FACT INDISPUTABLE

Abraham Lincoln, a Spiritualist.

By Mrs. M. E. Williams

On Sunday evening, Feb. 10, Mrs. M. E. Williams lectured for the First Spiritualist Church of New York. The subject was "Abraham Lincoln, a Spiritualist." The largest assemblage of people ever gathered in that church, filled the auditorium, overflowing into the anti-rooms until further standing room could not be found. Mrs. Williams gave extraordinary information concerning Abraham Lincoln's introduction into Spiritualism. She handled her subject in a masterly and convincing manner proving conclusively that during the Civil War President Lincoln attended the seance held at the home of Wm. Laurie of Washington, D. C., where he was thoroughly convinced of the truth of spirit return, after which he engaged Miss Nettie C. Colburn (who was a well known lecturer and trance medium) to come to the White House, where she resided during the war, giving seances daily to Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln and members of his cabinet. Through communications from the higher life Mr. Lincoln was repeatedly requested to abolish slavery and told the war would not cease until he proclaimed the emancipation of the slaves, after which the Union force would not suffer defeat.

The lecture was a very remarkable one, and Mrs. Williams stated that the facts presented were all a matter of record and well authenticated, and it would give her pleasure to present copies of the same to that excellent journal IMMORTALITY.

The round of continuous applause showed the appreciation of a most intelligent audience.

HOW LINCOLN CAME TO ISSUE HIS EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION

Singular Scene in the White House.

A Mercury representative, one evening last week, listened to a remarkable story regarding the spiritualistic belief of Abraham Lincoln and the effect which spiritual force had upon the conception and issuance of the Emancipation Proclamation. The story was told by Colonel S. P. Kase, of Philadelphia, the millionaire railroad builder and close personal friend of the martyr President. At the close of the seance by Mrs. Williams, that lady said to Colonel Kase that before he died he should leave some record behind him of his personal knowledge of Mr. Lincoln's belief in Spiritualism and the guidance which Mr. Lincoln acknowledged he received through spiritualistic channels, during the stormy and perplexing days of the Civil War.

"Yes," Colonel Kase responded, "I have often thought of that, and will now give it to you for your Beacon Light." Mrs. Williams' amanuensis took down the Colonel's story, and she kindly furnished the Mercury representative with an advance copy.

"To answer your question in brief," Colonel Kase began, "I believe that President Lincoln was induced, by the knowledge received through Spiritualism, to issue his Proclamation of Emancipation. My knowledge on that subject is extensive. I had occasion to visit Washington in 1862 on railroad business. Arriving early in the afternoon, I took a walk down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol grounds. Passing a house near the grounds where I had formerly boarded, I saw the name of H. Conkling on the door. Mrs. Reeves had evidently moved away. I knew Conkling to be a writing medium. As I looked at the house a voice alongside of me said, 'Go in and see him. He is in the same room you used to occupy.' I had no power to move forward. I felt that I must enter the house and I did. As I entered the room Conkling was sitting in a corner and was in the act of sealing a letter. He at once said, 'Mr. Kase, I want you to carry this letter to the President. You can see him but I cannot.' I observed, 'I cannot take your letter: send it by mail.' He said, 'You must take it to him, otherwise he will not see it.' I replied, 'I can't take your letter, as I am not acquainted with the President and I am on important business and want to be introduced to him under different auspices than delivering a letter I know nothing about.' Immediately the voice behind me said, 'Go see what will become of this.' It was the same voice that I had heard upon the street. My mind changed instantly.

I said, 'I will go if you will go along, too. Give me the letter.' Conkling said, 'I cannot see him but you can.' All this time Conkling remained in an abnormal state. We arrived at the White House about dusk. I rang the bell and a servant opened the door.

"The President was at tea, but would see me after that. When we had entered the parlor, Conkling said, 'I cannot see him, but you can.' Presently the servant came to the door and invited me forward. He opened the door of the President's room. The President was coming forward to meet me, but as he saw me he drew back, apparently a little frightened." (It might be said that Colonel Kase is a perfect image of George Washington and his resemblance to the first President may have forcibly struck Mr. Lincoln) "I remarked, 'This is the President, Mr. Lincoln, I presume.' He hesitated, but finally said, 'Yes.' I said, 'My name is S. P. Kase, of Danville, Pennsylvania. 'Oh,' he remarked, 'you are from Pennsylvania. Be seated.' I took a chair on one side of the table, he on the other. Mr. Lincoln began to draw me out about Pennsylvania and the then condition of things there. We discussed politics and the war question for half an hour. I found him very affable and agreeable. I handed him the Conkling letter and after reading it he looked at me and said, 'What does this mean?' I answered, 'I do not know, Mr. President, but presume it means just what it says.'

"He again read it over to himself very carefully and said again, 'What can this mean,' I reiterated what I had said. 'You think it means what it says, but do not know its contents,' he said, to which I smilingly said I thought so. 'Well, sir,' he observed 'I will read it to you,' which he did. The letter read:

"'I have been sent from the City of New York by spiritual influences, to confer with you pertaining to the interests of the nation. I cannot return until I have an interview. Please appoint the time. Yours, etc.

'H. B. Conkling'.

"The President turned to me and said: 'What do you know about Spiritualism?' 'I know but very little, sir,' I replied, 'but what I know you are welcome to.' Mr. Lincoln seemed much interested in the narrative of my experiences. He said, 'Tell Conkling I will see him from nine until ten o'clock on Sunday.' I said, 'Please, Mr. President, write him a letter,' and he replied, 'yes, I will write him.' I then left. I wrote a memorial and bill for the railroad I was interested in and got a favorable report from the committee on roads and canals. I was standing in the gallery feeling well satisfied with the result of my railroad mission when an old lady approached me and handed me a card, saying, 'Call any time it will suit you.' I was surprised but took the card. The old lady was Mrs. Laurie, of Georgetown, and I learned from Judge Wattles, who was standing close by, that she was a spiritualist. The judge and I called that night about eight o'clock and who should we meet but the President and Mrs. Lincoln.

"Mr. Lincoln shook hands with me very cordially and we entered into conversation. This was about four weeks after I had given him Conkling's letter. Soon I observed a young girl come walking towards the President from the other end of the large parlor. I had not noticed her in the room previously. Her eyes were closed and she was stroking her chin. She came up close to the knee of the President and said: 'Sir, you were called to the position you occupy for a very great purpose. The world is universally in bondage. It must be physically set free so that it may mentally rise to its proper status. There is a spiritual congress supervising the affairs of this nation as well as a congress at Washington. This republic will lead the van of republics throughout the world.'

"This was a text upon which she lectured the President for a full hour and a half, dwelling strongly on the importance of the emancipation of the slaves, saying that the war could not end unless slavery was abolished. Among other things she prophesied that from the time of the issuing of the emancipation proclamation there would be no reverses to the Union armies. I never listened to a lecture so grand and sublime and so full of thought as this delivered by a little girl, who must have been under deep control of the spirit of some ancient philosopher. The President listened with the greatest attention thruout her discourse.

"It was a scene that could never be erased from the mind, bringing to mind the passage in the Scriptures where the head of the nation was being taught wisdom by babes and sucklings. The girl woke up out of her trance condition and, frightened at the thought of speaking before the President, ran off. Then the piano began to play and looking in that direction I saw Mrs. Laurie's daughter playing, with her eyes closed, apparently entranced. The piano rose up and beat the time of the tune played on it. When she had played the tune I asked the privilege of sitting on the instrument that I might be able to verify to the world that it moved to the tune of the music. She observed, at once: 'You may get on the piano and as many more as you think proper.' Judge Wattles' two soldiers, who came with the President and myself, got on it. She began to play and the instrument commenced to move up and down with all four of us on it. Its motion was so violent that we got off it and stood alongside till she played out the tune. The President sat looking at us all through this performance, apparently much interested. About eleven o'clock we all returned to our respective homes. Two evenings following I went to Mrs. Laurie's where I again met the President and Mrs. Lincoln. The President was again lectured by the little girl and the instrument was played as before stated. Sufficient be it to say that within some three or four weeks after these manifestations and interviews President Lincoln issued his Emancipation Proclamation, to take effect on January 1, 1863, so that I am fully assured within my own mind that the various spiritual manifestations witnessed, together with information received on the subject, fully convinced President Lincoln of the necessity of issuing his great Proclamation. It is well, however, to refer to the prophecies made by the little girl, saying the war could not end unless slavery was abolished and that no reverses should occur to the Union armies after the Emancipation Proclamation was promulgated. I believe we had twenty-six battles after this great event and were all successful on the Union side, except possibly one or two unimportant skirmishes. You may think this a rather tedious detail of my knowledge on this point, but in order to be truthful and to hand it down as it actually occurred, I conceived it necessary to be explicit in my details of facts connected with such a great historical event."

Colonel Kase added that when Mrs. Lincoln was put into an asylum as insane, because she claimed to hear spirit voices, he wrote to the son, Robert Lincoln, then Secretary of the Interior and told him about his mother's Spiritualism and that she was a medium, and stated that if he (the son) left her in the asylum he would be responsible for any harm that should happen to her. Four days after he wrote this letter Mrs. Lincoln was removed from the asylum by order of Robert Lincoln.

Mrs. Nettie Colburn Maynard.

We learn from the New York Sun of Sunday last that a very important materialization seance was held at the residence of Mrs. Maynard in White Plains, N. Y., on Friday, April 3rd, 1891, under remarkable circumstances. It is as follows:

"The scene," says the reporter, "was the sick room in which Mrs. Nettie Colburn Maynard, the once famous medium and now the wife of the postmaster of White Plains, has been confined to her bed for nearly ten years, a helpless and suffering, but patient, invalid.

"For most of this time she has been engaged in dictating to an amanuensis a book containing an account of her seances in Washington with Lincoln, Seward, Stanton and Chase during the critical period of the nation's history.

"It is well known among those who know Lincoln at all intimately that the emancipation proclamation was issued by direction of a spirit said to have been that of Webster speaking through Nettie Colburn, as she was then known. For two years, from 1863 to 1865, Mrs. Maynard was engaged exclusively by President Lincoln, and made her home in the White House, where she gave the President seances almost daily.

"Careful notes were kept of all those important communications, and the book was completed and put into the hands of S. B. Brittan for publication several years ago. He died soon afterward and the manuscript was lost. Mrs. Maynard heroically set to work to rewrite the history, having, as she says, been assured that she would be assisted by her spirit friends and kept alive until the task was finished.

"To verify certain dates and other details, Mrs. Maynard has, during the progress of the work, consulted the spirit of Lincoln and other spirits. During the last two years, while she has been lying in exactly the same position on her bed, her hands and feet twisted terribly by rheumatism, she has been further favored by the visits of Mrs. M. E. Williams of this city, through whose mediumship the shades of the invalid's departed friends visited her in visible and tangible shape, bringing her strength and counsel. The last of these seances was held yesterday in the sick chamber of the cozy house in White Plains.

"The 'cabinet' consisted of an impromptu arrangement of curtains of soft black woolen stuff drawn across one corner of the room. Those who were privileged to be present were Henry J. Newton, General and Mrs. Wentworth, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Hill, Charles Quinely, Mrs. Colburn, Mrs. Marble, W. E. Hantrauft, Miss Gertrude Williams and the reporter. These occupied chairs arranged around two sides of the room.

"The medium took her seat behind the curtains about three o'clock, and, despite some fear expressed by her as to the effects of poor conditions as to light, arrangements and sick magnetism the seance that ensued was one of the most remarkable in the history of Spiritualism.

"In the dim red light from a small lamp with colored glass sides, no less than twenty-three different individuals emerged from the cabinet, walked about the room, were recognized as the shades of departed friends, and conversed with Mrs. Maynard and others.

"Those in the circle were singing 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' when suddenly a form in feminine white drapery appeared, and extended her arms towards the company. It was explained that this was 'Priscilla,' one of the medium's guides who usually appeared first to 'bless the circle.' She faded away as silently as she had come.

"Then the voice of 'Nevernie' a little maiden, well known as the medium's familiar spirit, was heard, followed by that of 'Frank Cushman,' the cabinet spirit. Congressman Somes of Maine, an intimate friend of Lincoln, came out, and walked up to Mrs. Maynard's bedside to give her the precise dates of some events accounted in the latter part of her book which she had been trying in vain for weeks past to remember. The shade of Lincoln, tall, stern, dark and sad looking, appeared for a few moments, gave Mrs. Maynard assurance as to some details in her story, and promised to control her and communicate more fully and particularly as to these events later.

"Gen. Morgan Chrysler, who commanded the Thirtieth New York Regiment, appeared in his Brigadier's uniform, and was recognized by Mrs. Maynard and her sister, Mrs. Colburn. He reminded them of a certain evening in Washington, twenty years ago, and of a practical joke that occurred, after which they gave him the nickname of 'Duck Legs.'

"Frank Cushman, and his sister Mary appeared together, and greeted the company courteously. Other occasions when two spirits distinctly appeared together were the apparitions of 'Katie Robinson' and 'Achsa W. Sprague' in company, and of little 'Nervernie' and a boy named 'Eddie Young', known to several present when in the flesh.

"Mrs. Colburn, the mother of Mrs. Maynard, came to her sick daughter's bedside and comforted her with voice and touch, as did her sister Julia, who died only two weeks ago. Both conversed earnestly about family matters.

"The other spirits that appeared in quick succession during the two hours of the seance were those of Dr. S. K. Beecher, a cousin of the Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher, and Mrs. Maynard's old physician, Dr. J. R. Newton, Dr. Warren, Mrs. Cora Dyes Clough, Bessie Turner, E. V. Wilson, Mr. Clymer, Daniel Hale, of Chicago, Margaret Fuller authoress, Dr. Cutler, Preston T. Holland, who discoursed briefly on the philosophy of Spiritualism, and last, 'Pinkie' the control of Mrs. Maynard, said to be an Aztec 'princess who lived in Mexico five hundred years ago.' She was radiant in jewels of phosphorescent light that decorated her hair and her dress, and of which she was evidently very proud.

"Dr. Holland's discourse brought the seance to an end. All present expressed their extreme satisfaction with the manifestation, and the invalid, for whom the seance was chiefly given, said she had been greatly comforted and strengthened.

"I am thoroughly convinced of the truth of Spiritualism, and that Mrs. Williams is one of its greatest exponents. "Paul Tynar,

"Reporter for New York Sun."

N. B. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, solicited the privilege of sending Mr. Tyner to report the seance.

Healing in Spiritualism

An important phase of mediumship is that of healing. Many are not aware of the fact that some of our mediums possess this valuable gift. It is being demonstrated daily in thousands of homes. One of our best drugless practitioners, John Heiss, 40 West 73rd Street, New York, N. Y., a well-known Chiropractor, recently admitted that his success was due to a large extent to the spirit forces who frequently work through him and who direct his hands. Healing through mediumship may be demonstrated in various forms, just as in the case of the gift of writing through mediumship. We have, for example, impressional writing, automatic writing, writing by clair-audience, writing by clairvoyance, etc. The gift of healing has been known to man from the earliest days of history and especially during the period of 2000 years ago, about which the Bible contains numerous references. Today this gift is again being universally demonstrated more than ever before.
