INTRODUCTION

The Special Committee on Un-American Activities Authorized to Investigate Nazi Propaganda Activities and Certain Other Propaganda Activities, was constituted pursuant to House Resolution 198, 73rd Congress, adopted by the House of Representatives on March 20, 1934. House Resolution 198, 73rd Congress, introduced on January 3, 1934, by Representative Samuel Dickstein, of New York, provided in part as follows:

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House of Representatives be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint a special committee to be composed of seven Members for the purpose of conducting an investigation of (1) the extent, character, and objects of Nazi propaganda activities in the United States, (2) the diffusion within the United States of subversive propaganda that is instigated from foreign countries and attacks the principle of the form of government as guaranteed by our Constitution, and (3) all other questions in relation thereto that would aid Congress in any necessary remedial legislation.

On April 5, 1934, the Speaker of the House, the Hon. Henry T. Rainey, acting in accordance with the resolution, appointed Messrs. John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, (chairman); Samuel Dickstein, of New York; Charles Kramer, of California; Thomas A. Jenkins, of Ohio; J. Will Taylor, of Tennessee; and U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, members of the special committee. The Committee named Representative Samuel Dickstein to act as their vice chairman and designated the Hon. Thomas W. Hardwick, of Georgia, to serve as committee counsel.

The considerations which had persuaded the House of Representatives to authorize the investigation of Nazi and other propaganda activities were described by the chairman of the committee, Representative John W. McCormack, in a statement made at the beginning of the first session of the public hearings of the committee, held in Washington, D. C., on June 5, 1934: "A period of profound and protracted depression has followed in the wake of the World War. It has been world-wide. More than 15 years have elapsed since the ending of that war, but its blighting effect upon the economic life and upon the morale of practically all the people of the world still exists. During such a period of unrest, discontent with the existing order, and a widespread agitation for changes in the form, character, and substance of governments has spread over the world, overturning established governments and resulting in many new and radical experiments in government.

"In Europe, almost without exception, governmental systems that sought to guarantee the rights and liberties of the citizens were overthrown and either Communism or Fascism was installed. In either instance, whether the movement was to the right or to the left, despotism supplanted freedom under parliamentary government and the rights and liberties of the people perished. Freedom of the press, freedom of speech, and freedom of assemblage were denied to the people under either system. In these circumstances, with so large a percentage of its population of foreign, usually European, origin, the House of Representatives has keenly sensed and fully realized the danger of vicious propaganda of foreign origin aimed at the subversion of those fundamental principles upon which our Constitution rests and seeks to investigate the extent and origin of such propaganda, with the ultimate object of protecting this country and its people from its dissemination."

In the debate over House Resolution 198, 73rd Congress, on the floor of the House of Representatives, Representative Samuel Dickstein characterized the objective of the committee as follows: "This special investigating committee should seek to accomplish three primary objects: First, ascertain the facts about methods of introduction into this country of destructive, subversive propaganda originating from foreign countries; second, ascertain facts about organizations in this country that seem to be cooperating to spread this alien propaganda through their membership in this country; third, study and recommend to the House the appropriate legislation which may correct existing facts and tend to prevent the recurrence of a similar condition in the future."

Pursuant to House Resolution 198, 73rd Congress, the committee conducted public and executive hearings intermittently between April 26, 1934, and December 29, 1934, in Washington, D. C., New York, N. Y., Chicago, Ill., Los Angeles, Calif., Asheville, N. C., and Newark, N. J. The committee examined hundreds of witnesses; its record of testimony amounted to more than 4,300 pages. Evidence was taken by the committee concerning individuals and organizations who worked to establish in the United States policies followed by the regimes of Nazi Germany, Fascist Italy, and Communist Russia.

Among the persons and organizations investigated by the committee to discover evidence of Nazi activities, were Fritz Gissibl, Kurt Georg Wilhelm Luedicke, Heinz Spanknoebel, George Sylvester Viereck, Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, Reinhold Walter, certain members of the German diplomatic corps, representatives of German steamship lines, Friends of New Germany, Silver Shirts of America, Order of '76, and American Vigilante Intelligence Federation. The Committee gave special attention to the organization and activities of the Friends of New Germany and the Silver Shirts of America. Evidence was adduced before the committee showing that the conditions of membership in the Friends of New Germany were "the same as membership in the National Socialist German Labor Party; that its principles were the same; that it permitted only those of so-called 'Aryan blood,' born in Germany or of German descent, to join, and that it was fashioned entirely along the lines of the Nazi Party of Germany; that it was receiving and recognized orders from Germany; that it was for all practical purposes, if not in fact, the American section of the Nazi movement in Germany" Evidence taken by the committee disclosed that the Silver Shirts of America, modeled after the Storm Troops of Germany, were founded by William Dudley Pelley early in 1933, with headquarters in Asheville, North Carolina; that Pelley had established chapters of "Silver Shirts" throughout the United States, over which he exercised the powers of a dictator; that Pelley had made overtures to Nazi leaders and groups in the United States, besides employing an emissary to certain officials of German steamship lines engaged in furthering Nazi aims in the United States; that many "Silver Shirts" in San Diego had been armed; that Government ammunition from North Island had come into their hands by wrongful means; and that the "Silver Shirts" were utilizing a target range for firearms practice and maneuvers. In the course of the committee's investigation of Nazi activities, William Dudley Pelley and his adjutant, Robert Summerville, were convicted in Buncombe County, North Carolina, of the felony of selling stock without authorization and registration, in violation of the Blue Sky Law of that State. The collapse of the "Silver Shirts" legion ensued. From the evidence in its record, the committee concluded that through strenuous efforts, progress had been made in rooting Nazi ideology in the United States, but that the exposure of this activity by the committee had checked the progress and had, in addition, launched a disintegration of the movement furthering its advancement.

Among those furnishing evidence to the committee on Fascist activities was Major General Smedley D. Butler, who testified as to conversations with one Gerald C. MacGuire, in which the latter was alleged to have suggested the formation of a Fascist army under the leadership of General Butler. Evidence was submitted to the committee tending to show Fascist activities by an Italian vice consul at Detroit, Michigan. The committee, taking cognizance of activities of organizations which seemed to be guided by Fascist principles, conducted a probe of these organizations, finding that their activities were making no headway. In the course of its inquiry, the committee found only isolated cases of Fascist activity, and concluded that efforts to implant Fascist ideology in the United States were making no progress.

For the discovery of evidence concerning Communist activities, the committee took the testimony of several leaders of the Communist Party in the United States, including Earl Browder, general secretary to the Communist Party, and James W. Ford, a member of the executive committee of that party. In addition, the committee conducted a series of public hearings in December 1934, at Washington, D. C., at which representatives of organizations and agencies that had been studying and investigating Communist activities presented statements of their findings accompanied with recommendations for remedial action. The findings of the committee concerning Communist activities paralleled those of the Special Committee to Investigate Communist Activities in the United States, constituted by the House of Representatives in the Seventy-first Congress, with Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, as chairman. The latter committee reported to the House of Representatives, on January 17, 1931, that the "principles and aims of Communists in Moscow and Communists in Berlin, Paris, London, New York, Los Angeles, Tokyo, and Peking are the same; they stand on the same platform and advocate the same principles, and all take their orders from the Communist International, with headquarters in Moscow, and obey them implicitly;" and that the ultimate and final objective of Communism is to establish "one world union of soviet socialist republics with the capital at Moscow." (H. Rept. 2290, 71st Congress, 3rd session.)

The committee's record of information and data on Nazi, Fascist, and Communist activities was derived largely from the testimony and exhibits received at public and executive hearings; from the findings of the staff of committee investigators; and from information either volunteered to the committee by citizens and representatives of private organizations desirous of assisting the committee's undertaking or supplied by agencies of the Federal and State governments in response to requests of the committee for specific information. Furthermore, in obtaining facts for the guidance of its inquiry and in framing recommendations for remedial legislative action, the committee had recourse to the results of the work of two earlier House committees that had conducted investigations of Communist and Nazi activities; namely, the Special Committee to Investigate Communist Activities in the United States, 71st Congress, and the subcommittee of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization that had made an informal investigation of Nazi activities in the latter part of the first session of the 73rd Congress. Upon a record thus compiled, the committee submitted its report to the House of Representatives on February 15, 1935, embodying the findings and recommendations for remedial legislation derived from its inquiry (H. Rept. 153, 74th Congress, 1st session). The testimony taken at the public hearings was published and was submitted to the House as a part of the report.

The Special Committee on Un-American Activities Authorized to Investigate Nazi Propaganda and Certain Other Propaganda Activities, sometimes called the McCormack-Dickstein Committee, after the names of its chairman and vice chairman, is the forerunner of the House Un-American Activities Committee, established in 1938 as a special committee and now a standing committee of the House of Representatives.
