EXTRACT :

The good in this world predominates over the bad; the good is ever increasing, the bad is ever diminishing. But, if God is Love, why is there any bad at all? Is the world like a novel, in which the villains are put in to make it more dramatic, and in which virtue only triumphs in the third volume? It is certain that the feelings of the created have in no way been considered. If, indeed, there were a judgment-day, it would be for man to appear at the bar, not as a criminal, but as an accuser. What has he done that he should be subjected to a life of torture and temptation? God might have made us all happy, and he has made us miserable. Is that benevolence? God might have made us all pure, and he has made us all sinful. Is that the perfection of morality? If I believed in this man-created God, in this divine Nebuchadnezzar, I would say, You can make me live in your world, O Creator, but you cannot make me admire it; you can load me with chains, but you cannot make me flatter you; you can send me to hell-fire, but you cannot obtain my esteem. And if you condemn me, you condemn yourself. If I have committed sins, you invented them, which is worse. If the watch you have made does not go well, whose fault is that? Is it rational to damn the wheels and the springs?

PRESS NOTICES :

It is really a remarkable book, in which universal history is "boiled down" with surprising skill. . . . The boldest, and, so far as historical argument goes, one of the ablest, assaults ever made upon Christianity.—[Literary World.]

His history has a continuity, a rush, a carrying power, which remind us strikingly of Gibbon.—[New Haven Palladium.]

The sketch of early Egyptian history, in the first chapter, is a masterpiece of historical writing. He has a style that reminds us of Macaulay.—[Penn Monthly.]

You turn over his pages with a fascination similar to that experienced in reading Washington Irving.—[Inter-Ocean.]

To readers who are attracted by the Darwinian literature, this book, with its quaint declaration that "Life is bottled sunshine," may also be recommended.—[Pittsburgh Eve. Chronicle.]

Whoever would be jostled into attention, and led into unwonted channels of thought, will find this volume full of interest and often of delight.—[New Covenant.]

THEOLOGY AND MYTHOLOGY.

An Inquiry into the Claims of Biblical Inspiration and the Supernatural Element in Religion.

By ALFRED H. O'DONOGHUE,
Counselor at Law, formerly of Trinity College, Dublin.

Extra Cloth, 12mo., 194 pp. . . . . Price, $1.00

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

An able and thorough treatment of the subject, remarkable for its candor, earnestness, and freedom from partisan bias.—Critical Review.

As a man of liberal education and wide reading, and one who thoroughly understands himself, and is actuated by an earnest desire to find the right, he deserves a hearing.—American Bookseller.

It has the brilliancy and felicity of many other Irish writings. The author was educated in the Episcopal church, and his dedication of his ability to free thought and speech will be widely appreciated.—Commonwealth (Boston).

The author is evidently well-read in the authorities pro and con, has a clear mental view of the case as it is, handles all the evidence as he would in a case at law, and expresses his opinions and convictions in a fearless manner. He treats the whole subject in a purely rationalistic manner—just as all subjects that interest the human race ought to be treated.—St. Louis Republican.

The book can be read by intelligent religionists without prejudice. There is no harm in understanding what the liberal mind is thinking about, and if mythology has anything to do with theology we should know it.—Kansas City Journal.

EXTRACTS.

"While at the Dublin University, with the intention, at the proper time, of entering the Divinity School, my mind underwent a great change, both as to the so-called truths of Revelation and the sincerity of belief held in those assumed truths by over three-fourths of the ordained and educated preachers of the gospel with whom I came in contact. . . I seek to eliminate the fictitious in Christianity as now taught."

"The doctrines that Jesus taught—the brotherhood of man and the condemnation of priestcraft—entitle him forever to the admiration and gratitude of his race . . . Jesus, like all great reformers, was himself in advance of the conscience, as well as the intelligence, of his age, but in order to render his mission at all successful, he was compelled to deal gently with the superstitions of his time. Probably he was not himself altogether divested of them."

"'The pale Galilean has conquered;' but it has only been by passing under the yoke of the conqueror, and assuming the banners, the emblems, and the passwords of the enemy. It is a conquest in which genuine Christianity has disappeared, or skulks behind altars, pillars, paintings, and music. Christianity as taught and understood by Jesus and his followers has ceased to exist for sixteen hundred years. Even the infant Church was driven to abandon the Communionistic idea that distinguished the first few years of its existence. In modern Christianity hardly a trace of the religion of Jesus is discernible. If Jesus and his true life were taken from Christianity, it is doubtful if it would excite notice, or, if noticed, cause regret, comment, or surprise."

Theory of Social Organization. By Charles Fourier. With an Introduction by Albert Brisbane. 12mo, 644pp., clo., $1.50.

Fourier's theory is radically misunderstood by the general public, and no true test of it has ever yet been made in practice. These volumes will do much toward furnishing a knowledge of the man and his teachings—Critical Review.

Socialism. A Reply to Roswell D. Hitchcock, D.D. By an Independent Socialist. 12mo, 67pp., pap., 25c; clo., 50c.

He blames Dr. Hitchcock that the latter perceives a huge human misery, but neither sees nor seeks any other solution than that the weakest must go to the wall. It is against this passiveness that "Socialist" cries out. Is there no help for the miserable? he asks. The doctrine that governments should merely "protect" he attacks, and insists that it should "assist" also. While he does not believe that "property is robbery," or wholly subscribe to "the world owes me a living," he affirms "the world owes me a chance to make a living."—N. Y. Herald.

THE SAFEST CREED,

AND

Twelve Other Recent Discourses of Reason.

By O. B. FROTHINGHAM.

THIRD EDITION.

Extra Cloth, 12mo, 238 pp., $1.

CONTENTS.—Safest Creed, Radical Belief, Radical's Root, Joy of a Free Faith, Living Faith, Gospel of To-Day, Gospel of Character, Scientific Aspect of Prayer, Naked Truth, Dying and Living God, Infernal and Celestial Love, Immortalities of Man, Victory Over Death.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

A vigorous thinker . . . as eloquent as Theodore Parker . . . so smoothly written that even those who cannot accept his deductions will yet be scarcely able to lay the book down till it is finished.—New Bedford Standard.

"To cherish no illusion" might be the text of every one of the discourses. There is everywhere a resolute attempt to adjust thought and life to what is really known, to accept the facts and then see what sustenance can be extracted from them. A book like this is certain to be widely read and to produce a deep impression.—Liberal Christian.

Mr. Frothingham is a gentleman of fine scholarly attainments, a superior writer and an eloquent speaker, and, judged by his intellect, liberality, progress and independence, is probably the best preacher in the United States at the present day. On what is human, natural, practical, useful and liberal, he is very conclusive, instructive, and gratifying, and gems of this kind are sparkling on every page of "The Safest Creed."—Boston Investigator.

Mr. Frothingham's idea of God is as noble a conception as ever emanated from the brain of a human being. He is painted in the finest and most charming colors. Mr. F.'s use of the brush is that of the most accomplished artist, and thinking men of every shade of opinion will find delight in the picture presented.—Jewish Times.

These discourses manifest deep thought, thorough conviction, and great ability.—Philadelphia Press.

The author of these discourses is the high priest of New England rationalism, and is the recognized exponent of the latest and most genteel phase of modern infidelity. None of his contemporaries can approach him in elegance of diction. He writes gracefully, in the richest garb of flowery rhetoric.—Albany Evening Journal.

The author has courage as well as sincerity, and presents his ideas with entire frankness, and with a clearness of style and intellectual strength which will command for them general attention. The book is printed on tinted paper, and is handsomely bound.—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

MEN, WOMEN, AND GODS, AND OTHER LECTURES.

By HELEN H. GARDENER.

WITH AN INTRODUCTION

By COL. R. G. INGERSOLL.

Published by THE TRUTH SEEKER COMPANY, 58 Lafayette Pl., New York.
Heavy paper, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper covers, 50 cents.

PRESS NOTICES.

[The Chicago Times is one of the most wide-awake and independent newspapers in America. Its daily circulation is 43,000 copies; its Sunday circulation is but a few hundred less than 50,000. The daily edition is never less than ten pages, while its Sunday edition often reaches twenty. Helen H. Gardener may therefore congratulate herself that her book has induced so widely read a journal to give its world an opinion so damaging to the claims of Christianity as the following notice of "Men, Women, and Gods:"]

"Men, Women, and Gods, and Other Lectures," by Helen H. Gardener, is a duodecimo volume of about 186 pages, containing three lectures with an appendix, setting forth some of the authorities from which the lecturer draws some of her material.

The first lecture gives the title to the book, the second is on "Vicarious Atonement," and the third on "Historical Facts and Theological Fictions."

All are keen, vigorous, and acrid attacks on the Christian church forms of theology. They can scarcely be said to be attacks on religion or religious feeling, since the flower of that plant is charity of thought and action, and in this Miss Gardener sees the highest end of man's emotional side, as in absolute freedom of investigation and opinion she sees the highest end of his intellectual side. Her leading purpose seems to be to show that women, of all persons, should least support the Bible and the churches which hold it in reverence.

The first lecture is a surprisingly bitter and scathing denunciation of the Old Testament as the sum of all cruelty and brutality toward women, and she makes up a startlingly strong case from the pages of the book itself. If any one does not think the case can be made strong let him read carefully this book and also the thirty-first chapter of "Numbers."

The second lecture arraigns vicarious atonement as an inexcusable injustice in itself, weakening and corrupting in its influence, like indiscriminate almsgiving, and points out that it is not peculiar to Christianity, but is found in some form in every religious system known in history.

Both these lectures are strong productions, but are disfigured with a good deal of flippant phrasing, designed, no doubt, to catch the popular attention by tickling the popular ear. The lecturer's strongest work is done in the third lecture, where her purpose is to show that our civilization is in no sense based upon Christianity, and that the Christian religion has especially not contributed to the elevation of woman in any respect. Here she drops largely her flippancy of style and settles down to earnest work.

Civilization she holds to be chiefly the creature of environment, the basis of which, in this world, is in climate and soil. In support of her view of the position of woman she quotes largely from Sir Henry Maine, showing among other things that the position of woman in Roman law and usage, before the introduction of Christianity, was in advance of what it is even now in some respects, and that the tendency of the canon (church) law was invariably to force her back into the degradation from which she had been rescued by a long and painful evolution.

In this lecture, too, she answers the questions as to what she would substitute for the sanctions of Christianity, and she takes considerable pains to show, what one would think need scarcely be insisted upon in our day, that the morals of civilization—morals in general, indeed—are not at all based on or dependent upon religion, certainly not on Christianity, since the so-called "golden rule," the highest principle of morality, antedates Christianity a thousand years.
