answer during the French Revolution, and I will quote him also, rather loosely, because I do not have his book at hand. Briefly, he describes God as "Nature". He prefers to refer to Nature. The natural processes of Mother Earth are to "grow things". Fauna, as well as flora. She has no other purpose. And this process of growing things is subject to immutable laws. Chemistry. Seeds are placed in soil, where they generate, develop by drawing sustenance from the minerals and chemicals of the earth. Then, complying with the reminder given Adam when he was placed on the Earth: "dust thou art, and to dust thou shalt return" all fauna and flora die and return to Nature's compost heap, where the minerals are once more converted into "available" form for new growth. Nature has no opinion one way or another - she does not say you should love anything. She does say "be fruitful and multiply" (cohabit, plant seeds). She doesn't consider "morality" in the least. She is not immoral, she is amoral. She doesn't care a whit if you are married or unfaithful - she requires only that you cohabit. And when you are through, she wants nothing other than your death - to replenish her compost heap. She cares not a whit whether that death is horrible, agonizing, or during peaceful sleep. She has no compassion. Die! she says. Be born, live a spell (she doesn't care how), plant your seed, then die. She agrees with God - while you live, subdue the world you live in, and dominate all other life forms - if you can! And there is only one way you can dominate - by force!

To God, and Nature, there is no "sin". It is not a sin to kill. Even Cain was rewarded for having the courage to obey the commandment to dominate for selfish reasons; he was marked so that no man, finding him, should slay him. (If he were slain, a seven-fold vengeance would be exacted upon the slayer.) Abel went to the compost heap, Cain was given a whole new country to dominate, a wife to receive his seed and nurture it, and kingship over all his people.

You hear a lot of talk about human rights. Everybody seems to think that "equality" is desirable, right and just, and moral. You are asked to be a good Samaritan. You are asked to give of your substance in helping others to have as much as you have. This despite the direct opposite "charity begins at home"; be selfish FIRST.

Let's take that last statement: If you are truly selfish, and have the guts to stand up and fight for what you want, and to reach out and take it by force, what is the result? First, you must divorce from your mind the idea that to be selfish is to be evil; that selfishness in itself is bad. It is not true that you want "bad" things to happen to you. Like Johnson, you want peace. It is because Johnson lacks the courage to use brute, bloody force that peace is unattainable; he wishes to GIVE to the people of Vietnam the benefits they OUGHT to have. As long as it is so unselfish, his efforts will fail. You all want peace - but you don't understand that you must dominate to get it. Our government is ruled by men who say force used for conquest must be resisted wherever it appears, to convince the aggressor that he cannot profit by such tactics. Then our government refuses to use the necessary force to attain that desirable conclusion. God commanded man to SUBDUE, to dominate.

So, you want peace? You want your own business where you can earn a living? You want a great and prosperous country, covered with highways, mansions, all the wonderful benefits of civilization? No one will GIVE them to you! You've got to take them FOR YOURSELF by FORCE! Consider what the result will be:

You want GOOD things. Therefore, in the process of taking them for yourself, due to your selfish greed, you will wind up with MORE than you need. There is bound to be an overflow. If you gain peace by force, the survivors will also gain peace. It doesn't matter that the peace exists because of your dominance. It is true that there are far more moral cowards than unmoral aggressors - and these moral cowards, afraid to stand up to life and take what they want, will be satisfied with the enforced peace you have imposed upon them. They will also enjoy riding in the cars on the highways that you force them to build (by successfully subduing and dominating so that your factories become a personal reality for you, to your selfish profit). They will have jobs in your factory, working on your roads, making your cars, building your mansion (which is immoral, considering they must live in lesser affluence, even in abject poverty). But remember, those who live in poverty need not. God has told them to have dominion over all the Earth and over everything that lives or moves. There is no other way but force! They need only reach out and take what they want.

Here you will be filled with almost uncontrollable anger, and smoking at the ears to get to your typewriter and decry everything I've said - but wait! You've not heard me out.

Do you think that I am advocating the riots in our Black ghettos? Do you think I advocate taking what the other guy has? Do you think I am advocating the very thing that led to the "answer" I am trying to explain, the incident of the little boys smashing my wagon? You are wrong. Any thinking man can see that the use of force must be judicious. It must, above all, have a successful result. To rise up and smash things that already exist, because they do not belong to you, is futile. To steal what is another's is to lose what you have by setting an example - your own possessions will in turn be stolen from you. What I have said is that it is RIGHT to kill to get what you want, if that is the ONLY WAY you can get it! You will not be punished. God never said he would punish you for anything you did. He only said that your physical portion will return to the compost heap. Any other reward you get out of existence, you can gain only by domination of your environment and your fellow-life forms.

All this, of course, deals with our physical existence on this planet. If we are more than physical (and I have a personal answer that says I am), this other existence has to do with other environments, and functions under other commandments - or more likely, because of the lessons I learn in the physical, no commandments are necessary. Having learned that the use of force is the only way to get what I want, and that this must be CONSTRUCTIVE force (in other words, dictated by common sense, reason, logic), my spiritual existence may be untrammelled indeed, free from any "domination", even by God, who has assured me from the very beginning that he will not dominate me, but gives me free rein, reminding me only that he who would achieve must dominate, must subdue.

And therein lies the reason for my 57 years of total failure - why all my "wagons" have been smashed, why no man is truly my friend, why no one can be trusted. While they have obeyed the commandments of God, with no hindrance of morality, no regard for my rights, no concern for my happiness, no consideration for my comfort, stealing from me, lying to me, deceiving me, dominating me, and betraying me - I have placed my dreams and ideals and faith in the pronoun of brotherhood, the "we" of cooperation, of doing things for my fellow man, of living in a world of illusion instead of reality.

It is the truth - I AM dumb! I have not understood even the simplest of commandments. I have given my wagon to the vandal, rather than smashing him in the mouth, as he deserves. In my gutless cowardice, my unwillingness to stand up and fight for what I want, I have read only words "love thy neighbor", hoping that they WOULD, and passed over the words "as thyself". When I have "turned the other cheek" I have promptly been belted a second time. My "neighbors" are perfectly aware of the precise meaning of the two commandments of which there are "none other greater".

Finally, no, I won't kill you. For the simple reason that I would only go to jail for it - and that I do not want. I'll get what I want, but it will be safely and sanely. If, in the process, you get something good out of it, don't get the idea it is because I have any compassion for you, or think you deserve it, or out of any humanitarian impulse. I do warn you, however, the next time you break my wagon, make sure you have enough force in reserve to stay on your feet when the fight begins - because you WILL have a fight on your hands!

To God, you are on your own, placed on a planet you can subdue or not, as you choose; dominate or not, as you choose. He won't interfere one way or another. He probably hasn't told you all his plans, but in that he is doing what HE wants, and you'd hardly expect him not to go by his own rules, play the game under the same terms he expects you to play it, would you? To Nature, you are just raw material for a compost heap, and the sooner you rot in it, the sooner she can go ahead with her job, growing new bodies for you to occupy and use in a forceful fashion. To me, you are a potential menace, because very few among you are intelligent enough to use force in a constructive way. All too often, practically every time, as a matter of fact, you smashed it with no apparent gain to yourself in the act. Quite the reverse, you simply spoiled your own fun in future use of the wagon. And since you don't have the "answer", I can't trust you. The next time I build a wagon, I'll build a great number of them, even if I have to force you into a slave labor situation to do it. Then, having my wagon, I couldn't care less if you ride around in the other ones! Of course, having the wagons, you might force yourself to build a road to ride upon - in which case, I might use the road too!

Funny how this wise rule of being selfish rubs off on everyone else! But when you think about it, what other way is there - that works! - Rap.

JAYNE MANSFIELD RETURNS

BY EVELYN MC KEEVER

Jayne Mansfield

"SHE SPOKE TO ME TWO WEEKS AFTER HER DEATH".

ALTHOUGH I offered this experience to Miss May Mann, the Hollywood columnist, for her exclusive use, my reason for writing this story for SEARCH is that I feel it is necessary to have on record somewhere, besides in my notes, the complete and true account of what happened as only one who has actually experienced Jayne's presence could know it. Also, since there was a premonition preceding the event of Jayne's death, that too must be included to understand fully the entire situation. And so, however skeptical I may be where it concerns tales of this sort, my mind is not closed for I am among those who have lived in two different historical epochs. (See "I Remember Dying" on page 51 of this issue.) However, I am in no way connected with spiritualism. Seances, table tapping, ouija boards, all are unfamiliar to me and except for reading books in order to be cued-in on these subjects, I am entirely out of that realm.

THE PREMONITION

My premonition came while I was reading the San Francisco Chronicle in a Sausalito avant-garde coffee shop. It was a gorgeous day and so I had gone over to the picturesque community nestled close to the Bay on the Marin County side, and one of the first things I did upon arriving there was to stop in at one of those restaurants, facing the waterfront. A newspaper was available and I began to read it as I sipped my coffee. I came upon an item about the San Francisco Film Festival, currently being held. Also in the news and in connection with the Festival, was attorney Melvin Belli and his temporary wife by virtue of a Shinto wedding in Japan. There to give me more details. All I could get was that it was dreadful and that in actuality, whatever it was to be, it was not a firmly set fate but one that could be avoided if she toned down on her fast living and became more housebound. I wanted very much to phone her at the hotel where she was staying and tell her what I was foreseeing. I envisioned this piece of business in my mind and saw how melodramatic and absurd it was. There I'd be, a nobody, doing the Big Favor bit for the celebrity. I could see her surrounded by all the accoutrements of wealth on one end of the line, and "little match girl" me on the other, sounding like a complete fool. "Forget it", I thought and dismissed the whole idea from my mind. Some weeks later, still bothered by the premonition, I thought about writing her a letter to see how this would work out. I wrote the letter, and after reading it over, quickly tore it up. For a few more weeks I gave the matter little thought . . . rather, it was with effort I gave it little thought. Then one rainy evening, chilled and annoyed by a cold that was developing I purchased a copy of Movieland to amuse myself and to take my mind off my difficulties. Upon opening the magazine I came upon May Mann's story of Jayne Mansfield's son Zoltan who had been attacked by a "tame" lion while on a visit to Jungleland.

was a picture of the Bellis and with them was Jayne Mansfield, wearing the most unheard of dress, slit on each side clear to the belt. Sam Brody, a Los Angeles attorney, was in the picture also. Belli's wife was such a beauty, I kept looking at her, especially her magnificent hair and dazzling smile. Poor Jayne Mansfield, I thought, knocking herself out to be glamorous and Pat Montodon Belli was buying and selling her. At that moment I received the premonition about Jayne. I knew that in one year, if not sooner, something awful was going to happen to her. For the longest while I stared at Jayne's picture trying to force my intuition

After reading this story I knew that it still wasn't the "awful thing" of my premonition, that whatever it was to be, it would happen to Jayne herself, and not to one of her children. Since Miss Mann described herself as a long-time close friend of Jayne's, I gave serious thought to writing her in the hope she would not dismiss my letter as just another "crack pot" letter stars receive in abundance. That idea, too, flopped as I mentally rehearsed it.

Several months passed during which time events happening in my own life took my mind off the whole matter. It got to be June of that year and thoughts of death began intruding upon my mind. On the 22nd of that month a woman I did business with committed suicide, leaving me with a feeling of depression. Then on June 29th, while strolling along Van Ness Avenue here in San Francisco, having just spent a few hours in the sun down by the Bay, I noticed an early edition of the Chronicle. The headlines said, simply, "Jayne Dead". The paper was in a locked glass-fronted box and I didn't have a dime in my change to get a copy. However, looking in I saw that the whole story as it was known at that point was on the front page. I read it, hardly believing what I saw before my eyes. It was impossible that Jayne Mansfield was dead! It just couldn't be! As I walked on, the feeling that Jayne would contact me in some psychic way became certain.

Two weeks after her death I had a very strange experience. I was writing a letter to a friend, who is also psychic, and I mentioned that since the day I learned of Jayne Mansfield's death I've had the feeling that she would give me a message, via E.S.P. I assumed. Two weeks having gone by, there was no message, yet I still felt there would be one. Then with no forethought, I found myself addressing a letter to May Mann. I was explaining to Miss Mann, in the letter, that should a message come through me I would pass it on to her, for she could probably get more meaning out of it than someone who never knew Jayne. As I was closing the letter I suddenly found myself engulfed in a powerful presence. My back turned strangely cold and I felt very apprehensive. Then I detected a sweet odor which registered on my mind as being something other than perfume. The atmosphere turned to intense love, and I, in the midst of this awesome feeling or emotion, was unaffected except for observing it with wonder. Then a voice, unmistakably Jayne Mansfield's said, "Tell her I love her". The voice was somewhat musical, reminiscent of the way opera singers deliver speaking lines. Following that she expressed love for certain members of her family, and I consciously began to resist the phenomena out of fear that some other entity might come through right after her who might not be friendly. This broke the communication and it was not until fifteen minutes afterward, when I was putting the letter in an envelope, that she returned. I had been thinking as I addressed the envelope that quite possibly my critical faculties would destroy my belief that this had happened by morning when I would mail the letter, so I resolved to mail it no matter what I felt or thought then. That was when Jayne returned and said, "Thank you, Evelyn", in a friendly, sincere, yet distant manner.

A lot of scandal has erupted in connection with Jayne Mansfield since her death. Had I not had this experience with Jayne, I too would share the same opinion that prevails today. But because I have had this experience, any amount of scandal will not in any way alter my opinion of her. She was, underneath, the epitome of beauty and love. It is not for us to judge her apparent actions during the last few years of her life.

MORE ABOUT JAYNE

Later when I read that Jayne Mansfield's home, known as The Pink Palace, was to be auctioned off so soon after her death, I somehow expected an unusual happening to postpone the sale. There was something terribly cruel about this sale, for not even Jayne's grieving mother could so much as remove a scarf or a book from the house. I do not have all the in and outs regarding the reason for this lockup of Jayne's entire possessions, but I am sure her closest friend, Hollywood columnist May Mann, will explain everything in her upcoming book, "Jayne Mansfield, The Real Me". It seemed unfair, even mean, to dispose of Jayne's beloved home, and all that was in it including her most personal possessions, in so unfeeling and business-like a manner. And to make matters worse, the Christmas season was close at hand. How must her children have felt not only with losing their mother, but seeing their home barred against them? Then the traditional Christmas celebration was to be denied them too. Of course, this year it would have been sad for the family, but it would have been very meaningful nonetheless, and I'm sure they would have drawn close to their mother's spiritual presence, which surely would have been there. This truly was the crowning blow.

And so, to repeat, I slowly shook my head as I read of the appointed auction. No, I thought, Jayne would never have gone for this deal. She would have said, with hot, angry tears coursing down her cheeks, "At least give them their Christmas!"

Now it doesn't seem at all likely that Jayne would deliberately ruin her home, since she loved every inch of it, but who knows what her motive, out of necessity, may have been when she, if she did, caused the water pipes all over the house to burst and cause an estimated $100,000 worth of damage. Was this running water an expression of Jayne's anguish over losing her home and not being able to join her children in spirit at Christmas? Five plumbers worked day and night around the clock for three days trying to stop the damage. They had to pull the pipes from the walls as water poured through the red leather tufted library, down through the bedrooms and lavish playroom, ruining walls, furnishings and hand-painted ceilings.

Jayne died on June 29, 1967, and the home she cherished was to be put on the block only within five months of her death. The pipes broke on the first day of November. I have the strongest intuitive feeling that Jayne, for reasons of her own, caused this havoc. Perhaps she was trying to hold things up until some heretofore unknown matter came to light. Or, knowing how useless it was to save The Pink Palace, caused the pipes to break as a symbolic expression of her sorrow.

SAUCERS FROM EARTH

By RAY PALMER

IS THERE ANY AREA ON EARTH WHICH CAN BE REGARDED AS A POSSIBLE ORIGIN FOR THE FLYING SAUCERS?

SINCE THE day Kenneth Arnold first brought flying saucers to wide public attention by his famous sighting, one fact has been consistently brought forth by investigators - flying saucers did not originate with that sighting, but have been with humanity for centuries if not thousands of years. Flying Saucers is the popular term for Unidentified Flying Objects (UFO), or Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP). The popular "saucer" shape is only a segment of the phenomena. Properly, the important fact to consider is that intelligently controlled phenomena appear in our atmosphere. Their exact nature is a matter for conjecture, and is quite varied in configuration (to use a favorite Air Force word). It is this fact of antiquity which poses the most important single factor in analyzing the phenomena. At one stroke it eliminates contemporary Earth governments as the originators of the mysterious phenomena.

Because of this antiquity, many investigators have turned from Earth to other planets, and to other solar systems. Each planet has its followers in this group of investigators, and such bodies as Venus, Mars and Saturn are favorites with the so-called contactees. We are not at all concerned in this symposium of evidence with the contactee - a phenomenon as "unidentified" as UFO themselves. It may not even be remotely related. However, chief among the advocates of interplanetary origin is Major Donald E. Keyhoe, whose efforts are entirely directed toward collecting evidence that will serve to advance this theory. The interplanetary theorist has a large following, and is perhaps the only theory that will even be considered by scientific men such as astronomers. While it is true that there are many mysteries of an interplanetary nature, linking them with UFO demands a stretching of the evidence, and a great deal of extrapolation. It may be true that there are "configurations" on the Moon, for instance, which are used by Keyhoe to postulate "flying saucers" on that body. Unfortunately (for Keyhoe) this same evidence is used by contactees such as Adamski to support their contentions.

Actually, the Moon is remote, in reference to Unidentified Aerial Phenomena, and we must disregard it when we speak of atmospheric phenomena; events which occur within our atmosphere. Since almost all "sightings" are in atmosphere in nature, the greatest percentage of thinking on them must be limited to the atmosphere.

Because our planet is quite well (but not completely) known, it has been easy for interplanetary theorists to prove that the strange objects are not made by any single government or group of governments on Earth. Such a vast project could not remain secret over so long a period, and also, the matter of antiquity does not allow the phenomena to be fitted into the history of existing governments.

How well-known is Earth? Is there any area on Earth which can be regarded as a possible origin for the flying saucers? There are two, speaking in major terms, and four, speaking in more minor terminology. The two major areas, in order of importance, are Antarctica and the Arctic. The South Polar continent, and the North Polar area. We speak of the North Polar area because exploration made public to date indicates there is no land, but that it is an ocean, frozen over with ice, under which exploration by submarine is being carried on. The two minor areas are South America's Matto Grosso and Asia's Tibetan Highlands.

Could the flying saucers come from any of these areas? We can largely eliminate the Matto Grosso and the Tibetan Highlands; firstly because of the enormous numbers of the UFO, and secondly because these areas are not entirely unexplored, and can be flown over almost at will. Evidence is lacking in both these areas. Negative evidence, however, does exist in some measure, sufficiently to cause theorists to discard both areas, except in a minor way. At most, either or both Matto Grosso and Tibetan Highland, can be suspected to be "bases" or something on the order of "way stations".

What about the North Pole? Explorers say it is entirely oceanic in nature, covered with ice which sometimes melts in part, and in many areas is quite thin at all times. The depth of the ocean beneath this ice varies from some 24 fathoms to several miles. Flights have been made to and across the North Pole. Submarines, notably Nautilus and Skate, have travelled to the Pole and returned, crossing from one side to the other (Point Barrow to Spitzbergen). Apparently the sort of base necessary for the UFO mystery in its entirety does not exist in the North Polar regions.

What about the South Pole? Here we have a continent quite as large as North and South America combined, insofar as land mass is concerned. At least one large area (40,000 square miles) is known to experience 100% melting during the summer, and even in winter possesses warm water lakes (from warm springs, geysers, etc.). This area is under control of the Russians, who have a permanent base there. Expeditions from both Little America and from the British zone of exploration, have reached the South Pole. Expeditions have also reached the South Magnetic Pole. This is a distinction it is necessary to stress, due to the strange fact that the South Magnetic Pole is actually 2300 miles distant from the South Geographic Pole. It is a fact that a tremendous land area exists in the South Pole Continental Area, which is unexplored and which constitutes a large blank on the map of Earth.

Let us consider the North Pole first, and discover what we know about it. What are the facts about the "top" of the Earth?

First, it is surrounded on all sides by known areas of land. Siberia, Spitzbergen, Alaska, Canada, Finland, Norway, Greenland, and Iceland. The northern shores of these lands border on the Arctic Ocean, in the vertical center of which both the geographic and magnetic poles exist. These two poles are separated by many miles, and one of them, the magnetic pole, is known to "wander" somewhat.

The North Pole has been reached by a number of expeditions. For example, the exploits of the NAUTILUS and SKATE, both atomic submarines which traversed the entire extent of the arctic Ocean beneath the ice, making the Pole itself (magnetic) a stopping point. On the surface of things, it can be said that the North Polar Area is fairly well explored. In addition to our submarine explorations, the Russians have also traversed the Arctic Ocean. They have even established magnetic "bases", navigational aids which they have planted along Alaskan and Canadian shores, so that rocket-launching atomic bomb submarines can proceed swiftly to a pre-arranged launching site, and fire rockets on prearranged courses. American submarines have been busily (we hope) moving these navigational aids to new sites which throw off the pre-arranged calculations, thus making them worthless.

But there is an area of doubt which should be explored and presented as the first of bits of evidence which point to what may well be the best-kept secret in history. In order to do so, we must go back to 1947. In February of that year, Admiral Byrd, the one man who has done the most to make the North Pole a known area, made the following statement: "I'd like to see that land beyond the Pole. That area beyond the Pole is the center of the great unknown."

Millions of people read his statement in their daily newspapers. And millions thrilled to the Admiral's subsequent flight to the Pole and to a point 1700 miles beyond it. Millions heard the radio broadcast description of that flight, which was also published in the newspapers. Briefly, we will recount that flight as it progressed. When the plane took off from its Arctic base, it proceeded straight north to the Pole. From that point, it flew on a total of 1700 miles beyond the Pole, and then retraced its course to its Arctic base. As progress was made beyond the Pole point, ice-less land and lakes, mountains covered with trees, and even a monstrous animal moving through the underbrush, were observed and reported via radio by the plane's occupants. For almost all of the 1700 miles the plane flew over land, mountains, trees, lakes and rivers.

What land was it? Look at your map. Calculate the distance to the Pole from all the known lands we have previously mentioned. A good portion of them are well within the 1700 mile range. But none of them are within 200 miles of the Pole. Byrd flew over no known land. He himself called it "the great unknown". And great it is, indeed! For after 1700 miles over land, he was forced by gasoline supply limit to return, and he had not yet reached the end of it! He should have been well inside one of the known areas mentioned. He should have been back to "civilization". But he was not. He should have seen nothing but ice-covered ocean, or at the very most, partially open ocean. Instead he was over mountains covered with forests.

Forests!

Incredible! The northernmost limit of the timber-line is located well down into Alaska, Canada and Siberia. North of that line no tree grows! All around the North Pole, the trees do not grow within 1700 miles of the Pole!

What have we here? We have the well-authenticated flight of Admiral Byrd to a land beyond the Pole that he so much wanted to see, because it was the center of the unknown, the center of mystery. Apparently he had his wish gratified to the fullest, yet today nowhere is that mysterious land mentioned. Why! Was that 1947 flight fiction? Did all the newspapers lie? Did the radio from Byrd's plane lie?

Beyond?

What did the Admiral mean when he used the word? How is it possible to go "beyond" the Pole? Let us consider a moment: Let us imagine that we are transported, by some miraculous means to the exact point of the North Magnetic Pole. We arrive there instantaneously, not knowing from which direction we came. And all we know is that we are to proceed from the Pole to Spitzbergen. But where is Spitzbergen? Which way do we go? South, of course! But which South? All directions from the North Pole are South!

This is actually a simple navigational problem. All expeditions to the Pole, whether flown or by submarine, or on foot, have been faced with this problem. Either they must retrace their steps, or discover which southerly direction is the correct one to their destination, whatever it has been determined to be. The problem is solved by making a turn, in any direction, and proceeding approximately 20 miles. Then we stop, shoot the stars, correlate with our compass reading (which no longer points straight down, but toward the North Magnetic Pole), and plot our course on the map. Then it is a simple matter to proceed to Spitzbergen by going south.

Admiral Byrd did not follow this traditional navigational procedure: when he reached the Pole he continued on for 1700 miles. To all intents and purposes, he continued on a northerly course, after crossing the Pole. And weirdly, it stands on the record that he succeeded, for he did see that "land beyond the Pole" which to this day, if we are to scan the records of newspapers, books, radio, television and word of mouth, has never been revisited!

That land, on today's maps, cannot exist. But since it does, we can only conclude that today's maps are incorrect, incomplete, and do not present a true picture of the northern hemisphere!

Having thus located a great land mass in the North, not on any map today, a land which is the center of the great unknown, which can only be construed to imply that the 1700 mile extent traversed by Byrd is only a portion of it, let us go to the South Pole. The expedition was to be headed by Richard E. Byrd. It consisted of five ships, fourteen airplanes, special tractors, and a complement of 1393 men. The stated purpose of the expedition was as follows: "To construct a satellite base at the South Pole."

In San Francisco, on the eve of his departure, Admiral Bird delivered a radio address in which he stated: "This is the most important expedition in the history of the world."

Let us pause a moment and pretend we are rocket men, primarily the scientists-rocket-men who are engaged in launching satellites. Our task is a troublesome one. Many failures result. Our work is a tremendously difficult task, and some times important rocket shoots are delayed for days by weather. Our base is a gigantic one, here at Cape Canaveral (now Kennedy). The logistics problem is enormous. The rockets themselves weigh hundreds of tons. To be asked to set up such a satellite base at the South Pole would cause us to stare in utter amazement at the official making the request. We would waste no time in informing him that he hasten immediately to his psychiatrist and retire from active service, for he has indeed "gone off his rocker". In short, a satellite base at the tip of South America in plain words, is totally ridiculous. Even a satellite tracking station at the South Pole is nothing short of idiotic. For tracking station purposes, a base at the tip of South America is entirely adequate. Or on a series of ships anchored about the Antarctic Circle.

This, then, cannot be a satellite base. It must be something else. On January 13, 1956, we learn what it really is. On that date the U.S. Navy flies to a point 2300 miles beyond the South Pole. The entire distance is accomplished overland.

Once again, look at your map. Unlike the North Polar Sea, the South Polar continent is entirely surrounded by water. And in all cases, no matter what direction you proceed from the South Pole, you pass from the continental area to a known oceanic area. You proceed hundreds of miles over water to reach a distance of 2300 miles.

Once again we have penetrated an unknown and mysterious land which does not appear on today's maps. Again we find no further announcement beyond the initial announcement of the achievement.

And strangest of all, we find the nation's missions absorbing the announcements, and registering a complete blank insofar as curiosity is concerned. Nobody, hearing the announcements, or reading of them in the newspaper, bothers to get a map and check the facts! Or if they do, they only shake their heads in puzzlement, and then shrug their shoulders. If Admiral Byrd is not bothered with the apparent inconsistencies, why should they be?

Here, then, are the facts: At both poles exist unknown and vast land areas, not in the least uninhabitable, extending for distances which can only be called tremendous, because they encompass an area bigger than any known continental area! The North Polar Mystery Land seen by Byrd and his crew is at least 1700 miles across its traversed direction, and cannot be conceived to be merely a narrow strip, as the factor of coincidence in flying precisely along its longest extent is improbable. It is a land area perhaps as large as the entire United States! The land area at the South Pole, considering that the flight began 400 miles west of the Pole, and thus covers a continuous land area of 2700 miles in one direction, means a land area possibly as big as North America in addition to the known extent of the South Polar Continent, which is located north of the Pole whereas the 2300-mile land traversed by the Navy plane is "beyond" the Pole. Once more the same condition of navigation exists: progress was made to the Pole and then straight on beyond it, with the one difference that the South Geographic Pole is located 2300 miles away from the South Magnetic Pole, and it is not necessary to perform the navigational maneuver described previously. If navigating from the South Magnetic Pole, the procedure is again necessary, with differences due to the greater angle of inclination to the stars, and the possibility of navigation entirely by the stars rather than with the aid of a compass.

Let's stop here and make a statement that logically follows: the flying saucers could come from these two unknown lands "beyond the Poles". It is our opinion that the existence of these lands cannot be disproved by anyone, considering the facts of the two expeditions, which we have outlined. These facts can be checked by anyone. You have merely to read the newspapers of the day.

Just for the record, let's present the actual announcement carried by press and radio on February 5, 1956: "On January 13, members of the United States expedition accomplished a flight of 2700 miles from the base at McMurdo Sound, which is 400 miles west of the South Pole and penetrated a land extent of 2300 miles beyond the Pole."

And on March 13, Admiral Byrd reported, upon his return from the South Pole: "The present expedition has opened up a vast new land."

Finally, in 1957, before his death, he reported it as: "That enchanted continent in the sky, land of everlasting mystery!" which statement remains as the most mysterious of all, and almost inexplicable. "Enchanted continent in the sky . . ." Everlasting mystery, indeed.

Considering all this, is there any wonder that the nations of the world have suddenly found the South Polar region (particularly), because of its known land area and the North Pole region so intensely interesting and important, and have launched explorations on a scale actually tremendous in scope?

And was it because of Admiral Byrd's weird flight into an unknown Polar land in 1947 that the International Geophysical Year was conceived in that year, and finally brought to fruition ten years later? Did his flight make it suddenly imperative to discover the real nature of this planet we live on, and solve the tremendous mysteries that unexpectedly confronted us?

If you have followed us thus far, it may be that you have gone to your map or your globe and have tried to fit these mysterious lands onto the planet, and have come up with a snort and said: "These bits of evidence are all very well, but the fact remains there is nowhere physically to place these land masses. Since the space to do so is lacking, there exists a fundamental impossibility, which cannot be overcome." Good boy! Don't give up your guns. Insist that we overcome this fundamental impossibility, and support our original evidence in not a few ways, but in hundreds.

There is evidence; and it is totally factual. It covers the fields of astronomy, physics, chemistry, geology, anthropology and exploration.

The question that most logically follows the two instances of exploration which we have outlined is whether or not other Polar Expeditions have encountered similar and confirming conditions. In order to answer this question, it will be necessary to examine the records of all North and South Pole explorations from the very first of which modern man has any knowledge. As a sub-subject, it might be interesting later on to go into legend and confirmation, but we are concerned now only with presenting provable facts. In the presentation of these facts, we intend to draw no conclusion. They should become obvious to the reader without prompting.

To those of you so inclined, there must be a great deal of interest in the historically famous debate on which, or both, or neither, Cook or Perry actually reached the North Pole. In the years following these expeditions, much debate went on, and even today arguments rage. Briefly, let's outline the claims of both men.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook said he reached the Pole on April 21, 1908. His announcement was followed by a few days by one from Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, that he had reached the Pole on April 6, 1909. Both men hurled accusations against the other. Cook even saying that Peary had appropriated some of his stores cached against his return from the Pole. Cook, in his turn failed to supply notes he said he had kept of his trip, and thereby cast doubt on his own story. The reader who is interested in the whole story should visit his library and read upon the controversy.

Although Cook claims to have been the first to reach the Pole we will take Peary's claim, which has been universally recognized, and examine it. Cook's claim was discredited on one basis because the sun altitude was so low that observations of it as proof of position were worthless. It should be noted that Peary also reached the Pole in April, 15 days earlier in the season, and therefore under even more adverse solar observations conditions. His calculations therefore are more suspect than Cook's. Cook, it was said, had no witnesses other than Eskimos; the same is true of Peary. Peary, however, lacked witnesses through choice having ordered his white companions to remain behind, while he went on alone with one Eskimo companion to the Pole. Cook was doubted in his claim that he averaged 15 miles a day. Peary claimed to have made over 20. Undoubtedly the argument will never be settled. However, there is the factor regarding Peary's dash to the Pole, which, in our opinion is quite remarkable. This factor lies in the fantastic speed with which he made his trip.

When Peary neared the 88th parallel, he decided to attempt the final dash to the Pole in five days. He made 25 miles the first day; 20 on the second; 20 on the third; 25 on the fourth; 40 on the fifth. His five-day average was 26 miles. On the return trip he traveled a total of 153 miles in two days, including a halt 5 miles from the Pole to take a sounding of the ocean depth. This is an average of 76-1/2 miles per day. His actual traveling time was approximately 19 hours per day. This is a walking speed of 4 miles per hour. Can a man walk that fast under the incredible conditions of the North Pole area, an ice-terrain described by the men of the atomic submarine SKATE as fantastically jumbled and jagged? And yet, further south, with presumably better going, he was able to average only 20 miles per day.

We stress the distances only because the ones nearest the Pole are weirdly impossible. Only if Peary was reporting honestly would he have included such contradictory calculations which he must have known would discredit his story. Therefore we can assume that he did report honestly, and that we have a speed of travel which projects into the same mysterious area in the same "unfittable" manner as a whole vast continent fits into a space that is totally lacking. When traveling over a land whose dimensions are fantastically "expanded", will we not also travel at an equally fantastically "expanded" speed? It will be well to remember that these speeds were calculated by astronometrical observation, because the astronomical basis of these calculations will be taken up later in presentation of evidence.

To those who will study up on the subject of Polar Exploration, it will soon become evident that the feature most agreed upon by all North Polar explorers is that the area is oceanic, covered by water, and that it is variously frozen over or partially open, depending on the time of year. One peculiarity which many explorers remark upon however, is that paradoxically, the open water exists in greater measure at the nearer reaches of the Pole. In fact, some explorers found it very hot going at times, and were forced to shed their Arctic clothing; there even being one record of an encounter with naked Eskimos. Yet, with all this confirmed oceanic area, we have the contradiction of Admiral Byrd's flight being almost entirely over land, mountains covered with trees, interspersed with lakes and streams.

One of the reports from the Byrd expedition was the sighting of a huge animal with dark fur. Are there such animals, or traces of them in the Arctic? Beginning in Siberia along the Lena river, there lie exposed on the soil, and buried within it, the bones and tusks of literally millions of mammoths and mastodons. The concen-sus of scientific opinion is that these are prehistoric remains, and that the mammoth existed some 20,000 years ago, and was wiped out in the unknown catastrophe we now call the last Ice Age. In 1799, a fisherman named Schumachoff, living in Tongoose (Siberia), discovered a complete mammoth frozen in a clear block of ice. Hacking it free, he despoiled it of its huge tusks, and left the carcass of fresh meat to be devoured by wolves. Later an expedition set out to examine it and today its skeleton may still be seen in the Museum of Natural History in Petrograd (then St. Petersburg).

Early in the century, approximately 1910, a very scientific meal was served in Petrograd. It consisted of wheat from the Egyptian tombs, preserved foods from Pompeii and Herculaneum, mammoth meat from Siberia, and other interesting and ancient viands. The mammoth meat was fresh, and the mammoth from which it had been taken still had undigested food in its stomach, this undigested food consisting of young shoots of fir and pine, and young fir cones. According to the scientists, this mammoth was one of the millions slain instantly in a gigantic catastrophe 20,000 years ago, in a habitat then tropical, in which the vegetation was fern and tropical in nature. Yet, in the stomach of this mammoth is found the sparse food of a sub-Arctic area such as much of Alaska or Northern Canada is today. There is good reason to cast doubt upon the tropic origin of the mammoth, and its sudden demise. And if the demise was not sudden, then the presence of undigested food (not digested even by so much as a minutes exposure to stomach acids) in the stomach of the mammoth is unexplainable. True the death must have been sudden, but it was not of tropic locale. If not tropic, then the Ice Age onset is not the cause of death. The cause of death, then, is Arctic in nature, and could have occurred any time. But since the Ice Age, there have been no mammoths in the known world. Unless they exist in the mysterious land beyond the Pole, where one of them is actually seen alive by members of the Byrd expedition! Others who dined on mammoth meat were James Oliver Curwood and Gabrielle D'Annunzio, who gave a banquet at the Hotel Carlton in Paris.

We have taken the mammoth as a rather sensational modern evidence of Byrd's mysterious land, but there are many lesser proofs that an unknown originating point exists somewhere in the northern reaches. We will merely list a few, suggesting that the reader, in examining the records of polar expeditions for the past two centuries, will find evidences of both fauna and flora impossible to reconcile with the known areas surrounding the Polar Area on your present-day maps.

The musk-ox, contrary to expectations, migrates north in the wintertime. Repeatedly, Arctic explorers have observed bear heading north into an area where there cannot be food for them. Foxes also are found north of the 80th parallel, heading north, obviously well-fed. Without exception, Arctic explorers agree that the further north one goes the warmer it gets. Invariably, a north wind brings warmer weather. Coniferous trees drift ashore, from out of the north. Butterflies and bees are found in the far north, but never hundreds of miles further south; not until Canadian and Alaskan climate areas conducive to such insect life are reached. Unknown varieties of flowers are found. Birds resembling snipe, but unlike any known species of birds, come out of the north, and return there. Hare are plentiful in an area where no vegetation ever grows, but where vegetation appears as drifting debris from the northern open waters. Eskimo tribes, migrating northward, have left unmistakable traces of their migration in their temporary camps, always advancing northward. Southern Eskimos themselves speak of tribes that live in the far north. The Ross gull, common at Point Barrow, migrates in October toward the north. Only Admiral Byrd's "mystery land" can account for these inexplicable facts and migrations.

The Scandinavian legend of the wonderful land far to the North called "Ultima Thule" (commonly confused today with Greenland) is significant when studied in detail, because of its remarkable resemblance to the kind of land seen by Byrd, and its remarkable far north location. To assume that Ultima Thule is to come face to face with the contradiction of the Greenland Ice Cap, which fills the entire Greenland basin to a depth of 10,000 feet. A green, fertile land in this location places itself so deep in antiquity that it postulates an overturn of the Earth, and a new North Pole area (see National Geographic's explanation of the Greenland Ice Cap and its possible significance).

Is Admiral Byrd's land of mystery, center of the great unknown, the same as the Ultima Thule of the Scandinavian legends?

There are mysteries concerning the Antarctic also. Perhaps the greatest is a highly technical one of biology itself; for on the New Zealand and South American land masses are identical fauna and flora which could not have migrated from one to the other, but rather a common motherland. That motherland is believed to be the Antarctic Continent. But on a more "popular" level is the case of the sailing vessel Gladys, captained by E.B. Hatfield, in 1893. The ship was completely surrounded by icebergs at 43 degrees south and 33 degrees west and finally escaped its entrapment at 40 degrees south and 30 degrees west. At this latitude an iceberg was observed which bore a large quantity of sand and earth, and which revealed a beaten track, a place of refuge in a sheltered nook, and the bodies of five dead men who lay on different parts of the berg. Bad weather prevented any attempts at further investigation.

Bear in mind that it is a unanimous consensus of opinion among scientists that the one thing peculiar to the Antarctic is that there are no human tribes living upon it. But this consensus must be wrong, because investigation showed that no vessel was lost in the Antarctic at that time, so that these dead men could not have been shipwrecked sailors. Even today, with Antarctic exploration at its height, the lack of human life on the bleak continent is agreed upon. Could it be that these men who died on that berg came from "that mysterious land beyond the South Pole" discovered by the Byrd expedition? Had they ventured out of their way along the ice shelf, finally to be drifted to their deaths at sea on a portion of it, broken away to become an iceberg while they were on it?

Most recent evidence that there is something strange about the Poles of the Earth comes in the launching of Polar orbit satellites. The first six of these rockets launched by the United States from the California coast were full of disappointments - and surprises. The first two, although perfect launchings, seemed to go wrong at the last minute, and although presumed to be in orbit, failed to show up on the first complete pass around the Earth. Technically speaking, they should have gone into orbit but they did not. Something happened, and the location of this something was the Polar area. The next two rockets fired did achieve orbits. This was done by "elevating sights", so to speak, and trying for a higher orbit, with a large degree of eccentricity, that is, a high point of orbit above the poles and a low point of orbit at equatorial areas. It was admitted that this eccentric orbit would produce a short-lived orbit, but it would also give the advantage of readings at widely varied heights above the Earth. Especially interesting was the readings expected above the Poles, because of the discovery of the radiation ring that surrounds the Earth like a huge doughnut, with openings at both Poles. Scientists were very anxious to map this area of low radiation, because it offered a hope of an escape breach for future space travelers who faced almost certain death from radiation while passing through the forbidding belt discovered around the equatorial and temperate areas of the Earth.

The next two satellites bore nose cones similar to those in which a future astronaut would be sent into orbit. In each one was a powerful radio transmitter, which was possible because the cone was the size of an automobile, and carried heavy batteries. Also included were powerful lights which could be illuminated at the proper time. The technique of releasing this cone from the satellite was to drop it by a radio-triggered device somewhere above Alaska. Once dropped, the cone lost altitude and proceeded around the Earth for one more revolution on its orbit. Having come over the Pole, it was then low enough (calculated the rocket men) to drop into the atmosphere over Hawaii, where a parachute would lower it slowly to the Earth's surface, and there huge planes awaited rigged to "fish for" the descending cone, and take it into the plane before it dropped into the ocean and thus retrieve its important contents intact, without damage of crash landing.

On both occasions the following happened: The powerful radio signals were not heard at all. The lights were not seen at all. Radar, with a range of at least 500 miles detected absolutely nothing. Each "pick-up" was a complete failure because there was nothing to pick up.

The explanation of the radio failure was advanced as "freezing" of the batteries so that the radio failed to work. No explanation was given for the failure of lights, or of radar detection. That the batteries froze is a strange explanation, considering that similar batteries in other satellites, orbiting for months, and even years, have never frozen. Failure might be admitted in one case, but total failure in both instances bears the aura of improbability.

Each launching was perfect. Orbita finely determined as to exact distance, speed, etc., were achieved, and constantly tracked. Yet, when the final deed is done, and the cone is detached successfully according to monitoring devices signaling the detachment, everything goes wrong and the result is complete and inexplicable disappearance of the cone. True, the statement is made that there is only a 1000 to 1 chance of success, and thus two failures are not unreasonable. But the failures are not to be complete ones. By failure is meant the successful final "pick-up" of the cone by the aircraft. Not complete disappearance! At least radio signals will be received, lights will be seen, radar will spot the descending cone.

Can it be that the reason the descending cone does not come over the Pole on that last low pass is because the Polar area is mysterious in extent, not in the area calculated by the rocket men, and therefore not taken into consideration? Can it be that the nose cone fell to Earth inside that "land of mystery" discovered by Admiral Byrd? Where else could they have gone? If the Earth at the Poles is as given on today's maps, could four successive "low-level" launchings give the same inexplicable result - unreasonable disappearance?

If there is 1700 (or more) miles of land extent in addition to the area bounded by longitudes and latitudes on a sphere existing in the Arctic, it follows that the recorded disappearances are not inexplicable, but certain to occur! Naturally a rocket cone figured to traverse a certain distance (in these cases approximately 33,000 miles) will not land at a predetermined point if the distance to be traveled is greater by 1700 miles. Our radar will fail to find our cone, and our eyes will see no lights. But why will our radio fail to send its signals to us? Is it because that "land of mystery" is of an "intervening" nature? Radio waves will not go through the Earth, of course. If solid substance intervenes, then we can understand why radio waves do not penetrate it. But what kind of a land configuration can it be that "intervenes" in this way? Why don't we have the "skip and bounce" effect from the stratosphere, which presumably exists over Byrd's "land of mystery" as well as over the lands on the map?

Since the mapped area of the spherical Earth does not allow sufficient room in which to place our two mystery lands, can it be that the Earth is of a different shape, one that allows us to place these lands on that portion of it which does not come under the category of "spherical"?

The arguments for a perfectly round Earth are not based on fact, only on assumption. This assumption is based on a brand of astronomy no longer acceptable to the scientist. Today the nebular theory of formation of planets, suns, even galaxies, is looked upon favorably. The condensation of nebula into stars and planets is accomplished by whirling motion. The whirling motion more often produces the "spindle" shape, round at the "equator", and projecting at the "pole"; or the doughnut shape, with flattened poles and holes through the middle. Since the Earth so formed, it may well be that it is either shape.

On the one hand, the "spindle" shape possesses many specific arguments against it, and is the least reasonable. Astronomical bearings taken anywhere on the "spindle" portion would begin to show telltale evidence of the existence of the "spindle" shape. And they would be the reverse of factual sightings and bearings taken by Polar explorers. Actually, the bearings taken point to the "doughnut" shape.

Let us go back to Admiral Peary: his astounding rate of travel on his return from the Pole. If he were traveling over the inner lip of a "doughnut" shape, his bearings would indicate a great distance traveled due to the fore-shortened horizon, and the "expanded" angle used in making his trigonometrical calculations. Actually he would be traveling the same distance each day, and the drop of speed would be entirely compatible with the bearing observations taken with a constantly lengthening horizon.

Rocket scientists have made much of the discovery of the Van Allen Belt, which is a belt of radiation surrounding the Earth. The reader is invited to read about it in Scientific American, and especially note the drawings of its shape, which are precisely vast "doughnut", with the spherical Earth pictured at its center, in the "hole" of the doughnut. What if the Earth is not spherical, but actually doughnut-shaped, exactly as its surrounding Van Allen Belt? Whatever makes the belt thusly shaped, might it not also be responsible for shaping the Earth similarly?

The evidence is extremely strong, and amazingly prolific in scope and extent, that the Earth actually is shaped in this fashion. And if it is hollow, then we no longer need look for the saucers from outer space - but rather from "inner space"! And judging from the evidences, the interior is extremely habitable. Vegetation in abundance is there; animals abound; the "extinct" mammoth still lives! Byrd flew 1700 miles over the inner edge of the "doughnut hole", and the Navy flew 2300 miles over opposite inner edge. Both flights went a partial way into the inner Earth. And if this is all true, then no doubt extended flights to 10,000 miles and beyond have been made since 1957 into the hollow Earth, for we have the planes with the range to do it! If the government knew the significance of the Byrd-Navy flights, it would certainly not neglect to explore further!

Aime Michel, in his "straight line" theory, proved that most of the "flight patterns" of the flying saucers are on a north-south course, which is exactly what would be true if the origin of the saucers is Polar.

WAKE UP AMERICA

Social problems we have to solve, yes, but there is another problem. The people seem to be unaware of the importance of "the exploration of outer space".

The door to God's universe has been opened a crack. Are we going to pass by default the opportunity to explore it? The possibilities for man are limitless if he will awake to his opportunities.

The space economy must supersede the military economy in keeping the people of the world employed. Man must stop killing his brother; differences must be settled at the conference table, not on the battlefield.

Wake up and prove that the spirit of peace, brotherhood and adventure, that made our country great, still lives in that country today.

God bless this world of his universe.

THE DANGEROUS ART

by M. G. ZABARAKIS

ROBERT A. HEINLEIN said in one of his recent books, TAN-STAAFL, "There ain't no such thing as a free lunch." This philosophy was applied to the art of living in his book, THE MOON IS A HARSH MISTRESS, and it can also be applied in one of the world's oldest scientific arts, magic. Magic has certain rules and laws that cannot be violated and one of these laws is remarkably similar to the law of a newer science. Basically it states that every action in magic has an equal and opposite reaction.

If a person should reach the stage where he can deal with some of the lesser spells in the books, he will find that he is affected both in a spiritual and physical way. Every time a spell is used, the user will be marked by the backlash or recoil of the spell. If the spell is evil, the user will receive an equal amount of evil to his soul or life force, warping him. Likewise, good acts will result in further enriching the soul or wiping out black marks from previous evil deeds. This backlash will eventually warp the personality of the user to such an extent that he will become insane. Safeguards, however, can be used to combat this effect.

We have all heard of the man who has sold his soul to the Devil. But most of us have probably dismissed this as superstitious legend. It can be done. A man who wishes to sell his soul to the evil forces of the universe may do so by making a pact with any of the lesser demons. This dooms the soul to eternal separation from good, but the person who sells the soul is still twisted. The seller of the soul will gain a certain immunity to the backlash of his spells, but he still must study to overcome the effect, for a mastery of sorcery and such is not gained overnight.

Backlash is the bane of any worker of magic. He may find himself tired after the working of any spell and, depending on their degree, demons may cause the spellcaster to become exhausted for weeks. Physical fasting and preparation are the only methods by which a man may prepare and expect to come out alive many times. A man decides to work evil on his neighbor. He decides that he does not wish to kill his neighbor, but merely make him ill. If this man practises the primitive magic known as voodoo (sympathetic magic) he will find that he becomes increasingly ill himself. He will also find that he has the desire to perform greater acts of evil. This relationship will carry on to a greater scale.

A warlock will receive great amounts of backlash from the spells he performs unless he finds some way to avert the backlash. Cats, ravens, and other animals are often used to this purpose because they can absorb much more backlash than a human. Black animals, for some reason not understood, absorb backlash best. They act like batteries and store up the power absorbed for later use by their masters. These animals are referred to as familiars. The decree of power which a master of magic can control can be determined by the number, size, and type of his familiars.

For a complete understanding of backlash, one must experience the effect. It would be suggested that good deeds suffice, for they are the safest to perform and produce a satisfactory backlash.

Magical forces are as powerful as those controlled by our science of today, and in many cases intertie with forces we use. In the study of the theory of magic, it must always be remembered that the forces are dangerous if mishandled, and study should not be approached in a light manner. The serious study of magic should be preceded by the study of the basic forces which control it. In other words, magic should be studied as the science it is, and put to use which is proper and no more.

"THE AWAKENING"

"Honey - we're dead!"

ALEX SAUNDERS

WHILE VACATIONING at a popular summer resort during July, 1967, a thought occurred to me regarding the afterlife, and had me wondering if the following imaginary story happens in the spirit world? A spirit world which in Ray Palmer's opinion is EXTREMELY SIMILAR to the physical world. So much so that the difference is almost impossible to distinguish. Can it be a fact that the story below is commonplace?

Consider, now, the Carlson family that comprises husband Bruce, wife Doreen, an eight year old son and a daughter half that age. These four are vacationing in a place called Wasaga Beach in Ontario, Canada.

Bruce is lying on the sandy beach clad in swimming trunks. Doreen sits beside him on a blanket, appropriately attired, reading a book. The nearby youngsters are studiously building sand castles.

Bruce is thinking to himself: How pleasant and relaxing it is here at Wasaga. It is now Tuesday, July 25th, and we have been here four days, with another ten yet to go. I have worked hard the past year, and this is one holiday I am going to enjoy.

He recalled July 1st - a Saturday twenty-four days ago - when he and his family drove to Wasaga Beach from the city for a double purpose: One - to spend an enjoyable day there. Two - to locate a rentable cottage for his coming two-week vacation.

A suitable one was soon found, and all arrangements made. Now here they were, already having begun their vacation.

Bruce's eyes roved the beach. Quite a few people were present on this delightfully warm day, swimming, sunning, strolling, frequenting hot dog stands, a miniature golf course, and so on. Not too far inland, he could hear the happy sounds of the amusement park.

It suddenly occurred to him that the beach itself seemed to be wider than when he first saw it on his initial visit, the sand somewhat finer. Or was his imagination deceiving him? But then the afternoon sky appeared . . . well, a bit different, too, with its striking blueness.

He abruptly remembered a remark made a few hours earlier by his wife and family headed from the cottage to the beach. A remark about the impressive stateliness of the trees, the elm, the oak, and the white birch. All healthy looking, none sagging or decayed. And the lush, green grass, the sharply vivid coloring of the wild flowers. "Most unusual", were Doreen's exact words.

Unusual? How could that be? Of course conditions now were the very same as upon their first visit on that Saturday. It had to be!

Several sailboats moved gracefully through the calm water, their sails billowing out picturesquely, their design seemingly just a bit different, better, but hard to define, than when last remembered twenty-four days ago.

Bruce shrugged, absently complimenting the maintenance crew for the cleanliness of the beach. No refuse dotted the sand anywhere like he remembered last time here.

As Doreen kept on reading, and the children played quietly, he began to concentrate more carefully on the vibrant people about him.

Surprisingly, there was not too much noise in the air that was noticeably fresher and more invigorating than in the city. And, more surprising still, was the absence of rented motorcycles driven noisily by teen-agers up and down the beach. Last time the noise was irritating, to say the least.

A slight frown touched his forehead. Odd, he thought, at the inexcessive number of small children. One would imagine them to abound, but that was not the case at all. Actually, the vast majority of those present were adults in their mid-thirties, he judged.

Looking in another direction, Bruce's jaw dropped. Over there, to the right, a man had just emerged from the shallow water. He was Fred Jackson, a former neighbor who had moved three years ago to a distant state. But only recently had Bruce heard of his death by cancer. Somebody had told him so.

But here was Fred Jackson, hale and hearty. Obviously, that "somebody" was wrong. Before Bruce could hail him, the other hurried away in the opposite direction.

Now Bruce became aware of the faint sound of music - music so beautiful it was impossible to describe. He wished he knew the name of the record, for here was something superbly different.

The scene was so peaceful. Never had Bruce felt such relaxation and contentment. Doreen with her book, the children at play.

But his feelings were short-lived. For in the next moment he caught sight of a group up the beach - and felt the blood drain from his face. Only two figures were familiar in the group, a much-loved aunt and uncle who had both died in a fire a decade ago. That had indeed been a tragic year, for during it his own father had passed away. His aunt and uncle were laughing, obviously enjoying themselves, and looking much younger than when he last saw them - alive!

It can't be! It can't be! thought Bruce wildly.

Then he noticed a smiling figure walking directly toward him.

"Dad!" exclaimed Bruce with such loudness as to startle his wife and children. As he arose, trembling, full realization flooded into his brain. To Doreen he cried out:

"Honey - we're dead! All of us! We're in the spirit world!"

Even as he uttered those words, he was dimly aware of Doreen shouting to an approaching form, "Mother - mother!" He knew she had died when Doreen was a young girl.

As he stood erect, still shocked, his deceased father came closer, arms outstretched. From the corner of his eye, Bruce glimpsed his advancing aunt and uncle. So, too, were other relatives and dear friends, long dead, all approaching in warm greeting.

What Bruce did not know was that the Carlson family had made the front page of his city's newspapers only last Saturday with the news that a local man and his family had all been killed outright when, vacation bound, their speeding car had a blow-out and smashed into a tree.

Yes, the above story, strictly fictitious, makes me wonder about the spirit world. My wonderment centers on Ray Palmer's belief that it is a NEAR-EXACT DUPLICATE of our physical world. It must be, he argues, else why are there spirits who for years go on believing they are still among the living? For this situation to exist, logic tells us that the similarity must be of EXTREME CLOSENESS.

Newly arrived spirits, therefore, may spend several days in the Beyond thinking they are still on the earth plane - as was the case of the Carlson family. Others may have their delusions for years.

However, whether the delusion is of short or long duration, the time MUST come when they realize one hard and inescapable fact - that THEY ARE DEAD!

One of the things that could bring about this firm conviction once and for all, would be their being greeted by familiar, formerly living people who would allay their fears, comfort them, and inform.

I REMEMBER DYING

by Evelyn McKeever

I HAVE A certain amount of recall of my previous life.

In this life I experienced, while in a state between asleep and awake, the actual process of dying at the end of that former life. There was no doubt of the time of my previous life; it was in the 3rd Century, a time of great social change, conquest and devastation. The location where I died was outside the city of Petra, on the desolate barren wastelands. My age was 18. I was a high caste and a member of a ruling family. Our home was far away, in Persia. I dream of lines written in Persian, yet I cannot read the messages these dreams contain, for I did not carry over into this life any recollection of that language. I suspect I may not have had much of any academic schooling in that life since it would have been the custom to instruct young ladies of high birth in the arts and social graces, and not in such dangerous subjects as writing. We may not have been residents of Petra, although we may have been, but were probably sojourning there when some change in political control drove us out into the wilderness in the hope of escaping being killed or imprisoned.

While fleeing, we realized how impossible our situation was, and divided poison among ourselves. Those of a lower caste would attend to our burials and then finish their own lives.

Death was painless but dreadfully slow. My attendant saw to it that I was facing the sun and that I was lying in the prescribed position with hands resting one over the other, just so. I held an object, but what it was I do not know. Birds which appeared to be exact replicas of what we know today as Indian Mynah birds, swarmed above, and as I tried to cooperate with the poison and die as I was supposed to, some of the black-feathered, yellow-eyed birds swooped down and struck their hard bills against my skull. The pain was so excruciating it revived me and I opened my eyes. The attendant, a young man of my age dressed in a white knee length costume, waved his arms at them causing them to go up higher.

Before closing my eyes again, I looked at the poor youth who would die alone and I felt very sorry for him. I also felt very sorry for myself and wanted very much to live and enjoy all the pleasures I was accustomed to. However, I knew there was no hope of getting home, and since there was no place to seek refuge that we could get to, this was the only alternative.

Giving up the spark of life is one of the most difficult things we can ever do. In fact, it was the most difficult thing and the last thing we could ever want. When it was given up, relinquished from my sense of identity, I died. However, a moment later I was alive again! I was alive in a body exactly like the one I had just left. My "new" body was already 33 years old and my "new" mind had acquired an abundance of knowledge. My "new" self welcomed me and except for the first few minutes, we have always been indistinguishable, living together in complete harmony.

Those who have never experienced something like this will spring out with theories and explanations, trying to convince me it never happened. They should save their strength, for once you've had the experience of reliving a previous life, not to mention dying, all arguments are found to be of no interest to you. You don't even want to hear them. You yourself know it happened and that is sufficient. Nor can I be interested in any club where people sit around and swap reincarnation stories. The only story I can verify is my own, and for all I know others may be deceiving themselves and everyone else.

REINCARNATION

A LIE

A SEARCH READER GIVES HIS VIEWS ON THIS CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECT.

REINCARNATION IS a fanciful belief taught and believed in from time immemorial. Why do people accept such a theory? What proof is offered to prove this theory?

Some believe in reincarnation because this offers the individual many opportunities for more lives to live. Man is basically a sinful creature - so the guilty want more lifetimes to perfect themselves.

Did the Bridey Murphy case and others who claim they had previous lives prove reincarnation is true? Those who say so, may really believe it, but they in all probability are possessed by demons and evil spirits. These do have the ability to recall past events of past lives.

The reincarnationists believe in two laws of progress: (1) evolution - in which through a successive process of soul transmigration over and over again, they learn how to become perfect; (2) Karma - which means that the effects of all these numerous reincarnated lives good or bad follow them through successive reincarnations.

These are some of the ideas that people have held and still have concerning the Pagan Egyptian theory of reincarnation. The belief that the soul transmigrates into millions of varieties of insects, into trees, into flowers, into ravens, hawks, pigs, cows, into everything. This just is not sound logic nor reason. The Lushei theory says that the soul falls as dew and upon whom the dew falls completes one phase of reincarnation.

Plato, the Pagan philosopher, popularized the theory of the transmigration of souls. In his works he states that birth never meant the creation of a new soul - only a transmigration of one soul into a body.

The Bible says - "The soul that sinneth it shall die". Ezekiel 18:4. The word soul in this verse is taken from the Hebrew Nephesh which means a breathing creature. The soul is merely the breath or air of life. When this breath or air combines with a body it then is called a living soul. How long would we live without air? Without Nephesh? In Genesis 2:7, it states, "The Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul."

This lie of an immortal soul was fostered first by satan when he said to Eve, ". . . you will not die . . .", Gen. 3:4, (Harper Study Bible). In order to make the reincarnation theory plausible, you of necessity have to have an immortal soul. One false premise creates more false ideas. Without the immortal soul theory the whole structure of reincarnation falls flat on its face.

The transmigration of souls theory destroys the very teaching of christianity - especially the fact of the resurrection of the dead.

The Bible says, "But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have fallen asleep. For as by a man came death, by a man has come also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive." I Cor. 20:22, (Harper Study Bible).

Christ was the First Fruit of those who sleep. He was the first person in all of human existence to be raised from the dead. Death is described as a sleep. What better picture can one have then of death as being a sleep.

Christ came and died for our sins in our stead. The perfect for the imperfect. He as a substitution for us - he brought to light immortality. He proved to us that death is not the end. He also proved that He was truly dead and only the life giving power of God the Father raised him from the dead.

The question then is: why did Christ die for us, if we, by an evolutionary process of reincarnating over and over again many times perfect our own individual lives? His death in the light of transmigration of souls was for nought.

The Bible states that immortality is a promised gift and is not a condition that we now have.

Spiritual Wisdom Stands Unmoved Throughout All Eternity

The joy and gratitude that comes with discovery of TRUTH is one of Life's most illuminating blessings. Daily affirmation of this magnificent experience is thankfully expressed in truth testimonies from which the above excerpts were taken.

You, too, will experience this joy as you read the Pearls of Wisdom directed to us from the Darjeeling Council of the Great White Brotherhood and sent each week from our American headquarters in Colorado. No ordinary "treat" is this, but manna from heaven, spiritual food for the beginner or the most advanced. Current items of spiritual interest are wedded to the old and familiar. The Masters' words come to you in meaningful cadences, ranging from the tenderness of Saint Francis of Assisi's beautiful prayer, "Lord make me an instrument of Thy Peace", to the thundering tomes of Master Morya El, Director of the first of the Seven Rays.

With authentic teachings of the Ascended Masters to guide you, the wonderful pieces of the Cosmic jigsaw, the pattern of the Divine Plan, will be yours to mentally assemble bit by bit. There is no substitute for Reality, and finding that, in Reality, Life is your beautiful opportunity to be one with Nature and Nature's God becomes a thrill and delight in a measure you scarcely realized, when you first began to sup at the Lord's Table.

True religion is the basis of all Creation, and none need ever be ashamed to investigate the marvelous teachings of the Masters of Wisdom from the Far East. When the sparkling wit of the Ascended Masters is known to you, with poignant jabs that goad us all to new heights, you will experience the Masters' presence enfolding you as your dearest friend. You will know true happiness that comes with the association of these Blessed Ones whose desire is to serve mankind's spiritual needs.

Join hands with thousands of others who search for spiritual growth beyond the realm of the ordinary. Write today. Let the Pearls of Wisdom show you how to get more out of life, to master circumstances and to produce miracles in your life and the lives of others.

THE BROWN MOUNTAIN LIGHTS

By ROGER PAINTER

IN THE mountains of North Carolina exists a phenomenon which science has been unable to explain for more than a hundred years. It seems the "Old North State" is noted for its mysteries. Its history is alive with ghost stories and tales of pirates that once roamed its coast. Indeed, it was here that the infamous Blackbeard is said to have buried his treasure, and legend has it that his ghost stands guard over it to this day. And anyone familiar with American history knows the story of the famed "Lost Colony". Yet the most baffling and persistent mystery of all is the Brown Mountain Lights.

In the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains lies a long, low cranberry granite mountain known by the inconspicuous name of Brown Mountain. It rises a mere 2,600 feet in height, a rather insignificant fact if we consider that Grandfather Mountain, the tallest peak in the range, is more than twice that size. However, Brown Mountain's fame lies not in its name, nor in its size or appearance, but in the strange, mysterious lights that are observed there.

The lights, known as the Brown Mountain Lights, can be seen moving around above the mountain on almost any clear night. It is hard to predict just when they will appear, but they seem to prefer clear, dry nights. Wiseman's View on "The long, even-crested mountain in the distance is Brown Mountain. From early times people have observed weird, wavering lights rise above this mountain, then dwindle and fade away."

Highway marker near Brown Mountain, N.C.

Linville Mountain is a popular observation point. Grandfather Mountain, though farther away, offers another vantage place. Brown Mountain itself is about 12 miles east of Highway 181 near Jonas Ridge.

The lights resemble glowing balls of fire and come in colors of red, orange, yellow, white and blue. They appear in numbers from one to hundreds. They move slowly across the mountain, bob up and down, hover for a while, and fade and disappear only to reappear again. Occasionally one will shoot high into the air and burst in a soundless explosion.

The theories advanced to explain the lights have been as many and as varied and as utterly hopeless as those advanced to explain flying saucers. The German engineer, Gerard William de Brahm, who brought them to the attention of scientists and historians when he recorded them in 1771, explained: "The mountains emit nitrous vapors which are borne by the wind and when laden winds meet each other the niter inflames, sulphurates and deteriorates." The lights have been investigated at least twice by the U.S. Geological Survey. The first time, in 1913, they concluded the lights to be reflections of locomotive head-lights from the Catawba Valley south of Brown Mountain. In 1916 a flood swept through the Catawba Valley destroying the roads and railroad bridges. Automobiles and trains did not operate in the area for more than a week. Still the lights appeared. The second U.S. Geological Survey decided the lights were spontaneous combustion of marsh gases. However, there are no bogs or marshy places at Brown Mountain. In 1919 the Smithsonian Institution ruled out the possibility that the lights were the electrical phenomenon known as Saint Elmo's Fire.

The Cherokee Indians saw the lights as long ago as A.D. 1200. According to an old Cherokee legend, a great battle occurred near Brown Mountain that year between the Cherokee and Catawba Indians. The lights, say the legend, are the spirits of Indian maidens searching for their husbands and sweethearts killed in the battle. Another legend has it that the lights are a troop of candle-bearing ghosts who are destined to march back and forth across the mountain. A song a few years ago explained them as a lantern carried by the ghost of an old slave who had come searching for his lost master. Early frontiersmen believed the lights to be the spirits of Cherokee and Catawba warriors.

The lights are believed to originate from a cave or crevice on the mountain. In 1962 a group of men constructed a 60-foot tower on top of Brown Mountain to get a better view of the lights. The tower has since been torn down. A dozen men watched as the lights came out in circles about three feet in diameter. One of the lights came to rest on the tower and produced a static-like feeling and dizziness in the men. They were unable to stand up when they climbed to the ground. Of the dozen men on the tower, eleven were affected; the other felt nothing. One, who has observed the lights for over forty years, believe they contain some radioactive or magnetic characteristic.

The Brown Mountain Lights have been likened to the Andes Light, on electrical phenomenon high in the Andes Mountains of South America, but Brown Mountain lacks the height and conditions to reproduce this phenomenon. None of the other explanations fit the case either, such as mirages caused by temperature inversions, reflections and starlight, reflections of ground lights, fires from liquor stills, brushfires, and so on in an endless procession.

The explanations come and go, but the Brown Mountain Lights remain, flickering away as they have for hundreds of years, and the mystery lingers on.

CAN SHE BAKE A CHERRY PIE, BILLY BOY?

By E. MINTON

DON'T YOU worry. Your Federal Government takes care of its own. It's always in there helping. It is ready to protect you from substandard cherry pie.

IDENTIFICATION IS EASY

To help us out in identifying a cherry pie, we need only read Section 28.1 (A), "Cherry pie is the food prepared in incorporating in a filling contained in a pastry shell mature, whole, pitted, stemmed, red, sour (tart) cherries (fresh, frozen, or canned) that have not been treated with a chemical preservative." Also helpful is subsection (C) of the same section: "The name of the food for which a definition and standard of identity is established by the section is cherry pie, except that if the maximum diameter of the food (measured across opposite outside edges of the pastry shell) is not more than four inches, the food alternatively may be designated by the name of cherry tart."

The standard of quality (as decreed by subsection (A) of section 28.2) is as follows: "(A) The pie contains not less than 2.7 cherries per ounce of net weight of the pie when examined in accordance with paragraph (B) (1) of this section."

CITIZENS - CHECK YOUR CHERRY PIE

Now, all of you law-abiding citizens will be happy to learn the proper way to ascertain if your cherry pie is REALLY a cherry pie instead of a tart, or something else. Subsection (B) gives us the following simple instructions: "The number of cherries per ounce of pie, as required in paragraphs (A) (1) of this section, is determined as follows: "Remove the filling and cherries from the pie and distribute evenly over the surface

PREDICTIONS, HITS AND MISSES

ON NOVEMBER 25, 1967, a telegram was delivered to my door. I was not surprised for I had sent this telegram to myself in order to obtain incontestable proof that my science allows the average person, who is not psychic, to foresee future events. Here is the amazing message:

"Death Of World Ruler. New Discovery About Life. Either Conception Without Physical Contact Or Form Of Life Created Artificially."

The important feature of this telegram is the date. The world knows that the announcement about the creation of an artificial form of life was not announced by Stanford university until mid-December. And within weeks the death of a world ruler occurred and the newspapers informed us that the Australian premier was dead. I obtained these predictions in a very simple way. I simply let my subconscious mind know that I wanted news stories in advance of their happening, then I shuffled and laid out cards that had been scientifically coded to present world and national events. I call this code the "X" code, and because I had just perfected it, and because the above predictions appeared in a first run of it, I prefaced the telegram with the words: "Not official. New code." Now, of course, I have a great deal of confidence in that code. After I have given it a further testing, it will be released to members of the APPLIED ESP RESEARCH SOCIETY and, eventually, this "X" code will be given to the world.

The predictions I record by wire into two general classifications: 1- Spontaneous presentation of precognitive material. 2- Target presentations of precognitive material. The predictions about the death of a world ruler and the creation of an artificial form of life are SPONTANEOUS PRESENTATIONS. This means that I was not concentrating on the subject matter of these predictions, during the shuffle, and that I had not made any programming of cards with the aim of obtaining specific information. It was possible for my subconscious mind to arrange a general code and to surprise me with these messages. Here is an example of a TARGET PRESENTATION: I wanted to know whether or not Dr. Blaiberg, the South African heart transplant patient would remain well. Accordingly, I programmed Dr. Blaiberg's name on a face card, and made a specific "wish" concentration, during the shuffle, that he would continue to make progress. I laid out the cards and studied the horizontal and perpendicular lines in which Dr. Blaiberg's representative card appeared, then I sent this wire: "Dr. Blaiberg Reported Doing Well During Last Broadcast. He Will Be Ill Again, But Physicians Will Save Him." This was exactly what happened. Dr. Blaiberg did take an unexpected turn for the worse, and his physicians did pull him through.

The predictions about the death of a world ruler and the creation of an artificial form of life were based on ASSOCIATIVE card reading, a method that I shall soon release. ASSOCIATIVE card reading can afford both spontaneous and TARGET predictions on the world and national level. But the prognostication of Dr. Blaiberg's illness was CODE reading. In fact, this prediction was accomplished with the "K" code presented in my book,

"THE CYBERNETIC ESP BREAK-THROUGH". This code is so geared to personal readings that not many SPONTANEOUS predictions on the national and world level can be obtained with it. However, when this code is specially programmed, as taught in the book, the outcome of national and world situations can often be determined. Furthermore, there are often interesting details appearing in each prognostication.

Although I have not yet made a final tabulation, I believe that TARGET presentations are less accurate than SPONTANEOUS presentations. This is because EMOTIONAL PULL, which can produce a reading aberration, is more prevalent when we wish to know the outcome of a situation. I should have known that a little missing San Diego girl, though a stranger to me, had so great a pull on my "heart strings" that my concern for her safety might produce too optimistic a reading. And in the case of missing little Denise King, there were still other factors that produce aberrations. I can never resist a research project, and just after I programmed an ASSOCIATIVE code to determine the fate of Denise King and the possibility of a Viet Nam peace in 1968 (don't try this double processing with the "K" code, program for one issue at a time), it occurred to me that an induced emotional tone of CARD

MASTERY might produce more positive readings. Accordingly, I used auto-suggestion until I felt like the 'exalted queen of the universe', and then ran the cards. What a card layout! The most clear-cut presentations I have ever seen. Denise King was still alive, well and happy; and we could definitely have peace in 1968. Still gloriously high on auto-suggestion, I called Western Union and dictated the predictions. But the next day I realized I had best send a cancellation wire, for I had never before experimented with induced emotional tone.

Not long after that, I tuned into my home City, San Diego, via the cards, and was shown great commotion and the return of a missing child, previously believed to be dead. This SPONTANEOUS PRESENTATION led me to believe that Denise King would indeed be returned to her family alive and well, although it was the consensus of the police that she was dead. I dictated the following wire: "Still believe Denise King alive and well." It was in December that we had the great commotion about the return of a child believed to be dead. A local 'teen-ager' faked his death by abandoning his surf board and allowing it to drift back to shore, forlornly empty, while he ran away. Sorrowful crowds formed on the beach and an ambulance stood by while the coast guard and San Diego police and fire departments mobilized. When the run-away-boy reached the bus depot, he heard reports about the massive search for his body. Conscience-striken, he called his father and all San Diego heaved a sigh of relief.

Recently, we received the sad word that Denise King was the victim of a sex fiend and is dead..

But is she?

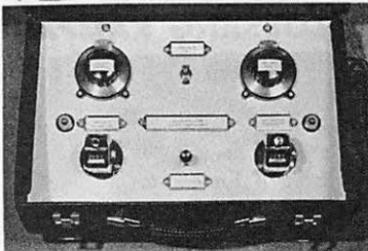

Right after receiving the spontaneous prediction about the return of a missing child, believed to be dead, I once again programmed a card for little Denise King. This representative card always depicted little Denise as alive, well, at hand, and happy. Only one thing puzzled me; on the card cuts she would appear with the messages AT HAND and IN THE AIR, or UP IN THE AIR. Were the cards trying to tell me little Denise was by my side IN SPIRIT? I am inclined to believe so, for when the dead appear in the cards they seldom show as being in the tomb or lacking life. The cards will predict a death, but when the person actually dies, he or she is depicted as being active, knowledgeable about current family affairs and helpful. Proof of personal survival after the experience called death is one of the main objectives of Christian parapsychologists. The cards are a source of thrilling new evidence. By this, I do not mean to say that the spirits of the dead influence the fall of the cards. But just as we receive messages concerning our friends and distant relatives, etc., we sometimes receive information concerning those who have made their transition. Someday I want to write an entire article on this subject. Mine is a new science and I am still learning, even as I teach. The next time I process cards to learn whether or not a person is alive or dead, I shall program cards that can depict that person as being alive OUT OF THE BODY.

Many factors must be considered in order to achieve a correct evaluation of my score. A full evaluation cannot be made until photographs are made of the card messages upon which I base my predictions, for sometimes the card pattern is correct, but my interpretation is wrong. For instance, a symbol that can be construed as either Russia or California showed up in my cards with the depiction of an earthquake. Because I also saw this pattern in my readings for California people, I wired that California would have an earthquake. As it happened, it was Russia.

Now for some direct hits: And in evaluating these, it must be remembered that I do not raise my score by making predictions that are likely to happen. I wire only those predictions that have great odds against them. For instance, on November 21, 1967, I stated, "Johnson Never Less Popular Than At The Present Moment But I See A Comeback." Within a few weeks, the popularity polls registered a dramatic rise in Mr. Johnson's favor. And how certain it seemed that we should have peace in Viet Nam in the month of December, but I wired: Terrible War Signs. America Much More Involved In The War Effort Than At Present." And in another wire, "The Viet Nam War Will Escalate." Tuning in to San Diego, "Quite An Eruption Of Youths Here. A Big Fight." San Diego is so conservative, and our police force so good, that events such as this seldom happen. But the prediction came to pass. Here are two direct hits contained in a wire sent on December 10. "Revolution In Which I Think A Ruler Will Be Overthrown. Big Power Failure Story In News I Think Mob Action Connected With This, Planned, Not Accidental. The first prediction matured when the revolution in Greece occurred and the King was deposed. And in the same month that this telegram was issued, four western states suffered a power blackout that was never explained. This was followed by a blackout in San Diego which could not be explained. Then, in the January 8 issue of "U.S. News and World Report" the story broke that a group of "Black Nationalist" leaders have told President Johnson's commission on civil disorders that their targets in the next riots will be "public utilities" and other public facilities and that "white allies" would aid them. am not saying that the blackouts referred to above were rehearsals by Black Nationalists and their sympathizers. I have no way of knowing this. I do claim a direct hit in a news story about a connection between massive power failures and mob activity.

And this brings us to another consideration that must be made in the evaluation of our score. The blackout prediction is really a double prediction. The prognostication of Dr. Blaiberg's illness, that we discussed earlier, was also a double connotation; I not only predicted Dr. Blaiberg's illness, but also his recovery from that illness. Here is another two-in-one prediction made on November 26, 1967: Viet Nam Strategy Tougher Attack More Territory Involved. And in that same telegram: Surveyor 6 Trouble But Will Perform. The war did escalate, both as to bombing and the territory involved. The telegram we are discussing was sent during a period when Surveyor 6 was deactivated for the lunar night. There was trouble starting it, but it did perform. While we are on the subject of America's lunar robots, let me mention that my radio has just informed me of a final direct hit concerning Surveyor 7. You will remember that in the last issue of SEARCH I revealed that my wired predictions stating that this Surveyor would be in trouble after landing, but that scientific know-how would save it, came to pass. But I had also seen a fire or an explosion, or both, for this machine. After it was deactivated for the lunar night, I still saw these signs, and sent another wire. Today is March 14, and the word is that Surveyor 7 is being abandoned because it has never performed well since being reactivated. Our scientists don't know what went wrong, but suspect the trouble occurred in the batteries. I don't know anything at all about machinery, but I think some wires could have shorted (small explosion) and burned out.

Now for a glimpse into the future: When I programmed America, Red China, and the United Nations into an associative deck of 107 cards, these three cards appeared right together even though I had placed them well apart from each other and had shuffled well. And so, I believe the day will come when Red China and America will work closely together. A confirmation of this appeared when I programmed atomic energy into this deck, for I saw Red China honorably keeping an agreement to use atomic power for purposes higher than war. Regarding Russia, I believe there will be a story about the setting of mines in the ocean. I see an illness around President Johnson from which I think he will recover. It is true that I have seen many signs of death around President Johnson and the White House. However, the president has had three shocks about the deaths of others, and this may account for the death signs. For whatever reason facts about the Kennedy assassination may have been suppressed, those radical left-wing insinuations and even open accusations that President Johnson plotted this tragedy are not true. Twice the cards have given me a spontaneous presentation of this fact. I have seen our president in some ceremony connected with the moon. I hope this indicates a successful manned lunar flight and landing, but it may only be in honor of the next manned flight into space. Right after the capture of the Pueblo, while some were still urging that we go into North Korea and take it by force, I wired that we shall get our ship, the captain, and the crew back by diplomatic means. I have run cards on this again and get the same message with the word LATER.

My next article will not be about code reading, but about the remarkable phases of psychic development that are often activated by code reading.

Now I wish to take this opportunity to thank SEARCH readers for their response to my Search Researches ESP articles. As I have no secretary, time will not permit me to answer these wonderful letters. You SEARCH readers are a wonderful group of people.

Most of the letters from those who have ordered THE CYBERNETIC ESP BREAKTHROUGH are in the "hurrah it works" category. And those who follow through by sending me a delineation of their own readings, show a remarkable grasp of the code for beginners. However, if I could re-write the book I would state that many who are not at all acquainted with card reading can expect to spend from three to six weeks of one or two half-hour periods a day before mastering the "K" code. I believe that the mastery of the "K" code is more a matter of aptitude than of intelligence. I have seen some in lowly stations in life grasping the code in short order. On the other hand, some Ph.D.'s report that it took them six weeks and even some headaches. Some of us are naturally analytical while others have to adapt to this type of thinking. But the day does come when those who persevere find themselves enjoying a relaxing and rewarding research hobby.

The best teacher is the chapter titled "HOW TO USE THE K CODE". But for those who may think they need even more teaching than this, I am preparing a step by step breakdown of the code, with assignments that can be self-checked. This correspondence course will be offered for a very low fee. If you sent for The Cybernetic ESP Breakthrough, but did not receive a drawing showing how the space and heart cards are marked, send a large, self-addressed envelope and this will be sent to you free of charge. # my journey into the unknown

THE NIGHT BELA LUGOSI CAME TO ME

By Judy Scobee

I shall never forget the experience I had on Saturday the ninth of September, 1967.

From the hours of 11:00-12:45, I was watching a late-late show on T.V. When it had finished, I went to bed. My parents were asleep and I didn't want to wake them so I turned out the lights that were on (the family room, the kitchen, and the T.V.) went to my bedroom and got into my pajamas in the dark. I then went to the bathroom (which is next to my bedroom and also right next to my parents' room) to brush my teeth. Not wanting to disturb my parents by lighting the bathroom light, I went in in the dark and began to close the door behind me. As I was about to close it all the way shut - I happened to glance at the shower nozzle above the tub - and there just above it was the face of Bela Lugosi! I wasn't scared because I've had a similar experience before; all I did was look at him. His face was a pale blue color and I could see all his facial features very clearly. I could see the lines in his face and could see his hair; it wasn't gray as it was when he died in 1956, but it was dark as it had been when he was a bit younger. He seemed to be looking at me and I somehow sensed that he wanted something. He seemed to be saying through his eyes, "I need help, help me," or something like that.

He stayed there (above the shower nozzle) for just a few seconds. I saw him just as clearly as if he were there in person. Then he vanished, just sort of faded away.

After he was gone I turned the light on in the bathroom and began to fill my toothbrush with toothpaste.

The next day I told my mom about what had happened. I told her that it happened about 1 A.M. early Sunday (September 10) morning and that, "I think he wants something from me, why else would he come, especially to me?" I didn't tell my dad 'cause he doesn't believe in "psychic" things.

A few days later, after Bela came to me, I found out that he was 6' 1" tall. I thought I'd see if he was 6' 1" tall, so I took a yard stick and measured from the bottom of the tub to the top of the shower nozzle where I remembered the top of his head was. To my surprise the measurement was 73" or 6' 1"!

Ever since, I've been finding out more information on him. Some of the things I found out were that he was a drug addict for 20 years (starting in 1936, for rheumatism, I believe), he was married 5 times (his last wife was Hope Lininger, whom he married after he got out of the hospital in 1956, for help in breaking his drug habit) and quite a few other things.

Before my experience, I knew very little about him, but enjoyed his movies a lot. It's funny that he should come to me, I never really liked him all that much; I liked Boris Karloff much more.

Now I'm absolutely "wild" about Bela Lugosi.

I'd love to find out where Hope Lininger lives so that I may, perhaps, write to her and tell her what happened. I'm sure Bela would want me to tell her.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Judy Scobee, 16, who has a crystal ball, fortune-telling cards, an Ouija board, and a number of other fortune-telling devices, was born in Phoenix, Arizona in 1952. For the past two or three years she has been having quite a few "psychic" experiences and has been reading a lot on the subject of "the occult". "A Gypsy friend of mine," she says, "has told me that I am very psychic and should study in the field of the occult." She likes to tell people their future by either her crystal ball or by her cards, although she says, "I consider myself not a very good fortune-teller 'cause I tend to clown around a lot while I'm telling someone's fortune, and it's because of this that I don't charge anything."

Where The Reader Has His Say

WE ARE A FRIGHTENED PEOPLE

To Mr. Ray Palmer:

Certainly there is a monetary crisis but what can you expect with billions upon billions wasted by bureaucrats having a ball with money stolen from hard-working people who already cannot make ends meet themselves as they are being forced to support the rot, the filth, the thousands of illegitimates produced by the immoral (into four generations in one family) until today we have no quality at all among these people and as they grow more subhuman, we will soon be a nation wallowing in the mud with a society so dangerous that we will fall just as Rome fell.

This is costing plenty, but the costs of the welfare state have increased far beyond our ability to continue and we have reached the point where former taxpayers are now selling all they have and going on the dole because "there's no sense in paying taxes to support the dregs who contribute nothing but illegitimacy, immorality and decay". When more millions of former taxpayers do this, then where will the government get its money?

People have refused to work and the government (taken from taxpayers) pays them not to work. They have no initiative, no responsibility and are not subject to taxes. Yet they are able to vote and keep in office the political frauds that have termited the very foundation of decency on which this country was built by the hardworking pioneers. Among the rioters and burners of our cities were people making $150.00 and more per week - much of the burning was organized by the communists and these enemies within our midst are using the Negro to carry out their dirty work. This is anarchy and when law and order have broken down, then comes tyranny - which the communists are planning. But all the government does is to pay these people to sweep up the ashes - which these people made with their fires - these are not "underprivileged and poor" as you term it - in fact there are white poor people and you don't see them burning other people's property - there are Negro poor who work and try to be civilized and you don't see them burning down other peoples' property.

One hippie went to Wall Street to tell them what he thought about money - he chewed it up and spit it out with the TV cameras (naturally) right there as it had all been prearranged. Naturally he could afford his contempt for money because he was getting paid by the welfare department at $123.00 per week - and he had another job at $100.00 a week as a "summertime aid" - so there was plenty where that came from because he was taking shoes away from decent families, and food off decent tables - and that kind of "underprivilege" makes us sick to our stomach. But it is those kind who do the rioting - not the so-called poor - for most of us today are poor as we don't make enough to keep the bills paid up. We can't even go to a doctor's office without waiting for two hours or more and sometimes half a day, so we stopped going - why? Because the welfarees are there by the dozens, they don't have to pay. But I am paying taxes so they can go, so are millions of others.

When the taxpayers begin revolting, then what? These taxpay-ers have a legitimate gripe - but we'd be in jail the first time we stop paying taxes - or our home will be sold for taxes, etc., but these burners, these demonstrators with their leaders like Groppi, can get away with anything, they are cod-dled, they are appeased, and the treasonists are not even arrested anymore - while our men fight and die against communism, at home our own President aids and trades with communist countries, builds them up, while our men die. If you don't think this is disloyalty to our men - what is it?

There are civil rights for one class, but others have no rights. To earn rights one has to work hard and be ready to give others their rights - to try to take rights from others - try to steal their property and confiscate it for others - to do for others what they should be doing for themselves is no way to accomplish anything good, and it is time this was recognized.

Imagine having to pay taxes to get rid of my neighbor's rats - why bother - oh, they must be given new houses, new furniture and that will make them cleaner and better - oh no, if they won't clean up their present abode, they won't bother in a new one, and if they want a new one, let them earn and work and purchase it as millions of others have done - with pride and decency - since so many are on welfare why doesn't the government see that they spend part of this money - this free-loading money - on getting rid of their rats - why should I pay them to sit on their fannies all day, and then pay more to get rid of their rats. Underprivileged - Mr. Editor - or overprivileged?

The minute the so called war of the Middle East has quieted down both Russia and this country started arming both sides in that conflict - so knowing that we are going to have wars forever, we ought to be prepared ourselves (with Red Cuba at our doorstep) instead of preparing other people for more wars.

The lying, the stealing, the corruption in politics, the unmoral and immoral increasing every day, well - it looks like Sodom and Gomorrah are already here.

We are a frightened people because we have no place to turn for help. Congress votes more for communism than it does for Americanism - in fact old fashioned Americanism seems dead! The

Our money has been sent all over a greedy world and now because of it we have no friends - so long as we made others pay for what they got and on a business basis, we were respected, but as soon as we started giving away our peoples' earnings and our natural resources, we got a thank you note full of enemies.

DIAL YOUR THOUGHTS

Mystifying, exciting, revealing! A landmark in Psychic Research. One of the world's most fascinating works! Now you can "dial" your thoughts! Invented by Sydney Omarr. Answer direct questions, tap your subconscious, locate lost articles, pick winners! Edition after edition, this book has proved a best seller, combining astrology, Jungian depth psychology and numerical symbolism, THOUGHT DIAL is not a toy. It is a psychological device which enables you to by-pass the conscious mind and enter the realm of the subconscious, home of the truth within us all. THOUGHT DIAL has been called the book that stopped the Art Linkletter show! It happened January 20, 1960. And it was Sydney Omarr's sensational THOUGHT DIAL that did it. Linkletter, an admitted skeptic, challenged Omarr to demonstrate. Omarr did, whereupon an amazed Linkletter muttered before a TV-radio audience of millions: "Fantastic, simply fantastic!" THOUGHT DIAL--a complete study in itself, yet simple to operate, is designed for the student as well as professional. Includes actual "thought dial" and crystal clear text, explaining principles, method of operation, interpretation, plus detailed sections. You will want to begin your experiments immediately. Order from AMHERST PRESS. Amherst, Wisconsin, 54406. $8.00 will bring you your complete kit by pre-paid return mail.

GET RID OF DANDRUFF!

Does dandruff make you want to hide your head in shame? You might as well, if you're going to let dandruff and scale and skin rash make you bald as an egg. You've bought plenty of preparations, and they don't work, you say? Of course they haven't! I'll bet I've spent hundreds of dollars on jimm-dandy goo, and wound up with worse dandruff than I started with. Made me plenty mad, too. Mad enough so that when I find something good, I'm not bashful about telling my friends about it. And now I'm telling you. But don't just take my word for it--here are a few testimonials from my friends to back me up: "As I have about used up one bottle of your hair preparation, please send me another. I have had very good results in ridding myself of dandruff and itching. Lionel O. Branberg, Sharon Springs, Kans." "Enclosed find money order for $10.00 for two more bottles of Turn-er's as soon as possible. You sure found a good product. In the sixth application my dandruff was cured. Thanks to you. It does all you say and more, too. And it sure brings back the natural color to your hair. Thanks! R. E. Van Gordon, 1905 W. Milham Road, Kalamazoo, Mich." "Enclosed please find check for $5.00 for another bottle of Turner's as soon as possible. I have been bedeviled by a terrible itching in my eyebrows for over thirty years. It seemed to be a large flaky dandruff, but if I combed it out too near the skin, a watery substance would start, causing a scab-like condition. I have been to dozens of doctors...none did the slightest bit of good. After reading what Ray Palmer said, I decided to try Turner's. After the sixth application, I have not had an itch in my brows, and the skin underneath is as clear and clean as my face. I certainly am thankful to Mr. Palmer for bringing such a fine product to my attention. S. W. Crusen, 2336 Fillmore Ave., Buffalo, N. Y." Enough? Well, then take it from me, one bottle of TURN-ER'S will eliminate your dandruff, restore your hair to its natural color (even if it's as grey as a dirty snowbank), stop itching scalp, positively! Send $5.00 to GUY L. TURNER, Box 145, Borah Sta., Boise, Idaho 83701, and tell him Ray Palmer sent you.

VISITORS FROM OTHER PLANETS

If the literature of antiquity could prove that spacemen visited Earth long ago (asks researcher W. R. Drake in his expert book GODS OR SPACEMEN?), would this revelation not transform the past, inspire the present, give hope to the future? Would evidence of visitors from other planets be the fundamental discovery of our century? Get this great book from AMHERST PRESS, Amherst, Wisc., 54406. Its price is $5.00 plus 25¢ postage and handling.

We on Earth are actually entering the Space Age. Our traditional cosmic isolationism is ending. Earth is in touch with inhabited outer space! What will this mean to us? What are the implications? What changes does it portend for us? How can we prepare ourselves for vast changes that are on the way? As we begin to study the impact of the New Age on our civilization it seems that what is happening to the minds of men on Earth is more important to understand than what is happening in our skies. In other words it is the terrific impact of the space ships on our human norm of life, the challenge which these and similar events pose to our very concepts of reality beyond the very confines of Earth's gravitational pull. What will it do to us and our civilization? What effect will it have on our human institutions, our way of life, our manner of thinking?

Gentlemen:

This morning I received the book "The Advent of the Cosmic Viewpoint" and it's hard to put down for long enough to do what has to be done. It's so wonderful to get a book like this -- just what I've been studying for 10-15 years. I can't wait to finish it to write to you. When I reach the end I will be sad indeed, for books like this are few and far between. Thankfully yours,

Ruby Simmons, 1108 Kains Ave., Albany, Calif.

By JOHN URI LLOYD

A truly important book! In all respects the worthiest concept of occult teachings that has yet been written. Fiction? None but the ignorant would believe that! The author was an advanced student of occultism, and in his sensational book he has tried to place before his fellow men a tremendous reality he discovered concerning this earth of ours, and life on it, in it, and beyond it.

Thirty Years Among The Dead

This is a condensed version of Dr. Carl A. Wickland's Classic (and now out of print) book on abnormal psychology. It is a record of his work with obsession carried on with Mrs. Wickland, who was an accomplished medium. Together they cured many obsessed persons, persuading discarnate spirits to give up their hold on their victims, and thus restored their patients to normal, happy lives. This book is still years ahead of present day research in this field.

For many years readers of Ray Palmer's magazines said their favorite sections of his magazines were the editorials and the readers' letters with his answers to letters. Nothing Ray Palmer ever published has gotten more praise than FORUM! It is useless to describe the magazine, except to say that in it Ray and his readers express themselves as never before--and if you don't get into the act, too, you are missing the greatest!

SPACE WORLD
AMHERST, WISCONSIN 54406

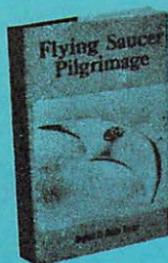

Here is the whole dynamic world of rockets, satellites and spacecraft - fabulous machines and the outstanding men behind them... brought to you in a magazine designed for readers who want dramatic, authoritative and complete coverage of the spaceman's world.

Interviews with leading scientists, astronautical engineers, test pilots and planning experts show you the "how" and "why" of every facet of astro-nautic experimentation. Feature articles discuss the problems which men will face in survival on the moon and among the planets of our solar system.

THE CHALLENGE OF SPACE

The features and stories in Space World are written by the leading men in the field... but they are not entirely technical treatises. These men speak to you in clear down-to-earth language, covering every aspect of their field completely, yet scientifically and factually. Each feature is profusely illustrated... many features, in fact, are brilliant picture stories in full color. This straight-from-the-shoulder handling of the subject is perhaps the most important reason for Space World. Here, for the first time, is a magazine for the general reader who truly cares about the challenges of space and what they mean to mankind.

Space World is enthusiastically endorsed by educators, science teachers, and is used as textbook material in thousands of science classrooms.

Flying Saucer Pilgrimage

By Bryant &
Helen Reeve

They went on a 23,000-mile pilgrimage to meet the people who claimed to have seen flying saucers, even ridden on them! They wanted to know these people for themselves, so they could judge their stories! Here is their factual account of that pilgrimage. Meet them all for yourself: Adamski, Fry, Bethurum, Williamson, Angelucci, Van Tassel, Desmond Leslie, many others. And then they saw a saucer themselves! Read their exciting conclusions, their singular message to you. "The authors have written the account of adventures and experiences in a most readable and delightful light-hearted manner, however, do not be deceived by their gay and happy style. Oh, yes, they want you to enjoy their pilgrimage with them, and you will, too. But this book certainly goes 'deep' and explores saucers, the space people and their raison d'être, from every possible angle."

INSPIRED NOVELS

Great esoteric novels, long out of print, being made available once more! Valuable books for the student of the mystic!

A ROMANCE OF TWO WORLDS by Marie Corelli. Marie Corelli was perhaps the greatest psychic writer of them all. In this novel she treats of the world of the spirit, and its relationship to we who are in the world of the living.

SIZE: 6½" x 9½"; PAGES: 252; ILLUSTRATED: Black & white
BINDING: Paper; PRICE: $2.00.

THE SOUL OF LILITH by Marie Corelli. In this book the author shows how close is the link between life before death and life after death.

SIZE: 6½" x 9½"; PAGES: 324; ILLUSTRATED: Black & white
BINDING: Paper; PRICE: $2.00.

ARDATH by Marie Corelli. Here is a book that places reincarnation in the most straightforward and fascinating light ever woven into a novel.

SIZE: 6½" x 9½"; PAGES: 240; ILLUSTRATED: None; BINDING: Paper PRICE: $2.00.

THE SORROWS OF SATAN: by Marie Corelli. Perhaps the most unusual in its "mystic" content of all Marie Corelli's philosophical novels.

SIZE: 6½" x 9½"; PAGES: 264; ILLUSTRATED: Black & white
BINDING: Paper; PRICE: $2.00.

THE SECRET POWER by Marie Corelli. The strange story of a secret race, the Masters of the World who are bringing about a New Age and a New Race on Earth. The prophecy in this book, written many years ago, is amazing.

SIZE: 5½ x 8½; PAGES: 221; BINDING: Paper; PRICE: $2.00

All the experiences of the soul, or psychic form, from its first entrance into active consciousness, are attracted to itself by its own inherent volition, and work together to make it what it is now and what it will be hereafter. That is what "Ardath: The Story of a Dead Self" seeks to explain. It is the natural and intended sequence of "A Romance of Two Worlds" and was meant to assist the studies of the many who had written to me asking for help.

Its reception was sufficiently encouraging to decide me on continuing to press upon public attention the theories therein set forth. "The Soul of Lilith" was a third link in the chain I sought to weave between the perishable materialism of our ordinary conceptions of life, and the undying spiritual quality of life as it truly is. In this I portrayed the failure that must result from prejudice and intellectual pride when studying the marvellous mysteries of the Further World.

Filled with fervor, I wrote "Barabbas: A Dream of the World's Tragedy", a poetic romance which introduced with tenderness and reverence the Crucifixion and Ressurection of Christ. It met with an almost unprecedented success, the world over.

I followed up quickly with "The Sorrows of Satan", thus carrying out the preconceived intention of depicting the martyrdom which is always the world's guerdon to absolute good.

I then drew some of my threads of former argument together in "The Master Christian", wherein I depicted Christ as a child, visiting our world as it is today and sorrowfully observing the wickedness which men practice in His name.

These six books: "A Romance of Two Worlds", "Ardath", "The Soul of Lilith", "Barabbas", "The Sorrows of Satan" and "The Master Christian" are the result of a deliberately conceived plan and intention, and are all linked together by the one theory. They are the outcome of what I myself have learned, practiced and proved in the daily experiences, both small and great, of life. --Marie Corelli.

An unusual book. Olaf Jansen, a fisherman from Sweden, and his son, sailed by accident through the North Polar opening into the Hollow Interior of the Earth, and lived two years among its people. Olaf Jansen claims this is his true story as told to Willis George Emerson. He tells of a race of Super Giants, fifteen feet tall, far advanced scientifically, who treated them with the utmost kindness. He lived in peace and harmony and traveled all over their country. He claims they returned through the South Polar opening. The book is fascinating reading, with pictures, charts, maps. It's up to the reader to believe or disbelieve their story. They swear it is true.

The COMING of the SAUCERS

By FLYING SAUCER DISCOVERER Kenneth Arnold

The original flying saucer book! It was Kenneth Arnold who gave the saucers their name, and he wrote the best book of them all. Here it is, in print after ten years! This is the famous book that tells the true story of the death-dealing "Maury Island Incident" in which two Air Force Intelligence men lost their lives, and Arnold himself barely escaped with his skin. To those in the know, this story is the key to the whole U.F.O. mystery. Perhaps the entire significance of this amazing adventure will never be told, but what you will read in this book will stagger you. No fiction mystery could ever match this true story.

***The Ancient Atlantic***

By L. Taylor Hansen

THE MAGNIFICENT BIOGRAPHY OF AN OCEAN! FROM THE "BEGINNING" WHEN THE CONTINENTS WERE ONE, DOWN THROUGH THE EONS ENCOMPASSING ANCIENT ATLANTIS AND LEMURIA, NOBLE GREECE AND EGYPT, TO THE PRESENT WHEN SCIENCE IS REDISCOVERING THE PEOPLES WHO LIVED PRIOR TO THE GREAT DESTRUCTION, BEFORE EDEN

Where did man come from on this planet? How long has he been here? Who has he been - who is he now? Was there really an Atlantis, a Lemuria? Were there true civilizations hundreds of thousands of years ago? No more legend - now we have the proof! Incontestible scientific proof. And being further corroborated every day, in hundreds of ways.

THE ANCIENT ATLANTIC is a scientific, scholarly book, being, literally, the story of the Atlantic ocean from the very beginning, with the creation of the continents, the formation of the ocean itself, the tremendous geological events that have culminated in the world we know today. It is also an archaeological and ethnological history of the development of the civilizations of man around that ocean - for it was on Atlantis, in the center of this ocean, where mankind began. Every scientist will want this book; every library, every school. Yet this book is written so that EVERYBODY can understand it, ordinary people who know this old planet has had a wonderful and mysterious and tremendous past.

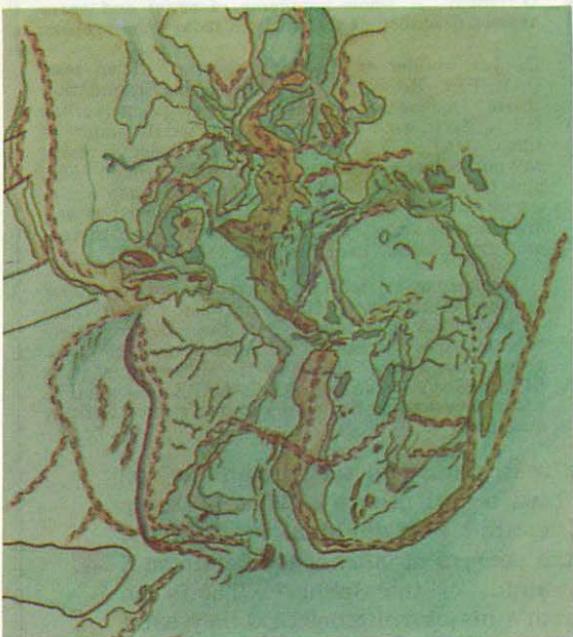

The book contains 440 8-1/2 x 11 pages, will weigh four pounds. It has 96 full-color illustrations and full-color maps. Have you ever seen a map of the REAL Atlantis, the one now revealed by the sonar soundings of the oceanographic expeditions?

You've heard the psychic predictions that one day Atlantis will rise again from the sea? Well, it IS rising! Not in any dim future, but now! One of the chief concerns of both our government and that of the Soviet is WHY there is yearly more land UNDER the Atlantic than the year before? Why is the ocean getting shallower? What will happen if the process continues? Do you think the atom bomb is the greatest threat to our continued existence as a civilization? Then you don't know the secrets of the Atlantic, where our destiny is being made!

You students of mythology - where is the ancient city of Ys, of Lyonnnesse, of Tyr-na-n-oge, of Hellas? Mythical cities? Not by a long shot! We know where they are, now! Did you know that the Loch Ness monster is no longer a folk-tale, but reality - photographed by the British Air Force - and "Nessie", as they call her, is really a plesiosaurus? Do you know where the "Dragon's Morass" is; Brunhilde's Bath; Charon's Crossing (where Cerebus ferried the dead across the river Styx); the ancient "labyrinth"; the Pillars of Hercules; Mt. Atlas; the lost Cassidies? Fairy tales, you thought? What a surprise you've got coming!

THIS WONDERFUL BOOK WON'T BE DELIVERED UNTIL EARLY 1968

However, because of the very high cost of producing the first edition, we are offering this opportunity to our friends to get a first edition copy at a saving of $7.50 and to help us in financing it. This edition of OAHSPE contains 928 pages. It also contains nearly three quarters of a million words.

Do you think flying saucers are new? Then read OAHSPE! A whole panorama of aerial and space vessels, described as though from today's newspapers.

Do you wonder at Einstein's theories? Then read OAHSPE! He could have gotten his information there! Uncounted thousands of tons of meteorites fall to Earth each day, yet space is nearly empty of them. OAHSPE knew it in 1882! Space is dark, say our daring astronauts. So did OAHSPE in 1882, and tells us why! Archaeologists have made amazing discoveries of ancient races and dead cities and civilizations since 1882. They might have discovered them sooner had they read OAHSPE.

Just where is Heaven? What do you do there? Is there anything for YOU to do when you get there — what kind of occupation? Is there really a Hell? Who manages the Earth, the Solar System, the Universe — and how? How do the different religions fit into God's one Universe? OAHSPE tells all this, and a thousand more answers to man's most difficult questions.

WHAT IS the real history of the human race on this planet (and on all others)? What is Man's origin, purpose, destiny? How did Man rise from the beast? What are the secrets of submerged continents, of the Great Pyramid, of the Sphinx? What is the history of the Earth's major religions? Do they exist on other planets?

line, the Panama Canal, and with the treaties made with Russia, we can expect nothing but trouble, but who cares? Nobody it seems!

Frankly we are not worried about some one across the seas - we are worried about the old lady across the street - the old man down the road - the American Indian in his pathetic dirt-floor hogan, not the foreign Indian who has had billions and still won't get off his hindparts to work the land that he has - we are worried about our own American children, especially those who try to earn their way through a life instead of asking their neighbors to support them while they sit back and laugh at the working people.

See what we mean about over-privileged, Mr. Palmer?

● We do still have one way to turn - to the polls. Next November, vote some people OUT, instead of IN. I knew in my heart that Johnson was wrong, last time, so I voted against him. Today I see a lot of people cursing their gullibility - and I can guess how they will vote in November. Let's hope we outnumber the freeloaders this time! However, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em! Your idea of abandoning the role of taxpayer is a good one. I've always thought it would be a good idea if everybody went on an unpaid vacation for three months - it would take sacrifice, but it might be worth it to see the freeloaders' "pay check" stop coming! And they couldn't complain - we'd all be without checks - and isn't that what they want: equality? - Rap.

Men Among Mankind

The course of history has been changed abruptly, from time to time, by certain unusual men who have suddenly appeared upon the human scene. They have been few in number, but their thought and action have influenced succeeding generations.

What sort of men were these? How has mankind utilized the knowledge these men have brought into the world?

DOES DANDRUFF MAKE YOU WANT TO HIDE YOUR HEAD IN SHAME?

You might as well, if you're going to let dandruff and scale and skin rash make you bald as an egg. You've bought plenty of preparations, and they don't work, you say? Of course they haven't! You've probably been cheated as many times as I have. I'll bet I've spent hundreds of dollars on jim-dandy goo, and wound up with worse dandruff than I started with. Made me plenty mad, too. I always get mad when I think of the lousy junk designed to chisel your honest dollars out of you. Mad enough so that when I find something good, I'm not bashful about telling my friends about it. And SEARCH readers are my friends. I had dandruff all my life, and despaired of getting rid of it, until one day Ken Arnold (the flying saucer man) left a half bottle of Turn-er's at my house, and flew off to Boise without it. I tried the stuff, because Ken's no slsyy, and he doesn't put perfume on his hair. Well, in one week my dandruff was gone! And my hair had begun to darken. My wife tried it, and her rash disappeared. You can bet we wrote Ken in a hurry and asked where he got it! And now, we're telling you. But don't just take our word for it—here are a few testimonials from our readers, to back us up.

As I have about used up one bottle of your hair preparation, please send me another. I have had very good results in ridding myself of dandruff and itching. Lionel O. Branberg, Sharon Springs, Kans.

Enclosed find money order for $10.00 for two more bottles of Turn-er's as soon as possible. You sure found a good product. In the sixth application my dandruff was cured. Thanks to you. It does all you say and more, too. And it sure brings back the natural color to your hair. Thanks! R. E. Van Gordon, 1905 W. Milham Road, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Enclosed please find check for $5.00 for another bottle of Turn-er's as soon as possible. I have been bedeviled by a terrible itching in my eyebrows for over thirty years. It seemed to be a large flaky dandruff, but if I combed it out too near the skin, a watery substance would start, causing a scab-like condition. I have been to dozens of doctors . . . none did the slightest bit of good. After reading what Ray Palmer said, I decided to try Turn-er's. After the sixth application, I have not had an itch in my brows, and the skin underneath is as clear and clean as my face. I certainly am thankful to Mr. Palmer for bringing such a fine product to my attention.—S. W. Crusen, 2336 Fillmore Ave., Buffalo 14, N. Y.
