Rosicrucian Predictive Symph

Predicts the Fate, Fortune, or Luck of any person for any period of time with their chances for or against Success in Love, Money, Speculations, Travels, Trusting others, Recovering losses, etc., etc.

The surprising results following the use of this Oracle are such as to have excited the wonder of many of the wisest and best men of both the Old and the New World.

It is claimed that if this Symph is used with reverence and not with ridicule and if the caution not to repeat the same experiment on the same day be observed the results will invariably be found astonishingly correct. The old Chaldeans believed that when the demand for knowledge is strong enough the soul of the inquirer guides him to the correct answer to his question.

In this Rosicrucian Symph, which is simply an Ancient Science moulded into a key to human nature, we have an Oracle second to none ever yet produced for the prediction of the future and one that is claimed to bring the consulter into close touch with the finer forces of the Universe.

Group One

1. Yes, Truth compels a strangely potent yes!
The hovering fates your onward pathway bless . . . . . Y
2. Beware, a snare—the tiger's lair—take care—forebear
Awhile, then triumph comes. Be wise. Prepare! . . . . . N
3. Your sun rises but after a storm has passed along.
Of lies, deceit, beware. Sing thou the Victor's Song . . . . D
4. If the attempt should not well succeed
'Twill be that thou art careless. Thenceforth, take heed N
5. A good day blackens into gloomy night
Beware a fall, a woman tall, a quarrel and a fight. . . . . N
6. Joy crowns thee with garlands fair and comely.
There comes good fortune through a person homely . . . . . Y
7. Hey day! Raimond Lully, Rosicrucia's King
Declares this fall to thee doth wondrous fortune bring . . . . Y

Group Two

1. Good Fortune now opens her gates unto thee
And soon you sail beyond a troubled sea.
2. Let caution tip thy tongue and speech
Patience will win the combat.
3. Sorrow hath wings: Fear not; all's we'll.
Tenderly treat your fallen foe.
4. Consider well what you're about and what you are going to do.
Joking will prove dangerous to you
5. Thrice armed is he who hath his quarrel just.
Many fair days follow this ill luck.
6. Thy troubles o'er; regret no more.
A New Love passes through thy door.
7. Seven times seven Good Spirits round thee cling.
Fear not: all's well: Sorrow hath taken wing.

Key to Yearly Symph

This Symph is for the days of any month of any year, present or future.

Take cards numbered from 1 to 28, 29, 30 or 31, according to the days in any special month. (These cards are to be kept for your own use—have another set for your friends). Proceed as in the Weekly Symph. Earnestly desire to know if you should or should not pursue any proposed course or plan in matters of money, business, love, travels, trusting another, recovering losses, if a party be true or false, in short anything you please being careful to keep the subject of your questioning clearly defined in your mind and earnestly desiring to be guided aright in the selection of the card. When you are impressed to pick up a certain card do so and consult the corresponding number thereon upon each of the three groups of the Yearly Symph. Never, on any account, repeat the same experiment or wish the same day; if you do you lose all power in this form of Predictive Science. When the answer does not have direct application, the letters will fully answer the question.

Y for Yes, (or Good)

N for No, (or Bad)

D for Doubtful, (or Indifferent)

Key to Weekly Symph

This symph is for the purpose of finding what any day of the week will bring to you of good or ill, naming the day.

Take cards, or slips of paper and number them from 1 to 7. Hold them a moment in the palm of the left hand with the right hand resting lightly upon them. Then mix them well and spread upon the table numbers down, all the while keeping your question clearly defined in your mind. Face the East and gently raise and wave your hand over the table, up and down, for a minute or two, at the same time earnestly desiring that you may be impelled to touch the card that will answer your question correctly.

You will soon be strongly impressed to drop a finger upon a certain card; take it and consult the corresponding number thereon upon the two groups of the Weekly Symph.

Key to Monthly Symph

This is for any particular month of the present or a future year. Take cards numbered from 1 to 12 and proceed as in the Weekly Symph. Consult the corresponding number thereon, upon the two groups of the Monthly Symph.
